Mondale triumphs twice, Hart still rolls

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Rounding the first turn in the Democratic presidential race, Gary Hart and Walter Mondale neck and neck after super Tuesday's primaries and caucuses. The Colorado senator claimed a victory over "the politics of yesterday," while the former vice president asserted he was "back in the race."

The contest looked more and more like a two-man race as Hart and Mondale headed into the industrial Midwest today where Michigan and Illinois are the next big targets. Of the five primaries on Tuesday, Hart carried Florida, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, while Mondale was the winner in Georgia and Alabama.

Hart and Mondale were only a few votes apart in Oklahoma caucuses, while Hart jumped to a comfortable lead in Washington.

Caucus results from Hawaii had Mondale winning only 5 of 27 delegates up for grabs, with the other 22 remaining uncommitted. Hart was leading Mondale in Nevada's caucuses.

Hart looked assured of a majority of the 511 delegates chosen on the campaign's busiest day so far, but Mondale continued to hold the overall lead.

Of the delegates selected since the process began, Mondale had 285 and Hart 167. John Glenn had 33 delegates

McGovern withdraws

and the Rev. Jesse Jackson

George McGovern, saying he would "fully accept the verdict of my special friends, the voters of Massachusetts," was the latest casualty of the race after finishing third in the state that stood alone in his column in 1972.

"I feel younger this morning than I did in 1972 when I was defeated by former President Nixon," McGovern said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

His departure cuts the Democratic field to four. The race began with eight contenders.

Hart said he talked to McGovern today but didn't get an endorsement. "He said that Vice President Mondale is in his judgment a more classic liberal."

Hart was flying to Detroit to meet with United Auto Workers officials bucking labor's united front for Mondale. Appearing on NBC's "Today" show, he predicted that Michigan "will be a very tough state for us."

But he told the "CBS Morning News" that "I think this campaign does have national strength."

"We're back and ready to run," his campaign manager, Robert Beckel, said on the NBC show. "Yes, I think we're out of trouble. We had a rough couple of weeks."

Hart and Mondale cheered the Super Tuesday results and predicted a long battle to settle who will emerge from the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco next July as the challenger to President Reagan.

"It's going to be a marathon all the way to California," Mondale told supporters.

"This is going to be a long, tough fight," said Hart campaign manager Oliver Henkel.

Glenn, whose third place finish in Alabama was his best primary showing of the day, nonetheless declared his campaign "is very much alive."

It also was very much in debt and a Glenn aide said a decision on the future of the Ohio senator's bid was still to be made.

Jackson captured 21 percent of the vote in Georgia and regained eligibility for federal matching campaign funds. Jackson was threatened with loss of the federal subsidy after he failed to get 10 percent of the vote in either New Hampshire or Vermont. Jackson vowed to campaign "to the end and beyond."

"Now that George McGovern is out, I represent the new direction," Jackson said on "Today."

But on the ABC show, he added, "The black vote was far more generous toward Mondale than the white vote was toward me."

Super Tuesday once loomed as the day Mondale planned to take an insurmountable lead in the Democratic race. But after Hart's upset victories in New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont and Wyoming, the big round of primaries and caucuses looked more like the Colorado's chance to surge far ahead of the field.

Neither candidate scored a Super Tuesday knockout.

"I think today was a watershed for this candidacy," Hart said in a television interview. "It demonstrated strength outside New England."

Hart had hoped for a victory in one of the Southern primaries and he got it in Florida.

Mondale, who opened the season with a big win in the Iowa caucuses, had been shut out by Hart since then. After his victories in Alabama and Georgia, he told supporters:

"I am back in the race. A month ago this was a bandwagon. Tonight it's a crusade."

Hart called the results a message from voters that "the politics of the past will not address the challenges of the 1980's, that the politics of the special interests and nar-

Bill Devers (seated at left) and Carolyn Waters, Hereford representatives on the Buffalo Lake Water District Board, heard Jerry Moore of the Bureau of Reclamation in Amarillo describe a proposal to construct dikes in the lake now being considered by the bureau. The board met Tuesday night at the refuge office near the lake.

Representatives address meeting

Representatives from each of the two agencies working at Buffalo Lake gave status reports Tuesday night at the March meeting of the lake water district's board meeting.

Jerry Moore of the Bureau of Reclamation in Amarillo told board members about proposed ideas to deal with sediment problems at the lake. Rodney Kreig of the Fish and Wildlife Service, meanwhile, talked about controlled burning now in progress and plans to plant crops in the dry lake bed.

Moore touched on a bureau proposition that would allow dikes to be placed in the lake once it is properly dammed and ready to be filled. That would help control the water depth and maintain at least six feet of water in areas where the level would tend to drop below that.

He said none of the ideas are official yet, but he would return in May with a slide show and complete presentation of Bureau of Reclamation proposals.

Moore also told board members that because the lake is designated as a waterfowl refuge, it would obviously be difficult to keep the waters free of sediment. He outlined the bureau's tentative plans to control water levels, claiming deep enough waters would cause the "nutrients" to settle at the lake's bottom.

Kreig explained to the board that vegetation is now being burned off at the lake bed for several reasons.

"We want to reduce the amount of emergent vegetation," he said, "which is vegetation that would grow above the top of the water." He explained that when the rains come, invertebrates hatch on the plants.

"In the summertime," he continued, "the invertebrates die and produce botulism that kills wildlife." He said many people don't realize that botulism is a major threat to wildlife in the state.

The burning of tall weeds is also a preventative measure, Kreig said, because they do present a fire hazard. "The fire got a little bit out of control this week," he explained,

A third reason for burning off the lake bed is to ready it for cultivation this summer. Kreig announced that crops, probably milo and some sort of ensilage crop, would be

School calendar okayed

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Local students are to begin their 1984-1985 classes Tuesday, Sept. 4, according to a calendar approved Tuesday evening by the Hereford Independent School District board of education.

Board members, at the suggestion of Bill Townsend, dropped three days proposed as holidays so the calendar could include a spring vacation. The March 11 through 15 break comes at the expense of students having to attend school the Monday (Nov. 26) after Thanksgiving, the Friday (Dec. 21) before Christmas and the Monday (April 8) following Easter.

The revised plan was one of two being considered by the HISD governing body. The other had classes beginning Monday, Aug. 27 and contained a one-week spring vacation.

Before concluding their studies on Thursday, May 30,

Sept. 4 starting date

1985, students are to be given holidays on Nov. 22 and 23, Dec. 24-Jan. 1, March 11-15, April 5 and May 27. They also have days off Aug. 27-31, Jan. 21, Feb. 22 and May 31, when teachers are to attend in-service activities.

Nine-week quarters, according to Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder, are to end Nov. 2, Jan. 18, March 29 and May 30.

R.C. Hoelscher, board president, was the only one to vote against the amended calendar.

Board members were unanimous, meanwhile, in approving the local textbook committee's recommendations for purchases. The vote was preceded by a description of the textbook selection process by Mal Manchee, HISD program director.

He explained a state committee made up of 27 educators compiles a list of "acceptable" textbooks for districts to consider. The local 15-member body must then do two things, Manchee said: adopt those books recommended by the state and select which ones are to be introduced in HISD next year and used for at least six years.

In order to increase the capacity of the district's main computer, board members agreed to allocate $13,000 to be used for permitting additional storage. The system recently overloaded, Holder explained. Board member Paul Mason said the added capacity should serve the district for several years.

Marilyn Leasure, a Hereford High School math teacher, said Classroom

Teachers of America (CTA) is to help host a "Meet Your School Board Candidate" session Monday at 3:45 p.m. in the media center at Shirley Intermediate School.

Notice was given of the coming elections, slated Saturday, April 7 in Hereford Community Center. Absentee ballots are to be accepted March 19 through April 3. A runoff, if needed, would occur May 4.

Two at-large posts, along with the District 2 representative, are to be decided. Incumbents Hoelscher and Townsend are among those seeking at-large election. Tom Simons, whose term also expires this spring, decided not to run.

Holder announced a special school board meeting would be called for next Tuesday. Teacher contracts are to be considered along with an update on curriculum, particularly the reading program initiated last fall.

Chemical People film appreciated

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Reaction was positive to "Sons and Daughters, Drugs and Booze," a film shown Tuesday night by the local Chemical People task force.

"I know about 100 people who should see it," one lady said when the lights in hosting Hereford Community Center were turned on. "It's excellent."

Chemical People is a national effort initiated two years ago in Pittsburgh, Pa., to combat alcohol and drug abuse problems school-aged citizens encounter. The local chapter was formed late last year after two Public Broadcasting System programs were aired which dealt with Chemical People and were hosted by First Lady Nancy Reagan.

Tuesday's film was presented as part of the task force's regular monthly meeting. Larry Barber, director of education for the Amarillo Council on Alcoholism, introduced the 28-minute movie. "This just seems to have some good suggestions of what to do," he said.

Tuesday evening at meeting

Copyrighted 1984, "Sons and Daughters" contends the use of drugs and alcohol by children is increasing, with participants becoming younger. It stressed parents could effectively prevent or halt such abuse through calm, loving counseling.

Many people were pleased with the film, said Jeffrey Hill, one of the chapter's founders. "They felt it was a very appropriate film for everyone to see." He encouraged groups interested in showing the movie to contact him at either KPAN (364-1860) or at home (364-6612).

Approximately 75 people attended the Tuesday's program, according to Hill. "I was pleased," he said. "I had hoped for about that many people there." He thought the crowd was especially encouraging due to this week being spring vacation for the school district.

Last week, Hill and fellow chapter organizer Deane Jones said the task force needed more support to justify its existence. Tuesday evening, Hill said, several people expressed interest in joining the effort while many new ideas were offered.

"I think we're on the right track now," he commented.

Prior to presentation of the film, Hill gave a brief report of chapter activities. A $100, tax-exempt bank account was recently established at Hereford State Bank. Hill also said the fund-raising committee of the task force is investigating ways to give local businesses emblems to be displayed in windows in return for donations.

Mike Moon, director of Hereford Family Services Center and member of Chemical People, said the chapter's information committee is to meet at 7 p.m. March 26. Everyone is invited to attend the gathering, to be held in the HFSC building, 610 E. Park Ave.

The next monthly meeting of the task force is scheduled for Tuesday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the community center. Dr. Duffy McBrayer and David Burns, a pharmacist, are to discuss prescription drugs and their possible effects if misused.

Presented Film

Larry Barber came to town Tuesday night to show "Sons and Daughters, Drugs and Booze" at a meeting of the Chemical People task force in Hereford Community Center. The movie clearly received positive reviews from those who saw it.

TUESDAY'S HIGH: 75 (normal high this date: 60 record: 85 (1972))

OVERNIGHT LOW: 40 (normal: 31 record: 7 (1925))

OUTLOOK: Fair tonight with a low in the upper 40s. Southerly winds of 10 to 15 miles per hour are expected, changing to 15 to 25 miles per hour from the west and southwest Thursday. The high Thursday would be near 70, with a chance of thunderstorms during afternoon hours.

DANA CABBINESS

Fifty-nine earn superior ratings at festival

Dana Cabbiness earned two ratings of "superior" for her vocal performances at the 1984 Junior Music Festival held in Hereford on March 7. This is the sixth consecutive year that Miss Cabbiness has merited the superior rating which is the highest commendation given at this annual event sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. Miss Cabbiness is a voice student of Mrs. Sid Shaw.

Ninety-seven music students participated in the festival this year. Fifty-nine of those students received a superior rating.

Nine students earned a superior for the third consecutive year. Those young musicians include Brenda Allen, Jennifer Betzen, Jennifer Bullard, Jennifer Cansler, Donna Grotegut, Jeanette Grotegut, Stefan Hacker, Clay Stribling, and Robin White.

Piano students of Mrs. Joe Hacker who earned a rating of superior are Brenda Allen, Aaron Burns, Chad Burns, Jennifer Cansler, Jeffery Carlson, Greg Coplen, Jaci Edwards, Donna Grotegut, Jeanette Grotegut, Monica Grotegut, Nikki Hutson, Jennifer Legate, Chuck Reinauer, and Christopher Tardy.

A rating of superior was merited by those piano students of Mrs. Paul Lyons: Bridget Baker, Teresa Baker, Stefan Hacker, Betsy Mies, Bri Reinauer, Jill Reinauer, Lee Reinauer, Rebecca Solomon, Trisha Teel, and Keiley Mack Whitaker.

Superiors were also earned by the following young pianists studying under Ms. Thelma McMinn: Jim Andrews, Jennifer Betzen, Jennifer Bullard, Esther Criner, Velma Garcia, Josh Liscano, Cindy Streun, Robin White, Shelly Whittington, and Jessica Witkowski.

Young piano students of Mrs. Sid Shaw who were awarded superior ratings are Amy Coneway, Tracie Gilbert, Krystal Sims, Chari Suttle, Eric Suttle, and Stephanie Walls.

Mrs. Carl Wimberly of Dawn is the instructor of these piano students who also earned superiors: Rusty Hinger, Jeri Ann Parker and Matthew Parker.

Voice students of Mrs. Allen Cansler who earned superiors include Jennifer Cansler, Robin Conkwright, Niki Hammond, Beth Elaine Rohrbach, Melissa Sims, Misty Stokes, and Clay Stribling.

Violin students of Mrs. Elizabeth Crino received superior ratings are Jill Reinauer and Lee Reinauer.

Manning speaks to club members Monday

Doug Manning was guest speaker for the Young Mothers Study Club Monday night at Hereford State Bank. He spoke on "The Art of Listening," giving tips for being a good listener and outlining communication skills.

Members answered roll call by naming their favorite color and a short business meeting was conducted. Banana cake, chocolate cake, iced tea and coffee were served following the program.

Carla Hollinger and Janie Poland served as hostesses. Others present were Kathy Boyd, Kathy Stovall, Pam Wagner, Lisa Blakeley, Kathleen Brockman, Karla Vasek, Doris Artho and her daughter, Leann.

The history of the Stars and Stripes has become so cluttered that the facts are difficult and, in some cases, impossible to establish. It is not certain who really designed the Stars and Stripes, who made the first flag, or whether it ever flew in any sea fight or land battle of the American Revolution.

TUESDAY - Steak, hash brown potatoes, Harvard beets, broccoli, sliced pineapple and cheese salad, roll-oleo, chocolate cake.

WEDNESDAY - Oven-fried chicken with gravy, mashed potatoes, spinach, biscuit-oleo, jellied fruit with cottage cheese, banana pudding.

Friday evening concert features Speer Family

The Speers, well-known in the field of gospel music for over 60 years, will appear in concert at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Hereford Bull Barn. The performance will be free of charge, and a love offering will be taken.

The concert is being held in conjunction with a weekend Youth-a-Rama sponsored by Hereford Church of the Nazarene.

The Speers travel thousands of miles annually in the United States and Canada to present their testimony in song. They present a unique blend of south ranging from old traditional to middle-of-the-road.

The group consists of Brock and Ben Speer, Brock's wife, Faye, Harold Lane, Caroline Traylor, Dave Clark and Tony Howard.

High school

Rodeo starts Saturday

The spring semester of the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association will kick off this weekend at Hereford's Riders Club Arena.

High school rodeo teams from more than 15 schools from the Texas Panhandle, New Mexico, and Oklahoma will be competing in events ranging from boys steer-wrestling and calf-roping, to girls goat-tying and barrels, among others.

While awards will be given to top teams, individual performers will also be competing for cash paybacks.

It is anticipated more than 155 students from the various high schools will participate, according to Hereford's secretary of the high school rodeo association, sophomore Jana Johnson.

Johnson, also this year's rodeo queen, said competitors pay a $20 entry fee for each event and the top three finishers receive a payback of 50, 30, and 20 percent. Part of the entry fees also goes into the association, she added.

Separate team scores will be kept for both boys and girls teams. But while individual team members may enter as many events as they wish. Each boys team may specify only four members who are to count for its team totals and only three girls may compete for each girls squad.

The events are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday and the rodeo will wrap up Sunday beginning at 1 p.m. There will be admission charge for the general public.

YMCA offers volleyball tournament

The Hereford YMCA is sponsoring a consolation Volleyball Tournament, March 22, 23, and 24 beginning at 6:30 p.m. each day.

There will be three divisions: Coed A; Coed B; and Open Women's. Coed teams that have played together for several years should enter the A division with newer teams opting for the B division.

Entry fee is $20 per team. The deadline for entering is March 20. Applications may be mailed or brought to the YMCA in Sugarland Mall.

For additional information or questions contact Weldon Knabe at 364-6990.

Somehow, we'll feel more optimistic about the economy when it starts to improve and stops tending upward.

Northeastern advances to the East Regional at East Rutherford, N.J., Friday night against Virginia Commonwealth.

"My mom and dad and some of my freinds were here, too, so that made me want to play well," said Fuller.

Senior forward Kevin Mullin, who averaged 16 points a game this season, scored a career-high 38.

Both Richmond and Rider made their NCAA debuts. The Spiders, 21-9 and ECAC South champions, took a 16-2 lead six minutes into the game as Rider missed its first six shots. Richmond cruised from there as John Newman scored 25 points and Kelvin Johnson added 22. Rider, which won the East Coast Conference, ended up 20-11.

Next up for Richmond is Auburn on Thursday at Charlotte, N.C., in the Eastern Regional.

"We expected a six- or eight-point game, not 29," said Spiders Coach Dick Tarrant.

Freshman Wes Fuller had 22 points and eight rebounds to lead ECAC North titlist Northeastern, 27-4, past ECAC Metro winner Long Island University, 20-11. The Huskies, who ran off the final 12 points of the first half, then held off a late LIU rally, also got 21 points from Reggie Lewis.

Philadelphia, Northeastern downed Long Island University 90-87, Richmond belted Rider 89-65 and Princeton took San Diego 65-56.

The Morehead-NC A&T game was an historic one. The referees used a television replay with 26 seconds remaining to determine which Aggie should attempt a pair of free throws after an intentional foul was called on the Eagles' Earl Harrison. James Horace hit one of two free throws to put the Aggies ahead 69-68.

Harrison was charged with a deliberate foul after he pulled the jersey of one of the Aggies' players. But the referees couldn't determine which player was fouled. At first, Eric Boyd of A&T was sent to the line. But after watching a replay, the refs awarded Horace the free throws.

The officials, Mickey Crowley, Jim Burr and Tim Higgins, issued a joint statement after the game.

"It was a deliberate foul. The player came across and grabbed him by the shirt, making it a two-shot foul," the statement read. "We wanted to be sure we had the correct man at the line. We had a conference, were not entirely sure, so we got clarification from TV and justified our selection."

A&T Coach Don Corbett said: "They didn't know and they admitted they didn't know. I'll give them credit. They were honest about it."

Eddie Childress led the Eagles with 20 points, while Boyd had 23 for the Aggies, champions of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, who finished 22-7.

Michael Phelps led a balanced Alcorn State attack with 21 points as four Braves scored in double figures. Aaron Brandon added 15 points, Eddie Archie 12 and David Claybon 10 for the Southwestern Athletic Conference champions, 22-9.

Alcorn goes to Omaha, Neb., on Friday to play Kansas in a first-round Midwest regional game.

Anicet Lavodrama, an import from the Central African Republic, was high scorer for Houston Baptist with 14 points. The Huskies, champions of the Trans-America Conference, finished 24-7.

"We told our kids before the game that we didn't believe they could blow us out, but that they did believe that we could blow them out," said Braves Coach Dave Whitney.

Opening The Chute

HHS senior Clay Otwell demonstrates how the chute will be opened for this weekend's high school rodeo. Otwell said a raging bucking bronco will be where senior Jerry Baker is standing when the bareback riding competition begins.

NCAA roundup

Morehead wins beginning round

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Morehead State is in a horse race with a couple of thoroughbreds from cross-state in Kentucky. It's not the kind of race the Eagles figure to win.

Morehead, champions of the Ohio Valley Conference, won its preliminary round game in the NCAA basketball tournament Tuesday night, edging North Carolina A&T 70-69 on Guy Minnifield's 20-foot shot with only four seconds remaining. Next up for the Eagles: Louisville. If Morehead, 24-5, manages to upset the Cardinals at Milwaukee Friday night in the Midwest Regional, the third-ranked Kentucky Wildcats could be next.

"Every time we play Louisville, it's a nightmare," said Morehead Coach Wayne Martin, whose Eagles lost 85-50 to the Cardinals earlier this season. "We race at Latonia and they're in the Kentucky Derby."

Minnifield didn't let the pressure of the opening steps in the race to the Final Four bother him. His game-winning basket was his only one of the game.

"Guy has been in that position before," said Martin. "He's done it on several occasions for us."

After Morehead's victory at Dayton, Ohio, Alcorn State pounded Houston Baptist 79-60. At the Palestra in Philadelphia, Northeastern downed Long Island University 90-87, Richmond belted Rider 89-65 and Princeton took San Diego 65-56.

Rangers win in bottom of ninth inning with homer

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dave Hostetler smashed a massive three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday, erasing a 4-3 Texas deficit and lifting the Rangers to a 6-4 exhibition victory over the New York Yankees at Municipal Park.

Hostetler's dramatic shot cleared the center field wall at the 410-foot mark and victimized Yankee left-hander Dave LaRoche, who is trying to make the club with an unorthodox submarine delivery.

The Rangers trailed 4-2 going into the ninth when a tiring Rudy May issued a leadoff walk to Gary Ward. After the count went to two balls, no strikes on Jimmy Anderson, LaRoche replaced May on the mound and completed the walk. Nick Capra bunted for a hit and Ward scored when LaRoche threw the ball down the right field line.

Hostetler, hitting for rookie catcher Donnie Scott, fouled off five pitches before crashing the Rangers' first homer in six exhibition games.

Hostetler's home run made a winner of Mike Griffin, who had pitched the ninth for Texas.

Members of the Hereford High School Tri-State Rodeo Association club are shown clearing the Riders Club Arena of debris for this weekend's rodeo. More than 155 students from high schools in the Texas Panhandle, New Mexico and Oklahoma are expected to compete.

Beats Jack Nicklaus

Kite becoming bear-killer on golf Tour

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Tom Kite is getting something of a reputation as a bear-killer on the golf Tour. He's won three times in Florida, the latest last Sunday in the Doral-Eastern Open.

In all three of those victories, Jack Nicklaus, golf's Golden Bear, was the victim. "Kind of ironic, I suppose," Kite said.

"It's a great feeling to win, anytime, anywhere. But winning against great fields, on great golf courses, against a great player like Jack, only enhances the feeling."

And Nicklaus very well could be the man to beat this week in the $400,000 Bay Hill Classic, Kite said.

"He (Nicklaus) is going through a period where he is playing very well and not winning," Kite said before a practice round on Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club course, the site of the event that begins on Thursday with a new, invitational format.

"He's playing too well not to win," Kite said. "Sooner or later it will happen."

And Nicklaus said he'd prefer that it be sooner. "This is getting old," he said after patiently explaining his runnerup finish to Kite last Sunday in Miami. "I accomplished most of what I wanted to accomplish," said Nicklaus, who is using the Florida swing to fine-tune his game for his first big goal, the Masters next month.

"I accomplished everything except winning the golf tournament," he said. Nicklaus and Kite, along with host Palmer, head the elite field that was reduced to 117 Tuesday with the withdrawal of Jim Simons.

Ann Landers Too many exceptions

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the comments of a Floridian, who said, "Parents should treat their children the way they wish their parents had treated them." I say BALONEY! I treated my kids the way I wish I had been treated and they have not appreciated it one little bit.

I tried to do everything just right. I listened to them, trusted them and let them have their say. I praised them and I loved them. Our two older ones are so messed up it is unbelievable. The younger ones are nothing to brag about either.

Please tell me what I did wrong? Actually you don't have to tell me. I know. I cared too much, and tried too hard.

May I give some advice to parents of very young children?

First and foremost: Follow your instincts. Never mind what the "experts" say. Just look at their kids and you will see that many of them are thoroughly kooked up.

Second: Learn to discipline promptly and effectively. When you set firm guidelines early, you let your children know exactly what is expected. If they step beyond those guidelines, the punishment should be swift and meaningful.

Third: Don't be too eager to win their approval. Let them work at winning yours.—A Father Who Did Everything Wrong (Nashville, Tenn.)

DEAR FATHER: Psychologists and experts in genetics still don't know why some children are winners and others are losers. We see too many exceptions to too many rules.

We do know for certain that children who are abused or neglected often grow up with personality disorders. But some of those do well in spite of the odds that are stacked against them. Other children who were loved and had every advantage fall short of the mark. No one knows why these things happen. I implore you not to be hard on yourself. You did your best. The same goes for the millions of others who share your feelings of failure.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recently heard that women who smoke have a much higher rate of cancer of the cervix. Can this be true? It doesn't make any sense to me. I can understand how smoking could cause lung cancer, but the cervix is a female organ that does not come in contact with cigarette smoke, so what's the connection?

Please investigate this theory and explain it. —Doubling Thomasina In Berkeley

DEAR BERK: My medical consultants tell me that cigarette-smoking women have at least four times as many cervical cancers as women who do not smoke. The damaging agent from the tar is carried to other parts of the body through the bloodstream.

Wait, there's more bad news. Young women who smoke one pack a day or more for 12 years or longer increase the risk of getting cancer of the cervix by at least 12 times.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have the perfect solution to our horrendous traffic problem. No car should be allowed on the road unless it is fully paid for. What do you think of it?—Ned P.

DEAR NED: I think you've been reading too many joke books.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex—Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

The Newspaper BIBLE

Jesus went on towards Jerusalem, walking ahead of His disciples.

As they came to the towns of Bethphage and Bethany, on the Mount of Olives, He sent two disciples ahead, with instructions to go to the next village, and as they entered they were to look for a donkey tied beside the road. It would be a colt, not yet broken for riding. "Untie him," Jesus said, "and bring him here. And if anyone asks you what you are doing, just say, 'The Lord needs him.'"

They found the colt as Jesus said, and sure enough, as they were untying it, the owners demanded an explanation. "What are you doing?" they asked. "Why are you untying our colt?"

And the disciples simply replied, "The Lord needs him!"

So they brought the colt to Jesus and threw some of their clothing across its back for Jesus to sit on.

Then the crowds spread out their robes along the road ahead of Him, and as they reached the place where the road started down from the Mount of Olives, the whole procession began to shout and sing as they walked along, praising God for all the wonderful miracles Jesus had done.

"God has given us a King!" they exulted. "Long live the King! Let all heaven rejoice! Glory to God in the highest heavens!"

Autry Execution

Former cellmate views execution

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — An ex-convict who watched his former cellmate quietly executed says he would have preferred to see his friend shot to death.

"I kept wanting to tell them, 'Why don't you kill him and get it over with?'" Robert Tarbutton said after leaving the death chamber early today.

James David Autry, the second man executed by lethal injection in the United States, had invited Tarbutton to witness his death.

The death by injection, intended to be more humane, was "cruel and unusual," according to Tarbutton.

"I'd rather see somebody just walk up there and put a gun to his head and shoot him, rather than make him lay there on that table for 30 minutes the way he did," said Tarbutton.

Outside the Walls Unit, Autry's execution sparked familiar arguments. Amnesty International members, opposed to capital punishment, lit candles. Death penalty supporters blew them out.

Earlier Tuesday, death penalty opponents staged a protest in Austin. One protester said the system that led to Autry's execution more resembles a Roman circus than justice.

Elaine Carpenter, representing the National Lawyers' Guild, said the legal system requires too many arbitrary decisions that mean some convicted murderers are executed while many more live.

"This kind of arbitrary, capricious system that results in one person living and one person dying more resembles a Roman circus than anything called justice," Ms. Carpenter said.

About 200 people showed up outside the prison — far fewer than were on hand in October when Autry's execution was stayed about 30 minutes before he was to die.

Spring break at Sam Houston State University here kept the crowd down. But a few students showed up to loudly make their point.

"Damn expensive six-pack," said a sign carried by Barry Fischer, a business major. The sign referred to reports that Autry killed a Port Arthur convenience store clerk while stealing a six-pack of beer.

"Kill the worst first," said student Denny Burden's sign. He said he preferred more notorious criminals be executed quickly.

Earl and Mona Huff said they came to Huntsville because of their 19-year-old daughter Sharon. They said she was murdered in Ohio by a man they said was freed.

"It will help me sleep tonight, knowing he's dead,"

Mrs. Huff said of Autry.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, who watched Autry die, predicted there "could be 10 or 12 (other executions) this year" in the state.

"It's tragic that the kind of behavior Autry exhibited has to take place in our society," he said.

Larry Scott of Houston, an Autry pen pal who witnessed the execution, said he's sure about one aspect of capital punishment.

"If that's not a deterrent, I don't know what is," he said.

At midnight, from somewhere near a man whose sign said "Cowboys and corpses, no place but Huntsville," someone did a NASA-like countdown.

But it wasn't until 45 minutes later, when the witnesses came out, that the crowd realized Autry was dead.

"Next!" someone yelled.

In seven years

Fourteenth inmate executed

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — James David Autry, who narrowly escaped execution just five months ago, today became the 14th U.S. prisoner to be put to death in the seven years since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment.

In that time, the U.S. death row population has swelled to more than 1,200 men and women.

All 14 of the executed convicts were men. Four chose death over extended legal appeals.

Autry was pronounced dead at 12:40 a.m. today in the Texas death chamber, the same room where five months ago he was taken and prepared for execution before U.S. Supreme Court Byron White granted a stay with about 30 minutes to spare.

Autry, known on Texas death row as "Cowboy," had been strapped to a hospital gurney, intravenous needles inserted in both arms. The saline solution that would carry the lethal chemicals into his body had begun.

He was convicted in the 1980 death of Shirley Drouet, a 43-year-old convenience store clerk. Prosecutors said Autry shot her between the eyes rather than pay for a six-pack of beer.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1976 that the death penalty could be a constitutional punishment for convicted murderers. The decision ended a four-year moratorium on capital punishment imposed by the high court in 1972. Before then, no prison inmate had been executed since 1967.

A new era of capital punishment began six months after the 1976 ruling, when Gary Mark Gilmore, an arrogant Utah killer, died Jan. 17, 1977, before a firing squad. He said he preferred to "die like a man" rather than challenge his conviction for the murder of a Provo motel clerk.

John Spenkelink, convicted of killing a traveling companion, frantically fought for his life before dying May 5, 1979, in Florida's electric chair. He was pronounced dead only 28 minutes after the Supreme Court rejected his last legal appeal.

Jesse Bishop died in a Nevada gas chamber Oct. 22, 1979, after emulating Gilmore's decision to forgo any legal appeal.

The next two men to die reached similar decisions.

Indiana murderer Steven Judy was electrocuted March 9, 1981. Virginia killer Frank J. Coppola died in the electric chair Aug. 10, 1982.

Charlie Brooks Jr. became the first prison inmate executed by lethal injection Dec. 7, 1982, when Texas authorities shot a deadly combination of drugs into his veins. He also was the first black man executed in 16 years.

John Louis Evans died in Alabama's electric chair April 22.

Child killer Jimmy Lee Gray was executed in Mississippi's gas chamber Sept. 2 for the rape and murder of a 3-year-old neighbor girl.

Robert Sullivan was electrocuted Nov. 30 in Florida for the 1973 shooting death of a restaurant manager.

Less than three weeks later, on Dec. 14, Robert Wayne Williams was electrocuted by Louisiana officials for the 1979 slaying of an elderly security guard during a supermarket robbery.

The following day, in Georgia, John Eldon Smith was electrocuted for killing his wife's former husband and the former husband's bride in August 1974.

On Jan. 26, Anthony Antone was electrocuted by Florida officials for arranging the 1974 slaying of a former vice detective.

Johnny Taylor was electrocuted in Louisiana on Feb. 29 for fatally stabbing a Kenner, La., man and stealing his car in 1980.

Today, 38 states have capital punishment laws; 12 states and the District of Columbia do not. Execution methods specified by the laws are by electrocution, gas, firing squad, hanging or lethal injection.

State authorities and the nation's courts are finding that enforcement of those laws can be a lengthy process.

Two years ago, Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist accused his fellow justices of creating "endless, drawn-out legal proceedings" in death penalty cases that create "a mockery of our criminal justice system."

Last July, the high court made it easier for federal appeals court to accelerate executions by allowing the lower courts to take some shortcuts in handling last-minute efforts by condemned inmates to postpone the court-ordered punishment.

Death came from often used drug

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — James David Autry, sentenced to death in the 1980 slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk, was the second U.S. convict to be executed with a drug commonly used for life-saving surgery.

Sodium thiopental, better known as Sodium Pentothal or truth serum, quickly stops breathing and heart beat. Many believe it is the most humane method yet for society to kill its criminals.

"It's painless, easy and fast. The inmate simply goes to sleep," said Charles Brown of the Texas Department of Corrections.

Autry, strapped to a hospital gurney in the death chamber, was pronounced dead at 12:40 a.m. today, 15 minutes after the lethal drugs began flowing through intravenous needles inserted in both his arms.

At one point, Autry cried out, "Oh, it's hurting."

The effects of sodium thiopental are dramatic. The muscles of the heart and the respiration system are quickly stilled and blood stops flowing to the brain.

"Death comes within minutes," Brown said.

Two other chemicals — a muscle relaxant called pavalon and potassium chloride which causes muscular paralysis — are added to the injection to assure death.

Oklahoma, Idaho, New Mexico, New Jersey, and Illinois also have passed legislation to use lethal injection for executions, some with a combination of a barbiturate and potassium, which also can stop the heart.

Montana and Washington state offer prisoners a choice of injection or hanging. Massachusetts gives them a choice of injection or electrocution, and North Carolina offers the gas chamber or injection.

Charlie Brooks Jr., a Fort Worth, Texas man convicted of fatally shooting a mechanic, became the first U.S. convict put to death by injection on Dec. 7.

An autopsy showed Brooks' death came from a huge dose of sodium thiopental. High concentrations of the other two drugs were found in Brooks' body, but not in concentrations sufficient to cause death, the autopsy concluded.

No longer is a fly-by-night a reprehensible character. Nowadays he's an economy-class airline passenger.

There are no more back-seat drivers. Auto design has forced them to move up front.

People who experience trouble in the joints should drink at home.

The use of lethal injection was first proposed in the 1950s, but did not become a political issue until more than 20 years later. The method was strongly opposed by doctors who saw the use of an injection to intentionally kill as a corruption of medical technology developed to heal.

The American Medical Association ruled in 1980 that doctors may not participate, but may be present to declare a prisoner dead. That created a conflict in states with laws that forbid injections except under the supervision of a physician.

In Texas, lethal injection became the legislated method in 1977. Regulations based on the law specifically state that the injection will be administered by a medically-trained individual, not a doctor. The executioner's identity remains secret.

With Autry's execution

Victims' relatives relieved

After James David Autry's three previous dates with an executioner were stayed, by only 30 minutes, relatives of the 29-year-old drifter's victims said they were relieved that he had finally died.

"I just feel justice has been done," said Harold Ferrell in a telephone interview from his home in Duncan, Okla. Ferrell is the brother of Shirley Drouet, a Port Arthur convenience store clerk Autry was convicted of killing in a hold-up in 1980. Prosecutors said Autry shot Mrs. Drouet between the eyes rather than pay for a six-pack of beer.

"I didn't know it (the execution) would take place, but I didn't figure they'd stop it this time," Ferrell said.

Autry was taken to the death chamber on Oct. 5 and strapped to a hospital gurney. Intravenous needles were inserted in his arms in preparation for the lethal injection. But with 30 minutes to spare, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White issued a stay.

James Ferrell, Mrs. Drouet's other brother, reached at his home in Gonzales, La., was not aware early today that Autry had been executed. He said he didn't think Autry would actually be killed.

"I knew it was scheduled, but I didn't expect it to take place because of the last time," James Ferrell said.

He declined to say how he felt about the execution.

Mrs. Drouet, a 43-year-old mother of five, was working overtime at the store to earn extra money.

A former Catholic priest, Joseph Broussard, was also killed in the gunfire. Tommy Svarnos, a crewman on a Greek freighter anchored at Port Arthur, had hitched a ride with Broussard. Svarnos was left brain-damaged.

"I'm glad it's done... glad it's over," said Svarnos' brother, Jimmy from his home in Brick Town, N.J. "It has been a long time."

Svarnos said he also felt something would happen to interfere with the execution.

"I feel comfortable. If he (Autry) is going to kill somebody, then he's got get killed," Svarnos said in broken English.

"My brother came to this country with dreams, with muscle," Svarnos said. "He was a very strong man. Now he's like a baby. He can dress himself, but he forgets things. You have to tell him things too many times. You have to watch him 24 hours a day."

"If there is a law to execute people, this guy deserves to die."

Autry was declared dead at 12:40 a.m. today, 37 minutes after he was strapped to the gurney.

The flow of lethal drugs began at 12:25 a.m.
