Today's weather TLOOK

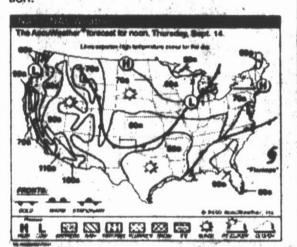

Mostly clear skies •

Tonight: A 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms, otherwise mostly clear, lows near 60, south to southwest winds around 10 mph.

Thursday: Partly cloudy, highs 85 to 90, north to northeast winds 10 to 20 mph. Thursday night: A 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms, otherwise partly cloudy, with lows in the mid-50s.

 Extended forecast Friday: Partly cloudy, highs 85 to 90. Saturday: Mostly clear, lows in the upper 50s, highs around 90. Sunday: Partly cloudy, lows in the mid-50s, highs in the upper 80s.

 Hereford weather Tuesday's high, 87; low, 60; no precipitation.

New England should have a fine day Thursday, according the National Weather Service. A few showers are likely along the southern Virginia and Carolina coasts. A few thunderstorms can be expected along the Texas Gulf Coast, while showers and thunderstorms are expected along the West Coast from Washington to northern California.

Thunderstorms pound some parts of Texas

Scattered thunderstorms pounded some parts of Texas and only teased others overnight as a cool front responsible for rain in northern sections moved away from the state.

Thunderstorms extended along the gulf coast were associated with the remnants of an easterly tropical wave. Some storms in northern Mexico crossed the Rio Grande between Del Rio and Laredo.

Showers and thunderstorms in Southwest Texas produced golfball-size hail in Fisher County. Other rain fell in the Concho Valley, Trans Pecos and Edwards Plateau.

Early-morning temperatures Wednesday ranged from the upper 50s and 60s in the Panhandle and South Plains to 80s elsewhere.

Winds were variable from north to east at 5 to 20 mph.

The chance for rainfall in North Texas was less than 20 percent, with some storms expected in South Texas.

Daytime highs should range from the upper 80s and 90s to 103 in the Big Bend and along the Rio Grande.

Lows overnight were expected from the 50s in the Panhandle and southwestern mountains to mid 70s in the Big Bend

Majority planning to watch debates

WASHINGTON (AP) - Memo to the presidential candidates: More than half of Americans plan to watch the debates and think they will be an important factor in how they vote.

A few other things you might want to know? Debate watchers tend to be age 35 and older, middle-income or higher, at least partially college educated, registered to vote and a member of one of the two major political parties, says an Associated Press poll.

"I think (the debates) are important and I do plan to watch them," said Sarah Brown, a 62-year-old retiree from Steubenville, Ohio. "I want to hear what they plan to do on the issues that are important to me - education, the economy and Medicare.

More who plan to watch say Democrat Al Gore will do better in the debates than Republican George W. Bush by 49-29, according to the poll conducted for the AP by ICR of Media.

Campaign aides for Gore and Bush plan to meet Thursday with the Commission on Presidential Debates to negotiate a schedule. The commission has proposed three presidential debates, Oct. 3, 11 and 17, and one vice presidential debate on Oct 5. Six in 10 say

Almanac predicts drought in 2001

DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — How do you change your pants in the woods? Why are foul-ups on your IBM called "computer bugs?" Oh, and what's the weather going to be?

Mixed between astronomical charts and farmer's calendars are the answers, or possible answers, in the 209th edition of the Old

Farmer's Almanac. It hit newsstands Tuesday. Like the newer Farmer's Almanac published in Maine, the 2001 edition of the Old Farmer's Almanac predicts more snow than normal this winter from New England all the way to Washington state.

Of more concern than the snow is the possibility of another significant summer drought from the desert Southwest across Texas, Oklahoma, parts of the deep South and the Great Plains.

America's oldest continuously published periodical boasts an 80 percent accuracy rate, "never 81 and never 79," Editor Jud Hale said

"We are definitely consistently doing better than if you were guessing," he said. "And we are consistently doing better than if you were doing weather averages. Hale wishes they had done better predicting this year's cool and wet summer in New England. He said he has taken a lot of heat from nonplussed neighbors.

"If we'd missed it in South Dakota it wouldn't have mattered so much," he said. "I wouldn't have gotten so much ribbing."

- Even with some misses, people still call for help planning things such as outdoor weddings.

"They often say something like, 'August 21st, we're outside Oklahoma City and we're wondering whether to rent a tent or not. Is it going to rain that day?" Hale said.

"I'll say whatever it is, 'It's going to be hot and clear, but why don't you rent a tent?"

Hale's favorite article in this year's edition tells how to change your pants in the woods without getting your socks or feet wet. The key is always having at least one shoe on, and having one leg of each pair on at one time. Details on page 251.

According to another item, Grace Hopper, who helped program the first large-scale digital computer in the country, coined the phrase "computer bug" in 1951 to describe computer problems when a moth shorted out two tubes

BANNED BOOKS

Harry Potter makes it on the 'hit list'

NEW YORK (AP) - Harry Potter made the list. So did "The Catcher in the Rye" and "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." The most popular children's books? No. The ones adults most wanted removed from library shelves in the 1990s. "This just proves no book is safe from censorship attempts," said Judith Krug, director of American Library Association's Office for Intellectual Freedom.

The top 100 titles were compiled and released in advance of the 20th annual Banned Books Week, which runs Sept. 23-30. The ALA, the American Booksellers Association and the American Society of Journalists and Authors are among the

The most disputed books were the popular "Scary Stories" titles, horror tales by the late Alvin Schwartz. Objections included violence, cannibalism and causing children to fear the dark. A complaint from the school district in Campbell County, Wyo., said the books made kids believe "ghosts are actually possible."

Also in the top 10 were such classroom standards as Maya Angelou's "I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings," J.D. Salinger's "The Catcher in the Rye," John Steinbeck's "Of Krug said about 5 percent of those complaints lead to a book being banned.

"Usually, when the rest of the community hears about a complaint it speaks out in support of keeping the book," she said.

But many books, even famous ones, do get removed. In 1997, Angelou's memoir was taken off the ninth-grade English curriculum in Anne Arundel County, Md., because it "portrays white people as being horrible, nasty, stupid

In 1993, "Catcher in the Rye" was removed from a California school district because it "centered around negative activity." Four years later, the superintendent of the Marysville, Calif., Joint Unified School District banned Salinger's novel "so that we didn't have that polarization over a book."

The list includes William Golding's "The Lord of the Flies," Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World" and Harper Lee's "To Kill a Mockingbird," removed in 1996 from an advanced placement English reading list in Lindale, Texas, because it "conflicted with the values of the community.' Also cited are such children's favorites as Maurice Sendak's "In the Night Kitchen" and R.L. Stine's "Goosebumps" series. Acclaimed adult novels on the list include Margaret Atwood's "The Handmaid's Tale," and Nobel laureate Toni Morrison's "Beloved."

Ann Landers

Ann Landers had to respond to the letter from "Nancy in Portland," whose 14-year-old son received pictures of naked women from his girlfriend. You said it was his room and he could hang whatever he wanted, but that his mother should let him know she disapproved.

I strongly disagree with your advice. It is NOT his room unless he is the owner of the house or is paying rent. Parents should have the final say on whether or not their child can put something up on the walls. Please rethink your answer to this one, Ann. It was a bummer. — Dave in Iowa par Dave: I expected some parents in my reading audience to disagree with my response, and I was not disappointed. Yours was one with language I could print. One woman wrote, "If that mother lets her son put nude pictures on his wall, next he will be bringing guns to school." Give me a break.

A child, especially a teenager, needs a space to call his own. What better place than his own room, where his parents can see what's going on. It is not a good idea to remind

Dear Ann a teenager that it is not his home and he has no rights there. The teen may obey, but his resentment will be deep and long-lasting.

Do I approve of the nudie pictures on the wall? Of course not. Should the parents tell him they are offended, and discuss what is appropriate and what is not? Absolutely. Should they FORCE him to take down the pictures? No.

If this were about guns under the bed or drugs stashed in a drawer, my answer would be different. Most children do not set out to offend or hurt their parents. Any mother who would "rip those pictures off the wall," as some readers suggested, does not trust her son to do the right thing. If "Nancy" and her son have a good relationship (and it sounds as if they do), he will eventually remove the pictures on his own, because he will realize they are inappropriate. These are the moments that teach a teenager maturity and how to make responsible deci-bear Ann Landers: This is in response to the letter from the nurse who said patients should answer all questions honestly. She claims some patients don't think it's necessary to tell if they've eaten anything, but she needs to know because that patient could lose his gag reflex under anesthesia and choke to death.

I'm tired of being asked a million questions by medical personnel with no hint as to why those questions are important. If I want an explanation, I'm made to feel like a nuisance. Doctors and nurses who explain their reasoning as they go along are a godsend. They make patients feel much more comfortable, and it doesn't take too much extra time. Please ask all medical personnel to do this. — Heather in New York

The Lady whitefaces improve to 3-0 in District 3-4A play after defeating Caprock in 20 minutes

By Jeff Blackmon

Hereford Brand Sports Editor

If you were late, or you stepped out before the volleyball match began to get some popcorn and a soft drink chances are you probably missed the Lady Whitefaces pummel the Caprock Lady Longhorns in two games 15-2 and 15-2.

The match lasted about 20 minutes and featured a dominant Hereford team starting off 3-0 in district play. Girls Athletic Director and head volleyball coach Brenda Kitten said the team set a goal before the game about how many points they were going to allow Ca-

"What we did for the first time today was to set a point limit for each game," Kitten said. "We set a goal for our-selves to not allow Caprock more than four points a game."
The Lady Whitefaces (17-5,3-0) did just that and more holding the Lady Horns (8-8,1-2) to only four total points in the entire match.

The Lady Herd set the tone early that they were not going to allow many points by jump-ing out to a 10-1 lead. Sopho-more designated setter Catherine Beville served up nine straight service points to help Hereford High take the lead. Beville went on to serve 17 successful points in the match. Beville also had 16 sets to lead the Lady Herd.

Hereford got the ball back and ended the first game on a big kill from senior outside hitter Tessa Baker with Gonzalez serving out the match to win 15-2.

Kitten said she thought the first game demonstrated how her team was ready to execute their game plan.

"I thought everything we wanted to do or needed to do g o t done," Kitten said. "I felt like we came out much more prepared to play."

The

second game was more of the same with Hereford going ahead 5-2 early in the game and never looking back. Sophomore middle blocker Sarah Griffin continued to show off her serve having an ace in the game and a big kill to help keep the Lady Longhorns down at 6-2. Griffin had three kills in the match while sophomore middle blocker Kali Hall and junior middle blocker Michelle Bernhardt each added five kills.

Kitten said she did not know how meaningful a points al-lowed goal could be, but she felt it helped her team on Tuesday.

"How meaningful those goals are to kids you never know," Kitten said. "But today it was something they really wanted to step out and prove."

Kitten also said she thinks the goal was important to the team Tuesday so they could Hands Up!

■ Helling and Rogers win for Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Texas Rangers veterans Rick Helling and Kenny Rogers gave their rookie counterparts on the Baltimore Orioles a clinic on the fine art of pitching Tuesday night.

Rogers pitched seven strong innings for his first win in seven starts as the Rangers completed a doubleheader sweep of the Orioles with a 6-5 victory.

Helling threw three-hit ball for eight innings in the 9-1 opening-game victory.

Rogers and Helling combined to walk only one in 15 in-nings. Meanwhile, Orioles rookie starters John Parrish and Jay Spurgeon walked eight over 5 2-3 innings.

"In both games, we scored early and the veterans did what they are supposed to do, which is throw strikes," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said. "The pitchers did their jobs.

Rogers (12-13) allowed three runs and seven hits in his first win since Aug. 8, helping the Rangers sweep their only doubleheader of the season. Rogers struck out six and walked one before allowing Spurgeon was able to get past hits to the first two batters in the fifth inning.

Meanwhile, the Rangers' vet-

"It was nice to hold on to a lead," said Rogers, who lost his last four decisions. "I really wanted to make sure I didn't do what I did in Chicago last week (when he took a 5-1 lead into the sixth and got a no-decision)."

John Wetteland earned his 33rd save, despite allowing a two-run double to Greg Myers in the ninth inning.

Texas also took both ends of its last doubleheader on Sept. 6, 1999, over the Chicago White Sox. The Rangers have won seven of their last

"Maybe with the weather cooling off, we're getting our second wind," Oates said. "We hope we can finish strong." Baltimore was last swept on June 8, 1999, by the Florida Helling (15-11) gave up Brady Anderson's homer leading off the game and just two singles after that, winning for the first time in six starts since beating Boston on Aug.

Helling struck out five and walked none. In his previous five starts, he had a 9.12 ERA. Neither Parrish

eran starters shut down the Orioles lineups, dominated by young players.

"They've got a young team out there," said Rangers second baseman Luis Alicea, 3for-7 with a homer in the doubleheader. "That makes it easier for veteran pitchers.' Anderson went 4-for-7 in the doubleheader with a homer and two doubles.

Spurgeon (1-1) was hurt by five walks and two homers, lasting four innings plus three batters in the fifth. Spurgeon allowed six runs and four hits and struck out one.

In the second game, Texas grabbed a 4-0 lead in the first inning on Ricky Ledee's RBI single and rookie Pedro Valdes' three-run homer, the first of his career.

"He (Spurgeon) got two outs, then he walked the next two hitters," Orioles manager Mike Hargrove said. "Then he walked right into Valdes' wheelhouse. (But) he wasn't wild out there, he didn't leave any balls mid-plate. There were positive things to his outing."

Baltimore closed to 4-2 on Delino DeShields' two-run single in the third. Ledee's RBI single in the bottom half and Alicea's leadoff homer in the fifth extended Texas' lead.

want to go up and take huge swings.

Kitten said her team also was a little nervous about facing Caprock, because they had not seen them play yet. She said that created a little nervousness her team needed. .

"Not seeing them yet created a little bit more nervousness than what we already had," Kitten said. "We had more emotion."

Kitten said her team's blocking scheme has also helped her players play with more heart. Tuesday night, the team had seven playable blocks and four stuffs.

Report spurs calls for executions moratorium

WASHINGTON (AP) — ills like poverty, drug abuse and lack of opportunity that affect minorities more than whites and produce criminals. "The federal griminal justice system is not designed to remedy these systemic problems by itself," Reno told a news conference. She ordered additional studies of why some murderers get charged with federal capital crimes, as opposed to being charged by local police.

port released Tuesday were not the product of bias in her department, Reno said, but rather resulted from social cal police.

"At this point we are troubled by the figures, but we have not found the bias" in her department's procedures, Reno said.

And she endorsed legislation proposed by Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., that would pro-vide post-conviction DNA ge-netic tests for federal and state President Clinton said the data raised questions "since we're supposed to have a uni-form law of the land." But he noted there had been "no suggestion, as far as I know, that any of the cases where the convictions occurred were wrongly decided" and said he would consult Reno before deciding what to do.

Those responses didn't mol-lify death penalty critics in Congress.

"Additional internal reviews alone will not satisfy public concern about our system," said Sen. Russell Feingold, D-Wis. His office said he would introduce a new bill this week providing a federal execution halt; he already has proposed one to stop both federal and state executions.

Feingold renewed a demand that he and Democratic Sens.
Carl Levin of Michigan, Paul Wellstone of Minnesota and Tom Harkin of Iowa made in June that Clinton name a commission to study the issue and postpone any executions until it reports. "All Americans agree that whether you die for committing a federal crime should not depend arbitrarily on where you live."

Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr., DIll., also demanded a moratorium instead of "business as usual.'

"If you're an African American in Texas who commits a crime that could warrant the federal death penalty, you get it," he said.

White House skeptical of Republican proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) Clinton administration officials and top congressional Democrats are suspicious of a pre-election Republican offer to use 90 percent of next year's expected budget surplus to drive down the national debt.

Republicans made the offer Tuesday at a White House meeting among President Clinton and congressional leaders that also covered healthcare proposals and other is-sues remaining in this Con-

The session, which lasted more than an hour, produced little substantive progress.

But Republicans were hop-ing the meeting would be a prelude to a bipartisan, endof-year deal on spending and tax cuts that would let lawmakers head home for re-election campaigns by mid-October. The GOP proposal on the surplus would, in effect, leave about $27 billion for tax cuts and spending increases that lawmakers want for fiscal 2001, which begins Oct. 1.

With that money, "We can provide the funding we need for agriculture and education and tax relief for small businesses and encourage savings" and make pension plans more generous, Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., said.

The Republicans' plan seemed to be an effort to establish themselves as the party that favors debt reduction, and to draw a line that Clinton dare not cross with his demands for billions in extra spending. With control of both the White House and Congress at stake in November, polls show that debt reduction is a favorite of voters. But Clinton's own budget also would use more than 90 percent of projected surpluses for debt reduction next year. He would use all the remaining money for extra spending, not tax cuts. House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., suggested splitting the remaining funds evenly between extra spending and tax cuts, said participants who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Democrats said they, too, favor setting aside as much as possible for debt reduction. But participants said Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers and others said the GOP plan could allow tax cuts that would mushroom over the next decade and erode Clinton's plans to eliminate the publicly held portion of the national debt by 2012.

Writing Want Ads that really sell! Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and u'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket. For starters, look at ads which offer the same intem/products. Get a sense of going tes and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then rememeber these hints:

 Give the price. A newpaper consultant says 70 percent of Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

. Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

• Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Two-thirds of Democrats say Gore will do better in the debates, while just over half of Republicans think Bush will do better. Independents are about evenly split in the poll of 1,019 adults taken Sept. 6-10 with an error margin of 3 percentage points.

Overall, more Americans think Gore will do better, 44 percent, than Bush, 33 per-cent. A fifth say they just don't know.

"I'm hoping Bush does bet-ter, but with the numbers so close, it's hard to know," said Anne Jones, a 36-year-old housewife and student from Portsmouth, Va., who considers herself an independent. "I hope they just stick with the issues, clarify their positions. I don't care about hearing them argue.' Marie Samaha, 53, an elementary school principal from Moltonborough, N.H., said she hasn't been able to figure out who will fare bet-

"Al Gore has better use of language, but sometimes he doesn't come across as being totally honest," said Samaha, a Democrat. "George Bush has a folksy way about him and people tend to trust that kind of dialogue."

Two of 10 Americans say the debates will be very im-portant to their decision, with almost three of 10 blacks feeling that way.

Derek Williams, a 31-year-old teacher and Republican from Norwalk, Ohio, said he thinks the debates will make a difference in the election because the race is close.

"There are 40 percent of us who support one side and another approximately 40 percent on the other side," he said. "It's the 20 percent in the middle who determine things. There are a lot of undecided voters out there, and I think the debates could push it one way or the other."

FUEL PROTESTS

Gasoline deliveries resume in Britain, but it fails to cool demonstrators' tempers

LONDON (AP) - Fuel tankers escorted by police began to roll past protesters' barricades early Wednesday en route to Britain's fuel-starved gas pumps — the latest development in Europe-wide fuel protests that have left pumps running dry and tempers flaring.

The first trucks began de-parting depots in England and Scotland hours after Prime Minister Tony Blair held a day of crisis meetings Tuesday and promised a quick end to the protests.

Truckers, taxi drivers and others angry over high fuel prices and taxes have blockaded fuel depots for days, creating shortages that have set off panic buying and snarled traffic. By Tuesday evening, retailers Shell and Elf estimated that 90 percent of their British filling stations were dry. Queen Elizabeth II and her senior advisers gave the Brit-employ emergency measures, which could include the use of troops to move fuel to critical Under the measures, the government instructed oil companies to deliver fuel to hundreds of stations across Britain, said the Department of Trade and Industry. Some of the tankers on the road early Wednesday were met by shouts of abuse from demonstrators, but there were no reports of violence.

While the disruption was worst in Britain, similar protests choked roadways in other European cities and along the borders of Belgium and the Netherlands. Smaller protests were also reported in Germany and even France, whose government made concessions to the strikers over the weekend.

"These guys are doing it to save their livelihoods," said Mike Salmon of the British Road ish government the go-ahead to Haulage Association. The group represents truck drivers, farmers and others who claim that the double whammy of high oil prices and taxes threatens to bankrupt them.

The protests here started on Sept. 7, with groups of farmers, taxi drivers, fishermen and even retirees picketing refineries across Britain. By Tuesday, hospitals canceled non-vital surgery, ambulance services reported delays and the Royal Post Office warned that its deliveries were being "seriously threatened." One municipality in Wales said it was closing all 19 of its secondary schools because staff were unable to get to work.

The public and the press channeled much of their rage at the Blair government for not easing gasoline taxes in the face of rising oil prices, which have soared to $35 a

New book reports lawyer told Hillary about Lewinsky affair

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Glinton was unable to tell his wife that he had lied about the Monica Lewinsky affair and had his personal lawyer deliver the news, according to a new book about the scandal.

Attorney David Kendall met with Hillary Rodham Clinton in the White House residential wing in 1998 to tell her that the president had lied in denying the affair with Ms. Lewinsky. The disclosure was made in "The Breach: Inside the Impeachment and Trial of William Jefferson Clinton," by Washington Post reporter Peter Baker.

The Post reported excerpts from the book today.

White House spokesman Joe Lockhart declined comment on the book. "I can't add anything to it. As far as some of the specific things, they were news to me," he said.

Baker writes that Clinton was so distracted by the impeachment — which ended in his acquittal last year — that aides at White House meetings sometimes had to answer questions for him. And a key adviser approached several Democratic Party leaders about a strategy to urge him to resign when impeachment seemed almost certain.

In the late summer of 1998, Baker writes, a former White House deputy chief of staff, Harold M. Ickes, "told people that the only possible way to convince his ex-boss to give up power would be to put together a coalition of interest groups and key senior members from Congress to go to him as a delegation and tell him there was no way to hold the White House in 2000 unless he resigned."

Ickes broached the idea to AFL-CIO President John Sweeney and was told: "Let's wait and see, Harold." The idea faded away.

ELECTION 2000

Voters see Gore win as possible pushing the right issues."

WASHINGTON (AP) - Voters are now about equally divided on whether Al Gore or George W. Bush will win in November, says a CBS-New York Times poll that suggests the race remains close.

Democrat Gore has been surging in the polls, gaining an edge in some national polls and making the race competitive in many states. The public is starting to see him as having a good chance of winning after a majority thought this spring that Bush would win. Gore had 46 percent and Bush 42 percent in the CBS-Times poll. The two were close in several other polls out this week.

An NBC-Wall Street Journal poll, the bipartisan Hotline Bullseye poll and a Voter.com Battleground tracking poll out Tuesday showed the race virtually even, which has been the consensus of most of the national polls taken since the Democratic convention in Los Angeles.

But in some national polls, Gore has edged ahead. Gore led 48-42 among likely voters in a CNN-USA Today-Gallup tracking poll, 49-41 among likely voters in a Newsweek poll over the weekend and 47-38 among likely voters in a poll by ICR of Media, Pa.

We see the race remains as dead even and voters can look forward to a close contest all fall in which Governor Bush will prevail," said Bush campaign spokesman Ari Fleischer.

Gore spokesman Doug Hattaway had a different view. We hope more voters are following the race and seeing that Al Gore is fighting for them," he said.

Gore's standing in the stateby-state contest for electoral votes has been steadily improving as well. Bush and Gore are in a dead heat in Florida now, 45 percent for Bush to 43 percent for Gore in a Mason-Dixon poll released Wednesday. The difference was within the poll's error margin of 4 percent-

cellent convention and then he followed it up with a whole bunch of activities that reinforced that gain ... pushing the right issues" such as health care and the economy.

For months, Bush banked on his advantage on personal qualities like trust and likability. But Gore and Bush are roughly even on those qualities in many polls now, and Gore retains an advantage on many issues such as the economy, health care and the environment, in the CBS-Times poll. Bush had the advantage on taxes and the two were close on education.

About six in 10 said Gore is likely to make health care affordable for everyone, while four in 10 said that of Bush in the CBS-Times poll. Health care was picked as the single most important issue.

U.S. trade deficit sets record

WASHINGTON (AP) America's deficit in the broadest measure of trade climbed to a record $106.1 billion in the second quarter of this year as the sizzling economy allowed U.S. consumers to buy more from abread than American exporters were able to

The Commerce Department reported Wednesday that the deficit in the current account was up 4.6 percent from the previous quarter, which showed an imbalance of $101.5

While setting a record, the deficit in the second quarter was slightly better than the $108 billion shortfall many analysts had feared.

The current account is considered the best measurement of a country's international economic standing because it measures not just the goods and services reflected in the government's monthly trade reports but also investment flows between countries and unilateral transférs, including U.S. foreign aid payments.

A soaring trade deficit has been the main flaw in an otherwise remarkable U.S. economy. The Clinton administration insists that the trade deficit is a sign of strength because the U.S. economy has been growing at far faster rates than have its trading partners'. However, critics say the rising deficits have cost thousands of American jobs, especially in manufacturing, and indicate the failings of the administration's trade policy.

While the U.S. economy has continued to prosper in spite of the huge trade deficits, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan and other economists have expressed concerns that the rate of increase in the deficit is unsustainable and could cause problems down the road if foreign investors become fearful.

Such a development could cause the dollar to weaken seriously, triggering inflation pressures in the United States as imports became more expensive, and set off a stampede by investors out of U.S. stocks and bonds.

On Monday, the Interna-tional Monetary Fund called the soaring U.S. current-ac-count deficit one of the primary threats to global prosperity.

In the April-June quarter,

America's deficit in goods wid-ened to a record $110.2 billion. In the services category, which measures such things as airline travel, the United States is running a surplus, which grew to $21 billion in the second quarter.

The deficit in investment earnings widened to $4.5 billion in the second quarter, up from $4.3 billion in the first quarter.

The category of unilateral transfers climbed to $12.3 billion in the second quarter.
This category adds to the over-all current-account deficit because it represents payments that the U.S. government makes in foreign aid to other countries.

The current account hit an all-time high of $331.5 billion Primary challenge aside, Hillary Vodham Clinton looked to the fall. Selma, Ala., elected its first black mayor, ousting a reformed segregationist whose tenure reaches back to the civil rights struggle.

Vermont, grappling with a law allowing gay couples the closest thing to marriage in the nation, bounced six lawmakers for their votes.

And in a New York dead heat, party-switcher Rep. Michael Forbes, a three-term incumbent, trailed a 71-yearold former librarian who raised just $40,000 to his $1.4 million for the Democratic pri-

Perkins said race wasn't a factor. But many voters said otherwise. "This was the final step of the march over the bridge," resident Burl Brown

The 70-year-old Smitherman was a segregationist when he took office. He later welcomed blacks into his administration as blacks grew to become the majority in this central Alabama city of about 22,000.
