Appraisal district begins to figure effective tax rates for city, county and districts

By Donald M. Cooper

Hereford Brand Managing Edit Budget planners for county taxing entities will know where to start within a couple of weeks, according to the chief appraiser for Deaf Smith County.

Danny Jones said Monday the county's Appraisal Review Board has completed its hearing of property owners' challenges of their valuation and the Deaf Smith County Appraisal District has begun preparing the effective tax rate for the county, City of Hereford, Deaf Smith County Hospital District and Walcott School District

Hereford BRAN

WEDNESDAY, July 5, 2000

Although the appraisal district conducts the appraisal of property within Hereford Independent School District, it will not have to provide the effective tax rate for HISD administrators.

The effective tax rate is the rate

1. Holly Sugar Corp., $20,236,662 2. Burlington Northern Santa Fe, $14,472,442 3. Hereford Bi-Products, $13,375,986

- 4. Southwestern Public Service Co., $10,643,360 Southwestern Funds, S9,621,770
 Bimbo Cereal Foods, $9,621,770
 Arrowhead Mills, $9,224,588
 Tri State Chemicals, $8,502,625
 Farmland Industries, $7,133,410 required to generate the same amount of revenue in the next budget year as it did in the current fiscal year.

The appraisal district presented its annual appraisals to the taxing entities in May; however, property owners who contested the tax value placed on their properties had an opportunity June 27 to present their arguments to the review board.

The appraisal review board (ARB) is an independent panel of residents responsible for hearing and settling protests for property owners who disagree with some action by the appraisal district. The notice includes instructions on how and when to file a protest and a protest form.

Jones said there were some changes in the tax values, but nothing was significant.

Two years of drought during the latter part of the 1990s had an adverse effect on the county tax base. In determining the value of agricultural land, the appraisal district includes a five-year average of crop value.

Crop yields (and value) were down in 1997 and 1998 because of drought,

Although the Hereford Brand's official 100th birthday is not until next year, the paper officially entered its 100th year today when the volume number front page rolled over from No. 99 to No. 100.

Hereford was about 21/2 years old and had a population of 700 when the Brand's predecessor, the Hereford Reporter, made its debut Feb. 23, 1901.

The Reporter was launched by Frank L. Vanderburgh, a native of New York who moved to the Texas tions.

Early morning temperatures were in the 70s across the southern half of Texas, with readings ranging from 70 degrees at Conroe and the north side of Houston to 79 degrees at Del Rio, Rockport and Palacios.

But the National Weather Service said afternoon temperatures would range from along 90 degrees along 'the immediate Texas coast to around 100 degrees along the Rio Grande.

In West Texas, early morning temperatures ranged from 64 degrees at Marfa to 81 degrees at El Paso, but highs were expected to be mostly in the 90s, but as high as 105 in the Big Bend.

Only a slight chance of showers or thunderstorms were expected in South Texas, mostly along the Coastal Plains. Forecasters also expected afternoon and evening showers or thunderstorms in the northwest part of the South Plains and the extreme western Panhandle.

A few high clouds drifted over North Texas during the early morning hours of Wednesday, and patchy fog developed in East Texas, but posed no problems.

Winds were 10 to 15 mph in North Texas and 5 to 10 mph across the remainder of the state.

Temperatures tonight are expected to drop'into the 60s and 70s, except for the upper 50s over the Guadalupe Mountains of far West Texas.

Deciding how to putt --- The annual Hereford Open took place last weekend and raised over $3,000 for the local Make-A-Wish Foundation chapter. The tournament featured 96 participants and $5,000 given out to tournament winners. D.J. Wagner tries to decide where to line up a putt during Saturday's action.

Leading indicator declines

NEW YORK (AP) — A key gauge of future economic activity fell in May, suggesting that the Federal Reserve's efforts to put the brakes on economic expansion are working.

Tle Index of Leading Economic Indicators declined by 0.1 percent, primarily because of a pullback in manufacturing and a decline in stock prices, the Conference Board said Wednesday. The index held steady in April, according to revised figures, after increasing by 0.1 percent in March.

The index compiled by the business-financed research group attempts to forecast economic trends for the next three to six months. It now stands at 106. It stood at 100 in 1996, its base year.

The stock market, which opened lower Wednesday, remained down following the release of the report. In late morning trading, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 40.30 at 10,520.37 and the Nasdaq composite index was down 79.20 at 3,912.73.

The report, which was slightly above analysts' expectations, was the latest in a series of economic data to suggest that the economy, while still growing, is slowing down.

"Primarily, it's further confirmation that the economy is moderating," said David Orr, chief economist at First Union Corp. "The brakes are being tapped."

Concerns about too-rapid expansion and fears of inflation have prompted the Fed to raise interest rates six times in the past year. The central bank left rates unchanged at its most recent meeting last week, but left the door open to the possibility of another rate hike at its next meeting on Aug. 22.

According to Wednesday's report, there still is some strength left in the economy. The Coincident Indicators, which gauge current economic activity, rose 0.2 percent in May. boosted by strength in industrial production and personal income.

The index of lagging indicators also rose, climbing by 0.2 percent.

Panhandle for his health.

Without any announcement, Vanderburgh changed the name of the paper to the Hereford Brand on March 2, 1902, even registering the name as a livestock brand in the Deaf Smith County Clerk's Office.

The first home for the newspaper was on Dewey Avenue (now Main Street) and the first issue, a fourpage tabloid, proclaimed "Hereford is the most prosperous town on the plains.'

The newspaper survived a series of short-term owners for several years before Seth Holman purchased the weekly. Holman ran the paper successfully until 1929, when he sold it. Two publishing companies ran the Brand for the next two years, when Holman, despite poor health, repurchased the newspaper, operating it until July 30, 1933, when he died at 51.

His widow remained as owner of the Brand, which ran through three different editors until Feb. 11, 1937. when she hired Jimmy M. Gillentine of Wellington as managing editor. It was the start of an almost 35-year association with the Brand for Gillentine.

Two years later, Gillentine purchased half interest in the newspaper, and he became sole owner on March 1, 1949, when Mrs. Holman sold her remaining interest. She had served as president of the Panhandle Press Association 1940-41. the first woman to hold that position.

Gillentine was a strong industrial and agricultural booster of Hereford and his "Hereford Bull" column became a regular feature in the newspaper.

In the aftermath of World War II. Gillentine installed a new press and converted the newspaper into a semiweekly on July 4, 1948, with the first issue of the Sunday Brand. At the time, it would be one of the few semi-weekly newspapers in the country to have a Sunday edition.

With Hereford and Deaf Smith County enjoying significant growth, Gillentine and other area publishers established a central printing plant, Southwest Offset Printing, in Hereford. In 1965, the company added a second plant in Amarillo, and another large plant in Dallas several years later.

With Gillentine devoting more of his time to the operations of Southwest Offset, he turned over much of

Data on medical errors disputed

CHICAGO (AP) — A 1999 report that said medical mistakes kill as many as 98,000 hospitalized Americans each year used flawed methodology and is greatly exaggerated, researchers reported Wednesday.

Scientists at the Indiana University School of Medicine said they suspect the death toll from errors is in fact very small and called the parts of the November report from the Institute of Medicine "hot and shrill."

The report, the researchers said, never established that medical errors caused the deaths and failed to eliminate other risks for sick patients before drawing conclusions.

"The available data do not support IOM's claim of large numbers of deaths caused by adverse events, (preventable or otherwise)," wrote Clement J. McDonald and two Indiana colleagues in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

In a rebuttal article, Dr. Lucian L. Leape, of the Harvard School of Public Health, argued that the IOM report is accurate. Leape co-authored the IOM report and conducted some of the research upon which it is based.

The groundbreaking report said medical errors kill anywhere from 44,000 to 98,000 hospitalized Americans each year and called for major changes in the nation's health care system to protect patients.

The report said the problem isn't recklessness by doctors or nurses as much as it is the result of flaws in the way hospitals, clinics and pharmacies operate. After the report, President Clinton said hospitals should agree to routine reporting of serious and deadly mistakes.

In today's rebuttal, Leape said his report may have actually underestimated the extent of the problem because many errors are never recorded in the medical record. Also, the report did not examine injuries outside the hospital. More than half of surgical procedures take place outside of a hospital setting.

Leape defended the report's research methodology, saying screening criteria eliminated patients who were extremely ill or had complicated conditions. He said the patients were not as ill as the Indiana researchers implied and likely would have lived if not for the mistakes.

"The IOM report-has galvanized a national movement to improve patient safety," Leape writes.

Despite their differences, the Indiana researchers said they agreed with the report's call to understand the cause of medical errors and for the development of mechanisms to reduce error rates.

but when the appraisers begin work on the 2001 valuations, the 1999 crop year will be the base — and the yields were higher than in 1997 and 1998.

Tax adatements also cost the county and school district about So mj^rian each.

Arches Daniels Midland, built a grain-handling complex near the part of set U.S. Highway 60 and County Road 1, and Bindle Cances boods Inc.'s masa mill near Dawn, received 50 percent, five-year tax abatements.

Because of the abatement, both companies will be taxed on half of the value of their properties. The taxable value of ADM is $1,889,500; Bunbo's taxable value is $4,301,960.

The total appraised values of property for 2000, following the ARB reviews, are:

• City of Hereford, $284,167,037, up $10.8 million from 1999;

- Deat Smith County, $557,567,730, up $23.7 million;

· Deat Smith County Hospital District, $579,295,357, up

· Heretord Independent School District, $477,648,338, up $215 million; and

• Walcott School District, $30,033,857, down $757,080.

The approxised values before the ARB reviews were:

• City of Hereford, $284,850,696;

· Deat Smith County, $584,592,775;

· Dead South County Hospital District, $583,031,943;

· Herei ad Indepedent School District, $480,828,944; and · Walcott School District, $29,966,049.

Crude oil prices plum-meted 7 percent Wednes-day after Saudi Arabia signaled it may soon begin producing an additional halfmillion barrels a day to cut short a relentless rise in oil prices that could threaten world economic growth.

The frenzied selloff on the New York Mercantile Exchange came on the first trading day after Monday's announcement by the world's leading oil-produc-ing nation, which caught even fellow OPEC members by surprise. The exchange was closed Tuesday for the Independence Day holiday. Soon after the opening bell, the near-term contract — crude for August delivery — was down $2.25 to $30.25 a record straight. I agree with the priest who said, "Weddings have become theatrical productions directed by the bride's mother." The reason for this is that most clergy are too gutless to stand up to people who only want to use the church as a social backdrop. Clergy are supposed to be spiritual leaders and defenders of the faith.

As a church organist for 40 years, I have witnessed the deterioration of worship of all kinds, including weddings and funerals. Secular music, pathetic excuses for sermons and people yakking and crawling over pews in an attempt to be friendly have all contributed to the downfall of the church. An Episcopal minister who wrote to you said, "Many Roman Catholics who are divorced and cannot get married in their own church come to me. The last three weddings I performed, the couples had been living together for several years. I felt like a hypocrite."

One minister who wrote to you complained "there should be a dress code for brides." Well, there is, but no one wants to enforce it. Clergy have "relaxed" so that they can be popular. Well, they may be popular, but do people respect them? They are contributing to the ruin of the insti-

As an organist, I expect to be paid for weddings because my salary is not full-time. If I had a clergy salary and benefits, I'd be happy to play for weddings without any additional fee.

I've signed my name because I'm not a coward hiding behind the anonymity of a collar to protect myself. — Bruce Cornely, Gainesville, Fla.

Dear Bruce Cornely: Thank you for an extraordinarily candid letter. I admire your courage, and appreciate your laying it on the line. I know I promised not to print any more letters on this subject, but yours was especially forthright. And now, I'm sure YOU will be getting some interesting mail. Here's one more letter on another wedding subject:

Dear Ann Landers: After reading the letters from members of the clergy who hate weddings, I had to write about my observations as a layperson

Before my husband and I were married, we attended several weddings, either as guests or members of the bridal party. At some of the weddings, the bride and groom smashed cake in each other's faces, with the frosting flying everywhere. Other weddings included the "Money Dance," where guests page at www.creators.com. My husband and I decided not to follow those "traditions' when we married. During the cake-cutting, a group of guests started to yell, "Smash it! Smash it!" Can you imagine smashing cake in the face of anyone — much less the face of your beloved, at the wedding reception? Sign me -Disgusted in Fremont, Calif.

Dear Disgusted: That makes two of us. That cakein-the-face routine, to my way of thinking, is the most vulgar, disgusting custom of all time. I don't know how a truly in-love couple could do such a thing. Any couple who participates in that no-brainer spectacle must have some deepseated hostility buried somewhere.

Orlando to ink Piston's star Hill

NBA All-Star ready to leave Detroit for Magic

DETROIT (AP) - Goodbye, Detroit. Hello, Orlando.

That's the word from All-Star forward Grant Hill, who acknowledged he's close to a deal with the Magic after six seasons with the Pistons.

After house-hunting in central Florida, Hill and his wife flew back to Michigan on Tuesday. NBA rules prohibit free agents from signing contracts until Aug. 1.

"I'm leaning" toward signing with Orlando, Hill told Detroit News columnist Bob Wkjnowski on a flight from Orlando to Detroit on Tuesday. "Well, it's not 100 percent, but it's close.

"I know people will be up-set, but I felt I did everything I could do here," Hill said. "I love Detroit. I enjoy the people. This is just a golden opportunity, for basketball reasons

"I wish the Pistons well, I really do."

Joe Dumars, who became the Pistons' president for basketball operations last month, ing Hill as offs in four of his six seasons, but have never won a series. Last season, he averaged 25.8 points, third-best in the NBA. The Magic are offering Hill and San Antonio free agent Tim Duncan six-year deals worth $67.5 million, the most allowed under the collective bargaining agreement. They can get seven-year, $86.5 mil-lion contracts if the Magic agree to sign-and-trade proposals with the Pistons and Duncan's team, the San Antonio Spurs.

"I have gotten conflicting reports while he was down there," Dumars told the News. "First, I heard that Grant was committing and Tim was not. Then, the next day, I heard that Grant was not committing and Tim was. So I am not making any assumptions until we talk."

During the past year, the Magic cleared an estimated $20 million of salary cap space, enabling them to offer the maximum first-year salary of $9 million to two star players. The Magic entertained both players throughout the weekend. Duncan left Monday without commenting to the media.

The Magic are hoping Hill can sway Duncan into signing with Orlando, which could radically alter the balance of power in the Eastern Conference. "I think they both enjoyed themselves here," Gabriel said. "They are two individuals who will make their decision on their own. It's hard for us to speculate on what helps a per son make a decision."

Detroit first-round draft pick Mateen Cleaves said last week that he hoped to share the court with Hill.

"I've already had people out looking for Grant," he said. "I really want him to stay. It would be an honor to play with him, and he would be a great mentor to me. He could take me under his wing just like Joe took him."

Hill's departure would give Detroit $8.27 million more next season under the NBA salary cap. But with or without Hill, the Pistons would be able to buy an elite player or two to keep them competitive.

Dumars has already spoken to Indiana's Jalen Rose, a product of Detroit Southwestern High School and the University of Michigan. Rose was impressed with Dumars' plan, but early reports indicate Rose is leaning toward re-signing with the Pacers.

Among other free agents Dumars hopes to bring in are Portland power forward Brian Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same intem/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then remember these hints:

· Give the price. A newpaper consultant says 70 percent of

• Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, mber of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

• Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations

· Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach

Proud Connery knighted

(AP) — The name is Sean. Sir Sean.

Decked out in full Scottish regalia, Sean Connery was for-mally knighted Wednesday by Queen Elizabeth II in a ceremony at the Palace of Holyroodhouse.

"It's one of the proudest days of my life," the star of seven James Bond films told reporters, accompanied by his wife, Micheline, and brother, Neil.

The closer President Clinton gets to deciding whether to start building a nationwide shield against missiles, the clearer it seems that the most important choices will be left to his successor.

For much of this year, the Pentagon has been gearing up for a missile intercept test that many believed would determine whether Clinton gave the green light to deploy an anti-missile system. Now it seems that Clintoh's choice is more modest: whether to authorize the Pentagon to take the first step toward constructing a new radar for missile tracking, not whether to irreversibly commit the nation to missile defense.

Even if Clinton gives the go-ahead to build the radar, the work will not begin until after he leaves office.

"Whatever Clinton does, it will not rule in or rule out a national missile defense system," said Joseph Cirincione, who is a leading critic of missile defense.

Clinton said last week he had not made a final decision but expected to reach a position in the next several weeks. He will take into account the nature of the missile threat, the feasibility of missile defense technology, its cost and the implications for relations with other countries.

Auditors suggest merger of agencies' purchases of drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) -Placing rivalry ahead of savings, the departments of Defense and Veterans Affairs are costing taxpayers as much as $300 million a year because they haven't merged their massive prescription drug purchasing programs, congres-sional auditors report.

The two agencies spent a combined $2.4 billion in 1999 to fill 140 million prescriptions, figures that would give them enormous combined buying power to negotiate deep discounts with drug companies, the General Accounting Office found.

On the few occasions the agencies have combined their buying powers, savings were enormous, the auditors noted.

They were able to buy the blood pressure medicine Capoten at $1.17 for 100 tablets, compared to the average wholesale price of $90.84. And 500 tablets of the ulcer-fighting Ranitidine cost just $13.57, compared to $740 at wholesale.

The departments only bought 2 percent of their pharmaceuticals together. The audit concluded the agencies' "differing missions and cultures have created rivalries that make it difficult for them to act together."

VA and Defense officials said the audit doesn't take into account some negative consequences, including the likelihood that a joint contract with a single drug maker might force many patients to change medications.

John Ogden, director of pharmacy services for the VA, said it would be "penny wise and pound foolish" to change patients' drugs "just because we wanted a joint contract."
