

Gas blasts kill hundreds in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Authorities predicted the death toll would rise today as rescue teams searched through the rubble of a working-class district devastated by one of the worst natural gas explosions on record. By early today 264 bodies had been recovered.

Officials said the toll did not include people taken to hospitals who may have died later or workers at the liquefied natural gas storage site where the earthshattering explosions occurred early Monday.

Red Cross and police officials said at least 500 people were seriously injured by the explosions and flames that turned the adjoining Tlalpan neighborhood into an inferno. An estimated 100,000 people were evacuated, Federal Police deputy spokesman Hector Garcia Vasquez said.

Homes on about 20 square blocks were destroyed or badly damaged and Mexico state officials said more than half a square mile was evacuated.

At least 500 injured

Mexico City Police Chief Ramon Mota Sanchez said the blaze was under control at mid-day Monday, but flames from one tank still lit the night sky as the fire burned itself out.

Witnesses and residents said one tremendous blast shook the crowded suburb at 5:42 a.m. (6:42 a.m. EST), followed by perhaps a dozen more explosions. Balls of fire shot into the air and rained fiery debris on homes and businesses. Plumes of dark smoke rose a mile into the sky as the fire raged out of control for more than seven hours.

A spokesman for the government-run petroleum monopoly Pemex said a gas truck apparently exploded, touching off subsequent blasts, first at Unigas Co. natural gas holding tanks and then at the adjoining Pemex natural gas storage and distribution center, constructed in 1961.

Mota Sanchez said four storage tanks holding more than 3 million gallons of liquefied gas each exploded, and two others burned. Authorities had feared the fire would trigger more explosions at nearby tanks, but none occurred.

PEMEX technicians burned off 80,000 barrels of gas to avoid new explosions, the company said. Officials said the operation and main pipeline were closed to prevent further explosions.

The death toll exceeded the 135 killed on Oct. 21, 1944, when a gas storage tank exploded in Cleveland, Ohio — the worst such disaster on record in the United States. More than 1,000 people are believed to have died when a gasoline tanker exploded inside Slammg Tunnel in Afghanistan in November 1982.

President Miguel de la Madrid issued a statement Monday night expressing sorrow for those killed and urging the public to join in helping the victims.

Throughout the day, ambulances and rescue trucks raced in and out of the area, carrying the injured to seven nearby hospitals and several emergency centers set up around the area.

At the nearby Basilica of Our Lady of Guadalupe, thousands of evacuated residents waited throughout the day for word that they could return home. Hundreds attended a special Mass.

The area outside was converted into a refugee center and an adjoining older basilica was used as a clinic where people were treated on makeshift beds on the marble floor.

Organization advocates price in farm bill

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Getting a price in next year's Congressional farm bill is a primary concern of American Agriculture Movement, Inc., area agriculturists were told here Monday night.

"We think we have a program that is going to make changes in the 1985 Farm Bill and get us a price," said David Senter, AAM's national coordinator. "It's do-able. It's not pie in the sky. It's do-able."

The Washington, D.C.-based organization is holding a five-day series of meetings throughout the Panhandle. The Hereford stop was Senter's third Monday, as he earlier visited Dumas and Dalhart farmers.

American Agriculture Movement, Inc.

His schedule today was to take him to Muleshoe, Tulia and Quitique.

The movement, which has as its slogan "America Needs Parity," was founded in the 1970s. According to a pamphlet requesting Political Action Committee donations, AAM "is the only organization of farmers dedicated to a fair market price for all farm commodities." It reportedly has members in 45 states.

Three methods of persuasion are being used by AAM to help formulate the 1985 Farm Bill, Senter told about 20 area residents gathered Monday evening in K-Bob's Steak House.

For one phase, farmers who are able to do so are asked to spend a week in Washington lobbying for a part of the bill they would favor. Rather than talk with the House Committee on Agriculture, which is to pass the bill, farmers are to lobby the subcommittees. This, Senter claimed, is more likely to bring about desired results.

The second method proposed by AAM is a letter-writing and telephoning campaign. "This is just as important as the ones that go to Washington," Senter said.

According to the AAM national director, letters should be handwritten since those kind are read by "90 percent" of the Congressmen. As few as 10 phone calls and letters may convert a legislator to the AAM's side of an issue, Senter maintained, though sometimes more than 100 correspondences are required.

A final act of persuasion AAM supports for influencing next year's farm legislation is "activity in the country." This presumably means "tractorcades," of which AAM has organized several during its existence.

When the two presidential candidates met for a debate last month in Kansas City, Mo., Senter said, several dozen tractors had been driven there to emphasize agriculture needed to be an issue in the election. There seemed to be a lot of support for the cause, he claimed. "We couldn't have gotten in there with tanks back in 1978," Senter joked.

The 41-member House agriculture committee, Senter said, should side with AAM on most issues. The corresponding Senate committee, thanks to Democrat Tom Hawkins'

Man charged with bar slaying

With rifle wounds five others

The man was arraigned before Justice of the Peace James Erwin on a Dallas County murder warrant, said George. He was being held in the Denton County Jail on $200,000 bond.

Earlier in the evening Morrison allegedly walked into the Webb Lounge in northwest Dallas and fired about 10 rounds from what police thought was an M-16 military assault rifle, according to Dallas Police Lt. David Bonicard.

Clifford Smith, 55, a patron in the bar, died shortly after being rushed to Parkland Memorial Hospital about 6 p.m., according to hospital spokesman Claude McCain. His wife, Michelle Smith, 55, was also wounded in the shooting. She was listed in fair condition at St. Paul Hospital, said a spokeswoman who declined to be named.

Three other shooting victims were listed in serious condition at Parkland Hospital after undergoing surgery, McCain said. The extent of their injuries was not released.

The fifth victim, the bar manager, was treated for a gunshot wound to the side and released, officials said.

Bonicard said the suspect had been drinking in the bar about 5:30 p.m. Witnesses said the man left the bar and returned a few minutes later carrying the gun in a brown paper wrapper.

About 15 people were in the bar when the shootings occurred, Bonicard said.

"Apparently he went out to his car and got the gun and walked in with the loaded magazine already in place. One witness said the first thing they heard was the gun cocking. Then they started diving for cover," Bonicard said.

There were eight motor vehicle accidents which happened within city limits between Friday and this morning, police said. Also over the weekend, five people were arrested for driving while intoxicated and three others were picked up on warrants.

Commissioners change building permit rule

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Hereford City Commission, in a regular meeting Monday night, amended the building permit ordinance to require property line surveys, appointed John Stagner to the Board of Adjustment, approved a flashing traffic light for a school crossing on 15th Street near the YMCA, and postponed the first reading of a franchise for Energas.

Commissioners moved through the four-item agenda in just 33 minutes, adjourning at 8:03 p.m. The franchise for Energas was the first item of business, but commissioners decided the franchise form was incorrectly written and will request that it be resubmitted.

After discussing the need of amending the building permit ordinance, commissioners approved the following wording: "In all instances where the proposed construction consists of new structures, or additions to the area of existing structures, such application shall contain, or be accompanied or supported by, a survey as proof of location of the structures with respect to survey lines or stakes, to assure compliance with all set-back requirements provided by law."

Commissioner Emory Brownlow said he thought the ordinance needed amendment as "a protection to citizens." He said a property survey would be the only way to prove the structures are in the right place. Brownlow made the motion and Joe Reinauer Jr. seconded, and the amendment was approved.

Ed Coplen nominated John Stagner as a new member of the Board of Adjustment. Brownlow seconded the motion and the commission approved the appointment. The board decides appeals on property-line questions.

Dudley Bayne, city manager, reported that many complaints had been received about traffic dangers at the school crossing near the new YMCA building. The city had recently removed caution signs in the middle of some streets because they do not comply with state law.

Bayne said the lights were not in the budget, "but we need them to protect our children and we can absorb the expense." Commissioners agreed with the proposal and the lights will be installed.

Attending the session were Mayor Wes Fisher and Commissioners Brownlow, Reinauer and Coplen, and Bayne and City Attorney Earnest Langley. Absent was Commissioner Bud Eades.

She now serves as rodeo secretary.

Two more prison stabbings occur

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Two more stabbings at the violence-plagued Texas Department of Corrections have upped the number of 1984 prison attacks to 362, officials say.

One inmate was stabbed Monday because he failed to pay a debt, and another prisoner was knifed because he supposedly owed a fellow inmate some tobacco, prison spokesman Charles Brown said.

The TDC — the nation's second largest prison system — has recorded its most violent year ever, with 22 fatal attacks so far.

Frank Owens Jr., 36, an inmate at the Ellis I Unit near Huntsville, was listed in serious but stable condition late Monday after another inmate stabbed him with a half-pair of scissors, Brown said.

Owens, serving a life sentence for a Dallas County conviction for burglary of a habitation, was assaulted at about 11:15 a.m. in the unit's main hallway, the spokesman said.

Owens was taken to Huntsville Memorial Hospital to be treated for wounds to his shoulder, chest, side and abdomen, and lacerations to his hands and neck, Brown said. The inmate was to be transferred to the TDC hospital in Galveston, he said.

Parole officers said overworked

DALLAS (AP) — As thousands of parolees leave the crowded Texas prison system, state parole officers are faced with increasing workloads and dwindling resources to enforce special release terms handed to many ex-convicts.

More than 20,000 inmates were freed last year from the Texas Department of Corrections, and state officials warn that another flood of inmates may soon be released in order to ease crowded conditions behind prison walls.

Of those freed last year, about 10,000 were told that in addition to the standard rules of parole, they had to meet one or more special conditions to keep their freedom, the Dallas Times Herald reported Monday.

The special conditions are intended work on the cause of an inmate's criminal behavior and are part the parole board's strategy for dealing with the flood of inmates being released, officials say.

But the Board of Pardons and Paroles has no idea if the conditions are being observed, and it discourages parole revocation even if a parolee is refusing to abide by the terms of his release, the newspaper reported.

Look at waste tax suggested

AUSTIN (AP) — The 1985 Legislature should consider a hazardous waste tax to pay for cleaning up abandoned dumpsites, a House-Senate panel says.

But the Joint Committee on Hazardous Waste Disposal could not agree Monday whether to tax the generation or the disposal of the wastes.

In lieu of a definitive recommendation, the committee voted to ask the Legislature to "consider" a new tax to raise money for enforcement of hazardous waste dump laws, research and clean-up projects.

Two committee members offered tax plans. Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, wants a $5-per-ton tax on the disposal of hazardous wastes. Truan said a disposal tax could create an incentive to "neutralize" hazardous wastes.

But Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, said a $2-per-ton tax on hazardous waste generation would be a better system. Sixty-three million tons of the wastes were generated in the state in 1983, according to the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Advisers pessimistic about deficit

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan's budget advisers are privately expressing alarm at what they view as the near impossibility of significantly reducing the federal deficit without violating Reagan's campaign promise against raising taxes.

One administration official, speaking on the condition that he remain anonymous, questioned why Reagan issued a firm no-tax-increase campaign pledge in the face of overwhelming odds that he would have been re-elected without it.

At the beginning of the campaign in August, the president said he would raise taxes only as a last resort. But as he continued to berate Democratic challenger Walter F. Mondale for suggesting there would be no way to cut the deficit without a tax increase, Reagan's pledge became more and more firm.

Finally, a few days before the Nov. 6 election, Reagan declared taxes would be raised "over my dead body."

The official said the 12 high-level officials who form the group developing a 1986 fiscal year budget appear to be hopelessly deadlocked as they seek ways to achieve $50 billion in spending cuts.

Artificial heart thought better

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The recipient of an improved version of the artificial heart that kept Barney Clark alive for 112 days could live for as long as two years, says the man who designed the plastic device that could be implanted in a second patient in the next few weeks.

The search for the next recipient has narrowed to a "handful or two handfuls of patients," but the exact number is being withheld so as not to get anyone's hopes up, Dr. William DeVries, the surgeon who performed the operation on Clark, said Monday.

Robert Jarvik, the inventor of the device, said doctors searching for the next candidate are "substantially better prepared" than they were with Clark. The Food and Drug Administration in June approved DeVries' request to perform the experimental implants on patients healthier than Clark, who was near death from a degenerative heart disease at the time of the operation. Clark died March 23, 1983, of multiple organ system failure, doctors said.

Britain wants details of plot

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Britain is seeking details about two Britons accused of serving on a Libyan assassination squad and about allegations that Libya was plotting to kill British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, sources said today.

The British sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said British Ambassador Michael Weir met with Egyptian Foreign Ministry officials on Monday after the arrest last weekend of Anthony William Gill, 48, and Godfrey Philip Shiner, 47, both of London.

Egypt has accused Shiner and Gill of being part of a four-member Libyan "hit team" sent to Cairo by Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy to kill former Libyan Prime Minister Abdel-Hamid Bakoush.

Libya, in turn, broadcast an appeal on its state-run radio Monday for the overthrow of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

The British sources said Britain was seeking information about Shiner and Gill and statements by Mubarak and Egyptian officials that Libya was plotting to kill Mrs. Thatcher.

SAN JUAN, Texas (AP) — Several Rio Grande Valley farmers say state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower has "no idea" what proposed pesticide regulations will cost Texas growers.

But one state official listening to testimony Monday at a public hearing on the new regulations said the cost to growers is the "price of human health."

About 1,000 farmers, farm workers, teachers, doctors, lawyers and concerned citizens packed a public ballroom in San Juan to listen to and present seven hours of testimony about pesticide safety regulations Hightower presented last month.

Several industry spokesmen challenged the $36 figure that agriculture officials have said the new regulations will cost an average farmer.

The hearing was one of five being held around the state. Testimony heard during the meetings will be considered in amending the proposed regulations, said Assistant Agriculture Commissioner Ron White, a hearing panel member.

Karen Richman, a Texas Food Producers Council spokeswoman, testified that the cost would run an individual vegetable grower $12,000 to $15,000 a year, not $36.

And Don R. Curl, spokesman for Texas Citrus Mutual, said the new regulations would cost the owner of a 50-acre orchard about $2,000 a year.

White defended the state's estimate, saying it covered implementing only one section of the new rules for the "average Texas farmer."

"And the average Texas farmer doesn't farm the Rio Grande Valley," White said. "We know these regulations will have the greatest impact down here — this is where the most labor-intensive crops are grown."

"We know this is going to cost something; we never said it wouldn't," he said. "We need to find out, realistically, what it's going to cost in the Valley and that's what we're learning from this meeting."

But the regulations are needed, he said, and the cost is the "price of human health."

Those testifying in favor of the regulations included farm workers who held signs reading, "Stop Poisoning for Profit" and "You Are What You Eat."

Luz Pena, a 41-year-old mother, testified about an illness she had suffered after feeling "cold drops of a white chemical" that fell on her while she was working in a cabbage field.

She said the new regulations would finally force growers to tell employees what chemicals they were being exposed to and what the physical symptoms of exposure might be.

Several school superintendents testified about school children being sprayed by a crop duster and becoming ill from pesticide exposure. Others testified on pesticide damage to the environment.

The proposed regulations establish minimum re-entry periods for workers going into fields sprayed with certain poisonous pesticides.

Farmers would have to post warning flags around "hot" fields that have been temporarily closed after spraying. They would also have to provide protective clothing for workers sent into a field during the prohibited period.

One of the most controversial parts of the proposed rules involves prior notification of spraying.

People living adjacent to agricultural fields may make a written request to be notified 24 hours before a planned aerial application.

No advance notice would be required before ground spraying of pesticide.

Notification of spraying would be required, without request, for schools, hospitals or temporary worker housing within a half-mile of a field to be sprayed.

Organized opposition to the proposed regulations has come from the Texas Agricultural Chemicals Association, a chemical industry lobbying group, and the Texas Farm Bureau, a large agricultural insurance organization.

Economy sags July through September

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy went into a more pronounced slump from July through September than previously thought, growing at a sluggish rate of 1.9 percent, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product — the broadest measure of the country's economic health — advanced at the slowest pace since the fourth quarter of 1982, the end of the last recession.

The Reagan administration has described the slowdown as a momentary lull and not the beginning of another recession, but many private economists have said that at the very least the country has entered a growth recession.

In a growth recession, the economy expands at such a low rate that unemployment also rises. In an actual recession, the economy does not grow at all.

The 1.9 percent figure for growth in the third quarter marked the second time the government has revised downward this estimate of economic activity. It first said third quarter growth would come in at 3.6 percent and then last month that was revised to 2.7 percent.

While many economists were expecting another downward revision, few were predicting the rate would fall below 2 percent. That meant the economy expanded at less than one-fourth the pace it had exhibited in the first six months of the year.

From January through March, the GNP surged ahead at an annual rate of 10.1 percent. From April through June, the rate was a still-robust 7.1 percent.

One of the weakest segments in the economy in recent months has been the building industry, which was hit hard when mortgage interest rates rose sharply earlier in the year. The government reported today that housing construction fell again in October.

The Commerce Department said housing starts dropped 9.8 percent last month, falling to an annual rate of 1.52 million units, the lowest pace since December 1982.

Many private economists believe GNP growth in the current quarter will dip below the pace set from July through September, primarily because of continued weakness in consumer spending.

However, most forecasters predict an upturn in growth early next year as the impact from recently lowered interest rates begins to rejuvenate consumer demand, especially for big-ticket items such as cars and appliances.

The slowdown in growth also had a negative impact on corporate profits in the third quarter.

victory in Iowa. A likely new member to the committee, Hawkins is price-oriented, according to Senter.

Chairmanship of the Senate agriculture committee is undecided, Senter said. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has held that position but is being asked by his campaign financial backers to chair the foreign relations committee. The supporters are encouraging the change, Senter said, by hinting Helms would consequently receive support for the 1988 presidential race.

Richard Lugar and Thad Cochran are candidates to succeed Helms as agriculture chairman, according to Senter. Regardless of who assumes the top post, however, there will not be enough committee votes to phase out price-support programs or get rid of target pricing, the AAM administrator claimed.

Two movies are to help the AAM's farm bill goals, Senter said. He contended "Country" and "The River," which both deal with government trying to take family farmers' land away, were written with advice from AAM.

Congressmen came out of a "Country" viewing in Washington "with tears in their eyes," Senter said. "All of a sudden they understood what is going on."

Meet Your Neighbor

Although they grew up in completely different geographical areas, Bill and Bertha Talley both enjoy Hereford because it reminds them so much of their hometowns.

Mr. Talley grew up in Cleveland, Tenn., and she was raised in Juarez, Mexico. Both find Hereford to be like home, though, with its agricultural economy and open spaces.

Both were working in El Paso when they met. Mr. Talley took the job of coaching La Plata Junior High's ninth graders when they moved to Hereford a year ago from Ropesville.

"I like coaching junior high," he said. "I feel comfortable with it and like that age of people. I like to see them grow and they're really just starting to mature at that age."

Through his philosophy of coaching, Mr. Talley strongly encourages the players to do their best in the academic realm.

"Education and athletics go hand-in-hand," he said. "You can't be undisciplined in the classroom and be a disciplined player."

"I talk about the classroom part almost every day," he continued. "You're not a very good coach if you just care about what happens on the field."

Apart from his beliefs, even more impressive about Mr. Talley is that he has no hands and coaches football. He said that the absence of his hands has not affected his coaching because after someone gets to know him, that person does not notice it.

"It has never hindered me," he explained, "but it has (hindered) the people I've wanted to work for. I consider myself different, not handicapped. Handicapped tends to mean restricted."

"He can do more than somebody with hands," Mrs. Talley added.

Mr. Talley has been interested in sports since the time he was growing up.

"I played around the neighborhood and always thought I'd like to be a coach," he said. "I like the competition. In fact, I really love the competition."

He received his bachelor's degree from Lee College in his hometown in secondary education and history. In addition to his coaching, he teaches Texas history and a girls' physical education class.

After receiving his degree, Mr. Talley came to Texas in the summer of 1975 to work for Texas Tech University as an athletic academic counselor. He stayed for three and one-half years before going into business for himself.

Soon, however, he missed coaching and the relationships it provided and moved to Ropesville where he coached a little of everything.

"I like the practices and teaching better than the games," he said. "Coaching is a fine profession."

"I really enjoy the relationships between the coaches and players, and the coaches and coaches. I like talking to the kids and being with them."

When at home, he enjoys watching all types of games on television and loves to read books about sports and history.

Mrs. Talley, after their marriage, was able to receive her American citizenship. She sews for her children and loves to cook, especially Mexican food.

She is expecting a child soon and so presently is not working. When she does work, she prepares the food for the Northwest Elementary cafeteria.

"I have taken a class at the high school in English as a second language," she said in her accented English. "I have also taken a summer class at La Plata Junior High in making all kinds of things like stuffed baskets."

She has three children. Gracie, 12, plays the flute, enjoys soccer, and attends West Central. Jimmy, 11, enjoys football and goes to West Central. The youngest, Susie, 8, likes to practice twirling and cheerleading. She attends Northwest.

"None of the children speak Spanish," Mrs. Talley said. "I really would like for them to, but the Spanish here is so different."

Coming from such diverse backgrounds might really be difficult for some people, but the Talleys have adjusted well to Panhandle life.

"When I go back to Tennessee," Mr. Talley said, "I feel confined with all the trees around me. I like the openness here."

Mononucleosis produces swollen glands

At first, you might think you have the flu. The initial symptoms may include fever, headaches, a sore throat, and a generally weak feeling.

But after a day or two, other symptoms may appear—swollen glands of the neck, armpits, or groin, the yellowish skin color of jaundice, or a skin rash resembling German measles.

The disease is mononucleosis, says the Texas Medical Association.

Its nickname, "the kissing disease," refers to a common belief that it is spread by oral contact. How this viral infection spreads is unknown, but mononucleosis usually does not become an epidemic as flu often does.

Because the virus can spread to any organ of the body through the blood, the symptoms can vary. The most common are swollen lymph glands and the high fever.

Mononucleosis is not too common, but it tends to strike mostly children and young adults. It has no cure, but it eventually clears up. Although most symptoms disappear within two or three weeks, patients usually feel weak and lack energy for about two more weeks. Some feel depressed.

Mononucleosis is not a dangerous disease, but it tends to recur during the same year as the first attack. This can happen several times, but succeeding attacks are usually milder than the first. Fortunately, there are no after-effects once mononucleosis has cleared up. Unfortunately, the body does not build up immunity to the disease.

Flu-like symptoms that last more than a few days, when accompanied by swollen glands, should be checked by a physician. A blood test may be used to determine if you have mononucleosis.

Rest is essential to recovery. Persons with mononucleosis should not return to their daily routine for about a month after the illness begins. They should drink plenty of liquids and remain indoors.

The doctor may recommend aspirin or a substitute to relieve pain. Because mononucleosis is a viral disease, antibiotics will not help. The disease simply must run its course.

Ann Landers

Always be alert

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week a woman was shopping in a major chain store with her little girl. Her attention was diverted for a minute and she lost track of the child.

When the frantic mother could not find the child anywhere in the store, she notified a sales clerk, who called security. Security, in accordance with store policy, immediately locked all the doors. The police arrived within minutes. They could not find the child. Finally, an employee located the little girl in the men's restroom. The man who had taken her there had already given her a sedative and was cutting off her hair in an attempt to camouflage her appearance so he could carry her out unnoticed.

Three cheers for the clerk whose ingenuity cracked the case. Three more for a store with a brave policy. And now a word to you mothers out there: If you can't keep an eye or a hand on your children when you go shopping, please leave them at home. An awful lot of nuts are running loose these days.—West Coast Warning

DEAR WEST COAST: Your letter is a somber reminder of what can happen if a child is allowed to wander off for even a moment. Thanks for the alert.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am involved in a situation about which I have never read in your column or anywhere else. I am 29 years old and have been married nine years to a wonderful man whom I adore. I am employed by a small corporation in the business office. My duties require me to meet a person from another office twice a week to compare figures and prepare a report for management.

This other person is a man in his early 60s. The first day I saw him I sensed that there was some powerful chemistry between us. He made no passes on our first or second meeting. The third day we met for our conference, I impulsively leaned over and planted a kiss on his lips. It was a dynamite experience.

That was two years ago. Ever since that time we have embraced and kissed each other passionately during our semi-weekly meetings, but have gone no further. He let me know early that he was not interested in an adulterous affair, although he found me very attractive.

Now for the kicker: This situation has improved my sex life at home tremendously. On the days I meet this man, I can hardly wait to go home and get my husband into bed. Although he does not understand what has created the change in me, he is delighted with my renewed enthusiasm.

Is it wrong, considering that we indulge only in kissing?—Never Happier In East Texas

DEAR N.H.: Your conduct sounds a bit trashy to me, lady. It's also potentially dangerous. One of these days you could go right over that line and find yourself involved in a full-blown affair. Knock it off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A suggestion to the woman who bruises easily and has a suspicious husband: Tell her to take Vitamin C. It helps a lot.—Mazie In Morristown, N.J.

DEAR MAZIE: Sorry, there is no validity to that claim. The same goes for vinegar compresses. Many readers suggested both.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It—A Guide for Teens and Their Parents," give no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. For each booklet, send 50 cents plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

4 Around the County

As most 4-H leaders, parents and county extension agents will agree, the mission of the 4-H program is to help young people become self-directing, productive and contributing members of society. That means all young people who wish to participate in 4-H. Almost all American children live in families that are changing. Statistics bear out that over the past decade, American's approach to house and home has changed dramatically. And as the American family changes, the home environment of the 4-H member changes. For the 4-H leader, this means staying abreast of these changes if their work with young people is to continue to be effective.

When we think about 4-H, we think about young people. Today, because of later marriages, lower birthrates and the general aging of the population, many American households include no children at all. In 1983, more than 20 percent of American households consisted of one person living alone. This means the voting, taxing constituency that can be expected to be looking out for the interests of youth, is shrinking in size. When public tax dollars are needed to support educational programs for youth - including 4-H - only one quarter of households have a stake in the issue. The need for awareness of the issue certainly becomes apparent.

In addition to changes in average family size, American households are experiencing changes in the role functions of family members. Only seven percent of today's families are composed of a bread-winning father, a mother who does not work outside the home and children. Slightly more than 55 percent of all mothers with school-age children are working outside the home. And, according to a recent survey of volunteer 4-H leaders, more than 60 percent of the female volunteers work outside the home. These percentages have significantly increased during the last 10 years.

The two-earner family has become the dominant family forming our society today. Several things have led to this-increasing wages, new job opportunities for women and the economic necessity to maintain a comfortable standard of living.

As more mothers work outside the home, fathers are taking a more active role in child care. Parenting is becoming much more shared than in the past, when fathers earned the money and mothers took care of the children. As the roles of mothers and fathers change, the roles and needs of children change, too. When both parents work outside the home, the children become more self-reliant and independent. They often are responsible for household chores & caring for themselves. Many children of working parents thus get a head start on maturity.

Traditionally, the 4-H program looked to mothers, who usually did not work outside the home, for leadership. However, with the present situation, continuing this pattern would severely restrict the 4-H program. If 4-H is to grow and expand, leadership opportunities for volunteers must be identified and designed to fit into the time slots employed people are able to schedule. Fathers as well as mothers must be vigorously recruited and warmly welcomed into the pool of available volunteer leadership.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

A Feeling Of Oneness

Life was extremely rough on the early settlers' families. Grandma, grandpa, mom, dad, brothers and sisters all lived together in some very tight quarters.

There was little leisure time with each family member having to carry his or her full load of chores. Yet, family life was comfortable - and prosperous.

At our bank, we strive to generate that same Pioneering spirit of oneness. We want to make your banking experience with us as friendly and pleasant as possible.

When you bank with us, you'll know we've brought back that Pioneering spirit . . . the kind of dedication it takes to get the job done right.

At our bank, we're pioneering new ways of service and security for you and your entire family.

All-district team released

Brockman tops defense

Hereford Whiteface linebacker Lee Brockman, 6-2, 210 pounds, received all nine District 3-5A coaches' votes last week and was chosen Defensive Player of the Year in league football, according to an announcement released by Hereford football coach Jerry Taylor.

League coaches met in Plainview to choose the annual elite team, which featured four Whitefaces as first-teamers, one second-teamer and six honorable-mention candidates.

Joining Brockman on the defensive squad from Hereford was lineman David Parsons. Defensive end Augustine Castillo was placed on the second-team defensive unit.

Brockman, who was named an all-district linebacker for the second year in a row, and Plainview defensive back Ronnie Bradic were the only unanimous selections on the defensive team.

Brockman also was a member of the first-team offensive squad at guard.

Quarterback Mike Scott, 5-9, 160, is the all-district quarterback for the second consecutive year. In addition, Scott was last year's Offensive Player of the Year.

One of Scott's favorite receivers, Sammy Suarez, was named all-district wide receiver.

Plainview took top offensive honors, with Bradic garnering the Player of the Year title and Greg Sherwood Coach of the Year. Sherwood copped the award after leading the Bulldogs to an 8-1 regular-season mark, winning the 3-5A title. Some pre-season pollsters had picked Plainview as low as fifth in district play.

Honorable-mention offensive picks from Hereford were Kurt Simon at tight-end, Benny Ramirez at tackle, Parsons at guard and Javier Mendiola at kicker. Defensively, tackle Lazaro Abalos and end Albert Tijerina were honorable mention.

Other than Hereford, league schools and the number of positions at which they placed players on the top two offensive and defensive units were: Amarillo, 11; Plainview, nine; Caprock, four; Coronado, four; Tascosa, two; Palo Duro, six; Monterey, five; Lubbock, five.

Youngest player to win award

New York pitcher best rookie

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden has a formula for avoiding the sophomore jinx.

"On Day One next year, I'll forget everything that happened this year," Gooden says.

For now, though, he will remember with relish the season that brought him the National League Rookie of the Year award, which was announced Monday night.

He will take his plaque home to Tampa, Fla., "I'll hang it on the wall, and I'll look at it every night before I fall asleep."

Gooden's list of accomplishments in was a long one in his first year, which happened to coincide with his final year as a teen-ager as he became the youngest player ever to win the rookie award.

Gooden, the New York Mets right-hander, did not turn 20 until last Friday. Before that day came, however, he had set a rookie record with 276 strikeouts to lead the league. And, he set a major-league mark by averaging 11.39 strikeouts per nine innings.

He set another major-league record with 43 strikeouts in three consecutive nine-inning games, with a single-game high of 16, three short of the major-league standard. He set a club record by striking out 10 or more batters in 15 of his 31 starts, and he became the youngest player ever selected to the All-Star Game.

It was another happy coincidence that the announcement of the award came on the birthday of Gooden's father, Dan.

"You only have one chance to win this award, and to win it is a great honor," Gooden said, "and to win it especially on my father's birthday."

The award is determined by a vote of 24 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Two panelists are picked from each National League city, and they each vote for three players. Gooden was named first on all but one ballot, that cast by Dave Nightingale, national correspondent for The Sporting News. Nightingale voted for Juan Samuel, Philadelphia second baseman.

Gooden had 118 points to 67 for Samuel, who was second. Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Orel Hershiser was third with 15 points, followed by outfielder Dan Gladden of San Francisco (9), pitcher Ron Darling of New York (3), outfielder Carmelo Martinez of San Diego (2), and outfielder Jeff Stone of Philadelphia and infielder Terry Pendleton of St. Louis (1 each).

Gooden said he came to spring training just trying to make the team, but he knew in his first outing with the Mets that he belonged in the major leagues.

Saints garner Monday victory

By AUSTIN WILSON

AP Sports Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A half-hour after the game, Derland Moore was still in full uniform, sitting at his locker in the clamorous New Orleans Saints dressing room savoring his team's first Monday victory ever.

"I'm afraid to take it off," said the 12-year National Football League veteran. "I'm afraid I'll wake up and find out it's all a dream. I've been through more of them that anybody. It was a long time coming."

New Orleans beat the Pittsburgh Steelers 27-24 for the first Monday victory in the 18-year history of the franchise. They were 0-7 in prime time going into the game.

Moore said he knew the Saints were going to win — no question about it.

"It was the darndest feeling I've ever had on the sidelines. We just knew we were going to win," said the veteran nose tackle.

"As the game went on, we just got better and better."

Quarterback Richard Todd, who provided most of the Saints' offense, credited the defense for the victory.

"We had good field good position most of the game," he said. "They kept getting us the ball in good position. We didn't always do anything with it, but they just kept getting us the ball."

Todd threw for 223 yards and two touchdowns, hitting 18 of 31 attempts and getting two picked off by Steeler cornerback Dwayne Woodruff. He was also sacked six times.

The Steelers scored on a 76-yard punt return by Louis Lipps and a 14-yard pass from Mark Malone to John Stallworth in the second quarter, a 21-yard field goal by Gary Anderson early in the fourth quarter and a 25-yard pass from Scott Campbell to Lipps with 1:17 left in the game.

But the Saints kept coming up with big defensive plays. Linebacker Rickey Jackson forced two fumbles and constantly harried Steeler quarterbacks into throwing early and off balance.

Defensive end Bruce Clark recovered two fumbles and intercepted a pass when Malone tried a screen over the middle.

NBA roundup

Two cagers score 61 in losing effort

CHICAGO (AP) — It isn't very often that two players from the same team combine for 61 points and come out on the short end of the score.

But that was the case Monday night, when Michael Jordan and Orlando Woolridge scored 34 and 27 points, respectively, in a 137-120 National Basketball Association loss Monday night to the Indiana Pacers.

"We could not stop their half-court game and we were killed on the boards," said Bulls Coach Kevin Loughery. "It's a problem that is causing me tremendous anxiety."

The contest was the only one Monday night in the NBA.

The Pacers outrebounded the Bulls 52-37 and used a 6-foot-5 rookie, Vern

Fleming, and an array of first-and second-year players in the backcourt to deal the Bulls their third straight loss at home.

Fleming, Indiana's first draft choice last year, scored a career-high 26 points, including 24 in the second half to help Indiana win for the fourth time against eight losses.

"We continued to push the ball up court and took full advantage of the Bulls' defensive plan which tried to trap us," Fleming said.

"First Quintin Dailey and then Jordan tried their best to steal the ball from me by playing me as if I were going to drive on my left, but it didn't work for the simple fact that we were always able to pass to the open man," Fleming said. "I remember when I played against Jordan two years ago and we (Georgia) knocked North Carolina out of the NCAA playoffs."

Samples snares contest win

In the next-to-last week of the Brand grid contest, Jay Samples of 601 Grand Ave. took first place by missing five games.

Samples won $25 worth of Hereford Bucks and qualified for the sweepstakes contest next week. Samples and all winners are to compete for $100 in Hereford Bucks in a contest exclusively for them. However, all Brand readers may participate in the regular contest, which will appear Tuesday.

Winners' names also will be released next Tuesday in the Brand.

Second place and $15 Hereford Bucks last week went to Bernadette Kalka. Kalka tied with Cory Marsh of Route 5. Both entrants missed six games, but Kalka picked a tie-breaker of Denver and 38 points while Marsh chose Denver and 35. Marsh takes third and $10 Hereford Bucks.

Six people missed seven games. They were Raymond Hill, Chad Redwine, Aline Alexander, Frank Cogdell, Bobby Baker and Jerry Collier.

Ten people missed eight games.

Panel Picks

All members of the Fearless Forecasters panel saw their percentages drop a little last week.

Brand editor-publisher Speedy Nieman, however, picked the most games correct, going 17-9. With his performance, Nieman moves into a tie for second place with Brand sports editor Dennis Ball at 196-88. Ball missed 11 games last week.

Boots and Saddle owner Butch White opened his lead by one more game, rounding out the week at 16-10. White now is 199-85 for the season.

Abundant Life

Bob Wear

CALMNESS IS a source of great strength, and it is the life-posture in which we can be most effective, and make ourselves less vulnerable. It is possible for us to be so up-tight and emotional about some one thing that we are hindered in all things that we try to do. Therefore we must learn how to be concerned without being overly concerned. We can attain this balance by being sure that we understand it, realize the need and put forth determined effort to do so.

WE CAN LEARN to be calm in our justified concern, because we know that if we go too far in our feelings of concern we will handicap ourselves. In some instances, "indifference" is the only attitude that will work at the time it is indicated. Of course, this must be handled with the greatest degree of wisdom.

our emotions. If we do, we are in trouble. There must be enough restraint to permit our reason, our good sense, our best thinking to function effectively. We can do this, and this is how we establish and maintain the state of calm in which we can actuate the will, the volition, and direct it in the most effective manner.

IF WE OVER-EMOTIONALIZE the things which concern us, we will be eroding our mental, physical and spiritual strength, and to no good purpose. This means that we will not be able to do our best thinking, or do our best.

CALMNESS, which can be developed and maintained, is essential to the most successful personal life.

Alpha Iota Mu plans rituals

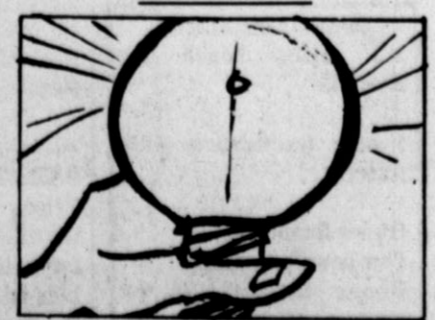

Members of Alpha Iota Mu met Thursday evening in the Flame Room for a Thanksgiving Dinner hosted by the social committee.

During a short business meeting Debe Graves reminded members about the Rituals to be held today at 7 p.m. in the Community Room. Nancy George told members of the upcoming Westway Craft Bazaar where the sorority will be selling stuffed potatoes which will be held at the Community Center Saturday.

Ruby Sanders, service chairman, reminded members to meet at 10 a.m. at Westgate Nursing Home where members' children will present Thanksgiving cards to residents.

Members present were Marge Bell, Debbie Black, Michelle Brisendine, Beckie Fry, Cindy Garth, George, Graves, Carol Kelley, Jan Ramaekers, Sanders, Melinda White, Kay Williams, Ruby Lee, Dona Hendrickson, Louann Eubanks and Charla Edwards, chapter advisor.

The guest present was Peggy Hyer.

Port Arthur artist says

He finds order chaos

Editor's note: "What is my part here? — as always my image — order out of chaos. John Barke sets a design for living, a pride in the order of things, the exploitation of God given talents, an abhorrence of man-made laws and precedents. A seeker after truth." — From Georg Hampton's novel, "The Wake"

By REGINA SEGOVIA
Port Arthur News
PORT ARTHUR, Texas
(AP) — The man who gained recent attention for his correspondence with the late Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is an artist, author, and friend through the mail of some of the most famous leaders of our time.

In his novel, "The Wake," he has painted his own portrait. At 80, Georg Hampton is irascible, brilliant, egotistical and likeable. He says his novel shocked the "hypocritical little old ladies in Port Arthur."

His disdain for convention is evident. Talk to him about people living in poverty. "Everyone has problems," he will shoot back.

And although he lives with the gentlemenly props — art, tasteful furniture and a maid to answer calls — his roots are in jack rabbit stew and rural poverty.

Hampton the painter, writer, and part-time political activist was reared by Ora and Napoleon Bonapart Hampton. His father was a self-made man who literally dragged his family up from the backwoods of East Texas to a showplace home in the best section of Port Arthur. N.B. Hampton's claim to fame was the family furniture store in downtown Port Arthur.

When Hampton was 60, he wrote and illustrated his novel. Before then, he had limited his artistic expression to painting faces. He says it is not enough to get an exact likeness of a subject. "In that case, a photographer would be a perfect portrait artist. I must do more. I must try and capture a person's self, his essence, on canvas."

He has done about 300 portraits, slowing down a bit lately because he is legally blind.

He is as much a delight to look at as to listen to. He collects hats, and Italian-made walking canes. He is a man who dresses like Maurice Chevalier.

"I wear a derby about one month out of the year," he said.

There is an insight to Hampton in the book that is impossible to drag out of him in an interview. He cuts through the bull, shocks the reader, or listener, and then delivers a message — a look at the truth, the stuff of observations made at midnight during conversations among intimates.

In the the book, he describes himself through his characters who delight in the charm of the day. "... amusements, escapes, temptations, intemperance; the crutch of sex."

His novel is one that is a window to a certain kind of male who may be nearly extinct today — the man who spends time at his club. In Hampton's case it is the Port Arthur Club, in the gentlemen's pursuits of cards and chatter. Just as in the novel, this male wonders "does a man have women friends?"

To sketch him, one has to look into his art. Hampton will not (or would not, because Emily Post might disapprove) discuss what makes Georg tick really.

Ask him a question about himself and he will answer by telling about a letter he received from Sir Winston Churchill. "You see, I have always been interested in politics," he said.

There are the letters from Churchill; President Ronald Reagan, with whom he has corresponded for some 20 years; George Bush and Happy Rockefeller.

Somewhere along the way Hampton figured out that great men and women are just people, really. He has a note from the recently assassinated Indira Gandhi in which she jokes about her "sagging chin line." There is a hand-signed photograph on his wall from Ronald Reagan. A note from Barry Goldwater quips: "You don't seem to be getting any older. Your beard is a little out of shape, out of control, but that's the way it goes. I am just envious of you because I want one too."

It isn't all quips and fun, however. He has a letter from James A. Baker III, assistant to the president, telling him that his ideas for fund-raising have been passed on to Ed Rollins, assistant to the president for political affairs.

Mother Teresa, the nun who won the Nobel Peace Prize for her fight against poverty, turned down one of his ideas.

"I found out that it costs about $250 to build a house in India. So, I sent her a check for that amount and suggested she set up a house-building program. Americans could buy a house and have their name put on it. I thought it was a good idea, but Mother Teresa didn't care for it. She kept the check, though," he said with a grin.

George Bush, in a hand-written note, tells him that he will be a pallbearer for Lowell Thomas.

Hampton's mind pulls the names and details from history and art in his lifetime into a conversation that is taxing to a less-scholarly mind.

His ideas, a national lottery to replace the federal income tax, a super-bus system and a subsidized art colony, are detailed in his novel.

Although Hampton is an artist (a prolific one, at that) whose background in art education included attending the Art Institute in Chicago, he made his living at the family furniture store. There is a photograph of Georg standing in the middle of Fifth Street with some props from Hampton's. A younger, dashing Georg. "I hated the furniture business," he said. "But you are supposed to like what you do to earn a living. It's simply what you do. It was tedious."

Georg was shaped by N.B. and his mother, Ora, who is now 107. N.B., the old man, once said he was glad he was a third-grade dropout.
