

This house stood as a landmark in Hereford for at least eight decades, but it only took a matter of minutes this week as it was twisted until it was leveled to make room for a new structure. It stood at the corner of Park Ave. and Ave. A marking the way for people even before the town got started. The abstract states that the property first was contracted in 1887 and the house was possibly built shortly thereafter. One of its first owners was the first resident of Hereford, Troy Womble. It was recently bought by Bud Eades of Plains Insurance Agency from Dick Barrett and Family, who owned it for the past 30 years. Other owners included the Frank Bezner family and a Grimes family. The unique stones from which the house was built were salvaged before the structure was toppled.

Herd Offense Totals 611 Yards

Whitefaces Exorcise Demons, 52-12

BY BOB NIGH
Brand Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces did everything but turn the Dumas Demons loose Friday night as they rolled to 611-yard total offense showing to rout the Demons 52-12.

Hereford evened its record to 3-3 with the runaway win, and probably most important, gained some confidence as they head into district play next week against Plainview.

The Demons fell to 0-5-1 as a result of the defeat, and they too head into district action next week against Perryton.

"It was an overall team effort...it was one of those situations where we brought ourselves together, and this is what we needed heading into district play," Herd coach Fred Upshaw said Saturday morning.

"We did what we needed to do," he added. "We needed to play well and gain some momentum...it's a great start going into district play."

The Hereford running backs played their best game of the season against the Demons behind the blocking of a seemingly inspired front line.

"We worked hard on blocking and execution of technique last week," Upshaw said. "Our line fired off and did an outstanding job getting their hat on somebody," the coach added.

Offensively Carlee Graves led the way for the Faces with 226 yards on 10 carries enroute to one touchdown. Roy Martinez broke free for four touchdowns, all in the first period, as Hereford completely dominated the first half of play.

At intermission the Herd was ahead in total yards 413-37, with 308 markers coming on the ground. The first down margin read 18-2 in favor of the visiting Whitefaces.

Hereford scored the first five times they touched the ball in the contest. Martinez scored on four successive series, and quarterback Jim Lawson added the fifth score on a 19-yard option play.

Martinez crossed the goal on runs of 2, 6, 8, and 7 yards as Hereford roared to a 25-0 first-quarter lead. Lawson's TD came with just four seconds gone in the second period as the Faces kept the rout going.

Alfred High, who had yet to carry the ball in the Herd's five previous games, upped the score to 38-0 on a one-yard plunge with 3:14 left in the half.

That gave Hereford six touchdowns on eight possessions in the first half of the play. The other two Herd series' ended deep in Demon territory as a result of fumbles.

The Demons pounced on Whiteface miscues on the Dumas 17 and eight-yard-lines. The Demons finally began to slow down the Herd as the half was ending. Paul Bell's 48-yard punt return went for naught as the Herd fumbled the ball away on the eight.

Graves finally got his touchdown in the third period. The play went 39 yards and increased the lead to 45-0 as the Herd scored in two plays after the second-half kickoff.

Graves went the distance on the two plays from the Herd-38 after he returned the kickoff 14 yards. The first play actually went to the Demon 13, but a clipping penalty moved the ball back to the 39.

Russell Harkins scored the final Hereford touchdown after the Demons saved some face with two third-period scores. Harkins struggled for nine yards over left tackle for the final Whiteface touchdown with 7:59 left in the contest.

Dumas quarterback Ken Hazen and Demon fullback Scott Hutchison split the hosts' in the third period. Hazen capped a 66-yard drive with a three-yard TD run on the series following Graves' score.

Holder To Conduct First School Board Meeting

The first regular school board meeting in Hereford for newly appointed superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder is scheduled for 4 p.m. Tuesday at the school district central administration building.

He has been here since the middle of September after assuming duties from acting superintendent Larry Wartes.

The Hereford School Board of Trustees will review an agenda of rather routine items such as a general report on community education, enrollment figure, cafeteria business, transportation matters and a tax office update.

Holder will offer his first proposal on the process of accreditation concerning curriculum.

Jim McMorries, tax consultant, will discuss long range plans for appraising school district property. He will also visit with the county commissioners Monday on the same matter.

The agenda indicates that the property will be reappraised in quadrants, meaning that about one-fourth of the property will be valued each year since the state will require current values every four years.

Trustees will review a policy for identifying bilingual students, discuss a direct affiliate program of the National School Board Association, and consider a meeting on Nov. 3 by the Governor's Committee on Market values.

The school board will no doubt consider the trial recently held for the $400,000 civil suit filed against it by Wayne Woodward, who was not rehired as an English teacher at La Plata School.

Republicans Office To Open

The formal opening of the Deaf Smith County Republican headquarters for all party candidates will occur at 10 a.m. Monday at 1503 E. Park. No ceremonies are planned but volunteers will start manning it then.

In conjunction with the opening, Jim Reese, candidate for the 19th Congressional District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives, will be in Hereford Wednesday to meet with local citizens. He opposes incumbent Democrat George Mahon, who visited here last Thursday.

Reese will attend the Lions Club meeting at noon although no formal speeches are planned according to Wes Fisher, county Republican Party chairman and a Reese campaign worker. He will be at the headquarters from about

Absentee Voting For Presidential Election Commences Wednesday

The Nov. 2 general election is just around the corner, but enthusiasm just now seems to be building for it with the latest reports from the Deaf Smith County tax assessor-collector's office.

The last two days of voter registration at the end of last week saw 300 new voters signing up for their election privileges. This no doubt has been a result of the presidential campaign which has received more attention than usual with the presidential debate series between Republican Gerald Ford and Democrat Jimmy Carter.

The first chance citizens will be able to make their choices known will be during absentee voting from Wednesday, Oct. 13, to Friday, Oct. 29. The voting is held only in the county clerk's office on the second floor of the courthouse.

B.F. Cain, county clerk, said that voters should bring registration cards with them in order to vote. Ballots for the election will be received in his office by Monday. He had to send them back to Austin once so that Eugene McCarthy's name could be added to the list of presidential contenders.

Lester Maddox of Georgia lost his bid for the Texas ballot as a candidate of Independent Party.

The county tax assessor-collectors office reported Friday that a shortage of supplies resulted in slower voter registration processing. With the volume of last minute registrants, Deaf Smith joined Potter and Randall counties in having to wait for more registration cards to be typed in and sent out to voters.

A spokesman for the local office said that cards will be sent out before the election and that no one needs to worry about receiving their cards in time.

Since not all cards have been processed, a total registration figure was not available as of this weekend. The last count by the office revealed a total of about 7,600 qualified voters inside the county. The number for the general election could approach the 8,000 mark since more interest has been generated in the upcoming election.

Besides presidential candidates, Texas will be deciding between Lloyd Bentsen, Democratic incumbent, and Dallas republican Alan Steelman for U.S. Senator and several other statewide posts such as the Texas Railroad Commission. George Mahon, who visited here Thursday, is contested by Republican Jim Reese of Odessa for Mahon's 19th Congressional District seat.

Of course, several local office seekers will be listed on the ballot, but they are naturally uncontested by any Republican aspirants. These include Nell Miller for county tax assessor-collector, Travis McPherson for county sheriff, Alfred Smith for County commissioner of precinct one and Bruce Coleman for county commissioner of precinct three. Other local level party officials are listed.

Texas Handicapped Children's Early Childhood Program is the elaborate title of a federally-funded center, which is in its third year of helping handicapped preschoolers in this community.

"MANNED BY trained workers from Panhandle Educational Service Organization (PESO), the program is designed to reach handicapped youngsters at an early age, from birth to 4-years-old. The local criteria is established to accept children with handicaps, including emotional problems, physical disabilities, developmental lags, language and speech impairments and other detriments.

Headquarters for the PESO team, which comes from Amarillo, is a classroom at Shirley Elementary School. Each of the 14 preschoolers who is now participating in the program comes to the school three times each week and a PESO aide comes to the child's home once weekly.

NUMEROUS AND VARIED methods of training are utilized at the local center, depending on the individual child's handicap. The program strives to help a child circumvent the problem, compensate for a disability or correct an impairment, when possible.

Before being accepted by the THCECP, a child is screened through an interview with Susan Robbins, associate psychologist. Director of the PESO team here is Wendell Jones, who is aided by five co-workers.

Should a child not be eligible for the

Panama Speaks Last

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - An American delegate at the United Nations has struck back at Panamanian criticism of President Ford, Jimmy Carter and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. But Panama got the last word.

Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Edgardo Boyd referred in a speech Friday to the two presidential candidates' latest televised debate, accusing both of "vacillation and confusion" over the question of surrendering control of the Panama Canal.

Carter Hits Harder

CLEVELAND (AP) - Jimmy Carter is sharply escalating criticism aimed at pressuring President Ford into answering questions at a no-holds-barred "cross-examination"—style news conference.

"We are going to smoke him out," a top Carter aide said Friday of Ford. "There are stories and they have to be answered. We are going to escalate the pressure."

Carter has been at his most critical in recent days and is taking every advantage of Ford's assertion that the nations of Eastern Europe are free of Soviet domination.

Party Chairman Named

TOKYO (AP)-The Chinese Communist party has decided to elevate Premier Hua Kuofeng to the late Mao Tse-tung's post as party chairman, Japan's Kyodo news service reported today from Peking.

Kyodo, quoting "reliable sources," said Hua would resign the premiership when he assumed the top party role but did not say that would be.

Kyodo quoted the sources as saying the decision was taken by the Central Political Bureau of the party. The agency said Hua was also named chairman of the military committee.

Medical Schools Planned

AUSTIN (AP) - The House Committee on Higher Education recommended creation of three new state medical schools Friday and a $78.5 million budget increase to boost the number of medical students.

New medical schools should be located at Ford Worth, Tyler and in the Rio Grande Valley, the committee's final report said.

"It is apparent to even the most uninformed person that we do not have enough doctors to treat the sick in Texas in either our metropolitan or our rural areas," the report states.

Commissioners Consider County Items Monday

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will meet in regular session at 10 a.m. Monday at the county courthouse. Commissioners are scheduled to consider an unusually short agenda of only six items. Among business to be handled are a discussion by Jim McMorris, tax consultant, on long range appraisal plans, a policy on payroll deductions, a fire report for September and a consideration of a certificate of deposit by county treasurer Vest Mae Nunley. Most agendas for the court are longer than 10 items.

Soviets Turn Down Nuclear Arms Treaty Offered By President Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford offered to complete a treaty with the Russians restricting nuclear weapons, but he was turned down because the agreement would not have limited U.S. cruise missiles, high administration officials say. The rejection, relayed to Ford at the White House late last week by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, appears to eliminate chances of completing an agreement by election day. The U.S. idea, broached initially to Gromyko by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, was to put aside the cruise missile and Russian Backfire bomber since they are in contention, and complete a treaty on what already has been settled. This would mean limiting both countries to 2,400 strategic delivery systems through 1985. For the Russians, believed to have already exceeded that total, it would have meant a reduction. The ceiling also would have held the two powers to 1,320 missiles with multiple warheads. The Soviets based their rejection on the exclusion of the fast-developing cruise missile from the American total. One of the most promising weapons in the U.S. arsenal, the pilotless missile can be launched by airplane, surface ship and submarine and has the capacity to elude early-warning radar. Negotiations have been snagged for most of the year over the cruise and the Russian Backfire bomber. The U.S. side has resisted the Soviet argument that the Backfire is not a strategic weapon. Meanwhile, political implications have shadowed the administration. Ford had to deal with charges from Ronald Regan in the Republican primaries and then from Democrat Jimmy Carter that he has not been tough enough with the Russians. At the same time, completion of a treaty could be viewed by some voters as a major foreign policy accomplishment by the President. A similar U.S. proposal was made to the Russians last winter and was rejected in a formal note from Moscow in March on the same grounds—omission of the cruise. Earlier, on a trip to the Kremlin in January, Kissinger seemed to have scored a breakthrough. An agreement appeared in the works that would exclude some of the American cruises while permitting the Russians to leave out Backfires so long as the bombers were not positioned within easy striking distance of the United States. But then both the U.S. and Russian positions hardened.

Kiwanis Workhorse Award Presented To Danny Boyer

Danny Boyer was awarded the Workhorse of the Year award by outgoing Noon Kiwanis president Ed Coplen Thursday evening at that group installed their new officers for 1976-1977. Coplen cited Boyer as a person who was willing to help with any project when asked and a hard worker in all the Kiwanis projects during the past year. Among others, Boyer headed up the Krazy Koupon project this summer and helped sponsor the Key Club on their district convention to Fort Worth. Incoming president Bud Eades received the Kiwanis pin worn by every president of the Noon club has had from Coplen. Coplen in turn received the past president's pen. Coplen reminisced the past year, saying that some rather unusual things happen in the club and he was responsible for most of them. A membership drive which valued items were confiscated to coerce members into searching out prospective members was mentioned as well as a "roast" of Gene Brink when the minister moved to Fort Worth. On a more serious side, he also listed several of the club's accomplishments. Eades told the group he said he was not going to set any specific goal for the club, but challenged each member to live up to the main emphasis of Kiwanis for 1976-1977, "Lead the Way". Other officers installed included Vice-presidents R.L. Blakely and Dan Welty, Secretary Howard Birdwell, Treasurer

Bartley Dowell and club Sweetheart Tonja Black. The Board of Directors for the coming year will include Dub Boyd, Danny Boyer, Bobby Byers, Earl Warrick, Bobby Owen, Eldon Koch, Rodney Laubhan, Travis McPherson, Roger Owen and Bob Sparks. The installation of officers was made by Lt. Gov. of Division 33, Charles Zecek. Entertainment was provided by Donna Kendall. She sang several popular numbers, accompanied by Jan Waiser. The evening began with introduction of guests by Howard Birdwell. Birdwell has been voted Lt. gov. for the 1977-1978 Kiwanis year in Division 33. Several clubs in the division were presented and an honored guest as Key Club Lt. Gov. Mitchell George.

Prisoner Walks Off Program

DALLAS (AP)—A man convicted of threatening former President Richard Nixon has walked away from a work-release program in Fort Worth one day before President Ford was to visit Dallas. The Federal Correctional Institute in Fort Worth, 30 miles from here, said Franklin David Kirk, 34, walked away from his job at a warehouse early Friday. FCI Warden Louis Gengler said he was concerned about the escape "because with an individual with an offense such as this we can't overlook the possibility there might be a correlation with the President's visit." The Secret Service in Dallas said security for Ford's visit today had not been changed. "We have the matter under investigation and we plan all the usual precautions with the President's visit," said William J. Williamson, acting head of the Dallas Secret Service office. Ford was to take part in the State Fair parade through downtown Dallas and appear in state fair ceremonies before attending the Texas-Oklahoma football game in the Cotton Bowl.

ACLU Defends KKK Despite Difference

DENVER (AP)—The American Civil Liberties Union says the Ku Klux Klan is "obnoxious," but it is rallying to the white supremacist organization's side against what it calls threats by Denver Dist. Atty. Dale Tooley. "Tooley doesn't get to decide who gets to stay in Colorado," state ACLU Director James H. Joy said Friday. "He went beyond his bounds. We find their organization obnoxious. But, until it can be shown that the Klan plans illegal action, they have the right to organize." Tooley had summoned visiting Grand Wizard Jerry Dutton to his office on Thursday and told him that he and the Klan were not welcome in Colorado. "I explained to him that under the First Amendment, he has a right to be here, but not a right to be welcomed," Tooley said. "I wanted him to know that what he does in the South

he may not be able to do up here and get away with." Dutton, of Metairie, La., said the Klan is trying to rebuild in Colorado. The KKK wants "to organize wherever there are white people," especially in Denver and on the state's college campuses, he said. The KKK played a major role in Colorado affairs back in the 1920s, said Nollie Mumey of Denver, an expert on the state's history. "They had Denver pretty well sewed up," the 85-year-old historian said. Mumey said the Klan was controlled by Grand Dragon John Locke back then, and his influence resulted in the election of a governor, a U.S. Senator, Denver's mayor and many local officials. The stranglehold was broken, Mumey said, when Roman Catholics and Jews organized and refused to buy from businesses owned by Klansmen. "We starved them out," said Mumey, himself a Catholic. "The ACLU doesn't agree with any Klan views, except their right to exist," Joy said. "Nonetheless, we will offer our services to them if they face any official harassment."

Meat Import Quotas Now Law After Ford's Action

DALLAS (AP)—President Ford signed a proclamation today imposing meat import quotas for the first time in the 12-year history of the Beef Import Law. The quota was set at 1.233 billion pounds of meat, which White House officials said would be about 6 per cent of American consumption. It takes effect immediately. The possibility of imposing quotas was disclosed earlier in the week by Agriculture Department officials. Ford acted after the department estimated that imports for the year would total 1.250 billion pounds. The quota level will permit slightly larger imports in 1976 than in 1975, when imports totaled 1.209 billion pounds. Little if any adverse effect on consumer prices is anticipated, officials said. The White House also said that the United States will begin meetings on the details of the program with countries supplying meat to the U.S. within the next few days. Beef stocks are reportedly running more than 40 per cent ahead of last year and slaughter prices are down about 30 per cent. Consumer demand has kept beef prices relatively steady, although the 6.5 billion pounds of beef produced this summer was a record output and lowered the prices producers receive. Beef producers have been calling for mandatory quotas for nearly a year. Ford acted a day after his opponent for the presidency, Democrat Jimmy Carter, urged immediate action to protect American cattlemen.

Sex Change Operation Costs Teacher's Job

EMERYVILLE, Calif. (AP)—A girls' gym teacher who was surgically changed into a man has been suspended from his job for "immoral conduct" and "unfitness" one day after a court ordered him reinstated. Steve Dain, who had been Doris Richards, was served at his home Friday with a school district notice of suspension. "You are not to report for work or otherwise appear on any school district property," the notice said. On Thursday, a judge had ordered the school district to reinstate Dain and give him about $3,200 in back pay. The school district previously had ordered Dain not to report, but had neither fired nor reassigned him after he attempted to return to work this fall following a sex change operation and therapy at Stanford University. "Now this gives me something I can deal with instead of the district holding me in limbo," Dain said Friday. He said his attorney is studying the charges to see if they are in the correct form, and if so, he will request that a hearing be held within 30 days. At that time, the district will have to prove its charges. "The district has been doing nothing about my situation," the 32-year-old teacher said. "If they were going to fire me, this would be the procedure to follow, and it gives me a chance to get this settled once and for all." District Supt. Lewis Stommel said Dain is charged with two sections of the state education code—"immoral conduct" and "evident unfitness for service." He declined to elaborate on the charges but said he had the backing of at least four of the five school board members. Dain will go on trial Tuesday in Oakland Municipal Court on a misdemeanor charge of "wilful disturbance" which stems from his attempt to attend a teachers orientation meeting at a high school here Sept. 2. Stommel had Dain arrested for ignoring an order to stay away from the school. The school district has contended that Dain should not be reinstated because he, in effect, abandoned his post by exhausting his sick leave while taking a six-month leave of absence beginning last December. Although Dain was teaching girl's physical education classes, he holds a teaching credential which allows him to teach any subject. He has expressed a desire to teach science.

Tourism Booming in Malaysia. By S.V. SUPPIAH SINGAPORE (AP)—Having fun in the sun is the name of the game that attracted 1.2 million visitors to Malaysia last year. Like all good visitors they brought their money with them, paying $144 million to sightsee, shop, sleep and entertain themselves in this tropical country that boasts of having sunshine throughout the year. Most visitors from Singapore flock to Kuala Lumpur, only to disperse into the neighboring towns of Ipoh and Penang. Young people do not usually stray away from the cities because they want to be where the action is at night. But others move out into the countryside, perhaps to loosen the cramped feeling they endure most of the year in Singapore, an island of only 244 square miles with a population of 2.5 million. Visiting families trek into small towns like Segamat, Malacca, Seremban, Port Dickson, Butterworth and Kota Bharu. They often avoid the glossy hotels that demand high prices. There is, however, luxury, comfort and entertainment for those willing to pay for it in major towns like Kuala Lumpur, Penang, Ipoh, Pulau Langkawi and Kota Kanabalu.

'Foreign Citizens' Can't Buy Hungarian Property

BUDAPEST (AP)—Several thousand foreign citizens own property in Hungary. But, under a 1974 decree, no more property can be sold to foreign citizens unless they are returning ex-Hungarians. Foreign relatives of Hungarian citizens can inherit property here, however, the government journal Magyar Hirlap reported. In most cases, "foreign citizens" in this context means mainly defectors during and after the 1956 revolt. The main thrust now is, the journal said, that while inheritance will continue to give some plots and houses to for-ign citizens, "all connected dealings should be strictly regulated... and we should see that everybody realizes Hungary is not for sale." Authorities now strictly control the use and sale of foreign property in Hungarian territory, including the use of rents and other types of income from foreigners. The journal described the case of a 65-year-old West Hungarian pensioner who had a house built on Lake Balaton for an undisclosed sum, with several living-rooms, three terraces, two bathrooms, and a garage and bathhouse.

Public Hearings Set By Welfare

Public hearings will be held later this month in Lubbock and Amarillo to give interested persons an opportunity to comment on the general licensing handbook now being developed by the State Department of Public Welfare, according to Faye McCandless, program director. The handbook, now in draft form, is a description of the procedures to be used by the licensing division staff in day care licensing, agency and institutional licensing, and the licensing of administrators of child care institutions.

The hearing will be held on Oct. 28 at the South Plains Electric Co-op, 110 North Amarillo Highway in Lubbock and on Oct. 29 at the Amarillo Psychiatric Pavilion, 7201 Evans Boulevard in Amarillo.

Each of the hearings will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Lubbock session will be at South Plains Electric Co-op, 110 North Amarillo Highway. The Amarillo hearing will be at the Amarillo Psychiatric Pavilion, 7201 Evans Blvd.

Earlier this year, 16 sets of minimum standards for child care facilities and child placing agencies became effective. The licensing division has prepared a draft of the licensing handbook, dealing mostly with the division's operating procedures. The handbook is divided into five sections: the introduction, day care licensing procedures, agency and institutional licensing procedures, the licensing appeal, the institutional administrator's license.

The handbook draft has been filed with the Secretary of State and published in the Texas Register as proposed rules. The entire document is available through the Texas Register at a cost that is published with the notice.

The welfare equipment is making available selected sections of the proposed handbook at no cost to persons who may wish to comment on it. Persons interested in receiving selected portions of the handbook may order these from Ms. Anne Leatherman, Director of Standards and Policy Section, Licensing Division, department of Public Welfare, John H. Reagan Building, Austin, Texas 78701.

Complete copies of the handbook draft, including proposed forms to be used in the licensing process, are available for review at each local day care licensing office, at the office of each institutional licensing representative, and in the office of the state licensing division, Austin.

In Lubbock the licensing offices are at 800 Broadway. Zoe Ward is day care licensing supervisor, and Belle Weninger is institutional licensing representative. In Amarillo, Gary Riddelspurger supervises day care licensing and Betty

Johnson and John Cox are institutional licensing representatives. Their offices are at 2407 I-40 West (Wolfelin Village Center.)

Swine Flu Shots Now Recommended For Kids

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Federal health officials have reversed their earlier stand and now recommend swine flu shots for children, especially those who suffer from asthma or heart defects.

Deland Meriweather, director of the National Influenza Immunization Program, said here Tuesday that high-risk children already were receiving the vaccine at 16 test centers throughout the nation. He said he expects vaccination of normal children will begin at a national basis after a hearing at the National Institute of Health conference in Bethesda, Md., Oct. 22.

When the immunization program began Friday morning, only those over age 18 were eligible for the free inoculations.

Meriweather said children were excluded from the program not because they are safe from the disease but are because tests showed "an unacceptable incidence of side effects in youngsters."

"We have identified everyone as being susceptible to the swine flu virus."

He declined to give the rate of side effects in children, but he said it was higher than the estimated 1.9 per cent of adults who experienced a fever of up to 102 degrees for 24 hours after receiving the vaccine.

The government reversed its position because of a recommendation by the American Academy of Pediatrics. Meriweather said, and vaccination of high risk children began immediately.

"Should they become sick with the flu, they most often end up in the hospital," he said.

Based on their experience with high risk children, government officials should be able by the Oct. 22 meeting to recommend the proper dosage to minimize side effects in normal youngsters, he said. The proper dosage probably will be two injections—a regular shot followed by a booster.

If It's Dirt, It's Dirt

By now you've heard that a Danish movie producer is planning to make a dirty movie—about the life of Christ.

He plans to film it in Britain.

It is not proper protocol to quote the Queen, but Buckingham Palace is letting it be known she finds the very idea "obnoxious."

The British government is trying to decide if it has legal grounds for preventing this ultimate obscenity.

As I understand the ratings system, when a movie is rated "PG" that means that "parental guidance" is recommended.

In Harvey House what that means is that our son is likely to see it first and advise if it's all right for his parents.

Most are not.

And this does not reflect prudery, in the classic definition. I was in the Air Force. I don't think there are any words or expressions I have not heard.

And though it is the notion of some that sex was invented in 1960, it wasn't really. Yet if Angel and I go to a movie—which is very rarely—it is for escape from the ugliness of reality.

But I do resist and resent the double-standard employed by a rating system which implies that whether filth is filth depends upon how young or how old you are.

The other day the ladies of the East Dallas, Texas, Garden and Talk Society were nearing the end of the gardening season and running out of something to talk about so they decided to go to an X-rated movie.

Now the ladies of the East Dallas Garden and Talk Society are all "of age." Each of them is at least 70 years of age. So legally they were quite eligible to go unescorted.

But a young newswoman heard they were going and decided to go along and report their reactions. She subsequently reported that all the grandmothers walked out before the movie was over: some because they were "ashamed," some because they were "embarrassed" and two of them because they were "bored."

But—and hear this—on the sidewalk outside after they had exited, one of the elderly ladies cornered the young woman reporter and told her that she "should be ashamed" of herself.

The elderly lady said, "Think of your reputation, young lady. If people learn that you went to that movie they are going to think you are trash!"

Of all the filthy words which our young have hurled at the establishment, the most obscene word of all is "hypocrisy."

And contemporary hypocrisy is nowhere more apparent than in a movie rating system which says that a movie is unfit for human consumption until after

Bentsen Wants 'Sunset' Bill

AUSTIN (AP)—The biggest disappointment of the recent 94th Congress was the failure to pass a "sunset" bill for federal bureaucracy, says Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., a candidate for re-election.

"We call it the 'sunset' bill, which I cosponsored, because it means the sun will set on the wasteful and outdated government programs," Bentsen told newsmen.

"It calls for federal agencies to come before Congress for review on a regular basis. If they are outdated, we will cut them out. If they are spending too much money, we will cut them back."

"I intend to push for approval of the 'sunset' bill early in the next Congress," he said.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
 Today is Sunday, Oct. 10, the 284 day of 1976. There are 82 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
 On this date in 1911, Chinese revolutionaries under Dr. Sun Yat-sen overthrew the Manchu dynasty in China.

In 680, the grandson of Mohammed was murdered in Iraq.

In 1845, the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., was opened.

In 1913, the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans flowed together in the Panama Canal as the Gamboa Dam was blown up.

In 1938, Nazi Germany completed the occupation of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland.

In 1963, a dam collapsed near Belluno, Italy, and the resulting flood killed an estimated 1,800 people.

In 1973, Spiro Agnew resigned as Vice President under an agreement with the Justice Department to admit evasion of Federal income taxes but avoid imprisonment.

Ten years ago: Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was meeting in Washington with President Lyndon Johnson.

Five years ago: The death toll was put at more than 200 in a hurricane that swept parts of Haiti, Cuba, Florida and Mexico.

One year ago: It was announced that a top-level meeting on economic problems would be held in France by U.S., British, French, West German, Italian, Japanese and possibly Canadian leaders.

Today's birthdays: Actress Helen Hayes is 76. Pianist and composer Thelonious Monk is 58.

Thought for today: People want peace so much that governments had better get out of their way and let them have it.—President Dwight Eisenhower.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, it was reported in Salem, N. C., that American troops had burned several Cherokee Indian villages.

DRUG PROBLEMS
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—The drug problems of the elderly are a growing concern of doctors, according to Dr. W. Nelson Lipscomb, a Berkeley psychiatrist.

Some older people abuse mind-altering drugs in an attempt to escape from loneliness and boredom. Others are unwitting victims of the "spaced-out grandma" syndrome—peculiar behavior resulting from the interactions of drugs prescribed for the ailments of old age, he says.

The "spaced-out grandma" syndrome is apt to develop, Lipscomb says, when patients are over-treated for the multiple conditions common in old age, such as sleeplessness, high blood pressure, arthritis and mood swings.

The problem is apt to arise when doctors prescribe multiple prescriptions for these ailments, producing in the patient's system a cocktail of different drugs which can cause strange behavior.

The chemical psychosis clears up as soon as the patient is taken off the drugs, he said.

SENIOR STUDENT
MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Charles Wagner, 93, has so far taken six courses at the Mansfield campus of Ohio State University in a program that allows people 65 and older to audit courses without charge.

A retired merchandise manager for a tool company, Wagner said, "It's a good way to spend my time, and I've always been interested in keeping up with what's going on in the world."

Billionaires Slowly Decrease In Number in Past Years

PALM BEACH SHORES, Fla. (AP)—The old man sitting in the corner of the hotel coffee shop with only a cup of brew, a pack of cigarettes and a telephone at his side is not as many passersby believe—a thrifty tourist or genial maintenance man.

John D. MacArthur, 79, is a member of a rapidly vanishing species: the American billionaire. And he is an unusually accessible and admittedly eccentric example of the breed.

His life is uncluttered by the usual accoutrements of wealth—he has no limousine, no mansion, no hangers-on and not even a secretary.

MacArthur spends most of his day in the coffee shop of his Colonnades Hotel. He greets guests, good-naturedly criticizes the hotel employees and, through his telephone, stays in touch with assistants who run an empire estimated by some to be worth $3 billion.

"Certainly if I wanted a yacht, I could get one. But I don't," MacArthur said. When he speaks, he looks directly into the eye of his visitor. But MacArthur, a chain smoker, appears most comfortable with a thin sheet of smoke between him and his listener.

Occasionally, the switchboard operator rings his phone to tell him that someone is on the line. If he feels like speaking to the person, or if his curiosity is aroused, MacArthur says, "I will speak," and the call is put through.

"If I wanted to build a mansion, I could," he said. "But when I began making money, I didn't change my lifestyle because I was afraid something might happen. I was on thin ice for the first 15 years."

But the ice has thickened through the years. MacArthur owns at least a dozen insurance companies including the enormously profitable Bankers Life and Casualty Co., about 4,000 acres in Florida, the Colonnades with its 1,500 acres of oceanfront property, banks, radio and television stations, restaurants, farms, ranches and dozens of other concerns.

He isn't the only successful member of his family. His late brother, Charles, was co-author of the Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "The Front Page." Actress Helen Hayes is his sister-in-law and the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur was a cousin.

John MacArthur said his early goal was to show an older brother, Alfred, that "he was with a bunch of stuffed shirts who didn't know how to run an insurance company." MacArthur, then about 18, was working for his brother's life insurance firm.

"I was kind of a combination office boy and I sold insurance," he said. "And I showed other people how to do it. Alfred did not fully appreciate my services, so I quit."

Eventually, he started his own insurance firm and bought Bankers for $2,500, but the Depression and his inability to attract good salesmen forced him to take the plunge into mail-order sales—a technique still used today by Bankers.

"It was a necessity," MacArthur said. "I had declared that I was going to build a company. I was so committed to that that I actually thought, I actually believed, that if I failed, I'd never get another job in the insurance industry."

"They would all say, 'S---, get him outta here. He flopped.' So I stayed with it."

The formula proved successful, and soon MacArthur was absorbing other companies. As profits grew, he invested in other firms and land. He said much of his land holdings came from repossessions on bad debts.

MacArthur likes to tell about the time he flew with one of the Wright brothers. "Wilbur I think it was," about his experiences as a pilot in World War I and about the time four years ago when he was near death from pneumonia.

"It was terminal. Well, that's what they told my wife," said

MacArthur, who has a son and a daughter by a previous marriage. "But I had to apt better to protect my employees."

"They had been with me all their lives, at least the ones I was concerned about. I hired them out of college, and they didn't know any better than to keep on working for me."

"You lie there in bed and know you're awfully sick and you think, 'My God, the accountant's been telling me for 10 years that the inheritance tax would be about 70 per cent of my entire estate.'"

"And I knew the only thing that was big-enough to pay the tax was my insurance company where all my pets were working...I laid awake nights hoping I'd see daylight, and I figured if I had a week..."

McMurtrey To Get Company Award

Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America will honor one area resident for his years of service to the company at a dinner Oct. 12 at the Holiday Inn in Clovis, New Mexico.

Ten-year award will go to Richard G. McMurtrey of Hereford, Texas.

In addition to awardees, guests at the annual dinner will include other company employees from the area and their spouses, and a number of executives from the company's Chicago headquarters office.

Richard McMurtrey, district superintendent at Natural's Hereford facility, will be master of ceremonies and also the recipient of the ten-year service award.

Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America, transmission arm of the Peoples Gas system, supplies natural gas to 49 utility customers in the upper Midwest. One of the nation's largest natural gas transmission companies, Natural operates more than 11,000 miles of pipelines and related facilities in 10 states.

After he recovered, MacArthur set up a charitable foundation that protects much of his wealth from the inheritance tax.

McArthur enjoys joking about his almost legendary thriftiness. When a reporter and photographer arrived for an interview, he asked if they were hungry. Told that they weren't he said, "Well, I wasn't going to give the food away. I would have charged you."

And he told the photographer: "I should get a fee for posing. Every model gets one."

He said he flies tourist class because: "My rear end isn't that big that I can't get it into a tourist seat."

His lively sense of humor also was evident during a tour of his hotel. He walked boldly into a women's rest room, spending a few minutes inside. As he walked out of the room, he met a female guest.

"Uh, just checking it out," he told her. "It's just as sanitary as could be. Enjoy yourself."

Asked to explain how he became one of the wealthiest men in America, MacArthur ordered a reporter to switch off his tape recorder.

"Plain old horse---luck," he said. Later he said, "I was lucky. I ran across some obstacles..."

"I had no genius, no super intelligence. I just went the other way, and it turned out great."

He paused for a moment, as if thinking back on the life he has just described as a 79-year lucky streak.

TRC Rules On Bus Routes

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Railroad Commission has issued an order setting fares and charges for a bus route between Bryan and College Station.

The authority allows Ellis Transportation to charge a one-way base fare of 50 cents with the one-way fare for students set at 35 cents.

Carter Campaign Leaders Appointed

AUSTIN—Jimmy Carter campaign leadership posts in Deaf Smith County were announced through the Democratic nominee's State headquarters.

Authority was given Taos Transportation Inc. to suspend applications to suspend motor bus service over three routes.

Andy Shoval and Raymond A. Higginbotham were named to co-chair the Carter presidential effort, according to Chuck Parrish, Texas Carter Coordinator.

These democrats are now linked up to a statewide effort that will end in a winning landslide vote for Jimmy Carter," Parrish said.

Bob Armstrong, state land commissioner, and Calvin Guest, Texas Democratic Party Chairman, co-chair the Carter-Mondale campaign at the state level.

Shoval is the district attorney of Deaf Smith County and resides in Hereford.

Higginbotham is a farmer and resides in Hereford.

Parrish added that Carter campaign leadership at county levels through the state has developed into the strongest and largest of any recent presidential campaign.

Deaf Smith decors are expected to quickly unite behind the newly-appointed campaign leaders in traditional Democratic fashion to produce votes to elect Jimmy Carter.

HUSBAND REALIZES WIFE'S A SUCCESS
NEW YORK (AP)—Myrna Liebowitz, who is president of the Women's Stockbrokers Assn., has been giving seminars on "Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Finances but Were Afraid to Ask."

They have been attracting large audiences and gaining attention for the stockbroker, who is with Herzfeld and Stern here.

"Now even my husband is impressed," she says, "because when he goes places, he is called Mr. Liebowitz, which is my maiden name. He is Kenny Berger, a manufacturer of children's wear."

County Officials To Attend Meeting

Representatives from Deaf Smith County will be among delegates and guests taking part in the second annual West Texas State Conference on State Affairs on the campus of Angelo State University in San Angelo October 12 and 13.

Those attending will be Sam Morgan, county judge; Andrew J. Shoval, district attorney; Earl Holt, county commissioner; Austin Rose, Jr., county commissioner; Bruce Coleman, county commissioner; James L. Voyles, W.L. and Inez Albright.

Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, Lt. Gov. Billy Hobby, Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton and U.S. Congressman Omar Burlison will address sessions during the two-day conference.

Theme of this year's meeting is "You and State Government: Setting the Priorities." Sponsored by Angelo State University, The San Angelo Standard-Times and West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the conference draws citizens, government leaders and faculty and students from schools and colleges in the broad West Texas area.

Approximately 300 persons took part in last year's event.

In addition to the major addresses, the conference will feature panel discussions centering on issues in state government. The panels will be moderated by experienced leaders and will be assisted by highly qualified resource persons from across the state including the heads of some state agencies.

Park Named For General's Kin

SUN PRAIRIE, Wis. (AP)—As part of the bicentennial celebration, a new park here has been named for Tabitha Burgoyne Bird, daughter of a nephew of "Gentleman Johnny" Burgoyne, British general defeated at Saratoga in the Revolution.

One of her great-great-granddaughters, Caroline Bird, New York author, spoke at the dedication ceremonies.

Hutchison made it 45-12 with just :24 left in the third period on a 25-yard run, which was the longest gainer the Demons produced all night.

Individually Graves was by far the leading rusher for Hereford with his 226 yards. Martinez wound up with 99 markers on 14 carries, Lawson added 76 yards on seven totes, Harkins went for 29 yards on six carries, Kelly Kitchens amassed 21 yards on five totes, and Paul Bell added 16 markers on three carries.

Hereford also used some backs which had seen very little action offensively. High finished the night with zero net yards on two carries although he scored one touchdown. Arthur Rocha also netted zero on two carries, while Dennis Artho picked up seven yards on one carry.

Kitchens and Lawson had a running battle passing with the latter coming out ahead in yardage 78-59. Kitchens hit on four of six aerials, while Lawson connected on three of five.

James McDowell led Herd receivers with 51 yards on a pair of catches. Five other Faces snagged one pass each. Martinez picked up three yards, Rowan Alexander netted 14, Lawson grabbed one for 27, Bell picked up 32, and Robert Schumacher got in the swing with a 10-yard catch.

Hutchison led Dumas rushers with 75 yards on 19 carries, while Hazen added 48 yards on 15 tries. The Demons were good on only two passes, with end Bob Wilborn their leading receiver with one catch for 13 yards.

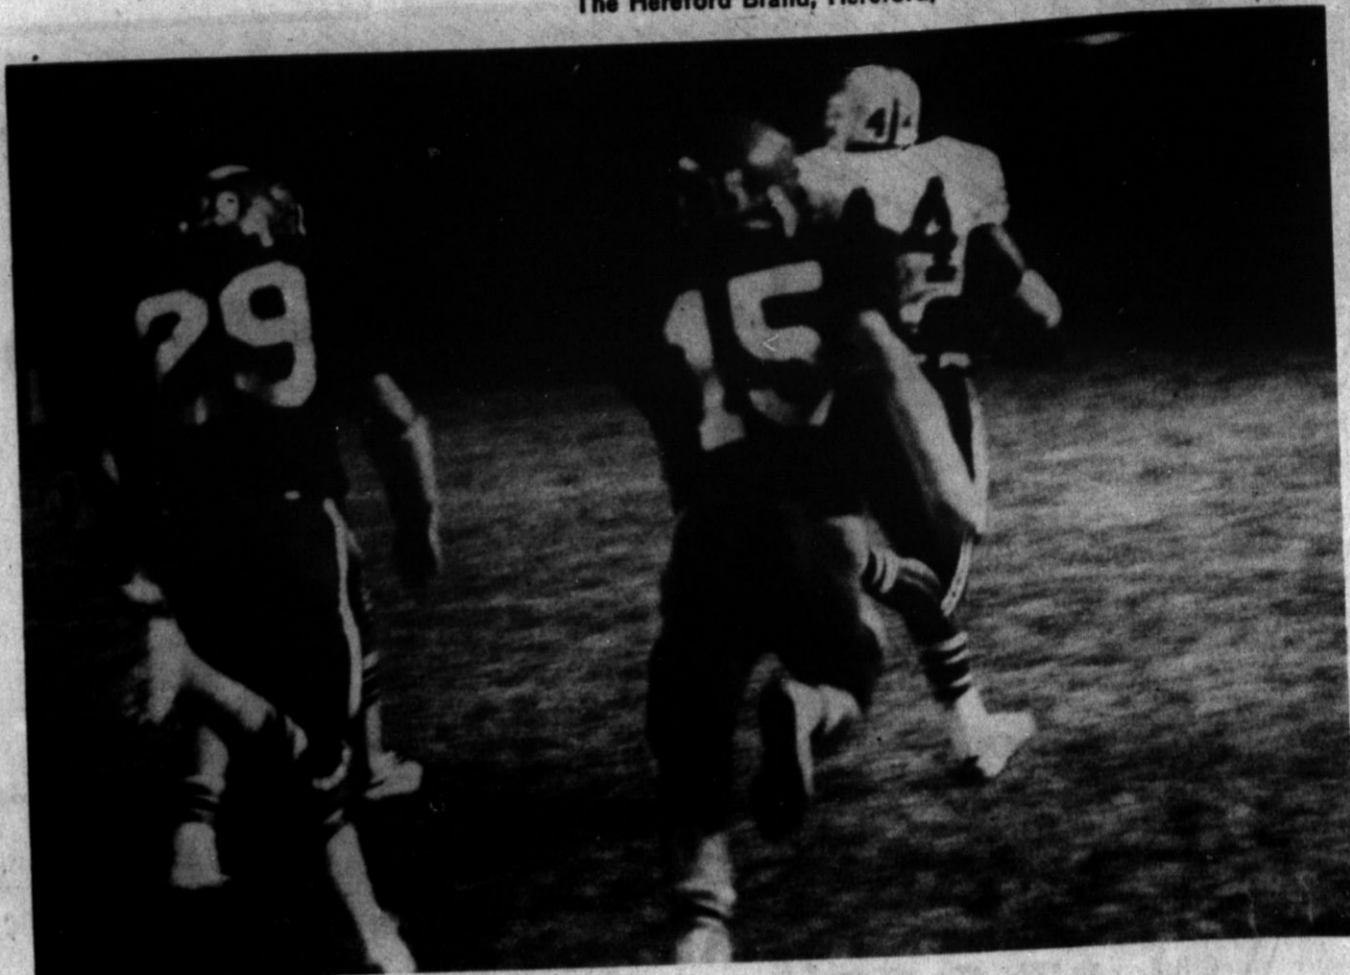

The 40-point margin of victory was the largest by a Hereford team since 1969 when the Whitefaces downed Tulla 48-8 and Muleshoe 49-0. 1955 was the last year any Hereford team had scored as much as 52 points. That year the Herd bombed Portales 52-19, and Shamrock 53-7.

Spartans Fall To State Rival

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Harlan Huckelby scored three touchdowns and Rob Lytle rushed for 180 yards Saturday as No. 1 ranked Michigan crushed intrastate rival Michigan State 42-10 in a Big Ten football game.

The point total for Michigan, 5-0 over-all and 2-0 in the conference, was its largest against the Spartans since a 55-0 romp in 1947.

Lytle, a senior fullback, scored on a 75-yard run on Michigan's fourth play from scrimmage after MSU, now 1-3-1 over-all and 0-2 in the Big Ten, had surprised the Wolverines by recovering a fumble and going ahead 3-0 in the first two minutes on a 24-yard Hans Nielsen field goal.

Sophomore Huckelby scored his first touchdown on a 38-yard run in the first period, then added TD's on plunges of one yard in the second quarter and two yards in the third period.

The other touchdowns for Michigan, now 5-0 overall and 2-0 in the Big Ten, came on a three-yard run by quarterback Rick Leach in the second quarter and a 59-yard interception return by Jerry Zuver in the final period.

PRaises the Coach
DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP)—Johnny Lujack, the 1947 Heisman Trophy winner as Notre Dame quarterback, still praises the late Frank Leahy. "I felt he worked harder than his players," says Lujack, owner of an auto agency here.

"He was a tough taskmaster, a fundamentalist. We always had a half-hour noon meeting during practice and Leahy always picked a player to give a five-minute speech before the team — on any subject. He was trying to teach us how to react on our feet in front of a crowd."

31 YEARS IN ARMY
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—You may remember Arnold Tucker. He quarterbacked three undefeated Doc Blanchard-Glenn Davis football teams at West Point for Coach Earl (Red) Blaik 30 years ago.

Tucker is fully retired in Miami after 31 years in the Army, followed by three years as assistant athletic director at the University of Miami. Tucker lost only one game during a seven-year high school and college career. Tucker and Blanchard are the only football players ever awarded the Sullivan award as the nation's top amateur athlete.

Yanks Destroy Royals Effort

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Catfish Hunter, using the special chemistry that a pitcher can sometimes establish with his catcher, throttled Kansas City on five hits Saturday, hurling the New York Yankees to a 4-1 victory over the Royals in the opening game of the American League championship series.

Much of the credit, said Hunter, belonged to his catcher, Thurman Munson.

"I felt like I knew exactly where Munson was going to put his glove, and I'd put the ball right there," he said. "When you're working well with your catcher, you can be winding up while he gives you the sign."

Hunter's control of the game wasn't quite that complete, but it was more than enough for Munson.

"He had an exceptional fastball," said the Yankee catcher. "He kept it up and out of reach."

Hunter, working masterfully through the Royals' batting order kept the Kansas City batters off balance all day long.

"I kept moving the ball around," he said. "I threw a lot of fastballs. That's my kind of game."

The record Kansas City crowd of 41,077 was still settling down in this beautiful ballpark when the Yankees jumped in front against ex-teammate Larry Gura in the first inning.

Leadoff man Mickey Rivers tapped an 0-2 pitch down the third base line. Brett backhanded the ball, then hesitated before throwing. By the time Brett's throw got there, the speedy Rivers was across the base with an infield single. When the high throw flew by big John Mayberry, Rivers kept right on going and pulled up at second base.

Gura then walked Roy White on four pitches and Thurman Munson lined a single to center. Rivers had to hold up on the line drive and stopped at third loading the bases for New York with none out.

Now Gura had his work cut out. He battled part of the way out by striking out clean-up hitter Lou Piniella. That brought up Chris Chambliss, and when he bounced to Brett, it looked like a rally-killing double play.

Brett fielded the ball cleanly and stepped on the bag, forcing White. But his throw to first was bad again, bouncing for another error as Rivers and Munson raced home.

That gave Hunter the kind of quick lead every pitcher loves to have, and the tobacco-chewing right-hander didn't squander it. He retired the first 10 Kansas City batters before Brett broke that spell with a fourth-inning single.

But Brett was thrown out stealing and the Royals didn't get another base runner until the seventh. Again it was Brett, this time on a one-out single to center. But he never got off first base as Hunter retired Hal McRae and Mayberry on easy pop flies.

Finally in the eighth inning, the Royals got rolling. Al Cowens, leading off, tripled into the right field corner beyond the reach of Elliott Maddox. When Tom Poquette bounced to second, Cowens trotted home for Kansas City's only run.

Couples Nights Begin Tuesday

The Hereford area YMCA will hold its first 'Couples Night' Tuesday evening, Oct. 12. Director Claude Huard has announced. The activity will last from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

"Our program will consist of ten minutes of calisthenics to music followed by several low organized games such as volleyball, badminton, Jocar, paddle tennis, maybe a little archery, and various other activities," Huard said in making the announcement.

The couples nights will continue through the year on the second Tuesday of each month until next May.

"Personal fitness is a subject of real personal importance to each of us today. Its need is recognized in all walks of life, but very few know how to maintain or achieve total fitness," Huard said.

"So, why not 'tone up' together by joining this program...get 'Hubby' out of the easy chair and away from the TV set, and get 'Honey' out of the kitchen for a little exercise and relaxation," he added.

Giants Worry About Cowboys

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
AP Sports Writer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J.

(AP) - There are 76,800 seats in the new New York Giants stadium in New Jersey. On Sunday, there'll be a body in each chair—a fact the winless, but no longer homeless, Giants may regret by the end of the afternoon.

After nearly 2½ nomadic seasons at Shea Stadium and the Yale Bowl, the Giants will face the undefeated Dallas Cowboys in the Dedication Day game at their $70 million stadium.

The northern New Jersey sports crowd, having withstood bonding and construction problems and tired of traveling to New York for sports, has been waiting a long time for the state to obtain its own major league franchise.

Now that D-Day has arrived, two problems remain. The team is still officially called the New York Giants, although the "New York" has been removed from the helmets. Eventually, the name probably will be changed.

The second problem is that New Jersey sports fans don't like losers: They like to boo. That probably won't change.

"We expect the fans to cheer the Giants at first, then they'll act like any other football fans," said one spokesman.

The Cowboys, led by quarterback Roger Staubach 70 for 98 in passing this season and receivers Drew Pearson and Golden Richards, have a good record at new stadiums. They have won inaugural games at their own ballpark and at the Detroit Lions' stadium in Pontiac, Mich.

To keep the Giants' fans occupied, there will be a dedication ceremony, a tailgate cooking contest, marching bands and the introduction of members of the 1925 and 1956 Giants teams.

In an attempt to spread out the crowd-flow problems, the parking gates will open at 9 a.m., the stadium gates at 10, for the 1:06 kickoff on the artificial turf field.

"We predict that we will have some problems because there's never been a stadium to open without problems," said a spokesman for the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, overseers of the $342 million sports complex, which includes a horse racetrack. "But they'll be relatively mild compared to opening night at the racetrack."

When Meadowlands Race-track opened Sept. 1, only 13,500 of the 21,000 parking spaces were ready. Thousands were truned away. Inside, a boisterous crowd soon tired of the long lines, and sporadic fistcuffs broke out. When Gov. Brendan T. Byrne stepped to the podium, the crowd gave him the biggest boeing of his political career.

Byrne will return to the sports complex for the Giants' opener Sunday.

Once the Giants spectators gain entrance to the stadium, officials say, no problems are expected. A "super flush" was held last week to see if all the toilets could be used at the same time. As for the concession stands, a spokesman promised, "There'll be plenty of hot dogs here Sunday."

The stadium is 98 per cent complete. There's a clear view from every seat, and despite its size, the shape of the facility will put the fans in a close-to-the-action, intimate setting.

The only bad seat is the hot one Coach Bill Arnsparger might be in if his Giants don't stop losing soon.

The players' facilities rank with the best. There's a sauna, a carpeted locker room, a gigantic exercise room, two handball courts, and even a room where players can hide to avoid a barrage of questions from reporters.

Let's Talk Sports

The career of all-time home run king Henry Aaron came to an end almost unnoticed last Sunday in Milwaukee. Hammer-in' Hank played his last game in a 22-year career that began in the same city in 1954.

The 42-year-old Aaron closed out his active baseball life with a run-scoring base hit in the sixth inning of the Brewers' 5-2 loss to the Detroit Tigers.

The story of the end drew only a short notice in most newspapers, and a crowd of only 6,858 fans showed up to pay their final respects.

Cooperstown is but a few years away for Hank, and I guess some people would say he was a credit to his race. I would agree with that summation...ONLY if all humans were thought of as being of the same race.

Aaron will probably be remembered by some non-black followers to the 'National Pastime' as "that negro who broke ol' Babe's record..."

For me he will be remembered as a man who played the game in a white man's world, and who was good enough to remain around long enough to see the day that the black man took his rightful place alongside and many times above the white...and the brown.

The only thing that saddens me is the thought of the unknown number of 'minority' players who were denied their chance at 'The Bigs' just because they weren't fair skinned...who knows how many more Henry Arons never got their chance?

"Boxing was small time, 'Im graduating to bigger things." Those were the words of world heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali Wednesday.

Ali, who claims he is retiring to devote himself to hi religion, 'the Islam faith, was speaking to a group of reporters who were inquiring about his retirement.

Hudspeth Optimistic In Face Of Hot Patriots

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Rick Forzano followed up last Sunday's loss by the Detroit Lions with his resignation. Tommy Hudspeth views this Sunday's game against New England—and the rest of the season—with anything but resignation.

Hudspeth has a tough task in his National Football League coaching debut.

Hudspeth was the Lions' coordinator of personnel and scouting until last Tuesday, one day after Forzano quit as head coach. Then he was elevated to interim head coach by Lions' owner William Clay Ford—just in time to run into the hottest team in the league.

The Patriots, after dropping their opener to Baltimore, stamped past three heavy favorites, Miami, Pittsburgh and Oakland. "They're great right now," Hudspeth understated.

But he thinks his Lions are good, despite their 1-3 record including last week's 24-14 loss to underdog Green Bay. He thinks the Lions are still capable of being a Super Bowl contender—if they play up to their potential.

"Anytime you can put a football team on the field with the potential we have, there's a chance to make the playoffs," he says. "But you have to get it out of them. This has to be done by placing the cards on the table with each individual. Be honest with them and say, 'This is what you have to do and haven't been doing. This is what you're doing that needs to be corrected.'"

What needs to be corrected most of all is the blocking on the line. Detroit's quarterbacks have been sacked 26 times and the team ranks next-to-last in the National Conference in passing.

In Sunday's other games it's Chicago at Minnesota, Oakland at San Diego, Denver at Houston, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, Miami at Baltimore, Buffalo at the New York Giants, Kansas City at Washington, Tampa Bay at Cincinnati, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Seattle vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee and Atlanta at New Orleans. Monday night's game is San Francisco at Los Angeles.

First place in the NFC Central Division is at stake in Minnesota on the revamped Bears, a surprise this year with their 3-1 mark. The last time they had a record that good, five years ago, they wound up winning only three of their remaining 10 games.

It should be a brutal defensive battle. The Bears have allowed only 32 points in four games, the lowest in the league, and have run up an NFL-high of 23 quarterback sacks. The Vikings are right up there, having allowed only 34 points and chalked up 17 sacks. Chicago

POINT OF AIM

By Millard Murray

TV Westerns to the contrary, a man who can swing his trusty 'thuddy-thuddy' (or any rifle) to his shoulder, and casually pick-off a running target at 100 paces, is as rare as molars on a goose. Many shooters, with rifle firmly supported by benchrest (or padded truck hood), can produce near minute-of-angle groups.

IN THE FIELD, firing from the offhand or kneeling position, these "home-on-the-range" shootists are often incapable of "minute-of-ward" accuracy. If the average hunter spent half as much time practicing field position shooting as he does developing handloads, there would be far fewer misses.

When hunting white tails in thick cover, it's often an off-hand shot or no shot at all. Otherwise, the woefully inaccurate standing position should be avoided. In open and semi-wooded terrain, there's usually time to drop down to a sitting or kneeling position, or to improvise some sort of brace. The left hand, grasping a sapling, can provide a reasonably steady wrist-rest for rifle forend; a walking stick, braced on the ground and held upright against the stock, will steady the gun for a kneeling shot.

Get That Hunting Sighted-In NOW!!

MOST SHOOTERS know that a barrel, when placed directly over or against a support, will throw the bullet off and away from the support point. To a lesser degree, the same holds true when your stock bears against a hard surface. Whenever possible, place a glove or cap between the forend and support, to assure on-zero impact.

The point of all this? Practice shooting from field positions, at unmeasured ranges, and with "make-do" bracing. Once you've zeroed your rifle, its accuracy depends on you—and there won't be a handy bench or hood, when that trophy buck is in view!

OFTEN, A CAREFULLY ZEROED RIFLE SHOTS abominably in the field. There are several probable causes: a non-fouled and/or cold barrel shoots to a different point than a clean and/or hot barrel. Temperature changes also cause bullets to print off-center. Target in warm weather, and a cold hunting climate will slow powder burning and lower bullet impact. The reverse holds true. Cartridges kept in a hot car trunk or exposed to the hot sun develop higher pressure and raise impact center. The Shop With The Answers.

Frustrated Horns Settle For 6-6 Deadlock With OU Sooners

DALLAS (AP)—Oklahoma scored the tying touchdown with 1:28 left to play Saturday, but former Texas manager Kevin Craig's extra point snap sailed over the holder's head and the Sooners had to settle for a 6-6 tie with the Texas Longhorns.

The tie severely damaged the third-ranked Sooner's chances for an unprecedented third consecutive national title.

Oklahoma appeared to have climbed out of the grave for a fourth quarter winning touchdown when Horace Ivory skirted left end from one yard out with 1:38 left to play.

Craig's snap sailed over holder Bud Hebert's hands and in desperation, kicking specialist Uwe von Schamann lobbed a pass which was intercepted by Longhorn defensive back Steve Collier.

The bizarre end to the game was set up when Texas' Ivey Suber fumbled to Oklahoma's Zac Henderson with 5:25 to play. Texas led at that point 6-0 on the strength of Russell Erxleben's field goals of 37 and 41 yards.

President Ford, a national television audience, and a sellout crowd of 72,000 in the Cotton Bowl witnessed the fumble filled contest as Texas Coach Darrell Royal tried to defeat his rival counterpart Barry Switzer for the first time. Royal had charged before the game that Oklahoma had spied on Texas' secret practices prompting a bitter retort from Switzer.

Until Suber's fumble the 16th ranked Longhorns had smothered Oklahoma's self-destructive offense holding it to only one first down.

In fact, the 71st renewal of the series resembled trench warfare as each team punted six times in the first period alone.

Oklahoma sophomore quarterback Thomas Lott, who had not played since the second game of the year, was shoved into the breach after No. 1 quarterback Dean Blevins was sidelined with a groin injury.

Lott was uncertain at the controls, but performed well in the clutch 37-yard scoring drive that had appeared to put the struggling Horns away.

Ivory's touchdown run averted Oklahoma's first shutout in 112 games or since 1966.

The frustrated Longhorns, who had not beaten Oklahoma in six years, owned a 3-0 half-time lead when Ivory's fumble late in the first half put Texas in position for Erxleben's 37-yard field goal.

Erxleben appeared to clinch the contest for Texas with a 41-yard field goal early in the fourth period, giving the Horns a 6-0 lead.

It was the first tie in the series since 1937. Texas still has the overall series edge 42-26-3.

Unbeaten Oklahoma is now 4-0-1 for the year while Texas is 2-1-1.

The Longhorns squandered excellent field positions in the first half driving to the Sooner 26, 27, 31, 30, and 21-yard lines.

However, the Longhorns coughed up the ball three times on fumbles and Erxleben missed on two long-range field goal attempts.

Ivory was the hero of last year's game, dashing for a touchdown late in the fourth quarter in a 24-17 Sooner victory.

The senior from Fort Worth had runs of seven, five, four and then one yard in the Oklahoma rally.

Texas got the game's final break when punter Erxleben was roughed with 20 seconds left in the clock. Oklahoma was penalized to the 50, but Texas failed to move the ball in three plays and punted as the final gun sounded.

Saturday to spur the Mississippi Rebels to a 21-17 upset of the previously unbeaten Bulldogs.

Sixth-ranked Nebraska, stung by four Colorado field goals in the first half, rallied behind the clutch passing of Vince Ferragamo and hard running of substitute Richard Berns to beat the Buffaloes 24-12 Saturday in the Big Eight football opener.

Making His Points

Hereford's Roy Martinez looks upfield as the Dumas punt closes in on him during Friday's night's game, which was won by the Herd 52-12. Martinez romped to four first-quarter touchdowns and added two P.A.'s later for a 26-point outburst in the game. [PHOTO BY LANNY SMITH]

Oklahoma State Stuns Kansas

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Senior quarterback Charlie Weatherbie set up on touchdown with a 51-yard strike to Sam Lisle for the winning tally Saturday as Oklahoma State upended eighth-ranked Kansas, 21-14, in the Big Eight opener for both schools.

The Cowboys, down 14-7 at the half, were pushed around early in the third quarter but came back to tie the score at 14-14 on Terry Miller's one-yard plunge at the end of an 80-yard drive that featured Weatherbie's 51-yard toss that was grabbed by Gerald Bain at the Kansas 27.

Cowboy safety Peter Coppola recovered a fumble by Laverne Smith at the Kansas 35 to start the final period. Weatherbie promptly hit Lisle in the end zone and Abby Daigle's third kick accounted for the final 21-14 score.

Tony Dorsett became the second leading rusher in college football history in helping second-ranked Pittsburgh beat Louisville 27-6 Saturday, but the victory was tainted for the Panthers by an injury to quarterback Matt Cavanaugh.

On a rain-soaked field, Dorsett ran for 130 yards on 30 carries to boost his career rushing total to 4,799 yards.

That moved him past Ed Marinaro's previous second place total of 4,715 yards with Ohio State.

Rich Dansdill rambled 31 yards off tackle midway through the fourth quarter to break a tie and send ninth-ranked Missouri to a 28-21 victory over upstart Kansas State in the Big Eight opener for both teams Saturday.

Ohio State fullback Pete Johnson set a Big Ten Conference career scoring record as he ran for three touchdowns to help the Buckeyes to a 34-14 conference victory over Iowa.

Quarterback Tim Ellis shocked fourth-ranked Georgia with two second-quarter touchdowns passes of 22 and 56 yards to Sammy Williams and another pass to Williams set up Allison's one-yard scoring dive as Tech took a 21-0 first quarter lead.

Allison, who almost held out this year to save eligibility, entered the game with 9:53 left in the first quarter when starter Tommy Duniven hurt his knee on a slashing tackle by A&M's Jesse Hunicutt.

Walker came in late in the second quarter for David Shipman, who had not been able to generate any offense, and guided A&M to 13 third quarter points.

Hall's field goal was set up by a fumble recovery by Harold Buell, who also made a key fourth down stop of Walker inside the Tech 10-yard line.

Hall also kicked a 46-yard field goal, which was set up when Richard Arledge stole the ball from Walker at the A&M 30.

The crowd of 52,651 was third in attendance to the Texas and Baylor games here last year.

A&M freshman halfback Curtis Dickey, a 9.4 sprinter, repeatedly burst through the Tech line and only great open field tackling in the secondary stopped him from breaking on several long touchdown runs.

Red Raiders Hang On To Defeat Struggling Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Rodney Allison won a duel of sub quarterbacks over David Walker Saturday as Texas Tech defeated Texas A&M 27-16 in a Southwest Conference game before the third largest crowd in A&M history. Tech, now 3-0, was ranked No. 15 before the game and A&M, a Southwest Conference tri-champion in 1975, was No. 17.

The loss dropped A&M's record to 3-2, and both losses have come in SWC play.

Allison threw touchdown passes of 22 and 56 yards to Sammy Williams and another pass to Williams set up Allison's one-yard scoring dive as Tech took a 21-0 first quarter lead.

Status Good On New Fish

INGRAM—Research efforts are progressing and biologists are encouraged with experiments being conducted on exotic African and South American game fish.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department inland fisheries personnel at Heart-of-the-Hills Research Station have been experimenting with peacock bass and Nile perch for possible stocking in selected power plant reservoirs around the state.

There are 37 man-made reservoirs used to cool electric power plants in Texas, more are in the planning or construction stages.

P&WD biologists believe these warm-water lakes would be ideal for either exotic species, and expect to conduct temperature and salinity tolerance tests on fry secured from the first spaw.

"We have 255 Nile perch and 55 peacock bass for broodstock," said Bill Rutledge, P&WD fisheries biologist. Nile perch, secured in August 1975 from Lakes Rudolph and Tanganyika in Africa, will not reach sexual maturity before 1980. It would not be until 1984 that actual stocking efforts would be contemplated.

"We have to know every characteristic of these fish before releasing them into Texas reservoirs," Rutledge said. One problem that must be overcome in cannibalism by the fish.

"This is typical species of fish from Lake Tanganyika. This fish peck each other's eyes out. The cut becomes infected and they die," Rutledge said. Perch at the P&WD have voracious appetites, he said. They currently are fed some seven pounds of forage daily.

Hall's field goal was set up by a fumble recovery by Harold Buell, who also made a key fourth down stop of Walker inside the Tech 10-yard line.

BUY ANY OTHER NAME IT'S NOT THE SAME
When you purchase a fine jewelry item, be sure you know what you are buying. Terminology used in jewelry industry sometimes confuses the consumer.

The term natural is applied to a gemstone that was created by nature. The only man-made modifications allowed are cutting and polishing.

The term synthetic refers to a man-made gemstone possessing essentially the same chemical, optical and physical properties as the natural stone. This means that the stone must be made from the same chemical substance as the natural stone as well as resemble and behave like it. Several stones have been successfully synthesized in the past century, the finest examples of which are synthetic emerald, ruby, sapphire and alexandrite. Fine synthetics have gained great respect in the industry.

A man-made stone that does have essentially the same chemical, optical and physical properties as the natural it resembles is called an imitation. Most companies manufacturing such a project use the term simulated. The stones are generally of poor quality and lack the beauty and value of the natural or synthetic stones.

One other item to be aware of is the substitute. This is a natural stone that is passed off as a more valuable gem. For example, red zircon and spinel sometimes resemble ruby and could be passed off as such.

The integrity of your jeweler pays an important role here. The consumer must depend on the skill and knowledge of his jeweler to guarantee that he is actually receiving what he's paying for. American Gem Society jewelers are trained to correctly identify gemstones. The AGS emblem in a fine jewelry store assures you of getting what you pay for.

Business Helping Arabs Will Be Publicized

WASHINGTON (AP)- American businesses being asked by Arab countries to honor the economic boycott of Israel will have their identities made public from now on.

Those disclosures will be made by the Commerce Department in cases of boycott requests that U.S. businesses receive after Thursday. Firms that received such requests in the past will not be identified publicly.

The new policy is the result of the policy reversal that President Ford announced during the Wednesday night debate with Jimmy Carter when Ford said the names of U.S. companies participating in the boycott will be made public.

Ford's handling of the Arab boycott during the debate is generating some sharp criticism about what he intended.

He is being criticized by Democrats for misrepresenting Congress as opposing legislation to counter the boycott while portraying his administration as working for such a law.

The confusion stemmed from Ford's statement that the names of U.S. companies that "have participated in" the boycott would be disclosed. However, the Commerce Department said Thursday that only the names of the companies involved with the boycott after Oct. 7 will be disclosed.

The crux of the boycott is the wish of the Arab nations to put economic pressure on Israel by refusing to do business with foreign companies that in turn do business with Israel.

The Arab nations obtain that information by requiring companies to fill out questionnaires which the United States considers boycott requests before they can be approved for a business transaction.

Such questionnaires are often sent to a number of different firms for a single transaction such as the manufacturer, the bank that supplies financing and the shipping company that transports the product.

The Commerce Department now requires American companies to report to the department when they get such requests. Up to now, the names of those companies have been kept a secret by the department.

Under Ford's order, the earliest any names would be disclosed is Oct. 29, since companies are required to report 15 days after receiving any boycott requests. Despite Ford's statements Wednesday night making it appear otherwise, the Ford administration lobbied hard against recent efforts in Congress to make it illegal for U.S. companies to comply with the boycott.

Another anti-boycott measure was included in the recent tax bill that Ford signed. The new law denies business tax credits to any U.S. firm on any earnings derived as the result of participation in the boycott.

Although Ford did not mention that his administration had opposed the tax action, a Treasury Department staff member acknowledged Thursday. "We spent a lot of time working against it."

Heavy Heroin Taken In Drug Crackdown

DALLAS (AP)-More than 600 pounds of Mexican heroin valued at more than $50,000 per pound have been seized since last May in a nationwide crack-down that was climaxed Thursday with a rash of new arrests, Drug Enforcement Administration DEA officials have announced.

DEA Deputy Regional Director Edward Heath said that 230 suspects were arrested in the latest series of busts, including 59 Texas residents.

Heath said the six-month nationwide crack-down by federal officials in cooperation with Mexican authorities has "immobilized" the large Mexican heroin smuggling organization.

Suspects were arrested in 35 cities across the country including Detroit, Chicago, Phoenix, Los Angeles and San Diego, Calif. In Texas, arrests were made at San Antonio, El Paso, Houston, McAllen, Corpus Christi, Austin and Laredo.

The investigation was aimed at disrupting the flow of Mexican heroin into the United States, officials said, now makes up 70 to 90 per cent of the heroin brought into this country since shipment of heroin from Turkey and Europe was curtailed.

Heath said that in addition to the 615 pounds of heroin that has been confiscated in the last six months, a large number of weapons, cars and one helicopter have been seized.

Heath said San Antonio was the main distribution point in Texas.

The latest heroin bust was the confiscation of 28 pounds in Eagle Pass Tuesday.

Heath said the seizure was kept "under wraps because the investigation was still going on and the people in Chicago had not been arrested."

Late last month agents confiscated 29 pounds in another series of raids in Austin and Corpus Christi.

Heath said that in Houston, police and Harris County officers used a court-ordered writ that led to 31 indictments and the seizure of 2 1/2 pounds of heroin.

In McAllen, DEA agent-in-charge Don Smith said, "Mexican federal police, acting on information from DEA, are in the process of destroying several major opium crops in Mexico."

He said 209 arrests have been made in Texas since May and "of those arrested, 96 are considered high level bosses in drug trafficking organizations or at least lieutenants in charge of drug handling."

Israelis, Arabs Avoid Direct Confrontations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - The Israelis and Arabs are swapping their customary inective at the U.N. General Assembly, but they are deliberately skirting any direct confrontations.

Most Arab diplomats stalked out Thursday when Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Alon rose to address the general debate.

Allon promptly lashed into the Arabs, accusing them of dragging the United Nations down a "dangerous path of politicization." He also blamed the Arabs for the conflict in Lebanon and gave a detailed catalogue of intra-Arab disputes flaring across the Mideast.

"There is only one island of stability in this stormy area, and that is Israel," he said. Alon did not mention the Palestine Liberation Organization by name. He referred to it indirectly once as a "gang of terrorists" instigating the fighting in Lebanon.

Israeli diplomats said the PLO was not mentioned because they intend to ignore the organization. The PLO was named by the United Nations as the legitimate representative of the Palestinian people, but is in danger of being dismembered by the Syrians in Lebanon.

By not mentioning the PLO, the Israelis headed off what had shaped up as a major confrontation over an expected demand by the Palestinians for the right to reply. Only governments are permitted to address the assembly, and both Israel and the United States came to battle to keep the PLO from speaking.

The PLO source said there now was no reason to press the fight. However, Farouk Kadoumi, the PLO's top foreign policy official, said he would be back in November for debate on the Palestinian issue.

Observers noted that out of nearly 100 speakers so far, only about 25 referred to the Arab-Israeli issue at all and that most of the references were couched in conciliatory calls for a peace settlement.

As expected, the speakers for Syria, Iraq and Libya assailed the "Zionist entity"—Israel. But diplomats noted that the Arabs offered no new approach, and sources said they were too divided to organize any common front or to lobby with other Third World states.

The weakness of the Arabs was illustrated in a meeting of the social committee, where African states indicated they were trying to disassociate their struggle against racism in southern Africa from the Arabs' resolution last year equating Zionism with racism.

Asking Western nations to resume their support for the African's Decade for Action Against Racism, Mrs. Habiba A. Balgun on Nigeria told committee members that "no aspect of the resolutions on the decade, no clause is designed to make any kind of reference to the resolution on Zionism."

The United States and West European states again withheld support, but diplomats indicated the Africans were making every effort to break the link with the Arab resolution and that they might succeed in convincing the West before the end of the session.

The sloth is a tree-dwelling South American animal. It spends almost all of its life upside down, eating and sleeping in that manner.

Briscoe May Run Again For Office

DALLAS (AP) - Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Thursday he hasn't decided whether or not to run for another term, but State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest said he's convinced Briscoe will seek another four-year term.

Briscoe told the Dallas Times Herald editorial board, "I would think next year would be the time to make that decision."

Briscoe said he likes the job, finds it challenging, and is proud of his record.

"I'll say this, as I travel around the state I find stronger support today than I had in my first two elections," he said.

Briscoe was first elected to a two-year constitution was revised allowing state office holders four-year terms. Briscoe was re-elected in 1974. Should he run again and win, he would be elected to the office for a longer period than any other Texas governor—10 years.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. has ruled the name of former U.S. Senator Eugene McCarthy must appear on the Nov. 2 ballot in Texas as an independent presidential candidate.

Secretary of State Mark White said the high court's decision will create chaos for state election officials. White labeled Powell's ruling "harmful" and "expensive".

Powell also ruled McCarthy does not have to submit petitions bearing signatures of voters supporting his candidacy to the secretary of state.

Officials announced the state will attempt to get the Supreme Court to reconsider its decision. Robert Lemons, director of the election division of the secretary of state's office, said the decision may delay absentee balloting in some areas.

He said printing firms are already having difficulties with the already large Texas general election ballot and some may not be able to add McCarthy's name. One Austin company which prints ballots for 60 counties and punch cards for six others said 240,000 paper ballots had already been printed.

McCarthy's name is now on the ballot in 27 states and he is attempting to get on the ballot in 16 other states.

Justice Powell said he conferred with other Supreme Court justices on the matter, and a majority agreed. However, he said justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist requested that Powell indicate on his order that they do not concur.

Amendment Pushed
A Woodville attorney is heading a statewide committee to sell Texas voters on adoption of Constitutional Amendment 2 which calls for a $100 million addition to the state's clean water bond program.

Josiah Wheat, chairman of the Texans for Clean Water Committee, said less than $25 million of the original $100 million remains in the Water Quality Enhancement Fund approved by voters in 1971.

The self-liquidating state bonding program was designed to aid cities and towns with construction of sewage treatment facilities. Local governments borrow money, on a pay back basis, from the fund to improve or rebuild their facilities when money is not available from other sources.

The additional $100 million "must be provided if Texas communities are to improve their sewage treatment facilities and the rivers and streams in the state are to be properly protected," Wheat said.

Wheat pointed out that "Citizens Against Water Taxes" and similar groups are not opposed to Constitutional Amendment 2. He said these groups are dedicated to defeating Amendment 1 which would authorize the sale of an additional $400 million in Texas Water Development Bonds to be used for water development purposes.

Briscoe Eyes UT Budget
Despite previous conflicts with University of Texas officials, Gov. Briscoe says he doesn't want to do any "hatchet job" on UT's budget, but he does want to make all universities accountable for their spending. House Higher Education Subcommittee members seem to agree with the governor. Committee members said they felt demeaned and insulted by educators after the committee called for a limit on the number of teaching assistants at state-funded institutions.

Bell Hearings Set
Hearings on Southwestern Bell's rate increase request will get underway Nov. 1 before the Public Utility Commission.

PUC limited the number of attorneys who can take part in the hearings and set up categories for protesters: the Municipal League representing over 90 cities; U.S. General Services Administration; AFL-CIO and consumer groups; Communications Workers of America and Texas Retail Federation.

The Commission also suspended Bell's increase for 120 days. Bell proposed the rate hike to become effective Oct. 7.

PUC refused to order Bell to publish a consumer bill of rights in its December directories.

Hobby Irked
Senate Secretary Charles Schnabel's retention by the Senate drew Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's ire. Hobby said Schnabel "absolutely" should be fired.

Schnabel pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor in return for dropping five felony indictments. He received a $2,000 fine and one year's probation. Some grand jury members weren't happy with the leniency of the sentence.

Meanwhile, Attorney General John Hill issued a report calling for a number of reform measures in the Senate Secretary's office, including closer auditing and accounting procedures, eliminating the use of payroll checks for other services, prohibiting cashing of state warrants by loan companies without employees' endorsements and stricter inventory procedures on Senate property.

Hobby and Schnabel agreed on the reform measures. However Hobby said the Senate Administration Committee had already considered and adopted some of the reforms.

AG Opinions
The Brenham State School is not a public school and is not entitled to available school funds, Atty. Gen. John Hill has held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

A state-supported institution of higher education is a "governmental agency," and as such its employees are exempt from the Psychologists Certification and Licensing act.

A 1971 act granting Corpus Christi submerged lands for a public beach with compensation to the School Fund is unconstitutional.

The Texas Surface Mining and Reclamation Act does not authorize regulation by the Texas Railroad Commission of surface mining operations solely involving production of clay.

Short Snorts
Rep. Dave Allred, Wichita Falls, is in Austin's Brackridge Hospital recovering from injuries received in a recent auto accident. His son, James, was also injured in the three-car mishap.

Despite rumors to the contrary, Rep. Calvin Rucker of Cedar Hill says he has no plans to quit the House for a state job.

State Treasurer Jesse James reports tourists paid $10.3 million in hotel-motel taxes in the 10 months ending June 30, an increase of 13.5 per cent.

GOP Chairman Ray Hutchison is trying to persuade Ronald Reagan to come to Dallas and other Texas cities to work for Republican candidates.

Supreme Court nominee Donald Yarbrough says he might not stay on the court for a full term if elected in November.

Except during the Civil War, passports were not needed to enter or leave the United States until 1918.

Thailand's Military To Hand Over Government Control

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's new military rulers have promised to relinquish power to a civilian government, possibly within a few months, informed diplomatic sources said today.

Bangkok, a city of four million, remained calm for the second day today, and no open opposition to the regime was reported. All schools were closed, and residents were forbidden to meet for political purposes in groups of more than five.

A midnight-to-dawn curfew instituted Wednesday was lifted Thursday.

The sources said acting Foreign Minister Anant Payarachun briefed Bangkok's diplomatic corps Thursday night. He said there would be no change in Thailand's foreign policy, that the situation was calm and the way was being paved for a return to a civilian-led democracy.

Retired Navy admiral Sangad Chalawuy seized power Wednesday after bloody and vicious street fighting between right-wing groups and university students and a full-scale police assault on a Bangkok school. Forty-one persons were killed in the violence.

Chalawuy declared martial law and arrested some 3,100 persons as subversives, most of them university students. The arrests had apparently stopped by today, but police said they were still investigating "potential troublemakers" and looking for Communist literature.

Charges against those arrested include insulting Thailand's monarchy, Communist involvement resisting arrest and illegal possession of weapons. All were being held without bail, and some face life prison sentences if convicted before a military tribunal.

Chalawuy has ordered civilians to turn in all "weapons and explosive devices that are normally used on the battlefield" by next Thursday or face imprisonment for from two to 20 years. Thailand has almost no gun laws, and private weapons are common.

The 24-member military council headed by Chalawuy, called the National Executive Committee, has adopted a strong anti-Communist stand and has accused "Vietnamese Communists" of fomenting trouble.

Radio Thailand announced that a pro-American, anti-Communist four-man group would advise the council on foreign policy. The group include Thanat Khoman, one-time foreign minister in the military regime of Thanom Kittikachorn, which was toppled from power almost three years ago in a student-led uprising, and Sunthorn Hongladarom, secretary-general of the U.S.-

backed Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Thanat told reporters he felt a civilian government could be formed within three months, but some observers were skeptical. Thailand has seen a sawed between military domination and parliamentary democracy since absolute monarchy was abolished 44 years ago. There have been 14 coups since World War II.

Bangkok's more than 30 newspapers have halted publication, waiting for the military regime's approval of applications to publish. Strict censorship of the local press was ordered almost immediately after the coup.

Spelling Theft
Before Noah Webster compiled his dictionary, he produced one of the most useful volumes ever printed in English, the Blue-Back Speller. Unscrupulous publishers pirated the Speller and reprinted it without payment or credit. This led Webster to devise and champion the federal copyright law which Congress enacted in 1790 to protect the rights of authors. An 1870 law made the Library of Congress the first central agency for the registration and custody of copyright deposits in the U.S.

Bugged King
In the 13th century, England's King John hunted game near Kingsclere, in Hampshire, forcing the inhabitants to feed and house him and his retinue each time he came. On one visit, he was so badly bitten by harvest bugs he hastily departed. Grateful townspeople erected a weathervane in the shape of the insect, and it still tops the church there.

California makes five distinct types of wines: appetizer, white table, red table, dessert and sparkling.

FOR SO MANY PEOPLE

CORNER CATCHER

The only center pivot in the world that hits the corners.

In a typical quarter section where a regular center pivot is irrigating 132 acres, you can now do about 150 acres. But the new Valley Corner System isn't limited to squares. Irrigate both ends of a rectangle. Irrigate odd shaped pieces of land too. It's the answer to getting valuable productive land that's been wasted, back under center pivot irrigation.

For flood irrigators, it's also the answer to automatic water and labor saving center pivot, without wasting valuable acres. No monitoring, no labor problems, no night work. But you have all the advantages of precise irrigation and fertilizer application through the system, that produces higher yields than ever before. It's a simple concept, precise in operation and engineered with quality of all Valley-built Center Pivots.

Don Oakley Press victory carries obligations

By Don Oakley

Journalism is alive and doing very well in the United States. Four newsmen with the Fresno (Calif.) Bee, who spent 15 days in jail rather than tell a court how they obtained a secret grand jury transcript about alleged bribery, were praised by none other than the California Bar Association at its recent annual convention.

"The courage of the Fresno four in declining to reveal their source of information on pain of imprisonment is commended by this conference," stated a resolution passed by the lawyers by a vote of 229 to 190.

Even Superior Court Judge Hollis Best, who sentenced the four in a case that went all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, acknowledged upon releasing them that "there is an articulated moral principle in the news media" against disclosing sources.

That principle was perhaps best articulated by CBS reporter Daniel Schorr, who at about the same time was explaining to the Ethics Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives why he could not disclose his source of a secret intelligence report he leaked to the Village Voice, a New York newspaper.

"To betray a source would be to betray myself, my career and my life," he told the congressmen. "It is not as simple as saying that I refuse to do it. I cannot do it."

The profession of journalism, that essential bulwark of our democratic freedoms, has been immeasurably enhanced by the behavior of the newsmen involved in these celebrated cases. But all who call themselves journalists must constantly remind themselves that to presume to act upon high moral principle is also to assume a tremendous obligation to the public.

The principle so well exemplified and vindicated by these newsmen and others before them must never be compromised by mere rumor-mongering or sensationalism or irresponsible reportage of any kind under the guise of "the public's right to know."

As the late Adlai Stevenson once remarked, it is often easier to fight for principles than to live up to them.

Consolation debate

At least two of the numerous minority presidential candidates who have complained about being frozen out of the Ford-Carter television debates have one dubious consolation. Eugene F. McCarthy, former U.S. senator from Minnesota, and Lester G. Maddox, ex-governor of Florida, have been invited to debate on the "Blueboy Forum," which is billed as "the nation's first weekly, live, sponsored forum from a gay perspective" and which will debut Oct. 25 on WKID-TV in Hallandale, Fla.

Ford and Carter have enough TV time set with their debates," points out the program's host, Donald N. Embinder, publisher of "Blueboy," a magazine slanted for homosexuals.

In issuing the invitations to McCarthy and Maddox, M. Brian Wedekind, producer of the forum, stated: "With an estimated 200,000 homosexuals in Dade County alone, your contact with and support from this sizable bloc of voters could be most helpful in your campaign."

Maybe so. But somehow we have a hunch that neither candidate is exactly going to jump at the opportunity.

FCC throws CB industry a curve

Beginning January 1, the nation's millions of Citizens Band addicts will gain a little breathing space in their crowded radio space. The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) had decided to allocate a total of 40 channels to CB, an increase of 17 over the present 23.

In doing so, however, the FCC has thrown industry a curve, and unnecessarily so, in the opinion of one concerned observer. It is another example of government regulators regulating without fully considering the effect on the people they regulate, says V.J. Rice, president of The Antenna Specialists Co. in Cleveland.

The effective date of the new channels should have been delayed until at least the middle of next year, he argues, to enable manufacturers to clear their inventories of 23-channel models and gear up for production of the new 40-channel models. Already, he says, one consequence of the decision has been widespread discounting of 23-channel sets, with attendant economic dislocation in the industry.

There will be another scramble, he predicts, as manufacturers submit new 40-channel radios to the FCC for type certification. This is a process that takes a minimum of a month and could mean that only a few lucky makers will have approved radios for sale on 40-channel day in January.

As a company that makes nothing but communications antennas and related accessories, and which sells more of them than any other manufacturer in the country, Antenna Specialists is not directly affected by FCC decision-making. But as a CBer himself, and as a person active in the electronic industry's affairs, Rice is strongly critical of the commission's entire performance as regards Citizens Band Radio.

At the very least, he points out, the decision has caused quite a bit of confusion in the minds of consumers, and the currently available 23-channel radios are now being viewed as very questionable investments by the buying public.

This is unfortunate, says Rice, since the 23-channel sets will provide more than adequate communication ability to any purchaser. Although 40-channel sets will, of course, have 17 additional channels for conversation, most people aren't aware that the range of the 40-channel sets will not be nearly so great as that of the present 23-channel radios.

Anyway, he adds, the idea that an individual needs 40 channels for conversation borders on the ludicrous, since most active CBers normally use only about half a dozen channels.

The president of another company which does happen to be directly affected by FCC decision-making agrees with Rice about the future of 23-channel CB.

"Not only will the current 23-channel sets continue to be quite useable but their value, in terms of less crowding, will increase with the addition of 17 new channels," says W.L. Thomas, president of Pace, the largest supplier of CB radios. They will become considerably less congested and easier to "get out" on.

Consumers who are thinking about the purchase of a CB radio but don't know whether to wait for the 40-channel models can have the best of both worlds. A number of manufacturers, including Pace, are offering customers who buy 23-channel sets the opportunity to have their units factory-modified to 40 channels after January 1, for about 20 per cent of the unit's suggested list price.

Amid all the confusion and controversy, two things are certain: The Citizens Band phenomenon is here to stay, and the FCC has not issued its last ruling concerning it. And that's a big ten four.

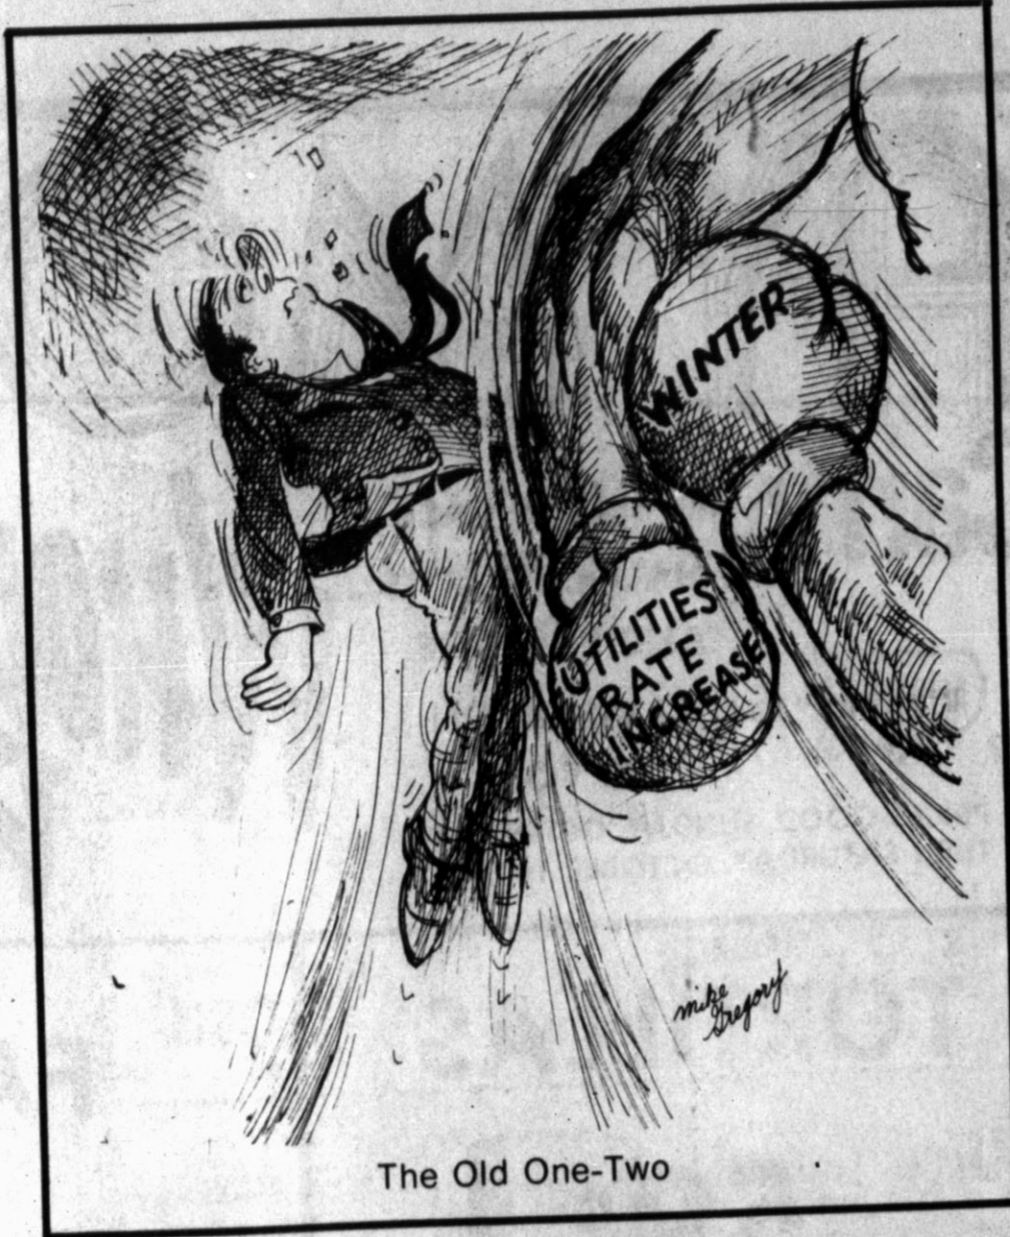

Kitchen Sponge Enters Surgery

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The housewife's common plastic sponge is getting to be as useful in medicine as it is in the kitchen.

To form these sponges, polyvinyl alcohol is converted into a sponge-like substance by foaming agents and then hardened with formaldehyde. The material is inert, compressible by 10-15 to 1 when wet and has a plastic memory so it can resume its original shape when not under pressure. It is compatible with human tissues and the body won't reject it.

The latest application in medicine was devised by three radiologists at the University of Minnesota Hospitals here. Tiny amounts of the sponge are placed on the tip of a catheter and, under x-ray control, inserted in a blood vessel to halt bleeding or to rob a tumor of its blood supply.

Natural geysers are found on Iceland in the North Atlantic.

In-Sense

Mr. Will Rogers Heaven-U.S.A. Branch

Dear Will,
You will never believe what has happened down here, we lost our sense of humor. Everything is so serious we may all die of no-laugh-itus.

The problem is that we no longer have anything to joke about.

The Woman's Lib got so serious we dare not tell any jokes about women. Not even mother's-in-laws.

The politicians got so "Watergated" that now their foibles have become crimes.

Will, if you did not tell jokes about politicians, you would have died as just a pretty good goat-roper.

The minority groups rose up in such anger that we dare not even refer to them seriously much less in humor. Ask Earl Butz.

About all that's left are Aggie jokes which grow pretty thin and jokes about sex and bathrooms, which cannot be told everywhere you know.

Can you imagine a country that laughed its way through depressions, wars and dust bowls, now seeing no humor in a politician and his girl-friend swimming in the tide basin?

Will, there was more laughter in the soup lines of the 30's than there is now in the mansions of the 70's. Thats bad!

I can imagine what you would have done at the last gathering of the Monkeys for their National Conventions. Instead of you we had Walter Cronkite and Barry Goldwater. That is about as funny as cancer!

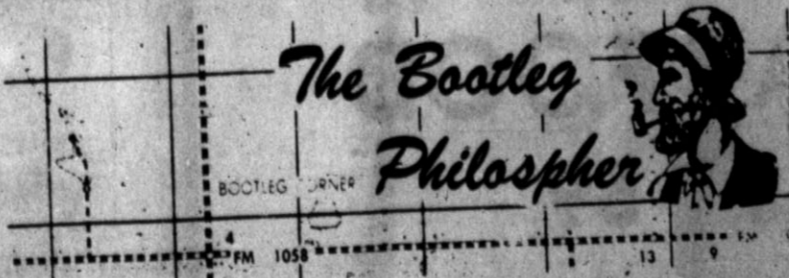

Can you imagine anything as dangerous as taking a political convention seriously? I enjoyed thinking about how much fun you would have had if you had been there.

Will, we are funnier than ever, but no one is laughing. Everything is a sign of doom. You could have saved us from all this paranoia and had fun at the same time.

I know you can't come back Will, but the next time you are telling God some yarn about how funny things are up there, see if He can't send us another one like you.

What this country needs more than anything else is one good, long laugh.

Signed,
ALL OF US

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner has an idea for the Great Debates this week.

Dear editor:
I listened to the Great Debate the first go-round between President Ford and Governor Carter and when I couldn't tell who won, I got hold of all the newspapers I could to see what the columnists had to say and also I listened to the television commentators, and as best I can tell nobody won, it was a tie.

So it seems to me the League of Women Voters, sponsor of the debates, ought to change the rules a little. In case of a tie, just as in professional football, they ought to go into over-time. If after 90 minutes nobody has won, stop for three minutes for the candidates to catch their breath and try to recall their memorized answers and to give the listeners across the national time to get to the refrigerator and back. Then go for 15 minutes more. If at that point nobody has scored, go another 15 minutes, then if necessary another, and another, etc.

You realize of course the debate might go on all night.

If by daylight nobody has won, give the championship to the Dallas Cowboys.

Changing the subject, like a politician does when he doesn't know the answer either, I understand that England is in grave financial trouble. The English pound, which used to be worth $4.80, has now dropped to $1.63.

England is in worse shape than she realizes, when you consider that on top of her pound's now being worth only $1.63, a dollar is worth only 50 cents. Figure it out for yourself.

The British need to be shielded

Where Did I Leave Off?

I've been absent from this page for almost a month, but now I'm back. It seems like an eternity since a daily newspaper often makes the time past more rapidly although the days and weeks seem longer after they're over.

The column is my favorite duty but September was a busy month with football games and a volume of news stories. It would have been written except time hasn't allowed it.

Of course, some persons would have preferred that I remain off this page. Hopefully, they are few in number. Naturally, they are the ones whose toes may get stepped on once and awhile in the course of my editorial writings.

That's enough of a "happy to be back speech". Let it suffice that I hope to continue the column on a more regular basis provided my well of ideas doesn't run dry.

BT—
A lot has happened recently especially concerning the national political race and the local court activity.

I survived the first two presidential debates, as boring as they often seemed to be. But they provided a clear insight into both candidates. Both have faults although the incumbent Gerald Ford still has a lot of convincing to do before I lean his way.

Jimmy Carter still has my vote even though his vacillation on the issues does present confusing moments. He still has more of a chance to get the country started on the right track again.

For any of you out there who are bothered by his Playboy interview. Forget it. It has no relevant significance for the election. The men should be judged on leadership ability and their position on the issues. Even Ford has a right to a few failures and shouldn't be judged on personal habits or slipups.

Facial features and charisma aren't going to solve any problems.

It's time to get interested in the future of your country and back up your concern by a vote even if the men in the running aren't quite perfect for the job.

If we could survive Nixon and his ineptness, we can weather the two men nominated by the Republican and Democratic parties.

I know several individuals for instance that are still going to cast a ballot if for no other reason than to show a distaste for the Watergate era—namely Tricky Dick. They connect Ford to Nixon through the pardon and are voting more against the Republicans rather than in favor of Carter.

At least they're voting. What about you.

-BT-

The trials of the past two weeks have shown a definite public feeling for strict law and order. Juries have decided stiff penalties and without probation in many cases.

It should be a signal for the legal profession, mostly judges, to get with it and match the sentences with the crimes committed. The people are doing what they can through the judicial system as it exists.

And citizens aren't taking their duty lightly as juries have remained out for five and six-hour periods lasting way into the night. This reporter even waited up with one of those juries when it decided an appropriate sentence in a murder case two weeks ago.

The jury returned at 11:30 p.m. after two days of solid trial and a jury in a drug trial this week pronounced a six-year term without probation after meeting until after midnight Monday.

A total of 11 persons have been sent to prison without probation. However, justice has mercy as another 22 received probation, which can be effective at times.

The main problem locally is the vast six-county district court which only allows criminal and civil trials here about every two months. It's time for our separate court, which is in the hands of the next legislature. It has the authority to create a court out of Deaf Smith and Oldham counties.

Everytime I am able to cover the courts, my faith in America's judicial system is renewed. It maybe sluggish at times, but it provides the fairest justice ever known to man.

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maguire

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY— With baseball's World Series in the spotlight again, it's interesting to recall that Abner Doubleday, the father of America's favorite sport, spent two years in Texas as an Army officer.

Doubleday did not invent the game of baseball. He did develop it into a payable game, however, while he was a student at Otsego Classical and Military Academy in Cooperstown, N.Y. The young cadet laid out a playing field in the shape of a diamond and drew up a set of rules that launched the game as a sport.

Later he was appointed to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and in 1842 received his commission as a second lieutenant. He served with Zachary Taylor in the war with Mexico and held the rank of major general of volunteers in the Civil War.

After the war, Doubleday transferred to the regular army with the rank of lieutenant colonel. In 1869 he was promoted to colonel and given command of the 24th Infantry, a Negro regiment stationed in Texas. He assumed that command in 1871 and was headquartered at Fort McKavett on the San Saba River near the present town of Menard.

to secure the frontier against Indian raids.

SCHOOL DAZE— Students at Seguin's old Montgomery Institute had to memorize a page from the Bible and one from the dictionary each day.

THE READERS WRITE— "What in the world," asks Mrs. Steve Davis of Richardson, "is the dish known as 'son-of-a-gun' stew?"

It's a culinary treat for which every chuck wagon cook had a favorite, and slightly different, recipe. Each, however, requires one ingredient: marrow gut.

Marrow gut is the passage from the first stomach to the second of any cud-chewing animal. In a young calf, this passage is filled with a substance resembling bone marrow, placed there by nature to filter the mother's milk. Since this marrow gut is a necessity for "son-of-a-gun" stew, it's necessary to butcher a baby calf at the start.

While the animal is still warm, remove the marrow gut, heart, liver, brains and tenderloin. Render the animal fat and place in a large cooking pot.

Cut up the heart (it's tough) and add to the pot. Allow it to cook slowly, then dice the tongue and add it. The tenderloin and sweetbreads can be cut up while the pot is cooking, covered with water and then added slowly, a handful at a time. Usually the brains are cooked separately, then added to the stew.

Add flour to thicken, an onion or two for flavor and salt and pepper to taste. Cook until tasting says it's just right. Mmmm, good!

Jeff Carter Ready For Apology

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Jeff Carter, son of Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, says he will apologize to evangelist Billy Graham for saying Graham paid $5 for a doctor's degree.

Carter said in the telephone interview with an Oklahoma City radio talk show host that, although he feels he was misquoted, he has asked "our press people to get Billy Graham's telephone number... and I will apologize."

A tape recording of a speech by the Candidates youngest son in Tulsa last week showed that he said:

"You know, Billy Graham is a doctor of religion.... You know, Billy Graham's doctorate of religion doesn't come from a college. It's just one that he bought. It cost $5."

In answer to questions, young

Carter said Tuesday night: "I said that he had an honorary doctorate and the Universal Life Church sold them. I didn't mean to imply that he had bought his."

"I was trying to say that a big evangelist like Billy Graham should not be involved in politics because when they come out and endorse a candidate, inevitably it turns the other side of that congregation off."

The Comment, he said, "was one of those stupid comments that people make from time to time that you regret. I got bogged down and said to much of my own opinion in kind of an offhand and casual way, and it got picked up. That's why I don't give my opinions on things, usually."

He said his father and Graham "get along very well."

Women Change Gears and Fix Cars

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP)—The new status symbol for women here is not a hammered gold bracelet or hand-painted T-shirt, but a half moon of grease under the nails.

It's this year's "in" look in an auto manufacturer's warranty processing department.

Six months ago, vivacious Lucretia Nuzzolo would have shuddered and sprinted for scrub brush and nail white. Now she beams at her battered fingernails and says, "I can't wait until Tuesday to tear another engine apart."

Ms. Nuzzolo checks claims submitted by dealers for repairs covered under the Toyota warranty, work once done only by men.

Eight women, age 22 through 45, volunteered for a technical training course that's making them at ease with tachometers, ratchet wrenches and feeler gauges.

"We're having a ball," says Ms. Nuzzolo, who along with the others prefers that designation. "As a kid I loved to watch my father and brothers work on the car. Of course I was never allowed to touch," she said with a smile. "But even today if he saw me tearing down and rebuilding a carburetor, my father wouldn't believe his eyes."

Dale Shepard, the pioneer woman in the department, has handled thousands of claims in seven years. But until she enrolled in the course, she says, she'd never even looked under the hood of a car.

"What a difference it makes!" she said. "Now when I get a claim for a set of wheel bearings I know exactly what parts are needed. I even know how long the job should take."

What this means, she says, is that the women — they're known as the Tiger Team — process claims more speedily and accurately because they don't have to look up everything in a book.

British-born Reg Melling is the man responsible for transforming eight white-collar women who didn't know a crankshaft from an exhaust valve into grease monkeys who can tear down and overhaul transmissions, install timing chains and perform complete valve jobs. They claim he started the course in self-defense.

AUTO KNOW-HOW—Car repair and maintenance is something every woman ought to know say Sharon Tocco, Miriam Moss and Lucretia Nuzzolo, left to right, as they give this car a 12,500 mile checkup.

They're students in a Torrance, Calif. course geared to teaching women all of the automotive essentials from oil checks to transmission overhauls.

"We were always bugging him with questions," Ms. Shepard explains. "He wanted to get us out of his hair."

Melling's teaching technique is simplicity itself. He shows them the diagram in the book, tells them what to do and walks away. If the unit doesn't work when they put it together again, they have to backtrack until they find out what they did wrong. "If we make a mistake he never tells us," says Ms. Shepard. "The only way you can get home for dinner is to get it right!"

The program, known as FAT (Fundamentals of Automotive Technology), consists of a class of two or three hours once a week. The eight students work in teams of four. While one team may be working on brakes, the other is taking the transmission apart. Each time the women do an assignment they do it in more detail and become more proficient.

"They're making up for what they missed in their teens," Melling says. "That's the age when almost every boy goes through a hot-rod period and learns about engines."

"It's the first time I've felt independent behind the wheel of my car," Ms. Nuzzolo says. "Now I know if anything goes wrong on the road I don't have to wait for a mechanic. I can fix it myself. I think every woman who drives should take a course like this."

Harry Chosen hit safely in 49 straight games for Mobile, Ala., of the Southern Association in 1945.

Lewis Flick, playing for Little Rock, Ark., in a Southern Association game in 1946, made nine hits in nine trips to the plate. The game went 19 innings.

Look for Beef Specials: Freeze Now for Later

AUSTIN—Consumers can expect to find many bargains at the meat counter this fall, and some of the best buys should be in the beef section.

The Texas Department of Agriculture home economist advises consumers to look for beef specials and take advantage of them to fill the freezer.

She reminds consumers that special care is required when freezing prepackaged fresh meats from the supermarket display case.

Before freezing, the store wrapping must be removed for two reasons. First, the great amount of air contained in store packages contributes to freezer burn. Second, the clear wrap used to wrap the meat is not strong enough for freezer storage.

Texas-OU Weekend Wild As In Past

DALLAS (AP)—Wild Weldon of Waxahachie, the young man with beer in hand described himself, trod the streets of Big D on the eve of the Texas-Oklahoma football game.

"You know why all these people are here?" he said. "I'll tell you why all these people are here. They're as crazy as I am."

Weldon and several thousand other folk in various stages of inebriation-booze or otherwise—were taking part in the traditional street orgy.

The success of the evening is normally measured by the number of those thrown in the pokey for the night.

Dallas police, reading a form like a quarterly stock report, said 42 had been arrested by midnight, compared with 37 at the same time last year.

By 8 p.m. the streets were rolling with human bodies, and two hours later it was madness. These were Texas Orange and Oklahoma Red everywhere, with symbols and signs declaring one's loyalty popping up like daisies.

Some car horns just honked; others played "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You."

Police were in pairs or quartets about every half block along Commerce, one of the busiest thoroughfares.

The early evening was remarkably free of any violence, prompting Elrod Williamson of Tyler to remark:

"If this is OU weekend, I'll take Tyler on a Wednesday night."

While downtown was crowded, it was a little slow for the ladies of the evening who play their trade in the Oak Lawn area north of the main city.

It wasn't apparent whether the football fans had lost interest in the ladies or if the ladies were interested in the college kids.

The only hint of rivalry came when some bearded and blue-jeaned men who identified themselves as messengers of God yelled to the women that only the blood of Christ could save them.

Center fielder Ron LeFlore of the Detroit Tigers hit in 30 straight American League games last spring.

Both the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox had 10-game losing streaks last spring.

Lewis University of Lockport, Ill., won its last 12 tournament games in taking the 20th NABA World Series baseball title.

Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders has been voted the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the National Hockey League's top defenseman for the 1975-76 season.

Couple Married Friday In Canyon Sanctuary

The First United Methodist Church at Canyon was the site of the marriage Friday evening of Miss Lynn Gay Wiley of that city and Carl Dewayne Wilson of Amarillo. Officiating minister was the Rev. Bill Kent, pastor.

The bride, who graduated from Hereford High School in 1975, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wiley of McAllen. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.W. Wilson of Amarillo.

For the twilight ceremony, a large arrangement of yellow and white gladiolas, chrysanthemums, and carnations was placed at the altar. Framing the scene was a pair of candelabra, entwined with jade foliage and supporting white tapers. Yellow flowers nestling in white bows marked the pews where the couple's parents were seated.

Miss Janet Wiley of McAllen served as maid of honor in her sister's wedding and Gary Tucek of Canyon was best man.

Other bridal attendants were Miss Francis Burrus and Mrs. Bill Williams. Assisting as groomsmen were the bridegroom's brother, James Wilson of Amarillo, and Jackie Edwards of Tulia.

Guests were escorted by Danny McClain of Amarillo and Wallace Stevens and Billy Dugan, both of Canyon.

The bride's brother, Bob Nelson, was the soloist and rendered "Wedding Song" and "Time in a Bottle." Cortez Dowlen of Canyon was the accompanist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of Sata-glo and sculptured Venise lace over bridal taffeta with victorian neckline. The silhouette gown was styled with princess waistline and long, sheer tapered sleeves.

Lace motifs enhanced the fitted bodice, cuffs and gored skirt, which had a flounce of Sata-glo and lace. The skirt swept to back fullness to form a Chapel train.

Matching lace trim blanketed the bride's bandeau which held her three-tiered veil of imported illusion. She carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias, yellow roses, ivy and streamers.

Clasping nosegays of yellow daisies and roses, the bridal attendants wore identical yellow ensembles. Each gown of crepe was styled with A-line skirt, high neckline and short capelet sleeves. Yellow and white lace enhanced the gowns and the matching picture hats.

Guests were invited to a reception in the church parlor following the service. The bouquet flowers were clustered to form the centerpiece on the serving table, which was draped by chiffon over yellow dotted Swiss cloth.

Serving refreshments were Mmes. Lonnie Wilson, Dwight Williams and Roy Schilling, all of Amarillo, and Mrs. Gary Tucek of Canyon, the Signatures of wedding guests were secured by Mrs. Bob Nelson of Amarillo.

For a wedding trip to Dallas and other cities in South Texas, Mrs. Wilson wore a dark green panti-suit of corduroy with tailored jacket. Her corsage was lifted from the bridal bouquet.

The couple will be residing in Amarillo, where he is employed by J. Lee Milligan, Inc. She works for Clic Photo service in that city.

The recent bride is currently a sophomore student at West Texas State University. Wilson is a 1972 graduate of Canyon High School.

The wedding party was honored Thursday evening at a rehearsal dinner given by the bridegroom's parents.

PLANTS & RAINWATER
LOMBARD, Ill. (AP)—Rainwater, or water low in minerals, is best for house plants, according to the Water Quality Assn.

Where tap water supplies have a high mineral content, the WQA recommends occasional heavy watering of house plants to flush away any salts that may collect in the soil.

Limited quantities of mineral-free water for house plants may be collected from roof runoff, or can be produced with a small reverse osmosis or demineralization unit.

New Production To Open Tuesday

"Dames at Sea" will open Tuesday at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo, 1-40 at Lakeside, running through November 6.
Performances are Tuesday through Saturday evenings, with a buffet beginning at 6:30 p.m., pre-show entertainment at 8 o'clock by the Country Rogues and live stage production featuring a professional cast at 8:30 p.m.
On premiere nights, October 12, 13 and 14, the dinner theatre features a special reduced ticket price of $7.50 for the complete evening's entertainment.
"Dames at Sea" is a musical comedy based on the Hollywood musicals of the Thirties, and is filled with humor, song and dance.
The scene is big-time New York. A sweet little girl comes from a faraway hometown to make it big on Broadway and meets the Hometown Boy who has ambitions as a songwriter.

Despite obstacles, true love wins out and all ends happily.
Critics raved about this family musical. A long-running off-Broadway hit, "Dames at Sea" won the Outer Circle Critics Award as Best Musical of the Year and was voted best musical by Time, Look, Newsweek and the New York Post.
Halloween, formerly All Hallow's Eve, is a combination of pagan and religious celebrations. It celebrates the return from death of spirits in the form of witches, cats and goblins the night before All Saints' Day, Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.
Glass chimneys made kerosene lamps better than early oil lamps. The chimney protected the flame from the wind and helped to keep a stream of air moving to the flame.

I Can't Isn't in Her Vocabulary

By CHARLOTTE BLACK
Albuquerque Tribune
Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — She buys her jeans in the young boys' department. Everything else is too big. She's a former stripper, but was so scared the first time she went on stage that she tripped and fell flat, and brought the house down with applause. She's a first-rate mechanic and a partner in a business dealing in rebuilt auto parts.

She's started a worm farm because "I plan on being a very old lady, and if I can't repair cars from my wheelchair, at least I can push it between the worm beds." Wendy Stewart bought Albuquerque Generator Exchange — recently rechristened AGEX — two years ago. She operates it with her partner, Ann Fagin. She's small and dynamic, with short, curly, frosted hair. A former Californian, she has lived in most of the 50 states, surviving for 43 years by a mixture of charm, wits and guts. She's the daughter of a Los Angeles businessman and was taught quite early that if she wanted some roller skates she'd have to earn the money herself. "At various times my father owned a liquor store, a feed store, a grocery store, an orange juice stand and an apple ranch, and my parents ended up fairly rich. "But I never knew it. My father was determined to teach me what life was all about." She got married the day she was 18. That marriage and two others are now over. She says she's been "happily divorced" for 10 years. She also didn't listen when a business colleague told her, "Wendy, don't treat your employees like members of the family. They'll break your heart." "There isn't a one of them that I wouldn't give this place to," she retorts. "I opened up here with $3 in my pocket, guts and a lot of help from them. And you know, your shop is only as good as they are."

Last Christmas she opened a savings account for each of them, hoping to encourage them to save. Only one did. It hasn't slowed her down a bit. They gather after work to share a beer and some shop talk.

The staff of a dozen or more employees is largely male. Do the men mind working for two women? Wendy laughs. "I weeded out the ones who did."

It's worth the trip to climb into her red pickup with her while she runs errands. She says she likes the customer contact she gets by doing it herself.

There's a plastic sign that says AGEX that she'll stick to the door of the truck. They'll buy a big wooden one for the front of the shop after they've bought some more equipment. She emerges from Western Tractor carrying two obviously heavy alternators.

"That's typical," she laughs. "He said I couldn't carry these." At New Mexico Marine she joshes with the manager. "Why don't you fix that thing," he says, as the truck bounces and rattles into the yard. "Listen," she quips. "I'm proud of that thing. It's paid for."

Men, in general, are somewhat taken aback at finding two women very capably running what is usually a male-oriented business.

Wendy Stewart's and Ann Fagin's success is largely due to plain, old-fashioned hard work. In dusty jeans and scruffy cowboy boots Wendy digs through wrecking yards for the used generators, alternators

Tour Of Museums Slated Thursday

The public is urged to make reservations Monday for the Chamber Bus Tour to Panhandle and Pampa on Thursday. Tomorrow is the last day that reservations can be confirmed at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Sponsoring the trip is the tours committee of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division and is being directed by Mrs. Virgil Marsh and Mrs. Richard Ottesen.

Tour sites will include the White Deer Lands Museum at Pampa and the Square House Museum at Panhandle.

Cost per person for the informative and entertaining trip is $5 per person. This fee should be paid when reservations are made.

Departure will be at 9:30 a.m. Thursday from the Chamber parking lot and return to Hereford is estimated at 5:30 p.m. that afternoon. Participants need to bring sack lunches because a picnic stop is scheduled. The tour travelers are welcome to bring coffee thermos jugs. Cold drinks will be available on the bus.

Further information can be obtained by telephoning the Chamber office, 364-3333.

Home-canned tomatoes that float in the jar are caused by overripe tomatoes, being packed too loosely or being processed too long. To prevent floating, harvest tomatoes that are firm-ripe, packed tightly, but do not mash, and process according to tested instructions, advises Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Restructured Tech Ag College Gives Students More Opportunity For Learning

LUBBOCK—There's a new image at Texas Tech University college of agricultural sciences farms, and the image reflects American farming 1976.

Time was when students could learn all they'd need to know about farming and ranching using only Tech campus lands in Lubbock for teaching and research.

While the small, family farm represents home and a future for some students, agribusiness for others represents a career in large, highly intensified and greatly diversified farming.

With a restructuring of the farming operations in Texas Tech's agricultural sciences college, students can learn from a wide variety of educational enterprises—from small research plots to the fast developing 13,822-acre operation at the Texas Tech University Center at Amarillo.

The big change at the Amarillo center began in 1974 when an agreement was reached to send industrial effluent to the Texas Tech installation. The water comes from Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., Texas State Technical Institute and Bell Helicopter Co.

Although gravity flow is used to the maximum, facilities make it possible to lift the water twice, for a total of 55 feet, before it moves from playa reservoirs at the center to newly terraced and levelled cropland and pastures. Facilities are capable of lifting 6 million gallons daily for transfer through a 24-inch pipe. The university pays only for water used and for pumping.

At the Amarillo Center the university owns 6,922 acres and has been given land-use rights from the federal government for the additional acreage. Some of the land is crop-leased to original owners. The Atomic Energy Commission has some facilities in operation. Munitions silos abandoned by the military after World War II have been converted for livestock, and the university farm 2,700 acres.

Dr. Rex P. Kennedy, of the agricultural economics faculty at Texas Tech, is director of agricultural services, a job created in 1974 by Dean Anson R. Bertrand of the college of agricultural sciences. The purpose of the arrangement is to provide better management for the 18,000 acres entrusted to the college.

"As a result of the water at the Amarillo center," Kennedy said, "our gross income runs four times greater than it did with dry land production, and with corn the gross revenue is five times greater on the farmhand."

"We're shooting for $100 per acre net profit," he said. Kennedy explained that the commercial type operation accomplishes two things: it provides a way to expose students to large scale commercial production with all of its management and financial problems, and it generates hard dollars to support education and research throughout the college of agricultural sciences.

Farm production helps support a beef cow-calf operation at the Amarillo center where, this year, a herd improvement program is being initiated with 260 cows to start a highly productive cow-calf operation dependent upon artificial insemination matching top bulls to the cows.

"We know the genetic background of each calf, the variety and agronomic practice used to produce feed, and the history of research trials. Consequently we are eliminating outside variables in beef cattle research trials," Kennedy said.

In addition to the new breeding herd, the center expects to run 2,000 head of cattle on wheat in the fall and early spring and support the feeding research operation at other times on newly improved grasslands.

The 1.8 million pounds of grain produced by irrigated crops at the Amarillo center during the first year the effluent was available was sold to the Kilgore Beef Cattle Center on the same land for market price for the cattle feeding program.

In addition, all silage used by university cattle was university-produced.

For the first time in 1975-76, the Agricultural Services program was backed by a limited line of credit, provided by the Texas Tech Board of Regents, in order to operate the lands at a better-than-break-even level.

"This provides the kind of education students need," Kennedy said. "They should be studying successful, business-like farm operations in addition to research plot results."

"When research is moved from small plots to commercial production levels, results can be drastically different. With our operation, we can test research results on a large scale, real situation. Our students leave with more than a textbook knowledge of agriculture."

Agricultural Services in the college operated this year on a $1.1 million budget for farming and ranching. Past debts are being paid off through the new system, and Kennedy said the operations could be clear of debt by 1978.

The university still operates 750 acres of the 1,839-acre campus, and is using 600,000 gallons of Lubbock municipal effluent daily during the irrigation season. Grown on campus are cotton, alfalfa, wheat, corn, fruit and vegetables. Twelve acres are used for fundamental research, evaluation and demonstration of varieties, planting dates and plant populations. These lands eventually are expected to be used by the Texas Tech University School of Medicine or some other activity at the university.

Anticipating that change, the university invested in 983 acres in northern Lubbock County, where livestock and crop production will be taught, as well as feed milling, in a new multi-million dollar facility. The first $500,000 phase of that facility is nearing completion.

In addition, lands acquired by the university over a period of years, with other contributions, have enabled purchase of 3.5 sections in adjacent Terry County, where this year research on grasslands, millet and vegetables was initiated.

Dean Bertrand emphasized that the program is new and just getting well underway. "The program is not fully operational yet," he said, "but when it is, Texas Tech will be offering students in the undergraduate through the graduate level the most practical kind of education."

"Food, or lack of it, is fast becoming the most important problem internationally," he said, "and a practical understanding has to go along with textbook and theoretical studies in order to prepare people to find the required solutions."

Strippers Require Fumigation

COLLEGE STATION...All cotton strippers moving east of Texas must be fumigated to prevent the spread of the pink bollworm.

That warning comes from Dr. Ray Frisbie, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Frisbie points out that the cotton crop in the Mississippi Delta region and other parts of the South has suffered from drought stress and is smaller than usual. So, producers in those areas plan to use stripper harvesters rather than the conventional spindle pickers to gather their crop since stripping is a once-over operation.

Strippers are used almost exclusively in western regions of Texas to harvest cotton, and farmers from the southern states are making arrangements to contract these machines to harvest their crop. And, since these strippers may be moving from pink bollworm infested areas in Texas on their way to various southern locations, they must be fumigated before crossing the state line.

The pink bollworm is one of the most destructive pests of cotton, and this precaution must be taken to prevent its eastward spread, emphasizes Frisbie.

Decrease Not Seen In Exports

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite improvements in this year's Russian grain crop, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says it does not expect a decrease in American grain exports to the Soviet Union.

The USDA announced Thursday that its estimate of the 1976 Soviet grain crop was being raised 10 million tons to 215 million tons, the second largest on record. At the same time, the department announced the fourth major grain sale to the Soviets within 24 hours.

This one sent 350,000 metric tons of corn to the Soviets, bringing their total purchases to 6.35 million tons of corn and wheat. The USDA did not name the American broker involved in the deal or estimate a price.

Assistant secretary Richard E. Bell said he expects the Soviets to buy a total of eight million tons of grain—three of wheat and five of corn—this year.

That would be within the range established in the five-year grain purchase agreement which took effect this year. Bell said he did not anticipate any Soviet purchases of potatoes, despite a poor potato harvest there this season.

Screwworm Case Count Hits 19,975 In Texas

MISSION—Maggots collected in 141 Texas counties during September were identified as screwworms, totalling 6,870 cases, reports Dr. James E. Novy of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Novy is a veterinarian in charge of field operations for the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) Screwworm Eradication Program.

September samples brought Texas' total for the year to 19,975 cases. This compares to 9,381 by the same date last year, and 71,651 the first nine months of 1972. So far this year Arizona has recorded 132 cases, Arkansas 2, New Mexico 68, and Oklahoma 53.

On the basis of samples submitted by ranchers during September, heaviest Texas screwworm populations are in the hill country and west into Pecos and Brewster counties, comments Novy. Case reporting has declined drastically in most of South Texas where only Hidalgo and Brooks counties recorded more than 100 identified screwworm cases.

Novy adds that verbal reports by South Texas ranchers indicate a severe problem exists in the area, but case reports give evidence the screwworm population has declined drastically over the area.

Screwworms are larvae of the screwworm fly. Adult females of this species deposit batches of about 250 eggs on edges of wounds in any warm blooded animal.

The Screwworm Eradication Program is based on the sterile male concept. Female screwworms mate only once in their lifetimes.

Screwworm flies, reared in the APHIS insectary, are sterilized by nuclear irradiation.

Houston Show Plans Made

Over a half million dollars in premiums will go to exhibitors at the 45th annual Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo set for February 23 through March 6. This and other information is available in the newly published Premium List which details the 1977 show.

The show offers classes for 15 beef breeds, five dairy breeds, five swine breeds, 10 sheep breeds, six horse breeds, five rabbit breeds, 22 poultry breeds and Angora goats.

The Houston show, known as the market place of the Americas, will again boast 22 auction sales. Fifteen important cattle auctions will be held during the show's first five days, the only major scheduling change being the 1976 Commercial Female and Registered Range Bull Sale which will be held the first Sunday of the show, a week earlier than in previous years.

Under California law, only sound ripe grapes grown within the state are allowed to be used in the production of California wine.

Knoxville Road was one of the first turnpikes built in the United States (1791-95), linking the Wilderness road to Cumberland settlements in Tennessee.

Bushland Scientist Evaluates Corn Herbicides At Conference

BUSHLAND - Controlling weeds in corn was discussed by Dr. A.F. Wiese at the Agricultural Chemicals Conference at South Park Inn, Lubbock, on October 6. The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientist from the USDA Research Center at Bushland said, "The worst weeds in Panhandle corn fields are watergrass, volunteer sorghum or shattercane, and Johnsongrass." He added that broadleaf weeds like pigweed are in every corn field but are easily controlled with Banvel applied postemergence or with several other herbicides that control both grass and broadleaf weeds. Banvel also controls field bindweed and other broadleaf perennial weeds.

Research by Experiment Station people at Bushland, Dumas, Etter, Halfway and Texas Tech Center at Amarillo has resulted in control measures for tough weeds. Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientists helping Wiese with the research were Dale Hollingsworth at Halfway, E.W. Chenault and D.E. Lavake at Bushland and Dr. J.R. Abernathy at Lubbock. "If someone asks how to control one of the pests we will suggest a combination of chemical and cultural treatments that usually work, but unfortunately, they do not work 100 percent of the time," Wiese said.

Watergrass (barnyard grass) is the most common of the problem weeds. Fortunately, we have the most research experience with this weed, the researcher pointed out. Four years of research from 1971 to 1974 showed the planting before May 1 in the Texas Panhandle is the best way to keep watergrass from reducing corn yields.

Corn planted early emerges from 2 to 4 weeks ahead of watergrass and has a competitive edge all year. Combining enough of the proper herbicides with two cultivations will control watergrass and assure maximum yields. Four pounds per acre of AATrex applied preplant and incorporated with a rolling cultivator or preemergence after the crop is planted gave the most consistent control. Excellent control early in the season was also obtained with Sutan and Eradicane applied preplant at 4.75 pints per acre and incorporated with either a disk or rolling cultivator. These herbicides worked best when corn was "watered up". Lasso and Bladex did a good job applied preemergence, but grass emerged in the summer after herbicide residues disappeared. Combining these short residual preemergence herbicides with a post directed spray of Evik or Lorox kept corn weed free until harvest. In 1976, at Halfway, Cycle and Dual, two experimental herbicides with intermediate residual did a good job up to the middle of July. Then watergrass emerged after an irrigation indicating that the pounds per acre. "If you are really serious about eliminating watergrass in corn, it takes 4 pounds per acre of AATrex, a long residual herbicide, or two applications of short residual herbicides", Wiese continued.

"Shattercane or volunteer sorghum are the same type pest and our results have been variable", Wiese said, "sometimes we get good control and other times not". Most herbicides used in corn do not have a lot of effect on sorghum. Sutan and Eradicane are the only two with promise. Prior to 1974 volunteer sorghum control had been poor when Sutan was incorporated with a tandem disk or rolling cultivator before preirrigation. In 1974, outstanding volunteer sorghum control was obtained with either Sutan and Eradicane applied at about 5 pints per acre (4 pounds) and incorporated with a tandem disk prior to bedding. Application, incorporation and bedding were done 3 days before planting and corn was watered up with furrow irrigation. "After several years of poor results with these herbicides, we thought we learned how to use them", the scientist said. This theory was exploded in 1976 when Dale Hollingsworth tried this system at Halfway and failed. "Although our results have been 100 percent perfect, these two herbicides are the best candidates for controlling volunteer sorghum and shattercane", the researcher said.

"Johnsongrass is a hard weed to deal with in any crop except winter wheat," Wiese continued. "Among summer crops, my first choice for controlling Johnson grass is cotton and corn the second". Recent research at Texas Tech Center at Amarillo has shown that a bad infestation of Johnson grass can be controlled in corn. Up to 90 percent of the established grass was eliminated and a good crop of silage was produced.

In 1975, 10 pints of Sutan or Eradicane per acre (8 pounds) gave 90 percent Johnsongrass control in corn. Corn was planted April 24 and treatments were evaluated on June 12. Best control at silage harvest came from Sutan that was disked in and prewatered and watered again at planting. Silage yield was best when corn was watered up only. Treatments with good Johnson grass control yielded 28 tons of silage and 7 tons of Johnsongrass. Untreated areas produced only 12 tons of silage along with 10 tons of Johnson grass. The silage cutter had a hard time getting through the weedy plots. In 1976, results were different. Disk incorporation of Sutan at 10 pints per acre was the best treatment. Control at harvest was up to 90 percent. Eradicane at 10 pints per acre gave 60 to 70 percent control. Results were about the same when the corn was "prewatered" or "watered up". Incorporation of the herbicides with a rolling cultivator failed and gave poor Johnsongrass control. "Two years of research leave little doubt that incorporating Sutan or Eradicane at 10 pints per acre with a tandem disk will control Johnsongrass in corn," Wiese said.

Unfortunately, these high rates are not labeled. Eradicane is labeled up to 7 pints per acre and Sutan to 5 pints per acre. Differential response of corn hybrids to high rates of Eradicane is another problem. Some hybrids are seriously injured with Eradicane and others are not. Until this problem is solved, using 10 pints per acre is illegal and may cause serious crop injury.

"Weeding corn is relatively easy", the researcher stated. It can be planted early and it grows off fast. Early planting gives corn a competitive advantage over most weeds. In addition to this, there are several good herbicides. "I think a good manager can put together a weed control program for corn that will clean up the weediest field in the High Plains", Wiese concluded.

Today, scientists are experimenting with a heating process that should allow milk to be stored for months without refrigeration. The process was invented in 1942 by Elmer Davis. Davis' process involves a "free-falling film heater" in which the milk is heated to 300 degrees Fahrenheit for one second. It never touches a surface hotter than the milk itself and all bacteria are killed without giving the milk a sometimes unpleasant "burned" taste.

Experiment Participants

Lawrence and Clarence Martin of Friona, [left] and Roy Kuper and Dean Jones of Hereford [right] receive cash incentive checks from James Hull, General Manager of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative. The checks were awarded as an incentive for the volunteer participation of these farmers in a recent load management experiment. The experiment allowed the Cooperative to shave its peak load by about 375 horsepower, and offered valuable data for use in future load management practices.

What OSHA Means to the Farmer

AUSTIN - A farmer who employs one or more persons has the legal responsibility for assuring safe and healthful working conditions under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA). The bulk of his responsibility lies in complying with the six OSHA standards explained below:

What is the SMV Emblem Standard?
The SMV Emblem Standard states (and Texas law requires) that the SMV emblem be displayed on all vehicles that travel at a speed of less than 25 m.p.h. The emblem should be visible at all times on the rear of the vehicle.

What is the Anhydrous Ammonia Standard?
The Anhydrous Ammonia Standard includes specifications for nurse tanks on farm vehicles, rules of application, filling of applicator tanks, protective clothing, emergency procedures and informing workers on exposure to toxic or lethal chemicals.

What is the Roll Over Protection Standard?
The Roll Over Protection Standard or ROPS requires that all tractors over 20 horsepower operated by an employee and manufactured after October, 1976, be equipped with an approved roll over protective structure.

Are there any exceptions?
Yes, "low profile" tractors used in orchards, barns, hop yards and greenhouses are exempt from the standard. Also exempt are tractors using loaders, cornpickers, etc., when the ROPS will interfere with their operation.

Is there any training required under the ROP Standard and Machine Guarding Standard?
As of June, 1975, employers must train every employee in safe tractor operation. This includes fastening seat belts on tractors with ROPS, proper operation in and around ditches, staying off very steep slopes, watching where they are going, smooth tractor operation and proper hitching and how to properly park a tractor. Extra riders are not allowed.

Both the ROPS and Machine Guarding Standard require employers to instruct employees at the time of initial assignment to operating equipment, and at least annually, in the safe operation and servicing of all equipment with which he will be involved.

What is the Pulpwood Logging Standard?
The Pulpwood Logging Standard applies to the harvest of pulpwood and covers environmental conditions, clothing and personal protective devices, first aid, hand tools, explosives, stationary and mobile equipment, machinery guards, mufflers, and guylines. Also included are instructions on logging, construction and maintenance of roads and bridges.

What is the Temporary Labor Camp Standard?
The Temporary Labor Camp Standard covers environmental aspects of housing such as site selection, building construction, space, ventilation, and heating. It also prescribes sanitation requirements for cooking and eating space, water supply, laundry, bathing facilities, toilets, refuse disposal, insect and rodent control.

More detailed information on OSHA requirements as well as a list of OSHA area offices and field stations may be obtained from: Texas Safety Association, P.O. Box 9345, Austin, Texas 78766.

The one time you expect to see a Zimmatic broken down.

About the only time you expect to see a Zimmatic broken down is when it leaves one of Lindsay's plants. Once assembled in your field, it seldom causes a problem. Those big, sure-footed towers power their way around the field, carrying water to crops.

Hour after hour, day after day. Until you decide to shut down. That kind of performance doesn't just happen. It's the result of constant testing — both in the plant and in the field. Lindsay puts these rigs through the most punishing conditions — loads on more stress in a week, usually, than they're likely to see in a lifetime of normal use.

But we know that no system is 100% perfect all the time. That's why we're ready to help with an extensive parts inventory and factory trained servicemen if you ever have a problem. Before you buy any center pivot irrigation system, be sure to let us tell you about all the advantages of owning a Lindsay Zimmatic.

Waterfowl Prospects Outstanding

Local Gunners May See Good Year With Honkers, Greenheads Aplenty

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Local waterfowlers saw plenty of geese move into the area during the 1975-76 season, and most are probably wondering if the honkers will make an encore appearance in comparable numbers this year.

AND WHAT about all of those Mallards and pintails? Will they arrive during the season this year, instead of just after it?

There's little local hunters can do about the timing of the arrival of waterfowl, but with some suitably cold weather, this could be one of the best years in a long time for area goose gunners, and if water is available, duck hunters stand a good chance to put more greenheads and pintails in the bag this year. Both of these bread-and-butter duck species of the Central Flyway had a good nesting season for the most part this summer, as did the population of Lesser Canada geese, which are much sought-after by local hunters.

Sports Afeld magazine's Jimmy Robinson had great news for sportsmen in his waterfowl forecast for 1976, which appeared in September edition of Sports Afeld.

Robinson returned from his 41st annual waterfowl survey of the Canadian provinces and the northern prairie regions of the U.S. convinced that it will be a good year for waterfowlers.

"Most species of ducks are holding their own, and there are geese by the ton," Robinson reported after viewing vital nesting areas.

ROBINSON'S FORECASTS have proven amazingly accurate over the years, and his reports of nesting successes or failures are reflected in the hunting along the nation's various flyways.

According to Robinson, overall conditions in the Central Flyway will compare with last year, with the counts of dabbling ducks 15 per cent above the long-term average.

"Mallard were up 10 per cent over last year, although five per cent below the long-term average. Pintails were down, and American widgeon were above the average. Diving ducks showed modest gains. All goose counts increased and were 42 per cent above the long-term average," he commented, concerning nesting numbers and success.

In a province-by-province report from Canada, Robinson indicated that conditions in Manitoba were ideal, and waterfowl populations showed a gratifying increase in all species, particularly mallard, canvasbacks, widgeon and gadwalls.

"Breeding numbers of mallard and pintails were the best in ten years," Robinson indicated.

MALLARDS AND CANVASBACKS were reported returning to the prairie and parkland marshes in "heartening numbers" this year in Saskatchewan, and Canada geese also showed up in increasing numbers across the southern portion of that province.

Geese were reported "multiplying by leaps and bounds" on Ducks Unlimited project areas in Alberta, although overall conditions were dry. Robinson credited Ducks Unlimited projects with saving thousands of ducks in Alberta.

In the prairie regions of Minnesota and the Dakotas, drought "played havoc with the duck population." The outlook for the nation's major flyways was labeled as "encouraging."

MALLARD SHOWED a 36 per cent gain in the Mississippi Flyway and dabblers showed a marked increase, according to a winter waterfowl survey conducted by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service. Canvasbacks were also up.

Robinson warned that, although waterfowl are generally holding their own currently, the wintering areas that are just as important as breeding areas are rapidly disappearing.

He called for efforts to maintain present wintering areas, and renewed cooperation with Ducks Unlimited in Mexico.

To area gunners, anxious for an occasional chance at a honker, the prospect of too many geese might seem preposterous, but Robinson indicated that there is such a problem in some areas.

FACING PROBLEMS of disease and crop depredation, Fish & Wildlife officials in Minnesota and Wisconsin have announced that the numbers of geese in the Horicon Marsh area of Wisconsin would be reduced from 300,000 birds presently stopping over there to about 100,000 by 1980.

"Geese that once migrated to the coastal areas of Texas and Louisiana have been shortstopped in the many refuges on the way down. This has caused too many geese in some locations, making them susceptible to disease," Robinson explained.

"If this is continued, it may prove unwise, and it is unfair to our southern sportsmen. Also, under heavy snow cover, there is some depredation loss in the farming areas. While there is no indication of disease, there is always the possibility," he said.

Citing dramatic increases in goose population, Robinson pointed out that the Missouri Valley flock, which is centered at Horicon, had a population of 45,000 birds in 1936, which mushroomed to 300,000 in 1975.

"GEESE HAVE fared better than ducks in the last decade, and one of the reasons is that most wild geese breed in the remote and unsettled regions of Canada, unlike ducks that are bred primarily in the heavily-farmed regions of the northern plains states and southern Canada," Robinson explained.

Robinson used the Canvasback as an example of sportsmen's conservation efforts, pointing out that numbers of these ducks have been decreasing over the last two decades.

The North American population of Canvasbacks was estimated at 519,000 in 1963 and dropped to 220,000 in 1970. Restricted bag limits placed on the species have resulted in increases in the wintering populations of Canvasbacks.

Taking 1973 as an example, Robinson paid further tribute to sportsmen: "The nation's hunters poured $185 million into wildlife conservation in 1973-$124 million into state hunting licenses, another $49 million into excise taxes on guns and ammunition, and about $12 million into duck stamp revenue. This came from the hunter's pockets. Wildlife doesn't have many supporters... If revenue from hunting is ever dried up, it doesn't appear likely that it will be replaced," he concluded.

The rabbit almost overran Australia in 1907. A 1,000-mile long fence was built to keep the animals out of western Australia.

The island of Tasmania off Australia was named after Abel Tasman who discovered it in 1652.

Can There Be Too Many Geese? Massive Honker Population Causes Problem At Refuge

HORICON, Wis. (AP) — Cannon-like noise-makers boom all day in eastern Wisconsin's Horicon Marsh in an environmental war designed to save Canada geese from destroying themselves with disease.

State game wardens and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service say the southbound flock of migrating geese has grown so large over the years that wildfowl disease could spread uncontrollably.

To disperse the 250,000-bird flock, wardens are reducing the marsh's water area and hazing the honkers with noise-makers, hoping to persuade about half of them to return to their ancestral flight patterns along the Mississippi River.

But the campaign has touched off a new dispute. Environmentalists fear the mud flats exposed by the lowered water level will breed disease bacteria harmful to wildlife.

Farmers would also like to trim the number of hungry geese which raid their grain fields during the annual stopover enroute south for the winter.

Spokesmen for Horicon National Refuge said they have received 135 farmer complaints already this year, more than during the entire autumn migratory season a year ago.

"You almost feel sorry for those big birds. They've got to eat," Mayville farmer Gordon Strassman said.

He and other farmers say they should not have to bear a financial loss when geese wipe out a cornfield. And they also say the hazing isn't working, anyway.

"The geese get used to that," farmer Armond Waas said.

But government officials, who call it "controlled disturbance" instead of hazing, admit they don't know what else to do.

The hazing costs $500,000, but local businessmen say it costs more than that because of the marked absence of many of the tourists who used to bring their cameras and binoculars to watch the migration.

At Wild Goose Inn, owner Jack Bell says business is off 50 per cent.

Fish Parasites Harmless

AUSTIN—Those worms you sometimes find in fish may be ugly, but they are not harmful to humans.

And throwing away wormy fish is a waste of good meat, say officials at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Fisherman may find two types of worms in fish: bass tapeworms and roundworms which appear in the internal organs of fish, and yellow or black grubs which are encysted along the dorsal spines of fish.

But there is little cause for alarm.

Ordinary cleaning will remove internal parasites. If the fisherman finds an encysted grub, removing a slice of meat from both sides of the dorsal fin is the easiest way to get rid of them.

The "grubby fish" actually are victims of the larval stages of parasitic worms which have burrowed into the fish and formed cysts. In the next stage of the parasite's life cycle, the fish is eaten by a bird where the parasites reach adult stage in the bird's digestive tract.

Eggs from these worms enter the water by way of the bird's feces and hatch into tiny free-swimming larvae go through different stages and then emerge from the snail. They swim about in the water and will develop no further until they encounter a suitable fish in which to continue their development and life cycle.

Fortunately, man never is host to these worms. Any fish properly cooked and prepared is fit for human consumption even though it may appear to be affected by parasites.

Women are always lamenting. "When does motherhood stop? When can you sit back and relax and know that your job is finished?"

"I don't think it ever does. When our children have needs, it is our responsibility to help them meet whatever challenge confronts them. Take the other day, for example. Our son came to me and said, 'Mom, how do you ask for a raise?'"

"And he says yes and I thank him and leave."
"Wrong. He will plead poverty and say no way can an increase be granted."
"Then I thank him and leave."

"No. You look blank and pretend to miss his point entirely. Pulling up a chair you sit down and say, 'If I'm to understand you there must be something wrong with the way I do my job...'"

"What does he say?" asks my son suspiciously.
"Patience, my child. Here comes the zinger. You stand up and thank him for letting you share the downfall of the company. Tell him you never realized it was in such bad financial slump and that there is only one thing left for you to do and that is seek employment elsewhere."

"And?" asked my son breathlessly.
"He will back down and assure you that things are not all that bad and in view of the fact that he has just praised your work, will relent and viola...you get the raise."

"That is beautiful," said my son. "I would never have thought of that strategy."
"What are mothers for?" I smiled.

Yesterday, my son came home and said, "I saw my boss today."
"Yes?" I said, my eyes glistening with excitement.

"He was with me all the way to the line about seeking employment elsewhere. Then he said, 'Goodbye, boy, and good luck... incidentally, if you run across any openings for a personnel manager, let me know...'"

South of Summerfield, lettuce, cabbage and sugar beets are being harvested. Richard Kuper took the first load of corn to the elevator. Much of the corn is being cut, due to the high winds that we have received.

Maize harvesting has begun in a very small amount. However, most of the grain crops are reported with more moisture content than farmers prefer but the dock is not as great as the threat of not being able to harvest if it is down.

Ann Landers Column Found in Wallet

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our wonderful son, only 20, was buried yesterday. He died of leukemia after a valiant fight that lasted five years. In his wallet we found an Ann Landers column. It was yellow with age but the message was beautiful. Will you please run it again? Our son would have liked that. Thanks, Ann, and bless you for all the strength you have given people. -- A Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: Here it is-- along with my condolences. It's one of my favorites, too.
Just for today-- I will live through the next 12 hours and not try to tackle all life's problems at once.
Just for today-- I will improve my mind. I will learn something useful. I will ready something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today-- I will be agreeable. I will look by best, speak in a well-modulated voice, be courteous and considerate.
Just for today-- I will not find fault with friend, relative or colleague. I will not try to change or improve anyone but myself.
Just for today-- I will have a program. I might not follow it exactly but I will have it. I will save myself from two enemies-- hurry and indecision.

Just for today-- I will exercise my character in three ways. I will do a good turn and keep it a secret. If anyone finds out it won't count.
Just for today-- I will do two things I don't want to do just for the exercise.

Just for today-- I will be unafraid. Especially I will be unafraid to enjoy what is beautiful and believe that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work the 3-to-11 shift on an assembly line. The pay is very good. My husband works at the same plant. His hours are from 8 to 4. When I get home he is always there--but so is my sister. They play gin rummy.
Sis is married. They have no children. (We have three.) Her husband travels and she has loads of spare time. I have this crazy feeling that something is going on between those two but I have no proof. When I try to figure out how they could do anything it comes out "harmless" because my kids are always around.

I can't tell my sis not to come over. She's a sweet person and we always got along well together. Any suggestions?-- Insecure

DEAR INSECURE: If there were something cooking between your husband and Sis, they'd be going to HER house where they could be alone--not yours, where the kids are present. Forget it dear. You're adding two and two and getting five.

DEAR ANN: Our daughter ran away at age 16 and married a man who beat her constantly.

That was last year. Now she's home, divorced and dating a very fine fellow.

A few days ago I noticed she is wearing her dimestone wedding ring on her little finger. Am I wrong to tell her to throw it away?-- ABC

DEAR ABC: Don't tell her anything. In time she'll stop wearing it of her own accord. -- If you get off her back.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage-- What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. "CHILDREN NEED A FIRM FOUNDATION"

Parents lay "firm foundations" when they provide the emotional security, which is the source of a child's trust.

Such trust depends on a child knowing that his parents will always care for him and protect him while he is young and needs them--and upon his being certain that they like him, even when they show their dislike of what he does at a particular moment.

Sometimes parents must take time to consider the early foundation they lay for their children's emotional needs. There are crises in childhood that may be quite crucial: Some troubles obviously affect all members of the family, weighing heavily on both children and adults. But such normal events-- as the birth of a brother or sister, the absence of mother from the house, or a slight illness may seriously disturb a child about his outlook in life. It is not the event itself, but the child's fears and misunderstanding about it that cause the disturbance.

Parents can help most by being alert to a child's reactions and by finding time to clear up his fears and confusion. Talk it out. Time is an important element. Parents can make right "happy endings" by early attention.

Growing up is not always easy. There are times when children feel lonely and troubled. They have moods of jealousy and anger. They may keep on doing what they know to be wrong.

For all their gaiety, they get discouraged when constantly being compared as big and strong, as powerful or as beautiful as their parents or an older brother or sister. They may feel that they do not amount to much, and that their parents are never going to approve of them. Most parents love their children and feel a responsibility for them. And when a child seems unhappy or isn't developing as he should, parents cannot help wondering what mistakes they have made.

In most cases, parents actually have done nothing seriously wrong. Most of the hard moments with children are an inevitable part of the business of growing up. A small child is bound to have moments of feeling overwhelmed by the superiority of adults. It takes time for him to learn how to handle himself in the world and to make sense out of his own confused feelings. There is no way to making the path to maturity absolutely smooth and pleasant.

Parents can ease their minds if they accept the fact they are bound to make some mistakes with their children. There will be times when patience fails. Everyone gets tired or irritable occasionally. Unless parents' mistakes are so long-continued that they form a basic pattern of existence, a child, for all his ups and downs, finds his own way of getting along.

HAVE I TOLD YOU LATELY I LOVE YOU?

Praise or blame--which is easier to express? Studies indicate that couples more often show disapproval of each other, rather than expressing their more positive feelings. And this is surprising, since we all need, want and benefit from signs of appreciation and affection from those we love.

Why is it so difficult to express pleasure, appreciation or gratitude to our spouses for the many thoughtful things they do to make life more meaningful for us? One reason may be that we feel such declarations of love and affection leave us more vulnerable, or are a sign of weakness. Sometimes we are guilty of taking one another for granted and forget how much others have enriched our lives.

Marriages are strengthened, when husbands and wives realize the importance of sincere recognition of others' accomplishments. Couples also can indicate their love and appreciation for their partners by the way they treat one another--both in public and in private. A relationship based on mutual love and respect, provides feelings of self-confidence and support.

Husbands and wives acknowledge the worth of their partners when they live by justice and fair play. This means they try to understand and respect one another's point of view, even if they disagree.

Meet Your Educators

Sponsored By Hereford Classroom Teachers Assoc.

ROBERT STEWART

Robert Stewart has been elementary music teacher at Bluebonnet Elementary for four years, and upon visiting his classroom, one would readily discover that Robert is very enthusiastic about his work. Not only are the sounds of music emitted from his classroom but the decor, which focuses the work of his students, projects the fact that music is important in Bluebonnet School.

Robert believes that "each child, regardless of ability, is important, and has the right to education. A teacher must be the vehicle through which learning occurs. I strive to add the spark that brings forth in each child the desire to learn." This might account for comments, from his former students, to include, "he's a neat, nice teacher."

After receiving his Bachelor of Music Education degree, with an All-level Certificate from WTSU in 1973, Robert began his teaching career in Hereford, where his wife, Nancy, was employed at Shirley Elementary.

Robert is an active member of professional organizations, TSTA, NEA, TCTA, and has served on the executive board of the local CTA. He was a delegate to the TCTA Convention in February, 1976, in Dallas. Robert is also an active member of the local Kiwanis Club, Junior Warden and Layreader in the Episcopal Church, and holds membership in the International Brotherhood of Magicians.

Magic, music, CB radios, and electronics are some of the hobbies that Robert enjoys, and he spends some of his time teaching guitar lessons. He and Nancy also enjoy camping and playing with their dog, Jeremy.

The Curzon Line, named after a one-time British foreign secretary, formed a boundary between Russia and Poland.

Personal Slant Utilized In Furnishing Historical Sites

AUSTIN—Just how comfortable was a log cabin? Were there ever any luxuries on the Texas frontier? Settlers certainly must have worked harder than modern Texans, but what were their day-to-day lives and surroundings really like?

The personal slant makes history a lot more interesting. Such an approach used by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in many of the historical sites and structures of the state park system is giving visitors clearer insight into the past.

A way to achieve this sense of personal identification is with the use of authentic furnishings. They can convey the feel of another time, location or culture.

The search for them takes time, knowledge and patience. Refurnishing historic sites has taken state historians and interpretive personnel to museum, libraries, antique auctions, even to the archives of a Franciscan college in Mexico.

This research is used to prepare a furnishing plan for each historic location. A "cut-off date" is decided upon, to define the time period to be portrayed; this must coordinate with both the architecture and furnishings of a particular structure. Items pertaining to a later date are not included for the sake of historical consistency.

Detailed lists are made of needed furnishings and their estimated costs. On floor diagrams, drawn to scale, various arrangements of the proposed furniture are considered, to find how best to maintain a historically accurate appearance and yet facilitate the flow of visitor traffic. The adjusted furnishing lists then are incorporated into the final furnishing plan. When this has been completed, no other items will be added to the structure unless they are compatible with the plan.

Authentic furnishings for the P&WD's historic sites and structures are obtained by purchase or donation; in some cases, replicas are made when a needed original is unavailable. In some instances the furnishings are included in the acquisition of the structures, as the Navarro House in San Antonio, Mogaffin House in El Paso and Sam Bell Maxey House in Paris.

The Sauer-Beckmann homestead of Lyndon B. Johnson State Historical Park in Gillespie County recently was refurnished with more than 1,200 items, as an operating "living historical farm." The cut-off date was determined as 1918. It was estimated that a family such as occupied the Sauer-Beckmann homestead would have had a small percentage of new items, most at least years older, and a few family heirlooms. All items were acquired as appropriate to the house, the size of the family, their cultural heritage and average income, and the styles of the time as modified by the frontier location.

The Sauer-Beckmann site now is a functioning farmstead. Authentically dressed park rangers engage in the farm chores using implements of the era.

The site also has been "refurnished" with appropriate breeds of livestock and chickens, and with the large vegetable garden and enclosed swept yard and flowerbeds it had in 1918. As then, livestock are fenced out of the yard and roam the grounds of the farmstead at will. All such features were validated by research before becoming part of the operation.

Another complicated refurnishing project involves the church and a weaving workshop at Goliad State Park in Goliad County. The church and furnishings will replicate a Spanish Colonial mission of the late 18th century.

An importance source of reference was discovered several years ago when an inventory of the Goliad mission in 1783 was found in the archives of the Collegio Apostolico de Nuestra Senora de Guadalupe de Zacatecas, Mexico.

The staff researched historic sites and museums in Mexico, and took photographs and made drawings of appropriate Spanish Colonial furniture and religious images. This information is being used to make replicas in the P&WD exhibit preparation shop.

The church is being furnished in such a way that celebration of Masses there may be possible.

In the weaving workshop there will be a horizontal frame loom, the original of which probably was shipped from Mexico and assembled at the church. There also will be a spinning wheel and other implements used in making cloth.

The church bell was essential to mission life. It was rung to call the people to worship, eat and work and also was used as an alarm when danger threatened. A bronze bell will be installed in the bell tower of the church as part of the project.

Other parks that will have furnished areas include Fort McKavett in Menard County, Fort Richardson in Jack County and Fort Leaton in Presidio County.

Included in the structures at present completely furnished are the Eisenhower Birthplace in Grayson County, Varner-Hogg Plantation State Historic Park in Brazoria County, and the Stinson House and Honey-moon Cottage in the Governor Hogg Shrine State Historic Park in Wood County.

WHY DO BUSINESS WITH CAMPBELL REALTORS?

Why see us when there are numerous other Realtors in the area? You might consider the fact that the majority are relatively inexperienced, although some are self-proclaimed "leaders," the same type we've seen come and go over the past 17 years. Also, consider the following:

- FACT: No other active Realtor firm surpasses us in experience, expertise, or training.
- FACT: No other company surpasses us in percentage of listings sold.
- FACT: We don't claim to be the largest agency or gross sales leader (no one knows who is, regardless of claims), and it doesn't really matter. National statistics show that the larger companies sell only 50 to 65 percent of their listings during the initial term, while smaller companies are selling 65 to 80 percent of theirs. So you can see largeness can actually work against you!
- FACT: We don't accept overpriced listings. They can't compete in an active market, and it isn't fair to either the seller or buyer.
- FACT: We don't accept more property than we can give proper attention to. Our property sells.
- FACT: The real estate profession is a full-time occupation, and you deserve your Realtor's full attention. We sell only real estate; not insurance or anything else!
- FACT: The home you purchase will likely be the largest investment you will ever make. Think about it - shouldn't you use an experienced, established Realtor, one who will be here when you need him again?
- FACT: We do want to be "FIRST" where it really counts - with you. Without you, we might have been among some of the "first" to leave the business!

So why see Campbell Realtors? Because WE CAN SELL YOUR PROPERTY quickly, courteously, and efficiently. Please give us a try.

Court Orders Teacher Reassigned Following Sex Change Operation

OAKLAND (AP)—A popular gym teacher whose sex change operation stirred angry controversy here has a court order directing school officials to assign him a teaching job and to give him about $3,200 in back pay.

Steve Dain, a muscular, bearded man who was formerly Doris Richard, a girls' gym teacher, said he would return to Emery High School ready to work.

He said Thursday's court victory struck a blow for "the protection of tenured teachers everywhere."

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Robert K. Barber made the ruling after he was shown medical releases certifying that Dain could return to work and was told he had, in fact, tried to return to work.

"This removes the medical question," Barber said in ordering the 37-year-old teacher reinstated with two months' back pay.

School district attorneys had argued that Dain had abandoned his post while undergoing treatment that made him, physically, a man.

Furor erupted when the 10-year teaching veteran tried to return to work after a leave of absence taken for an operation identifying change at the Stanford University sex change clinic.

Students, parents, teachers, and administrators were divided on the question. The school board took no action, neither firing him nor returning him to work.

The last time Dain tried to return to work, however, Supt. Lewis Stommel had him arrested on a misdemeanor charge of "wilful disturbance" because he ignored an order to stay away from school until further notice and tried to attend a teachers' orientation meeting on Sept. 2. Dain said that he was afraid that if he didn't show up for the meeting, he would be accused of missing work.

He faces trial Tuesday in Oakland Municipal Court on the charge

In arguing against reinstatement, William Johnston, an attorney for the Emeryville Unified School District, contended Dain had exhausted his sick leave during his absence since last December and had, in effect, abandoned his job.

Despite the ruling, Johnston said the media question still concerned the school board. "Dain was a girls' gym teacher," he declared.

Dain's teaching credentials allow him to teach any subject. He said he would prefer to teach sciences when he begins his career as a male teacher.

Comings And Goings At Kings Manor

By Fay Gauggel

A small room opening just off the Kitchen here has been converted into a lounge for King's Manor Employees. Mrs. Emma Beard underwrote the cost, which was a restricted gift from her.

Furniture consists of a round table under a sizable hanging lamp, four chairs, a love-seat flanked on sides by small tables, and over the love-seat hangs a large handsome picture. It looks real homey.

NEDRA HIGGANBOTHAM

The personable and inspiring Nedra Higganbotham came out to Lamar Room and presented a musical program on Thursday p.m.

Mrs. Higganbotham is an avid Christian and always witnesses to her faith in a sincere and effective manner.

She played our favorite songs and sang with most of them.

The first number was the very 1. "I Believe" 2. "I'll Never Walk Alone", Piano number 3. "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" 4. "My Task" 5. "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked". (The singer has really walked in Palestine). The walk here works up to a climax "Where on the Cross he died". Then repeats the first line very pianissimo! Piano number "The Rosary".

We appreciate this artist and welcome her always when she will agree to perform here.

WRITER'S RIFFRAFF

Sickening Seasonal Situations. We have been turning through the coat hangers in the clothes press. Most garments are too thin for comfort now. We push and pull, separating those pesky stubborn hangers, and eyeing each garment. Most relegated to the summer stack which we're to stash away for next summer. Some look so dowdy and over worn that one gets the "Blahs" looking at them. Then comes the traumatic truth that we must replace them. Bow to old man Inflation and turn loose the cash-Ugh!

In our salad days, we recall a young blade quipping this parody.

"The Melancholy days are here, We dread 'em like the Dickens. A little too cool for silken sox And a little too warm for thick uns".

So we toil on with the old doll rags and suddenly inspiration strikes as we recall another of Posey's jewels. Then we revive and look forward to Helen Hunt Jackson's "October's Bright Blue Weather".

"Oh suns and skies and clouds of June, Count all your boasts together, Ye cannot rival for one hour October's Bright Blue Weather".

(Located in Emma Jean Smith's book "One hundred Best Loved poems").

The artist who made the Statue of Liberty was Frederic Auguste Bartholdi.

Along The Frio

By MRS. OWEN ANDREWS
Brand Correspondent

Rev. Johnny Tims has accepted the invitation of Frio Baptist Church to become pastor here. He plans to be here Sunday, Oct. 10, but said it would be about a month before the family could move here. The Tims live at McCamey. Mrs. Tims is the former Pearl

Baird, daughter of the E.O. Biarde, of Westway. The couple has four children, Steve, 15, Tammy, 12, Veldon, 7, and Trena, 5. They pastored at Lazbuddie for some time before going to Casper, Wyoming and since to McCamey. Tims is a native of the McCamey country and Mrs. Tims grew up in the Floydada area.

Here to visit her daughter, Mrs. Bobby Kendrick. Kendrick and family is Mrs. Lois Maness, of St. Louis. The Kendricks met her at Amarillo Airport on Wednesday.

Mrs. B.H. Baldwin received word Sunday morning of the death of her brother-in-law, Porter Baldwin, of Lake Elsinore Calif. Mrs. Baldwin and part of her children had visited with the Porter Baldwins and also other of the Baldwin relatives last summer when they met for a community reunion near Pie Town, N.M. The Porter Baldwins lived at Pie Town when Rev. and Mrs. Baldwin lived there, during the '30s.

Mrs. J. E. Warrick returned home this week from a several days stay with her mother, Mrs. S.J. Tipton, of Stuart, Okla and others of her relatives. Mrs. Tipton is in very frail health.

Guest speaker at Frio Sunday was Bill Frazier of Hereford. Mrs. Frazier accompanied him to service both times. They, the M.L. Simpsons and Dick Hills, all took lunch with the Ronnie Andrews.

Friends of Rev. R.L. Shannon, former pastor at Frio, will be interested to know that he is now able to be at his home in Amarillo after almost a month in High Plains Baptist hospital. Rev. Shannon suffered a fall on Sept 2, crushing a hip joint and cracking a vertebra has responded well to the surgery and recovery period. Rev. Shannon is 80 years of age.

Kirk Andrews and his grandmother, Mrs. Owen Andrews went to visit the Glen Andrews near Carthage, Mo. this week.
