Sen. Bivins visits Hereford Lions Club

State Sen. Teel Bivins, left, visits with Nolan Grady and Dan Hall following his address to the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday in the Hereford Community Center. Bivins focused on problems in the Criminal Justice System and, specifically, the increase in juvenile crime. He commended the community for taking action on economic development and for approving a juvenile curfew.

Bivins focuses on juvenile crime in talk to Lions Club

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

State Sen. Teel Bivins told members of the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday that criminal justice and juvenile crime will be big issues in the next session of the Texas Legislature.

"The real dilemma in criminal justice is that the Legislature can only react," said Bivins. He discussed some proposals that have been advanced to strengthen the laws on juvenile offenders.

The senator pointed out that Texas voters have created the largest prison system in the world, one that will provide 146,000 beds by 1996. He said the state will need $1.3 billion in new money just for operating costs in the next two years.

The Legislature rewrote the penal code in the last session, but there was still not enough attention given to juvenile crime, said Bivins. Among the needs listed by the senator were more capacity for the Texas Youth Commission--which has only 2,500 beds at present; better access to juvenile records, along with the lifting of some privacy rules; and a stronger juvenile probation system.

Bivins said he is a "strong proponent" for holding parents of juvenile offenders responsible for financial restitution. He also would like to see legislators focus on incentives for "playing by the rules." Bivins pointed out that those who enter the criminal justice system are provided room and board and free health care.

Bivins and other legislators are also studying alternative schools and boot camps for juvenile offenders. He proposes state participation in helping develop such programs. This would include, not only criminal activity, but students who are disruptive in the classrooms.

One committee has proposed that the state authorize teachers to ban students from their classes, as well as giving the principal and superintendent power to kick such students out of school--if an alternative school fails.

"It is a troubling trend," said Bivins, after quoting statistics on the increase in juvenile crime. "Too many people expect government to do more and more, but government is not going to turn things around. The people will make the difference; our society must show a willingness to show up and suit up," concluded Bivins.

The state senator from Amarillo was introduced by Lion Tom Simons, Deaf Smith County Judge, who praised Bivins' efforts and called him one of the outstanding senators in the state.

Senator's aide applauds pupils for U.S. Constitution program

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

The assembled group of fifth graders stood and, as a group, recited the Preamble to the U.S. Constitution, led by fellow students Clayton Blacksher and Kristy Pruitt.

When they were finished, Jennifer Crabtree, West Texas Regional Director for U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, looked in amazement at the Bluebonnet Intermediate School children.

"I have yet in my two days of travel run into an entire group of students who have it (the preamble) memorized," Crabtree said as she applauded the efforts of the students to learn the cornerstone of the document that established United States government.

Crabtree was at Bluebonnet on Wednesday afternoon to represent Gramm in celebrating the 207th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, and to help a few of the students sign a symbolic copy of the document themselves.

The 30-minute assembly was part of Constitution Week activities at the school and involved the school's entire fifth grade class.

Crabtree made her Hereford stop as part of an area swing to introduce children to the Constitution, obtain signatures on Constitution-like parchment and extol the document and the freedoms it created.

She stopped Wednesday morning in Dimmitt for a presentation there, then went from Hereford to Canyon to visit Lakeview Elementary School.

At Bluebonnet, she explained that Gramm is one of two senators from Texas who works in Washington D.C. with other senators to "develop laws and regulations to help us have a better way of life."

After students responded to a question that freedoms in the Constitution include freedom of speech and religion, Crabtree noted that the Constitution allows Americans numerous rights.

She said children have the freedom through the Constitution to take their allowance to the store and buy anything they want to, or to buy a postage stamp to mail a letter -- or even to stand in the middle of the room and swing their arms from side to side.

Crabtree read aloud a letter from Gramm to the school in which he praised the students for their participation in the Constitution program.

"It should never be forgotten that the effectiveness of American democracy has always depended upon an informed and involved citizenry.

U.S. forces disarming Haitian military group

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) - The U.S. military is ripping out the heart of the Haitian military, disarming the company that spearheaded the overthrow of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide three years ago.

U.S. troops late Wednesday occupied Camp d'Application, where the military stores heavy equipment and munitions, and a U.S. Special Forces battalion began sharing the barracks with Haitian soldiers.

American forces today were to begin moving V-150 armored vehicles, 44mm and 22mm anti-aircraft weapons, anti-tank weapons and artillery out to a soccer field where they will be "rendered inoperable."

"Symbolically, this is the end of coups d'etat in Haiti," Fritz Mevs, one of Haiti's richest businessmen, said Wednesday as he drove by the base in suburban Petionville. "The heavy weapons unit has been the tool of coup d'etat."

The dismantling of the weapons company is the result of talks Wednesday between the commander of the U.S. force, Army Lt. Gen. Henry Hugh Shelton, and Haitian army leader Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras.

Shelton said Cedras also agreed to rein in his soldiers and police to try to prevent a repeat of Tuesday's beatings, when police clubbed Haitians in full view of the American troops.

In an interview with CBS broadcast Wednesday night, Cedras said he told Shelton that measures were being taken to ensure "that members of the public force have more self-control."

Haitian police showed more restraint on Wednesday in shooting away crowds that came to the port to watch the arrival of more and more Americans and their military machines.

But they still shoved and threatened people, and in one case hurtled through a crowd in a van to break up a demonstration.

Cedras also said in the interview that he won't go into exile, because the agreement he signed Sunday with former President Jimmy Carter only requires him to retire from the army by Oct. 15 -- it says nothing about him leaving Haiti.

Aristide, who is to return to office under the agreement, finally voiced his support for the U.S. effort to restore democracy in his Caribbean homeland.

He objected to the part of the agreement that allowed Cedras to remain in power for almost a month and to stay in Haiti afterward.

Helicopters, planes and amphibious boats ferried in more American troops Wednesday. Shelton expected up to 10,000 troops by the end of Wednesday, not including 1,000 military police.

President Clinton said the military police were sent to monitor Haitian police "and by their own presence help to deter violence."

"The situation in Haiti will not change immediately but today is better than yesterday and yesterday was better than the day before," Clinton said. "We will keep going. We will make steady progress. We will restore democracy."

The American force is to begin fanning out into the countryside by Friday, trying to train traditionally repressive rural police and soldiers how to do their jobs more professionally.

Humanitarian aid to Haiti also will increase sharply as U.S. soldiers are deployed, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Madeleine Albright, said Wednesday.

But she reiterated that the United States will not ask the U.N. Security Council to lift the economic embargo that has crippled Haiti until the coup leaders step down and Aristide is back in office.

Administration officials, meanwhile, breathed a sigh of relief after finally coaxing Aristide from his hesitancy about the 11th-hour compromise that Clinton, through Carter, arranged to restore him to power.

Cold front, showers hit local area

By The Associated Press

A fast-moving cold was moving southward across Texas early today on the last full day of summer.

Hereford recorded .11 of an inch of rain, according to KPAN weather. The low was 43 degrees this morning after a high of 86 on Wednesday.

A few patches of light rain and showers were reported in the northern Panhandle, Permian Basin and eastern Trans Pecos early today. In North Texas, showers and thunderstorms were reported in the area from Wichita Falls eastward along the Red River.

The front was also accompanied by gusty north winds that caused temperatures to drop into the 40s in the Panhandle before dawn.

Forecasts called for much cooler temperatures and scattered showers and thunderstorms across the northern half of the state through tonight. The front will spread into South Texas by Friday morning.

Lows tonight will be in the 30s in the Panhandle and in the 40s and 50s elsewhere across West Texas, the 50s in North Texas and in the 60s in South Texas.

Highs Friday will be in the 60s and 70s in West Texas.

Electrical repairs at jail scheduled over weekend

A new electrical panel may be installed by the weekend to return fire alarm, airconditioning and ventilation systems to service in the Deaf Smith County jail.

Personnel from an Amarillo firm, Vitel Communications, will begin rewiring work Friday, reported David Castillo, jail administrator.

"If the new panel comes in, it could be installed, too," said Castillo. He said he has been assured the systems will be operational Monday.

A power surge or lightning strike on Sept. 8 burned out the fire alarm system at the jail.

Because the ventilation and airconditioning systems went through the same electrical panel, both were inactivated when the panel was removed, said Castillo.

A letter sent Tuesday from the Texas Commission on Jail Standards urged an immediate remedy to the problem.

Complaints from inmates about the problem had gone through Texas Rural Legal Aid to the commission.

Fans have been operating in the jail, some provided by families of prisoners and some by the county, Castillo said.

Approximately 100 inmates are housed in the jail. Three to five jailers are on duty for each shift, Castillo said.

Students present Constitution program

Bluebonnet students Kristy Pruitt and Clayton Blacksher lead other fifth graders in reciting the Preamble to the U.S. Constitution in a special assembly Wednesday. Jennifer Crabtree, West Texas director for U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, represented the senator at the school in celebrating the 207th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution.

Cool and windy

After a warm 86 degrees Wednesday, the mercury plunged to a low of 43 degrees Thursday morning. KPAN also measured .11-inch of rain. Temperatures are expected to drop to 40 degrees with northwest winds, 5-15 mph, Thursday night. Friday's high will be in the upper 50s and north winds will blow 20-30 mph, and gusty.

Junior class to serve supper

The Hereford High School junior class will hold its Junior Class Supper on Friday, Sept. 23, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the junior high cafeteria. On the menu will be soft tacos with all the fixings, beans, cobbler and choice of coffee or tea. Tickets are $4 each, with take-out orders 50 cents extra with no drink. Entertainment will be provided by Texas Country.

Carter has praise for Clinton

ATLANTA (AP) - Jimmy Carter's latest peace overture is aimed someplace closer to home: the White House.

Carter went out of his way to praise President Clinton Wednesday in an Associated Press interview and a university speech. The globe-trotting former president also disclosed that he received another diplomatic feeler: a telephone call from Cuban President Fidel Castro.

Carter, retired Gen. Colin Powell and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., secured the 11th-hour accord that averted a U.S. invasion of Haiti. But since Sunday, public tensions have risen between the Clinton administration and Carter because of his sharp criticism of the State Department's Haiti policy.

"In the aftermath of these trips, you always have a resurrection, particularly in the news media - 'Well, gee, President Clinton said this and Jimmy Carter said that, and now they're fighting with each other,'" Carter said in the interview.

Fort Worth man seeks casino development

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Add the historic Stockyards district in Fort Worth as a potential site for a casino if the Texas Legislature and state voters approve casino gambling in the state.

Holt Hickman, a businessman who owns a large chunk of the Stockyards district, announced at a news conference Wednesday his plans to build a 500-room luxury hotel in the heart of the 103-acre complex.

The development calls for convention and meeting facilities and a 100,000-square-foot casino containing 75 gaming tables and 2,000 slot machines.

The hotel could be expanded to 1,000 rooms.

"Should legalized casino gambling come to Texas, we're poised to help Fort Worth take advantage of all the opportunities it has to offer," Hickman said.

"Not only will Fort Worth and Tarrant County be able to enjoy a premier entertainment facility, it will reap the benefits of a projected $11.5 million each year in new taxes, yet the Stockyards Resort and Casino calls for no public funding," he said.

No information was provided on plans for the site if casino gambling in Texas is rejected.

The development is one of several being planned in Texas with the hope lawmakers will legalize casino gambling. Dallas, Houston and Port Isabel also are being promoted as sites for casinos.

Insurance company won't give records, facing heavy fines

AUSTIN (AP) - State regulators have proposed $150,000 in fines against State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. - the largest auto insurer in Texas - for refusing to turn over records when the agency investigates policyholder complaints against the company.

The Texas Department of Insurance "considers the refusal of State Farm to provide information to be a serious attack on the ability of TDI to regulate insurance in Texas," the agency said Wednesday.

State Farm spokeswoman Bobbie Clear said the company wouldn't release the information without a subpoena because the claim files include confidential material, such as medical records.

"This just doesn't really make a lot of sense," she said of the agency's charges.

She said State Farm has offered to work with the insurance department to draw up legislation that would allow regulators to get the information "they say they need to get their job done."

But the insurance department says it already has that authority, and that every other insurer is complying.

"With the exception of State Farm, insurance companies routinely comply with TDI information requests, and the department is able to handle the complaints quickly and efficiently," the agency said.

"State Farm recently began refusing to release such information unless subpoenaed by the department. Consumers who complained about State Farm have been left with their complaints unresolved due to State Farm's refusal to provide documents," the agency said.

State Farm has the right to contest the allegations in a public hearing. Texas Insurance Commissioner Robert Hunter will decide whether State Farm violated state insurance laws, and, if so, what the penalty will be.

State Farm ensures 2.7 million vehicles in Texas, about 30 percent of the market with more than $2 billion in premiums.

Obituaries

NEVA M. HENNINGTON

Sept. 22, 1994
Neva M. Hennington, 85, died early Thursday in Hereford.

Graveside services will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday in Restlawn Memorial Park with the Rev. J.L. Bozeman, retired Baptist minister, officiating. Arrangements are by Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Hennington was born in Big Square and was married to Vance Hennington in 1924 in Fort Sumner, N.M. He preceded her in death. She was a Baptist.

Survivors are two sons, Carl Hennington of Lovington, N.M., and Robert L. Hennington of Scottsdale, Ariz., four grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

MARGARET D. YARBROUGH

Sept. 20, 1994
Margaret Dena Yarbrough, 89, sister of Vena Townsend of Hereford, died Tuesday in Stamford.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in Kinney Funeral Home Chapel with burial in Rochester Cemetery.

Mrs. Yarbrough was born in Georgetown and worked in aircraft factories in Fort Worth during World War II. She had lived in Stamford before moving to Abilene in 1956. She also had lived in Rule. She was a member of the Church of God.

Survivors also include a daughter, Gloria Maxine Newell of Abilene; another sister, Geraldine Blake of El Paso, three grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Carter said a similar purported rift between the two was reported after his return in June from North Korea. Carter helped arrange a series of accords after the Clinton administration had threatened sanctions, which Carter opposed.

"I look on President Clinton as having shown superb political courage on very difficult issues," Carter said. Clinton, he said, cast aside objections from advisers on Korea and Haiti to "say 'OK, Let's take a chance.' And it paid off."

Carter heaped more praise on Clinton when he spoke to a group of students and faculty Wednesday night at Emory University.

"People have said Clinton is too wobbly, why isn't the firm like Ronald Reagan, and why wasn't the firm like George Bush?," Carter said.

But he said the Gulf War and the invasions of Panama and Grenada could have been avoided if either Reagan or Bush had turned to the Carter Center or similar peacemaking organizations for help.

"Those presidents didn't have the political courage to make one last effort for peace. President Clinton did," Carter said.

Yet in the AP interview, Carter continued criticizing the State Department for avoiding links to the Haitian military rulers.

Carter also urged a re-thinking of the U.S. hard-line policy against Cuba, saying Cuban people "have been suffering severely under an American embargo."

Castro telephoned him during the recent Cuban exodus, Carter said. He said his conversation was "pleasant," but wouldn't discuss it in detail without his notes at hand. He said Castro did mention the 1980 Mariel boatlift, the election-year crisis Castro handed Carter by allowing 125,000 Cubans to flee to Florida.

STUDENTS

Proper stewardship of responsibilities which accompany American citizenship is essential if we are to preserve democracy and secure America's future," Gramm said in the letter.

"You represent America's next generation of leadership. It is my hope that you will become a student of the Constitution; that you will learn to love and appreciate the impact of the Constitution on our way of life. I salute your participation in commemorating the Constitution's 207th anniversary and remind you that our system of government is the envy of the world," the senator concluded.

Materials for the presentation were provided by the National Constitution Center in Philadelphia, Pa.

Ten students -- two from each fifth grade class in the school -- were selected to sign a parchment paper attached to a blown-up copy of the Constitution.

Crabtree said that the paper would be taken, along with similar pages collected by Gramm staffers working throughout Texas, and taken to the National Constitution Center next week, where they will be placed in the Hall of Fame.

As each of the children signed their names to the paper, they were presented with a pin that read, "I signed the Constitution."

The assembly concluded with Crabtree presenting a special certificate from Gramm to school principal Darla Baggett thanking Bluebonnet for its participation in Constitution Week activities.

By The Associated Press
One ticket bought in Houston correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot is worth $45 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 7, 10, 16, 17, 23, 47.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $3 million.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have business in London and travel there frequently. One of my greatest pleasures is reading the London Times. Last week, I clipped an item to share with my wife because I thought it was pretty funny. She roared when she read it and said, "Why don't you send this to Ann Landers' I'll bet she prints it."

So, Ann, here it is. I say, "Three cheers for the Brits."--Longtime Long Island Newsday Reader

DEAR L.T.L.I. Reader: I loved it. Thanks so much for sending it on. You bet I'll print it. Here it is:

"Britain has become a nation of jokers when it comes to naming children. One of the country's busiest registrars has witnessed such unforgettable moments as a Mr. and Mrs. Jordan calling their son River and the child of a family named Beer being registered with the name Bottled. Maureen Price, superintendent registrar of Stafford, has collected a long list of strange names over 14 years. She is sympathetic to the odd choices. 'We are dealing with people who are often very emotional and happy with a newborn child, so it is important we understand their needs and help them as much as we can,' she said.

"There's nothing to say people cannot call children whatever they like. Only if names are really objectionable would we need to get special clearance or warn the parents that the name could be embarrassing in later life. Even then, we cannot stop them."

"Her list of the weirdest names includes Mr. and Mrs. Wall, who named their boy Stone; Mr. and Mrs. Waters, whose daughter was called Mineral; and Mr. and Mrs. Castle, who named their son Windsor.

"There was also a Mr. and Mrs. Belcher, who called their son Prince Charles, a Mr. and Mrs. Pitt, who called their son Frankenstein, a girl registered as Rheumatism, another called Daft and one child known officially as Fatso."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter has two children, a boy, age 6, and a girl, 2. The girl totally dominates the household, and she always has. Their family activities are often restricted because of this child's obnoxious behavior. There are many places they dare not take her.

I no longer have any desire to include them when we have family get togethers. The boy's table manners are atrocious. His head is in the plate, and he heats everything when his hands. The girl's constant chattering disrupts the entire meal and makes conversation impossible. I am aware that this behavior is not the children's fault but the parents'. Please tell me, how does one broach this sensitive subject?--Concerned Grandmother, Charleston, S.C.

DEAR CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER: If you admonish the parents, you will surely end up in a four-door family fight and accomplish nothing. GO to work on the children.

be patient with the little girl. She's in the middle of the "terrible twos" and will eventually outgrow them. You could perform a truly valuable service by correcting your grandchildren in a loving way and teaching them some manners: To cut them out of your life at this early age would be a big mistake. You would surely regret it.

Do you have questions about sex, but no one to talk to? Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," is frank and to the point. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Teens, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Chilling news about buildings

The next time you enjoy the comfort of a large office or apartment building, you may give a few warm thoughts to the equipment that keeps the climate in the place under control.

Until recently, cooling was generally done by centrifugal chillers that used chemicals called CFCs. Then, it was discovered these chemicals contribute to depleting the ozone layer that protects earth from ultraviolet rays. Now, building owners all over the world face the challenge of phasing out CFCs because of a production ban to go into effect January 1, 1996.

Fortunately, the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has formally approved three other refrigerants that can be used instead of CFCs. By the end of 1994, more than 13,200 CFC centrifugal chillers--almost 17 percent of the 80,000 nationwide--will be either converted or replaced. It will take many years, however, to complete the task.

One immediate benefit of the new, high-efficiency chillers is a marked reduction in electrical usage. This reduces operating costs and helps pay for the new units.

According to a survey by the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI), one strategy used by many multiple unit owners is to retire chillers according to their age and operating efficiency and use the CFCs recovered in the remaining CFC chillers.

The ARI offers these other tips for owners of CFC equipment.

-Observe no-venting and refrigerant-recovery regulations.

-Comply with regulations on the repair of substantial leaks that may require replacement or retrofit of a unit within 12 months and call the EPA (1-800-296-1996) if you have any questions.

-Register recovery equipment and maintain refrigerant usage records.

-Technicians who recover CFC refrigerants must pass EPA-approved certification tests.

-Designate an inventory of chillers and refrigeration equipment noting type of refrigerant and quantity used, age, service history and costs and then contact manufacturers for expert assistance.

Supper tickets being sold

The Hereford Pilot Club is planning its Mexican stack supper from 5-7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 30, in the Hereford Junior High School cafeteria. Tickets, which are being sold by club members or can be purchased at the door, are priced at $4.50 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12 years of age. Carry-out orders are available. Anna Solomon, at right, is shown selling tickets to Nora Guerrero.

Scratch baking is easy when using six steps

Scratch baking needn't be just a nostalgic memory. In less than a half hour, you can whip up a muffin recipe. In less than an hour, a loaf of your favorite fruit or nut bread.

These types of breads are called quick breads for good reason. Because you use baking powder and baking soda instead of yeast to make the dough rise, these breads go together quickly. You're likely to have the ingredients on hand, and there's no need for an electric mixer. Six Steps to Success

1. "Ledges on the edges" are those unwanted rims around the edges of muffins or quick bread loaves. To get nicely rounded tops without ledges, grease the muffin cups or baking pans on the bottoms and only halfway up the sides.

2. Avoid bread with peaks, tunnels and tough texture by stirring the batter only enough to moisten the ingredients. It helps to thoroughly mix the egg and milk together before adding them to the dry ingredients. Don't worry if there are a few dry spots of flour left in the batter.

3. Everyone likes a light-textured, tall muffin. Once the batter is mixed, pop the muffins or quick bread into the preheated oven right away. Batters with baking powder and baking soda need to be baked immediately so that the leavening power is not lost.

4. Check your bread at the minimum baking time. Muffins are ready when their tops are golden. Quick breads are done when a wooden toothpick inserted near the center of each loaf comes out clean. (A slight crack across the top of a loaf is typical of quick breads.) Quick breads that are overdone can be dry and too dark.

5. To keep sides and bottoms crisp, cool muffins and quick breads in their baking pans only as long as the recipe directs.

6. Wait to slice quick-bread loaves until they are completely cool. Storing these loaves overnight usually makes the bread less crumbly and easier to slice. Wrap the cooled bread tightly in foil and store at room temperature.

Herd to host Frenship's offensive juggernaut

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

No, that Frenship-Caprock score you saw in the paper wasn't a mistake: Frenship really won 63-0. Those Tigers (3-0) bring their offensive machine to Whiteface Stadium at 7:30 p.m. Friday to face the 2-1 Herd.

Only about half of that 63-point onslaught was legitimate, Herd coach Danny Haney said, but half is enough.

"They led 35-0 at the half," Haney said "Caprock turned the ball over four times in the second half and gave them some easy scores. Those 35 points they posted in the first half were legitimate: drives and big plays, things like that."

Frenship's other two wins were high-scoring, too: 28-21 over Midland High and 33-7 over Hobbs, N.M.

The Frenship offense has many weapons, Haney said.

"Offensively, they've got a great quarterback (Chad Reynolds)--he's second in the state in passing right now--an outstanding receiver in Donnie Hart, and a big tailback, (Ray) Witherspoon at 247 pounds."

Frenship players top every list of Class 4A area statistical leaders compiled by the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

--Reynolds' 659 yards passing tops the field by 263 yards; he's hit 36-of-60 passes for seven touchdowns and hasn't been intercepted once.

--Hart's 19 receptions and 428 yards are more than anyone else in the area has, and his seven touchdowns (five receiving) and three two-point conversions let him lead the area in scoring.

--Witherspoon has 136 yards in only one game, which leads the area, according to the AJ. (Hereford's tailbacks fall prey to technicalities: Marquise Brown has 151 yards in one game, but he got one carry in the season opener, his total is 152 yards for two games. Armando Zambrano had 269 yards in three games, but he had carries in only two of those games.)

"What Frenship wants to do is pound you with that big tailback, then fake and throw," Haney said. "They like to throw to the Hart kid deep. We've got a tremendous challenge defensively."

Frenship leads the Avalanche-Journal area in offense with 445.3 yards per game. Even with that high total on offense, their defense is third with 199.6 yards per game. For reference, Hereford is third on offense (353.0) and seventh on defense (263.0).

"Defensively, they're real big up front; they average 245 pounds on the line," Haney said. "They run lots of different stuff on defense. They do lots of stunting."

"The thing we've got to do on offense is handle all their stunts, so we don't have a bad play. We have to control the ball and keep the defense off the field, and keep their offense off the field. We've got to convert the long drives and put it in the end zone, and we've got to take advantage of the breaks the defense gives you to put it in the end zone."

Injury report: The Herd is virtually without injury. Linebacker Martin Martinez sat out part of the Coronado game after he pulled a calf muscle in the game, but he'll be fine Friday, Haney said.

Hereford and Frenship have met eight times--each year since 1986--and Hereford has won five times. Frenship romped in last year's game, 35-7 at Wolforth. Hereford won easily the year before, 27-7, in Hereford.

Ready for Frenship

Hereford defensive end Richard Hicks (shown here tangling with Coronado lineman Tim McGrew and eyeing quarterback Rex Henderson) will have his hands full with Frenship's powerful offense. The Herd and Tigers clash at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Whiteface Stadium.

Herd netters to host Canyon

The Hereford High School tennis team can come a lot closer to the regional tennis tournament with a win over Canyon, which comes to Hereford Saturday for a 1 p.m. team match.

Hereford is 1-1 in district, with four matches left to play, but two of those are against Caprock and Dumas, traditional non-powers in team tennis, and one match is against Pampa, which Hereford beat in an earlier non-district match by the dominating count of 14-4.

Borger, which beat Hereford Tuesday, should win District 1-4A. That leaves one berth in the regional tournament, and Herd coach Ed Coplen said Saturday's match could decide who gets it.

"Whoever wins this, I think, will take second and qualify for regionals," Coplen said.

The match is set for 1 p.m., but Coplen said it may be moved to 10 a.m. if the Canyon coach agrees.

Selig argues before Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) - Acting commissioner Bud Selig is back before Congress today, testifying about why baseball should keep its antitrust exemption.

Selig, baseball's leader for the past two years, will be defending his sport following the cancellation of the World Series for the first time since 1904.

In other sports, the football team hosts Frenship at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Whiteface Stadium, the cross country team will run in a meet Saturday in Amarillo, and the volleyball team will take a break from district play and host River Road Saturday at Whiteface Gym. The junior varsity starts at 2 p.m., and the varsity will start about 20 minutes after the JV match ends.

The golf teams will continue fall play Saturday, with the boys at Huber Golf Course in Borger and the girls at Hidden Hills Golf Course in Pampa.

Sub-varsity football games start the weekend off tonight. The junior varsity and sophomore teams both play Frenship at 7 p.m. in Wolforth, while the freshman team (A only) hosts Canyon at 5 p.m.

The freshman volleyball team will host the Plainview JV at 10 a.m. Saturday in Whiteface Gym. On Monday, the freshmen will host Canyon at 6 p.m., while the Hereford Junior High volleyball teams will play at Canyon.

The Nazarene Christian Academy volleyball team picked up their fourth win Thursday in Amarillo, beating Bible Heritage 15-9, 15-2.

Rachel Chavez served for six points, with one ace, in the first game, while Lyndi Carlile served for four points, also with one ace, in the second. Carlile led the Lady Eagles with four kills.

Players of the Week: Tailback Marquise Brown ran for 151 yards in his return from a sprained ankle and was named offensive Player of the Week. Cornerback Michael Marquez, with several big tackles, got the honor on defense, and punter Brian Betzen was honored on special teams. On one play, Betzen salvaged a 30-yard punt even after a high snap went 20 yards behind him.

Johnson criticizes Switzer for missing team meeting

IRVING, Texas (AP) - After months of tense silence between Dallas Cowboys coach Barry Switzer and his predecessor, Jimmy Johnson, the gloves may be coming off.

Johnson told USA Today that he was "shocked" to learn Switzer did not attend a team meeting the day before the Sept. 11 game against Houston.

Switzer instead traveled to Arkansas to watch his son play in a college football game.

Johnson also said some Cowboys players he did not identify have criticized Switzer to him.

Switzer, he said, "doesn't think he needs to burn the projector till midnight. A couple of players have told me they better not be criticized for not focusing when their coach doesn't focus, either."

When asked about the comments Wednesday, Switzer told reporters that his presence at the game- eve meeting would have made no difference to his team's readiness to play the Oilers the next day.

"I've told you all along that my children are a priority to me," he said. "Jimmy told the world that football was first for him, that his family wasn't as much a priority. I think it's been documented that's not my case. As I told my players, and Jimmy knows this, there is nothing a coach can do on Saturday night to win a game for his team (the next day)."

As for the what players might have criticized Switzer to Johnson, All-Pro receiver Michael Irvin said to count him out.

"I haven't talked to Jimmy since he was in town last spring for the opening of his restaurant," Irvin told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "Understand this: My allegiance is to the guys in this locker room. When I've got concerns, or when I've got something to say, I say it to them."

Tackle Mark Tuinei, who also played for Johnson, was more emphatic. "Tell him to stick with HBO and whatever else he's touching. He doesn't have to stick his hands in our business," he told the Star-Telegram.

Struggling Oilers shuffle positions

HOUSTON (AP) - It's the fourth game of the season and the Houston Oilers are still looking for a winning lineup.

Their latest attempt to break their 0-3 start came on Wednesday with players shuffling positions - again.

Bruce Matthews returned to center after one week at left tackle. Cody Carlson took most of the snaps at quarterback and Blaine Bishop became the starting strong safety in place of injured Bubba McDowell.

McDowell injured his left knee during the fourth quarter of Sunday's 15-7 loss to the Buffalo Bills. He underwent surgery on Wednesday and will be out six weeks.

Bishop, who played well in McDowell's absence last season, sees another chance to show his ability.

"It's unfortunate for Bubba, and I feel bad for him," Bishop said. "But it's a great opportunity for me. I enjoy a great challenge. I play with a lot of emotion and enthusiasm, and that's what I want to bring to the defense."

Bishop started the final two regular-season games last season for McDowell. He was a key in a 10-7 victory over the 49ers with a sack and forced fumble on quarterback Steve Young. Bishop's recovery set up the Oilers' only touchdown.

Line coach Bob Young demoted Brad Hopkins to second team and shifted Matthews from center to left tackle prior to last week's game.

All parties agree that it didn't work.

"That wasn't one of my most enjoyable experiences," Matthews said. "At the time, it seemed like the thing to do, but it didn't work out. I guess I had too high an opinion of myself. I should have said no (to the move)."

Hopkins took his demotion and promotion in stride.

"I've got to start up again and get myself physically and mentally prepared to get things done so we don't have any more interruptions," Hopkins said. "If I do the right things, nobody can say anything."

Instability at quarterback has hindered the Oilers in their first three games.

Carlson separated his shoulder in the opener against Indianapolis and hasn't played since. But he took most of the snaps at Wednesday's practice and expects to play against Cincinnati on Sunday.

"I feel like I'll be good enough to play this week," Carlson said. "I think the decision's made. But I don't make the final decision. I'll approach the week as if I'm starting."

Steelers' coach, PK differ in philosophy

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Three weeks into the NFL season, Pittsburgh Steelers kicker Gary Anderson and coach Bill Cowher basically agree they disagree.

Anderson likes nice, high, deep, booming kickoffs down the middle of the field. Cowher wants them strategically placed to avoid the runbacks that have dogged the Steelers for two seasons.

But Anderson does agree Cowher is the boss, and what he says is what goes.

Despite some rather harsh criticism from Cowher for apparently disregarding his instructions in a 31-21 victory Sunday over the Colts, Anderson said he understands why the coach was upset.

"There's no question I need to be kicking the ball a little higher," Anderson said Wednesday. "If he wants to emphasize hang time, I'll do that. I'll kick the ball with more hang time."

The Steelers are allowing opponents an NFL-high 32.7 yards per kickoff return, including a 95-yard touchdown by the Colts' Robert Humphrey.

Of Anderson's 12 kickoffs, only two have reached the 5-yard line. The hang time has been 3.4 to 3.5 seconds, a half-second less than the 3.9 to 4.0 most NFL coaches want.

Cowher initially said that Anderson's kicks weren't to blame for the blown coverage, but changed his mind after watching game films.

Cowher instructed Anderson to kick to the right side of the field, apparently to avoid Humphrey. Instead, Anderson's kicks were mostly straight down the middle.

"Obviously, a kicker likes to kick the ball high and deep down the middle of the field, but Bill Cowher places more emphasis on directional kicking," Anderson said. "The easiest thing is to line up and blast the ball ... but he's the coach."

Cowher was especially terse in discussing his special teams, snapping off responses or giving pointed answers when asked about Anderson.

"I'm not going to point fingers," Cowher said. "There are two elements to covering kicks: the kick and the coverage. We're not getting a consistent effort from either part."

Anderson accepted part of the blame, but also pointed out he's only one of only 11 players on the coverage team - and is the player least responsible for the tackle.

"Very obviously we have a lot of problems. And when you're the kicker, you're the first guy who touches the ball. If the kick isn't in the exact spot, who takes the heat?" Anderson said. "It's like when the offense didn't (do much) against Dallas, who takes the heat? The quarterback."

Anderson, 35, denied that missing preseason camp has adversely affected his kicking or leg strength, or that he was preoccupied with contract talks that have ended for now.

Anderson, who initially wanted $1 million a year, is in the final year of a contract worth $400,000 this season. The Steelers pulled their $812,500-a-year offer off the table when Anderson held out in training camp and are offering substantially less.

Still, Anderson said he wants to play in Pittsburgh, despite the tension with Cowher that apparently began during the kicker's long holdout.

"My goal has always been to end my career in Pittsburgh," Anderson said.

Major League teams may let anyone play

NEW YORK (AP) - Don't be surprised if you don't recognize many names on spring training rosters.

By next spring, the AL and NL could resemble glorified minor leagues. Teams are slashing staffs and officials are talking about using any players who show up.

"You have to prepare now for the unknown, and I don't think anybody knows how long it's going to be," acting commissioner Bud Selig said. "You prepare for the worst and hope for the best."

Two management officials, speaking on the condition of anonymity, say owners are contemplating starting spring training next year with any available players, including major leaguers who break ranks, minor leaguers willing to suit up and players from Latin America and possibly Japan.

Selig, speaking by telephone Tuesday from Milwaukee, said it was too early to make those decisions. Union head Donald Fehr said he isn't trying to figure out management's intentions yet.

"If you look at the pattern of this so far, you have to assume the worst," agent Tom Reich said.

Plano East's football program gains on rival

By JOHN MCFARLAND
Associated Press Writer
PLANO, Texas (AP) - Plano East has long been "the other" high school football team in this suburb just north of Dallas.

Crosstown rival Plano has played in eight state championship games over the past 30 years, winning six of them.

Plano East, meanwhile, has never been to the big game. The Panthers have made the playoffs six times their 13-year football history, but advanced past the second round just twice.

New Plano East coach Scott Phillips, who has won state titles at two other schools, plans to change all that.

"I think sometimes people refer to us as the stepson or stepchild in a lot of ways. I don't think Plano East has to take a back seat to anybody," says Phillips, who is also the school's athletic director.

The Panthers are 3-0 and ranked 10th in this week's Associated Press poll. Plano, Class 5A Division I runnerup last year, is 2-1 and unranked.

If Plano East can hold on and surpass Plano as the town's football power, it would be just a small step for Phillips, who's setting his sights much higher for himself and his coaching staff.

"Because we've been fortunate enough to have won a couple of those titles, I think that's the first thing people anticipate, that we can do it again here," Phillips said. "And of course, that's our goal. We want to do it this year."

Phillips first realized that goal in 1989, when his Groveton team went 16-0 and won the Class 2A state championship. In 1992, his 4A Waxahachie team also won all 16 games and a state title.

Even though he's never had a losing season and has a career record of 155-26-4, Phillips said he doesn't feel any pressure to bring a title to Plano East.

"I think if this was Plano Senior High, there'd be a lot of pressure to win because they're used to it - and hopefully that same situation will occur here," said Phillips, 42.

But the players are putting pressure on themselves.

"We want to listen to him because he knows how to win," said senior quarterback Jeff Whitley. "Everybody's really pumped up. We really do believe we can win a state championship, and that's what we're working to accomplish."

"There's a whole new attitude on this team," added safety Aaron Easterling.

The transition, however, wasn't easy for some players, especially those whose post-touchdown celebrations were too much for a coach who stresses discipline.

"One Friday night I got on a player pretty heavy," Phillips said. "He came dancing off the field, then he flopped around down on the ground. I guess he didn't understand what I expect of him. That is not tolerated."

Phillips' players aren't allowed to talk trash, tear their helmets off after a score, do end zone dances or use profanity.

"We don't act like that," says Phillips, who disciplines players with extra workouts or "licks," swats to the rear with a wooden paddle that are approved by the players' parents.

"One of the things that sticks out in my mind the most is that he was a disciplinarian," said Rodney Thomas, who played on Groveton's 1989 championship team and is now a star running back at Texas A&M.

"But he wanted you to follow strict rules for a reason, and that was to build team unity. I think when you have that, you're going to have a championship team," he said.

Phillips says his program is designed to "build high school football players and better people, better students, better citizens of the community that they're going to live in."

He's been preaching that philosophy since 1975, when he landed his first coaching job, as an assistant under his brother, Steve, at West Hardin.

In 1980, Phillips was promoted to head coach at Class A High Island, where he had been defensive coordinator.

Phillips went 42-10-2 there before moving up to 2A Groveton.

With the Indians, he went 60-8-2 from 1985-89. Most of those losses came during his one non-winning season, a 5-5 finish in 1986.

At Waxahachie, Phillips was 49-8 from 1990-1993.

Because Phillips has been successful moving up level-by-level in high school, he realizes the next logical step would be to coach in college.

But he's not sure that's something he'd be like.

"I feel like I have the best job in the state of Texas," he said. "I don't know whether that opportunity would ever lend itself, or if I would take it if it did."

Then again, years of coaching also have taught him not to plan too far ahead.

"It's not just a matter of whether or not you want to stay somewhere," he said. "Sometimes they don't want you to stay."

BASEBALL

executive director of a group called Sports Fans United.

Reps. Sherwood L. Boehlert, R-N.Y., and Michael Bilirakis, R-Fla., will conduct the hearing in Washington.

On Wednesday, Fehr was in Tampa, Fla., the second stop of his seven-city tour to brief players on the failed negotiations that now threaten spring training.

In his purple pinstripe suit, gold-rimmed shades and white stretch limo, Detroit Tigers second baseman Lou Whitaker didn't look much like a striking worker when he arrived for the union meeting.

Whitaker wasn't too concerned how that would look to fans who already have seen the strike lead to cancellation of the baseball season and the World Series.

"I'm rich. I make money," Whitaker said with a smile. "I got a Rolls Royce, limo, big house. What's going to make me look bad?"

Whitaker was among 47 players from 20 teams who met Fehr on Wednesday. Players, who struck Aug. 12, still say they'll never accept the salary vap owners are demanding.

Phillips' players aren't allowed to talk trash, tear their helmets off after a score, do end zone dances or use profanity.

"We don't act like that," says Phillips, who disciplines players with extra workouts or "licks," swats to the rear with a wooden paddle that are approved by the players' parents.

"One of the things that sticks out in my mind the most is that he was a disciplinarian," said Rodney Thomas, who played on Groveton's 1989 championship team and is now a star running back at Texas A&M.

"But he wanted you to follow strict rules for a reason, and that was to build team unity. I think when you have that, you're going to have a

Scholar discovers biblical itinerary

By DAVID BRIGGS
AP Religion Writer

Israel has its roots in the Exodus of bands of slaves from Egypt. And it is to Egypt that a scholar has returned to discover evidence of the detailed biblical itinerary of the flight to the Promised Land.

In an article in the latest issue of the Biblical Archaeology Review, Charles R. Krahmalkov says that Egyptian maps from the Late Bronze Age period, when the Exodus occurred, list sites described in the Book of Numbers.

The maps provide at least a partial answer for some modern scholars who question the historical authenticity of the Exodus account because archaeologists have found no evidence that the cities of Dibon and Hebron existed in the period from 1400 B.C. to 1200 B.C., according to Krahmalkov, a professor of ancient Near Eastern languages and northwest Semitic philology at the University of Michigan.

"This is a historical exercise. I am a historian," Krahmalkov said in an interview. "For me, it's merely a confirmation that the historians of ancient Israel did preserve an amazing record of that period."

But John van Seters, a professor of biblical literature at the University of North Carolina, said the itinerary in Numbers 33 is not historical.

Even if it could be shown that the cities of Dibon and Hebron existed in the Late Bronze Age period, he said, archaeologists know that some of the other cities listed in the biblical itineraries "simply were not there."

Numbers 33 lists Israel's itinerary from Egypt to the border of Canaan. The Transjordanian route taken by the Israeli invaders as a prelude to their conquest of Palestine included the ancient city of Dibon.

Elsewhere, in Numbers 13, Moses sent spies to look over Hebron in preparation for the Israelite invasion. When the invasion came, Krahmalkov notes, Hebron was a principal target, according to the books of Joshua and Judges.

Some scholars who question the authenticity of the Exodus accounts have pointed out that excavations at Tell Dhiban, ancient Dibon, have revealed nothing earlier than the ninth century B.C. And some also believe it was only at the beginning of the 10th century B.C. - again, long after the Exodus is believed to have occurred - that Hebron was regarded as an important center.

With regard to Numbers 33, van Seters said the itinerary is artificial. "You're just whistling in the wind to try to identify most of the places that are listed on that list," he says.

But Krahmalkov said that the Egyptian maps from the Late Bronze Age period, when Egypt ruled Palestine, provide evidence that places mentioned in the biblical accounts, including Dibon and Hebron, did exist.

Krahmalkov said this does not confirm the existence of specific persons or events, although he realizes some of those who believe in the historical authenticity of the Exodus passages in the Bible will greet the findings warmly.

He said he hopes that the finding will at least encourage archaeologists to reconsider their investigations of some of the cities.

"The maps show that the Palestine ... shown in the story of the Exodus and the conquest of Palestine agrees with the Palestine and the roads in the Late Bronze Age period," he said.

To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have a terrible problem when it comes to urination. It's not when I am alone, only in public restrooms or when I have to give a urine sample. The knowledge of someone being in the same room with me, or knowing someone is waiting for me, terrifies me and keeps me from urinating. This has gone on for years and has kept me from trying to get into the armed forces. I assume this is all psychological. Am I correct? Can it be helped through hypnosis or some sort of therapy? — Concerned.

ANSWER: The condition is common enough to have a name, "bashful kidney." It is indeed a phobia, a psychological problem.

Because phobias arise from irrational fears, the best answer is to unlearn the fear. For that, you need professional guidance.

One therapy involves placing the phobic patient in the panic-producing situation until the phobia effect subsides. Often, that takes the same course of desensitization to a physical irritant or allergen. The therapist gradually increases exposure intensity. For people with a phobia, the desensitization diminishes the barrage of anxiety signals bombarding the brain.

If I were you, I would not tolerate the problem any longer. Talk to your family doctor.

Will you keep me apprised of your progress? Thanks.

The anxiety report I'm sending you contains more information. Others can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue—SR 142, Box 5539, River-ton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (52 cents) No. 10 envelope.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Have you come up with anything new to help people like me — with vitiligo? Anyway, can you tell me what exactly causes it? Could streptococcus or staphylococcus be involved? — M.V.

ANSWER: Vitiligo is a loss of pigment-producing cells of the skin. Where those cells have died, blotches or colorless skin appear.

Most vitiligo lies in the realm of the unknown, but as with many medical unknowns of late, the accusatory finger points toward the immune system, which often seems to turn capriciously, it seems, upon various body structures. In this case, it targets pigment cells.

At other times, vitiligo may be part of a spectrum of signs of another illness, such as thyroid disease, diabetes or pernicious anemia.

Also, previous sites of skin infection can leave local patches of depigmentation. That is the only way I can imagine staph or strep germs being involved. Both are common skin-infecting organisms.

Vitiligo patients should protect depigmented areas from sunlight, since they burn easily.

There are cosmetic cover-ups for such skin defects, and there are ways to re-establish pigment production. Use of psoralen drugs coupled with "ultraviolet A" light exposure is one therapy tried.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When I take a step I do not feel my feet touch the ground. I then have to sit down until I can walk again. It is frightening. I have never seen you write on this. Please do. — M.K.S.

ANSWER: I'm at a total loss. You should see a doctor right away, one who can get to the bottom of whatever lies behind your troubling symptom. I would start with a neurologist.

Kindly keep me updated by writing again, with a bit more detail.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a competitive swimmer. I have started running to keep my body in shape during the off-season. But I have a problem, which I think you would call "side stitches." After a short time of running, I get these sharp pains in my side. I have been advised to do some stretch exercises, but the pains are still there. I also tried running before or after meals, and that doesn't seem to make any difference. Nothing I do seems to help. I would love to continue running. Do you have any suggestions for me? What could be causing this problem? — S.L.

ANSWER: The pains you describe sound like so-called side stitches. I don't know why you would have them while running but not while swimming. Perhaps it has to do with different muscles used or different breathing techniques.

In general, though, side stitches seem to represent a cramping of the diaphragm muscle, which may be getting shortchanged in blood supply. Some say that intestinal gas is involved.

To deal with side stitches, you can try breathing through pursed lips. That changes the way the diaphragm works, and altering that can abort the pain. Raising an arm overhead on the side-stitch side also can work. Some end their side stitch by pressing their fingertips into the pain area.

A more deliberate answer is to prevent the side stitches entirely. You can do that by altering your running program. Start cutting back on your running intensity. When you become accustomed to the reduced, pain-free intensity, stay with it awhile. Then, gradually adapt to greater intensities over time.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 46-year-old woman. I walk three days a week for 30 minutes each day. I don't perspire. A friend says I should. Does sweating indicate the quality of your workout? — Sr. J.

ANSWER: The heart rate is the best measure of an exercise's effectiveness. Perspiration is not a reliable sign — it is just the body's way of getting rid of heat generated by exercising muscles.

Many variables enter the perspiration picture, not the least of which is the ambient temperature. We all perspire more on a hot, humid day.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Readers: Do you have any old or unused furniture that can still be utilized? If you do, how about donating it to a good cause.

Battered women's shelters and many other shelters are in need of furniture, clothes and toiletries such as toothbrushes, toothpaste, shampoo, soap and razors.

Your donation is passed on to individuals and families who are trying to get a fresh start.

If you'd like to make a donation, call your local battered women's shelter or United Way for a group in need. They can tell you where the nearest drop-off point is, or, if you have a piece of furniture that is too large for you to move, they can probably send someone out to pick it up.

Any donations are greatly appreciated. You may never know how much a chair or bed means to someone. Please be sure the items you give are clean and in decent condition. — Heloise

Five hints to remember about videotapes:

• Break off the small square tab on the back of the tape to prevent accidental erasing of important videos, like weddings or birthdays.

• Don't store videotapes on top of the TV. The magnetic field produced by it could cause the tapes to become erased.

• Tapes should be rewound all the way to the beginning or fast-forwarded to the end before storing to help extend their shelf life.

• Don't play a videotape immediately after bringing it from heat into a cool area. Moisture could condense in the tape, making the video head stick.

• Store tapes vertically, never flat, or you could damage the tape, causing a distorted picture when played.

Jose Garza receives scholarship

Jose A. Garza Jr., son of Joe A. Garza Sr. and Cecilia Gamez Garza, is a 1994 Academic Scholarship Recipient at Texas A&M University. The student received the Aggie Spirit Award and will be awarded $4,000 over four years.

Garza was among 765 exceptional young men and women at the university to receive an academic scholarship for his outstanding contributions to the school. He is a graduate of Hereford High School.

Committees formed by 4-H Council

Several committees were formed when members of the Deaf Smith County 4-H Council met recently at the Hereford Community Center.

Committees will serve on the upcoming events: Food show, fashion show and rabbit show.

The Deaf Smith County Agricultural Assistant Vance Christie spoke to the group about the Project Show which will be held prior to the Young Farmers Stock Show in January 1995.

It was also announced that the Deaf Smith County 4-H Awards Banquet has been scheduled Sept. 25.

The District Council report was given by Cady Auckerman and it was noted that the district council meeting is planned Nov. 14 in Borger.

The next local council meeting will be held in October.

Karon Harder presided over the business meeting, and Betsy Weaver and Craig Campbell led the pledges to the American flag and 4-H flag.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR WASTE DISPOSAL PERMIT AMENDMENT

CLIFFORD A. SKILES, 1506 West Park Avenue, Hereford, Texas 79045 has applied to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (Commission) for an amendment to Permit No. 03475 to authorize an increase in the capacity of the feedlot from 5,010 to 10,000 head and to incorporate improvements constructed after the permit was originally issued. Stormwater is retained in two playa lakes. Wastewater from the playa lakes is disposed of by evaporation and/or irrigation on agricultural land. Manure/solids is disposed of as fertilizer on agricultural land. No discharge of pollutants into the waters of the State is authorized by this permit. The feedlot is approximately 4 miles northeast of the intersection of Farm-to-Market Road 1062 and State Highway 385 in Deaf Smith County, Texas. The feedlot is in the drainage area of the Upper Prairie Dog Town Fork Red River in Segment No. 0229 of the Red River Basin. The Executive Director of the Commission has prepared a draft permit based on the application submitted by the applicant and other information presently available.

Legal Authority: Section 26.028 of the Texas Water Code and 30 TAC Chapter 305 of the Rules of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission. This application is subject to a Commission resolution adopted August 18, 1993, which directs the Commission's Executive Director to act on behalf of the Commission and issue final approval of certain permit matters. The Executive Director will issue this permit unless one or more persons file written protests and/or a request for a hearing within 30 days after publication of this notice. If you wish to request a public hearing, you must submit your request in writing. You must state (1) your name, mailing address and daytime phone number; (2) the permit number or other recognizable reference to this application; (3) the statement "I/we request a public hearing;" (4) a brief description of how you, or the persons you represent, would be adversely affected by the granting of the application; (5) a description of the location of your property relative to the applicant's operations; and (6) your proposed adjustment to the application/permit which would satisfy your concerns and cause you to withdraw your request for hearing. If one or more protests and/or requests for hearing are filed, the Executive Director will not issue the permit and will forward the application to the Office of Hearings Examiners where a hearing may be held. Commission public hearings are evidentiary legal proceedings similar to civil court non-jury trials. Although general comments from the public may be submitted either in writing prior to the hearing, or orally at the start of the hearing, the law requires that the Commission's decision about whether to approve or deny the application be based on evidence and testimony submitted during the public hearing, presented under oath and subject to cross-examination by the other parties. Public comments are not evidence and cannot be the basis for the Commission's ultimate decision. In the event a hearing is held, the Office of Hearings Examiners will submit a recommendation to the Commission for final decision. If no protests or requests for hearing are filed, the Executive Director will sign the permit 30 days after publication of this notice of the permit. If you wish to appeal a permit issued by the Executive Director, you may do so by filing a written motion for Reconsideration with the Chief Clerk of the Commission no later than 20 days after the date the Executive Director signs the permit. Requests for a public hearing on this application should be submitted in writing to Chief Clerk's Office, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711, Telephone (512) 239-3307. Information regarding hearing procedures may be obtained by contacting Kerry D. Sullivan, Assistant Chief Hearings Examiner at the same address or by telephone at (512) 239-4100. Information concerning any technical aspect of this application can be obtained by writing Desiderio Mora, R.S., Wastewater Permits Section, at the same address or by telephone at (512) 239-4433. Issued this 14th day of September, 1994.

Gloria A. Vasquez, Chief Clerk
Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission

ORDINANCE NO. 1327

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF HEREFORD, TEXAS, PROVIDING THAT THE CODE OF ORDINANCES, CITY OF HEREFORD, TEXAS, BE AMENDED BY ADDING SECTION 62-3 TO ARTICLE I, CHAPTER 62 OF THE CODE OF ORDINANCES AND ESTABLISHING "CURFEW HOURS FOR MINORS"; DEFINING TERMS; CREATING OFFENSES FOR MINORS, PARENTS AND GUARDIANS OF MINORS, AND BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS VIOLATING CURFEW REGULATIONS; PROVIDING DEFENSES; PROVIDING FOR ENFORCEMENT BY THE POLICE DEPARTMENT; PROVIDING FOR WAIVER BY THE MUNICIPAL COURT OF JURISDICTION OVER A MINOR WHEN REQUIRED UNDER THE TEXAS FAMILY CODE; PROVIDING FOR A REVIEW OF THIS ORDINANCE BY THE CITY MANAGER; PROVIDING A PENALTY NOT TO EXCEED $500.00; PROVIDING A SAVINGS CLAUSE; PROVIDING A SEVERABILITY CLAUSE; AND PROVIDING AN EFFECTIVE DATE

WHEREAS, the City Commission of the City of Hereford, Texas, has determined that there has been an increase in juvenile violence, juvenile gang activity, and crime by persons under the age of 17 years in the City of Hereford; and,

WHEREAS, persons under the age of 17 years are particularly susceptible by their lack of maturity and experience to participate in unlawful and gang related activities and to be victims of older perpetrators of crime; and,

WHEREAS, the City of Hereford has an obligation to provide for protection of minors from each other and from other persons, for the enforcement of parental control over and responsibility for children, for the protection of the general public, and for the reduction of the incidence of juvenile criminal activities; and,

WHEREAS, a curfew for those under the age of 17 years will be in the interest of the public health, safety, and general welfare and will help to attain the foregoing objectives and to diminish the undesirable impact of such conduct on the citizens of the City of Hereford;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF HEREFORD, TEXAS:

Section 1: That the Code of Ordinances of the City of Hereford, Texas, is hereby amended by adding Section 62-3 to Article I, Chapter 62, which Section reads as follows:

SEC. 62-3. CURFEW HOURS FOR MINORS.

(a) Definitions. In this section:

(1) CURFEW HOURS means: (A) 11:00 p.m. on any Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday until 6:00 a.m. of the following day; and

(B) 12:01 a.m. until 6:00 a.m. on any Saturday or Sunday.

(2) EMERGENCY means an unforeseen combination of circumstances or the resulting state that calls for immediate action. The term includes, but is not limited to, a fire, a natural disaster, an automobile accident, or any situation requiring immediate action to prevent serious bodily injury or loss of life.

(3) ESTABLISHMENT means

The Hereford Brand--Thursday, September 22, 1994--Page 9
any privately owned place of business operated for a profit to which the public is invited, including but not limited to any place of amusement or entertainment.

(4) GUARDIAN means:

(A) a person who, under court order, is the guardian of the person of a minor; or

(B) a public or private agency with whom a minor has been placed by a court.

(5) MINOR means any person under 17 years of age.

(6) OPERATOR means any individual, firm, association, partnership, or corporation operating, managing, or conducting any establishment. The term includes the members or partners of an association or partnership and the officers of a corporation.

(7) PARENT means a person who is:

(A) a natural parent, adoptive parent, or step-parent of another person; or

(B) at least 18 years of age and authorized by a parent or guardian to have the care and custody of a minor.

(8) PUBLIC PLACE means any place to which the public or a substantial group of the public has access and includes, but is not limited to, streets, highways, and the common areas of schools, hospitals, apartment houses, office buildings, transport facilities, and shops.

(9) REMAIN means to:

(A) linger or stay; or

(B) fail to leave premises when requested to do so by a police officer or the owner, operator, or other person in control of the premises.

(10) SERIOUS BODILY INJURY means bodily injury that creates a substantial risk of death or that causes death, serious permanent disfigurement, or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily member or organ.

(b) Offenses.

(1) A minor commits an offense if he remains in any public place or on the premises of any establishment within the city during curfew hours.

(2) A parent or guardian of a minor commits an offense if he knowingly permits, or by insufficient control allows, the minor to remain in any public place or on the premises of any establishment within the city during curfew hours.

(3) The owner, operator, or any employee of an establishment commits an offense if he knowingly allows a minor to remain upon the premises of the establishment during curfew hours.

(c) Defenses.

(1) It is a defense to prosecution under Subsection (b) that the minor was:

(A) accompanied by the minor's parent or guardian;

(B) on an errand at the direction of the minor's parent or guardian; or

(C) in a motor vehicle involved in interstate travel;

(D) engaged in an employment activity, or going to or returning home from an employment activity, without any detour or stop;

(E) involved in an emergency;

(F) on the sidewalk abutting the minor's residence or abutting the residence of a next door neighbor if the neighbor did not complain to the police department about the minor's presence;

(G) attending an official school, religious, or other recreational activity supervised by adults and sponsored by the city of Hereford, a civic organization, or another similar entity that takes responsibility for the minor, or going to or returning home from, without any detour or stop, an official school, religious, or other recreational activity supervised by adults and sponsored by the city of Hereford, a civic organization, or another similar entity that takes responsibility for the minor;

(H) exercising First Amendment rights protected by the United States Constitution, such as the free exercise of religion, freedom of speech, and the right of assembly; or

(I) married or had been married or had disabilities of minority removed in accordance with Chapter 31 of the Texas Family Code.

(2) It is a defense to prosecution under Subsection (b)(3) that the owner, operator, or employee of an establishment promptly notified the police department that a minor was present on the premises of the establishment during curfew hours and refused to leave.

(d) Enforcement. Before taking any enforcement action under this section, a police officer shall ask the apparent offender's age and reason for being in the public place. The officer shall not issue a citation or make an arrest under this section unless the officer reasonably believes that an offense has occurred and that, based on any response and other circumstances, no defense in Subsection (c) is present.

(e) Penalties.

(1) A person who violates a provision of this chapter is guilty of a separate offense for each day or part of a day during which the violation is committed, continued, or permitted. Each offense, upon conviction, is punishable by a fine not to exceed $500.00.

(2) When required by Section 51.08 of the Texas Family Code, as amended, the municipal court shall waive original jurisdiction over a minor who violates Subsection (b)(1) of this section and shall refer the minor to Deaf Smith County Juvenile Court.

Section 2. That within one year after the initial enforcement of this Ordinance, the City Manager shall review this Ordinance and report and make recommendations to the City Commission concerning the effectiveness of and the continuing need for the Ordinance. The City Manager's report shall specifically include the following information:

(A) the practicality of enforcing the Ordinance and any problems with enforcement identified by the police department;

(B) the impact of the Ordinance on crime statistics;

(C) the number of persons successfully prosecuted for a violation of the Ordinance; and,

(D) the City's net cost of enforcing the Ordinance.

Section 3. The provisions of this Ordinance are intended to be severable. Should any phrase, clause, sentence, subsection or section hereof be found to be unconstitutional or invalid for any reason, such portion shall be severed without effect on the remainder of this Ordinance.

Section 4. That this Ordinance shall be effective from and after its passage and publication in accordance with the Charter of the City of Hereford, Texas.

The above and foregoing Ordinance was duly introduced on the motion of Commissioner

Griego, seconded by Commissioner Juarez, and was duly PASSED, APPROVED AND ADOPTED by the City Commission on the 19th day of September, 1994.

Candidates raise campaign funds nationally

AUSTIN (AP) - They're running for governor of Texas, but Ann Richards and George W. Bush are raising campaign money around the nation.

Both the Democratic governor and her Republican challenger have received contributions from all 50 states, according to a computer analysis by The Associated Press.

"It's the nature of politics these days," said George Christian, an Austin consultant and former press secretary to President Lyndon Johnson.

"Richards is an attractive national figure, and Bush is a member of a family of national figures. It helps the national Democratic Party for Ann Richards to be governor, and it helps the national Republican Party for George Bush to be governor," Christian said.

According to their most recent campaign finance reports, filed with the Texas Ethics Commission and made available to the AP via computer disks, the majority of money raised by each campaign this year came from Texas.

About 65.5 percent of the $3.1 million Richards raised between Feb. 28 and June 30 came from Texas donors. For Bush, about 83 percent of the $3.5 million he raised during that period was from Texans.

Richards reported 17,529 contributions and Bush had 18,084 during that period.

The majority of Richards' total number of contributors - 60 percent, or 10,543 - were from out of state, while 40 percent, or 6,986, were Texans. The majority of Bush donors - 76 percent, or 13,833 - were Texans, while 24 percent, or 4,251, were from out of state.

Outside of Texas, Richards raised the most money in Washington, D.C. Her reports showed just over $444,000 coming from the nation's capital. That was 14 percent of the total she reported.

The Democrat also received sizeable chunks of cash from California and New York. She got $149,187 from California and $138,889 from New York.

Bush, eldest son of the former president, got more money from New York than any other state besides Texas. Those contributions totaled $97,767. He received $83,127 from California and $69,692 from Washington, D.C.

Karen Hughes, a spokeswoman for Bush, said she thinks Richards' acceptance of so many out-of-state contributions hurts her.

"She has turned to a lot of national, liberal groups to raise money outside of Texas. I think the folks from Lubbock to Luling will look at that," she said.

Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Richards, said most of the governor's out-of-state donors gave small amounts.

"He (Bush) has a handful of a few, well-heeled friends of the family who give him large amounts of money. ... Ann Richards represents a real spirit for average people all over the country and for women in particular," McDonald said.

Both Richards and Bush have political contacts across the country.

As one of the nation's most visible Democrats, Richards has both keynoted and chaired her party's national convention and helped other candidates, including California gubernatorial candidate Kathleen Brown and California Sen. Dianne Feinstein.

"You do have a phenomenon in this race," McDonald said. "Republicans have always been able to raise a lot of money both nationally and in this state. For the first time, we have a Democrat who can match the Republicans."

Bush was heavily involved in his father's presidential campaigns and enjoys numerous GOP connections from those races, plus his brother is running for governor in Florida this year.

"He has friends all around the country. He was involved in his father's campaigns," Ms. Hughes said. "But the biggest reason is that Texas is viewed as a key state. Conservatives who want to beat Bill Clinton in 1996 know that winning Texas in 1994 is an important step."

The cost of running Texas campaigns is high. The 1990 governor's race cost more than $35 million - $21 million for Republican Clayton Williams and $14.5 million for Richards.

Richards has raised $12 million since taking office four years ago; Bush has raised $7.5 million since announcing his candidacy last fall.

Unlike politicians in smaller states, Texas candidates must buy time on dozens of television stations - including those in three of the nation's 10 largest cities. The bigger the market, the more costly the air time.

"It's television that drives this thing.

It's access to the media that's absolutely essential. And that is terribly, terribly expensive," said Nikki Van Hightower, the 1990 Democratic candidate for state treasurer who now teaches political science at Texas A&M University.

Political fund-raisers use national mailing lists of people with like interests who are prone to giving: women's groups, environmental organizations, business associations and others.

"Even people who are not Ann Richards and George Bush raise money now nationwide," Christian said. "The other side of that coin is that candidates in other states raise money from Texas. In the Virginia Senate race, both party candidates are raising big bucks in Texas."

If contributors want to give, why not take it?

"From the candidate's point of view, if there's money out there, go after it," Ms. Van Hightower said.

"There is no big incentive not to, except when the media gets on it. Then it can sound almost 'foreign.' But it really isn't that way. It's a system that's fundamentally corrupt when candidates have to go out begging for money," she said.

Dallas jury finds sisters guilty of gouging woman's eyeballs

DALLAS (AP) - Myra Obasi says she believes she was possessed by a devil when her eyeballs were scooped out of her head and left in a wastebasket wrapped in a facial tissue.

A Dallas jury said Wednesday the devil didn't do it. It was her sisters.

Doretha Crawford, 34, and Beverly Johnson, 35, both of Arcadia, La., were both convicted of aggravated assault against their now-blind sister. The convictions carry a punishment of two to 10 years in prison.

The jury began sentence deliberations Wednesday, but state District Judge Mike Keasler sent the jury home late in the afternoon and told them to return today.

The two sisters' hellish odyssey began when they left their rural, pine-forested town of around 3,000 people on March 17 because, they said, they believed Ms. Obasi was possessed.

The idea was planted by a suggestion of their father, Chester Crawford, that they visit a man named Benny, described as a "voodoo" or "hoodoo" man.

Hoodoo combines elements of voodoo, an African-rooted faith that modified in Haiti, with elements of Catholicism and Biblical verse.

Crawford said he thought Benny could ease family tension.

"Benny's supposed to be a spiritual man," Crawford told The Dallas Morning News. "I thought I was doing something to help my kids."

After Benny said the family's problems were due to a demonic attack, Crawford told his daughters to flee.

The three sisters and their five children ran for their lives.

During a two-day trip, the women - afraid the devil had caught up with them - left their children with a stranger in Marshall. The family called state child welfare officials, who have since returned them to their family.

"For a mother to leave her children with strangers is an act of a desperate woman," defense attorney Lela Washington said.

The sisters set out for the Dallas suburb of Carrollton, where an in-law lives.

Suddenly, Ms. Obasi began trying to drive into traffic and off bridges, they said.

Despite the erratic driving, they wound up in Waxahachie, about 30 miles south of Dallas, where police saw them stopped about 4:30 a.m. They told the officers there was a curse on the rental car. The jury was told Wednesday that the starter was bad.

The siblings then hitchhiked into Dallas, where residents reported hours later that they saw the women praying and begging for help.

Legayla Jones testified that, on March 18, she watched for about seven hours as the sisters shouted and prayed across the street from her house before pushing garlic into Ms. Obasi's eyes while she made "strange noises."

"She was sounding like a man," Ms. Jones said, adding that the sisters also stuffed paper down Myra's throat.
