STRETCHING THE DOLLAR

State gears up for tax holiday

By Donald M. Cooper
Hereford Brand Managing Editor

Hereford parents, like those across Texas, will have a chance to stretch their clothing dollars Aug. 4-6 during the state's 2nd Annual Sales Tax Holiday.

"On the first Friday, Saturday and Sunday of August, no state or local sales tax will be charged on most clothing and footwear priced under $100," Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander said.

Although the time of the sales tax holiday is intended to help parents outfit their children for the new school year, the tax break is not limited to school clothes. The tax holiday is an ideal time for all Texans to stock up on shoes and clothing, including work uniforms.

Highlights of the sales tax holiday include:

- Most clothing and footwear priced under $100 is exempt from sales taxes. Consumers may purchase as many tax-exempt items as they wish;
- Clothing and footwear used primarily for athletics or protective gear, such as golf cleats or football pads, are not tax-exempt. However, athletic clothes that are commonly used as street wear, such as tennis shoes, baseball caps and jogging suits, are eligible for the exemption; and

• Excluded from the tax holiday are accessories, such as jewelry and watches, and items that are carried rather than worn, including handbags, briefcases, wallets and backpacks.

In an expansion of the tax break, customers who put clothes and shoes costing less than $100 on layaway during the sales tax holiday weekend will be permitted to take their items out of layaway at a later date without paying the sales tax.

"This will allow hard-working families with limited budgets to pay for their purchases a little bit at a time and still receive the tax break," Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander said.

Rylander also has said she would like the exemptions broadened to include backpacks used by school children, as well as fabric, buttons, zippers and other items used in sewing clothes, and see the holiday extended to last about two weeks.

Any changes in the sales tax holiday, however, will require action by the Texas Legislature, which will not convene until January 2001.

Juneau they went to Alaska?

■ Mother, daughter cool their feet on a cruise to the Alaskan Inside Passage

Hereford Brand Lifestyles Editor

A sure way to beat the summer heat is an Alaskan cruise.

Genevieve Kuper and her daughter, Kathleen Armstrong of San Antonio, can attest to this after having cruised the Inside Passage this summer on the Holland America Line MS Veendam.

"I had wanted to take an Alaskan cruise for years," Kuper said. "I would see pictures of Alaska and think that it was just beautiful. But it was more than I ever expected. The scenery was even more spectacular and being on the ship was wonderful."

Kuper and her daughter flew to Vancouver where they embarked on a seven-day cruise that included many scenic ports-of-call.

"The ship itself was the first thing we toured," Kuper said. "It was filled with priceless pieces of art, sculptures and antiques — like going to a museum."

They docked for the first time at Juneau, where Kuper and Armstrong went ashore and took a tram ride to the top of Mt. Roberts.

The second port-of-call was Skagway, home of White Pass and Yukon Railway. Kuper gives a good description in her journal.

"Skagway is a ghost town of 600 citizens until a cruise boat hits. Its beauty is unchanged and it is still the best approach to the Yukon. It was here that the Gold Rush prospectors found a trail to the richest gold fields."

"One hundred years later, a narrow-gauge railway is in operation. We rode an old-fashioned parlor car as we retraced the original route to the summit of White Pass, traveling through two tunnels, sky-high trestles and remote valleys to the dramatic climb to the top.

"We saw the Alaskan wilderness unfold outside our window, past Bridal Veil Falls, Inspiration Point, Black Cross Rock and Dead Horse Gulch. Our tour guide told the unique story of this railway and the Klondike Gold Rush."

"After reaching the summit, the international boundary between the United States and Canada, we returned to Skagway and our ship."

The narrow-gauge railway that they rode is the White Pass and Yukon Railway. It is one of only 29 engineering feats in the world to have been declared an International Historic Civic Engineering Landmark.

While the railroad's construction was considered impossible in 1898, supporters of the project paid little heed and crews blasted through the

Bush takes the offensive, taunts Clinton in Arkansas

■ Texas Governor makes swing through Clinton's own backyard on march to GOP convention

SPRINGDALE, Ark. (AP) — George W. Bush ventured onto President Clinton's home turf on Friday to begin a six-day march to the GOP convention in Philadelphia. He pledged to restore "the honor and the dignity of the highest office in the land."

Campaigning alongside running mate Dick Cheney, the Texas governor taunted Clinton even as he reached out to those who had voted Democratic in the last two elections.

"Our first stop is a place that will send a resounding signal to America that Arkansas is Bush-Cheney country," he proclaimed in a state Clinton and Vice President Al Gore won in the past two elections.

Of Cheney, Bush said: "This man is a good man. He's a solid man. He's a man who understands what the definition of 'is' is." It was a pointed reference to Clinton's convoluted 1998 grand jury testimony on his relationship with White House intern Monica Lewinsky.

The line brought laughter and cheers from his audience at a rally in a high school auditorium in this northwest Arkansas community.

"No more Slick Willie!" some shouted, referring to Clinton.

Bush's decision to start in the state where Clinton served five terms as governor was intended as more than just a provocative poke at the Democrat who unseated his father in 1992.

It also opened a tour of battleground states that have gone Democratic in recent presidential elections — Arkansas, Missouri, Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania — but which Republican strategists believe are in play this year.

"We're not ceding any territory. We're going after every vote," said Bush campaign spokeswoman Karen Hughes.

Cheney, who was defense secretary in the administration of Bush's father, told the rally he and Bush were embarked upon "a great crusade to restore dignity and integrity to Washington."

When Cheney himself was greeted with raucous applause, the taciturn former Wyoming congressman looked a little baffled, then smiled slightly and

FINDING A LARGER CANVAS Chicago native puts artistic talent on walls

No one will have any trouble seeing Jesus Chaidez' art. It's right out there in the open for passers-by, motorists and pedestrians alike, to see.

Chaidez is a muralist, and his first commissioned work in Hereford was on the outside of Taqueria Jalisco, a Mexican food restaurant in the 600 block of West 1st Street and it took him slightly more than a week to turn a bare wall into a piece of art.

Timing was fortuitous for Chaidez. The owners of the restaurant have been giving it a facelift, and they were thinking about a mural.

"I came across this lady and she said she wanted a mural done. I showed her my work and she asked me, 'When can you start?'" Chaidez said.

Almost immediately, he started work on the mural. Another smaller work, depicting a doorway looking out into a courtyard, hangs on a wall in the restaurant dining room.

A native of Chicago, Chaidez came

Local roundup

HISD board seeks replacement to board

The Hereford Independent School District Board of Trustees must fill a vacancy on the seven member board and is seeking information from community members who may be interested in serving on their local school board.

The vacancy is in District I and appointees should be residents of this area — the southwest portion of the district.

Interested qualified persons should mail a letter of intent to the Board of Trustees, c/o Hereford Independent School District, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue, Hereford, TX 79045. Letters should be in the hands of the school board members by the close of school offices at 4:30 p.m., Aug. 4.

Trustees hope to have the vacancy filled in time for the new trustee to participate in the August budget process.

Special school board meeting slated

Hereford Independent School District board of trustees have called a special meeting for 6 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 1, at the Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Ave.

The board is expected to authorize the solicitation of sealed bids for the purchase of school property known as "All of block 65" and authorize the proposed tax rate/truth in taxation.

The board will also hear reports on certified appraisal rolls, anticipated collection rates and an update on the budget for the 2000-2001 fiscal year.

HISD to hold substitute training sessions

Hereford Independent School District will conduct substitute teacher training on Aug 2 for first time substitutes and Aug. 3 for all others.

Substitute teachers must have a high school diploma, however, college hours are preferred, and training attendance is required.

Applications are available at the HISD Administration Building, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue. Additional information can be obtained by calling Olivia Luna at 363-7600.

HHS registration scheduled

Hereford High school registration for the 2000-2001 school year has been scheduled for Aug. 8-10.

Students should visit the main hall of the high school to pick up their registration information and parking permits.

Registration times are:
Seniors — 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Aug. 8;
Juniors — 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Aug. 9;
and
Sophomores/Freshmen — 8:30 p.m.-4 p.m. Aug. 10.

Parking permits will be issued on a first-come, first-serve basis on the day of registration.

Junior High registration set

Registration for incoming 7th-grade students at Hereford Junior High School will be held 1-4 p.m. Aug. 7 at the junior high campus, 704 LaPlata Drive. Registration for incoming 8th-grade students will be 1-4 p.m. Aug. 8.

All students (7th- and 8th-grades) can register 6-8 p.m. Aug. 8.

Students at registration will be able to:

- Pick up their class schedules for the coming school year;
- Pick up student photo identification cards which have been taken at the HISD administration building. These must be worn at all times when on campus for classes in 2000-2001;
- Visit with Food Service officials for assistance if needed;
- Have any questions answered about physical education or athletics.

All students must be accompanied by a parent or guardian during the registration process.

Walcott School registration scheduled

Registration for classes in Walcott School will begin at 7 p.m. Aug. 11 at the school. All new students need to present birth certificates and immunization records.

There also will be a hamburger cookout for students, parents and school personnel at the registration.

Alaska trip leaves lasting impressions

Coastal Mountain Range to complete the railroad in 26 months.

Kuper and Armstrong also visited Haines, which is known as the location for the largest gathering of the American bald eagle.

Glacier Bay was of interest to Kuper because there were numerous "calves" floating in the bay.

"Calves" are chunks of ice which break off the glaciers and our ship had to steer clear of them while we were in Glacier Bay," she said.

No visit to Alaska would be complete without seeing totem poles. The cruise ship docked at Ketchikan, which is known as "Alaska's first city," and one of the guided tours included a stop at a shop where they were carving totem poles.

"The shop was along side a totem pole park. One of the totem poles was William Seward. The Eskimos had erected the pole to shame him because he didn't return in 10 years and repay the hospitality he was given with a 'potlatch' or feast," Kuper said.

According to Kuper, she and her daughter spent memorable hours on their ship as well as the time spent ashore.

"We were treated to an 11 p.m. Dutch Chocolate Extravaganza that was wonderful. Since our ship was the Holland America Line, we had all the Dutch goodies — all kinds of sweets, especially chocolate."

Shipboard experiences also included formal dinners — one where they met the captain — movies and shows and spending time in the Jacuzzi.

"Disembarking was a sad time. We met so many lovely people and it was sad to leave them. But it was a great week. One I'll always remember," Kuper said.

said, "Mercy."

"We're kind of working our way to the convention," which opens Monday, Bush said earlier at the Jones Center for Families, a privately financed community center that relies heavily on volunteer service.

He praised the work of volunteers, calling them, "a platoon in the army of compassion."

Bush also revived a proposal from earlier in his campaign — that Americans who pay their federal taxes with the short form be provided an opportunity to separately deduct charitable contributions.

Later, Bush and Cheney pressed the same line of attack at a rally at Missouri Southern State College in Joplin, Mo. "We're here for one reason — we want to restore honor to the White House," Bush told cheering supporters.

For his part, Cheney told the Missouri rally it was just the beginning of "what is going to be a very long, very hard fought campaign. ... We're going to fight for every vote."

Later, in interviews with ABC, Bush called Democratic criticism of his running mate and of the selection process "absurd. ... If Al Gore thinks he can win the election by tearing down Dick Cheney, he's in for an incredible surprise."

Bush said he and Cheney make a great team because "he doesn't talk much and I do." Cheney conceded he was reticent. "I'm not going to set the house on fire, but I don't have to," he said.

On his plane from Austin, Texas, Bush buoyantly told reporters that he was headed for "an unbelievably interesting dynamic moment in my life" as he prepares to accept the GOP nomination next Thursday.

"We're going to states that Republicans haven't won in awhile," Bush added.

At the Springdale rally, Bush and Cheney were introduced by the local congressman, Rep. Asa Hutchinson, R-Ark., who had been one of the House prosecutors in the Senate impeachment trial of Clinton.

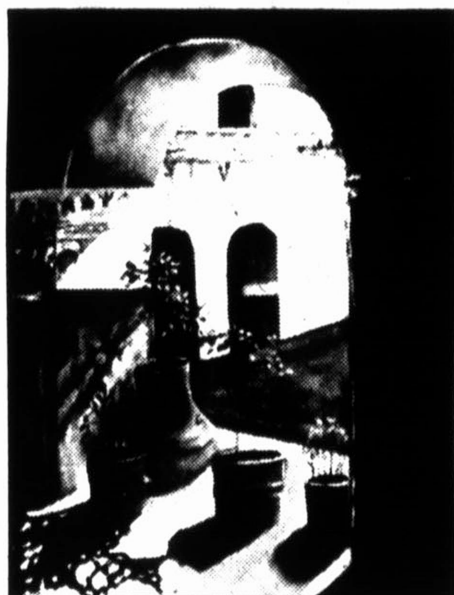

Hutchinson cited polls suggesting a GOP lead in Arkansas. "We've learned to appreciate your hope and optimism for America," he said.

Hutchinson's district is heavily Republican. It's also where Clinton began his political career — in an unsuccessful 1974 race for the House.

Bush said that, if elected, he and Cheney would "swear to uphold the honor and the dignity of the highest office of the land."

Chaidez is a self-taught artist, one who views his talent as "a gift from God."

"When I was six years old, I was already doing portraits," he said. Although he has done numerous portraits, Chaidez said the work for Taqueria Jalisco is his first mural — the first of many, if he has his way.

"I have a lot of work already lined up," Chaidez said. Three of those jobs will be murals; the others will be smaller works.

Holiday

In 1999, Texans spent more than $400 million on tax-exempt clothing and shoes during the three-day sales tax holiday, saving more than $32 million in sales taxes. Retailers statewide reported crowds comparable to the Christmas shopping season. The comptroller's office projects this year's holiday will save Texas families more than $30 million in state sales taxes and $7 million in local sales taxes.

The comptroller's office also contends the sales tax holiday has benefits for state and local governments. During the 1999, which was the first year to grant the holiday, overall sales tax revenues for the state rose to a record $13 billion, which city sales tax rebates rose by 7.1 percent to $3.5 billion.

The holiday applies to all state and local sales taxes. Qualifying purchases exempt from the state sales tax.

Hemingway's Arkansas country home charms visitors

By Peggy Harris

Associated Press Writer

PIGGOTT, Ark. — Love and marriage brought Ernest Hemingway to Arkansas.

Visiting the home of his wealthy in-laws in the Delta farmlands, Hemingway tapped out stories in the quiet of their barn-turned-studio. He hunted quail in Piggott's fields and played poker with the locals.

His rural hideaway during the 13 years he was married to Pauline Pfeiffer was nothing like the romantic haunts — Key West, Fla., Paris, Africa and Cuba — for which he is better known. He sometimes cursed Arkansas' intolerable heat and humidity, but rarely referred in his writings to his experiences in Piggott.

It is because so little is known about Hemingway's Arkansas connection that researchers and fans have flocked to the Pfeiffer home since it was renovated and reopened as the Hemingway-Pfeiffer Museum and Educational Center a year ago.

More than 5,500 visitors from 44 states and six countries have toured the museum — a remarkable number for a town where fewer than 4,000 people live.

"You have to be coming here to get to Piggott," says Ruth Hawkins, who runs the museum and is director of the Delta Heritage Initiatives at Arkansas State University in Jonesboro, which owns the museum.

Hawkins also is writing a book on Hemingway's marriage to Pauline Pfeiffer, the second of his four wives. The two were married from 1927 to 1940 and lived in Paris and Key West, but often visited Pauline's parents, Paul and Mary Pfeiffer.

Originally from Cedar Falls, Iowa, Paul Pfeiffer and his brothers became the wealthy owners of a chemical company in St. Louis. Preferring rural landscapes, Pauline's father bought 63,000 acres of farmland around Piggott and moved his family to the house on Cherry Street in 1913.

Pfeiffer's generosity, now local legend, provided income to residents during the Depression. When the town's bank failed, he founded the Piggott State Bank in 1930. When someone needed a job, Pfeiffer had them paint his two-story house. During renovation of the 90-year-old home, workers uncovered 47 layers of paint.

Pfeiffer and his wife, a devout Catholic who built a chapel in the home where Ernest and Pauline's two sons were baptized, also bought a number of quilts from women in the community. The Pfeiffers didn't need the quilts, but wanted to help others in some small way.

Pfeiffer's brother, Gus, who lived in New York City and had no children, was generous with his money, too. Gus Pfeiffer paid the rent on a Paris apartment for Hemingway and Pauline, bought the couple a 1928 yellow Ford Roadster, purchased the Key West house for them and financed their safari to Africa, a trip that produced at least three Hemingway books.

At the studio in Piggott, Hemingway could concentrate on his writing in the stillness and comfort of the Pfeiffers' country home. There, he wrote portions of "A Farewell to Arms" and segments of other books and short stories.

In a story believed to be based at the Piggott house about a boy's mistaken belief that he is dying, Hemingway describes a quail hunt on a cold day. He writes of "the icy, springy brush" and his pleasure at finding a covey so close to the house and "so many left to find on another day."

Pauline, a graduate of the University of Missouri Journalism School, wrote for the Cleveland Press and Vanity Fair before accepting a job with the Paris bureau of Vogue magazine. It was in Paris where she met Hemingway. A critical reader, Pauline was helpful to Hemingway in the early years of his writing career, Hawkins says.

Besides the Hemingway connection, another reason the state of Arkansas wanted to buy the property was its location. The property sits on Crowley's Ridge, a unique geological formation that cuts through eight counties, roughly paralleling the Mississippi River.

Since purchasing the house in 1997, the university has used the project as a learning lab for students in graphic art, marketing and environmental sciences. The center has held literature classes, and drama students have done renditions there of Hemingway short stories.

This summer, the museum is planning a young authors' workshop. Hawkins also wants to organize an elder hostel program to bring older travelers to the center for 1930's literature classes, and a trip down Crowley's Ridge National Scenic Byway.

Down the road, plans call for planting an apple orchard that once stood across from the Pfeiffer house and building an educational center on the grounds where a public school house operated during the Pfeiffer years and where Patrick Hemingway, Ernest and Pauline's oldest son, attended school.

For researchers, the museum plans to open an archive of Pfeiffer family letters, including those written to and by Hemingway.

Technology impacts standards of living

The new religion of the Internet-biotech-electronic age suggests living standards once envisioned only in dreams. Now some hard-nosed, show-me types are conceding it may not be total illusion.

It isn't that they are about to become converts, just that they are making concessions — gradually accepting that innovations are indeed changing the measurements of the economy and stocks.

The point was subtly described by Robert McTeer, president of the Federal Reserve regional bank in Dallas, when he observed in his annual report that "we have been sustaining the unsustainable for four years now."

McTeer's satire referred to the ability of the U.S. economy to do what many old-line economists claimed could not be done. That is, to grow like a wildfire but not produce the heat of inflation.

To explain: Convention maintained that if the expansion's speed violated the old limit of 2.5 percent a year, and if unemployment continued to fall, inflation was inevitable. Wasn't it always so?

But in his July commentary for Standard & Poor's, economist David Wyss, sure-minded and wedded to evidence, suggests that "perhaps we need to redefine the sustainable rate of U.S. economic growth."

In fact he did so, revising the Standard & Poor's DRI economic model to accommodate the evidence. The sustainable rate, he says, "does appear to be in the 3.5-4.0 percent range."

The big change making this possible, or so it appears, is a sharp rise in productivity resulting from the innovations of recent years. More can be produced for less today than a decade ago — more goods and services for each hour worked. Translation: lower costs.

Productivity, according to the economists, is the one way in which living standards are raised, a perfect illustration of the old maxim about working smarter rather than harder. Use the tool on your shoulders. Get more done without longer hours and manual effort.

Those who examine every word and gesture of Alan Greenspan, the Federal Reserve chairman, have detected that he, too, has been alluding to the likelihood that strong productivity growth is here for a while, and that it may persist and help restrain inflation.

Hardly a recent convert, economist Edward Yardeni of Deutsche Bank Alex. Brown, declares firmly, "I am in the optimists' camp — the digital crowd," implying "the analog thinkers" aren't current.

Equally confident that higher productivity has, for the time being at least, reduced the dangers of a sharp decline in stock prices, Vince Fioramonti of Aeltus Investment states "I am a productivity believer."

Fioramonti cites two studies that support his confidence.

The first, from the University of Texas, shows revenues for U.S.-based Internet companies growing 15 times faster than the old physical economy.

The second is a Commerce Department report which estimates that Internet industries are just 8 percent of gross domestic product but have accounted for nearly a third of GDP growth in the past four years.

As for stocks, Jeremy Siegal, Wharton School professor and stock market analyst, has suggested that in a well-managed modern economy, perhaps we should expect higher price-to-earnings ratios.

Before the economic expansion of recent years, an average PE, or the price investors are willing to pay for $1 of a company's earnings, was 14. He suggests maybe 20 to 25 is now reasonable.

Most people instinctively feel it's unwise to say goodbye to the old and to be overly eager to greet the new. Don't trust the visionaries, they say. Wait for the evidence instead.

To question whether the evidence of a fundamental change is conclusive is still reasonable. But the evidence is building.

YOUR EYES

Keeping The Red Out

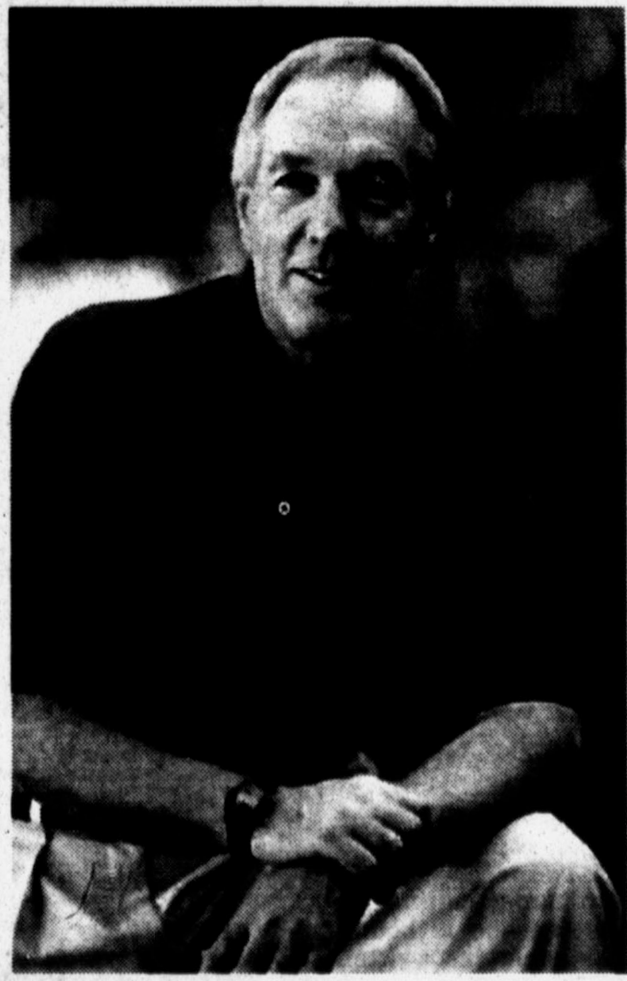

You keep rubbing your eyes, but they won't stop itching. And when you look in the mirror, they are red and puffy. What's going on? You just may have a common problem called conjunctivitis, informally known as pinkeye. Usually people get conjunctivitis in both eyes at the same time. It usually doesn't hurt, but the itching is bothersome. It feels like you have a speck of dust in your eye and can't get it out.

Conjunctivitis is very contagious. It's easy to get from touching the hand of someone who already has the ailment. It is very common in schools where the children have close contact. A doctor will prescribe eye drops or ointment to relieve the symptoms. In the meantime, gently cleaning the eyes with warm water and cotton balls will improve the situation. Wash your hands frequently to help prevent spreading the infection.

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

YOU Said It!

“We know that they're getting tougher on dairies in California and New Mexico, and this is one way for us to get our foot in the door.”

JERRY STEVENS,

Hereford Economic Development Corp. director, referring to possible agreement to bring a new dairy to the county.

Editorial

■ A stagnant tax base, rising taxes, and sacred COWS:

HOLD ON TO YOUR WALLETS

It appears likely Deaf Smith County taxpayers will see their taxes going up when the new budget year starts Oct. 1.

Deaf Smith County commissioners have been considering a 6-percent tax increase, to 56.76 cents per $100 assessed valuation, as they try to develop a budget for Fiscal 2001. If the commissioners do approve the increase, which will necessitate a public hearing, it will be the first true increase — although not the first rate increase — since 1996.

Deaf Smith County, like many others, is between a rock and a tax hike. Its costs of services, most of which are mandated by the federal and state government, have been on the rise while its tax base has remained stagnant.

And in this particular instance, we don't subscribe to a common taxpayer notion that the county commissioners have been free-spenders.

Far from it. In recent years, county commissioners have been frugal with the taxpayer's money, putting off capital expenditures, reducing employee benefits and foregoing salary increases. And the court has done all that belt-tightening through some tough times in our local economy.

But the sad truth is, this county can't cut deep enough to keep pace with costs.

The only clear-cut solution to the county's budget shortfalls comes with an expanded tax base. For that reason, the county has cooperated with the Hereford Economic Development Corp. in granting tax abatements to several companies. The county commissioners hope the short-term loss of tax revenue will be offset by long-term revenue from sales and services generated by these new companies.

And while they've scrambled with other local government and HEDC to bring in companies that might create another five or 10 new jobs to our town, the commissioners couldn't be blamed if they looked at one huge segment of our immense, agriculture-based economy and concluded that segment is not pulling a fair share of the tax load.

The Deaf Smith County Appraisal District estimates this county would see its tax base grow by $189 million per year if cattle inventories were on the tax rolls.

Thanks to the Texas Legislature, the hundreds of thousands of cattle that are in the feedyards dotting Deaf Smith County and the surrounding area are not on the tax rolls, and haven't been since the early 1980s.

Everyone, including our county commissioners, knows the cattle industry is vital to our local and state economies.

But the industry also places a huge demand on intrastate infrastructure and still enjoys an exemption that has always smelled bad to other state and local taxpayers.

And until exemptions like those enjoyed on cattle inventories are eliminated, or until this community's tax base grows more substantially by other means, it appears the county's consideration of this tax increase may be its only remaining option.

Radio fired imagination

Last week I was a guest on James Hunt's "Open Line," a talk show on KGNC-AM in Amarillo.

During one of the commercial breaks, I got to thinking about how much I enjoyed radio when I was kid — and how much it's changed since then.

Back in those days, before television took over and robbed us of our imaginations, you had to create the scene in your mind as you listened to your favorite radio show.

Footsteps crossing the room, the sound of horses' hooves, doors creaking and slamming, tires squealing — all of the sounds we hear accompanying the visual images on television — were created by a show's sound effects crew.

I remember lying on the floor at night as I listened to my favorite radio shows. I could imagine the dust blowing and tumbleweeds rolling across the prairie when the theme song signaled the start of "Gunsmoke."

Yep, years before James Arness wore the badge, William Conrad — later to be the portly private detective in TV's "Cannon" — was U.S. Marshal Matt Dillon, walking along the plank sidewalks of frontier Dodge City and rousting bad guys.

For detective shows, I listened to "Yours Truly, Johnny Dollar," which was about an investigator for a big insurance company based in Hartford, Conn. Every show ended as the intrepid reporter filed his report, always ending with the show's signature, "Yours Truly, Johnny Dollar."

Another weekly drama was "The Shadow," which featured a phrase that was repeated countless times on school playgrounds: "Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men? The Shadow knows."

A squeaking door was the signal for "Inner Sanctum," a radio forerunner of television's "Playhouse 90" that featured thrillers, but I don't think I ever watched a movie or television show that scared me as much as the wax museum episode of "Suspense."

Donald Cooper

The show that was calculated to keep you "in suspense" seemed to live up to that billing. I still can remember the hairs rising on the back of my neck as the wax museum episode rushed to its climax. That night I lay awake nearly all night, every sound seeming like the padded footsteps of an intruder, the shadows creeping across the ceiling as I imagined the murderer's shadow did in the wax museum.

Radio comedies were plentiful. I still chuckle when I remember the miserly Jack Benny going down into his vault to get some of the money he had stashed in the dank dungeon, and reminding Ben, the old man who stood guard that "McKinley's not president any more."

One of the pleasures of listening to "Fibber McGee & Molly" was trying to figure out when Fibber would go to his closet, open the door and be buried beneath an avalanche of toys, tools, boxes, clothes and whatever else could be stuffed into a small space.

I've never been to Boston's Fenway Park, but thanks to "Mutual's Game of the Day" announcers, I could see in my mind the oddly shaped baseball stadium with its friendly left field wall and distant right field stands.

In 1955, thanks to Mrs. Lewis and her radio, I got to listen as the Brooklyn Dodgers beat the New York Yankees to win the World Series. I didn't have to be watching a television to know how the players celebrated, I could imagine the celebration going on, thanks to my imagination.

That's what's missing in this age of television — leaving something to our imagination.

What good are court orders?

The verdict is in. A jury or judge hands down a sentence which includes a court order. It may be a criminal trespass order, a true protective order, or an order calling for restitution. Unfortunately, someone is bound to say: "It's not worth the paper it's written on."

Unfortunately, the speaker is probably right. These court orders usually are issued in the best interests of the victim, in hopes the victim will be compensated for some loss and the perpetrator will take to heart the cost of his actions.

But because of the way some laws are written, that's where the good intentions die, often within the enforcement laws themselves.

Agencies in charge of enforcing the conditions have their hands so firmly tied that the only ones who can wiggle out are the offenders. The more often an individual is in the criminal justice system, the better prepared he is to wiggle out of the restrictions.

A first-time probationer, normally a law-abiding citizen who chose to have a really stupid moment, pays the fines, fees and restitution and adheres to court orders — out of fear of actually winding up in jail or prison.

The more seasoned lawbreaker knows all too well the laws which restrict the enforcement agencies and can take advantage of those restrictions.

Most parolees know their parole officer is going to insist all fines and fees be paid. They also know that restitution is a low-priority issue. Parolees are not kept under supervision past their release date, regardless of amount of restitution owed.

So, someone who owes $1,000 in restitution can usually get off after paying a tiny portion of what the court ordered, which means the victim seldom is reimbursed for damages.

Unfortunately, restraining orders often are a joke.

A violent spousal abuser isn't going to be kept away from a family just because a little piece of paper orders it.

Gee, mom! I wanna go home!

Mauri Montgomery

Hello, Hereford.

Twenty three Hereford Boy Scouts, four adult leaders and one grown-up wannabe conquered Camp Cherokee a few weeks ago.

Beyond the many merit badges the scouts earned; and the honor they brought to themselves, to Troop 52 and to Hereford; they survived.

No small feat.

Camp Cherokee is a sanctioned Boys Scouts of America post that sprawls along the flint rock ridges and hills lining a portion of Oklahoma's majestic Grand Lake.

From the entrance, the camp looked innocent enough. There was no concertina wire marking its hidden and firmly-rooted perimeter among the thick stands of oak, maple, pine and poison ivy that clutch the lakeside community of Grove so tightly.

Still, jaded by experience, some of us knew there was menace in those wooded hills. Out-of-shape journalists have a finely attuned nose for such things.

One of the camp directors jokingly said the founders had considered locating the camp on Venus, but they found it was too cool there most of the year.

"You're not going to find many places that are hotter in the summer than this place is," he grimaced.

"But, it's a dry heat, right?" the journalist smirked.

If the guys weren't swimming in the pool, the guys were swimming through Oklahoma's oppressive and viscous atmosphere, where precious body fluids hemorrhaged at rates rivaling government welfare subsidies.

Troop 52 faced a maddening daily race to replenish the water used by human evaporative cooling systems. They began to hate the sight of water.

And the bugs and critters took over where the humidity left off. It was a jungle out there.

Prehistoric-sized spiders wove huge wicked webs that snared hordes of blinking fire flies by night, and much bigger prey (humans) by day. Scouts caught in the nearly invisible traps, drawn from tree to tree along the trails, soon tired of clawing them away from their faces — choosing instead to wear them like hair nets.

There were also ticks and chiggers, poisonous stick-shaped bugs, skunks, racoons and millions of chirping tree frogs whose constant drone made sign language a near necessity at dusk. There was a bat in the latrine, there were unidentified crawlers, both real and invented, that trespassed at will through the open tents and sleeping bags of previously snoring scouts.

The woods came alive under the stars, but slumbered when the scouts busied themselves with their daily routines — cleaning their campsite, cleaning themselves — all of which would never pass their mothers' eye for detail, but judged adequate by lesser male drill sergeant standards.

In whole, this scouting experience, which was spread over six days and nights, was as much about weaning many of these young men away from the comforting arms of their mothers as it was in bolstering their mounting scouting skills. Some managed better than others, but most of those who were testing these uncertain waters for the first time learned to lean on each other, to pool their resources and to recognize the pain of those buddies having as much difficulty as they.

For the adults, or at least one out-of-shape journalist, there came the realization that we adults might have more in common with the old woman who lived in a shoe than we cared to admit. Insanity was clearly possible outside of nursery rhymes, especially with so many diverse wants, needs and demands to quell.

Much can be said for the talents demonstrated in mothering, where compassion often overrules impatience. Troop 52 didn't benefit from a great deal of quality mothering.

The adult leaders spent the better part of each day trying to cope with stress. One leader found calm in swimming miles and daily visits to Walmart — a pity: no nurturing merit badge for him.

The questions were constant:

"When are we going to get there?"

"Have you seen my money and my swimming suit?"

"Did you pick up my Class A uniform?"

"Where are we supposed to go next?"

"When are we going to eat?"

"What are we going to eat?"

And in the end, the boys and the adults each learned a little more about their individual strengths and weaknesses.

Nearly 300 scouts, from the morning's opening shout of reveille to the mournful wail of taps each night, dealt with a week full of BSA tests and trials — pitting one's own wits, stamina, and bowels against the physical rigors

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No bull, help was appreciated

Dear Editor:

We, at XIT Cellular, would like to take this means of expressing our sincere appreciation for the use of the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn for our recent customer appreciation dinner. Hereford and Deaf Smith County are very fortunate to have such an excellent facility. We also consider ourselves very fortunate that we were allowed to share this facility with our customers.

We would like to thank Judge Wes Gulley and his office staff for being so courteous and helpful when we were making arrangements for the use of the Bull Barn for our dinner. It is so nice when planning an event such as this to be assisted by people with friendly and helpful attitudes. It sure makes our job a lot easier!

In addition, we would like to commend Pete Madrigal for the royal treatment that our employees received. When our setup crew arrived at the Bull Barn in Hereford on Monday morning, July 24, to set up for the dinner, they were met with an exceptionally clean building, positive attitudes, and several helping hands.

XIT Cellular opened its doors in Hereford on Monday, Dec. 16, 1991, and we've been proud to be a part of this community since that day. In our minds, communities who have people working together, working to welcome newcomers to town, ultimately means SUCCESS for everyone!

Thanks for the royal treatment, Hereford. We noticed!

Businesses, hotels fight for GOP attention

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Retailers will welcome the Grand Old Party to its presidential convention with a whiff of good old-fashioned capitalism: red, white and blue martinis, rubber elephants for the bathtub and cookies resembling George W. Bush campaign buttons.

The quirky promotions at retail shops, restaurants and hotels are all about grabbing the attention — and the cash — of the 45,000 Republican officials, delegates and reporters who will attend the convention, which begins Monday.

Convention-goers can nosh on cookies decorated like the Liberty Bell, soak in a bath with red, white and blue effervescent salts or take home a commemorative hotel room key. At the Old City restaurant Novelty, diners can eat "American Pie," made of apples and served with ice cream and an American flag.

Sue Schwenderman, a spokeswoman for the Philadelphia Convention and Visitors Bureau, said the agency asked businesses in Philadelphia and its suburbs to get involved in the convention, as they have with past citywide events.

"It's given people a way to participate, have some fun with this," Schwenderman said. "We told them: 'Do something fun and different and you'll stand out from the crowd.'"

The Ritz-Carlton is offering the "unconventional bath" package to its guests. Each night, they'll also receive a different convention-themed amenity, from the jelly beans favored by former President Ronald Reagan to a white chocolate Lincoln Log pastry.

Orders

The holder of a restraining order is nearly as restricted as the agencies charged with enforcing it. Dates and locations of restrictions must be clearly outlined, plus the holder must have a copy of the order in possession. Enforcement agencies then often have to catch the offender within the restricted territory.

No wonder "Earl" can walk right through the restraining order.

The saddest thing about these situations is how court orders are rendered useless.

What good is the restraining order when someone winds up in the hospital? How much good does it do to order someone to pay for damages and let him walk away? Why should any victim be forced to foot the bill for an illegal act committed by another?

This is exactly what happens when a parolee pays only a portion of his restitution. The victim still foots the bill. The victim had to pay for the damages initially. Not only should the victim get the full amount of restitution, but he also should receive interest for the time he's had to wait.

I figure it all boils down to this: Victims get a New York raspberry; bad guys walk away, smirking at those who thought they could make him accept consequences for his actions.

The individual who violates a protective order and harms someone is probably going to do jail or prison time. But that doesn't help the victim much, because the victim's taxes then support the offender.

It's an unending cycle where the victim loses everytime.

Maybe it's time for citizens to be contacting the legislators who make these laws which seem to guarantee the rights of criminals above the rights of law abiding citizens. After all, if statistics are anywhere near correct, seven out of 10 people will be in the victims' shoes at some point.

Do you really want to wait until you're the victim who is expecting restitution?

Then it's too late.

Gee, mom!

posed by the camp's almost-military regimen.

Walking the tightrope of a shoe-string budget, Troop 52 outlasted the extremes and shined with glory at week's close. There wasn't a soul in that camp who didn't wonder why Troop 52 from Hereford was honored more than any other in the final awards ceremony — why so much attention was paid to this scruffy bunch from the Texas Panhandle.

The answer would have been more simple than they might have suspected — pride. It was worn in every task and against every obstacle heaped before the troop, and it shone brightly across those scruffy faces during the last night in Hidden Rock campsite.

But the scouts packed the week easily behind them when we headed home to their mothers' sweet embrace the next morning, laughing and singing with great mirth — the scouting victory hymn: "Gee, mom! I wanna go back! Back where the toilets flush! Gee mom, I wanna go home!"

Scrunched into the driver's seat of the windy, interior ram-air cooling offered by a borrowed Walcott School bus, the rumbled journalist tried to determine whether the yellow wagon and its animated cargo looked more like a pack of gypsies heading to the next circus, or a bunch of Southern Baptists traveling to a tent-covered revival.

It was a toss-up. He sang, too. And with great pride.

Rangers beat Detroit, trade Segui

■ Texas picks up Ledee from Tribe for Segui

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — When Juan Gonzalez was traded to Detroit in the off-season, Texas Rangers reliever Tim Crabtree made some negative comments about the slugger.

Apparently, the hard feelings still linger.

Crabtree's inside fastball to Gonzalez nearly touched off a brawl in the Rangers' 11-5 victory over the Tigers on Friday night.

Crabtree threw a chest-high fastball to Gonzalez in the seventh inning, angering the Tigers star. Gonzalez gestured at Crabtree and took a couple of quick steps toward the mound before being restrained by catcher Bill Haselman, Gonzalez's longtime friend from their minor league days.

The dugouts and bullpens emptied but no punches were thrown.

"When the Rangers traded me, he talked in the papers," Gonzalez said of Crabtree. "I don't talk like that. I talk man to man. He was sending a message to me by throwing me close."

Following the Gonzalez trade, Crabtree was quoted in a Michigan newspaper as saying, "He's their problem now."

Crabtree said there was no message behind inside pitch. He said he was merely trying to prevent Gonzalez from hitting a homer with runners on first and second and the Rangers in front, 10-5.

"It was not my intention to throw at him," Crabtree said. "Juan has a lot of power. The last thing I want him to do is get his hands extended and hit a three-run homer. I was trying to tie him up inside and get a ground ball.

"I was kind of surprised he reacted the way he did. Things escalated and got out of hand. Juan's a great player. But he's a Tiger now and I need to get him out," he said.

Former teammate Rafael Palmeiro said Gonzalez is still coming to grips with the deal almost eight months after it happened.

"You've got to understand, he was hurt by the trade," Palmeiro said. "He comes back and the pitcher throws inside. Sure he thinks there's a message. That made him upset. But that's what we talked about doing. Crabbby needed to throw inside to him."

Haselman's three-run double highlighted an eight-run third inning. Frank Catalanotto homered and Gabe Kapler hit an RBI double as Texas won its fourth in a row. All three players were part of the off-season trade that sent Gonzalez to Detroit.

Rick Helling (12-7) won his fifth consecutive decision. He allowed five runs and eight hits in six innings.

The Rangers remain in last place in the AL West, but they don't think they're out of the race. Texas moved within a game of .500 for the first time since early July.

"You can never tell what will happen," said Helling. "We still feel we have a shot at the playoffs if we can put a long streak together. We've got 61 games left. We've still got a chance."

Dean Palmer hit his 19th home run as the Tigers took a 3-0 lead in the first. Texas got a run in the bottom half against Brian Moehler (6-7) on Rafael Palmeiro's RBI double.

Catalanotto hit a solo homer in the second. The Rangers broke open the game in the third with their biggest inning of the season, highlighted by Haselman's three-run double.

Royce Clayton and Luis Alicea added RBI singles and Chad Curtis had a two-run double to chase Moehler. Kapler's RBI double off reliever Nelson Cruz extended Texas' lead to 10-3.

Moehler, 5-2 with a 2.49 ERA in seven previous career starts against Texas, was tagged for 10 runs and 11 hits in 2 2-3 innings. Detroit narrowed the gap to 10-5 in the fourth on Juan Encarnacion's two-run homer. Mike Lamb homered for Texas in the seventh.

Notes: The Rangers' eight-run inning was their biggest since an eight-run outburst on Sept. 25, 1999, against Oakland. ... Texas DH David Segui was scratched from the starting lineup, and was traded to Cleveland a few hours later for outfielder Ricky Ledee. Ledee will join the Rangers Sunday night and is expected to be the starting right fielder for most of the rest of the season. ... Moehler had his earliest knockout of the season.

Campo changing team's work habits

■ New head coach sets new pace at camp

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — This training camp is turning out to be no drag for the Dallas Cowboys. At least not at the quick pace coach Dave Campo set.

Practices have routinely finished ahead of schedule as players have responded to their energetic and often emotional coach with lively workouts, both during the routine drills and new wrinkles that Campo has added.

"We want to give them the feeling that we are a speed team and we want to do things in a fast way, whether it's our defense swarming the football or our offensive getting to the line of scrimmage and making some things happen as quickly as possible," Campo said.

Things are getting so fast that the Cowboys finished the first of two practice sessions Friday about 30 minutes ahead of schedule. The only practice Thursday wrapped up about 10 minutes early. Campos served as the Cowboys' defensive coordinator the past five seasons and has been a member of the coaching staff since 1989, the year Jerry Jones bought the team.

"He brings some fire to the table. Some guys are more mellow and laid back, but Campo's not that way, never been that way," said defensive back George Teague. "We know he's an aggressive coach, and I think that's what we need."

The only noticeable change for Teague, Hambrick and other veteran defenders is Campo's increased involvement with the offense, working with coordinator Jack Reilly on installing an offense similar to what helped Dallas crown Super Bowl championship titles in 1992, 1993 and 1995.

"He doesn't come around as much, it's more like a wave here or there," said defensive back Darren Woodson. "He's on the fence now. We hardly see him any more until we're doing a team drill. He leans to that offense a little more than he did."

In effect, Campo's infectious personality is taking hold of the offense like it had the defense over the past few years.

Houston humbled by Braves, 5-2

Rain delays stretch game to more than six hours

ATLANTA (AP) — Chipper Jones wasn't in the mood to talk.

"No comment," the Atlanta Braves slugger said jokingly, trying to brush off reporters who approached his locker sometime after 2 a.m. to discuss a game that ended more than six hours after it was supposed to begin.

Aldy Ashby picked up his third straight win for Atlanta and fifth in a row overall as the Braves held on through two long rain delays to beat Houston 5-2 Friday, snapping the Astros' season-high winning streak at five games.

"It was a long night, but if we had blown the game it would have been a really long night," said Kerry Ligtenberg, who pitched two-thirds of an inning in the wee hours. "We got to the point, and I think they did too, where you're just trying to throw strikes, get outs and get the hell out of here."

Five Atlanta pitchers totaled 15 strikeouts, tying a season high.

Originally scheduled for 7:40 p.m. EDT, the first pitch was delayed 1 hour, 46 minutes by the first storm to move through Turner Field. In the bottom of the fifth, the showers became heavy again, bringing out the tarp for a stoppage of 1:39.

Rafael Furcal walked just before the delay — and scored nearly two hours later after stealing his second base of the night. The game finally ended at 2:03 a.m. EDT with just a few thousand fans left from the sellout crowd of 47,906.

"The only thing I can laugh at is we've got to be here again in nine hours to play another one," said Jones, hardly looking forward to Saturday's 1:15 p.m. start. "Most of the guys are going to sleep here tonight. Hopefully, we won't be dragging too bad."

Jones and Wally Joyner, filling in again for the injured Andres Galarraga, both had two RBIs. Keith Lockhart drove in Atlanta's other run as the Braves maintained a five-game lead over the New York Mets in the NL East.

Ashby (7-7), who joined Max Leon and Buzz Capra as the only Atlanta pitchers to go the distance in their first two starts with the Braves, didn't get a chance to become the first with three in a row.

The right-hander, acquired from Philadelphia during the All-Star break, allowed four hits and struck out seven before the second delay. He didn't return to the mound when play resumed.

"Ashby was throwing pretty good," Houston manager Larry Dierker said. "When we got him out, I thought we would come back and score a few runs, but we didn't."

Four relievers finished up for the Braves. John Rocker struck out the side in the ninth for his 14th save.

"He threw good," Dierker said. "He had pretty good control. The last time we saw him in Houston, he couldn't throw a strike."

Ashby's winning streak benefited from a rainout in Florida in which he allowed six runs in three innings. Those numbers were stricken from the record book when the game was called.

Officially, he is 5-0 with a 1.18 ERA in his last five starts.

The Braves had a 3-0 lead before making an out against Wade Miller (1-3).

Furcal led off the first with a walk, stole second and moved to third on Andruw Jones' infield hit. Chipper Jones followed with a double into the right-field corner, bringing home both runners. Joyner came through with another two-bagger to the left-field corner, scoring Jones.

"That was a long time ago," he quipped.

After the shaky first, Miller allowed only two hits and a walk before the second rain delay ended his night.

Ashby escaped trouble in the second, striking out Julio Lugo with runners at first and third. The Astros finally broke through in the fourth. Lance Berkman led off with a double to center, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on Moises Alou's sacrifice fly.

Richard Hidalgo had an RBI single in the sixth against Scott Kamieniecki.

Notes: The sellout pushed the Braves over 2 million in attendance for the 10th year in a row. ... The Astros have used 19 pitchers this year, four more than all of last season and just four short of the franchise record.

Freshmen Golf tryout in August

Freshmen tryout for the Hereford High School golf team will be on Aug. 7-10 at the John Pitman Golf Course starting at 4:30 p.m. Those who want to try out must have a physical. For more information call coach James Salinas at 364-5872.

Wrestling slated for Sunday

Professionalizing wrestling group holds fundraiser for Hereford YMCA

Wrestling's World Superstars (WWS) will be in town at the Hereford Bullbarn Sunday, July 30, to raise money for the Hereford YMCA wrestling team.

Events begin at the bullbarn at 3 p.m. and will feature six professional wrestling matches with all concession proceeds going to the YMCA team.

Topping Sunday's bill is The Visionary Chris Youngblood and his brother Mark Youngblood.

The two are both previous World Championship Wrestling (WCW) competitors. Chris Youngblood squares off against the Angel of Darkness in the main event, and Mark Youngblood will take on Doink the Evil Clown in the semi main event.

Radi- c a I Ricky Romero III, a 17-year-old Amarillo High School student, will face Kid Kaos in the WWS Jr. Title Match.

MARK YOUNGBLOOD

The Youngblood's are both the sons of former professional wrestler Rapid Ricky Romero. Romero is also the grandfather of Ricky Romero III, and Romero will be making a guest appearance along with Rip Hawk.

Romero said he is proud of his sons for carrying on his legacy.

"At first it was scary to watch, but then when I saw them in the ring I knew they were ready," Romero said. "I am proud of them and my

The WWS has been in Amarillo for one year and a half. The organization is headed by Don Oakley who previously ran a wrestling group in Las Vegas, Nev. The organization has participated in various charitable events during the past year to help raise money for different causes. Chris Rumiro (Chris Youngblood) said he enjoys giving back to the people.

"It is good to know you can help people," Rumiro said. "It is good to know you are helping right here in the community."

Ringside tickets for Sunday's events are $10 while general admission is only $8. Kids general admission is $5. Advance tickets are being sold at the Hereford YMCA or can be reserved by calling 379-8060.

READY TO ROPE

BRAND/Jeff Blackmon

Ready to rope—Steve Purcella (top) takes in some roping practice Tuesday evening at his home in Westway. Purcella is a professional roper and will be competing in the Sixth Annual Spicer Gripp Memorial Roping contest. Purcella and his partner will rope against some of the world's best ropers in Hereford on August 6. The roping contest begins on August 4 and ends on August 7.

Strawberry's cancer is back

Yankee outfielder continues to struggle off of the field

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Darryl Strawberry's cancer has returned, adding to the string of misfortunes and legal problems besetting the suspended New York Yankees slugger.

As he faced questions about his probation, Strawberry said Friday his first priority would be to fight his cancer.

"Physically, I have some situations coming up right now that's going to be real difficult for me," Strawberry said without elaborating. "So I have to deal with them at this point."

Asked by reporters if his cancer had returned, the eight-time All-Star replied: "Yes," and walked away.

The 38-year-old outfielder would not comment on the possibility that he violated terms of probation on April 1999 charges of possessing cocaine and soliciting a prostitute.

Strawberry was diagnosed with colon cancer in 1998 and underwent surgery and chemotherapy. In January, he said a test showed his colon was free of cancer.

A CT scan suggests the possibility his colon cancer has spread to lymph nodes that were nearby his original tumor, and he will undergo more tests next week, said Strawberry's agent, Eric Grossman.

"I have a wonderful family and a beautiful new baby that I look forward to watching grow up, and I intend to do whatever it takes to tackle this problem so that I can enjoy the rest of my life with them," Strawberry said in a statement released by Grossman.

In Minnesota before the Yankees' game with the Twins, manager Joe Torre told a hushed clubhouse of the latest news about Strawberry.

"I'm sick to my stomach. You know it's always there, that danger or potential of it coming back. It's just very sad," said Torre, who successfully battled prostate cancer. "Thank God there's just so many other ways to treat cancers today."

Shortstop Derek Jeter added: "Everyone's shocked again. It's just unfortunate. Hopefully, everything will be all right."

"He's had a streak of misfortunes. ... Just when you think you've gotten over cancer, and it comes right back."

Earlier Friday, Strawberry had a regularly scheduled meeting with corrections officials, and was questioned about why he left his drug aftercare program — a possible violation of his probation.

Purcella remains in top five

Hereford roper still in four spot as tour heads into August

Hereford's professional cowboy Steve Purcella continues to hold onto the fourth place spot in tour money winnings. Purcella is a team roper in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Purcella's current winnings total $48,262.

Former Hereford resident Mickey Gomez is 12 in his division with $26,103. Gomez now calls Holland his home.

Westland key gone

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Free agent John Westland's faltering talks with the Texas Rangers for a contract extension mean a trade is more likely by Monday's nonwaiver trading deadline, according to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

A source familiar with the discussions told the newspaper on Friday's edition that Westland's representative, Adam Katz, and the team appear to be in agreement on a one-year extension and an option for the 2002 season. But so, according to the newspaper, who has not accepted Katz's proposal of $6 million for next season.

The source said the team's proposal of $4 million for 2002 asks the 33-year-old pitcher to accept a $2 million pay cut from his $6 million salary this season. It was not known if Westland would be willing to accept a smaller decrease in salary.

Campo

Campo has quickly made a positive impact on a team that was a combined 24-24 the last three regular seasons and has lost in the first round of the playoffs the last two years — its only postseason appearances since the last Super Bowl.

More importantly, he's getting passing marks from the man who matters most.

"It is very apparent to me that he had a plan in mind as to how he wanted this thing, not only the perception of it, but from a practical standpoint," Jones said. "And we're seeing that happen, it's no accident that we have an up-tempo out there."

Campo takes those comments as a sign things are heading in the right direction. After all, Jones has three Super Bowls rings to back up his know-how.

"He has a feel for what's going on the field and I think we are making some progress there," Campo said of his boss.

Notes: Not only are the Cowboys looking for a new kicker and new punter, they have to find somebody to hold for extra points and field goals.

Tight end Eric Bjornson, who handled the duty last season, has gone to New England as a free agent. "Coming in, I was more worried about the holder than the kicker," kickers coach Steve Hoffman said.

The likely choice may be whichever punter remains on the roster.

WR Wane McGarity spent much of the past three months rolling putty in his hand to strengthen the right ring finger he broke last season. Screws were initially inserted in the finger but have since been removed.

The second week of training camp has been cooler, with the temperature exceeding 100 degrees (104) just once during practice. In the first week, it was 100 degrees or more on four days.

BUSH: 'I don't fear failure ...

By Nancy Bonac
Associated Press Writer

No one saw a presidential glimmer in George W. Bush's mischievous blue eyes when he was a cocky little kid with an awesome baseball card collection and an Elvis impersonation that cracked up his fourth-grade class.

Nor did they glimpse it when his parents sent him East to be educated at Andover and Yale, where he was a so-so student who had a zany reign as the High Commissioner of Stickball and ran a fraternity that threw the best parties.

Nor when he went back home to Midland, Texas, ready to make his way in the oil patch and have a good time along the way — "living on the edge," as one friend remembers it.

When Doro Koch, the youngest of former President Bush's kids, is asked which of her four big brothers she would have picked as a future presidential candidate, she answers without hesitation. "None of 'em," she says. "We would've laughed out loud. It just wasn't on the radar screen."

The son of George Herbert Walker Bush and grandson of Sen. Prescott Sheldon Bush says simply that he inherited a sense of service. "None of this anointing thing," he once said of the family business of politics.

He has always been circumspect about the blessings and burdens of his political pedigree. It is the same now, as he seeks to become the first presidential son since John Quincy Adams to make it to the White House.

"There are really good people who know what they want to do, and do it from age 21 to 81," Bush says in an interview aboard his chartered campaign plane. "I'm just not that way."

George W., now 54, didn't get very serious about life until he hit 40, gave up drinking and began seeking spiritual strength. Even then, he didn't really know where he was headed, and didn't seem too concerned.

"I didn't plan my life out," he says, leaning forward in his seat and offering his trademark take-me-or-leave-me delivery. "There's just something inside me that I don't fear failure and I certainly don't fear success."

That's about as publicly "intro-spec-tive" as the Texas governor is likely to get. He pronounces the word deliberately, as if it is some sort of four-syllable infection. He's likely to quote what someone else has said about his feelings or dig up old statements of his own rather than provide fresh self-analysis.

The results can be contorted, as when he was asked to describe the pressures he felt to run for president: "Somebody read back a quote I said to David Broder that 'I felt like a cork in a raging river.'"

Boyhood friend Clay Johnson, now the governor's chief of staff, says, "There's not a lot of contemplation and commiseration or ruminating" to Bush.

From the start, Bush's challenge always has been how to channel his energy.

At age 4½, "Georgie has grown to be a near-man, talks dirty once in a while and occasionally swears," his father wrote to a friend in 1951. "He lives in his cowboy clothes."

Grade school principal John Bizilo remembers batting out fly balls for Bush and his pals on the playground during recess at Sam Houston Elementary. George wasn't very big, Bizilo recalls, but "he would chase 'em and get more than his share of fly balls. He was aggressive."

Competition was part of daily life for the Bush family, especially in sports. Even if George W. wasn't the best athlete, says sister Doro, "he could beat you psychologically because he's so funny and knows how to distract you."

Anchored in a secure family and the frontier spirit of West Texas, Bush grew up open to possibilities and unafraid to take risks.

"He always wanted to carve out his own niche," says longtime friend Charlie Younger. "And when your dad has carved out a pretty big niche of his own, that makes it harder."

Bush's parents offered him freedom and possibilities but also structure and expectathe same fraternity as his dad but never matching the achievements of his father in sports or academics.

Mike Wood, a Washington businessman, had the misfortune to follow Bush by a year both as head cheerleader at Andover and as president of Delta Kappa Epsilon at Yale. "I've got a decent personality, but I wasn't in that league," he says.

Bush, in Wood's view, is "not a prototypical nice guy. He's got an edge to him, which most people find appealing. ... He looks you in the eye and he says something that's funny and personal and perceptive that tells you he has you figured out."

otherwise loomed after graduation.

"You were going to be drafted unless you had some plan," Johnson says. "It was very practical for us."

Bush landed a slot in the Texas Air National Guard. Like his dad, he flew fighter jets. But where his father is known as a war hero who was shot down in the South Pacific, the younger Bush is pestered with questions about whether special treatment got him into the guard and kept him out of Vietnam, an allegation he denies.

Bush's four years in the guard, spent mostly in Houston, were a restless interlude before he returned East to Harvard Business School, unsure what he would do with the MBA that he set out to earn.

When the cabie dropped Bush off at Harvard in September 1973, proclaiming it "the West Point of capitalism," Watergate was raging. George W.'s aunt Nancy Ellis, who lives in Lincoln, Mass., recalled it as a "rotten time" for her nephew.

"You know Harvard Square and how they felt about Nixon," she once said. "But here was Georgie, his father head of the Republican National Committee. So he came out a lot with us just to get out of there."

After Harvard, Bush was drawn again to Texas, ready to make it in the oil business as his father had done two decades earlier.

As young Bush rounded up investors for his oil exploration company, "I can't tell you that his name and the fact that his father was respected and known didn't maybe get him in some doors that you and I might not get into as easily," says Charlie Younger, the surgeon who befriended Bush in Midland. "But George really struck out on his own."

Bush never could duplicate his father's success. Where his dad had turned up handsome profits in the oil boom, George W. ultimately ran smack into the oil bust. He managed to make money by selling his business before it went under, but many of his investors never recouped their losses.

Bush didn't look at his Midland years as a failure. He'd met and married Laura Welch, a librarian who helped rein in the "Bombastic Bushkin," as his friends called him. He'd run a losing campaign for Congress but managed a credible showing against a popular state senator. He was the father of twins, named Barbara and Jenna for their two grandmothers.

He'd sobered up. In the hangover after his 40th birthday dinner, Bush gave up drinking and says he hasn't touched alcohol since.

Presidential pose — George W. Bush

tions. In keeping with family tradition, he was sent to boarding school at age 15, to the exclusive Phillips Academy in Andover, Mass.

It was soon clear Bush wasn't going to "distinguish" himself academically or on the playing field, where his father had been a standout at soccer and baseball.

He made his mark as head cheerleader at the all-boys school and as "Tweeds Bush," organizer of a stickball tournament that he presided over in a top hat, with a white-coated league "psychiatrist" at his side to add to the hilarity.

"He wasn't full of himself; he still isn't full of himself," says Andover roommate John Kidde, a California businessman.

Sam Allis, a Boston Globe writer who was also a member of Andover's Class of 1964, said Bush "cruised the surface like a water bug. But at the end of the day, his uncommon social skills made him a major player without excelling in anything."

The story was much the same at Yale: mediocre student, likable guy, president of Kenneth Cohen, a member of the secret Skull and Bones society with Bush in their senior year, worries that, in the presidential race, "He doesn't seem to come across as the same warm, generous person that I know. He has become a political animal. ... He seems more controlled."

Bush's speeches now can come across as stiff and scripted. Under questioning from reporters, he can become defensive, even snappish.

At Yale, Cohen says, "He was just George. ... He was never afraid to express himself on anything. You ask him, he'd tell you."

The big issue their senior year was Vietnam, but the debate somehow seemed simpler for Bush than for others, who talked of fleeing to Canada or possible imprisonment. No teach-ins or war protests for him.

Clay Johnson, a Yale roommate, recalls the morality of the war being "almost a moot point" for Bush and himself. Their focus, he said, was on exploring alternatives to the draft that

Carter's chief of staff tells how cancer humbled him

By E.N. Smith

Associated Press Writer

The crafty "rube" who picked up a reputation for enjoying himself too much in Georgetown bars while he was Jimmy Carter's White House chief of staff details his personal struggles against cancer in his latest book.

Hamilton Jordan's second book, "No Such Thing as a Bad Day," is an inspirational memoir that spent four weeks on The New York Times' nonfiction best-seller list. It's a vivid portrayal of his shock, fear, depression and determination to beat cancer.

"I tell people I've had one of each," Jordan says.

In 1985, he was diagnosed with near-fatal lymphoma, which was treated with experimental chemotherapy. Six years later, his doctor removed an early form of skin cancer. Then, in 1995, he underwent major surgery for prostate cancer. "I don't feel

"I don't feel cursed or put upon by my cancers. Instead, I feel very blessed and just plain lucky to be alive."

cursed or put upon by my cancers. Instead, I feel very blessed and just plain lucky to be alive," he says.

"No Such Thing" is Jordan's second best seller. His first book, "Crisis," published in 1982, detailed the secret negotiations for the release of the American hostages in Iran. It was reprinted in paperback and became the basis for a TBS miniseries.

Jordan was known as a shrewd political fighter. His mother once said he had been a "political animal" since childhood. "If he didn't run himself, he'd run his cousin," she told Kandy Stroud, author of the 1977 book "How Jimmy Won."

"Woody Woodpecker" because of his spiky hair, and was accused of appreciating too openly the bosom of the Egyptian ambassador's wife.

Then there was the rumor that Jordan had used cocaine at Studio 54 in New York City. After an investigation, a federal grand jury voted unanimously against bringing an indictment.

"I never wanted to be a public figure, and I certainly never dreamed that I would become a controversial figure and, ultimately, a political liability for the man that I served," writes Jordan. "Despite the perception that developed of my being a playboy and a rube, I spent most of my first year physically at the White House, working 14 and 16 hours, seven days a week. I never went out socially and had no desire to be part of the Washington 'scene.'"

Jay Beck, who worked in the White House during the Carter years, recalled that world affairs touched Hamilton even during his boyhood in Albany.

"They were the kind of family that, when you went over and had dinner, they talked about politics, books, the world," he said.

After leaving the White House, Jordan made an unsuccessful run for the U.S. Senate in Georgia, worked for Whittle Communications in Knoxville, Tenn., and was executive director of the Association of Tennis Professionals.

Two years before Jordan learned he had lymphoma, he and his wife founded Camp Sunshine, a program for children with cancer. They are currently organizing a camp for children with juvenile diabetes.

Now 55, Jordan lives with his wife and three children in Atlanta, where he maintains a hand in several start-up companies that focus on health, education and the media.

Jordan says politics don't come up much in conversation these days. Although he stays informed, he would prefer that others do the analyzing. He's disillusioned by politics and underwhelmed by the prospect of voting for Al Gore or George W. Bush.

"As I've gotten older, I've gotten more conservative, more cynical about what government can and cannot do," he says.

Children's events are being scheduled for Thursday-Friday, open to reservation by local schools and day care centers. Two featured authors will be Kimberly Willis Holt and Anastasia Suen.

Holt was the winner of the 1999 National Book Award for Young People's Literature for her book "When Zachary Beaver Came to Town." Suen is a noted children's author, educator and co-founder of the Writers Roundtable Conference.

Winners of the festival's "Celebrate 2000" essay contest also will be recognized. The high school students who wrote the winning essays are:

- 1st Place — Ashley Tafton, Amarillo, "What's So Special About Books?";
- 2nd Place — Son Trinh, Plainview, "Oh, the Places I

- Will Go";
- 3rd Place — Mettie Judd Logan (N.M.), "Complete Immersion"; and
- Honorable Mention — Mike Albert, Beaver (Okla.); Tiffany Chase, Amarillo; Chris Cox, Canadian; Terri S. Harness, Beaver; Stephanie Hunt, Palo Duro; Meredith Kemp, Amarillo; and Dirk Robison, Follett.

The festival will be open to the public on Saturday (Sept. 30) with participation from various booksellers, authors, and local businesses.

Authors already lined up for the festival are:

- David Horsley, author of "Into the Wind," columnist for the Amarillo Globe-News and member of the faculty at Amarillo College;
- Kathy Wetzel, author of "Mind Games: The Aging Brain and How to Keep it Healthy" and faculty member at Amarillo College; and
- Don Cooper, author of "C Trick: Sort of a Memoir" and managing editor for the Hereford Brand.

County cotton prospects look good

Crops not yet suffering from heat stress

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Hot summer days are just the ticket when it comes to cotton.

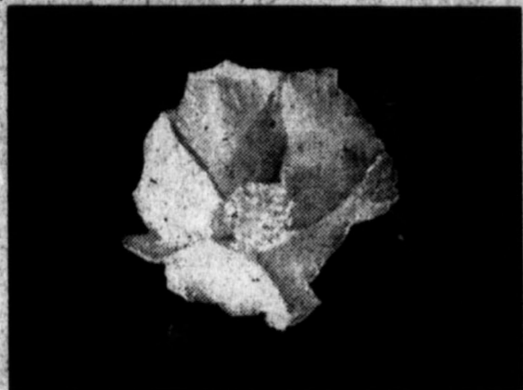

Sporadic moisture from scattered showers has kept the young cotton plants in the area from becoming heat stressed and even helped pull some of the younger plants out of seedling disease problems caused by earlier heavy rains, said David Varner, Hereford Farmers Co-op Gin manager.

"In the last four weeks, the crops have made a good turn around," Varner said. "They came out of the seedling disease, better than expected and right now, it looks better than it did last year at this time."

The Texas Agricultural Statistics Service reports that Deaf Smith County farmers planted 29,100 acres of irrigated upland cotton in 1999 and harvested 27,700 acres for a yield of 31,600 bales. For the same year, 5,800 acres of harvested dryland cotton produced an additional 4,000 bales.

Statistics for 1999 show an increase over 1998 figures in planted acres, harvested acres and total number of bales for both irrigated and non-irrigated fields. Numbers for this year's planted crops were not yet available.

Varner's not yet ready to bet everything on this year's crop.

"Everything that's left is in good shape, but we're going to need some moisture pretty soon. With the heat units we've been getting, we're already seeing quarter-inch bolls. The guys with sprinklers are doing okay, but it won't be long before they are looking for some help," Varner said.

"There's lots of potential for an above average crop, but only time will tell," he said. "It's squaring good, but too much heat with too little water or a bad hail storm is always a possibility."

So far, climatic conditions are also helping with the pest populations which so often plague cotton farmers.

Varner says spraying for general crop pests seems to be down and not even the boll weevils' numbers are high.

Johnna Patterson, of the Castro County Extension service, says she's not real familiar with the pest population in Deaf Smith County fields, but the reports she has seen confirms Varner's comments.

Prices are apparently very similar to prices last year, Varner said. But, this year producers can expect a lower loan deficiency payment of only about 6 cents per pound. "No one can make it on just the price. Without the volume a producer is pretty well sunk," he said. "A good yield will help immensely."

Varner knows most of the dryland cotton, planted in western portions of the county, has already been plowed under and written off as a loss, but is still expecting most producers from previous years to bring in a crop.

"Actually we've got some new growers joining us this year. We've got some producers coming from the Stratford, Dumas, Channing and Dalhart areas. As far as I know we've only lost one producer, and that's because he needs all his acreage to feed his cattle."

An open boll still has some time left before it is ready to be harvested and remains subject to the vagaries of nature.

Cattlemen sweat the dry conditions

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas cattle producers are sweating high temperatures that have dried out pastures and left some herds heat-stressed, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Charles Neeb, district Extension director in Fort Stockton, said temperatures ranging from 104 to 110 degrees in Far West Texas continue to stress cattle. He said herd numbers are at a minimum, 30 to 40 percent of normal herd size.

"This is not a drastic change from the spring," he said. "Producers have had big liquidations, keeping only the bare minimum foundation stock, and these herds are hanging on only because of well-managed pastures and supplemental feeding programs."

Neeb said with pastures deteriorating, there has been no forage production.

"Some eastern parts of the district received spring rains, but even those pastures are drying out," he said. "Pastures are burning up with these hot winds and high temperatures."

Lin Wilson, district Extension director in Corpus Christi, said pastures continue to decline in the Coastal Bend as well.

"With most pastures being overgrazed and triple-digit-temperatures, conditions are worsening each day," he said. "Cattle are heat-stressed."

Tony Douglas, district Extension director in Overton, said considering the 100 plus temperatures in East Texas, cattle are in fair condition.

"The forage is drying up quickly," he said. "Short to very short soil moisture levels have left pastures burning up, but East Texas cattle are doing well. Producers baled quite a bit of hay and stock tank levels are good."

Dr. Larry Boleman, Extension beef cattle specialist in College Station, said cattle require extra attention in the summer heat.

"Producers should make sure cattle have water, feed and shade at all times," he said. "They should refrain from working cattle during the hottest periods of the day."

Boleman said to pay special attention to young calves, which are more vulnerable to becoming heat-stressed.

"Remember that the protein, vitamin and mineral content of forage has been reduced," he said. "Consider using supplemental feeding programs to keep cattle producing regularly."

Galen Chandler, district Extension director in Vernon, said pasture conditions are declining in the Rolling Plains, where temperatures have ranged from 100 to 106 degrees.

"Many pastures are beginning to show signs of heat stress and wilting grass plants," he said. "But despite this, cattle are still doing well."

Chandler said the cotton crop is also suffering in the heat.

"The dryland plants are wilting significantly in the late morning and early afternoon," he said. "The irrigated crop looks good."

Chandler said the peach harvest is nearing completion. "Producers are cleaning up most orchards," he said. "The yields have been good, with excellent prices."

Randy Uphaw, district Extension director in Dallas, said cattle body conditions are declining slightly with 100 plus temperatures in North Texas.

"The extreme heat has been threatening for all commodities," he said. "It's taking its toll on cattle as pastures continue to dry out."

Uphaw said the heat has also been devastating to corn.

"All the corn in Rockwall County is scorched," he said. "Corn is still being harvested for silage in other parts of the district, and grain corn is maturing."

Growers say sugar surplus no sweet deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the nation awash in sugar, the government is preparing to give some of the surplus to farmers who pledge to destroy some of this fall's crop.

Although no final decision has been made on the sugar giveaway, Agriculture Department officials said Wednesday that it was the most feasible way to prop up domestic sugar prices at the least cost to taxpayers.

Critics derided the idea as a desperate attempt to bail out growers, who are partly to blame for the surplus.

Because of a steep drop in prices, growers have been threatening to forfeit to the government up to $500 million worth of sugar that's currently pledged as collateral on federal marketing loans.

USDA recently bought 132,000 tons of sugar at a cost of $54 million to avoid forfeitures this summer, but another 1.4 million tons are still under loan.

Giving sugar to farmers to entice them to plow under part of this year's crop will save the government on monthly storage costs, currently about $2 a ton, said August Schumacher Jr., USDA's undersecretary for farm and foreign agricultural services.

USDA is trying to help "struggling sugar producers through a very difficult period, deal responsibly with forfeited sugar and implement existing law," Schumacher told the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Farmers would not take possession of the sugar itself but would instead receive a "payment-in-kind" certificate that they could redeem for cash.

Details of the proposed program have not been finalized. But by law, no producer could receive more than $20,000, the equivalent of 15 acres of sugar beets, which is about 7 percent of the average farmer's production.

Wholesale sugar prices are down 23 percent this year because of heavy domestic production and a surge in imports. Some farmers switched to sugar beets in recent years when prices for corn and other crops dropped sharply.

USDA officials acknowledge they have no long-term solution for the price drop.

The government estimates that the federal sugar program is likely to cost taxpayers $1 billion between now and 2005.

"Events this year indicate that the sugar program is becoming increasingly unmanageable and that radical reforms are needed urgently," said the chairman of the Senate committee, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind.

Lugar said the certificate program "would be ill-conceived," adding that the government should consider paying farmers to quit growing sugar altogether.

Thomas Hammer, president of the Sweetener Users Association, said the program was unlikely to increase market prices even though it would lower this year's production.

Farmers told the committee they are in desperate need of help.

"This is not a crisis of a particular group of growers, or growers in a particular region. Without exception, this economic crisis is hitting every grower through the industry because every grower's income is directly tied to the price of refined sugar," said Ran VanDriessche, a Bay City, Mich., farmer.

USDA officials said they would have to act quickly on the certificate program since farmers are due to start harvesting sugar beets in September.

4-Hers participate in state

Three Deaf Smith County 4-Hers will be participating in the State Record Book Contest in August.

Jerad Johnson, with a winning record book in beef, Erin Louder in consumer education, and Seth Hoelscher in swine, will be sending their District winning books on to the State competition for judging.

State winners will be honored with an educational trip to Washington, D.C., in November and will also have the opportunity to work with their local Congressman while in Washington.

Other Deaf Smith County 4-Hers and their respective placings included:

Senior level: Dawn Auckerman, fourth in food and nutrition; Amy Bell, second in gardening and horticulture; Celeste Louder, second in recognition; Abigail Wilks, third in public speaking.

Justin Johnson placed first in beef, intermediate level. Junior level: Chelsea Campbell, third place in food and nutrition; Chad Dollar, second in consumer education; Tonie Kay Payne, fourth in horse; and Madison Urbanczyk, fifth in swine.

Seminar focuses on E-business, online marketing

Special to The Brand

CANYON — Business and non-profit organizations continue to face questions about how best to establish and manage their E-business and online marketing operations. West Texas A&M University's Continuing Education Center will focus on these topics during a seminar, "E-business and Online Marketing Strategies," Aug. 11 in the Office of Business Resources, Room 101 in the Classroom Center on campus.

The all-day seminar (9 a.m.-5 p.m.) Begins with registration at 8:30 a.m. and is being offered at a cost of $295 per person with lunch included. It is targeted at business leaders—from presidents, chief officers and senior business executives, to attorneys, hospital administrators, physicians and plant managers. Certified public accountants, marketing managers and leaders of small businesses are also encouraged to attend.

"In the last five years, the Internet and E-business-related initiatives worldwide have changed the business landscape and are expected to grow significantly in the coming years," Dr. Syed Tariq Anwar, seminar director and WTAMU professor of marketing and international business, said. "The E-business revolution is spreading to every area of the business world, and the United States maintains a major leadership advantage in the areas of E-business and online marketing activities."

Eight speakers are scheduled to take part in the four-session seminar. They are: Anwar; Marc Sollosy, vice president and chief information officer, Corporate Systems; Mitchell Winick, assistant dean, Texas Tech University Law School; Richard Burk, president and CEO, NII Communications, San Antonio; De' Arno De' Armond, marketing consultant, NEC Business Network Solutions, Inc., Dallas; Lloyd Kruckeberg, president, Internet Commerce.com Resource Technology, Inc.; Kent Thornton, president, Portiva Corp.; and Christian Stewart, attorney, Brown and Fortunato.

Topics include:
• Theory, applications, changing trends and branding issues of E-business and online marketing

• How to start E-business and online marketing operations; IT-related developments and E-business models

• Practitioners/senior executives' special session on E-business and online marketing issues and E-strategies

• The Internet law and legal issues of business; intellectual property, trademarks and copyright protection and privacy issues

"The seminar will provide practical perspectives of the market and its business and legal issues affecting online marketing and E-business activities of the 21st century," Anwar said. Christmas-ornament series introduced at WT bookstore

Special to The Brand

CANYON — The West Texas A&M University Bookstore celebrated Christmas in July and used the occasion to introduce the first ornament of the University's Centennial Countdown series. Old Main, the oldest and grandest building on the WTAMU campus, is featured on the inaugural 2000 edition of this annual 11-ornament collectible series.

Beginning this year and each of the next 10 years, a new ornament depicting a WTAMU building, symbol or event will be released. The last ornament of the series will be available as part of the University's Centennial Celebration in the year 2010.

The three-dimensional ornament, made of solid brass and finished in 24-carat gold, comes in an attractive box to ensure that the WTAMU collectible is protected year round.

Ornaments are available at the University Bookstore, located in the Jack B. Kelly Student Center on the WTAMU campus in Canyon, for $12.95 each. Collectors and WTAMU friends may also mail requests to Bookstore, WTAMU Box 60937, Canyon 79016-0001, call 651-2744 or fax 651-2751. Handling and shipping is an additional $3.95 per order and will require two to three weeks for delivery.

The public's first opportunity to see the ornament was during the Bookstore's Christmas in July Open House.

Proceeds from the sale of the ornaments will fund campus beautification projects.

WTAMU student veterans are raising funds for War Memorial

Special to The Brand

CANYON — The West Texas A&M University Student Veterans Association is spearheading an effort to ensure that WTAMU veterans of foreign wars are represented at the Panhandle War Memorial. The association, through a trio of timely fund-raisers, hopes to raise enough money to erect a WTAMU monolith at the memorial, located at South Georgia Street and Interstate 27 in Amarillo's Veterans Park.

Bobby Moss, a senior social work major from Amarillo and secretary/treasurer for the Student Veterans Association, said the monolith will cost about $5,000. He said money will be raised through an ongoing raffle, a Labor Day golf tournament and a 16-mile relay run from WTAMU to the war memorial on Veterans Day (Nov. 11), the scheduled date of the monolith's dedication.

"This monolith is to honor all the WT students, faculty or staff—living or deceased—who have served our country in time of war," Moss said. "It will be a standing tribute to all who served."

Tickets for the raffle are already on sale at the WTAMU Gold Card Office and the University Bookstore, which donated prizes that include a $100 gift certificate, a leather brief case and a WTAMU sweat shirt. Tickets are also available from association members. The drawing is set for Sept. 13.

The golf tournament is planned for Sept. 3 at Comanche Trail Golf Course. The entry fee is $50 a person or $200 a team. Association members will also seek per-mile donations for their relay run to the monolith dedication ceremony. The relay will begin at Old Main on campus. If the association surpasses its monetary goal, excess proceeds will be donated to the general war memorial fund.

For more information about the project or the events, contact Moss at 467-8592.

Cold War veterans recognized

For more than four decades, hundreds of thousands of young Americans served their country in a war that was not a war, in a cold war.

In an era when the veterans of the "forgotten war" in Korea are finally getting recognition for their service, where thousands of people daily stop and reflect at the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington, D.C., the veterans of the Cold War also are receiving notice from their country.

In 1998, the U.S. defense secretary approved awarding Cold War Recognition Certificates to all members of the armed forces, including the National Guard and reserves, and qualified government civilian personnel who served the nation during the Cold War era, Sept. 2, 1945-Dec. 26, 1991.

The applicants must certify their service was "faithful and honorable," and they also must provide documentation that shows they served during the Cold War era. For deceased veterans, the certificate may be awarded to relatives who apply.

The certificate may be requested by use of U.S. or international forms found at the Army's Cold War webpage, <http://coldwar.army.mil>. It is a secure site, but anyone who doesn't feel comfortable providing a Social Security number online can obtain the form by mail.

A request must contain the words "I certify that my service was honorable and faithful," or it will be rejected.

Supporting documentation, which must be submitted with the request, includes military service number, foreign service number or Social Security number, a copy of a DD-214, which is the military service record, or a DD-215, which is a corrected version of that document. National Guard members should provide the statement of service equivalent, NGB Form 22.

The request should be sent to: CDR, PERSCOM Cold War Recognition, Hoffmann II Attn. TAPC-CWRS, 3N45 200 Stovall St. Alexandria, VA 22332-0473.

Applications for the Cold War certificate also can be obtained through U.S. Rep. Larry Combest's office, according to a spokeswoman for the 19th District representative.

For more information, contact one of Combest's offices or visit the Combest website, <http://www.house.gov/combest/kvets.htm>.

Deaf Smith County veterans should contact Jessica Detten in Combest's Amarillo office, 5809 S. Western, No. 205, Amarillo 79110. For more information, call Jessica Detten at 353-3945.

Phoenix Project

Camping trip providing new beginning for 7 local youth

By Becky Thorn

Hereford Brand Lifestyles Editor

Phoenix - Egyptian myth: A beautiful, lone bird which lived in the Arabian desert for 500 to 600 years and then consumed itself in fire, rising renewed from the ashes to start another long life.

While the youth participating in the Phoenix Project may not have been totally consumed by the direction they were heading, some of them most probably were on a road to self-destruction. Involvement in this project is providing them a way to renew themselves and start a new life.

What is the Phoenix Project?

It is the combination of diverse opportunities that were implemented, capitalized on and enhanced to culminate in a camping trip. A camping trip?

"It started as an offer of $6,000 in grant money from the National Boy Scout organization to provide kids an opportunity to experience Scouting who would not otherwise ever, have the opportunity to experience Scouting," Derrin Ginter, deputy sheriff and crew advisor for Venture Crew 50, said.

Ginter, who along with Scott Ward, is Scoutmaster with Troop 50, was contacted by Earl Henson, district executive with the Golden Spread Council in Amarillo.

"Henson was looking for the names of 10 kids who could join a troop and go to Philmont (National Boy Scout Camp) at Cimarron, N.M.," Ginter said. "I referred him to Judge Tom Simons who referred him to the Youth Home director Ron King."

King and Henson were already acquainted and when they realized they both also knew Ginter, the ground work was set to begin a project that has ultimately involved not only Boy Scouts, but local law enforcement, "at-risk" youth, local businesses and individuals.

"While this grant money

Crew adviser for Venture Crew 50, Derrin Ginter, demonstrates for the crew what must be included in each Scout's back pack for the 11 day camping trip in the mountains of New Mexico.

was primarily intended to give low-income kids a chance to go to camp, those of us who were involved with finding kids who qualified saw it as a real opportunity for some of our juvenile offenders," Ginter said.

A Boy Scout troop made up of 10 youth from Juvenile Services was chartered through the Hereford Lions Club as Venture Crew 50. Since they were now registered members of the Boy Scouts, the group needed a patrol name and Ginter chose "phoenix" because of the symbolism.

Then work began in earnest to make this group of young men into a crew that could survive a two-week camping experience in the mountains of New Mexico.

Ginter organized classes to teach them what to expect on the trip.

"I have been in Scouting since I was 8 or 9, got my Eagle Scout rank at 13 and have been working at some kind of camp just about every year since then. This will be my sixth trip to Philmont," he said.

Intensive, three-hour survival classes were held at least once each week, and sometimes twice, to teach them such basics as how to unroll a sleeping bag or use a map and compass to emergency procedures like how to immobilize a person who has fallen off a cliff.

"These are seven kids whose skills are in other areas and we are turning their focus to something different. The ultimate goal is to get them involved in a new direction and the kind of life a Boy Scout would lead," Ginter said.

King said he can already see a difference in the youth at the home. "You can definitely already see the teamwork aspect, even around here doing the chores. They dive into it with a different manner. There is a lot of maturity and leadership," King said.

Ginter added that "leaders have emerged that you would not have expected. I am so proud. Everyone has adapted to so many different things since we focus on something positive."

The original grant from the National Boy Scout organization did not cover all that the youth would need for the trip, so they held a fund-raiser of their own.

"When the City of Hereford held its Cash for Trash day, the youth collected more than $1,000 for trash they picked up by driving up and down alleys. As leaders, we felt it was important for the kids to participate in financing the Phoenix Project. They worked hard and came together as a team during this effort," Ginter said.

Support from businesses and individuals in the community has also been forthcoming to help make the project a reality.

Another plus from the Phoenix Project has been the positive interaction with law enforcement.

"What experiences these youth have had with law enforcement up to this time have not been positive. But we are putting everything in the past behind us and starting new from this point. We have learned a lot of trust. I have learned to trust these kids and they have learned to trust an aspect of law enforcement that they have never encountered before," Ginter said.

This same attitude is shared by the youth themselves according to Joe (not his real name), the youth selected as team leader.

When asked how he felt about working with a sheriff's deputy for this project, Joe said, "At first I treated him

The emblem for the Phoenix Project is based on a bird which lived in the Arabian desert for 500 to 600 years and then consumed itself in fire, rising renewed from the ashes to start another long life.

like every other cop, just be aware of him, but then I got to know him and he acts like one of us."

Venture Crew 50 will "know" one another very well at the end of their 11-day camping experience in the mountains. No one person can think only of himself. Each will have to perform for the good of the patrol.

"We have been blessed with a crew where everyone has a special talent or natural ability that they can put to work for us. Everyone will have their own special job to perform. What each one contributes will make us a whole, kind of like the guy who made stone soup," Ginter said.

The crew, composed of seven youth (two of the original 10 are now in other cities and one is working and unable to leave his job) and three adults (Ginter, Henson and Youth Home staff member Abram Hill) will leave Hereford at 4 a.m. Tuesday. They will not return until Aug. 13.

During their actual 11 days of camping, each youth will carry a back pack which weighs from 35-45 pounds. Ac-ording to Ginter, they will use compass and map to get to their next food source, learn how to purify water and they will be challenged physically.

But the youth are not deterred by the possibilities of the physical hardships.

"This is a lot more than I expected. When we first started hearing about it, they asked us if we wanted to go on a camping trip. We were pretty excited about that, but we started having these meetings and learning more about it and it gets more exciting every time," Joe said.

The Phoenix Project may have begun as a camping trip but it has definitely become more than a camping trip for everyone involved.

"The mental skills, conservation and environmental skills and other aspects of the trip are even more important than just learning camping skills," Ginter said.

The youth are fully aware of this as well. Joe said, "This is going to be a lot more than learning camping skills. It is going to be a good experience for all of us."

Nance will be speaker for meeting of Flame Fellowship

Joyce Nance will be the speaker for Hereford Flame Fellowship's regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford Community Center.

Nance and her husband, Carl, are former Hereford residents who moved to Broken Arrow, Okla., in 1998 to attend Rhema Bible Training Center. They graduated in May and will be residing in Hereford until the pastorate position that God has for them becomes available.

Since moving back to Hereford, they have established T.C.L. Home Repair and Installation and schedule ministry on weekends.

Joyce will encourage you to be a soul winner and Carl will bless you with a song from his heart.

They have three children, Roger of Chatsworth, Calif., Shelly of Seattle, Wash., and Gary of Liberal, Kan.

Meetings of Hereford Flame Fellowship are open to everyone.

Dear Readers: Remember the letter from "R.K. in Bel Air, Md.," asking me what he should do with the hand-knitted afghan that had a swastika in the middle? I told him I would throw it out. My response created a firestorm of criticism from readers all over. Keep reading for more detailed clobbering:

From Scottsdale, Ariz.: I disagree with you about what should be done with the afghan that had a swastika design. After living in the Southwest for many years, I learned that the swastika was used by the American Indians, as well as ancient cultures before them, as a symbol of life. Americans should teach their children that the swastika is an ancient religious symbol, respected by many early cultures.

Morrisville, Vt.: I am 12 years old and want to tell you that the swastika was originally a sign of peace and power. Actually, the word "swastika" comes from the Sanskrit word, "Svasti," which means well-being. It was originally used in India.

Tempe, Ariz.: My old high school in Hibbing, Minn., has a hallway lined with tiny swastikas. Everyone in our school knew the symbols represented friendship.

Toronto: The swastika has been found on ancient Byzantine buildings, Buddhist inscriptions, Celtic monuments and Greek coins. It can be bent either clockwise or counterclockwise. Hitler preferred the clockwise pattern. The counterclockwise form was used among the Indians of North and South America.

Orange Park, Fla.: Your column in the Florida Times-Journal in Jacksonville showed both ignorance and prejudice. Hitler wrote "Mein Kampf" in 1925. He rose to power in 1933. There is no question that great-grandma's knitted afghan pre-dated Hitler. I hope you will fess up publicly.

Fayetteville, Pa.: The swastika (counterclockwise) is part of the Footprint of the Buddha, and embodies good fortune and virtue. In the written Chinese language, the swastika is commonly used to represent the number 10,000. Since the afghan was knitted before the Nazi era, I highly doubt Granny was a closet fascist.

Concord, N.C.: A tribe of American Indians, the name of which is unknown to me, used the swastika as a symbol of good luck. If you will go to the International Automobile Museum in Reno, Nev., you will see some 1920s-era cars with swastikas on the radiators. The symbol is white on a black background.

Philadelphia: Hold it, Annie! Don't let those folks in Maryland throw out the afghan. Send it to me. I have been knitting for years, and will figure a way to transform the swastika into a wonderful design that will look like a beautiful flower.

Choctaw, Okla.: The swastika has a sacred and noble heritage among American Indian tribes going back centuries. It was the symbol for the Thunderbird, also known as the Phoenix.

Ontario, Canada: The swastika forms a combination of four "Ls," which stand for Luck, Light, Love and Life.

Eastlake, Ohio: The swastika is actually a cross with tipped wings, also called a "fylfot" when sitting squarely. The Nazi-era swastika was tilted on one corner.

Chicago: Please, please, don't let that couple throw out the afghan with the swastika. Suggest that they send it to the Chicago Historical Society.

The folks there will showcase it properly.

Dear Chicago Friend: I have strong ties to, and great respect for the Chicago Historical Society. While they would have little interest in this afghan, they suggested the couple contact their local historical society. The origins of the swastika notwithstanding, it now represents the emblem synonymous with Adolf Hitler. We are talking about a madman who put 6 million Jews in gas chambers, and, I might add, many Catholics and Protestants, as well. So, pardon me if I am less than rational on this subject.

Garcia, Elicerio exchange wedding vows

Elizabeth "Liz" Garcia and J.J. Elicerio, both of Amarillo, were united in marriage during a ceremony at noon Saturday, July 29 in San Jose Catholic Church. The bride is the daughter of Antonio and Maria Garcia of Hereford.

Parents of the groom are Juan and Ester Elicerio of San Marcos. Father Tomas of San Jose Church officiated at the ceremony. Maid of honor was Yvonne Garcia, niece of the bride. Best man was Jesus Cabrera, uncle of the groom.

Bridesmaids and groomsmen were Marlene and Larry Lopez, Maricela and Chris Stroud, Monica and Gilbert Martinez, Julie and Sefe Rodriguez, and Marisol and Tony Garcia, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Tony Garcia IV, Max Garcia, Freddy Garcia and Eric Cuevas, all nephews of the bride.

Serving as flower girls were Karlie Diaz and Keena Lopez.

Junior bridesmaids were Victoria Garcia, Linda Garcia and Vanessa Garcia, nieces of the bride.

Ring bearers were Cassandra Garcia, niece of the bride, and daughter of Oscar and Lisa Garcia, and Joe Garcia, nephew of the bride and son of Joe and Mary Garcia.

Candle lighters were Victoria Garcia, niece of the bride, and Freddy Jr. Garcia, nephew of the bride.

Vocal selections during the ceremony were performed by Juan and Florestella Rodriguez.

Sponsors were Mary and Joe Garcia, Jasso; Lisa and Oscar Garcia, cushions; Freddy and Delia Garcia, coins; Connie and Rick Soto, Bible and rosary; Michael and Virginia Campos, bouquet; and Mr. and Mrs. Lupe Ramirez, church.

Witnesses were Patty and David Fuentes.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown with a drop waist, deep-V neckline and elbow-length sleeves with lace insets. The neckline, sleeves, waist and hem of the full skirt were encrusted with sequins, pearls and crystal beads as were the edges of the cathedral length, detachable train.

The cathedral length veil of illusion was attached to a tiara with flowers of wax beads and crystals.

She carried a traditional family bouquet of white roses, white pearls and crystal mums of glass and wax beads, tied with burgundy and white ribbon.

Bridal attendants wore formal black and white dresses and carried bouquets of long stemmed white and burgundy roses tied with white ribbons.

Sponsors wore maroon dresses. A reception and dance followed at the home of the bride's parents, 802 S. Avenue K.

Assisting with the reception were Annabell Cabrera; Ruby Montoya, niece of the bride; and Marlene Lopez.

Music was provided by a marachi band from St. Lawrence Church in Amarillo.

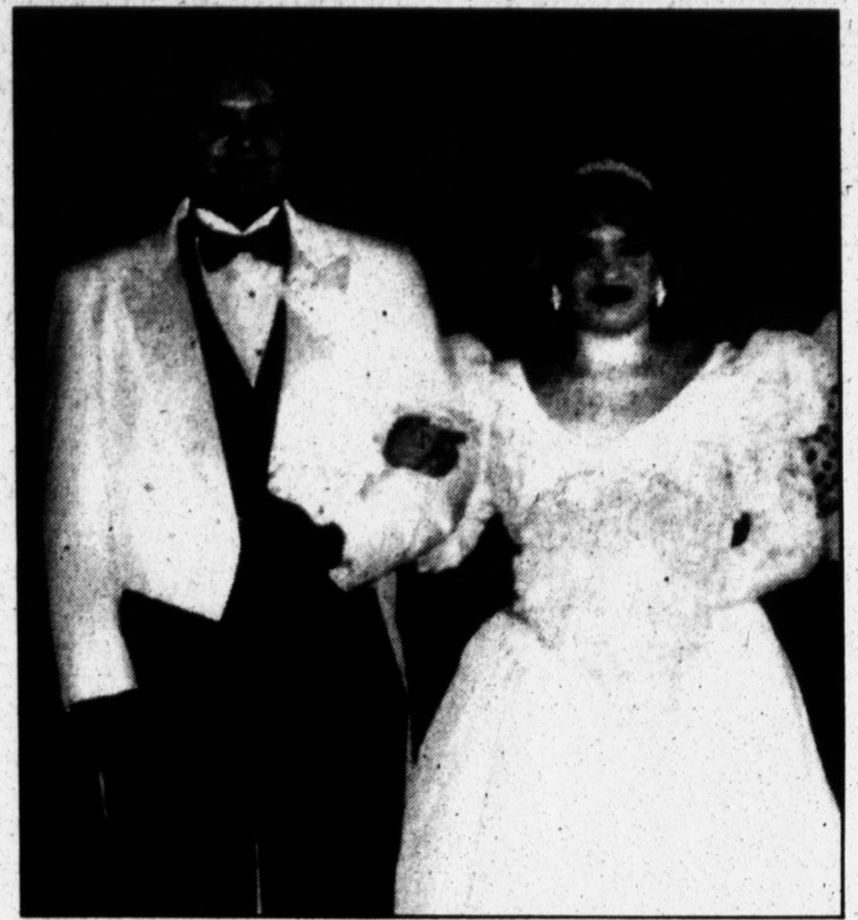

The wedding cake was three stacked tiers with two satellite cakes attached by staircases.

Music for the dance was provided by the band Los Rayitos de Texas.

After a wedding trip to Houston, the couple will be at home in Amarillo.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1987 and from Amarillo College in 1995. She is employed as a Latin music buyer by Anderson Merchandiser.

The groom graduated from Kemper High School in Houston. He is employed as an electrician by Texas Electric.

Marriage vows exchanged by couple

Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Andrews
...nee Stacy Lea

Lea, Andrews wed

Stacy Lea and Jackie Andrews were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony on Saturday, July 1 in the First United Methodist Church of Hereford.

The bride is the daughter of Lewis Lea of Hereford.

Dr. Tom Fuller, pastor of First United Methodist Church, officiated at the ceremony.

Matron of honor was Laurie Higgins of The Woodlands. Best man was Hayden Andrews of Wood Creek, Colo.

Bridesmaid was Gail George of Hereford and groomsmen was Paul Conaway of Hereford.

Flower girls were MaKenzi and MaKenna Lea, nieces of the bride, and daughters of Kevin and Mackie Lea of Lubbock.

Organist was Tommie Stevens and vocalist was Gayle Binder.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a champagne satin gown with a brocade bodice, scooped back and ankle length, full organza skirt.

She carried a bouquet of ivory roses, casa blanca lilies, stargazer lilies and baby's breath.

Attendants wore black, floor

length, sleeveless dresses with a square neckline. They carried bouquets of assorted fresh spring flowers.

A reception followed in the Welcome Center.

Assisting with the reception were Betty Drake, Mary Hamby, Lisa Formby, Sheila Martin, Judy Holder of Lamesa, cousin of bride, Judy Schumacker of Canyon, Gail George and Sandee Finley of Lubbock.

The dotted Swiss bride's cake was decorated with fresh spring flowers. The groom's cake was chocolate basket weave with amaretta flavored chocolate covered strawberries.

After a wedding trip to Ruidosa, N.M., the couple is at home in Hereford.

The bride received her bachelor of arts from Texas Tech University and masters of education in counseling from Corpus Christi State University. She is employed at Hereford High School.

The groom is a partner in Water Industries.

Melinda Marie Salazar became the bride of William Richard Magsig during an afternoon ceremony on July 8 in Grace Bible Church in College Station.

The bride is the daughter of Joel and Jan Salazar of Hereford. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ramiro F. Salazar of Edinburg and Cora Eaton of Cresco, Iowa.

The groom is the son of Rick and Peggy Magsig of Houston and the grandson of Margie Rector of Plant City, Fla.

Chris Witt officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Brooke Bryant of Richardson served as maid of honor. Best man was Brett Murphey of College Station.

Bridesmaids were Sarah Wagner of Denton, Connie Mallory of Dallas, Andrea Fortner of Lubbock, Ashlee Pape of Dallas, and Jessica Salazar of Lubbock, sister of the bride.

Serving as groomsmen were Tae Oh of McKinney; Steven Magsig of Austin, brother of the groom; Mike Newhouse of Austin; and Brandon Clarke and Billy Newhouse, both of College Station.

Candle lighter was Patricia Salazar, sister of the bride.

Jennifer McCray of League City, sister of the groom, and Emily McCord of College Station, served in the house party.

Bob Schug of Wilmington, Ohio, cousin of the groom, and Natalie Woods of Austin, were the vocalists.

Photographer for the wedding was Darrin Hill, who also played the bagpipes for the recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length, sleeveless, A-line gown of white duchess satin with a banded waist and matching band tier at the bottom of the gown and also around the edge of the detachable chapel length train.

Her shoulder length veil of tulle was edged with a satin ribbon and attached to a banded headpiece.

She carried a bouquet of multi-colored fresh flowers.

Bridal attendants wore red crepe empire-waisted, floor length gowns. Each carried a bouquet of multi-colored fresh flowers.

A reception followed in the church fellowship hall.

A rehearsal dinner was held Friday evening at T-Bone Jones Restaurant in College Station, hosted by the groom's parents.

The bride is a graduate of Hereford High School and Texas Tech University.

The groom is a graduate of Klein Forest High School and is a candidate for August graduation from Texas A&M University.

Following a honeymoon to San Francisco and Napa Valley, the couple will reside in Dallas.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Saturday, July 29, the 211th day of 2000. There are 155 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 29, 1958, President Eisenhower signed the National Aeronautics and Space Act, which created NASA.

On this date:

In 1588, the English soundly defeated the Spanish Armada in the Battle of Gravelines.

In 1890, artist Vincent van Gogh died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound in Auvers, France.

In 1900, Italian King Humbert I was assassinated by an anarchist; he was succeeded by his son, Victor Emmanuel III.

In 1914, transcontinental telephone service began with the first phone conversation between New York and San Francisco.

In 1948, Britain's King George VI opened the Olympic Games in London.

In 1957, the International Atomic Energy Agency was established.

In 1967, fire swept the USS Forrestal in the Gulf of Tonkin, killing 134 servicemen.

In 1975, President Ford became the first U.S. president to visit the site of the Nazi concentration camp Auschwitz in Poland as he paid tribute to the victims.

In 1980, a state funeral was held in Cairo, Egypt, for the deposed Shah of Iran, who had died two days earlier at age 60.

In 1981, Britain's Prince Charles married Lady Diana Spencer at St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

Ten years ago: Bruno Kreisky, Austria's longest-serving chancellor and an architect of its policy of neutrality, died at age 79.

Five years ago: President Clinton and Republicans marked the 30th anniversary of Medicare by accusing one another of putting the program's future at risk.

One year ago: A day trader, apparently upset over stock losses, opened fire in two Atlanta brokerage offices, killing nine people and wounding 13 before shooting himself to death; authorities say Mark O. Barton also killed his wife and two children. California Gov. Gray Davis abandoned the state's effort to preserve Proposition 187, a divisive voter-approved ban on schooling and other public benefits for illegal immigrants.

Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Don Minchew will observe their 25th wedding anniversary with a renewal of their marriage vows and open reception from 2-4:30 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 5 in the First United Methodist Church of Hereford.

Relatives and close friends will share a family dinner at their home on Saturday evening.

Bobby D. Wilkie, a retired United Methodist pastor from the Dallas area, will officiate at the renewal of vows ceremony. His wife, Onalee, will be their attendant.

Hosting the celebration will be the couples' daughters and families, Dawn and David Gray of Woodbury, Tenn., and Lora Joy and Andy Adzima of Knoxville, Tenn.

Minchew, a Plainview native, and the former Judy Hawblitzel of Milwaukee, Wis., were married Aug. 4, 1975, in the home of Bobby and Onalee Wilkie in Dallas.

Since their marriage, the couple has lived in Arkansas, Chicago, Houston and Murfreesboro, Tenn., before coming to Hereford in 1993. They will soon be moving to Lubbock where Minchew is the CFO/VP Administration at Pedro's Tamales. While in Hereford, he has been a member of the Genealogy Society, served on the Hereford Day Care board and as president, and as a member of FUMC adult choir and handbell choirs.

Mrs. Minchew has been a church and community volunteer, served on the Friends of the Library board and as president, been the Deaf Smith County representative to the Panhandle Library Association and chairperson of the Education Task Force for the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church in 1998-1999.

Both are members of First United Methodist Church where they were instrumental in beginning a new confirmation program in 1994.

The couple has four grandchildren.

Margie's Notes

By Margie Daniels
HSCA Executive Director

The summer is going fast! There have been so many things going on and a lot more to do before we can have our 25th year celebration. There is no way we can have it in July, but have set the date for Sept. 30, 2000. We have scheduled the Otwell Twins for a show at 2 p.m. This should be a great day for a lot of fun and reminiscence. I have always heard if you think a lot about the past, it shows your age! We still admire and appreciate all the work and the faithfulness our past seniors did to make our center possible and also those who now work so faithfully to keep services on-going. Please mark your calendars.

I have booked a tour for Branson, Dec. 4-8. There will be a $100 deposit at the time of registration. I booked 38 reservations. We have had so many requests for this Christmas tour again.

Our membership dues are due. You can pay them at the Center or mail them to HSCA, P.O. Box 270.

We are working on the Festival of Trees, our major fund-raiser. This project takes so much work, but is a lot of fun. We will need your help! Remember the Bazaar! Some of our people are already working on crafts and baskets.

The United Way campaign will soon be underway. Your help will be needed. We are an agency of the United Way and the funds received go into the Home Delivered Meal Program. These funds are very necessary to help fund the program. Our donations are very low and Federal and State funds only help with some of the meals served. Thanks to the Board of United Way and all volunteers who help!

I made 22 reservations for "TEXAS" for Aug. 17. I sold all reserved places before I had a chance to advertise. If any one else would like to go, I will try to get more show reservations and transportation. I hear it is better than ever!

Those who deserve love the least need it the most.

"But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you. — Matthew 5:44

See you at the Center!

Christmas in August? No, but August is not too early for preparations for Christmas, especially the annual Festival of Trees. This major fund-raiser for the Hereford Senior Citizens Association will be held in November and the project requires many hours of work on the part of seniors and other community volunteers.

Nutrition Update

By Charlotte R. Clark
MS RD/LD

(Editor's Note: This is a continuation of Safe Food Handling Tips which began in the July issue of Senior Scene.)

A question that is often asked comes to mind, especially this time of year. Why do people get sick from foods they eat? The answer: Raw food products can be contaminated with microorganisms that can make people ill. Especially at risk are the very young, the elderly and those whose immune systems have been weakened due to illnesses.

Although most of these hazards can be controlled by safe food handling and cooking procedures, the occurrence of food borne illnesses tells us that risk reduction at every step from the farm to table is very important.

Food Preparation

- Keep everything that touches food clean - hands, utensils, bowls, counter tops. Wash hands with hot, soapy water for 20 seconds prior to preparing any food, and after handling raw meat, poultry or fish. Use separate platters, cutting boards, trays and utensils for cooked and uncooked meat, poultry and fish.

- Keep juices from raw meat, poultry and fish from coming into contact with other foods, cooked or raw. Always wash contact surfaces and utensils with hot, soapy water immediately after preparing these products.

- When using a cutting board, it is best to use separate boards for each food type. Never use the same cutting board for raw meat or poultry that is used for cooked and ready-to-eat foods. Wash food preparation surface thoroughly with hot, soapy water and then sanitize the surface after each use. To sanitize cutting surfaces, wash with a solution of two to three teaspoons of household bleach in one quart of hot water. Rinse with clean, hot water and let air dry. Some cutting boards can also be cleaned in the dish washer.

- Never eat raw seafood, meat, poultry or eggs (or foods containing raw eggs such as homemade salad dressing/mayonnaise, ice cream or cookie dough). Never drink unpasteurized milk or eat other unpasteurized dairy products.

- Never sneeze or cough directly on food. Cover mouth and nose with a tissue when sneezing or coughing and wash hands immediately.

- Thoroughly wash all produce with clean, drinkable water.

- When marinating meat, seafood or poultry, use a covered, non-metallic container or food-safe plastic bag, and place it in the refrigerator on the bottom shelf. Ingredients in marinades such as wine, vinegar, and lemon juice are acidic and will cause a chemical reaction with some metals. When this happens, the metal may leach into the food Hope everyone is staying cool in this hot weather. Our Senior Citizens Thrift Store at 1306 E. Park has the air conditioning on, so come on in and shop the "cool" bargains!

Our annual "Back to School Sale" will be the month of August only with all clothing at half price. Hours of operation are Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. We will accept clean and saleable donations during these times as well.

If anyone is in need of items for us to pick up, please call the Senior Center at 364-6881 and we will try to assist you as quickly as we can. We are short handed sometimes so your patience is greatly appreciated.

See you at the store soon! Happy Shopping!

Nutrition

 being marinated and may create a toxic condition.

• Avoid mixing dark-colored sauces (such as teriyaki, Worcestershire or soy sauce) in with ground meat or poultry, as they make it more difficult to judge doneness. Instead brush sauces on the cooked surface of the patty about midway through the cooking cycle. Be careful not to re-contaminate fully cooked meat or poultry by adding sauce with a brush that was used on raw or undercooked foods.

• Always marinate uncooked meat, poultry or fish in the refrigerator, never at room temperature. If a marinade is to be used for basting or as a sauce on cooked products, reserve a portion of it before adding the meat or fish to ensure there is no cross-contamination.

Cooking
 • Cook ground meats thoroughly to an internal temperature of at least 160 degrees F. Ground poultry should be cooked to at least 165 degrees. Never eat raw or undercooked ground meat or poultry.

• The use of an instant-read thermometer is the best way to determine doneness in ground meats and poultry. If an instant-read thermometer is not available, cook ground beef until the center is no longer pink and the juices show no pink color.

• To assure the desired degree of doneness, use a meat thermometer when cooking roasts, steaks, and poultry, placing the thermometer in the thickest portion of the meat, not touching bone or fat.

• Cook roasts five to 10 degrees F. below the following recommended internal temperatures for doneness of meats: medium rare-145 degrees; medium-160 degrees; and well done-170 degrees. Roast temperatures rise approximately five to 10 degrees F. during standing time (allow 10-15 minutes). Poultry parts should be cooked to a minimum of 170 degrees F., whole birds to 180 degrees and pork to 160 degrees.

• Avoid very low oven temperature roasting methods (below 325 degrees) and long or overnight cooking of meats, which may encourage bacterial growth before cooking is complete. Do not use brown paper bags for roasting, they may not be sanitary and can be a fire hazard.

• Cook stuffing for turkey or chicken separately from the poultry instead of in the cavity of the bird.

• Don't interrupt cooking by partially cooking food and then finishing later. Partially cooked food may not reach a temperature sufficient to destroy bacteria and may even encourage bacterial growth.

• When basting or applying a sauce during grilling or broiling, brush the sauce on cooked surfaces only. Be careful not to re-contaminate fully cooked meat or poultry by adding sauce with a brush previously used on raw or undercooked food.

Serving
 • Do not leave cooked meat or other perishable foods out at room temperature for longer than two hours.

• When serving from a buffet, keep cold foods on ice at a temperature at or below 40 degrees F., and keep hot foods at an internal temperature of at least 140 degrees F. When replenishing the buffet, do not mix fresh food with food that has already been out for serving.

• Always marinate uncooked meat, poultry or fish in the refrigerator never at room temperature. If a marinade is to be used for basting or as a sauce for cooked products, reserve a portion of it before adding the meat or fish to ensure there is no cross-contamination. If a marinade that has been in contact with raw meat, poultry or fish is to be served as a sauce, bring it to a full rolling boil covered for at least one minute before serving. Never save and reuse marinade.

• Use separate plates, platters or trays for holding raw and cooked meat, fish and poultry. Utensils and knives should be washed with hot, soapy water in between contact with raw and cooked foods.

Leftovers
 • Freeze or refrigerate leftovers immediately. For more rapid cooling use small, shallow containers (less than two inches deep) to freeze or refrigerate leftovers. Cut large portions into smaller portions to speed cooling time. Leftover meat, fish and poultry should be wrapped securely before refrigeration and eaten within three to four days.

• When reheating leftover foods in a microwave oven, heat to at least 165 degrees F. Food should be hot to touch, and steaming before it's served. Covering foods with a glass lid, microwave-safe plastic or waxed paper will hold in moisture and provide safe, even heating. Due to the possibility of uneven heating, microwaving baby food and infant formula is not recommended because hot spots in the food could burn the baby's mouth. If microwaved, make sure to stir food, shake bottles and taste test them yourself for lukewarm temperatures.

• Sauces and gravies should be reheated to a rolling boil for at least one minute before serving.

• Never taste leftover food that looks or smells strange. When in doubt, throw it out.

Away-from-Home Situations Day Care

• Check to be sure that day care center employees practice appropriate sanitation and food handling. Parents and other care providers should teach children to wash hands with hot soapy water after going to the bathroom and before touching or eating food. It is critical for child care providers and parents to remember to wash hands with hot soapy water after every diaper change or check.

Leisure/Picnic

• Pack chilled foods (at or below 40 degrees F.) in a cooler with ice or ice packs. This is particularly important if you do not plan to eat for several hours. When finished serving cold foods, promptly return them to the cooler. If you are taking meat, poultry or fish to grill when picnicking, pack these items carefully in the bottom of the cooler to avoid leakage onto other foods. If washing facilities are not available, take along moistened towelettes to wash up after handling the uncooked meat, poultry or fish, or use a bottle filled with clean water and soap to wash hands and surface.

Restaurants/Fast Food Restaurants

• Make sure mat, fish and poultry are cooked thoroughly (see "Cooking" section).

• Be sure that burgers are served hot and cooked until the center is no longer pink and the juices show no pink color.

• At buffets and salad bars, check for a clean, sanitary appearance of serving containers, counter tops and utensils.

Work

• Carry lunch in an insulated container with a freezer-pack or include a frozen juice box or small plastic bottle of frozen water. Keep lunch out of direct sunlight.

Words of Wisdom XXV: From My Little Black Book (Last of two parts)

Yes, I have a little black book. I've kept it from my youth. No, it doesn't have old girlfriend's names and addresses. It is a book of quotes. Officially it's titled the "Vest Pocket Book of Familiar Quotations."

As a young man, I was fascinated by effective public speakers. Before I turned 21, I had the pleasure of hearing Jack Benny, former President Harry Truman, and Senator Jerry Litton. I heard them live and in person.

One thing I noticed about each of these speakers was that they used quotes to strengthen the points they were making. They used the words of Lincoln, Washington, Churchill, Franklin, Jefferson, Longfellow, Solomon, Rogers, Twain, Aristotle and Seneca. They seemed as wise as the words of wisdom they quoted.

I wondered where they discovered those fine quotes. Then one day in a book store I found my little black book. Its pages are now dog-eared from use, and I still use it as a source of wisdom today.

Quotes worth keeping

- ...Let no man presume to give advice to others that has not first given good counsel to himself. -- Seneca
- ...It is hard for an empty bag to stand upright. -- Benjamin Franklin
- ...The empty vessel makes the greatest sound. -- Shakespeare
- ...It is a good thing to learn caution by the misfortunes of others. -- Publilius Syrus
- ...As the dimensions of the tree are not always regulated by the size of the seed, so the consequences of things are not always proportionate to the apparent magnitude of those events that have produced them. -- Colton
- ...Those who provide much wealth for their children, but neglect to improve them in virtue, do like those who feed their horses high, but never train them to the manage. -- Socrates
- ...Nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm; it is the real allegory of the tale of Orpheus; it moves stones, it charms brutes. Enthusiasm is the genius of sincerity, and truth accomplishes no victories without it. -- Bulwer

- ...When a true genius appears in the world you may know him by this sign, that the dunces are all in confederacy against him. -- Swift
- ...An idea, like a ghost, (according to the common notion of ghost,) must be spoken to a little before it will explain itself. -- Dickens
- ...Impossible is a word only to be found in the dictionary of fools. -- Napoleon I
- ...The first step of knowledge is to know that we are ignorant. -- Cecil
- ...Sin has many tools, but a lie is the handle which fits all of them. -- Holmes
- ...It is better to have loved and lost, than never to have loved at all. -- Tennyson
- ...A little nonsense now and then, is relished by the best of men. -- Anonymous
- ...In prayer it is better to have a heart without words, than words without a heart. -- Bunyan
- ...He who is most slow in making a promise, is the most faithful in the performance of it. -- Rousseau
- ...When a man has not a good reason for doing a thing, he has one good reason for letting it alone. -- Sir Walter Scott
- ...Common sense in an uncommon degree is what the world calls wisdom. -- Coleridge

SOME BOOKS WORTH READING

Between the Covers

Rebecca Walls
Deaf Smith County Library

How are you all getting on? Has the heat zapped your energy? Are you in need of an escape to another place where you can relax and have no responsibilities hanging over you?

Spending a week at the J.D. Hester Ranch was the perfect place for me to do just that. Even though I helped with meal preparation, grocery buying and a little house cleaning, I was able to receive a number of rest and relaxation.

I had forgotten the slower pace at which my folks operate. If possible, I think the pace has gotten even slower over the years. Priorities have been redefined and schedules become a list of one or two things a day rather than 15 to 20.

There was time to watch the kittens play and the turtles come to water at the sprinkler hose. When Jeni started raking leaves and twigs out of the back yard the yearling colts had to come and investigate (with a yard full of native grass and yucca, gardening has never been a top priority).

It was so nice to enjoy the cool evening, and the quiet dark nights that allowed me to sleep deeply with no interruptions. I wish all of you could experience such a place. I think it even has Medford beat.

Even if you can't physically retreat to a nice relaxing place, you can visit those places in the books you read. Or maybe you prefer a little more adventure.

Best selling author Danielle Steel has another new book The House on Hope Street. Jack and Liz Sutherland have been married for eighteen wonderful years. Together they have successfully built a law practice, and a warm, happy home and family.

This Christmas morning their home is filled with excitement and joy as the family opens their Christmas gifts. Jack leaves the house to run a five minute errand that ends in tragedy. A Christmas that began with such joy leaves Liz alone, and responsible for five children.

The children help Liz find the strength to return to work, to become both mom and dad and to become the coach for the youngest as he trains for the special Olympics.

The holidays continue to come and go until a few weeks before Labor Day when first anniversary of Jack's death and another small crisis, that Liz is able to look forward to beginning a new life.

Rosalyn McMill's The Flip Side of Sin begins with Isaac Coleman, broke, out of work, with a wife and child to feed. The hopeless situation caused another domestic dispute that ends with Isaac leaving the house. After a beer and time to think, Isaac accidentally runs over someone.

This tragic mistake results in Isaac being put away for 12 years. Twelve years of hoping to set things right. Alone, confused, and bitter Isaac can only become whole by learning to love again. Upon his release Isaac hopes to find his teenage son Peyton and establish a good relationship, but Isaac is met with heart breaking rejection. Miracall Lake is the woman that is able to help Isaac face his fears and reach for his dreams again.

Demolition Angel by Robert Crais is about Carol Starkey, one of the LA's finest bomb squad technicians. Three years ago Carol and her partner and lover, David "Sugar" Boudreaux were called to a bomb site. The bomb detonation results in "Sugar's" death and Carol scarred beyond repair.

Carol hates looking at her own reflection in the mirror, but even more, she hates not being able to do the work. It's like standing on the outside looking in.

Then another bomb site turns into a murder scene. The investigation reveals intentions far more disturbing that Carol anticipated.

As the one tech that has survived the deadly blasts, Carol is brought on the case. Now Carol finds herself in the most intense fight of her life staying one step ahead.

Known for their superb storytelling Bodie and Brock Thoene have created another remarkable read in Jerusalem Vigil, the first in the Zion Legacy series.

It is May 14, 1948, in the world's most sacred city. Six months earlier the United Nations voted to establish a Jewish homeland in Palestine, dividing the territory into two nations. The new Arab and Jewish nations are to share Jerusalem and co-exist side by side.

Today is the day that the new state of Israel is to be proclaimed. Tension is high as the British troops ceremonially hand over the key to the Zion Gate and then depart.

The events that happen in the days following the British embarkation involved: Moshe Sachar, a professor of Archaeology of Hebrew University and core strategist for the Haganah group dedicated to protecting the Jewish Quarter; Moshe's pregnant wife Rachel, left in Tel Aviv for safe keeping, finds herself fleeing to Jerusalem; Daoud and Gawan, two orphaned Arab boys find a father with a most unlikely surname as they lose themselves in crowds moving between the Quarters.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

New Baiting Technology: A Better Way To Control Ants

(NAPS)—Ants are the nation's number one pest, however, using their own habits to help control them can keep these pests from becoming unwanted guests in your home.

"Because of ants' persistent nature, infestations can be difficult to eliminate," says Stoy Hedges, manager of technical services/pest control operations for Terminix and author of Field Guide For The Management of Structure-Infesting Ants. "Many do-it-yourself remedies provide only temporary or isolated relief. Most colonies include more than one nest which can be located not only outside, but also in walls, ceilings or attics."

Eliminating the ants seen inside the home will not solve the problem since they represent a very small percentage of the colony and others will keep coming.

Hedges advises using preventive measures and direct treatment of colonies. He is enthusiastic about new liquid bait technology which may prove to be effective against difficult ants such as the Argentine Ant and the crazy ant. The new technology uses the natural behavior of ants to destroy colonies.

Worker ants seen outside the colony are not capable of digesting solids, which are carried back to feed the colony. Their preferred source of nutrition is the "honey dew" which comes from aphids, scales and mealy bugs that feed on plants.

The new liquid bait is especially attractive to ants since it is similar to "honey dew." Once ingested, the bait is carried back to the nest and fed to other members of the colony.

The liquid bait is professionally installed around a home's exterior in protective bait stations.

Follow-up inspections and monitoring by service professionals can help prevent ant infestation.

There are steps homeowners can take to discourage ant infestation. Hedges advises homeowners to:

- Trim tree and shrub branches away from buildings.
- Keep heavy ground cover such as ivy out of landscape beds next to the house.
- Rid the yard of potential ant nesting sites such as old landscape timbers, stumps and dead limbs.
- Layer landscaping mulch

no more than two inches thick and keep it at least 12 inches from the foundation.

- Seal cracks in outside walls and foundations.
- When choosing a pest control company, look for a reputable company that knows about pest habits, types of construction, treatment specifications and state regulations. Look for memberships in industry associations and pay special attention to the guarantee.

A House Divided transcends Old South movie cliches

Sunday on Showtime, Jennifer Beals stars in the original TV movie A House Divided, based on the historical book by Kent Anderson Leslie. The film follows the fight of a mixed-race woman to claim the inheritance left by her father, a white plantation owner in Georgia.

By John Crook

©TVData Features Syndicate

A woman of mixed race fights to keep her rightful inheritance in A House Divided, an unusually moving Showtime movie premiering Sunday, July 30.

Jennifer Beals (The Twilight of the Golds), Sam Waterston (Law & Order) and Lisa Gay Hamilton (The Practice) star in the fact-based drama, which also features Tim Daly (Wings). John Kent Harrison (What the Deaf Man Heard) is the director.

Based on a book by historian Kent Anderson Leslie, A House Divided relates the story of Amanda America Dickson (Beals), the daughter of wealthy antebellum plantation owner David Dickson (Waterston) and Julia (Hamilton), a slave he raped.

Because she is born with fair skin, Amanda is raised and educated by her devoted father and grandmother (Shirley Douglas) as if she were white. Amanda discovers the truth of her heritage only as she reaches adulthood during the Civil War, and she becomes estranged from her family.

Years later, Amanda learns that her father has died and left her his considerable fortune, but bitter white family members decide to contest the will. Amanda hires attorney Charles Dubose (Daly) to handle her case in a trial that also reconciles her with Julia.

It's a very human, character-driven story that is surprisingly free of ponderous "issues" and, blessedly, antebellum cliches. Beals says as soon as she read the Leslie book a few years ago, she realized the family drama of Amanda, David and Julia transcended its Civil War setting, and she pleaded her case to Showtime executive Jerry Offsay after she did The Twilight of the Golds for the premium channel.

"He told me Sam Waterston had bought the rights and pitched the movie to him, but said he was concerned that they had so many Civil War and slavcry stories in development," Beals says. "I told him, 'This isn't just a story about slavery. It's really a story about the history of the United States and how we come to know who we are and where are the boundaries of love.'"

"Jennifer brings tremendous passion to the role of Amanda," director Harrison says. "Her own mixed heritage is something that she has been dealing with all her life, and this provided a chance to look at it."

While the movie was filmed in the Canadian province of Ontario, Beals headed south to the story's setting of Sparta in central Georgia, visiting the Dickson plantation where the real Amanda had lived 150 years earlier.

She brought back samples of the red clay earth in the area to give production designer Susan Longmire a better sense of place, and taped many hours of conversation with Sparta locals.

As a result of that, A House Divided is one of those very rare Southern dramas in which the characters speak with particular but unstrained accents.

"I didn't realize how differently people sound (from one another in the South)," Beals muses. "I didn't think at first to take class into consideration, but there are certain accents in any region where privilege usually brings ease into the voice. It's a different sound. You can't just do 'a Southern accent'; it has to be very specific to your character."

Ultimately, it is that painstaking yet seemingly relaxed and unforced attention to detail that helps distinguish A House Divided in its consistently strong and flavorful performances, as well as its convincing set and costume designs. Don't miss it.

IN FOCUS

Jada Pinkett, Kimberly Elise, Queen Latifah and Vivica A. Fox (from left) play women from the L.A. projects who decide to rob a bank in the 1996 drama Set It Off, airing Thursday, Aug. 3, on Fox.

The four continue on their crime spree, enjoying not only the free cash but the euphoric rush they receive from the adventure.

The fun soon ends, and suspicions mount as they become paranoid about one another.

IN FOCUS

Great Britain's Queen Mother is profiled in a Biography airing on her birthday, Friday, Aug. 4, on A&E Network.

Born in 1900, the "Queen Mum" has participated in many historical events of the 20th century. She gave aid to wounded soldiers during World War I and boosted morale during World War II.

After the death of her husband, King George VI, and the coronation of her daughter, Queen Elizabeth II, she took on the title of Queen Mother.

TV PIPELINE

Did Dennis Farina play a Las Vegas cop?

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Dennis Farina

Q: Who is the woman in the Columbia Pictures logo? Did Dennis Farina ever star in a "cop" show based in Las Vegas? -John Eaton via e-mail.

A: You may have heard, as I have, that opera star Grace Moore modeled for Columbia's lady with the torch. But here's what Turner Classic Movies host Robert Osborne tells me:

"There were several ladies who were the models for the Columbia torch lady; she changed her facial appearance over the years. None of them, however, was Grace Moore, a confusion that probably started because Grace Moore had her great movie successes at Columbia.

"I was told that one of the women who was the model for the lady was Henny Backus, the widow of Jim Backus, but I have no confirmation on that."

As for Farina, perhaps you are thinking of his work in Crime Story, a 1986-88 NBC series that began in Chicago but later moved its story line to Las Vegas.

Q: Is Charles Nelson Reilly still alive? If so, what is he doing? -Peggy Hall, Monroe, Ga.

A: Reilly, 69, is in demand as a voice actor for animated projects as well as for TV guest appearances. In addition to a hilarious 1996 appearance on The X-Files, he was nominated twice for Emmys for guest work on Millennium and The Drew Carey Show.

The Broadway musical veteran is highly regarded as a theater director and acting coach. He stars with his close friend Julie Harris in a recent family film called The First of May.

Q: Please help me remember the name of the series starring Desi Arnaz Jr. as a police officer who was aided by a computer-generated superhero who jumped right off the computer screen. -D.P., Decatur, Ill.

A: Automan, which ran for less than four months on ABC during the 1983-84 season, starred Arnaz as police computer expert Walter Nebicher, who accidentally created a computerized alter ego called Automan (Chuck Wagner), a handsome crimefighter. Robert Lansing played Walter's friend, Lt. Jack Curtis.

Q: Was Donna Reed's TV husband the same man as, or related to, the original host of Jeopardy!? -B. Garrett, Milford, Mich.

A: No, Carl Betz of The Donna Reed Show was not related to Art Fleming, who hosted Jeopardy! from 1964-75 and 1978-79.

Q: You recently reported that Coby Bell of Third Watch appeared on ER in 1987. ER didn't premiere until 1994. -Nicole Samulow via e-mail.

A: Evidently, you spotted a typo. Bell appeared on ER in 1997, not '87.

SOAP TALK

GH hunk joins Titans; Block turns to ATWT

By Candace Havens
cTVData Features Syndicate

General Hospital hunk Ingo Rademacher (Jasper "Jax" Jacks) is making the move to prime time.

He'll star with Yasmine Bleeth (Nash Bridges), Casper Van Dien (Sleepy Hollow) and Victoria Principal (Dallas) in Aaron Spelling's slick new NBC drama, Titans.

Rademacher will portray nightclub manager David O'Connor, who runs a club owned by Principal's wealthy character.

The actor played Jax for more than four years on GH. Titans will air Wednesdays this fall.

It didn't take long for former Guiding Light star Hunt Block (ex-Ben Warren) to find his next job. The actor recently joined As the World Turns as Craig Montgomery, a role previously played by Scott Bryce.

Craig returns to Oakdale determined to salvage his relationship with his son, Bryant Montgomery (Todd Rotondi). His mysterious business dealings put him in contact with Carly Tenney (Maura West), who needs help getting back to Oakdale.

Joining GL is former ATWT, All My Children and Days of Our Lives star Michael Sabatino
