Volunteers take the Word to inmates

oors clang shut loudly. An eerie silence hangs in the hallways, punctuated only by nearly non-discernible babble of the individuals confined behind brick and steel.

Plain white walls, unadorned and impersonal, offer no welcome nor thought of forgiveness.
Into this hostile environment, dedicated believers enter fearlessly with the sole intent of spreading the hope and good news offered by the love of Jesus Christ.

"We don't do this for any glory or personal reason," Thomas Albracht said. "We do it because as one of the saints said, There but for the grace of God, go I."

Inmates refer to the men and women who bring the holy word into the jail as lay ministers, jailhouse preachers or Bible-thumping do-gooders and other less courteous names. Regardless of how the inmates refer to them, most volunteer their time to simply follow Jesus' instructions of ministering to those in prison.

The ministry they bring with them is non-denominational, going beyond the doctrine which

"Most of the girls I have seen tell me they are looking for something. My job is to tell them the good news and let them make their own choices," said Lola Curtsinger, a vet-eran volunteer for more than eight years. "I go in once a week. Just me and my Bible. I try to reach every girl who winds up in jail."

We'll never reach all the inmates," said Raul Guerrero, another veteran volunteer. "We connect, at "When they say this, we have to separates Baptist from Catholic them, mainly because they want to feed themselves from the word daily.

Sometimes minute by minute, because the attacks are always going to come at our weak points," Dawn Mason, a relatively recent volunteer to the program, said.

One inmate told the volunteer she felt safe and secure while she was behind bars, but the world was just too hard on the outside. Another said the ministers' teachings have given her hope and strength to face the consequences, some of which include a long sentence in a state prison.

Reasons and theories for repeated stints in jail range from generational curses, to lack of education, to just not caring. Regardless of the volunteers' personal ideas about the inmates' incarceration, they all agree the joy and hope of salvation will see them through and help them to change their lives once they get out. Even as the iron doors slam shut and the volunteers head for freedom, they continue to minister to the inmates by making contact with family members or pastors.

Families seem to be the key to reaching the hardest heart. "When I speak about their families, they seem to open up. When they start to open up is when we can reach them with the word,"

Year ends on sour note

By Donald Cooper Hereford Brand Managing Editor

The first year of the 21st century is closing out on a sour economic note for Hereford and Deaf Smith County, at least according to one measurement.

The city's sales tax payment from the Texas Comptroller's Office for December was $81,081, down 27 percent from the $111,090 it received last year. The December allocation also was down from the $91,222 rebate for November.

For the year, Hereford has received a total of $1,042,095, down 2.6 percent from the $1,069,906 it received for 1999. Deaf Smith County received a rebate of $27,732, down 30.4 percent from the $39,836 it received in December 1999. The December payment also was down from the $31,147 allocation for November.

For the year, the county received $363,721, down 1.2 percent from the

In the final sales tax rebates for 2000, the Texas Comptroller's Office distributed $191.5 million in local sales tax revenue to Texas cities and counties. December sales tax rebates bring the total sales tax allocated to local taxing entities in 2000 to $3.8 billion, a new one-year record for local sales tax revenue and an increase of 8 percent compared to $3.5 billion in allocations in 1999.

In 2000, Texas cities received $2.5 billion in sales tax rebates, an 8.5 percent increase compared to 1999. Counties received $212.3 billion, a 6.1 percent increase over last year. Sales tax rebates to six metropolitan transit authorities and two city transit departments totaled $987.9 million, up 6.6 percent compared ot 1999. Fifty-six special purpose districts received $90.6 million in sales tax revenue, an increase of 14 percent compared to last year.

Though 2000 sales tax rebates are up 8 percent overall, rebates to local taxing entities for the month of December are down from December 1999, when local governments received extraordinarily large sales tax rebates. This year, local governments received more of their share of sales tax dollars earlier.

December's city sales tax rebates of $191.5 million are down 6.4 percent from a year ago, and county rebates of $15.7 million are down 14 percent compared to December 1999. December sales tax rebates include local sales taxes collected in October and reported to the comptroller's office in November.

By law, the state collects sales taxes for Texas cities and counties that have local sales taxes. The comptroller's office then returns the portion of the taxes on a monthly

Clinton hails final budget as Congress adjourns

WASHINGTON - President Clinton and congressional leaders are hailing a compromise budget package boosting spending on schools, health and other programs that the clamorous, lame-duck 106th Congress sent him before finally adjourning for the year. In its final major act of the year Friday, Congress cleared more than $450 billion in spending, the last remaining piece of this year's $1.8 trillion federal budget. The House voted 292-60 to approve the bill, so thick it stood well over a foot tall, while the Senate passed it by voice.

Federal action on power prices is called weak

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — A federal regulatory commission's effort to stabilize California's electricity market is too weak to be effective and could come at the expense of other states, Western officials say. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission acted Friday after California power grid managers scrambled almost daily this month to find enough megawatts to prevent rolling blackouts. The commission set a "soft" price cap on wholesale rates and let the state's investor-owned utilities keep the power they generate rather than sell it on the open market. Fears of more violence jeopardize peace talks

JERUSALEM — Israeli and Palestinian efforts to resume peace talks faced a test Saturday: Palestinians were holding a funeral for a youth killed a day earlier, and some here worried that it would spark further fighting. An escalation in fighting could put peace talks on the back burner, and the funeral comes after a day in which fighting was heavy. Only hours after the first meeting of senior efficials in a month ended Friday, six Palestinians were killed in clashes. The bloodshed brought the total number of dead in 11 weeks of fighting in Israel and the heavily Palestinian territories that border it to 325 people, most of them Pales-

"We have to feed their basic needs before we can even hope to reach them spiritually," Guerrero said. "The meal is just another way to connect. It gives them something to look forward to and a means of spreading God's love.'

"It's a good beginning which allows us to plant some seeds," Guerrero said. "I probably get as much as I give."

The volunteers all bring a special gift to the inmates. Some sing and play, which is how Guerrero got involved. Some bring a willing ear or a caring heart. They all bring the love of Jesus and the hope of salvation. They've planted their seeds and know their prayers are heard.

Bush's expected resignation sets state senate's wheels in motion

AUSTIN (AP) - Now that America has a president-elect, Texas lawmakers are ready to pick a leader of their own.

For the first time, the state Senate will elect one of its members to replace the outgoing lieutenant governor. Lt. Gov. Rick Perry will ascend to Texas governor once George W. Bush resigns to become president. In Texas, the second-in-command position is arguably the state's most powerful because the lieutenant governor presides over the Senate and controls the flow of legislation. He also keeps a vote as a legislator.

Unlike other states where the lieutenant governor is elected as part of a ticket, the Texas governor and lieutenant governor are separate elected posts.

The odds-on favorite would be a Republican because the GOP owns a 16-15 Senate majority. While there is some speculation that a unified Democratic caucus could put one of its own in the job, political analysts think that's unlikely.

"I don't think there's a scenario where a Democrat would get this job. I just don't see it," said political consultant Bill Miller, who has worked for both Democrats and Republicans. "A Republican will hold the job. The question is which Republican will Democrats sup-

"I have written a letter telling my colleagues that I would like to serve," Bivins said. "I view this process as a sixth-grade class election. I don't think any amount of campaigning is going to change someone's mind about who would be the best candidate."

Litterbugs are spitting on our very best suit t's a common sight around Hereford. A vehicle goes down the street, suddenly an arm appears and trash is tossed onto someone's yard.

People who so casually toss litter out the window or drop it when they walk along our city's sidewalks are irresponsible.

Their vandalism of our community is quiet and subtle, but no less insidious than other forms. Their graffiti is fast food sacks, candy wrappers, soft-drink cups, beer cans and bottles.

We don't suspect, not even for a minute, these culprits have the necessary intellect to read here, our rancor for them, but they might begin to realize it if they were ever forced to retrieve part of the trash they heap daily upon our town.

Litterbugs caught in the act of trashing our lawns and streets and community should be rewarded with the opportunity to spend a full day of their weekend picking up more than their fair share of the eyesores they helped create. No fines would be levied, just like-kind community reimbursement.

Hereford can continue to look the other way and pretend that the consequences of litter and trash are negligible. We can pretend appearance has nothing to do with success. We can also pretend that our trademark hustle and friendliness should be more than enough for any company to bet the farm on in its search for the right fit in a future expansion.

If we haven't noticed our litter and the way we look, then perhaps we're growing used to it, or worse — we're beginning to

When reckless people within our ranks trash our community it's almost as if they were spitting on our very best suit.

We're merely hazarding a guess here, but whether anyone would feel comfortable sitting next to us and our soiled suit would probably be determined by the availability of other seating options, and how badly they needed to sit down.

Some rhetoric crossed line

hetoric during the long presidential election battle has been bitter, something that could be expected because passions run high when the political stakes are so high.

However, some of the rhetoric has crossed the line.

A wire service photograph last week is a prime example of how some rhetoric crossed the line from strong political expression to character assassination.

In the photograph, a Bush supporter holds up a sign that reads: "Democrats had the military." The sign, of course, referred to the Gore campaign's challenge of some overseas absentee ballots cast by members of the U.S. military.

Not satisfied with disagreeing with the Gore campaign's position, the Bush supporter had to go a step beyond and try to show that Democrats are somehow un-American.

To say that Democrats hate the military is an insult to the memory of the hundreds of thousands of that party who have died or suffered grievous wounds in the service of this country.

To imply that Democrats are somehow less patriotic than Republicans is not only false, it should be offensive to everyone, regardless of political affiliation. No political party has a monopoly on patriotism.

In response to the controversy over the military absentee ballots, 52 members of the U.S. House introduced the "Armed Services Vote Rescue Act" (H.R. 5642) following GOP charges that some Florida counties were disqualifying overseas absentee ballots from military personnel, contending overwhelming majority of military votes would go to Texas Gov. George W. Bush, the Republican presidential candidate.

According to Rep. Larry Combest of Lubbock, whose 19th District includes Deaf Smith County, H.R. 5642 "keeps faith with our American military personnel, by ensuring that the votes cast by U.S. men and women serving overseas will be counted."

The measure would provide that all ballots cast by military personnel stationed overseas "shall count, if there is no evidence of fraud." The measure then states that lack of a witness signature, postmark or questions about how the ballot was requested aren't considered grounds for disqualification.

Deaf Smith County Clerk David Ruland, who oversees the county elections, says that when there is an allegation of election fraud, the first place to look is in the absentee Ruland said he would like to see the Legislature rescind the grace period for the overseas ballots and go back to requiring all ballots be in the county clerk's office on Election Day, which would eliminate the concerns about postmarks.

I voted for the first time while serving in Berlin with the Army. According to the law, I had to write a letter to the election official in my home county and request an application for an absentee ballot. When the application arrived, I had to complete the application and have my signature witnessed by the company clerk, which verified that I was serving over-

After the application was processed back in Arkansas, I received a ballot in the mail. I cast my votes, signed the ballot and it was witnessed by the company clerk and I mailed it back to the county clerk. When I received the ballot, there was a notice affixed stating that the ballot had to be received in the county clerk's office "on or before Election Day" or the ballot would be disqualified.

That just makes sense. It would reduce the risk of fraud. It also would eliminate the controversy that would surface in a close election if a few hundred overseas military ballots, without postmarks, arrive several days after the polls closed. And, it would ensure the military votes are counted.

A trio of American voices

Mauri Montgomery

Hello, Hereford.

epublican Pete, a robustly happy Kodak employee who is married and has a four-year-old daughter running around his New York home, was anxious to talk about the presidential election.

Wanda, a single mother of two and living and working in Connecticut, is a bonafide Democrat and says she even worked part-time in one of Al Gore's campaign headquarters. She was anxious to talk about the presidential Stella, a graduate of Harvard, said her idea of civilization ended when her husband accepted a job in Albuquerque. She is a Democrat and the proud mother of two daughters. She was anxious to talk about the presidential election.

Out of three toll-free calls made Thursday in search of replacement parts, there was found three refreshing contradictions to the cynical claim most Americans don't care what happens in their government. Each of the three customer service representatives, when learning their caller was from Hereford, Texas and a newspaperman toboot, mixed their day's work with raw curiosity regarding our new Lone Star president and their studied view of the process which led to his capture of the nation's mantle.

So, quite by accident, an unsolicited survey of three fell into the lap of a fella who only wanted to order two digital camera memory cards, and a No. 381-ARB-039223SCA-099one of 500 important components in a printer we increasingly refer to as "the beast."

The results were striking. Seventy five percent of the parts I wanted were in stock.

Beyond that, three out of three Americans were unanimous in their opinion that George W. Bush became the legitimate holder of this nation's highest office, the U.S. Constitution still works, and the Electoral College should not be dismantled because of one state's difficulty in interpreting its own laws.

Two of the three said the first certification of Bush as winner of Florida's election should have sufficed. The other respondent said she could have supported a complete recount of the state's ballots if someone could have proved some common sense would be applied in the measure.

All three said a standardized national voting system should be mandated by the federal government.

Two of the three thought George W. Bush was cuter than Al Gore, but they also felt he could benefit from some Dale Carnegie

Both of those respondents seemed impressed the Texas caller had met President Bush in person. One of those two wanted to know if he was as short in stature as he appeared to be on TV.

All three voters believed the U.S. Constitution was strengthened by the most recent test of its provisions in the election. And all three said they preferred the compromise offered through an electoral-vote system (a state voice) to a system based on disproportionate populations (a popular vote).

The caller was also asked by all the respondents if he were a Republican, as if to suggest all Texas residents were.

"You're my first caller from Texas since the election," Republican Pete said. "There aren't many Republicans around here. You aren't a Democrat are you?" "No, I'm a Republican. Most of our Democrats had to move to Florida because they don't much care for Yankees either." "I guess the joke's on them," he laughed.

"I'd wager there's plenty of both waiting on the next open shuffle-board court." With the gate now open, he couldn't contain himself. "There are 15 people in my immediate family. My wife has nine in hers. There's about a 60-40 split between Democrats and Republicans in the two families. My wife is a Democrat. Can you imagine?"

The toll-free call lasted nearly 30 minutes, and set the stage for a reluctant pollster. "My wife was beside herself when she thought one of our Christmas presents came up missing and I suggested she recount them, he said. "I didn't intend the pun, but it still infuriated her."

"I guess you're saying your household is no model for bipartisan compromise." Not unless the model includes boxing. She counted the presents twice and got the same result - there wasn't a missing gift. He laughed again when I suggested the gift would be well-received in Florida.

Politicking to succeed Perry begins in earnest

AUSTIN-Now that the presidential election has finally been settled, a lot more than Christmas shopping is going on in Austin. As Lieutenant Governor Rick Perry and his staff begin working on his transition to governor, the politicking over who will be Perry's replacement will gear up in earnest.

Interestingly, when the Texas Senate picks Perry's successor, that person will get all the re-sponsibilities and benefits that go with the job, but not the title of lieutenant governor.

According to the state's Constitution, whoever the Senate elects to replace Perry will "perform the duties of lieutenant governor," but will not be called lieutenant governor. The formal job title is President of the Sen-favorable action on a bill you support? Contacting your House member or Senator is probably more effective than you might think.

Here's why: Except on the biggest of issues, lawmakers do not hear all that much from their constituents. (Given that only half of the electorate cast ballots in the presidential election, that should be no great surprise.) So, assuming a lawmaker is going to vote the way his or her constituents want them to vote, reaching out to your elected representative is hugely important. But, say the pros in the lobbying business, citizens need to follow some sensible rules.

For one thing, they say, be brief. No long-winded arguments needed. Leave that to the pros. Members simply don't have the time for voluminous briefs from everyone with an opinion on an issue. Secondly, be truthful in what you do say.

Thirdly, be pro-active rather than re-active. But temper that with patience. Sometimes it takes several sessions to get a particular piece of legislation enacted.

Finally, a super important point: Be responsive and respectful to legislative staffers. As in most organizations, the worker bees are the ones who really make things happen.

IT'S FINALLY OVER

■ Presidential election proof there are still lessons to be learned if the U.S. is to maintain a healthy democracy

t's finally over. The election for the President of the United States has ended, and the winner was our very own Texas governor, George W. Bush. In an election that was so close in both the popular and electoral vote, and which sustained all manner of dispute and divisiveness among the voters, I was heartened by the tone of reconciliation shown by Vice President Gore. The back and forth wrangling in the courts, and charges of misdeeds on both sides, no doubt will leave supporters on both sides considering themselves the victor. It is time for the country to come together and unite behind our new presidentelect. We can also begin to look at the lessons of what we have learned from this

Winston Churchill once said that "democracy is the worst form of government, except all those that have been tried from time to time." Our electoral process may not be perfect, but think about how fortunate we are to live in a place where order prevailed and power will again pass peacefully from one political party to its rival without bloodshed. Our faith in democracy should be strengthened by this election. The election contest.

Larry Combest U.S. House

authors of the Constitution were extremely wise and judicious men; the framework they provided was carefully thought through and is one that has withstood civil war and difficult elections.

A second important lesson is that every vote really does count. As we have seen in Florida, one vote can make a difference in the outcome of an election and participation in the political process should never be taken for granted. I hope that this close election will serve as a wake-up call for apathetic voters around the country. I also think that this election is a wonderful lesson for young people to understand the impact their vote may have.

In addition, accurate information is key. The fact is, the television networks blew it on election night. Thousands of voters in the Florida Panhandle and around the country were adversely affected by the erroneous early call for Vice President Al Gore in Florida. We may never know how many votes that cost President-elect Bush. Obviously, this is something that turnout, still only about half Congress will have to look into to make sure that future election coverage is done in a fair and accurate manner, and not merely a "who-can-scoop-the-other-guy-first" game. We cannot afford to have another election night like the one in November.

Finally, a thorough review of our electoral process is

While the election process is sound, it will be beneficial to determine if improvements can be made. Some questions that are sure to be considered are what we can do to make voting easier and still preserve its integrity?

How can we use the amazing technology to improve voter participation and accuracy? If we doubled the number of citizens voting, how long would the lines have been? Also, what agreements can be reached to lessen the impact the election coverage has on one's desire to vote? Should there be a standard national ballot for federal elections? Is the electoral college the best system to use?

In the election aftermath, many people will be looking at what else could have been done. How could we have encouraged just a few more votes?

of the eligible voters participated. We need to look at what it will take to get a larger turnout and also ensure that we are prepared for a larger turnout. We need to realize that we have no right to complain if we do not participate in the fundamental right to vote, and we also need to realize that those who have different political views will participate; therefore, it is in our own best interests to get activated and participate.

While there was a large

I believe that the majority of Americans are ready to move forward and let George W. Bush govern. I think they also want Congress to work together in a bipartisan fashion to address the important concerns which will affect all Americans. Most members of Congress also agree. Raising and answering these questions about our electoral process is healthy for our political system. From these discussions, we learn what is and what is not working and with that, the system is improved. I look forward to reviewing our electoral process to ensure that our democracy and ideals are preserved for future generations.

SO CLOSE

Too close to call — that's still the truth about Florida's vote

Walter R. Mears

The Associated Press

either President-elect Bush nor Al Gore nor anybody else will ever know with certainty who really got more votes in Florida. At 0.00009 percent of the vote, the margin by which it was certified for Bush, it was too close for absolute proof the count was beyond doubt.

Recounting again would not have changed that. It would only have changed the impossibly close numbers, in favor of one man or the other but still too close for guarantees, especially when what counted or didn't count would have depended on human judgments under varied standards.

Bush might have won by more than 537 votes, or fewer, or Gore might have had the edge he claimed in challenging the outcome. It makes no difference now; the contest is settled in the only way it could be settled, by the laws as interpreted by the courts.

As the struggle for Florida demonstrated, counting votes is not a precise science. There already are proposals in Congress to have the federal government help states upgrade their voting systems. But no system yet devised could deliver the kind of precision that would guarantee a 537-vote margin out of 5,825,043 ballots to be exact and correct. Or the 930-vote edge Bush got in the first machine recount. Let alone the 193-vote edge the Florida Supreme Court left him in ordering the partial hand recounts that were stopped by the U.S. Supreme Court with the split decision that made Bush president-elect.

Perhaps in the laboratory, scientists could engineer a voting system to produce results that accurate, in this case to one ten-thousandth of 1 percent. But voting systems aren't used in laboratories. They are set up for election days in schoolhouses, town halls and all the other precinct settings of a diverse American election.

Volunteer poll workers check in voters. After the polls close, local officials tabulate the returns.

In every step, there is room for error. And a slip on one ballot in 11,000 in Florida would have been enough to undo or widen the Bush margin.

That is apart from the uncertainties of judging voter intent on disputed ballots, the issue the Supreme Court settled Tuesday night by ending further recounts and effectively deciding that Bush won.

The 5 to 4 decision was as close as the Supreme Court can get, but not nearly so close as the election returns. And not only in Florida. Gore won the national popular vote by 337,576, a margin of three-tenths of 1 percent of the ballots cast for him or for Bush.

A MODERN FABLE

■ The lesson of character still is a favorite of holiday writers since the earliest days of the motion pictures

Once upon a time, two little boys grew up only blocks from each other. They went to the same schools, the same churches, played on the same little league teams and even called each other friend.

But the boys were very different. Even though only a short distance separated their homes, the boys grew up learning far different

The fairer of the two grew up knowing he was loved and believing if he said the right things he would make the right impression and would go far in the world. The darkhaired youngster also grew up knowing he was loved, but from early on he was taught actions speak much louder than words and his actions would carry him far.

Both grew up seemingly as nice responsible young men.

One man's business dealings were always on the up-and-up. He did exactly as he said he would. He treated everyone as he would choose to be treated. He never attained world fame. No one outside his hometown knew who he was. Everyone in his hometown knew of his honesty and integrity and respected him for sometimes taking a difficult stand.

The other young man's dealings, even though completely legal, always left someone feeling like they received the short end of the straw. They weren't really gyped, but neither were they completely satisfied. He always said the right thing, but what he said and what he did were often very different. He went far in the world and businessmen world wide knew him. He knew how to say the things they wanted to hear.

Years went by and both men

Dianna F. Dandridge

had sons and grandsons. For years after the sons and grandsons had taken over the family businesses, townspeople would note the resemblance of character to their respective grandfathers.

Moral: Reputation is made in a moment; character is built in a lifetime.

This lesson of character has been a favorite of holiday writers since the earliest days of television or movie entertainment.

How often have we seen Jimmy Stewart realize the character of his life had improved someone else's life? Think of the wonderful example of character displayed by the residents of Whoville, who willingly forgave Mr. Grinch for wanting to destroy Christmas. Their character didn't end there, though, for they dug down deep and were even able to invite Mr. Grinch to enjoy the holiday with

My favorite picture of character of course comes from the Charles Dickens classic "A Christmas Carol." It doesn't matter whether you read it or watch it, the lesson is always the same. Scrooge's reputation was known far and wide and his reputation was assured the moment he approached. His assistant, on the other hand, Bob Cratchet, lived quietly and few people knew him. His character as well preceded him, having built upon it all his life.

Human character intrigues me more at Christmas than any other time of the year. I often wonder what makes human character surface so much more during the holidays than any other time of the year, then I realize the character is always the same, I just look for the good in people more at Christmas than any other time. Searching for the good in others doesn't lessen the bad, it just brings the bad into clearer focus. Give a gift of good character this year, be a good example and let your character of a lifetime shine.

The comment drew cheers from other graduates, who knew that O'Neal lacked neither a job nor security.

O'Neal, who led the Los Angeles Lakers to their first NBA championship in 12 years last June, will earn $19.286 million this season and is under contract through the 2005-06 season for more than $152 million. He makes still more from endorsements, movies and rap albums.

"It didn't seem right to me to be telling kids to stay in school when I hadn't got my degree," O'Neal said. "Now I can tell them — stay in school."

O'Neal, 28, sat with his fellow students at the afternoon degree ceremony, but was on the platform with the academics for the morning commencement service. Provost Daniel M. Fogel introduced O'Neal as "our tallest

The graduation of a high profile athlete was a good message to send youngsters, said fellow graduate Wardell Sykes, an LSU football player.

"He made a promise and he fulfilled it," Sykes said. "That's always good. Plus people know he's graduating. There are a lot of other athletes graduating here today, but nobody but their families are paying attention to that."

Mavs beat Philly, 112-94

Nowitzki breaks out, scores career high 36 points

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -Don Nelson wasn't sure he would be at the Dallas Mavericks' game Friday night. He was, and coached his team to a victory and its highest point total of the season.

Dirk Nowitzki scored a career-high 36 points, and Steve Nash had 18 points and 13 assists as Dallas beat the Philadelphia 76ers 112-94, ending the Mavericks' twogame losing slide.

Nelson had missed Dallas' previous three games while consulting with doctors about to the Mavericks until the how to treat his prostate cancer. He rescheduled some appointments and, thanks to team owner Mark Cuban's private plane, arrived 40 minutes before Friday's tipoff.

Nelson will have surgery Jan. 4, and will miss 6-to-8 weeks. Assistant Del Harris, who coached the team during the three-game absence, will fill in again.

"That was a game that it's fun for coaches to coach in," Nelson said. "It was great

At the team's tournament in Ulysses, Kan., last weekend, the team faced quality teams from around the Panhandle and Kansas medaling seven players on the varsity squad. Dominguez said part of the reason for the success is the outstanding numbers on the team this year. The coach took 29 participants to the Ulysses tournament making other coaches turn their heads.

"Filling the team has been a great pleasure," Dominguez said. "I'm ecstatic about the numbers.'

The high numbers also allow the Hereford team to compete in duals without forfeiting any matches before wrestling even begins. Dominguez said this has been great for his team's psyche while making it fun to be a coach.

"It takes the pressure off of them, and they know they can win a dual," Dominguez said. "This is the most fun I've had coaching in Hereford."

So far, they have played every tournament and dual with toughness including a first dual win at Borger on

Dec. 5. "Right now, the team unity and team spirit is unbelievable, Dominguez said. "They hold each other accountable, and they don't want to let each other down."

At each tournament, Dominguez said the squad members have demonstrated team unity by cheering each other on and giving one another tips while other teams stand around and stay tightlipped. The coach said he thinks that is why Hereford nearly upset Amarillo High Tuesday night, barely losing 37-32.

Even with the loss of Kris Hammerbeck, the state's topranked grappler, the team continues to make huge strides by the number of wrestlers they have competing and by their work ethic. Dominguez said the commitment level of his team gets him excited.

"Our commitment level is 10 times better," Dominguez said. "They are committed to what

Carroll fills USC vacancy

■ Former NFL coach heads back to college

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Pete Carroll, who turned down the Southern California coaching job three years ago because of the timing, accepted the position Friday, saying he believes the fit is ideal.

"I believe I am tailored for this, it's quite clear," he said. "I'm very energetic, I'm very enthusiastic, I just think this is right.

"I'm going to a place where there are great expectations. That's where I want to be."

The 49-year-old Carroll succeeds Paul Hackett, fired Nov. 27 — two days after the Trojans completed a 5-7 campaign. It was their first losing season since 1991 and just their third in 39 years.

The Trojans have won eight national championships, but none since 1978, and 20 of the 28 Rose Bowls in which they've played. But they've appeared in only one in the last 11 years.

"We'll be good when we're good," Carroll said, without establishing a timetable. "My goal is to win right now."

Fired from head coaching jobs with the New York Jets and New England Patriots of the NFL and out of the college game for 17 years, Carroll wasn't USC's first choice. And his selection has already met with disapproval from some boosters and alumni.

"I've been an unpopular choice at times," he said. "It is a challenge. I'm going to prove (the USC hierarchy) right. I want to make (the fans) proud. I don't need anybody to give me pep talks or fire me up."

Carroll said recruiting would be his first priority, and right behind was settling up a coaching staff.

"Talk is cheap right now, we have to get to work," he play hard, they're going to play with enthusiasm, they're going to play with a great intensity. If they're not, we're not doing our job."

Carroll said the fact that he hasn't coached in college since 1983, when he was assistant head coach and offensive coordinator at Pacific, his alma mater, wasn't a big deal.

"I don't think I could be more prepared to move into this situation," he said. "I've always coached college play-ers, I just got them a little

"If you can understand the process in the NFL, in the draft process it's all about watching players in college. I don't consider myself unfamiliar with the college game

He has no past ties to USC, although his daughter, Jaime, is a freshman on the school's women's volleyball team. However, he said having grown up in the San Francisco area, he's well aware of the Trojans' tradition.

USC went 19-18 in Hackett's three seasons, and has a 31-29 record in the last five years. Fired with two years remaining on his contract, Hackett became the Trojans' coach after Carroll, coaching the Patriots at the time, turned down the offer.

"The timing wasn't right, but that has all changed now," he said. "For a guy like me, for the things I like to do, this is a golden opportunity. We have the caliber of athlete here to do the things I know how to do very well."

When Hackett was fired, athletic director Mike Garrett said he wanted a coach who was a proven winner at the college level, and immediately took steps in that direction.

But both Oregon State coach Dennis Erickson and Oregon coach Mike Bellotti signed contract extensions at their respective schools within a week of Hackett's firing, taking themselves out of the running.

Since then, San Diego Chargers coach Mike Riley, an assistant at USC from 1993-96 and head coa Oregon State in 1997-98, was believed to be the leading candidate.

"I loved my time at USC, but I've got a great job, too, and you can only do one job at a time," said Riley, who was not offered the job.

Garrett said the only person he offered the job to previously was Erickson, and admitted he has received a lot of angry calls regarding the possibility of Carroll's hir-

A&M University. Panel: Estrogen linked to cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) -While stressing the value of estrogen treatments for all means, women should be women, a government scientific advisory panel recommended Friday that the chemical be added to the nation's list of cancer-causing agents. Maybe, one scientist said, this step might encourage doctors to talk with their patients about the risks and benefits.

"Physicians never discuss any of these risks when they are prescribing hormone therapy," Michelle Medinsky, a toxicologist from Durham, N.C., told the National Toxicology Program advisory committee. "They only discuss benefits. Listing might force it on the table." Medinsky said.

"Is knowledge power or is ignorance bliss? Everyone has to make their own decision," she said.

The committee, while expressing concerns that associating estrogen with cancer would overshadow the hormone's usefulness, nevertheless voted 8-1 to recommend the listing. There was no suggestion that estrogen use be restricted or banned.

Dear Ann Landers: My ex-husband, "Phillip," is remarrying next month, and I am not handling it well. Phillip's bride is 20 years his junior - not to mention she's tall, blonde, thin, and looks like a supermodel. Phillip has known her all of eight

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 50-year-old woman, recently divorced from my husband after 25 years of marriage. The divorce was my husband's idea, and it was very hard on me. In order to have a new start, my children and I moved to another state. That was 18 months ago. Since then, I became reacquainted with a man I knew many years ago. MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS ow do we measure our success? Usually, we go by our feelings. We seldom measure our own success very analytically.

How to Measure Your Own Success

The intent of this column is to give you some new ways to measure your success. You can use this column to gauge your strong and weak areas. Once you know how you're doing, you can congratulate yourself for the positives and create a plan to correct the negatives.

How am I doing?

• Don't compare yourself to others. All too often we look at the lives of others to measure our own success. The problem with this measurement is that you can always find someone who appears to be doing better than you. In truth, they may only be better at keeping up external appearances.

The questions most successful people ask are, "Am I making progress toward my goals?" "Am I the same person in all areas of my life?" Is my life well balanced?" "Am I proud of what I

If you can answer yes to these questions and others like them, you're doing fine. How much money Bill Gates has, and how slim and attractive some movie star is, are not relevant measurements to your achievements.

· Chart your own course. A common characteristic of achievers is that they decide where they want to go. They decide which mountain to climb and which battle to fight. They have a plan and are guided by their goals.

Goals have three major benefits. First, they help us establish direction in our lives. Second, they give us a benchmark with which to measure our progress. Third, they can help us keep Don't underestimate goal power. You do have the power to change your direction and chart a new course. If you don't take control of your own life, someone else will do it for you.

• Prove your success financially. I believe money is a method of keeping score and tracking progress. Whether you own your own business or work for someone else, wealth does bring some security and give you options. I do not believe it is the most important, nor do I believe it is the only way to measure success.

There are many measurements you can use. If you're a business owner ask these questions:

Are both sales and profits increasing? Is your debt decreasing as a percentage of assets? Are you earning more from your business than you could working for someone else? Are you building wealth (asset value) on your balance sheet?

Now let's look at your personal finances. Do you have more than one active credit card? Do you pay off your credit cards every month? Do you have more than one car payment? Have you borrowed against your home's equity? Are you building wealth on your personal

I know these are tough questions. However, if you will answer them honestly, you'll probably discover some areas on which to focus your financial improvement strategies.

· Satisfy your personal needs. Are you happy, fulfilled and ready to start each new day? Do you have interests outside your work or business? Do you have time for family, friends and loved ones? Is your schedule flexible enough to include some fun? If you can't answer yes to these questions, you may need to reevaluate your priorities.

While I believe our attitude controls much of our happiness and success, sometimes we get caught in the trap of bad decisions. If you're still breathing, it is not too late to make changes. That is why we measure our success. To see what we need to change in order to

The ceremony was changed in that the tree was moved to the more private, but

When President and Mrs. Roosevelt lit the lights on Dec. 24, 1941, they could not see the crowd of 15,000 people standing outside the iron fence surrounding the South lawn because of the blackout. As I read the book Christmas in Washington D.C., I was struck by this Christmas story as well as many others. Let us remember our nation has come through many different Christmas seasons and it will survive this one. Remember the reason for the season.

Seed technology improves cotton prospec

Growers benefit from research

By Dianna F. Dandridge Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Just any old seed won't do the trick anymore. Today's producers look at every aspect of crop production from weather and pest tolerance to quality and quantity of yield.

Not only are producers not willing to just sow seeds and wait for nature to take its course, but today top producers are willing to pay for the technology and research which goes in to the quality seed which ultimately produces a better end product, both in yield and quality.

Cotton growers throughout the High Plains take time to learn about the varieties of cotton available and the differences which make one variety superior in one area to another.

Helena Chemical branch manager Daniel Olson said, "Growers need to look at research data and trials and their own farming practices before they choose a particular variety. All varieties are registered seed varieties.) suitable for dryland, some just work better with others."

The biggest selling cotton seed varieties are considered the Round-up Ready, BXN, Bollguard and Stacked varieties which allow producers to cut back on hand labor. (All are tolerance of many varieties, but have had to sacrifice some quality. But Olson said that continued research has even brought more quality into the newer varieties.

"Everybody wants something that works. Everybody wants to make a profit on their crops. Some of the new varieties can make a difference of eight to 10 cents per pound," said Todd Taylor, a Helena sales representative.

Producers go into each season knowing the risks of success or failure. Research and technology, which has helped develop better seeds, suitable to specific areas or conditions help balance those risks.

"Local growers are looking for varieties with a quick emergence, early fruit set, high yield and good fiber quality," said Olson. "Researchers have worked to develop these qualities from the farmer input."

"Ten years ago, farmers just wanted a big yielder. Now they are looking for a seed that produces a consistent yield with a good fiber quality. It takes both to keep producers planting the seed."

Seed varieties can take years to develop and get to the market. The trial fields set up by research universities and agencies give producers and seed distributors a real look at crop before choosing it, Olson said.

"Transgenics, seed varieties developed through genetic research, are higher priced, but it takes more to develop them, they demand special handling," Olson said. He further explained that seed producers have put a significant amount of time and money into getting the seed to the point of market. Olson speculates farmers are willing to pay somewhat more for the improved seeds, because the end result is a better return and lower input costs. "Growers used to plant 30 pounds of seed per acre as compared with the 15 to 17 pounds they use now," Olson said. "That's because older varieties produced fewer bolls and needed thicker stands as well as the size of the seed has changed, meaning you get more seeds per pound." Most cotton seed improvements have come about through genetic research and Olson sees the future of ag production becoming more and more technologically advanced.

Stockmen scramble for hay

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) last summer's drought have left Kansas ranchers scrambling this winter to feed their cattle. Some have had to look for hay as far away as Canada.

The problem is especially acute because the drought not only cut production of alfalfa, but many ranchers were forced to begin feeding hay earlier than usual this fall when their pastures dried up.

"Everything is pretty tight, and especially grinding alfalfa," said Gary Mills of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's livestock and grain reporting office in Dodge City. "We continue to import some hay from surrounding states and even had hay shipped in here from Canada — a lot of freight on that."

The Kansas Agricultural Statistics Service estimated that

"Some guys are scrambling start feeding a little early," he said. "Hay is going to be scarce, especially if the snow stavs.

Oltjen expects to have enough on hand for his own cattle this winter but said some of his ranching neighbors are worried.

Freeze boosts Valley citrus crops

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - The Texas citrus crop, poised to escape much of the hard freeze from an ice storm that marched to almost the southern tip of the state, may have actually benefited from the cold, wet weather.

The result will help grapefruit and other crops in the Rio Grande Valley grow plumper and redder, say agriculturists. That in turn will boost supermarket sales.

"It's going to bring a lot of rain. This is the best thing that can happen to us," Bob Thornton, Texas Citrus Mutual executive vice president in Mission, told The Brownsville Herald in Wednesday's editions. "For one, the cool weather helps the fruit color

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then rememeber these hints:

· Give the price. A newpaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an add with no price.

Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
 Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

HOME DESIGNED FOR RELAXED LIVING

Volume Ceilings Expand Interior Space

The recessed entry to this home is accented by a door framed with sidelites. The formal dining room is adjacent and visually separated by columns. The home is designed to include space for a busy family and guests too. There are four bed rooms on the first floor, and an optional bonus room upstairs.

A huge vaulted family room is to the rear of the home, and includes a warm fireplace flanked by glass.

The breakfast room and unique kitchen are open to the great room. From the breakfast room, a wall of glass overlooks the large sun deck. An angular counter in the kitchen includes the sink, overlooking family activities.

Behind the double garage are the master suite, a laundry room and half bath. The private luxurious master suite includes bountiful amenities, such as a tray ceiling in the bed room, twin walk-in closets, and a spa bath with double vanity. French doors lead to the rear sun deck, where you can enjoy summer nights.

On the other side of the home are three generously sized bed rooms. All bed rooms include the luxury of a walk-in closet, and the rear bed room includes a private bath. Centrally located is a full bath. One of the bed rooms includes a vaulted ceiling topped by a majestic semi-circular window. Imagine this as the prettiest room in the house.

Upstairs the bonus room offers infinite possibilities and expansion options. By maximizing the spaceunder the steep roof, the plan shows a large room, with walk-in closet, private bath, and built-in computer desk.

The country porch adds character while special exterior details such as arch top windows and dormers, along with multiple gable roof lines add flair.

Plan number 2193 includes 2,186 square feet of heated space on the first floor, and the optional second floor area includes 704 square feet, the home is furnished with a basement foundation. All W. D. Farmer plans include construction details for substituting brick, frame or stucco exterior finish.

To receive an information packet on our plans, call W. D. Farmer Residence Designer, Inc. at 1-800-225-7526 or 1-800-221-7526 in Georgia. You can write to request the information at P. O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 31145. Visit our Web site: www.wdfarmerplans.com.

The second thing is I want a lowrider nodel kit so I can show off to my others, sisters, and my cousins. My next gift is so that every continent would have world peace and we will a live happily ever want a game called Tony Hawk's

Dear Santa,

How are you doing? I'm doing fine. All I want is a lot of stuff for my sister because it will be her frist christmas and I want it to be a white Christmas with lot of it.

Your friend, Adril Gonzales

Dear Santa,

I think I have been a good girl on servel occasion and I hope you can bring me a scooter or a cat but before I get realy selfish I have 2 wishes I like to come true my first wish is to end world hunger cause it hurts to see innocent people suffer. My next wish is for all the homeless people to get a lot of presents or maybe even a home for their kids and a little bit more money to buy food cause like I said it hurts to see people suffer. If you can't make my wishes entirely true make some of them come true. Don't forget my present.

Your truely. Nicole Fuentes

Dear Santa,

I worked real hard to have a lot of uccess and tried to be good every day. I tried to get the most special gift of all and you're my only hope to give me my special gift. This gift is special to me cause it's not only for me it's for everyone. The thing be want is everyone to have a home so every one will be warm and cozy so that people wasn't die of freezing to death.

Sincerely yours, Apolinar

Dear Santa,

I know I have been a bit bad but I think I have been good sometimes too. Since a few months ago I have been trying to be good at school and at home so can you please bring me these gifts: bike, gameboy color, a white Christmas, stop school violence, computer, scooter. Thanks.

Sincerely, Fernando Prieto

Dear Santa,

I have been trying to be a good girl this year. This year I want to ask you for sime favors, and what I want for Christmas. If you don't mind I want my family together this year and for my family to be all happy. Now for what I want for Christmas. I want a playstation 2, a playstation chair, and a motor skooter. I hope that's not too much for you to do for me.

Your friend. Christy Garcia

P.S. Merry Christmas and I would really appreciate it.

Dear Santa,

I have tried very hard to be good but even though I tried I was still disobedient to my mother and father but please don't give me a bag of coal. Could you please please send me the following things: a new pair of tennis shoes, a puppy, a gameboy color, a bike, roller blades, a big house, new truck for my dad, a laptop, an RV, a good education.

Sincerely, Heather Gallegos

Dear Santa,

I have been a good boy this year and have not been in trouble. I got all A's on my report card and I'm first chair in band playing the clarinet in the whole class which has about fifty people in it. So I have just told you about what I've done in the year and this is what I want for Christmas. I want a scooter because I see it all the time on tv and the kids' that ride them do really cool tricks. The second thing I want is new playstaion games ecause the one's I have got are boring. The third thing I want is a big screen tv a "78" inch one so I can play my playstaion on it. I really don't want a lot of things.

Sincerely Edward

Dear Santa.

I have tried to be a good girl and do all my chores and help my brothers and sisters on anything they need. So, please help me make a miracle. And let all the omeless have a home and all the ingry have some food to eat for this Christmas. As for me I would really like to have a laptop and some batteries for my watch. I also would like for my mom and ada to get better because my dad has a hurt knee and my mom has a problem with 1 of her back disc and a playstaion 2. Thank you for

Sincerely Yours, Elizabeth Cervantez

Dear Santa,

I've been trying hard to be good. I'm very good with helping other people. My greatest desire is to help the homeless and to let them have presents. I think it's not fair we're selfish and greedy but we don't stop to see that at least we have a home at least we could care for the poor. I think they should at least have a christmas tree and one present and I want to give the people in the faster home presents so they could have a wonderful Christmas. Here's what I want ... a good Christmas, a computer or laptop. The only thing I only want a few things is I don't want to be selfish I already have a bunch of things. Sincerely,

P.S. I would really want the homeless to have a present.

Is There A Santa Claus?

answering at once and thus prominently the communication below, expressing at the same time our great gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the is a Santa Claus. He exists as friends of The Sun:

"Dear Editor: I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, 'If you see it in The Sun it's so.'

Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus? Virginia O'Hanlon 115 West 95th Street"

Virginia your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intelboundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life it's highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there was no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginia's. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might ing. get your papa to hire men to Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but

We take pleasure in lect, as compared with the that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest men that ever lived. could tear apart. Only faith. fancy, poetry, love, romance. can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah. Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abid-

MOVIES • SOAPS • PUZZLES * AND MUCH MORE!! * & E Documentary Examines hristianity's Growing Pains

The two-part, four-hour special Christianity: The Second Millennium, airing Sunday and Monday on A&E Network, isn't exactly holiday programming. But while it may not lift spirits, the special succeeds in exploring and challenging preconceived notions about the faith that grew from the teachings of Jesus Christ.

It may be scheduled during the holidays, but don't expect to be in the mood for caroling after watching Christianity: The Second Millennium.

The two-part, four-hour presentation, airing Sunday and Monday, Dec. 17 and 18, on A&E Network, follows the church built by the followers of Jesus Christ through a time of severe growing pains: the 11th through the 20th centuries.

Dorian Harewood narrates the presentation, which chronicles the good works of individuals such as St. Francis of Assisi as well as the horrors of the Inquisition and the corrupt motives behind the Crusades. What emerges is a warts-andall portrait of a vital faith in transition, an absorbing account that manages to turn some preconceptions on their heads while shedding new light on others.

"When it comes to the nature of faith, we are dealing with people's most basic and deeply held beliefs," says Allen Sabinson, A&E's senior vice president of programming. "It is a subject that can provoke very strong feelings. Certainly some of the terrible events like the Inquisition are a matter of historical record, but it becomes our job to find someone who can put those events into historical perspective.'

That someone in this case is executive producer Bram Roos, who previously helmed this special's predecessor. Christianity: The First 1000 Years, as well as the A&E series Mysteries of the Bible.

"Our approach when we make historical documentaries is to try to tell the story as if we were experiencing it through the eyes of the people who lived it, and in their time, without the prejudice of our 21st-century hindsight ... (which) is always 20/20," Roos says, noting that there was also an effort to avoid "the prejudices of the American culture.

There was no America during much of this history, nor was there the knowledge we have now about society and injustice. There was just a human struggle and evolution going on.

'We try to tell the historical story without our contemporary and cultural prejudices. In doing so, we see that what people were engaged in very often was what they believed at that time to be correct.

For example, Roos explains, the millennium being examined here included a seismic shift in the relationship between church and state, which had been inextricably entwined during the early centuries of Christianity, often with dire

"One of the major themes of this particular program is the notion that there was a struggle between church and state," Roos says. "That struggle is as relevant today in the world as it was back then.

"A pivotal moment in history was the American Revolution and the French Revolution that came immediately after. There was a very defining line drawn between church and state. This is a bit of a generalization, but largely, wherever you see a separation, a clear delineation, of church and state, you have a more peaceful society. Where church and state become commingled, you get aggressiveness, hostility and people dying for what they think is right."

Christianity: The Second Millennium would have benefited from more time in which to explore such head-spinning ironies as the Puritans' shrill intolerance of any religious doctrine but their own after fleeing to the New World for "religious freedom." In any case, this presentation is a provocative four hours for those willing to have their preconceptions challenged.

SOAP TALK

General Hospital discharges Brad Maule

By Candace Havens OTVData Features Syndicate

The fight continues for Brad Maule to keep his job as Dr. Anthony "Tony" Jones on General Hospital. ABC executives have decided not to renew his contract in February.

"I'd be lying if I said I wasn't deeply disappointed," Maule says. "I've been very committed to this show and my character for a long time. I feel as though the rug has been pulled out from under me."

The show has promised to use the actor on a recurring basis, but it isn't the same as having a contract where money is concerned. For Maule, who has three school-age children and seriously ill parents, the news was an unwelcome sur-

"I've been forced into a position where I will have to find another job," Maule says. "I am completely open to being adopted by a new soap. I have no prob-lems with going to New York to do a show. Heck, I'd head to Argentina at this point to do a Spanish novela if they had a job for me. As long as they want me, it doesn't matter.'

While acting is an insecure profession at best, it is still difficult to see an actor who has given 17 years to a well-loved character let go.

In other news: Claire Labine and her crew are back at the helm of Guiding Light.

The truth is, they never left. Procter & Gamble Productions announced the departure of the head writing team, but it looks as though the decision was reversed.

The Labines will continue with their writing duties.

Finola Hughes (Alexandra Devane, All My Children) gave birth to a son, Dylan Joseph, on Nov. 9. Both mother and child are doing well.
