Hance backers criticize Williams

AUSTIN (AP) - On the eve of their second statewide televised debate, the two leading Republican candidates for governor were squabbling over government experience.

Kent Hance picked up the endorsement of 14 GOP state legislators on Wednesday, with the lawmakers saying oilman-rancher Clayton Williams would need on-the-job training if he were elected.

Williams' campaign called the endorsements "typical political lather" and said Williams is leading in opinion polls because he offers specific ways to pay for programs he wants to enact.

Williams, Hance, and candidates Tom Luce and Jack Rains are scheduled to appear in the Dallas debate tonight.

Citing Hance's record as a state legislator, congressman and railroad commissioner, the GOP lawmakers criticized multimillionaire Williams' TV advertising campaign, which has pledged a battle against politicians and bureaucrats.

"The seriousness of the problems that we face in Texas require more than a 30-second TV bite. They require more than the ability of someone to pump a tremendous amount of money into a campaign," said Rep. Jerry Yost, R-Longview.

Hance is "not somebody who just suddenly, rode into my television set and jumped off his horse and said 'I've got the solution to all the problems,'" said Rep. Glenn Repp, R-Duncanville.

Williams' press secretary Bill Kenyon said the campaign was proud of its television message because "we've been talking about the issues that concern people."

"And we're the only candidate, including Kent Hance, who has outlined how we're going to pay for the proposals. I think people enjoy that kind of candor rather than the typical political lather that we hear out of Austin," Kenyon said.

Hance's staff, meanwhile, claimed that a poll conducted for the campaign shows Williams supporters deserting him after seeing a Hance TV ad which discussed a $1,000 donation Williams made to Democratic gubernatorial candidate Jim Mattox.

"Republicans simply will not tolerate a candidate who contributes to our Democratic opponents," said Mark Sanders, Hance's press secretary.

Williams has called the campaign contributions to Mattox and Democratic candidate Ann Richards mistakes, but said he made them while a private businessman and before he considered entering politics.

In other political developments Wednesday:

- Supreme Court Chief Justice Tom Phillips' re-election bid was endorsed by all eight Republican state senators and 58 GOP members of the Texas House. Phillips' campaign called the backing "unprecedented."

- Democratic Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower picked up the endorsement of several consumer and environmental groups.

"He has tirelessly campaigned to reduce the use of dangerous pesticides and in favor of a sustainable agriculture technique that recently won the support of the National Academy of Sciences," said Brigid Shea, director of Texas Clean Water Action.

- Gene Duke, a Republican candidate for agriculture commissioner, charged that Hightower had taken a political trip to Arkansas in a state plane and that his department failed to close a improperly managed grain warehouse quickly enough in 1986.

Action wasn't taken until after that year's general election, costing farmers hundreds of thousands of dollars, he said.

Brock retires from schools

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Things will be a little different in the Hereford schools today.

Gene Brock won't be there working. Wednesday was his last day at the schools. He has retired after 24 years in the Hereford schools.

Hereford and the Hereford school are better for having had Gene Brock work with our children and our community.

Brock was raised in Chillicothe and attended Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. His studies were interrupted by the Korean War when he entered the U.S. Air Force.

During all of his adult life, as a student, an airman, as a teacher and preacher, Gene has been involved in all kinds of activities.

Gene has served as treasurer of the Hereford Satellite Work Training Center's advisory board for 22 years. He has worked hard for the Satellite Center and for the special clients at the center, including heading up a fund-raising effort that raised funds necessary to buy the present facility on 25 Mile Avenue and getting the center into sound financial condition for years to come.

He has been a strong member of the Hereford Kiwanis Club, named Kiwanian of the Year in 1982 and currently serving as the club's president.

Brock is probably best known as faculty advisor of the Hereford Key Club, helping the group grow from 37 members when he became advisor to 137 last year. He has twice been named Outstanding Faculty Advisor, and the name of the award in the Texas-Oklahoma District is now the Gene Y. Brock Outstanding Faculty Advisor.

In 1986-87 he was named the "Governor's Man" for his assistance to the governor of the Texas-Oklahoma District.

Gene received the Citizen of the Year award for 1986 from the Hereford Lions Club for his work with everyone and anyone.

Brock was honored at a reception last Friday by faculty, administrators and friends. His presence at the schools will be missed, but his friends want to love Gene as much as they can while he can still love back.

Our world is a better place because of Gene Brock. Thanks, Gene.

Service, legacy continue

Gift for the giver

Quake shakes California

UPLAND, Calif. (AP) - California's strongest earthquake since the World Series tremor triggered rock slides, broke windows, collapsed a warehouse wall and reminded the region's residents that they live on shaky ground.

Wednesday's quake, measuring 5.5 on the Richter scale, was centered near this city 40 miles east of Los Angeles. It swayed skyscrapers in Las Vegas, 230 miles to the northeast, and was felt as far south as San Diego, 150 miles away.

No major damage was reported. Two people suffered broken legs and one woman went into early labor, said City Councilman Tom McGilloy. He had no details on how the injuries occurred.

Numerous aftershocks, including one of 4.8 magnitude 3 1/2 hours after the 3:43 p.m. quake, kept people on edge.

About 25 Upland residents evacuated an apartment building to spend the night in a Red Cross shelter, McGilloy said.

"It felt like somebody picked up the building and dropped it a couple of times," said police Lt. Don Manning in nearby Ontario. "It was like we went up a foot, then down a foot, then up again."

More aftershocks were expected, and the U.S. Geological Survey in Pasadena warned that a 5 percent chance existed of an even larger quake within three days.

It was the strongest quake in California since the Oct. 17 one in the San Francisco Bay area, which struck as Game 3 of the World Series was about to begin. That quake, measuring 7.1, killed 67 people and caused $7 billion in damage.

Southern California Edison said 6,000 customers temporarily lost electrical power. The utility said the San Onofre nuclear plant remained in operation.

Charlene Kennedy said she and her mother suffered cuts and bruises when ceiling tiles and boxes of shoes fell on them in a store in Upland.

"We were making our way out the door and I turned and saw a wall of hysterical people running towards us," she said.

Workers leaped out of windows and dived off a loading dock as a 20-by-70-foot wall collapsed at an auto parts warehouse in nearby La Verne.

"Everything happened so fast trying to get 70 people out of the warehouse it's amazing nobody got seriously hurt," said supervisor Stan Sokolowski.

A boulder twice the size of a car blocked a main two-lane road through the San Gabriel Mountains. Rock slides blocked mountain roads at several other points north of Upland.

Cathryn Lethers, manager of a bar at Mount Baldy ski lodge, said about 25 people were stuck there until rock slides could be cleared.

"I had glasses flying all over the place. Everybody just ran inside. It was pretty scary," she said. "We're all kind of giggling about it now, thanking God that it wasn't the Big One."

The quake, centered five miles below the surface, ruptured a fault running from the northeast to the southwest, said seismologist Kate Hutton at the California Institute of Technology. It followed a 3.6-magnitude quake at 12:37 p.m.

The quake was felt as a fairly short jolt at the epicenter but lasted more than 20 seconds in downtown Los Angeles, said Caltech spokesman Hall Daily.

The worst recent Southern California quake struck the Whittier area Oct. 1, 1987. It measured 5.9 and, together with a 5.3-magnitude aftershock Oct. 4, killed eight people, injured more than 200 and caused $358 million in damage.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. An earthquake of 5 can cause considerable damage and 6 severe damage.

Lewis: judicial reform difficult

AUSTIN (AP) - Except for judges and a few lawyers, it's hard to find anyone who "gives a big doggone" about judicial selection even though lawmakers are in special session on the issue, says House Speaker Gib Lewis.

"The general public don't understand it. I would venture to say a great number of legislators don't understand the situation, and so therefore it makes it more difficult to address," Lewis told a Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting Wednesday.

"Nobody really gives a big doggone about it except the judges and two or three lawyers," he said.

The Texas Legislature is meeting in special session to answer U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton's ruling that the countywide election of state judges in nine urban counties violates the federal Voting Rights Act by diluting minority voting power.

Bunton ordered special elections for 115 judges this year, but the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans stopped that order to give state lawmakers a chance to act. Counties in the case are Dallas, Harris, Bexar, Tarrant, Travis, Lubbock, Midland, Ector and Jefferson.

Lawmakers draft ethics reform

AUSTIN (AP) - Debate on ethics reform could begin during the special legislative session that opened this week, but lawmakers are divided over whether they will vote on the issue before the March 13 primary elections.

Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, said House Speaker Gib Lewis has urged legislators to prepare an ethics bill during the special session, the Austin American-Statesman reported Wednesday.

"The speaker has told us we need to fix the perception that there's something wrong up here with ethics - and I think we'll do that," he said.

Laney said the State Affairs Committee, which he chairs, could begin hearings on the subject as early as next week. "Our plan is to have a bill drawn up and ready, so when the governor adds it (to the agenda) we can have something ready to pass," he said.

School Finance Special Session 1990

Also on the agenda of the special session, which began Tuesday, is the Legislature's response to a Texas Supreme Court ruling that the school finance system is unconstitutional.

The court, which found glaring disparities between rich and poor districts, gave lawmakers until May 1 to devise a fair system.

School funding also is a difficult-to-understand problem, Lewis said, but he predicted the Legislature can meet the court's deadline.

Changes must be made to ensure the $13.5 billion-a-year system does a better job of educating students, he said, regardless of the need to put more state money into schools. The finance system relies on a combination of state and federal aid and local property taxes.

"I'll vote for a tax (increase) bill to fund education. All I'm asking for, before I do that, is I have some guarantee that my investment is going to be a good investment," Lewis said.

"That is, when I go out and hire a graduating senior to go into my place of business and run a million-dollar piece of equipment, that he is prepared to run that million-dollar investment that I have," he said.

Proposals for changing the school finance system would cost up to $1.1 billion next school year, but Gov. Bill Clements has threatened to veto any new taxes.

Lewis said legislation is being drafted, based on a recommendation by the Governor's Task Force on Public Education, that includes $234 million in new funding the first year.

Some have called that figure inadequate.

There has been discussion of taking money from long-term projects, such as Capitol restoration, to avoid a tax bill in this politically charged session, which began just two weeks before the March 13 primary elections.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has said about $150 million might be made available from such funding shifts.

As part of the effort to equalize school funding, Sen. Carl Parker filed a proposed constitutional amendment that a deputy education commissioner said would cost the state's wealthiest districts up to $6 million a year.

The approximately 70 districts are receiving $305 per student this year from the state's Available School Fund, said Lynn Moak, deputy education commissioner for research and development. The measure by Parker, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, would shift those funds to other districts.

"It's disqualifying now, because the districts that are just filthy rich ... still get their share of this money," said Parker, D-Port Arthur. There are 1,068 Texas school districts.

"Right now, I think it looks real good," he said. "Unlike before, everyone is now in agreement on what needs to be done - and how and when it needs to be done."

A bill McFarland drafted last fall may form the basis for a consensus bill to be presented to both houses, lawmakers said.

McFarland said the measure would require lobbyists to disclose which lawmakers they treat to meals, trips, entertainment or other gifts worth more than $250. Lobbyists now are required to report only the total amounts they spend on gifts, entertainment and other things such as advertising.

McFarland's bill also would prohibit the acceptance of campaign contributions in the Capitol, limit the amount of honoraria a lawmaker could accept from any single source each

Four persons arrested

Hereford police arrested two persons Wednesday, including a man, 28, for outstanding theft warrants from Randall County. Also, a man, 20, was arrested in the alley in the 300 block of Ave. J when the car he was driving struck a gas meter. The car was engulfed in flames and the broken gas meter was shooting a flame 20 feet into the air. The driver was not harmed and was charged with D.W.I.

Deputy sheriffs arrested two persons, including a man, 17, on a driving while intoxicated commitment; and a man, 31, on a driving while license suspended warrant.

Reports included a girl, 14, taken into custody and transported to a detention facility in Amarillo after she assaulted her parents and then threatened suicide; a woman and her daughter in the 100 block of Ave. H were harassed by another teenage girl because the two girls like the same boy; car parked in the 100 block of Sunset had a purse stolen from it; a woman in the 400 block of Ave. H caught four small neighbor children rummaging through her car in her driveway; a woman and her son in the 100 block of Catalpa foiled an attempt by a man who tried to steal a tool box off their front porch; and a woman reported a suspicious person in the 100 block of Ranger.

Fire fighters put out the fire when the car mentioned earlier ran over the gas meter. After the fire was put out, the gas meter was plugged.

Hereford police issued three citations and responded to one minor accident on Wednesday.

Fair, warmer weather

Tonight will be fair and cold with a low of 25. South winds will be 5-15 mph.

Friday will be partly sunny with a high of 55. West-northwest winds will be 5-15 mph, becoming northeast during the afternoon.

The extended forecast is calling for warmer weather over the weekend, with highs from 60 on Saturday to 70 on Monday.

This morning's low at KPAN was 23 after a high Wednesday of 33.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, March 1, the 60th day of 1990. There are 305 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Two hundred years ago, on March 1, 1790, the first U.S. Census was authorized by Congress. (When the census was completed the following August, it showed a total U.S. population of 3.9 million.)

On this date:

In 1781, the Articles of Confederation were adopted by the Continental Congress.

In 1803, Ohio's legislature met for the first time. (This event was recognized by Congress in 1953 as the official date of Ohio statehood.)

In 1864, Rebecca Lee became the first black woman to receive a medical degree, from the New England Female Medical College in Boston.

In 1867, Nebraska became the 37th state of the Union.

In 1872, Congress authorized the creation of Yellowstone National Park.

In 1932, the infant son of Charles and Anne Lindbergh was kidnapped from the family's home near Hopewell, N.J. (Remains identified as those of the baby were found the following May.)

In 1954, an armed group of Puerto Rican nationalists, firing wildly from the gallery of the U.S. House of Representatives, wounded five congressmen.

Ten years ago: The U.S. cast a "yes" vote that it later disavowed as the U.N. Security Council called on Israel to dismantle settlements in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Steven Stayner, a 14-year-old from Merced, Calif., who was kidnapped more than seven years earlier, presented himself to police in Ukiah.

Thought for today: "People are trapped in history and history is trapped in them." - James Baldwin, American author (1924-1987).

GOV. JAMES CUNNINGHAM

Lions praised

James Cunningham of Spearman, Governor of Lions District 2T-1, was guest speaker for the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday at the Community Center.

Cunningham praised the local club for its projects, membership campaign and for "adding enthusiasm" to the district's objectives. He outlined the program for the district convention, scheduled in Dumas on April 19-21, and explained the importance of elections to be held there.

President Mark Andrews announced the club's Mexican Stack Supper, originally set March 29, will be changed to May. The date will be announced later. The club welcomed one new member, Nolan Butler.

Andrews also announced that the Lion's Crippled Children's Camp is scheduled July 14-28, with the diabetic camp following from July 30 to Aug. 8. He urged Lions to sign up children for the camps.

Exxon officials 'hiding behind corporate cloak' says Olson

WASHINGTON (AP) - While environmentalists generally praise the criminal indictment of Exxon Corp. in the massive Alaskan oil spill, some are bemoaning the fact that no individual corporate officials were charged.

"There are some people hiding behind the corporate cloak," Erik Olson, an attorney for the Natural Wildlife Federation, said Wednesday. "If you are not punishing the individuals, you are only punishing some ethereal corporate, artificial entity."

But proving criminal legal violations against individuals would be much more difficult than bringing charges against the corporation and its subsidiary, Exxon Shipping Co., legal experts say.

"A corporation doesn't act through one person but may act through a combination of individuals. So no one of them had a requisite criminal intent," said Norman Bernstein, a Washington environmental lawyer who represents large corporations.

The company's failure "may be in a sense the failure of the system, a combination of people's judgments rather than one individual consciously saying, 'I don't really care about the intentional grounding of this ship,'" Bernstein said.

A federal grand jury in Alaska handed up a five-count criminal indictment against Exxon on Tuesday in the 10-million-gallon spill by the tanker Exxon Valdez in Alaska's Prince William Sound on March 24.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh didn't rule out the possibility of more charges, telling reporters the investigation was continuing. His statement Tuesday indicated that prosecutors may be trying to determine if there is evidence to charge individuals.

Responsibility often is so fragmented in large corporations that it is difficult to prove that a series of individuals knowingly committed crimes, said Judson W. Starr, former

Atlantis to land on Sunday

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - NASA said today that Atlantis will return to Earth on Sunday, an announcement that may indicate that the five-member military crew has deployed a $500 million spy satellite.

In a three-sentence statement that is the first break in a Pentagon-imposed news blackout on the military mission, NASA said that the "expected landing day" for Atlantis would be Sunday. No landing times were provided.

"The (Atlantis) crew is doing well and orbiter Atlantis continues to perform satisfactorily," the Mission Control announcement concluded.

The cargo carried into orbit by Atlantis is a 37,300-pound satellite capable of taking super-sharp photographs and listening in on electronic communications around the world, according to sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

An announced landing date, the sources said, would be provided only after the satellite was deployed.

NASA officials said that a news blackout about the mission means all was well with the astronauts and that the silence was to continue unless a serious problem occurred.

After five postponements, Atlantis finally got the green light to launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla., early Wednesday. As the shuttle rocketed into space, the blue, white and red light of its rockets was visible as far up the East Coast as Washington, D.C.

Atlantis was in an orbit that sources said covers a greater area of the world than any previous shuttle. In that orbit, the satellite can be put in a position to observe military bases and missile bases in northern regions of the Soviet Union, sources said.

By covering most of the Soviet Union, the satellite would be important in verifying Soviet compliance with arms agreements.

Obituaries

FRED SHERMAN
Feb. 21, 1990

Former Hereford resident, Fred Sherman, 91, of Riverside, Calif. died Feb. 21, 1990, in Loma Linda, Calif.

Graveside services were held Feb. 26 in Crestlawn Cemetery in Riverside with Pastor Mitch Henson officiating. Burial was under the direction of Sierra Memorial Chapel Mortuary.

Born Jan. 23, 1899, in Quincy, Ill., Mr. Sherman had lived here for approximately 15 years. He farmed northwest of Hereford before moving to town. He was a member of Seventh Day Adventist Church. He was preceded in death by his wife, Freda Sherman.

Survivors include a daughter, Florence Moore of Fort Collins, Colo.; two sons, Vernon Sherman of Hereford and Paul Sherman of Riverside, Calif.; three grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

head of the Justice Department's environmental crimes unit.

But criminal behavior is "easier to prove against corporations. They can accumulate bits and pieces of knowledge," Starr said.

To win convictions on the two felony convictions it has brought, the Justice Department must prove that Exxon "willfully and knowingly" failed to ensure the Exxon Valdez was manned by crew members capable of safely operating the tanker.

The ship's captain, Joseph Hazelwood, is on trial in Anchorage on state charges arising from the spill, including operating a vessel while intoxicated.

In the days before Tuesday's indictment, the Justice Department endured a storm of criticism from Alaskan officials and environmental groups after reports it was about to reach a plea-bargain agreement with Exxon.

Alaskan officials charged the settlement would have compromised the state's civil suit against the oil company.

But Assistant Attorney General Richard B. Stewart defended the government's handling of the negotiations, denying claims that it might have agreed to a settlement that would have allowed Exxon to avoid its responsibility for the cleanup.

In its dealings with Exxon over several months, the department always insisted on "a guilty plea to serious charges" and "very, very substantial fines, entirely unprecedented in the environmental context," Stewart said Wednesday.

The proposal was tailored "to deal with an unresolved and developing situation," he said. "It will be many years before we have a full understanding of the extent of the damage."

Accent on Health

More than 23,000 Texans have received life-saving treatment and financial help from the Texas Department of Health's (TDH) Kidney Health Program. And because of that assistance, many of these patients will be alive to observe National Kidney Month in March.

Established in 1973 by the Texas Legislature, the TDH Kidney Health Program was one of the earliest state plans for end-stage renal disease in the country.

"This program's benefits to Texas residents have been modified through the years in response to advances in treatments for renal disease patients and changes in budget appropriations," said Manuel Zapata, the program's director.

He said that there were 817 approved applicants for service and a budget of $2.5 million in the program's first operational year (1974). Last year (1989), the program approved more than 2,750 applications and its budget exceeded $10 million.

In addition to dialysis and kidney transplants, the Kidney Health Program pays for some transportation costs to and from dialysis treatments centers. It also provides for some home dialysis equipment, and medicine and medical supplies, as well as expensive and required drugs needed by transplant patients.

Currently, the Texas program has about 8,500 active recipients, 70 percent of whom are treated at dialysis centers, and nine percent of whom dialyze at home. The other 21 percent have received transplants.

Zapata, himself, underwent kidney transplant in December, 1989, more than two years after learning of his own kidney disease. "I underwent dialysis for 15 months before receiving my new kidney," he said.

Another member of the program's 31 member staff, Sylvia Hernandez, underwent kidney transplant in 1978, as well as a second operation in 1986. Mrs. Hernandez processes applications for patients needing dialysis.

Zapata said end-stage renal disease is fatal unless dialysis treatment is given, or unless patients have kidney transplant surgery.

He said that the kidneys are vital for the body to excrete most of its waste products. They also control the volume and concentration of the body fluids.

Area men graduate

Troopers Isaac Gamboa and Hector Domingues, both of Hereford, and Todd Setliff of Amarillo recently graduated from the Texas Department of Public Safety Training Academy in Austin.

Trooper Isaac Gamboa has been assigned to the Drivers Service in Lubbock, Trooper Hector Domingues will report to Pampa and Trooper Todd Setliff will be assigned to Hereford.

Ninety cadets were recently commissioned as state troopers in graduation ceremonies at the DPS Administrative Headquarters in Austin.

Colonel Joe Milner, DPS director, said he is proud of the new troopers and looks forward to their service with the department.

"These men and women were given an extensive 22-week course emphasizing the responsibilities of DPS troopers," Col. Milner said. "They have been well-trained to uphold the laws of this state in routine as well as dangerous law enforcement situations."

"A Texas trooper must perform a number of different tasks in addition to enforcing traffic laws. The trooper will assist in narcotics arrests and other felony cases as well as manhunt and disaster situations," Milner pointed out.

The DPS training course included comprehensive instruction in traffic law, criminal law, arrest procedures, assiduous investigation, and numerous other law enforcement related topics.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading the letters in your column from readers who have herpes, I knew I had to write. Maybe I can help others.

I am a divorced, 32-year-old mother of two. After my divorce, I did not date for five years. I met a man I liked a lot, and we went together for three months before we became intimate. I made one big mistake. I didn't ask "Brad" to use a condom.

I now have genital warts. Brad said he didn't know that he had them.

After a few weeks, I felt some itching and thought I felt a lump, so I went to my gynecologist. He informed me that I had genital warts. I had no idea what they were. He told me this was not a sexually transmitted disease.

After five months of very painful and expensive treatments (he's been burning them off), I still have the warts. I now go to the doctor three times a week, and it costs $15 a treatment. If they don't go away soon, I may have to have laser surgery. This has been a real nightmare.

Brad saw a urologist one time and is clear of lesions. He doesn't understand why I'm having such a difficult time. I cry a lot and am very depressed. Needless to say, this has cast a pall over our relationship. I am furious that he has gotten off so lightly when he's the one who gave these damn things to me. Is it possible that he didn't know he had them?

Please answer my questions, and give me some encouragement. — S. Carolina.

DEAR S.: Yes, it is possible that Brad did not know he had venereal warts, because they can be invisible, and often there are no symptoms. I suggest that you see another doctor. If this one believes that venereal warts are not sexually transmitted, he knows nothing about the subject. (There may be rare exceptions.) I would worry about what else he doesn't know.

You are not alone. Millions of others share this problem. With proper precaution and early treatment, you can lead a perfectly normal life.

The lesson to be learned, dear readers, is this: Unprotected sex can be dangerous. It's never worth the chance you take.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know I'm late with this, but it has taken me until now to gather my thoughts. Here's my answer to why I am settling for half of a married man. I have the best half.

I don't need to account for my time or money. I don't have to cook, clean, do the laundry or accommodate his kids. I have the benefit of a companion, a handyman, an auto mechanic and a fabulous sex partner.

I don't feel like a home wrecker, because I am not taking anything away from his wife. He gives her status, security, a home, a car, and all the financial benefits without her having to tolerate sex, which she hates. A divorce would mean giving up half of his assets and retirement benefits. Since I don't want marriage, I pose no threat.

He's always there when I need him, and we communicate well. I take an interest in his work and hobbies. I am an enthusiastic sex partner, something he never had until we met. He fills my needs, and I fill his. Everybody's happy, and nobody gets hurt. I never realized how perfect the arrangement was until I wrote this letter. Thanks, Ann. — Chirping in San Bernardino

DEAR CHIRPING: Perfect? Not quite. I haven't heard from his wife and kids. Have you?

Bowles tour to Africa discussed at meeting

Juanita Bowles presented a program on Africa when the Hereford CattleWomen met recently at the Hereford Country Club. Bowles and her husband were invited to tour Africa by the South African Feedlot Association.

Lori Hall, president, called the meeting to order and invocation was given by Pam Wagner. Hall recognized Trisha Teel as winner of showmanship award at the Deaf Smith County Stock Show. Trisha's mother, Denise Teel, and grandmother, Reeba Buske, were present for the presentation. A trophy was awarded.

Wagner read minutes of the last meeting and minutes were approved.

Pat Graham, treasurer, reported $1,069.10 as the balance in the club account. Graham reminded members that club dues should be paid.

Marn Tyler reported on beef for Girlstown. A total of nine lambs and five hogs were donated during the 1990 Livestock Show. Hall recognized Tyler for her long time work and devotion on this project.

Graham reported that the budget and finance committee met before the regular meeting, on fundraiser projects for the coming year. A quilt with each member doing one block and quilting will be done at the home of Karen Keeling as a project.

Vicki Wilson reported on Ag Week activities. Entries for an essay or poem from fourth, fifth, and sixth graders telling what beef means to them will be another project. Gift certificates from K-Bob's, Bob's and Caison's will be awarded for the top three. Debra Foxhoven reported that Dave Hooper will help judge. Other activities will be the annual casserole sale and will be at Furr and Moores Super Markets.

A feature article will be presented in the Hereford Brand called "What's Cooking" along with advertisements and publicity about the sale. Saturday, March 24, is the day selected for the sale.

Marty McElhany reported on legislative and Wagner gave a report on the Texas Beef Cookoff.

Members present were Wagner, Hall, Keeling, Linda Fitzgerald, Kyla McDowell, Jackie Murphey, Foxhaven, Vickie Wilson, Jolene Bledsoe, McElhany, Roberta Caviness, Jan Furr, Gerry Taylor, Kay Hall, Mildred Garrison, Joan Coupe, Linda Gilbert, Judy Barrett, Graham, Tyler, Buske, Trisha Teel and Denise Teel.

World Day of Prayer to be observed

The public is invited to attend the annual observance of the World Day of Prayer at 9:30 a.m. Friday at the Community Church.

Those planning to attend are asked to bring canned goods to be donated to Operation Good Shepherd. A nursery will be provided during the service.

Church Women United has sponsored World Day of Prayer since it was founded in 1941. The purpose of the event is to unite Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women and men in 170 countries and regions of the world in informed prayer.

Local residents who will be participating include Laura Schlabs, Cathy Revell, Gracie Shaw, Carol Sue Legate, Janie Banner and Nancy Wilcox.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Paul Newman is heading back to court for another trial to decide whether a delicatessen owner deserves a cut of the profits from Newman's Own salad dressing.

Julius Gold claims he was promised 8 percent of the profits for helping develop and market the dressing. But Newman, who lives in Westport, contends he developed the dressing in his home and decided the profits should go to charity.

Council meets recently

The Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council met at the Community Center recently for a business meeting.

Welcomed visitors for the meeting were Jo Lee and Kristy Homfeld. Clubs represented were Bippus, Cultural, Draper, Ford, North Hereford, Wyche and Westway. Clubs with 100 percent were Bippus, Cultural, Draper, Ford, North Hereford and Wyche.

The business meeting was called to order by Maudette Smith, council chairman. Roll call and reading by the minutes were by Sherrie Blackwell, secretary. Byrdie Fellers gave the treasurer report and Fellers and Smith were chosen to be district delegates.

Deaf Smith County Homemakers Extension Agent Beverly Harder stated there would be a meeting at Shirley Elementary School, March 5, on dyslexia. The Deaf Smith County District 1 meeting is planned for April 10.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace isn't bothered about being called "the late governor" by NBC commentator John Chancellor, a spokesman says.

"Newsmen have been making mistakes about George Wallace all of his life," Elvin Stanton said. "It's something he brushes off."

During Chancellor's commentary Tuesday night, he quoted Wallace as once saying governors were nothing more than "ornaments."

Social Security

People in this area who received Social Security benefits in 1989 and had earnings over the annual exempt amount, need to file their annual reports by April 16, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, said today.

During 1989, the annual exempt amount for people under 65 was $6,480. The annual limit for people 65 through 69 was $8,880. Earnings over these limits are counted against the amount of Social Security benefits a person can receive, Talbot said. After a person's 70th birthday month, there are no limits placed on earnings.

Anyone who earned over the 1989 annual exempt amounts and received some Social Security benefits must file an annual report. If you haven't received a form by the end of February, call Social Security to request one, Talbot said.

Filing a Federal income tax return does not take the place of filing an annual report with Social Security. If you expect to have earnings over the 1990 exempt amounts - $6,840 for people under 65, and $9,360 for people 65 through 69, you should report your estimated earnings early to avoid being overpaid, Talbot said.

Questions about 1989 annual reports or 1990 work estimates can be answered by calling Social Security. The Amarillo office is located at 3501 W. 45th, Suite E. The office is open 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Additional information can be obtained by calling toll-free 1-800-234-5772.

Herd baseball opener delayed

The Hereford Whitefaces' baseball season opener has been pushed back at least one day because of wet field conditions in Abilene.

The Herd was to have faced Estacado at 11 a.m. today in Game 1 of the Abilene Invitational Tournament, but tournament officials declared all three fields to be used unplayable Wednesday afternoon.

Tournament officials decided this morning to delay the start 24 hours and, which will mean playing 24 games on three fields in two days.

The rescheduling leaves the Herd and Estacado with an 11 a.m. Friday start.

Herd coach T.R. Sartor said if the tourney is called off, there will be an effort to put together a four or eight-team event in the area.

"There were enough schools around here going that we should be able to put something together," Sartor said. The 11-team Abilene field included three Lubbock schools -- Estacado, Dunbar and Lubbock High -- as well as Plainview and Amarillo High.

"The main thing is we need to be playing," he added. "We open district here in two and-a-half weeks and we haven't played an inning yet."

The Herd JV has also had trouble getting its season underway this week.

The junior varsity was originally scheduled to host Plainview at 5:30 p.m. Monday, but the game was switched to Plainview because of the lack of lights at Whiteface Field.

The game had to be moved to Tuesday so it would not conflict with Meet the Herd Night and wound up being rained out.

Coach Bill Bridge said the contest would be rescheduled for later in the season if it could be fit in by both teams.

That leaves the JV with Monday's game against Randall at 4:30 p.m. at Whiteface Field as the season opener.

Among the other spring sports, the Herd tennis team will compete in the Odessa Invitational Tournament on Friday and Saturday.

The Herd golf teams will travel to Hobbs, N.M. to play in the Hobbs Invitational. The boys A team will play the Hobbs Country Club Course while the B team plays Okatia Park Golf Course.

The Herd track and field team will run Saturday at the Lubbock Invitational Meet while the Lady Whitefaces compete at the Concho Belle Relays in San Angelo.

State bound

Hereford will be represented in three divisions at the Knights of Columbus Free-Throw Contest state competition this weekend at San Antonio. Shown along with the six other regional champions at Sunday's competition at Alamo Catholic High School in Amarillo are Michelle Brock (back row, left), winner on the girls' 14-year-old division; Andrew Tjerina (front row, second from left) in the boys' 13-year-old division, and Marcus Berend (front row, far right) in the boys' 10-year-old division.

Naz, Duncanville seek third straight state girls' titles

AUSTIN (AP) - The Duncanville Pantherettes, owners of the longest winning streak in Texas girls' basketball history, are again the center of attention at the University Interscholastic League's state tournament.

Duncanville is going after its third straight Class 5A championship.

The Pantherettes (35-0) have won 95 straight games. They broke the mark of 92, set in 1974-77 by Waco Midway, two weeks ago against North Mesquite.

"I was relieved," coach Sandra Meadows said after her team broke the record. "It had been a real pressure situation for the kids as well as for me."

"It felt great to break the record, but now we can go about our business and shoot for the state championship," Meadows said.

The tournament trip is the 14th for the Pantherettes, also a state record. Dallas South Oak Cliff is the only other Class 5A team to win back-to-back-titles, in 1977-78.

While Duncanville, which also won a title in 1976, has been to the tournament more than any other team, it takes on an opponent Friday making its first trip in Seguin (30-5).

Houston Yates (29-3) plays Lubbock Monterey (32-1) in the other Class 5A semifinal Friday.

Yates sent six teams to the tournament in the 1980s, winning a championship in 1983 and finishing

Top O' Texas spikers to play Saturday at AHS

The Top O' Texas Volleyball Club will play Saturday at Amarillo High.

The club's 15-16 team, which includes Hereford players Shanel Cornelius and Brek Binder, will play at 8:45 a.m. and continue with matches every two hours.

A six-team tournament will be played beginning at 4:45 p.m. The tournament field will be made up of the teams with the six best records from the morning matches.

The Top O' Texas 15-16 team won the Norman, Okla. tourney two weeks ago with an undefeated record for the event and finished 17th out of 52 teams at last week's Las Vegas Classic in Nevada.

The club will host the Top O' Texas Classic on March 24 on the campus of West Texas State University in Canyon.

second in 1984.

"We're starting off the 1990s right," said Yates girls' coach VonDonna Bircher. "We've had a special feeling about this team this year."

Yates is sparked by 5-6 guard Antoinette Issac, a senior who is considered one of the top three players in Texas.

Issac is averaging 18 points, 15 assists and eight steals and is being recruited by Houston, Texas, Kansas State, Colorado and Stephen F. Austin.

"I've been waiting for four years to go to the tournament," Issac said. "This year we've got a chance to go win it."

Nazareth in Class A also is on track for its third straight state title and 11th overall. Nazareth is 31-3 and has won 22 straight.

Zavalla faced Nazareth, which won six straight championships in 1977-82, in the semifinals today, while Moulton (33-4) and Munday (27-7) met in the other first-round game.

Moulton is making its 13th trip to the tournament, but has yet to win a title. The Bobkittens hold the state record for tournament losses with 13.

In Class 4A, Calallen (37-1) meets newcomer Dallas Lincoln (24-6) in one semifinal, while Waco Midway (34-2) and Katy Mayde Creek (24-10), also a first-timer, battle in the other game.

In Class 3A, Edna (30-3) is matched against Canton (33-4), and Abilene Wylie (30-2) plays Groesbeck (32-5). Canton has won 23 straight.

Wall (31-2) will face Tatum (28-4), and Marion (36-1) will take on McGregor (30-3) in Class 2A. Marion has a 32-game winning streak.

NEW YORK (AP) - With owners and players still miles apart, today the spring-training lockout began its third week with no end in sight.

More than 100 exhibition games already have been canceled, including today's four scheduled openers.

In Los Angeles, union head Donald Fehr was to brief players this morning. In New York, management negotiator Chuck O'Connor said Wednesday that no new bargaining sessions were set.

"Not an awful lot went on on this end today," O'Connor said. "I suppose the earliest, if (Fehr) wants to talk, is next month. But we don't have anything set for Monday."

Fehr is planning to meet with more players Friday in Tampa, Fla. He may return to New York during the weekend.

"It takes somebody coming up with a new idea or concept, or further discussions that point people in a direction they haven't been or puts things in a different light," Fehr said.

The sides have not met since Saturday and have made no progress on the key issue of salary arbitration eligibility. The union wants it at two years; the owners want it to stay at three years.

Fehr talked briefly with deputy commissioner Steve Greenberg on Wednesday, although not much was accomplished.

"It was a non-substantive conversation, to tell you the truth," O'Connor said.

The mandatory reporting date for all players was to have been Wednesday. Now, the start of the regular season is the most important date and O'Connor said clubs thought the latest spring training could start without delaying the April 2 openers would be about March 12.

"We have worked generally on the idea of generally three weeks," O'Connor said. "I'm not aware that we have precisely set a date."

Meanwhile, O'Connor suggested the debate has developed a hard edge.

"There probably has been a hardening of positions. I'd be less than candid if I didn't tell you that," he said. "When you put things on a win-lose basis, you almost invite that response."

Commissioner Fay Vincent said he spent last weekend attempting to find a compromise solution, but that the union said it would not move off its demand for a rollback to two years.

'Horns edge Rice, College races near wire

Tech falls to SMU

By The Associated Press

University of Texas coach Tom Penders says his team's ability to sink free throws during the closing minute of the game proved to be the difference in their Southwest Conference victory over Rice.

The Longhorns hit seven of eight free throws in the final 59 seconds to take an 86-84 victory over Rice Wednesday night.

In other SWC action, Houston whipped Texas A&M, 100-81, Texas Christian defeated Baylor, 62-56, and Southern Methodist edged Texas Tech, 54-53.

Travis Mays scored 28 points for the Longhorns and Lance Blanks added 16, including four free throws in four attempts in the final minute. Joey Wright also had 16 points for the Longhorns.

Texas improved its record to 19-6 and 12-3.

The loss was Rice's fifth straight and its eighth in its last nine SWC games. Rice is 11-15 overall and 5-10 in conference play.

Brent Scott led Rice with 23 points, followed by Marvin Moore with 14.

"I was pleased with the way we were able to make the big free throws down the stretch," Penders said. "Fortunately, our guys had enough poise to do it, but the game should have never been that close."

Penders was critical of the officiating.

"There were several obvious intentional fouls that were not called. And then at the end, Lance Blanks was slapped in the face and he was called for a technical foul because he said something," Penders added.

Carl Herrera scored 28 points and five teammates scored in double figures as Houston whipped Texas A&M 100-81.

In all, 11 players scored 11 or more points.

Houston improved to 22-6 overall and 12-3 in the SWC as they won their 10th straight for the first time since 1983-84. Texas A&M fell to 13-16 and 6-9.

Bryon Smith scored 18, Chris Morris 15, Darrell Michens and Derrick Daniels 13 each and Craig Upchurch 11 for Houston.

Tony Milton scored 18 points to pace the Aggies, who had four others in double figures.

"We showed signs tonight of getting back to where we need to be entering the (SWC) tournament," said Houston coach Pat Foster. "We were not as emotional as we have been in the past, but we went out with a businesslike attitude and played well."

Herrera and Smith said the Cougars were looking forward to playing Texas Thursday night.

"The Texas game is the biggest game of the year for us," Smith said. "That's the game for second place" in the conference.

Michael Strickland scored 15 of his game-high 18 points in the second half as Texas Christian battled back from a dismal first half to beat Baylor 62-56.

With the victory, TCU clinched fourth place in the conference. The Horned Frogs improved to 16-11 and 9-7 in the SWC.

Baylor, led by Julius Denton's 17 points, fell to 15-11 and 7-8.

"We didn't run our offense at all tonight," said TCU coach Moe Iba. "We were forcing our shots, especially in the first half. Our defense won the ballgame for us."

"I thought Baylor played a hard, physical game and so did we, at least, after the first 10 minutes," Iba added. "I'm just really proud of the way we came back after being down 21-8 early in the game."

Texas Tech's J.D. Sanders missed the front end of a 1-and-1 with three seconds remaining as the Red Raiders fell for the 16th straight game 54-53 to Southern Methodist.

SMU was led by forward John Colborne, who had 25 points. Will Flemons paced the Red Raiders with 16.

Colborne's layup with 2:10 remaining gave the Mustangs a 52-51 lead they would not relinquish.

Sanders rebounded Roderick Hampton's missed free throw with 35 seconds left in the game. After Tech broke the press, James Johnson recovered a loose ball, but missed a 15-footer from the wing.

The Red Raiders immediately fouled, but Hampton missed the front end of his free throws with six seconds remaining and Sanders was fouled by the Mustang's Gerald Lewis.

The Mustangs outrebounded Tech 34-25. The victory brings SMU to 9-17 overall and 4-11 in conference play. Tech is 5-21 and 0-15.

Mustang Coach John Shumate said his team deserved to win for its effort.

"You win some, you lose some, and some are rained out," he said. "We've played good games and lost and tonight, we played ugly and won."

"I was happy that our players finally saw some fruits for their efforts," he said.

Things looked great from the penthouse for Clemson and Missouri. The view wasn't so sweet for Duke, Purdue, Connecticut and Georgia.

No. 20 Clemson grabbed at least a share of its first-ever Atlantic Coast Conference title, breaking a first-place tie with Duke by beating the fifth-ranked Blue Devils 97-93 Wednesday night. No. 3 Missouri clinched its seventh Big Eight championship by beating Kansas State 65-60.

No. 9 Purdue, like Duke, fell from the lead in its conference, the Big Ten, when Iowa edged the Boilermakers 64-63. That gave idle Michigan State the lead over Purdue.

Connecticut, ranked fourth, had a chance to win its first Big East crown but couldn't handle Georgetown, falling 84-64 to the seventh-ranked Hoyas. When No. 10 Syracuse nipped Seton Hall 71-69, it created a three-way tie at the top.

The Orangemen and Hoyas play Sunday, so the best Connecticut can do is share the conference title by beating Boston College.

And Georgia, which secured a share of the Southeastern Conference championship when Florida beat LSU Tuesday night, fell to Tennessee 93-83. The Bulldogs, who have never finished first in the SEC, still can win the title outright by winning at Auburn on Saturday.

In another game involving a ranked team, No. 11 Georgia Tech lost at North Carolina 81-79.

No. 20 Clemson 97, No. 5 Duke 93. The Tigers won their 24th straight at home, a school record, and will be ACC regular-season champs if they beat Georgia Tech or Duke loses to North Carolina this weekend.

Elden Campbell, one of four seniors playing at home for the last time, scored 22 points. Christian Laetner had 25 points to lead the Blue Devils. No. 3 Missouri 65, Kansas St. 60.

Doug Smith continued his hot play with 28 points and 17 rebounds for Missouri.

The Tigers also got a boost from point guard Lee Coward. He came off the bench in the first half after missing several games with an injury and scored 10 points.

Iowa 64, No. 9 Purdue 63. Iowa knocked Purdue out of the Big Ten lead when Matt Bullard, playing his last home game, hit the winning shot to snap a six-game losing streak.

Purdue's Tony Jones dribbled the length of the court with the inbounds pass but missed a jumper from the left side. Jimmy Oliver's shot from deep in the right corner swished in, but officials ruled time had expired on the Boilermakers.

No. 7 Georgetown 84, No. 4 Connecticut 64.

At Landover, Md., the Hoyas created a three-way logjam atop the Big East, getting 20 points and 12 rebounds from Alonzo Mourning.

The setback spoiled UConn's bid to clinch at least a share of the conference crown. Connecticut went more than six minutes without a point midway through the second half.

Dwayne Bryant scored 20 for Georgetown.

No. 10 Syracuse 71, Seton Hall 69. Billy Owens' driving shot in the closing seconds hit off the backboard like a brick, but Derrick Coleman tipped in the missed shot at the buzzer. The Orangemen defeated the Pirates for the 20th straight time.

Tennessee 93, Georgia 83.

With the outright SEC flag within grasp, visiting Georgia couldn't handle Ian Lockhart, who had 24 points and 17 rebounds.

Litteral Green led Georgia with 21 points.

N. Carolina 81, No. 11 Georgia Tech 79.

Rick Fox hit two free throws after he took a midcourt inbounds pass from Kevin Madden and drove the right baseline. Karl Brown stepped in front of Fox and was called for a blocking foul.

The victory was sealed when Brian Oliver stepped out of bounds after taking an inbounds pass from Brown at halfcourt with two seconds to play.

Mavs lose again in Boston

By DICK BRINSTER

AP Sports Writer

The Dallas Mavericks will have to wait until next year for the chance to break their seemingly eternal Boston Garden jinx.

For a while Wednesday night, it appeared they had a chance.

"We made a run, but ..." Coach Richie Adubato said, shaking his head after the Mavericks dropped a 111-98 decision to the Boston Celtics.

The loss, which Adubato blamed in part on fatigue, gave Dallas an 0-10 mark in games at the Garden since the franchise was formed.

They also ran into Larry Bird, who scored 31 points and helped lead a 14-2 surge that broke open a close game in the third period. At that point, the Celtics began to move, and there wasn't much the Mavericks could do.

"I thought we were tired, but I was happy with the way we pressed them in the end," Adubato said. "It showed that we did not quit."

But they simply couldn't keep up.

"When you let them run and get out on the break, you have no chance," said Rolando Blackman, who had 18 points for Dallas.

The Celtics held advantages of 53-37 in rebounding, 29-22 in assists and 25-11 in foul shooting.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Golden State 144, San Antonio 135 in overtime; the Los Angeles Lakers 112, Seattle 107; Atlanta 102, Indiana 99 and Miami 113, Sacramento 92.

The Mavericks, led by Derek Harper with 30 points, have won seven of their last 10 games but have been held under 100 points in five of the last six.

Warriors 144, Spurs 135.

Golden State's Chris Mullin scored with 1.3 seconds left to send the game to overtime after setting a team record with six 3-point baskets in a 36-point performance.

Rod Higgins scored nine of his 13 points in overtime for the Warriors, who outscored the Spurs 19-10 in the extra session.

Mitch Richmond had 28 points and Tom Tolbert added a career-high 27 for the Warriors.

Rookie center David Robinson had a career-high 38 points for the Spurs.

The Spurs outrebounded the Warriors 68-46, setting a franchise record with 37 offensive rebounds.

Lakers 112, SuperSonics 107.

Magic Johnson had eight of his 25 points as Los Angeles scored 18 straight points in the third period en route to victory over injury-riddled Seattle.

The SuperSonics led by as many as 13 points in the period before the Lakers rallied to lead.

Dana Barros led Seattle with 20 points.

Hawks 102, Pacers 99.

Kevin Willis had 19 points and 18 rebounds as Atlanta survived a late flurry of 3-point shots.

Reggie Miller led Indiana with 24 points, including three 3-point baskets.

The Hawks led for good after Kenny Smith's short basket in the lane broke an 82-82 tie with 8:48 to play. The Hawks had to hold on, winning it only after Miller misfired on a 3-pointer from the right corner as time expired.

Heat 113, Kings 92.

Kevin Edwards scored 16 first-quarter points, only two less than Sacramento managed as a team, as Miami opened a big early lead and never trailed.

Edwards, who finished with 32 points despite sitting out the final 15 minutes, hit 13 of 17 shots and all six free throws.

Antoine Carr led Sacramento with 20 points.

A&M pitcher Peters has surgery on arm

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Jon Peters, who set a national high school record with 53 consecutive victories at Brenham, has undergone arthroscopic surgery on his pitching elbow and will be redshirted by Texas A&M University in his freshman season.

Dr. Jim Andrews operated on Peters last Friday in Birmingham, Ala., after Peters developed pain in his right elbow during an intrasquad game after six months of rest. The Associated Press learned. The elbow bothered him after just two innings.

Andrews called the operation a success and said Peters should be able to return at full strength next year. Andrews said there was no ligament or cartilage damage.

Peters, 19, hurt the elbow during a high school all-star game in the Astrodome last summer, walking off the mound after 1 1/3 innings. He hurt it again pitching in a summer league.

A&M coach Mark Johnson had been careful with Peters, trying not to rush him into action too soon this spring.

"I appreciate the concern Texas A&M has shown for career," said Peters, who returned to school this week and has resumed his studies. "I think I'll be able to contribute next year. This might be the best thing for me in the long run. There was some pressure on me to be able to step right in."

The No. 22 ranked Aggies of the Southwest Conference are loaded with pitching talent and Johnson hadn't planned on pushing Peters into the starting rotation.

Peters had a 54-1 overall record at Brenham High School, including 22 shutouts and five no-hitters. He had 612 strikeouts in 370 innings. He broke the national record of 51 straight victories on April 29, 1989, against A&M Consolidated.

Texas A&M trainer Mike Ricke said the doctor shaved away the bone where it had become too thick.

"Right now we have some questions that are unanswered and we will have to evaluate him next summer," Ricke said. "Things look good now. He had a thickening of the bone that was causing him some extension problems. Hopefully he'll bounce back. He's a good kid and hard worker. I feel confident he'll come back. The prognosis is good."

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson toured St. Edward's University, where the team will hold training camp, while owner Jerry Jones met with the mayor, reportedly over financial matters concerning the facilities.

WFAA-TV in Dallas reported the meeting between Jones and Mayor Lee Cooke on Wednesday involved the city's $60,000 or more shortfall in funds to make repairs to the facilities.

Johnson and some assistants, meanwhile, toured the campus for one hour.

Johnson told the Austin American-Statesman he wasn't concerned that the fields wouldn't be ready in time for the start of camp. The Chamber of Commerce is expected to start its sponsorship drive early this month, which will help cover an approximate $100,000 cost overrun in preparing the drainage for the fields, the newspaper reported.

Camp for rookies begins July 18, four days before veterans are scheduled to arrive.

"I like the facilities," Johnson said. "Everything is more convenient than it was in Thousand Oaks (Calif.), so there's less dead time walking between the dorms and meeting rooms and dining facilities. It's better than I thought it would be."

Johnson said the Cowboys will stay in California between their exhibition games against San Diego on Aug. 11 and the Los Angeles Raiders on Aug. 18, probably sharing the Chargers practice facility at the University of California-San Diego.

During camp in Austin, the only other NFL team the Cowboys will scrimmage will be the Houston Oilers, who train in San Marcos, Johnson said. Dates and sites of scrimmages have yet to be finalized.

"It's a possibility (to bring in another NFL team for scrimmages) but in all probability, not this first year," Johnson said.

St. Edward's officials plan to send a copy of their contract proposal to the Cowboys offices Thursday and visit Valley Ranch on Friday to meet with Cowboys treasurer Jack Dixon. The university is seeking a five-year deal that would cover expenses, estimated to be about $400,000.

Dave Dickson, vice president for finances, said the school hasn't written a buyout clause, but will. "That would be related to losses we felt we'd incur if they pulled out," Dickson said.

Here's medication tips for children

Taking medicines correctly has typically been a concern of older patients who often have multiple prescriptions. But according to the Department of Health and Human Services, nearly half (46 percent) of children who take prescribed medicine are taking it improperly.

Researchers have found that, while adolescents are most likely to take medicine incorrectly, the problem is prevalent at all ages. In fact, almost five percent of all pediatric hospital admissions were related to the misuse of medicine. Nearly half of those cases were serious or fatal.

Here are some ways that parents incorrectly administer medications to their children.

-Discontinuing the medication too soon. As soon as the child feels better, the parent stops giving the medication. This can be particularly serious not only because the child may become re-infected, but also because the organism that survived the first dose of antibiotics will have built up a resistance to the medication, making the next infection much harder to kill.

-Taking the medication erratically. Some medicines must remain at specific levels in the blood in order to work. Therefore, these medications must be taken at regular times around the clock. Parents were found to be particularly careless about giving the medicine during the night, when a sick child may finally be getting some rest.

-Refusing to take the medication. Unpleasant taste and side effects are the most common causes for refusal.

-Taking too much or too little medication. Parents are careless about giving a little extra medicine for good measure, particularly when using over-the-counter medications.

-Not enough medication is given when liquid medicine is not sufficiently shaken and the active ingredient does not get on the spoon. Also with liquid medicine, the measurement is often inexact.

-Giving adult medication to children. Parents are casual about giving children small portions of medications that have been prepared for adults. Children may react to certain medicines differently than adults do. Aspirin and its link to Reyes Syndrome is a good example of a medicine that is safe for adults but potentially deadly for children. Other adult medicines, particularly cough and cold formulas, are prepared with alcohol.

Manufacturers of over-the-counter medicines, particularly for colds, fevers, rashes, and stomach disorders, are working with the FDA to clarify directions for proper usage and exact measurements.

The most accessible source of information on proper medication use is your local independent pharmacy, where two out of every three retail prescriptions are dispensed.

If you have any questions about the medication your child is taking or how to administer it, ask your independent pharmacist.

Easter bake sale April 13

Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 met recently in a routine session with plans being made for the Easter bake sale, April 13.

A memorial service was held for deceased members, Ola Hacker and Edna Mathes, with family members attending. The ceremony was presented by Erma Loving, Lydia Hopson, Faye Brownlow and Ursalee Jacobsen. Sadie Shaw and Susie Curtsinger provided the music.

Forty-two visits to the sick and 35 cheer cards were reported as Noble Grand Rosalie Northcutt presided over the meeting.

Friona Rebekah Lodge #308 will host a joint meeting scheduled for March 5.

Others present were Jim Loving, Ben Conklin, Tony Irlbeck, Gene Bishop, Genevieve Lynn, Verna Sowell, Jo Irlbeck and Dorothy Lundry.

Many smokers have a bad cough they can't get rid of. This can mean they have a disease called chronic bronchitis.

Sea creatures living at depths below 3,000 feet have been found to be blind or to possess their own phosphorescent lighting system.

Here's tips to make men better hair care shoppers

American men spent approximately $1.3 billion on grooming products in 1989. Yet, rather than appreciating the array of hair care choices available, many men are overwhelmed.

To guide men in making product selections that will help them better manage their individual hair care needs, hair growth experts Thomas Nigra, M.C., the Washington Hospital Center, Washington, D.C., and Paul Glick, Chicago-based image consultant, offer the following tips:

1. Be skeptical when reading product label claims. Every product has a promise or an offer of hope in addressing a self-image concern. To avoid disappointment, set realistic expectations and don't be afraid to ask questions. If the salesclerk is unable to help, ask for the store manager or product buyer.

2. Be aware that, by and large, all conditioners accomplish the same thing. Conditioners simply add protein and other agents to hair to improve manageability.

3. Be careful when buying a dandruff shampoo. Make sure the shampoo you choose has one of the five ingredients cited by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as safe and effective in controlling dandruff. These are salicylic acid, pyriithione zinc, sulfur, coal tar and selenium sulfide. Because dandruff shampoos are highly toxic, they should be used sparingly and kept away from children.

4. Be conscious of your hair type when buying any shampoo. Men with thinning hair, for example, frequently have oily hair and should use a shampoo for oily hair or one specially formulated for thinning hair that won't leave unwanted residue. If men use a shampoo designed for dry hair, they may develop the scaling and itching problems of aggravated dandruff.

5. Be realistic about shampoo additives. Herbal, lemon and egg shampoos smell good, but they offer little or no cleansing benefit. Often additives reflect the perceptions of marketers more than the needs of consumers.

6. Differentiate between over-the-counter hair thickener products and a prescription hair growth treatment. Hair thickeners use ingredients such as trisaccharide chemicals to add body to hair and make it appear fuller. A new FDA regulation effective Jan. 7, 1990, prohibits companies from claiming that nonprescription products actually grow hair or prevent hair loss. The only product scientifically proven to grow hair is Rogaine Topical Solution (two percent minoxidil), available only with a doctor's prescription.

For more information on men's hair care, write for a free copy of "A Complete Guide to Men's Hair Care," P.O. Box 307, Coventry, Conn. 06230.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Grammy winners Mac Rebennack and Art, Aaron and Charles Neville say the world is finally waking up to the New Orleans sound.

"I don't think we're doing anything differently. I think the world is just catching up to us," said Rebennack, better known as Dr. John, at a city awards ceremony honoring the prize-winning artists.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband died three months ago from a rare cancer called Gardner's syndrome. He was diagnosed just 13 months before he died. After his second operation his surgeon called me and advised me to have my children's colons removed before their 18th birthdays.

His older brother and sister also died from this cancer and in those cases the doctors had removed their colons and said they were cancer-free. Within two years they died. Both were 32. My husband was 35 before he had an operation to remove cancer.

Does the surgery make the cancer spread to different sites in the body, for example the stomach? Would removal of the colon help? Can you tell me about the characteristic cysts that Gardner's syndrome patients have? Is this a muscle cancer and should I restrict my children from physical activities?

DEAR READER: Colorectal cancers are the second most common cause of cancer deaths in both men and women. But Gardner's syndrome, one form of colon cancer, is relatively rare. It is caused by inherited characteristics. It is rare enough that I would advise making contact with one of the large cancer centers such as M.D. Anderson in Houston, Texas, or Sloan-Kettering in New York. As unpleasant as the thought is, there is a strong case for removing the colon if there are any polyps or other changes detected on a complete and careful examination of the colon.

Gardner's syndrome may also cause polyps in the small intestine and stomach. That is why removal of the colon may help but may not eliminate the threat of cancer. These individuals are more prone to other cancers as well, including cancer of the thyroid and adrenal glands. Benign bone cysts and other cysts including fatty tumors (lipomas) are common.

Although your family problem is somewhat different, I am sending you Special Issue 33-10, Colorectal Cancer Is No. 2 Killer, for general information on colon cancer and polyps. Others who want this issue can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. I would urge all readers to follow the early detection program discussed in this issue. It could save your life.

No. The surgery does not cause cancer to spread. The problem is that other cancers may arise independent of the surgery. It is not a muscle cancer and has nothing to do with physical activity.

DEAR DR. LAMB: There was an article in our paper that stated, "Let the kids kiss Fido, his mouth's cleaner than yours." Now I enjoy animals, having raised dogs, but enough is enough. I have seen too often where their noses and mouths end up.

Then I see some one putting his plate on the floor for the animals to lick. Yuck! Then we eat off the plates — double yuck! At least there's soap and water applied, hopefully. But direct mouth-to-mouth? Come on! I would appreciate your comments.

DEAR READER: Dog's mouths are not sanitary. Contrary to a mistaken belief by some, having a wound licked by a dog has no healing effects and may contaminate the wound. Some gastrointestinal diseases can be transmitted by mouth-to-mouth contact. Dogs and many animals are resistant to many bacteria that cause human illnesses.

I'm less concerned about letting a dog eat off a plate PROVIDED that the plate is washed in a modern dishwasher. The washing and the heat should pretty well sterilize the plate for future use.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My son recently experienced a "blackout" about 30 hours after he had taken a muscle relaxant called Robaxin. The blackout lasted only about one minute. He was operating a machine at the time and had an accident. He narrowly escaped serious injury.

Could this have been triggered by the Robaxin? Is it affected by using alcohol after it is ingested? He is 25, served four years in the Navy and has never blacked out before. The doctors say he is in perfect health.

DEAR READER: Robaxin is commonly prescribed for muscle spasm as in painful backaches. It depresses the brain functions but just exactly how it causes muscle relaxation is not known.

Yes, it can cause a person to be lightheaded, drowsy or dizzy or to faint. A "blackout" of such short duration sounds like a faint.

It should never be used with alcohol or any sedative or other medication that depresses the brain's action. Under those circumstances a faint is much more likely. Anyone who uses alcohol in any form should find out from their doctor when any medicine is prescribed if it will be affected by alcohol.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

Sponsored by the Junior League of Amarillo, the festival will be held March 9-11 at the Amarillo Civic Center. The Best of Texas Festival is being planned and implemented by Chairman Julie Storm; Assistant Chairman Leisa Durrett, and her committee of sixteen.

The festival will kick-off with a citywide "Taste-of-Texas" party to be held in the North Concourse of the Amarillo Civic Center on Friday, March 9 from 7-9 p.m. Those attending will sample savory Texas variety of beverages and foods and get a chance to purchase merchandise to be sold over the weekend. Tickets can be purchased for $10 each by contacting any league member, Karla Coon at 355-1205, or at the door.

Prizes will be awarded to lucky ticket holders at the festival party. A silent auction will run throughout the preview party and the festival. According to Susan McKissack, co-chairman for the party prize ticket committee, "You'll want to dust off your boots and shine your belt buckles, because the dress is Texas chic."

The festival itself will begin Saturday at 10 a.m. with a variety of merchants from across the state manning individual booths and selling their wares. There will be "Texas style foods, unique jewelry designs, T-shirts and interesting gifts for him or her, all from the great state of Texas. The festival will close at 6 p.m. on Saturday, March 10, and open again on Sunday, March 11 from noon until 5 p.m.

Special events include a display of cakes from local bakeries with Texas themes, a history display provided by AISD seventh grade students, on March 10 from 1-4 p.m. Coach Jerry Miller, of the Amarillo Texans baseball team, will be on hand to give away programs, stickers and sign autographs, on March 11 from 1-4 p.m. Artist Kenneth Wyatt will be on hand to autograph his latest book, The Apostles.

Schedule of events:
Party — 7-9 p.m., Friday, March 9.
Festival — 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Saturday, March 10.
Festival cont. — Noon-5 p.m., Sunday, March 11.

The Junior League of Amarillo is an organization of women committed to promoting volunteerism and to improving the community through the effective action and leadership of trained volunteers. Its purpose is exclusively educational and charitable. Funfest and the Best of Texas Festival represent the major fundraising efforts of the Junior League of Amarillo for 1990. Proceeds of fundraisers are used to train volunteers and to support their purpose and community projects.

Bear supper attended by club

Members of the Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club met Monday for their annual bear supper in the Heritage Room of Deaf Smith County Library.

During the business meeting with President Dale Henson presiding, Bud Cawthon made the motion that the club donate $100 to the Crimstoppers fundraising event set for March 16 in the Walkers' Opra building. Jack Nunley discussed a program for the event which will feature country western music by local bands.

Also, reports were made from members about rock shows which are scheduled in this area.

Juanita Perrin directed a skit entitled "Gathering of the Nuts."

There were 26 members present at the meeting which was hosted by members of the social committee headed by Juanita Coker.

The next meeting is planned at 7:30 p.m. March 26 at the library. All those interested in joining the organization are invited to attend the meeting.

CLASSIFIED ADS

Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.80 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy charge, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN
1 day per word	.14	2.80
2 days per word	.24	4.80
3 days per word	.34	8.00
4 days per word	.44	8.80

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines—those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.95 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALS

Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS

Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

Cubs' Dawson guaranteed a better season

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

Andre Dawson could have a better year than the president. Or a worse year. Or, the way negotiations have been going of late, no year at all - and still make 10 times more than George Bush in 1990.

Ain't baseball grand?
"Not exactly," the hard-hitting Chicago Cubs outfielder said over the telephone Tuesday from his south Florida home. "I'd rather be playing than sitting around."

According to a recent survey, Dawson, at $2.1 million per year, is the third-highest-paid of 38 major leaguers who have contracts guaranteeing a regular check if the lockout virus really takes hold and kills the 1990 season. Only Eddie Murray of the Los Angeles Dodgers, at $2.7 million, and Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, at $2.5 million, would do better.

So you figure Andre Dawson would be a big winner. But he figures he would be a big loser. Because he has plenty of it, money doesn't motivate him as much as it used to. Pride still does, though, and Dawson can never have too much of that.

One year after the Montreal Expos suggested he was finished as a player, Dawson gave up buckets of cash to become the starting right fielder for the Cubs. By the time the 1987 season ended, he had compiled the most productive numbers of his 13-year career and become the first player ever from a sixth-place team to win the National League's Most Valuable Player award.

Last year, troubles with his right knee caused him to miss 44 games in the regular season and to struggle so mightily - yet futilely - in the playoffs against San Francisco that many wondered anew if, at age 35, he was indeed washed up.

And he must have wondered as well just two days after the Cubs were eliminated, when he put his right knee under the knife for the fourth time. Ironically, though the left knee has been operated on only twice, Dawson always called his right "the good knee."

After a cyst was removed and the cartilage damage repaired, Dawson began rehabilitation Nov. 28, targeting the start of the regular season for his return as an everyday ballplayer. He has worked on the knee every other day since for 2 1/2 hours, lifting weights on the alternate days. He has been running, throwing and hitting in a batting cage every day since the doctors approved half-speed workouts several weeks ago.

The rehab work he does at a nearby clinic, the hitting in cages owned by

Tee times needed for Pitman GC

Golfers planning on playing at Pitman Municipal Golf Course Saturday and Sunday should call ahead to reserve tee times, according to Head Pro Brent Warner.

Warner said the course would begin taking reservations for weekend tee times each Thursday through the end of the summer.

a long-time friend, and the workouts with his cousin at Murray Park in nearby South Florida, the site where he played as a youngster and not far from a street that was renamed Andre Dawson Drive after his MVP season.

He allows that he has spent more time with wife Vanessa and the couple's 7-month-old son than he planned on, and that his recuperation is probably being made considerably easier because of the additional rest. He is comfortable.

He is also dying to get to spring training.

"I realize you can only play so long, and I only want to play two or three more years," Dawson said. "As long as I'm healthy, I don't worry about the numbers."

"It was a different story when I was in Montreal," he said, "when there were a lot of young players and I was counted on to be the catalyst. There, every injury was a hangup with management when it came time for negotiations."

"That's not a problem anymore. The thing now is to satisfy my own sense of accomplishment. As you grow older, you learn that you have to make a lot more adjustments, and that's what I'm interested in - finding out if I can still make those adjustments for another few seasons."

NC State's athletic problems continue to mount

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

Basketball has long been the pride and passion at North Carolina State. Lately, it's also been a source of shame.

First came "Personal Fouls," a book that featured allegations of drug use, grade changing and lavish gifts in the basketball program.

That was followed by a two-year probation levied by the NCAA for improper ticket and sneaker sales.

And now, the most serious charge yet - alleged point-shaving by Charles Shackleford and three of his N.C. State teammates during the 1987-88 season.

Jim Valvano, the wise-cracking, fast-talking coach who became a media darling after the Wolfpack won the NCAA championship in 1983, was downcast and distressed after ABC News aired point-shaving allegations Wednesday.

"I feel helpless," Valvano said after N.C. State's 96-95 loss at Maryland on Wednesday night. "I'm a spectator right along with everyone else. I had no knowledge, no idea about what transpired. I'm learning about it (the ABC report) with everybody else."

Citing unnamed "inside sources," ABC said Shackleford and three teammates conspired to fix N.C.

State's regular-season finale against Wake Forest and as many as three other games in 1987-88 in return for money from New Jersey contractor Robert Kramer. N.C. State was a 16-point favorite against Wake, but won by only four.

According to The Greensboro News & Record, investigators in North Carolina also are checking out allegations of point-shaving in a 1986 N.C. State-Tampa game. The Wolfpack, ranked 12th in the country at the time, were beaten by the Division II opponent, 67-62.

An N.C. State attorney said Wednesday that Shackleford, who now plays for the New Jersey Nets, broke NCAA rules by accepting money while he was a college player. But the real bombshell was the alleged point-shaving.

In New Jersey, Denville police chief Howard Shaw confirmed that Kramer is one of the subjects of a department probe that began in November following a tip from Armen Ketyjian, the ABC reporter who broke Wednesday's point-shaving story.

Shaw wouldn't say if his investigation involved point-shaving, but he acknowledged that Shackleford's name has been mentioned.

"We've certainly been giving him some attention," Shaw said.

Shaw said Valvano hasn't been implicated in the probe.

Shackleford had 16 points and 13 rebounds against Wake Forest in the March 1988 game, but allowed Wake center Ralph Kitley to score a career-high 22 points. Kitley averaged only three points a game that season.

ABC said the 6-foot-10 Shackleford "was playing so poorly because he was being paid" by Kramer to fix the score.

"Three people, including one of his North Carolina State teammates, have implicated Shackleford ...," the network said. "They say that Shackleford and three teammates conspired to fix the Wake Forest game and as many as three other games during the 1987-88 season."

ABC said Kramer "masterminded" the conspiracy, paying the four players as much as $1,000 each per game and using Shackleford to distribute the money.

Angelo Carvana, identified by the network as a former business associate of Kramer, told ABC that Kramer approached him hours before the Wake Forest game and said it was "under control."

"He told me if I were to bet on the game that I could make myself some money because it had been taken care of," Carvana said.

ABC said sources, including a former roommate of Kramer, told the network he was a heavy sports gambler. The network said phone records show Kramer made more than 330 calls in one month from his home to bookmakers and sports update lines.

Shackleford and Kramer declined to be interviewed by ABC, but their lawyers denied they were involved in point-shaving.

The ABC report included an interview with a former N.C. State player who was allegedly involved in fixing games. His voice was electronically altered and his face shielded by shadows so he couldn't be recognized.

"It was basically just for the money ... because you didn't have the money to eat when the cafeteria was closed," the player explained. "It was justice in a sense. That here we are, kids playing for a big-time college team, and they are bringing in thousands of dollars a year by playing on TV."

Asked if he would shave points again, the player said "Yes."

N.C. State guard Chris Corchiani, who played in the Wake Forest game, said he wasn't aware of any point-shaving.

"I don't know anything about it other than we wanted to win the game," he said following Wednesday night's loss at Maryland.

Put Your Money on Texas.

You may not realize it, but when you put your money into a bank run by out-of-staters, that's where most of your money goes - out of state. Which is bad news for Texas. Bad news for you.

But you do have a choice. You can put your money into AmWest Savings. And not just because we're Texas owned and operated, either. But because we'll work hard for your money and offer you the kinds of banking services that will make your life easier and help your money grow faster. So put your money into AmWest Savings. And put your money on Texas.
