Chamber Singers Bound For Romania

By Speedy Nieman

That feller on Teirra Blanca Creek says if it is fair to hear both sides of an argument, it is heavenly to hear the end of it.

In any given dispute, the difficulty of determining what the facts are is exceeded only by the difficulty of agreeing on what the facts mean.

KEY ISSUES coming up in the Texas Legislature were outlined by State Sen. Max Sherman when he addressed the Hereford Lions club this week. Among the important issues he listed were regulation of utility rates, the longrange Texas water plan, methods of taxing agricultural land, and the disbursement of "surplus" funds in the state budget.

The next session opens on Jan. 11 and House Speaker Bill Clayton says as many as 600 bills could be introduced under the 60-day pre-filing plan. He expects some 4,000 bills to be presented before the session ends next May.

One bill already proposed decreases the state sales tax from 4 per cent to 3 per cent for a two-year period. Another exempts gas and electricity utilities from the state sales tax. One bill would prohibit the telephone company from charging for directory assistance calls. A Harris County legislator has introduced a bill which requires a hearing before either gas or electric utility companies may charge any pass-through rates to customers. This action has been criticized and questioned locally.

"BLESSINGS TO the Newspaper Carrier" is the title of an editorial we read in another newspaper. It offers a tribute to the nation's "little merchants" who deliver papers, and we think it will be of interest to many of our readers:

"Blessed is the newspaper carrier who delivers the paper to my doorstep no matter how inclement the weather.

"Blessed is the carrier's mother who makes sure he starts in time to deliver the paper promptly.

"Blessed is the carrier's sister who helps fold his papers when he comes home from school.

"Blessed is the carrier's father who drives him on his route when time is short of the weather is bad.

"Blessed is the advertiser who has faith that an 11-year-old boy or girl will distribute his message.

"Blessed am I when I pay my carrier promptly, knowing that it's easy—because he's a kid—to tell him to come back later.

THERE WAS a lot of yesterday we don't need today, but some of it was worth hanging on to.

Take for instance the respect of laws and the officers who enforce them. In the past few weeks, two Texas law officers have been gunned down in cold blood, apparently without reason or logic. It makes you wonder if the criminals were not too concerned, because they knew they had "civil rights."

It used to be that when a criminal killed a law enforcement officer, all stops were pulled out to give him prompt and severe punishment. This was because it was felt that if criminals destroy our first line of defense—the policeman, then the rest of us would be in grave danger of our lives and property.

But in recent years, the courts have become so preoccupied with guaranteeing criminals their civil rights that the

"I'd rather take peace to a Soviet nation than war," Bill Devers, director of the Hereford Chamber Singers said about the recent revelation that he and his choral group will have the chance next summer to visit Romania as part of a cultural exchange program.

The Hereford Chamber Singers, Inc. will go to the country in the summer of 1977 through the Friendship Ambassadors, headquartered in New York City. It is a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting exchanges between countries to further the exposure that the world has of foreign lands.

Since 1972, over 7,000 musicians have visited Romania.

THE CHAMBER SINGERS, sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, was selected as one of the groups from the United States to participate in Romania's Centennial Festivals of the Arts. It is in observance of the country's 100th anniversary of independence.

The selected Hereford representatives will travel to the foreign country during the last two weeks of July in 1977.

Devers' observation of the singers' objective in Romania is no better revealed than in the group's theme statement, "Human Relations Through Music." "That says it all," one Hereford Chamber Singer said.

'Economy Will Need Help' Carter Notes; 1977 Tax Cut Possible

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) - With unemployment and wholesale prices rising, President-elect Carter says he expects the economy "will need help," possibly through an early 1977 tax cut, but says he doesn't want the power to impose new wage and price controls.

In a nationally broadcast news conference Friday from an agricultural experiment station near his home here, Carter showed obvious concern over new government economic and unemployment figures as well as price rises in the steel industry.

A few hours before the news conference, the Labor Department reported that unemployment rose last month to a new high for the year of 8.1 per cent from 7.9 per cent in October. And another government report showed wholesale prices scoring their third sharp monthly increase in a row, rising six-tenths of 1 per cent in November.

"The likelihood is the economy will need help" next year, Carter said.

Carter said tax cuts and programs to create jobs are among options he is weighing. But he said he will wait until after the first of the year before deciding exactly what to do.

The President-elect, who also named his first Cabinet official during the news conference, moved to soothe any fears corporations may have of a Democratic administration by vowing not to seek standby power to impose wage and price controls.

Carter summoned reporters to the tiny but modern auditorium of the experiment station to announce his selection of Cyrus R. Vance, 59, to become secretary of state.

Vance served in the Johnson administration as secretary of the Army, deputy secretary of defense and as a wide-ranging diplomatic troubleshooter. Also announced was Carter's plan to nominate Atlanta banker Thomas B. "Bert" Lance as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Sources in the Carter camp indicated the President-elect has decided to name Atlanta lawyer Bob Lipshutz as a presidential counselor. Lipshutz was Carter's campaign treasurer.

Carter again expressed hope that recent steel price hikes will be reversed, voicing doubt that they were necessary "or will stick."

There had been speculation among industry observers that a new round of price increases could be upcoming because of corporate fears that Carter might seek powers that would let him freeze wages and prices.

But Carter said flatly on Friday that he will not ask for such authority, barring an emergency he pictured as remote. Standby authority, he conceded, could prompt price rises.

Carter disclosed that Lance, at his behest, had contacted the three largest steel producers and asked them not to adopt price hikes initiated by smaller competitors. But he said the companies replied that an increase was justified.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger joined senators of both parties in praising the impending nomination of Vance, whose confirmation by the Senate seems a foregone conclusion.

Commission Slates Meeting Monday Night

The Hereford City Commission meets in regular session at 7:30 p.m. to consider a two item agenda. It will be held at Hereford City Hall.

The commissioners will review the possibility of furnishing jet fuel at the municipal airport and a request to increase the payment the city makes toward the county juvenile officer.

The commissioners include Frank Barret, Paul Abalos, Mayor Jim Sears, Stan Fry, and Emory Brownlow.

Construction Jumps Faster Than Expected

The Hereford economy is apparently growing faster than it was reported in the Friday issue of The Hereford Brand as reflected by building permits issued by the City.

It was predicted in that issue that building permits would soon reach over the $7 million mark. However, that total was already achieved by the end of November when the permits issued in the first 11 months of the year amounted to $7,121,950.

It was advertently reported in the Friday newspaper that permits totaled only $6,782,600. Actually that is the year's total minus the monthly amount recorded in October. When the permits were added up, October's $339,350 figure was left out therefore making the annual total inaccurate.

The figuring still doesn't affect the overall total much as it is still a record for the amount issued in building permits in one year. December's total will only increase that record. The previous yearly record was set in 1965 when Sugarland Mall pushed permits slightly over the $5 million mark.

If nothing else, Hereford did the impossible or at least it seems when about $300,000 in construction was achieved in a two-day period. It only shows the Hustlin' Hereford is doing just that.

State Tax Study Presented

AUSTIN (AP) - A House-Senate study committee presented a proposed 201-page tax revision bill Friday that it said will make tax-paying easier for all Texans.

"This is the Texas property taxpayers bill of rights," Rep. Peveto, D-Orange, chairman of the Property Tax Study Committee, told a news conference.

The tentative recodification of tax laws was approved by the committee a week ago and will be presented in public hearing in 13 cities beginning Dec. 13.

Republicans Need Information

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans cannot rebuild their party until they "go into the neighborhoods and ferret out the reasons why blacks, ethnic groups, blue-collar and the others don't identify with us," says Sen. Bob Dole.

"We have to do it...it may mean going door to door," said Dole, the Kansas senator who was President Ford's running mate.

In the 30 days since Ford and Dole lost the election to President-elect Carter, GOP leaders have been saying the Republicans base must be broadened.

Reagan Declines Chairmanship

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) - Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan says he isn't interested in being named national Republican Party chairman.

"It requires a fulltime technician, not a party spokesman," Reagan said at a press conference Friday before addressing a gentlemen's group here. The top GOP post is being vacated by Mary Louise Smith, who is resigning.

Reagan, defeated by President Ford for the GOP presidential nomination last summer, said Republicans should use the 1976 platform to seek increased strength.

Cash Welfare Proposed

NEW YORK (AP) - Direct cash payments to poor people - instead of food stamps and other federal welfare programs - would raise as many as 74 per cent of them above the poverty line while discouraging only a handful from working, a new study says.

The Rand Corp. report on the possible costs and social effects of a "negative income tax" comes at a time when President-elect Carter is said to be considering welfare reforms, even a federal takeover of welfare costs.

And, some "do-gooders" of influence are using the civil rights "blanket" to cover a multitude of sins. It has become increasingly difficult to fire people from government jobs, even if they are lazy, inefficient and have a bad attitude toward their work and their superiors.

MAD Representatives Seek Visit With Carter

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Texas Mexican-American Democrats have asked President-elect Jimmy Carter for a meeting within the next two weeks to ask him what he plans to do about a promise that he would bring Mexican-Americans into the decision-making process under his administration.

Former State Sen. Joe Bernal of San Antonio, chairman of the Mexican-American Democrats (MAD) said Tuesday the group drafted a letter to Carter this week asking for the meeting and reminding him of the overwhelming support he received from Mexican-American Democrats in the recent election.

Bernal said the group met in Corpus Christi to analyze the election and determine what kind of impact Mexican-Americans can have in the new administration.

High Mason Post Goes To Ford

Herman Ford, 103 Elm St. was installed as the District Deputy Grand Master of the 100th Masonic District of the Grand Lodge of Texas during the 141st Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of Texas in Waco this week.

The charter member of the Hereford Rotary Club is the past master of the Hereford Masonic Lodge and a member of the Official Board of the First Christian Church.

Also at the meeting, J.B. Noland, of Summerfield was re-elected to the Committee on Works of the Grand Lodge. It is a five-year term of office. Ford serves for one year. Attending from the local lodge were Leroy McDonald, present master of the Hereford Lodge and Bill Bradley, senior warden of the Hereford lodge. Herman Vinyard is the Grand Master of the Masons of Texas. He is from McAllen.

Boys Ranch Christmas Clothes Fund Begins

The annual drive to provide the 350 boys at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch with a new suit of clothing has commenced.

Providing new clothing for the boys through the Christmas Suit Fund has become a favorite way of Christmas giving for friends of the boys who contribute $35.00 for this purpose. Special discounts by merchants and differences in prices of clothing for younger and older boys make the average cost of $35.00 possible. The suits replace those that have been worn out or outgrown, and in many cases, they are the first new suits some boys have ever owned.

"The boys get to select their own clothing in stores, and the suits will be worn by graduating seniors next spring," Virgil Patterson, Ranch President, said. "A new suit is the best Christmas present a boy can receive because it is a year-round reminder of those who really care".

Contributions to the Boys Ranch Christmas Suit Fund may be mailed to the Boys Ranch Office, P.O. Box 1890, Amarillo, Texas 79174, or taken to the office at 600 West 11th Street in Amarillo.

School in Greenland is compulsory until age 14. Courses include kayak handling and sewing furs.

Mrs. V. Juanita Moore has 30 years teaching experience and is presently teaching third grade at Shirley Elementary.

Wife of Don Moore, Hereford High School choir director, and the mother of five children, Mrs. Moore considers teaching school her hobby as well as her vocation. She also enjoys reading, cooking, sewing and gardening.

Juanita graduated from Lockney High School and received her BS degree from McMurry College in Abilene. Her graduate work was done at West Texas State University and at E.N.M.U. in Portales, N.M.

High school business was her teaching field at Aspermont, Dalhart, Midland, and Taylor County. She was acting head of the Business Administration Department at McMurry College for one semester, and she taught first and second grades for 10 years in New Mexico.

Mrs. Moore is no stranger to the Hereford School System. From 1950 to 1964 she was a first grade teacher at Aikman and Central under retired principal D.C. Martin.

She is a life member of NEA, AAUW, and the International Reading Association. Juanita is "Teaching is what I would want to do even if I were not paid to do so", states Juanita. "I guess I am a 'cock-eyed optimist'. I always think tomorrow will be better than today. I believe that little children have to like school before very much learning can take place. Then, too, in spite of all their inequalities when they enter school, we can, as teachers, see that each one has an equal opportunity to achieve in the classroom."

Americans In Mexico Jails Betrayed

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Americans jailed in Mexico City, complaining they have been betrayed by unfulfilled promises of freedom, have begun a series of protest actions and a general hunger strike.

"The time has come for us to realize we have been lied to by the Mexican government," a group calling itself the International Freedom Strike Committee said in announcing the hunger strike Friday.

In a communique distributed to reporters by Larry Day, 31, of Yakima, Wash., the committee said, "They have delivered nothing that was promised. It is time to make our final stand for freedom or quietly acquire to this government's policy of torture, lies, oppression and human rights violations."

Day is serving a 6 1/2-year sentence in Santa Marta men's prison on the east edge of the city for importing cocaine into Mexico from Colombia.

There are about 65 American men in Santa Marta, 40 in two new prisons in other sections of the city and 40 women in Los Reyes prison just down the road from Santa Marta. There are an estimated 600 Americans in all Mexican jails, most of them held on drug-related charges. Mexico and the United States signed a prisoner exchange treaty Nov. 25. It would allow Americans jailed in Mexico and Mexicans imprisoned in the United States to serve the remainder of their sentences in their homelands.

The treaty will not take effect until it has been ratified by each country's Senate. In addition, enabling legislation must be passed in each country.

Diplomatic sources predict if the unbroken promises include a bill presented to Congress in September by President Luis Echeverria which would restore parole privileges to drug violators, a right taken away several years ago.

But the prisoners express doubt the treaty will be approved. Furthermore it would not apply to prisoners who have less than six months to serve. That means long-term prisoners who have earned time off for good behavior and work projects could be forced to stay in jail when others with less time in jail leave on the exchange if it is effected.

The strike organizers say the unbroken promises include a bill presented to Congress in September by President Luis Echeverria which would restore parole privileges to drug violators, a right taken away several years ago.

The Mexican government has estimated 200 Americans would be eligible for immediate release on passage of the bill. Government sources predicted in September that Congress would approve the legislation in time for President Echeverria's signature before he left office Dec. 1.

However, the bill is still in a House committee. With Wednesday's change of government, ministers who had helped draft the legislation were transferred to other posts.

The neighborhood tavern has announced a carry-out service for the holiday crowd.

Raiders Claim Share Of Conference Crown

LUBBOCK (AP)- Rodney Allison notched two quick touchdowns and coolly directed a late scoring drive Saturday as 8th-ranked Texas Tech thrust aside its Cotton Bowl woes and shotgunning Baylor 24-21 for a share of the Southwest Conference championship.

A desperation 48-yard field goal attempt by Baylor's Lester Belrose that would have tied the game was off target with 23 seconds remaining in the game.

The Raiders, 10-1, captured a piece of the SWC title with Houston and will take on Nebraska New Year's Eve in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston.

Tech's lone loss was to Houston's Cinderella Cougars, who assured themselves of a co-championship and a Cotton Bowl berth against Maryland last week by beating Rice.

Allison zoomed 77 yards on the first play from scrimmage to burn the Baptists with a quick touchdown and then sneaked a yard for another to stake the Raiders to a 14-0 first quarter lead.

Trailing later 21-17, the crafty junior then directed an 89-yard drive in the fourth period and sent Larry Isaac bursting in from the five for the winning touchdown.

The Bears, who moved into scoring range in the final moments, struck for two touchdowns in the second period and then took a temporary lead in the third quarter on a one-yard run by tailback Gary Blair.

Blair, who gained 199 yards rushing, scored the Bears first touchdown from the two and Baylor tied the game at intermission on a 50-yard pass from Sammy Bickham to Tommy Davidson.

As it turned out, the margin of victory could be traced to a 40-yard field goal by Tech's Brian Hall in the third quarter.

Allison stunned the Bears and the crowd of 37,105 on the first play as he kept the ball on an option play, broke inside between several Baylor defenders and sped virtually unopposed 77 yards to the end zone.

He hit passes of 12 yards to Sammy Williams, 21 to Isaac, 13 to Sylvester Brown and 19 to Jimmy Williams as he took the Raiders on a 90-yard drive in the closing moments of the first quarter.

The Bears, finishing the season 7-3-1, rode the running of Blair 84 yards for their touchdown and then Bickham hurled a perfect 50-yard pass to Tommy Davidson two yards deep in the end zone with a minute remaining in the first Defending state champions Port Neches-Groves and DeLeon moved a step closer to repeating as state schoolboy football titlists Friday night, while Beaumont Hebert and Gainesville reached the finals in Class 3A on the strength of super individual performances.

Joe Stevenson threw six touchdown passes to pace Beaumont Hebert to a 40-20 half. Eric Felton's fumble recovery at the Baylor 35 set up Hall's field goal and shoved the Raiders in front 17-14.

Again it was Blair's running that brought the Bears back into the lead. He carried eight times as quarterback Mark Jackson guided the Bears 80 yards in 13 plays for a touchdown and a 21-17 advantage.

Trailing for the first time in the sunswep afternoon, Allison directed the Raiders 89 yards for the winning touchdown and figured himself in most of the key plays. He scooted 23 yards on one play, passed 16 yards to Godfrey Turner for a key first down and hurried a 15-yarder to Sammy Williams.

Allison wound up hitting 9 of 16 passes for 122 yards while Jackson was 12 of 19 for 98 and Bickham 2 of 2 for 62 steps. Allison also gained 106 yards rushing and Billy Taylor added 75.

victory over Gregory-Portland while Ron Pegues scored touchdowns on three long runs to lead Gainesville to a 28-20 triumph over Perryton in Class 3A semifinals.

Stevenson passed for 370 yards, including 326 in the first half, for Hebert. Pegues' TD runs were for 58, 49 and 49 yards to help Gainesville overcome a 14-0 deficit.

DeKalb, ranked seventh by The AP, ousted top-rated Bowie

21-14 in a highlight of Class 2A quarterfinal action.

DeLeon, which was unranked this season despite its defending champion status, beat Muenster 20-14 to advance to the Class A semifinals against third-ranked Seagraves, which beat Hart 26-6. Mart outscored Frankston 49-20 and will play No. 4 Barbers Hill, which nipped Poth 13-11, in the other semifinal.

Hereford Claims Tourney Title

BY BOB NIGH
Brand Sports Editor
The Hereford Whitefaces evenged an old score and claimed the championship of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational Basketball Tournament along the way Saturday night as they handed the Canyon Eagles a 76-67 setback.

The Eagles had given the Faces their lone loss of the season by the 78-77 count in Hereford on November 20, a fact which made the Herd's fifth win in-a-row even more sweeter.

Senior James Mays led the way for the triumphant Herd, picking up 27 points against the Eagles to cop the tourney's Most Valuable Award.

Mays edged Eagle superstar James Walling for game scoring honors. Walling ended the night by fouling out, but thrilled Canyon supporters with 24 big points before he left the contest late in the final stanza.

Walling headed a list of five players named to the All-Tournament team, which included stalwart Hereford guard Kelly Kitchens, Bruce Nipp of Caprock, Jerry Fewell of Monterey, and Loyd Joyce of Morton.

The championship contest was a spine-tingler from the very start and gave the fans more than their money's worth as the two teams exchanged the lead ten times along the way.

The Eagles held a 17-16 margin after one period as the two teams fought it out on even terms. LaMoine Davis opened the game with a hot hand for the Eagles, scoring seven points in the opening stanza.

The Whitefaces reversed the roles in the second period to go into the dressing room ahead 44-43 at the half. Mays helped the rally along with 10 points in the period.

The third period was a defensive struggle as both teams kept the pressure on, but Kitchens hit for six points to lead the Whitefaces to a 13-11 advantage in the period and a 57-54 lead heading into the final quarter.

The Herd opened up a 65-60 gap with 4:56 left before the Eagles came back with three straight points and received some help when David Schumacher and Kenneth Mercer both fouled out for Hereford.

Jim Lawson's layup with 3:00 left gave the hosts a four-point margin at 67-63, but Davis countered with a bucket to reduce the gap.

The Eagles got three opportunities to knot the score at that point as the Faces couldn't keep from fouling. Davis, Terry Mick, and Randy Sluder all failed to capitalize on free throws, however.

Mays took his turn with 2:09 left and showed the visitors how to put the ball through the net as he hit both ends of a one-and-one to put Hereford ahead 69-65.

Mays added three more charity tosses and Lawson closed the contest out with a pair of buckets as the Herd raced to the win. The final score came on a layup by Lawson off a good move and pass from Mike O'Rand with just seven seconds on the clock.

Kitchens added 19 points to the Herd effort, while Mercer contributed 10 more. Lawson finished the night with eight points.

Davis backed up Walling's performance with 17 points for the Eagles, and guard Mike Flynn added 10.

In other tourney action Saturday the Monterey Plainsmen captured third place in the tourney by downing Caprock 76-65 behind David Davison's 16 points, Morton claimed fifth place with a 69-47 romp over Brownfield, and Vernon took seventh place in a 69-33 mashing of the Dumas Demons.

Patriots On Verge Of Playoff Spot

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Cincinnati, Cleveland and Pittsburgh will be rooting for New Orleans when the Saints take on the New England Patriots in a National Football League contest Sunday.

Although the winner in the American Conference's Central Division will move into the postseason playoffs, the other two will be eliminated Sunday if the surprising Patriots down New Orleans.

A victory by New England will assure the Pats of their first postseason appearance in 13 years regardless of how Cincinnati, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, the defending Super Bowl champion, fare.

If the Patriots finish with the same record as any of the Central Division contenders for wild-card spot, New England will be in the playoffs because of their victory over Pittsburgh and better conference records than Cleveland and Cincinnati.

The Pats will be taking a 9-3 record against New Orleans, 4-8.

In other games Sunday, Buffalo is at Miami, Houston at Cleveland, Tampa Bay at Pittsburgh, Chicago at Seattle, Dallas at Philadelphia, Detroit at the New York Giants, Green Bay at Minnesota, San Francisco at San Diego and Washington at the New York Jets. Monday night, Cincinnati is at Oakland.

Various combinations of victories and losses could decide most of the playoff spots this weekend as 13 teams remain in the race. But there are too many ifs and ors to list.

Dallas, 10-2, has clinched its 10th postseason spot in 11 years.

Cleveland, 8-4, has a slim chance of qualifying for the playoffs. However, running back Greg Pruitt will probably miss the Houston contest. The Oilers are 5-7.

Minnesota, 9-2-1, is the NFC Central Division champion.

O.J. Simpson will lead Buffalo, 2-10, as he attempts to regain his rushing title. Simpson set a single-game rushing record last week, running for 273 yards. Miami is 5-7.

Chicago, 6-6, is still alive in the wild card race, but barely. Seattle is 2-10.

Tampa Bay is still looking for its first victory after 12 weeks. But Pittsburgh, 8-4, has an outside chance to return to the playoffs.

Washington, 8-4, can clinch a playoff berth, if they defeat New York, 3-9.

San Francisco, 7-5, is still alive in the NFC playoff race. San Diego is 5-7.

Sloan Says No To Atlanta

LUBBOCK (AP)—Texas Tech Coach Steve Sloan confirmed Saturday night that he has discussed with the Atlanta Falcons a multi-year, seven-figure contract for him to be head coach, general manager and part owner of the National Football League team.

"I'm not saying I've turned it down, but I'm simply not interested in pro ball," Sloan said after his eighth-ranked Red Raiders had closed a 10-1 regular season with a 24-21 victory over Baylor.

Sloan said he does not have a deadline on reaching a decision but indicated he does not intend at this point to accept the position. He said he would make a final decision before the Red Raiders meet Nebraska in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 31.

The coach attempted to downplay the offer, saying, "I told Rankin Smith Falcons owner to put it on a 'if' basis so I could never say I turned down the job. I think a guy should do what he believes is right. These things are interesting but I wouldn't want money to be a factor in what I do."

He said the prospect of becoming an "instant millionaire" is tempting. But he reiterated that he is happy with college coaching.

Whitefaces, Eagles Gain Wins In Semis

The Hereford Whitefaces and Canyon Eagles picked up hard-earned victories over rugged opponents Friday night to earn spots in the finals of the Second Annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Tourney host Hereford used the direction of play maker Kelly Kitchens outside and the strength of James Mays and Kenneth Mercer inside to post an 80-67 win over the much taller Caprock Longhorns, and Mike Flynn poured through 30 points to lead the Eagles over Monterey 76-66.

Kitchens, Mays, and Mercer combined for 54 points against the Longhorns, with Kitchens leading the way with 20 points. Mays added 18, while Mercer popped the nets for 16 points, by far his best performance on the year.

The Herd led 22-16 after one furious quarter, and the two squads played even in the second stanza with Hereford going into the dressing room with a 48-42 margin.

The lead was stretched one point in the third period with Kitchens providing the impetus on a 25-footer at the buzzer for a 61-54 Hereford lead.

The Longhorns, playing without 6-6 Jay Hunt and super forward Bill Parks due to fouls saw the lead enlarged before coach Bill White inserted the pair back into the fray.

In the end both Longhorn stalwarts fouled out, along with Timmy Frost, and the Herd coasted to the win.

Flynn set one tourney record in his 30-point performance in the Eagles' win. The quick Canyons senior shot 14 of 15 from the free throw line, with 14 in-a-row after he missed his first opportunity. The 14 free throws erases the old mark of eight in one game set last year by Lorenzo Childers of Levelland. Combined with the three charity tosses Flynn made against Vernon, it leaves him just three shy of the all-games mark of 20, also held by Childers.

In addition to Flynn's show the Eagles got 18 points from James Walling and 17 more out of LaMoyné Davis is their big win over the Plainsmen. Mike Buckner and Stan Edger led the losers with 15 points apiece, while Larry Eggenberger tossed replacement. The sources quoted Broyles as saying he does intend to retire.

Broyles was expected to make an official announcement after the nationally televised game

Saturday night between Arkansas and Texas.

Broyles has been the Arkansas coach for 19 years in which his Razorbacks won or tied for seven Southwest Conference titles.

Royal finished his Texas career with a mark of 167-47-5. He was third on the all-time winning list behind Bear Bryant and Woody Hayes.

Broyles had a 139-53-4 ledger at Arkansas.

Broyles and Royal had occasion to make a friendly decision during the game which has characterized the poise of the two men down through the years. The clock somehow ran off four minutes without the referees noticing it but the two coaches decided to forget it.

Clayborn's first 46-yard punt return set up Campbell's first touchdown after the big Texas fullback, who was returning after missing almost a month with a hamstring injury.

A paltry crowd of 49,341 rattled around in the cavernous 78,000-seat Memorial Stadium to watch the finale between the two coaching legends.

Matadors Face Claude In Tourney

The Adrian Matadors were set to face Claude in the consolation finals of the Vega Basketball Tournament Saturday afternoon after downing Panhandle 49-41 Friday.

Adrian opened the tourney Thursday by dropping a 53-44 decision to Sanford-Fritch. The Sanford-Fritch squad threw a pressing defense at the Matadors at the outset, and raced to a 29-10 halftime lead.

The Matadors finally got untracked to make a game of it in the late going, and pulled to within five of the winners at 49-44 as the game drew to a close.

Matadors into fouls and Sanford-Fritch capitalized on the free throws for the win.

Randy Loyd led the Adrian effort with 13 points.

The Adrian girls meanwhile also their opener, 51-22 to Sanford-Fritch. Derenda Durr led the winners with 26 points, while Belinda Jackson topped Adrian with 12.

Friday action saw the Adrian girls lose to Vega 50-19 as Dawn Harwell led the winners with 28 points. Jackson led Adrian again with seven points.

The Matador boys gained the 49-41 win over Panhandle behind 12 points by Randy Loyd and 10 points by Peter Brown.

Davis Reverses Role; Directs Cougar Win

BY MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston quarterback Danny Davis, who threw three interceptions and lost a fumble in the first half, escaped the goat's role Saturday with touchdown runs of four and 25 yards to rally the 6th-ranked Cougars to a 21-16 victory over the Miami Hurricanes.

But it took an interception by Houston linebacker Willis Williams at the Houston goaline with 1:08 left in the game to secure the victory.

The Cotton Bowl-bound Cougars, who finished the regular season with a 9-2 record, received additional help from the Cougar secondary which intercepted three Miami passes deep in Cougar territory. Houston's Anthony Francis got two interceptions to give him a season total of 10 to lead the nation.

Miami, playing its last game under Coach Carl Selmer, took a 10-7 halftime lead on a 41-yard field goal by Chris Dennis and a 10-yard touchdown pass from Frank Glover to split end Mike Adams.

The two scoring plays were set up by interceptions of passes by Davis. George Halas picked off the first pass at the Houston 27 to set up Dennis' field goal in the first quarter.

Cornerback Eldridge Mitchell intercepted at the Miami 32 in the second quarter to set in motion Miami's touchdown drive.

Davis got Houston on the scoreboard with his four-yard touchdown run in the second quarter eluding Miami's All-America defensive tackle Eddie Edwards at the line of scrimmage.

Davis capped Houston's opening second half drive with a 25-yard touchdown run that put Houston ahead for good and Elois Blackwell added a 28-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

Glover, subbing for injured starter E.J. Baker, pulled the Hurricane back into the game with a 49-yard touchdown pass to Larry Cain on a third down play with 4:39 left in the game.

The Cougars still had to fight off a final minute surge by Miami. Brian Ferguson returned a punt 49 yards to Houston's 15. Houston held on fourth down at the five, but a personal foul against Houston game Miami a first-and-ten at the Houston two.

But on the first play, Williams intercepted a pass and ran it 13 yards to preserve Houston's victory.

AUSTIN (AP)—University of Texas Coach Darrell Royal met with the school athletic council Saturday afternoon and a school source said Royal had submitted his resignation as football coach and would stay on as athletic director.

Broyles Quits Sources Say

AUSTIN (AP)—Arkansas University football Coach Frank Broyles has submitted his resignation to school officials, but no action will be taken on it until he finds a successor, it was revealed here Saturday.

Sources close to Broyles said they had been told by the coach that he had submitted his resignation to the university president, but the president declined to act on it until Broyles finds a suitable AUSTIN (AP)—Rapid Raymond Clayborn's two 46-yard punt returns and Russell Erxleben's three field goals propelled Texas to a 29-12 Southwest Conference victory over Arkansas Saturday night in a double farewell by Texas Coach Darrell Royal and Arkansas' Frank Broyles.

Broyles ended 19 years of coaching with a dramatic pregame announcement that he wanted to concentrate on just being athletic director for the Razorbacks. Royal, a 20-year veteran of the SWC was enduring his worst season as Longhorn coach, submitted his resignation at the end of the game.

It was ironic that Royal and Broyles, two successful and colorful coaches who dominated the SWC for almost two decades, picked the same evening to retire from the sidelines.

Royal, too, will remain as his school's athletic director.

Royal avoided his first losing season as the Longhorns and Razorbacks each finished 5-5-1.

Texas was 4-4 in SWC play and Arkansas 3-4-1.

Royal had two national championship teams in his tenure and Broyles one.

Erxleben kicked field goals of 37, 49 and 34 yards. Earl Campbell rolled one and five yards for touchdowns and freshman quarterback Mark McBath dashed 13 yards for another score.

Steve Little drilled field goals of 50 and 34 yards for Arkansas in the nationally televised game.

Arkansas' superb sophomore running back Ben Cowins finally denied the bristling Longhorn defense late in the game with a two-yard scoring run to cap an 80-yard scoring drive.

With the victory in the 58th meeting of the archrivals, Royal finished with a 14-5 edge over his old golfing buddy—Broyles.

The game seemed almost anticlimactic to the decisions of the two men, both of whom have served as president of the American Football Coaches Association.

Royal was visibly moved before the kickoff, giving the Hook 'em Horns sign when the band played the Texas alma mater and wiping tears away from his eyes before he donned his headset.

A paltry crowd of 49,341 rattled around in the cavernous 78,000-seat Memorial Stadium to watch the finale between the two coaching legends.

Farm Problem

Ezra Taft Benson, former Ag Secretary, once declared that "there is always a farm problem and there always will be."

Benson had a point. Although the nation's basic industry, and most essential, farming also is the most unorganized. The farmer in South Dakota does not relate his operation to one in Texas, nor do Texas farmers relate to those in Missouri, or anywhere else.

It is an industry of individualists, and this isn't likely to change. And the wide fluctuations in farm prices also are not likely to change.

If the government is going to act as a sales manager for farm products, with embargoes as a veto power, then the government may have a responsibility to provide some guarantee that it won't break farmers.

This translates, simply, to crop-loan prices at a parity level that will keep farming even with the economy. There is much agreement in the nation's breadbasket today that the Carter administration should take a new, searching look at acreage controls and companion price supports for farm products.

How well the Carter administration receives the argument will have an effect on Deaf Smith County... No. 1 in Agriculture and Cattle.

In-Sense

(Note: These articles do not necessarily reflect the opinions of this newspaper. As a matter of fact, they do not always reflect the opinions of the Hereford author, either. They are written because he needs the money.)

BIG GOVERNMENT AND LITTLE CROOKS

Build a better mousetrap and we will create a government agency to oversee your operations.

It is evident that you will cheat if you can. It is evident you will dilute the public with false claims. It is evident that unless the government regulates, no one can keep you from cheating. It is also evident, we are going to have a mighty big government.

A senator from Tennessee said the problem with his people was they had a bad case of the simples. I probably have an epidemic of that malady but it seems to me when we cuss big government we cuss the wrong end. It starts down here with us.

Big government is partially the natural result of our losing two very important attitudes:

We lost the idea that a man's word was his bond. I haven't ever heard that said in 10 years. Now a man's lawyer is his out. We make heroes out of the man that tricks his way. The guy that finds the little cracks that lead to the deal is the one we think is smart. Problem is, when we all get crooked, the government has to get mighty big to watch that many crooks. By the way, legally crooked is still crooked.

We lost the pride in our work. How long has it been since we had the idea for a job worth doing was worth doing right? The result of this is, turn out the product no matter how shoddy and turn on the advertising. It does not matter if the product is good. All that matters is that it sells and makes a profit.

Guess who has to ride hard to be sure your new car will not fall apart before the warranty is out? Guess who has to get big to do that? Yep, old Uncle has a lot of new jobs to do trying to keep crooked folks from crooking one another.

I have a feeling no one has a right to cuss big government if they themselves are crooks. If your word is no good, you help create the problem. If you need watching, don't gripe when the government gets big enough to do the job.

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maguire

HERE COME THE GYPSIES--- Mexicans call them "Hungaros," they're "Heathens" in Holland and parts of Germany, but in Texas and much of the world they're simply "Gypsies."

There may be as many as 3,000 of them in the state. It's hard to tell because they're difficult to distinguish from the rest of the population.

That's the conclusion of William Field, research associate at The Institute of Texas Cultures in San Antonio. For more than a year, he has been studying the Gypsies. Now he's convinced that Texas, which proudly boasts that 26 separate ethnic groups helped to settle and develop the state, should count the Gypsies as the 27th. It won't be easy. Gypsies traditionally distrust other ethnic peoples. And they don't call themselves "Gypsies." They prefer to be called "Tom" or "Romani."

Researcher Field says that it's easy to recognize a true Gypsy, however. He is one who not only has Gypsy blood but also speaks the language.

Many people call themselves "Gypsies" who aren't. They do so to hide their illegal activities and are largely responsible, Field says, for giving the true Rom an undeserved bad name.

GATOR BOWL?--- Port Arthur is the alligator capital of Texas.

An estimated 13,000 alligators live in the bayous, canals and inlets of Jefferson County. Since 1969 they have been protected by Texas game laws.

TRAVELING TEXAS--- Some cities and towns display unusual statues to attract tourists. Thus Poteet shows off a giant strawberry, Muleshoe a mule and Snyder has a white buffalo on the courthouse lawn.

Others display old steam locomotives as reminders of the past. Houston moored the Battleship Texas as a lure to visitors.

Miles, in Runnels County, has one of the most unique crowd-stoppers. There the townspeople have mounted a 19-ton, 12-foot tall tractor. The 1909 behemoth was used for years in the wheat fields around Miles. It is believed to be the only one of its kind left in the U.S.

DOWN MEMORY LANE--- Remember when barber shops doubled as bath houses?

Before city building codes required every residence to have running water and indoor plumbing, barbers sold showers along with shaves and haircuts.

As late as the mid-1930's, almost every Texas town had at least one barber shop which offered a hot tub and clean towel for a quarter. Business was so brisk on Saturdays that reservations usually had to be made in advance.

Bombeck Chronicles Suburbia's Follies

THE GRASS IS ALWAYS GREENER OVER THE SEPTIC TANK. By Erma Bombeck. McGraw-Hill. 175 Pages. $6.95. What can you say about the chuckles that come from the book, the subject being the folks and follies of suburbia.

Ever hear of "Carpool Crouch"? That can be spotted when a woman sits slumped over in a chair, right foot extended and hands holding her purse in her lap like a wheel. According to those who have it, a suburban woman can pick up children, grocery shop, bank, go to movies, eat and attend church in a car.

The author also profiles the specialists among suburban women drivers — the one who pretends not to see you as she whips into a parking place you were waiting for; the one who leads a group of women, map in hand, searching for where she parked, or the healthy one who suddenly limps out of a car spot reserved for the handicapped? Those and many others are here.

And all fathers, if they'll admit it, will find themselves reflected somewhere in the chapter that lists a group of set speeches Dad seems to repeatedly deliver at the dinner table when somebody has riled his temper.

It won't take long to read this — a few hours — and it's guaranteed to strike a funny, and familiar, chord somewhere.

Bobby Templeton

Two-Year Anniversary; Depressing Press

It's hard to imagine, but the Templeton family has lived in these parts for a solid two years now. I reported for work here on a very cold Monday morning Dec. 3, 1974.

Believe me, it was a sad and very gloomy "Blue Monday" as the clouds were overcast and my knees were knocking each other out due to the harsh temperatures which dipped to below zero. Last winter, I escaped the same cold treatment, but it looks like we are in for a winter this year much like we had in 1974.

Hereford has been the place where we have remained the longest period of time since our marriage. It is really home to us and no matter how long we stay, too many wonderful things have happened here for us to ever forget our life here.

Above all, our first child Mark (there's that name again) was born here Jan. 23, 1976 and he will soon experience his first Christmas and first birthday. He will always remind us of the Panhandle Plains and the Hospitable Hereford people.

Lois and I found the church and The Lord here. That was assuredly the most memorable experience of our lives and will be the largest part of us as long as we live.

Of course, civic involvements in this town are reknown throughout the state and nowhere else could I have experienced the contributions so many people make to common goals. The small town life is something that has to be lived not described. I lived it here.

My lingerings for the big city I guess will always prevail, but I have a valuable experience on which to draw for future relationships. Stories of small town life are usually exaggerated and I will be able to think about it in proper perspective from hereon out.

I readily admit my first month here was dismal and bleak. Separated from my wife and a cold, lonely existence here made me think, "What am I doing in this isolated place?"

Well time resolved that circumstance and I have since adjusted to this region. It's amazing how fast the clock has sped by. It seems like yesterday when I wrote my column observing my first anniversary in Hereford.

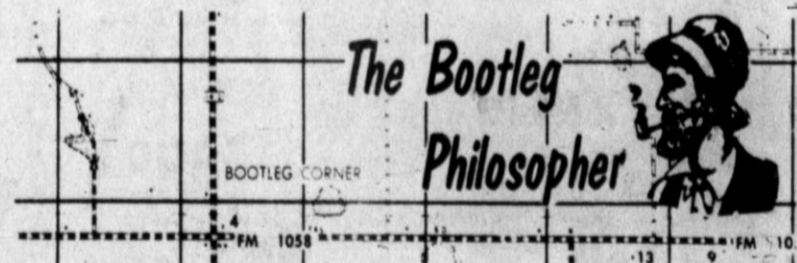

Christmas is a great season in which to celebrate an observance such as my first arrival here. It's a joyous as the season progresses toward Dec. 25.

It's a double treat for us as we celebrate our wedding anniversary on Dec. 28.

In the coming months we look forward to continuing our stay here no matter how long it may be.

The television news media again took up its usual ways this week as it asked questions of perponderous nature to President-Elect Jimmy Carter and his new Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and his Budget Office Director

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner sympathizes with Congress this week, if you want to put it that way.

Dear editor:

People are always complaining about what happens to their tax dollar when it goes to Washington. "We send a dollar there and get about fifty cents back," they say. States and cities are even louder in their complaints, some big cities actually figuring it up and finding that of all the money they send to Washington each year they get back about a third in services and revenue-sharing.

As far as I know the complaints may be legitimate, however forlorn, but if you think cities and states have something to howl about, look at Congress.

In the last ten years Congress has given South Korea eleven billion dollars in military and economic aid, and how much has Congress gotten back? A measly million and a half dollars. And that didn't go to all Congressmen, just to a select number of maneuverable ones who had a use for some ready cash. Sometimes it didn't even go to them, it went to their wives.

When it comes to getting the best

Bert Lance.

As in the election, the reporters, mostly of that prestigious Washington Press Corps, dove directly into the personal backgrounds of the newly appointed officials even before they are in office. I respect the answer given by Carter when he said that the men are not in office yet and therefore should not act like they are running things.

He praised Ford for the transition cooperation. At least the reporters were still calling the future chief executive "Governor." Ford is still the "President."

It may sound like the Carter is still avoiding the issues, but he is a product of the modern diverse media exposure which is thrust upon any new public figure especially the President. A man has to defend his record even before he performs it.

It's hard to answer to questions on acts he has not committed nor has much knowledge on to formulate policies and decisions.

A southern accent in the White House is going to be probably the hardest fact for everyone to accept and get used to. This compounds Carter's task since he brings with him a totally new style to Washington D.C.

The electronic media mongers and eastern press establishment are going to have to accept the fact that a man of more casual character is going to be running things.

As a newspaperman I don't like condemning any form of journalism as no one likes attacking his own profession. But the powerful media figures of the Washington corps lack the polished tact, courtesy and bright thinking that one would expect of such a group.

I congratulate hard working men and women of journalism who sift out crime and corruption but not when they involve a minor personal matter totally unnewsworthy just for the sake of making a daily deadline.

Maybe things will improve as a new administration takes over. I don't think it could get much worse.

—BT—

I was dutifully "informed" about Friday night's telecast of "Charlotte's Web" which included a rather incriminating character for this individual. It was a "rat" by the name of "Templeton."

I've been associated with many lowdown creatures in my time, but a rat is a character assassination that goes too far. If nothing else, the animal is too common. A little more imagination could have been used.

Of course, they would select Paul Lynde to play the part. No one else could do it better.

Once again, I've provided the basis for a steady stream of jokes. But we must laugh at ourselves now and then. A sense of humor is necessary.

It just gets to you when you end up being a walking joke season after season, whether it be a rat or a poor prognosticator.

end of a tax deal, South Korea is so far ahead of Washington that Congress ought to be spending some of its members over there to study the system. "What pikers we've been," they must be saying. "Here we keep only half of the tax money New York sends us, but South Korea is keeping 99 per cent of what we send them."

And hard-pressed cities must be saying: "We see where we made our mistake. We've been sending our tax money to Washington by check when we should have been using cash."

Naturally, after the news has come out that South Koreans have been handing envelopes full of cash to certain Congressmen, there will be a demand for a law against it, just as huge cash donations by big corporations to U.S. Presidential candidates produced a law against that.

However, bear in mind that Congress wasn't born yesterday. It may pass a bill outlawing gifts from South Korea and put a stop to that, but remember there are over 250 other countries on earth.

Some people say it's love that makes the world go around. Others say it's cash.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

H Hustle
H Hustle
3 Hustle

By Bill Albright, Executive VP
Chamber of Commerce

It was a real pleasure to see so many people at the Fun breakfast last Tuesday morning who were wearing clothing that was purchased in good ole Hustlin' Hereford. I think it was somewhat of a surprise and a pleasant one at that.

That little exercise brought out a very important point concerning the economy of our community. I know we've heard it before but we need to hear it again and we need to pay some attention to it.

Every dollar spent in Hereford brings some benefit to the total community. These benefits come to us through taxes on our purchases and those taxes pay for street lights and sewage disposal- for paving and water- for police protection and all the other municipal necessities that we enjoy and mostly take for granted.

Additionally, your dollars spent in Hereford help to create jobs for a large number of our citizens. We shouldn't take those jobs for granted, either. There's just lots of folks who don't have a job today.

And then on the other hand, everyone of your dollars spent outside of Hereford drain those tax dollars from our community and reduces the job opportunities here at home.

Then there are other important things to be considered. Our local merchants have invested their total resources in our community and a substantial personal risk. They believe in Hereford's progress and growth. Those same merchants are the ones we turn to when we want assistance for our school projects, our civic club projects, and for all our organizational good works. Everyone relies on the merchants and business people for something. Let's keep our money working for us at home where it does the most good.

SHOP HEREFORD FIRST
And speaking of community projects, let me take this opportunity to commend and thank those merchants who have participated in the Christmas Lighting Project this year. It takes a lot of money to make the program a success. Much appreciation to you.

To you who have waited til December to mail you check, please do it today. We want to include your business on the list of list of supporters.

SHOP HEREFORD FIRST
And still talking business and Christmas Season and Community Spirit, last Monday night was a real plus for Hereford. It was a happy occasion to see so many people working together on a mutual project.

Many thanks to Randy Vaughn and members of the High School Band; Don Moore, and members of the Choral Group; the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department; the Hereford Police Department; members of the Chamber of Commerce; and to participating merchants and business people throughout the city.

It was another example of what people can do for each other when we work together and we don't care who gets the credit.

In plain and simple language, it was just another case of HUSTLE, HUSTLE, HUSTLE!

Vance Better At Carrying Out Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)- Cyrus R. Vance, the establishment Wall Street lawyer named by President-elect Carter to be secretary of state, is a man used to carrying out policy, not creating it.

The 59-year-old West Virginia native has deep and varied experience in foreign affairs, but always as a No. 2, a chief of staff. Given his previous statements, that is exactly what Carter wants.

The President-elect told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a private meeting two weeks ago that "I intend to appoint a strong and competent secretary of state, but... I will be the president and I will represent the country in foreign affairs."

Carter evidently intends to return to the practice followed by Presidents John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon is using the national security adviser as the main source of foreign policy advice, leaving the State Department to provide information and carry out directives.

In any event, Carter clearly wants Vance to be low-key. A major campaign issue raised by Carter was the dominance displayed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger over American foreign policy. He strongly criticized Kissinger for being "a Lone Ranger" in conducting the nation's diplomacy.

Situated in the kitchen nook of their home, Mrs. Waldo Baxter and her children, Rex and Carla, enjoy setting out bazaar items for Sunday's tour. A variety of articles will be offered for sale, including tablecloths, pictures and baked goods. The house is located at 330 Elm.

Tammy Gerles, at left, gets a sneak preview of the den in the Waldo Baxter home where her mother, Glenda Gerles, standing, and Sharon Hodges will be hostesses. The trio admires a wooden game table in the Baxter home. Innovative styles of interior decoration will be featured at each of the tour sites.

A beautifully-ornate mirror provides a pretty background in the foyer of the Elmore Rains' home, 220 Ranger, for Mrs. Rains. This home, along with three other Hereford residences, will be open to the public from 2-5 p.m. today. This is a Christmas project of La Madre Mia Study Club.

Early American furniture graces the den in the Gaylord Newell, home, 123 Liveoak, a featured residence in today's Christmas Tour of Homes. Mrs. Newell, at left, will be assisted as hostess by Mrs. W.E. Sparks, center, and Mrs. Bud Snyder. Admission for the tour will cost $1 per person.

Mrs. Dwayne Cassels and her son Kelly are pictured in the dining room area of their home, located 2 miles west on Harrison Highway. Each of the tour homes will be designated as such by signs furnished by La Madre Mia Study Club members. Holiday touches will be added Flowers West and Park Avenue Florist.

Interesting knick-knacks are displayed in a multi-faceted bookcase in the Elmore Rains home. Mrs. Rains, at center, will be serving refreshments to tour guests along with Mrs. Bobby Owen, at left, and Mrs. Dean Herring. Chairman of the fund-raising project is Mrs. Craig Smith.

Four Homes Featured On Today's Tour

The dining area of the Gaylord Newell home is enriched by a massive china cabinet which showcases several handpainted pieces of porcelain. From left are Marcia Snyder, Mrs. Newell and Georgia Sparks. The public is invited.

The hearth in the Dwayne Cassel's home offers a warm respite during the recent cold snap for Kylene Gentry, standing, and Ruth Black. As members of La Madre Mia Study Club, the pair will aid Mrs. Cassels in greeting tour guests this afternoon.

Local residents are invited to visit four Hereford residences from 2-5 p.m. as guests of a Christmas Tour of Homes and Bazaar. Tickets are priced at $1 each. Sponsored by La Madre Mia Study Club, the tour is being directed by Mrs. Craig Smith. Decorated for the yuletide by Flowers West and Park Avenue Florist, the tour homes will include the following residences: the Dwayne Cassels, 2 miles west on Harrison Highway; the Elmore Rains, 220 Ranger Drive; the Gaylord Newells, 123 Liveoak; and the Waldo Baxters, 330 Elm. Christmas bazaar items will be offered for sale at the Baxter residence and refreshments will be served at Mrs. Rains' home. La Madre Mia members will serve as hostesses at each tour site.

YHT, Young Farmers Merge For Banquet

Tommy Sparkman and Eileen Alley were cited as outstanding members of their respective organizations during a joint banquet Saturday night for Young Farmers and Young Homemakers of Texas. The dinner was held at K-Bob's Steak House.

A Distinguished Service Award was also presented to Mrs. Louis Montano for her contributions as a YHT member.

Sparkman's involvement in farm-related activities was praised when he was presented the title of Outstanding Young Farmer by George Warner Seed Co.

Mrs. Alley, president of the local YHT Chapter, received the honor as Outstanding Young homemaker from Steve Louder of Deaf Smith Electric Co-op.

Her contributions to the organization included service on the advisory committee for the local vocational educational department and as chairman of the publicity committee here during YHT Week.

She was also commended for her role at the Area YHT Convention held at Plainview, the FHA Fun Day at Amarillo and the FHA Box Supper held here. Mrs. Alley also assisted in screening groups of local children of amblyopia and other eye disorders. A participant in all chapter fund-raising projects, she served on the transportation committee for Meals-On-Wheels.

Mrs. Alley was instrumental in a campaign to purchase a Bicentennial flag for La Plata Junior High School and represented the YHT chapter in collecting donations for the American Cancer Society. She served as a chapter delegate to the state YHT convention held this year at Houston.

Jake Webb of Southwestern Public Service, presented his firm's Distinguished Service Award to Sylvia Montano for her four-year tenure as a YHT member. Webb stated that Mrs. Montano participated in all fund-raising projects of the chapter and served as chapter treasurer this year. She has filled positions on the recreation committee and assisted with the Little Sister Coke Party.

Noted for regularly attending chapter functions, Mrs. Montano helped with the FHA Fun Day and in preparing applications for Area Outstanding Young Homemaker. She also served on the program of work committee.

Keynote speaker for last night's banquet was Bedford Forrest, Farm and Ranch Director for KVII-TV in Amarillo. Raised in the Hereford area, Forrest has been involved in the broadcasting profession for 13 years and is a graduate of West Texas State University.

DONNA VANDERZEE

In Same Spot As Carter

President-Elect Excited About New Appointment

By KERRIE STEIERT
Women's Editor

BELIEVING THAT enthusiasm in the Chamber of Commerce is infectious, Donna VanderZee is excited about assuming the position of president of the Chamber's Women's Division in January.

"There are so many people who are genuinely trying to further the community through involvement in the Chamber of Commerce," the slender Tulia native explained. "It is with pride and appreciation that I accept the honor of the Women's Division presidency."

A five-year member in the Women's Division, Mrs. Harlan VanderZee came to Hereford in June of 1967 with her family from Tulia. She and her husband, who is president of Hereford State Bank, are the parents of two sons, Dirk, a freshman at Baylor University, and Dan, a junior student at Texas Tech University.

Since enrolling in the Women's Division, the statuesque Mrs. VanderZee has been particularly active in the processes of staging a Miss Hereford Pageant each year. She, along with fellow pageant workers, is concerned by the diminished number of contestants who have vied for the Miss Hereford title in recent years.

"The local pageant does offer a $500 scholarship to the pageant winner. That amount is larger than that given by most communities of Hereford's size," stated Mrs. VanderZee in promoting the Women's Division production.

"Girls entering the pageant shouldn't shun this opportunity because of a fear of performing before a crowd," she commented. "The advantages far outweigh the temporary discomfort of stage fright."

Mrs. VanderZee particularly enjoys working with young people because she had no brothers or sisters around during her childhood. She added that it was a wonderful experience to watch her two sons grow to adulthood.

THE NEW WD PREXY explained that there would be some changes for the Chamber women during her term in office. "We are forming a humane society here for the benefit of animals," she said. Margaret Formby is chairman of this new task force.

Admitting a fond attachment for animals, Mrs. VanderZee confessed that she has four pet dogs and an itinerant stray pup, which she is trying to find a home for.

When asked what image the Chamber Women want to project, she explained that her organization is primarily concerned with "being aware of the community's needs and taking steps to fulfill these needs."

Mrs. VanderZee stressed that the Chamber Women's Division is not limited to a membership of unemployed women. "We have many women who hold down full-time jobs and yet still call us and ask to be put to work," stated the chicly-dressed Mrs. VanderZee, who will be installed as president during a special assembly next month.

"One of the finest assets of the Chamber Women's Division are the 'enthusiasm' people, such as Inez and Bill (Albright)," said Mrs. VanderZee in praising the Chamber's executive vice president and his wife. "One of the most rewarding aspects of being a Chamber worker is the involvement with such fine people."

In citing other examples, she stated that she had received helpful advice from Georgia Sparks and Lavon Nieman, who have both served as president of the Women's Division. "They both have offered encouragement in initiating me," she added.

The Chamber Women are also hoping to put steam behind a clean-up campaign here through the efforts of a beautification committee, led by Peaches Reinauer. This committee, which has been organized for several years, will put special verve into improving city grounds.

IN ADDITION TO their interest in the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. and Mrs. VanderZee have other pursuits. They are active as members of First Baptist Church and interested in their sons' futures.

A graduate of North Texas University at Denton, Mrs. VanderZee has spent time as a classroom teacher. She has served in numerous capacities as a member of La Plata Study Club and is avid about summertime recreation outdoors.

After working as a junior high coach for four years, VanderZee was engaged in cotton ginning before he was hired by a bank at Tulia in 1961. The couple were married in 1953 at Tulia.

Club Celebrates Christmas Season

Yuletide decorations enhanced the W.T. Carmichael home for a Christmas party for members of Garden Beautiful Club Friday morning.

Bob Stice and Mrs. Ken Walser were present to give a music-oriented program about the Christmas season. The duo presented the lyrical hymn, "What Child Is This?" and the gospel-type song "Go Tell It On The Mountain." They concluded the program with Stice leading his audience in traditional carols while Mrs. Walser accompanied.

Gifts were exchanged in a brief game of musical chairs.

The only business was the appointment of Dorothy Noland as club secretary.

A photographer will be stationed in Sugarland Mall to take color pictures of children with Santa Claus as a fundraising project of Young Homemakers of Texas.

The photo sessions will be held from 4-6 p.m. each Friday and from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. each Saturday until Christmas. Also pictures will be made from 5-8 p.m. on Dec. 21-23 at the mall.

Each color print will cost $2.50 and there is no wait for film processing. Proceeds will benefit various community concerns including Project Christmas Card, Hereford Family Service Center and others.

Co-chairmen of the YHT project are Mrs. Bill Abbott and Mrs. Jim Culpepper.

Christmas Project To Benefit Hospital

Deaf Smith General Hospital will again benefit from Project Christmas Card in the form of a special heart monitor if Hereford citizens respond to the current pleas for support. Initiated by Hereford Medical and Dental Auxiliary, Project Christmas Card has become a traditional part of the holiday season, having begun 20 years ago. Proceeds are always used to improve the health care system locally, through additions at the hospital and a scholarship fund for students entering the medical profession.

Mrs. Clyde Rush, chairman of this year's Project, stated that proceeds from the ongoing campaign will be utilized to purchase a telemeter, a heart monitor which makes it possible to keep track of ambulatory patients. She expressed confidence that Hereford residents will cover the cost of the telemeter through their donations.

Having gleaned more than $55,000 in its history here, Project Christmas Card works on the basis that residents contribute the amount of money usually spent on mailing Christmas cards to local acquaintances. Project donors are then listed in a Christmas greetings page, to appear in The Brand's Christmas edition.

Canisters are set up around the city to receive donations. Mrs. Rush appeals to local citizens to make their contributions early.

Scribbles AND Scratches

By KERRIE STEIERT
Women's Editor

EVER THOUGHT ABOUT torturous things must be endured by Santa Claus? Poor fat old thing.

I read yesterday that Santa Claus was arrested in Houston right in the midst of taking orders from some little sprite. The report stated that children who witnessed the ironic scene were "shocked." That word is probably mild compared to Santa's reaction.

Then, my sister-in-law related the true tale of Santa jumping from a helicopter into a crowd of children—who promptly mugged him. What a pathetic scene: a scraggly St. Nick standing alone, shivering, in the middle of a parking lot with his clothes torn to bits.

And (I hate to tell you this one) in another similar episode, that "jolly old man" jumped from a helicopter but his parachute failed to open. Ho. Ho. Ho.

Everyone has glittering visions of Santa Claus happily reigning over a joyful North Pole, spewing out toys for the world's children and warming his plump toes by the hearth. But, somehow I think we're avoiding some of the clouds on his horizon.

You see, elves must be "H-e-double toothpicks" to work with especially if they are backed by a union. Imagine if OSHA ever makes its nit-picky way to the northern regions and starts inflicting regulations on Santa concerning improper working conditions.

Then there would have to be installation of a floor heater for every little pixied pair of feet, special protective measures from the reindeer (Vixen has a vicious temper), and equal employment for Ms. elf.

Santa is bound to be haggard after eating six meals each day to stay fat enough so that people will recognize him and dealing with bickering elves all day long. And what goes on up there during the summer months, when no one thinks to write ahead for requests, the reindeer are molting and Mrs. Claus starts demanding a separate identity.

Like I said, poor fat old thing.

LET THOSE SNOWY scenes which have been common around Hereford recently inspire you to send Christmas cards, but extend your greetings in a special way this year. Give to Project Christmas Card.

A donation to PCC will say "Merry Christmas" to your friends here and, in the meantime, will also provide a special heart monitor at Deaf Smith General Hospital. There are some wonderful women who have worked for 20 years in making Project Christmas Card work.

Don't let their efforts be fruitless.

KEEP YOUR EYE on the Chamber Singers; they could be the best ambassadors we've got. It's astonishing that only two years could produce such an outstanding group of vocalists who are as professional as any choir around.

Bill Devers deserves a special accolade for his devotion to this group. They are an exquisite crew of performers.

THERE ARE ENOUGH activities this afternoon to keep the entire community away from

Party Slated Today

A Christmas party will be held at 5 p.m. today in the auditorium of St. Anthony's Parochial School for parishioners and their families.

On hand for the festivities will be Hereford's Chamber Singers performing traditional carols. Santa Claus will be a special visitor for the children, who will be entertained by John Gilliland, a magician.

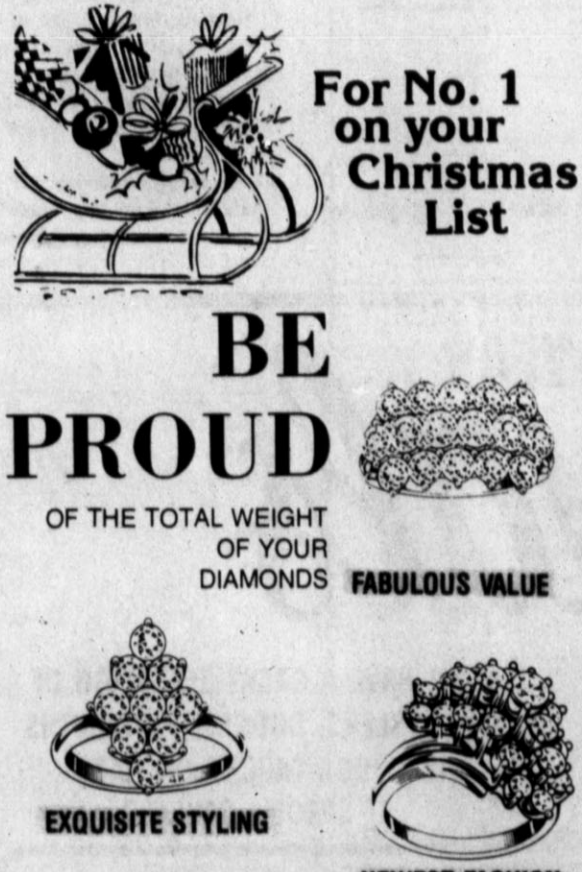

A covered dish supper will be held and those attending should bring sufficient food for their families.

the football set. Remember to see four of Hereford's nicest homes as guests of La Madre Mia Study Club. It only costs $1.

Also, the public is welcome to visit the new offices of Big Brothers-Big Sisters at 108 E. 3rd from 2-5 p.m. and then see the improved facilities of Hereford Day Care Center.

Also, the community concert association has scheduled a special board meeting at 3:30 p.m. at First National Bank. A New York representative will be present to help the local board make selections for the coming year's attractions.

Mrs. Pete Caviness Accepts Position

Mrs. Pete Caviness has accepted the responsibility of receiving contributions to Girlstown, USA, it was announced this week by Cleo Corlis, president of Hereford Lions Club.

"For many years, the late Viola Williams assumed the responsibility, and we are pleased to announce that Mrs. Caviness will coordinate this program," Corlis stated.

All persons interested in making clothing contributions, or any gifts to Girlstown, may take them to the Caviness residence at 142 Nueces. If items are taken before 5 p.m., the donor should call 346-1230 to make certain someone will be there to receive the gifts. Contributions will be accepted

Clothing items should be clean and in good condition as no provisions can be made for repairs. Any other gifts that girls need and enjoy will be appreciated and, of course, cash donations are welcomed. Non-perishable foods are also appropriate, and a donation of beef would be very helpful right now.

At this time of year, interested persons may wish to send money to the Coat & Shoe Fund for Girlstown. Checks can be made to Girlstown and mailed to Box 414, Hereford. Any Christmas gift items taken to Mrs. Caviness will be delivered to Girlstown by Dec. 21.

"The greatest Christmas present you can give yourself or your children is the joy you will receive from sharing with someone else," said Mrs. Caviness.

Lighting Contest Scheduled Here

Donna VanderZee, who will serve as president of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division during 1977, urges local residents to enter this year's Home Christmas Lighting Contest.

One hundred dollars in cash prizes will again be awarded to contest winners, who will be judged Dec. 17. All participants are asked to submit their completed entry forms to the Chamber office by Dec. 16.

Home decorations for the competition must be illuminated Dec. 16 and 17. Entry is open to all residents living within a five mile radius of the city.

The overall winner will be awarded $50 by the Chamber Women, who will present $20 for the best "spot" decoration in a window or enclosed area. Twenty dollars will go to the person designing the most attractive doorway and $10 has been set aside for the most elaborate neighborhood entry, including at least four homes.

Last year's winners will not be eligible for cash awards to be given this Christmas.

The judges will use the following point criteria:

--Fifty points for attractiveness, considering perspective from the street (10 points), general eye appeal (10 points), material used (10 points), good scale and proportion to surroundings, (10 points) and proper functioning of moving parts and lights (10 points).

--Twenty points for suitability to Christmas theme, legend or custom associated with Christmas (10 points) and use of colors and lights depicting the yuletide season (10 points).

--Twenty points for creativity with a maximum of 10 points allowed for handiwork and personal planning, plus an additional 10 points for materials showing originality.

--A unified motif can earn up to 10 points if it depicts a single idea or prominent theme (5 points) and keep lighting in the theme's boundaries.

Resident's Granddaughter Is Married In Amarillo

The granddaughter of Mrs. J.H. Reinart of 429 Star was married Saturday afternoon at St. Mary's Catholic Church of Amarillo. Officiating at the double ring ceremony for Miss Nannette Marie Reinart of Amarillo and Donald Ray Ast, also of that city, was the Rev. Ken Keller.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reinart of Dumas and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Louise Ast of Amarillo and Francis Ast of Denton.

Serving as matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Jeff Hooper of Sunray, and Miss Vikie Moree of Dumas was bridesmaid.

Mike Miller of Amarillo was best man and the bridegroom's nephew, Brent Clark of Tulia, was groomsmen. Escorting guests to their seats were the bride's brother, Joe Reinart of Dalhart, and W.H. Butler Jr. of Amarillo.

Serving as flower girl in her sister's wedding was Sandy Reinart and ring bearer was Bobby Ellis of Amarillo.

The bride's sister, Mrs. W.H. Butler of Amarillo, invited guests to register at the Wedding ceremony and Mrs. Ben Weber of Dumas sang principal wedding selections. She was accompanied by Mrs. R.H. Moser, also of Dumas, playing the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight gown of silk organza designed with a Victorian neckline of Alencon lace.

The gown featured a sheer tucking on the yoke and lantern sleeves and appliques of Alencon lace. The A-line skirt fell to a lace banded flounce and cascaded into a full chapel train.

Her bridal veil of imported illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of Alencon lace and she carried a cascade of gardenias and pink rosebuds.

Bridal attendants wore cranberry velvet long dresses and carried pink nosegays.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the Hilton Inn.

After a wedding trip to Carlsbad, N.M., the couple will reside at 2212 B. Wichita, Amarillo.

The bride is a graduate of Dumas High School. She is currently attending Amarillo College and is employed at K-Mart.

The bridegroom, who is a graduate of Amarillo College, is a medial lab technician at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

Bank To Display Konis Exhibit

A special Christmas exhibition of paintings by Ben Konis, noted Amarillo artist, will be open to the public Thursday and Friday at Hereford State Bank.

Konis paintings are well-known throughout the Southwest for their brilliant color and vibrancy. He will be showing his latest works in oil and pastel media portraying cowboy and Indian figures, as well as many southwestern landscapes.

Konis moved to Amarillo almost eight years ago with his family. His wife, Jinni, is the daughter of Ray and Rosella Landrum of Friona. Since arriving in the Panhandle, Konis paintings have been exhibited in galleries in Amarillo, Oklahoma City, Dallas, Arlington, Austin, El Paso, Clovis, Ruidoso, Taos and Santa Fe, and also in Wyoming and holds annual summer workshops in Ruidoso, N.M. and in Ingram at the famous Hill Country Arts Foundation.

The public is cordially invited to attend the exhibition during regular banking hours and to visit with the artist.

Seersucker promises to be a fashionable continuation of the crinkled look for spring '77. Seersuckers in 100 per cent cotton and in blends will be available in a variety of solid colors and prints. Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says,

For best quality, bake potatoes wrapped in pierced foil at 400 degrees F. and hold at 200 degrees F. until served. Hold as short a time as possible, advises Mrs. Sally Coble, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Couple To Wed

Russell Andrew Wingert Jr. and his sister, Miss Anne Dolsen Wingert of Culver City, Calif., children of Mrs. Russell A. Wingert and the late Rev. Wingert, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their mother to George Carter Warner of 201 N. Texas. The ceremony will be solemnized on January 5, 1977.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My son slouched into the kitchen last night, threw his books on the countertop and said, "I've just had the worse day of my entire life and it's all your fault!"

"How do you figure that?" I asked.

"Just because you made me go back up to my room and turn off all the lights before I went to school, I missed the bus. Then, will all your nagging about cleaning up my room, I couldn't find my gym clothes and got 15 points knocked off my grade."

"The gym clothes were folded and in your bottom drawer."

"Yeah, well, what yo-yo would expect them to be there?"

"You've got a point."

"I hope you're happy," he grumbled. "I have failed English."

"I did that?"

"That's right. I told you I had a paper that was due before lunch and you made me turn my lights off last night and wouldn't let me do it."

"It was 1:30 in the morning."

"Just forget it. It's done. Did you have a good lunch today? I hope so because thanks to you, I didn't get any."

"What's THAT got to do with me?"

"You're the one who wouldn't advance me next week's allowance. And more good news. You know the suede jacket you got me for my birthday last year? Well, it's gone."

"And I'm to blame for that?"

"I'm glad you admit it. All I hear around here is 'hang up your coat, hang up your pajamas, hang up your sweater...' and the one time I take your advice and hang up my jacket on a hook in the lunchroom, someone rips it off. If I had just dropped it on the floor by my feet like I always do, I'd have that suede jacket today."

"It sounds like quite a day."

"It's not over yet," he said. "Didn't you forget something?"

"Like what?" I asked.

"Like weren't you supposed to remind me I had ball practice after school?"

"I put a note on your desk."

"Under all that junk I'm supposed to find a note! It would serve you right if I got cut. And I might just do that. I swear. I was talking to some of the guys and we decided parents can sure screw up their kids."

Candlelight Service Unites Miss Leal-Luna

The marriage of Miss Laura Leal and George Luna was solemnized Saturday afternoon during a candlelight service in Thompson Memorial Baptist Church here. Pablo Garcia, Sr., pastor, officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Jose P. Leal Jr., who reside at 616 Blevins are the bride's parents. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Luna of 135 Ave. H.

Church decorations for the wedding included a floral arrangement with candles atop the piano and organ with matching candelabra flanking the altar.

Miss Leticia Leal was maid of honor in her sister's wedding. Santos Luna, the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

Attendant couples were Messrs. and Mmes. Julian Aguilar, Jessie Celaya, Willie Torres and Tommy Talamantez. Serving as ushers were Luis Liscano and Rumaldo Lucero.

Appearing in the processional as junior bridesmaids and groomsmen were Helen Luna escorted by Johnny Gomez, Lila Salas escorted by Hector Leal and Janie Rodriguez escorted by Raymon Guzman.

The flower girl was Raquel Ramirez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sergio Ramirez. Andy Lucero, son of Mr. and Mrs.

Rumaldo Lucero was the ring bearer.

Candles in the sanctuary were lighted by Noel Garcia and Ricky Chavez.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of Nottingham lace and chiffon knit, styled with princess waistline. Ruffles edged the wedding ring neckline and cameo yoke. Pearls were sewn onto the moulded bodice, fitted sleeves and flounce.

The A-line skirt was fashioned with a self-train of Chapel design. Matching lace outlined her Chapel veil of illusion, which cascaded in three tiers from a peau bonnet cap. She carried a bouquet of orange blossoms and crystal flowers set on a background of greenery, all tied with white satin ribbons.

Each of the bridal attendants wore dresses of blue knit with velvet ribbon emphasizing the empire waistline. The gowns had full chiffon sleeves.

Petra Chavez served cake during the reception afterwards in the church Fellowship Hall. Punch was laded by Corelia Lucero while Sylvia Gamez invited guests to sign the registry book. Other members of the house party included Mary Gamboa and Mrs. Tino Valdez.

Art Of Painting Is Program Topic

Mrs. Floyd Neill presented a program entitled "The Art of Painting" to members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Thursday evening.

The group then toured the Texas Gallery and Frame Shop where each member of the chapter was presented miniature watercolor souvenirs by Mr. and Mrs. Euman Lyles, owners and operators of the shop.

Following the tour, the group met for their business meeting in the holiday decorated home of Mrs. Randy Jones.

Plans for the chapter's Christmas party scheduled Dec. 11 were discussed by Mrs. Bud Thomas, chairman of the social committee.

Mrs. Jones served refreshments to those attending. They were Mmes. Ken Glenn, Eldon Koch, Neill, Bud Thomas, Eldon Howell, Bob Nigh, Terrill Hodges, Bob Goss and advisors, Mrs. Max Stipe and Mrs. Coy Mason.

Natural Foods Is Program Presented

Mrs. Frank Ford Jr. was a guest speaker at L'Allegria Study Club's meeting held Thursday morning in the home of Mrs. Steve Coneway.

Mrs. Ford spoke on "Natural Foods" and held a tasting brunch during her presentation. During the business meeting, it was announced that the club's annual Antique Show and Sale held recently at Community Center was a success. Also, the next meeting will be a Christmas party.

Hostesses were Mrs. Coneway and Mrs. Bob Reinauer. Other members present included Mmes Bill Warrick, Bobby Veigel, Edward Allison, Cliff Skiles, Eddie Reinauer, Joe Reinauer Jr., Gerald Payne, Rudy Metz.

Also, Mmes. Gary McGuigg, Bill Lyles, Wesley Gulley, A.T. Griffin, Cameron Gault, Jim Conkright, Terry Caviness, Tommy Carnahan and Jeff Carliile.

Pork Prices Down

Pork prices are down—considerably in Texas grocery stores currently—with attractive values on shoulder and loin roasts, Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist, says.

"Consumers can find especially good prices on Boston butts—both bone-in and boneless—pork steaks, smoked hams, roll sausage, liver and frankfurters," she added.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Beef and poultry prices are also low, the specialist said. "Generally, good beef values include chuck roasts and steaks, round and sirloin steaks, ground beef and beef liver."

At poultry counters, attractive prices appear on chicken hens, fryer chickens and liver. Mrs. Clyatt said.

"Orange juice remains the top bargain at frozen food counters, while Navel oranges are more plentiful with lower prices at fresh fruit counters."

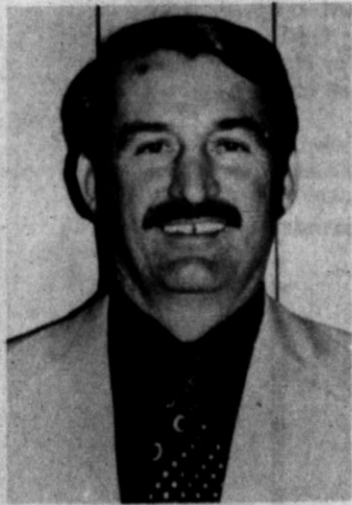

"Other economical fresh fruit buys include Anjou pears, bananas and apples."

At fresh vegetable sections, a heavy supply on onions will result in lower prices in upcoming weeks, Mrs. Clyatt predicted.

Other economical vegetables are cabbage, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, broccoli,

Autumn Arrangements Set Scene For Wedding

An array of autumn blossoms set the scene Saturday afternoon for the double-ring marriage of Miss Marilyn Sue Shirley and Robert Hugh Tate Jr., both of Pampa. J.R. Collins of Perryton's Church of Christ officiated.

An embankment of greenery skirted the matching candelabra, which flanked the altar where vows were exchanged. The sanctuary was bedecked with bouquets of yellow spider chrysanthemums, coral pompons red and orange gladiolas and daisy pompons with blue statice and babybreath.

The bride, who serves as assistant county extension agent of Gray County, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Shirley, Star Route. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Loventrice Spalding of Perryton and Robert Tate Sr. of Columbus, Miss.

The bride's honor attendants included Mrs. Gary Stretcher of Big Spring and Miss Thelma Warren of San Antonio.

Jim Hughes of Pampa was best man and recited the verses of "How Will I Know You?" during the ceremony. Bill Teights of Amarillo was also a groomsman. Hughes and Teights also served as ushers.

The bride's niece, Carrie Shirley, was the flower girl. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Shirley of Flagstaff, Ariz.

With Mrs. Joe Hacker providing musical accompaniment at the organ keyboard, Bill Devers vocalized "There Is Love," "Twelfth of Never," and "Wedding Prayer." In addition to the traditional processional and recessional, the congregation heard Bach's composition, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of snowflake chiffonette, designed with a cameo neckline and self-banded empire waistline. The bodice was enhanced by a deep triangular section of Venise lace.

Her bishop sleeves were gathered at the wrist by cuffs of Alencon lace and self-covered buttons, with lace fashioned to flare over her hands. The softly gathered A-line skirt was embellished by Alencon lace, fell to a large-edged flounce and swept to back fullness to form a Chapel train.

Double rows of chiffon muffled her matching hat, which had Venise lace encircling the crown. Three tiers of bridal illusion fell from the brim. She carried a bouquet of white pompons, feathered carnations and Sonja roses.

Complementing her ensemble were pearl earrings and a matching necklace belonging to her mother. She clasped the handkerchief carried by her mother as a bride.

The wedding rings were custom designed by the couple. The bridegroom's ring was patterned after a ring that had belonged to the bride's paternal grandmother. The bride's rings included a diamond from the bridegroom's family.

Gowns of cinnamon-colored quiana jersey were worn by the two bridal attendants. Each dress was styled with long, fitted sleeves and a V-neckline which extended into a front panel, dotted with buttons. Front fullness was shirred to this panel.

Each sported a teardrop pearl necklace, nosegays of fall flowers and hairpieces of babybreath with cinnamon and coral ribbons.

The flower girl was attired in a floor-length dress of coral fabric, trimmed in lace and cut with a flounce. Wearing a wristlet of fall flowers, she carried a basket of flower petals.

Flowers topped the four-tiered wedding cake, which was served to guests during a reception after the service in the church parlor. Silver candelabra garnished with autumn flowers lighted the serving table where a silver coffee service, silver punch bowl and matching appointments were set on a white lace cloth.

Cake was served by Mrs. Reuben McGilvary III and Miss Sharon Coffey while Mrs. Perry Shirley ladled punch and Miss Lorraine Hudson of Lubbock poured coffee. Mrs. Dwight Shirley presided at the registry book.

Other members of the house party were Miss Linda Haygood, Mrs. Larry Houston and Mrs. Melba Gasaway, all of Pampa; Mrs. Kenneth Parrish, Miss Ginger Newton and Miss Judy Scott, all of Lubbock; and Mrs. Eleanor Winkler and Mrs. Ursalee Jacobsen, both of Hereford.

For a honeymoon trip to Red River, N.M., Mrs. Tate wore a camel tan suede dress with brown accessories and a Sonja rose corsage. The couple will be at home at Pampa, where he is employed by KGRO Radio.

A 1972 graduate of Hereford High School, the recent bride received her degree from Texas Tech University in 1975. Tate attended Louisiana State University following graduation from Perryton High school in 1969.

Janita Oswalt Gives Program

The American Heart Association held its regular monthly meeting Thursday night at the Community Room of the First National Bank.

Janita Oswalt, nutrition task force chairman, presented a program on diet do's and don'ts to the 15 members attending.

A Blood Pressure Clinic is scheduled Saturday, Dec. 11, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Sugarland Mall. All citizens are urged to stop by and have their blood pressure checked. There is no charge.

President Archie Dwyer announced that a CPR (Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation) course had been taught to 17 members of the Health Careers Club at Hereford High School.

Two films have been purchased by the local division, which will be available to the public. "I Am Joe's Heart" is geared for adults and informs the public of the risk factors involved in heart disease, the nation's number one killer.

"Adventures of a Man in Search of a Heart" is an animated film for children which is accompanied by coloring books for the children to keep.

Simms Clubs Merge For Yule Party

The Simms Lions Club joined members of Simms Study-Craft Club Thursday night in the Simms community building for a Christmas party. Hostesses were Mmes. John Brozman, Lawrence Jackson and Julian Perrin.

Each couple brought covered dishes for the supper, which was followed by the exchange of Christmas gifts and playing a game. The hall was decked with a trimmed tree, red and white gingham streamers, greenery and candles.

It was announced that the Simms Lions would sponsor a turkey shoot and that the Simms Study Club would meet again on Jan. 5, at the community building.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Rhodes were recognized as a new couple in the Simms community. Special guests were the Simms Lions sweetheart, Lisa Duggan, and her date, David Arthro.

Barry Roberts was present as well as the following couples, Messrs. and Mmes. Roy Blevins, Tommy Wells, Willis Duggan, Edgar Hartley, Jerry Roberts, Robert Lloyd, Jerry Teel, Terry Creitz, Joe Perrin, John Perrin, Larry Gibson, Leland Burns, Dick Gregory, Maurice Blankenship and Jim Cavin.

Happy the people to whom such blessings fall: Happy the people whose God is the Lord! — Psalm 144:15.

"Happiness comes of the capacity to feel deeply, to enjoy simply, to think freely, to risk life, to be needed." — Storm Jameson, English novelist and critic.

Parents Are Attendants At Couple's Marriage

The Rev. and Mrs. Douglas W. Gossett of 106 W. 5th and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Westbrook of Austin served as attendants during their children's marriage Saturday afternoon at Austin. In a candlelight ceremony, Miss Patricia Ann Westbrook was the bride of Douglas Warren Gossett Jr.

Vows were read by the Rev. George Ricker, pastor, in the sanctuary of the University United Methodist Church.

White ribbons punctuated the church pews and a pair of traditional candelabra flanked the altar, where the couple were wed.

Guests were ushered by the bride's brother, Calvin T. Westbrook of Houston, and Gordon Frey of Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred combined their voices to present the musical selection "Morning Has Broken." Russell Schultz, minister of music for University United Methodist Church, performed two Bach compositions, including "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" and the first movement of "Concerto In G."

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory chiffon and floral Venise lace, styled with princess waistline and A-line skirt. Delicate strands of lace etched the sheer yoke from the wedding ring collar across the fitted bodice. The long, sheer sleeves were also enhanced by tiny bands of venise lace, which were gathered at the wrist to form a flare over her hands.

More lace defined the five-tiers of her skirt, which swept to a Chapel train. Complementing her trousseau was a fingertip veil of bridal illusion, drifting from a cap of eyelet lace and edged by valenciennes.

She carried a cascade of white carnations and Sonja roses, accented by an orchid. For an heirloom piece, the bride wore a 65-year old bracelet worn by three generations of brides in her family.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Westbrook chose a floor-length gown of per-simmon-hued quiana jersey. The bridegroom's mother, also appearing as a bridal attendant, was clad in a slipper-length dress of coral quiana.

Linda Gossett, the bridegroom's sister, provided piano music during the reception, which followed in the church's Margaret Gregory Room. The three-tiered white cake and the groom's cake were served by Mrs. Ted Carapezzo, Carol Loyd and Mrs. Dan Stokes. Coffee and punch were poured by Mrs. Calvin T. Westbrook and Mrs. Frey.

Coral carnations encircled an anniversary candle on the main serving table. Decorations at the groom's table included a branch candelabra enhanced by greenery.

For a wedding trip to San Antonio and scenic sites in Mexico, Mrs. Gossett wore a three-piece vested pantsuit of light tan and blue plaid wool. The couple will be at home after Dec. 8 in Austin, where he is employed as a firefighter by the Austin Fire Department. Mrs. Gossett is employed as an interior designer by an architectural firm.

Gossett earned his bachelor of arts degree from McMurry College at Abilene and his wife received the bachelor degree in science from the University of Texas at Austin.

Frische-Martin Wedding

Vows Exchanged Saturday

Miss Elaine Kathlene Frische of Dawn and William Patrick Martin of Hereford exchanged wedding vows in an early afternoon ceremony Saturday at St. Mary's Catholic Church of Umbarger.

The Rev. Jack Gist of St. Ann's Catholic Church at Canyon, officiated and serving as acolytes were the bride's brothers, Frank and David Frische, and her cousin, Mark Prailis of Dalhart.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Frische of Dawn and Mr. and Mrs. John Quentin Martin of 124 Nueces.

Yellow figi mums set against a background of burgandy oak leaves decorated the main church altar and a three-circle tiered wrought iron base encircled by white roses held the unity candle and two white tapers. White lace bows with burgandy streamers trimmed the pews.

Honor attendants included the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Stocker of Umbarger and Mrs. Steve Meiwes of Vega. Serving as bridesmaids were Miss Dianna McCarley of Canyon, Miss Vivian Martin, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss JoAnne Stenka of Regina, Saskatchewan in Canada.

Dan Brooks was best man and groomsmen were Dennis Hickman Ray Shannon, John Martin, the bridegroom's brother, and Andy Shipp.

Escorting guests to their seats were the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Danny Thompson of Hartley, and the bride's cousin, Arnie Stork of Gruver.

Maureen Prailis of Dalhart and Jane Koch of Monroe, Neb. lit candles during the ceremony and flower girls were Kim and Karen Wieck, daughters of the Fred Weicks of Canyon.

Miss Donna Kendall of Canyon with Miss Tony Burrus of Canyon singing and playing the guitar vocalized wedding selections including "Wedding Song", "My Sweet Lady", "Follow Me", "We've Only Just Begun" and "I've Been Searching So Long."

Miss Susan McDivitt of Amarillo played the organ and Miss Jeannie Hair played the flute.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a silk organza gown which was fashioned with an empire waistline and full sleeves with a cuff of lace coming to a point over the hands.

Matching lace formed a stand-up collar and lace appliques decorated the full skirt which was enhanced by a deep flounced edged in lace and extended to a full chapel length train.

The three-tiered bridal veil of imported illusion was edged in wide lace and was attached to a Juliet lace cap. She carried a nosegay of white roses tipped with yellow and burgandy sweetheart roses.

As good luck pieces, the bride wore diamond earrings, a gift from the bridegroom and a diamond drop necklace. For something old, she carried a rosary brought from Lourdes, France as a gift by the bride's paternal grandmother.

Bridal attendants were attired in A-line formal burgandy gowns with matching ruffled capes tied at the neckline. Each wore burgandy silk flowers in her hair and carried a long-stemmed yellow rose.

Flower girls and candlelighters wore yellow gowns designed similar to the attendant's gowns. The flower girls carried lace baskets filled with rice bags and wore tiny burgandy rose corsages.

Candlelighters wore wrist corsages of burgandy and yellow roses.

Mrs. Galen Reinart, the bride's cousin, invited guests to sign the registry book at the reception, dinner and dance held in the church parish hall.

Featured at the dance were the "Young Country Sounds."

Punch and coffee poured by Miss Vicki Gerber of Canyon and Miss Angeline Haschke of Umbarger.

Mrs. Bobby Fite and Miss Clara Grotegut, both of Canyon, served the four-tiered wedding cake. It featured a water fountain set between the cake's layers and the sides were decorated with burgandy and yellow roses entwined with wedding rings. The cake was topped with a gold cross and rings set among burgandy and yellow roses.

Others assisting included Miss Jackie Sharke and Miss Monica Friemel, both of Umbarger.

Leaving for a wedding trip, the bride wore a rust colored ensemble with matching purse and shoes and a corsage of white orchids surrounded by yellow sweetheart roses.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School this spring and is now attending West Texas State University. She is employed as a receptionist at Palo Duro Hospital in Canyon.

The bridegroom, also a 1976 graduate of HHS, is enrolled at WTSU and is employed by Champion Feeders of Hereford.

Hats Not 'Dead' Fashion

Will hats return to fashion? They've never really left—today's woman wears more hats than she realizes. Mrs. Becky Culp, area clothing specialist, says.

"Contemporary head coverings or 'hats' include scarves, tennis hats, sporty visors, knitted outdoor or ski caps and floppy-brimmed sun shades. Also, hooded sweaters, dresses, coats and tops are current fashion favorites, and don't forget the traditional bridal veil of carefree wig," she said.

Mrs. Culp is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Fashionable looks such as felt snap brims or summery straw planter hats each season attract slightly more interest than the previous season. Popular price ranges under $10 and casual hairstyles are major reasons for hat appeal," she said.

A recent survey ranked hats fourth in sales among all accessory items and approximately ten per cent of total accessory sales. Young women, especially, tend to wear hats more often for "just the fun of it," or to complete certain fashion look, the specialist reported.

Instant Author Advises:
Relive Life by Writing About It

By JOE WING
Written for AP Newsfeatures

What wouldn't you give to live some part of your life over again?
Would you hock the TV or even the family car?
No need for that. Whatever you do, of course, you can't actually experience a second time around, but there's a next best course of action that will cost you hardly a dime. It shapes up into a project ideal for you as an older man or woman, and one likely to draw applause from your children and grandchildren, and even your nieces and nephews.

The project? Nothing less than reliving your life by writing your life story.
Now, don't let the idea throw you. Although you may never have written anything more ambitious than a letter, you are still the only person on earth who can do this particular job. Even if your grammar and spelling aren't perfect, you alone can set down on paper, or dictate into a tape recorder, the unique anecdotes and events that have made up the mosaic of your existence.

My mother used to spin yarns to me about her girlhood and about the lives of her forbears as far back as she could remember. But when I tried to tell my own children about her life on the prairie, about her parents' journey West and about things that had happened to me, they wouldn't sit still for it. By then there was more excitement in radio programs and comic strips than in any narrative of mine.
As a result, our family legends, like those of many families, were on their way to oblivion. But I resolved not to let them die. I started to write them down. And those children of mine, now grown up, are fascinated with what I have written.

Writing my "book" has been more fun than watching football games or taking up golf, and the anecdotes have become a bulky manuscript. Your account need not be that long — a single page is better than nothing.
You don't have to be famous to rate an autobiography. There have been notable ones by slum dwellers, servants, buck privates, beggars and misfits, as well as by statesmen, philanthropists, generals, politicians, doctors, editors, artists, industrialists and travelers.

You're lucky if you have old diaries or letters or account books to draw on. Even without them, however, you will find yourself recalling incidents you haven't recalled for years. They may even heighten your spouse's interest in you, and certainly they will give you new insights into your own existence.
You are on your own as to the period covered. Some people concentrate on their childhood. Chief White Horse Eagle wrote about most of his 107 years. If your war experiences, school days, romances, wanderings or business career were most important to you, by all means zero in on one or more of those.

The events need not be put in logical order. What difference does it make now whether a date was 1944 or 1945? Mark Twain dictated his autobiography piecemeal and never did get it organized, but it makes reading hard to lay aside.

Perhaps you think you haven't the health or energy to tackle such a project. Well, then, think of the New Zealand judge who wrote "Cheerful Yesterdays" while dying of cancer. Or of our own President U.S. Grant, who produced his highly regarded war memoirs under similar circumstances.

I wish that my ancestors had done as much for me. Some of them reached these shores 300 years ago. There were soldiers, bums, pioneers, seamen and revolutionaries among them. I will never know what they were really like, or about their adventures, accomplishments and failures. Any one of them could have told a tale that I would love to read. But they didn't leave me a single line.

No matter how many lines you write, there comes a time when you have done as much as you want to. What next? First and foremost, save it. Don't decide, as even professional writers sometimes do, that your stuff is no good and junk it. Don't worry either about publication, although many an amateur's life story has popped up in print.

Trickle Irrigation System Makes Dead Sea Area a Desert Garden

By JOEL EPSTEIN

THE DEAD SEA, Israel (AP) — In the searing salt earth of a land cursed by God, Israelis are growing a garden of dates, mangoes and vegetables.

They are doing it with the help of an Israeli-developed system of trickle irrigation that conserves precious water supplies.

"When we came to settle the Dead Sea area 20 years ago, government officials didn't believe anyone could live here," says Dany Afik, secretary of Kibbutz Ein Gedi. "It was so desolate even the Bedouin desert nomads didn't pitch their tents here."

Today Ein Gedi is a thriving community of about 520 people living in two-story houses surrounded by grass and flowers. Most of them work in kibbutz-owned tourist industries, but 25 per cent of the kibbutz income comes from a 95-acre farm.

Beyond the borders of their cultivated enclave lies the forbidding wilderness of the Dead Sea, at 1,300 feet below sea level the lowest point on earth. Yellow cliffs, devoid of vegetation, drop to the salt-encrusted basin of the sea, whose water is so salty no fish can live in it.

Nearby lie the ruins of ancient Sodom, the sin city which the Bible says God destroyed with a rain of fire in the time of Abraham.

Trickle irrigation, developed at the kibbutz over the past 15 years, keeps Ein Gedi's fields constantly moist with a steady drip of water. The system has become a leading method of watering arid areas around the world.

Thin plastic irrigation pipes drip about two quarts of water every hour through pinholes placed 20 inches apart. The drippers work day and night.

"Our system is fully automated," said Afik. "We deliver insecticides, fertilizer and water through the same pipe."

The kibbutz draws its water from nearby springs that feed rich desert oases in mountain clefts. When the kibbutz was founded the springs supplied more than enough water, but now increased settlement in the region has forced everyone to cut down.

"With an ordinary sprinkler irrigation system in this heat, we lost up to 6,400 gallons a day in evaporation on every acre of land," said Afik. "We also watered large areas between plants that don't need irrigation."

"With drip irrigation, we lose almost nothing to evaporation, and we water only the ground around the plant."

Afik claims trickle irrigation is also healthier for the plant. "Sprinklers wet the leaves, and make excellent cultures for fungi and disease," he said. "With our system, the leaves of the plant remain dry." The method has proved so effective that farmers in Israel's more fertile areas are beginning to use it as well.

Agronomists, working in temperatures ranging up to 108 degrees Fahrenheit, regularly check soil moisture and adjust flow to maintain optimum dampness.

But water is not the only problem Ein Gedi's settlers face. "Our soil has two problems — rocks and salt," explained Afik. The high salt content in the Dead Sea earth made Israeli planners believe farming was virtually impossible there.

"But we found that every year, when we irrigated, the salt sank a few feet into the ground, and plants could flourish on the top level," said Afik.

The kibbutz hauled tons of earth from the fertile Sharon region 45 miles away to plant its mango grove five years ago. Each tree in the experimental orchard was planted in a bore in the yellow stony land filled with rich red Sharon soil.

Marriage Plans Revealed

The marriage of Miss Cathy Sue Tjernagel of Austin and Frank Wentworth Nobles of Wilmington, Del., will be solemnized on January 8 in the University Baptist Church at Austin. A secondary reading teacher, the bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.E. Tjernagel of Amarillo. The bridegroom, who was reared in Hereford, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Millard W. Nobles, 111 Sunset. Miss Tjernagel holds her masters degree in education and her fiancé has earned his masters in science. He is employed as a chemical engineer by DuPont Chemical Corporation.

Simmer Smoked Pork With Greens for Savory "Soul" Meal

Soul food has grown from humble beginnings to widespread popularity. Born of poverty amid fields of cotton, soul food has broken geographical barriers and gained converts everywhere.

Among meats, pork reigns as "soul" king. After cuts high on the hog went to mansion tables, the "leavin's" — pig's feet, hocks and tails, neck and back bones and chitterlings — were used to concoct tasty "soul" meals. Pork ribs and smoked shoulder also provide soul-style specialties.

In general, preparation of these cuts calls for leisurely simmering. Often vegetables such as okra and collard, mustard or turnip greens are included. For a savory sampling of "soul", prepare Smoked Pork with Greens, suggests Reba Staggs, National Live Stock and Meat Board home economist.

Smoked Pork with Greens
1 smoked pork shoulder roll (2 to 3 pounds)
1½ pounds fresh or 2 packages frozen (10 ounces each) collard, turnip or mustard greens
1 small onion, chopped
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tomatoes, sliced, if desired

Place smoked pork shoulder in Dutch oven. Add water to barely cover meat. Simmer, covered, 45 minutes if fresh greens are to be used; 1½ hours if frozen greens are to be used. Add greens, onions and pepper and bring to boil. Reduce heat and cook slowly until meat and greens are tender: 1 hour to 1 hour 15 minutes for fresh greens, 20 to 30 minutes for frozen greens. Remove pork from liquid and carve; drain greens. Serve slices of smoked pork and greens on hot platter. Garnish with tomato slices, if desired. 8 servings. 3 to 4 pounds smoked neck or back bones can be substituted for the smoked pork shoulder if desired.

For it is not the hearers of the law who are righteous before God, but the doers of the law who will be justified. — Romans 2:13.
"The world is divided into people who do things and people who get the credit. Try, if you can, to belong to the first class. There's far less competition." — Dwight Morrow, American diplomat.

Revelations of a makeover

GOES TO Saks Fifth Avenue for a makeover . . .

AND GETS a porcelain cover base (grape-colored plaster) to help hide large pores . . .

PLUS a foundation to tone down a sallow complexion . . .

WITH FINAL touches of several layers of brownish lipstick and lipgloss to match her eyes . . .

IT PLEASED the camera's eye, but the model (and friends) felt she needed more time to adjust . . .

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — SCENE: Beauty Salon at Saks Fifth Avenue

CAST: JANET TARA, intrepid publicity representative who was called and, unlike a score of others, agreed to serve. "Yes," she said, "I'll be the model for a makeover story." She's a brunette who wears glasses, little make-up and was given no opportunity to change her mind.

SARAH SALVATORI, darkly attractive make-up artist whose hands shook slightly at the outset of the adventure.

MICHEL, quick-footed, up-tall French photographer whose hands didn't shake at all.

REPORTER, who brilliantly masked her own anxiety en route to Saks with a frozen smile and soothed the model with: "Don't be nervous, Janet, it's going to be terrific." (Can she sue me if they turn her into "The Phantom of the Opera"?)

SARAH: (applies Cover Away under vic — uh, model's eyes to dispel shadows and selects bottle of foundation) Janet is slightly sallow so I'm going to use number 93.

REPORTER: What shade is that?

SARAH: Well, it's just 93. It's made of glycerine and powder for a matte finish which I want because her skin is oily. (she dots the face). Always blend make-up down and out because every pore has a hair in it and you don't want the make-up to get into the pore. MICHEL: Just a seconde, can you do that again? (to reporter) I can never say that word, seconde.

REPORTER: You have to stress the first syllable, SECONDE.

MICHEL: Ah! SEG-onde. SEG-onde!

SARAH: It takes 15 minutes for the foundation to set. While it's still wet, I'll apply cream rouge so they set together. (she blends rouge on cheekbones up to temple)

Now, for the eyes, I'll use a pale pewter shade of shadow to contrast with her brown eyes. Janet, lower your lids. Using a contour brush, you fill in the whole lid, extending the shadow onto the socket bone. And bringing it under the eye a bit to get a shadow effect. This will show up through your glasses.

JANET: Make-up usually bothers my eyes. I'll be happy if this doesn't.

REPORTER: (YOU'LL be happy?)

JANET: How long would it take me to do all this?

SARAH: No more than 15 minutes.

Action Janet, wearing a smock, her hair pulled back, sits tensely while Sarah collects her paraphernalia and Michel moves about, considering camera angles. Reporter clutches pad and longs for home.

SARAH: (approaching model) First, I'm going to clean Janet's skin with a foam cleanser to remove her make-up. We use Adrien Arpel products here. (proceeds to cleanse)

JANET: It smells nice and my skin feels good.

MICHEL: (snap, snap, snap)

SARAH: Now, this astringent will close the pores. Next, you must always use a moisturizer, even though you have oily skin. It acts as a cushion and holds the make-up on top of the pores.

REPORTER: (So far, so good)

SARAH: (uncapping a bottle of grape-colored plaster) I'm putting this Porcelain Cover Base on the forehead, nose and cheeks to hide large pores. (she dabs it on)

REPORTER: (If this dries, they can call in a sculptor to chip away at her.)

SARAH: I'll leave it without blending for a moment, so Janet can see the color. (hands Janet a small mirror)

JANET: Oh, my gosh!

REPORTER: Now, remember, it hasn't been blended yet. (There'll be time enough to worry when it's blended and your skin dries.)

SARAH: (retrieves mirror) It's better if she doesn't look.

MICHEL: (snap, snap, snap) MICHEL: Fifteen minutes! (he's been snapping away for an hour and a half)

SARAH: I'm filling in the eyebrows with a medium brown brush on powder. Just follow the natural line. Now,

MISS PATTI HENDON . . . returns to ballet stage

Miss Hendon Billed In Christmas Ballet

Miss Patti Hendon will again be performing in Tchaikowsky's Nutcracker ballet Dec. 9, 10, 11 and 13 at Tascosa High School Amarillo.

A Christmas fantasy, this is a colorful program incorporating the Kingdom of Sweets, a battle between mice and toy soldiers, a glittering wonderland and a gigantic tree that actually grows on stage. Young actors and dancers, throughout the Panhandle will be appearing in the unique spectacle.

This is Miss Hendon's second year to perform in the Nutcracker. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hendon, she is the reigning Miss Teen Hereford.

Tickets for the ballet can be purchased at Tascosa High School for $2 each. Curtain time is 8 p.m. with Santa Claus Lane scheduled to open at 7 p.m. Before each performance, theatre-goers are invited to hear the medley "Songs of Christmas" by a youth choir.

The Nutcracker is presented by the Parents Cultural Arts Committee under the direction of Neil Hess.

Sweet, Juicy Texas Oranges Make Tasty Orange Fondue

AUSTIN—The 1976-1977 Texas citrus season is well underway, and supplies of oranges are available in grocery stores.

"Beauty is only skin deep when it comes to the Texas orange," explained Agriculture Commissioner John C. White. "It may not be the prettiest fruit in the world, but once you've sampled it, you'll be sold on the sweet, juicy taste."

Texas oranges are good sources of vitamins A and C and they are low in calories, making them a perfect snack. The Texas Department of Agriculture home economist suggests trying Orange Fondue this winter.

Orange Fondue

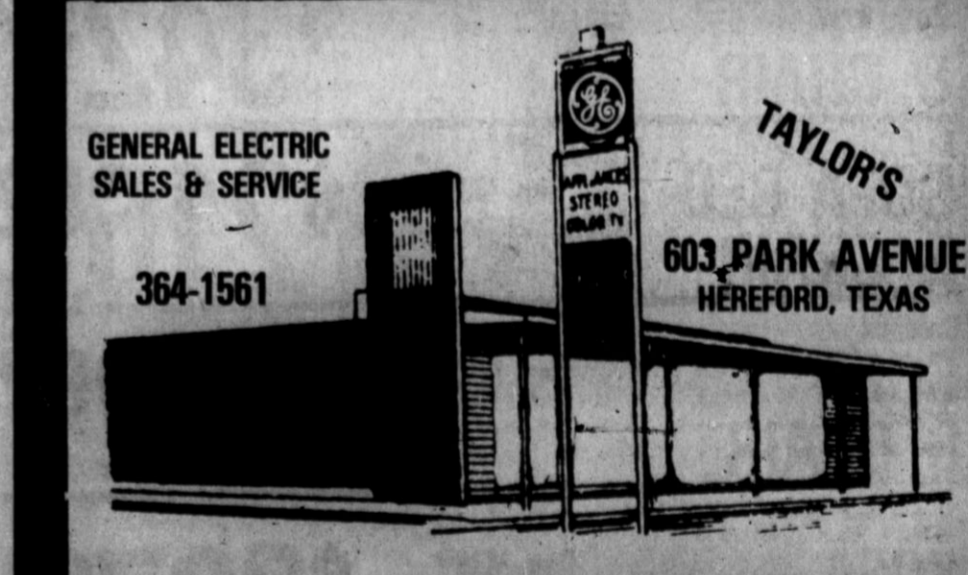

- 3 Tbsp. cornstarch
- 3 Tbsp. sugar
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 2 cups orange juice
- 2 whole cloves
- 1 Tbsp. butter
- 1-½ tsp. lime juice
- 1 Tbsp. grated orange rind
- Lady fingers, pound cake, marshmallows

Mix together, cornstarch, sugar and salt in an electric fondue pot set at 250 degrees. Stir in orange juice; add cloves. Turn temperature to 200 degrees and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils one minute. Stir in margarine, lime juice and orange rind. Keep fondue pot warm at 180 to 200 degrees while serving. This recipe may also be prepared

The coastlands have seen and are afraid, the ends of the earth tremble; they have drawn near and come; every one helps his neighbor, and says to his brother, "Take courage!" — Isaiah 41:5, 6. "Courage and perseverance have a magical talisman, before which difficulties disappear and obstacles vanish into air." — John Quincy Adams, sixth U.S. President in a small saucepan, cooking over medium heat. After adding butter, lime juice and orange rind, pour into a fondue pot and keep warm over container using chafing dish liquid fuel. Serve with lady fingers (halved), pound cake (cubed), and marshmallows. Yield: about 2 cups.

RECIPE
HOLIDAY CHEESE BALL

Ingredients

- 1 lb. Cheddar cheese
- 1 (8 oz.) pkg. cream cheese, softened
- 1 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ tsp. chili powder
- ½ cup finely chopped pecans

Utensils

- Large mixing bowl
- Measuring spoons
- Mixing spoon
- Plastic wrap
- Cutting board
- Sharp knife

1. Grate the Cheddar cheese into the large mixing bowl.
2. Add softened cream cheese, Worcestershire sauce and chili powder. Mix well until mixture is smooth.
3. Place the cheese mixture on a piece of plastic wrap. Bring the corners up and twist tightly, molding the cheese into a smooth ball. Chill for at least two hours.
4. Chop pecans on cutting board. If you are not allowed to use a knife, let someone older do this. Take the plastic wrap off the cheese ball and roll in the chopped pecans. Cover with more plastic wrap and store in refrigerator until you are ready to serve the cheese ball. Serve with different kinds of crackers, or give as a gift. Yield: One 1-½ lb. cheese ball.

What really was afoot? Torturous shoes shackled ladies

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — You know why it took women so long to liberate themselves, don't you.

They couldn't get out and demonstrate because their feet were killing them — because their shoes were killing them. And some people say men liked it that way because the woman whose feet hurt doesn't wander far from home.

When people were going around barefoot, everything was fine. Even when sandals began appearing in ancient China and Egypt, there was no problem because the shoe literally fit the foot.

"But as civilization progressed, footwear not only became a form of decoration, but the foot became a sexual object as well," says Ellie Jacobs, president of Kalso Systemet, the New York company responsible for Earth shoes.

Often, it was men who set the style in shoes, calling on large measures of silliness, and sometimes pain, to do it. Take those knights in the 14th century clanking around in their hardware.

"They wore a shoe called a cracowe that had a very long pointed end. I guess it served as a spur to their horses, but on the ground, the men couldn't walk unless the points were fastened to the waist with chains.

"Of course, knights were heroes," Ms. Jacobs says. "So people at court began to wear pointed shoes. Humanity, in short, began to squeeze feet into all shapes and dimensions that had no relevance to the function of the foot."

In all fairness, short Venetian women seem to be responsible for the chopines worn in 17th-century Europe. They were tall clogs, often a foot high, which women tottered in outside to protect their customary shoes from the mud. Since the helping hand of a gentleman was required for balance, chopines also provided a cagey means of contact between the sexes.

In late Victorian England, the thinking was, if we're corseting the body breathless, let's pinch the toes in pencil-pointed shoes as well. They did and the ladies continued to knit by the fire.

None of that, however, compares with the sly torture devised for upperclass Chinese women. It began in the year 1200 when an empress called Taki was born with club feet.

"The legend is that in order for her not to suffer any embarrassment, they passed a decree that women's feet should be bound for years so they would look like hers."

So at birth, the baby's feet were tightly tied. Eventually, the metatarsal bone in front was broken and all the toes except the big one turned under the foot.

"Women were forced to mince when they walked which gave a wiggle to their behinds which the men loved. But secondarily it was a form of slavery because it limited the ability of the females at court to get around."

It hurt too much. Ms. Jacobs, a pretty, healthy looking woman in her late 40s who does gymnastics to keep in shape, says she knows all about feet that hurt.

"For the first three decades of my life, I walked around with extremely painful feet. I have fallen arches and a weak

JoAnn Dwyer, executive director of Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Hereford Inc., is shown adding a holiday touch to the BB-BS's logo which is placed outside the organization's new offices at 108 E. bone structure, so my whole life I was advised to wear sensible shoes. Not being against sex appeal, I wore as sensible a fashion shoe as I could find.

Which meant she looked good, felt miserable and was very disagreeable much of the time.

Then, in 1969, on vacation in Europe with her husband, she discovered Anna Kalso's Minus Heel shoe, in Copenhagen. "They were the ugliest shoes I'd ever seen. But after I wore them awhile, the pain in my feet and back disappeared, my energy was restored and my disposition improved."

Anna Kalso, a yoga teacher and fashion designer, had spent three years developing the molded sole which, besides allowing the toes to spread, apparently moves the foot forward naturally.

The heel is lower than the toe, so it receives the weight of the body first. Then, the weight is carried along the outside of the foot, and the body springs forward off the big toe. — In 1970, the Jacobs began selling Anna Kalso's Minus Heel shoe in a small shop on a residential street in Manhattan. "The day we opened turned out to be Earth Day, so we put a crayoned paper in the window advertising Earth shoes."

The name worked. The back-to-nature cult took to Earth shoes the way the Gaboris take to marriage, and the Jacobs' $60,000 investment soared into the millions.

There are 140 Earth shoe outlets in the country now and several styles of the shoe for men and women, priced at $23 to $70. But Ms. Jacobs acknowledges that 30 per cent of the population can't wear them.

"A person with a shortened Achilles tendon in the heel, for instance, can't flex his foot up and down and will find the shoes painful."

As far as sex and fashion go, Ms. Jacobs confesses that at night she still slips into more stylish shoes. "But," she contends, "I think Earth shoes make you sexy."

Salvation Army Bells Began Early

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As a 17-year-old Salvation Army cadet, Amelia Devine was disappointed that not many coins were being tossed in her Christmas kettle on a wind-swept New York City street corner in 1901.

"Not many people noticed me, so a supervisor suggested I bang on the kettle with a stick, but that didn't work very well," Mrs. Devine, now 92 and still active in Salvation Army work, said Friday in an interview.

"I said, 'How about getting a little bell to ring?' So somebody went into the dime store and bought some 10-cent bells. They had just started using kettles for street collections to feed the poor people on Christmas, and nobody had thought of a bell until then," she recalled.

She came to town this week to continue the bell-ringing tradition for a few hours at the Salvation Army Christmas kettle beside the Ferry Building where city authorities first allowed the Army to set up a collection kettle in 1891.

Mrs. Devine, whose husband died in 1929, lives alone in suburban Burlingame. She has two sons and a daughter, all retired, 12 grandchildren.

Born in Johnstown, Pa., she survived the disastrous Johnstown flood there when she was 5 years old. She joined the Salvation Army in Pittsburgh at the age of 15, and underwent a year of training in New York before holding assignments in Ohio, Colorado, Kentucky and California.

A BROTHERLY TACKLE
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Ronny Johnson, North Carolina's free safety, and his brother, Timmy, N.C. State fullback, were bound to meet when the two rival teams played. On the fifth play of the game, Timmy went for a first down on second-and-two. He made it but Ronny made a crashing tackle to stop his brother from longer yardage.

Religious Leaders Say "Vote Cristian' Campaign Not Good

DALLAS (AP)—The "vote Christian" campaign that was organized during the recent national election poses a "serious threat" to undermining the American democratic system, according to American Jewish Committee and Texas Baptist leaders.

The warning was issued by Dr. James M. Dunn, a Baptist General Convention of Texas official, and Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, a member of the AJC's National Executive Council, in a joint new conference here Friday at the second day of the council's annual meeting.

Dunn and Tanenbaum said evangelical groups seeking to establish "a religious test" as a qualification for political candidates are violating the U.S.

Constitution and American traditions of religious liberty.

The two religious leaders especially cited those "right-wing" evangelical groups that campaigned nationwide to elect "Christ-centered" candidates in November's general election.

"This represents a violation of the Constitution of the United States," said Tanenbaum, the AJC's national director of inter-religious affairs. "It is a violation of Article 6 which allows no religious test for a candidate for public office."

Tanenbaum pointed out that President-elect Jimmy Carter is the first evangelical Christian to be elected president in more than a century.

Korean Leader Shakes Government

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—In a major cabinet shakeup, President Park Chung-hee Saturday replaced the head of South Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA), which has been linked to an influence-buying scheme in the U.S. Congress.

A brief announcement from the presidential office said Park had accepted the resignation of KCIA chief Shin Jik-soo and that Shin was being replaced by Construction Minister Kim Jae-kyu, a retired army general.

Park also dismissed or reassigned five cabinet ministers. The announcement gave no reasons for the changes.

Most observers here believed the KCIA switch meant in part that Shin was accepting responsibility for the reported defection of a senior KCIA officer in Washington. The officer, Kim Sang-keun, is believed to be providing information to U.S. investigators on the alleged Capitol Hill scheme in return for U.S. Asylum.

Kim, officially listed as a counselor at the South Korean embassy in Washington but said he has been the top KCIA officer there, reportedly is well-informed on the activities of South Korean businessman Tongsun Park, a key figure in the Justice Department probe.

Several congressmen have said they received cash and other gifts from Tongsun Park. Investigators are trying to determine whether the payments were designed to buy influence for South Korea in Congress and whether they were carried out with the knowledge and help of the KCIA and a high-level Korean official.

Kim Sang-keun reportedly sought asylum because he feared the Seoul government would make him a scapegoat in the investigation of its lobbying activities.

The government here has denied that there was any influence-peddling scheme. It has been silent on the Kim defection, which is under a news blackout in South Korea.

Kim Jae-kyu, the new KCIA chief, is a close confidant of President Park and once served as deputy director of the agency and as head of the Korean army security command.

The shakeup in the 20-member cabinet also involved the justice, education and unification ministers and a minister without portfolio.

Youth Considered A Lonely Period

Ann Frank once said "... youth is lonelier than old age."

The time between ages 12 and 15 is filled with a lot of physical changes. Added to this is the tremendous amount of change the young person is undergoing intellectually, socially and emotionally. Because of the state of flux, loneliness usually accompanies change. Dorothy Taylor, a family life education specialist, says.

She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Until boys or girls reach pre-adolescence, children usually find friendship and emotional comfort within the family. When a child matures into early teens, however, the need develops for close friendships outside the family. The young person needs someone to share mutual concerns and affection," she said.

During adolescence, boys and girls will have rather intense friendship, sometimes fleeting, sometimes lasting. Girls seem to have deeper relationships with other girls, but these often are not long lasting. Boys, on the other hand, seem to have more surface relationships which tend to last longer. Often, a friend who has similar background and interests is chosen. This friend will probably share many values and have a similar economic situation, she explained.

"Sometimes the young person's need for close friends either upsets the relationship he has had with parents in the past, or it upsets the whole family.

"Secret meetings take place, and there's usually no room for a younger brother or sister in the adolescent's life. Giggling, running back and forth to another's home and endless telephone conversations are part of maintaining adolescent friendships."

Parents have to consider the need for friends on the part of young people and not allow themselves to feel rejected by their own adolescents. Parents and families have to adjust to a growing child in the sense that they realize it is a natural part of the child's behavior, likes and dislikes, and changes related to maturity. The family's relationships with the child are also changing. Parents must face the fact that all relationships must change if a child is going to become a mature, independent adult, she explained.

"This friendship-seeking child still needs a family, but in a different way. Families provide love, warmth and understanding needed by teens. The pre-adolescent still needs rules and limits, but ones that are probably going to be different than they were several years ago. If the 12- or 13-year-old ties up the phone for a solid hour every night, don't blame the child. Parents set rules for telephone and enforce them. What the child needs is a set amount of time that can be spent on the telephone.

"Sensitive families will realize that when a child reaches the adolescent stage of development, some changes have to be made-- some adjustments are definitely in order. Basic understanding on the part of the family must be maintained in a loving, accepting home setting. Youth may be a lonely stage in a child's growth toward maturity, but an understanding family can make coping more pleasant," this specialist said.

"I loathe my life; I will give free utterance to my complaint; I will speak in the bitterness of my soul." — Job 10:1.

Book Review Planned

In Keeping with the holiday season, Mrs. Claude McDougal will present a book review at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Deaf Smith County Library. The speaker will be giving a rendition of the Christmas book, "The Shepherd", by author Frederick Forsyth. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

Ann Landers Many Lines Used

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You asked teenage girls to write and tell you the "lines" that were used on them by boys who were after sex. What a great idea!

I'm no teenager (I'm 22) but I thought you might be interested in the "lines" pitched at me over the past several years. Some of them were hilarious, others downright pathetic.

The adolescent, non-serious passes started in the seventh grade with games like Spin-the-Bottle and Post Office. Then there were those unforgettable Scavenger Hunts-- with kids pairing off and wandering around in search of pink toilet paper and vegetable sieves.

For serious, for-real lines started in the ninth grade. My favorite boyfriend was best pals with a guy who dated the most popular girl in school. He told me she "did it." That, of course, meant "it" was the thing to do. When he discovered that strategy didn't work, he promptly switched to, "If you loved me you'd prove it." I told him if he loved ME he wouldn't make such demands on me. Finally he became adamant and said I HAD to give in because my stubbornness was lousing up his maturing process and giving him pimples. When I told him to buzz off he threatened to kill himself. The threat turned out to be as ridiculous as the rest of his garbage.

Then I started to date a fellow who was extremely considerate of my feelings but also very affectionate. When I made my position clear, he didn't pester me about sex. We necked a little, but he never tried to step beyond the boundaries I set up. After a few blissful months, Mr. Well-Behaved informed me I was going to have to share him with "Winnie" (a hot number) who wrote notes which made it plain she was ready, willing and able to "fulfill" him.

Off I went to college-- still intact but getting curiously and curiously. The second day on campus I met Claude. He told me on our second date that dozens of girls had followed him from the swimming pool to his apartment, lusting after his bod. Others were so aggressive (and hungry) they knocked on his door with bottles they couldn't open, dresses that needed to be zipped, furniture they couldn't move-- anything to get past his front door and hopefully into his bed.

Then there was Horace, two years my junior, who wanted me to "teach him".... and Bernie, who was dying to know if a political science major had anything that worked besides her brain. And Orval, a religious nut who had been instructed by God to "show me the way."

Funny thing, nothing wore down my resistance. The lines just made me run in the other direction. No girl wants to feel used, fooled or easy.

When I finally said yes, it was because a sensitive and caring young man made me feel valuable as a human being. He applied no gimmicks, no hogwash, no sales talk. I made up my own mind. It was beautiful. I'm glad I waited.-- Happy Past And Proud To Tell It

DEAR HAPPY: I hope every young virgin out there who reads your letter will pay close attention. Ah! The more things change-- the more they are the same!

Try New Yeast Bread For Holiday Season

Flavor and aroma of homemade yeast bread fills the house with holiday spirits.

Yeast breads don't have to be complicated and time consuming. Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist, contends..

An educational publication, "Yeast Breads," offers a variety of simple yeast bread recipes compiled by foods and nutrition specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Learn the basics about mixing, kneading and baking, plus receive tested recipes for sweet, plain and herb breads and buns. There are even recipes for making main dish pies in a yeast crust," she said. "Yeast Breads," B-863, can be obtained through the local county Extension office for 25 cents, or send 25 cents to the Department of Agricultural Communications, College Station, Texas 77843.

The following recipe is one found in "Yeast Breads."

RAISIN BUNS

- 1 package of cake yeast
- 1/4 cup lukewarm water
- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 4 cups flour
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/4 cup melted shortening
- 1 cup seedless raisins

Soften yeast in water. Scald milk. Add salt and sugar. Cool to lukewarm Add two cups flour and beat well. Stir in softened yeast. Let rise in warm place until doubled, about one hour. Stir down. Add eggs, shortening and raisins. Add remaining flour. Beat or stir thoroughly. Drop by spoonful into greased muffin pans. Let rise until doubled. Bake at 375 degrees F. about 20 minutes. Makes about 24 two-inch buns.

Then you will understand righteousness and justice and equity, every good path; for wisdom will come into your heart, and knowledge will be pleasant to your soul. — Proverbs 2:9, 10.

Tentative Target Prices Set On Major Farm Crops For 1977

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Agriculture Department has tentatively set target price supports for major crops in 1977, but officials say the final determination will not be made for another couple of months.

Officials said Wednesday that the 1977 target price of wheat has been tentatively computed at $2.53 a bushel, up from $2.29 in 1976; corn $1.74 a bushel against 1.57 this year, and cotton 49 cents a pound, compared with the current rate of about 43 cents.

The target levels represent prices used by USDA in computing whether farmers will get direct government payments. If cash markets prices fall below the target levels for a specific period during the crop year, then payments are authorized to make up the difference.

Although authorized in the 1973 farm act, so-called deficiency payments have not been made because market prices have exceeded the targets. However, recent price declines have raised prospects that payment may be made for some 1977 crops.

In November, for example, the average farm price of wheat was $2.46 a bushel, slightly below the preliminary target for next year.

Corn, at $2.02 a bushel exceeded the 1977 target rate, but many farmers and officials believe another huge harvest next year will cause prices to drop further. Cotton, because of a tight supply situation, was 63.5 cents a pound in November, well above the target.

Target price adjustments are prescribed by a formula in the law, based partly on costs of production. Final 1977 target rates probably will be announced in February, officials said.

The price support loan rate is another step in the government's crop programs and are separate from the target price concept used to compute direct subsidies to farmers.

If a farmer chooses, he can obtain a loan from USDA, using his crop as collateral. When market prices are higher than loan rates, the normal thing to do is repay the loan and sell the commodities for cash.

But if market prices are below the loan rate, farmers generally do not repay the loan. In such cases the government assumes ownership of the commodities and cancels the farmer's obligation.

The secretary of agriculture has administrative leeway in setting the loan rates, which he does not have with regard to targets. For 1977 the wheat loan rate is $2.25 a bushel; corn $1.50 a bushel, and cotton about 42.6 cents a pound.

The 1977 rates will be subject to review by the new administration and Congress take up new legislation to replace the over-all 1973 farm act, which will expire with next year's crops.

Shepherd Feels Grammar Shouldn't Bar Him From Ag Office

BUFFALO, S.D. (AP)- His spelling and grammar could stand improvement, but a South Dakota shepherd figures that shouldn't disqualify him from being U.S. agriculture secretary.

Lawrence Brown, 51, is conducting his campaign as editor of a weekly newspaper, the Nation's Center News.

His qualifications for agriculture secretary? "A lifetime of exposure to the industry and a wife who has cooked thousands of meals for branding, shearing and harvest crews. Also, my family is qualified to handle chores on horseback, with modern machinery or at the industry's conference tables.

"Therefore, I think I am better qualified than some Harvard professor with a bunch of beautiful theories he would like to try out on the nation's farmers."

After the general election, Brown replied on the front page of his newspaper to a group of western South Dakotans urging President-elect Jimmy Carter to name Brown agriculture secretary.

"While you guys obviously are pulling my leg, I am going to take you seriously and would consider you fickle indeed if you don't follow this through to the point of getting a reply from Carter forces."

So far, there's been none.

Brown's sons have run his 1,700-acre ranch in Harding County since he began writing a column called "Shepherd's Diary" two years ago.

It wasn't long before Brown decided to start his own paper, investing $35,000 for the plant and equipment. He works with a staff of about 10 and circulation has risen to about 1,600.

He writes all his copy in longhand, paying little mind to spelling and grammar.

"I don't know spelling or grammar," he said. "Pronouns and nouns never interested me. And typing breaks my train of thought."

One reader wrote to criticize his use of the "drug" instead of "drugged" in a front-page letter to Carter.

"If Carter is as close to farmers as he claims, he will understand the term," Brown wrote back. "Many generations of farmers have drug things around and are not apt to change because a grammar critic is shocked at the language."

Although his support for Carter have cost him some subscriptions in the conservative rangeland, Brown has no regrets.

He figures anything he can do to establish communication with the new administration—whether it's as secretary of agriculture, editor of Nation's Center News or Harding County shepherd—can't hurt.

Local Delegates Attending FB Convention

The Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau is sending eight voting delegates to the 43rd annual meeting of the Texas Farm Bureau today (Sunday) through Wednesday in Fort Worth, according to Don Howard of Hereford, president of the 850 member county organization.

More than 1,000 voting delegates from 210 county Farm Bureaus will convene at the Tarrant County Convention Center to adopt state policies and approve recommendations for national policies. The latter will be forwarded to the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation which will be held Jan. 9-12 in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Attending as delegates from this county are Mr. & Mrs. Don Howard, President, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Betzen, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Christie, Pat Robbins, Bill Walden, and Joel Williamson, Secretary-Treasurer.

Also attending from this county will be Larry Paetzold and James Paetzold.

Registration for the TFB meeting will begin at 2 p.m. today at the Sheraton Hotel. General sessions will be in the Tarrant County Convention Center Theater with a number of conferences slated for the Shearton Hotel.

Activities the first evening will include vesper services, Discussion Meet, and Talent Find.

Speakers Monday morning, Dec. 6, include TFB President Carrol Chaloupka and Bill Clayton of Springlake. Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives.

Shirley Cothran Barret of Denton, Miss America of 1975, will speak at a ladies' luncheon and style show.

SBA Could Make Loans To Farmers

COLLEGE STATION—Farmers and their lenders will eventually have a new source of loans and loan guarantees—the Small Business Administration (SBA). "But don't count on getting a SBA direct farm loan or farm loan guarantee in the near future," says Dr. Wayne Havenga.

The economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service notes that there are a few "red tape" details to be overcome before the agency can help farmers.

"Currently the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is the only large agency serving farmers' large financial needs. But this agency does not presently provide financing for farm partnerships—even family operations—and limits the number of loans per borrower. The SBA does not have these restrictions and will assume some of the discarded clients," says Havenga.

However, there is a bill now in Congress to eliminate these FmHA failings. This creates a possible overlap in the paperwork and organization of loans to be granted to farmers between the two agencies, notes the economist.

Havenga says the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the SBA are currently working on an understanding to publish proposed regulations for its farm lending, invite public comment, and then publish the final regulations—a process that could take several months.

The SBA has already set up a few guidelines by which to finance the U.S. farmer. It has set $275,000 in annual gross sales as the upper limit for farm businesses for the agency's lendings, adds Havenga.

In addition to making direct loans with its own funds, the SBA also makes 90 per cent guarantees of loans by commercial banks and other private lenders. The limit for SBA-guaranteed loans has been increased from $350,000 while direct loans continue at a $350,000 limit. The maximum interest rate for guaranteed loans is 10 per cent.

Any businessman desiring a SBA-guaranteed loan must start with his own banker or other private lender, points out Havenga. The lender then applies for the guarantee.

Direct loans by SBA require a turnaround by two banks, after which the small businessman can apply for a loan at a regional SBA office.

August Milk Production Shows Increase Over '75

AUSTIN—Texas milk production during August was five percent above a year ago, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has reported.

The 278 million pounds of milk produced by dairy farmers is two percent below July production of 285 million pounds.

According to White, the number of milk cows in the state totaled 320,000 head with production per animal reaching 870 pounds, up 70 pounds per animal from a year ago, but 15 pounds below July 1976 figures.

The price of wholesale milk rose during August, averaging $10.40 per hundredweight. This compared with $9.10 a year ago.

White also noted that the prices dairy farmers paid for dairy feed and baled alfalfa hay were up slightly, with dairy feed averaging $150 a ton and hay, $86 a ton.

Corn Growers Will Convene

The annual meeting of the Texas Corn Growers Association will be held in Dimmitt at the Castro County Exposition Center Wednesday, December 15.

The meeting will get underway at 10 a.m. and is being held in conjunction with an afternoon program by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service on corn production problems.

According to Carl King of Dimmitt, president of the association, new officers and directors for the coming year will be elected.

Dimmitt area elevators will provide a free luncheon for those in attendance.

King indicated that a good report on membership is expected at the meeting, pointing out that the Texas Corn Growers Association is relatively new, but one of the "fastest growing groups in Texas."

Texas Crops Report

Record Low Temperatures Halt Field Operations

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - record-shattering low temperatures, snow and sleet early this week in the Panhandle, South Plains, West, Central and South Texas halted field operations and sent livestock owners scurrying to feed their animals. Record low temperatures for the entire month of November were reported at most locations across Texas, as observers checked weather records dating back as far as the 1850s at Brownsville and 1885 at San Antonio. Galveston Island reported its coldest November in 96 years, and other reporting stations announced new lows for November. By midweek, most fields and pastures remained soggy and in need of open weather, reported

Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Cotton farmers are hopeful that the weather will permit them to resume the harvest soon in the Panhandle, the South Plains, the Rolling Plains and in the San Angelo area, where much cotton is yet to be harvested. The adverse weather has reduced yields and quality of the peanut crop, Pfannstiel added. Freeze damage to vegetables - particularly peppers, broccoli and cauliflowers - is still being determined in the Winter Garden and San Antonio areas, and to Coastal Bend vegetables. Pasture grasses in the southern part of the state were damaged by the hard freeze.

Low temperatures and ice accumulations in Central and Southern area have caused considerable damage to landscape plants. The cold also has slowed screwworm activity. These midweek conditions were reported by district Extension agents.

PANHANDLE: Cold weather halted cotton and sugar beet harvests, but field work had resumed at midweek. The cotton harvest is well past the halfway point, and sugar beets are 90 per cent harvested in Deaf Smith County. Counties north of the Canadian River need moisture.

SOUTH PLAINS: The third snow of the season, three to four inches, halted harvest operations. Slightly more than half of the cotton remains to be harvested. Small grains are starting to make progress.

ROLLING PLAINS: Wet fields have slowed the cotton harvest, now about one-fourth complete. Most wheat has been planted, but growth is slow with some greenbug infestations noted. Pecan yields are fair. Less than half the normal number of stocker cattle are on wheat pastures. There is some supplemental feeding.

ONE NAME MAKES FINANCING EASIER VALLEY.

Qualifying for a large irrigation loan might be a problem under these days. Financial institutions will be taking a careful look at the equipment you've chosen with two considerations in mind. Will the equipment last the term of the loan, and maintain its value? And is the company behind the system sound and experienced? When you decide on Valley Irrigation, you're covered on both points. Hot dipped galvanized protection is standard on all Valley equipment, giving you twice the life expectancy of mere painted steel systems. You can also expect a substantially higher resale value. Some of our dealers report that used, galvanized Valleys bring $3,000-$5,000 more than painted systems manufactured in the same year. And in case you didn't know - Valmont is still the largest company in irrigation. We'll be around when you need us.

WEST CENTRAL: Near-record low temperatures of the past weekend halted most agricultural activities. Early-planted small grain fields are providing some grazing, but supplemental feeding of cattle is under way. Predators are causing medium-to-heavy losses of sheep and goats, with cattle also being attacked. Hunters report deer in good condition.

CENTRAL: Harvesting of pecans - a lighter than usual crop - and peanuts is almost over. Cold November temperatures slowed cool season plant growth and caused some shrinkage in cattle.

EAST: Wheat and oat growth is slowed although some oat fields are being grazed. Cotton, corn and sorghum harvests are complete, and vegetable activity has slowed. Pecan yields are light. Livestock are in fair to good condition.

SOUTHWEST: Wet fields are hampering the late peanut harvest and delaying the pecan harvest. Many farmers are waiting for open weather to complete small grain plantings. Freeze damages are not fully known for peppers, broccoli and cauliflowers. Although pastures have lots of dry grass, the freeze brought on some supplemental feeding of livestock.

COASTAL BEND: Vegetables and pasture grasses have been damaged by the heavy frosts and cattle feeding is under way. Wet fields have halted the cucumber harvest and all planting. Fall peanuts and pecans are about 90 per cent harvested, and the second rice cutting was nearing completion before the rains began.

Woodward, Vickers Will Speak At Wheat Meeting

The Texas Wheat Producers Board will hold its annual meeting and wheat symposium in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Thursday and Friday, Dec. 9 and 10 at the Gateway Inn in Wichita Falls.

Highlighting the meeting will be an address by Don Woodward, President of the National Association of Wheat Growers, Pendleton, Oregon on "Challenge In Change" in the wheat production industry. He will speak during the Thursday session.

On Friday, Gene Vickers, executive vice president of the Western Wheat Associates, Washington, D.C. will speak on "What's Ahead For Wheat." Other presentations will include facts on actual wheat production, presented by various scientists of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and an association business session.

Peveto Says Taxpayer Would Get Break If Proposed Revision Bill Is Passed

AUSTIN (AP) - The average taxpayer probably would get a break on his tax bill if a proposed property tax revision bill passes, Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, says.

"This is the Texas property taxpayers bill of rights," Peveto, chairman of the Property Tax Study Committee, told a news conference Friday.

He held a press briefing to discuss the 201-page tentative recodification of tax laws approved by the committee a week ago and which will be presented in public hearing in 13 cities beginning Dec. 13.

The final committee vote will come Dec. 19-20.

"This definitely will affect the average taxpayers because it will make sure his property is not appraised any higher than other property in the area," he said. "It's possible the average tax payer will get a break on his tax bill if this passes."

Peveto said the bill to be presented the 1977 legislature contained three major parts:

"First, property would be valued for taxes only by a single local appraisal office that would be created for each county. Duplicate and often conflicting appraisals by as many as four or five different local tax offices would be eliminated.

"Second, taxpayers would be notified of the value placed on their property and could protest to a separate local review board if the value appeared erroneous or illegal...if dissatisfied at the local level, tax payers could appeal to a new state commission to be established just for that purpose.

"Third, under the new system of market value appraisal, local property taxes would be frozen and would not be increased except by deliberate action of local, elected officials after notice and public hearing."

He said these provisions would assure Texas taxpayers that their property taxes are equitably, efficiently and legally administered, and what's more than property taxes do not go up unless local officials can make their case before the public."

He said the bill would not change local government tax sources or legal limits.

The local central appraisal office proposed in the bill would be governed by three or five persons, depending on the county population. They would be elected by the county commissioners court and the governing bodies of incorporated cities and school districts in the county. This office would appraise property for all taxing units in the county.

The appraisals would be done by professionally qualified persons regulated by a new state Council of Appraiser Examiners. The governor would appoint six members of a new State Property Tax Board that would have general rule-making powers but would not have any power to overrule or replace local office appraisals or personnel, Peveto said.

Anyone protesting an appraisal would first appear before a local appraisal review board. If not satisfied, they would have the choice of filing suit in district court of obtaining a hearing before a new full-time state Property Tax Appeals Commission. The three-member commission would be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate.

The proposed code also would require that local governing bodies give each taxpayer notice if the assessment ratio on his property is changed. The tax rate could be increased only after a public hearing by the community's governing body.

Nitrate Pollution Can Be Avoided

HOUSTON—A team of agricultural research scientists investigating fertilizer nitrate movement into shallow underground water areas following crop irrigation say nitrate pollution can be avoided.

The study, under the direction of Drs. Art Onken, soil chemist, Charles Wendt, soil physicist; and Otto Wilke, agricultural engineer, all with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, was one of a number of research papers presented Dec. 2, before the annual meeting of the American Society of Agronomy (ASA).

The research, Onken told the group, employed three different types of irrigation systems including furrow, sprinkler and sub-irrigation, in a crop of sweet corn. The crop was planted in permeable soil overlying a shallow water table.

"Nitrogen fertilizer enriched with a naturally occurring heavy isotope of nitrogen was used in order that fertilizer movement could be traced," he reported. "In two growing seasons the sweet corn was fertilized in the normal fashion at a rate of about 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Fertilizer moved to greatest depths under sprinkler irrigation and least under sub-irrigation, Onken said.

"While it was apparent that some fertilizer nitrogen moved below the root zone under sprinkler and furrow irrigation, the concentrations were much less than limits set by state health departments for drinking water," he added. "This research shows that with proper management of fertilizer and irrigation water, movement of fertilizer nitrogen into underground strata can be controlled."

More than 1,100 voluntary research papers were presented from Monday through Thursday in sessions planned by the three societies' 21 subject matter divisions.

The three science societies are educational organization with more than 8,500 members throughout the U.S. and more than 90 foreign countries.

Soil Samples Should Be Obtained Now

COLLEGE STATION—Profitable crop production depends on fully utilizing soil nutrients in addition to efficient fertilization. And the key to all this is soil testing, contends a soil chemist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Although most soils contain some of all the essential nutrients needed for plant growth, the amounts vary greatly between soils. Most are deficient in one or more of the essential nutrients," points out Dr. Charles Welch.

"Past fertilization and native fertility are major factors affecting the level of available nutrients in a soil. To determine the level of nutrients and which should be included in a fertilizer, a soil test is needed," contends the Texas A&M University Specialist.

Local county Extension agents, fertilizer dealers or any local agricultural agency can provide instructions for collecting and mailing samples.

In collecting samples, the first step is to use a map or sketch and divide the farm and fields into sampling units or areas. If the area is represented by each sample is too large, the information obtained may not be much better than a general fertilizer recommendation, says Welch.

"Under today's conditions, a major objective is soil testing is to determine the level of available nutrients in a soil so that fertilizers can be selected that will supplement the soil supply and provide what is needed for top yields," emphasizes the soil chemist.

Soil test results for phosphorus are especially valuable for fields that have received regular applications of phosphorus for several years. The residual from row applications of phosphorus may be difficult to measure until it is thoroughly mixed with the soil, explains Welch.

Soil testing can also determine the level of available potassium and can monitor changes in both the surface and subsoil as a result of cropping. Although many soils contain an adequate supply of available potassium, others may be quite deficient. It is important to identify deficient soils and apply more potassium rather than treat all soils alike, emphasizes Welch.

"As far as nitrogen is concerned, most soils are deficient so nitrogen fertilization is necessary to produce economical yields," says the soil chemist. "However, the amount to apply as well as the time of application is important in getting good results."

A soil test will help producers identify nutrient soils and make more efficient use of applied fertilizers. For producers who have not included soil tests in their farm planning program, now is the time to start for next year's crops, contends Welch.

Cash Receipts Statistics Published

AUSTIN—The 1975 Cash Receipts statistics book has been published, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has announced.

Information listed includes cash receipts by commodities, gross and net income from farming, government payments in 1975, and timber income.

Entitled 1975 Cash Receipts from the Sale of Texas Farm Commodities, the book is available free by writing Commissioner John C. White, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A prominent agricultural economist says rising food world demands for food will not in itself assure American farmers good prices and profitable outlets for what they grow.

Earl O. Heady of Iowa State University said "the mere existence of 500 million hungry people the world over does not translate into prices and an economic environment" calling for American farmers to put massive acreage of new land into crops.

"The uncertainty of the market for this added output is too great," Heady said. "Even aside from any attempt to feed this mass of undernourished people, the magnitude of future export demand through commercial markets is highly uncertain."

Heady's remarks were in a paper delivered Wednesday at a seminar held by the Economic Research Service in the Agriculture Department. The paper was entitled, "Agricultural Production Economics in the Future."

Heady said much more research is needed on the investment that might be required to bring additional land into crop production and what prices might be under various situations that can occur.

"If growth in exportable surpluses finds its way mainly as livestock feed to rich countries, the basis for concern perhaps need not be great, except as it keeps our balance of payments and related domestic affairs in an improved state," Heady said.

"If the grain is produced mainly to go to richer countries, let those countries take care of it and encourage its production through the market price they will pay for feed grain."

On the other hand, Heady said, if the future goal is to get more food to the world's hungry and poor people then "extra market institutions" would have to be developed as an appendage of the commercial markets dominated by rich foreign buyers.

If this is the case, he said, "we need to be concerned in a thorough researching of the production and supply possibilities" of a major, sustained effort to feed the world's hungry.

Heady said such research "relates to the policy means by which the hunger of the world's poor can be translated into effective demand and which will provide prices at levels and with sufficient stability that U.S. farmers can profitably produce at the maximum."

Although the future of farmers is uncertain, Heady said it appears bright for his own profession.

What Lindsay produces in their plant should produce more in yours.

It's rain. Not the unpredictable kind that comes from the sky. But the steady, gentle rain that comes from a Zimmatic center pivot. Rain you turn on and off as your crops need it. Lindsay is one of the nation's pioneer manufacturers of electric center pivots. And one of the largest — now No. 2 and headed for No. 1. Because more farmers become Zimmatic users every year.

The reason? Dependability. Zimmatics produced in Lindsay's plant are carefully designed to produce more in your plants. For example, a flex feature and patented Uni-Knuckle take care of most twist and stress, ease the Zimmatic over rough ground. Heavy-duty gearboxes, made in Lindsay's plant, plus special high-torque motors handle steep grades, while an exclusive micro-switch control keeps the system running straight and true. The Zimmatic control panel features meters, not idiot lights. And for extra years of service, the pipeline, towers and other critical exposed parts are protected by hot-dip galvanizing.

There's more. As your full-service Lindsay dealer, we back up your Zimmatic with factory-trained servicemen, a parts inventory — and a desire to serve you better. If you're looking for a center pivot that will be around for years to come, see us today about a Zimmatic.

On Saturday, November 27, 1976 Australia devalued its currency by 17.5 per cent. This means that from now on it will cost the Australian people 17.5 per cent more Australian dollars to purchase foreign made goods. Conversely it will cost foreign importers 17.5 per cent less to bring products made in Australia into their country.

The impact upon the world's already shaky currency system was enormous. For the system was just beginning to adjust it's self from two simultaneous devaluations of the Mexican Peso and the British Pound's precipitous decline from $2.00 to $1.50 in less than six months. Now this!

Essentially the Australian government is trying to jockey the country's exports into a better competitive position than other nations. Products made in Australia cost too much to sell abroad, therefore the ruling liberal party had to do something, something drastic to make them more desirable to a foreign buyer. But instead of making a better product, or perhaps cutting the costs of labor, or scratching inefficient means of production, the government took the easiest temporary way out - they debased their people's currency.

The initial reaction to this will be an easing of prices paid for goods produced or made in Australia. It should also stimulate foreign demand especially for commodities such as wheat and beef. And, if no other nation such as Canada or the U.S. follows suit then Australia should profit handsomely from this decision. This however won't be Australia's lot unfortunately, and the benefits from the devaluation if any will be shortlived.

Recently, over the past eight years or so there has been a startling increase of currency devaluation. Beginning with the British Pound followed by the U.S. devaluation of 1968, further weakening of the Pound followed by innumerable small nation devaluation. Each of these devaluations occurred for the same reason as the Australian currency realignment. The net effect of this is an excess amount of currency floating around the world. It's inflationary. Making everything of value more and more expensive in terms of the amount of currency paid.

Nobody really wins this game, the losers are the people of the world, and the end results are devastating.

But in a freely-elected government like those of the English speaking peoples, maybe they deserve what they have gotten. After all, perhaps the largest private interest group communicating the needs of the people to those in power are the labor unions. It's an old story behind what they want and how they get it. But if it were not for the costs of labor (representing inefficient means of production) going up, a substantial fraction of all goods and services produced in any country would be sliced from the asking price. However as long as organized labor strangles efficient production and controls a society's power as it does in Britain then greater inefficiencies of production will accrue through all levels of manufacture and marketing.

If a devaluation is the only method by which a nation believes it can gain a competitive edge over its trading partners then the future looks very poor for the average working man. For though he may some day earn better than $1,000 for 40 hours of work he will not be able to purchase more than what a mere $10 can today.

These methods of international competitiveness are an omen of worldwide super-inflation and eventual depression followed by political instability.

Plains Cotton May be Hurt by Early Snow

AUSTIN—An early freeze caused moderate to heavy damage to the cotton crop in scattered localities on the High Plains, resulting in a five percent decline from the October estimate.

The revised forecast places production at 2.85 million bales. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reported that wet weather accompanied by record low temperatures stopped most plant growth in early October. Mature stands came through with little or no damage, but younger plants suffered losses in both yield and quality.

Statewide yield has been estimated at 304 pounds per acre, down 16 pounds from October. This is a slight improvement over last year's poor yield of 293 pounds.

The snow which blanketed the High Plains in mid-November could also cut crop production, although most of the damage will be to lint quality.

"Snow penetrates the boll and as it melts, it stains the lint, producing spotty cotton. Some farmers are predicting lower grades, although gin turnout has been better than expected," White explained.

Free Recipes Available

AUSTIN—A new collection of mouthwatering recipes is available from the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Homemade Peanut Butter Ice Cream, Southern Pecan Mist, Orange Blossoms and Swiss Cheese and Ham Soup are only a few of the recipes given.

The leaflets are available free by sending a postcard request to Commissioner John C. White, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

Water Use Efficiency Key To Drought Tolerance

HOUSTON—Early investigations by a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientist at Lubbock may unlock a number of secrets about plant use of water, a finding which could lead to improved drought tolerant crops such as cotton and sorghum.

carbon dioxide concentration and water use of the plants."

If preliminary studies hold up, scientists may be able to develop plants that use their energy resources in leaf and fruit development rather than in excess root activity.

The study was revealed Thursday afternoon, Dec. 2, in Houston before the annual meeting of the American Society of Agronomy by Dr. Charles Wendt, soil physicist with the Experiment Station at Lubbock.

Wendt joined some 3,000 other agronomists from around the nation in Houston, Nov. 28 through Dec. 2 for the joint annual meetings of the American Society of Agronomy, Crop Science Society of America and the Soil Science Society of America.

Wendt research was carried out under greenhouse conditions, using plant containers equipped for moisture and gas measurements, with Olton loam soil topped with vermiculite. This latter material was to minimize evaporation, yet allow free gas exchange between soil and atmosphere.

When significant changes in soil water potential occurred, measurements of transpiration and root zone carbon dioxide (CO₂) were made. Wendt reported. Soil water potential was measured with tensiometers and with thermocouple psychrometers at potentials less than those in the tensiometer range. Transpiration was determined from pot weights. Samples of the soil gases were obtained with a gas syringe from an aluminum tube with a rubber cap, and were analyzed with an infrared analyzer. Since the plants were in an advanced stage of growth, leaf area measurements of each plant were made with a leaf area meter.

Wendt said that the relationships between soil and transpiration of all plant species were all found to be significant. Major differences were found among plant species in the amount of water they transpired at a given root zone CO₂ concentration. For instance, cotton, which is reputed to be more drought tolerant than sorghum, transpired more at a particular CO₂ concentration. "It may be possible that the more drought tolerant plants transpire more water and have less root respiration (giving off of CO₂) per unit leaf area," Wendt reports. "Consequently, such plants may use less sugar manufactured by the plant in root respiration."

Wendt interprets this conclusion as having a number of implications for the development of drought tolerant crops.

"What we might look for," he said, "are plants that utilize their energy resources of sun and water most efficiently in leaf and fruit development rather than in root activity."

"Studies under more controlled conditions," he says, "could answer many questions that arose during the study, such as what the contribution of the soil is to the root zone CO₂ concentration, and what the role of root respiration is in transpiration."

"One major advantage of CO₂ measurements," Wendt adds, "is that the same instrument can be used throughout the range of active plants while in soil water potential measurements it is necessary to cover the soil range in which plants are active."

The soil physicist says that the major limiting factor in his studies is that other soil parameters such as organic water, dead plants, and soil minerals contribute to the CO₂ level in the soil.

If the contribution of these parameters can be delineated, measurement of root zone CO₂ could be used to measure root activity as influenced by plant growth and soil and plant treatments, and to delineate differences in root activity between cultivars within a plant species.

stuffing, potato salad and other salads made with mayonnaise, cream pies, eggnog, and other dishes containing meat, poultry or eggs. Germs multiply readily in such foods.

Although a stuffed turkey may be aesthetically pleasing, it is much safer to bake the turkey and stuffing separately. Bacteria grows well in stuffing ingredients and in the warm, moist turkey cavity.

When preparing a hot dish ahead of time, place in refrigerator within 30 minutes after cooking; reheat thoroughly just before serving. Do not leave cold dishes at room temperature; instead, refrigerate immediately after preparation.

Finally, refrigerate leftovers as soon as the meal is over. Practice holiday food safety, and help your family and friends enjoy a happy, healthy Christmas season.

Rice Pecan Dressing

- 1 pkg. (6 oz.) long grain and wild rice
- 1/2 cup sherry or chicken broth
- 1-1/2 cups sliced celery
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) herb stuffing mix
- 1 cup hot water
- 1 cup chopped pecans

Cook long grain and wild rice as directed on package, substituting sherry or broth for 1/2 cup water called for in package recipe. Meanwhile, saute celery in butter for two minutes. Add herb stuffing mix, hot water and pecans; mix well. Add hot cooked rice and mix. Serve with turkey.

During 1975, Texas ranked fourth in the nation in production of rice, harvesting 24,996,000 hundredweight. Agriculture Commissioner John C. White noted.

TEXAS AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS MAKE GOOD CHRISTMAS GIFTS—Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reminds Texans that food and fiber gifts make excellent Christmas gifts. "Agricultural products produced in your part of the state are especially appropriate, but any Texas-produced food or fiber gift is sure to be appreciated," White said.

Put Texas Food and Fiber On Your Holiday Gift List

AUSTIN—If you're scratching your head over what gift to give someone on your holiday shopping list, consider giving Texas food and fiber products.

"Wool, cotton and mohair garments are increasingly popular, and are always appreciated," Agriculture Commissioner John C. White noted. "And Texas food products are sure to make a hit."

Oranges and grapefruit from the Lower Rio Grande Valley are welcome gifts.

One way consumers can obtain the names of citrus gift pack shippers is to contact the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers Association, Box 671, Harlingen, Texas 78550. The Association will supply members' names.

Members are required to observe strict standards for fruit quality and efficiency in delivery.

Gift packs vary in price, averaging between $5 and $24. They may contain Ruby Red grapefruit or oranges, or a combination of the two. Peanuts and pecans are another gift idea. Both in-shell and shelled peanuts are readily available in grocery stores.

Pecans can be obtained from nut companies. If one is not located in your area, write the Texas Pecan Growers Association, Drawer CC, College Station, Texas 77840 for the names of nut companies.

Smoked turkeys are a popular holiday item and they make good gifts. They can be purchased from many grocery stores or through the Poultry Science Club at Texas A&M.

Beef is another good gift. Many Christmas catalogs put out by department and specialty stores offer gift packs of steak, and some local meat markets may pack a gift box. It's simple to make your own gift pack, too.

"Food or fiber gifts that are produced in your part of the state are especially appropriate."

Cock Birds Get Craftier, Shots Per Pheasant Go Up After Opening Day

EDITOR'S NOTE -- Portions of the information used in compiling the following story were taken from "A Quiz For Ringneck Hunters," an article by Robert Elman which appeared in the September, 1975 issue of Sports Afield magazine.

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Outdoors Writer

Pheasant hunting is big business in the Magic Triangle area of Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties and area motels and restaurants will be filled with sportsmen on the opening weekend of the season

Saturday and Sunday (Dec. 11 and 12).

AREA HUNTERS join others from throughout the nation in pumping $216 million each year into the nation's economy through expenditures on pheasant hunting alone, as they harvest some 12 million birds nationwide.

Before shouts of "overkill" are heard, it should be pointed out that about 70-75 per cent of the ringnecks taken each season are birds of the year.

That's because by the time the season rolls around, many of the older birds have succumbed to predation, starvation, disease or other natural causes.

HUNTERS HARVEST only the surplus, and studies have shown that even when there is no hunting, natural losses will remove about 70 per cent of the yearly pheasant population.

A pheasant cock's life expectancy is only 10 months, while a hen's is twice that long, because she is more resistant to inclement weather and starvation.

A hunter intent on taking his two rooster limit out of that surplus population might not have a great deal of difficulty in doing so on the opening morning of the season.

DRIVES THROUGH corn and sorghum stubble fields by large groups of hunters put up ample numbers of birds and there is a constant din of gunfire on the first day. Ringnecks hold tight and flush better early in the season as thick cover seems to make them feel safe until danger is close at hand.

But wily pheasant smarten up fast and become a great deal harder to come by as the season progresses, moving into tougher cover and altering their habits.

Those cocks that do come up may flush wild, and many hunters may quickly discover just why there is an average of three shots fired for every pheasant dropped across the country.

COCK BIRDS are notorious for running ahead of the hunter or his dog and refusing to flush. A healthy rooster may run as far as a full mile, even though he is fully capable of taking flight.

In grain fields, pheasant are path followers, walking along furrows rather than crossing them. They will often run ahead of a hunter, then cut back to the left or right and allow him to go past, refusing to be pushed into the air.

Gunners walking stalk fields should move slowly and zigzag to discourage the birds from cutting back. A rooster can often be unnerved when he is holding tightly, simply by standing still for a moment.

AS THE season progresses, pheasant may begin feeding at midmorning, rather than the first couple of hours after sunup. At the same time, hunters working the fields at midmorning late in the season may find more birds after they put one up. Hens and cocks will often group into flocks late in the year.

Perhaps the most spine-tingling instant of a pheasant hunting excursion is when a cock bird bursts from cover and goes cackling into the air.

At that moment, a hunter must get on target quickly in order to put the bird in his game bag, and in the excitement, there is a good possibility of a missed shot.

MOST MISSES in gunning for ringnecks result from insufficient lead, while shooting too low is second.

Flashing a gaudy array of colors, a cock pheasant with stubby wings, blocky body and long, trailing tail feathers looks larger and slower than it really is. The pheasant may appear a lumbering target, but he can quickly cut in the afterburners and move away at speeds up to 40 miles per hour.

The gunner will do well to concentrate on the head or forward third of the cock's body so that he is leading a solid target.

THE IDEAL moment to get off a shot at a flushed ringneck is at the instant the bird levels off before moving straight away, but a gunner must react quickly or the pheasant will be well beyond the 20-35 yard range at which most shots are fired.

If you do miss, don't give up prematurely. Records indicate that a pheasant's normal flight after being flushed from cover is 200 to 300 yards, although flights are occasionally longer. Most missed birds are definitely worth following.

Hunters should not hesitate to utilize a load heavy enough to get the job done on pheasant.

12 and 20 gauge shotguns are recommended.

AND HAVE that follow-up shot ready. A wounded bird can come down running, and a quick second shot can spell the difference between a bird in the bag and a lost cripple.

DUCK HUNTER'S POINT CHECK

100 points--Canvasbacks
70 points--Mallard hens, hooded mergansers, redheads, wood ducks.

10 points--Pintails, gadwalls, scaup, shovelers, blue winged, green winged and cinnamon teal.

Leisurely Feeder

This ringneck pheasant can take his time about filling up on Panhandle corn this weekend, but it will be a different story Saturday [Dec. 11] as the 1976 pheasant season gets underway 30 minutes prior to sunrise and continues through Sunday,

Dec. 26. After the first few shots are fired, the crafty birds will take to the tall cover and it may be hard for some hunters to come by their two cock limit. [Photo By Texas Parks & Wildlife Department].

Telemetry Aids Study Of Gulf Coast Pheasants

SILSBEE— That beeping sound coming from fallow rice fields in Liberty County should not be cause for concern. It's only a solar transmitter equipped pheasant.

Wildlife Projects Indexed

AUSTIN— An index of all wildlife studies conducted by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has been completed.

Although the index and related reports are not available on a check-out basis, researchers, other governmental agencies, universities, private industry and the general public will have access to them at P&WD's headquarters building library, 4200 Smith School Road.

P&WD studies covering everything from alligators to woodpeckers have been indexed and cross-referenced by geographic regions and species, according to Bob Bradley, P&WD administrative division director.

The index covers wildlife studies undertaken by the department with federal aid funds beginning in 1938 and includes studies concluded in 1976. As project completion reports are prepared, copies will be added to the file and the index updated so as to remain current.

P&WD personnel have already undertaken a similar index system for fisheries studies conducted with federal funds. That reference index, along with a copy of all finished reports should be available for use by late 1977.

and Wildlife Department aimed at monitoring the movements of wild-trapped pheasants in their Gulf Coast Prairie environment.

Six pheasant hens, trapped in the wild in Liberty County, are being used in the study. The solar-powered transmitters, which give off a high-frequency beep that is picked up by a receiver, will be used to track down the pheasants' exact position. This survey technique is called telemetry.

Twice a week for two years, biologists will pinpoint the birds' location within a given area. Also, once a month, biologists will follow the birds for a full 24-hour period.

"We want to find what type of habitat these birds prefer, as well as an idea of their daily and yearly home range," said David Mabie, P&WD wildlife biologist.

"The result will be a life history of the bird containing such data as what type of habitat the birds prefer, where and when they roost and where they nest, as well as how many young are hatched successfully every year," Mabie said.

discovered the pheasant home range is extremely small, on the average less than one-quarter mile.

An important facet of the study will deal with pheasant mortality in the Gulf Coast Prairie area of Texas.

"The Gulf Coast Prairie was not known as pheasant country because there is little in common with the midwestern habitat where pheasants are found," Mabie said.

Despite the abundance of traditional pheasant predators such as hawks, owls, foxes and coyotes in the coastal prairie, pheasants not only are holding their own, but are reproducing and spreading.

During the past 10 years, some 15,000 birds have been stocked by P&WD and released in various Texas counties, with the goal of having the bird population build up to huntable levels.

As a result of these stocking efforts, hunters in portions of Liberty and Matagorda Counties will have the opportunity to hunt pheasants for the first time in January 1977.

With completion of the telemetry study in 1978, biologists will have compiled data that will assist them in determining the best possible sites for future stocking efforts.

Boat Ramp Building Is Approved

AUSTIN -- Construction of two boat ramps at opposite ends of the state have been approved by Texas Parks and Wildlife Commissioners.

Meeting in Austin, the commission approved a staff recommendation to construct one new ramp in Galveston County to replace a ramp in Kemah at Clear Lake that has subsided.

P&WD engineering estimates noted $35,000 would be needed for fill material to repair the existing facility. Estimated cost of the new facility, six miles south on State Highway 146 at Dickinson Bayou, was $20,000.

The commission also approved an $18,000 allocation to add a boat ramp at a high elevation in Crosby county. That ramp, at White River Lake, is under water about half of the year because the spillway level was raised. Also approved was a $25,000 budget transfer to cover additional costs of refuse collection and grass control through fiscal year 1977 for the 255 boat ramps around the state administered by the P&WD.

Due to reduced revenue available this year, new ramp construction would be curtailed to provide maintenance and rehabilitation for existing ramps, said Clayton Rutter, P&WD engineering division director. Between 15 and 20 boat ramps per year have been constructed by the P&WD since 1969.

TEXAS PARKS AND WILDLIFE DEPT.

STATE PARKS OPEN DURING WINTER

LUBBOCK— State parks in South Texas are full during the winter as Texans and out-of-state visitors head for the warm weather, but the parks in north Texas experience a decline in the number of visitors during the fall and winter.

If you like quiet places of natural beauty, plenty of camping space, and adequate facilities for hookups including electrical, water and sewage, northwest Texas has it all.

"Fall is an ideal time to view the foliage, wildlife, and nature in the open," said Elon Baker, Palo Duro State Park Superintendent.

"Camping areas are not crowded during the week, but weekends will find many day visitors and even camping clubs in the park," Baker continued.

Copper Breaks and Palo Duro State parks both offer the full service desired by many campers including hookups and showers. Palo Duro State park located east of Canyon recorded 49,334 overnight visitors and 1,080,745 day visitors from Sept. 1, 1975 through Aug. 31, 1976. Copper Breaks State park near Quanah recorded 4,968 overnight visitors and 54,763 day visitors during the same period. The popularity of these two parks is growing.

Caprock Canyons State park near Silverton is one of the newest parks in northwest Texas and only day-use facilities are available and no entrance fee is charged. Over 32,130 visitors came through the gates last winter and summer to fish or just picnic along the lake.

Most of the parks including Palo Duro and Copper Breaks require an entrance fee of $1 per vehicle. This daily permit will allow use of the park for 24 hours. If you plan to travel through several Texas parks, the annual permit of $12 would be the best buy allowing entrance to all Texas parks charging an entrance fee regardless of the number of visits per vehicle per year.

Park rangers keep track of their campers and even if it snows or an ice storm moves through the area, daily visits by the park officials will assure plenty of food and help if it is needed.

Winter camping is fun and there are no traffic jams to slow your travel. Winter weather forecasts for local areas should be checked and a call to the park you plan to visit will insure against a surprise snow storm upon arrival.

A complete list of state parks including facilities is included in the parks sheet available at all P&WD offices or park entrance gates. More information is available by calling Palo Duro State Park 806/488-3622; Copper Breaks State park 817/839-4331; or Caprock Canyons State park 806/455-1492.

Buying A Breakfast Ticket

Bill Albright of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce purchases a ticket to the annual Pheasant Hunter's Breakfast from Mrs. Jay Spain of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary. Auxiliary members will be serving up breakfast to hungry hunters before they open the 1976 pheasant season Saturday from 4:30 to 7:30 a.m. at the Hereford High School cafeteria. Price for the meal of scrambled eggs, ham, biscuits, gravy and coffee is $2.50 per plate, and proceeds will benefit the Hereford Fire Department. Hunters will enjoy the benefit of a "rib sticking" breakfast to help them through the long morning of walking the fields for the Panhandle's No. 1 gamebird.

Habitat Purchase For Whitewings Is Approved

PHARR— A 45-acre tract of land supporting some of the most dense white-winged dove nesting habitat in the Rio Grande Valley has been approved for purchase by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The pristine brush acreage is in Hidalgo County, eight miles south of Pharr. Portions of the area contain dense brasil, Texas ebony, anaqua, huisache, granjeno, coma, mesquite, guayacan, hackberry and some retama brush habitat. P&WD officials said the tract is considered extremely good whitewing nesting habitat and is a remnant of the type habitat that existed in the Rio Grande Valley at the turn of the century.

Purchase price of $45,849 was formally approved by Texas Parks and Wildlife Commissioners at their Nov. 23 meeting. Funds for the purchase will come from sale of white-winged dove stamps.

Prior to 1923, the southern boundary of the property fronted the Rio Grande. However, as the river's course was altered, the river frontage area became disjunct.

"The entire 45.8 acres is native brush that has never been cleared for agriculture," said Jim Dunks, P&WD dove program leader.

The southern portion of the property supports some of the highest concentrations of nesting whitewings in the lower Valley area. According to 1974 surveys, an estimated 136 pair per acre nested on the southern portion of the tract. The northern portion supported a nesting population of approximately 20 pair per acre.

P&WD plans call for the area to remain a whitewing nesting sanctuary. It will join the six existing units of P&WD's Las Palomas Wildlife Management Area scattered throughout the Valley.

There are limited areas in the Valley containing native brush whitewing nesting habitat, and the P&WD is considering possible future acquisition of some of these high-density nesting sites.

Quail Season Open

Quail season in the Texas Panhandle will continue through Feb. 13, 1977. With the long-running season, upland hunters should have ample opportunity to get in some good gunning after Bobwhite and blue quail.

A liberal daily bag limit of 12 birds is in effect, and the possession limit is 36 birds.

Shooting hours for all upland game birds and game animals are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset.

Birds bagged must be kept in an edible condition and hunters are advised that they must make a reasonable effort to retrieve all wounded birds.

AUSTIN— A new informational aid now is available for all who are interested in endangered wildlife species and in keeping up with developments regarding them.

Today In History

Today is Sunday, Dec. 5, the 340th day of 1976. There are 26 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1933, prohibition ended in the United States as Utah became the 36th state to ratify the 21st Amendment, which repealed the 18th.

On this date: In 1492, Columbus discovered the West Indian island of Santo Domingo.

In 1782, the eighth American president, Martin Van Buren, was born in Kinderhook, N.Y.

In 1848, President James Polk announced that gold had been discovered in California. The gold rush of '49 followed.

In 1918, in World War I, German naval forces blocked the Baltic Sea.

In 1934, 66 people were executed in Russia after purge trials.

In 1962, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to cooperate in peaceful uses of outer space.

Ten years ago: It was announced that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, then 76, would undergo surgery for the removal of his gall bladder.

Five years ago: In Northern Ireland, in the worst single act of violence in two years, a pub was bombed, killing at least 16 people.

One year ago: The United States told the United Nations Security Council it would not condone Israeli air attacks inside Lebanon but sought a resolution to denounce all acts of violence in the Mideast.

Today's birthdays: Republican Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina is 74. Former Army Secretary Stanley Resor is 59.

Thought for today: Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm. - Ralph Waldo Emerson, American writer, 1803-1882.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, General George Washington reported to the Continental Congress that he was continuing to move supplies across the Delaware River from New Jersey to Pennsylvania in his retreat from New York. And he pleaded for a standing army instead of militia.

Prevention Fights Cancer Best; Information Line Open To Public

A new "weapon" against cancer is now available in Deaf Smith County to provide the public with current, factual information on cancer its prevention and early detection.

Called the Cancer Information Service, the new program utilizes a toll-free phone line (1-800-392-2040) to answer public inquiries on cancer. The service will be extended to all residents of Texas by late this year.

The CIS is part of a public educational effort sponsored by The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute with assistance from the American Red Cross, American Cancer Society and many other health agencies in Texas which provide services to cancer patients and their families.

Funded by the National Cancer Institute, the CIS functions as part of a nation-wide network.

Open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, the phone lines are operated by trained American Red Cross volunteers. All background material used to answer questions is reviewed by physicians to insure accuracy.

The program is designed to help create a positive sense of awareness about cancer that will encourage the public to seek physician evaluation for early detection and prompt treatment of suspected cancers.

"Important diagnostic, treatment, rehabilitation and research developments are occurring for frequently now. If people could overcome their fear of cancer many more people would seek medical help at an earlier state-- when the rate of successful treatment is much greater," said Dr. R. Lee Clark, president of M.D. Anderson.

In addition to answering questions on the telephone, the CIS staff mails many pamphlets published by health organization, professional societies and government agencies involved in health education.

Information not readily available from existing files can be obtained by the staff from an advisory panel of over 75 clinicians and other qualified sources outside Houston.

"Because the CIS is based at M.D. Anderson and is part of a national communications network, we have easy access to information on important work being done at many other cancer centers," explained Dr. Clark.

Similar programs are in operation at the other 18 Comprehensive Cancer Centers which were designated by Congress for outstanding work in cancer treatment and research.

The new program enjoys the support of the Texas Cancer Coordinating Commission and the Texas Medical Association, having been endorsed as a "worthwhile education program" by TMA's committee on cancer.

Other public services of the program include a monthly news column "Cancer Answerline." Jointly sponsored with the American Cancer Society, the column is run in many Texas newspapers to provide readers with current information on cancer.

On Wall Street

By BOB HILL

Two years ago American businessmen were excited about prospects for selling American goods and services to the Soviet Union. Representatives of the larger U.S. companies and even some of the smaller specialty companies have been steady visitors to the Soviet Union and some have even taken up semi-permanent residence in Moscow. Now, after several years of frustration and international politics, those American businessmen are looking to Jimmy Carter as a means getting trade started once again.

The law that inhibits trade with the Russians is the Jackson-Vanik amendment to the 1974 trade act. This amendment cut off the Russians from the U.S. Export-Import Bank financing of their purchases and denied them most favored nation status (favorable tariffs) until Russia made immigration of Russian Jews easier.

Prominent Jews and Rep. Vanik now admitted that the amendment has backfired. Instead of forcing the Russians to allow more Russian Jews to leave for Israel, the Russians sharply reduced the number of Jews allowed to leave. They also cancelled $1 billion or more in contracts with American companies and handed them over to foreign competitors.

At first glance, trade with the Russians doesn't look so bad. But the bulk of our shipments to Russia have been grain and other agricultural products because the Russians have had two disastrous crop failures in five years. Total sales to the Soviet Union in 1971 were $172 million. American exports to the Soviet Union in 1976 will top $2.5 billion. But trade in the high technology goods and services is almost non-existent.

There are 18 U.S. companies maintaining offices in Moscow at a cost of from $100,000 to $500,000 and it takes anywhere from $250,000 to several million dollars a year just to staff and support those offices. Even bidding on a Russian project is at least 25 per cent higher in cost than in this country because of having to supply all the details that the Russians demand.

The Arabs tried a little economic blackmail with the oil embargo. We should have learned our lesson from their mistakes.

Sergei Rachmannoff made his debut in the United States with a piano recital at Smith College in Northampton, Mass., on Nov. 4, 1909.

Chemical Spray Removes Decay

BOSTON (AP)- For people who fear going to the dentist, there's good news for the future: a chemical spray that removes decay from teeth with little drilling and almost no pain.

Researchers at Tufts University who developed the chemical, called GK-101, say they have tested it successfully on human patients.

Although the method is years away from being available to dentists, it appears to be the closest thing yet to painless dentistry.

The new method requires no anesthesia even for large cavities, the doctors say, and virtually eliminates the grinding pain of traditional dental work.

The technique was developed and tested by Melvin Goldman and Joseph H. Kronman, both professors at Tufts Dental School. A report on their findings was published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Dental Association.

The doctors used a needle to squirt the chemical onto the cavity. Within minutes, they say, the decayed material breaks up and flakes away.

They say that sometimes they need to drill to expose the cavity enough for the chemical to work. After they clean out the decay with the GK-101, they drill a little more to give the hole its proper shape. Then they fill it just as they would a cavity cleaned with a drill.

The method has several advantages over current dental practices, the doctors say.

"The heat and pressure that a drill produces would be minimized," Kronman said in an interview. "It also removes only the decay. Since a drill removes everything it touches, this is a more conservative approach."

Before the chemical can be used commercially, it will require more testing and approval by the Food and Drug Administration.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Many early American anthems were new world adaptations of English melodies. "The Liberty Tree," regarded as the first American national anthem, was sung to the British martial tune "Hearts of Oak." Written by John Dickinson and first published in 1768 in the Boston Gazette, the words included the phrase, "by uniting we stand, by dividing we fall." The World Almanac recalls.

Ford Asks Congress To Outlaw Sex Discrimination In Funded Programs

WASHINGTON (AP)—As one of his last official acts, President Ford may ask Congress to outlaw sex discrimination in the multitude of federally funded programs reaching almost every American community.

White House and Justice Department officials said Wednesday they are drafting legislation that would prohibit anyone receiving federal funds from discriminating against women in their employment practices and in any other aspect of their operations.

This would give women the legal protection that Congress gave blacks and other racial minorities in the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

It would mean thousands of state and local governments and private groups receiving federal funds for public projects would risk losing the money if they failed to treat women the same as men.

Jeanne Holm, the President's special assistant for women's affairs, said her staff has been working on the proposal for several months and she expects to submit a final draft to Ford soon.

In an interview, she said she hopes Ford will offer the legislation in his final State of the Union message before leaving office Jan. 20. She indicated many White House staff members favor such a step.

She said the legislation would "prohibit discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status" in any federal program of financial assistance.

Assistant Atty. Gen. J.

Stanley Pottinger, head of the department's civil rights division, told a news conference such legislation is a vital tool to protect the rights of women in some 400 federal programs spending about $50 billion a year.

Under present law, sex discrimination is banned in only 17 federal programs, including revenue sharing, highway construction and crime control.

The hundreds of other programs offering federal money for schools and sewers, hospitals and drug treatment and all sorts of social projects contain no requirement that women be treated equally, partly because they were enacted before women's rights became a national issue.

Pottinger called the news conference to announce new regulations to tighten enforcement of the ban on racial discrimination.

"We hope the effect will be to make it clear to every recipient of federal funds that they have no obligation not to discriminate," she asserted. "I hope those who are discriminating will not get money."

The regulation requires the 38 government agencies that give out money to ensure that applicants comply with the law before approving grants.

Television has spawned entire

Paul Harvey News Food Stamps and Football

Today's adults remember when one sport made headlines once a year at Series time.

When extracurricular basketball was confined to the local "Y."

When the highest paid hockey player made less money than the high school principal.

When professional golfers had to change clothes in the caddy shack, were not even allowed in the clubhouse.

And when the biggest football stadium consisted of bleachers on both sides of a patch of pasture grass.

Coincident with the evolution of television is the heretofore avocation, "sports," became our nation's highest paid vocation.

The networks brought home 1,200 hours of sports event and sports programs last year; half again more than just five years before.

Historians cannot escape the compulsion to compare today's "food stamps and football" with the "bread and circuses" which kept the ancient Romans preoccupied—while their empire died.

Television has spawned entire new leagues of professional athletes: The American Football League, World Team Tennis.

Additionally, TV has fed the public hunger for distraction with weekly hours of action—golf, motorcycle stunting, wrist-wrestling, auto demolition derbies and jumping barrels on ice skates.

Basketball and hockey seasons have been stretched into June.

Play is suspended in all sports to allow for periodic TV commercials.

The income of athletes has been catapulted from Babe Ruth's once "scandalous" $80,000 to where today most any professional basketball player expects to earn more than the President of the United States.

And exposure to more sports promotes participation.

After television made a star of gymnast Olga Korbut at the 1972 Olympics, the number of American gymnasts increased within months from 100,000 to 250,000.

The current tennis craze dates directly to the 1973 match between Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King. Today there are 9 million more tennis players than then.

Television's "instant replay" technique has so enlivened each sport from a spectator standpoint that some stadiums have installed giant TV screens so that persons in attendance can have it both ways.

ABC-TV has moved a weak third to No. 1 in the ratings largely because of its sports emphasis. That network's coverage of the 1976 Olympics swamped the competition.

The undisputed contemporary artist—the impressionist—who has best captured "right now" on canvas—is LeRoy Nieman with his action graphics of athletes and sporting events.

And while some sociologists and historians suspect that we are all being distracted by bread and circuses—from more worthy preoccupations, it can also be argued that there are lots worse things we could be watching than contests which reward and inspire physical excellence.

Congress Studies Info For Balanced Budget

WASHINGTON (AP)— Economic projects that could raise President-elect Jimmy Carter's hopes of balancing the federal budget during his term are being considered by a congressional panel.

Congressional Budget Director Alice M. Rivlin was scheduled to testify on the economic projects today before the Senate-House Joint Economic Committee.

The Congressional Budget Office, in a report issued Wednesday, said this year's estimated $50.6 billion deficit could turn into a surplus of as much as $78 billion by the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1980.

That would fulfill a major Carter campaign promise to balance the federal budget by the time his four-year term ends in 1980.

But the budget office report carefully stressed that its projections should not be considered predictions.

Mrs. Rivlin said the projections "are not to be construed as inevitable or a forecast of what will occur." The figures are tied to a number of assumptions about what may happen to the economy in the next five years.

Moreover, the projections assume continuation of funding of government programs at current levels. They do not allow for further tax cuts, new big spending programs, changes in the international situation that could send defense spending up or down, or funding of some controversial military projects.

Carter met in Plains, Ga., on Wednesday with 16 economic experts, some of whom may become top financial advisers in the new Democratic administration. A spokesman for the President-elect said there was no agreement among the conferees on what the economy will need in the way of stimulation next year.

Carter has said he could recommend a tax cut or some other form of economic stimulation early next year if the economy fails to recover from its slump, but a spokesman for the President-elect said there was no agreement at the conference on the tax cut concept.

The Budget Office presented its projects as a base line against which Congress might judge the effect of its actions.

Saying "considerable uncertainty exists," the report said it was assumed for purposes of calculation that the economy, as measured by the Gross National Product, will rise at a rate starting at 5.5 per cent a year and tapering to 4.5 per cent in 1982. The projection said that under current conditions the unemployment percentage should decline over the same period from 7.8 per cent to 4.1 per cent.

Shorts

Thinking Smaller
More and more people are moving away from the country's largest cities. The Conference Board finds. But few are heading back to small towns. Most of the shift is from the largest cities (those over two million) to areas with populations of between 500,000 and two million.

Mexican Brings On Cautious Optimism

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)— Rio Grande Valley businessmen are expressing cautious optimism toward Mexico's new president, Jose Lopez Portillo.

Bankers and merchants in this border area say they are still suffering from Mexico's devaluation of its peso but Portillo's inauguration speech did offer some hope.

"The situation along the border has to get better, it can't get much worse," said one chamber of commerce official.

Louis Echeverria, who ended his six-year presidential reign Wednesday in Mexico City when he relinquished power to Portillo, devalued the peso on Sept. 1. The peso dropped from its 22-year-old value of 12.5 pesos to the dollar to today's rate of 22 pesos per dollar.

"Obviously, the economic goals the new president espoused in his inaugural speech are certainly long-term goals, but the fact that those are the goals should go a long way in establishing confidence in the administration," says Otis Parchman, president of the First National Bank of Brownsville.

"Portillo is talking about maintaining a free convertibility of the peso with other currencies of the world, and this is a positive statement," continues Parchman. "This implies Mexico will take whatever steps are necessary to insure free conversion."

"They key is the new administration's attempts to control inflation. The need for the peso devaluation was caused, largely, by the difference between the inflation rates in the United States and Mexico."

"I think his remarks places us all in a better position," says Russell Willis, the executive vice president of the Rio Grande Valley Chamber of Commerce. "I think we will see some stabilization of the peso which is what we need more than anything else."

The area's merchants, says Willis, rely on buyers from south of the border for about 40 per cent of their business, and since the peso devaluations, that business has been off about 60 per cent.

"If the rates of inflation are controlled, then the purchasing power of the peso can remain steady with the dollar and other currencies and there would be no need for further devaluations," adds Parchman. "But, that's a big if."

Papua-New Guinea's population includes at least 700 different tribes, with as many languages and dialects, according to National Geographic.

The United States will supply 50 per cent of the wheat and about 70 per cent of the soybeans moving in world trade in 1976.

HOW TO BUY A CHRISTMAS TREE

The tradition of a decorated Christmas tree in the United States may date back to the Revolutionary War, when homesick Hessians tropps cut and decorated fir trees as was their German custom.

Since then, the Christmas tree—with its forest fragrance and freshness—has come to represent the Yule season. It is the mainstay of both indoor and outdoor holiday decorations.

Today, selecting the perfect Christmas tree is one of the highlights of many families' preholiday preparation. Choosing a tree that is "just right" for you will be easier if you know what species you are looking for, the different features that indicate a good tree, and how to select and maintain freshness.

SPECIES

Practically all species of evergreens are used for Christmas trees, although some are more popular and are in greater supply than others. No one species can be considered the best all-around Christmas tree, for each has its own individual characteristics. Although people in some areas of the country have a preference for a certain species, there are five that are most widely grown and sold. Each one is not available to consumers in every part of the country. These include: Balsam Fir, Douglas Fir, Eastern Red Cedar, Scotch Pine and White Pines.

U.S. GRADES

Over a decade ago, the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture established voluntary standards of quality for Christmas trees.

In selecting just the right tree for decorating, most people look for a tree that is healthy, free from damage, and well-trimmed. They generally want a tree that tapers gently from a full bottom and has an ample number of branches for hanging ornaments.

Trees meeting a U.S. grade will have these characteristics, since the grade standards require that the trees be:

Fresh—with pliable needles that are firmly attached to the branches.

Healthy—fresh, natural appearance for particular species.

Well-trimmed—free of all barren branches below the first whorl and smoothly cut at the butt.

In addition, the specific requirements of each grade are:

U.S. No. 1 or U.S. Choice: not less than medium density, normal taper, and three damage-free faces.

U.S. No. 2 or U.S. Standard: light or better density; candlestick, normal, or flaring taper; and at least two adjacent damage-free faces.

Although these voluntary standards are used mainly by the wholesale trade, they can be used with good results by anyone to determine the quality of a tree. Premium or U.S. No. 1 grades mean high quality. Even a U.S. No. 2 tree, placed in a corner with its "good" faces toward the room, may be very attractive.

SELECTING A TREE

A few simple procedures can make the selection of a "perfect" Christmas tree easier.

Determine where in your home you will display your tree. With this in mind, you will be able to tell what height you will need and whether all four sides must be suitable for display.

You should select a tree that is the right height for the space you have chosen for it. Cutting large portions off either end will alter the natural taper of the tree.

Freshness is an important key when selecting your tree. The needles should be resilient, but not brittle. Run your finger down a branch—the needles should adhere to each twig.

Shake or bounce the tree on the ground lightly to see that the needles are firmly attached. If only a few drop off, the tree is fresh and with proper care should retain its freshness indoors throughout the holiday season.

The limbs should be strong enough to hold ornaments and strings of electric lights and the tree should have a strong fragrance and good green color for the species.

Check the tree for freshness, cleanness, health, and trimming and be sure it displays the best qualities for the particular species.

Following these steps should insure a healthy, attractive tree, but the care of your tree does not stop here.

CHRISTMAS TREE CARE

If you buy your tree several days before it will be set up and decorated, store it outside. Cut the but of the tree at a diagonal about one inch above the original cut—this opens the pores and aids in the absorption of water. Place the but end in the container of water.

When you bring it into the house, saw the but again, squaring off the diagonal. This facilitates placing the tree in a stand as well as aiding absorption.

Keep the but end of the tree in a container of water the entire time it is in the house. Refill the container daily as the tree requires a lot of water. Sprinkling water on the branches and needles before you decorate the tree will help retain freshness.

Be sure that the base of the tree is well-supported and the tree is placed away from fireplaces, radiators, electric heaters, televisions or any other source of heat.

Open flames, such as lighted candles, should never be used on or near the tree. In addition, never leave your home with the Christmas tree lights still on.

The longer the tree is indoors, the more combustible it will become. Check electric light cords for fraying and worn spots that could easily lead to fires. Also do not overload the electric circuits and avoid placing electric toys directly under the tree. Be sure to avoid the use of combustible decorations.

Following these care and precaution measures should insure an attractive tree that stays fresh indoors for more than a week and a holiday season free from Christmas tree mishaps.

Sometimes a person can demonstrate normal blood pressure by simply relaxing in the examining room for awhile and letting the nurse take the pressure at intervals until you have settled down.

The insurance companies and employment examinations are another problem. The best you can do is present them with your other medical records or a statement from your doctor documenting your normal pressures and normal test results.

If this fails I would suggest asking your doctor to refer you to a well known medical center to see a specialist in cardiology who has a well known name. A consultation with such an individual and a record of his findings will be hard for a person of lesser professional stature to dispute. Most insurance companies and potential employers would accept such a record—particularly if documenting records are offered if needed—such as test results, electrocardiograms and X rays.

Be sure and stop drinking caffeine-containing drinks such as coffee and tea before any examination. To give you more information on blood pressure I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8. Dr. Lamb Exams may cause tension

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am one of those people who becomes very anxious during visits to the doctor's office, and my blood pressure goes way up.

I have been trained to take my own blood pressure, and consistently get normal readings. Also, over the past several years I have been examined by four different doctors who tell me that I am in excellent health and not to worry about this reaction. However, I have been refused employment for a job that I wanted because the doctor who gave me the pre-employment physical would not accept the statement of my previous doctor. He stated that I had "essential hypertension."

I am due for a complete checkup, but do not have a physician in the community where I now reside. How do I convince a new (to me) doctor, or a doctor who gives me an employment or insurance physical of the true nature of this condition without seeming to be uncooperative? I cannot afford to take the hospitalization tests again and again which I have already taken several times before. Your advice on this matter would be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER—You do have a problem. Your condition is properly called "vascular hyper reactor" not essential hypertension. The difference is as you have described your case, high readings under stress and normal readings under normal circumstances. There is no good evidence that individuals who are vascular hyper reactors have a significantly increased rate of persistent high blood pressure later in life.

Open flames, such as lighted candles, should never be used on or near the tree. In addition, never leave your home with the Christmas tree lights still on.

"We do more for you than we have to"

By ANDY LANG
AP Newfeatures

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT—A urethane foam that can be oozed out of a can.

Manufacturer's claim—That this foam will stick to almost anything and expand to two to three times its original volume... that, as it sets to a flexible or semi-rigid form, it can be trimmed and finished... that it can be used to fill and seal gaps in homes, cars, trucks, trailers and mobile homes... that no mixing or blending is necessary... that it adheres to most surfaces without any pretreatment... and that it will adhere to wet surfaces.

THE PRODUCT—An instant adhesive that takes the place of pins.

Manufacturer's claim—That this adhesive replaces pins when basting hems, placing trims, holding zippers in place for sewing and for various other purposes, such as working with materials like felt, ultrasuede, vinyl, burlap and velour... that it can also be used for pasting photos in an album that it is fast drying, non-flammable, non-toxic and odorless... and that it is easy to carry because it comes in stick form.

THE PRODUCT—Two new panel saws that do more than just saw.

Manufacturer's claim—That these saws have built-in 90-degree square and 45-degree mitre features... that the 26-inch, 8-point and 20-point blades have cross-tipped teeth for faster and more accurate cuts... that the 26-inch saw is for rough lumber on sheathing, the 20-inch for finish work around the house... that the handles of polypropylene have contoured, textured finger grips for comfort and firm control... and that the saws are encased in sleeves with how-to pictures and instructions for utilizing the square and mitre features.

What's In A Word?

AMERICAN TALK, Where Our Words Came From. By J.L. Dillard. Random House. 179 Pages. $7.95.

Although it provides a few snippets of generally interesting information, this is not a book for the layman, nor one which falls into the category of "fun reading."

The author — a professor at Louisiana's Northwestern State University — states the obvious and then proceeds to back it up with academic thoroughness.

The stated obvious is that since the United States has been settled by a mixed bag of Englishmen, Spaniards, Frenchmen, Dutchmen and blacks — among others — each group has left its mark on the American idiom. Other chapters are devoted to the linguistic legacy of the gamblers, cowboys, trappers and prospectors who helped develop America and left their own mark on the language.

Copiously footnoted and carefully documented, J.L. Dillard's slim volume is at its best when it sheds light on expressions which are so common today that the user is unaware of their original usage or meaning.

For instance, Dillard points out that to drag one's feet was originally associated with failure to do one's share on the two-man saw, and the term "boss" comes to us from the Dutch "baas."

The Bowery, now the site of Manhattan's skid row, was once a Dutch farm, or Bouwerie.

From black dialects came such terms as "jazz," meaning frenetic activity, as well as the music to which it is applied, and "to get busted," frequently used today by teenagers and drug addicts.

But to reach these nuggets one must pan — a prospector's contribution to the language — through page after page of dull background, calling for more of an effort than most laymen may be willing to devote to it.

'The Glory Boys' Characters Lack Necessary Depth

THE GLORY BOYS. By Gerald Seymour. Random House. 313 Pages. $7.95.

Gerald Seymour's European and African experience as a newsman gives him a view that many who would write novels on terrorism do not have. He also has, however, the talent to draw stories from his experiences and make the results very readable and sometimes believable.

In "The Glory Boys," he has produced a cousin for "Harry's Game," his first novel. The first was set in the ongoing conflict in Northern Ireland. His new book also has an Irish connection, but it is tied this time into a dangerous alliance with Arab terrorists.

In return for guns and ammunition, the IRA agrees to help the Palestinian types snuff out the life of an Israeli atomic expert who is journeying to England for a speech before scientific colleagues.

The plot, of course, involves the attempt to kill the scientist and an attempt to stop the attempt. Nothing unusual in that, but it provides the traditional 50-50 chance for the reader to guess which attempt will succeed.

"Glory Boys" falls short of providing the level of interest that was found in "Harry's Game." Why? Well, the first novel had extremely strong character development and the plot basically centered on two characters. They, thus, became very identifiable to the reader.

Shelly and Steve Lookingbill spent the weekend with their grandmother, Mrs. Eva Lookingbill. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lookingbill, parents of the two from Vega visited with Eva Sunday and picked the kids up and returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lance visited recently with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lane of Dimmitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kuper attended the Square Dance Club "Winter Fling" this weekend in the Espesol Convention Center in Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleatis Hayes, Dee and Devra visited in the home of Mrs. Gene Purcell

Purcell and Kenneth Loeman of Canadian Sunday. After leaving Canadian, they visited in the Durver Baker home of Perryton, where they took Dee. He had been visiting with the Hayes during the school holidays.

Miss Leslie Euler of Canyon visited in the home of her parents this weekend, helping her mother prepare for the coming Christmas Holidays.

The W.M.U. will have charge of the Sunday evening services at the Summerfield Baptist Church. The program will be on the Week of Prayer and on Foreign Missions, Bill McMinn is to present the program.

Visiting recently in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kuper was Marvin Kuper and family of Stratford, Texas.

Mrs. Don Walser, Mikel and Mrs. Nathrine Bradford and Stanton Ray all of Hereford visited in the home of Mrs. Glenda Robbs, new resident of our community to help her observe her birthday. Wednesday, Mrs. Robbs, is the sister of Mrs. Walser and Mrs. Bradford's daughter, who moved here recently from Colorado.

The Mon Amis Christmas Party is scheduled to be December 10th in the Eastern Lions Club building.

Mrs. Anna Katherine Huckert, Mrs. Pauline Henderson and Mrs. Joan Euler visited in the home of Mrs. Guy Walser Thursday.

the home of Mrs. Eulers' brother, Ralph Smith of Dimmitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Conley of Dallas and former Hereford residents were Friday guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kuper.

Our young girls basketball team (jr. high) will play their second game this Monday, Dec. 6, in the LaPlata Gym. Hope to see you parents out. Observing from the last game, I saw a few of the Summerfield parents there watching the first game of the girls, Mika Robinson, daughter of the Mike Robinsons, Devra Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleatis Hayes, play on the 7th grade team from La Plata. I hope you other parents will tell me if your girls are playing.

Mrs. Joan Euler and Mrs. Joe Kendall of Hereford have been in Amarillo several times this week on business.

Mrs. Anna Katherine Huckert, Mrs. Pauline Henderson and Mrs. Joan Euler visited in the home of Mrs. Guy Walser Thursday.

George Rogers Clark, commander of the Kentucky militia, conceived the daring plan of attacking British posts to win the Northwest Territory for Virginia and halt British-instigated Indian attacks. In July, 1778, Clark and a force of 150 men captured the outpost trading centers of Kaskaskia, Cahokia, and Vincennes in the Illinois country. When British Lt. Gov. Hamilton was sent from Detroit to retake Vincennes in December, 1778, Clark moved on the post, surprised the garrison and accepted Hamilton's surrender. The World Almanac reports on Feb. 25, 1779.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS
Sealed bids addressed to the City of Hereford, Texas, will be received at the City Hall until 2:00 P.M., December 20, 1976, for the furnishing of one submersible pump and motor complete with electrical cable, wiring and fittings.

Bids shall be submitted in sealed envelopes upon the blank form of the proposal attached hereto and marked in the upper left hand corner.

All proposals shall be accompanied by a cashier's check or certified check upon a national or state bank in the amount of five (5%) per cent of the total maximum bid price payable without recourse to the City or a bid bond in the same amount from a reliable surety company, as a guarantee that bidder will enter into a contract and execute performance bond within ten days after notice of award of contract to him. The bid security must be enclosed in the same envelope with the bid. Bids without check or bid bond will not be considered.

The successful bidder must furnish performance and payment bonds upon the forms which are attached hereto in the amount of 100% of the contract price from an approved surety company holding a permit from the State of Texas to act as surety or other surety or sureties acceptable to the Owner.

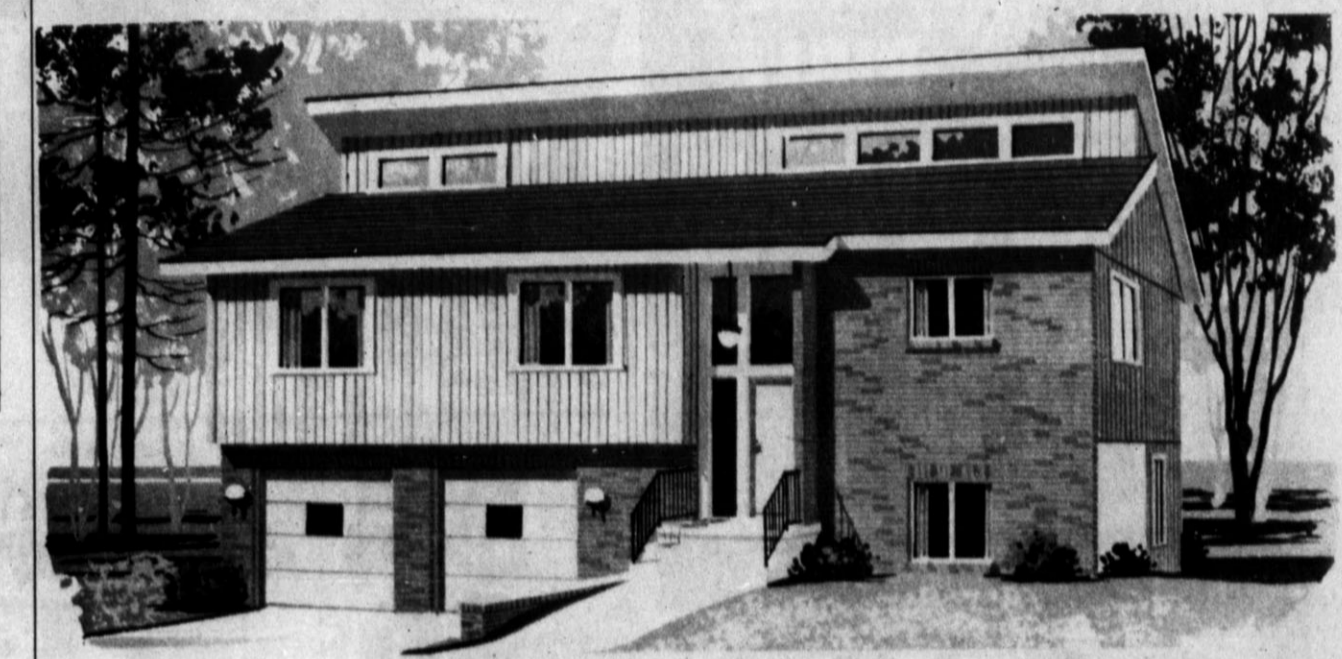

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids and to waive any informality in bids received. Plans, specifications and bidding documents may be secured from the office of the City Manager or at the office of Bill R. McMorries & Associates, Inc., 6300 Canyon Dr., Amarillo, Texas, 79109, on deposit of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per set which sum so deposited will be refunded, provided: (1) All documents are returned in good condition to Bill R. McMorries & Associates, Inc., not later than 48 hours prior to the time for receiving bids; or (2) The Contractor submits a bid and all documents are returned in good condition to Bill R. McMorries & Associates, Inc. not later than five days after the time that bids are received.

CONTEMPORARY TOUCH TO COMPACT SPLIT FOYER PLAN

FEATURE HOMES
© By W. D. Farmer

On entrance to this home, view is up to main house area and down to extra bedroom, play room and cost saving garage under. The stair is open rail.

The main house, up, includes popular "activity room" with slope ceiling, book cases and excess wall space for better furniture placement.

The country kitchen includes L-shape cabinet area and work surface in abundance and built-in appliances. Table area is located here and allows for expansion if needed.

There are three large bedrooms, the master with slope ceiling and walk-in closet, along with private tub bath. The central bath services remaining two bedrooms. Large closets and disappearing stair to attic storage (front "B") are indicated.

Double garage, full bath, laundry area, an extra bedroom and popular play room are shown on the lower level. Consider finishing these rooms in your leisure time.

Contemporary exterior is enhanced by single pane windows in bedroom and activity room ceiling slope area and front. Sidelite by door allows view to stoop and vertical siding completes the style.

The plan is Number 261 SF A. It includes 1,301 square feet on the main floor and 633 square feet finished on the lower level. For further information write: W. D. Farmer, P. O. Box 49463, Atlanta, Ga. 30329.

Prints For Little Princesses

SWEET DREAMS—Little girls play Little Women when they wear lace-trimmed nightgown, left, printed in 19th century cutout doll costumes. And to keep their scissor blades away from the soft, durable gown, the manufacturer packages it with a gift: an album of matching paper clothes and doll. At right, ruffled, lace-trimmed pajamas styled as mock jumper over ruffled pants. The circus print, depicting a lady lion tamer, riders and acrobats, combines with white sleeves and yoke, and the waist is sashed in satin. (Nightgown by Greensboro; pajamas by Isaacson and Carico. Both are of brushed Caprolan nylon.)
