Texas now second most populous state

Glickman will be new ag secretary

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his first-major appointment since the November congressional elections, President Clinton is turning to a defeated veteran Democratic congressman to serve as his agriculture secretary.

Rep. Dan Glickman of Kansas, turned out of Congress by a Republican who capitalized on Clinton's unpopularity, was to be named to the Cabinet in a Rose Garden ceremony today, said administration officials who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He will replace Mike Espy, a former Mississippi congressman who is leaving the Cabinet under an ethical cloud.

Glickman's selection comes at a time of retrenchment at the Agriculture Department: The sprawling bureaucracy is being forced to trim its staff by 11,000, reduce spending by up to $3.5 billion and close nearly 1,100 of its 3,600 county offices.

As a nine-term congressman with three farm bills behind him, Glickman brings valuable experience as Congress goes about writing the five-year farm legislation in 1995.

Glickman, 50, edged out Deputy Secretary Richard E. Rominger and Rep. E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, for the Cabinet job.

Glickman parted company with Clinton earlier this year by voting against the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, the new world trade pact the administration says will boost U.S. farm exports.

He also blamed the president's low popularity for his surprise election defeat. Republican state Sen. Todd Tiahrt, running ads tying Glickman to Clinton, beat the better-financed incumbent.

"The anti-Washington mood is strong," Glickman said after the election. "Clinton was relatively unpopular."

But his candidacy received a boost from White House chief of staff Leon Panetta, a former congressman and friend of Glickman.

The selection makes Kansas a political center of agriculture; incoming Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole and incoming House Agriculture Committee Chairman Rep. Pat Roberts also are from the Farm Belt state.

Glickman serves on the House Agriculture Committee and helped push through a bill that reorganized the Agriculture Department. He also fought to focus farm subsidy programs on low-and middle-income farmers and tried to increase federal oversight of the commodity futures markets.

Lawmen irate over new armor-piercing bullet

By The Associated Press
The inventor of a bullet designed to pierce body armor such as that worn by law enforcement officers "ought to be ashamed of himself," Bexar County Sheriff Ralph Lopez says.

News that a Georgia inventor plans to manufacture the Black Rhino bullets, designed to pierce body armor and Rhino-Ammo bullets, designed to break into thousands of tiny pieces of shrapnel drew criticism, skepticism and outrage Tuesday from Texas lawmen and officials connected with law enforcement.

"Why they would create something that would go through bullet-proof vests? Come on," Sheriff Ralph Lopez said. "Mr. (David) Keen (the inventor) ought to be ashamed of himself."

Keen, an Alabama research chemist who has not made ammunition before, says he developed the bullets as "a strictly defensive round."

San Antonio Deputy Police Chief Al Philippus said the Texas Penal Code makes possession or sale of armor-piercing ammunition a felony. He said San Antonio authorities plan to ask their legal advisers about the bullets.

"I have a great deal of concern. I think that if this type of ammunition is found on the street, it's going to be used for one purpose and one purpose only, and that is to kill people. It's going to be used against police officers," he said.

Article 46.05 of the Texas Penal Code makes it a third-degree felony to possess, manufacture, transport, repair or sell "armor-piercing ammunition."

The law, which took effect Sept. 1, provides for punishment of between two and 10 years' imprisonment and a fine of up to $10,000.

Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Vincent Di Maio, an expert on gunshot wounds who has written a book on the subject, was skeptical about the effectiveness of the new bullets.

"It sounds like a bunch of hype; they're talking about 8-inch wounds. That's absurd," he said.

Heavy rain falls over South Texas

By The Associated Press
Heavy rain and strong winds moved over south Texas this morning, and rain also fell on parts of the Pacific Northwest.

Corpus Christi, Texas, received more than an inch of rain early today. Del Rio, Texas, received 1.7 inches of rain Tuesday night, breaking the record for the date of .41 inches set in 1957.

Rain and snow were expected today in areas of Washington and Oregon, northern and central California, Utah, western Wyoming, and western and central Montana.

Scattered storms and showers were forecast across southwest Texas through parts of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana. Rainfall up to 3 inches was possible.

It was expected to get windy from the Great Lakes to the central Appalachians and New England today, with a chance of rain or snow showers.

Temperatures were expected to get up to the 30s and 40s in New England, 40s and 50s in the Ohio Valley, 30s through 50s in the Plains, 30s and 40s in the Rockies, 40s and 50s in the Pacific Northwest, and 60s and 70s in the Southwest.

The nation's hottest spots Tuesday were Montebello, Calif., and Miami Beach, Fla., at 75 degrees. The coolest was Houlton, Maine, at zero.

AUSTIN (AP)—Twenty-five people died on Texas highways during the long Christmas weekend.

The death toll released Tuesday includes six pedestrians, the Texas Department of Public Safety said.

The Christmas fatality count began at 6 p.m. Friday and wrapped up at midnight Monday. The DPS had projected that as many as 30 lives could be lost during the 78-hour reporting period.

Last year, 34 people died in Texas traffic accidents over the Christmas holiday.

The agency predicts that as many as 25 people will die in traffic accidents during the 78-hour New Year's Day reporting period, which begins at 6 p.m. Friday.

New Year's weekend last year resulted in 28 traffic deaths in Texas.

Preparing meals for delivery

Hereford Senior Citizen Center serves about 200 meals a day for its Home Delivered Meals program. Here, Nicha Gaitan and Alex Garcia are seen preparing meals at the center. For the sick and homebound, the nine volunteers who deliver meals are regarded as "guardian angels."

Home Delivered Meals program aids Hereford sick, homebound

Staff Writer

For some senior citizens, retirement plans have failed to meet their financial needs and for others, poor health has made leaving the home nearly impossible. Nothing can be taken for granted, not even a hot meal.

But despite the hardships these people face, one group of individuals stands nearby, ready to lend a helping hand.

The nine volunteers at the Senior Citizen Center's Home Delivered Meals program travel from Dawn to Westway with hot meals and plenty of friendly smiles.

For the sick and homebound, these are the guardian angels who guarantee their health and safety.

Serving an estimated 200 meals, five days a week, the program targets adults 60 and over who are unable to leave their homes.

"We arrive at the center around 10 a.m., get the food packed in the containers and then we head out to the homes," said George Arntt, who drives one of the three routes. "It's a good way to get out of the house and it only takes us about two hours."

A typical lunch includes an entree, vegetable, fruit, bread, dessert and a choice of milk.

"I don't like to fix sandwiches because they can always make those for their evening meal," said Margie Daniels, executive director of the Senior Citizens Center. "Some can't cook balanced meals, some can't stand in the kitchen long enough and others will forget to do things like turn off the stove."

Meals are also prepared for adults with special dietary needs.

Working in teams of three, the driver follows designated route while the "setter-upper" puts the meals together in the back of the van. The "jumper" carries the lunch to the house.

"The day I retired, I knew I wasn't going to get involved in soap operas so I started jumping," Arntt said. "I jump for the exercise and it makes me feel like I'm really helping these people by delivering their meals."

Jumper Leon McCutchen especially enjoys his route.

Driver, setter-upper, jumper make up team for meal deliveries

"For 38 years I was a mail carrier and now I travel on parts of the same route to get these people their food," he said. "It's nice to see the people you know and you're always meeting new ones too."

The Home Delivered Meals program not only provides a hot lunch, but also saves lives.

"We don't leave a meal unless we have contact with them," said LaVerda Guffey, a driver for the program. "We've found some on floors with broken hips and things like that. I don't consider myself a lifesaver but a go-between."

These are no telling how long these people would go without any help if we weren't stopping by everyday.

Some jumpers have even found people who have died the night before."

The average cost of a meal is $5.30, the center only asks for a $2 donation.

"We ask people to give what they can afford," Daniels said. "We trust them, and don't do any kind of a needs assessment."

"We have one lady who will send in an extra $300 every couple of months to help out the people who can't afford to pay."

As the rising costs of medical care swallow their limited incomes, many people see the program as a last chance for a nutritious meal.

"You can't imagine what small incomes these people live on, especially the women who live alone," Daniels said. "The cost of living has increased so much that it puts them in poverty when a few years ago, they would have had it good."

Social Security just doesn't cut it anymore and medical bills are too high."

The Home Delivered Meals program receives approximately $65,000 from federal and state grants. An additional $8,500 is collected from local contributions.

Lone Star State overtakes New York with 18.4 million

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)—Texans have one more thing to brag about.

The Lone Star State—a frontier in many places earlier this century—has replaced New York as the second most populous state in the country.

Texans used the Census Bureau announcement Tuesday to boast, reflect, and even gig third-place New York.

wore pistols in the 1930s quite commonly into town," he said.

Despite economic busts along the way, Texas has maintained a friendly business climate and large labor force, said George Christian, a Democratic operative and former press secretary to President Johnson.

And the state recently has diversified its economy from the staples of cattle, cotton and oil.

But Christian says the invention of air conditioning had as much to do as anything else with Texas' growth.

"When buildings and homes began to be air-conditioned, this became a more comfortable place to live," he said.

Teresa Sullivan, a sociology professor at the University of Texas at Austin, said Texas' move up the population ladder illustrates the country's changes in immigration.

At one time, New York was the traditional home for immigrants where they arrived by boat passing the Statue of Liberty.

But immigrants now are more likely to arrive by airplane or over borders, making Texas and California popular destinations, she said.

Steve Murdock, a Texas A&M professor who works as chief demographer for the Texas State Data Center, said about half the population growth in Texas is from natural increase—more people are born than die each year. A quarter of the growth is from immigration, and the final quarter is from people migrating from other states.

Neither New York nor California, the most populous state, gets as much migration from other states as does Texas, Murdock said.

"I think what this generally reflects is patterns of economic growth that in turn result in demographic increases," he said. "Economic growth leads to increased numbers of jobs and numbers of jobs bring people in to take those jobs."

Karen Hughes, a spokeswoman for Gov.-elect George W. Bush, said Texas' new status may add to its political clout.

"Given the new sentiment in Washington to let states assume additional responsibilities with minimal interference from Washington, Texas may emerge as even more a leader in that movement...with our new position as the second most populous state," she said.

Christian, however, said surpassing New York in population probably won't change anything, except to add to the list of things that Texans brag about.

"It's part of our culture, but it irritates the devil out of people outside of Texas," he said.

Peso devaluation hits economy in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Concern about Mexico's economy following last week's devaluation of the peso is pressuring the currency further and bringing calls for government action from the business community.

"Mexican society must have a clear vision of where this country will be headed in the coming months," said Antonio Sanchez Diaz de Rivera, head of the powerful business lobby Coparmex.

The peso slid another 10 percent against the dollar on Tuesday, closing at 5.60 to the dollar, down from 5.02 on the previous day of trading. Mexican stocks also were hurt, losing 2.81 percent on Tuesday to 2,276.90, a decline of 65.89 points.

Investors in Mexico and abroad were stunned last week when the government lowered the peso's trading floor, triggering a devaluation that has shaved more than one-third from the currency's value against the dollar.

The devaluation came nearly a year after the Jan. 1 launch of the North American Free Trade Agreement, which represented a peak in foreign investors' confidence in Mexico.

But the NAFTA excitement coincided with an Indian uprising in the southern state of Chiapas that continues to generate political unrest.

and contributed to the peso's fall.

President Ernesto Zedillo has quietly agreed to rebel demands that a Roman Catholic Church commission mediate a renewal of peace talks. The rebel Zapatista National Liberation Army released a conciliatory message late Tuesday agreeing to negotiations.

The economic crisis also comes during a change in administrations in Mexico. Zedillo is less than a month into his six-year term, and uncertainty about his leadership is another factor causing weakness.

Other concerns include a belief among some that the peso was overvalued against the dollar, and Mexico's persistent trade deficit.

Zedillo has announced a 60-day freeze on wages and prices in hopes of limiting inflation, but there were reports Tuesday of price markups by supermarkets, businesses and specialty stores selling imported goods.

Stocks of Mexican companies trading in New York took a beating Tuesday.

"The markets right now are saying they haven't heard enough good news to feel more comfortable," said Joyce Chang, an analyst at Salomon Brothers Inc. in New York.

Mexico's NAFTA partners are clearly worried.

Local Roundup

Clouds hanging around

Hereford picked up .01-inch of rain, according to KPAN Radio, overnight. The low Wednesday morning was 38 degrees, after a 56-degree high Tuesday. The forecast calls for cloudy skies with occasional drizzle and areas of fog Wednesday night and a low in the mid-30s. Thursday will begin cloudy and foggy but clouds will decrease during the afternoon. A high in the mid-50s is forecast with winds southwest, 10-20 mph.

Money can be saved in state's shopping

AUSTIN (AP)--Texas government could save big bucks by changing the way it shops, a new report says.

"The current system encourages waste, makes our employees' jobs difficult, costs more than it needs to and fails to eliminate vendors who sell state government shoddy goods," State Comptroller John Sharp said Tuesday.

The report by the comptroller's office and General Services Commission says that changes in state government purchasing practices could save taxpayers $52 million over the next five years.

The report said Texas lacks basic information on its purchasing patterns and results. State government spends about $4.3 billion annually on goods and services, the report said.

"...while many improvements have been made in the area of vendor performance tracking, substandard vendors still can continue doing business with the state merely by changing their names," the report said.

The report recommends:

--Raising the level at which agencies can buy goods from $15,000 to $25,000. Currently, purchases of goods of more than $15,000 are made by the General Services Commission.

--Allowing the state to consider a "best-value" standard when considering purchases, instead of buying from the "lowest and best" bidder. Best-value decisions could include the total cost of an item over its life.

--Authorizing the GSC to bar companies from doing business with the state. Currently, GSC can suspend a vendor from doing business, but suspended vendors can reapply under a different name.

--Using enhanced technology to streamline state purchasing and payments.

--Providing potential vendors with information about pending contracts through a computer bulletin board.

--Implementing automated ordering and invoicing.

--Training and certification of all state purchasers.

"If enacted these proposals will be the final link in the state's purchasing and accounting practices," Sharp said.

Lottery pays $12 million

AUSTIN (AP)--Three Texans are celebrating Christmas all over again. The Texas Lottery Commission on Tuesday paid out nearly $12 million in post-Christmas prizes.

Nelson Martin of Houston was presented a check for $548,515 as the first of 20 installments for the Dec. 24 Lotto Texas jackpot totaling $10.8 million.

The remaining payments of $540,000 each will be paid every Dec. 15 for the next 19 years.

The winning numbers drawn Saturday were 16, 32, 15, 7, 49, and 31.

The commission also presented a $1 million check to Curtis McGregor of Dallas, who cashed in on the lottery's "Instant Million" game.

Rafael Hernandez of Bay City is $100,000 richer after claiming his check from the lottery's "The $100,000 Game."

Diplomat seeks return of U.S. airman

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)--A U.S. diplomat went to North Korea on Wednesday to try to win the release of American pilot Bobby Hall, while a Congressman who was there last week said the North's leaders are split over whether to grant him freedom.

Thomas Hubbard, a deputy assistant secretary of state, held a whirlwind round of talks with American, U.N. and South Korean officials after arriving aboard a U.S. military plane. Then he crossed the heavily guarded border into North Korea at 10:55 a.m. (8:55 p.m. EST Tuesday).

Secretary of State Warren Christopher warned last week that failure to release Hall soon could endanger Washington's agreement to provide oil, a nuclear reactor and diplomatic ties in exchange for the North stopping work on its own nuclear program.

Washington on Tuesday denied anew North Korean allegations that Hall was on a spying mission when his U.S. Army OH-58C helicopter strayed into North Korea on Dec. 17 and either crashed or was shot down. Fellow Chief Warrant Officer David Hilemon was killed. His body was returned last Thursday.

Efforts to free Hall took a drastic turn for the worse Tuesday when North Korea accused him of being on a spying mission and demanded that the United States apologize. It said Hall would be held until a North Korean investigation of the incident is finished.

Hubbard, a mid-level diplomat, was the No. 2 man in negotiating the nuclear accord with Pyongyang two months ago. Washington sent him, instead of a higher-ranking representative, because it is trying to avoid raising the level of its diplomatic contacts with North Korea.

The countries, which fought on opposite sides in the 1950-53 Korean War, have no diplomatic relations.

Hubbard did not appear in public in South Korea, and reporters were barred from his arrival and his departure to the North.

saying the helicopter had strayed due to a navigational error, and calling for Hall's prompt release.

American and North Korean military officers met again Tuesday. "There wasn't anything conclusive that happened there," Michael McCurry, the State Department spokesman, said.

North Korea's hardline position on releasing Hall reflects an internal struggle, said U.S. Rep. Bill Richardson, who helped negotiate the return of Hilemon's body.

"There's a split between the civilian side ... that I think wants to resolve this issue, and the military, which unfortunately doesn't ... and is most recalcitrant in dealing with the United States," Richardson said on NBC's "Today" show Tuesday.

Cotton prices giving producers better year than they expected

DALLAS (AP)--Harvest-time prices for cotton are the highest in 15 years, and after doubts earlier in the year, most Texas producers appeared to make enough of a crop to take advantage of the boom.

Last summer, some farmers weren't so sure.

"It was plenty bleak," Brad Boyd, 41, told The Dallas Morning News in Tuesday's editions.

Drought conditions that began last winter and carried well into the summer on the Texas High Plains delayed planting of the state's biggest crop. The region produces about one-fourth of the nation's cotton.

But last week, as many farmers like Boyd in the West Texas cotton center of Lamesa completed their harvest, cotton production figures statewide approached last year's good numbers. Scattered rains in late May and early June and mild growing conditions throughout the fall brought a modest rebound.

Production still isn't expected to exceed last season's performance, and many farmers who don't irrigate their crops are facing yields well below average. In addition, more rain is needed for there to be enough moisture to plant next year.

But most producers now are reaping the price increases driven by exploding export demand for China and other Asian countries.

Texas cotton farmers will produce about 5 million bales this year, just below last year's nearly 5.1 million bales and the third-highest total in 10 years, according to the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service.

Boyd made just over half his normal yield on his 2,000 acres of dry land, or nonirrigated, production. Still, that was better than expected. And he made above-average yields on his 420 acres of irrigated land.

That production, combined with crop insurance benefits, will help him get to next year.

"And the good price up until now has helped a lot, too," he says, noting prices as high as 76 cents a pound, up from 55 cents last year.

Economists can't decide which was more improbable: the turnaround in production or the harvest-time price rally.

For both to happen at the same time is truly rare. With cotton's late start this year on the High plains, "I would not have thought 5 million bales was possible," says Carl Anderson, a cotton marketing economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University.

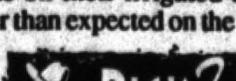

Not only will the Texas harvest be better than expected, but production nationwide also is projected to hit a record 19.2 million bales, up 22 percent from last year, according to the statistics service.

Usually with such increases in production, prices plummet. But this year, prices have spiked because of the demand for U.S. cotton in foreign countries where crops have been devastated by drought and disease.

The last time prices were this high at harvest was 1979, Anderson said, when China stepped in with a huge order for U.S. cotton, raising prices even as production soared. The following year, a downturn in production kept prices high for an extended period.

Anderson says not to expect prices to stay up through next year, as export demand isn't likely to remain this high.

But, he says, "I think it leaves most farmers in a good position this year because they did make good yields on their irrigated crops, and better than expected on the dry land."

Cavs' top defense aims to suffocate TCU attack

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) - No. 18 Virginia and unranked Texas Christian slip away from the flashy riverboat casinos tonight for an old-fashioned shootout in the 19th Independence Bowl.

The Cavaliers match the nation's top rushing defense against a TCU attack that features the leading rusher and passer in the Southwest Conference.

Injuries and other disruptions cast only a faint shadow over the first meeting ever between the Cavs of the Atlantic Coast Conference and the SWC co-champion Horned Frogs.

"We're ready to line up and go," said Virginia coach George Welsh, whose Cavaliers (8-3) rule as 10-point favorites over the Frogs (7-4).

The good news for TCU fans is that premier running back Andre Davis is also ready to line up and go after arriving late Sunday and triggering the wrath of coach Pat Sullivan.

"He may have to run to the stadium ... but he's going to play," Sullivan joked.

Davis, an All-SWC selection, led the Frogs in both rushing and receiving.

In pregame high humor, both teams confessed that they tuned up for the nationally televised contest in the glittering gambling boats hugging the banks of the historic Red River.

Asked at Tuesday's news conference if he'd won heavily, Welsh replied: "I haven't, but some of our players have done some good."

Jingling pocket change, Sullivan said: "I know someone who lost."

While players and coaches offered their traditional kind words for the host city and bowl officials, TCU's all-conference center Barret Robbins quipped:

"I'd like to thank the casinos, after last night."

On a less jovial note, both teams fretted over injuries to key players, including TCU's All-SWC tight end Brian Collins and Virginia's All-ACC cornerback Ronde Barber.

Both are questionable, but may play.

Collins has been Max Knaake's prime target over the middle as the TCU quarterback passed for 2,624 yards and 25 touchdowns, both school records.

"If Brian can't play ... we're going to have to step up our game a whole lot," said Robbins, the Frogs' 288-pound senior center who many consider a potential first-round draft choice in the NFL.

And the possible loss of Virginia's Barber is no less devastating.

"That's a blow," conceded Welsh, who said there was no way to replace Barber, the team leader in interceptions with eight.

"We'll just have to wait until the pregame warmup to decide."

With Barber leading the larceny, the Cavalier secondary picked off a national high 27 interceptions while the country's No. 1 rushing defense held opponents to an average of 63.6 yards per game.

"This is probably the best defensive team I've had at Virginia," said Welsh, who has compiled an 88-59-3 record in 13 seasons to become the Cavaliers' winningest coach.

Virginia's eighth consecutive winning season earned them their seventh bowl invitation in 10 years.

TCU, meanwhile, will be appearing in its first bowl in a decade.

The Frogs won five of their last six games, including a pivotal 24-17 victory over Cotton Bowl-bound Texas Tech, to secure the bowl bid and nail down a share of the SWC title.

"We've been on a roll the last six weeks," Robbins said.

He agreed with teammate Royal West, an all-conference defensive tackle, that an Independence Bowl victory would be a huge step for the TCU program and the icing on his final season.

"I think our senior class has made a difference," West said. "I think we've left our mark on TCU."

Mike Frederick, Virginia's all-conference defensive end, disclosed that Cavs' quarterback Mike Groh also has left his mark on a Louisiana casino.

"It's good to see your quarterback has a lucky hand," Frederick said of Groh's adventures at the roulette wheel. "It's a good sign."

Trojans enjoying Texas hospitality

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Southern California is getting a one-year head start on the Pac-10's new alignment with the Cotton Bowl and so far Trojans coach John Robinson is impressed with what he's seen.

Beginning next season, the latest bowl coalition will send the Pac-10 conference's runner-up to Dallas on New Year's Day.

"I think this is a great place for our second team," Robinson said during Tuesday's media day. "It's a New Year's bowl with a lot of tradition. This is a big deal for us."

USC quarterback Rob Johnson agreed. He got a kick out of practicing at Texas Stadium, home of the Dallas Cowboys and their four Super Bowl championship banners.

"This is a great start to Cotton Bowl week," Johnson said. "This makes you want to come to practice."

It is USC's first visit to the Cotton Bowl. They were having fun Tuesday, except for breakfast.

"We're still adjusting to the time change," Robinson said. "We ate breakfast at 9 a.m. but it was like 7 a.m. on our time. They could barely see their eggs."

The Trojans got the best deal out of media day. They worked out in Texas Stadium while Texas Tech held its media day at antiquated Ownby Stadium on the Southern Methodist campus.

"We need some hard work but we don't want to overdo it," said Robinson, who has a 5-1 record in bowl games. "We want to have the team ready to play the day of the game. We don't want them worn out before the game begins."

Robinson said he has "learned from mistakes I made in the past" about getting players too tired out.

He said the players were taking to the Texas-style hospitality.

"We've only been here two days, but everything has been great," Robinson said. "I'm going to do a lot of bragging on the Cotton Bowl when I get back home."

There is a party scheduled every night for the two teams. There's a barbecue Tuesday night.

USC will visit a children's hospital on Wednesday.

Utah sneaks by Arizona 16-13 in Freedom Bowl

By DAVID KLIGMAN
Associated Press Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Utah came from behind to win before, so it didn't surprise coach Ron McBride when the Utes rebounded from a dismal offensive performance to win its first bowl game in 30 years.

Despite only five first downs and 75 yards - less than two yards a play - No. 14 Utah found a way to beat No. 15 Arizona 16-13 in the Freedom Bowl on Tuesday night. It was Utah's first bowl victory since defeating West Virginia in the 1964 Liberty Bowl, and gave the Utes their first 10-victory season in the team's 102-year history.

"That's the thing about this team, they keep playing and playing and something will happen," said McBride, who won his first bowl game in three tries. "We've done it before."

Utah's key play was a 72-yard free kick return to Arizona's 5 following an intentional safety by Arizona leaving the Wildcats ahead 13-9. Mike McCoy couldn't complete his first three passes, but on fourth down he found Kevin Dyson in the end zone just as McCoy was tackled by Chuck Osborne.

Dyson danced the length of the end zone after making the catch and then was swarmed by teammates.

"I wanted to sit in the end zone for the rest of my life," said Dyson, a freshman. "I don't know who was more excited - me or my teammates."

The victory resembled Utah's 34-31 comeback victory against Brigham Young on Nov. 19. In that game, Cal Beck returned a kickoff 67 yards, which was followed by McCoy's 20-yard pass to Charlie Brown in the final minutes.

The victory gives the Utes a 10-2 record, their most wins since their football program began in 1892. Arizona, appearing in its fifth bowl game in the past six years, dropped to 8-4.

Robinson said USC isn't going to overlook Tech despite its 6-5 record.

"In college football, I've learned schedules and records don't mean a lot," Robinson said. "We learned a good lesson about that in the Pac-10 this year. Nobody said Oregon was any good until after the game was over. And they are the ones in the Rose Bowl."

USC (7-3-1) and the Red Raiders will play at noon Jan. 2. The game is expected to be a sellout.

Tech fans have bought some 24,000 tickets for the Red Raiders' first Cotton Bowl game since 1939.

Baylor, Washington State share several similarities

By JOHN K. WILEY
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Alamo Bowl opponents Baylor and No. 24 Washington State share common ground other than their similar 7-4 records, their coaches agree.

Both teams are led by young quarterbacks whose strengths and weaknesses have dictated their offensive schemes.

"As you look at the seasons, you see the quarterbacks' growth and they're not the same quarterbacks they were Sept. 1," Cougars coach Mike Price told reporters at a joint news conference Tuesday. "They're much better, they're much more mature, they're much more experienced. They will handle this bowl game, both of those kids, very well."

The Bears are led by freshman Jeff Watson, who took over from sophomore Lamont Moore after the first game of the season.

The Cougars have had good luck against option offenses, but Baylor's luck has Price worried.

"They've done something different in every game for the last 11 times," Price said.

Not by design, said Baylor coach Chuck Reedy.

"We'd go from week to week trying to figure out something that would work," Reedy said, pointing out that the quarterback change dictated the offensive transitions.

"After the first game, Jeff Watson was obviously the guy who could lead our football team the best and so we gradually moved more to the things he could do," Reedy explained.

Chad Davis, a redshirt sophomore transfer from Oklahoma, has led the Cougars offense all season.

Price said his young quarterback has shown steady improvement, especially in protecting the ball and preventing turnovers.

Baylor set scoring records and Washington State set records for fewest points allowed, but both coaches agreed the key to the game could be the Bears' defense.

"The key will be how well our defense plays. It is imperative for us to keep the score down," Reedy said.

Baylor scored a school record 359 points, an average of 32.6 per game, while Washington State's "Palouse Posse" defense held opponents to just 12.1 points a game.

"Don't talk about scoring records. All it does is agitates this great defense they've got," Reedy said.

"Their offense against our defense is going to be a wash," Price predicted. "The key is how the Cougar offense plays against the Baylor defense ... and possibly the kicking game."

Kicking has been a weakness for the Cougars and a strength for the Bears.

"For us to win the football game, we're going to have to do something in the kicking game to create some scoring opportunities," Reedy said.

"That's an area where we can, hopefully, make something happen."

Faulk named top offensive rookie

NEW YORK (AP) - Just as he did on the field, Marshall Faulk ran away from the competition in voting for the 1994 Associated Press Offensive Rookie of the Year.

Faulk, the No. 2 selection in the draft, rushed for 1,282 yards and 11 touchdowns for the Indianapolis Colts. Those numbers and his marvelous moves and speed impressed 96 of the 98 members of a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Tampa Bay running back Errict Rhett received one vote, as did Washington quarterback Heath Shuler.

Miami defensive tackle Tim Bowens was named the Defensive Rookie of the Year on Tuesday

Clippers steal victory in Bulls' United Center

By The Associated Press

Toni Kukoc knew exactly what Chicago's problem was.

"We couldn't hit shots, we couldn't rebound and we had plenty of turnovers," said Kukoc, who tempered his 21 points with eight turnovers in the Los Angeles Clippers' 95-92 victory Tuesday night.

The Bulls also didn't have Scottie Pippen, who was ejected from the game with 2:13 left in the second period.

The Clippers, on the other hand, had their first victory on the Bulls' home court since Jan. 26, 1979, when the Clippers called San Diego home and the Bulls played in Chicago Stadium.

"We had our chances to win, even without Scottie," Kukoc said.

"It didn't matter if Scottie was out or Scottie was in," B.J. Armstrong said. "Scottie was gone. Those were the facts. We were trying to win a game we thought we could win."

Armstrong missed the basket more than he missed Pippen, failing on 16 of 20 shots.

Los Angeles was 0-17 in Chicago before the win, and the victory snapped a five-game losing streak, raising the Clippers' record this season to 4-23.

"We're undefeated in this building," coach Bill Fitch joked of the United Center, the Bulls' new home this year.

In other NBA games, it was New York 99, New Jersey 91; Orlando 103, Miami 83; Milwaukee 98, Detroit 88; Phoenix 119, Dallas 118; Houston 105, Atlanta 93; San Antonio 119, Charlotte 108; Indiana 95, Denver 91; Golden State 129, the Los Angeles Lakers 105; and Sacramento 102, Portland 101.

team's uncharacteristic sloppiness.

"It wasn't so much the number of turnovers, but what they led to, easy baskets," Krzyzewski said. "We just didn't value the basketball and that credit goes to Iowa's incredible persistence. They are always after you."

Elsewhere in the rankings, it was No. 5 Kentucky over Marshall 116-75; No. 8 Connecticut over Illinois 71-56; No. 9 Maryland over La Salle 96-80; Stanford over No. 19 Wisconsin 95-78; No. 21 Iowa State 96, Chicago State 47; and No. 25 St. John's over Manhattan 81-70.

No. 5 Kentucky 116, Marshall 75
Jeff Sheppard scored 19 of his career-high 21 points in the first half, including five 3-pointers, for the host Wildcats.

Kentucky (6-1) forced the Thundering Herd (6-2) into 29 turnovers and only 31 percent (22-for-70) shooting from the field. Kentucky shot 51 percent (39-for-76) from the field, including a season-high 15-for-28 from 3-point range.

It was the first meeting between Rick Pitino and Billy Donovan, who served as Pitino's assistant coach at Kentucky for five seasons and played for Pitino at Providence and with the New York Knicks.

No. 8 Connecticut 71, Illinois 56
Doron Sheffer, held scoreless in the first half, scored 17 points and Pippen scored 18 points on 8-for-11 shooting, grabbed five rebounds and handed out three assists before he was ejected for swearing at referee Terry Durham when protesting an offensive foul. He had received a first-quarter technical foul for taunting Clippers center Charles Outlaw after dunking over him, and the second technical meant an automatic ejection.

Pooh Richardson had 21 points and 10 assists for the Clippers, while Lamond Murray added 19 points.

Suns 119, Mavericks 118

Kevin Johnson's 16-foot baseline jumper with 3.7 seconds left capped a Phoenix rally from a five-point deficit with less than a minute to play. It was the visiting Suns' 11th consecutive victory over Dallas.

Johnson finished with 28 points, while Charles Barkley had 22 points and 16 rebounds for the Suns, who won for the 10th time in 11 games.

Jim Jackson scored 31 points for Dallas.

Rockets 105, Hawks 93

In Houston, Hakeem Olajuwon had 35 points and 16 rebounds as Houston kept Atlanta's Lenny Wilkens from tying Red Auerbach's NBA career scoring record for wins with 938.

The Rockets scored eight consecutive points early in the fourth period to take the lead for good.

Ken Norman scored 28 points to lead Atlanta.

Spurs 119, Hornets 108

David Robinson scored 16 of his 30 points in the third quarter and Chuck Person hit five 3-pointers as San Antonio won its seventh straight game, downing visiting Charlotte. Person finished with 21 points.

Hornets center Alonzo Mourning injured his right foot in the second quarter and didn't return. Larry Johnson had 29 points and 12 rebounds to lead Charlotte.

Warriors 129, Lakers 105

Tim Hardaway, Latrell Sprewell and Tom Gugliotta each scored 20 points, and Ronny Seikaly grabbed a season-high 17 rebounds as Golden State crushed visiting Los Angeles.

The Warriors led 65-36 at halftime and never let up. Just four minutes into the third quarter, Golden State pulled ahead 84-47 on Tim Hardaway's 3-pointer.

Cedric Ceballos led the Lakers with 24 points.

Kings 102, Trail Blazers 101

In Sacramento, Spud Webb's fallaway jumper with 2.3 seconds left erased Portland's one-point lead and gave the Kings the victory. Cliff Robinson, who missed a baseline jumper at the buzzer, gave Portland a 101-100 lead with 12 seconds remaining.

Magic 103, Heat 83

Shaquille O'Neal had 28 points and 11 rebounds as Orlando ran its home record this season to 12-0. Anfernee Hardaway scored 19 points for the Magic, who blew the game open with a devastating display of 3-point shooting in the fourth quarter.

The Magic hit five 3-pointers in the period, four of them in a 20-2 spurt.

Pacers 95, Nuggets 91

Rik Smits had a season-high 33 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead visiting Indiana over Denver. The Pacers, winners of nine of their last 11 meetings with the Nuggets, scored only five points in the final three minutes, but Denver could only manage six free throws and Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf's 3-pointer over the same stretch.

Iowa upsets Duke in Rainbow opener

By The Associated Press

Duke traveled 5,000 miles to have this happen?

The seventh-ranked Blue Devils journeyed from Durham, N.C., to Honolulu for the Rainbow Classic. It was a long trip, but a short stay in the tournament as Iowa knocked off Duke 81-71 on Tuesday in the opening round.

Jess Settles, who was scheduled to play two minutes, got in 23, scoring 28 points and grabbing eight rebounds. He was the difference for the Hawkeyes (9-1).

"Settles was incredible," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "Imagine if he had been practicing the last 17 days?"

The sophomore forward, who leads the Hawkeyes in scoring at 19.7 points per game, missed the last four games with a back injury. He had no clue how he would do Tuesday.

And Duke had no clue on how to handle him, or Iowa's fullcourt pressure.

"Having had those games off, I was hoping I could come back against a lower caliber opponent," Settles said. "As most athletes do, I was running on adrenaline and the back held up. I was supposed to play two minutes, see how it felt and try for some more minutes. Now I'll see how it is when I try to get out of bed tomorrow."

Krzyzewski was bothered by his

Brian Fair added 16 for the host Huskies, who have won 34 consecutive non-conference games at the Hartford Civic Center.

Unbeaten Connecticut used a 10-point run midway through the second half for its sixth successive win. The Illini (8-3) were led by Shelly Clark with 18 points.

No. 9 Maryland 96, La Salle 80

The Terrapins won their 38th consecutive non-conference home game after they trailed by as many as five points in the first half. Reserve Mario Lucas scored a career-high 18 points and sparked a 24-6 second-half surge.

Keith Booth had 18 points, matching his career best, and Joe Smith also scored 18 for Maryland (9-2).

Stanford 95, No. 19 Wisconsin 78

Brevin Knight scored 26 points and Dion Cross 19 for unranked and unbeaten Stanford.

Stanford (8-0) dominated at the free-throw line, making 33 of 42 shots, while visiting Wisconsin (6-2) made 14 of 21.

SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE Texas 84, Texas-Pan American 73

In El Paso, Terrence Rencher scored seven of his 20 points in a game-breaking second-half scoring run, helping Texas over Texas-Pan American in the first round of the Sun Classic Tournament Tuesday night.

The Longhorns (4-2) advance to Wednesday's tournament championship against Washington State, a 70-54 upset winner over host Texas-El Paso earlier Tuesday.

The Broncs (2-4) led 44-36 late in the first half and 45-41 at halftime before Texas opened the second half with a 22-7 stretch led by Rencher. Two minutes later, the Longhorns began an 11-0 burst that sealed the victory.

Reggie Freeman scored 17 for Texas and Rich McIver and Tremaine Wingfield each added 13.

Princeton 71, Texas A&M 66, 3OT

In New Orleans, Princeton's Sydney Johnson hit a falling-down 3-point basket with three seconds left to force overtime, then sank two foul shots with three seconds left in the third extra period to give Princeton victory over Texas A&M Tuesday night in the UNO Tournament.

Princeton (4-5) used a deliberate offense and packed its defense under the basket to frustrate A&M (4-6), leading the entire first half and much of the second. A&M shot just 35 percent from the field and made just 3-of-18 3-point attempts.

Joe Wilbert led A&M with 31 points. Tony McGinnis had 10.

Wilbert scored all but one of A&M's overtime points before being benched with 1 minute, 16 seconds left in triple overtime for throwing Hiedscher against the goal post under the A&M basket and drawing an intentional foul.

'Quiet year' in world of business marked '94 in Texas

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER

AP Business Writer

DALLAS (AP) - In Texas, 1994 was a quiet year for business. And that was good news.

"I think the era of big events is past," said Bernard Weinstein, director of the University of North and investment with Latin America

DALLAS (AP) - For Texas companies, 1994 was a year for both billion-dollar marriages and botched courtships. Here's a partial scorecard.

Exchanged vows:

-- The Williams Companies Inc. agreed in December to buy natural gas pipeline company Transco Energy Co. for $3 billion.

-- Campbell Soup Co. in November agreed to buy San Antonio's Mexican sauce maker, Pace Foods Ltd., for $1.1 billion.

-- Also in November, American Brands Inc. agreed to sell its Franklin Life Insurance division to the Houston financial services conglomerate American General Corp. for $1.17 billion in cash. American General also is pursuing a hostile $2.6 billion offer for Chicago-based insurer Unirint Inc.

-- In October, Santa Monica, Calif.-based National Medical Enterprises Inc. agrees to buy rival Dallas hospital company American Medical Holdings Inc. for $3.3 billion, as the health care industry consolidation continues.

-- Columbia-HCA Healthcare Corp., the nation's largest for-profit hospital chain, agreed in May to buy Dallas-based surgery-center operator Medical Care America Inc. for about $859 million.

Never made it down the aisle:

-- Piano-based Electronic Data Systems Corp. and Sprint long distance company called off merger talks in June, saying they could not agree on financial terms. The two companies three weeks earlier formally announced they were courting, forced by anonymously-sourced news accounts to respond to speculation that had been growing for months.

-- San Antonio's Southwestern Bell Corp. and Cox Cable call off a $4.9 billion partnership in April.

Waiting at the altar:

-- The $2.2 billion merger between El Paso Electric Co. and Dallas-based Central and South West Corp. continues to move forward, despite hitting some rough spots during the year - including Las Cruces, New Mexico's August vote to dump El Paso Electric. The merger is key to El Paso Electric's plan to emerge from Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, where it has been for nearly three years after becoming only the second to fail since the great depression.

Bizarre love triangle:

-- Fort Worth's Burlington Northern Inc. agreed in June to merge with Santa Fe Pacific Corp., creating the nation's largest rail network. But Union Pacific Corp. is now pursuing a hostile bid for Santa Fe. Both sides are offering more than $3 billion to woo Santa Fe.

Texas Center for Economic Development and Research.

"What we saw in Texas in '94 is continued strength in a lot of our industries, the state benefiting from a rapid pace of national growth, the state benefiting from continued trade and investment with Latin America and particularly Mexico - not headline-grabbing events so much as just improving business conditions in virtually every part of the state," he said.

"It's just a good year."

The Texas economy continued to outpace the nation's, and analysts expected the growth to continue in 1995. Unemployment fell to 5.5 percent in November, the lowest in nearly four years and the best two-month rate since before the oil bust.

Some controversy persisted over the effect on jobs of the North American Free Trade Agreement, which celebrates its first birthday Jan. 1. But Texas analysts said the state clearly has benefited from increased trade under the pact with Canada and Mexico.

"We've been very positively impacted," said Roland Arriola, director of the University of Texas-Pan American Center for Entrepreneurship and Economic Development.

Adoption of the global GATT trade accord, which takes effect Jan. 1, and the successful Mexican presidential elections also were major events for the state in 1994, Arriola said.

"The way that the Mexican elections turned out has been very positive, primarily because a lot of people don't realize this but the trade with Mexico impacts the whole state of Texas," he said. "There are about 1.1 million jobs in the state of Texas that are tied to our trade with Mexico."

The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade "sort of piggybacks on NAFTA and increases the opportunities for some sectors of the economy that NAFTA wasn't affecting as much," such as agriculture, Arriola said.

With the two trade agreements, "It is a great time to be in Texas," said Ted Jones, chief economist of the Real Estate Center at Texas A&amp;M University.

Real estate markets were busy across Texas in 1994, with some predicting housing sales could hit an all-time high. However, as interest rates rose and the state's economic growth was expected to slow next year, the market was expected to cool a bit from its feverish pace.

"The short-term economic outlook for Texas is a bright and promising one," Waco economist Ray Perryman wrote in his annual economic forecast.

"On the whole, 1994 has been a strong year for the United States and an even stronger one for the Lone Star State. This trend will continue over the forecast horizon as the state's competitive advantages draw individuals and corporations alike," Perryman wrote.

Events that did make news in Texas business began on a sour note, with GTE Corp. saying in January it planned to cut 17,000 phone-related jobs nationwide. GTE's telephone operations subsidiary is based in Irving.

The travel industry also had another tumultuous year. Dallas-based Greyhound Lines Inc. struggled to stay out of bankruptcy court, while the safety of commuter air travel was called into question by two deadly crashes of Fort Worth-based American Eagle planes.

Robert R. Ferguson III quit as chief executive officer of Houston-based Continental Airlines, and the Texas bullet train reached the end of the line in August, when a state board revoked the franchise for a 200 mph railroad.

On the other hand, Texas computer

Slaton's Harvey House project wins small preservation grant

Plans to restore Slaton's Harvey House restaurant took its first major step this month with the formal announcement of a $21,120 grant for initial work on the project.

The grant was announced by the Texas Transportation Commission, the state agency which is overseeing Texas use of federal funds from the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act.

The Slaton project is one of 82 projects selected statewide out of 470 nominations in the second round of funding under the federal program, state officials said in announcing the grant. The first round saw 112 projects approved at a total cost of $98 million.

In its selections this year, the transportation commission awarded $42.5 million in grants. The approved projects are designed to enhance a broad range of transportation-related issues, including bicycle and pedestrian facilities, beautification, historic preservation and water quality protection, state officials said.

Applications for a third round of funding are due to be sought in December, 1995.

Locally, the $21,120 grant will fund long-needed roof repairs on the Harvey House building and an architectural-engineering study that will detail the projected cost of restoration of the building, Tony Privett, president of the Slaton Railroad Heritage Association, said. The study will likely be the ground work for a grant application in the third round of Texas Transportation Commission grants.

Facts about women, diabetes

By LESLY RASCOE

San Angelo Standard-Times

SAN ANGELO, Texas - Buying groceries and preparing and freezing meals to serve during the next two weeks to a month is more economical and saves time, says Carolyn McMunn, who has the practice down to a science.

McMunn, who raised her family in the military, said receiving one monthly paycheck taught her to purchase the month's food all at once. She planned her menus so that she never served the same dish twice within one month.

McMunn said it's easier to spend one day preparing several meals for the freezer than spending time cooking each day. It also means cleaning up just one mess in the kitchen, she said.

"Freezing ahead is definitely the way to go for so many of these busy women," McMunn said.

She suggests always planning menus ahead and choosing recipes that freeze and reheat well.

Working efficiently in the kitchen is her secret, McMunn said. Some of her techniques include:

- Now is the time to make your Christmas dressing, she said.

Next time you're cutting vegetables, chop extra celery and onion and freeze it, she suggested. Freeze onions briefly on a cookie sheet before transferring to a plastic bag.

She believes eating healthful, low-fat foods is cost-effective in the long run.

Her experience in weight management programs taught her to replace fats with healthful alternatives, she said.

To enjoy a low-calorie, low-fat sweet snack, McMunn suggests slicing a slightly ripe banana into circles and freezing it on a cookie sheet. Store the frozen banana circles in plastic bags. As needed, place 1 cup frozen banana circles in the blender. Add 1/2 to 1 teaspoon sugar or sugar substitute and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla or almond extract. Blend until slushy and eat like ice cream.

McMunn said many foods should cool slightly before freezing to prevent condensation from building up and turning to ice crystals.

"Unless you have a sub-zero freezer, it's never a good idea to put food in the freezer while it's hot," McMunn said.

She said she freezes her foods in plastic container and sometimes places the container in a plastic bag for added protection against freezer burn.

Most frozen foods should be used within a month, but some foods may keep well for three to six months in the freezer. "After that you lose your nutrients, quality and taste," McMunn said.

Following a set route within your favorite grocery store is also important, McMunn said.

Purchase your foods at their freshest for the best results, she said.

McMunn has learned that many families do not have time to cook each day and preparing food ahead is helpful.

McMunn recently began her own business offering personal chef service where she prepares food based on clients' special needs.

She meets with each client and together they decide on a menu based on taste preferences and dietary needs. Next McMunn purchases the food and prepares it for freezing in the client's home. Typically, she prepares two weeks of meals, or 10 meals for two people, to be used for the client's convenience.

McMunn said personal chef services are not just for busy, career-oriented households, but those who are unable to cook for themselves may enjoy having ready-to-heat custom meals in the freezer.

Names in the News

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) - The oldest of nine siblings, Susan Sarandon drew on her own childhood experiences for her two latest movie roles playing mothers of large broods.

In "Little Women," which opened on Christmas, Sarandon is Marmee, a mother of four girls. In "Safe Passage," opening Jan. 6, she plays a mother of seven sons.

"The woman I play in 'Safe Passage' has kids very early, like my mother did, but I wouldn't say it parallels her story," Sarandon said in Tuesday's The Record of Hackensack. "I'm real familiar with the chaos of a large family and the process of finding your way."

For her "Little Women" role, Sarandon joked that it was courageous of her to "wear no makeup, your hair parted in the middle, and a butt pad."

Sarandon, 48, has three children, ages 2, 5 and 9.

"I feel like the oldest ovary-producing person in America," she joked.

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - A two-for-one deal is available at Donald Trump's Mar-a-Lago Club, though of course that won't do these days for Prince Charles and Princess Diana. They've signed up for separate memberships.

The royal couple, who separated in 1992, filed separate applications for the social club, and each paid the $50,000 initiation fee, said membership director Katharine Merlin. Ordinarily, a single membership is good for the member's spouse and children as well.

Merlin, who has handled applications for Steven Spielberg, Arnold Schwarzenegger and Elizabeth Taylor, didn't see any of the paperwork for Charles or Di. "That, Mr. Trump handled," she said.

The club, with membership limited to 500, is about half-booked and is expected to open in mid-January, Merlin said. She said interest has been so high, the initiation fee will rise to $75,000 on Sunday.

'QUIET YEAR'

makers had a good year, with Houston-based Compaq Computer Corp. expected to become the biggest U.S. seller of personal computers and Austin's Dell Computer Corp. showing strong growth and reintroducing a line of its own notebook computers.

Dell, however, also got snared by the debacle that taught the nation a new term: derivatives, complex securities linked to, or "derived" from, a group of stocks, bonds or other assets.

In April, Dell said it lost $500,000 in derivatives linked to foreign exchange trading. Then, in September, Odessa College reported its $22 million portfolio had lost half its value because of derivatives.

As the year ended, local governments made a run on the state's TexPool investment fund due to concern spawned partly by Orange County, Calif.'s bankruptcy declaration, which was linked in part to losses from derivatives.

The oil business, once king in Texas, continued to see declines in 1994, as thousands of layoffs were announced nationwide.

But the majors continued doing massive deals, especially overseas. In November, Irving-based Exxon Corp. and the government of Indonesia agreed to spend up to $40 billion to develop a huge natural gas field in the South China Sea. Earlier in the year, Exxon was assessed $5 billion in punitive damages from its 1989 Alaskan oil spill. The company is appealing.

The oil industry marked a sentimental passing late in the year, with the $250 million sale of Placid Oil, one of the largest remaining vestiges of the Hunt oil empire.

The year also saw the exit of two prominent Texas businessmen. Famed Houston oil well firefighter Paul N. "Red" Adair sold his company and retired in January.

Michael Walsh, chairman of Houston-based Tenneco Inc., died of brain cancer in May at the age of 51.

"Mike's legacy is our shared inspiration to fight on and never settle for second best," said Walsh's successor, Dana Mead.
