DON CUMPTON Looks back on first year as HEDC executive director.

One year of learning

Cumpton found HEDC job tougher than he expected

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor A year ago, an enthusiastic Don Cumpton grabbed the reins at the Hereford Economic Development Corp.

Now Cumpton says the job is fun, but it's been a real learning experience.

"It's beén different and a lot tougher than I thought it would be," Cumpton said. "The job's fun. There's a lot of excitement, but there are some slow times when there's not much going on. There are also some times when a lot's going on."

Cumpton assumed the responsibilities as HEDC executive director on May 1, 1999, succeeding Mike Hatley.

When he took the HEDC position, Cumpton, a former Hereford High School football coach and administrator, had been serving as executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Since then, there has been one very visible change — HEDC moved out of Hereford City Hall and now shares office space with the chamber, which built an addition at its 701 N. Main location, enabling the two economic development agencies to pool their resources.

Annual plant sale enters 22nd year

By Becky Thorn

Hereford Brand Lifestyles Editor

Spring showers bring May flowers, but even a spring without showers will bring flowers to Hereford, thanks to L'Allegra Study Club's annual plant sale.

The sale will be May 4-5 at the Hereford Community Center, 100 Ave. C.

Included in the sale will be 4-inch potted geraniums for $2.50 in red, hot pink and salmon; geranium hanging baskets for $12.50; fern hanging baskets for $10; and an assortment of 4-inch annuals and perennials for $2-$2.50.

Sale hours will be noon-6 p.m. Thursday and from 9 a.m. Friday until all the plants are sold.

Proceeds from this year's sale will benefit the E.B. Black House.

The sale has been a major fund-raising project for the club since 1978, although it was primarily a geranium sale at that time. Annually, the club has only two major fund-raisers and proceeds from both are used for various projects within the community.

Contributing to Hereford has been one of the main purposes of L'Allegra (which is French for "Merry Women") since its establishment in 1946.

Its by-laws state "the object of the club is threefold: to study topics of general interest to members, to carry out projects of civil and social improvements and to promote good fellowship among members by social visits."

"We really are a study club, not a service club, but we end up doing what a service club does. As a study club, we do try to get a subject and handle it," past president Sylvia Khuri said.

L'Allegra is also recognized for another major project they have sponsored since 1986 — Project Christmas Card.

"This project was started by the Hereford Medical/Dental Auxiliary in 1956. Its purpose was to raise funds to purchase equipment or needed items for the hospital that were not provided for in the annual budget," incoming president Melissa Clarke said.

L'Allegra has carried on the duties of the project since the auxiliary voted to turn the fund-raiser over to them.

Project Christmas Card is held just prior to Christmas each year and area residents are asked to contribute an amount equal to what they would spend in sending Christmas cards. Then a list of contributors is published in the Christmas Eve edition of the Hereford Brand.

While proceeds from Project Christmas Card are automatically designated for the

In with the old, in with the new

Mike Temple bought the old Loerwald Brothers Welding shop because of what's in the building, not just because he wanted a building for his business.

Temple, who recently purchased the landmark business from Raymond Lueb, said the equipment housed in the old building at 231 W. 2nd is irreplacable.

Pointing at a table-mount drill press, Temple said, "That's from 1941, and that's two years older than me. ... There's a strip hammer that I don't know how old is, except it's an early 1900s model.

"The place is functionally operational," Temple said. "I'm working hard to return the place to durability. It'll probably take a month to six weeks to handle the structural problems."

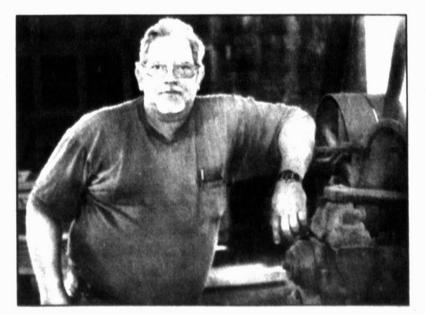

Temple said he bought the building and the equipment, but not the name.

However, although the new name of the business will be changed to Battlehammer Iron Works, Temple said the shop will retain its old atmosphere.

His plans call for erecting an ornamental iron work fence and gate on the 2^{nd} Street side of the building, improve the durability of the building, replace the roof on the back part of the building, clean and paint both the interior and exterior, but otherwise, it will stay like it was.

Also, when the office is rehabilitated and made

SPS plans to sell 5 power plants

AMARILLO - Southwestern Public Service Co. plans to sell at least two-thirds of its generating capacity to competitors beginning next year.

The changes should mean a 7-percent reduction in future electricity costs to most of its Texas customers. The changes will allow SPS customers to in choosing among competing power suppliers as early as Jan. 1, 2002, according to SPS president David Wilks.

Among the plants the company plans to sell are Muleshoe's Tolk Station, coal-fueled; Amarillo's Harrington Station, coalfueled; Lubbock's Jones Station, natural gas-fueled; Dumas' Moore County Plant, natural gas-fueled; and either one of two natural gas-fueled plants near Hobbs, N.M.

hospital, proceeds from the plant sale have benefitted many community projects.

Over the years, they have been used to assist the labor camp hospital, Girlstown, local athletic clubs, the Satellite training center, YMCA, Hereford Community Center, the public health clinic, Hereford Day Care, and special education classes in the Hereford schools.

In recent years, proceeds from the plant sale have gone to Hereford Aquatic Center, Hereford Beautification Alliance, sponsoring an Amarillo Little Theatre production for Hereford school children, and last year to the Chamber of Commerce to purchase Christmas snowflake decorations.

One project of an unusual nature was a donation to the Deaf Smith County Historical Society to help pay for the bronze bust of Erastus "Deaf" Smith.

Officers of the club are Judy Wall, president; Melissa Clarke, vice president; Shelly Moss, recording secretary; Karen Payne, corresponding secretary; Sandy Josserand, treasurer; Shelley Menke, assistant treasurer; Ella Marie Veigel, historian; and Diana Griffin, parliamentarian.

Cumpton

Cumpton said the year has contact with "a lot of differshown him that "there are so many things involved in every aspect — little things. You have to have all the bases covered. That's why the first year has been such a learning experience."

"I've learned on the job and from other people involved in economic development in the Panhandle region and all across the state," Cumpton said.

He said he has received assistance, as well as advice, from Mike Bourn, executive director of the Amarillo Economic Development Corp., and the High Ground of Texas, a consortium of the top 26 counties in the Texas Panhandle. Both Bourn and the High Ground group have helped Cumpton in his marketing strategy.

"I've learned a lot about marketing, not just Hereford but the whole Panhandle, Cumpton said. Also, he said there is a spirit of cooperation among economic development agencies in the Panhandle, noting he has been put in touch with some prospects by other area communities.

"If something goes to Ama-rillo, it helps Hereford and if something comes here, it helps Amarillo," he said.

During the past year, Cumpton said he has been in ent possibilities, of different types of industry and manufacturing - different types of job-creating companies." "We haven't landed anything yet, but we've come close. ... I still believe we have a lot to offer people. I think it's just a matter of time until we get together with something that'll work," he said.

Cumpton does point with pride to two developments during his first year - the decisions by two grain giants, Farmland Industries and Archer Daniels Midland (ADM), to locate in Hereford.

Farmland Industries bought out Frito-Lay, subsequently expanding the grain-handling complex on the east side of Hereford; ADM has begun its operations of a grain-handling complex west of Hereford.

"They've added $7 million to $8 million to the county's tax base and employed some people. We've done anything we could in trying to make locating in Hereford a pleasant experience," he said. As he looks forward to another year at HEDC, Cumpton said his goals will be realistic.

"Listen, you have to be realistic. We're not going to get Dell Computers to move to Hereford, we understand that, but when something does come along, we will make our move," he said. "I just want to see some positive things happen to our economic development.

"The most frustrating thing to me is this: It just takes time. You have to be patient, you have to stay with it," he said.

In trying to improve Hereford's chances in bringing new companies into the community, Cumpton said he's brought both the website -http://www.herefordtx.com --and the HEDC brochures up to date.

"We've had some inquiries off the website - not a lot, but some - and we always refer everyone to it. But I really believe the best way is just word of mouth and personal contacts. Anytime I get a hint of a prospect, I try to follow up," he said. One of those contacts that Cumpton hopes will come to fruition is the possibility of bringing a Sears, Roebuck & Co. store to Hereford.

"It's not 100 percent certain, but they're working on it," he said.

His years of experience as a football coach are coming in handy, Cumpton said.

"I think the coaching background helps. You have to have a game plan and go execute it. You have to get people to believe in what you're trying to do," he said.

When trying to sell Hereford to a company, Cumpton said he believes the biggest asset is the people, a business-friendly attitude, available labor, reasonably priced real estate and quality of life.

"Sometimes we forget what we have. When some of these big city folks come here, they can see the sunset and they will stop and look. We often take it for granted," he said.

"I'd really like to see us get something going where we can create some building, like we had several years ago with building of homes. Obviously, that would be the ultimate, to get enough to create that kind of atmosphere.

"I think we have a lot more pluses than minuses here. We're not booming, but there are a lot of people here who remember when that was the case. ... We have too many empty buildings now ...

"But we just need to make something happen," Cumpton said. "It's just like when I was coaching. You can tell the players what we need to do, but the bottom line is you gotta do it. As a community, we need to make something happen."

THE VILLAGE SMITHY

Lueb was last of line working at family's shop

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Editor , aymond Lueb was a young Korean War veteran when he started working as a blacksmith at Loerwald Brothers.

Nearly 50 years later, Lueb was the last of the family he was a cousin of the Loerwald brothers - still working at the shop. Lueb bought into the business in 1982 when Ed Loerwald retired. When George Loerwald retired in 1995, Lueb recalled that his partner told him to keep the business "open as long as you want to."

For another five years, he did.

Since April 3, when the sale of the building and equipment to Mike Temple was completed, Lueb has been retired and he's still having to get adapted.

"It's like a job, you have to work out your routine," he said.

When the Korean War veteran returned from the military in 1954, he joined his father and cousins at the shop, then one of three shops in within two blocks of each other.

After more than a half-century working or operating Loerwald Brothers blacksmith/welding shop, Raymond Lueb is having to adapt to a new "job" - retirement...

"There was enough work to keep us all busy, too," Lueb said: "There were eight of us working in the shop. But times have changed. Now so much stuff people just go and buy because it's cheaper than getting it fixed. "But the shop was more than just that — it was a meeting place for people. They (farmers) would come in during the winter to get some-thing fixed, and they'd sit around the fire and visit.

"It was the only time they have a chance to visit. During the summer, they'd be work-ing all day. Winter was the time for fixing things up, and they'd come in the shop and sit and talk. Sometimes they'd stay half a day or more," he said.

As the years passed and equipment changed, fewer farmers came into the shop to get plowes and discs repaired.

"Now the younger people have no idea what's in there (the building). They just see the old building. But the blacksmith's supposed to be in an old building," he said with a laugh.

"Between the both of us, George and me, we had more than 100 years of labor in there. I guess it was a labor of love, because we sure didn't get rich in it."

Shop last link to city's industrial past oerwald Brothers Welding is the last link to Hereford's industrial past, still occupying its site in the city's original industrial dis-

The shop is one of the old-est in Deaf Smith County, dating back to the turn of the 20th century. The original building was built of crushed caliche, giving it a pioneer appearance.

The welding shop started as family business more than 60 years ago, once serving as the headquarters for more than a dozen welders and blacksmith workers who served the county's agricultural industry.

In more recent years, George Loerwald and Raymond Lueb operated the shop as a partnership.

During the first decade of the 20th century, the Barnhart & Shreve Blacksmith and Tin Shop was built across the alley to the west, fronting 2nd Street, the original building of the Loerwald shop.

In 1929, the Loerwald family moved to Hereford from Wichita Falls and began farming southeast of the town.

After two straight crop failures, the Loerwald brothers went to work in the Jacobsen Blacksmith Shop at 2nd and Miles streets.

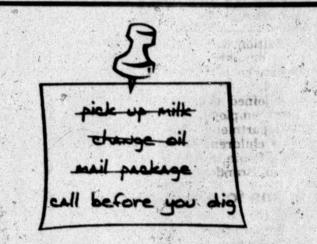

Ed and Gene Loerwald worked for the Jacobsens for several years during the 1930s# and in 1937, when the Barnhart & Shreve business became vacant in December 1937, they took it over.

When irrigation began to expand in the county during the 1940s, the demand for well-casing welders also grew rapidly and the Loerwald brothers were on call day and night. By the 1940s, J.A. Loerwald and all six sons -Ed. Gene, George, Larry, Harold and Tup - were working in the shop. In the early 1950s, Ben J. Leub, an uncle to the Loerwald brothers, went to work for the business, joined following the Korean War by his son, Raymond, a veteran of the conflict.

Gene Loerwald retired in 1978, followed in 1981 by Ed, and both men sold their interest in the business to their brother, George, and cousin, Lueb. George would buy out his father's interest in 1990. After his retirement, Lueb ran the business until 1999, when he retired and sold out to Mike Temple.

It may seem like a simple task, but it can save your life. If you dig into a natural gas line, you could cause a fire or explosion. With more than a million miles of pipeline in the countr there's only one way to dig safely. Call 1-800-545-6005 two days before you plan to dig.

Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America (NGPL) clearly marks where gas lines are located, and where you shouldn't dig. Calling for locations of natural gas facilities is more than just a good idea- it's the law.

And if you ever smell natural gas, leave the area immediately. Don't operate any equipment, don't flip any electrical switches. Simply get away and call NGPL from another location.

Please take the time to call before you dig. Your family will understand if you forget to pick up the milk.

more secure, Temple said he will bring in his computer and be able to do drafting and designing in the building.

Temple said he'd been looking for a building for about two years, but didn't find what he was looking for until he made contact with Lueb.

"Raymond said he wanted buy it," Temple said. Although Temple holds degrees in electrical and mechanical engineering from the University of Miami, he said his real love has been welding and blacksmithing.

"It's phenomenal the art that's being lost." Temple said the fence that he plans to build, as well as the window guards he will install, will serve as visible advertisements for the art of ornamental ironworking.

"I did ornamental ironwork for 18 years in (Monroe) Louisiana - everything from fences and gates to spiral staircases," he said.

He moved to Hereford about three years ago and has been working as a welder around the area, while looking for a way to set up his own business.

That's when he met Lueb

"I used that (engineering) background to make 'real' and learned that Loerwald Brothers was available.

COMMENT Elian: The view from the world

The Guardian, London:

The two different versions of the same day are reflected in the photographs. Splashed across British front pages yesterday were the dramatic pictures of heavily armed U.S. immigration officers in a predawn raid, removing a clearly terrorized 6-year-old Elian Gonzalez from the custody of his great uncle in Miami.

In the eyes of many Cuban exiles in Florida, the photographs in the British press portrayed the true picture: an overweaning federal government, ready to resort to "Gestapo" tactics, battering down a door with weapons at the ready, to snatch the child. ...

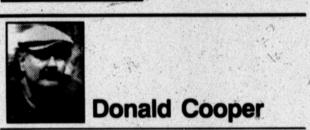

Yet, in reality, it was the Florida exiles who forced the administration to belatedly adopt its strong-arm tactics. From the moment Elian was released from a U.S. hospital last November into the custody of his great uncle, the exiles have used every resort to keep him in the U.S. and not to return him to his father in Cuba. ... It was not the federal government, but Cuban exiles who have been breaking the law.

Having faced the exiles down, the establishment is in a much better position to pursue a long overdue renegotiation of its relationship with Cuba. The economic blockade, introduced four decades ago, is not going to end this side of the election. but once Castro goes, stand by for change. The Toronto Star, Canada:

The 'other' bomber that helped win war in Europe is generally ignored

f my father lived anywhere near Amarillo, he would have been out at the airport this week to reacquaint himself with the B-24 Liberator.

The only fully restored, flying B-24 Libera-tor, and one of the few flying B-17 Flying Fortresses in the world were at the Amarillo airport for a couple of days this week. And, if Dad were in the area, I know he'd been out there to see part of his personal history.

During World War II, Dad was an armaments crew chief with the 8th Army Air Force's 392nd Bomb Group, 577th Squadron in Wendland AFB in Dereham, near Norwich, England. His job during the war was to make sure the pressurized or heated, so the crews wore 24, it was all B-17. I guess if I hadn't known, I guess I would have thought the only U.S. bombers in the skies over Germany during the war were B-17s. Despite its lack of recognition, there were more B-24s produced during the war, and it was used in more theaters of the war than any other four-engine bomber. More than 19,000 planes were produced between 1939 and 1945.

The B-24 carried a crew of 10; it had four movable turrets, each with two .50-caliber machine guns and two individual .50-caliber guns in the waist. It had four 1,200-horsepower engines and carried about 2,750 gallons of fuel. Many of the B-24 missions over Europe were round trips f 1,500 miles, with some nearly 2,000 miles. On most missions, the B-24 carried 10 500-pound bombs or five 1,000 pounders double the capac-ity of the heralded B-17.

The planes were ongressional Republicans are risking a political backlash - again - with their drive for Senate hearings on the Elian Gonzalez custody case and their attacks on the administration for seizing the boy with a show of force to take him to his Cuban father. This time, it wouldn't be unexpected, as it was when they suffered at the polls in 1998 over issues they thought would work to their advantage, impeachment and, earlier, government shutdowns over budget deadlocks.

And this time, it probably won't have much impact on the elections six months away, unless the controversy drags on.

Still, it has been a problem issue for candidates in the 2000 campaign since the Immigration and Naturalization Service ruled early this year that Juan Miguel Gonzalez should have custody of his son, rescued after his mother died in a boat wreck fleeing Cuba. So the candidates have tried to sidestep a choice in which favoring parental rights puts them on the same side as Fidel Castro. They still are. An early hedge was to say that the boy's father should come to the United States and declare on free soil that he wants to take his son home to Cuba. He has.

Vice President Al Gore said early on that the dispute should be handled in the courts, rather than by INS decision, a break with his own administration and one he has widened since the raid.

"I would have handled it differently," he said.

But he avoided criticizing the show of force in the Saturday raid. "Like everybody, everybody had a mixture of reactions on that and I don't think that you can reach an easy judg-ment about every detail of what the law enforcement officers who were given the task of performing this mission did," he said Wednesday, campaigning in Connecticut. He avoided a direct answer to the question of whether Republicans were politicizing the case by planning Senate hearings. "There are many different people who have called for them," Gore said. Among then is Florida Sen. Bob Graham, a Democrat. "I'm not going to make a blanket judgment on their motivations," the vice president said. Gov. George W. Bush, his Republican opponent for the White House, says the administration should try to persuade Elian's father to stay in the United States with him. But he talked around the hearings question on Wednesday, too. He said he would like to know more about the state of the negotiations with the Miami relatives, and the chance they might have led to a peaceful solution instead of the raid. "I hope we get to the bottom of the answer," he said. "It's what I'm interested to know. One Republican senator thinks there may be a sort of Elian fatigue among the people who are telling pollsters they don't want hearings and do approve of the armed operation that took the 6-year-old from the home of relatives in Miami. Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania said there should be hearings on "the manner in which Elian Gonzalez was taken into custody," although he believes that the boy belongs with his father. Public opinion polls conducted since the Saturday raid show that Americans overwhelmingly support the return of the boy to his father, but are more closely divided on the force used to make that happen. "I don't believe that the American people approved of the kind of action they saw Saturday morning," said Sen. Trent Lott, the Republican leader. "I think that they feel that was excessive." So Lott and other critics concentrated on tactics and timing when they questioned Attorney General Janet Reno on Tuesday. Those matters also will be the focus of the hearings Lott said he wants the Senate Judiciary Committee to hold. The House Judiciary Committee has started a preliminary inquiry but has not decided on public hearings. Polls conducted for ABC and for CNN and USA Today both showed public opinion running more than two-to-one against congressional hearings. Sen. Connie Mack of Florida said it would be dereliction of duty if Congress did not investigate an episode he called horrifying. Republicans were anything but prepared when the House impeachment proceedings against President Clinton backfired in the 1998 elections and they lost five seats, leading Newt Gingrich, then speaker, to resign. Gingrich also played the major role when Republicans defied Clinton on the budget in 1995, leading to presidential vetoes and partial government shutdowns. They figured he'd be blamed. They were. the spotlight. ...

There is something dreadfully askew here.

The boy is finally where he belongs: with his father. But it is a reunion marred by disturbing questions. ...

From the moment the shipwrecked boy was rescued in the shark-infested Florida Straits, he has been a pawn in the bitter ideological battle between Cuban President Fidel Castro and his rabid foes in the United States.

Even now, his fate is uncertain. His American relatives are determined to fight all the way to the Supreme Court to keep him in the U.S. He awaits the May 11 hearing with his father.

This is a child who needs relief from prying eyes and suffocating celebrity. Surely Americans could grant him that. There are plenty of other children who need their help.

Neue Luzerner Zeitung, Switzerland:

The leaders of the Cuban exile community in Miami have left no stone unturned over the past five months to exploit the drama over Elian Gonzalez. They unashamedly used the fate of a six-year old boy to show the American people what sort of a brutal regime is in power in Cuba. ...

In fact some supporters who had some doubts about the hard line approach have now rallied round them - at least for the moment. But their stubbornness has driven a wedge between the Cuban-Americans and the rest of the population, which neither welcomes nor understands their position. And they have achieved something which was not their intention: for the first time in 40 years, the governments of Cuba and the United States are pulling in the same direction on a political question.

This experience can lead to a fundamental reduction in the mistrust on both sides, could reduce further the once excessive influence of Cuban Americans in Washington. Even the trade embargo against Cuba - the cornerstone of the Cuba policies of every government since Kennedy's - could be subject to serious debate. The Republicans for now remain locked in their old way of thinking and are holding fast to their traditional blockade politics. Whether this will help them with the electorate outside of Florida is questionable.

bombs were armed and the planes' machines were loaded and ready to fire.

Dad lost his chance to fly B-24s rather than loading their bomb racks and machine guns during his Stateside training when he suffered a ruptured ear drum in a pressure chamber.

When it comes to the war, my father's pretty sensitive. While not denigrating the contribution of the B-17; probably the most recognizable plane of the war, Dad is quick to point out the B-24 is overlooked.

You'd think the B-17 was the only bomber in the war," he said one time after I asked him if he'd watched a CNN feature on the 8th Air Force. "They didn't even mention the 24s.

I watched the same CNN feature, and the old man was right. Not a word about the B- oxygen masks on high-altitude missions and had to do their jobs in temperatures that reached -30 degrees Fahrenheit.

Why did the B-17 gain all of the glory, while the B-24 was largely ignored?

According to some historians, it had something to do with a name. The B-17 was known as a "Flying Fortress," a nickname that captivated the public.

What was the B-24's nickname?

"Flying Box Car."

Just no comparison.

But don't try to use that argument with my father.

Dad thinks "Flying Box Car" is just as glamorous and captivating as "Flying Fortress."

Some lessons to live by Sit down and listen to your grandparents.

Trust me, they have more history to tell than any history book could ever cover. I recently found out from my grandfather that my great-great-grandfather

s many know, I have decided to move on to "bigger and better" things in life and am leaving the Brand. However, that doesn't include leaving the lovely smelling Hereford.

Because my husband is a farmer, we can't exactly pick up the farm and move it. But before I go, in my last column at the Brand, I would like to leave a few words to live by which I have learned in my 22 years of life. Most I have learned from parents and other family my members, others from friends, some from making my own mistakes, and a bunch from watching and learning from others.

Without a doubt, always tithe at church. It's only fair to give back what He's provided for you.

· "Marriage is a verb, not a noun." This quote was said on a TV talk show two years ago. 1 immediately wrote it down and have kept that piece of scratch paper on display at our home since.

If possible, attend college. How often do you have an excuse to party for four years? Besides, you meet your best friends that will stay with you throughout the journey's of life.

Never burn bridges, you don't know when you might need to cross back over them.

• "Be nice to your children, they're the ones that choose your nursing home." I saw this quote on a sign at an old country general store in Gruene, Texas. Along with it were other signs of advice such as, "If you're smoking in this house, you'd better be on fire."

• "If you don't have something nice to say, don't say anything at all." I know several people whose mothers never told them this word of advice.

Meet people. You only have one life to live, it would be a sad and lonely one if you went through it alone.

· Spend time with family. Blood runs thicker than water.

· Travel. Once again, you have only one life to live, see as much as you can, you never know when you may not get the opportunity. • Don't think of someone as being snobby, think of them as insecure.

 Sit down and listen to your grandparents. Trust me, they have more history to tell than any history book could ever cover. I recently learned from my grandfather that my greatgreat-grandfather was the first white man born in the state of Kansas.

· Money can't buy you happiness or true love.

· If you are really upset, wait 24 hours and then confront the person that upset you. It makes a world of difference.

Don't expect children to · Face the facts and stop searching for what isn't there and continue on with what you already have.

· Don't ask advice from someone when you already know what their answer will be, it defeats the purpose.

 If you don't enjoy what you're doing, don't do it, there are always more opportunities.

Whatever did happen to Roy, Gene and Rex?

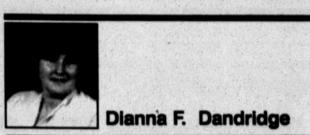

he Statler Brothers once asked "Whatever happened to Roy and Gene and Rex?"

Like the Statlers, I can't help but believe the movies are great entertainment. I don't necessarily mean the movies at the theater, but the video movies watched at home provide untold hours of amusement. Like many people, I enjoy movies, but various reasons keep me from visiting the local movie house frequently. When the movies make it to videos, I usually rent it at least once. If I am thoroughly impressed, I may even purchase the film so it can be watched in my time.

Probably one of the biggest drawbacks to going to the movie theater is the cost of paying to hear someone swear, for no apparent reason, in the name of entertainment. Renting the movies first gives me the opportunity to determine if the language and content taking my family to the movies once costs nearly as much as buying the movie and watching it repeatedly.

As it turns out, usually the favorite movies at our house are the older movies, Walt Disney classics or made-for-TV specials.

These selections usually seem to lack the blood, gore, violence, foul language or sexual content of many of the current hits, where you have to know the meaning of G, PG, R and X

One of our favorites is John Wayne's "The Cowboys." I remember seeing it in the early 1970s at a theater in Clovis, N.M. I still remember the lady if the language and content in front of us holding her are worth the price of pur-chasing the movie. After all, during the scene when John the family ham, picked up on Wayne was cussed out by a stuttering boy.

Granted, little children should not cuss. But, it was funny watching this little boy cuss the American legend. Funnier still was the woman's reaction. If those few words were the worst things her child ever heard, then he certainly enjoyed a charmed and sheltered life.

Making the list of top 10 family hits is the 1950s classic "Old Yeller." You've got to realize everyone in my family is animal-oriented, so this film is right up our alley.

This movie, with Fess Parker, Dorothy McGuire, Tommy Kirk, and an ugly, old, lop-eared yellow dog became an instant hit after my kids saw it the first time. We have all read the book by Fred Gibson and rank this movie as one of the best based-on-the-book movies to several different phrases or mannerisms from the movie and has incorporated them into his everyday vocabulary. Its not uncommon to see him drop his shoulders and utter "Yes 'm" and walk off. At some point, it usually gets on my nerves and he gets told to knock it off.

Rebecca's favorites include the "Sound of Music," "Flubber" and the new version of "The Parent Trap." Like most young teen-age girls, the music, comedy, and romance of even movies like "Flubber" draw her attention. It never ceases to amaze me how fast the kids can remember every single line, phrase, melody and refrain of a movie. More importantly, they can remember the lines for years.

"The Lion King" was undoubtedly a huge hit, so much so that my kids wore out our copy of the movie. Recently, while keeping an eye on some younger children, my daughter borrowed a copy of "The Lion King." It has probably been three years or more acuna-mattata is still no passing craze.

The most "adult" movies in our collection are probably "The Fugitive," "Gone With the Wind" and "Top Dog." I guess maybe we're a little behind at our house, because we just haven't gotten around to finding blazing semi-automatic weapons, supernatural appearances and mass destruction to be any type of amusement.

I'm always on the look-out for some of "our type" movies, but they are surprisingly hard since they watched it, but to find. I would love to get a copy of the last movie Roy Rogers made - "McIntosh and T.J." I guess I must be and only person who really liked the movie - it was also one of the few I ever paid to go see more than once. My son's rendition of the man who had supposedly suffered a rabid coyote bite would probably be as enjoyable as the movie.

The Statlers definitely have it right - the movies are great entertainment.

State allocates tobacco settlement funds

AUSTIN -- Two hundred and eighty-eight Texas cities, counties and hospital districts have received checks totaling $100 million from the Texas tobacco settlement to help offset costs of providing indigent health care.

Checks based on the amount spent on indigent health care not reimbursed in the previous year were mailed last week by the state comptroller"s office.

Funding came from the $2.28 billion Texas tobacco settlement reached in 1998. Those funds are separate from the $15.3 billion settlement between tobacco companies and the state. An initial $450 million was set aside for pay-ments in 1999-2001. The 1999 payment totaled $300 million.

Under terms of the settlement, the comptroller's office

Survey details Texas wages A survey conducted by the Texas Workforce Commission shows that 19 percent of all workers in Texas earn less than $15,000 per year.

Survey data was compiled from interviews with 75,000 employers over the last three years.

According to the survey, 41 percent of the full-time workers in Texas are in jobs that pay less than $20,000 a year. The median annual wage is $22,832. Half of the population makes more than the median; half of the population makes less. Average wages for all workers in the state came to $27,375.

Housing grants awarded

The Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs last week announced the release of 220 grants totaling nearly $51 million from the 1999-2000 Texas Community

Paying their RESPECT

Former HHS cagers revisit Hereford and the past to honor Cuby Kitchens - a coach and a man they still consider to be unparalleled.

By Jeff Blackmon

Children of Managality

Hereford Brand Sports Editor No one could ever doubt the love Milner Duvall has for his former high school basketball coach. He wears his feelings as openly today as he did nearly four decades ago. Even though it has been almost 40 years since Duvall laced up his shoes for his former high school coach, Hereford's Cuby Kitchens, Duvall doesn't feel it is too late to honor a guy he considers as almost legendary. After countless hours s p e n t organizing and planning,

Duvall and some of his former teammates will finally pay homage to the coach who made such a lasting impression on their lives — hosting a townwide reception for Kitchen's at 6 p.m. this evening in the First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall.

The tribute has been a long time coming, but the passing years haven't daunted Duvall's lasting appreciation for Kitchens.

"I was completely awestruck," Duvall said of his first meeting with Kitchens. "I was amazed at the ability that the man had, and his basketball knowledge and skill."

Duvall first met Kitchens when he was a freshman at Hereford High School in 1956. Kitchens had just begun his coaching career and came to Hereford after graduating from West Texas State. Kitchens had also coached at Groom and White Deer and was about 27 years old. Duvall said

Kitchens made an immediate impact program.

He and other members of the team soon began to idolize the coach, not only for his coaching said. "He was a forerunner of Kitchens during practice. Kitchens would run circles "You play like you practice." Duvall said the Hereford around the team. "He didn't just tell us how to do it," Duvall said. "He showed us. There were no three guys on our team who could slow him down."

Beyond passing his skills down to his players, Duvall said Kitchens taught the team how to compete physically. Duvall said he believes their style of play was then cutting edge compared to the way other teams were playing at the time. Kitchens was teaching them how to run a full-court press.

"We were six boys who had some raw, undeveloped talent,'

Duvall said. "We didn't realize that, but he did." his Duvall and teammates

(Donnie Renfro, Bob Shelton, Paul Higgins, Steve Slagle, Ken Clearman) were not as tall as they wanted to be, but Duvall said they were quick and fast. Kitchens saw that and took advantage of it by making them a full-court team.

Duvall said the team's press and fastbreak - stealing the ball and scoring an easy layup was their strong suit. Kitchens also taught them that in order to play that style of basketball they had to play like a team.

"He always stressed the importance of the team effort," Duvall said. "We had to play together and not be selfish.

Kitchens said he knew the only way to win was to teach his players to be unselfish. He said he wanted his team to think team all of the time.

Yosten drops out after valiant effort at regional meet

From wire and staff reports .

On Friday, district winners from Hereford traveled to San Angelo hoping to reach the state level in track competition.

Hereford's Kurtis Flood did just that as he placed second in the regional meet with his toss of 156 feet 2 inches. Flood finished just behind Fort Stockton's Kelly Rowden who won with a score of 156 feet 11 inches.

Even with the intense pressure to make it to the state meet, Flood said he felt he had a slight advantage because of the success he had this year as a member of Whiteface football team.

"Coach Conger was telling me that because I had been in the playoffs in football, I had a mental edge or mental toughness for a meet like this," Flood said. "He said some of the competitors in the discus hadn't been this far or competed in this kind of pressure.'

Flood went to the regional meet last year as an alternate with his district mark of 136 feet, but he has surpassed that mark by throwing consistently higher this year. Flood said he knows his success this season has been anything but an accident.

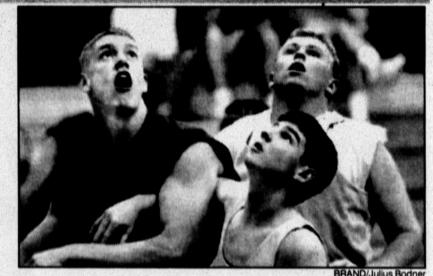

"I have proven that the 160 I threw at district was not a fluke, because I 've been doing it consistently since then,' Flood said.

Proposed regulation changes may take more than they give ome proposed changes in Texas migratory game bird regulations for the 2000-2001 season are touted as potentially providing for better hunting this fall, but as written, could cost waterfowl and sandhill crane hunters in this region some good hunting days as well.

Last season, due to federal requirements that all other waterfowl seasons be closed when the special snow goose conservation season opens, we saw a full week of both the dark goose and sandhill crane seasons wiped out. Unfortunately, that happened at a time when dark goose and sandhill crane numbers were peaking in the local area, and the rare opportunity to take cranes and geese from the same spread was presenting itself.

Hunters in a portion of the Rolling Plains were also disappointed last year when their dark goose hunting was ended earlier than printed regulations indicated that it was supposed to.

To correct the problem for that area, TP&W is recommending creation of a third goose hunting zone in the north-central portion of the state. This proposed Central Goose Zone would eliminate the need for an early closure of the dark goose hunting season to accommodate the special snow goose conservation action, according to TP&W.

Early closure of the final days of the dark goose season in order to allow for the opening of the snow goose conservation action caused confusion among hunters last season. Some were apparently unaware of the early closure on dark geese and continued bagging Canada geese within the traditional time frame of the seasons as they were outlined in TP&W regulations brochures handed out with licenses purchased for last season. Waterfowl hunters witnessed a mystifying change in the rules late in the game. People playing by the rules had Canadas landing in their decoys during a part of the season that was suddenly closed to them when it never had been before. Frustrating.

TP&W proposals call for an October 28-February 11 goose season in the Central Zone, but a goose season of October 21-February 4 in the Western Zone. The same proposals are for a sandhill crane season of November 11 through February 11 in our Zone A, December 2 to February 11 in Zone B, and January 6 to February 11 in Zone C.

Since the lid was closed early on both crane and dark goose hunting last season in order to open the late snow goose hunt, we might expect to be beaten out of a week of sandhill crane hunting again this season to accommodate the proposed February 5 opening of the snow goose conservation season in the Western Zone. The late snow goose season is proposed to open January 22 in the Eastern Zone, February 5 in the Western Zone, and February 12 in the Central Zone.

Personally, I'd like to see crane and dark goose season remain open through February 11 to give local hunters a chance at the late concentrations of these birds. I don't figure waiting until February 12 to open the late snow goose season is going to make all that much difference for snow hunters, but that extra week could mean a few more birds to sandhill crane and dark goose hunters.

Other proposals are for a September 15-30 early teal season in Texas. with a delay in the traditional second weekend in September opening date on the little ducks. September 15 would be the latest-possible opening date that could squeeze-in a 16-day season within Federal guidelines.

TP&W sources say delaying the teal opener until September 15 could mean hunters might see more teal that have migrated into Texas, thus enhancing hunting opportunity.

Dove season is proposed for September 1 through October 30 in the North Zone, September 1 to October 17 and December 26 to January 7 in the Central Zone, and September 22 to November 5 and December 26 to January 9 in the South Zone. The proposed white-winged dove season is September 2,3,9, and 10 in the White-winged Dove Area of South Texas.

Proposed duck season dates for the High Plains Mallard Management Unit are October 21-24 and October 28-January 21.

You can comment on any of these proposed changes by writing to Hunting Information at Texas Parks & Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX 78744. Call 1-800-792-1112, Menu 5, Selection 1, or 512-389-4505.

Comments will also be received at the public hearing at TP&W headquarters at 4200 Smith School Road in Austin on June 1, beginning at 9 a.m.

Any rules that may be approved by the TP&W Commission will be tentative until the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service sets federal regulations in late June. Should proposed changes by approved by Fish & Wildlife and the TP&W Commission, they would go into effect September 1.

"It was team play all the time, no questions about it," Kitchens said. "We didn't cater to any guy shooting the ball more than anyone else. Our kids were unselfish."

Duvall said Kitchens constantly worked on them to hit the open man, and quickly angered when they missed such an opportunity. "That upset him a lot because he knew team effort was necessary to win," Duvall said. "He always stressed team effort." Today's basketball world is filled with hot shot players and selfish play, but Duvall said when Kitchens coached them he would not put up with round of state and beat them handily.

"We really shook Kilgore up and beat them by a large margin," Duvall said. "They couldn't keep up with us from the start.

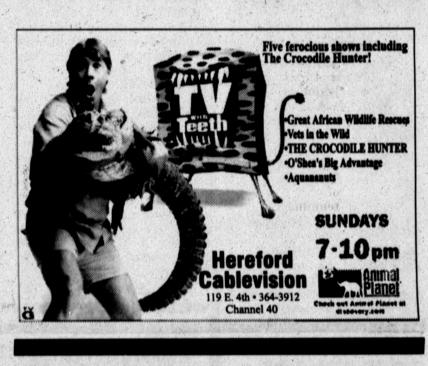

The writers in Texas had begun to call them the "Panhandle Jackrabbits" because of their quickness.

The cagers made it all the way to the state championship game — a benchmark still unsurpassed by any HHS team. The team fell short of their goal to win the championship game when they lost to Smiley High School in the final round. Smiley's best player came in the rarity of a 7-1 high school center — considered the still is today, an intense tallest basketball player in the competitor," Duvall said. "I country at the time. The team could do little more than watch it's championship dreams slip away under that center's shadow, but Duvall said Kitchens reminded them about what was really important. it was over," Duvall said. made it to state in 1958 and 1959. He said he was disappointed they never brought home the state championship to Hereford, but said he could never forget the lessons he learned from his favorite coach.

"He will always have a level of respect that very few coaches I know have," Duvall said. "You could never convince us that he wasn't next to God. "He taught us so many things that were unspoken, more by example than anything else." Yet, even with all of Kitchen's many admirable qualities, Duvall said there is still one stands out the most -Kitchens' desire to win. "He always has been, and want to win, I don't like to lose at work, hunting or even traffic." "He taught us there were penalties and consequences for not doing the best that you can. We didn't come to the gym hat was really important. late, and we didn't leave "We were devastated when early," Duvall said. any of that nonsense. "There were no prima donnas and no big shots," Duvall said. "If he saw that coming he would quench it."

In order to play like a team and to be able to press and entire game, Duvall said Kitchens got them into the best shape of their lives. He said he can recall lots of practices when the team was too exhausted to even take a shower before leaving the gym. Duvall said sometimes they wondered why he worked them out so hard.

"We really thought he was trying to kill us," Duvall said. "We thought he had a grudge against us or something." Duvall said the practices were filled with training drills aimed at building their physical endurance. He said they would run bleachers, throw the medicine ball and dribble in and out of cones.

"I ran them a whole lot," Kitchens said. "To press the entire game we had to be in great physical shape."

Duvall said the team didn't realize how important their conditioning was until the season started, and they were literally out-running every team they faced.

"We just didn't lose that much," Duvall said. "We hardly broke a sweat and our opponents usually became physically exhausted just trying to stay up with us." The team's growing abilities became most evident during the state championship tournament in 1959. Hereford faced Kilgore in the first

Area students recognized for contributions

Los Ciboleros Chapter announces DAR Good Citizen award recipients

Los Ciboleros Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution announces the DAR Good Citizens award recipients for the 1999-2000 school year for area high schools. The honorees are Tyler Hall, senior at Hereford High School; Trae Blain, senior at Community Christian School; and, Julie Merritt, senior at Dimmitt High School.

Chosen by the faculties of their respective schools, the students are recognized for their contributions of leadership, patriotism, dependability and service to both their schools and to their communities.

Hall, the son of Lori and Scott Hall, now serves as president of the HHS senior class as well as being a member of the student council for four years. As a junior, he was the treasurer of the student council. Koobraey hon-ors include being chosen as "Most Courteous" both his sophomore and junior years. Playing on the varsity tennis team for four years, Hall is a member of the Fellowship of letter in 1999 as well as being Christian Athletes. Also, he awarded the Xerox Award for is the praise and worship leader for the youth group of the Church of The Nazarene. Last summer, Hall was a delegate to the American Legion Boy's Sate in Austin.

Hall's college plans are to attend the University of Okla-homa in Norman to pursue a degree either in communications or business marketing with a career goal to work in the marketing or advertising field.

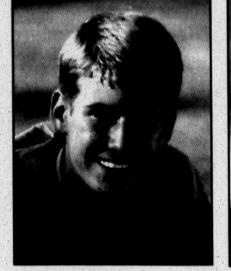

The son of Kent and Gail Blain, Trae Blain has had an active athletic career in playing basketball and football for CCS, lettering in both sports for four years. His other school activities have included working in the CCS Service Club, performing in the school's plays, playing in the band, being the student com-puter technician, going on the Junior/Senior Mission Trip and participating in science and speech competitions.

Outstanding Achievement in humanities/social sciences. He was also named an ACSI Distinguished High School Stu-dent in 1999. His special interests include 4-H club activities, computer support, drama and public speaking and attending sports events.

Blain's community work has included manning the recycling center for the Hereford Beautification Alliance on a regular basis. He also has mowed neighbors' yards when they were sick or out of town as well as mowing and cleaning flower beds for elderly shutins.

College plans for Blain are to attend Wayland Baptist to earn a mathematics degree before pursuing further study at Texas Tech University in the field of mechanical engineering. He hopes to ultimately work in the field of robotics.

Merritt is the daughter of Lint and Connie Merritt. Her

LIFESTYLES

CREATORS SYNDICATE Ann Landers

me reason to Ann believe I am Landers not a hair-centered nut. For years, I thought if my hair didn't look the way I wanted it to look, I should wear a hat, put a scarf over my head; or stay home. And now, a recent study at Yale has found that a person's self-esteem can plummet if his or her hair doesn't look "right." I knew this was true of women, but was surprised to find males were similarly affected.

With men, it's the bad haircut that makes them want to murder their barber. "Bad" usually means too short, or a chopped look that suggests the guy's wife did it, or worse yet, like he did it himself.

For the Yale study, researchers questioned 60 men and 60 women, ages 17 to 30, most of them Yale students. Everyone in the study underwent basic psychological testing to determine their level of self-esteem. The conclusion was that those who suffered. bad hair days had lower selfesteem than those who were not overly concerned about how their hair looked. I don't agree. I have suffered bad hair days, but there is nothing wrong with my self-esteem. And now, are you ready for another hair piece? Here it is:

Dear Ann Landers: Who dreams up these crazy hairstyles? The latest insanity is the crooked part and the messed-up look, like the woman just got out of bed and couldn't find a comb. The TV soap opera females wear the most stunning, chic out-fits, but their hair looks like hell. Again, the crooked part, and for a while, the blondes had an inch of black roots showing. It was the "in" thing. And while I'm at it, how about the cleavage? Not too many years ago, a woman would be arrested for indecent exposure if she showed that much in public. Today, it seems nobody is wearing a bra. I read that at a recent Hollywood opening, a woman's breast actually fell out of her dress. I am not an old fuddyduddy. I'm a 29-year-old college graduate who is fed up with women who would set their hair on fire to get attention. - Fran D. in Dallas

Dear Fran: A woman's hair has always been an attentiongetter. It has also been a way for a woman to express her outrage at the establishment and "make a statement." Men have also used their hair to get attention. They have grown it 2 feet long, and shaved it off entirely. In recent years, angry teenagers have dyed their hair green and blue to register their alienation. And let us not forget the mohawk. Ah, for the days when hair was a woman's crowning glory, with no social significance!

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you have room for one more letter about your response to "Smokeless Hoosier," who ate 120 candy canes over a period of three weeks in an effort to quit his five-pack-aday, 40-year cigarette habit. You gave that person a hard time about the effect 120 candy canes would have on his teeth.

I don't get it. Here is a person who has smoked 1.460,000 cigarettes in his lifetime, and you are concerned about his teeth? Dentures have never killed anyone that I know of. Wake up, Girl. — A.B. Who Reads You in Simi Valley, Calif.

Dear Simi Valley: Your clobber is well deserved, but I did receive several letters from dentists who pointed out that frequent sucking on candy canes is very bad for the teeth. Some of them suggested sugarless chewing gum or a rub-ber teething ring as a reliable substitute. Of course, "Hoosier" made a point of saying it was the taste of mint that, did the trick. While teething rings may not come in different flavors, it is easy to find wintergreen, spearmint or pep-permint sugarless gum. I recommend it.

Aggie Moms make plans for ice cream social

The Golden Spread Aggie Moms met Monday evening, April 24, at K-Bob's Steakhouse in Hereford to plan for their upcoming ice cream social.

The annual event welcomes incoming area Texas A&M freshman and their families, recognizes Golden Spread Aggie Mom scholarship recipients, and honors area Texas A&M seniors with a commemorative paperweight. The event is scheduled for 4 p.m. Sunday, May 21, in Hereford. The location will be announced at a later date.

Club president Ginger Olson of Hereford reported that six university seniors will be recognized at the social.

Scholarship chairperson Diane Townsend of Dimmitt reported that two scholarship recipients will be decided on this weekend. Also attending and sharing 'Aggie Brags" were Virginia Artho, Mariellen Homfeld, Lucy McGowan, Susan Perrin and Carla Scott, all of Hereford.

Nearsightedness Has Genetic Link

Individuals with two myopic, or nearsighted, parents are nearly six-and-a-half times more likely to become nearsighted in youth than individuals with one or no nearsighted parent, according to a study reported in Optometry and Vision Science. Myopia is a common vision condition where nearby objects are generally seen clearly, but distant objects are blurred and do not come into proper focus. It appears that both genetic and environmental factors influence who will become myopic.

Myopia is usually detected in children after the age of eight. Prescription glasses or contacts are the best treatment for this condition. As children become teenagers, the condition usually worsens and then levels off in adulthood. During this growing period, new eyeglasses may be needed as often as every six months to correct the problem.

Before the revolution in 1979, there was no education available for deaf children. Since there is virtually no inherited deafness in Nicaragua, deaf children had not been exposed to language, being the only deaf persons in their hearing families. They were often kept hidden and isolated, and grew up unable to communicate, except for the few crude gestures they used at home.

In the early 1980s, the Sandinistas opened a school for the deaf where the teachers tried to teach lip-reading. Since the children had never been exposed to language in their lives, they couldn't understand what the teachers were saying and Read the teachers couldn't understand them. They had little success, but on the playground the children started 'talking" to each other using their home signs. As they compared the signs they used at home, they added to and modified them. Within months of being brought together they had developed their own language.

Judy Kegl, an American linguist was called in to help. As Kegl recorded their conversations she began to understand that this was no jumble of gestures, but a true language with precise rules and order. "It was as if someone had given the young kids a rule book," Kegl said. While the older kids were stuck with a crude language, the young ones had spontaneously developed something far more fluent, consistent from person to person, and rich in grammar and vocabulary. It was a language capable of discussing not just simple wants and desires, but the full range of abstract ideas. And it had emerged from them, giving Kegl the belief that their case proves that the brain has an instinct for communication.

Officials haggle over mergers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department should be allowed to challenge mergers between companies that process meat and grain or sell seed and other supplies to growers, some farm state senators said Thursday.

The Justice Department hasn't done enough to slow down a wave of mergers and acquisitions that some producers blame for a downturn in commodity prices during the late 1990s, the lawmakers said.

We have an obligation to act. Current laws are not working," Sen. Kent Conrad, wide overproduction of grain, not agribusiness consolidation, caused the fall in commodity prices. In fact, beef and pork prices have rebounded in recent months as demand has increased. Beef and pork processing are among the most highly concentrated segments of the industry. Mergers allow companies to cut costs and get the capital it takes for expansion, said David C. Nelson, an industry analyst with CS First Boston.

"Essentially, we have too many companies fighting for too few profits. Agribusiness will not attract the capital it needs to make the investments farmers say they want until profitability improves," he said.

partment has blocked a merger between the two biggest cotton seed producers but allowed other acquisitions to go through, although sometimes requiring companies to sell off some assets.

Among the most recent mergers: Smithfield Foods Inc., the world's largest hog producer and processor, acquired No. 2 producer Murphy Family Farms, and Cargill Inc., North America's second-largest grain trader, bought the grain operations of No. 5 Continental Grain. Cargill and Continental were required by Justice to sell some of their facilities.

Drought impacts aquifer

Springs dry up as Edwards Aquifer water levels drop

SAN ANTONIO (AP) Many Central Texas residents are only days away from water use restrictions as the level of the city's underground reservoir that also supplies the state's largest springs drops toward a drought trigger. The Edwards Aquifer is projected to drop by summer to within feet of where Comal and San Marcos Springs begin to go dry. That would threaten several endangered species living in the waterways. Federal officials have said government action might be needed to protect them.

"If we don't have some significant precipitation this weekend, and we have the same type of heat that we did last weekend and therefore the same type of water consump-tion, we'll be in a critical period by the beginning of next week," Greg Ellis, general man-ager of the Edwards Aquifer Authority, told the San Antonio Express-News in today's editions.

Ag-business leaders debate world market approach

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) -Witnesses and members of a federal trade panel disagreed among themselves over trade issues Wednesday, in a hearing on whether wide-open markets or a more cautious approach would be best for American agriculture. Some, like Harry Cleberg, Farmland Industries chairman and chief executive officer, told members of the U.S. Trade Deficit Review Commission that American farmers need the help of a normal trade relationship with China. Failure to approve permanent normal trade relations, Cleberg said during a heering at the Federal Reserve Bank, would mean that "we will have done nothing to redress our trade deficit with China and, worse, we will damage our reputation as a reliable supplier of goods and services to China and the world."

with once-a-week lawn sprinkling. The authority's proposed drought plan requires cit-ies and other water sellers to reduce usage by an increasing per-centage — 5 per-cent for Stage I, 10 percent for Stage II and 15 percent for for criminal and civil penalties to aquifer pumpers who contribute to low spring flows if a member of a protected species is killed or harmed.

Mandatory water conservation measures kick in when the aquifer level dips to 650 feet. The aquifer's historic low was 612.5 feet in August 1956.

"The entire purpose of the critical period rules is to keep us from getting to those lower stages," Ellis said.

ing. Bills introduced by Sen. Bills Provider B-Iowa, and Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, and Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., would allow USDA to block agribusiness mergers or to force the divestiture of assets. Daschle's bill also would give the department more authority to regulate the business practices of food and agriculture companies.

The legislation is given little chance of passing this year, and economists say that world-

The Clinton administration has not taken a position on the bills, although Justice Department officials have previously said that existing antitrust laws are adequate to protect the interests of farmers and consumers.

"Our antitrust laws have stood the test of time," said John Nannes, deputy assistant attorney general for the department's antitrust division. In recent months, the de-

The Senate voted overwhelmingly last fall against imposing an 18-month moratorium on agribusiness mergers. The consolidation in the industry is a major issue with many farm groups, and in an election year, farm state lawmakers say they are determined to keep the heat on Congress and the Clinton administration.

"It's an uphill climb this year, but that doesn't keep us from raising Cain," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont.

> And Missouri Gov. Mel Carnahan said development of export markets was crucial because his state's farm economy was struggling.

> The trade bill that the House is expected to take up next month would ensure China the low-tariff access to U.S. markets that other trading partners enjoy. But committee member C.

Richard D'Amato, a Maryland state legislator, praised what he called the "radical" idea that the U.S. should enforce its existing trade pacts before entering any new ones.

Bio-tech crops challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) - Environmental groups asked the government Wednesday to withdraw its approval of genetically engineered squash because of concerns that it could cross with a wild relative and make it a hardier weed.

The squash is modified to make mt resistant to plant viruses. A recent study by the National Academy of Sciences questioned whether the Agriculture Department had considered adequately whether the virus resistance could spread from the squash to its wild cousin, which is a pest to farmers in some southern states.

In a petition to USDA, the groups said the squash case showed that the department's process for approving geneti-cally engineered crops is inadequate. In addition to seeking withdrawal of the squash, the petition asked the agency to require more testing and analysis of biotech crops, de-pending on the potential envi-ronmental risk.

"Given the potential risks of these crops nationally and abroad and the unique role that U.S. regulators play internationally, ... it is essential that USDA adopt a scientifically sound and systematic approach to regulating the po-tential ecological risks associated with genetically engi-neered crops," the petition said. USDA's Animal and Plant

Health Inspection Service regulates field testing of ge-netically engineered plants. It later decides whether they can be released commercially on information provided by the company about the plant and its potential effects on the environment.

'We currently have a process for carefully reviewing these products, but we are always willing to look at new data and ways to improve the process and will carefully study the petition," USDA spokes-woman Susan McAvoy said.

A former APHIS geneticist, who now represents the biotech industry, said the department demands sufficient data from companies to determine whether new crops are safe for the environment. The department "does not defer to agribusiness to decide which tests are necessary," said Val Giddings of the Biotechnology Industry Organization.

The two squash varieties, developed by the Asgrow Seed Co., were approved in 1994 and 1996 after the agency decided that the crop was unlikely to increase weed prob-lems. The National Academy of Sciences study said longer-term studies were needed to support the USDA's conclusion.

Restricting the areas where the squash can be initially grown would be preferable to unconditional deregulation, at least until more data are available," said the academy's study, which was released earlier this month.

Giddings, who worked on the squash approval while at USDA, conceded the agency "did not have perfect knowledge" about the ecological impact, but said there was sufficient data to approve the crop and that "no one has identified any negative consequences to the environment."

Moreover, squash have also been made virus-resistant through conventional breeding methods that are not subject to the review process required of biotech varieties, Giddings said.

The National Academy of Sciences study was a broad review of the government's regulation of pest-protected crops. The academy is doing a separate study of USDA's regulatory process at the request of Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman.

In addition to NRDC, other groups signing the petition included Greenpeace, Sierra Club, Environmental Defense and the Union of Concerned Scientists.

PORCH TO VIEW A SUNSET

C ST W.D. FARMER, F.A.I.B.D

A covered front porch introduces this home and is a full eight feet deep, providing plenty of space for rocking chairs or a swing. The front door is flanked by sidelites, and directs traffic into the long foyerwith ample coat closet.

The banquet sized dining room, to the right of the foyer, should provide enough space for the largest of families, and is in close proximity to the unique angular kitchen. This kitchen has a sink overlook to the activity room and breakfast areas of the home and includes a snack bar perfect for casual entertaining. Also provided is a door to the rear screened porch.

A generous laundry room is included in the home, located near the double garage entry and basement stairs.

The great room includes a tray ceiling, fireplace and a wall of glass which focuses on the large sun deck. Every amenity was addressed when the luxury master suite was designed. A tray ceiling and bay window highlight the master bed room, which has a private entry hall and outside access to the screened porch. The master bath is elegantly appointed with garden tub, shower stall, double vanity and a fantastic walk-in closet.

Two other bed rooms are located on the opposite side of the home, providing privacy for both the homeowner and family or guests using these bed rooms. They both utilize the full hall bath, and linen storage is provided nearby.

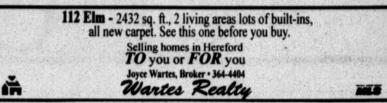

The exterior is classic country style with a shed roof over the porch and a garage pulled forward under it's own gable. Horizontal siding and exquisite window detailing complete the harmonious design. All W. D. Farmer plans include construction details for substituting brick, frame or stucco exterior finish.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same intem/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs."

Then remember these hints:

· Give the price. A newpaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respnd to an ad with no price.

· Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

· Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

· Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you to be dedicate

Special to The Brand CANYON — An improved Lighthouse Trail will be dedicated at 4 p.m. May 7 in Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

LIFESTYLES

Park volunteers have donated many hours in making improvements to the 6-mile trail. The improvements include bridges, educational signs and trail accessibility.

Activities at the dedication ceremony will include a guided education hike to the Lighthouse Rock, beginning at 2 p.m. at the trailhead. Park interpretive specialist Heather Lanman will conduct the hike. The dedication ceremony will occur below the Lighthouse Formation, about 2.3 miles on the trail. State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, will cut the ribbon to the new trail.

Other speakers include park volunteer Red Spicer and park superintendent Larry Scruggs. Area sponsors will provide refreshments, and the public is invited to attend.

Ceremony participants are encouraged to bring a quart of water per person, good hiking shoes, sunscreen and a hat. Because of the length of the trail, the hike may not be suitable for all persons.

For more information, contact Lanman at 488-2227, extension 49.

Palo Duro Canyon State Park is located 12 miles east of Canyon.

SPECIAL EVENTS

A variety of activities are planned for April and May in Palo Duro Canyon State Park, according to the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department. The activities include:

Sunday - Easter sunrise service, 7 a.m. at Pio-neer Amphitheater. Fees will be waived for the service;

April 29 - Nature hike, 9 a.m. Sunflower Trail (near water crossing 5). Geology, wildflowers and wildlife will be discussed;

May 6 - Storytelling by students at West Texas A&M University. Program begins at 6 p.m. at the Chuckwagon Outdoor Theater; • May 13 — Wildflower Tour, 9 a.m. at the Paseo

Del Rio trail head; May 20 - Nature hike, 9 a.m. on the Sunflower Trail;

May 27 - Nature hike, 9 a.m., Givens, Spicer and Lower Running Trail. The hike is 21/2 miles and participants are encouraged to bring water.

Annual Canyon Pops concert scheduled

Special to The Brand

CANYON - A renowned action will perform next month with the Amarillo Symphony in the 4th Annual Palo Duro Canyon Pops concerts.

Craig Schulman, who was the first actor in the United States, to portray both the Phantom in Sir Andrew Lloyd Weber's "Phantom of the Opera" and Jean Valjean in "Les Misérables," will be featured at the concerts at the "TEXAS" Pioneer Amphitheater in Palo Anniversary: 'Les Misérables' in Duro Canyon State Park. The concerts will begin at 8 p.m. each day.

James Setapen, symphony music director/conductor, said, "If you've ever enjoyed music from Boradway, this concert is for you." Schulman has portrayed Jean Valjean in four different companies in three countries for a total of over 1,900 performances. Widely recognized from the Cancer volunteers set prevention rally

Special to The Brand

Volunteers and Hereford residents will hold the community's first-ever American Cancer Society Prevention Rally to develop local strategies for the prevention of cancer.

The rally will be 7-8 p.m. Tuesday at the Hereford Independent School District Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Ave.

During the rally, Hereford community leaders and residents will learn about the cancer problem and how they can help Hereford residents prevent cancer. Everyone will be given the opportunity to build a customized prevention program, which can reduce cancer incidence and mortality by the year 2015.

Primary cancer prevention means taking the necessary precautions to prevent the occurrence of cancer in the first place. It is estimated more than two-thirds of all cancers diagnosed could have been prevented. The American Cancer Society's prevention programs focus on tobacco control, nutrition and physical activity, promoting coordinated school health, and reducing the risk of skin cancer. Programs are designed to help adults and children make health-enhancing decisions and act on them. "We want to encourage all Hereford residents interested in preventing cancer or promoting healthy-lifestyles to at-tend the May 2nd rally, If we all work together we can focus on fighting this disease through local cancer prevention activities," ACS volunteer Adam Treff said.

For more information on cancer prevention, early detection or services available call the American Cancer Society's 24-hour information line at 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide, community-based, voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives and di-minishing suffering from cance, through research, education, advocacy, and service.

Entertainent Guide Movies - SOAPS - PUZZLES -AND MUCH MORE!! * Denver bio Take Me Home is a Rocky Mountain low

Emmy winner Chad Lowe (Life Goes On) stars in the title role of the new TV movie Take Me Home: The John Denver Story, which premieres Sunday on CBS. Unfortunately, the film fails to do justice to the famous folk singer in the short time it has to tell Denver's story.

By John Crook oTVData Features Syndicate

Now we know what was going through Chad Lowe's mind as he sat sobbing during wife Hilary Swank's recent Academy Award acceptance speech:

"My wife wins an Oscar, and I'm doing stuff like Take Me Home: The John Denver Story."

OK, maybe that's a cheap joke, but then so is much of this CBS movie, which premieres Sunday, April 30. Both Lowe and Kristin Davis (Sex and the City), who plays Denver's first wife, Annie, deserve far better.

Lowe has proven himself as an actor long before now – he richly deserved the Emmy he won as a young man with AIDS on Life Goes On, and his recurring cast-against-type appearances as a villain on Now and Again are a treat – but he's unable to do much with Jerry London's script, which attempts to condense Denver's story into less than 90 minutes plus commercials. The actor says he's proud of his work in the TV movie but concedes that time constraints inevitably led to some compromises.

"Ideally, I wish we could have had two nights to tell his story," Lowe says. "I mean, it's a man's life, and in an ideal situation, we'd give him more time than this. But I really hope his fans will feel that we treated his story with respect. We certainly tried to do that, anyway."

With only two weeks to prepare to play such a familiar entertainment figure, Lowe says he immersed himself in listening to Denver's songs, watching hours of videotape and reading the singer's autobiography.

"Obviously, the fact that CBS hired me for the part meant they didn't want to go the look-alike route," says Lowe, who nonetheless does bear a credible resemblance to the singer in midrange shots. "I did try to learn things about how he stood, some of his voice inflections, things like that – and, of course, the correct fingering for the guitar playing." Tracks of Denver himself provide the vocals on the 15 Denver songs featured, including "Annie's Song," "Take Me Home, Country Roads" and "Rocky Mountain High," with Lowe doing a better than fair job of lip-syncing.

"I think you get the real essence of John Denver in his songs," Lowe says. "He was so wrapped up in communicating through music that he had trouble communicating with people in his own life. He was more comfortable singing to an audience of 20,000 than he was talking one-on-one with his wife and family."

And that, of course, is another problem with choosing Denver as a dramatic subject: He simply isn't inherently dramatic enough. He's remote, closed off in a manner that completely belies the relaxed flow of his songs. As Annie says to him in one scene, "You aren't interested in living this life; you just want to sing about it."

Similarly, Take Me Home is most pleasing when it sings, letting Denver's simple songs work their mojo.

When the movie relies on dialogue, however, it collapses into a tired string of show-business cliches about the demands of career vs. family, trite fatherson tensions (Gerald McRaney is a near-parody of himself as Denver's gruff father) and, ultimately, a not altogether sympathetic central figure who stubbornly resists dramatization. Despite earnest work by its leading man, Take Me Home is likely to strike sour notes with both fans and critics of

SOAP TALK

Ricky Paull Goldin bids farewell to Y&R

By Candace Havens

©TVData Features Syndicate

As his character, Gary Dawson, slips more into dementia, Ricky Paull Goldin is savoring his final days on The Young and the Restless. The character will be leaving at the end of May, but the departure is bittersweet for Goldin.

"There's two parts of me," Goldin says. "I'm looking forward to the future, but I'll miss playing this challenging story line. It involves mental health, impotence and past relationships and so much more.

"I've known from the beginning that this was going to happen, but we had to keep it top secret. The writers even wrote dummy scripts to send to CBS so no one would find out what we were doing with the story."

The audience may see Gary as a bad guy, but Goldin isn't playing him that "The bottom line is he's not just a crazy little stalker dude," he says. 'He's got deep issues, probably a chemical imbalance and a really messed-up past. You almost feel sorry for him.

Goldin says he'll miss a lot of his friends on the set, too. "I have this whole new family there. Some of them, like Jeanne Cooper (Katherine Sterling), Kristoff (St. John, who plays Neil Winters) and Peter Bergman (Jack Abbott), I've known for years, and it was a blast getting to work around them.

"There is a reason this show has been No. 1 in the ratings for so long," he continues. "Everyone, from the Bell family (the show's creators) on down, are on top of their game. "There are lots of characters on that show who had evil beginnings. Look at Victor (Eric Braeden). He locked someone in a basement and fed them rats. And from what I understand, Michael (Christian LeBlanc) was no angel in the beginning. So you never know," the actor says.

For the next few months, Goldin will concentrate his efforts on his new online network, flytv.com. "It's my company, and I'm producing several shows for the network. We'll have a combination of animated series along with reality-based programming. The Internet has become my mistress, and I'm wild about it."
