Fun, food and music on tap at celebration of Independence Day

Fireworks to cap off night

Just imagine the scene -- families spread out across the grass, some with picnic baskets and blankets, others with lawn chairs and coolers of cold drinks.

At one edge, a group plays volleyball, while elsewhere children run and play, laughing and shouting with their friends.

Nearby, the smells of cooking hamburgers fill the air.

Then comes the music, as local performers take to the stage to display their talents.

This does not have to be imagination. It will be reality on Monday as the annual Fourth of July Celebration officially kicks off in Veterans Park.

The day is seen as a family activity and everyone is invited out to spend as much time as they want, doing whatever they want.

Residents are invited to pack a picnic lunch and head to the park anytime during the day, then enjoy the evening that culminates in the annual fireworks display.

Or, if you prefer, several local non-profit groups will have food booths set up to sell such things as hamburgers and brisquet burritos, brownies, cold drinks and homemade ice cream.

Official activities begin at 7 p.m., when County Judge Tom Simons steps to the microphone as master of ceremonies for the music program.

The fireworks will begin sometime around 9:30 p.m. to 9:45 p.m.

The event is funded in large part through private donations that help cover the $9,000 cost of putting on the spectacular.

Local residents and businesses are invited to assist financially by making donations to: Fourth of July Celebration, P.O. Box 192, Hereford, Texas 79045.

The following is a listing of those scheduled to perform and the non-profit groups scheduled to participate.

The schedule is subject to change without notice and performers and non-profit groups may change before the program begins.

Clinton committee wins tempered by major loss

By DAVID ESPO
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton is finding out that what one congressional committee can give on health reform, another can take away.

After winning bills from three separate committees patterned largely on his own proposal, Clinton is about to get a Senate Finance Committee product that's smaller in scope, potentially leaving millions of Americans without insurance.

The panel arranged to meet today to complete work on its version of the legislation, which sets a goal of 95 percent coverage by Jan. 1, 2002 and calls for a national commission to recommend steps to reach that level if it hasn't been achieved.

Both houses are expected to vote in August on health reform, a few months before congressional elections, on an issue that has evoked sharp partisan differences in both the House and Senate.

In his weekly radio address, Clinton provided fresh evidence of those differences when he renewed his attack on a plan backed by Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas and most other Senate Republicans.

"It will help you a little bit if you're poor; it won't affect you if you're wealthy," Clinton said. "But if you're in the middle, you can still lose your health insurance."

Dole opposes Clinton's approach to health reform, saying it relies on higher taxes and gives government too large a say over the health care system. He favors a more modest plan based on subsidies and tax breaks to expand coverage.

Within the Senate Finance Committee, a bipartisan majority was assembling a smaller plan than Clinton envisions, although not as limited as Dole wants. Allies of both will try to change it when the entire Senate debates the bill, and one approved earlier by the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, next month.

On a 13-7 vote Friday night, the Finance Committee stripped a 1 percent payroll tax from the bill that would have fallen on companies with 500 or more employees. The result will be an estimated $50 billion less over five years to finance the reforms Clinton and his congressional allies want.

The committee also staged a series of close votes on abortion, and Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., cautioned that the "whole enterprise (of health reform) could founder on this subject."

The committee voted 12-8 to permit individuals or insurance companies invoking "moral conviction" to exclude abortion from their plans. And it agreed by 11-9 to acquiesce in "constitutionally permissible" state restrictions on abortion.

But on an 11-9 vote, it refused to strip abortion services from standard benefits that women would otherwise be entitled to under the bill.

The votes were the first victories for anti-abortion forces in any of the committees to act on health reform thus far, although the National Right to Life Committee said the results were mixed, at best.

White House hails vote on embargo against Bosnians

By ALAN FRAM
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House is declaring victory over a cliffhanger Senate vote that upheld the administration's policy of sticking with the U.N. arms embargo against Bosnia.

Senators voted 50-50 Friday on a measure by Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., that would have forced President Clinton to end U.S. participation in the embargo and to allow weapons to begin flowing to the embattled Balkan nation. A majority is needed for legislation to pass.

Dole sought to include the end to the embargo in a defense budget bill that cleared the Senate late Friday night.

Earlier, lawmakers voted 52-48 to support continuing the U.N. sanctions, for now. But the measure also urged Clinton to consult with U.S. allies about lifting the embargo if the Serbs attack Bosnian safe areas or don't negotiate for peace.

White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers called the vote "a confirmation of the president's Bosnia policy." She said Clinton believed that "it would interfere with the peace process" to lift the embargo now.

Senators voted as Deputy Secretary of State Strobe Talbott promised that the United States would ask the U.N. Security Council to halt the embargo if the Bosnian Serbs don't move toward a peace agreement.

If the Security Council does not vote to end the embargo, the administration would consult with lawmakers about "possible further action, including unilateral termination of the arms embargo," Talbott said in a letter to senators.

Even Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who led the efforts supporting the embargo's continuation, said the Clinton administration should understand that Senators overwhelmingly feel the embargo is counterproductive.

The embargo was imposed in 1991 on the former Yugoslavia as factions began warring with each other. Since then, the heavily armed Serbs have gained the upper hand, and many argue that continuing the ban mainly hurts the Bosnians.

The vote carried high stakes for Clinton because just three weeks ago, the House voted to require a unilateral American lifting of the embargo. Had the Senate voted similarly, Clinton might have been faced with casting his first veto.

Independence Day weather to be nice

If you're planning outdoor activities this Independence Day Weekend, you can do so with the knowledge that it will be warm both Sunday and Monday, although there is a chance of rain both days.

For Sunday, the National Weather Service is predicting partly cloudy skies and a high in the upper 90s with south winds at 15-25 mph and gusty. Caution is advised on area lakes. There is a 20 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms in the late evening.

For Independence Day, look for a slight chance of thunderstorms under partly cloudy skies. High temperatures will be between 95 and 100 degrees, with overnight lows of 65-70 degrees.

Donations for celebration
 Donations for the Fourth of July celebration in Hereford Monday evening are turned over to Diane Beavers, co-chairman of the celebration committee, by Lewis McDaniel, left, and Wes Fisher, members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board of directors. Donations for the $9,000 fireworks display and other activities are being accepted.

Local Roundup

Offices close for holiday

City, county, state and federal offices will be closed Monday in observance of the Independence Day holiday. Emergency services will be available, however, and law enforcement personnel will work. The meeting of the Hereford City Commission usually held on the first Monday of the month has been cancelled.

School board meeting set

The Hereford ISD board of trustees will meet in regular session at 6 p.m. Thursday, July 7, in the administration building, 601 N. 25 Mile Avenue. On the agenda for the meeting will be information on first grade reporting and a savings profile system; discussion of the district technology plan and language development plan, a TAAS report, campus action plans and an update on pre-school program for children with disabilities. Action will be requested on construction projects, Texpool, a waiver application and Texas Association of School Board resolutions. There will be time provided for public comments.

DARE camp coming up

About 100 slots are still open for Hereford school children who want to participate in DARE Summer Camp, to be held July 25-29. The camp is open to all children from entering sixth grade to leaving ninth grade. There is no cost to attend. There will be two sessions held, one on Monday and Tuesday and one on Wednesday and Thursday. Graduation and a DARE Dance will be held on Friday. During the camps, participants will play games, see a demonstration of drug dog Ricky and enjoy a free lunch. Signup forms are available at the Hereford Police Department.

Immunization schedule noted

The Texas Department of Health has announced its July immunization clinic schedule for Hereford. Vaccines against polio, diphtheria, lockjaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella, mumps and HIB (hemophilus influenzae type B) will be offered. The Texas Department of Health charges to help with the cost of keeping the clinic open. Charges are based on family income and size and the ability to pay. Regular clinics will be held from 7 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. The clinics will be on Thursday, July 7, then July 14, 21 and 28 in the Health Department offices, 205 W. Fourth St., Suite B.

Gunmen kill soccer player in Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - Gunmen on Saturday killed the player who contributed to Colombia's World Cup elimination by inadvertently scoring a goal against his own team. Andres Escobar, 27, was shot 12 times in a parking lot before dawn, according to radio reports quoting police. "Thanks for the auto-goal," one of the gunmen said before shooting Escobar, an unidentified witness told a radio reporter. Escobar had returned with his defeated team from the United States on Wednesday after being eliminated in the first round. Colombia had been a favorite to win the world championship.

Escobar had left a bar on the outskirts of Medellin, Colombia's second-largest city, and had gotten into his car when he was surrounded by three people, police said. The three people began haranguing Escobar for his generally lackluster World Cup performance and for scoring a goal against his own team that led to Colombia's 2-1 defeat against the United States. Escobar was then shot, police said. He was taken to a local hospital where he was pronounced dead. Escobar was a highly regarded player, renowned for his clean and elegant style. Medellin has been plagued by drug-related violence for years. Escobar was not related to Pablo Escobar, the kingpin of the Medellin cocaine cartel, who was killed by police last year.

Focus on Your City

By BOB JOSSERAND
Mayor, City of Hereford
At our next regularly scheduled City Commission meeting on July 11, one of the items on the agenda will be the approval of a new concept as far as Hereford is concerned. "Neighborhood Planning for Parks" is a concept based on the assumption that parks, except for major parks, such as Dameron and Veterans, are utilized primarily by the residents of neighborhoods in which the parks are located. Who better to decide how they would like the park to look and what equipment they would like in the park than the people who utilize the park on a regular basis? One of the recurring problems that Hereford has suffered in recent years has been vandalism in our parks. I have made the statement publicly, with City Commission support, that we will not allow a few people to destroy the use of parks by the many. While I'm on the subject of vandalism, I can't understand what enjoyment someone can get out of spreading graffiti, destroying playground equipment and throwing trash all over a park area. For those who think this is a responsible way to act, they should step back a bit and take a real look at what they are doing, not only to their own self esteem but to the public in general. Who can you be hurting but yourself and those around you who are your friends, neighbors and fellow citizens? It certainly doesn't make you any bigger in the eyes of your friends and neighbors to be destructive and it can only lessen your own self esteem and value. Enough about vandalism! Let's get on a more positive note. We need your help as we develop this neighborhood parks concept. In our planning session on July 13, which begins at 5 p.m. at City Hall, one of the items on the agenda will be to set the plan in motion for neighborhood involvement in the parks. Let me encourage any and all of you who might have an interest in making your parks more beautiful or usable and in improving the quality of life of Hereford citizens to attend this planning session. Our probable game plan will be to target the neighbors around a specific park and notify those people about a neighborhood meeting to gather input. We will do this park-by-park, or perhaps two parks are fairly close, we may do a couple at a time. We ask for and truly want your input. I don't know how many of you have taken time to take a hard look at our parks, but I know some of you have for I have received several comments from citizens about how much improvements parks are showing and how much more attractive they are for them. If you haven't taken time to drive around and look at parks, let me suggest you do so, for what you will find is a lot of hard work by our park employees to put our parks into better shape for you.

Support for tax

A resolution in support of the one-half cent tax for economic development has been passed by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board of directors. "The chamber board feels passage will afford a stronger opportunity for financial resources to support projects," said Chamber President Wes Fisher, center, signing the resolution with Lewis McDaniel, left, and John Sherröd, directors, looking on. Hereford residents will vote on the tax in a special election on Aug. 13.

Simpson hearing adjourns for weekend with mystery

By LINDA DEUTSCH
AP Special Correspondent
LOS ANGELES (AP) - The whodunit became a whatisit as attention in the O.J. Simpson murder case shifted to a mysterious sealed envelope turned over by defense lawyers. Does the envelope contain the knife used to kill Simpson's ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman? Police have yet to find the murder weapon. Legal experts had no clue why the defense felt compelled to hand over the envelope during Simpson's preliminary hearing Friday. "I'm baffled," said Erwin Chemerinsky, a University of Southern California law professor. "If it is the knife, why wouldn't the defense want to disclose it? It would be a major embarrassment for the prosecution." Defense lawyer Robert Shapiro laughed when asked, and said he wasn't going to reveal its contents. Municipal Judge Kathleen

Kennedy-Powell ordered both sides to submit briefs on how they think the evidence should be handled, leaving the mystery unsolved until at least next week. Gerald Chaleff, president of the Los Angeles County Bar, said if the envelope contains evidence exonerating Simpson, there would be no advantage for the defense to turn it over now. "I'd take it over to a bank and put it in a safety deposit box for future use," Chaleff said. He said such evidence would be more useful at trial than at the preliminary hearing. Simpson, 46, is charged with two counts of murder in the June 12 stabbing deaths. A preliminary hearing, which will determine whether prosecutors have enough evidence to put him on trial, began Thursday. The hearing was abruptly recessed early Friday so prosecutors could listen to tape recordings of defense interviews with two key prosecution witnesses - Simpson's house guest and a limousine driver - who may testify about Simpson's whereabouts around the time of the slayings. The hearing will resume Tuesday after the holiday weekend. The envelope mystery interrupted testimony from Ms. Simpson's neighbors about a dog's sorrowful wail and its bloody paws. Prosecutors used the testimony to attack Simpson's alibi and prove he had time to kill his ex-wife and Goldman and still catch a plane to Chicago. Simpson's lawyers have said he was at home two miles away around 11 p.m., waiting for a limousine to the airport. The exact time of the killings has never been established publicly by authorities. A photograph of the crime scene was shown to witnesses by Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark, who first motioned to Ms. Simpson's relatives in the courtroom to bow their heads and avert their eyes. Simpson blinked and took deep breaths as the photograph of his ex-wife's body, clad in a black halter dress, was displayed.

INS official accused of selling visas

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A top immigration official was accused of making as much as $1 million by selling green cards for illegal immigrants. Justice Department investigators said William Malcolm Tait bypassed normal Immigration and Naturalization Service controls since 1983 to help a man obtain 15 of the residency visas to sell. That man is now cooperating with authorities, the San Francisco Examiner reported Friday. Tait allegedly made from $300,000 to $1 million in the scheme since 1983, the newspaper said. Tait, 45, a deputy director at the INS office in San Francisco, was arrested Thursday in Dallas, where he was on temporary assignment.

Reno recommends court appointment for special counsel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Whitewater special counsel Robert B. Fiske Jr. should be given a court appointment to increase his independence from the executive branch as he continues his investigation of President Clinton, says Attorney General Janet Reno.

Reno on Friday urged a special panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit to reappoint Fiske under a new law that revived the position of independent counsel.

Department to investigate the failed Little Rock, Ark.-based Madison Guaranty Savings & Loan, the Whitewater Development Corp. and related investments of the president and his wife, Hillary, when Clinton was governor of Arkansas.

the independence of anyone she appointed would be questioned because she is a part of the administration. However, the authority for the courts to appoint an independent counsel or prosecutor had expired in December 1992 because of Republican discontent with the prolonged investigation of the Iran-Contra affair.

independent prosecutor law, and the president signed it on Thursday. The new independent counsel statute provides only for criminal jurisdiction. Reno's appointment gave Fiske civil jurisdiction as well, and she said this status should continue. Reno's letter was criticized by Sen. Lauch Faircloth, R-N.C., who said Fiske, a Republican former prosecutor from New York, too closely tied to present and former administration officials to be independent. Fiske issued his first findings on Thursday, reaffirming that the death of deputy White House counsel Vincent Foster was a suicide not connected to the Whitewater case.

Talk show fans get 24-hour cable channel just for them

By SCOTT WILLIAMS

AP Television Writer
FORT LEE, N.J. (AP) - The American fascination with television talk shows reaches its logical culmination on the Fourth of July, when America's Talking, a 24-hour, all-talk, cable TV network, opens for business.

"Three months ago, there was literally nothing here," said Beth Tilson, the network's senior programmer. She held a picture of a vast, dark, gutted interior space with GE, NBC and CNBC executives in the foreground.

Today, that space has become two sleek, fully equipped television studios, waiting only for the cameras, technicians and studio audiences to inhabit them.

That happens at 7 a.m. EDT on Independence Day, when America's Talking goes live, beaming its shows into roughly 10 million cable homes nationwide.

"AT-a.m.," the in-house name for the morning show that changes its name every day, will begin life as "America's Talking: July 4, 1994," with hosts Steve Doocy (former host of syndication's "House Party") and Kai Kim, formerly of WTNH in New Haven, Conn.

There's other, less conventional talk fare:

-- The charmingly titled "Am I Nuts?," which features psychologists helping ordinary people cope with the extraordinary stresses of everyday life.

-- Fledgling talk show host Bill McCuddy, who won a nationwide talent search, who will open his celebrity-driven "Break A Leg" show at 2 p.m. daily.

-- E. Jean Carroll, an Elle magazine columnist and Hunter Thompson biographer, who'll offer "Ask E. Jean," an advice show about love and life in the '90s.

-- "Pork," a show about how government performs, ingeniously named by CNBC President Roger Ailes, the Republican political operative and, most recently, executive producer of "The Rush Limbaugh Show." Ailes is host of his own prime-time, one-on-one interview show, "Straight Forward."

-- Brian O'Connor, better known for his role as Schemer on PBS' "Shining Time Station," who will host "Bugged," a forum for audience members and viewers to sound off.

Repeats air from 11 p.m. until 3 a.m., when infomercials take over.

Tilson said America's Talking has solved the logistical problem of getting live audiences out into the wilds of Fort Lee.

America's Talking already is boasting that it is "the first real two-way talk television network" because of its deal with Prodigy, the on-line computer service, for a significant "interactive" component.

All 12 America's Talking shows will incorporate on-line bulletin boards, electronic mail, polling and "chat" features later this summer.

In fact, America's Talking shows will have the use of a "Prodigy vehicle," a sleek, fire-engine red 1957 Chevrolet convertible with a computer terminal instead of a steering wheel.

The Prodigy vehicle will roll from show to show and, in its "chat" mode, will allow "real time" communication between on-line viewers and America's Talking.

So what will America's Talking have to say?

"We're standing away from the dysfunctional," Tilson said.

"There are subjects that everyone in America has an interest in," she said. "That's why shows like 'Pork' and 'Bugged' and 'Am I Nuts?' will really play well and start to fill the void."

WHAT'S A FAIR PRICE

Most sellers want to get the most they can when selling their property, and most buyers want to buy for as little as possible. A good starting point for determining a fair price is an opinion of value, also known as a competitive market analysis. This analysis uses information on similar properties in the area which are: 1. "For sale now" 2. "Already sold" 3. "Expired" (properties which did not sell in a given time.) Properties "For Sale" now indicate what the competition is asking. Properties "Sold" show what buyers are willing to pay. "Expired" indicates what buyers are not willing to pay. By comparing similar properties in each of the 3 categories it is possible to arrive at an educated opinion of a "fair price." That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says this would be a good time for the meek to inherit the earth.

A warranty is something which expires just before the product does.

Being alert to opportunities is the key to successful selling.

Take for instance the man who applied for a job selling men's clothing. The owner said the applicant could have the job if he could sell a certain double-breasted suit while the owner was away at lunch.

The suit, evidently in stock for a long time, had padded shoulders, pointed lapels, a belt in the back and was sort of an orange, green and purple plaid.

When the owner returned, the store was in a mess but the designated suit was gone.

"I see you sold the suit, but looks like you had some trouble with the customer," the owner observed.

"Nope, not with the customer," said the salesman, "but that seeing-eye dog was a booger."

Here's a little story that you need to read aloud just to see if you can get it all out without flubbing too many words. We picked it up from The Brownfield News, but they're not sure who authored the piece:

The Prodigal Son

Feeling footloose and frisky, a feather-brained fellow forced his fond father to fork over the farthings, and flew to foreign fields and frittered his fortune feasting fabulously with faithless friends.

Fled by his fellows in folly, and facing famine, he found himself a feed-flinger in a filthy farmyard. Fairly famishing, he fain would have filled his frame with foraged food from fodder fragments.

"Foocy, my father's flunkies fare far fine," the frazzled fugitive forlornly fumbled, frankly facing facts. Frustrated by failure and filled with foreboding, he fled forthwith to his family.

Falling at his father's feet, he forlornly fumbled, "Father, I've flunked and fruitlessly forfeited family favor."

The farsighted father, forestalling further flinching, frantically flagged the flunkies to fetch a fatling from the flock and fix a feast.

The fugitive's fault-finding brother frowned on fickle forgiveness of former folderol. But the faithful father figured, "Filial fidelity is fine, but the fugitive is found! What forbids fervent festivity? Let flags be unfurled! Let fanfares flare!"

And the father's forgiveness formed the foundation for the former fugitive's future fortune!

Congressman Combest comments U.S. last refuge... for homosexuals

BY U.S. REP. LARRY COMBEST
19th Congressional District

The Clinton Administration last week set a new immigration policy allowing preferential political asylum in the United States of immigrants claiming to be homosexuals persecuted in their countries. I strongly oppose this new policy based entirely on sexual preference. Carving out new legal rights for homosexuals under the guise of political asylum puts anyone claiming to be homosexual in line ahead of the 130,000 refugees squeezing into America each year.

U.S. Attorney Janet Reno said there are several cases now pending before immigration judges claiming political asylum for homosexuals. Asylum requests have been filed with U.S. officials by homosexuals from China, Romania, Columbia, Peru, Nicaragua and Pakistan.

I have previously expressed a great deal of concern over the abuse of political asylum by illegal immigrants to delay deportation hearings. In our region, border patrol agents tell me how groups of illegals they arrest actually have claims for asylum already in hand--often identical written photocopies.

Anyone who cannot find any other way to leave a country can now weigh the stigma of claiming they are homosexual against the fact that they are leaving their country anyway with a virtual guarantee they can stay in the U.S.

The United States has long recognized asylum based on religious persecution. Now, the Clinton Administration's attorney general has set a new U.S. policy based on homosexual preference. In her policy order, Reno reasoned that homosexuals are persecuted, "because of membership in a social group."

After now ruling that homosexuals are a protected social group in immigration law, is the Clinton Administration moving closer to formally including sexual preference as a protected civil right? It is certainly a new direction to classify sexual preference as a social status.

With slaughters in Bosnia, massacres in Rwanda, and tired and poor huddled masses worldwide, the Clinton Administration's special policy for homosexuals will displace refugees in the already crowded rickety refugee boats seeking the protection of American shores.

Once again, in another questionable foreign policy area, the Clinton Ship of State has sprung another leak.

June 22
Paris News on citizens' apathy:
Apathy runs amok around here.
Any number of governmental agencies spend huge sums of tax money on various projects and programs with virtually no input from the citizenry.
In every school district, city and county, less than 10 people decide how to spend literally millions of dollars. Those people decide local laws and policies.
In short, our lives are ruled by a few.
A mere handful of people spend our money - and ask for more.
And yet, we complain vehemently about it.
Water rates, taxes, utility bills are too high.
When a policy or rule or regulation hits home, we wail and vow to change it.
Complaints are many about elected officials.
The old cry, "Throw the bums out" is heard loud and clear.
And yet, year in and year out, incumbents are voted back into office.
When council chambers are packed it's because an issue directly affects a group of people.
When a courtroom is standing-room-only, it's because testimony is lurid.
When a school boardroom overflows it's because a bunch of people are mad at the folks sitting around the table.
Rarely is anyone around to watch government work on a routine, day-in, day-out basis.
Simply put, it's boring. But it's necessary.
The next time you get ready to complain about something your government did or didn't do or shouldn't do, ask yourself if you did anything about it other than talk.

OUT OF BLUE

By Garry Wesner

Well, it's hard to believe that another year has passed and we are now in the full part of Summer, with the Fourth of July here.

For the record, this is the United States' 218th birthday.

There are a lot of things planned in Hereford for the day -- the Fourth of July Committee has put together an afternoon and evening of music at Veterans Park that gives local families an excellent opportunity to get together and enjoy the holiday.

As the sun sets, there will be the annual fireworks display to dazzle everyone.

The committee will serve free watermelon during the evening and numerous civic clubs and groups will be on hand selling food and other items.

But I hope that everything doesn't take away from the real reason we celebrate the day.

It is called Independence Day, but I'm afraid our materialistic, unpatriotic society has forgotten what that means and sees the Fourth of July as just another holiday and reason to hold a sale (just like Christmas is no longer seen as a celebration of Christ's birth, but as the "holiday season" and reason to buy more stuff on your already-over-limit credit card).

I see Independence Day as a military holiday more than anything, when we should honor those who fought so that what is now the United States could be born and grow into a great nation.

When the Declaration of Independence was drawn up, the first Continental Congress declared: "We hold these Truths to be self-evident, that all Men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

The Constitution of the United States was established to "form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare and secure the blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity."

But what has happened today? These precepts upon which our nation were built -- life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness -- are taken for granted and even taken away by those claiming to be looking out for our "best interests."

Too many Americans have adopted the attitude that dedication and commitment was fine for those people, but they don't want to get involved.

The men who signed the Declaration of Independence were not afraid to get involved. They literally put their lives on the line for what they believed in -- literally that God had given them certain rights and they were going to make sure they had those rights at any cost.

Today we give our rights over to the government and follow every dictate and mandate like a bunch of sheep, assuming that, if the government says to do it, it must be right.

There were 56 men who signed the Declaration of Independence. Of those signers, seven died before the end of the Revolutionary War that was fought to bring about their dream.

Among the dead was Thomas Lynch Jr., who died at sea in 1779. He was the second youngest of the signers, being only 30 when he died.

Seems like that is a level of commitment to a cause that we no longer have in this country -- one that needs to be resurrected if we are ever to regain the greatness we once had.

Unfortunately in this age of materialism and self-centeredness, I don't know if we can reclaim that selflessness.

And if we don't, I don't know what future our country has.

Well, I didn't mean to get off on such a depressing subject.

There are many, many highly patriotic Americans left in this country. I, for one, am very glad there are.

Finally, this is the Sunday that every year is my "birthday column," where I remind you all that I will be a year older this week (Friday, to be exact).

With this being my 34th birthday, I am now in my "mid-30s," which means 40 is not that far away.

You know, I really can't imagine myself being this old (OK, I know I don't act that old, either!).

Anyway, I guess getting older isn't bad. It happens to us all and at the same rate.

That's all for this week.

Have a good week and remember, America was created as a trust for future generations. That's us and we need to leave it in the best possible shape for the generations to come.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

As parents of a 1994 HHS graduate, we would like to thank the Deaf Smith County Extension Office, Beverly Harder and Jay Wade Johnson for the work they have done with our son, Don, and with the many children involved in the 4-H program in Deaf Smith County.

Beverly and Jay investigated scholarships available to 4-H seniors, provided applications, and practiced with them on interviews for scholarships. Graduating 4-H seniors received over $25,000 in local scholarships and over $45,000 in state scholarships. This is just a small portion of the work Beverly and Jay do with children in the 4-H program.

Being active in 4-H (active, meaning the entire family) has provided our son the financial opportunity to continue his education at the college of his choice, and Mr. Johnson and Mrs. Harder have contributed to the focus he has on his chosen career.

We would also like to thank the Hereford Brand for the coverage of the activities of the Deaf Smith County 4-H program.

Sincerely,
Stan and Jan Metcalf
Proud 4-H Parents

Dear Editor:

On July 4th, America will celebrate with great pomp and pageantry the 218th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, a crucial moment in world history. On this day, I hope your readers will join the reaffirmation of the American Dream.

When the Founding Fathers gathered in 1776 in Philadelphia to pledge their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor for liberty's sake, they not only initiated an experiment in democracy that gave rise to what has become the most powerful, prosperous nation on earth, they redefined the very concept of freedom.

The idea was that America was a unique place in the world; that you could leave the Old World, come to America and be part of a new nation; where you would be judged not by your ethnic group or by who your parents were, but on the basis of your God-given talent and your effort. This was a revolutionary idea in 1776, and it is a revolutionary idea in 1994. But it is an idea that took root in America.

We don't have much trouble defining the American Dream because for most of us, our parents dreamed it and we lived it.

The secret of the American success is not that the most brilliant and talented people in the world came to live here. What made America successful is that ordinary people like us had the opportunity and freedom to achieve extraordinary things.

We need not be historians to understand that we owe a debt to the courage of past generations for freedom that was won and preserved at an enormous cost. We should celebrate the joys of liberty after pausing for a moment to honor those who sacrificed so much to guarantee our chance to partake in the American Dream.

Phil Gramm
U.S. Senator

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank and commend the Deaf Smith County sheriff's department on behalf of the Donna Gudgell family. Through the whole realm of our pain and suffering, every person from the sheriff's department that we dealt with has been so compassionate and seemed to care about the family, without slighting their positions.

Beginning with Bill's death, Donna's arrest, through the trial and even after Donna was taken away from us in the courtroom, they tried to soothe our pain and console us.

Sheriff Brown and every deputy coming in contact with us proved that the authority they uphold doesn't keep them from being human. There were no glory-seekers, just sincere, caring people.

Thanks to all of you at Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department.

Morales files suit against firm doing mobile mammagrams

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General Dan Morales has filed a lawsuit alleging that thousands of women were subjected to improper and illegal mammograms at a mobile service that operated in Texas and New Mexico.

The suit filed Friday in a Travis County District Court accuses Midland-based Transamerican Diagnostic Services of allowing unqualified people perform X-ray screenings, according to a news release from the attorney general's office.

The lawsuit also cites safety standard violations that could have resulted in "dangerous and uncontrolled exposure to ionizing radiation of patients and employees of Transamerican," the release said.

"We are concerned about the improper diagnosis of breast cancer and the absence of diagnosis in thousands of women across Texas and New Mexico," Morales said.

Transamerican traveled across Texas and New Mexico from 1991 to 1993 providing diagnostic mammography services in parking lots of hospitals and businesses, the AG's office said.

Transamerican's chief executive officer and radiation safety officer, Rick Fleetwood, refuted the state's allegations.

"It's the big boy after the little boy is all it amounts to," he said Friday. "Everything they said, there is no substantiation to that whatsoever."

Fleetwood, a defendant in the suit, said that women who were tested "absolutely" got quality service.

The health department's Bureau of Radiation Control determined that Transamerican did not have a physician interpreting mammographic films after Oct. 26, 1993, according to the news release.

Companies at LULAC meet to tap into Hispanic market

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Corporations seeking to tap into the Hispanic market have come calling at the League of United Latin American Citizens' national convention.

JC Penny Co., Pepsico, Ford and General Motors are all among the companies that have a visible presence at the convention, offering free goodies to an estimated 6,000 conventioners gathered for the four-day affair.

"We're trying to gain greater marketability with the Hispanic market," said Tina Martin, staff assistant for community and urban affairs for General Motors in Detroit.

Corporate public-relations people don't agree on just how much purchasing power Hispanics have. Estimates range from $190 billion to $300 billion a year.

But they do agree that more corporate advertising money is aimed at luring Hispanic business.

First named storm of year heading north

MIAMI (AP) - Tropical Storm Alberto churned in the Gulf of Mexico Saturday and headed toward Louisiana, where forecasters worried it could land during the busy Fourth of July holiday.

"There's going to be a lot of people going to the coast," said Max Mayfield of the National Hurricane Center. "By Saturday night and Sunday morning, people are going to have to pay real close attention in the Gulf of Mexico."

A tropical storm watch was in effect today for the Gulf Coast from Sabine Pass, Texas, to Pensacola, Fla.

Alberto, the first named storm of the hurricane season, began as a tropical depression that dumped 10 inches of rain Thursday on Cuba.

By 5 a.m. EDT today, it was centered at 24.8 north latitude, 87.6 west longitude, about 390 miles south-southeast of New Orleans, and was moving north-northwest at around 8 mph.

The storm carried winds of about 40 mph - just 1 mph above the threshold where a tropical depression becomes a named tropical storm.

It would become a hurricane if sustained winds reached 74 mph. But forecasters said it was too early to tell if that would happen.

"It could gain some strength," said Lixion Avila of the National Hurricane Center.

predicted," said Patricia Asip, manager of minority public relations for JC Penny Co. Inc. in Dallas.

LULAC member Alicia Rodriguez said it's good corporations have taken serious notice of the Hispanic marketplace.

"I think it's about time they saw this, and it's good," said Rodriguez, who was toting a shopping bag full of free promotional material. "It benefits them, and it helps us."

Williams hits 30th homer to lead Giants over Expos

By The Associated Press
While the baseball world has been watching Ken Griffey Jr. rack up home runs for most of the season, Matt Williams is starting to open some eyes himself.

The San Francisco third baseman became the first National League batter to reach the 30-home run plateau this year with a blast that helped the Giants beat Montreal 14-7 Friday night.

That gave Williams seven home runs in 10 games and put him on pace to tie Roger Maris' season record of 61. Williams, who broke the NL mark for most home runs before July with 29, is now second in the majors to Griffey's 32 with Seattle.

Griffey, meanwhile, has cooled off lately. He is homerless in six straight games and hasn't hit one out since June 24.

Williams wasn't impressed with his own accomplishments.

"Really, as far as I'm concerned, 30 homers doesn't mean a thing at this point, because we aren't in first place," he said.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Cincinnati 4, Pittsburgh 2; Florida 4, Atlanta 3 in 11 innings; Chicago 3, Houston 2; St. Louis 11, Colorado 4; New York 10, San Diego 7; and Philadelphia 3, Los Angeles 0.

Williams had three other hits along with his 30th homer and knocked in five runs as the Giants used a seven-run second to beat the Expos. Williams did his damage in the first six innings before leaving with a minor hip strain.

"It was a big night for Matt, and an even bigger night for John Patterson," Giants manager Dusty Baker said.

Patterson, a reserve second baseman, went 4-for-5 with two doubles, three runs scored and three RBIs. His only out would have been a home run, if not for left fielder Lou Frazier's fence-scaling catch of his first-inning fly ball.

Rich Monteleone (2-2) pitched four innings of scoreless middle relief to get the victory. Gil Heredia (4-3) was the loser.

Reds 4, Pirates 2

John Roper remained unbeaten this season, stopping Pittsburgh's eight-game home winning streak by pitching out of early trouble for Cincinnati.

Roper (5-0) pitched out of jams in the first two innings, then settled down to allow only solo homers by Orlando Merced and Andy Van Slyke as the Reds won for the ninth time in his 10 appearances. Jeff Brantley got two outs for his ninth save.

Thomas Howard's run-scoring double and Hal Morris' RBI single keyed a two-run fifth inning against Paul Wagner (5-6) as the Reds twice

Cubs 3, Astros 2

Rookie Steve Trachsel allowed six hits in 8 1-3 innings and kept his perfect road record intact for Chicago at Houston.

Trachsel (7-5) improved his road record to 6-0, striking out six and walking two. Trachsel got one-out relief help in the ninth from Randy Myers, who finished for his 17th save despite giving up an RBI double to Luis Gonzalez. Myers stranded runners at second and third with two outs as the Cubs won for the eighth time in 12 games.

Doug Drabek (10-5) failed in his second straight attempt to win 11 games. Sammy Sosa hit his 17th home run for the Cubs.

Phillies 3, Dodgers 0

David West allowed three hits in eight innings as Philadelphia won at Los Angeles.

West (3-6) struck out five and walked two, limiting the NL West leaders to singles by Rafael Bournival, Mike Piazza and Cory Snyder.

The Phillies snapped a scoreless tie with three runs in the top of the fifth against Kevin Gross (7-5), who issued three of his season-high seven walks during the inning. John Kruk singled in two runs with the bases loaded and Pete Inavaglia followed with an RBI single.

Minor League softball champs

A's pull into third place with win over Red Sox

By The Associated Press
Look who's in third place! It's the once-dreadful, now-fearsome Oakland Athletics.

A full 67 days after they dropped into last place, the A's pulled themselves out of the AL West cellar Friday night with their eighth straight victory, 6-3 over the Boston Red Sox.

"We had dug ourselves into such a hole that we had to play for two months before we could get out of it," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said.

"We just want to keep creeping. We want to keep winning our games."

Now, only four games separate the first-place Texas Rangers and the A's, who have won 14 of 16 since June 13, when their record was 19-43 and they were 13 games out of first place.

Boston, meanwhile, has lost 20 of 27.

The visiting A's got eight strong innings from Ron Darling (6-9) on Friday and scored five runs in the first inning against Tim VanEgmond (0-2).

After the game, the Red Sox traded slumping reliever Jeff Russell to Cleveland for pitchers Chris Nabholz and Steve Farr.

In other games, Baltimore outslugged California 14-7, Seattle edged New York 4-3, Cleveland beat Minnesota 6-1, Chicago blanked Milwaukee 8-0, Kansas City defeated Toronto 4-3 in 12 innings and Texas swept a doubleheader from Detroit, 10-6 and 8-6.

Orioles 14, Angels 7

At Baltimore, the two teams tied a major-league record by combining for 11 home runs.

"That was a very poorly pitched game," California manager Marcel Lachemann said. "You've got 3-0 counts, 2-0 counts, deep counts. When that happens, you're going to get whacked."

Jeffrey Hammonds hit two homers for Baltimore and Mike Mussina (12-4) got the victory despite giving up five home runs in five innings.

Rafael Palmeiro, Leo Gomez, Cal Ripken and Chris Hoiles also homered for the Orioles. Tim Salmon had two homers, while Chad Curtis, Chili Davis and Jim Edmonds each hit one for the Angels. Joe Magrane (2-5) got the loss.

Mariners 4, Yankees 3
At New York, Ken Griffey drove in the winning run with an ninth-inning single and Jay Buhner ended the game with a leaping catch that left him injured.

Buhner was taken to a local hospital for tests and X-rays of his hip and pelvis. Running at full speed, Buhner caught Randy Velarde's drive before crashing into the right-field wall.

"That was probably Jay's best catch ever," said Griffey, who went 2-for-5.

Bobby Ayala (3-1) picked up the win despite allowing the Yankees to tie it in the eighth. Xavier Hernandez (3-4) took the loss.

White Sox 8, Brewers 0

At Chicago, Jack McDowell (5-7) threw a seven-hit shutout and Julio Franco had five RBIs to match his career high of 71. Bob Scanlan (0-5) lost, giving up eight hits over five innings.

Astros' GM sets cancer surgery

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Astros general manager Bob Watson announced Friday that he has prostate cancer and will have the gland removed next Wednesday in St. Louis.

Watson, 48, said the cancer was discovered following a prostate specific antigen blood test by his personal physician, Dr. Michael Feltoovich.

"It's not all bad news," Watson said at a news conference just before the Astros played the Cubs Friday night. "I feel very, very blessed that it was found early in a routine exam."

Watson will have the surgery performed by Dr. William Catalona in St. Louis. He will remain hospitalized for about five days and then return to Houston and recuperate for another five days.

Watson will resume a limited work schedule after that with a recovery period estimated at 30 days.

In his absence, the front office duties will be directed by Astros owner Drayton McLane; Bob McClaren, senior vice president of business operations; and Tim Hellmuth, director of player administration.

Children six years and older are welcome. Workouts are from 10 a.m.-noon Monday-Thursday at the YMCA. The monthly fee is $10 for YMCA members and $15 for non-members.

For more information, call the YMCA at 364-6990.

HSA donations

Amy Noyes (left) and Jackie Mercer (right) receive checks from the Hereford Sports Association, presented by president Steve Hodges, to help defray expenses of two basketball teams which will compete in upcoming national AAU tournaments. Mercer coaches a team of 13-under girls, the West Texas Heat, which will play July 15-23 in New Orleans. Noyes will lead a 12-under boys team, the Texas Warriors, to a tournament July 23-30 in Salt Lake City.

Future tennis stars learn at Garrison's All-Court Tennis Academy in Houston

By MELANIE HAUSER

The Houston Post
HOUSTON - Stocking feet are everywhere. Giant T-shirts hang down past tiny knees. Pigtailed peek out from beneath baseball caps. Lunch has found its way onto most of the white shirts.

No one's sure who pushed first, but all that seems to matter is being the one to get that last shove.

Yes, summer's in full swing in Houston, which means the Zina Garrison All Court Tennis Academy at MacGregor Park is waiting out another rain delay.

Outside, the courts at Homer Ford Tennis Center are beginning to resemble small green lakes. Inside, the elementary school crowd - players here range from 5-18 - is threatening to take over. It's time for desperate measures. Time for Walt Disney's "The Fox and the Hound," which silences the room within minutes.

In the office, academy director Edgar Arnold fields another phone call. This time, a mother wants to know if her 3-year-old's class is canceled.

"Either that," Arnold said, "or they'll have to come in frog fins."

Calendars change, racket heads get bigger, but kids? They're not much different than they were two decades ago when Arnold and John Wilkerson were coaching Zina Garrison Jackson, who uses her maiden name only for the academy, and Lori McNeil on these courts.

"These kids don't look much different than they did," Arnold said. "They just want to learn. After Lori's big win (over top-ranked Steffi Graf in the first round at Wimbledon), I was talking to them about it. When I talk to them, the fashions are different, but I don't see anything different in their faces."

"No one knows if there's another Zina or Lori out there. We hope they all are. But this is how it starts - with a bunch of kids."

Garrison Jackson and McNeil were 10 and 11, respectively, when they walked onto the Homer Ford courts and took their first steps toward professional careers. Back then, they were gangly kids playing at a public park, not polished country-club phenoms. They were learning footwork and patience and groundstrokes. They were, without realizing it, trying to find out if tennis was something to play on the weekends for fun - or at Centre Court for pay.

Today, they return to those courts to give advice and inspiration to some 200-plus players enrolled in the program. The kids lap it up.

"It's great to know someone like us has made it," said 14-year-old Claudia Trevino, who'll be a freshman at Incarnate Word. "It motivates and encourages us a little more. We know if we work at it, we can make it and be successful like they did."

Trevino, her 16-year-old sister Adrianna and 10-year-old Tiffany Williams are among the best at the academy this summer. The trio stands out in a crowd that was 98 percent beginners in November. Adrianna, the only player to play in a tournament, stands out even further.

"At one point, I was in the spoiled group," Adrianna said. "I had my own coach."

But as for any of the three being the next Zina or Lori? Only time will tell.

"Of the skills I come to look for, one of the biggest is an ability to commit and stick to it," Arnold said. "I see that in those three. I'm sure they've had their rough times, but they're hanging in there."

Adrianna Trevino took the game up at 11 but didn't get serious about tennis until November when she turned her back on volleyball, basketball and softball. She has played daily at the courts since.

"I've improved a whole lot," said Trevino, who worked as a ballgirl at last spring's Virginia Slims. "When I first saw how much time the coaches gave me and my practice, I was surprised. I thought they're really trying to work for the good of my game. Why not really give it a try?"

All three were awestruck the first time they met Garrison Jackson, who now knows them all by first name. They're still awed by McNeil, who visited the academy just before she headed for Wimbledon.

"We were really happy for her when she beat Graf, because she was the No. 1 player in the world," Adrianna said. "And because she came out of a program like this."

Earlier in the day, an NBC crew dropped by to shoot some footage of the academy kids, to use during their Wimbledon coverage if McNeil or Garrison Jackson, or both, continue their winning ways.

(McNeil lost in Thursday's semifinals to Conchita Martinez, and Garrison Jackson lost in Tuesday's quarterfinals to Gigi Fernandez.)

"When I saw Lori before she left, she was confident," Arnold said. "I don't think she was surprised to beat Graf. I think she would be surprised if she won the tournament."

Garrison Jackson came close in 1990, losing to Martina Navratilova in the Wimbledon finals. McNeil hasn't been as lucky.

"The first time I heard they came from this program, I was awed," said Claudia Trevino. "The program offers so much and the coaches give us so much. You owe it to yourself to give it all you've got."

As the Trevino sisters and Williams will tell you, though, you learn more than tennis at MacGregor Park. Arnold and his staff spend almost as much time working one-on-one with the kids about life.

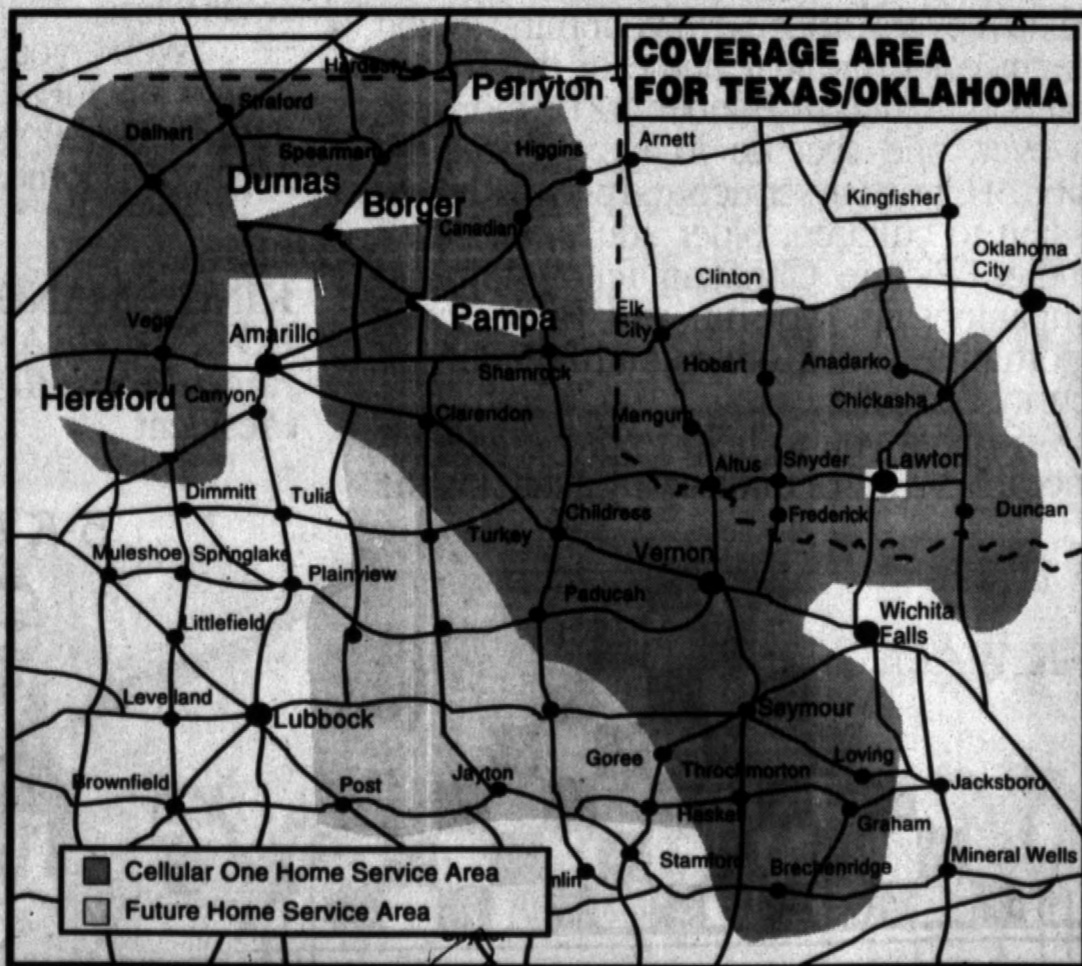

He and Wilkerson used the same approach with Garrison Jackson and McNeil. And, Claudia Trevino said, look where it has gotten them.

"If Edgar taught Zina and Lori, maybe he can teach us too," Claudia Trevino said. "Maybe he'll know what works for us."

Maybe they'll get to Centre Court one day.

Locksmith comes to rescue of Ranger fans

By DAN SHINE

The Dallas Morning News
ARLINGTON, Texas - The good news at The Ballpark in Arlington is that there is someone who comes through in a pinch every game.

Unfortunately, he doesn't come out of the bullpen, but out of Section 138 of the Texas Rangers' stadium. That's where the ballpark's locksmith sits, ready to rescue any fan who is too concerned about ERAs and RBIs to remember the K-E-Y-S.

"At the old stadium, we were getting all sorts of people who were locking their keys in their cars," said Jay Miller, the Texas Rangers' director of customer relations.

"We didn't feel good that they went to the fan relations office at the stadium, and we couldn't do anything for them."

The Rangers had a security guard at Arlington Stadium who was handy with a "slim jim" - a device used to open locked cars. But newer cars are more difficult to open unless you're a professional, and Rangers' officials didn't want the guard to mar people's cars.

So at the beginning of this season, Miller phoned Arlington locksmith Zack Whitley to see whether he would attend all of the games. In exchange for being at the back-and-call of the absent-minded, Whitley received two season tickets and a parking pass. "I told them I was interested, but that I couldn't make all the games," said Whitley, owner of Whitley Key & Lock. "But I told them I'd work something out."

Whitley called fellow locksmith Michael Lemmon to help cover the season's 81 home games. The two plus four others from Lemmon's shop, Michael's Keys, rotate the games. They are at the ballpark before the first pitch and stay for about an hour after the last out.

"I think the most one of the guys has done at one game is three cars," Whitley said. "Michael did one game when he didn't open any."

Robert Schrub, the locksmith on duty for a recent game between the Rangers and the New York Yankees, wasn't so lucky. When he arrived at the fan relations office, two people were already waiting for him.

Schrub got a description, license plate number and location for each vehicle. He sometimes asks the car owner to ride along. But if he has a couple of jobs, he'll unlock the car by himself and bring the keys back to the office.

Tuesday, Schrub drove first to a parking lot to unlock a Dodge Shadow. Within a minute, he was in the car.

While he waited for the owner to arrive, the crowd began to roar.

"Am I going to miss a good game?" he asked.

Kevin Skipper showed up a short time later to get the keys and write a check to Schrub. The fee was $25, about $10 to $20 less than the locksmith company usually charges.

"I figured since I was in the season coupon lot, they'd call a locksmith for me," Skipper said. "I was surprised they had one working here. Good thinking on the club's part."

Skipper also gave a scoring update: 2-2 in the first inning. Just then there's another roar. "I'm missing a good game," Schrub said sadly.

He then pointed his Honda to a business office parking lot southeast of the ballpark. Schrub quickly located a Pontiac Sunbird with the keys dangling from the ignition. Just as he finished saying, "This isn't going to be as easy," Schrub unlocked the door.

When Schrub tried to get back into his original parking lot, he was told it was now full. But the parking lot attendant recognized him.

"You're the locksmith guy," she said.

He was directed to another parking lot and walked back to the fan relations office. From the office radio, Mark Holtz reported the Rangers were ahead, 6-2, in the second inning.

He left the Pontiac's keys at the office. But before he could sit down, he was asked to unlock a security guard's car. By the time Schrub got to his seat to enjoy a hot dog and a Coke, it was the bottom of the third inning and the score was 8-2.

In the meantime, James Weston, who owns the Pontiac, retrieved his keys.

"I thought I'd have to wait 'til midnight for a locksmith," said Weston of nearby Haltom City, Texas. "This makes the ballpark all the better to come to."

Most of the services needed at the ballpark such as plumbing and electrical work are handled by staff members. The park also has folks who fix elevators and escalators under a service contract, but they don't get season tickets.

A group of four doctors received free season tickets to help out in case of a medical emergency. But as Mat Stolley, director of ballpark operations, pointed out, the locksmith is more vital.

"The nurses who work here handle most of the medical cases, and if we made an announcement for a doctor, we'd have more than enough doctors," Stolley said.

"Is there a locksmith in the house?"

Fort Worth girl prefers baseball diamonds

By YULANDA L. McCARTY

Fort Worth Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas - Two years ago, if you had asked University League all-star assistant coach Joe Vargas about girls playing baseball, he would have laughed.

It's not a concept he would have welcomed. Especially if you had been talking about a girl on a boys' Little League all-star team.

But 12-year-old Elaine Sharpe changed his mind. "I used to say girls couldn't play baseball," Vargas said. "That's before I met Elaine. I don't know how many times I've apologized to her."

Apology accepted. But no thanks is needed.

Sharpe is on the 12-player University League all-star team scheduled to play in the Little League Baseball District 7 tournament. The 18-team major-league division championships for 11- and 12-year-olds are July 9-18 in the Fort Worth area.

Mike Cole, assistant District 7 administrator, said Sharpe is the first girl in six years to play in the tournament. Sharpe, who was chosen from a group of 84 players, is expected to be the only girl in this year's tournament.

And those who doubt a girl can play baseball don't offend Sharpe. She likes to watch their reaction after she takes the field.

"Elaine is just like her last name, 'sharp.' She holds her own with the guys," all-star team coach Tino Castillo said.

All-star Stephen Miller, who is competing against Sharpe for the starting spot at first base, said: "She's good. It's really no big deal, she's just like the other guys. We treat her the same."

To her teammates and coaches, she's just Elaine. Not the girl who plays baseball. With her hair pulled up in a pony tail, she even resembles one of the guys. Her long legs allow her to stretch beyond the bag to make the play at first, and she can whip the ball across the diamond to third base.

At 5-foot-8, she's even 2 to 3 inches taller than anyone else on the team.

She's got some power, too. During the University League regular season, Sharpe hit two home runs - one landed in an adjacent field where her younger brother John was playing - for her Yankees team.

"That was one of my most embarrassing and proudest moments - all wrapped up in one second - in my life," said her father, John Sharpe. "I was coaching my son, and he was fighting his teammate in the outfield for the ball. All of sudden here comes another ball. I looked at my wife, and said 'Elaine hit that.' My wife started jumping and hollering."

Of Sharpe's five daughters, ranging from 12 to 25, Elaine is the only one who has played baseball. He started her in the YMCA T-Ball program.

At first she didn't like it. "I really wasn't interested," said Sharpe, who also plays basketball. "One day I opened up the paper and it said, 'Rangers get first win since July 6.' Just reading that headline got me interested, and then I started going to a few Rangers games."

"I really like playing baseball (now). I've played so long, and it's something I'm good at."

It's also a family thing. Her cousin is Pittsburgh Pirates third baseman Jeff King, whom she stays in contact with.

Sharpe, also the only girl on the Yankees, led them to the University League title. The team represented the league in the weeklong city championships.

Postseason play consists of sectional play, the state tournament, regionals and then the World Series, which is Aug. 21-27 in Williamsport, Pa.

But Sharpe wants to play baseball beyond Little League. A seventh-grader-to-be at All-Saints Episcopal, she wants to play for her school, which has no girls on the team.

"I don't know if they will let me," Sharpe said. "One of the coaches thinks I should play softball and not baseball. They should let me play. If they give me one chance, I can show them I can make the team."

All-Saints Episcopal athletic director Murph Honea said he doesn't know of any rule in the Metroplex Independent School Conference that would prevent Sharpe from playing. "She's a tremendous athlete. I have no problem with her playing."

If she can't play baseball, Sharpe won't play softball. It's a matter of principle.

"Some kids the other day at my baseball camp didn't believe I was a girl," Sharpe said. "One kid asked me to take my hat off, and then they asked why I don't play softball. For one, I said I've been playing too long to make the transition and the other is, I want to prove to myself and the world that a girl can play baseball and that she can play well."

"I never thought the ballpark would provide this service," the man said. "I thought maybe the police would do it. This is sure better than calling your wife at midnight."

"If you lose your house, how much of it will you get back?"

Dear Friends,

What comes to mind when you read or hear about King's Manor Methodist Home? Perhaps several images fill your mind as you recognize the familiar name of the United Methodist Church. Ponder for a moment, however, one specific image. Ponder the vision of Christian service and personal compassion to children, older adults, and their families. Picture Christian fellowship and companionship, worship and Bible study, opportunities to help others, and the feeling of security and safety.

I invite you to help improve and enhance this vision of ministry by attending the annual Founders Association Barbecue. Your presence will help support the spirit of ministry at King's Manor. Your gift will help promote concern for quality care and extend the capabilities of King's Manor to respond to human needs in the name of Jesus Christ.

Won't you join us here at King's Manor on July 9, 1994, from 5:00 to 7:30 p.m. Please support the future of King's Methodist Home. And may God bless you!

Austin police check for protective orders against gun buyers

AUSTIN (AP) - Austin police have expanded the federally mandated background checks on handgun purchasers to include additional checking to see whether would-be gun purchasers are bound by protective orders.

Protective orders are common in domestic violence cases to bar an abusive spouse from having contact with his or her victim. A violation can result in jail time and/or a fine.

The federal Brady law requires local law enforcement officials to do background checks on people who want to purchase a handgun. If a person wanting to purchase a handgun has a criminal history, the gun store owner is prohibited from making the sale.

Police Chief Elizabeth Watson said Friday that Austin police conducting those checks also will look to see whether a would-be buyer is restricted by a protective order. That information will then be passed on to the gun store owners.

Gun shop owners can still legally make the sale, but those contacted Friday by the Austin American-Statesman said they would not.

"I have no problem with that," said Jim Kent, owner of Cost Plus 10 Gun Shop. "We're not here to sell something to someone who might hurt somebody."

Another owner, Joe McBride of McBride's, also said he would likely refuse sale of a gun to someone bound by a protective order.

"At that point, it would put the monkey squarely on our backs," he said. "That puts us in a hard position. An individual is qualified (to purchase a gun) under the law, but we're having to make that determination."

McBride said the prospect of civil liability of such a sale would weigh heavily.

Travis County Constable Bruce Elfant said he asked the Austin chief to include protective orders as part of the Brady law checks after learning about a case involving a University of Texas assistant professor placed under a protective order after his wife accused him of threatening her.

The assistant professor attempted to purchase a gun after the order had been issued, Elfant said.

The gun store employees completed the Brady law checks, found no criminal history and called the assistant professor's house to tell him he could come by the store and pick up the weapon.

The man's wife answered the telephone and was able to persuade the store not to sell the man a gun, Elfant said.

"That was a situation where knowing about the protective order in advance would have helped the gun store owner," the constable said. "I think we'll probably save some lives with this. It's one small way we can make a difference."

Diane Rhodes, shelter director for the Battered Women's Center in Austin, praised the change.

"I think it will certainly give (victims) some peace of mind," Rhodes said. "Often we have clients who feel a protective order is just a piece of paper. This is something that should improve their confidence level."

Opposition to the additional checking came from the National Rifle Association and the local chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

ACLU staff attorney Deborah Gilman said she is concerned that Watson may be overstepping her boundaries as a police officer by providing the additional information and urging gun store owners to deny applications on the grounds of a protective order.

"She has no legislative powers," Ms. Gilman said. Store owners may feel pressured to follow the Police Department's wishes, she said.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

As most people well know, we are living in the age of "educational reform." After realizing through the media, from listening to politicians and from an urgency due to concerns of educators and non-educators, we received, two years or so ago, yet another document--"America 2000: An Education Strategy."

This plan from the United States Department of Education outlines a national strategy "to cure the ills of education." And, not surprisingly, few educators were actually involved in its planning and design!

But, whatever plan or design for education, most educators realize that students of the future will be drastically different from students today, just as students today are drastically different from those of the not so distant past. We will see a greater variety of backgrounds, languages, values and abilities than ever before and many of these students will be considered "at risk" students.

The picture of socioeconomically underprivileged children comes to mind when we think of students at risk. Another group of students, however, whose members cut across economic and social levels, also appears to be "at risk." This group are those children who relate with anxiety to various required subjects. Prime examples of these at risk students are girls who dislike math, boys who dislike English and students in general who dislike science and history.

So...parents and those of you in the community who help with the education of our youth, remember--you play an important role in helping these children in this area. Your assignments: Use your influence and show an interest in making a difference in these students' lives!

Students who won prizes due to TAAS scores, please make a difference in your life and go by HJH to receive that prize. And congratulations to those who did improve on those scores. Thanks, parents and teachers who encouraged and helped in this area.

HJH students who have not received report cards, please return to the HJH office, clear your records and receive those report cards. Some cards are there simply because the students failed to provide the required self-addressed envelope.

If you have, or know, one of those "at risk" students who "dislikes" one of the required subjects, please help them, by example first, to acquire the desire to excel in all that they do. They may never "love" some subjects, but they can "like" them enough to do well in them!

Hutchison, Gramm plan state base tour

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Their attention already fixed on next year's round of base closings, Texas Sens. Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison will tour some of the state's biggest military installations next week.

Mrs. Hutchison announced the tour Friday during a breakfast session with Texas reporters. The two Republicans will take advantage of Congress' week-long Fourth of July recess to make a two-day whirlwind tour of 10 installations.

They will meet with base commanders to discuss each facility's functions as well as the competition that might be faced during the next round of base closings.

"The base closing commission will come knocking on the front door of all these bases in 1995 asking 'What is your mission and why is it valuable?'" said Gramm's press secretary, Larry Neal. "We are really trying to think ahead and evaluate the missions and facilities and personnel on the bases so we can make the best case possible when the knock on the door comes."

Texas emerged largely unscathed from the 1993 round, but early on found itself in a defensive position when several bases were placed on the list for closure consideration by the independent Base Closure and Realignment Commission.

Gramm and Mrs. Hutchison, who serves on the Senate Armed Services Committee, met last week with then-commission chairman James Courter to discuss his views of the Texas bases. Courter has since resigned as chairman.

"The Texas bases are very well-positioned because we are efficient, we have unique functions," Mrs. Hutchison said. "I think we're going to be in good shape."

While she expects several Texas defense installations will be placed on the potential closure list next year, she predicted that they would survive the commission's intense scrutiny. "I think there's a chance we wouldn't lose any or that the losses would be very slight."

Mrs. Hutchison declined to name any bases that are potentially in trouble. But she said that Fort Bliss in El Paso and Fort Hood in Killeen are "so strong and so unique that they would never be on anybody's list."

On Wednesday, Gramm and Mrs. Hutchison will visit Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, Dyess AFB in Abilene, Reese AFB in Lubbock, Laughlin AFB in Del Rio and Fort Bliss.

The next day, they start at Randolph AFB in San Antonio, where they will meet with the commanders of all the military installations in that city and also visit Fort Sam Houston and Kelly AFB. Then, it's on to Fort Hood. The tour ends at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, where the senators will also meet with the commanders of the Corpus Christi Army Depot, Naval Station Ingleside and Kingsville Naval Air Station.

Before starting the trip with Mrs. Hutchison, Gramm will visit Goodfellow AFB in San Angelo on Tuesday. Friday, he will tour the Red River Army Depot near Texarkana.

Fisher issues debate challenge to Hutchison at press meeting

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Democratic Senate candidate Richard Fisher on Friday decried Republican allegations that he tried to get around federal campaign contribution limits and challenged opponent Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison to eight debates.

Fisher, a Dallas businessman, told the Texas Press Association convention the contribution complaint was "pure politics" and "character assassination."

"This past week, Kay Hutchison and her cronies have renewed their attempts to ruin my campaign, to ruin my fundraising efforts and discourage my race against the status quo that is in place in Washington," Fisher said.

"We're not discussing issues. She won't talk about her own vision. We don't have a productive dialogue because all they're doing is lobbing grenades, and I think it's time that we stopped," he said.

Fisher called for eight or more debates in big and small cities around the state, beginning as soon as possible, because he said Mrs. Hutchison was avoiding him.

Mrs. Hutchison had been scheduled to appear with him at the press convention, Fisher said, but he learned last week that the schedule was changed because she had a conflict.

Mrs. Hutchison is scheduled to address the press group Saturday.

"Texas needs a dialogue, a discussion on the issues between the candidates for the Senate, and I'm here to tell you I think it's time Kay stopped hiding behind her handlers and her henchmen and her manipulators," Fisher said.

Mrs. Hutchison spokesman David Beckwith said the candidate already has set aside Oct. 21 and Oct. 27 to debate Fisher.

"You can tell when a candidate believes he's hopelessly behind. He invariably starts demanding a whole bunch of debates," Beckwith said.

"Challenging your opponent to debate is the cry of the loser. There will be debates, but on a mutually agreed-upon timetable, and not because he challenges us."

On Wednesday, the National Republican Senatorial Committee filed a complaint with the FEC charging that Fisher is seeking to bypass the $1,000 limit on individual contributions per election by soliciting contributions for past campaign debts. The complaint is based on a Wednesday fund-raiser in Dallas for Fisher.

Fisher said Friday that he had broken no rules.

"That very committee, by the way, has found guilty of the things they're accusing me of doing in the past, of bundling money and so on. We are not doing that. We're following FEC guidelines," Fisher said.

"Remember, this is raw politics, this is avoiding a discussion of the issues, this is character assassination," he said.

Spokesmen for the National Republican Senatorial Committee did not immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press.

Fisher also urged those attending the convention to force the Senate race onto a higher plane by making the candidates stick to the issues.

"We have so many problems we must address in our society. Please hold my feet and my opponent's feet to the fire. Make us discuss the issues. Force us to deal with what concerns you and your communities," he said.

News for women

Nothing can bring on more bad hair days than summer. The hot sun, chlorinated swimming pools and ocean water can leave hair dry, brittle and loaded with split ends.

But don't despair...you won't have to curtail any of your favorite activities for the sake of healthy hair. By following these simple tips, you and your hair can shimmer through the summer with ease.

-Shampoo and condition after swimming to prevent chlorine, salt water and mineral damage. Since you'll be shampooing more frequently, use a gentle shampoo that won't strip moisture from the hair.

-Split ends and summer's high humidity can give anyone's hair a severe case of the frizzies. Cutting the ends off used to be the only solution. But now you can repair split ends as you style your hair with special mousse and gel.

-The next time you have your hair cut, go a little shorter. Short hair and summer go hand in hand. It's cooler, easier to maintain and definitely the hot style of the season. Keep hair in shape by having it trimmed every four to six weeks.

-The bad news is that, especially in summer, hair can appear dry, damaged and hard to control. The good news is that you now have access to high-performance leave-in treatment products that can correct summer damaged hair.

-These days it's cool to be sun-shy. Protect your skin with a good sun block. And block those damaging rays from your hair with a big, floppy sun hat. Pop on your shades too.

A lantern fish has organs or glands that give off light.

Thank You

We would like to extend a very special thank you to all the friends and neighbors of Harry Vogler. Your kindness has and always will be greatly appreciated. The generosity given in the harvest of the wheat will continue to warm our hearts for many years to come. Truly friends are rare and we feel we hold this rare commodity in you here in Hereford. Thank you for all the prayers and concerns, for they helped more than anyone could possibly know.

Deckard, Long wed Saturday afternoon

Wedding vows were exchanged by former Hereford residents, Tonya Jeanne Deckard and Ramon "Bubba" Long, both of Amarillo, during an early afternoon wedding ceremony held Saturday in First United Methodist Church of Hereford.

Officiating at the ceremony was Dr. Ed Williamson, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Deckard of 219 Fir and the bridegroom is the son of former Hereford resident, Kaye Long, and Ramon Rodriguez of Houston.

The pews were adorned with large white watered taffeta bows. A carved white and mauve unity candle, flanked by mothers' candles on white porcelain candle bases, was placed at the foot of the altar. The altar bouquet consisted of pink and white tone alstroemeria lilies, white daisies, mini carnations, monte casino and statice. The corsages and boutonnières were of alstroemeria lilies and baby's breath with accenting ribbon.

The bride's father presented her in marriage.

The bride's sister, a former Hereford resident, Traci Deckard of Amarillo, served as maid of honor. Tim Long of Amarillo, also a former Hereford resident, served his brother as best man.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Amy Long of Amarillo, and the groom's sister-in-law, Melissa Long, also of Amarillo. Both are former Hereford residents.

Groomsmen were Jason Lueb of Amarillo, formerly of Hereford, and Jack Sanders of Amarillo.

Guests were escorted by the bride's uncles, Charles Deckard and Danny Deckard of Clovis, N.M., and the groom's uncles, Allen Ward of Hereford and Micky Ward of Enid, Okla.

The groom's cousin, Cicely Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ward of Hereford, was flower girl. The groom's nephew, Scotty Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Long of Amarillo, was ring bearer.

Organ music was played by Elaine Calkins and piano selections were played by Dee Anne Trotter. Principal wedding selections included "The Traditional Bridal March" and various hymns. "You're The Inspiration" was performed by Mrs. Trotter as the unity candle was lit.

The bridal gown of white on white floral satin was an original creation made by the bride's mother. The princess bodice ended in a gently shaped waistline over a floor-length gathered skirt. A delicate beaded alençon lace applique adorned the neckline complementing the elbow-length shirred sleeves. The graceful double cascade train was caught with a large fabric bow under the open back.

The bride's hair was caught back with a barrett of white silk flowers and beads with attached waist-length bridal illusion tiers.

The bride carried a large button bouquet of her own design. She included white carnations, white allium and assorted small mauve and navy flowers with accents of mauve and navy ribbons, white lace, pearls and tulle.

The bride wore earrings of white pearls belonging to her mother. For the traditional something old and something borrowed, the bride carried a vintage handkerchief belonging to a family friend. Her something blue was her garter while her gown represented something new.

Bridal attendants wore tea-length gowns of cream colored polished cotton featuring a delicate pastel floral and mauve watered taffeta ribbon design. Their dresses were of similar design to the bridal gown featuring princess bodices, shirred sleeves and full, gathered skirts. They carried button nose-gays of navy and mauve carnations accented with satin ribbon in the bride's colors of white tulle and lace.

Jennifer Ward of Amarillo, the groom's cousin, registered guests at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Jenny Deckard of Clovis, N.M. and Ashley Martin of Abilene, the bride's cousins, presided at the bride's table while Kara Ward of Oklahoma and Kimberly Ward of Arkansas, the groom's cousins, presided at the groom's table.

The bride's table held a crystal punch bowl and crystal dishes filled with nuts and mints along with the wedding cake. The double-tiered wedding cake was decorated with white icing lace and ribbon accented with navy blue and mauve silk flowers and topped with white porcelain bride and groom figurines. The centerpiece consisted of the bridal bouquet surrounded by white taper candles in brass candleholders. Napkins of white, navy blue and mauve added the bride's colors to the table which was covered with a mauve cloth and white lace overlay. A navy blue cloth with a white lace overlay covered the groom's table which was set with a red velvet groom's cake along with crystal dishes filled with nuts and mints.

The bride wore a short set for her wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School and attended South Plains College at Levelland and Amarillo College. She is currently employed by ProMed Pharmacy in Amarillo.

The groom is a 1990 HHS graduate and attended TSTI in Amarillo. He is currently employed by the State of Texas in Amarillo.

Out of town wedding guests represented Farmington, N.M., Clovis, N.M., Portales, N.M., Canyon, Abilene, Amarillo and Oklahoma.

Gardening at the Gazebo

Celebrate holiday with a rice, cheese salad

By CARMEN FLOOD

So many of you ask those of us who work at the Black House Gardens about our roses and how we treat them, we decided to devote an entire column of "GARDENING AT THE GAZEBO" to an explanation of our Roses and the care they receive.

Rose-growers have a phenomenal treasure at their disposal. The genus Rosa includes about one hundred and fifty wild species, and cultivars which go back so far that their classification is impossible to ascertain exactly. The garden rose in Europe and America is young beside the forms of Asia, where roses were cultivated at least five thousand years ago.

Of the different types of rose available in this country, nearly all can be grown in this area. Whether it be Hybrid Tea which generally produces large flowers with high centers on long stems. Grandifloras which are large and showy. Floribundas, offering many small roses in clusters, and on to miniature roses, climbing and shrub roses, varieties of each type may happily find a home in any garden in this area. It was thought for many years that roses needed to be planted in beds by themselves, away from other perennials, but today, we realize that they may be beautifully set off when surrounded by other plants, though you must find ones with compatible needs. For instance, roses must have at least 4 to 6 hours of sun daily if they are to bloom and do well, so that eliminates companion plants that are happier in the shade. They also require a rich soil where the drainage is excellent and space to breathe, as they are threatened by powdery mildew if air circulation is inadequate.

In a past article, we explained the process of properly pruning roses in the early spring, so today, we will deal with the correct care and feeding of roses in summer. Kathryn Ruga is our designated rose care person, and we present to you her feed and spray program.

Roses do need to be fed on a regular schedule to replace the nutrients they take from the soil. There are many products on the market for this, and currently we are using Fertiloam Rose Food with systemic insecticide. Kathryn recommends following the directions on the container for the amount to be used and the application method of sprinkling around the base of each plant and working it into the soil lightly. At this time about 1/4 cup of iron is also applied and worked in. Then all is watered well. This is done once a month, beginning when new growth appears in the spring and continuing through the summer. Stop feeding in late August to prevent new growth which might not be able to harden off before early frosts.

Though most of the gardening books claim that black spot fungus is only a problem in humid areas, we experience it here as well, so Kathryn sprays the roses every two weeks in summer as a preventive measure. Currently she is using Ortho insect and disease control Formula III the first spraying each month and two weeks later she uses Fertiloam fungicide with Benomyl, alternating the two every two weeks through the summer. Hose end sprayers that deliver a fine mist are used, carefully following the directions on the packages. Both upper and lower leaf surfaces are covered as well as the soil surrounding the plant. Kathryn cautions, "PLEASE, PLEASE remember that if not used properly and in accordance with the package directions, these chemicals can be hazardous to people, animals and to the environment." It is of utmost concern that these and all chemicals be used and disposed of correctly. Lovely roses should be enjoyed in good health.

So now all that remains is to cut and enjoy roses in your home. Always cut roses in early morning when the moisture level is the highest. Use a sharp pruner or knife to make the cut, leaving at least two sets of five leaflets on the stem so that new flowers will develop. Remove any leaves or thorns that will be below the water level in the vase, and a floral preservative may be added if you wish to make the blooms last longer.

The rose is, more than any other, the flower of romance. The combination of beauty and fragrance acts irresistibly upon our sentiments to weave a spell to which countless rose gardens large and small in all parts of the world attest. Whether they be modern hybrids of astounding beauty or old varieties recovered from abandoned homesteads whose durability and heady fragrance enchant the heart of the gardener, we know with doubt that the rose and its cultivation is part of the future of the Black House Gardens, our own individual gardens, and we hope, your garden as well.

For your Fourth of July picnic: rice and cheese salad, which blends flavorful rice cooked in chicken broth and the mellow flavor of Panela or Monterey Jack cheese. The smooth texture of the cheese provides a tasty contrast to the rice grains, and is a perfect base for the addition of tangy orange chunks, crunchy radishes and crisp jicama. Additional flavors are delivered with a seasoned citrus dressing of lemon and orange juices, honey, cilantro and jalapeno chili.

Picnic Rice and Cheese Salad

For the dressing:
1/4 cup fresh orange juice
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 to 2 teaspoons minced jalapeno chili

1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 teaspoon minced cilantro
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

For the salad:
3 cups cooked rice, preferably cooked in chicken broth
1 cup diced jicama
1 cup diced Panela or Monterey Jack cheese

1 cup diced orange
1/2 cup chopped bell pepper
1/2 cup chopped cucumber
1/3 cup chopped red onion
1/3 cup sliced radishes
1/4 cup diced Anaheim chili

In medium bowl, combine all dressing ingredients. Cover and allow flavors to blend for 3 to 4 hours. In medium salad bowl, combine all of the salad ingredients. Pour dressing over salad mixture, toss well and serve. Makes 8 servings. Nutritional information per serving: 220 cal., 6 g pro., 125 mg calcium, 28 g carbo., 7 g fat, 645 mg sodium, 13 mg chol.

How your lawn helps you

The next time you're out on the lawn, you may want to kiss the ground. That patch of green does a lot more than you may realize.

In fact, a healthy lawn:
-Produces oxygen. A lawn measuring 50 feet by 50 feet creates enough oxygen to meet the breathing need of a family of four.

-Reduces allergic reactions and cuts down on insect bites.

-Has a cooling effect. When street and sidewalk temperatures exceed 100 degrees F, the surface of the lawn remains a cool 75 degrees F.

-Increases your property value. A well-managed landscape can boost the selling price of a home by as much as 15 percent, realtors believe.

-Provides erosion control. A healthy root system and a thick, absorbent blanket of grass reduce run-off.

-Offers a place for family recreation, and a refuge for fun and relaxation.

Here are some hints to help you get that perfect lawn:

1. Mow at the proper height for the type of turfgrass you have.
2. Water properly. Experts recommend watering heavily once or twice a week which helps grass develop a strong deep root system to resist stress. Water in the morning so the grass can dry throughout the day. This helps prevent fungus infestations.
3. Keep insect damage under control. Inspect the lawn for pests often. Look out for brown patchy spots, or root systems so weak you can tug out the turfgrass easily.
4. Watch out for weeds. To keep crabgrass and other grassy weeds from wreaking your lawn, use a weed prevention product containing a pre-emergent herbicide. One simple springtime application prevents grassy weeds from coming up all summer. Because you apply only once, it's less expensive and time-consuming than battling weeds after they appear with post-emergent products.

This is our sister, when she was little like us, She's off now to college we'll miss her so much! Good luck & we love you, now one more clue. Our last name is Simpson, we're one & two.

Almazan, Gonzales united in marriage

Amanda Almazan became the bride of Bennie Gonzales Jr. during an afternoon ceremony conducted Saturday in the First Baptist Church.

Officiating was the bride's uncle, the Rev. Juan Manuel Almazan, pastor of New Life Four Square in Grand Prairie. He also serves as a police officer and hostage negotiator for the police department in Grand Prairie.

The bride is the daughter of Roberto and Albina Almazan Jr. of 223 Star and the bridegroom is the son of Bennie and Amelia Gonzales Sr. of 329 Cherokee.

The church was decorated with white columns entwined with English ivy and purple wisteria. Pews were marked by lavender bows.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father.

Serving as matron of honor was Michelle Gallegos of El Paso. Best men were the groom's brother, Erasmo Gonzales, and Freddie Martinez.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister-in-law, Nancy Gonzales, and Diana Perez, Cindy Lacombe and Stephanie Gonzales.

Groomsmen were Raymond Gonzales, the groom's brother; Jerry Almazan of San Antonio, the bride's brother; Joey Rangel of Littlefield, the groom's nephew; and Pat Mercer of Dallas.

Guests were escorted by Robert

Almazan of Miami, Fla. and Noe Molina.

Flower girls included the groom's niece, Amber Diane Rangel, daughter of Joe and Diane Rangel of Littlefield; the groom's niece, Syndal Savanha Gonzales, daughter of Erasmo and Nancy Gonzales; and Heather Michelle Gallegos, daughter of Ralph and Michelle Gallegos of El Paso.

Ring bearer was the groom's nephew, Matthew Benjamin Gonzales, son of Erasmo and Nancy Gonzales.

Singing capella, the musical group "Crystal River" performed "The Wedding Song" and "And the Father Says I Do." The Rev. Joel DeLeon of Templo el Calvario vocalized "I Think of You" and Sandra and Ralph Gallegos performed a duet, "If You Say My Eyes Are Beautiful."

The bride was attired in a white regal satin designer's gown featuring a sweetheart neckline, Edwardian sleeves, fitted bodice encrusted with pearls and jewels, and an elongated waistline. The back bodice plunged to a low back and was centered with a designer bow. The all satin detachable chapel-length train was accented with European lace cut-outs and studded with pearls and jewels.

The hip-length tiered bridal veil with pencil edging formed an elegant pouf at the crown of a headband of delicate pearls. Sprays of white silk flowers adorned the side of the headpiece.

The bride carried a cascading arrangement of purple, fuchsia and white roses, pearls and white stephanotis. To complete her ensemble, the bride wore pearl and diamond earrings.

Bridal attendants wore royal purple two-piece suits designed with off-the-shoulder tops which were adorned with rhinestone buttons down the front sides. The suits also featured long straight skirts with front slits. Each wore rhinestone earrings and long royal purple gloves. They carried nosegays of matching flowers. The madamas wore the same styled dresses in fuchsia with matching accessories.

The reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

Registering guests were the bride's cousin, Maribel Huizar of Edinburg, and the groom's niece, Julie Madrigal.

Pami Salinas of Grapevine served cake, and punch was poured by Eraceli Reyna. Others assisting included Gloria Orozco, Angela Camacho, Mary Aguilar and Helen Nanez.

At the reception, individual tables were decorated with candle arrangements matching the purple color scheme of the wedding. The decorations were made by the bride's aunt, Margarita Rodriguez.

The bride's main three tiered cake was placed atop crystal columns and was connected to three smaller cakes by a shimmering staircase. On top of the smaller cakes were purple floral arrangements and hearts and the main cake was topped by matching flowers and Precious Moments figurines and a heart. Placed beneath each cake were matching flowers and coordinating satin ribbon streamers.

The groom's Italian cream cheese cake was placed on a table which also featured a chilled fruit arrangement, mints, assorted nuts and a silver platter of chocolate wedding candy made by the bride. Each table was covered with a white lace cloth and accented with scalloped purple tulle.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Honolulu, Hawaii, the bride was attired in a two-piece white short ensemble and a coordinating colored corsage. The couple will make their home in Hereford.

The bride is a 1985 graduate of Hereford High School and a 1988 graduate of American Technical Institute. She is currently employed by the Hereford State Bank.

The groom, a 1990 HHS graduate, attended Eastern New Mexico University and is currently employed by TLH Enterprises-ColorTyme.

Wedding guests represented Arlington, Grapevine, Edinburg, Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, Fort Worth, Arizona and Florida.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER

First thing first...A zillion thanks to all those who helped out with the Summer Reading Program this past Tuesday. We had a bunch of kids and a particularly challenging project (and the project leader was called out of town suddenly), but, thanks to the help of parents, day-care leaders, other adults, and older kids, we got through it!

Cowboys and Indians! What an image that stirs in our mind, one mostly created by Hollywood, I'm afraid, but this week is cowboy and Indian week on the new book shelf. Leading the list is Children of the First Man by James Alexander Thom. Thom's novel about Chief Tecumseh, Panther in the Sky, won awards, but he is best remembered (at this library anyway) for Follow The River, a novel based on the true story of a woman captured by the Shawnee. His current release intertwines history and legend to recreate the 700-year journey of the mysterious white Indian tribe through the American continent. If this lives up to what Thom has produced in the past, this book will be in demand.

Another popular western author is Dana Fuller Ross, the pseudonym of a prolific writer who has written hundreds of works—fiction, non-fiction, adult and juvenile—under a hateful of names. Westward! is the first of "The Frontier Trilogy" and relates the "incredible beginning of America's favorite pioneer saga." The Holts are drawn into a blood feud and forced to strike out into territory seen by few white men. Using their fighting proress, they survive to found an American dynasty.

While the fiction shelf offers a few titles, this weeks non-fiction shelf is dominated by the American West. Along with the "common" works detailing the opening of the West, or Native American are a few "uncommon" books.

Owning Western History is a guide to collecting rare documents, letters, and autographs from the Old West.

The Last Cowboy reports the "twilight era of the horseback cowhand" circa 1900-1940.

And there are a couple dealing with clothes. 100 Years of Western Wear is an interesting book to look at—lots of color pictures. The author starts out talking about "authentic" cowboy wear, but most of the copy is about the Wild West Show/Hollywood type. Some of these outfits would make Roy and Dale look like "American Gothic."

Authentic Costumes and Characters of the Wild West portrays the clothing of everyone from Indians to prospectors to ladies of ill repute. The book reflects thorough research and would be an invaluable guide to anyone interested in period clothing.

Also of interest, but not of the Western type, is The Agenda by Bob Woodward. Subtitled "Inside the Clinton White House," the book reflects a side of the President and First Family not frequently seen by the public.

Remember that the library and other county offices will be closed on Monday for Independence Day. Have a good Fourth!

Get in the swim

Getting in the swim of things?

A pool or spa can mean hours of enjoyment shared with friends and family members if you use your safety sense, say experts at the National Swimming Pool Safety Committee (NSPSC).

The old adage, "look before you leap," is as valid as ever. Many recreational swimmers are seriously injured each year as a result of diving into shallow areas of lakes, ponds, streams or swimming pools. The typical victim of a diving accident is a young male, between the ages of 13-33.

Here are some safety tips that can help you stay in the swim of things safely, from NSPSC's "Operation Water Watch" national education program to prevent dividing accidents:

-Never dive into the shallow end of a pool or into an above-ground pool.

-Do not drink and dive. Statistically, more than 50 percent of all diving accidents involve alcohol.

-Check the depth of the water before you dive.

-Steer your body up when entering the water.

-Always check the water for submerged objects.

Learning how to dive properly is as important as learning how to swim. For proper diving instruction, contact your local YMCA, Red Cross or area schools.

—YOUR EYES—

IF YOU ONCE WORE CONTACTS...

If you tried wearing contact lenses years ago when they were big and hard and difficult to manage, you owe it to yourself to try again -- especially if you still would rather not wear glasses. The new generation of lenses, especially the soft ones, are extra-comfortable for most people and able to correct most common visual conditions, too.

The major advantage of soft lenses is, no surprise, their softness. That enables them to fit smoothly right over the cornea. They absorb natural tear fluid and bend to fit the natural curve of the eye. They are made in a variety of shapes so that your optometrist can choose one just right for your eyes.

The new lenses offer many more options than the old ones. They can be adapted for bifocal vision or change the color of your eyes. Discuss with your eye professional whether easy-to-care-for extended-wear lenses or throwaways are right for you.

Allergic to bee stings?

For most people, a bee sting is a minor nuisance, but if you're insect sting-allergic, your next encounter could be deadly.

Medical studies show that once a person has had an allergic reaction, there is a 60 percent chance that the next reaction could be worse.

The symptoms of an allergic response:

- dizziness and/or nausea
- difficulty in breathing and/or swelling of the throat
- hives and/or swelling away from the sting site
- unconsciousness or cardiac arrest

If you've experienced any of these symptoms following an insect sting, there is hope. A new treatment called "immunotherapy-sting allergy vaccine" provides complete protection from future allergic reactions, and is currently available through your local allergist.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent-HE FOOD SAFETY TIPS FOR THE SUMMER

Consumers should be very aware of food safety precautions during the summer when outdoor activities such as picnics, campouts and cookouts are popular.

Often these activities involve food. Unfortunately, the incidence of foodborne illness also seems to rise during these months. Bacteria that cause foodborne illness grow best at warm weather temperatures, specifically at "danger zone temperatures" between 40 degrees Fahrenheit and 140 degrees Fahrenheit.

Foods that are most perishable are called "red flag" foods. They are moist protein-containing foods such as poultry, meats, eggs, milk products, seafood, cream pies and custards. Red flag items also include such foods as fried chicken and hard-cooked or deviled eggs -- foods that are sometimes misunderstood as being non-perishable.

It's important to follow the "hot food-cold food rule" for perishable foods. "Keep hot foods hot (over 140 degrees) and cold foods cold (below 40 degrees)." The combination of these foods plus temperatures in the danger zone spell trouble.

Prevention of foodborne illness starts with the planning of the menu. Do not include "red flag" foods unless you can keep them either "hot" or "cold." If refrigeration is needed, but not available, foods can be packed in an ice chest. It's important not to pack the ice chest too full and use adequate ice or ice packs to keep the foods at 40 degrees. Use shallow containers so food will stay chilled throughout. Also, keep the ice chest in the shade.

Some foods do not require refrigeration until opened and may be better items to take on a picnic. These include canned meats, peanut butter and jelly, breads, crackers, cereal and nut mixes. Dried and fresh fruits are another option.

Plan to eat as soon as possible after you arrive at the picnic site. Store any leftovers promptly and properly, or throw them away. It is best to carry only what you plan to eat. Don't leave foods out for more than two hours. In hot summer temperatures, one hour is a better rule to follow.

If you pick up deli or fast food items, either pick them up immediately before the event and eat as soon as you arrive, or buy them the night before and refrigerate.

Cleanliness is very important to prevent the spread of bacteria. Avoid handling foods more than necessary. Never handle raw foods and cooked foods together. Do not reuse any utensils that touched raw food without washing them.

Spread a clean tablecloth on the table before serving the food. Use disposables since adequate hand-washing or dish-washing facilities may not be available. Use these items only once, then throw them away.

MIAMI (AP) - A pipe bomb exploded outside rapper Luther Campbell's house, barely missing his $50,000 sports car.

No one was hurt, and Campbell's home and Dodge Viper were unscathed, police said.

Thank You

Jack (Buck) Ward Jr. and his family would like to sincerely thank everyone for all the prayers, cards and gifts during his illness. He continues to improve. May God bless each of you.

Summer assistant presents program

Donna Grotegut, Deaf Smith County Extension Service summer assistant, presented information and a slide program featuring her recent trip to Germany. Grotegut spent a semester living in Germany with numerous families and observing the culture of the country. The trip was part of a foreign awareness effort for youth sponsored by the 4-H program in the International Foreign Youth Exchange. Grotegut will be available through the summer to present programs to civic clubs and other groups. Contact the county extension office to book the program.

A HISTORY LESSON

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. - from the Declaration of Independence

The freedoms we enjoy as Americans are stated simply and eloquently in the opening lines of the second paragraph of the Declaration of Independence. As quoted above, it outlines our right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Perhaps this historical declaration would never have been penned without the straightforward writings of Thomas Paine. His written arguments, called Common Sense, were biting in their criticism of the British crown. He ripped into the colonists for remaining loyal to a king who sanctioned their deaths, taxed them unfairly, overturned their legislative activities and enforced his will over the will of all the people.

Partially because of Paine's writings, the mood of the people turned away from allegiance to the King of England and more toward being independent from the crown. Richard Henry Lee of Virginia, introduced a motion to that effect in Congress in June, 1776. Thomas Jefferson modified Lee's motion extensively with help from Benjamin Franklin and John Adams. Jefferson's expanded work, the Declaration of Independence, was adopted by Congress on July 4, 1776.

A written guarantee
Some of you are wondering why I am presenting this brief history lesson. I want to remind you of our written guarantee. Jefferson's eloquent words, and the Constitution that followed, guarantee our freedom to succeed. Please note that I did not say those documents guarantee our success - just our freedom to succeed.

The Declaration of Independence and our Constitution affirm the origin of government as the willingness of the people to be independently governed. We the people, are the government. We elect others to conduct national business.

These documents also affirmed the duty of the people to change or abolish a government that no longer serves them well. Therefore, I ask if you feel that our federal government is responsive to our needs. Is our government serving us well? Are we truly free to succeed? Do we want our leaders to turn our country from the democracy that has served us so well for more than 200 years toward socialism that even the Soviet's have given up on?

Should we embrace healthcare reforms brought to us by the same folks who brought us welfare? Or, is it time for more common sense?

Freedom to succeed

I believe that it is time to take back the control of our destiny. If our government continues to usurp our rights, drown us in regulations and destroy our ability to create our wealth, we will lose our freedom to succeed.

The biggest threat to small business today is not competition from mega competitors, but rather the insidious growth of federal and state governments. We cannot tolerate the continuing encroachment of "big brother" into the free-enterprise system. The costs of non-productivity must not be thrust upon us. We all pay for government. Every cost of bureaucracy is passed directly on to the consumer and taxpayer.

It is not too late, we can turn our nation around. We can learn from history. Let us elect men and women who will lead us to less government, not more. Corporate America is proving that even the private sector can benefit by becoming more productive and efficient.

It is time to down-size our governments. We must communicate our wishes freely, often and distinctly. We must return to government by the people, for the people and of the people. We can regain the freedom to succeed. Then we will be able to truly celebrate Independence Day.

Worldwide cotton production drops

WASHINGTON (AP) - World production of cotton in the 1993-94 season is estimated at 76 million bales, 6.8 million less than in the previous season and 8 million below estimated consumption.

A new report by the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agriculture Service also said the U.S. share of world cotton trade had risen slightly, inching up from 19.6 percent in 1992-93 to an estimated 21 percent this season. The cotton marketing year runs from August through July.

Lower global production figures reflect losses of a quarter-million bales due to bollworm infestation in China and Paraguay and overly high production estimates for Iran, the report said. Crop estimates increased in Australia, Turkey and Benin to reflect better harvesting conditions.

World cotton prices continue to rise dramatically. The so-called Cotlook A Index averaged 86 cents per pound during May, compared with 58 cents in June 1993.

The 1993-94 forecast for domestic consumption is 10.3 million bales, with exports forecast at 7 million bales and domestic ending stocks estimated to be 3.6 million bales, the report said.

The U.S. share of world trade was 26 percent during calendar 1993, rising 35 percent from 1992 figures to 7 million bales more than any other cotton-producing country. U.S. exports this season have been boosted by production declines in several major producing countries.

But world cotton trade overall may expand this season because of increased consumption in areas in the former Soviet Union, and in parts of Asia, principally South Korea, Japan and China.

"Anticipated cotton shortages in major cotton-producing countries, such as China, India and Pakistan are expected for the 1994-95 crop year," the report said.

The United States has exported more than 442,000 bales of cotton to China this season, accounting for a projected 75 percent of that country's cotton consumption. The report attributed the U.S. market share in China to reduced cotton availabilities from India and Pakistan.

"The outlook for U.S. cotton exports to China next year is promising as China will likely need to import significant amounts of cotton in the next few years to make up for an imbalance between cotton supply and demand," said the report.

World cotton production for 1994-95 is forecast up 10 percent from this year's estimate, at 84 million bales. The United States' cotton production is expected to increase by 1.55 million bales to 17.7 million bales, a growth of 9.6 percent.

The report forecast domestic consumption in calendar 1994 at 10.5 million bales, exports at 7 million bales and ending stocks at 3.9 million bales.

Hereford youth to exhibit animals at Angus show

A trio of youth from Hereford will exhibit cattle at the 1994 National Junior Angus Show in Des Moines, Iowa, July 12-16.

Moriah Olson, Joanna Olson and Sy Olson are among more than 600 young Angus breeders from 33 states entering the show. A total of 1,288 animals will be judged.

Sy Olson also has entered cattle in the Junior Angus Show carcass contest. Premiums worth more than $4,000 will be awarded winners chosen from a field of 52 animals, entered by 45 young Angus breeders.

The Olsons are junior members of the American Angus Association, headquartered in St. Joseph, Mo.

The '94 junior show will be held at the Iowa State Fairgrounds. A beef cookoff, public speaking contest and other contests are planned, also.

Seminar participants

Three students, from left, Brian Betzen, Justin Scott and Nathan Diller, attended the 32nd annual Citizenship Seminar, sponsored by the Texas Farm Bureau, in San Angelo. They were sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau. Purpose of the seminar is to provide students with a better understanding of their American heritage and the free enterprise system.

EPA ruling expected to benefit corn producers in state, nation

Corn producers stand to benefit from a ruling by the Environmental Protection Agency on oxygenates in reformulated gasoline.

Carl King, executive director of Texas Corn Producers Board, said that the EPA ruling that a portion of oxygenates must come from ethanol and other renewable resources is good news for corn growers.

Beginning in January 1995, King said, 15 percent of oxygenates must come from renewable resources. The requirement escalates to 30 percent in January 1996.

"This ruling could mean a market for an additional 250 million bushels of corn nationwide," said King, a longtime promoter of ethanol as a potential market for corn production.

TCPB is among members of the Clean Fuels Development Coalition pushing for income tax credit for producers of ETBE.

Feedyard honored at meeting

A Guymon, Okla., feedyard manager, Dee Follis, has been recognized by the Texas Cattle Feeders Association with the first TCFA Environmental Stewardship Award.

The award was announced at the association's summer meeting in Ruidoso, N.M.

Follis is manager of Texas County Feed Yard, Inc., at Guymon.

Among environmental stewardship practices in place at the feedyard are vegetative filter strips, installed shortly after the facility was built in 1965.

"These filter strips provide wildlife habitat for pheasants, quail, ducks and song birds," Follis said, "and they prevent erosion while filtering the water that drains into our retention facility."

Migrating waterfowl stop at a fresh water fish pond, as well as six retention ponds. As much as possible, the retention water is recycled as irrigation water.

To conserve energy, the feedyard conducts annual maintenance on steam boilers in the feedmill, resulting in a 20 percent reduction in natural gas consumption.

Whoopi's wake-up call launches ABC's AIDS special

BY JOHN CROOK

Just moments after ABC's "In a New Light" opens, actress Whoopi Goldberg throws everything she has into a wake-up call for parents across America.

"Many of you have no idea, but there is a major catastrophe already heading our way. Worldwide, half of all new HIV infections are in people ages 15-24. Do you know what that means?" she asks with an angry little chuckle.

"Hundreds of thousands of teenagers alive today may never live to see 30. This is not fiction. This is fact, and it's told to us by people who know about these things.

"Do you want to see the year 2000?" she asks rhetorically. "You want your kids to see the year 2000? Talk to them about AIDS. You'd BETTER tell them how to protect themselves, and you'd better do it now. 'Cause, honey, tomorrow is too late."

As host Barbara Walters points out in the third annual special, which airs Saturday, July 9, "We are now living in the future that was predicted for us over 10 years ago, when researchers and activists begged for attention to be brought to AIDS."

The bureaucratic lack of response to those pleas has cost a high price for the young participants in Youthwave, peers who travel into the nation's schools to relate how they themselves were infected with HIV as teen-agers. The same refrain - "I was sure it couldn't happen to me" - runs throughout their stories.

"Maybe we need to re-evaluate what's cool and what isn't cool," says an 18-year-old, who contracted the virus at 13 during his very first sexual experience. "For me, I don't think it's cool that I have to sit in here and talk about what it's like for me to live with a life-threatening disease."

"The thing that is most important," adds a 22-year-old diagnosed with HIV when she was 16, "is to be able to give something to young people so that they can make the best possible decision."

That decision for some people involves sexual abstinence, says Dr. Ruth Westheimer, familiar to millions of radio and TV audiences as sex expert "Dr. Ruth." Westheimer says since she believes each person has to be responsible for his or her own sexual behavior, she wants them to have complete information so they can make intelligent choices.

Part of that common goal to share information is behind "A National Night Against AIDS," which will include viewing parties in many cities around the nation Saturday night. While the parties can be organized anywhere there is a television and space for an audience to gather, the sponsors of the project, a loose coalition of AIDS organizations, urge the participants to "register" their parties with local AIDS agencies to make sure each party receives supplementary materials and community support.

Hard Rock Cafes will serve as national "flagship parties" as well, serving as fund-raisers for local chapters of the Design Industries Foundation Fighting AIDS (DIFFA).

ABC's special ends with a plea from Walters for audiences to shake off boredom and apathy about HIV disease. "AIDS is not a fad," she says. "It is not the disease of the year. It's the disease of the century and, for the most part, preventable. If each and every one of us doesn't face the facts head on, we will have lost millions more men and women tragically - and even worse, unnecessarily."

July 3 - July 9
HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
You are beginning to feel the stress of a difficult situation, but you must not let it tear you apart. Don't be afraid to ask for the help you need.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
Being stubborn could get you into big trouble. Compromise may be the only answer that is acceptable to both parties, but it will not be easy.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
You feel you have received the short end of the stick, and you probably have. Avoid disagreements and find your own way to deal with troubles.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
There is someone close to you who needs a lot of encouragement. Everyone makes mistakes, and it is important to forgive.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
A fear of failing could keep you from doing what you want. Make yourself some goals and a plan, and then set out to accomplish the task at hand.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
It's best to keep your ideas to yourself for now. Be yourself in all situations and follow your intuition. If something doesn't feel right, back away.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Wastefulness could be your downfall. Are you really doing what is best for yourself and those around you? Take stock of your life.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
There could be some quarrels ahead, possibly a severe break in a relationship. The pressure of the situation could bring on illness.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)
You need to narrow down your choices with some common sense. An unexpected event will soon take place, and you will be better for it.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
Don't be overly anxious when negotiating financial deals or contracts. Use your time wisely. You will experience growth in all aspects of your life.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
You will continue on as you have been. More work is needed before you gain the recognition you have been wanting for so long.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
Keep your cool and don't rush into a hasty decision. It is important for you to step back and take life at a slower pace for a little while.

USA MOVIE
THREE HOLLYWOOD HITS DIRECTED BY OLIVER STONE

LET'S TALK

Dean Martin a former boxer; Metcalf's padded secret; purple 'Doogie' eater

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Dean Martin

Q: I am a big fan of Dean Martin. Could you please tell me a little bit about him? Where was he born? How did he get his start in show business? How many movies did he appear in? J.M., Tyler, Texas.

A: Martin was born Dino Paul Crocetti on June 7, 1917, in Steubenville, Ohio. After earning a living as a prizefighter, steel-mill laborer and card player, Martin tried his hand at singing and soon found himself working in night spots across the country. During an Atlantic City, N.J., engagement in 1946, he met funny man Jerry Lewis and the pair formed a phenomenally successful comedy team.

After 10 years and 16 films, the Martin-Lewis partnership dissolved. Although many in the business believed Martin couldn't make it on his own, he went on to appear in 35 more films including "Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed?," "Airport" and "The Cannonball Run."

Q: Would you please settle an argument between everyone in my family? When Jackie on "Roseanne" shows her stomach on the show, is that really her pregnant stomach or is it fake? I say it's real. -Shauna L. Anderson, Portland, Ore.

A: Laurie Metcalf, who plays Jackie on the show, was pregnant for the filming of many of the 1993-94 season's "Roseanne" episodes. However, in November 1993, she gave birth to a baby boy, whom she named Will, and for the taping of the remainder of the season's episodes, Metcalf wore "padding."

Q: Did Neil Patrick Harris from "Doogie Howser, M.D." appear in the movie "Purple People Eater"? Also, does Joey Lawrence have a younger brother? -T.D., Portland, Ore.

A: Harris did indeed appear in 1988's "Purple People Eater," although back then he may have been billed as Neil Harris.

Lawrence has two younger brothers, Matthew and Andrew, both of whom have followed in their elder sibling's footsteps into the acting world.

Q: My maiden name is Nellie Nantz. And ever since Jim Nantz began sportscasting for CBS, I've been wondering whether he could be a distant relative of mine. Where could I write to him about this matter? -Nellie Nantz Smith, Birch Island, Minn.

A: Write to Nantz C/O CBS Sports, 51 W. 52nd St., New York, N.Y. 10019-6188.

Q: Could you please give me an address where I could write to Graham Greene? I think he is a fantastic actor. -V.R. Williams, North Augusta, S.C.

A: You can try writing to Greene C/O his talent agency, Susan Smith & Associates, 121 N. San Vicente Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90211.

Q: My husband and I have always enjoyed watching reruns of "The Benny Hill Show." Could you tell me if they are available on home video and if so, how I might find them? -Natalie Brown, Gilmer, Texas.

A: "The Benny Hill Show" was produced in England from 1969 to 1989. The episodes that aired in the United States were edited versions of the original English shows. Unfortunately, these programs are not available for U.S. distribution.

However, you can obtain a copy of 1979's "Benny Hill's Crazy World" from HBO Home Video, 1114 6th Ave., New York, N.Y. 10036.

Q: Was the young actor who played Dennis in "Dennis the Menace" Macaulay Culkin's younger brother? -D.C., Chapel Hill, N.C.

A: No, film newcomer Mason Gamble played the role of Dennis in the 1993 film.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

HBO grants Miller more time; Norris goes to the dogs; History Channel in cable's future

The man Time magazine calls "the angry prophet of the airwaves" returns in September, when the weekly late-night rant show "Dennis Miller" begins its second, 13-week run on HBO. For all his cynical posturing, Miller must be an optimist: He still believes talking can change things.

Chuck Norris will return to CBS' "Walker, Texas Ranger" in the fall, but for now Norris is on the set of "Top Dog," a family film about a police detective who reluctantly teams with a member of the K-9 corps.

Historians, synchronize your watches: Folks at The History Channel have announced a Jan. 1, 1995, launch date for the 24-hour basic cable service, which will feature documentaries, movies and miniseries. Original programming will include anthology series titled "Year by Year," "History Alive," "Movies in Time" and "Our Century." Also slated are "History for Kids," a two-hour block for ages 7-13, and "American History Showcase," a weekly community outreach series consisting of programs about museums and historical sites.

CD-ROM cinema: Computer and video game supplier GameTek has announced a new division that will bring vintage movies to Macintosh and PCs. Titles are said to include "Night of the Living Dead," "Metropolis" and several Charlie Chaplin shorts.

NBC must be watching the grassroots group Viewers for Quality Television, thanks to whose help (apparently) the network has renewed ratings dawdlers "The John Larroquette Show" and "Homicide: Life on the Street." Both series were praised by VQT members in a recent survey of "most watched" and "high quality" programming.

Fox television, currently the No. 1-rated children's broadcaster, is seeking a few good animators. With series suppliers Warner Bros. and Hanna-Barbera owned by rival networks, Fox is starting a "state-of-the-art" in-house animation group, where it says artists will join a team headed by Don Bluth ("Pete's Dragon," "An American Tail").

Wondering about 'Tales of the City' brouhaha? Get the videotapes and judge for yourself

BY JOHN CROOK

When the TV adaptation of Armistead Maupin's "Tales of the City" aired in England last year, high-school students were assigned to watch it and senior citizens stopped its cast members in the street to compliment them.

When it aired in the United States last January on PBS, several affiliates refused to air it at all, others carried only a "pixilated" version that blocked out the brief nudity, and some members of Congress screamed long and loud that punitive measures should be taken against the network.

Now, thanks to the recent video release by Polygram Video, viewers who either missed the miniseries, or saw only the "visually impaired" version, have a chance to see the production as its creative team intended. And, except for the chronically uptight, "Tales" is an unalloyed delight.

For those unfamiliar with Maupin's addictive series of books, "Tales of the City" follows Mary Ann Singleton (Laura Linney) through the San Francisco of the 1970s. Newly relocated from Cleveland, Mary Ann swiftly meets colorful characters such as her pot-growing landlady, Anna Madrigal (Olympia Dukakis); neighbor Mona Ramsey (Chloe Webb from "China Beach") and her gay roommate, Michael Tolliver (English actor Marcus D'Amico); and handsome ne'er-do-well Brian Hawkins (Paul Gross, recently seen in "Due South").

Since it's a period piece set before AIDS and political correctness, the storyline includes sex and drug use in purely recreational contexts, yet never gratuitously. Most poignantly, the principal love story involves two senior citizens: Mrs. Madrigal and Edgar Halcyon (Donald Moffat), Mary Ann's boss who is secretly dying.

The six-hour miniseries is on three videocassettes, available separately for less than $20 each. After renting it, be prepared to ponder making the purchase: The rich performances and ebullient tone of "Tales" are just about irresistible. Treat yourself.

Classical, country, pop music combine for Capitol concert

BY JOHN HARMON

The West Lawn of the U.S. Capitol erupts with music and fireworks for "A Capitol Fourth," airing on PBS, Monday, July 4 (check local listings).

Actor Joel Grey, best-known for his role as master of ceremonies in the stage and film versions of "Cabaret," serves as host of the 15th annual celebration in Washington, D.C.

A variety of American acts are scheduled to deliver a mix of country, classical and R&B performances to satisfy a variety of musical palates.

Acclaimed pops conductor Erich Kunzel leads the National Symphony Orchestra and an array of military musical groups throughout the night. "The Jefferson Memorial Portrait," an original composition honoring the third American president, makes its world premiere.

Country music is represented by newcomer Faith Hill, who was recently recognized by the Academy of Country Music as 1994's top new female vocalist.

R&B greats Aaron Neville and The Neville Brothers bring their blend of doo-wop, pop, reggae and jazz to the Capitol stage. They are scheduled to perform a series of songs including "Amazing Grace" and "Amen."

Versatile Broadway performer Florence Henderson, affectionately known for her role as the mother on "The Brady Bunch," is slated to perform with singer John Raitt.

The concert concludes with a traditional galaxy of fireworks.

Other Independence Day celebrations this week include The Family Channel's "Star Spangled Branson," on Sunday, July 3. The special features Barbara Mandrell, Johnny Cash, Tony Orlando and many others.

George Plimpton is host of "Fireworks!," an informative special airing Sunday on A&E. Plimpton looks at the evolution of fireworks, from their beginnings in ancient China to today's computer choreographed productions.

A patriotic "Pops! Goes the Fourth" airs Monday on A&E, featuring the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra. This live event celebrates the Fourth of July with musical pageantry from historic Boston.

ANSWERS:

The producers of "Columbo" had to settle for Peter Falk in the starring role of the shrewd police detective. Bing Crosby was the first choice.

AT A GLANCE

SUNDAY: John Malkovich, Glenn Close and Michelle Pfeiffer star in "Dangerous Liaisons" on ABC. Denzel Washington gives an Oscar-winning performance in "Glory" on CBS. Sarah Jessica Parker and Sally Struthers star in "In the Best Interest of the Children" on NBC.

John Malkovich

MONDAY: Independence Day brings a plethora of holiday specials. PBS celebrates "A Capitol Fourth" with Joel Grey, The Neville Brothers and others. A&E presents "Pops! Goes the Fourth" with the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra. George Carlin stars in "Working Trash" on Fox.

TUESDAY: Sharon Gless and William McNamara star in "Honor Thy Mother" on CBS. PBS' "P.O.V." examines police brutality in Chicago. A friend of Inspector Allyn's finds trouble on a Scottish isle in "Dead Water" on A&E. The Pittsburgh Pirates visit the Atlanta Braves in baseball action on TBS.

WEDNESDAY: Gerard Schwarz conducts a "Mostly Mozart Festival Opening" on PBS' "Live From Lincoln Center." TBS offers back-to-back Bond films, with Sean Connery playing Secret Agent 007 in "Dr. No" and "From Russia With Love."

THURSDAY: A&E's "Biography" thanks Bob Hope for the memories, followed by "Sinatra in Japan," a 1985 concert featuring the well-known crooner at the Budokan Hall in Tokyo. Jack Lemmon, Tony Curtis and Marilyn Monroe star in 1959's "Some Like It Hot" on TNT.

FRIDAY: Kenny Rogers portrays a gambler (imagine that?) who becomes a casino security specialist in "MacShayne: Winner Takes All" on NBC. Performances by Michael Camilo, Rosemary Clooney and the Brecker Brothers highlight "Jacksonville Jazz XIV" on PBS.

SATURDAY: Host Barbara Walters leads viewers through an evening of entertainment and information as ABC looks at the AIDS crisis "In a New Light." HBO premieres Tom Cruise as a promising young lawyer who signs on with "The Firm." John Prine and Jimmie Dale Gilmore perform for PBS' "Austin City Limits."

HIGHLIGHTS

"Honor Thy Mother," a drama about a son tried for his stepfather's murder, will be rebroadcast Tuesday, July 5, on CBS.

Emmy Award winner Sharon Gless stars as a mother who refuses to believe her college-student son (William McNamara) is responsible for orchestrating a deadly attack on her wealthy husband.

The movie is based on the actual case of a North Carolina student who was accused of plotting to kill his stepfather to gain a large inheritance.

TRIVIA

Actor Ted Danson, best known for his bartending role on "Cheers," made his television debut on a short-lived soap opera called "Somerset."

SOAP WORLD

Cousins moves on from 'One Life'

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: I miss Tina (Karen Witter) and Cain (Christopher Cousins) on "One Life to Live." The show seems so boring without them. I think the writers tried to make Blair (Kassie Wesley) and Max (James DePaiva) take Tina and Cain's place to create excitement for the show, but it didn't work.

Max's cheating on Luna (Susan Batten) is just disgusting. Luna is supposed to be the one true love of his life. There are no other couples on the show that are as interesting to watch as Tina and Cain were.

I loved watching their crazy antics, and their love affair really heated up the screen. Is there any chance they could return? Also, I would like to know more about Cousins. He is one of my all-time favorite actors. - J. D. in New York

Dear Reader: There have been rumors floating around that the role of Tina would be recast, but nothing has happened so far. There has been no mention of Cain returning to the show.

Cousins was raised in Norman, Okla., and early on in life he had ambitions to be a painter, not an actor. He got his first taste of theater in high school.

"I took acting classes because everyone knew they were the easiest classes to take in high school," says Cousins. He later attended Boston University. During his summers, Cousins trained horses on a Colorado ranch.

After college, Cousins packed his bags and moved to Mexico to try his hand at painting. After eight months he decided that maybe acting wasn't so bad after all and headed for New York.

Cain was not Cousins' first role on a soap opera. He played Greg Houston on "Another World" and Colin Crawly on "As the World Turns."

Cousins left "OLTL" because he wanted to pursue other interests, which generally means he is looking for work in prime-time television, feature films and theater. He and Witter chose not to renew their contracts. Cousins is actively seeking work on both coasts.

When he is not working, Cousins enjoys painting, sketching and doing wood carvings.

What you should know about our Pricing Policy: Not all items in this publication are on sale. Percent and dollar savings are off regular prices on in-stock items. Selection may vary by showroom; some items may not be available through Mail Order. An item's reference retail price, indicated by the † symbol, is your guide to its regular selling price at department stores and similar retailers. It is not our present or former selling price. It is either the retail price suggested by the mfr. in this publication's distribution area or our own determination of full retail price based on customary retailer markups for similar merchandise. Best Values are exceptional regular prices.

Until Saturday, July 9th!

Don't procrastinate! These tremendously low prices from every department are good for one week only! Hurry in and save.
