

Schroeter To Resign From School Board

Judge To Appoint First County Auditor

BY O.G. NIEMAN

Deaf Smith County will have a new official next Wednesday when Alex Schroeter, a Hereford certified public accountant, is scheduled to be appointed by District Judge Mike Metcalf as the first auditor of the county.

The Brand learned of the impending action Friday evening and confirmed the report Saturday in interviews with Judge Metcalf, County Judge Sam Morgan, school board president Jim Conkright, and Schroeter.

Judge Metcalf confirmed Saturday morning that he plans to appoint Schroeter as the county auditor Wednesday, "after he formally resigns from the Hereford School Board." The law prevents him from serving in both capacities.

METCALF SAID he had studied the matter for about five months, and he believes the state law makes it mandatory for an auditor to be appointed "where the population of the county exceeds 35,000 or when the county tax valuation exceeds $15 million." He added that he is planning to appoint auditors in all six counties of the 69th district.

Deaf Smith County's tax valuation has exceeded the $15 million mark for some time. H.C. Williams, former county judge, called for the district judge to appoint an auditor in July of 1974, citing Art. 1645 of the Texas Revised Civil Statutes. He made the request after commissioners declined to take action on the matter.

The late Archie McDonald, former district judge, declined to make an appointment, however, basing his decision on a sub-section of the article. It was his interpretation that an auditor did not have to be appointed in this county "except upon petition of the county commissioners."

Asked if there have been any recent changes in the statutes relating to the county auditor, Judge Metcalf replied, "There have been no changes, but a repealer Act in 1955 did away with inconsistencies in the law. I believe any county with more than $15 million valuation is required to have an auditor."

Metcalf pointed out that all six counties in his judicial district have valuations in excess of $15 million. Dallam and Hartley counties are just over the $15 million mark; Oldham is about $18 million; Sherman near $34 million; Moore in excess of $68,000, and Deaf Smith with more than $98 million.

SCHROETER, 43, is a native of Hereford and received his BBA degree from Hardin Simmons University. He is a former Rotary Club president and an elder in the Presbyterian Church. He and his wife, Naomi, have three children. Schroeter was elected to the school board, Place 4, last April without opposition.

One factor in his appointment, as mentioned by Metcalf, was that his firm has prepared the annual audit for the county the past three years. "Beside being well qualified, he is familiar with county financial business," Judge Metcalf noted.

Contacted about the appointment Saturday, Schroeter said it was a "tough decision" to make, especially since he had served so short a time as a school trustee. "I regret the timing of the matter, but I had no knowledge that the position of county auditor was going to be filled.

"I hope school district voters will

Downours Wet County

THE DAWN community to the east of Hereford received the lion's share of moisture from a spring thunderstorm which blanketed the county in the wee hours of Saturday morning, but good accumulations were reported on all sides of Hereford.

Bill Cornett of Dawn Co-Op reported that heavy rain fell at a rapid pace near Dawn early Saturday morning, but no hail or high winds accompanied the downpour.

Dawn has remained the target for some of the heaviest rainfall in the county throughout the spring.

THE CITY of Hereford received a mere .48 inches of moisture, according to KPAN radio, but south of the city the rainfall picked up again with Easter Grain reporting .50 inches.

Heavy rainfall was also recorded in the dryland country to the west of Hereford.

Gary Coleman, who farms 25 miles west of the city reported 1.50 inches with heavier rain to the west of that location.

A total of .60 inches of moisture was recorded at the Walcott School.

ANOTHER spring thunderstorm moved across the county Thursday evening, building in the northwest and traveling southeastward. The storm deposited general rainfall over a wide area of the county with most accumulations amounting to slightly over half an inch.

KPAN radio logged a total of .52 inches of rainfall in the city Thursday, and .19 inches in a light shower Wednesday.

A total of one inch of moisture was reported at the Wallace Hill home three miles north of Hereford following Thursday's downpour.

Easter Grain reported .30 inches of moisture for Thursday, and an additional .50 inches in a Wednesday evening thunderstorm.

RAINFALL amounted to .55 inches at the Dawn community following Thursday night's storm, according to a spokesman for Dawn Co-Op.

The H.L. Hershey farm 13 miles northeast of the city reported an even half inch.

Dryland country to the west of Hereford again received the benefit of moisture in Thursday night's storm.

The Bruce Coleman farm located near the Walcott community received .70 inches of rain, and Coleman indicated that similar amounts were received in several locations near Walcott.

School Board Meets Tuesday

The Hereford School Board of Trustees will meet in regular session at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Administration Building to act on a rather lengthy agenda.

The board will review PESO media services, discuss preliminary budget figures for 1976-77, approve 22 resignations and accept 11 for jobs next year.

Curriculum matters to be considered include the following: Title I reading presentation by Carlynn Delozier and Jean Beene, summer school enrollment report and update on funding status on the Early Childhood and Title VII programs.

Reports include preliminary average daily membership (ADA) figures, cafeteria, tax office, transportation (estimate of storage tank for fuel and cost projections), and tennis court payment.

An appeal will be made by Mrs. Willie Osborn to live in Canyon for the 1976-77 school year even though she will work here.

Holmes Resigns To Become Superintendent In Panhandle

The resignation of Jim Holmes as an assistant superintendent was officially accepted by the Hereford School Board of Trustees in a called meeting Thursday night at the school district administration building.

In a letter addressed to superintendent Roy Hartman, Holmes expressed, "deep regret that I must tender my resignation with the Hereford Schools effective June 30.

He is moving to Panhandle to accept the job of superintendent with the school system there. It consists of about 900 students and is classified as an AA school. His wife Kathy will teach second grade in the Panhandle schools.

Holmes, 34, came to Hereford seven years ago as a speech therapist and golf coach, a position he held for only semester. He became director of special education.

In 1969, he was given a multiple set of tasks as follows: director of pupil and personnel services, guidance and testing, called meeting Thursday night at the district administration building.

Holmes, 34, who has served in different administrative capacities during the last seven years in Hereford, submitted a letter of resignation to Superintendent Roy Hartman and the trustees. He has accepted the job of health services director and textbook custodian. In 1973, he was given added responsibilities in curriculum and in-service planning and scheduling. His general title was administrative assistant.

About a month ago, the school board authorized him as an assistant superintendent along with the other administrative assistants. It was only a title change to more clearly describe the jobs involved.

He came from Amarillo, where he was a speech and hearing therapist and assistant director of special education. He spent five years there.

His wife has taught school here and in Amarillo.

Holmes graduated in 1964 with a Bachelor of Science degree from West Texas State University and earned a Master of Education degree in counseling and guidance in 1971 from Texas Tech University.

He received his all levels administrative certificate from WTSU and Tech in superintendent in the Panhandle School System.

James Gentry, trustee, moved that the resignation be accepted reluctantly. Mrs. Sallie Strain, trustee, seconded the motion and it passed unanimously.

Praising Holmes, Hartman said, "We hate to lose Jim Holmes. He has contributed much in the areas of special education and curriculum; few people recognize his true ability."

MRS. SYLVIA HIGH WALLACE, mother of 10 children, requested and received a hearing concerning allegations that she made against Bill Gentzel, assistant principal at Aikman Elementary School, for disciplinary actions involving her son Anthony Wayne. Also, she said Hartman and John Poindexter, Aikman principal, did not contact her concerning the case after she had complained about "her son's mistreatment."

She thought no administrative actions were going to be taken to correct the situation, and therefore requested the hearing.

She claimed Gentzel grabbed her son by the collar, and slung him across a room during a Physical Education class. It supposedly involved the slow speech which Anthony took to retrieve a basketball. Also, she said her son's collar was torn and that he "was shoved into

Assistant DA Views Job As 'Challenging'

The job of an assistant district attorney isn't for everyone, but it is the right job for Schalan Atkinson, who was officially sworn into the position this week by 69th Judicial District Judge Mike Metcalf.

Actually, Miss Atkinson had been on the job since February 1 as a legal assistant to Criminal District Attorney Andy Shuval. This was the only legal way she could begin work until she took her state bar exams and was sworn in as an attorney.

SHE TOOK AND PASSED her bar exams in May and was sworn in this week as Deaf Smith County assistant district attorney. She assumed the job after the resignation of Roland Saul from the position.

Her responsibilities include most misdemeanor cases, which are filed in county court. These involved everything from driving while intoxicated (DWI) charges to welfare fraud cases.

"I've really enjoyed working under Andy. It's a good chance to get trial experience," she said about her short tenure in office. It's her first job in the legal profession since her graduation from the Texas Tech Law School in 1975. She received her bachelor of Science degree from West Texas State University in 1972.

She described the job she holds as very challenging especially in relation to such cases as welfare fraud and child abuse. These involve extensive investigation and more time to prosecute.

"A LOT OF THE LAW SCHOOL courses dealt with civil cases and now I'm getting trial experience," she said. "Some lawyers don't like trial law but I like it all."

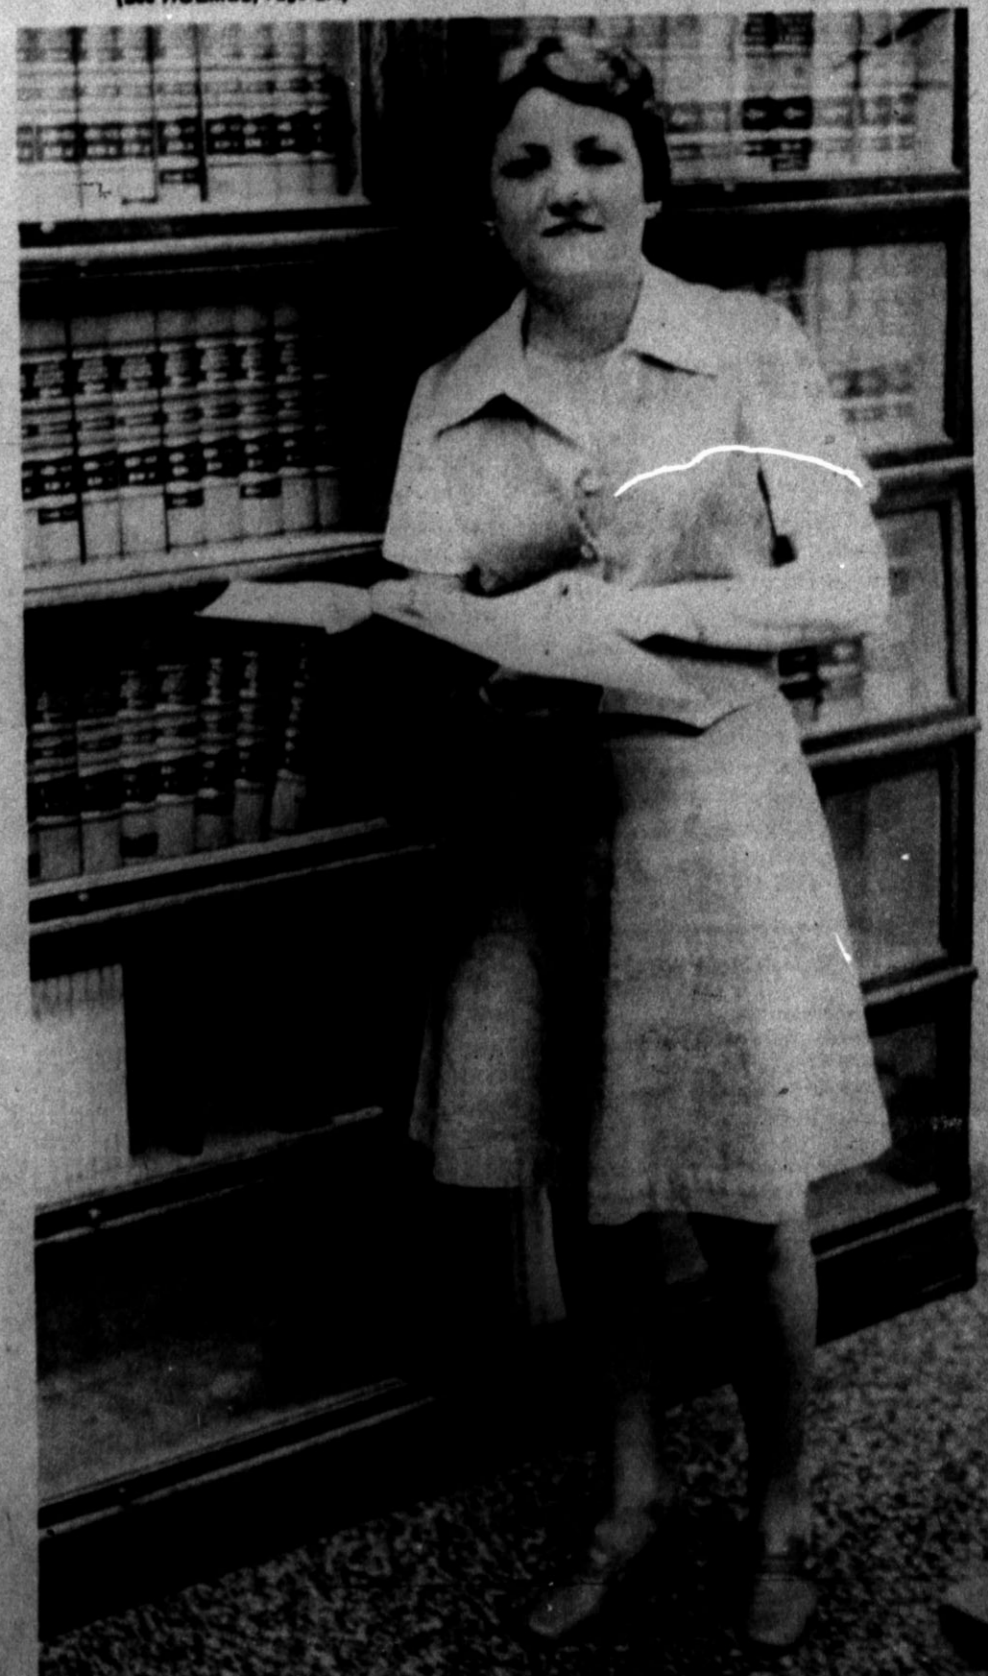

Ms. Atkinson had numerous wide ranging experiences this year in her new position. One related to the request for an investigator for the criminal district attorney's office.

She was right in the thick of arguing for an investigator before the county commissioners' court. Even with the support of the district judge, the request was denied.

Her job takes a lot of time though. "Some days, I will get a lot of calls and visitors and I have to deal with them right then. Time goes by quickly and I will still have a stack of work left on my desk," the 27-year-old attorney said.

She was reared in Amarillo and holds memberships in the Student Bar Association, Phi Delta Phi Legal Fraternity. She has recently joined the Hereford bar and state bar associations.

Previous experience includes jobs with the Federal Bureau of Mines Hellum Research Center, Amarillo and Texas Tech as a teaching assistant.

Assistant DA

Schalan Atkinson, assistant district attorney, reviews a law book from the office's extensive library. She uses the research to help in cases she prosecutes under District Attorney Andy Shuval.

Summer Months Mean Work for Students

By BOBBY TEMPLETON
Brand News Editor

Summer may mean fun in the sun for a host of the high school and college students, but it means steady work for most who are lucky enough to find jobs to help defray education expenses.

The key word is "lucky" since this summer in Hereford is not as open for summer jobs. Lester Rape, director of the Texas Employment Commission (TEC) here, said this week that not as many jobs are available as in the past since employers "either do the work themselves or do it with those already hired."

HE EMPHASIZED the need for more employers to call in information concerning jobs they might have for students. "We have a lot of applicants for the jobs we have available," Rape explained.

The number of students applying is still lower than last year, but the number of jobs is proportionately lower.

The unemployment rate remains at about 3.5 per cent, the highest it's ever been in Hereford since Rape first directed the office. But it is far better than other parts of the country.

Of course, the number of students on the work force locally increases unemployment to greater proportions. But efforts by the TEC usually help reduce this figure.

MOST OF THE SUMMER workers are high school students, but a large number of vacationing college students seek work. These over 16-years-old are able to qualify for almost all types of work, principally clerical type jobs, the TEC director said.

"We are often known as the 'unemployment office'. But not everyone coming here draws unemployment insurance," he said. "Also applicants think we charge for placements as do commercial placement services, but we are a state agency and naturally we are here to serve the public in finding jobs."

This summer, Rape hopes people with little jobs such as babysitting, lawn mowing, and house cleaning will call the TEC office at 700 25-Mile Ave. He sure can supply the workers.

"Students look for shorter amounts of work," he said especially those who are not old enough to work consistently. "We seldom receive any complaints about student workers. They are usually very eager and do a good job."

LAST YEAR, the TEC implemented its annual Youth Employment Service (YES) program which is directed at getting students to apply and employers to furnish jobs for them. It involved setting up about 100 posters around town and constant telephone calls seeking jobs.

It was not used this year for the first time in three years because Rape wanted to see if it was working effectively. "Actually, I think it did a lot of good," he explained with the added conclusion that it would probably be operated next year.

Different types of jobs offered students may vary as widely as the tasks needed done by the general business or house owner. A large part of the work in the Hereford area is related to agriculture including custom harvesting jobs and field work.

The field work is handled at peak seasons by migrant labor and more frequently by permanent residents. Even the children of field workers have the opportunity to obtain other domestic type jobs by contacting the TEC office. The heaviest field work months are July and August when the vegetable harvests commence.

However, most field work jobs are filled through standing lists and direct contacts with crew chiefs.

EMPLOYERS REPORTING JOBS are asked to be specific in the duties to be performed so that the right individuals may be found.

Students in turn fill out application forms for the employer's use. Once a job is located, the prospective employee is given a referral card to take to the employer.

Part of the TEC service is to instruct students in the proper procedure for approaching an employer and the right technique in acting at an interview.

Application forms may be kept on active file, where they may remain for a 60-day period. The TEC likes to keep files current so applicants are asked to contact the office again if employment is sought.

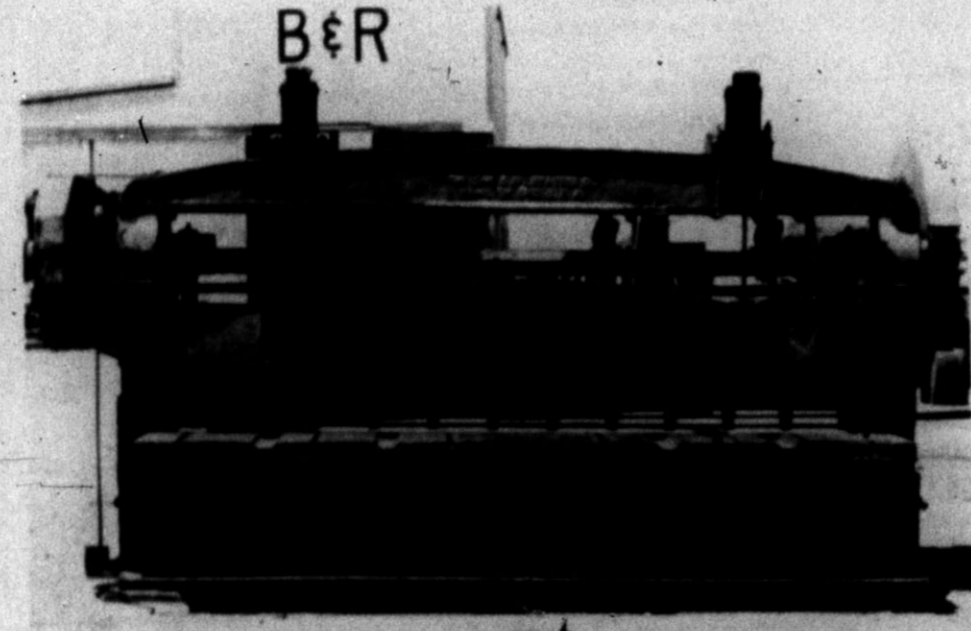

"There's nothing better than a kid getting out and working. The value is more in the work experience than the money earned," Rape said.

But this chance cannot be offered to the students, who desperately need work, unless the jobs are made available. That door can only be opened by local employers.

Heavy Load

B&R Welding, located off Holly Sugar Road, is shown receiving a 50 ton break press used to bend metal in desired shapes. It, along with a metal break shown at right, are used together to cut and form metal sheets as wide as 12 feet and as thick as one fourth of an inch. The driver, who took two weeks to deliver the equipment from California, said he had to back track about 500 miles of the trip since the large metal former, which stands 14 feet high from its base to the top, could not go under certain overpasses.

Plains Water Study Passed

Congressman George Mahon, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, reports that in the Public Works Appropriations bill, approved by the Committee this week, $150,000 is provided to begin a multi-year study of availability of ground water supplies in the High Plains area of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

expenditure of $60,000 for continued study of the salinity at Lake Meredith on the Canadian River, which is a major source of municipal water in the High Plains area.

the total estimated cost of the study is $1 million. Final House action on the measure is scheduled for mid-June.

Mahon points out that this new program in no way reduces the urgency for a water import program, but could be significant in meeting short-term needs. He continues to emphasize the urgency for a viable water import program and is working with West Texans and State of Texas officials toward that goal.

Also in the Appropriations Committee-approved bill is $200,000 for advanced engineering work by the U.S. Corps of Engineers on the flood control project at Plainview. The design work for the Plainview project is now in its final stages, preliminary to a $10 million effort to improve floodways and flood barriers within the City.

Mahon's Committee also okayed an the hallway.

The incident took place earlier in the spring and she contacted school officials for the first time on May 5. After contacting the schools five times, she was not satisfied and said she needed to contact her lawyer Andy Shuval.

DURING THE EXCHANGES, she explained that Poindexter had made an arrangement for the student to stay out of P.E. class and remain in the school office to "run errands." This was not totally to Mrs. Wallace's liking as she said no duties were performed.

"He (Gentzel) had no authority to do what he did," she said. "There are teachers in the school system who are not really qualified."

Mrs. Strain asked if the boy was hurt other than his pride. Mrs. Wallace said no but that his shirt collar was ripped.

The complainant told school officials to punish her children (with a paddle) if they needed it, but not to use excessive forms of punishment such as she described. "They've always had authority to whip my kids. There are some things you whip kids for."

She and three other mothers present also told about Gentzel's use of whipping for misconduct such as leaving clothes in a cafeteria. They all claimed that numerous students were being mistreated but that parents were afraid to talk out.

"There are only a few blacks here, but we will stand together. It takes only a handful!" Mrs. Wallace said.

The mistreatment as portrayed started about four to six weeks after the school year started, Mrs. Wallace stated.

CLARK ANDREWS, trustee, said that assistant principals are in charge of discipline and that everyone experiences situations where a teacher and student will not get along with each other. Mrs. Strain asked if Gentzel deserved a second chance, but Mrs. Wallace said, "Not in this case; there's been too many complaints."

In answer to a question from Gentry, she said, "Gentzel needs more education in how to deal with the public in general."

"I'm interested in all students being treated equally," Mrs. Wallace concluded.

Jim Conkwright, school board president, said the board would definitely pursue the allegations and that final results would be reported to Mrs. Wallace.

JIM ARNEY, TRUSTEE, told the board under miscellaneous business that an offer had been made to the board to buy land on the east side of La Plata Junior High School. Possibly, it would consist of all the remaining portions of a block of land surrounding the school's campus including a house on the corner of the property.

No action was taken concerning the offer.

The trustees convened in an executive session to discuss personnel matters relating to Holmes' vacancy and the allegations revealed by Mrs. Wallace. The real estate matter was also considered but no actions were forthcoming on any of the subjects.

The possibility exists that Holmes' duties will be split up among a replacement and other existing personnel.

The board meets again in regular session at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

understand my decision. From a professional and family standpoint, I feel that I should accept the position as auditor. I am honored to have been selected, and I hope that my service to the community will be reflected even more in this position," stated Schroeter.

CONKWRIGHT, school board president, said Schroeter's decision was discussed in an executive session of the school board Thursday but no action was taken. "We anticipate receiving his resignation at a regular meeting Tuesday," said Conkwright, "and the board will have to decide where we go from there."

Conkwright said the board can appoint someone to replace Schroeter, "but only until next April's election—not for the rest of the three-year term." He reported that the school attorney also advised trustees that they can leave the post vacant until the next election.

Asked about possible nominees, Conkwright said he felt the board would give consideration to those who had sought positions on the board and did not win election. This was one of the factors mentioned during the board's executive session Thursday, he added.

What Is An Auditor?

What is a county auditor...what are his duties and responsibilities?

With a new county official to be appointed this coming week, citizens may wonder just why an auditor is necessary and what his duties will be.

District Judge Mike Metcalf, who makes the appointment of an auditor, said the official will make monthly reports to the county judge and commissioners, and assists the county officials in preparing a budget. "It will cause a change in the way county business is accomplished," he pointed out.

As defined by the statutes, he has broad powers in enforcing the law governing county finances. The law provides for the auditor to be appointed by the district judge for two years at an annual salary of not more than the salary paid the tax assessor-collector. That amount in Deaf Smith County is $12,495.

The statutes define his duties as: "The auditor shall have a general oversight of all the books and records of the officers of the county, district or state, who may be authorized or required by law to receive or collect any money, funds, fees, or other property for the use of, or belonging to, the county; and he shall see to the strict enforcement of the law governing county finances."

"All reports of collections of money for the county required to be made to the commissioners' court shall also be carefully examined and reported on by him. He shall at least once in each quarter check the books and examine all the reports of the tax collector, the treasurer and all other officers, in detail, verifying the footings and correctness of same, and shall stamp his approval thereon, or note any differences, errors or discrepancies.

"He shall carefully examine the quarterly reports of the treasurer, of all the disbursements, together with the cancelled warrants which have been paid, and shall verify the same with the register of warrants issued as shown on the books of the auditor."

Another article states: "The auditor, without giving any notice beforehand, shall examine fully into the condition of, or inspect and count the cash in the hands of the county treasurer, or in the bank in which he may have placed same for safe keeping, not less than once in each quarter, and oftener if desired, and shall see that all balances to the credit of the various funds are actually on hand in cash, and that none of said funds are invested in any manner except as the law may authorize."

The auditor is also empowered to "prescribe and prepare the forms to be used by all persons in the collection of county revenues, funds, fees and all other moneys, and the mode and manner of making their reports to the auditor."

An attorney general's opinion is also on the books providing: "If a county auditor determines that a county employee is not discharging duties for which he was employed, he should refuse to countersign warrants from the county treasurer issued to such employees."

VFD Fights Vehicle Fire

Hereford firemen were called to extinguish another car fire late Tuesday, the third such fire in about a one week period here.

Tuesday, firefighters responded to a call on west Highway 60 near Griffin & Brand, where they extinguished a fire in a vehicle owned by Robert Saig.

Wednesday at about 6:20 p.m. one fire department unit was called to the Elks Lodge Swimming Pool at 1509 16th. According to a fire department report, a young girl nearly drowned at the site, and a unit was called to lend assistance at the scene.

Tour Will Highlight Weed Control In Beets

A tour on sugarbeet weed control, sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Holly Sugar Corporation will be held here Tuesday.

THE TOUR will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the experimental field east of the Holly Sugar Corporation Merrill E. Shoup plant here.

Four participants will also view experiments at the USDA research center at Bushland later in the afternoon.

According to Paul Scott, agronomist with Holly Sugar, the Hereford tour will highlight experimental preplant and postemergent herbicides. The experimental herbicides are being compared to herbicides already on the market in the Holly tests.

Also featured will be experiments aimed at determining the best combination of preplant and postemergent herbicides to reduce weeds to a minimum.

HERBICIDES were applied just after sugarbeet planting in another study and sprinkler irrigation was used to incorporate herbicides and furnish water to germinate beets.

Drs. Steve Winter and Allen Wiese will conduct the tour at Bushland.

Cultural practice studies to determine the best combination of preplant, postemergent and layby herbicides to minimize hoeing will be shown.

Another experiment compares one, two and three times of preplant herbicide incorporation with a rolling cultivator.

MULTIPLE applications of post-emergent herbicides are also being made in an attempt to increase weed control.

Applications of Betanex and Betanal are being made in the morning and afternoon at the Bushland station to determine toxicity to sugarbeets and weeds.

"In our trials over the past five years, we have been evaluating two promising preplant sugarbeet herbicides and the effort is paying off. Prospects look good that both of them will be labeled and on the market in 1977," the scientists stated.

All farmers and interested persons are invited to attend the tour.

Vandals Cause Extensive Damage At Junior High

Vandals inflicted heavy damage at Stanton Junior High School late Tuesday night after breaking into the home economics department.

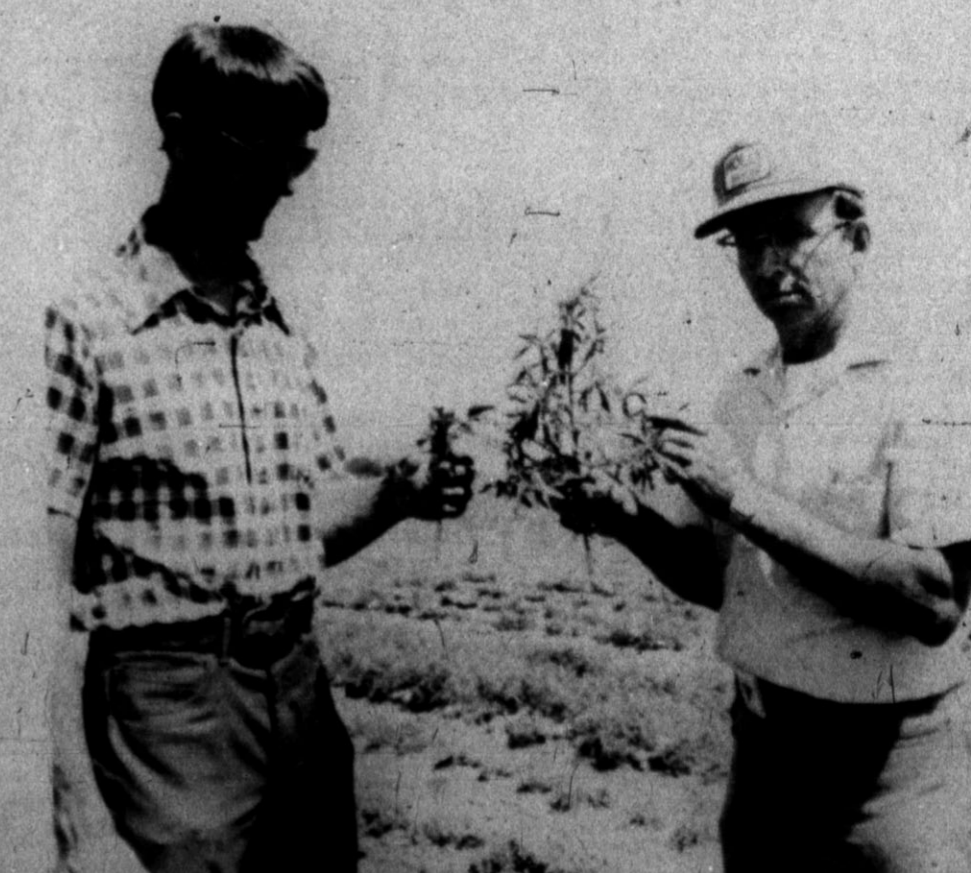

The vandals entered the school building through a window, then cooked on appliances in the department.

Flour and other items were dumped on the floor and carpeting in the home economics department. Hereford police estimated damages at $500.

Vandals broke out a window on a pickup owned by Vernon Carlile of 314 Centre Tuesday.

Tina Soldano of 410 Ave. E reported the theft of her purse, containing $150 in checks from her beauty shop at 133 Bennett Tuesday.

Thieves also made off with a spare tire from the back of a pickup owned by Jane Alvarez of 220 Ave. H Thursday. The tire was valued at $66.

Studying Weed Control

Dr. Steve Winter, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientist from Bushland and Paul Scott, agronomist with Holly Sugar Corporation here compare the progress of a kosher weed and sugar beet at the experimental field near the Merrill E. Shoup Plant here. Both Winter and Scott will be speaking on weed control in beets during a tour at the Holly field and at Bushland Tuesday.

Holmes, his wife and seven-year-old son Derek, will be in Pahandle by the middle of June.

The board has made no decisions yet concerning Holmes' replacement although it was discussed in executive session Thursday night. A possible recommendation could follow at the board meeting at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Religion & Candidates

In 1960 religion played a part in the nation's presidential campaign; John Kennedy was a Catholic, and because of that church's heavy role in state and political affairs in many countries, anxiety was felt by many that his election might threaten the U.S. Constitution's vital separation of church and state doctrine.

But Kennedy assured the nation's majority Protestants he would place allegiance to the Constitution above allegiance to the Pope in Rome. And he steadfastly refused to change his opposition to federal aid to Catholic schools. This year, however, a different religious tone has been injected into the presidential campaign.

Jimmy Carter kindles anxiety in some because of the fear he may be too much of a fundamentalist, or Puritan, even a "saved" fanatic. And interestingly the two candidates who have recently moved to stop Carter are Catholics—Frank Church and Jerry Brown.

Brown stirs the same anxiety in some Carter does. He is seen as something of a religious zealot himself and Kevin Phillips quotes this ex-Jesuit seminarian as having exploited biblical quotations in the successful Maryland primary campaign. Maryland is among the most Catholic of all the states, and many think this is why Catholic Brown managed victory over Baptist Carter there. Phillips also recalls Brown telling students at a Catholic college his gubernatorial administration would be based on the rules of St. Ignatius!

The danger in being or posing as a religious zealot in American politics is that most Americans traditionally shun zealots. It may be true in this Watergate aftermath that many welcome a return to high principle.

But arithmetic shows the danger of parading religion. There are more than 70,000,000 Protestants in America, 48,000,000 Catholics, 6,000,000 Jews, and many other lesser groups. Catholics, formerly greatly disadvantaged in this country politically because of Rome's traditional policy of interference in politics and government, are gaining proportionately in the population, partly because of the flood of Puerto Ricans, Mexicans and Cubans into America. But the church is also losing much of its power over members.

Protestant churches have suffered a decrease in membership in recent years (with exceptions such as the Baptists) and, generally speaking, the Puritanical rules of many of these denominations have greatly eased. There is some feeling, however, that a Protestant revival, or at least a halt in the decline, is now underway because of a widespread reaction to Watergate scandals and the flood of sordid films and literature many find obscene.

Jewish political power has long been relatively strong, considering that less than three per cent of the U.S. population is Jewish. That's partly because of large Jewish financial contributions, good organization and an often dominating Jewish influence in films and, of late, in the news media in general—including television and newspapers.

After considering all the country's religions, however, there remain about 75,000,000 Americans of no religious persuasion whatsoever. And this decisive segment of the U.S. population is traditionally fearful of religious zealots of any faith. The vote of these millions is far and away large enough to reject any candidate who gets carried away with his "assignment" from God.

The word "bride" comes from an early Teutonic word meaning "to cook."

ONE YEAR AGO

The consensus of opinion which emerged from talks with Hereford gasoline wholesalers this week is that citizens should expect a slight increase in gasoline prices in the near future with long-range price prospects uncertain, and that supply of gasoline in the immediate future should remain plentiful. A giant Boeing 747 may never have an occasion to land in Hereford or any other town this size, but facilities for such an aircraft ought to be ready here, provided that size of airport is ever needed. Of course, it is unlikely the situation will ever come about, but other small airport development needs of a more realistic nature are being considered and discussed through a series of meetings being held throughout the Panhandle for input into the development of the Texas Airport System. Three retirees were honored and 22 teachers and employees were presented with service pins when Hereford Independent School District held an end-of-school luncheon Thursday for all personnel. Economic experts may not be fully convinced that the recession is yet over, but local prosperity experienced during the last month sure points in that direction.

FIVE YEARS AGO

The Hereford Whiteface Booster Club will meet Monday night at the Community Center to elect officers for the coming year. Three dozen foreign exchange students will be in Hereford over the July 4th weekend. They'll spend three nights here and local people are trying to line up families that will keep the students in their homes. County and City officials have taken steps to see that the Progressive Road rail crossing is made safer. Owner of the Hereford Labor Camp said Saturday a state law on improvements doesn't concern him because he is in the process of selling the camp to individuals. District Judge Archie McDonald Thursday ordered the forfeiture of $5,000 bond for Joe Pat Anders, a 39-year-old Anton man who has been linked with the theft of up to $1 million in chemicals over the Panhandle the past several years.

TEN YEARS AGO

A movement to establish a local weed control district appears to be gaining momentum as the Agriculture Committee of the Chamber of Commerce voted Thursday to seek public support for the proposal. The action came after committee members heard formation and operation procedures outlined. Only 15 absentee votes had been cast through Friday for this week's bond election to decide the fate of a proposed $450,000 paving program for the county. An official of the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association, Inc., pointed out Thursday that the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration have approved the use of Treflan on sugar beets under supplemental labels. Registration will begin Monday at 7:45 a.m. for summer courses at Hereford High School. The courses will be offered to students throughout the area, tentative to sufficient demand by the students.

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY--Did Davy Crockett die a hero's death at the Alamo? Or was he executed by a firing squad after the battle?

Carmen Perry, archivist-librarian at The University of Texas at San Antonio, says that Crockett survived and was shot. She says so in her book, "With Santa Anna in Texas." Its publication may precipitate the second Battle of the Alamo.

Actually Miss Perry didn't write the book. It's only her translation of the personal diary of Lt. Col. Jose Enrique de la Pena. He should know because he was with Gen. Santa Anna at the Alamo. He says that Crockett did not go down fighting but was one of seven who were captured. Santa Anna ordered them all shot.

Miss Perry says that historians have known about de la Pena's account for a long time. They didn't say much about it to the public, however, until she translated the diary. When it was published last year by Texas A&M University, the translation caused a furore.

Defenders of the Crockett legend say the diary couldn't be true. Miss Perry says the author was there and should know.

"De la Pena was a sensitive and intelligent soldier who wrote objective descriptions of his five months with Santa Anna," she says. "He was concerned that many of the reports from Santa Anna and his officers were falsified."

Miss Perry's book may not change history. But it's fascinating reading and it just might be true.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?--There is an old saying that "you can take the boy out of Texas but you can't take Texas out of the boy." And that's how a Pennsylvania town got its unique name.

In the 1840's, Lower Macungie Township, Pa., had a tavern that was a gathering place for miners and a crew working on a new railroad line. The latter included a group of ex-cowboys up from Texas. They brawled often with the men from the mines.

During one of the fights, one participating observed: "This is just like back in East Texas."

Soon everybody was calling the place "East Texas" and later it became the official name.

THE PASSING PARADE--The milkman, once a fixture in every Texas community, is vanishing.

A half century ago, nearly all of the milk used in Texas urban areas was delivered by milkmen in horse-drawn wagons. Even during World War II, more than half of all milk products were still home delivered.

Now the supermarket has replaced the milkman. Less than 10 per cent of milk sold today is home delivered.

YOU MIGHT LIKE TO KNOW--That Indians enjoyed peanut butter, too.

Some tribes ground the goobers to a pulp, mixed the concoction with honey and served it up as a kind of dessert.

We have short memories. There are more cars on the roads than ever before. Car dealers are selling the big models and can't give the economy models away. Motor home sales are booming and we have gotten off the "Conserve Energy" kick that was so popular a year ago.

Well, the OPEC countries are quietly reaching a compromise agreement which will make all of us wonder why we haven't gotten our own energy house in order. It's only a matter of strategy and timing. The OPEC countries have to extend the current oil-price freeze until next fall. By then, the economic recovery of the West and Japan will have strengthened to where a price increase of at least 8 per cent and possibly more can be posted without putting a dent in the current business boom.

There has been a steady increase in world oil demand. The OPEC countries are pumping 30 million barrels per day, up from just under 27 million barrels in January. The U.S. will import about 7.2 million barrels daily which is 42 per cent of total U.S. oil consumption compared to 29 per cent in 1972. And that's with states such as Texas pumping 100 per cent of allowable every month.

The push for a price increase by the oil producing countries is caused by massive spending programs in those countries started in the cushy big-income days following the hike in oil prices three years ago. However, the big spenders were caught in a world-wide recession, oil consumption dropped sharply and so did their incomes. The OPEC countries would have rammed through a big price increase long ago but the members were disorganized and undecided on the best time for an increase.

A Shell Transport and Trading Co. official believes a 10 per cent increase will be the minimum and that it could come as early as this October. Iraq, Algeria and Venezuela want a $2.50 per barrel increase next fall. That's a 22 per cent over the current price of $11.51 per barrel. Any price hike will hit the poor countries harder than heavily industrialized countries such as Japan and the U.S., so the OPEC countries have agreed to supply $400 million in aid to under-developed countries to soften the blow of a price increase. The numbers are impressive. A 10 per cent increase adds $6 billion a year to the present total of $126 billion a year for the OPEC countries. Prices of gasoline, heating oil and naphtha will climb sharply.

SENATE & WEATHER

Summer Earnings; Thanks Holmes

Summer is usually a time of slow paced activity. Or is it?

Students can enjoy the fact that they have three months in which to enjoy the sun and fun that comes with no school. But most usually come to their senses after a week or so and realize that next year's schooling depends on whether or not they earn tuition and book money during the summer.

I remember this case so well. In this issue, The Brand reported that the summer job situation was not as good as usual with a lower number of jobs as well as students applying at the TEC. Some would characterize the student of today as lazy and spoiled rotten by his or her parents. It's the case sometimes, but not in most families from my angle of view.

I find the students graduating from high school in recent years earnestly willing to shoulder the burden of their own welfare. They're more grown up because society has forced it. Such situations as the 18-year-old voting right and more freedom have created a world where the student going into college better look out for his or her future or bear the consequences.

Courses taught in school are more relevant and exist on a higher educational plane than when I was in school just a short seven years ago. Those who are older can make an even more dramatic comparison.

When I came out of high school, I had already saved a good amount of cash for college and decided I could loaf a bit. Oh, I worked and earned a few more dollars, but my summer months between high school and college were spent more enjoying a bit of the surf by the coast and involving myself in such foolish projects as buying a horse, which this city boy knew nothing about.

He seemed like a young stout pony, but he turned out to be a four-year-old nag who had been beaten senseless by his previous owner. I didn't know you determined a horse's age by counting his teeth.

Anyway, my summer was filled with frivolity and a very stable bank account. I learned later (about my junior year) that a little more money earned earlier sure would have saved me from having to pinch a few pennies and working on extra jobs to make ends meet.

I do have the satisfaction of knowing I paid my way through college with a minimal amount of money from my parents and no borrowed funds. My baccalaureate graduation was a time when I was broke, but I didn't owe any money. Some of my poets had piled up debts as large as $8,000.

The summer months maybe the designated time for no work for some students, but they will learn by their mistakes. Once, they graduate there's always time for that one big trip of a lifetime with comfortable knowledge that they have a fruitful life ahead of them.

Of course, there's the sudden realization that once a career is started, it is hard to find the adequate time for any real vacations other than those week-long jaunts to see relatives and far away friends. So, college seniors should pay heed to this advice: take a trip while you have the one chance; you earned it.

Then get on with the business of supporting yourself.

-BT-

I wish to congratulate Jim Holmes, assistant superintendent for Hereford Schools on his appointment to superintendent of Panhandle schools. In the short time I have known him, he has proven to me that he is a truly effective education administrator and a very warm person.

Panhandle's gain is indeed a large loss for Hereford. His contributions in those often unrecognized fields are expansive. He has been an integral part of bettering the Hereford schools under Roy Hartman's direction.

It is his type of spirit and constant smile that makes the rough times a bit easier to endure. And education is definitely going through some rough times.

I will miss his face at school board meetings as will all others who regularly attend. If a problem arose, he at least knew where to find an answer if he did not know the solution himself.

A man like Holmes comes along only once in a life time, and his moving will surely be felt within the school system. At least Hereford possesses a well balanced and effective administrative staff to fill the giant gap left by Holmes.

Hereford, like all school systems, has problems. But they are handled better here than anywhere I've lived and solutions are more times than not noticeably effective. After reading newspapers reporting on the situations facing other school systems, I can truly appreciate the situation here.

Someday, maybe my child will enroll in these schools and receive the best education there is to offer. If we're not here, I hope the schools he attends will be of the high quality they are here.

If so, we owe our thanks to devoted educators such as Jim Holmes.

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner gives some thought to the energy problem this week, you might say.

Dear editor:

According to people who're supposed to know, gasoline prices will go up this summer because, they say, of the law of supply and demand but it's probably also because of some people's knowledge of human nature.

You have a car packed full of fishing gear, picnic supplies, swim suits and kids and the folks with gas to sell know a jump of five cents a gallon isn't going to hold you back. They understand children.

After all, somebody put all those highways out there and you know people feel an irresistible obligation to not let them go to waste.

This brings me to the energy problem and how to solve it. So far, about all the thinkers have come up with is conservation. Stop using so much gasoline, they say. Cut down on your driving. They mean business. Why, there are people so concerned over the waste of fuel they'll ride one-to-a-car going to a meeting to protest people going to work one-to-a-car. In earlier times, when people rode horses, they'd be protesting because people weren't riding double. This wasteful use of oats has got to stop.

Let's face it, this is the automobile age where people are going to get in their cars and go where they want to, to work, to play, or wherever, until the earth is pumped dry of oil, and the answer is to find something besides gasoline that'll run the things.

Electricity is the answer. Now I don't understand the stuff. I can understand how you can send water or oil through a pipe but I don't understand how you can send electricity down a wire when it hasn't even got a hole in it. And I don't know what the stuff is. All I know is that if you can turn a generator, it'll turn out electricity. Where it comes from I don't know, but I don't think it uses up any of our natural resources other than our money, and you don't have to dig, strip-mine or drill for it. Environmentalists would wither from lack of something to do if everything including cars, ran on electricity.

And that's my point. We've got to invent a method of broadcasting electricity to a moving vehicle, whether a car, an airplane, a ship, a train, a motorboat or a motorscooter, with the electricity coming of course from a pollution-free source like the sun. Storing it in batteries won't work. Oh, I guess you could load a plane down with enough batteries to lift it off the ground, if you had a small pilot and no passengers.

Some people will say it can't be done, you can't broadcast electricity to a car, but if man can send colored television pictures by air, why can't he send electricity that way? Looks like it might even be simpler. Electricity isn't colored...I don't think.

Yours faithfully,
j.a.

Bentsen Bill Mandates Death Penalty For Acts Of Terrorism

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Thursday introduced bills to make acts of terrorism a Federal crime, with a mandatory death penalty when someone is killed, and to withhold foreign aid from countries that harbor terrorists.

"No form of lawlessness is more senseless or vicious than an act of violent terrorism: a bomb left in a luggage locker at an airline terminal to kill and maim indiscriminately, a building set on fire, a sniper's bullet," Bentsen said in Senate remarks.

Under one of the two bills introduced by Bentsen crimes of terrorist organizations -- such as kidnapping, sabotage, destruction of Federal property -- would be punishable by the normal sentence for the offense in question plus an additional two-to-ten year sentence. Two years additional would be the minimum with no possibility of probation or parole.

If the terrorist act results in someone's death the offense would carry a mandatory death sentence.

Under the second Bentsen anti-terrorism bill the President is required to suspend foreign aid, loans and trade preferences to any country which willfully aids and abets international terrorism.

"In spite of the fact that international terrorism has continued to grow, no legal solutions are in sight. Many nations, particularly those in the Third World, are unwilling to cooperate in efforts to combat terrorism which, they say, can be justified under certain circumstances," Bentsen said.

"Sources report that almost half of those terrorists captured in the last five years have been released. The unwillingness of these nations to bring the full force of the law to bear against these international outlaws threatens the safety and peace of all nations."

Senator Bentsen said that 800 people have been killed, 1700 injured in international terrorist incidents since 1968. One hundred and fourteen U.S. citizens have been involved, he said, 24 of them killed.

"The time has come for laws that state clearly and decisively that violent crimes to further a political viewpoint will not be tolerated. We will not put up with murder in the name of some higher cause. We will not allow violence under the guise of some higher belief," Bentsen said.

"We cannot permit an individual or group of individuals to seek to impose their beliefs through the destruction of lives or property, without incurring the severe punishment that such conduct deserves," Senator Bentsen said.

A new Bicentennial exhibition entitled American Images: Documentary Photographs by the Farm Security Administration 1935-1942, will open at the Amarillo Art Center June 9. Over 125 photographs will be included in the show which will run through June 27. The exhibit seeks to provide a broad and thorough view of Depression-era America. It is an effort to demonstrate how the Farm Security Administration (FSA) photographers, under the direction of project chief Roy E. Stryker, documented American life and culture between 1935-42.

Rather than serving only as a mere pathology of the period, the exhibit also examines the virtues of Depression-era America. It represents an effort to reveal the state of life during that troubled and introspective time.

The photographs were selected from among the 70,000 FSA file prints in the public domain at the Library of Congress. The exhibit selections are intended both as social history and as art. They are arranged thematically, covering almost every phase of American life.

Works by virtually all of the FSA photographers are included in the exhibit. Russell Lee, Dorothea Lange, Walker Evans, Ben Shahn, Arthur Rothstein, John Vachon, Marion Post Wolcott, Carl Mydans, Jack Delano, John Collier, Jr., and Sheldon Dick are featured.

The exhibit was made possible through a grant by the National Endowment of the Humanities.

The Amarillo Art Center, located at 2200 S. Van Buren, is open free of charge to the public from 10:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., Tuesday through Friday and from 1 p.m. - 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. It is also open Wednesday night from 7 - 9:30.

Bicentennial Celebration Includes Festival '76 Events

Volunteers are invited to help celebrate the Bicentennial at the Panhandle Festival '76. On June 11, 12 and 13, all of the communities of the Panhandle are combining their celebrations at a grand gala on the Tri-State Fairgrounds in Amarillo.

There will be actors and Arrowhead Mills stone ground grains, balloons and the Bicentennial Sampler from Panhandle, Clowns and Singing Cowbells, dancers and displays, exhibits and decorated eggs, flint chipping and other folk art, girls and games, hay wagons for rides and old hats, Indian jewelry and jokes. Also, kettles of food, levis and lariats, Mexican food and the model of a working old cable rig, new appliances and some from 1908, Oriental foods and an old, working cable drilling rig, paintings and a pump (miniature) of an oil well in action, queer costumes and vehicles. Other features include rides in model A cars, sculpture and signals by hand from the deaf in the renowned Hallelujah Han choir, telling of western stories while stretching barbed wire, unique crafts and a University, a village from Colonial times, Worlds of nature display, Xylophones, young people and zest.

If you have a project to enter, write or call LeRoy Tillery today at the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, 806-374-5238 (Amarillo Building, Amarillo, Texas 79101).

The Festival will be held from 5:30-10:30 June 12, and from 12-6 p.m. June 13, at the Tri-State Fairground in Amarillo.

LCC Enrollment Sets New Record

An enrollment of 270 on-campus, academic students has set a new record for the first summer session at Lubbock Christian College, according to Dean of Academics Dr. Harvie Pruitt.

The enrollment figure is some 25 per cent higher than the 202 who were enrolled for the first summer term in 1975.

In addition to on-campus academic students, LCC has another 117 students receiving college credit through extension courses. This includes "mini" courses that are offered and the International Studies Program which this summer has students earning college credits while they tour Spain.

LCC's growing Industrial Technologies Department experienced a 42 percent increase over a year ago. Dr. Tommy Gilbreath, head of that department, has 101 students enrolled now, compared to 59 at this time in 1975.

Politics and religion - vital subjects in these crucial times or in any times. But so often we "cop out" by declining to discuss them.

Why the cop out? Maybe it's because we don't want to offend anyone. After all, in politics one has to make a choice and that action often puts us on one side or the other. That choice is usually an arbitrary one and generally reflects some prejudices, personalities, prejudices and sometimes even pettiness. Objectively is likely to be a very elusive target in partisan politics. On the other hand, we often say that religion is a personal thing between man and his creator. Thus it should be a private matter and not the subject of general public discussion. In other words - "it matters not to me what church that person attends or what beliefs are peculiar to that particular religion."

I guess those observations are reasonable enough. I'm sure some one could argue either way, but pleasing everyone is virtually impossible. - so, where does that leave your Chamber of Commerce?

Well, first of all the by laws of the Chamber prohibit endorsement of any political party or candidate for elective office. This is not a new policy. It is however a very wise one and particularly, since the Chamber is a tax exempt - non profit organization, it has proven to be essential to maintain our status without running afoul of the Election Campaign Laws and the myriad of reports and records required.

Administrative policies of the Chamber (as directed by the Board) require the staff to avoid any active "work in behalf of a political party or candidate" and prohibit use of staff and equipment "in preparation of any advertising piece for any individual business or in behalf of any political party or candidate."

Further, the policy states that the mailing list "shall be used for the promotion of activities of the Chamber of Commerce only."

So there it is! Politics and religion - essential ingredients to our daily lives, and your Chamber recognizes the personal importance of these elements. Another essential ingredient which involves much less personal consideration but lots of personal application is that ole HUSTLE, HUSTLE, HUSTLE.

Red Cross Launches Fund Drive To Aid Guam Victims

The American Red Cross (ARC) has launched a $5 million Fund Campaign to support its emergency relief work on devastated Guam and other islands in the Pacific stricken by Typhoon Pamela last week according to ARC President George M. Elsey.

"The fund campaign follows reports by Red Cross emergency workers in the affected islands, which indicate that close to 14,000 families have suffered losses as a result of the storms rampage, and who will need additional assistance," Mr. Elsey said. The disaster, he added, comes at a time when Red Cross funds earmarked for disaster relief are almost expended imposing the need for the emergency fund drive.

The ARC president noted that the disaster has not received public attention, but he pointed out that at this time last year, the residents of Guam were helping the more than 120,000 Indochinese refugees who stopped on their island enroute to new homes in the U.S. and other countries. Mr. Elsey said that citizens on Guam and other American Territories in the Pacific need help from Americans on the mainland. Any contributions may be sent to the local chapter fund at Box 1371, or taken by 319 Sampson. At the peak of the emergency, he added, more than 5,000 persons were housed in 29 Red Cross shelters, set up by volunteers and staff from the Guam Red Cross Chapter and by disaster specialists rushed from the U.S. mainland. Early damage estimates indicate that about 3,300 homes were destroyed by the storms, some 3,200 had major damage, and over 6,200 had lesser damage. In addition, 266 mobile homes were destroyed, and 79 had major damage. The typhoon resulted in three deaths and some 500 injuries.

Assistance is being provided through four federal disaster assistance administration centers already opened on Guam and from the Red Cross Chapter office. The centers are expected to be fully operational by the coming weekend. Meanwhile, the 26 member

Red Cross Disaster staff flows to the Pacific and the 75 volunteers and staff from the Guam ARC chapter continue to care for the disaster victims. Red Cross nurses are still working in shelters, along with nurses of the Territorial Public Health Service.

The Red Cross has initiated a "Hot Meals on Wheels" program for the aged and injured who are unable to travel to shelters.

There is often a motive behind unexpected favors.

Mexico Tourists Given Health Tips

People headed for Mexico need to be wary of Montezuma's revenge. Delhi belly, border blues, the turistas, Casablanca crud, Mexican two-step...just a few of the slang names for what is politely called traveler's diarrhea.

Texas Medical Association points out that there are several precautions to take to avoid the problem. Unfortunately none of them are absolutely guaranteed to keep travelers from having a lengthy tour of Mexican restrooms. Studies show between one-third and one-fourth of visitors to Mexico get the turistas.

Organisms in tap water, ice, uncooked shellfish and salads, raw vegetables and inadequately cooked foods often waylay travelers. Germs love lukewarm temperatures so eating only very cold or hot foods that are well-cooked may cut down danger somewhat although it is no absolute guarantee of safety.

Raw fruits peeled by the traveler generally are safe.

Bottled carbonated beverages and alcoholic beverages also usually are considered usable. Drinking water can be boiled and even very hot tap water may be used for brushing teeth. Make sure the seal is unbroken on purified bottled water. "agua purificado."

One of the few things definitely known about traveler's diarrhea is the symptoms. Usually within 10 days of arrival, the unlucky tourist is stricken with diarrhea and possibly cramps, nausea, vomiting, chills and fever. Lucky travelers recover within about a day. For others the misery can last for a week or more.

Some doctors recommend letting traveler's diarrhea run its course with little or no medication. Most turista attacks, about 55 per cent, are relatively mild, consisting of only one episode lasting one to three days. However, even a mild case can ruin a holiday so many people resort to the many pills, liquids and suppositories available. A quick call to a physician before leaving may provide some helpful hints on medication.

One of the biggest problems with traveler's diarrhea is loss of body fluids and chemicals. Canned fruit juice, bottled carbonated drinks, bouillon, purified water, etc. can help. A pinch of salt in drinks may be needed.

The only people who face any really dangerous problems with traveler's diarrhea are the very old and very young, people with muscle and kidney diseases and people who have had stomach surgery. Their bodies can have trouble coping with fluid and chemical loss.

Hereford Grad Retains Position

A new division chairman has been elected at Wayland Baptist College, in Plainview two other division chairmen have been re-elected, and a new department head appointed.

In a joint announcement by President Dr. Roy C. McClung and Academic Dean Dr. Kyle Perrin, Wayland's music department head Dr. O.J. Bryson has been elected chairman of the Division of Fine Arts. He succeeds Dr. Jack Gibson who announced his leaving earlier in the year.

Dr. Billy Dean Hardage was re-elected chairman of the Division of Vocational and Professional Studies, and Dr. C. Gwin Morris continues as chairman of the Division of Social Sciences. Division chairmen are elected by the faculty members within their respective divisions and monitored by a faculty member outside of the division.

Morris is a 1959 graduate of Hereford High School. He graduated fifth in a class of 150 students. He and his wife, Brenda Kay, have two sons, Scott, 8, and Brent, 5.

Morris, who also came to Wayland in 1966, is a graduate of Baylor University, Texas Tech University, North Texas State University, and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He serves as a professor of history and is head of the Department of History and Government as well as serving as division chairman. He is executive director of the American Studies Institute of the Southwest.

CRISWELL PREDICTS

UNCENSORED: I predict that a nationwide drive by the Narcotics Bureau will make thousands of raids and arrests on the drug and marijuana world focusing on heroin, LSD and marijuana users! I regret to predict that many famous and infamous personalities will hit the headlines with this coming raid . . . I predict that the United Nations will be shocked by the sudden turn of events due to Russia's new stand on detente and the new bonfire started in Africa, which will soon be known as the Red Continent and not the Black Continent. Event upon event will happen quickly internationally . . . I predict that a national scare will be built up with the appearance of the Bubonic Plague in several sections of the nation. This plague comes from the bite of the flea of infected rodents. It would be well to know the symptoms of this frightening disease . . . I predict it will be discovered that a famous judge in Texas, honored by all, was secretly a woman, which will be revealed by an autopsy or it could become a "state secret" which Texans have so many.

SHADOWS ON THE HORIZON: I predict that a new surge of atheism backed by powerful public figures will hit in November and December! This anti-Christmas drive will prohibit any religious decorations and Christmas hymns to be used publicly in stores, on streets, public buildings or schools. An organized army of atheists will rip down all the decorations. Any merchant may have his windows smashed. And all stores will be boycotted as will TV-radio sponsors who use the Christmas theme in any way. This shattering of Santa Claus will further break up the image of the American Family. The George Orwell 1984 image is not too far away! . . . I predict that one of the best kept secrets of World War II will be uncovered - the exchange of stamps between PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT and HERR HITLER for their stamp collections . . . I predict that a new simple electronic system of a toy puzzle will be used in Canada to make free telephone calls all over the world.

COMING EVENTS: I predict that PATRICIA HEARST, WILLIAM and EMILY HARRIS will face a very hostile public in the shoot-out at the Ingelwood Sporting Goods store last May, and this could very well be the very turning of the tide. The state of California will be the pivotal point of the change for the Symbionese Liberation Army . . . The American Medical Association will be divided on the new Flu Vaccine Plan and will actively lobby against it . . . Secretary of State HENRY KISSINGER will face some uneasy moments when he appears before a Congressional Committee on foreign matters. This will prove to be a Watergate of the liberals in and out of Congress soon! Secretary Kissinger will claim his innocence clear and loud.

'700 Club Carried on Local TV

Hereford will join the "700 CLUB TELETHON" to keep a crisis-counseling television and telephone outreach alive in this area. The Telethon will be broadcast on KXTX-TV, Channel 39 from June 7-13 for varying hours daily. Check TV listings for local channel.

Monday through Thursday, the Telethon will be broadcast from 8 p.m. until midnight. On Friday and Saturday, June 11-12, the Telethon will begin airing at 7 p.m. The final day of the Telethon, Sunday, June 13, the broadcast hours are from noon until 1 a.m.

The Telethon will feature some of America's top Christian entertainers, including singer and former nightclub entertainer Chico Holiday, Cathie Taylor and dozens of other individual special guests.

Telethon host will be M.G. "Pat" Robertson, who hosts the nationally syndicated "700 Club" program seen on KXTX-TV and the local cable systems carrying this station.

The "700 Club" program follows a variety format, but viewers are urged to call a local or regional number flashed on the screen during the program for free counseling and advice with their problems, which range from suicide threats to a child crying over a lost puppy. During the past year the program has drawn more than three-quarters of a million calls for help and assistance.

Local viewers have a direct stake in the outcome of this Telethon, for it is designed to keep the crisis-counseling ministry in operation in this general region.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Gov. Dolph Briscoe has directed drafting of a $525 million cost-of-living pay raise proposal which treats school teachers and other state employees alike and calls for no local school contributions.

It would provide a 6.8 per cent a year salary boost—far short of the big jump to the "national average" teachers had been recommending.

Texas State Teachers Association spokesmen called the governor's plan "disappointing." Federation of Teachers representatives used stronger criticism: "ludicrous and insignificant." (Starting teachers would get a $544 a year raise).

Texas Public Employees Association, whose goals are in line with those outlined by Briscoe, were delighted.

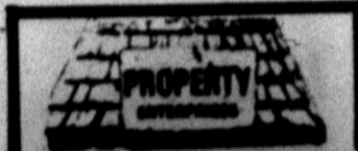

"It's a realistic plan that meets the cost of living increase," said a TPEA representative.

"It does not do much to help the teacher salary situation compounded over the years. Texas teachers are 24th in the nation in pay," said TSTA Executive Secretary Calliew W. Smith.

Briscoe ordered that the state provide all funds for both the state employees and teachers, relieving local school districts of any further tax burden for salaries.

Albracht, Rodriguez Attend Boys State

The 36th annual American Legion Boys State sponsored by the Department of Texas and held on the Campus of The University of Texas, got underway this week as 900 high school boys from all parts of Texas, and two from Mexico, began registration, Larry La-haic, Department Commander, announced.

Among those registering from Hereford were Tony Albracht and Chris Rodriguez, who were sponsored by local American Legion Posts.

Following registration, each citizen was assigned to one of two political parties - the Nationalist or Federalist. Each citizen then functions as a member of his party, he attends its precinct, county and state conventions and votes in its primary.

Boys State helps to develop civic leadership and pride in American citizenship. This program arouses a keen interest in the detailed study of our government. These civic workshops stress the importance of maintaining our form of government and bring better understanding of our national traditions and beliefs to the more than 28,000 young men who are participating this year.

In Boys State, The American Legion provides the type of program where the young citizen has the opportunity to learn for himself that his government is just what he makes it. The boy "learns to do by doing."

The program takes on added significance since the vote has been extended to 18 year olds. Most Boys Staters are in the 16 to 17 age category.

Highlight of Boys State will be a trip to the Capitol on Tuesday morning where each elected Boys State Official will be given an opportunity to serve in his respective office for a day.

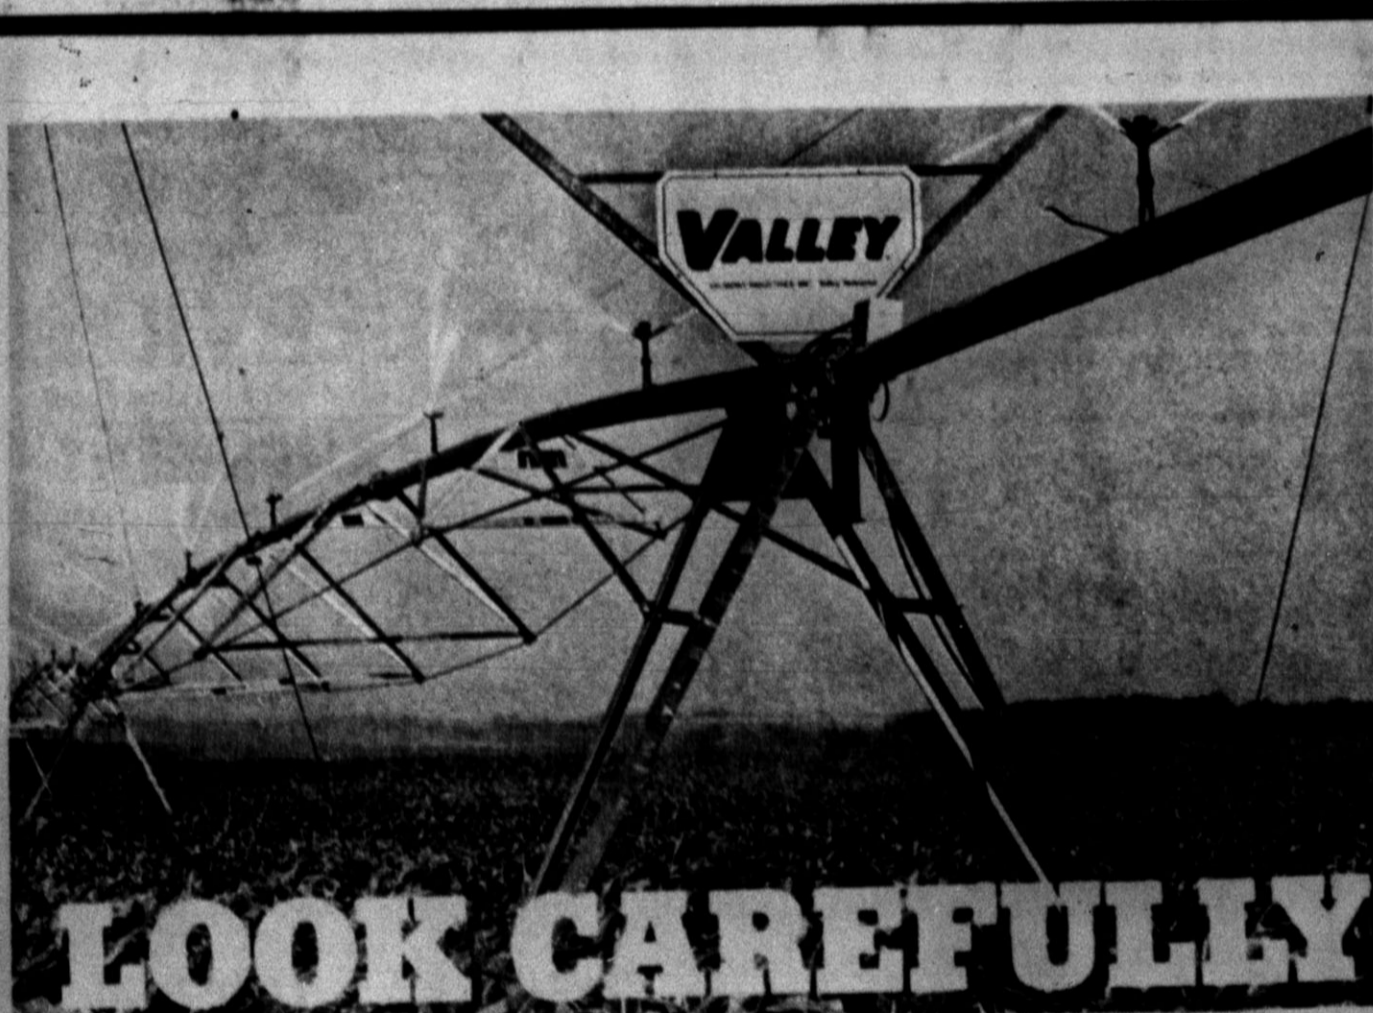

Boys State enrollment this year brings the total to 20,138 junior high school boys who have attended since 1940. Boys State was first inaugurated in Texas.

Rural Post Offices To Close In July

The Sectional Center Manager-Postmaster, C. T. Davis, announced that two (2) small post offices in the area will be discontinued in July of this year. The discontinuances will be in line with U.S. Postal Services policy of providing as good as or equal postal service to customers in very small communities to effect cost reductions in the over all postal operation.

The post office at Middlewater, Texas will be discontinued July 2. The eight (8) families served by this office will receive their mail by rural box delivery and/or at the Dalhart Post Office in a lockbox. This will result in cost savings of $3,600.00 annually.

The post office at Black, between Hereford and Friona, will be discontinued July 30. The thirty-nine (39) families served by this office will receive their mail by rural box delivery out of the Friona Post Office and/or at the Friona or the Summerfield or the Hereford post offices through lockboxes. This will result in a cost savings of $11,000.00 annually.

The families in these two areas will still receive effective and regular Postal Service and be able to purchase stamps, money orders and other Postal Services from the rural carrier that delivers their mail. Postmaster Davis stated.

1890's GAY DISPLAY

The Gay Nineties were bright years, both economically and psychologically. Jewelry gleamed in profusion.

New money battled with old for extravagance. The Vanderbilts, Astors, and Goulds tried to outstep each other. Evelyn Walsh McLean wore the Hope Diamond even when swimming at Bailey's Beach.

Men wore little jewelry—usually just cufflinks and scarfpins. One exception was John Warner Gates, better known as "Bet a Million" Gates, who wore three large diamonds on his shirtfront and three smaller ones on each suspender buckle.

The most dazzling display occurred in the evening. The dog collar was very fashionable—layers of tight ropes of pearls fastened by diamond clasps. Consuelo Vanderbilt's collar had nineteen rows of pearls. This style then gave way to diamond collars and then to bibs of diamonds set in gold. These pieces were always custom designed. The diamond engagement ring was making its debut, but the diamond-set wedding band had not yet joined it.

The ultimate in diamonds was the tiara. Some contained as many as 1000 diamonds. Almost all broke into sections to be worn as other items: brooches, clips, bracelets, or pendants. Prices began at $25,000. Today only sections of these tiaras remain.

Even though jewelry was extravagant, the 1890's were simple times. Today there has been a reversal. Life is more complex, but jewelry is simple. Whatever the state of society, fine jewelry helps people look on the bright side of things.

Boaters Reminded Of Laws On Water Safety

AUSTIN -- Failure to have the proper number of life preservers on board accounted for most water safety citations issued by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens in April.

As of April 30, P&WD wardens had issued 727 citations for water safety violations, a 66 percent increase over April 1975. A total of 494 citations were to boat operators who failed to have the proper number of personal flotation devices of PFDs in their vessels and 46 tickets were given because passengers under 12 years of age were not wearing their life preservers.

Parks and Wildlife Department water safety officials say there are four types of PFDs which are certified as Coast Guard-approved and acceptable under Texas law. A Type I PFD is an approved vest or jacket-type device which is designed to turn an unconscious person in the water from a face-downward position to a vertical or slightly backward position, and to have more than 20 pounds of buoyancy. A Type II PFD also is a vest or jacket designed to turn an unconscious person to a vertical or slightly backward position in the water, but it is designed to have at least 15 1/2 pounds of buoyancy.

A Type III PFD, also a vest or jacket-type device, is designed to keep a conscious person in a vertical position and to have at least 15 1/2 pounds of buoyancy. While having the same buoyancy as a Type II, a Type III PFD has a lesser turning ability to allow for a comfortable design for water activities such as skiing.

A Type IV PFD is a ring buoy or a buoyant cushion designed to be thrown to a person in the water and not worn. It must have at least 16 1/2 pounds of buoyancy. All PFDs must carry a tag certifying that the device is Coast Guard-approved.

The law requires that all motorboats regardless of size must have at least one Coast Guard-approved PFD for each type of PFD required differs with the size of the boat.

Motorboats of 16 feet or less may use any of the four types of PFDs available. A life jacket, buoyant vest, ring buoy, or buoyant cushion is acceptable.

Motorboats longer than 16 feet must have one Type I, II or III for each person aboard. In addition, federal law requires a Type IV PFD on board and immediately available for use. All PFDs must be in serviceable condition and readily accessible.

Our idea of wasting time: reading committee reports.

show, and the unity of the host city was marvelous. Men, women, boys and girls, teenagers, and senior citizens participated, and their spirit of hospitality was wonderful.

All of these things united together filled minds and hearts with many emotions and resolves. However to me one of the greatest contributions (at the awards luncheon) Texas received their quota of awards, I was seated by a lady from Granada, Nicaragua. Her home was one which had been left after the earthquake, and she used it to house injured, homeless, and hungry people.

She had a charming personality, and we agreed to become pen-pals, and to exchange flower seed, and horticulture ideas. The one kind of seed she wanted most was marigolds.

She had seen many of the flowers used in the show, and in the horticulture entries. Her wish has been granted, as a letter with enclosed packets is on its way.

There was unity in this master accomplishment from the President of the United States, the Governor of Florida, National Garden Club, the Mayors of various cities, City Managers, and people.

I have never seen such a wonderful portrayal of unity, with such magnificent results. Never one time did I hear a hasty, bad, or discouraging word. True hospitality was exemplified at all times wherever we went.

This spirit was also ever present midst the tour, 93 people being together for approximately 10 days and having fun, excitement, and tours, etc., etc., without a disgruntled word was really great.

This same spirit would take this world for peace and understanding, if all would purpose to do their part. Think on this.

On one of our tours I read this bit of philosophy, which was the key motto for the organization. "They came with hope and ambition. They fought with nature to exist. Now with renewed hope and ambition we must with renewed hope and ambition work with nature, and seek to have good will to survive, even now."

by the various flowering plants and cut flowers furnished by the participating states and countries. The arrangement was a masterpiece of beauty and artistry. It really set the spirit for the complete show.

The Axis of the exhibits was a rotunda in Grecian architecture. In this the arrangements of the various state of the USA, were featured. On the outside all the flags of the various countries were flying. In the center, which was a small rotunda, the north and south entrances had classic emblem of the National Garden Clubs, done in thousands of flowers, all carrying out the colors of the columbine and other emblematic features at the other entrance was a like arrangement depicting the emblem of the Bicentennial.

The state arrangements were masterpieces, and in each the characteristic of the states were included, and often the state flower, and/or bird and tree were used.

For instance in the Texas arrangement the yellow rose of Texas was featured, along with arrangements were educational, and very interesting, as well as beautiful to study and view.

The foreign countries exhibits were inside the small rotunda, and in each of these their flowers was used, some in simple line arrangements, others in full mass and some in modern.

I was especially interested in the exotic flower materials used, and the gorgeous colors which they brought.

The staging of the entire show, was done by the landscape architects and the local nurseries. Everywhere the eye led one, there was beauty of composition, techniques, and nature at its best. The exhibits, which were many hundreds, all carried out the theme of the show, and portrayed historical events, peace and Christianity.

"Tables for the home," was a very beautiful class, also practical. The Juniors, and Intermediate Garden Clubs entries were excellent, and these also represented various states.

The collages of rocks and woods were well done, also assemblages carrying out ideals and results of study. As always these interested me, as I have worked with junior gardeners many years.

I spent over two days and nights studying and viewing the tremendous Flower Show with the International feeling, and teachings. A special feature to me was the mass of people, of all ages, colors, and different backgrounds who attended the

Commission Adopts Rules

The Public Utility Commission of Texas, in three days of public hearings, adopted rules governing rates and services of utilities under its jurisdiction. The adoption of the rules marked the end of a 30 day waiting period during which time public comment was solicited. Representatives of various utility companies, plus such groups as the League of Women Voters, the Texas Municipal League, and the Texas Consumer Association were present and participated in the meeting.

The rules, which apply to all telephone companies in the state and all rural electric, water and sewerage utilities, concerned three main areas: rate setting, service standards, and reporting requirements.

In setting rates, utilities will be allowed to charge advertising, contribution and donation expenditures do not exceed three-tenths of one percent of the gross receipts of the utility for services rendered to the public. The commission encouraged fully-recoverable expenditures of such funds used for promoting conservation of energy or measures which can allow a consumer to effect a savings in his total bill. Other recoverable expenditures which were encouraged were those which seek to improve utility peak load usage and support of utility trade associations which directly contribute toward the professional standing of their memberships.

Contributions to charitable causes and such organizations as Chambers of Commerce will be allowed as a cost of service so long as the total sum of all such expenditures does not exceed the three-tenths of one percent formula.

The utilities were excluded from charging customers for funds spent for political or lobbying activities, membership in social, recreational, or religious organizations or clubs, or promotion of increased energy consumption. Utilities, if they choose however, may spend investor dollars for these purposes.

The reporting section of the rules, while lessening the burden on utilities to supply data to the PUC on a monthly basis, requires that the companies supply the commission with information on quarterly and annual bases regarding their fuel costs and other expenses, such as advertising, contributions, employee expense accounts, and political lobbying expenditures.

The adopted Substantive Rules are being published by the PUC at a cost per copy of $2.95. Copies may be obtained by enclosing a check or money order made payable to the State Treasurer and addressed to: Accounting Division, Public Utility Commission, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Austin Texas 78757.

conducted by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. What are the rest of the anglers doing wrong?

Many times it is the little oversight that leads to a fisherman's downfall and lets a trophy fish escape the hook.

Here are a few ways to lose a fish:

—Old line: Neither braided nor monofilament line lasts forever. Long periods of disuse as well as constant action and excessive heat can weaken a line and cause it to break at the wrong time.

How often an angler needs to change his line depends on how much he fishes and the type of water he fishes in. Long hours of fishing in water with a lot of underbrush might call for a line change every few trips. As a general rule, the average freshwater angler should change his line once or twice a year. And at the same time, reels should not be stored where line is exposed to direct sunlight or excessive heat.

Frayed line: Abrasion is probably the single greatest threat to fishing line. The bass angler who constantly fishes the underwater forests of Toledo Bend and Sam Rayburn should be particularly alert to line abrasion.

A wise fisherman should scan his line carefully or lightly run it through his fingers to check for rough spots before each fishing trip. Some make it a habit to strip off and discard the first few feet of line before a fishing trip. Check rod guides for rust or rough spots which could damage line.

Damaged hooks: Dull hooks mean lost fish. Either sharpen dull points with a whetstone or replace them.

Some fishermen make the mistake of reusing hooks which have been spread open. Bending the hook back into shape weakens the metal. And, of course, rusty hooks should be replaced.

Littered boat: A bass guide relates this story: "I had this old 'bucket-mouth' bass wallowing at the side of the boat. I reached for the landing net and it wasn't where it was supposed to be. I turned around and my client had his feet tangled in it. I lost the fish before I could get the net out."

Things happen fast when a big fish is on the line. To be prepared for such instances, an angler should be certain of three things: (1) he can move around in the boat if need be without stepping in an open tackle box or getting tangled in something. (2) the landing net is within easy reach, and (3) once the fish is aboard there will be a safe place to put it where it won't flop overboard, which has happened more than once.

There are many other ways to lose a fish. Lack of concentration, not playing the fish long enough, poor net handling or lack of confidence can all set fish free.

And, undoubtedly, many more fish-losing techniques have yet to be developed.

Legion Squad Opens Season

Hereford's American Legion baseball team saw its initial action of the summer Wednesday night in a rain shortened five inning practice contest against Amarillo High at Amarillo.

Hereford was leading 1-0 after four innings on a fourth inning run scored when Dennis Evans was hit by a pitch and was brought home by Barry Muller's triple, Hereford's only hit of the contest.

The lead didn't hold however as Amarillo came up with four runs in the top of the fifth and the game had to be halted after Hereford had batted in the bottom of the frame.

Hereford will play three more practice contests before beginning the regular season schedule which has not been released yet.

They will travel to Plainview Sunday, June 6 for a 2 p.m. contest and will meet Amarillo High School at 6:30 p.m. here, Wednesday, June 9. The final practice game will be in Amarillo against Palo Duro at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, June 12.

Vance Hennington started on the mound and pitched three innings for Hereford in last Wednesday's contest. Chris Hill went the final two frames and took the loss.

Art Stoy is manager of the team. Tom Stoy and Harvey Torres are the coaches.

Ladies Tourney Ends In Tie

Fourteen teams took to the golf links Friday afternoon to participate in the Hereford Ladies Golf Association's Florida scramble tourney.

The event covered nine holes and gift certificates from the golf shop were presented to the first and second place winners.

Two teams came home first with a score of 31, 4 under par. The first winner was made up of Wister Clevenger, Carolyn Roland, Norma Coffey and Jerry Hodges. The other winning squad consisted of Joe Priddy, Jim Marsh, Karen Kitchens and Ann Shirley.

Three teams tied for second with 33's, two under par. They consisted of Bill Word, Rosie Gilbreath, Theima Marsh, and D.C. McWhorter; Bill Davis, Mary Roark, Sherry Sargent and Carol Mannscheck; and Marvin Coffey, Juanita Simms, Geneva King and Duffy McBryer.

The ladies next tourney is scheduled for July 17.

Culpepper Holds Third Place

Hereford's Jim Culpepper kept a strong hold on third place in the late-model standings as the Southwest Speedway completed its sixth week of the auto-racing season Saturday.

Culpepper finished fifth in Saturday's 25-lap main event after placing third in the semi to widen his edge to 80 points (535-455) over fourth-place Tommy Latham of Amarillo.

Sundown's J.D. Hughes retained the lead in the late-model standings but by only 45 points (1,045-1,000) over defending champion Don Burt of Amarillo.

Hereford's James Davis is 11th in the standings with 195 points and Wayne McCullar, another Hereford driver, is 15th with 125 points.

Amarillo's Barry Weaver took the lead in the modified-stock standings away from Odessa's John Foster by a 477-465 point margin while Panhandle's Doug Smith retained the top spot in the street-stock standings by a 135-78 point edge over Bill Carter, also of Panhandle.

Auto-racing action starts at 8 p.m. Saturdays at the three-eighths asphalt track at NE 24th and Folsom Road. Admission is $2.50 general admission and $3 reserved with children under 12 admitted free.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Candlelight Wedding

Miss Patricia Lou Yerby became the bride of Rob Hardy in an evening ceremony-Friday at Central Church of Christ. The bride's uncle, John McCourt, pastor of San Jacinto Church of Christ at Amarillo, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Yerby of Route 2 and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hardy of Summerfield.

An archway of greenery and spiral candelabra holding white tapers provided the background for the wedding and a unity candle with lavender and white carnations was placed at the altar.

Mrs. Mike Burnam vocalized "Let It Be Me" and the church choir provided other wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length dress of silk faced organza designed with a sheer deep yolk rounded with a lace ruffle and stand up collar. The bishop sleeves were overlaid with a bouffant tier edged in lace and gathered on fitted cuffs at the wrists.

MRS. DAVID PAETZOLD ...at home in Amarillo

How often is the Food and Drug Administration supposed to inspect drug companies?--C.C.

Drug companies should be inspected once every two years. These include the best and most trusted companies as well as the less ethical "bath tub" companies. A study uncovered the fact that the F.D.A. considers itself doing well if it gets around to these companies once every five years. That's why it is important to rely on the integrity of the manufacturer.

INSIDE TV

TV REPORT -- CHER BONO has pulled through some very tense moments in Hawaii where doctors saved her as yet unborn child. Cher had gone to Hawaii for a much-needed rest, upon completing her current TV season. The trip was intended as a simple vacation for her and daughter CHASTITY. After several days, Cher developed premature labor pains. It was little Chastity who immediately called for a doctor. Cher was rushed to the hospital where for almost 48 hours the chances of her losing the baby were 50-50.

DON KNOTTS has been so long identified with TV that many forget he was a soap opera star for three years. He recalls, "My character was a neurotic who couldn't talk unless his sister was around." The sister was played by LEE GRANT, who also went on to greater things.

A Federal judge halted the "family hour trial" over sex and violence on television, saying program makers had failed to prove that the Federal Communications Commission had pressured the networks to adopt the family hour policy. United States District Court Judge Warren Ferguson told attorneys that they should try to compromise out of court and report back to him, commenting that it might be "utter nonsense to continue the lawsuit."

TV TICKER -- Marcus Welby made it! He is retiring without a single malpractice suit. ROBERT YOUNG says he isn't saddened by the news of the cancellation. Six out of seven years, Welby was among the top 10 shows... Don't be surprised when MICHAEL DOUGLAS gets "killed" in an episode of "Streets of San Francisco." "I'm exhausted," said the son of KIRK DOUGLAS. "The series has taken four years of my life, and that's quite enough; I've been working 12 hours a day, six days a week for eight months of the year."

PICNIC

On Friday May 28 about 25 Manorites loaded up a picnic lunch and drove toward Amarillo. We stopped at the little Canyon and entered the gate to where the Polk Street Church picnic grounds are. The building hangs on the edge of a canyon and has a long luxurious porch extending out over the lovely valley.

It was very comfortable and the scenery was inspiring. Here tables were set up and a yummie lunch was served. No whetting of appetites was necessary.

Pictures were snapped. Then the garbage was collected, tables folded, and put away. And we got home in ample time for our naps.

The fun, food and fellowships were well worth the time and trouble spent.

CALORIE COUNTDOWN

BY SUSAN DUFF MASTRO

DIET SHORTS

Most dieters know that the individual's calorie needs vary with the amount of activity that individual participates in on a daily basis. Obviously, the desk worker needs fewer calories than the manual laborer who uses body muscles all day. Some people, however, are under the impression that "thinking work" takes up more calories than it really does. Using your brain at concentrated tasks may prove more fatiguing, but it doesn't actually affect your calorie usage. It's actual muscular bodily activity that burns up the calories, whether you're day-dreaming or contemplating Einstein's theory of relativity! Nonetheless, if mental fatigue tends to make you hungry, keep your tummy satisfied with lots of diet soda and raw vegetable snacks.

Buttermilk is low in calories and has all kinds of uses for the dieter. As a snack, buttermilk churned in your blender with various fruits is truly delicious, high in nutrition and low in calories. A cup of buttermilk has the same calorie count as a cup of skimmed milk (90) and it's thicker and richer-tasting.

By Jim Stohert

WEEDS have always been one of the major problems confronting farmers when you go beyond politics and get right down to actual crop culture. Any number of various cultivators and herbicides have been introduced to help the farmer in his never-ending battle with weeds, and efficient farmers have enjoyed a good deal of success in their weed control programs.

There is one weed pest that is becoming one great big headache for area farmers though, and that is the bindweed, or possession vine if you will.

In just the past three years, bindweed has spread over area farmland at an alarming rate, and there seems to be no end in sight.

PATCHES of bindweed once dotted isolated areas along the roadways and barditches. Now they have crept past the barditches, edged their way into the edge of fields, and are sprawling out over vast areas of good farmland.

Land infested with bindweed isn't good for growing much of anything. The greedy vines with the little flowers that appear deceptively frail choke out any crops trying to compete with them, hoarding all available water and nutrients for themselves.

Controlling them isn't easy. You pull a cultivator through a patch of them and you've just compounded your problem by dragging vines for a distance and infesting another area of your field with them.

All kinds of plowing doesn't help much. Those deep-rooted weeds just come sprouting out again.

Sometimes, with luck, you can burn them back with 2-4D long enough to make a small corn or milo crop, but they're always back the next year.

THE ONLY surefire method of controlling them I've ever heard of is soil sterilization. That gets the bindweed alright, but you can't grow a very profitable crop on sterile soil.

The man that comes up with some way to positively kill bindweed without taking good farmland out of production for long periods of time will have found a way to get rich in this country.

In the meantime, spot spraying seems to be about the only first aid available for the problem. That solution isn't very satisfying either when you've just taken care of your own bindweed problem, and a road grader drags a big wad of vines from down the road into the barditch next to your property and reinfests the whole place.

Good bindweed control is something that is going to take coordination between neighbors, the various counties and the state. We hope some type of program is developed soon, because at the rate these bindweed patches are growing and spreading, this part of the country may someday be one big bindweed plantation.

TURN

RESEARCH and market development programs for wheat and grain sorghum may have to be cut back, due to a decline in checkoff funds.

Check-off funds on the 1975 wheat crop were only half that of 1974, according to Dwight Hamilton of the Texas Wheat Producers Board, and collections on grain sorghum were off by a third, according to C.C. Reed of the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board.

Voluntary assessments on various products provide funds to be used in financing commodity production and marketing research, domestic and foreign market development and commodity advertising.

The funds are administered by producer boards elected by farmers.

The mistaken belief that the Texas Supreme Court ruled state commodity checkoff programs as unconstitutional may have led to a decline in collections.

THE DECISION altered the method of fund collecting, allowing the grower to exempt himself from the deduction at the time of the sale, but did not outlaw checkoffs.

According to commodity board spokesmen, the cutbacks in checkoff funds may have the greatest effect in foreign market development, an area in which increased sales are sorely needed.

Kelley Promoted At Holly

Gary W. Kelley has been promoted to be a shift superintendent at Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant. He previously had been a sugar end foreman.

Kelley, who lives on Route 4, Hereford, with his wife and three children, began his sugar career at Holly's Santa Ana, Calif. factory in 1954 as a relief man on the sugar end and was promoted two years later to be assistant sugar boiler.

He was in the Army from 1959 to 1962 and was self-employed for a year following his discharge. He rejoined the Santa Ana factory in 1963 as a sugar boiler and was transferred to Hereford in 1964 as a senior process technician when that plant first opened.

He was promoted to sugar end foreman in 1969 and was in that position at the time of his most recent promotion. His wife, Janis, worked several campaigns at the Hereford plant as a lab benchman. She is now employed by the Texas Employment Commission.

Jack York, who had been a beet end foreman at Hereford, was promoted to be a shift superintendent at Holly's Delta, Colorado plant. York had worked for The Great Western Sugar Company at Johnstown, Colo. for 21 years. At the time he left to work for Holly's new plant at Hereford, he was senior assistant chemist.

When he came to Hereford 12 years ago, he was senior process technician and later was promoted to beet end foreman, the position he held at the time of his most recent promotion.

He served in the Army from 1950 to 1952 and he and his wife have two children and a granddaughter.

Researchers Seek Top Return From Sorghum Under Irrigation

Research at the Texas A&M North Plains Research Field at Etter is showing how to get top dollar out of every inch of irrigation water. If fuel cost continues to increase, wise use of irrigation water will make the difference between success or failure in the farming business according to Dr. John Shipley, Associate Professor and Cecil Regier, Research Associate with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, who operate the Etter facility.

In a recent two year experiment with grain sorghum, a 5-inch preplant irrigation was applied to assure a stand. This was followed by 1, 2, 3 or 4 irrigations at one or more of four sorghum growth stages. Stages were 6 to 8 leaf about July 4, boot near July 25, flowering about August 10, and milk about August 24. All possibilities were tested and there were a total of 16 treatments. Yield results were compared to preplant irrigation alone. RS 671 sorghum was planted on May 23 each year. The soil was Sherm silty clay loam and fields were furrow irrigated with 4-inch applications of water.

Preplant irrigation produced 2100 pounds of grain per acre.

Applying one more irrigation at boot increased the yield to 4100 pounds per acre. If the one irrigation was delayed until flowering, yield, was 4000 pounds per acre. "There was not much difference in yield from applying a single post-plant irrigation at either boot or flowering", Shipley stated. A single irrigation at the 6 to 8 leaf stage reduced yields 300 pounds per acre compared to preplant only.

"This irrigation stimulated forage growth and used water that was needed later to produce grain", the scientist said.

Yields were increased to 5400 pounds per acre when two irrigations were applied at both boot and flowering. Applying two irrigations at other stages resulted in less than 4900 pounds of grain per acre.

The best combination for 3 irrigations was 6 to 8 leaf, boot and flowering, which yielded 6200 pounds of grain per acre. Three irrigations at boot, flowering or milk stage did well, yielding 6000 pounds of grain per acre.

Applying 4 irrigations, or one at each stage, gave a yield of 6800 pounds per acre of grain.

"Close analyses of these data show how to get the most grain per acre-inch of irrigation water", Dr. Shipley stated. The first 4 inches of irrigation water applied at the boot stage made 2000 pounds of grain more than the preplant alone, or 500 pounds per acre-inch. The second 4 inches of irrigation water applied at flowering increased yield an additional 1300 pounds per acre, or 325 pounds per acre-inch of water. The third application made 200 pounds per acre-inch and the fourth only 150 pounds of grain per acre-inch.

At $4.00 per hundred, one well-timed irrigation paid $20.00 per acre-inch. Returns per acre-inch were reduced to $13.00 with the second irrigation, $8.00 with the third, and $6.00 with the fourth irrigation.

"With fuel price getting higher and higher, good management requires that we be fully aware of the return per acre-inch of water", Shipley stated. "This is especially true if a farmer has plenty of land and a limited water supply".

The two scientists conducted another study to help farmers get more grain per inch of water used. A short season hybrid, RS 626 was planted on May 17 on land that had been preplant irrigated. On July 10, one acreage of RS 626 was irrigated at the boot and 2 weeks later on July 24 a different acreage of RS 626 was irrigated while it was heading.

RS 671 a medium late maturity hybrid was planted on June 7 about 3 weeks later than RS 626. It received the boot irrigation on August 7 and a heading irrigation 2 weeks later on August 21. Irrigation water was applied at close to the optimum time for a single post-plant irrigation. In this study, RS 626 irrigated once yielded 4000 pounds, the same as in the previous study. RS 671 yielded more and made 4900 pounds of grain per acre. The irrigations were spread over an 8 week period and maximum yield per acre-inch of irrigation water was obtained for all water pumped during the entire irrigation season.

In the first study, a preplant irrigation yielded 2100 pounds per acre. With RS 626, the increase in yield from the one irrigation averaged 1900 pounds per acre or 475 pounds of grain per acre inch. With RS 671, the difference between 2100 and 4900 pounds per acre is 2800 or 700 pounds per acre-inch of irrigation water. Three, six, and nine pounds per acre planting rates were compared. Six pounds per acre proved to be a good average.

Dr. Shipley pointed out that, as a rule of thumb, a farmer could calculate the acres he could cover in 2 weeks by dividing the gallons per minute of water pumped by 6. For example, 100 acres could be covered once with a well that produces 600 gallons per minute of water pumped by 6. For example, 100 acres could be covered once with a well that produces 600 gallons per minute of water pumped by 6.

Dr. Shipley stated that farmers should preplant irrigate as much land as possible. If preplant water is applied during a 3 month period, more land can be watered than what can be irrigated during the 2 month irrigation season during the summer. "Using this system, a little water can be made to produce a lot of sorghum", Shipley pointed out.

Tax Delay Allowed On Forced Sales

Livestock producers who were forced to sell breeding or dairy animals due to drought conditions during the winter and early spring may delay paying taxes on any profit.

According to an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, such a forced sale is an involuntary conversion, and any taxes on gains need not be paid if the producer replaces the stock within 24 months from the close of the tax year in which the animals were sold.

If the producer fails to make such replacement, he must file an amended return with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) for the year of the sale and pay the tax, points out Dr. Wayne Hayenga.

In the year of the sale, the producer must furnish the IRS evidence of the drought, the amount of profit from the sale, and the number of animals sold as well as the number he would have sold under normal conditions.

As evidence of drought, the IRS accepts records of below-normal rainfall and poor grazing, newspaper clippings of U.S. Weather Bureau reports, and reports from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Losses from involuntary conversion are deductible in the year they are sustained.

Hayenga urges producers to check the Farmers Tax Guide before reporting forced sales of breeding or dairy stock. A copy may be obtained from the IRS or any county Extension office.

The General Accounting Office said it found many of the federal government's 9,000 computers insufficiently protected against sabotage, vandalism, terrorism or natural disasters.

Sorghum Check

Sorghum Producers Endorse Embargo Protection Bills

OKLAHOMA CITY—Officials of Grain sorghum Producers Association testified here May 21 in support of legislation which would protect the American farmer from financial losses experienced during export curtailments.

GSPA executive director Elbert Harp of Abernathy, and vice president Mabry Foreman of Felt, Okla. represented the national commodity organization which is based in Lubbock.

The regional hearings were conducted by Congressmen Glenn English (D-Oklahoma), Keith Sebelius (R-Kansas) and Jack Hightower (D-Texas), all members of the House Agriculture Committee.

Under consideration were bills introduced by English (HR 11136) and Sebelius (HJ Res. 743). The English bill would provide 100 percent parity loans to grain producers during any export sales suspension. Payments for storage of more than 20,000 bushels would be at 5 percent of the parity prices.

Foreman pointed out that "last year when the embargo suddenly was placed upon our grain exports to Russia and later when the voluntary embargo was extended to Eastern Europe, the price of grain dropped immediately by as much as $1 per hundred pounds.

"This happened at a time when farmers had hoped to receive sufficient prices to cover the high cost of production for the year," Foreman continued. "The price drop brought the market well below the cost of production and market prices still do not reflect the confidence of 'free trade'."

"Our future as grain producers actually rests in the hands of approximately seven men who make up the Agricultural Policy Committee of the White House. Only one of these men, the Secretary of Agriculture, is closely involved with the problems of farming and agricultural policy. Therefore, our fate ultimately rests in the hands of these few people who are not even agriculturally oriented. This group can make a decision without warning that will spell 'bankruptcy' to our producers," the GSPA officer continued.

Endorsing both the English and Sebelius bills, the grain sorghum representatives pointed out that the price of grain should be maintained at the parity level in order for farmers to realize a fair return on their investment, labor, management and risk.

"There should never be any consideration of trade restrictions unless prices are well above parity and if there is an embargo, farmers need to be assured that prices will not go below parity," Foreman said.

"With the existing high cost of production, we cannot continue to produce with the roller coaster effect upon prices caused by dock strikes, embargoes and other trade restrictions that we have been seeing the last few years.

The one time you expect to see a Zimmatic broken down.

About the only time you expect to see a Zimmatic broken down is when it leaves one of Lindsay's plants. Once assembled in your field, it seldom causes a problem. Those big, sure-footed towers power their way around the field, carrying water to crops. Hour after hour, day after day. Until you decide to shut down. That kind of performance doesn't just happen. It's the result of constant testing — both in the plant and in the field. Lindsay puts these rigs through the most punishing conditions — loads on more stress in a week, usually, than they're likely to see in a lifetime of normal use. But we know that no system is 100% perfect all the time. That's why we're ready to help with an extensive parts inventory and factory trained servicemen if you ever have a problem. Before you buy any center pivot irrigation system, be sure to let us tell you about all the advantages of owning a Lindsay Zimmatic.

Six Flags Begins New Season For The Summer

Six Flags Over Texas has begun daily operation following the most successful spring season in the theme park's 16 year history. It is located in Arlington, near Dallas.
 During the spring season more than 399,000 persons visited the entertainment center. The figure represents an increase of some nine per cent over 1975's record pace.
 General Manager Dan Howells said, "The introduction of our new parachute ride, the Texas Chute Out, was undoubtedly a major factor in the attendance boost.
 "In addition," he said, "the public seems to be in a traveling mood this year. Perhaps it's a result of the bicentennial atmosphere, but whatever the reason, people are definitely out on the road."
 The park will be on a daily schedule through Labor Day, when weekend-only operation will resume for the fall season.

CowBelle Beef Bits

Presented By The Hereford CowBelles

THE HEREFORD CowBelles are joining other CowBelle organizations throughout the nation this month in promoting the serving of Beef for Fathers Day.

There are many excellent ways to prepare various cuts and types of meat, and listed here is a way to dress up hamburger.

Golden Nugget Beef Ball Kabobs
3 pounds ground beef
1/2 cup barbecue sauce
1 small onion, chopped
1/4 cup flour
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

1 tablespoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
8 ounces cheddar cheese, cut in 2 1/2 inch cubes
18 pieces dill pickle
6 metal 15-inch skewers
Barbecue sauce
12 cherry tomatoes

Lightly but thoroughly mix ground beef, barbecue sauce, onion, flour, mustard, salt and pepper. Divide mixture into 24 portions of approximately 1/4 cup each and form into meat balls, placing a cube of cheese in center of each. Thread four meat balls alternately with three pieces of dill pickles on each skewer. Place kabobs on greased grill top and broil at moderate temperature six minutes. Brush with barbecue sauce and broil 12-20 minutes, turning and brushing with barbecue sauce until done. Add two cherry tomatoes to end of each skewer the last three minutes of cooking time. This recipe yields six servings.

BEEF IS AN important food and there are sound nutritional reasons for serving beef to Dad on his day and every day.

Foods are grouped on the basis of their major nutritional contributions to the diet. All together, they add up to the nutrients needed from a variety of foods. These are the protective foods—for every day in meals and snacks—to bring out the best in you.

Many foods contain more than one nutrient but no one food contains all of the nutrients in the amounts needed. Thus, the interdependence of the four food groups in supplying the recommended amounts of essential nutrients makes a good food guide to follow for a balanced diet.

Beef is basic to the meat group and a key source of many essential nutrients (two or more servings per day from this group are recommended).

Beef is high in both quality and quantity of protein containing all the essential amino acids necessary to build, maintain and repair body tissues, and strengthen the defense mechanism against infection and disease.

It is a good source of iron in available form, niacin, riboflavin, thiamin, B-12, and other nutrients. Beef is one of the most completely digestible and utilized foods.

Most beef cuts contain less than 250 calories for a 3 1/2 ounce serving as eaten so that weight watchers can enjoy beef, too.

Rising Bread Prices Aren't Fault Of Farmers, Study Shows

Dwight Hamilton, chairman of the Texas Wheat Producers Board, indicated this week that Mel Maier, North Dakota State Wheat Commission (NDSWC) administrator, has announced the completion of a study which proves that the blame which the American Farmer has received for bread price rises over the last few years is unjust.

Maier explained that the study, which was sponsored by the NDSWC and conducted by the Upper Great Plains Transportation Institute (UGPTI), shows both graphically and statistically, the price relationships between all segments of the bread industry, from farm to supermarket shelf, for the years 1971-75.

"U.S. wheat farmers have become increasingly weary of the consumer rhetoric which suggests that retail bread prices will rise to dizzying heights each time a Soviet wheat sale is made, a decreased production forecast is released, etc. It is time to set the record straight. If higher wheat prices equate with higher bread prices, then lower wheat prices should mean a drop in the retail price level. This has not been the case. Market prices for wheat have been on a general decline since March of 1974. There has been no correlation between this decline and the average retail price of bread."

Maier noted that these are facts which the farmer already knows. "What is much more important, however, is that the American consumer be cognizant of the current bread pricing situation." He added that when the study was initiated, it was hoped that the results would indicate why bread prices have not followed a downward trend currently evident in wheat market prices and which segment or segments were realizing the increased profit or increased costs. He termed the study as successful in helping to answer these questions.

According to Maier, the UGPTI research, using USDA statistics as a data source, discovered that two distinct price relationship periods existed from 1971 to 1975. The first time period, from the first quarter of 1971 through August, 1973, was clearly a period during which bread prices and all input prices showed a strong, positive relationship. In other words, as the farm value of wheat fluctuated, corresponding fluctuations were evident in the miller's wheat cost, the baker's flour cost, the wholesale bread price and the retail price of bread. During this time period, the average farm value of wheat which goes into a one-pound loaf of bread was 3.2 cents, a spread of 22 cents.

However, during the second time period, from September, 1973 to December 1975, this spread increased to 29.6 cents. This time period saw a 5.0 cent average farm value of wheat in a loaf of bread, while the average retail bread price increased to 34.6 cents. This was also a period of rising and falling agricultural ingredient prices and generally increasing bread prices. Maier said it should be pointed out that while price fluctuations in the farm value of wheat were reflected in the miller's cost of wheat, the mill sales value of flour and the baker's cost of flour, these fluctuations were not reflected in the wholesale or retail price of bread during this period. Even as farm wheat values fell, wholesale prices continued to rise. Simply stated, the decline in the price of wheat from September 1973 to December 1975 was consistently and proportionately passed up through the bread processing industry until it reached the wholesale level.

Maier noted it is interesting to speculate that had the relationship that existed between the farm value of wheat and the retail price of bread from 1971 through August 1973 been maintained, retail price of bread in December 1975 would have been 26.15 cents rather than 35.1 cents per one-pound loaf which was actually the case.

"Obviously, this extra nine cents or so has been going somewhere and it certainly hasn't been into the pocket of the U.S. wheat farmer", Maier stated. "A much more reasonable explanation would seem to be the inflationary impact of rapidly rising costs of labor, distribution, interest, packaging, transportation and other industry inputs which come into effect after wheat leaves U.S. farms. These are aspects which are not under the control of the farmer and price rises caused by these inputs certainly should not be attributed to him."

Maier said that the NDSWC is seeking broad distribution of the study findings among consumer groups, government officials and the eastern news media.

"It is hoped that American consumers, as they express their concern regarding rising foodstuff prices, will realize that although the farmer requires a reasonable profit in order to produce, he has not contributed significantly to the rise in retail bread prices. The causes for these price rises must be attributed to the industry segments in which they occur. The cost of the raw product which is contained in a loaf of bread pales in significance when compared to other industry costs and inputs."

He added that consumers must realize that although the farmer also has costs of labor, capital, distribution and profit, he is not at liberty to adjust the price of his product accordingly. "The producer is wholly dependent on the wheat market price, a figure over which, he, as an individual producer, had had little control." Maier observed.

Extension Service Names Director

COLLEGE STATION--Dr.

Daniel C. Pfannstiel has been named director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System's public service agency which provides agricultural, homemaking, 4-H and consumer assistance to thousands of Texans throughout the state. Pfannstiel's appointment was made Tuesday by the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents, subject to concurrence of the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture. The appointment was effective June 1.

The 2,000-employee service, which operates offices in all but two of Texas' 254 counties, is a joint county-state-federal program which has traditionally served farmers, ranchers and residents of rural communities and is becoming increasingly popular with urban dwellers.

"We have searched throughout the nation to confirm what we thought was the case all along: that we already have in our ranks the best person for this key position," pointed out Board of Regents Chairman Clyde H. Wells in announcing Pfannstiel's promotion.

Pfannstiel, 48, has served the Texas Agricultural Extension

Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel

Service for 27 years, as associate director since 1971. He joined the Extension Service upon graduation in 1949 from Texas A&M. He worked his way up through the ranks, from assistant county agent in Wharton County to county agent in Matagorda County in 1952, to administrative assistant at the service's College Station headquarters in 1956 and to assistant director in 1959.

"He succeeds Dr. H.O. Kunkel, Texas A&M's dean of agriculture, who has served as the Extension Service's acting director since February when Dr. John E. Hutchison retired as director of the largest state Extension Service in the nation."

"Dr. Pfannstiel is undoubtedly one of the most qualified administrative officers in the nation's entire Cooperative Extension Service," Dean Kunkel noted. "He has been eagerly sought by several other agencies but has chosen to stay and serve in Texas."

In addition to his B.S. degree in animal husbandry from Texas A&M, Pfannstiel earned a master's in extension education from Michigan State University in 1952 and a Ph.D. in extension administration from the University of Wisconsin in 1959. Pfannstiel is a native of Bexar County. He is a colonel in the U.S. Army Reserves.

Joyce's Journal

BY JOYCE SHIPP
Deaf Smith County
Extension Agent

Home vegetable gardening continues to be popular for urban and rural Texans today, just as in the earlier days of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Backyard garden plots, flower beds, patios, doorsteps and even window-sills have become potential areas for vegetable gardens, as men, women and youth continue to learn how to grow tasty, nutritious, budget-stretching vegetables.

Interest in home gardening was re-generated recently by rising food prices at the retail level, but other factors also involved are the individual's strong desire to "grow things," a satisfaction of one's own achievement, relaxation and enjoyment.

Much of the increased gardening interest is in the state's metropolitan areas. Urban homeowners as well as apartment dwellers are eagerly seeking information on how to become successful gardeners. County Extension agents and specialists are continuing to supply gardening facts through a variety of educational methods in such urban settings as Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth and Austin.

As a result of the high interest in gardening, many homemakers also sought assistance from Extension staff members in preserving, canning or freezing the wide variety of vegetables they grew.

Food production and preservation programs have been an important part of the Extension education program in Texas for many years, dating back to the early 1900's. First youth programs concentrated on corn production, and earliest tomato canning programs were offered for 4-H girls in 1912, when the first county Home Demonstration agent in Texas was appointed in Milam County--Mrs. Edna W. Trigg. During the next year, 16 counties had "lady agents" who continued to work with canning clubs.

Home food preservation was a vital program of the "Depression Years". More than 20 million containers of food were preserved in 1934 under the leadership of Texas Home Demonstration agents.

Figs, so abundant now, can be preserved at their peak to last throughout the year.

Choose the type of preservation to suit the family's tastes and equipment available. But for any preservation method, select fully ripe fruit, wash and clean them well.

Ripeness of figs can be determined by degree of softness to the touch. Overripe figs have a sour odor from fermentation of the juice.

DRYING FIGS

Spread in single layers on trays. Under controlled conditions in the oven, start at 115 degrees F., increase to 145 degrees F. after first hour.

Reduce to about 130 degrees F. when nearly dry. Stir or turn figs to keep from sticking.

Drying time averages up to five hours for halves in controlled heat. Dry until leathery, with flesh pliable yet slightly sticky.

FREEZING FIGS

Select soft-ripe fruit. Make sure they have not become sour in the center. Sort, wash and cut off stems. Peel if desired. Halve or leave whole. Treat for discoloration.

Freeze without sugar or cover with a cold syrup made from 2 1/2 cups sugar to 4 cups water.

FIG PRESERVES

PREPARING FRUIT: Select only perfect figs, ripe but not soft. Leave 1/8 inch stem. Wash. To remove the fuzz, sprinkle 1 cup soda over 6 quarts sound figs and add 1 gallon boiling water. Let stand 5 minutes. Drain and wash thoroughly in cold water.

PRESERVING FRUIT: Use 1 gallon prepared figs, 2 quarts sugar and 1 lemon. Place alternate layers of sugar and figs in an enamel or aluminum kettle. Let stand overnight. Drain off syrup and bring it to a boil.

Drop in figs a few at a time. Cook until tender, transparent and amber colored (about 1-1 1/2 hours). Add juice of lemon. Cook 10 minutes longer. Remove figs from the syrup. Fill hot, dry, sterilized jars three-fourths full with preserved fruit.

Cook syrup until thick. If paraffin is to be used, add enough syrup to fill the jar to one-fourth of the top; otherwise, fill to the top.

Seal, label and store.

CANNING FIGS

PREPARATION: Wash and sort figs. Cover with boiling water and let simmer five minutes. Drain.

HOT PACK: Pack within one-half inch of the top of the jar. Use a heavy syrup. Pour boiling syrup to one-half inch of top of jar. Hereford Residents May Participate In Festival '76

Hereford residents will have an opportunity to participate in the "Panhandle Festival '76" to be held at the Tri-State Fairgrounds in Amarillo June 11, 12 and 13.

Exhibits from Hereford already planned for the festival include booths sponsored by Arrowhead Mills, the Hereford CowBelles and Holly Sugar Corp.

A group called "Fuzz" will also be providing entertainment during the festival.

The festival is the concerted project of the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle and is a project of the Texas Panhandle Centennial-Bicentennial Committee.

Counties, communities, groups and individuals will bring along entertainment, food, displays and arts and crafts.

Any local resident interested in performing during the festival or any firm desiring to erect a commercial exhibit should contact the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce or Mrs. Clint Formby or Mrs. Joe Reinauer Sr. in Hereford.

In addition to the festival activities and local Bicentennial activities for the July 4 weekend, Hereford will host the Panhandle Square dance Jamboree at the Bull Barn on Aug. 7. Square dance clubs from all over the area are expected to attend.

The local Bicentennial committee is also urging all Hereford residents to fly their flags from Flag Day, June 14 through July 4.

Flag kits are available at a cost of $7.50 from Mrs. Formby or Mrs. Reinauer.

One of the attractions of the upcoming festival in Amarillo will be a colonial village display made up of eight different settings. The village will feature a silversmith, a debate between a Tory and a patriot, a British band, a school, and many of the folkways of the colonial settlers living before and during 1776.

The festival will be from 5:30 to 10:30 p.m. June 11, and from 11 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. June 12. On the final day, June 13, the festival will last from noon to 6 p.m.

Realtor Roundup

Presented by Hereford Board of Realtors
 Joane Coker, President

Real Estate is a good investment for the following reasons: (1) It is surrounded with substantial elements of safety, if wisely chosen and skillfully managed.

(2) It cannot be dissipated. (3) If properly selected, it continues to reap income year after year, despite changing business conditions. (4) Its owner is not subject to questionable management by others. (5) Real Estate does not have to pay expensive underwriting and other promotional charges. Income from properly chosen real estate will begin at once and continue unabated, paying a steady return in addition to any increase in value.

(6) That real estate is not always a liquid asset is, perhaps, one of its most commendable features. This characteristic has saved many a person from losing money by investing in a "get-rich-quick" scheme that later proved to be a failure. Likewise, an owner is not easily "rushed off his feet", in an unwise effort to dispose of it. (7) When you invest in real estate, you may go look at it, and see that it is there. There is a sense of personal possession implied that is attached to no other form of investment.

(8) Real estate, because it is limited in amount, attached itself to monopolistic features, which, capitalized into business use, bring profits to its owner.

Real Estate, it must be remembered, has two definite elements of gain. It not only pays income, if the property is improved, but it also benefits by the steady increment in value which usually comes with growth in population and utilization.

Mortgages on real estates, the best investment next to actual possession of real estate itself, should pay a 6 to 8 per cent net investment return not counting the possible increase in value.

What constitutes a good investment? Any piece of real estate which has a proven net investment of at least 8 per cent and it is situated in a locality where growth seems reasonably certain, will, in the course of years, return more real income to its owner than any other form of investment, considering its safety.

It is certainly true that all real estate is not always advancing in value, but is equally true that real estate is probably less subject to backward movements than other forms of investment. The secret of profitable real estate investment lies in the application of knowledge of conditions to the buying of specific properties. This is where your Realtor becomes a friend and advisor, and he or

It could be. Chlorine bleach will form chlorine gas when mixed with ammonia or acid compounds, such as rust remover, bathroom bowl cleaner, lye or vinegar. Do you know how to treat a child who has swallowed one of your household cleaners? For information send for my "Poison First Aid Chart."
