Speculation Rife Over Future Steps By Allies

By Associated Press
Allied capitals rang with speculation today on the prospects of three vast and perhaps imminent developments aimed at the final downfall of Germany and Japan and the shaping of a new world at peace.

While Berlin sounded a new threat of Adolf Hitler's "coming great offensive," the United Nations envisaged:

1. Creation of a second front in Europe in 1942.
2. A possible Russian attack on Japan.
3. The opening of Soviet air bases to American bombers for attacks on Japan.

In Washington, congressional quarters expressed belief that the "full understanding" reached between President Roosevelt and Russia's Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov might open gates at Vladivostok to U. S. bomber squadrons.

"If the Russians give us the right to use those bases, I feel confident that the United States could bring Japan to her knees in a short time," declared Senator Wheeler (D-Mont).

Others voiced the conviction that nothing in the mutual-aid agreement between the United States and Russia would precipitate the Russians into war with Japan while they were so heavily engaged with Hitler in the west.

It was noted, too, that the Russian-British agreement emphasized that it was directed against "Germany or any of the states associated with her in acts of aggression in Europe."

The treaty stressed the words "in Europe" seven times, clearly indicating Russia wanted to be free to maintain the status quo of an uneasy neutrality toward Japan.

Sorely pressed China watched anxiously, with the Chinese press bluntly calling on Russia to strike at Japan now.

In Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's wartime capital at Chungking, the newspaper Ts Kung Pao declared:

"Russia should realize that the Japanese attack on the Aleutians (off Alaska) was a direct threat to Soviet Kamchatka and Siberia. Can Russia stand aside and watch the wildfire spread to her very gates? She must do something and do it quickly. . . ."

Similarly, the China Times urged Russia to "make the timely decision to help the Allies in the Pacific by going to war against Japan."

With the allies united as never before—first by a new 20-year mutual assistance pact between Britain and Russia, second by a new Washington-Moscow accord wiping the dollar sign off United States aid to Russia—the question of opening a second front in Europe this year brought various reactions.

In Washington, few congress members believed that the White House announcement of agreement on the "urgent task" of creating a new front portended any immediate attempt to land allied troops in Europe.

London, Washington and Moscow were all agreed on the "urgency" of the matter, but officials shied at a direct interpretation of the rather ambiguously worded statement.

Sections of the British press which long have been clamoring for direct action against Germany hailed the accord with high enthusiasm, typified by the London Daily Express' comment: "This is Hitler's worst day."

At all events, London military observers declared Hitler's anxiety was betrayed by two factors: 1. Frenzied German efforts to secure the channel coast against invasion.

2. Indications that Hitler was massing his armies for an all-out attempt to smash Russia before the allies can establish a second front.

Regulations On Building Are Relaxed

A partial relaxation of building materials restrictions had been announced for Big Spring Friday, with a ruling that would permit additional remodeling of houses to the extent that extra families would be accommodated.

Chamber of Commerce Manager J. H. Greene was notified by J. A. Raley, Jr., FEA district supervisor at Lubbock, that priorities might be had on materials — including plumbing fixtures — for the alteration of houses to provide living quarters for other families.

In other words, a house could be changed up to permit installation of another apartment, including bathroom, as long as the work makes possible accommodations for another family.

Raley said application forms for such priorities were being forwarded here, and Greene thought they would be in the hands of local materials men within a day or two. Persons interested were advised to contact their material dealers.

It was thought that such remodeling work might be a factor in providing more living accommodations in the city, since the restriction on plumbing fixtures has been a drawback.

Meanwhile, local interests awaited designation of the city as a "critical area," which would release a certain number of priorities for house construction. Until the designation comes, there is nothing to be done about relieving the acute shortage of houses.

Nazis Open New Assault At Kharkov

German Offensive May Be Opening At Long Last

By The Associated Press
Marshal Fedor von Bock's armies were reported attacking today in a great new battle around Kharkov, the Soviet "Pittsburgh" in the Ukraine, amid indications that zero hour may be near for the long-heralded German summer offensive.

A bulletin from Nazi field headquarters said German troops east of Kharkov had carried out successful attacks which were increasing in volume.

Tersely, the Soviet command acknowledged that the new German drive was making headway against bitter Russian resistance.

On the Crimean front, Soviet dispatches reported that the defenders of long-besieged Sevastopol, key Black Sea naval base, were counter-attacking, improving some of their positions and bloody repulsing fresh German assaults.

The Russian high command said nearly 15,000 Germans had been killed and more than 80 tanks destroyed in three days of fighting on the approaches to Sevastopol, but dispatches to Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, conceded that the situation was "extremely tense."

Hitler's field headquarters declared the eight-day-old German offensive "gained ground in stubborn fighting" and asserted that repeated Russian counterattacks "collapsed with heavy losses."

A Berlin broadcast said the attacks on Sevastopol and east of Kharkov were the prelude to Hitler's "coming great offensive," and indicated the big push would start once Sevastopol had been reduced and the German lines straightened out below Kharkov.

In the battle of North Africa, British and German armored forces clashed on the desert sands 25 miles below Tobruk following the withdrawal of Free French troops from Bir Hacheim, axis-captured southern anchor of the main British line.

The mercury went up to 104 degrees, says the local weather bureau, and their thermometer wasn't in the hottest spot in town either.

Just how long it has been since the temperature last reached that high level could not be readily learned, but it has been a couple of years, anyway.

Back in 1923, the mercury went to 106 on July 13, 197 on July 15, and 108 on July 14. That seems to be an all-time record. In 1924, the temperature went to 108 on two consecutive days.

Planes Score Major Blows In Midway, Coral Sea Fights

Land-Based Craft Foil Midway Try

Bombers Range Out Over Fleet To Wreak Destruction

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP) — The greatest naval triumph which the United States has scored in this war apparently was won in the first instance by land-based air forces.

This was the conclusion reached by military observers here after a study of fresh reports from Hawaii on last week's battle of Midway island, which led to the worst defeat in Japanese history.

The conclusion was tentative since the Navy's part in the great battle remains to be told. But unless the reports from the headquarters of Lieut. General Delos C. Emmons, Army commander in Hawaii, are extremely incomplete, it was aerial striking power reaching far out from Midway and paced by B-17 "flying fortresses" that initially repulsed and scattered the enemy forces.

Cooperating in the whole enterprise, were not only the Army planes but also Marine fighters and dive bombers, and Navy dive bombers and torpedo planes.

In informed quarters here it is considered possible that the American victory was so complete as almost to eliminate the possibility that the enemy again would venture into any area of the Pacific where he may be opposed by land-based American aircraft in force.

That may explain the current Japanese emphasis on the importance of their operations in the vicinity of the Aleutians. There they hope, rightly or wrongly, to make some landings on remote islands in the belief that they can thus report territorial gains to their people without risking another encounter with United States air units.

The war department reported today that Major General Clarence L. Tinker, commander of the 8th Army Air Corps, was missing after the battle of Midway.

Tinker left Midway June 7 leading a flight of his army bombers to attack the Japanese fleet.

His plane when last seen by men aboard other aircraft in the same formation was descending rapidly towards the sea, the war department said.

U. S. AIRCRAFT CARRIER LOST

U. S. AIRCRAFT CARRIER LOST

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP) — The navy announced today the loss of the U.S. Aircraft Carrier Lexington as a result of the battle of the Coral Sea which prevented the Japanese from either invading or isolating Australia.

The loss was disclosed in connection with an official review of the navy's part in the entire Coral sea campaign, starting March 10 at New Guinea and running through May 8 when enemy aircraft inflicted such damage on the Lexington that several hours later she exploded and sank, with a relatively light loss of life.

The Lexington's normal complement was 2,300 men. The navy said 82 per cent of the personnel on board was rescued. The navy commander did not say how many of the Lexington's fighting planes were lost, but officials commented that "obviously planes were lost."

The heaviest losses of the enemy were inflicted in an attack on Salamaua and Lae, New Guinea, March 10 when aircraft from a Pacific fleet task force commanded by Vice Admiral Wilson Brown joined shore-based planes from Australia to attack the enemy bases.

The entire campaign cost the Japanese more than 15 ships sunk, two probably sunk and 20 damaged. The United States lost, besides the Lexington, only the tanker Neosho and the destroyer Sims, and a large part of their personnel was saved.

The second phase of the campaign was the battle of the Coral Sea which started May 4 after reconnaissance had shown concentrations of enemy shipping and aircraft in preparation for an advance into the Solomon and Louisiade Islands.

The task force which first participated in this fight was commanded by Rear Admiral Frank J. Fletcher which attacked a part of the enemy armada anchored in and near the harbor of Tulagi, in the Solomon group, and all but annihilated it. The results of this engagement, previously announced by the navy, were sinking or damaging of 12 Jap vessels and destruction of 6 aircraft with a loss of but 3 American craft.

On May 7, the navy communiqué related, Fletcher's aircraft hit the main body of the Japanese force in the Louisiade Archipelago off Mekele. A new Japanese aircraft carrier, the Ryuyaku, and a heavy cruiser were sunk, an enemy counter-attack was fought off successfully. The enemy lost 25 aircraft compared to 6 for the U.S. forces, which consisted of both naval and army planes from Australia.

On May 7, however, Jap planes located and bombed the tanker Neosho and its escorting destroyer, the Sims, the battle of the Coral Sea. The Lexington was started August 1, 1921 and completed in December 1927, at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Quincy, Mass.

Its displacement of 33,000 tons went up to 40,000 tons under full load, and her Fighting Ships listed its complement, including flying personnel, at 2,122, including 169 officers.

The Neosho, commissioned in 1927, was a 2,000-ton vessel. The Sims, 1,070-ton destroyer, was commissioned in August, 1939, and was the first new destroyer announced to have been lost in fighting in the Southwestern Pacific.

The review showed that the Coral Sea campaign, ending disastrously for the enemy, cost the Japanese more than 15 ships sunk, 2 probably sunk and 20 damaged while the only American losses were the 33,000-ton Lexington, the tanker Neosho and the destroyer Sims.

A large part of the personnel from the Neosho and Sims was rescued and has reached port.

As against these losses which the Navy said had been instrumental in disrupting Japan's strategy against Australia, Navy announced the Japanese had suffered:

Sunk: 1 Aircraft carrier, 3 heavy cruisers, 1 light cruiser, 2 destroyers, several transports and small supply vessels.

Severely damaged and probably sunk: 1 cruiser, 1 destroyer.

More than 20 ships including: 1 aircraft carrier, 3 cruisers, 2 aircraft tenders, 2 destroyers.

The enemy also suffered a loss of more than 100 aircraft, the Navy declared.

Fliers Sink Eleven Ships In Solomons

Navy Planes Blast At Japanese Ships In Tulagi Harbor

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., June 12 (AP) — American fliers, many yelling "remember Pearl Harbor" as they pushed their bombers into screaming dives, sank nine and possibly 11 Japanese warships and transports at Tulagi Harbor, Solomon Islands, May 4 as a prelude to the battle of the Coral sea.

Participants in the battle said here today they were certain that two heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, two destroyers and two large transports were sunk. A seaplane tender and a third transport also possibly were sunk as well as numerous small boats.

Aircraft carrier squadrons delivered the furious assault and all returned without a scratch to their personnel.

Devastating as the blow was to the enemy, it was but a sample of what was to come, for one of the officers in the engagement said: "We gave them a larger dose of the same stuff" in the ensuing battle of the Coral Sea, which lasted a week.

Lieut. Commanders Joseph Taylor, Danville, Ill., and William Surch, Paducah, Ky., vividly described the alluring attack on the enemy base 1,600 miles northwest of Australia on little Florida island in the center of the Solomon group.

Burch said: "Aboard the carrier we had not heard anything about the little harbor of Tulagi until late one night when word was passed over the loudspeaker: 'Prepare all squadrons for attack on ships in the harbor of Tulagi at dawn.' It was a complete surprise. Our task force had been hunting the enemy in the Coral Sea.

"Long before dawn, we were ready and anxious for the take off.

"We got over Tulagi in early morning, every plane in position and carrying a full load of torpedoes and bombs. We didn't know what to expect but there below we could see through rifts of clouds the harbor filled with troops and transports."

Taylor told of the launching of the attack.

"Well, I sort of figured the Marquis anti-aircraft rules were out," he said, "so I said to Bill, 'You hit 'em high and I'll hit 'em low. From then on every man for himself.'"

"As soon as I saw what ships were in the harbor, I instructed the pilots which ones to hit in a melee there is no time for detailed assignments, we just went to work with torpedoes and bombs.

"The only thing I clearly remember as the dive-bombers pushed over into screaming dives was that each pilot was yelling something into his radiophone, some coming but most yelling 'Remember Pearl Harbor.'"

"We did not catch the Japanese exactly flat-footed, but they got up no anti-aircraft fire until the attack had started. By that time, it was too late. Let Bill tell you what it looked like when our boys finished."

"When we completed the attack," Burch said, "the harbor was filled with sunken and burning ships, a few of which managed to crawl to the beach to keep from sinking.

"Nine were definitely sunk, possibly eleven. This included two heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, two destroyers and two large transports. In addition we sank numerous small boats and lighters by strafing. We believe we also sank a seaplane tender and a third transport. The whole harbor was strewn with smoking wreckage.

"And I am happy to say we lost absolutely nothing. A couple of our boys brought back a few holes in their planes, but none of the personnel was even scratched.

Large Crowd Attends Home Talent Play

A large crowd turned out Thursday night to attend the VFW sponsored play, "Funsappin'" given at the city auditorium. Funds from the play will go for the new VFW home at 9th and Gollard recently purchased by the organization.

The theme of the play dealt with the tangled romances of Vic, played by Dan Conley and Betty, portrayed by Mrs. Ray Lawrence. Taking the role of Trudi whom Vic thought he loved was Mrs. Walter Wilson. Trudi's mother, who saw everything through a jargonette, was Mrs. Ann Gibson Houser.

Bobby Blair, played by George Thomas, attempts to help his sister, Betty, and for a price, Betty's love. To do this he poses first as Vic's wife, then his sister, then his cousin and then just "Hazel" with feminine clothes and a blond wig.

Jack Smith was cast as Sylvester Fogg, who also wanted to marry Trudi and Arnold Marshall was J. Edgar Dunwiddie, a ladies dress shop owner who had a wandering eye for the ladies too.

Mrs. Douglas Orme played the role of Bridget, the Irish housekeeper and Mrs. Charles Kelsey was cast as Ambrosia, the negro cook. Mrs. Roy Anderson was Mrs. Snappett, the landlady and Mrs. Thurman Gentry was a Gabby Gooney the town gossip and also the "ghost" who haunted the house in order to get Betty to move out. Mrs. D. W. Webber played the part of Aunt Ida from Idaho.

The play was directed by Peggy Gene Mitchell of Kansas City, Mo. Between scenes entertainment was furnished by a girls chorus of tap and song routines.

Texas Ranges Slow In May Growth

AUSTIN, June 12 (AP) — Forage on Texas ranges failed to make usual seasonal growth during May, the U.S. department of agriculture reported today.

Precipitation was below normal in all areas except the north central. Cattle range feed condition was reported at 89 per cent of normal June 1 which records a one per cent improvement during the month.

Although range growth failed to make the usual seasonal improvement it is still well above average and range grass supplies were adequate to abundant in all parts of the state except in some southern counties where spring rains have been insufficient.

Burping Is Bad; Quit Swallowing An Excess Of Air

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
ATLANTIC CITY, June 12 (AP) — Close your lips over the rim of the glass when you drink if you don't want to swallow air and have the burps. Beware, for the same reason, of too much swallowing when chewing gum.

This is not just a laughing matter. If you don't take this and other advice about swallowing air, you may wake up in terror some night with the sensation that you are about to die of heart trouble.

The plain fact is, Dr. Walter C. Alvarez of the Mayo Clinic reported to the American Medical association today, that much of the burping is not due to fermentation of food, as folks suppose, but is actually from swallowing air.

He admitted it was not enough to tell a person he was swallowing air and to stop it. Stopping isn't easy. The doctor should study the case to find out what to do, he said. Sometimes the air swallowing is just a nervous habit. It's likely to be done, too, when a person is terribly on edge.

Everyone, he said, swallows some air with raised breadstuffs. The state of the nerves also can produce gas which is condensed directly out of the blood into the alimentary tract. This source supplies air with surprising rapidity.

"Many men and women," he said, "wake in the night frightened perhaps by an extra systole (an extra beat of the heart in driving the blood) and this starts them burping. In such cases the main factors are jitteriness and fear of heart trouble and no treatment can succeed until the patient is reassured."

And now it all comes out. Mrs. C. A. AMOS invited the Homemakers' class of the First Baptist church out to her house one day last week for a monthly social. They had a swell time but it wasn't until some time later that Mrs. AMOS told that the social was on her birthday, and that it was her birthday party really that the class was enjoying. Which looks like Mrs. AMOS can really keep a secret.

Among the sights we thought we'd never see is that of HUGH DUNCAN and JESS THORNTON riding to work on their bicycles and making pretty good time too. They have quite a way to pedal in to work but don't look the worse for the exercise.

Making her first public appearance the other day was MALINDA JANE CROCKER, very young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. CROCKER, who now weighs 13 pounds! The littlest CROCKER was very much in evidence at her mother's sewing club party out at the city park.

A couple of diner-outers together are JIM OWENS and GAIL WALLEY, who hail from around Corpus Christi and are out here on a business trip. WALLEY's claim to fame, we maintain, is that he can say "indubitably" without stumbling over it.

Thrilled over the prospect is JANICE SLAUGHTER who is off to attend a contest in Midland this weekend. Transportation is the only thing on her horizon now because she figures that dance will be plenty of fun.

The latest thing in town! REUBEN HILL and LEONARD TELFORD drove up the other eve to a local auto and asked for curb service. They were on horseback riding when they just in case the horse had ideas about leaving in a hurry. And we thought it couldn't happen here!

Lookin 'Em Over

By WACIL McNAIR

Indications are that Trinity University plans to step up its sports program considerably since merging with the University of San Antonio, as the San Antonio Light reports that officials of the school are seeking the services of Ray Morrison as head coach. With the joining of the two schools a much larger institution might be forthcoming and the Alamo section may eventually gain an attractive program of college sports. At present San Antonio is the only large city in the state that does not have a "name" college or university.

Although definite athletic plans of Trinity are not known, both the school and the city of San Antonio might reap benefits from the new setup. There certainly should be enough fans of college sports there to justify major athletic teams. In fact, they often bring in at least one football game between two crack teams, usually from the Southwest conference, to play there each fall. It seems reasonable that they should be willing to support a team of their own for a change.

It has even been predicted that chances are better than even that Morrison will accept the position. This fact alone makes it appear probable that Trinity's athletic program will be broadened considerably. Morrison has been a successful big-time coach for years, and should he leave his position as head mentor at Temple University the offer and possibilities would probably have to be good. He is credited with first bringing the "razzle-dazzle" style of play to the Southwest conference while he was coach at Southern Methodist university. Leaving S. M. U. after the 1934 season, Morrison went to Vanderbilt where he had reasonable success, and then on to Temple.

Maybe the Texas league wasn't kidding in their increased attendance reports; they're even complimenting the umpires now, and that should mean everyone is pleased over something.

Few people probably realized that such a large number of major league baseballers were in the armed forces before the roster of Mickey Cochrane's service team was sent out yesterday. Cochrane has some top major league performers on his squad, and they hail from practically every team in both leagues. They should be capable of making a game of it when they tangle with the winner of the all-star match, and they might even win. With pitchers like Bob Feller and Johnny Rigney and hitters of the Hank Greenberg and Cecil Travis type, not much else is needed for a strong team.

Another Texas football coach to respond to the call to the colors is Jack Curtice, athletic director and head football coach at the Texas College of Mines. He has been appointed a lieutenant, junior grade in the Navy. Curtice recently went to mines from West Texas State Teachers College, where he was head football coach. Gus Miller of Texas Wesleyan succeeded Curtice at West Texas, and Curtice replaced Mack Saxon at Mines.

Earl Stewart, Ray Kenny Favored In Amateur Play

DALLAS, June 12 (AP) — Earl Stewart was the fellow voted most likely to succeed today as the Texas amateur golf tournament entrant in its quarter-final round — but a lanky schoolboy, Ray Kenny of Dallas, was the one most folks were talking about.

Kenny had victories over young Tyrrell Garth of Beaumont, and Jack Munger of Dallas to his credit when he set out for a battle with left-handed Billy Malone of Fort Worth. Malone beat another left-hander, E. J. Gannon of Dallas, to reach the quarter-finals.

Stewart, the only favorite who others faltered, was the general choice to win the championship. Stewart took out Travis Veal and George Bennett, both of Dallas, by identical scores of 3 and 2, yesterday.

Passeau Brings Chicago Cubs Another Win

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs had Bill Lee and Claude Passeau, their veteran pitchers, on the block last winter and it is scarcely more than luck that this pair still wears those odd suits the Bruins use for baseball uniforms.

Yet today Passeau and Lee between them have accounted for 17 of the Cubs' 25 victories in the National league and one wonders where the sixth place Chicago club would be if either or both of these big righthanders had been traded. Lee won his eighth game Wednesday and Passeau followed with his ninth yesterday in the shape of a five-hit 7-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils.

ROUNDUP SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, June 12. — Squire Gene Sarazen, who probably is the No. 1 exhibition golfer, announced that the time has come to cut down on war relief exhibitions because "they're beginning to defeat their own purpose."

Gene's idea is to concentrate on the big events like the Hale America and the Ryder Cup matches that will bring out a lot of bucks, and instead of a lot of exhibitions have each golfer buy one $25 war bond, besides those he's buying anyway, and toss it into a golf pool. . . . Ford Trick, the National league proxy, figures that take of almost $14,000 for the Cards' relief game was just as good a showing as Brooklyn's $60,000—considering the way the two clubs usually draw and that the Browns played one only nine days before the Cards. . . . Dave Freeman, the National badminton champ, plans to enter Harvard medical school next fall. The way he plays, those Harvard boys probably will insist on calling it goodminton.

The Practical Side
Reporting that other Pacific Coast league clubs are adopting the Seattle team's practice of raising the American flag before each game, a Seattle sports columnist commented: "It's patriotic, and the drift of the flag shows the outfielder how the wind is blowing."

The navy's dime novel fans can be happy now — Nick Carter has just signed up with the physical fitness staff. "This Nick was football and baseball coach at the Gilman school, Baltimore. . . . When Jud Bailey, the A² baseball expert, wrote that Bucky Harris was thinking of hanging a picture of Pvt. Cecil Travis in the Washington dugout just to recall what a good infielder looked like, the Camp Wheeler, Ga., public relations office sent Bucky a half dozen. . . . Pvt. James G. Hall, who is a little better known as J. Gilbert Hall, the veteran tennis player, reports that there's no comparison between the tank he's driving at Fort Knox, Ky., and the one he chauffeured during World War I. "The new ones are much smoother to ride in and much easier to handle," he says. . . . Robert Clair and Albert De Angelis, who won the National doubles sculls rowing championship for the Worcester Boat club last summer, aren't doubling up in the army. Clair was last reported in the Pacific Northwest and De Angelis in Florida.

Today's Guest Star
Art Rosenbaum, San Francisco Chronicle: "In ye olden days, a good coach was one who could find a summer job for every man on his squad. . . . Now a good coach is one who can be certain his men will return for their summer jobs."

Double X Marks The Spot
It seems the Red Sox had a pretty good idea what was coming before Jimmy Foxx was sold to the Cubs. . . . A couple of days before the deal was made, Manager Joe Cronin came into the dressing room and asked: "Has anyone got a first baseman's glove?" "Who hasn't on this ball club?" retorted Tony Lupien, a first secker himself.

Finally SAM SLAMS A JINX

FARM boy Sammy was an all-round sports star at Hot Springs, Va., high school, rejected college athletic scholarships to become golf caddy master at resort course.

AN unknown hillbilly 7 years ago, Sam became a golf sensation overnight. Great performances, big blowups have kept him a headliner. He wants to design a golf shoe for manufacture.

PROS say he probably has the best all round game but doesn't own Nelson's judgment. He often makes spectacular shots such as the 60-foot chip he holed for a birdie against Corp. Jim Turnesa in this year's PGA finals.

Wide World Features
SAMUEL Jackson Snead has climbed out from behind that eight-ball. Three years ago Sam took a huge 8 on the last hole to lose the U. S. Open. Golfers said he wouldn't get over it, the nightmarish memory would always scream at him in the clutch. But Sam conquered it, proved he could win a big one by copping the PGA crown. It was his last chance—because he's going into the Navy and golf is out for the duration.

LUCK was against him in his first U. S. Open, too, in 1937. He came within a stroke of tying the all-time record only to see Ralph Guldahl better it. Sam lost to Paul Runyan in the 1938 PGA finals, to Byron Nelson in 1940.

High Scoring Marks Texas League Games

By The Associated Press
It was scoring night in the Texas league last night, and Dick Wakefield led the parade with three homers and a pair of doubles as Beaumont walked the Shreveport Sports, 10 to 4.

Tulsa Oilers downed Oklahoma City 11 to 3 and Fort Worth beat Dallas, 16 to 5. The exception was: The Missions nudged Houston 2 to 0.

Wakefield, property of the Detroit Tigers, drove six runs across. His first four-base knock was in the third when the bases were empty. Two were on when he repeated and one was on in the eighth when he sent the ball out of the lot.

The Oilers scored seven runs in the last two innings off Ed Lopez. Tulsa had taken a lead in the first when Marvin Rickert homered with one on in the first, and the Oilers tallied two more in the third.

Dallas was ahead of Fort Worth for five innings, but in the sixth the Cats batted around for seven runs and again in the eighth every Cat came to the plate in a five-run demonstration.

A triple by Baron and a double by Warstler featured the seven-run Cat sixth; in the eighth it was Starr's triple that stood out, bringing in three runs.

Al La Macchia, San Antonio twirler, hurried steadily and did not permit a Houston runner to reach third. Al Brasie, Houston left-hander, allowed only one earned run, for that matter. Three doubles by the Buffs and two by the Missions helped keep the sacks clear.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds — Habitual 'Gangsters' Play Japanese Rolls

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The movie arts are turning out some odd-looking "Japanese faces" to meet the war-imposed shortage of authentic Nipponese actors.

In "Little Tokyo, U. S. A."—a story of espionage in Los Angeles—once thriving center of Japanese life and commerce—the chief Nips are portrayed by actors usually associated with another form of gangsterism.

Preston Foster, as the detective who uncovers the spy ring, matches wits with Harold Huber, George E. Stone, and Abner Bibber—three who even in make-up would scarcely fool your Aunt Minnie unless Aunt Minnie is willing to give them the benefit of her imagination.

Huber, for instance, has to play all his scenes full-face. He looks passably oriental that way, but in profile he slips out of resemblance to any Japanese character living or dead. Bibberman wanted to wear spectacles—a valuable aid to creating a Japanese illusion—but Stone got in his bid first. Stone, who played Hirohito in a comedy, looks fairly convincing. Bibberman, with liquid adhesive slanting his eyes, looks the part better than any of them.

Of Russian-German descent, born in Milwaukee, Bibberman has played characters of so many varied nationalities that one could be taken in stride. There's a funny story about this actor, who came from the stage four years ago to play in "Gunga Din." Once Metro spent $50,000 revising schedules so that Bibberman could play in two of its pictures at once, and about the same time 20th Century-Fox grew enthusiastic over his work in "The Rains Came." Feeling pretty good about it, Bibberman decided he would be safe in buying a home in the vicinity of both studios. He settled in Brentwood—and for two and a half years at this work was done at valley studios, the other side of the movie colony. When he finally got a call from 20th, the Brentwood location was fine—but then he learned that most of his scenes would be shot at the studio's Hollywood lot, almost as far as the valley....

The Black Swan, a beautiful old sailing vessel, rolled and pitched on a threatening sea under the grey skies of a sound stage—but only a visually. Maureen O'Hara came on deck just in time to see the Jolly Roger raised and thus discover she was in the midst of pirates, couldn't get seasick no matter what 'storms' came. All the boat's motion was provided by huge arc lights, high above the vessel, sea-saving on platforms to throw rising and falling shadows about the star....

Incidental information: Miss O'Hara is ambidextrous, can write as well with her left as with her right hand, and can write backwards with ease. All this and beauty too.... Where do these dancing skaters come from? Not from professional ice-skating ranks nor from hockey. The boys and girls in Sonja Henie's "Ice Land" are movie dancers who learned to skate when the ice pictures came into vogue—because rhythm and grace were deemed first in importance, ease on the ice something to be acquired....

call, standing between Ruby and Paul. Then, finally, the curtain stayed down, and Kathleen rushed off to her dressing room.

Ruby and Paul faced each other upon the stage.

"I suppose you saw who's sitting down front as big as life!" said Paul.

"Yes, I saw," said Ruby. "She looks well, doesn't she? But she pretty nearly ruined your scene."

"Pretty nearly?" said Paul. "She did ruin it. But what could I expect of a woman like Laura—selfish, grasping—"

"Don't yell so," warned Ruby. "They'll hear you out front."

"Well, let them!" said Paul. He started off, and then whirled about. "Did you have anything to do with Laura coming down here?"

"The idea, Paul!" protested Ruby. "What a thing to ask me. You don't think I'd deliberately do something to spoil our beautiful play, do you?"

Paul watched Ruby's face closely. "Sometimes I think you and every other woman living are quite capable of anything," he said.

Then he stormed off to change for the third and last act.

There was shooting in the final scene—and several dead extras lay around the stage, having fallen, when the "damned Yankees" fired upon the old homestead. Then when the curtain fell at last, Paul and Ruby stood among the dead, safe in each other's arms, vowing to go on together, working to build up the waste that was their beloved Southland. "Innocent little sister Maureen" lay beneath the apple tree she had loved, the victim of a wild bullet.

Shock For Kathleen Applause, more generous than the play deserved, rang throughout the reconstructed old barn. All the actors and actresses took bows, even Kathleen, who arose from beneath the apple tree to greet her compatriots. And the two lonely scouts who had been sent down to Linnville to look things over, sneaked out, holding their noses.

"At first I thought it was the barn that smelled," said one of them. "But I was wrong—it's the play."

"And some of the acting," said the other.

"That local gal's easy to look at," said the first speaker, "but she ought to stick to high-school plays."

"What practically killed me," said the second speaker, "was that plump girl—Daisy Something-or-other—trying to talk with a Southern drawl."

Joe and Mr. Frank overheard the conversation. They looked at each other.

"I'm afraid I shall have to agree with them," said Uncle Frank.

"I, too," said Joe. "I'm afraid the play's one-week run here in Kathleen's old barn will be its lifetime." He sighed. "Boy, what a heck of a 'ime I'm going to have reviewing it without panning everything about it and everyone in it."

"Except Ruby?" said Uncle Frank.

"She wasn't so bad," said Joe.

'En Guardia' Editors Zealously Guard Truth

(Second of Two Articles)

By JACK SEINNETT

WASHINGTON—'En Guardia,' the big, slick-paper, illustrated monthly magazine, and 'The American News Letter,' a four-page twice monthly offshoot, both published by the government and circulated in Latin America without charge, have the laudable ambition of giving our sister republics to the south a better understanding of Uncle Sam and his all-out efforts in World War II.

Are they succeeding? That's a question for historians, but if popularity, measured by demand for both publications is any criterion, the answer is already here.

"En Guardia," published in Portuguese for Brazil and in Spanish for the rest of the Latin-American republics, is a 40-page magazine (no advertising). It contains some black and white and color photography that is as beautiful and dramatic as anything seen in this country's most expensive "slicks."

I have talked to the men behind the idea, its editors and its authors. Its dominant objective and almost its only one is to give to the other nations of the Western Hemisphere a clear picture of the United States at war. This doesn't mean merely in a military sense. It means the life and spirit of the people of the U. S. A., as we are known down there, as well as the accomplishments of our armed forces and the industries behind them.

It means stories about our farms and dairies, our blood banks, our schools and religion and culture, as well as the building and piloting of our Flying Fortresses, the training of our paratroopers, the expansion of the Navy, and the assembly-line construction of tanks.

Stories on Army nurses and the chaplains who bring religion to the firing lines have been as prominently displayed as those on our mosquito fleet and our soldiers who are learning to fight in the snow.

No issue is without several pieces on the other American nations at war. The latest issue will have as its lead article a spread on Mexico. A forthcoming number will devote a great deal of space on the pattern of a post-war world and what the western hemisphere can look forward to in economy and practice of the Four Freedoms.

Conceived and sponsored, financially and in spirit, by Nelson Rockefeller's office of Inter-American Affairs, "En Guardia" makes no pretense to being anything else. Every number carries prominently somewhere the announcement that it is published monthly by "La Oficina del Coordinador de Asuntos Interamericanos."

"The 'News-Letter' is simply a smaller, more timely analysis of the same things.

Propaganda? Certainly. But not the Axis kind, as was the day when the editors of "En Guardia" get caught in a lie—and they know it.

Man About Manhattan—Harlemese Sounds Like Nothing Heard Before

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There's a men's barber shop on 57th street between Eighth and Ninth where you can't get a shave....They only cut hair....They do it scientifically, that is, with respect to the contours of your head....They say no two heads are shaped alike....They say one type of haircut will make one man look like a million, but that the same cut will reduce somebody else to absurdity....They take this very seriously.... The cost is 50 cents.

"An't had a chance to cool in many a bright what with clambakes all the way from the Land O'Darkness to the sunny southland. Though a little beat for dose and saucers under the glims, Old Cab and all the cats are ready to send hep-cats and ickies both blowing their tops at the Strand. It would be just like home cooking if you and the Main Queen would jump us when you get a chance and say hello."

This lucid, matter of fact little note is from Cab Calloway, and it is his way of saying that he and his Cotton Club boys open an engagement at the Strand theater on Broadway soon. Although "beat for dose," which means he's tired and has circles under the eyes because of continuous engagements all over the country, from Harlem ("Land O' Darknes") to the gulf, he and the hep-cats (boys in the band) are going to really GIVE, and they'd be pleased if you and the Main Queen (your best girl) would drop around to catch the show and say hello.

All this is Harlemese, or jive right out of the revised edition of Cab's Cat-O-logue, an up to date dictionary of Harlem slang. Some of the terms and definitions in the dictionary are singular, to say the least....For instance, "beat" means tired, exhausted.... If a cat says "I am beat to my socks," he means "I'm lacking everything."... A "battler" is a very homely girl, a crone.... "Beat up the chops" means "come on, say something. Be loquacious."... "Dry long so" means fate, or "that's life for you."... A "nickel note" is a $5 bill.... "Trilly" means somebody is going to leave, depart, take off.... "I'll dig you in a few ticks" means "I'll meet you in a few minutes."

Here's something to remember about Frank Sinatra.... He's Tommy Dorsey's star male vocalist.... He's from Hoboken, N. J.... His father is a fireman.... Frank wanted to become an engineer, and he went to Stevens Tech, but instead he became the singing sensation of the 1940 season.... Frank speaks Italian, loves spaghetti, once held a job ("for a few paragraphs") as a cub reporter, likes to swim and play ping pong. He dresses casually, mostly in sports clothes that run to blues and browns.... He's reasonably tall with blue eyes and lots of brown hair.... Married and has a little daughter.

Seal Adopts Soldiers, Won't Leave Them SANTA BARBARA, Cal.—A young seal, accompanied by its mother, swam the Santa Barbara channel from Santa Cruz island and attached itself to an army group here.

It attached itself especially to Pvt. Mike Milobar and Martin Collins. They have repeatedly thrown it back into the sea, but it invariably comes back to them.

They have named it Oscar and all it does it to demand about 50 baths a day, administered by pouring it with buckets of water, which it enjoys vicerously.

UNFAIR TO LOVE

By Watkins E. Wright

Chapter 29 Disillusioned

"Jimmy, darling," Kathleen was now saying, "I know I shouldn't have come—knowing you're engaged to my sister, but—but—" "I'm glad you did come, Maureen," said Paul. "I've always liked Molly's little sister."

"I liked all!" "I'm fond of you, awfully fond of you—Maureen. You should know that."

More lines along that order, with Maureen trying to tell Jimmy that she was in love with him, and Jimmy, suspecting, and trying to change the subject. It wasn't such a bad scene, Joe thought—if only they didn't drag it out so long. His hands were wet with perspiration, and perspiration was running down his back. He could feel it trickling under his shirt.

Then, with a few little, running steps, Kathleen was clinging to Paul. She was sobbing out her love. Her arms were clasped tightly about Paul's neck. It looked more like a stranglehold in a wrestling match than anything else, Mr. Frank thought.

"I love you I love you—I love you—Jimmy—darling!" Kathleen was saying in between sobs.

"You mustn't say that, Maureen," Paul said. "You mustn't! Then sotto voice: "And for Pete's sake don't choke the life out of me."

"Take me with you, Jimmy! Please!" said Kathleen. And aside: "I'm not choking you, I'm trying not to cover your face, like you said Ruby did."

The word "please" was Ruby's cue, she came tripping in.

"I forgot my fan!" she said. Then, seeing Kathleen in Paul's arms, she gasped. "Oh, so that's the way things are! My own little sister—my own innocent little sister, kissing my husband-to-be!"

The words "husband-to-be" were Paul's cue, but he failed to take it. Ruby, starting, repeated them. Paul, who was now staring out across the footlights, appeared to be stone deaf.

"My own innocent little sister, kissing my husband-to-be!" said Ruby, this time so loud it sounded like a clarion call.

Down Front Paul jumped. "It's no fault of hers," he said. "If she falls in love with me, is it?" At last he found his line. "She is innocent, Molly. You must take good care of her, while I'm gone, and when this horrible war is over, I'll come back and take care both of you."

"Oh, Jimmy—Jimmy," said Ruby, "forgive me! I didn't mean to suspect you, but—there was a sudden stop, as Ruby now looked out across the footlights. "But—but—I love someone else, Jimmy. I can't wait for you."

"You—you—what?" "I'm going to marry Peter Van Wert. So when you come back, you must forget me—and learn to love Maureen."

"Oh," said Kathleen. "Oh, Jimmy—you will, won't you?" And then the curtain.

Kathleen, spent, trembling, started to run off the stage. But the applause called her back. The curtain went up. She took call after

Subs Take Two More Allied Ships

By The Associated Press
Ever-active enemy submarines had on their credit side today two more officially acknowledged sinkings of allied and neutral merchantmen in the western Atlantic, but apparently have been forced to enter one of their own number on their debit list.

As the navy reported yesterday the loss of a small Swedish cargo vessel and a medium sized American ship for a western Atlantic total of 260 sinkings, press dispatches from a Cuban coastal city said an American merchantman shelled, rammed and apparently sank an axis undersea raider which had machine-gunned her as she was nearing a Cuban port 10 days ago.

Surfacing a few miles offshore, the submarine began firing its deck machine guns, the Cuban reports said, only to meet with a hot reception from the American ship's artillery men, two of whose shots struck the conning tower.

The ship captain then reportedly rammed the sub amidships and considered the submersible lost when a great oil slick appeared as the attacker disappeared.

Both the newly announced victims were shelled to the bottom, to bring to nine the number of Atlantic sinkings announced this week.

The Swedish vessel, which played its twilight on the neutral flag during the attack June 1, maneuvered successfully to keep out of range of torpedo range, but fell prey to the sub's deck guns.

Three of the 20 crewmen were wounded but all were rescued and landed at an east coast port.

Ten hours of shelling were required to sink the American merchantman, the final missile crashing into its fuel tank.

Chief Officer W. C. Edwards, describing the attack of about 10 days ago, said the submarine captain personally aided an injured seaman off the blazing ship and into a lifeboat—and then distributed water and coffee to the escaping crewmen.

The navy said the American ship's captain was killed during the shelling but that all 35 other crewmen reached east coast ports safely.

Reported submarine-sinkings in the eastern Pacific remained at 7.

Firemen had three calls within a 40-minute period Thursday night, but none of the fires caused any appreciable damage. At 10:10 they were summoned to extinguish a trash fire at the Douglas hotel, at 10:30 a car caught fire near the Coca-Cola plant on East Third, and at 10:50, defective wiring brought an alarm at the Logan Feed and Hatchery on East Third.

Four men paid fine in the corporation court Friday morning on charges of drunkenness. The cost was $15 each.

Corporation Judge Tracy Smith had a new one to ponder this week. A husky negro, hailed into court after a scrape with a boy friend, said she pleaded guilty to self-defense. She maintained that she drew a knife only after the male whipped out his East Dallas special. Judge Smith had found no penalty for self-defense.

Big Spring firemen are exercising their ingenuity in building an air-conditioner. The housing is made from an old radio cabinet, motors to turn the fan and the asbestos cylinder came from old electric fans, and the boys Friday were welding some oil cans to furnish the water supply. P. S.: It all works.

The county selective service board was notified Friday that Lewis Cecil Thomas has been accepted for volunteer officer candidate training, and likely will be called in October. Thomas works at the Coaden refinery.

Paul Attaway and Newt King plan to attend the T&P singing convention in Eastland Sunday.

Cornelia Frasier, and Mary Alice Cain left Thursday morning for St. Louis, Mo., to enter Washington University for the summer term. They will return around the first of August.

Farmers Petition Washington For Parity Prices For Crops

WACO, June 12 — Twenty-five hundred copies of a petition urging congress to retain parity prices for agricultural commodities are being circulated by farm leaders in 200 Texas counties under the auspices of the Farm Bureau Federation.

The petitions are a part of a nationwide drive sponsored by the American Farm Bureau Federation to retain 110 to 115 per cent of parity market range provided in the present price control bill.

One-Sided Scores Predominate In Softball Play

Top-heavy scores were in style in the city softball league last night as the Big Spring State Hospital romped over the Boy Scouts 20 to 9 and then Radford's followed suit by trouncing the ABC-Lions 21-2.

The Hospital-Scout game went only five innings, when the Hospital team broke loose with a 15-run outburst in the third which broke up the ball game. In this one big inning the entire hospital team batted around twice and started out again. Parish, Hospital first sacker, blasted a home run, bringing in two ahead of him, to feature the scoring activities.

Radford's started to work early on the ABC-Lions, scoring two in the first and then crossing the plate 11 times in the second. Jowers and Abernathy both connected for home runs for Radford. Jowers' circuit blow came in the big second frame, while Abernathy got his four-bagger in the third when the team scored five more runs.

No games were scheduled last night in the church league.

Schools Get $1.50 State Allotment

Another $1.50 apportionment of state school fund amounting to $1449 was received Friday by the County Superintendent's Office. This leaves only a $2.00 apportionment yet to come from the state, and then the $22.50 per scholastic total will have been received.

The county board will meet Saturday at 2 p. m. to discuss transportation for high schools at Center Point, Gayhill and Richland, for the 1942-43 school year.

Three Draft Calls Due In Next Month
Howard county will be sending three groups into selective service lists within the next month, it was revealed Friday by the local board, which announced that a quota of men would be sent to Lubbock for induction on June 27 and another on July 14.
In addition to these two detachments of white men, the county will send a negro quota on July 1. Meanwhile, the board was making arrangements for registration of 18 and 19 year old boys on June 30, for which sign up members of the local Texas Defense Guard will serve as volunteer registrars.
Bruce Frazier, clerk of the board, said that it would be possible for youths to register in advance, with quarters to be set up in the office of the county treasurer on the first floor of the courthouse. These facilities will be available beginning June 27.
Estimates of the number in the young age bracket to register here are difficult to make, because many in that group are volunteering for military service. Guesses range around 700 for the county.

High School Band To Rehearse Today
Big Spring high school band will not hold its regular rehearsal this afternoon, Director D. W. Conley announced this morning.
All band members are expected to be at the band stand on the courthouse lawn Sunday evening at 6:30 to participate in the flag day celebration.
