Nixon remembered for vision, resilience

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
YORBA LINDA, Calif. (AP) - Eulogized for his vision and resilience, Richard Nixon was laid to final rest at his boyhood home. And for the first time in a half-century, America doesn't have Nixon to kick around any more.

The Vietnam War - which divided America more than any other issue during Nixon's presidency - and Watergate, the scandal that drove him from office, got only oblique notice at the funeral Wednesday. "Richard Nixon would be so proud that President Clinton and all living former presidents of the United States are here, symbolizing that his long and sometimes bitter journey had concluded in reconciliation," said Henry Kissinger, Nixon's secretary of state.

It was not, perhaps, reconciliation but the emphasis was on Nixon's achievements during a remarkable and always rocky career, and his refusal to quit in the face of overwhelming odds. In emotional terms, the speakers urged that the 37th president be judged not by scandal alone, but on his entire life.

"It's hard to imagine a world without Richard Nixon," said California Gov. Pete Wilson, one of the eulogists.

Nixon was "the most durable public figure of our time," said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, "not because he won every battle, but because he always embodied the

Two face charges from death of 2-year-old girl

Criminal charges were filed Wednesday against two persons in connection with the fatal shooting of a two-year-old girl last week.

Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul announced that a third degree felony charge of tampering with physical evidence was filed against Hilda Guerrero, 31, whose address was listed as 221 Bradley.

A Class A misdemeanor charge of criminally negligent homicide was filed against Cipriano Guerrero, 35, who also goes by the name of Victor DelLeon. His address was listed as 109 Alamo.

They were arrested Wednesday and were released from county jail after posting bond of $1,000 for Cipriano Guerrero and $2,400 for Hilda Guerrero.

Yanette Salazar, daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. Saul Salazar, died of gunshot wound on April 20. At the time, Hereford Police Chief David Wagner reported the victim and a four-year-old friend were playing in the yard at 221 Bradley and found the gun, a .380 automatic, in a parked car.

The weapon discharged and the Salazar child was struck in the chest by the bullet. She was pronounced dead at Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine ruled the death accidental.

Saul said the charge against Cipriano Guerrero alleges criminal negligence, causing the death of the child by leaving a loaded gun in an unlocked vehicle when he should have been "aware of a substantial and unjustifiable risk that a child would have access to the loaded handgun."

The weapon was recovered after the shooting, although the charge alleges that Hilda Guerrero attempted to hide the gun, leading to the tampering with evidence charge.

The district attorney said the case against the pair will be taken to the Grand Jury, probably at its next session on May 19.

Conviction of Hilda Guerrero on the third degree felony charge carries punishment of confinement in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice of not less than two years, but no more than 10 years.

The Class A misdemeanor conviction could result in confinement in a community correctional facility of not more than one year and a fine not to exceed $10,000.

HHS Student Crimestoppers to give drug, weapon money

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor
First the Student Crimestoppers board at Hereford High School began offering rewards for information regarding unsolved crimes involving students or school property.

Now the group is looking to give out a little "Quick Cash."

Cindy Simons, faculty advisor to the student board, said Quick Cash will begin this week and is designed to reduce the incidents of drugs, alcohol and weapons on school campuses.

"We're going to be offering a $50 reward and it's going to go for information that leads to the recovery of a weapon or drugs on a school campus," said Mrs. Simons. "It has to result in the subsequent arrest of the individual responsible."

The way it works is simple -- anybody in Hereford, a student or adult, who has information of a student bringing a weapon, drugs or alcohol onto a school campus can call the Crimestoppers Clue Line at 364-CLUE.

That individual -- as with all Crimestoppers callers -- is given a code number. That person then checks back with Crimestoppers at a later date to determine the disposition of the case and to arrange a secret location for payment of the reward.

Quick Cash will be advertised on posters and in fliers distributed throughout the high school and junior high.

However, Mrs. Simons said, Crimestoppers will accept Quick Cash tips from anyone and any tips leading to arrests will earn the reward. The purpose of Quick Cash, she said, is to reduce the number of instances of weapons, drugs and alcohol being brought onto school campuses.

"I don't see this as a money-making thing for the students," she said. "One thing is that, I think a lot of students would want to report, not for the money, but because it is the right thing to do."

Quick Cash is expected to begin this week.

Mrs. Simons said Student Crimestoppers has enough money in its accounts to begin paying rewards in Quick Cash.

However, donations to the program would be accepted.

Mrs. Simons can be reached at Hereford High School, 363-7620.

Circus ups and downs

Standing -- so to speak -- high above the crowd at Wednesday's Carson & Barnes Five-Ring Circus, this performer wowed the audience with his ability to balance on a succession of padded metal bars. The circus drew some 5,000 people who braved near-freezing temperatures and strong winds to watch wild animals and daredevil performers dressed in flashy costumes dazzle from on the ground and high above the rings.

New radar system provided advance warning of twisters

By JERI CLAUSING
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - A powerful new form of radar peels away layers of wind and rain to reveal the inner structure of a storm.

On Monday, it enabled forecasters to know immediately which storms might produce tornados. Two hours before a series of twisters cut a six-mile path through their town, killing three people and destroying or damaging about 700 homes and offices, residents of Lancaster and DeSoto knew a storm system headed their way was potentially lethal.

A day later, carefree golfers were still on the course at Lake Kiowa when Gainesville got its first tornado warning.

Last Mother's Day, though, one person died and more than 60 were hurt when a twister dipped out of the sky and tore through Wylie, where residents had no warning.

"A lot of times we just had no idea there was a tornado developing in a storm," Skip Ely, director of the Fort Worth office of the National Weather Service, said Wednesday. "The Wylie tornado last year was a good example. That one came out of the blue."

The twister, which skipped from Sachse to Wylie in Dallas and Collin counties on May 9, 1993, caused $18 million in damage.

In January, the National Weather Service's new radar, called NEXRAD, was installed. The new system - which is being installed nationwide - uses a powerful form of Doppler radar.

With the system, Ely said, forecasters can actually watch the twisters build in the midlevels of the storm, allowing them to issue warnings before the tornadoes hit the ground.

"It allows us to confirm our suspicions," he said.

Forecasters first identified twisters in the cell that hit Lancaster and Storm here brings cold, precipitation

From Brand, AP reports
Hereford suffered through a day of winter-like conditions as a storm front blasted the area with high winds and cold temperatures.

School children caught unawares by the temperature change shivered in shorts and shirt sleeves as they watched the raising of the circus tent at the Bull Barn grounds, while circusgoers wrapped themselves in blankets, coats and heavy clothing.

Hereford's official weather station, KPAN Radio, recorded 0.09 of an inch of precipitation on Wednesday, in the form of rain and freezing precipitation. The official high was 38 degrees, with an overnight low this morning of 31 degrees.

Elsewhere, strong thunderstorms roared eastward out of West Texas, threatening to reach severe levels as they moved in North Central Texas.

The thunderstorms pelted much of the Panhandle with small hail and much of the South Plains with hail before they began moving eastward into western sections of North Texas before dawn today.

A massive area of strong thunderstorms stretched from Bowie to Brownwood, moving eastward at about 30-40 mph before dawn today.

The thunderstorms developed along a cold front that stretched from Paris southwestward to Junction into the Big Bend area.

A tornado watch was in effect for the area of North Central Texas south and west of a line from Albany to Granbury to Belton. That same watch covered portions of the Concho Valley, Edwards Plateau and the Hill Country. A severe thunderstorm watch was in effect for the area north and west of a line from Albany to Granbury to Muenster.

Forecasts called for a chance of thunderstorms east of the mountains in West Texas tonight and Friday. The rest of West Texas will have fair to partly cloudy skies and cooler temperatures.

In North Texas, the chance of thunderstorms continues through Friday.

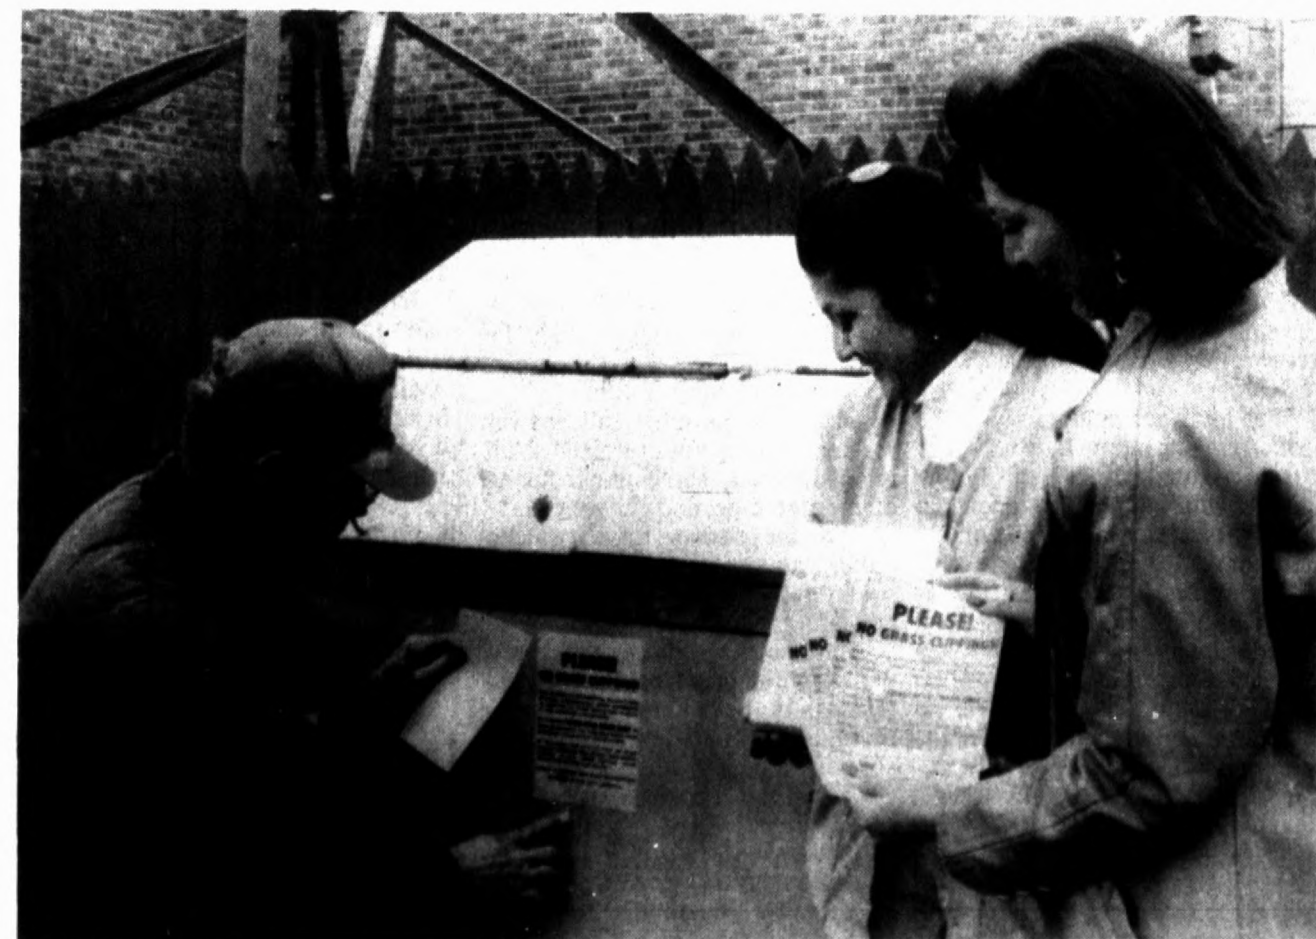

South Texas will have scattered showers and thunderstorms as the front moves through that area.

Lows tonight will be in the 30s in the Panhandle and in the 40s and 50s elsewhere in West Texas, the 50s and 60s in North Texas and in the 60s and 70s in South Texas.

Highs Friday will be in the 50s in the Panhandle and in the 60s, 70s and 80s over the rest of West Texas, in the 60s and 70s in North Texas and in the 70s in the Hill Country and in the 80s across the rest of South Texas.

Light snow fell at Dalhart in the Panhandle during the night.

Early morning temperatures were in the 30s and 40s in West Texas, the 40s and 50s in North Texas and in the 70s in South Texas. Extremes ranged from 31 at Amarillo to 79 at Laredo.

Local Roundup

More rain possible tonight, Friday

Hereford on Wednesday recorded a chilly high temperature of 38 degrees and an overnight low Thursday of 31, with 0.09 of an inch of precipitation, which included rain and freezing precipitation. For tonight, expect increasing cloudiness and a 30 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms. The high will be in the lower 40s with southeast winds at 10-20 mph. For Friday, expect mostly cloudy skies again, with a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms. The high will be in the lower 60s with northeast to east winds at 10-20 mph.

Resignations change face of Senate

Democrats' loss of Boren gives GOP hope for gains

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - David Boren's decision to leave the Senate transforms the Oklahoma Democrat's safe seat into a toss-up and will make it harder for his party to retain control of a chamber they have dominated since 1987.

The 53-year-old Boren, a 16-year Senate veteran, announced Wednesday that he will resign after this year's session to head the University of Oklahoma. He became the sixth Senate Democrat to say he will step down. They include Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine, who stunned his colleagues last month when he said he would not seek re-election.

Only three Republican senators are retiring, forcing Democrats to defend twice as many open seats. Of the 35 Senate seats that will be up for re-election, 22 are held by Democrats and 13 by Republicans.

Those numbers have given the GOP hope that it might regain the Senate from Democrats, who now control it by a 56-44 margin.

"I can't predict how many seats we'll have, but the Boren seat could mean changing the direction of the Senate, allowing the Republicans to take control," said David Carney, deputy executive director of the National Republican Senatorial Committee, which coordinates the GOP's Senate races.

Democrats say that although there may be a slight shift in seats between the parties, there won't be enough to hand the chamber to Republicans. But they acknowledge that the large number of seats they must defend, plus other factors, makes this a difficult political year.

"Boren's announcement underscores the overall tough challenge of this cycle," said Ken Klein, spokesman for the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Because Democrats will have so many more incumbent senators running, Republicans are hoping that the public's anti-Washington mood will help the GOP. They also note that with President Clinton, Democratic candidates will be forced to defend a Democratic administration for the first time since 1980. Historically, the party that holds the White House usually loses a handful of Senate seats.

"To run against George Bush's ideas was great, but now they have to defend the government," Carney said of Democrats.

Like Mitchell, Boren abandoned a seat that had been considered certain to remain in Democratic hands and now appears a toss-up. Boren was re-elected in 1990 with 83 percent of the vote, the highest margin of any Senate candidate who had an opponent.

Now, Boren's seat is considered up for grabs, with candidates from both parties just starting to make serious soundings for support. Since Boren's term would not have expired until January 1997, the governor will have to schedule a special election. It will be held no earlier than December.

About half the 13 Republican seats being contested and about one-third of the 22 Democratic seats are considered safely in their parties' hands.

Of the nine retirees, Democrats Boren, Mitchell and Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and Republicans John Danforth of Missouri and Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming were considered to have the safest seats. Democrats Dennis DeConcini of Arizona and Donald Riegle of Michigan and Republican Dave Durenberger of Minnesota were considered to be in trouble because of ethics allegations they have encountered.

The other, Sen. Harlan Mathews, D-Tenn., was appointed to Vice President Al Gore's seat on condition that he relinquish it for the 1994 election.

West Texas A&M president talks about future facing universities

BY RICK LANNING
Staff Writer

By the year 2020, the average American will live to be 100 and the nation's universities will be crowded with senior citizens pursuing second careers and degrees, said Dr. Barry Thompson.

Rotary Club officer goes to training

Johnnie Turrentine of Hereford, president-elect of the Rotary Club of Hereford, was among more than 400 persons attending the annual training session in Dallas for incoming club presidents in Texas last weekend.

A special guest and speaker for the Presidents-Elect Training was Bill Hartley of England, president of Rotary International.

During the meeting, Turrentine took part in about 20 hours of training, provided by Rotary officers and members. Approximately 625 Rotary members were in attendance.

The Hereford Rotary officer reported that the new district governor is Charles LaBarr of Pampa. New officers assume their duties in July.

President-elect Turrentine will attend a district assembly at South Plains College in Levelland.

Thompson, president of West Texas A&M University, told a Hereford audience Tuesday that he foresees universities in the 21st century undergoing dramatic changes.

Speaking to members of Hereford Golden K Kiwanis Club, Thompson predicted many college students will learn their lessons by long distance.

"Universities in the 21st century will be problem solvers," said Thompson, a native of Kermit who has been involved in higher education 36 years.

"Personal computers will be hooked up with interactive television to form an Intellectual Highway," he added. "This will enable students to share information and work out of their homes."

Thompson joined West Texas A&M in 1991 and has helped push through many new programs, an increase in enrollment, and a vision for the future.

When he became president of the university in Canyon, he said, "It was like I was at the bottom of Carlsbad Caverns without a candle."

"West Texas A&M was one of the most underrated universities in Texas. We're projecting an enrollment of 7,030 students this fall, which is a good sign."

"We have implemented a new equine industry program to take advantage of major breeding farms that are promoting horse racing. This program will work with the three major horse racing tracks in Texas."

"Hereford residents will be interested in our new research and interest in the beef cattle and feed lot management industries."

Kiwanis Club members met at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

According to Thompson, the average life expectancy in America will increase to over 100 by the year 2020.

"This will create a large problem, but it will also offer older citizens an opportunity to re-enroll in college to pursue new careers and degrees," he said.

"I think it's very exciting." During a question and answer session, Thompson criticized local television news shows for focusing on murder, rape, and car wrecks.

"We are prisoners to what a video editor wants us to see on a 15-second sound bite," said the 58-year-old educator.

Thompson, who holds a doctor of philosophy degree from Texas A&M University, predicted a major revolution will occur in the U.S. in the next 20 years.

"I just don't know if it will be armed or not," he said, smiling. He has remained in the field of education, he said, because it is one of the few remaining American bastions that stand for ethical values.

While Thompson was president of Tarleton State University, the institution grew by more than 2,700 students because of his innovative leadership.

One of his colleagues described Thompson as "an innovator and strong advocate of students...who thrives on meaningful challenges."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If I read another letter in your column from an empty-nester complaining that their grown children don't visit enough, call enough or write often enough, I'll scream. While these mothers are feeling sorry for themselves, their grown children are probably trying to get some freedom.

We don't own our children. They have a right to leave the nest and seek their own fortunes. No law says because we gave them life, they are obligated to stick around and entertain us throughout our old age.

I'd like to say to those complainers: Don't sit home and vegetate. Volunteer to help the Red Cross or the Salvation Army. Work in a soup kitchen. Get out into the community and circulate. Be a foster grandparent. Go back to school and get more education. Where I live, after age 60, a person can go to a state college tuition-free. Check it out. It could mean the beginning of something wonderful.--Fairhaven, Mass.

DEAR MASS.: Beautiful. I hope your list of alternatives to sitting around and complaining will get a few dozen people off their rumps.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband, "Johnny" had an affair with a co-worker. He left me and our two young sons. We got back together, and three weeks later, his girlfriend announced that she was pregnant. Two months ago, she gave birth to a baby girl.

I know Johnny has to take responsibility and pay support for this child. I can live with that, but the girl shows up every other weekend and it is hard for me to be in her company.

Ann, I have tried to love my husband again, but I just can't do it. I hate having sex with him because I can't forget that he broke my heart.

Do I have to put up with this agony for the rest of my life for my children's sake? We tried counseling, but Johnny kept lying to the counselor. He refuses to let me go alone because he is afraid the counselor will tell me to leave him. Please help me, Ann. I am--Trapped in Michigan

DEAR MICHIGAN: Your letter is a cry for help if ever I heard one. You need to dump that control freak NOW.

Talk to your clergyman about how best to do it. Your children must surely sense your rage and be terribly confused. You do them no favors by staying with a man you despise.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My fiancée's father recently died. Her father lived a long life and was well-liked by everyone--maybe TOO well-liked. Listen to this.

People came banging on the door at 7:30 a.m. when we were still in our pajamas. There was a steady stream of callers until after midnight. Sometimes, the house was so crowded you couldn't walk across the living room without stepping on someone.

Tell your readers that when there is a death, they should give the family a chance to grieve privately.--Bereaved in St. Paul

DEAR ST.P.: Anyone who shows up at 7:30 a.m. to make a condolence call deserves to have the door shut in his face. And people who don't know when to go home should be politely handed their coats. Period.

Feeling pressured to have sex? How well-informed are you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet "Sex and the Teenager". Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Debbie Reynolds, who went from teen-age movie idol to unsinkable star, has received the first Liberace Legend Award.

Reynolds, who operates a hotel and a movie memorabilia museum here, was honored for her "major contributions to the community and the world of entertainment," according to The Liberace Foundation.

The foundation, supported by a museum Liberace opened here in 1976, provides funding to 59 colleges and universities in 33 states. The award will be presented May 16, which would have been Liberace's 75th birthday. He died in 1987.

The 62-year-old Reynolds "has excelled in every phase of entertainment" and is a tireless advocate for charity, said Jamie James, a foundation board member and Liberace's longtime publicist.

Reynolds, who started in movies as a teen-ager in 1949, has starred in such films as "Singin' in the Rain" and "The Unsinkable Molly Brown."

Dr. McBrayer tells of his family history for club

Dr. Duffy McBrayer presented an informative program about his Scottish ancestry for members of the Bay View Study Club when the group met recently at the Hereford Country Club with Jeannie Caison as hostess.

Program comments were also given by Claudia McBrayer and Pat Graham.

Dr. McBrayer returned to his family's native country where they lived near England's border. He learned that his family had fought with England and also among themselves. He said that over the centuries they hunted, fished, fought and made a "little whiskey." To this day, people of the land have very little use for the English.

The speaker was attired in a plaid blazer with his clan's plaid tartan, a black and white tie and a tie tac of Scotch marble.

The kilts wore made of a tight weave to keep out bugs and shed water. The Scottish people wore the kilts by day and blankets at night.

Dr. McBrayer explained that there is much reforesting now which is creating beautiful scenery. He also stressed that the narrow roads were "very scary" for Americans to travel on. The landlords still own the game in the country and it is delightful to eat.

Pat Fisher conducted the business meeting and members read the club collect.

The group discussed individual contributions to the Shirley School Library.

Cuby Kitchens Classic tourney starts Friday

The Cuby Kitchens Classic youth basketball tournament, the Third Annual edition of which is set for this weekend in Hereford, keeps growing and growing.

It started two years ago with less than 30 teams and jumped to 62 teams last year. This year, 76 teams of boys and girls from three states are coming to Hereford to compete for titles in eight age-divisions.

The tournament will use courts at the junior high, the high school and at Stanton. Games will be played almost non-stop: 5-11:30 p.m. on Friday; 8 a.m.-11:30 p.m. on Saturday; and 8 a.m.-9 p.m. Sunday.

The age divisions are 11-under, 12-under, 13-under and 14-under for boys, and 12-under, 13-under, 14-under and 15-16 for girls. Each division has at least one team that is predominantly made up of Hereford kids.

Weekend passes are $6 for adults, $4 for students, and allow access to all games all weekend. Daily passes are $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students. A concession stand will be open at the junior high, serving hamburgers and other items.

NBA stars start quest for title

By The Associated Press
Three teams have won the last seven NBA titles, leaving a host of star players still looking for that elusive championship ring.

The list includes the four big men - David Robinson, Hakeem Olajuwon, Shaquille O'Neal and Patrick Ewing - who made 1993-94 the Year of the Center in the NBA.

Also on the list are perennial all-stars like Charles Barkley, Clyde Drexler, John Stockton, Karl Malone and Danny Manning.

"From Day 1, my goal was to win a championship," said Ewing, who was 7 years old when New York won its first NBA title in 1970. Now in his ninth season with the Knicks, Ewing leads them into the first round of the playoffs Friday night against New Jersey.

New York is the second seed in the Eastern Conference behind surprising Atlanta, which plays host to Miami in their opener tonight.

"I play basketball because it's fun, but I also play because I want to win," said Manning, traded to the Hawks from the Los Angeles Clippers on Feb. 24. "When I say 'win,' I mean win a championship. When I win one championship, I'll want to win another one."

In other playoff openers tonight, Indiana is at Orlando in the East, while it's Denver at Seattle and Utah at San Antonio in the Western Conference.

On Friday, it's New Jersey at New York and Cleveland at Chicago in the East and Portland at Houston and Golden State at Phoenix in the West.

Orlando, making its first playoff appearance in its five-year history, has put rookie Anfernee Hardaway at point guard, replacing Scott Skiles.

Many thought the pair wouldn't get along, particularly after Hardaway visited the Magic before last year's draft and predicted he would win the starting job from Skiles - the NBA record-holder for assists in a game with 30 - if Orlando picked him. But Hardaway has nothing but praise for Skiles.

so good, it might not matter if he ever gets down the finer points of being a point guard. He's so good, he can get the ball where he wants when he wants regardless of the situation, and that's not easy. He's going to get to a point where he can take over games."

Seattle is the top seed in the West and has the home-court advantage throughout the playoffs because of its NBA-best 63-19 record.

"I hope the guys realize how difficult this is going to be," said Ricky Pierce, Seattle's veteran guard. "We can't just write ourselves into a championship. We have to be focused and ready to accept the challenge in front of us now."

Denver, despite a 2-2 split of the season series with the Sonics, matches Miami's 42-40 record as the worst among the 16 playoff teams.

Fourth-seeded San Antonio has the home advantage in the first round against Utah, but the Jazz were 5-0 against the Spurs this season. San Antonio hopes to reverse the trend with its advantage at center, where Robinson is coming off a 71-point performance Sunday that gave him the NBA scoring title over O'Neal.

Great Midwest considers UH

HOUSTON (AP) - The Great Midwest Conference is considering adding football to its programs and has met with University of Houston officials to explore the possibilities of adding the Cougars, KRIV-TV of Houston reported.

"What we're interested in is adding football too, because we have Memphis State and Cincinnati," Slive said Wednesday. "We're exploring the possibility with doing something with football if it will help our basketball."

"The question is, can this league add football, improve its basketball and then be a part of the new restructuring - and we think we can."

"As a league, our presidents have asked us to explore the possibilities of (adding NCAA Division) IA institutions for both basketball and football. Houston has I-A football and Houston has great athletic tradition."

Members of the Great Midwest Conference, based in Chicago, are Dayton, Cincinnati, Memphis State, Alabama-Birmingham, DePaul, Marquette and St. Louis.

Houston athletic director Bill Carr declined to discuss the Cougars' plans.

The Cougars have been exploring their options since Texas, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Baylor agreed several weeks ago to leave the Southwest Conference for the Big Eight Conference after the 1995-96 season.

From that point, Houston said it did not want to be involved with the three other SWC schools - Southern Methodist, Rice and Texas Christian - in any new alignment but would look on its own. Those three schools agreed last week to move to the Western Athletic Conference, also after the 1995-96 season.

Lou Gehrig, the record-holder with 2,130 consecutive games, hit 493 home runs during his career with the Yankees.

"Scotty really made it easy on me, and I thank him a lot for that," Hardaway said. "He was a man about it when I became the starting point guard. He still gave me tips, still met me coming off the court to point out some things during games. I'm still learning from him and he's also listening to me when I point out things. It's a real good relationship."

Said Skiles: "I've tried to pass along what I can to Penny, but he's

NCA track team was 3rd at meet

The seventh grade students of the Nazarene Christian Academy took third place in the recent Trinity Fellowship Track Meet.

Plainview Christian Academy won the meet with 142 points, beating eight other schools. Trinity Fellowship was second with 104 points, and Nazarene had 91 points.

Lyndi Carlie won three events: the 100-meter hurdles, the triple jump and the long jump, setting a new meet record of 14 feet, 10 1/2 inches. She came in second in the high jump, and helped two relays finish second. She was joined by Mindy Morton, Christy Schumacher and Rachel Chavez on both the 400-meter and 800-meter relays.

Chavez was third in the discus and the shot put. A couple of teammates joined her in placing in discus: Noelle Merrick took fourth and Mary Hodges took sixth. Schumacher added a fifth-place finish in the 100 hurdles.

Benjamin Salazar was the only boy to score points. He won the 400-meter dash, setting a new meet record of 59.66 seconds. He took fourth in the 100 dash and fifth in both the discus and the shot put.

Jockey Bill Hartack rode nine winners of Triple Crown races, five in the Kentucky Derby, three in the Preakness and one in the Belmont.

Starting at age 15 in 1927, Sonja Henie won 10 consecutive world ladies' figure skating championships.

Twins' Erickson throws no-hitter at Brewers

By TOM WITHERS
Associated Press Writer
Scott Erickson led all major-league pitchers in three categories last season - all the wrong ones. Erickson, a 19-game loser in 1993, threw the second no-hitter of 1994 and Minnesota's first in 27 years Wednesday night as the Twins defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 6-0 in Minneapolis. Last season, Erickson led the majors in losses (19), hits allowed

(266) and runs allowed (138). After bursting on the scene in 1990 wearing his black stirrups just above his shoetops, and sprinting to the mound to start every inning, Erickson was 20-8 for the Twins in 1991. Since then, however, his career had drooped as low as his socks. He was 9-24 in his last 40 starts and entered Wednesday's game with a 7.48 ERA with opponents batting .384 against him. Just two weeks ago, he allowed 11 hits and 10 runs in a four-inning stint against Seattle. And before he even threw a pitch, Erickson had a bad feeling about this one. "I really didn't feel that good before the game," he said. After left fielder Alex Cole caught the 27th out - narrowly avoiding a collision with shortstop Pat Meares - Erickson was mobbed on the mound. Erickson (2-3) struck out five and walked four - two with two outs in the ninth - in throwing the first shutout of the season for the big leagues' lowest-ranked pitching staff. "He was strong, he was sharp, he was awesome," Minnesota catcher Matt Walbeck said. It was the second no-hitter of the season in the majors, following one by Atlanta's Kent Mercker on April 8 in Los Angeles. It was the first no-hitter at the Metrodome since the Twins moved into the facility in 1982 and the third in team history. Elsewhere in the AL, Cleveland outlasted Chicago 8-7 in 12 innings, Texas bombed Toronto 11-3, Boston edged Oakland 1-0, Baltimore blasted California 13-1, and New York crushed Seattle 12-2. Detroit at Kansas City was rained out.

Red Sox 1, Athletics 0
At Oakland, Calif., Billy Hatcher drove in the game's only with a groundout, and threw out a runner at the plate as the A's lost their ninth straight. Frank Viola (1-1) outduelled Ron Darling (2-2), allowing two hits and five walks in six innings. Viola got the A's to hit into four double plays.

Mets outlast Padres in 15 innings

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
The more the New York Mets missed chances to win, the more manager Dallas Green made moves to his depleted bullpen. After nearly five hours, though, Green and the Mets got a break. Fernando Vina singled home the deciding run with two outs in the bottom of the 15th inning Wednesday night, and New York beat the San Diego Padres 3-2. "Great baseball game. That's all I can say," Green said. "We didn't play good situation baseball. We probably could have won it five different innings." Green used five pitchers. He might've used Mike Maddux, too, but he was unavailable; the reliever broke his left big toe when he kicked a dugout step after giving up two runs in Tuesday night's 6-3 loss to the Padres. "It will heal itself," Maddux said. "I did everything today. I ran. I don't foresee, hopefully, any problems."

In other games, Los Angeles beat Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 innings, Montreal defeated San Francisco 7-1, Pittsburgh downed Cincinnati 3-1, Florida beat Colorado 3-2 and Houston defeated Chicago 8-5. The Atlanta at St. Louis game was rained out. Doug Linton (2-0) pitched three scoreless innings as the Mets ended their three-game losing streak. New York stopped San Diego's four-game winning string. Kevin McReynolds led off the 15th with a single against Tim Lincecum (1-1) and moved up on a groundout. With two outs, Vina hit a hard grounder that glanced off the glove of first baseman Phil Clark. The game at Shea Stadium took 4 hours, 57 minutes and ended at 12:35 a.m. EDT. "They left it all out there on the field, both ballclubs. The relief pitching was outstanding. None of the pitchers gave an inch," said Padres manager Jim Riggleman, who used six pitchers.

Astros 8, Cubs 5
Ken Caminiti and Andujar Cedeno homered as Houston rallied from an early five-run deficit to beat Chicago at the Astrodome. Jeff Bagwell drove in the go-ahead run in the seventh inning with an RBI grounder. The Cubs lost for the 10th time in 12 games. Shane Reynolds (1-0) pitched three scoreless innings for his first win since Sept. 27, 1992. Jose Bautista (0-2) was the loser. Dodgers 5, Phillies 4
Cory Snyder singled home the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning as Los Angeles sent Philadelphia to its fifth straight loss. The Dodgers have won three in a row and six of eight. The Phillies finished 1-6 on their California trip. Snyder had three hits and drove in three runs. Henry Rodriguez and Tim Wallach drew walks from Larry Andersen (0-1) to start the 10th. After Eric Karros struck out, Snyder singled to right-center. Jim Gott (2-1) pitched a perfect 10th, striking out two.

Expos 7, Giants 1
Ken Hill pitched his first complete game in more than a year, and Montreal beat visiting San Francisco. Hill (4-1) gave up six hits, walked two and struck out one. He is 10-1 in April decisions in the last three years. The Expos got five singles off Mark Portugal (2-2) in taking a 3-1 lead in the second inning. Marlins 3, Rockies 2
Gary Sheffield homered for the third straight game, and Florida defeated Colorado. Sheffield's two-run shot gave him homers in the Marlins' last five home games. Charlie Hough (2-0) allowed one run and five hits. The Marlins, minus injured closer Bryan Harvey, took a 3-1 lead into the ninth, but pinch-hitter John Vander Wal hit an RBI triple off Jeremy Hernandez with one out. Hernandez, however, retired pinch-hitter Eric Young on a popup and got Walt Weiss on a fly ball for his second save. Chuck Carr went 4-for-4, and scored on Sheffield's eighth homer in the first inning off Mike Harkey (0-2).

Rangers 11, Blue Jays 3
At Arlington, Texas, Kenny Rogers allowed six hits in 7 2-3 innings and David Hulse had three hits for the Rangers. Toronto's Joe Carter set a major-league record by driving in his 30th run of April with a first-inning single. Rogers (2-2) helped the Rangers win consecutive games for the first time this season. Pat Hentgen (3-2) was roughed up for five runs in the fifth. Indians 8, White Sox 7, 12 innings
At Cleveland, rookie Manny Ramirez hit a two-run homer and Mark Lewis hit an RBI double as the Indians scored three in the 12th, aided by two Chicago errors. The White Sox had taken a 7-5 lead in the 12th on Darrin Jackson's two-out, two-run double off Eric Plunk (3-0). In the bottom half, third baseman Robin Ventura booted Paul Sorrento's grounder for the White Sox's fourth error, and one out later, Ramirez homered off Roberto Hernandez (1-1).

Orioles 13, Angels 1
At Anaheim, Calif., Cal Ripken Jr. had four hits, including his first homer of the season, and drove in five runs as the Orioles banged out a club record 11 extra-bat hits. Ben McDonald (5-0) held California to seven hits in his first complete game of the year. Rafael Palmeiro, Mike Devereaux, Chris Hoiles and Brady Anderson also homered for the Orioles. Chuck Finley (0-2) gave up six runs and nine hits in six innings. Yankees 12, Mariners 2
At Seattle, Jim Leyritz hit New York's third grand slam in five days and the Yankees scored five runs on seven walks and a hit batter in the third inning. In the third, the Yankees took advantage of Dave Fleming's wildness. With two out, Fleming (2-3) walked five straight to force in two runs. Jeff Nelson replaced Fleming and hit Bernie Williams with a pitch, and issued walks to two more to bring in New York's fourth and fifth runs. Scott Kamieniecki (2-0) helped the Yankees to their seventh win in eight games.

NBA awards franchise to Vancouver, Canada

NEW YORK (AP) - Basketball isn't about to replace hockey as the No. 1 sport in Canada. With a push from the NBA, however, Shaquille O'Neal may become almost as famous there as Wayne Gretzky. Six months after admitting Toronto to the league, NBA owners unanimously approved a Vancouver franchise Wednesday. Both teams will begin play in the 1995-96 season. "Vancouver is a beautiful, fast-growing city," NBA commissioner David Stern said. "It's got a great seaport, great restaurants and great fans." The addition of Toronto and Vancouver will give the NBA 29 teams. The franchises must pay an entry fee of $125 million, nearly four times the $32.5 million paid by the four expansion teams in the late 1980s. But Vancouver owner Arthur Griffiths thinks it's a good investment. He said 7,000 people already have agreed to buy season tickets to watch the team play in a 20,000-seat arena now under construction. "We've been overwhelmed by the response," said Griffiths, who also owns the NHL Vancouver Canucks and the new arena. "We are confident the NBA will be a big success here." Griffiths said basketball already is popular in Canada, especially in Vancouver. "We have more high school and college teams than anywhere else in Canada," he said. The team was going to be called the Mounties, but that name has been scrapped because of licensing problems with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. "We're going to do some test marketing and come up with another name," Griffiths said. Griffiths said he plans to hire a general manager by the end of the summer. An expansion draft will be held in the summer of 1995 to stock the two Canadian teams, who will take unprotected players from existing clubs. Each expansion team also will get a pick in the first round of the 1995 college draft. One team will pick sixth and the other seventh. Vancouver and Toronto will be the first Canadian teams in the NBA since the Toronto Huskies in 1946-47, the league's inaugural season. Vancouver will play in the Midwest Division of the Western Conference. Toronto will be in the Eastern Conference, but the division has yet to be determined. Famous golfers Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson were caddies together at a Fort Worth, Texas, country club. Rogers Hornsby, rated the greatest right-handed hitter of all time, had a career average of .358.

Pirates 3, Reds 1
Zane Smith pitched a four-hitter and Pittsburgh beat visiting Cincinnati. Smith (3-1) struck out six and walked none. He also had two hits, and is batting .500 (6-for-12) this season. Jay Bell homered off ex-Pirates pitcher John Smiley (2-2). Tony Fernandez homered for Cincinnati.

It takes more than blind luck to pin down the right home.

Yankee from Midland prefers small-town life

By AMY WOLFENBARGER
Midland Reporter-Telegram
MIDLAND, Texas - Flash a million dollars in a person's face and there is a good chance that person will take the money and run. That is not the case, however, with former Midland Lee baseball standout Randy Velarde.

Velarde, who avoided arbitration in January when he signed a one-year contract with the New York Yankees worth $1,125,000, couldn't be farther from that scenario. At 31 years of age, Velarde's heart still belongs to the windblown West Texas landscape even though his allegiance belongs to Major League Baseball.

"It's a lot different coming from a small town to New York," Velarde said. "Sometimes it's too fast a pace. If worse comes to worse, I'll just stay at my house and try not to go into the city unless I have to. I enjoy the quiet life. My wife Jeannie is the one that goes to the city."

Velarde's quiet and unassuming manner is possibly one of the biggest reasons he is a position to play in what he hopes will be his most rewarding season.

Since joining the Yankees in his first full season in 1990, Velarde has been tagged a utility player, a role which frustrated him, he admitted.

"As long as they leave me at one position, I mean weeks at a time, then I can get my body to feel comfortable there," Velarde said in 1992, after playing seven different positions for the Yankees in a year's time.

But Velarde, a lifelong shortstop until going to New York, may finally get his chance to be a single-position player.

"This year I think I have a big opportunity in being able to start at shortstop," he said. "My ultimate goal when I was a kid was to be an everyday ball player. When I was in the minors, (former Cincinnati manager) Lou Pinella said I could be a big league utility player.

"But that wasn't what I wanted to do. Now, I honestly feel like I could play every day (at a single position) in the bigs."

Growing up in Midland and playing four years of college baseball at Lubbock Christian was a big factor in Velarde's patience with the Yankee coaching staff, he said.

"With Dad (Lee Velarde) being the main groundskeeper at Angel Stadium, I got a lot of opportunities to be around baseball players," he said. "It gave me a guideline because I was around a Double A park and Double A players and I was a Little Leaguer at the time but I could see my potential. I knew if I had any type of opportunity, I could make it.

Velarde was afraid the opportunity had slipped from his fingers after being left out of the baseball draft after his first year of college ball. Instead of giving up on his dream, however, he went back to his college teammates for another season.

"I didn't regret it," he said. "I shared a lot with experienced players. I didn't feel I had half the opportunity that some of those players had and the extra experience really helped. It was the best move I could have made."

Velarde realized the wisdom of his decisions during his first year in the minors in 1985, a year he calls "the worst year I ever had at any level."

The perseverance and values he learned as a youngster growing up in Midland helped him have a good attitude and keep him from not giving up when the Yankees could not find a position for him, Velarde said.

Just a few weeks after signing his new contract, Velarde was honored by Midlanders when they named a youth baseball park after him. And it only seems fitting that Velarde still lists Midland as his residence in his biographical information when he could live anywhere.

"You don't go to New York to raise a family just like you don't come to Midland for the scenery," said Velarde, who has two children.

Having his fellow Midlanders honor him with the ballpark was a special gift that even $1,125,000 could not buy, Velarde said.

"All your life you set goals for yourself - daily goals and future goals - but I've never had a goal of having a field named after me," he said. "I never considered that I was worthy of that honor and I am deeply grateful."

"If that has any influence on any young players it would be special to me," he continued. "Because I didn't have above average ability in anything. I had a big heart and you can't measure heart, but that really carried me over the hill."

And that big heart keeps luring Velarde back to his special hometown.

Holyfield has two heart problems

ATLANTA (AP) - Medical tests conducted after discovery of a heart condition that forced the retirement of ex-heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield have revealed another cardiac problem.

An atrial septal defect, a small hole between the two upper chambers of Holyfield's heart, was detected Wednesday in the tests at Crawford Long Hospital of Emory University, said Dr. Ronald Stephens, the hospital's chief surgeon and the boxer's personal physician.

"This is something he was born with," Stephens said. He said it was not life-threatening and was not related to the condition called non-compliant left ventricle or "stiff heart," which led to the 31-year-old boxer's retirement on Tuesday.

"It's doubtful we would have detected this at all if not for this left stiff ventricle he has. As far as whether it will give him trouble, we don't know. But it shouldn't now that he has had a reduction in strenuous exercise."

The "stiff heart" condition, which prevents sufficient oxygen from being pumped to muscles and tissues, was manifested by severe fatigue and diagnosed after Holyfield lost his heavyweight title to Michael Moorer on a 12-round decision last Friday night in Las Vegas. That condition also is not life-threatening, Stephens said, and Holyfield can lead a normal life if he follows a less-strenuous lifestyle.

Holyfield left the hospital Wednesday after spending five nights in hospitals in Las Vegas and Atlanta.

"It'll be good to get back in my own bed again," he said. "In the hospital people are always checking your blood pressure, taking blood from you. But it worked out all right."

He said he had no immediate plans after returning to his ranch in Fairburn, southwest of Atlanta.

'True Colors' subject of study club program

Nena Veazey presented the program, "True Colors," for members of Toujours Amis Study Club's recent meeting held at Inkahoots.

The colors represented different personalities and what characteristics they each consisted of. Then by learning what color category you were in, you could also find out what different learning styles were best suited to each. You could also utilize this information for various things including forming committees, making a better work place and in the classroom. It was pointed out that you could make groups more effective when you have some of all these colors on a committee.

During the business meeting, various projects were discussed and then tabled for further information.

Also, an audio tape from Kim Buckley was played to members with a special goodbye to each member.

The scholarship committee announced they had about 60 applicants from seniors and they were working on the selection which will be announced at the next club meeting.

Election of officers was held and installation ceremonies are planned at the next meeting.

Hostesses for the meeting were Donna West, Cindy Black and Lisa Klett. Members were served a variety of fruits and a khalua-cream cheese fruit dip along with a caramel delight dessert. A choice of Snickerdoodles flavored coffee or orange cinnamon tea was also served.

Appreciation was extended to secret pals and then everyone was invited to browse the shop and look at all the new inventory.

Those members present were Judy Barrett, Kim Bigham, Cindy Black, Melinda Bridge, Patti Brown, Tami Charest, Lisa Formby, Diana Griffin, Tonja Horrell, Sandy Josserand, Lisa Klett, Julia Laing, Leisa Lewis, Lauri Patzold, Kim Porter, Becky Reinart, Cindy Simons, Nena Veazey, Donna West and Marsha Winget.

Among the 300 products George Washington Carver created from peanuts were a substitute for milk, face powder, printer's ink and soap.

QUESTION: What is the function of the liver?

ANSWER: The liver is the largest organ in the human body and probably the most complex. It is a reddish-brown mass that weighs about three pounds. It has four lobes that lie in the upper right part of the abdomen, just under the diaphragm and above the stomach and intestines.

The liver has many jobs to perform. Probably the most important task is to produce bile, a greenish-yellow digestive fluid. The bile is moved to the small intestine through a bile duct, where it helps to break down fatty foods (lipids). Extra bile is stored in the gall bladder, a pear-shaped pouch that lies under the liver.

Another job of the liver is to change glucose sugars carried by blood from the intestine into glycogen, a starch-like compound. When the body needs energy, the liver changes the glycogen to glucose and sends it to the body cells.

When the glycogen supply gets low, the liver can change amino acids and fatty acids to glucose. This ability helps ensure that body cells receive a constant supply of fuel.

The liver's job also includes purifying the blood by filtering harmful substances such as drugs, food additives, insecticides and chemicals. The filtered products are carried to the kidneys by blood and discharged in urine. Other things filtered include bacteria, viruses, ammonia and hemoglobin from dead red blood cells.

manufacture of blood proteins and secreting of cholesterol used to build cell membranes and hormones.

The liver is referred to as the hepatic organ. Next time we'll look at the diseases of the liver, including hepatitis.

FCE Council members meet for lunch, meeting

The Deaf Smith County Family Community and Education Council met Monday in the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room following a lunch at K-Bob's.

Jo Lee, FCE chairman, called the meeting to order and delegates from the District I meeting held the opening exercise. Perry Keyes read a poem, "To a Homemaker's Happiness," and led the FCE prayer and pledges to the United States and Texas' flags.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—God loveth a cheerful giver. Jimmy Swaggart, start smiling.

The TV evangelist agreed to pay $1.85 million to end his mudslinging battle with fellow preacher Marvin Gorman.

Gorman sued Swaggart for defamation, seeking $90 million, after the two swapped sexual misconduct allegations in the 1980s. Gorman won a $6.6 million verdict in 1991, but an appeals court overturned the award.

A settlement was announced in February, but no details were released then. It was approved earlier this month.

Gorman said Swaggart and his allies spread false rumors of numerous affairs in the mid-'80s to destroy Gorman's New Orleans-based TV ministry.

Virgie Duncan was welcomed as a visitor.

Seven clubs were represented and four had 100 percent attendance.

During the brief business session, it was announced that the 1995 cookbook committee will meet May 9.

The state meeting will be held Sept. 13-16 at Lubbock and all FCE members are urged to attend.

County Extension Agent Beverly Harder announced there will be a meeting from 6:30-9:30 p.m. May 19 on new issues on serving safe foods. The location will be announced later.

It was suggested that a research into the history of each club be started as to the year it was formed and the county agent who served at that time.

The District I spring meeting was a success. Lunch was served to 241 people and there were 59 delegates and seven special guests. The traveling trophy was won by Donley County.

There were 76 entries in the Cultural Arts Exhibit and several first place awards were presented to local FCE members.

The next FCE council meeting is scheduled at 1:30 p.m. May 23 at the library.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The economy grew at a moderate 2.6 percent annual rate in the first three months of the year, considerably less than half the booming pace that closed out 1993, the government said today.

The advance in the gross domestic product, the total of all goods and services produced in the United States, was less than most economists estimated and was attributed to a host of factors. The Commerce Department report reflected a previously announced decline in net exports, a slackening of the pace in housing and business construction, the effects of the severe winter in much of the nation and the California earthquake in January. Consumer spending slowed in the first three months of this year following the buying spree that closed out 1993. The slower pace of growth caused by most sectors of the economy was only partly offset by a rise in car and truck production and a slower rate of imports. The economy had expanded in the final three months of 1993 at a sizzling 7 percent annual rate, the highest since the start of 1984. For all of last year, the GDP rose 3 percent. That booming increase in the nation's economy late last year helped trigger inflation fears that led the Federal Reserve to reverse a five-year policy and start boosting short-term interest rates, which in turn contributed to shock waves in the financial markets.

An inflation index tied to the GDP rose at a moderate annual rate of 2.6 percent in the first quarter of this year, the Commerce Department said today. Still it was the biggest increase since the first quarter of 1993 when it was up 3.6 percent. Economists said in advance of today's report that more moderate growth would soothe the markets, which already had begun to rebound in recent days.

With interest rates creeping up, the slowdown in the first three months of 1994 is likely to continue most or all of this year, analysts say.

New home for trucking firm

A ribbon-cutting by the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce Hustlers marked the opening Wednesday of Newton Trucking's new quarters at 200 W. Walnut Rd. At center, with the ceremonial scissors, is Roy Newton and to his right is his wife, Jenifer.

Joining in the occasion were their sons, Brendan and Brant. The trucking company's new home has 9,600 square feet of space. The company has 25 employees and runs 18 trucks and 35 trailers.

deepest feelings of the people he led."

"A great man has fallen," said the Rev. Billy Graham.

And that captured the feeling of the loyalists who had come to say farewell. The audience was studded with faces recognizable a score of years later, players in the political career that began in Congress after World War II and ended Aug. 9, 1974, when Nixon resigned from the highest office in the land.

Even some of the Watergate figures who served time in prison were there: G. Gordon Liddy and Charles Colson. So were Nixon's vice president, Spiro Agnew, who resigned in a separate scandal, and Alexander Butterfield, who revealed the White House secret taping system to investigators.

The assemblage formed a graying portrait of an era that witnessed twin blows at the time: first Vietnam, then Watergate.

"Oh yes, he knew great controversy amid defeat as well as victory," said President Clinton, who as a young man protested Nixon's war policies.

"He made mistakes and they, like his accomplishments, are part of his life and record," Clinton said. "But the enduring lesson of Richard Nixon is that he never gave up being part of the action and passion of his times."

In the front row of 4,000 seats set up in the parking lot of the Nixon Library and Birthplace, sat daughters Tricia with her husband, Ed Cox, and their son; and Julie, with her husband David Eisenhower, their son and two daughters.

For them, it was the second such sad journey in a year; their mother, Pat - Nixon's wife of 53 years - died 10 months ago. Nixon died Friday after a stroke.

The Nixons are buried in a corner of the glorious library garden.

"A few months ago, he was asked in a television interview, 'How would you like to be remembered?'" Graham said. "He thought for a moment, and then he replied, 'As one who made a difference.' And he did make a difference."

The funeral was a rare gathering of five U.S. presidents paying homage to a sixth: Gerald Ford, who had spoken of Nixon's Watergate saga as "our national nightmare;" Jimmy Carter, the Democrat who wrested the office from Ford partly because of the pardon Ford granted Nixon; Ronald Reagan and George Bush, whose Republican nominating conventions treated Nixon as a pariah not to be invited.

Clinton was the only one who spoke, bidding farewell on behalf of the other four and "on behalf of a grateful nation."
