Protestors bombard DOE with questions

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

An estimated 600 to 700 people attended a Department of Energy briefing on site characterization at Hereford Community Center Tuesday night and it was apparent that some went to protest, some to pick up information and some to see if anything exciting happened.

About the most exciting thing that happened, perhaps, was when someone hung a dummy from a tree in front of the center. "That's the DOE," said a farmer who pushed the dummy and watched it swing. "No, it's us if they put the dump here," said another farmer.

The briefing here was the first of three public meetings scheduled in the area this week. One will be at Amarillo tonight and one in Vega Thursday night. DOE has information tables and officials to visit with those attending.

The standing-room-only crowd caused the briefing to be presented in both the new and old ballrooms of the Community Center. Vocal protestors grabbed the spotlight during the question-and-answer period and they bombarded Jeff Neff, DOE Salt Repository Project manager, with questions and objections for about two hours.

Neff, who will head the site characterization study in Deaf Smith County, announced that he would answer as many questions as possible before moving to the other ballroom to present the briefing to the overflow crowd. When that time came, Neff said that other DOE officials would answer more questions so he could move to the other room and address other people in the overflow crowd.

However, Jim Conkwright, a spokesman for one of the opposition groups, insisted that Neff stay and answer questions for the group in the main ballroom. Neff then sent Robert Wunderlich, deputy manager of the Salt project, to present the briefing for the other people in attendance.

Neff explained that site characterization is the "law of the land" on several occasions, which brought boos and objections from the audience. The project manager emphasized that site characterization is a "study of a piece of earth" and is occurring in three places to determine their suitability for a repository. "This is not a study for a repository decision that has been made," he added. "All three sites will be treated equally; there will be no over-investment in one site over the other."

Neff listed four phases of action slated for the next 12 to 18 months. They include: Establishing temporary offices in Vega to start the process; development of an outreach program to inform citizens; discussions with federal and state agencies on necessary permits; and the acquisition of land. He projected the drilling of 8-inch test boreholes would begin next fall.

Neff said the decision on the repository location will come at the end of characterization of the three sites, now scheduled for 1993, and would culminate in 1995 with site selection. The licensing process is expected to take about three years.

The DOE officials said no radioactive materials will be used at the site during the study. In the event the repository were located here, the officials downplayed the possibility of the ground becoming contaminated with radioactive elements. "We wouldn't put a facility here if there was any possibility of that," said Wunderlich.

When Neff referred to things taking place by a democratic process, farm activist Gerald McCathern asked for a "democratic vote" among those present. McCathern asked for a show of hands on the "for" and against of the project. It appeared about three-fourths raised their hands as being "against," a couple raised hands "for", and others did not respond.

Both Neff and Wunderlich said DOE wanted to work with farmers to "minimize" any adverse impacts during the study. "We want to try to understand their interests and work around their time and space needs," said Neff.

The project manager said DOE would need about 5 acres for each borehole site, about 61 acres for the two big shafts, and about 600 acres of land when making studies for the above-ground facilities. The shafts are scheduled to be 12-feet in diameter and extend about 2,500 below ground.

Among the questions posed to DOE, many had to do with the salt which is to be excavated and with possible contamination of the aquifer. Neff said the salt brought above ground could either be hauled off or wet down so that it becomes very hard.

Delbert Devin, president of the Nuclear Waste Task Force, questioned the integrity of Neff and other DOE officials concerning prior government research on the local site. He pressed Neff for an explanation as to why an Ohio site had not been studied more for a repository and he suggested that a DOE document concerning the Santa Rosa aquifer "is an outright falsehood in suggesting that the aquifer would not be impacted by a repository."

The site characterization will take place in a 9-square mile about 20 miles north of Hereford. The other two locations also being studied are the Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash., and the Nevada site on government land used for nuclear tests in the past. The area in Deaf Smith County is privately owned and cuts across farms.

Neff said of the 10 people moving to the temporary offices near Vega, seven have located. Three will live in Amarillo, two in Canyon and two in

At DOE Briefing

Protestors wearing "Don't Waste Texas" stickers and holding up "No" posters mixed in with the crowd Tuesday night at a briefing by DOE on site characterization plans for the next six to 18 months. At left, Jim Conkwright, a representative of one of the protest groups, insists that DOE project manager Jeff Neff stay to answer questions as long as residents required.

Spelling bees set next week

The annual Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee, sponsored by The Hereford Brand, will be conducted here March 5-6, with the county champion advancing to the Regional Bee at West Texas State University on April 11.

Deadline for county schools to name their representatives is Monday, according to Speedy Nieman, county bee chairman.

A Junior Bee will be held Thursday March 5, beginning at 3 p.m., with intermediate school winners vying for the junior title. Each school will be allowed up to four representatives. This year, the Junior champion as well as three runners-up will qualify for the Senior Bee.

The county bee will be held Friday with junior high representatives competing against each other and against the junior winners. Both bees will be held in the Heritage Room at Deaf Smith County Library.

Bern Boyd will be the pronouncer again this year, and judges will be Eloise McDougal and Jane Coplen.

Local financial institutions are again providing prizes for some of the top spellers. The county champion will receive a $50 savings bond and the second and third-place finishers will receive $25 savings bonds on accounts. The Junior champion will also earn a $50 savings bond and the first runner-up will receive a $25 award.

Contributing the prizes are First National Bank and Hereford State Bank, $50 bonds; and Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union, Hi-Plains S&L, and Security Federal S&L, $25 awards from each.

All spellers who advance to the Regional Bee will be honored at a luncheon by The Amarillo Globe-News, a co-sponsor of the bee. For junior champions who do not compete in the Regional Bee, trophies will be presented. Top winners at the bee will receive a number of prizes. The winner receives an expense-paid trip to the National Bee.

Neff says DOE would help work on solutions

WDIC learns grants not for impact damages during site characterization

The Deaf Smith County Waste Deposit Impact Committee held a briefing with DOE officials Tuesday afternoon and learned that the Nuclear Waste Policy Act does not provide grants for impact damages during site characterization, only during repository construction.

John Fuston, Hereford school board representative on the intergovernmental committee, posed a question about the impact 300 or more students could have on the local school system's classroom capabilities.

Jeff Neff, DOE Salt Repository Project manager, told Fuston there are no provisions in the policy act to help provide capital improvements for schools. However, he said "we would get with you and work on a solution if something like that occurs."

Fuston countered with a question about the time it would take to solve such a problem. "I understand you've had this problem with the Vega schools for several years with no solution reached. Neff said it had been "only since last May that we knew for sure about the site characterization, and we hope to have something worked out by the end of March."

The WDIC asked for the briefing with DOE to help get some of its studies underway to determine adverse impacts the site characterization could have on taxing entities in the county. The committee is composed of Troy D. Moore, county commissioner; Tom LeGate, city commissioner; John Fuston, HISD board president; Dennis Brown, Walcott school board; and Frank Zinser Sr., Deaf Smith Hospital District.

Moore, chairman of the committee, opened the session by reasserting the purpose of the group. "We are a neutral body charged with identifying, evaluating and seeking compensation for any costs imposed on the community because of the DOE study," said Moore.

Moore said the group had to assume that DOE is moving forward with site characterization and "we want to examine the potential effects such a study would have on each taxing entity, and ensure that taxpayers are not burdened by these proposed studies."

Neff assured the committee that he wanted to "up front" with all the information he had and where the project would be going in the next 12 to 18 months. He outlined the basis process for the committee and reported that approximately 325 DOE and Battelle Institute staffers would be in the Hereford offices.

In response to a question about job availability for local people in these offices, Neff said it depended on how many people accept their transfers. "We usually see about a 60 percent acceptance rate, which would mean that we'd need to fill 100 positions."

The jobs that could be available locally would be mostly in secretarial-type positions, said Neff. They might also include staff positions for geologists and engineers and people with administrative backgrounds, he added. He estimated salary ranges at $10,000 to $70,000.

Neff pointed out that families who move here would be making a commitment of about 8 to 10 years. In speaking of problems that could arise, such as school needs, Neff pointed out that "these families will have many of the same concerns as local citizens have." He added that "we don't think we will impact the school facilities enough to cause a problem, but we are prepared to help solve any problem because our kids will be affected, too."

LeGate asked Neff to "trade seats with me and tell us what you'd be asking for from the DOE and the federal government if you were sitting up here."

Neff said he would seek, among other things, a grant for a technical review group. "You need resources to have qualified people looking over

Registration program tops goal

Concerned Citizens of Deaf Smith County have registered 387 voters, exceeding the registration drive goal of 300, registrar Marcelo Mendoza said today.

Mendoza said the 30 deputized registrars are working around town and in the office at 206 W. 8th to sign up more voters by the March 4 deadline to be eligible to vote in the city and school elections April 4. Voters may also register at the county clerk's office in the courthouse.

Police report

Hereford police arrested a 31-year-old male Tuesday on a warrant for escape from the Texas Department of Corrections.

Police also checked two assault reports, in the 500 block of U.S. 385 North and in the 300 block of Bradley.

Police also were called to the 800 block of Knight for a death which was by natural causes.

State

Open container bills offered

AUSTIN (AP) — State legislators will get a chance this session to vote on proposals that would make drinking while driving a traffic offense similar to the mandatory seat belt law.

The legislation was introduced Tuesday in the Senate and House.

"The law would be difficult to enforce, if passed by the Legislature, but we think there would be widespread compliance like there is for seat belts," said Rep. Bill Blackwood, R-Mesquite.

The identical bills say it would be a violation if a person "consumes an alcoholic beverage while operating a motor vehicle in a public place and is observed doing so by a police officer."

Violators would be ticketed under the Uniform Act Regulating Traffic on Highways, a civil statute. Those found guilty would be subject to fines up to $200. Convictions could affect the price of automobile insurance like any moving violation, Blackwood said.

"This is going to be our third straight session now to carry an open container bill," said a statement from Sen. Bill Sarpalus, D-Amarillo, who is hospitalized with a back injury. "We've been getting a little closer each time and this time we'll get it passed."

Sarpalus pushed an open container bill through the Senate in 1985, but it died in the House.

Group hopes raid one-time hit

AUSTIN (AP) — Officials of the Texas Highway Users Conference say they are hoping the Legislature won't make a habit of raiding Highway Department funds to pay for other state operations.

About $32 million was shifted from the department last week to fund emergency prison improvements and bail out the state workers' compensation fund.

"We have faith in both the governor and the Legislature and their commitment to maintaining the quality of our surface transportation system," Tom Blanton, conference chairman, said Tuesday.

"Our surface transportation system not only provides a great number of jobs, at every level, but it is in many ways our very future. We think it would be unwise indeed to mortgage that future in response to a budget shortfall that will surely pass," Blanton said.

Gov. Bill Clements on Friday signed a bill to spend $20.4 million in Highway Department funds for emergency prison reforms and parole and probation programs designed to ease crowding in the state's filled-to-capacity prison system.

Clements has said he hopes the emergency plan will demonstrate the state's good faith in trying to complete court-ordered prison improvements. Texas faces fines of $24 million a month beginning April 1 unless the reforms are made.

The other $12 million was diverted to the bankrupt workers' compensation fund for state employees.

Oral mistaken about date

DALLAS (AP) — Evangelist Oral Roberts, who has been criticized by some for asking for contributions to prevent his death by the end of March, said last year that he would die by the end of 1986 unless he raised $8 million, according to a report published today.

A spokeswoman for Roberts said he apparently had made a mistake.

Roberts told a large gathering at the Dallas convention center last Easter that God had spoken to him and instructed him to raise the money "by the end of the year" or he would die, according to a tape of the sermon obtained by the Dallas Morning News.

"Oral Roberts' life is on the line," he said in the Easter sermon. He said God had spoken to him and "told me that if I did not send out to the holy missionary teams ... he's going to take me this year," the News reported today.

"Because if I don't do it," he said, "I'm going to be gone before this year is out. I'll be with the Father. I know it as much as I'm standing here."

He said God told him, "You can do it — finish your work and go to heaven, or you can lose your soul."

Roberts failed to raise the money but lived through the year to make a similar claim in January.

The 69-year-old evangelist said on his television program last month that God ordered him last March to raise $8 million for scholarships for training medical missionaries. He said he had raised $3.5 million of the total.

Several television stations refused to broadcast a January sermon in which Roberts said God told him he would die by March 30.

Mandatory AIDS testing opposed

ATLANTA (AP) — Mandatory AIDS testing was criticized as bad medical and public policy by a broad range of doctors, health officials and homosexuals at a meeting called by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control.

Participants in the first day Tuesday of the conference also agreed on the need for strong legislation to protect the confidentiality and the legal rights of those who test positive for AIDS.

"The reaction we saw ... all day was not monolithic to any group," Mervyn F. Silverman, president of the American Foundation for AIDS Research, said Tuesday after helping to moderate a three-hour forum.

"In other words, it wasn't just gay activists who are opposed and others who are not. It was physicians, it was researchers, it was a number of people."

The CDC called the meeting to explore the pros and cons of mandatory testing for the AIDS virus on hospital patients, pregnant women and engaged couples. Officials said it probably will take months for any recommendations to be developed.

Mandatory AIDS tests are "social placebos designed to reassure anxious and frightened people," said Dr. Ron Bayer of New York's Hastings Center, a non-partisan, non-profit research organization. "This is not the time for placebos."

He denounced tests for all hospital patients as "a dimly disguised maneuver" aimed at eventual forced testing of the entire U.S. population. Only widespread changes in sexual behavior and drug use can truly curtail the spread of AIDS, said Bayer.

Astronomers discover supernova

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Astronomers have discovered a gargantuan exploding star they say may turn out to be the closest supernova to Earth of any observed since one seen by Johannes Kepler nearly four centuries ago.

The object, discovered Tuesday through telescopes in Chile and New Zealand, is doubly unusual because it appears to be in the early stages of the blast, astronomers said.

Scientists probably won't know until late today if the object really is a supernova in the nearby Large Magellanic Cloud galaxy or simply a rapidly brightening star in our own Milky Way, astronomer Daniel Green said.

"It's still getting brighter," he said during a telephone interview from the Smithsonian Institution's Central Bureau for Astronomical Telegrams in Cambridge, Mass., a reporting agency for astronomy discoveries.

"We don't know for sure if it is a supernova, but it seems that way," Green said Tuesday. "At this stage it's probable."

our shoulder, checking our reports and technical judgments." He added the committee also needs someone with the ability to understand the federal system and how to use it to the best advantage of the local community.

He guessed that such an overview group could cost as much as $500,000 to $1 million a year, if it included five or six people with the credentials to get the job done.

Asked about how many of the people will choose to live in Hereford, Neff said he didn't know at this time. Fuston asked Neff if he was going to live in Hereford since he was the project manager.

"I hope to live here. I'm bringing my wife next week for the first time and, of course, she'll have something to say about where we're going to live," responded Neff. He estimated that about 50 families will be moving to the area each month from May to September.

About 18 people attended the WDIC meeting at City Hall at 2 p.m. Tuesday. In other business, the committee looked at six bid proposals for office space and decided to rent space in the Plains Insurance Building. The committee looked at four of the proposed buildings before deciding. Moore said two did not meet specifications.

Hereford. These people will be on the job the first week in March.

The people to be working in DOE and Battelle Institute offices in Hereford are scheduled to be moving from May to September. Neff estimated there would be about 50 people moving in each of those months, and the local offices would employ about 325 staff members.

Steve Frishman, director of the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs Office, and some of his aides were present for the briefing. During the question-and-answer period, Frishman told a reporter, "I think that room has some of the best informed people on this issue that you'll find anywhere."

Asked his opinion on whether DOE has already picked the Texas site, Frishman said, "No, I don't think DOE is organized enough to have made a decision."

A news conference started the evening's activity at 5 p.m. People had a chance to visit the information tables and pick up information from DOE between 6 and 7 p.m. About 50 DOE and Battelle people manned the tables. Some of those will be the ones moving to this area for site characterization.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

In regard to your lead article headlined "Conference of Churches joins dump fight" in the February 24 issue of The Brand, it needs to be clearly understood that the Texas Conference of Churches has no authority whatsoever, nor does any member of its board including Mrs. Eloise McDougal, to speak in the name of any of its member Churches. The Conference of Churches is simply an organization of Church bodies formed for joint cooperation in the spread of God's Word. It is not a "super" Church which can speak or act for or in the name of any of its members.

At least in the Episcopal Church, delegates are not instructed and have no authority to commit the Church to any action or policy. They are elected by our judicatory bodies and have no authority to speak for the Church.

Sincerely,
Charles R. Threewit
Rector of St. Thomas Church

Dear editor:

The St. Anthony's Jr. Hi youth group sponsored a Valentine's dance on Feb. 13. We went into this particular Jr. Hi dance a little apprehensive due to current events in our community and due to the season. I became really concerned when we had such a tremendous turnout of young people. There were at least 300 junior high kids brown, white and black.

Those young people were SUPER! We had absolutely no trouble, the kids were courteous and very cooperative. They were willing to do whatever the sponsors asked just to have a good time.

My faith in our young people soared after that dance experience, and if we would all take a good look at our kids we could learn a lot. My hat is in the ring with the kids. God bless them all and thank you to each one that came to our dance.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading the letter from the boy who was so tall for his age that he had to carry his birth certificate to keep from paying adult prices, I decided to present the other extreme, which can be equally difficult.

My 13-year-old son is nearly a foot and a half shorter than most of his classmates. The average 8-year-old is taller than "Josh." His 12-year-old brother is a foot taller and 30 pounds heavier.

Josh and his friends take this in their stride. He sees an endocrinologist regularly and understands that children grow until they reach a "bone age" of 16, whether the arrive at that age at 11 or 21. This slow growth pattern also affects his secondary sexual characteristics. We understand and accept these things.

The major difficulty is adults who, when they meet Josh for the first time, say, "Oh, he's so little!" and pat him on the head as if he were an 8-year-old. Worse yet are friends and family who greet him with, "Haven't you grown any yet?"

Of course, organized sports are out of the question for this boy. He would be killed in a football game. Even baseball could be hazardous, should he collide with much heavier players.

I hope you will print this letter and raise the consciousness of those in your reading audience who have never given much thought to children who are "different." Urge them to remember that those children may still have excellent hearing and their feelings are perfectly normal.—A.B. in Sunbury, Pa.

DEAR A.B.: Thank you for a post-graduate course in human relations. I hope this column will serve as a red flag for every person who is inclined to make remarks about a child who is "too short" or "too tall," or "too fat" or "Too thin."

Many people would DO better if they KNEW better. Your letter certainly lays it out for them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A recent column of yours made me see red.

Don't blame the insurance companies for closing the swimming pools. The lifeguards are underpaid, undertrained, unsupervised and unmotivated. Here in New Jersey many swimming areas had to be closed due to a lack of trained people to patrol them.

Our 19-year-old son recently drowned in a university pool. His body remained undiscovered until the following day. He was an excellent swimmer but drowned in four feet of water.

The word "lifeguard" means just that. They are supposed to guard life, but there was no one on duty to guard our son's.

It was a very sad Christmas for our family. Sorry you find lawsuits "revolting."—R.J.P., Chester, N.J.

DEAR R.J.P.: My condolences on the loss of your son. I don't know how parents come to terms with such grief. It is life's cruelest blow. I do not find legitimate lawsuits

"revolting." What disgusts me are people who try to collect outrageous sums without justification - and the barracuda lawyer who is glad to help them...for a hefty cut of the loot, of course.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Settle an argument, please. I say the Hilton Hotel in Las Vegas, which was completed in 1981, is the world's largest. My cousin, who migrated from Russia in 1982, says the Hotel Rossiya in Moscow is bigger. Who wins?—Erie, Pa.

DEAR ERIE: You do. The Las Vegas Hilton is the world's largest hotel, but the Rossiya has more bedrooms.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. For each booklet ordered, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995 Chicago, Illinois 60611.

CHILLING FACTS

WATERLOO, Ontario (AP) — The ice you use in your drinks is only as good as the water you use to make the ice, according to the Canadian Water Quality Association.

"The freezing of water cannot remove any toxic contaminants and does not kill most bacteria," says Lou J. Smith, executive director of the non-profit group.

"Ice is a significant part of most drinks," Smith says, noting that the average cold drink contains 42 percent ice.

Helen Rose reviews book at DAR meeting

Regent Violet Reinauer called to order members of Los Ciboleros Chapter, DAR, Thursday afternoon in Hereford Community Center.

The regent conducted the opening ritual, assisted by Kathryn Ruga, Chaplain pro-tem.

Argen Draper lead the group in the Pledge of Allegiance and American Creed. Reinauer led the National Anthem and Preamble to the Constitution and Draper read the President General's message.

Ruth Knox gave the National Defense report: "Just Say 'NO' To Drugs" by President Ronald Reagan. It dealt with the problem of "peer pressure" to try drugs, and now the hope of turning the situation around appears to lie in the same peer pressure to just say "no" to drugs.

Reinauer presented Ruga with an NSDAR U.S. Flag Committee Certificate of Appreciation for having presented Mr. Ruga's casket flag to the Deaf Smith County Museum, through Los Ciboleros Chapter.

The program was given by Helen Rose. An interesting and informative review of the book, "John Adams," by Page Smith. She stated it was the first biography, in several volumes, written after Adams' papers were released to the public. It was prepared from the diaries of John and Abigail Adams, their letters, personal and public, and other personal documents, as well as the state papers from Mr. Adams' long years of service to his state and nation. Adams always believed that America emphasized people and their rights: Wisdom, Virtue, and Liberty. He died July 4, 1826. "People and nations are forged in the fires of adversity." "Forged or broken" and so it will be with the nation Adams loved and labored to build."

The meeting closed with the assembly reciting in unison the DAR Creed. Draper served as hostess.

DON'T BE AN EASY VICTIM

ATLANTA (AP) — People with disabilities can be easy targets for crime unless they take an active role in protecting themselves, says the Arthritis Foundation.

To reduce a criminal's opportunities for striking, people with disabilities should always be alert to potentially dangerous situations and rehearse what their reactions would be.

It's a good idea to carry a small flashlight and a loud whistle at all times, because light and noise are a criminal's enemies. Many local police stations can send a crime prevention officer to people's homes to recommend types of security and alarm systems appropriate for their particular situation.

Grandparenting topic of recent extension program

Beverly Jesko and Audrey Rusher presented a program entitled "Keeping The Grand In Grandparenting" when members of Wyche Extension Club met recently in the home of Louise Axe.

Also, during the meeting, Axe, Virgie Duncan and Pet Ott furnished items for the auction which is the money-making project for the club at their second meeting held each month.

President Laverne Worley called the meeting to order by members repeating the T.E.H.A. prayer. Marcie Ginn and Coreen Odom were recognized as visitors.

The opening exercise, given by Louise Axe, was "what happened on Feb. 19, 1846?" and "unsound." Roll call was answered with "the name of my first sweetheart."

Members present were Axe, Argen Draper, Duncan, Jesko, Camelia Jones, Carol Odom, Ott, Louise Packard, Rusher, Clara Trowbridge, and Worley.

The next meeting will be March 5 in the home of Argen Draper.

Bryan gives demonstration to Bud to Blossom Club

"Elements of Design in Arranging Silk Flowers" was the theme of Wilma Bryan's demonstration when the Bud to Blossom Garden Club met Thursday morning at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Bryan made a mass arrangement, side and full triangle, crescent, circular, hygarth curve and symmetrical balance. She also made two Easter arrangements, one a ceramic vase filled with eggs and flowers, and the other a Bible and white silk lilies and three miniature candles.

Door prizes of silk flower corsages were won by Naoma Spann and Naomi Hare.

Members were reminded to bring gifts to the next meeting for the District I meeting in Midland.

Those present were Hare, Spann, Phyllis Brown, Addie Cunningham, Mildred Fuhrmann and Bryan.

Fine Arts Association hears guest artist

At the February meeting, members of the Hereford Fine Arts Association and their guests were treated to a program by artist Greta Byars, who works in her Classical Realism Studio in Amarillo, Texas.

Byars moved to Amarillo in 1980. After having painted decoratively for several years, she enrolled in a fine art school, Atelier Richards, in Amarillo. This school is a descendant of The Boston School of Art, inspired by the works of Rembrandt, Vermeer, and Michael Angelo, among others. At this school, Byars learned the traditional method of painting which has been almost completely lost in the twentieth century. This type of fine art demands many hours of work. The feeling of depth and true color in her painting are achieved by painting from real life and not from photographs.

Her work has received many top awards and purchase prizes, in many juried shows throughout the United States. She has work displayed in galleries in Texas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma, and in many private collections throughout the United States.

Hostesses, Louella Cowser and Carmen Angel, served refreshments to members: Jean Lyles, Jolene Bledsoe, Linda Minchew, Frances Frazier, Louva Kersey, Shirley Wyssmann, Cindy Walker, Vinita Wear, Melba Dillard, and guests: Bobbie Wilson, Elvoy Kersey, and Pricilla Hamm and her daughter.

Jean Lyle's name was chosen for the "Dinner Out" certificate which is presented at each regular meeting.

President, Cindy Walker announced that the Jubilee of Arts, sponsored by the group, has been scheduled for Aug. 14-15.

Concert planned Thursday

Members of the Hereford Community Concert Association are reminded of the concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford High School auditorium. Performing will be The Alexandria Quintet.

The quintet is considered classic as well as exotic in its repertoire of selections ranging from the French impressionist masters to the serenity of Mozart.

Major composers for the evening's concert will include Debussy, Ravel, D'Indy and Piere, along with the classical gems of Handel, Rossini and Mozart.

Convention to begin Thursday

The 1987 Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International Convention will be held Thursday through Saturday in the Lubbock Plaza Hotel.

The Lubbock-Amarillo convention will feature guest speakers, Bill Phipps of Kansas City, Mo., Denny Duron, a native of Shreveport, La., Jannie Linney of Midland, Bill McGill of Dallas, Jim Fulingim of Petersburg, Colonal Henry Godman and Brad and Melva Burk.

COLORFUL WORLD

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are increasingly looking at the world through rose-colored glasses.

Newspapers are now multicolored. More than 90 percent of the nation's television sets and about 80 percent of camera snapshots are in color.

Now, office photo copiers are going the color route. Nearly 90 million color copiers were made in 1986 and the figure is projected to reach more than 2.5 billion by 1990.

Abundant Life

WORTH DOING WELL
By Bob Wear

THERE IS great satisfaction in doing our work well, regardless of what it is or how it may be rated by prestigious standards. In fact, the dedicated worker is probably the happiest person in the human scene. There is nothing to recommend laziness, idleness or 'sloppy' work. Our work, whatever it is, is not done as it should be done, unless it is done well. We may not be the most skillful, but when we do our honest best, we have done well.

THOSE WHO HAVE no work to do are poor, indeed. Those who have work to do, but resent the doing and give only half-hearted effort are poor, too. "We have too many people who live without working, and we have altogether too many who work without living."—C.R. Brown

MUCH IS written and said about the 'quality' of workmanship, and it is a matter of much importance. The hurtful ramifications of inferior workmanship are far-reaching. In addition to the hurt done to the worker, the consequences pervade our entire social structure. It seems to me that we would do well to heed the saying, "Anything worth doing is worth doing well."

WE ARE CREATED to work, and, as long as we are physically and mentally able, we must work. If we refuse to work, or just half do our work, we pervert our lives and detract from our own well-being. We are also failing to keep faith with our Maker and with our fellowmen.

WORK IS A BLESSING, but the maximum blessing is in doing our work with the greatest possible diligence and skill. All necessary work is important, and we must never let ourselves forget this. Of course, we have made the mistake of classifying essential work, and have placed some of it on a very low level; and thus created many inequities.

DEDICATION AND DEVOTION to the necessary work of life contribute to and undergird the strength, confidence, stability, wealth and general sense of well-being which are so important in both personal and national life.

Because she prohibited the serving of alcoholic beverages at all White House functions, Rutherford B. Hayes' wife earned the nickname "Lemonade Lucy."

Rockets fall to Nuggets, 134-105

By The Associated Press

"We bounded the ball off ourselves, even the no-smoking signs" at McNichols Arena, an obviously miffed Bill Fitch said after his Houston Rockets failed to hold back the Denver Nuggets.

Denver, sparked by a home-court crowd, handed Houston a 134-105 defeat in NBA basketball Tuesday night.

"What the hell is there to say about a game like that?" asked Fitch. "It just got away. We played poorly and they played great. They got down and tripled Akeem (Olajuwon) and we didn't pass like we should. We played a good first quarter. We did a poor job of passing the ball both inside and outside. We just didn't handle the ball."

Denver Coach Doug Moe, of course, saw the game from another point of view.

"That was very encouraging after the way things have been going for us," Moe said. "We were all down. We had played some pretty good games and just found ways to lose and that can get you down. Mike Evans got us going early with some big baskets and we came up with a lot of turnovers. Blair (Rasmussen) was outstanding, not only offensively, but I thought he did a great job on Akeem."

Olajuwon had been concerned over Denver's mile-high elevation.

"Height didn't matter with guys coming from everywhere," Olajuwon said. "As you can see, it was home-court advantage. It makes a big difference. I was fine when it comes to breathing (Denver's thinner air)."

"Denver did a good job stopping Akeem," said Houston's Jim Petersen. "It seemed like Fat (Lafayette Lever) was everywhere with Walker who played excellent. They did everything with their small guys."

Lever had 18 points, 12 rebounds and 13 assists, the 12th time this season he has had a triple double.

Alex English was Denver's top scorer with 29 points. Darrell Walker came off the bench for 23 Denver points.

The Rockets, who won 124-108 when the teams met Monday night in Houston, started fast, rolling up a 19-12 early lead on the shooting of Petersen and Olajuwon. The Rockets expanded this lead to 36-28 at the end of the first period before the game took a sudden turn.

English, Evans, Walker and Rasmussen ran off a 15-0 Denver streak to put the Nuggets in front 43-36 and Houston was unable to mount a serious threat the rest of the way.

Petersen led Houston with 23 points, a career-high for the second straight night. Olajuwon was held to 15 points.

Leading 51-44 midway through the second period, the Nuggets reeled off another streak, this one 11-0 to lead by 18 at 62-44.

Denver boosted its lead to 32 points in the third period at 97-65.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers defeated Phoenix 97-93, Milwaukee beat Indiana 120-114 in double overtime, Chicago defeated Atlanta 113-103, Utah routed Seattle 133-103, Sacramento downed San Antonio 112-106, Portland trimmed New York 122-109 and Detroit beat New Jersey 120-112.

Lakers 97, Suns 93
Forget the sky hook and the stuff. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the leading scorer in NBA history, has a new shot. It's a 3-pointer.

"What can I say? The opportunity was there, so I took it," Abdul-Jabbar said with a smile Tuesday night after making the first 3-point basket of his career in the Los Angeles Lakers' 97-93 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

Abdul-Jabbar, 38 years old and 7-foot-2, has scored more than 36,000 points, but had never gotten more than two on any shot until the second quarter against the Suns. With 55 seconds left until halftime, he grabbed a long rebound near the Lakers' bench in the corner and let fly.

The shot was good, ending Abdul-Jabbar's lifetime 0-for-14 shooting on 3-point attempts.

Bulls 113, Hawks 103
Michael Jordan scored 34 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and led a third-quarter spurt as Chicago beat visiting Atlanta.

With the score 74-74, Jordan had two steals and scored six points during an 8-0 run. Jordan finished with five blocked shots and five steals and reserve Sedale Threatt added 21 points.

Dominique Wilkins scored 22 points for the Hawks, who have lost four straight on the road.

Bucks 120, Pacers 114
Ricky Pierce had four points as Milwaukee outscored 8-2 to end the second overtime and beat visiting Indiana.

Paul Pressey made two foul shots with 2:28 left that put the Bucks ahead 114-112 and Pierce hit a jump shot 35 seconds later. Jack Sikma and Pierce added baskets to seal Milwaukee's eighth victory in nine games.

Terry Cummings scored 24 points and Pressey had 20 Cummings made a shot as time expired in the first overtime that would have won it for Milwaukee, but officials ruled the basket came after the buzzer.

Herb Williams scored 28 for the Pacers, but none after the third quarter. Indiana had won four in a row.

Jazz 133, SuperSonics 103
Karl Malone poured in a career-high 38 points and grabbed 13 rebounds while John Stockton had 17 points and 13 assists to lead Utah over Seattle.

The Jazz led 58-51 at halftime and kept pulling away, increasing their advantage to 32 points in the fourth quarter.

Dale Ellis scored 26 for the visiting SuperSonics.

Pistons 120, Nets 112
Adrian Dantley scored 32 points, including a three-point play that capped a late fourth-quarter surge and sent Detroit past New Jersey.

With the score tied at 109 and 3½ minutes remaining, the Pistons scored seven straight points. The victory was the fourth in a row for visiting Detroit, which has won 10 of its last 12.

Buck Williams scored 23 points for the Nets, who have lost 19 of their last 22.

Trail Blazers 122, Knicks 109
Kiki Vandeweghe scored 34 points, Clyde Drexler had 30 and each got 10 during a 40-13 barrage in the first half that carried Portland over New York for its fifth straight victory.

The visiting Trail Blazers, who dressed only nine players because of injuries, fell behind 8-2 two minutes into the game before surging in the next 13 minutes to a 42-21 lead.

Patrick Ewing had 27 for the Knicks.

Kings 112, Spurs 106
Eddie Johnson scored 31 points to help Sacramento hold off host San Antonio.

The Kings led 78-62 in the third quarter before San Antonio got within 106-103. Otis Thorpe, who had 21 points, scored six of Sacramento's final 10 points.

Olympics not closed to more compromises

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The chief organizer for the Seoul Olympics said that the door was not closed to further compromise with North Korea about where to stage various events at the 1988 Summer Games.

North Korean Olympic officials earlier this month accepted in principle an offer by the International Olympic Committee and South Korea to allow the North to host table tennis, archery, a cycling road race and some preliminary soccer matches.

But the North Koreans said at the meeting in Lausanne, Switzerland, that they wanted an additional five or six events, which the officials from South Korea said they would not agree to.

Jesse Owens Award given to Louganis

By JOHN NELSON
 AP Sports Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — At age 3, Greg Louganis was on the stage, singing and dancing with a San Diego theatrical troupe. Now, at 27, he is back on the stage, speaking out against alcoholism.
 Louganis, who has dominated international diving competition for a decade, says he began to fight his own alcoholism 3½ years ago. Now he limits his drinking to "club soda and Perrier" while lecturing in junior and senior high schools in southern California.
 "I'm not preaching, but trying to give them positive alternatives," Louganis said.
 Louganis, a double gold medalist in the 1984 Olympics and holder of a record 41 U.S. national titles, was honored Tuesday at a new conference as the 1987 Jesse Owens International Trophy winner. The trophy is given for "excellence in athletic performance and sincere cooperation and understanding among peoples of all nations."
 Last year's winner was Said Aouita of Morocco, a long-distance runner. Sprinter Carl Lewis won the award in 1985.
 In worldwide balloting by a special panel, Louganis received 91 points to 70 for Jackie Joyner-Kersey, the record-setting heptathlete who was named winner of the Sullivan Award on Monday as the No. 1 amateur athlete in the country.
 Distance runner Ingrid Kristiansen of Norway was third with 65 points, followed by pole-vaulter Sergei Bubka of the Soviet Union with 61 points.
 Louganis said he was studying dance long before he began diving 16 years ago, and he credits this background with much of his diving success.
 "I was on the stage when I was 3, singing and dancing in San Diego with a dance studio," Louganis said. "We were doing recitals at the Marine base and convalescent homes, all over southern California."
 Then, in 1983, he said he came to the shocking realization that he still had an attentive audience.
 "At first, I didn't want to accept a lot of the responsibility that goes with being an elite athlete," Louganis said. "There is a responsibility that goes with that."
 "When I started to change when I ran into a 12-year-old member of our diving team in the parking lot, and he was smoking cigarettes," Louganis recalled. "He said he wanted to be just like me. He said he knew I smoked cigarettes. Here was a young kid trying to emulate me. That was in November of '83. ... I stopped smoking and drinking at about the same time."
 Now, when he speaks to students, he says he tries to provide them with "healthy choices" to drinking and smoking.
 "They can't deal with their problems. I tell them to go to the movies, get lost in a movie. Myself, I exercise and dance. ... There's always a healthier way than alcohol to deal with your problems."
 Louganis said he plans to compete at Seoul, South Korean in the 1988 Games.
 "I'll continue to compete as long as I feel I can improve my diving," Louganis said. "I'd like to break 800 (points) in the 3-meter springboard. To do that, you have to average 9½ on all 11 of your dives. If I can do that, I'll hang my suit up."
 He said his best score to date on the 3-meter board was 750.

Oldest college gym in U.S. to be retired

By TRUDY TYNAN
 Associated Press Writer
 WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) — The nation's oldest college gymnasium will be retired this weekend after 101 years of wear and tear at the hands and feet of Williams College students.
 "I'm sure all those anonymous donations to the new gym were from opposing coaches," said Williams Coach Harry Sheehy, whose team will move into an $8.5 million sports complex with seating for 1,200 and a regulation-size basketball court next season.
 "We will miss it, because there is nothing left like it," Sheehy said in a recent interview.
 Lasell Gymnasium was built in 1886, five years before the founder of basketball, James Naismith, hung his peach baskets on a similar track at Springfield College, about 80 miles to the southeast. The Lasell gym is 16 2-3 laps to the mile; a modern football field track is four laps to a mile.
 "The whole configuration of the gym is reminiscent of where the game was first played," said Williams Athletic Director Bob Peck.
 The Ephmen's first home basketball game was against Drury High School of North Adams in 1900. Williams won 48-12. Later that year, Williams downed Dartmouth, 21-12, in the first intercollegiate game at Lasell.
 During the past 87 years, the Ephs have won 72 percent of their games in Lasell, compiling a record of 528-204 in their cramped quarters decorated with Victorian flourishes on a white stone facade.
 "It's the essence of Division III (small college) basketball," said Wesleyan Coach Herb Kenny, whose

SMU football program receives 'death penalty'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The NCAA, in its harshest penalty ever against a football program, banned the sport at Southern Methodist for 1987 because of illegal payments to players, NCAA officials announced today.

The NCAA Infractions Committee also limited SMU to only seven games with outside competition in 1988, none of which can be a home game. The school won't be permitted to be on television or attend a bowl game in 1988.

Outside the Southwest Conference, SMU had been scheduled to play Oklahoma and New Mexico in 1987 and Oklahoma and Notre Dame in 1988.

Sanctions will last until 1990 and include reducing the number of assistant coaches from nine to six, cutting the number of scholarships from 25 to 15 for three years, and limiting off-campus recruiting to the head coach and four assistant coaches for three years.

SMU was found guilty of making monthly cash payments to student athletes from funds provided by a school booster.

Under the new "death penalty" rule adopted in June 1985, the Mustangs could have had their program shut down for two years.

The harshest penalty ever handed out by the NCAA was a two-year suspension of the basketball program at Southwestern Louisiana from 1973 to 1975 for violations, most of them involving recruiting.

The NCAA's report on SMU, released today, said, "The present infractions case does present some unique circumstances that arguably call for the committee to exercise its discretion to impose less than the mandatory penalties."

SMU officials had said they would not appeal the decision no matter how harsh.

After speaking at today's news conference, NCAA enforcement director David Berst, who was suffering from a cold, collapsed. He excluded himself after speaking, walked to the door, sank to his knees and was carried out of the room. Later, he returned, and said, "Apparently, I'm fine."

Berst said athletes at SMU would be allowed to transfer to other schools with immediate eligibility.

"SMU views the wrongdoings that were done in its name with regret and embarrassment," SMU interim president William Stallcup said at the news conference.

"The temporary loss of football will be a bitter loss for some but as a university we have accepted that, knowing in our recent dealings with the football program and the NCAA, we have done what is right," Stallcup said.

No specific cases were named in the NCAA report, but it said 13 football players received payments in the 1985-86 academic year totaling $47,000 and eight athletes got payments from September through December 1986 that totaled about $14,000.

SMU already was the most penalized school in NCAA history, currently in the second year of a three-year probation levied in August 1985. The school was banned from television and bowl games, was allowed no scholarships in 1986 and was to be allowed only 15 scholarships in 1987.

Today's punishment was SMU's fifth in the last 12 years. The football program was placed on probation twice in the last six years, 1981 and 1985, and the Mustangs' first brush with the NCAA was in 1958, when they were placed on probation for a year.

SMU now is tied with Wichita State for the number of NCAA probationations — seven — but SMU has suffered the worst sanctions.

Under the "death penalty" rule, the NCAA may suspend the programs of repeat offenders for up to two years, prohibiting competition, recruiting, coaching or scholarships. It also could lift for four years the eligibility of school representatives to serve on NCAA committees and NCAA voting privileges.

SMU was one of six schools voting against the legislation.

After the latest recruiting scandal broke Nov. 13, 1986, SMU President L. Donald Shields took early retirement and Athletic Director Bob Hitch and Coach Bobby Collins resigned. Half of Collins' assistants have left, and the school has not hired a new athletic director or coach.

The Mustangs did not sign one high school recruit on national letter-of-intent day earlier this month.

Former SMU linebacker David Stanley said in an interview with Dallas television station WFAA that he received $750 a month from an SMU representative after the Mustangs' 1985 probation was announced.

Stanley said it was P.J. "Bootsie" Larson, a former assistant coach who was fired in August 1985, who paid him $25,000 and initiated monthly payments that continued after SMU was placed on probation.

Stanley produced university envelopes that had been hand-addressed to his mother, who said they contained cash.

"I hope they get what's coming to them," Stanley said then of school officials.

The Dallas Morning News later reported that tight end Albert Reese was living in a rent-free apartment supplied by a booster banned from associating with the football program in the August 1985 sanctions. Hitch kicked Reese off the team for the final two games.

The six-member infraction committee is headed by University of Wisconsin law professor Frank Remington. Others members are University of Miami law professor Minnette Massey, Arizona State law professor Milton Schroeder, University of Virginia associate history professor Alan Williams, LeMoyn College athletic director Thomas Niland, and Marilyn Yarborough, law professor and associate vice chancellor at the University of Kansas.

Placed In Tae Kwon Do Tourney

These Hereford youth placed in the 1987 U.S.A. Invitational Tae Kwon Do Championship last Saturday. The competition was held at Crockett Junior High School in Amarillo. They are: Leaha Deyke, at the back, second in sparring and second in forms; front row from left, J.T. Muntz, third in both forms and sparring; Cloudy Meason, first in both forms and sparring; James Deyke, third in forms; Marie Crox, first in forms and third in sparring; Wade McPherson, first in forms and third in sparring; Danny Eberly, first in both forms and sparring; and Ralph Claudio, second in sparring and third in forms. Not pictured is Michael Ellison, who placed third in sparring.

For the third time in four years, in the 1986 NFL season the inter-conference series between the AFC and NFC ended in a 26-26 tie in games.

Coloradan trying to prove new find Texas' first electric chair

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A flimsy oak veneer chair bought from a New Mexico roadside show and dubbed the "Texas Thunderbolt" may have been Texas' first electric chair, a Colorado author says.

If the chair is proved authentic, it could predate the infamous "Old Sparky," an oak chair that put 361 men to death from 1924 to 1964.

The find has startled some historians, who have believed "Old Sparky," with its straps and electrodes, was the state's first death chair.

Charlie Angermeyer, a Denver author, said the man who bought the chair hired him to check his theory that the chair was genuine. The owner, a Colorado philanthropist, realtor and history buff, has requested anonymity, the Houston Chronicle reported Monday.

Angermeyer is offering a reward for old pictures that would prove the existence of the other chair and the authenticity of the find.

The owner had bought the electric chair from a roadside tourist exhibit in New Mexico after answering a newspaper advertisement that said, "For Sale: Electric Chair," Angermeyer said. Stains and burn marks on the chair convinced him it was worth the $800 asking price.

According to the show's owners, the chair was purchased in Amarillo at a 1970 auction and believed to be an execution chair from Michigan. Michigan authorities refuted that claim.

Angermeyer said he contacted the 26 states in which there have been executions and received letters and pictures from all but six. After checking the remaining states, all evidence pointed to Texas.

Robert Pierce, coordinator of the Texas Prison Archives, was stunned when Angermeyer told him about the find.

"We haven't found any evidence that proves there weren't two chairs," Pierce said after much research.

Angermeyer said early newspaper accounts refer to the midnight justice meted out by the "Texas Thunderbolt." He said the chair began service Feb. 8, 1924, and was not replaced by "Old Sparky" until more than six years later.

Pierce and Angermeyer have done a painstaking document search, including Texas Department of Corrections records, state archives and newspaper morgues, but found nothing conclusive.

The researchers did find a relative of an early Texas executioner who said the man talked about two chairs. The original chair was loaned to a sheriff for a convention and never returned, the executioner's relatives told Pierce.

After "Old Sparky" retired in 1964, it was taken apart and moved to the Walls prison unit in Huntsville.

Soviets resume U.S. grain purchases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is buying U.S. grain after a nine-month layoff, but Agriculture Department officials say they are unsure whether Moscow will begin abiding by annual terms of a long-term grain agreement between the two countries.

Negotiators concluded talks on Tuesday without settling differences in how the five-year pact should be interpreted. The discussions were also marred by the hospitalization of USDA's chief representative, Daniel G. Amstutz, undersecretary for international affairs and commodity programs.

However, Amstutz was reported by colleagues as doing well. They said he may be released in a few days.

The talks, which began on Monday, ended with a formal announcement by USDA that the Soviet Union has purchased 1 million metric tons of corn. It was the first U.S. grain to be bought by the Soviets since last May.

No medical reason for Amstutz's sudden collapse was given, but associates said it apparently was not a heart attack and that he had been in telephone contact with USDA officials since entering the hospital.

Deputy Secretary Peter C. Myers said the discussions that continued without Amstutz were routine negotiations held under a long-term agreement with the Soviet Union on annual purchases of U.S. wheat and corn.

At a briefing later, one of Amstutz's aides, Deputy Undersecretary Richard W. Goldberg, said the Soviet delegation did not provide any new insight into what Moscow's grain-buying patterns would be in the future.

Goldberg said the Soviet team, led by V. L. Malkevich, first deputy minister of foreign trade, continues to talk about the total quantities of U.S. grain Moscow has purchased over the years instead of the annual minimum quantities specified by the agreement.

Under the five-year pact, which began its fourth year last Oct. 1, the Soviet Union agreed to buy a minimum of 9 million tons of wheat and corn annually. At least 4 million tons of that must be wheat and 4 million tons corn. Up to 1 million tons of the grain can be substituted by soybeans, with each bushel of beans counting as two bushels of wheat or corn.

The 1 million tons of corn announced on Tuesday — about 3.94 million bushels — was the first U.S. grain to be bought by the Soviets for the 1986-87 year. Last year the Soviets bought 6.8 million tons of corn but only 152,600 tons of wheat. More than 1.5 million tons of soybeans also were bought.

No details or prices were announced by the private exporters who handled the grain sale and reported it to the department. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

According to recent USDA figures, the average market price of corn paid to American farmers has been about $1.35 per bushel. The corn sale to the Soviets — 39.4 million bushels — would have a farm value of approximately $53 million.

Goldberg said the Soviets "continue to be committed to buy U.S. grain" and to keep the agreement in place, despite the differences on how the pact should be carried out.

"We told them that in our judgment there had been a breach in terms of the agreement and we were still hopeful they would perform" as the pact required, he said.

Goldberg said there was talk about the department's Export Enhancement Program, called EEP, and how its subsidy program works. The Soviets spurned an offer by the United States last summer to let Moscow buy subsidized wheat under the program.

But no new offer of subsidized grain was made to the Soviets, nor did they seek a new EEP agreement, he said.

Early soil survey shows some deficits in county

Results of the Pre-Plant Soil Moisture Survey conducted by the High Plains Underground Water Conservatin District No. 1 show that soil moisture conditions are the best they have been in five years.

In that portion of Deaf Smith County which lies within the Water District's boundaries, soil moisture deficits generally range from two to six inches. This means that from two to six inches of water will need to be added to fill the top five feet of the soil profile to field capacity prior to planting. There is, however, an isolated area within the county where the soil moisture deficit ranges from six to eight inches.

Generally speaking, soil moisture conditions across the Water District's 15-county service area show that most soils are at or near field capacity in the upper two feet of the five-foot soil profile, with the lower part of the profile commonly standing at 65 to 80 percent of field capacity, according to Mike Risinger, Soil Scientist with the USDA-Soil Conservation Service. Fifty percent of field capacity approximates the permanent wilting point for most field crops grown in this area.

The good soil moisture conditions are partly attributed to the above average rainfall received in late 1986. However, some soil moisture deficits also exist where rainfall runoff occurred during the period from August to November when the soil conditions were least suitable for taking advantage of the precipitation.

Farmers may wish to check the soil moisture conditions in their fields individually to determine their specific needs. In addition, Risinger suggests that farmers check for hardpans in their fields and destroy any that are found. Hardpans can reduce water infiltratin into the soil. Significant numbers of hardpans may be found where harvesting equipment was run under wet conditions.

The soil moisture survey is conducted by the High Plains Water District in cooperation with the SCS. Soil moisture sites are selected to represent the farm management and cropping patterns typical of the site area and are monitored in cooperation with local landowners. About 200 sites are located throughout the District. Monitoring crews measured soil moisture from late November through mid-January.

Texans place 1st in sorghum contest

Texas farmers walked away with top honors in the 1986 Yield and Management Contest of National Grain Sorghum Producers Association. The contest, in its second year, was conducted in two categories—irrigated and non-irrigated. Texans won First Place in both category.

Winner in the irrigated division was Rick Shumate of Parmer County. A partnership of brothers John and Steve Dauer were winners in the non-irrigated division. Contestants were scored against the three-year average established for their county by the Crop Reporting Service. Winners were those producers whose yields were highest in relation to the county average.

Shumate is 34 years old and has farmed in Parmer County since the age of 21. He is a native of that area. He used soil testing and careful application of fertilizer to meet specific soil requirements to produce the record yield of 238.97 bushels per acre in the county which has a three-year average of 86.1 bushels per acre.

Other winners in the irrigated division were, Second Place, Doug Schemper of Phillips County, Kansas and Third Place, Nick Yount of Clay County, Arkansas.

Managers for FmHA loan sales named

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says managers have been named to handle the sale of more than $1 billion in rural development loans for the Farmers Home Administration.

Kathleen Lawrence, acting undersecretary for small community and rural development, said Tuesday the loans for sale come from the agency's rural development portfolio, a revolving fund used to finance loans to rural communities for projects such as water and sewer systems.

Seven firms will play different managing roles in the sale, Ms. Lawrence said, although Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., was selected as lead manager and will have primary responsibility for carrying out the terms. The sale was required by spending bills passed by Congress last fall.
