Sights and Faces Seen

Recently several inspectors from the Washington office inspected the local SCS office. In general, their report was good, but they pointed out one criticism to O. T. Williams, local manager.

The sign on the window of the office read Soil Conservation Office in place of Soil Conservation Office. The sign has long since been changed, but if you mention the subject Mr. Williams' face still gets red.

At the shoot at the Hereford Skeet Club, Sunday, November 19, the following shooters won turkeys as prizes, Owen Stamer, Buford Luttrell, J. S. Porcher and Edwin Mauk.

Among those who shipped cattle recently are Cecil Guseman, H. G. Conkright, Colby Conkright, J. A. Pitman, Oscar Easley, Ernest Medkief and Ky Lawrence.

Homer Fox says Lee Morgan was born with a silver spoon in his mouth. He bought some trousers and after wearing them a few days sent them into the factory for a special waistband. Monday a letter came from the factory stating that two $1.00 bills were found in a pocket of the trousers—and the letter contained the two bills.

H. V. Hennen says he can drink more buttermilk at one sitting than any other person of whom he knows. Just as a matter of finding out, The Brand will pay for the buttermilk if anyone wants to meet Mr. Hennen in a public Buttermilk Drinking Contest. Apply at The Brand Office.

Here is one to equal the peach acres that cropped up this year. Mrs. Paul Radovich has just finished gathering Concord grapes from her vines in Hereford. This gathering marked the second abundant yield from the vines this year.

When Tom Major's right hand man did a sky-wiring stunt with an airplane Wednesday, it filled the streets with spectators—and resulted in general speculation among those who viewed the stunt.

Karl Shirley was made a Star Scout, the next rank above First Class. The following members of the Court of Honor were present: Ralph Smith, chairman, John McLean, A. A. Foster, W. R. Dunlap and Rev. J. C. Adams.

The program will be presented by the Hereford Society, and will feature a three-act play, "Brotherhood," emphasizing World Peace. Characters for the play are: Richard Petersen, as Bertram, the boy; Nola Margaret Blue, as Helma Blue, his mother; Chilton Foster, as Alan, his father; Lottie Brown, as Margery, his sister; Tom Ricketts, as Jim Overton, the chum; A. Petersen, as Uncle Sam; and Basil McKinley, as the man. Cecil Dunbury.

The Time Has Come To Talk --But Not Of Yesterday

(An Editorial)

Two successful Hereford auction sales in the pavilion here this fall attracted nation-wide interest, and again set cattle breeders to wondering why this area ever slipped from its pinnacle in the domain of thoroughbred cattle.

Results of sales this year were two-fold. Most important, perhaps, is the fact that breeders over the entire country again saw some of the world's finest livebred Herefords emerge from a seclusion of several years. On the other hand, breeders in this vicinity are awakening to the opportunity which lies before them.

During the past two weeks numerous individual breeders have expressed a hope for the return of interest in Herefords of this section. Some of them are already talking about an Association Sale next spring.

There is no other factor that will help cattle interests and the community in general like a big Association Sale in the pavilion here next spring. Such a sale to many communities might not be wise, but in Hereford it will not be new; in addition to some of the finest cattle in the world, Hereford has a pavilion—and Association Sales in past years have placed breeders of this section in a position to manage such a sale competently. Back in days when Hereford was unquestionably king of the cattle world, the Association Sales were the ones which demanded most interest—because buyers were offered choice cattle from a choice section.

Business men and citizens of the community are anxious for another big Association Sale, they will support and boost the sale to the limit. The question of the sale must be decided by Hereford breeders of this area, and the answer should be easier for them than for anyone. An Association Sale will again put this section in the limelight—and when cattle of this area demand world-wide attention, the value of each animal of each breeder will be materially increased.

Now is the time to start on the big sale for next spring. Now is the time to decide whether cattle of this area will again be admired and desired over the entire nation. The present situation is more or less a challenge to breeders of this area; a challenge as to the future of our community.

Will we again put our cattle and our community in the spotlight—or will we be content to sit around and talk about those good old days (gone forever) when buyers from all over the United States came here to buy the best thoroughbred cattle in the world?

ALLOTMENT OF $45,000 IS MADE TO BUY ELECTRICAL GOODS

With 65 miles of rural power lines complete, contractors today said that only 15 miles south of the tracks remained to be finished before the first 80-mile project would be finished. Work was practically at a standstill on the remaining 15 miles, because several changes have been submitted to the government and the lines cannot be constructed until government approval is received on the changes.

Wait On Sub-Station
The chief hold-up on the power project at the present time is the sub-station, and even after the entire 80-mile project is complete no power will be available until the sub-station is finished. Although money has been allotted for the sub-station and general plans have been approved, no contract has yet been let. Officers of the Deaf Smith Cooperative have contacted the REA office in Washington, this week in an effort to expedite letting of a contract on the sub-station. The station, when complete, will serve the first project of 80 miles as well as the second project of 96 1/2 miles. A letting on the sub-station is hoped for within the next 10 days.

Seek More Lines
Like the sub-station, the 96 1/2 mile project also remains to be let to contract; this strip has also inspection of the proposed lakesite, just west of town.

One of the chief topics of the banquet will be a movement toward securing a million-dollar beet sugar factory at Hereford. The present status of the proposed dam and lake for the community will also be discussed at length at the meeting.

Among outstanding speakers who have already accepted invitations to attend the meeting is John McCarty, editor of the Amarillo News. Mr. McCarty will speak on general co-operation and the opportunity which lies before Hereford and its territory.

Annual Drive By Red Cross Passes Quota

RURAL COMMUNITIES TO SWELL TOTAL TO $380 MARK

With 315 members already registered and a total of $380 on hand in Red Cross subscriptions, Ray Conaway, roll call chairman, today said that several communities still had not reported, but that the Deaf Smith County chapter had passed its quota of 300 members for 1937.

"The 315 members this year shows an increase of 63 members over the 252 members last year," he said, "and when the remainder of the communities report the total will be materially increased for this year."

Increased membership in the Hereford area this year was attributed directly to the splendid co-operation from rural communities and from farm families over this section. Hereford proper responded with about the same number of memberships as in 1936, the report said, and practically all of the increase came from the rural section; Red Cross leaders expressed much praise for the fine spirit of co-operation in every portion of the area.

Local SCS Work Is Reviewed By National Heads

Expressing approval of the entire Soil Conservation Service and Conservancy district work in Hereford area, a group of national and regional SCS supervisors toured the district here Saturday, Nov. 18. While the regular SCS project and work under Lee Morgan both brought much praise, the leaders were most enthusiastic over the pasture furrowing developments on the local project.

Those from Washington, D. C., who made the tour were: Walter V. Kell, William Hull, John F. Preston and John S. Barnes; from the regional office were Cy Luker, Fred Newport, W. L. Cowan and R. C. Nelson. Judge C. W. Humble of Amarillo, County Judge Earl W. Wilson, O. T. Williams, local SCS manager, and Lee Morgan, Conservancy district manager, were also among those who made the tour. During the morning the group toured the SCS project, and during the afternoon, they inspected the Conservancy district.

New Herd Bull Brought Here By Elmer Dameron

Scheduled to arrive today or Friday, Advance Domino 111th, of the Mousel Bros. herd at Cambridge, Neb., will be added as herd bull to the W. E. Dameron herd of livebred Herefords.

Advance Domino was purchased from the Mousel herd recently by Mr. Dameron and Rat Jowell, who made a special trip to Nebraska to select the bull. Mr. Dameron feels that the new bull will be a valuable addition to his herd, because he is from the Donna Anna cow family and sired by the famous Advance Domino.

The purchase of the bull marks a continued interest in Herefords in this area following two big sales this fall. Advance Domino 111th is the first bull of note to be added to herds in this area in recent years.

CONSTIPATED 30 YEARS
"For thirty years I had stubborn constipation, awful gas bloating, headaches and pains in the back. Adierka helped right away. Now, I eat sausage, bananas, etc., anything I want and never feel better."—Mrs. Mabel Schott. City Drug Store. adv.

The Santa Fe, in 1936, paid out more than 125 millions of dollars for materials and supplies, fuel, wages and salaries, and other items of operating expense, in the eleven states in which it operates. The amount assignable to each state was as follows:

Illinois	$ 8,600,282	Louisiana	$ 137,989
Iowa	1,086,406	Colorado	4,865,701
Missouri	8,197,033	New Mexico	15,111,396

Family United First Time In Fourteen Years

A. H. OWEN CLAN MEETS AT ROBERSON HOME ON THANKSGIVING DAY

For the first time in 14 years the A. H. Owen family were united in a reunion held here Thanksgiving Day, at the Jack Roberson home. Fourteen years ago, the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Owen was celebrated with a reunion at Chickasha, Okla. The affair was arranged in honor of A. H. Owen, father and grandfather of the group, who is eighty-five years old.

After attending Thanksgiving services at the Baptist Church, when a son, Rev. Hope Owen of Quanah, occupied the pulpit, the entire group assembled at the Roberson home. The Thanksgiving dinner was served from long tables decorated with autumn leaves and pumpkin baskets overflowing with ruddy fruit.

In the afternoon a program was enjoyed with Mrs. P. H. Gilliland acting as master of ceremonies. Each family represented a stunt for the entertainment of the other members of the group. A poem, "Under the Old Apple Tree," read by Mrs. Art Manjeot of Elida, N. M., brought to mind many memories and was dedicated to the family. Mrs. Gilliland concluded the family program with Rudyard Kipling's famous poem, "When Earth's Last Picture Was Painted."

Rev. W. E. Barnes, a guest, entertained with several humorous readings. In the evening a variety of games furnished entertainment. All of the eleven children were present except one son, W. G. Farm Payments Slated To Begin In December

STATE OFFICE DECLARES CHECKS TO BE MADE AT 3,000 DAILY

COLLEGE STATION—The Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee expects payments under the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program to start shortly after the first of December, according to Geo. Slaughter, Wharton, chairman of the group.

The committee, in the course of its monthly meeting at Texas A. & M. College, indicated that most of the payments would be made in December, January and February.

"The state AAA office here at College Station is equipped to check applications and to pass them on to the General Accounting Office at the rate of 3,000 a day," Slaughter said. "This means that the limiting factor in paying farmers and ranch men is the number of applications which we receive from the counties."

No payments can be made to any county until it has sent in at least 75 per cent of its total applications, according to Slaughter. This minimum has been set as the lowest figure from which the county expenses of administering the program can be calculated. The county expenses are deducted from the payments.

The committee took steps to urge counties to send in their applications for payments as soon as possible. Meanwhile the committee pointed out that farmers had until December 31 to earn payments under the 1937 program by sowing soil building crops, especially winter legumes, and by carrying out other conservation programs.

"Texas farmers earned only about four and a half million dollars in payments out of more than six million allotted to the state under the 1936 program," Slaughter said.

FOOTBALL to BASKET BALL

Well! Well! Football season is over. Although the season was not so successful as to scores against other teams, the good done in developing the students physically, is worth the defeats taken in the sport.

No sooner is one season over than another takes its place. The boys of the Adrian High School started practicing basket ball Monday, Nov. 22. It is hoped that the number of games won in basket ball will be higher than that in football. The boys have a brand new basket ball to start the season.

The Wildcat team is progressing quite rapidly, and they are feeling that they will win the game slated for Saturday, Dec. 4, with Amarillo Mavericks on Butler Field.

Volley Ball Practice Begins

The physical education girls finished their tennis tournament last week and decided to start volley ball practice. They began their practice Monday, November 22, with seventeen girls ready and eager to play. The girls are: Mesdames Phillips, Nadine Whitestone, Roselee Morris, Lonella Fortenberry, Sarah Calhoun, Lottie Zaring, Roxie Blasingame, Mildred Miller, Neoma Reynolds, Jean Spande, Florene Ross, Norma Hetzler, Opal Miller, Matsy Walker, Freda Balding, Wilma Fincher and Fern Pittman.

Miss Lora Fay Clemons is the coach again this year. The girls will not select their captain and co-captain until later.

Scout Meeting

The boys present at the Scout Meeting Monday night, Nov. 22, were: Buddy Chapman, Jim Morris, George Worsham, Bobby Speed, J. J. Carter, and Clifford Chapman. The group started by playing a game. After the game Glenn Howard and Clifford Chapman gave the group some pointers on drill. They found this a little hard to learn, but they mastered some of the fundamental pointers. Glenn Howard had charge of the group in the absence of Mr. Baker, who was directing the P. T. A. play. The group pledged Allegiance to the Flag and then were dismissed. The Scouts have missed Mr. Baker since he has been working on the play, but they have continued their work despite his absence.

Taylor's Visit Adrian

Lois and Margaret Taylor came back to Adrian for the Thanksgiving holidays. Margaret was editor of the Adrian Sandstorm last year, and Lois was president of the Freshman class. They have planned to stay until Tuesday. Margaret is editor of the Roy High School newspaper, "The Lasso." Her first paper was printed this week on a mimeograph. Lois made a straight "A" card, the only one in the Roy High School, out of 130 students. Margaret plans to take journalism on through college. Lois and Margaret are staying with Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Jacobson.

School Dismisses

The Adrian High School dismissed for Thanksgiving, Wednesday, No. 24, to take up Monday. This was done in order that some of the students and teachers could visit friends and relatives during the Thanksgiving vacation.

P. T. A. Presents Play

Tuesday night, November 22, the P. T. A. presented their annual play, entitled "That Watkins Girl." The cast was carefully selected, and everyone successfully carried his role. This credit goes to director, Mr. Baker, and to the members of the cast, who worked diligently in the preparation of the play. Almost every one of the Adrian community was present, but those who were unable to come still have two chances. The P. T. A. is to give the play to Yarn and Wilcox on Dec. 3 and 5 respectively.

The proceeds from the play will be used to buy new library books and other necessities for the school.

Here They Are!

It has been decided to publish some of the seniors' poems. They are altogether original, and for a group of amateurs they are very good. Some of the authors refused at first to allow their poems to be published, but finally they were won over to the idea. The following poems were composed by Dorothy Spande, Olaf Bohannon, and Frank Fortenberry, respectively. Two of the poems will probably be published in next week's paper.

To the Monarch of the Glen
There, thou standest like a mighty king,
Oh, Monarch of the dark green wooded glen;
While all the birds of heaven sing,
All this lovely forest denizen.

In the forest, there thou eatest
Of the beautiful sweet green grass;
There, thou from thine enemy retreatest;
There, thou drinkest water clear as glass.

Whither doth thou go, O King?
With thy bristling antlers to protect thee
From the harm thine enemies do bring?
"Off to the purple shaded mountain," say ye?

Backyard Neighbors

Yes, they are the ones whom we loan eggs and flour,
They are the ones with whom the the kids stay by the hour.
Yes, they are the ones who never bar the door,
They are the ones who make life worth living evermore.

Yes, they are the ones with whom we argue and fuss,
They are the ones with whom we are friendly and cuss.
Yes, they are the ones that when it's all said and done,
We often long to see, so we can have our fun.

Dreams

Some dreams are beautiful
But some are dreadful things,
Though I am kind and dutiful,
Sometimes a bad dream to me wins.

How oft I lie awake at night;
I fear to go to sleep,
Lest dreams that are not bright
Drag me into the deep.

And when the bad ones come,
It's worse than tales of torment;
Great gears and wide wheels run
Me till my strength is spent.

I try to get away from them,
But they're ever at my heel;
They're grinding, growing,
groaning, grim—
Clutching with claws of steel.

And now I breathe a prayer
To my maker above,
To move dreams of despair
And bring the dreams I love.

Ike's Cafe Now Restaurant Name

Announcement was made this week that the De Luxe Cafe, located on the highway at Main Street, will be changed to Ike's Cafe in the future. The announcement was made by Ike and Buford Crosshwait, who said that they will continue to feature day and night service in the location. "So many people call the cafe Ike's, that we just decided to switch to that name," the managers said, and they announced their intention of advertising the cafe over the Panhandle.

BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

We had a splendid service last Sunday morning at a lead-off service for our Every-Member Campaign. The pastor preached on tithing and 52 members signed tithers cards. At the B. T. U. assembly hour of five, more signed. The church recognize that tithing is God's plan for financing his kingdom's work.

Next Sunday is Volunteer Pledge day. We are hoping that every member of our church and Sunday School will be prepared to sign and turn in their pledge for the support of our work next year. Let's make it a great day of Stewardship.

The pastor plans to preach Sunday morning on "Self Before Substance." At the evening hour the subject will be "A Cry of Faith and Joy."

Eighty-one attended a part of the Stewardship revival services last week and there was an average attendance of about 50. The ten periods spent in studying Stewardship were well worth while. We wish you might have been with us.

W. E. BARNES, pastor.

ANNUAL GET-TOGETHER HELD

An annual-neighborhood gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ham, Sunday.

The Thanksgiving custom was established fifteen years ago, when friends and neighbors gathered together to observe the National holiday. Since that time, at some time during the Thanksgiving season, a Thanksgiving dinner has been enjoyed by the neighborhood group, when covered dishes were brought for the dinner at noon and the entire day was spent visiting with each other.

During the period of years Mr. and Mrs. Tice have been absent from the annual celebration but twice and at the gathering Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Boyd were present after being away for eight years. Those present Sunday were Messrs. and Mesdames A. Lowther, J. E. Gatlin, Britt Boyd, L. E. Tice, J. L. Marshall, Roy Rogers, Buford Fellers, C. E. Gatlin, C. E. Tice, Mrs. W. R. Schlegel, Ernest Schlegel, J. L. Bailey, Mrs. W. E. Upton and daughters, Marvel and Juanita, Harold Smith and three children, Frankie Whitaker, Charlene Brown and the hosts.

"Lost Horizon" Opens Sunday At Star Theatre

"Lost Horizon," Frank Capra's production fohtesemaJetaoinmhm production of the James Hilton novel will show for a three-day run at the Star Theatre, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 5-7, it was today announced by John Roberts, manager.

Ronald Coleman has the starring role and Jane Wyatt, Sam Jaffe, Isabel Jewell and Edward Horton head the supporting cast.

Coleman is cast as a well-known British diplomat who is kidnaped by Tibetan tribesmen and, after a wild airplane flight over the towering crags of the Himalayas, is set down at the gates of a hidden lamasery.

Coleman and his party then embark on the strangest adventure of their lives. The lamasery, they find, is a place of perpetual summer, whose inmates, cultured and worldly-wise, have found the secret of perfect living. Coleman, secretly selected to take the place of the high priest, an incredibly ancient philosopher who is about to leave the world, enters wholeheartedly into the extraordinary life of the community and his enthusiasm is such that, after having been unwillingly returned to civilization, he fights his way back over the ice fields that separate Shangri-La from the outside world.

CHICK BROODER IS PURCHASED

A chick brooder of 1000 chick capacity, was recently purchased by the Hereford F. F. A.

This brooder will enable them to carry out one of their objectives for this year, namely, to raise 500 fryers for the market.

Mr. Emmons, who bought the brooder, said that the chicks could be raised almost to market size right in the brooder, as it has different shelves for different stages in their growth.

STUDENT COUNCIL MEETS

The Student Council met November 22. The minutes were read and several things were brought before the Council. Everyone is urged to turn in something to the Student Council, as well as the Student Council members reporting to their class. One discussion brought before the Council was, whether it would be advantageous to put a bulletin board on the first floor instead of writing everything on the bulletin board in the study hall.

Star Engraving Company Visited

While in Houston at the State Teachers' Association meeting, Mr. Dillehay was fortunate enough to go through the Star Engraving plant with which the Seniors have had ring dealings. This was a very interesting and instructive trip. Mr. Dillehay did not know that there is a ring order there now, or he would have tried to make them speed up operations.

Students may be interested to learn that the former art and writing teacher, Miss Ruth Dozier, is now head of the Art Department of the Teachers' College in Nacogdoches. Mr. Dillehay also saw Miss Gladys Hicks, a former English teacher, who is now Dean of Women at Howard Payne College of Brownwood. The old Hereford influence, eh? Incidentally, that new coliseum building must have been a bit drafty because Mr. Dillehay returned with a bad cold! Also incidentally, Houston is a city of 292,000 population which claims 400,000 and Dallas is a city of 290,000. Therefore, Houston is larger than Dallas.

The Hereford girls' basketball team played and won their first game this year. They smothered Farwell, at Farwell, 39 to 17 last Friday night.

The girls piled up a score the first few minutes of play never to be overtaken. Hereford had such a lead by the end of the first half, that Coach Muller sent in his second string for the third and part of the fourth periods. The second string held their own with Farwell, at that. When the first string was sent in again they were beginning to click to raise the score when the game ended.

Russell and Atchley had 13 points each to tie for high point girl. Lovelady was not far behind, however.

The line-ups:
Hereford — forwards, Russell, Lovelady and Atchley; guards, Snyder, Cawthon and Whitehead.
Farwell — forwards, Anderson, W. Randall, McGraham; guards, McCoy, Rushing and M. Randall.

Mr. Dillehay Attends State Teachers Association Meeting In Houston

To Play Vega And Wayside

The girls' and boys' basketball teams are scheduled to go to Vega Friday night to compete with the teams there. Saturday night Wayside meets Hereford in the local gymnasium. Both games will start about 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. Muller stated he was very well satisfied with the work the girls are doing; although he said they had more details to work out before meeting those two teams this week end. These games will be the first for the boys. They have practiced just a few days. Only four of the boys who lettered last year are back again.

We want our teams to go far this year and they can if they know that we, the students of Hereford High, are back of them. We are proud of the victory the girls won last week and expect many more like it.

Superintendent C. H. Dillehay spent his Thanksgiving holidays attending the meeting of the State Teachers' Association in Houston. This is a meeting held annually at this time and is an organization of all the teachers in the state.

Mr. Dillehay left here Tuesday afternoon after school and arrived in Houston in time for the first meeting. At the business session, the association changed the plan of organization and the constitution to provide for delegate assembly plan of control.

Programs were given Thursday and Friday morning and nights and Saturday morning. Newspapers claimed that 15,000 teachers were present at this convention. This is the largest number ever recorded for the association. Among the out-of-state speakers on the program were: President W. B. Buzzell of Oklahoma University; Dean Russell, of the Teachers College of Columbia University in New York, N. Y., and President Garrison of the George Peabody College for teachers, of Nashville, Tenn. Governor Alfred was also scheduled to speak.

A new president of the association was elected. He is Superintendent J. H. Brister of Waco. The past president is President A. W. Birdwell of the Stephen F. Austin College of Nacogdoches. Supt. Brister is a personal friend of long standing of Mr. Dillehay's.

After the program, Friday, the sectional superintendents had a luncheon at the San Jacinto Inn, adjoining the San Jacinto battlefield and the Houston ship channel. The association meeting was held at the new Coliseum, which is as yet, unfinished. The 1938 meeting of the State Teachers Association will be held in Dallas.

Let All Of The World Be Brothers

Let all the world be brothers,
And forever live in peace.
Let all of the world be brothers:
Let all of the battles cease.
Let us silence the guns of battle
And also the war alarms.
If all the world were brothers,
We would never again shout,
"To Arms!"
If all the world were brothers,
Then happy we would be.
For we would all know the others—
Both here and across the sea.

Carl Spratt, grade school principal and band director in the Stratford public schools, spent the Thanksgiving holidays here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Spratt.

"Because I know that something dreadful has happened to him, Patricia quavered.

"What makes you think he's had some accident?" Warren asked, cruelly indifferent to her misery over Craig.

"I think so because those Chiwaughinis are gone too, Warren. They disappeared at the same time he did. That wasn't any coincidence! Lupe hates Craig. Lupe has been trying half the winter to kill him. Where are those metas now?"

"My dear, I haven't the faintest idea."

"But they're your men. Surely you know where they are."

"I do not know!" Warren insisted, warily refusing to commit himself. "They often go away on little trips without consulting me. I presume that they've gone fishing, somewhere or other." He finished his tea, set the cup down. "No, no more, thank you. I have to go now."

"Warren, don't! Listen to me!" Patricia pleaded. His stoniness made her frantic. "You've got to help me, Warren! It's a question of saving Craig's life. Those Chiwaughinis are holding him prisoner somewhere. Lupe will kill him, unless you intervene. I—I'm the cause—Lupe hates him because of me. I brought all this on Craig, and now I've got to save him. Before I'll let him get killed, I'll do anything. I'll go away, I'll go back to Chicago, I'll promise not to see Craig any more. Every time that I've depended on you, Warren, you've let me down. Don't let me down this time."

Warren looked at her through the smoke of his cigarette. "You say you'll do anything. Just how much of that do you really mean?"

Patricia went taut, quivering. She had broken down Warren's indifference! She had drawn him one step toward the trap.

"I mean all of it! If I leave, Lupe won't have any cause to kill Craig. I'll start for Smith tomorrow morning. I'll get back home as fast as a plane can take me. If you'll only send word to Lupe."

Warren toyed with a spoon, cautiously choosing every word of his reply.

"You may be right, dear, in thinking that the Chiwaughinis abducted Tarlton and are holding him a prisoner somewhere. I don't know. You are surely right in thinking that Lupe hates him because of you. Therefore I should say that the thing for you to do, if you really want to save Tarlton's life, is to convince Lupe absolutely that you've given Tarlton up."

"How can I convince him? Tell me!"

"Shall I advise you, dear?"

"Yes, yes!" Patricia begged. She knew that under cover of that word "advise" Warren was going to deliver his terms.

"I believe," he said, with a seriousness that was maddening to her, "that Lupe would not be convinced by any mere promises, especially now that Rosalie is dead and Tarlton is free to marry you. I believe he would demand some absolute guarantee of your sincerity. Your willingness to return to Chicago is all right, as far as it goes, but in this situation it hardly goes far enough. In my opinion"—he dropped his cigarette into his tea tray—"there is only one earthly way for you to convince Lupe. It's drastic, but then . . ."

"What is it? I'll do it!"

Warren said slowly: "Your friend Northrup is a magistrate. He can issue a marriage license and perform the ceremony. If you and I should be married, here at the Bay, at once, and then you should go back to Chicago as announced by Patricia Lovett. I rather believe that Lupe would be entirely satisfied. Nothing short of that would do."

Patricia drew back, shocked and incredulous. She had never imagined that Warren would drive so merciless a bargain. Or so preposterous a bargain. Didn't he realize that she would never live with him? That she would divorce him the instant she could?

But then she looked deeper into his ultimatum and saw that instead of being preposterous his bargain was a shrewd far-seeing play, based on the blunt realities of the months ahead. His marriage to her, however, it might be, would give him a heavy advantage in his battle against Russell Backes. After that—when he had her in Chicago, had the firm in his grasp again, had control of the Wellington interests and her family's fortune—he could just about dictate his terms to her.

Warren saw how she recoiled from the thought of marrying him. "You don't seem to like my advice," he snapped. Formerly he would have argued patiently, but now he was sharp and hard. "All right, don't take it!" He got up to go.

Patricia caught his arm. She was panicky with defeat. "Warren, please—I haven't refused—I will take it! I promise, here, now—if you'll only send word to Lupe. Won't you do that? Promise me you'll send word to Lupe."

"I don't promise anything," he shook Patricia's hand from his arm and started for the door. "If and when you've followed my advice, I might help you, but not before. If you haven't changed your mind by tomorrow morning about going back to Chicago with me, if you're still willing to be married as I suggested, you might come over to my cabin and let me know."

Moments afterward, Dennis Northrup stepped from behind a portiere in the corner where Patricia hung her clothes.

"Damn all," he remarked glumly, "that man is a shrewd devil! He actually delivered his ultimatum to you without incriminating himself by one single word."

Patricia did not answer. She had slumped sobbing at her abject failure to save Craig.

"Don't give up, partner," Northrup attempted encouragement. "We'll try Lovett again. We'll get him the next time."

CHAPTER XVII

A while later Patricia roused herself and wandered out into the cool night air. Her cheeks burned with fever; she felt sick and a little giddy. In the cabin she had cried her heart out over the wreckage of all her plans, all her happy castles; and a numb hopelessness had settled upon her.

Wandering aimlessly in the darkness, she found a pine tree, leaned weakly against it and plucked at its rough bark with her fingers, oblivious to everything except the numbing anguish in her heart.

In a dazed way she realized that she and Craig had lost their long bitter fight, the men had lost this mining field, and Craig's splendid ambition for the years ahead was now only a dead dream. Out of the wreckage there was but one thing which might possibly be salvaged, and that was Craig's very life.

She doubted whether she could save even that. She was no match for Warren. Corporal Northrup, for all his experience with crime, was entirely outclassed. Except for her surrender to Warren's ultimatum, she had no power left of any sort.

Even if she did give in to that unthinkable bargain, Warren would likely doublecross her. She put no faith in any promise from him. He hated Craig with a primitive jealous hatred.

Through her numbed thoughts ran Warren's sentence of two weeks ago, "The guilt will lie with you!" By a mere word then she could have saved all this disaster. And she had refused. The guilt did lie with her. She should have taken Warren's offer and gone back to Chicago. If Craig should be murdered, because of her refusal . . . It was horrible to think of!

Over at the community house, 30 yards away, the windows and doors had been flung open. For some reason the usual droning hum of conversation was stilled. Inside, a person was talking. His voice was raised a little, as though he was making some sort of speech to the men.

Occasionally, as he paused, Patricia heard a low rumble from the listeners, a muffled outburst of surprise, or anger, or both; but the noise always died down quickly as the man took up his speech again.

The voice sounded to her like Warren's. She stopped plucking at the bark and listened. The voice was Warren's.

Unable to make out what he was saying, she left the pine and stumbled nearer the community house.

A few distinguishable words came drifting out to her then: "Tarlton—radium lake—disappearance—"

In spite of her faintness she knew that Warren was putting across some bold stroke with those prospectors. He must have gone straight from her cabin to the Den. This must be the "something important" which he had mentioned, with elation in his tones.

The tense quiet of the prospectors sounded ominous to her, but even more ominous were those rumbling outbursts whenever Warren paused. She had heard that same ugly ground-swell once before—on the March night when Phil Kessler betrayed the men and skipped their wrath.

In alarm she started around toward the main door, to find out what Warren's move was and to fight it.

In the entrance-way she stopped and looked across the main room. A strange scene confronted her. At the far side of the Den, over next the kitchen, Warren was standing on an up-ended drum of kerosene, talking to the prospectors. They had crowded up close to him and were listening intently. In his hand he held a sheaf of papers, documents of some kind.

He had evidently been talking to the group a considerable time, for he was bringing his speech to an end when she came in.

Over the heads of the miners Patricia could hear his sharp words distinctly. He spoke in a curt emotionless way that was more devastating than any bombast or ranting.

"For almost a year," he said, "Tarlton has kept you men here, without money or clothes or anything except empty promises. He persuaded you, if not indeed browbeat you, into not selling me your claims. Now what has he himself done? You've heard that he discovered a pitchblende lake. That's true. He did. You've heard that he sold it for a good-sized fortune. That is also true. He did sell it. But to whom? Why, to me! He sold that radium deposit to Wellington, Parkes & Lovett, whom he supposedly has been fighting all along . . . What's that?—you want proof? I have the proof here. Here are the claim papers. Look at them for yourself. Then go up to the government land office and examine the official transfer record. He kept you men from selling your claims to me, but when his chance comes he sneaks across the river and secretly sells me his!"

The huge red-headed miner seized the claim papers and thumbed them hastily.

"My God!" he bawled out to the others. "These is Tarlton's papers to that lake! Lovett's telling us the truth. Tarlton did sell to the company, like Lovett says."

"Did Tarlton tell you," Warren asked, "that he sold the lake to me?"

No one answered. The men looked around at one another, open-mouthed, blank of face. They were stunned. Tarlton had sold to the company and had told them nothing about the deal! It was unbelievable of Tarlton. But they had to believe it. There were the incriminating papers, the proof positive.

"Now, I'm not denying that Tarlton has done you men some good turns and that he's had some good schemes in his head about welding you all together into a prospectors' syndicate or something of that sort. But when it comes to handing across a quarter of a million of his own money, his fancy ideas couldn't quite stand the strain. Let me ask you something else—Where is he now?"

Again that blank open-mouthed silence.

"Well," Warren answered his own question, "I suppose I'll have to tell you where he is. Three evenings ago he came over to my cabin and we signed these papers. Fifteen minutes later he dropped out of sight. No one, not even Miss Patricia, has heard of him since. He skipped! Exactly as Kessler did. That quarter-million went to his head. He took the money and skipped and left you men here holding the bag."

Across the entrance-way a girl's voice rang out:

"Liar! Kidnaper! Doublecrosser! You kidnaped Craig. You're holding him prisoner. You framed him and now you're framing these men!"

The prospectors whirled around and stared at the girl who was screaming the lie at Warren Lovett. As Patricia left the entrance-way she saw an embodiment of passionate fury. Warren called sharply:

"Men! Pay no attention to her wild charges. Tarlton has taken her in too, even worse than he took you. She actually still believes in the fellow! You mustn't blame her for anything she says or does. Poor girl, she's beside herself."

Patricia cut her way through the crowd, leaped upon a chair near where Warren stood, and faced the men, her eyes flashing fire.

"Lies! Lies! Lies! Every word he's told you is a damnable lie! I tell you he kidnaped Craig. Those Chiwaughinis have got Craig somewhere. They'll kill Craig if you don't do something about it. Get that man there"—she leveled her arm at Warren—"and make him tell where Craig is."

No one moved. The men merely stared at her. The very wildness and passion of her charges made them turn deaf ears to what she said. Their belief in Craig had been shattered. Their god had fallen.

Warren shook his head sorrowfully. "Don't blame her, men," he repeated. "She has really meant to be your honest friend, all along."

"Don't let Craig down!" Patricia pleaded with them. "Don't let those half-breeds kill him!" The stony disbelief of the crowd maddened her. She was flinging herself, against a rock wall, "Help me save Craig. He's helped you, saved you; and now, in his need, you—you . . . Oh God, you're letting him down—and he'll be killed—"

"You're a liar!" Patricia flashed back. But in the next breath she was pleading: "Don't let Craig be murdered. You can make Warren Lovett tell where Craig is, and we can send out a rescue party—"

Someone laughed derisively. The rest took up the laugh. They jeered at the notion of "helping" or "rescuing" a man who had sold them out and skipped with a quarter-million dollars.

Patricia suddenly hated all of them, with a flaming hatred. She forgot Craig's large-voiced words to her last winter. "Don't blame the poor devils, Treeshia; they're not to blame if they give in." They were suddenly not her friends but ingrates and enemies.

"Get out of here!" she stormed at them. "Get out of this house! It's my house. Get your packs and move out. Get back to your lousy tents and the mud and wet and cold that I lifted you out of!"

They paid no attention to her. A dozen or more were crowding around Warren, trying to talk sell-out terms with him. Another dozen were making for the main door, to be the first across the river and in line to sell.

One man did growl sullenly: "I'll live here as long as I blasted please! Try'n make me move out."

Patricia jumped down from the chair. Mind with rage. They thought she was helpless, did they? Thought they'd stay in her house, after they'd let her down and refused to save Craig's life? She'd show them! She'd get them out of there! Of what use, anyway, was this house now? In a few days it would be empty, tenanted—a mockery of her and Craig's unselfish battle.

Her knees wobbled as she ran over to a corner of the Den and grabbed an ax and ran back to the drum of kerosene. She smashed at the drum—furious, vengeful blows. The liquid gushed out upon the pine-slab flooring.

"Hey!" a man yelled. "She's crazy! She's going to set this place on fire!"

Before they could stop her, Patricia whirled to the nearest table, seized a lamp, flung it at the pool of kerosene.

To get to ride in a new car, one must observe all punctuation. A period becomes a stop signal, a comma, a slow sign, and an exclamation point a fire signal. A driver runs off the road if he fails to pronounce his words correctly. If he loses his place, it amounts to being on the wrong side of the road or getting lost. So as travelers, they are all trying to ride in new cars.

A Long Time Ago In School

Ah, dear art and writing students, you never thought that Miss Ruth Dozier, art and writing instructor in 1932, would ever be head of the Art Department of Stephen F. Austin College in Nacogdoches (we hope), now did you?

These before and after advertisements might apply to these pictures of Mr. Dillehay and Mr. Hudson, in case you have not figured them out.

The Agriculture class of 1926 won 33 prizes that season at the Tri-State Fair. But they did not have any new Chick Brooders, though Mr. Riggs had a new Ford, and Imogene Wilson was casually remarking that she washed her feet last Saturday.

These were some of the remarks which were uttered when Mr. McCollum permitted the Sophomores to see the class picture, Wednesday, November 24, during class meeting. Although the Sophomores do not believe it, they evidently were posed in the identical way which is shown in the picture.

Mary Jane Morgan spent Thanksgiving in the noble city of Muleshoe, visiting her sister. Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dillehay and daughters, spent the holidays out of town. Mr. and Mrs. Dillehay went to Houston and Doris Elaine and Virginia Ann were in Decatur.

en to the theatre in the afternoon. After the show they were treated at Brooks' Drug. Mac Noland is working for Carl Frye, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Heisman and children of Vega, were visitors in the Louie Huckert home, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gandy of Vega, were in the J. B. Ogleby home, Sunday. A number of parents enjoyed the Thanksgiving program consisting of a play and several readings, Wednesday. The children were talk-

NOT A WALK-OUT

"Aw, gee! That's too bad." "Come on, guy, don't leave us flat." "Say, can't you stay just a little longer?" No, this was not a walk-out in a tire factory, but Johnnie Willett let it be known that he was moving away and such remarks flowed with not surprising accuracy, because after all, Johnnie was just "the bestest" little assistant editor!

The staff members presented Johnnie with a watch, as a tribute of their appreciation for the work he has done.

TO MISS RIGLER
Miss Rigler is my English teacher; I shall not want another. She adviseth me to study—my lessons; she sendeth me to the office.

She hurtheth my pride. She leadeth me in the paths of English for her pay check. Yea, though I study hard to pass, I cannot do so. Thy red pencil and low grades, they discomfort me.

A PRAYER

Time For The Worm To Turn

It is now time again for school students to turn over a new leaf or page, or maybe a book. Six weeks' tests came in like a lamb and ended like a lion, for some people. The holidays should have been a good rest for everyone and preparation for the shock of test papers, Monday.

Whether students are prepared or not, this next six weeks must be faced. If this last one was a failure, and the one before it, this next one will determine the semester grade. As you probably know, the first semester average very often determines the last semester average. So, dear Watson, heed the waving red signal, or letter as it may be. Wise men profit by the mistakes they made before, you know.

Are you very wise?
A PEEP INTO OUR NEIGHBOR'S YARD

Some people never get anywhere because they haven't got a pull. Others because they haven't got a push.

What a boy doesn't think of isn't worth thinking of, and most of what he does isn't either.

It's the kind of guy the guy is that makes him look like what he looks like.

With all this talk coming from the old folks that the younger generation has no respect for their elders, it might be observed that as a rule, the young folks respect their elders as long as said elders are respectable.

C-C Banquet

to present some valuable information to potential growers in this area.

Expect 250 Attendance

Tickets for the banquet will be released in the near future through the Chamber of Commerce office. Present plans are to sell 100 tickets to business men and residents of Hereford — and each local man will be asked to purchase an extra ticket, and to bring a farmer as his guest to the banquet. Tickets will also be available to farmers of this territory, and those who wish may buy single or may purchase them in pairs and bring some neighbor to the banquet.

"We are anxious to have a good representation of both farmers and business men at the banquet," said H. V. Hennen, Chamber of Commerce secretary. "We have gone to considerable trouble and expense to secure the large delegation of outside visitors. We believe, after they view the vast possibilities offered through irrigation and rural electrification that they will boost and help us build this area. At the present time we are anxious to secure the proposed lake for this area, and to make the first steps toward securing a beet sugar plant."

County Judge Earl W. Wilson said that the county will also welcome the delegation and will defray expenses of guests at the banquet.

The banquet will be held in the basement of the Baptist Church and will be served by ladies of the church.

the things they want to their brother or sister or to their mother or daddy—and the sooner they mail or bring them to The Brand office, the better it will please me." Old Santa chuckled again, and his voice just bubbled with enthusiasm as he added, "I know that there are lots of good little boys and girls down there, and I want everyone of them to write me, and tell them to be sure and put their names at the bottom of their letters."

Old Santa then made arrangements with The Brand to print the letters right in the paper. He asked for them to be printed in the issue of Dec. 16, but said that they would sure have to be in the office by Dec. 11, for that issue. The rest are to be printed Dec. 23, and should be in the office by Dec. 15; absolutely none will be accepted after Dec. 18.

"So tell them to all write, but to be sure and write as soon as possible," he said—and right then he had to hang up, because Prancer and Blitzen, two of his best reindeers, were hungry for their breakfast.

been approved by the government and money has been set aside for its construction. A letting is also expected on this project in the near future.

The 65-mile stretch of lines which has been completed is located north of the tracks, and transformers have been set on practically all of the stretch. When the sub-station is completed, this portion of the lines will be ready to furnish power to rural residents who have their homes wired and their electric motors ready for pumping.

Funds For Wiring

A notice from Washington this week informed H. V. Hennen, local REA supervisor, that an allotment of $45,000 has been made to the project here for farmers who wish to borrow money with which to wire houses, purchase pumps, electrical appliances or plumbing. Rural users will make a small down payment and borrow additional funds at a low rate of interest from the government. Details may be secured from the Rural Electrification Office in the City Hall.

Santa Coming

Dick Form and Ann Sheridan; also a two-reel comedy, "Meet the Bride."

"The free show is a special holiday attraction," Mr. Roberts said, "and everyone in this territory is invited to attend. It will not interfere with the special kiddies Christmas show, which will also be presented free of charge on the morning of Friday, Dec. 24, at 10 o'clock."

Special Decorations

In keeping with decorations and Christmas trimmings now displayed in stores in Hereford, the City of Hereford will also have special lights and street decorations prior to the big Christmas party here on December 27.

A sack of candy and fruits for every boy and girl who attends the big Christmas party is the aim of sponsors this year, and Hereford merchants have contributed generously to make the occasion this year the greatest in its history. Old Santa will distribute the sacks in person at the tree.
