No injuries in accident

No one was injured when this tractor-trailer rig was struck by a Santa Fe freight train at Summerfield, eight miles southwest of Hereford, on Tuesday afternoon. Rex Torgersen, 42, of Stafford, Kan., said he did not see the train until it was too late, although the crossing is guarded by crossarms and flashing lights. The truck belonged to a Maize, Kan., company.

Clinton promises double-barreled economic attack

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - President-elect Clinton promises to get to work fast on the country's economic woes with a double-barreled program featuring stepped-up spending on investment and credible efforts to cut the budget deficit.

CLINTON

But beyond those vague goals, there are still plenty of details to be worked out. At a news conference Tuesday night, Clinton repeated his pledge to introduce his economic program right after he takes office Jan. 20. But he said he would delay until the last possible moment decisions on the exact makeup of the program.

The advice he received from two days of nonstop public discussions was split on the question of whether the economy needed a quick-fix stimulus program of increased government spending and business tax breaks next year even though such a program would worsen the already huge federal deficit.

Some economists said they still believed a stimulus program ranging from $20 billion to $60 billion was needed because economic growth was likely to remain so sluggish that the unemployment rate will be stuck at high levels.

But other analysts said Clinton should shelve the short-term stimulus package because by the time it gets enacted it won't be needed and it will only hurt the economy by driving up interest rates.

Clinton did not tip his hand on this debate, saying only, "If we decide to go for a stimulus package to modify this fiscal year's budget, I will make the decision on how much as late as I can based on the latest available evidence."

Aides said the president-elect will soon be provided with an option paper laying out various proposals ranging from no stimulus to a middle approach of $20 billion to $40 billion and a high approach of $60 billion. Clinton has emphasized in the past that any such program would focus on increased public works spending and on tax credits to encourage businesses to boost investment spending.

Clinton had no public events scheduled today, although it was thought he was nearing further personnel announcements.

His news conference on the economy came at the conclusion of nearly 20 hours of nonstop, nationally televised discussions Monday and Tuesday in which the president-elect and his 329 invited guests from business, labor and academia explored every nook and cranny of the nation's economic difficulties.

Clinton remained fully engaged during the long hours of discussions, frequently asking questions on a wide range of topics, taking notes and even announcing Tuesday that things were running so far behind schedule that they would skip the lunch break.

During the talks, Clinton seemed to be shifting the emphasis a bit on his program to fix the economy. All during the election campaign, he stressed increased public investments on such things as highways, bridges and communication systems as the way to boost the country's lagging productivity and he promised to overhaul the expensive U.S. health care system.

At the news conference, Clinton said those two proposals were still high on his list. But in a bow to jittery financial markets, he also promised to be equally tough in getting Congress to adopt long-term solutions to the federal budget deficit, which

CSF can help in family disaster

Disaster befell a single mother of three and her family this fall. Their 18-year-old son and brother was shot, and he has been disabled and bed-ridden since.

Expenses for medical care have drained this family's limited income, and Christmas prospects are not bright for this family, which also includes 12 and 17-year-old children.

The mother is holding a prescription for medication for her son which she cannot afford to fill. Her appeal to the community's Christmas Stocking Fund is for help with filling that prescription and for shoes and coats for her other children.

Pressing needs confront many of the community's less fortunate each holiday season, and the stocking fund seeks to address as many of these as donated funds will allow. CSF is administered by anonymous volunteers who screen and review applications and see to it that donated funds are expended for their intended purpose.

Contributions to CSF may be made at The Hereford Brand, 313 N. Lec. or they may be mailed to CSF in care of The Brand at Box 673, Hereford.

Troops cheered by Somalians

BAIDOA, Somalia (AP) - Jubilant Somalis and relief workers cheered the arrival of U.S. and French troops in this desperate town today, expecting them to end a looters' reign of terror that has kept food from the starving.

Relief workers, many of whom had complained the Marines were too slow in coming, said they would now increase staff in Baidoa. They prepared for an influx of hundreds of tons of food with the Marines there to ensure the safety of the 160-mile road from Mogadishu and secure Baidoa's airfield for cargo planes.

In Mogadishu today, the United Nations was flying in a fleet of tractor-trailer trucks that will be used to haul food to Baidoa.

Children along the roadside waved as the 70-vehicle convoy, the U.S. flag flapping on the lead Marine armored vehicle, entered Baidoa at 6:15 a.m. Cobra and Huey helicopter gunships flew cover.

U.S.-led force as it peacefully took its latest beachhead.

Relief workers joined in a tumultuous welcome that made Baidoa's main road look more like a parade route than the gateway to one of Somalia's worst famine areas.

The scene contrasted with the looting and violence that had made Baidoa a symbol of the horrors of Somalia's famine and civil war.

As people have fled the surrounding countryside, Baidoa has seen its population more than double to 80,000 in the nearly two years since civil war threw Somalia into chaos.

"Probably lives have been lost that might not have been, and that's hard to accept," said Josie Clevenger of Oakland, Calif., a spokeswoman for the International Medical Corps. "But if today's a day we get on with the rest of our lives, it's a great day - a great day."

Across Somalia, the fighting combined with famine and disease have taken more than 350,000 lives.

Col. Fred Peck, the Marine spokesman in Mogadishu, said Baidoa was declared secure 40 minutes after the first 530 Marines and 140 French soldiers completed the trip from the capital in armored vehicles, trucks and Humvees.

He said 230 more Marines were then flown into the airstrip from Beli Dogle, a coalition military base halfway between Mogadishu and Baidoa. Marines were digging foxholes and taking up positions around the airstrip.

"It's nice and quiet, the way we like it. Allah be praised," Peck told reporters.

Col. Werner Hellmer, a Marine liaison officer, was mobbed by Somalis trying to shake his hand as he arrived for his first talks with aid workers.

"We are here ... to get relief convoys out as soon as possible, and we're going to do whatever it takes," Hellmer said as he maneuvered around armored vehicles surrounded by Somali children.

With several motorized Marine rifle companies in town and ample warning given, the gun-mounted vehicles known as "technicals" and their outlaw riders had quit Baidoa for the bush. Not a gunshot was heard.

The convoy, with its intimidating size and firepower, pulled into the city and faced no resistance as it continued on to the airport on the other side of town.

In the days leading to the troops' arrival, Baidoa earned a reputation as a bandit-crazed town where gunmen stormed relief agency compounds late at night to steal food, medicine and money.

Relief agencies had prepared to keep foreign staff off the streets today in case of street fighting, but their feeding kitchens were operating normally within hours of the troops' arrival.

CARE, the French group Medecins Sans Frontieres and the American group World Vision said they would begin calling back foreign workers,

Texans support new ways to punish criminals

AUSTIN (AP) - A state commission says sweeping changes it proposes for the Texas penal code would force prison inmates to serve more of their sentences and abolish the parole system.

"It's time for us to get our priorities straight in the criminal justice system," said Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, and co-chairman of the Texas Punishment Standards Commission.

The proposals, which the commission expected to recommend today, include calls for greater use of alternatives to prison, including local boot camps or more intensive supervision of criminals on probation, officials said.

Commission members touted a study released Tuesday by the Lyndon B. Johnson school of public affairs that they said supports the recommendations.

The study, funded by the commission, shows most Texans believe the state's criminal justice system doesn't punish, reform, deter or incapacitate criminals effectively, said William Spelman, who serves as an assistant professor at the LBJ school.

"What most of the people we talked to believed the criminal justice system was really doing was none of the above," Spelman said. "About 50 percent of the people we talked to said the criminal justice system just isn't doing any of these things very well."

Most of the approximately 560 adults surveyed liked the idea of using alternative punishments, which can range from intensive supervision of probated criminals to incarceration in boot camps or community corrections facilities, Spelman said.

"Most people had heard of these things but they hadn't really thought very hard about them," Spelman said. "And in counties in Texas right now, there's a lot of experimentation."

Most Texans, according to the study, feel regular probation does not allow for sufficient supervision of criminals, but are against placing many first-time offenders in prison.

Texans appear to support the use of intensive supervision, electronic monitoring, part-time confinement in a local facility or full-time confinement in a boot-camp, Spelman said.

Electronic monitoring entails using an electronic tracking device attached to a criminal to follow his or her movements. Part-time confinement allows convicted criminals to hold jobs during the day while being incarcerated at night.

Such programs could enhance the possibility of criminals providing restitution to victims or repaying local governments the cost of incarceration through participation in community service projects.

The public feels first time offenders convicted of drug dealing, armed robbery or property offenses should be sentenced to one of those options rather than be sent to prison, Spelman said.

Prison would be reserved for those who are convicted of such crimes several times or have committed violent offenses, such as murder or rape, he said.

Ellis Sandoz III, Lyon's press secretary, said the commission's recommendations could result in the amount of prison time actually served by felons doubling.

Currently, most convicted criminals serve only about 13 percent of their sentences,

GTE makes Quitaque first all-digital city

QUITAQUE (AP) - Crackling static and delayed dial tones used to plague telephone callers in this West Texas town.

Phone company officials hated having to lay and maintain miles of copper lines to serve isolated customers across the rugged terrain.

But a new system of digital phone service seems to be pleasing everybody.

GTE spent two years developing and installing the replacement to the traditional phone poles and wires that cross these scruffy hills and sheer drops below the caprock. The switchover Dec. 2 went smoothly, company officials said.

"We're proud to see the overhead wires go by the wayside," said Quitaque banker O.R. Stark. "They've been nothing but problems."

Radio waves are carrying callers' voices in technology that officials say makes Quitaque the world's first city with entirely digital phone service.

"It's the first wireless shot heard round the world," said Dave Smith, vice president for corporate communications for Pennsylvania-based InterDigital Communications Corp., which developed the technology.

"The significance is mind boggling in the years to come because everything is going to go wireless."

Bob Wolter, InterDigital's vice president for sales, explained the system like this: A town resident picks up his receiver to make a call. A signal shoots through a short underground cable to a cluster box shared by 24 customers.

The signal passes through the cluster up a nearby pole, where an antenna points to a radio transmission tower in Turkey, 10 miles east. The tower then signals equipment 30 miles northeast in Lakeview to trigger a dial tone that buzzes back the same route.

That process takes 40 milliseconds, Wolter said.

Outside town, the process works the same way, except each rural customer has his own pole and antenna.

Buddy Langley, chairman of InterDigital subsidiary Universal Service Telephone Corp. in Irving, said the signals are sent through radio frequencies the Federal Communications Commission assigned.

The FCC allotted the Quitaque system up to 23 frequencies in the range of 450 megahertz, Langley said. The system can handle as many as 92 simultaneous telephone conversations.

Quitaque, a town of 513 people 90 miles northeast of Lubbock, made an excellent pilot site because its 1970s-dated switching equipment needed replacing anyway, officials said.

Skeptical residents warmed to the system after officials met with them to explain benefits: No more lines broken by ice or high winds; no threat of calls being monitored; greater clarity.

"You don't have to talk like this anymore," Wolter shouted into a pretend receiver.

Smith called the Quitaque test a landmark in mobility: "It's the dawning of a whole new communication evolution."

Over 1,300 stores quit selling lottery tickets

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) - More than 1,300 Texas retailers have stopped selling lottery tickets for a variety of reasons, the state comptroller's office says.

The comptroller's office said Tuesday that 1,307 retailers have dropped the lottery ticket sales since the lottery began on May 29.

Most of the lottery dropouts have been in Houston with 250 retailers calling it quits. Officials also said lottery dropouts in other Texas cities included nearly 90 in Dallas, 56 at San Antonio, 51 at Austin and 24 in the Corpus Christi area.

Poor ticket sales, failed businesses and ownership changes are among the most common reasons retailers give for canceling their lottery contracts.

There are 17,000 lottery retailers in Texas, including about 5,850 who sell tickets for Lotto Texas, lottery spokesman Steve Levine said.

The Texas lottery began May 29 with one instant scratch game. The state now offers six instant games: Lone Star Millions, Texas Matchup, Texas Two-Step, Lone Star Millionaire, Touchdown and Stocking Stuffer.

A computerized game, Lotto Texas, began Nov. 7 and includes twice-a-week drawings with a minimum jackpot of $2 million.

At Ingleside, near Corpus Christi, Bob and Maxene Long said that when they first started selling lottery tickets, it increased traffic into their convenience store and boosted the sales of snacks and other items.

But the Longs Tuesday told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times that a month later they scratched lottery sales from their future plans.

"I'm not against gambling to the extent that you can afford it," said Maxene Long, co-owner of Long's

Drive In. "But it's affecting so many families."

Mrs. Long said she saw a woman spend her grocery money on lottery tickets and saw an unemployed man buy 150 lottery tickets.

"His wife came in and was so upset," Long said. "You can't tell them that you aren't going to sell the tickets to them because they are poor. We knew that a lot of these people could not afford them."

Kerry Brannon, who stopped selling tickets at his Box Office Video store in September, said, "The amount of paperwork and just keeping up with everything was more than it was worth."

"We have a convenience store located right next to us. Having the lottery didn't really generate any more business. It really wasn't worth it," Brannon said.

"It's not real profitable for us," said Sam L. Sussner, chairman and chief executive of Southguard, which has 29 7-Eleven stores that sell lottery tickets in the Corpus Christi area. "But it's a convenience our customers want. We are committed participants "about the need for a balanced approach between a new investment agenda and a long-term commitment to deficit reduction that will be credible, public and specific in the short run."

New loan program available to students

Deaf Smith General Hospital has announced a new education loan program which will enable qualified candidates to work towards becoming a registered nurse (RN) with substantial financial help from the hospital.

The Student Sponsorship Loan Program entitles recipients to have up to 100 percent of the loan, plus interest, canceled if they are employed at DSGH, full-time as a graduate/registered nurse immediately following graduation. Recipients must agree to remain employed at DSGH equal to double the amount of time they receive the stipend.

Two students will be accepted into the program each year, and each will receive a stipend of $500 a month, without taxes taken out, until they graduate. They are eligible to apply for other grants, and if they are full-time DSGH employees, they will also qualify for the hospital's tuition reimbursement plan.

Individuals applying for the innovative program must be starting clinical rotation in the spring of 1993 in order to qualify. Completed applications must be submitted by Dec. 31. Individuals who desire more information should contact Donna Kemp, RN, at Deaf Smith General Hospital, 364-2141, ext. 212.

"This scholarship program will enable the hospital to help ensure that we continue to have a complete nursing staff of qualified professionals," Kemp said. "The stipend is large enough that the qualified candidates will not have to work full-time while going to school, and will graduate sooner. By giving them an opportunity to work off the loan here at the hospital, we also help ensure the steady flow of RN's into our community."

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Michael Jackson will receive the Silver Anniversary Entertainer of the Year Award at next month's annual NAACP Image Awards.

"His achievements in the entertainment world are legendary. He has surpassed himself again and again, almost beyond belief," said William F. Gibson, chairman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's board of directors.

The honor was announced in a statement Monday.

Past recipients of the award include Eddie Murphy, Oprah Winfrey, Patti LaBelle and Whoopi Goldberg.

The Image Awards' silver anniversary ceremony is scheduled for Jan. 18 at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium. The show's theme will be "A Celebration of Change."

Tour of church taken by L'Allegra members

Members of L'Allegra Study Club met recently at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umberger for a program given by Father Hexler.

During World War II, 3,000 prisoners were interned in a camp near Hereford. In the last year of the war, the prisoners suffered a seizure of hunger dictated by government-ordered cutbacks in rations. A handful of prisoners found a way to supplement their meager meals. Franco DiBello, an Italian officer who spoke English, and a small group of fellow artists agreed to decorate St. Mary's Church. There, amid the farms and hard-working German immigrants who settled the area, the Italian POWs painted murals and carved figures reminiscent of the Renaissance. The church congregation provided the artistic Italians with hearty noon meals.

Father Hexler explained that large leaded glass windows, installed by the POWS, had been ordered for the church sometime after it was built in 1929. He also mentioned that the murals are not historically correct as far as dress and the background terrain. However, there's great value in the history of this enduring art work.

Hostesses, Karen Payne and Priscilla Ham, served refreshments of rum cake with raspberry sauce, hot apple cider and coffee from a table decorated with a Christmas motif.

Those present included Payne, Ham, Juanita Bowles, Carmen Flood, Barbara Kerr, Sylvia Khuri, Joyce Lomas, Shelly Moss, Micah Noland, Suzanne Smith, Judy Wall and Jan Weishaar.

NEW YORK (AP) - Tennis legend Arthur Ashe, who revealed last April that he has AIDS, has become the first retired sports figure named Sports Illustrated's Sportsman of the Year.

"I'm not supposed to be here now, according to the prognostications and projections when I first heard I had AIDS in September of '88," Ashe said at a news conference Tuesday.

"But I'm doing quite well." Since April, Ashe has formed the Arthur Ashe Foundation for the Defeat of AIDS Inc. and has joined advisory boards for the Harvard AIDS Institute and the UCLA AIDS Institute. He says he has never been so busy.

"But, as I like to say, no matter how busy you are, you can only do one thing at a time, well," he said.

Canyon's early marksmanship dooms Herd

A piece of the ball

Hereford's Eric Sims gets a couple of fingers on the shot of Jeremy Friemel of Canyon. The Eagles beat the Herd 52-48 Tuesday in Whiteface Gym.

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Canyon swept Hereford in a basketball double header Tuesday in Whiteface Gymnasium, with the Canyon girls winning 54-31 and the boys winning 52-48.

The boys' game was basically won in the first quarter, when Canyon took an 18-7 lead. The Eagles hit five three-point shots, including three by Toby Cotter.

"We struggled with our man-to-man defense against Spearman, so we started out (against Canyon) in a zone," Hereford coach Joe Main said. "They busted us, and we went to man-to-man, and we were all right from then on. Once we did that they had trouble scoring."

Hereford cut Canyon's lead to 25-18 at halftime. The Herd came within six at the close of the third quarter, but another three-pointer by Cotter at the buzzer gave Canyon a 39-30 lead.

Hereford's Elijah Walker answered Cotter with his own three-pointer to start the fourth quarter, but Canyon did enough down the stretch to keep the Herd at bay. Cotter and Aaron Evans each hit two free throws to answer Hereford baskets, and Evans hit a three-pointer after a rebound and basket by Eric Sims brought Hereford with six at 47-41. Hereford's Richard Sanderson hit a 30-foot three-point shot with three seconds left to make the final score a four-point difference.

Hereford' record drops to 4-7. Canyon reached the .500 mark at 6-6.

"I'm proud of the kids," Main said. "We did the things we've been doing and kept after them. (The close final margin) wasn't him pulling off, it was our kids staying after them. I want our kids to stay positive, because they played hard the whole game."

Sims led Hereford with 10 points, and Sanderson contributed eight points and eight rebounds. Cotter led all scorers with 19 points. He hit five three-point shots in the game.

The Hereford girls were over-matched by Canyon. The defending Class 3A state champions scored the first nine points of the game and led 12-4 after one period and 33-12 at the half.

"Defensively, we did some good things, but offensively, we still have a hard time handling the pressure," Hereford coach Loy Triana said. "It's going to take some time until we can run our offense."

He said holding Canyon to 54 points was in itself a bit of a victory.

"Canyon is a disciplined program that finds a way to win," Triana said. "We'll just have to learn from what we do against teams like this. Hopefully we'll be able to apply some of the concepts to what we do offensively and defensively."

Kara Sandoval scored nine points to lead Hereford, now 1-11. Chrisa Moore scored 23 for Canyon.

Both Hereford teams go to Friona for games Friday. The girls play at 6:30 p.m. and the boys play at 8. Both junior varsity games will be at 5.

Both of Hereford's JV squads also lost to Canyon Tuesday, and, like their varsity counterparts, the boys played a close game and the girls didn't.

Hereford's boys lost 48-44 despite a fourth quarter comeback in which Hereford outscored Canyon 17-8.

"We made a run at them in the fourth," coach Oscar Rendon said. "It was a five-point game at the half, then we gave up 20 points in the third (Hereford scored 12). We just had a little letdown in the third quarter that hurt us. We played good in the other quarters; we just can't put four good quarters together yet."

Michael Carlson scored 10 to lead Hereford, and Robin Simons added nine.

The girls lost 65-16. They were outscored 14-1 in the first quarter, and it didn't get much better after that. Beth Weatherly led Hereford with 10 points.

Saves Face

MILWAUKEE (AP) - In any sport the desire to help your team has to be blended with the human wish for self-preservation.

Milwaukee pitcher Rick Bones can testify to that. Pitching against hard-swinging Brady Anderson of Baltimore this season, Bones threw up his glove just in time to spear a line drive headed for his head.

"It was a big save for my game and also for my face," Bones said afterward.

The Name Is Madonna

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Madonna, the flamboyant entertainer, was not only one of the stars of the hit movie, "A League of Their Own," but one of the major surprises.

She was, at least, to Bill Hughes, the assistant baseball coach at the University of Southern California and technical adviser on the movie set.

"Madonna was a natural," Hughes said. "She was the top of the line. She could not get enough work. She even wanted to go out at lunchtime and swing the bat. Sunday was our only day off, but she wanted to work then also. She frequently went out and ran eight to 10 miles before anyone else came out for practice."

Griffey Homers

SEATTLE (AP) - It seems that the Griffeys, father and son, never stop making baseball news.

They are the only son-and-father duo to have homered in an All-Star game. Ken Griffey Jr. connected for the circuit in July of this year, victimizing Greg Maddux of the Cubs.

Ken Griffey Sr. hit a four-bagger in the 1980 classic against pitcher Tommy John. The senior Griffey was named the MVP of that game.

Controversial play starts replay talk

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer
 Next March, someone will get up at the NFL owners' meeting and cite the controversial play that decided Washington's 20-17 win over Dallas last Sunday as a reason to bring back instant replay.

There are no polls on it, of course, but if anyone attempted to revive instant replay right now, it would be soundly defeated.

"I'd say you could get between 15 and 18 votes for it," says one league official well acquainted with the feelings of the team officials who must vote. "I think that's solid, and I don't think there are any more."

For those unfamiliar with NFL by-laws (presumably, most people), 21 of the 28 teams must vote for a measure to get it approved. That's why it was renewed for just one year at a time between 1985 and 1991 - because if it had been put in permanently it would have taken 21 votes to overturn.

Besides, one play won't do it - after all, a touchdown was overturned by replay in last January's Super Bowl and the owners killed replay a mere seven weeks later.

Moreover, Sunday's play in Washington probably will have little effect on the overall scheme of things - Dallas, which claims it was victimized, will still win the NFC East and get one home game in the playoffs, which has been Jimmy Johnson's goal all along.

And, despite some reports that Jack Reader, who was running a replay test, claims he would have overturned it, it's just as likely he would have been subject to a delay of from five to 10 minutes while all the elements were sorted out, then a ruling:

"Replay was inconclusive. The play stands."

For those who missed it, what's known in Dallas and Washington now as THE PLAY occurred with 3:14 left and Dallas leading 17-13 with a second-and-7 on its own 5 after just having stopped the Redskins in one of three goal-line stands it made that day.

Troy Aikman dropped back into the end zone and appeared to bring his arm forward as he was hit by Washington's Jason Buck. The ball came loose and the Cowboys' Emmitt Smith picked it up and shoved it forward.

Players on both teams piled after the ball, and while the officials dug through them trying to find who had it, the Redskins' Danny Copeland picked it up off the ground and ran up to midfield, waving it.

Finally, he came back, showed it to the officials, and they ruled touchdown.

Overall, those elements showed why replay can be more cumbersome than helpful.

Aikman first said after the game that he was trying to bring the ball back when he was hit because he saw his receivers covered, then later said he was throwing.

Johnson, who called the league three times Monday to complain, said after reviewing the play that he still opposes replay.

"It probably would have been ruled inconclusive," Johnson acknowledged. "You couldn't tell at what point Troy released the ball. The replay wouldn't have been clear enough for a positive call from the replay booth."

Prolonging the replay would have been the three questions a replay official would have to answer:

1. Was it an incomplete pass? Johnson's comments and a look at the replay shows that's inconclusive. In the replay era, there were dozens of plays like that, all difficult to judge.

2. Should Smith have been ruled down in the end zone for a safety, which would have maintained the Cowboys' 17-15 lead? A still photo shows that his knee was on the ground with the Redskins' Andre Collins holding his ankles. But again, that's judgment.

3. Who had the ball in the pileup? Copeland's emergence from the pile makes that moot. At what time is it determined who has the ball in one of those scrums when the whistle blows?

So on all counts, the play stands. And so does life in the NFL without replay.

Tough shot

Yankees sign Boggs

NEW YORK (AP) - The New York Yankees have a new third baseman in Wade Boggs and the Texas Rangers have a new reliever in Tom Henke. It looks like the Florida Marlins will be next to sign a big free agent: catcher Benito Santiago.

Santiago, who didn't find many takers on the open market, is expected to agree today to a one-year deal worth about $3.8 million.

The Marlins on Tuesday agreed to a $3.5 million, two-year contract with Orestes Destrade, who played in Japan last season where he was the home run champion. He has a .182 career average in the majors with one home run.

In Tuesday's other deal, Florida agreed to a minor league contract with 39-year-old pitcher Bob McClure.

Boggs, a five-time American League batting champion, agreed to an $11 million, three-year contract, turning down a two-year offer from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Yankees had sought the National League MVP (Barry Bonds) and the NL Cy Young Award winner (Greg Maddux), but instead wound up with a third baseman who hit 79 points below his career average.

"I'm very enthusiastic about being a Yankee and playing for an organization so rich in tradition," Boggs said in a statement released by the team. "The idea of being able to play in Yankee Stadium and remain in the AL East all factored into my thinking."

Boggs, 34, had spent his entire career with the Red Sox, slapping the ball for doubles off the Green Monster at Fenway Park. He made $2.7 million in 1992, the final season of a three-year deal worth $7.35 million, and the Red Sox didn't try to re-sign him.

New York gave Boggs a $3 million signing bonus, $1.9 million in 1993, $2.1 million in 1994 and $4 million in 1995. New York also gave him a no-trade provision and said it would allow him to become a free agent again after the deal expired.

"They overshot our mark considerably," Dodgers general manager Fred Claire said of the Yankees' offer. "We were obviously not in the same arena where the Yankees finished. We were not in the same time zone."

Boggs is a .338 career hitter who won the AL batting title in 1983 and from 1985-88. He has a lifetime .428 on-base percentage and has led the league in that category six times. Boggs has 422 career doubles, along with 85 homers and 687 RBIs.

Henke, meanwhile, agreed to a two-year deal with an option worth about $8 million guaranteed. He was drafted by Texas in 1980 before building an All-Star career with the Blue Jays. The right-hander, who turns 35 next week, had a 2.48 ERA and saved 217 games in eight seasons with the Blue Jays. He struck out 690 batters in 563 innings.

By signing Henke, the Rangers filled a bullpen hole created when they traded Jeff Russell to Oakland in August along with slugger Ruben Sierra and starter Bobby Witt for outfielder Jose Canseco.

Destrade, a 30-year-old Cuban who grew up in Miami, was the Japanese home run champ in each of the past three seasons for the Seibu Lions, hitting 42, 39 and 41 homers and leading them to the Pacific League championship each year.

"I'm going to have a lot of pressure put on me," Destrade said.

ARLINGTON (AP) - Texas Rangers general manager Tom Grieve says the club's signing of reliever Tom Henke is "just what the doctor ordered" for a depleted pitching staff that used a rookie stopper late last season.

Henke, who was drafted by Texas in 1980 before building an All-Star career with the Toronto, on Tuesday signed a two-year contract with the club worth about $8 million.

The contract also includes an option for the 1995 season.

"He's a quality bullpen stopper," Grieve said. "We feel he's just what the doctor ordered for our pitching staff. He provides us with that late-inning guy that you go to. It allows (manager) Kevin Kennedy to use our other pitchers in roles they're accustomed to."

Henke chose Texas over the Boston Red Sox, who reportedly had offered him a two-year $9 million contract. He could have returned to the Blue Jays for a one-year deal worth $3.5 to $4 million.

"I think that Tom just decided that was where he wanted to play," said Henke's agent, Craig Fenech. "One of the other offers was actually larger, though it wasn't configured as favorably."

"Tom made his choice as to where he would be happier playing. Those who said the other team wasn't in it were wrong. It was a real choice. Some of the teams we thought we heard from we didn't and some of the teams we heard from we didn't expect. It was bizarre."

Henke, who turns 35 next week, compiled a 2.48 ERA and saved 217 games in eight seasons with the Blue Jays. He struck out 690 batters in 563 innings.

In 57 regular-season games during the Blue Jays' world championship season, Henke was 3-2 with 34 saves with a 2.26 ERA. He added three saves in the American League Championship Series and two saves in the World Series.

His career record is 32-30 with a 2.64 ERA in 487 appearances.

Henke appeared with Texas for parts of 1982-84, compiling a 3-1 record with three saves in 41 games. Toronto chose him in 1985 as compensation for the Rangers' signing of free agent Cliff Johnson.

Toronto will receive the Rangers' first-round pick next year as compensation for Henke's signing.

The Rangers' pitching staff desperately needed help even before the loss of free-agent starter Jose Guzman to the Chicago Cubs.

If they hadn't signed a veteran stopper in the off-season, the Rangers likely would have continued using right-hander Matt Whiteside and left-hander Kenny Rogers.

Whiteside served in the role as a rookie after Texas traded closer Jeff Russell to Oakland along with slugger Ruben Sierra and starting pitcher Bobby Witt in exchange for Jose Canseco.

The acquisition of Henke allows Texas to move Whiteside and Rogers into setup roles.

Hawks lose to Pistons, lose Wilkins to injury

By The Associated Press
 Dominique Wilkins, who didn't miss more than four games in any of his first nine years in the NBA, faces his second injury rehabilitation in two seasons.

Wilkins, whose 28.5-point scoring average before Tuesday night's game was second only to Michael Jordan, fractured a finger on his right hand in the second period of the Atlanta Hawks' 107-94 loss to the Detroit Pistons.

Atlanta, which won only 16 of its last 40 games when Wilkins went down with a ruptured Achilles' tendon last season, will have to do without him again for four to six weeks.

Wilkins fractured the fourth finger on his right hand as he and Dennis Rodman went for a rebound.

"I think everyone understands what we went through last year when we lost Dominique and how we had to come together and pick our games up a little bit," said Duane Ferrell, who will start in Wilkins' absence. "We'll have to do it again this year. If everyone can contribute a little extra, we can get through this."

Joe Dumars led the Pistons with 32 points on 12-for-17 shooting. Isiah Thomas had 23 points and a season-high 16 assists for Detroit, while Rodman, the top rebounder in the NBA, had 21 rebounds, his eighth time in nine games with at least 20.

Kevin Willis led Atlanta with 20 points and 14 rebounds. Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New York 108, New Jersey 94; Orlando 119, Philadelphia 107; Miami 106, Sacramento 98; Cleveland 124, Houston 97; Boston 124, Minnesota 119 in double overtime; Chicago 125, Charlotte 110; the Los Angeles Lakers 107, San Antonio 101; Phoenix 125, Washington 110; Seattle 108, Milwaukee 100; and Golden State 109, the Los Angeles Clippers 90.

Celtics 124, Timberwolves 119, 2OT
 Boston won at Minnesota for its eighth victory in 11 games as Xavier McDaniel scored six points in the second overtime after sitting out most of the second half.

Reggie Lewis scored 29 of his 31 points after halftime.

Christian Laettner set career highs with 35 points and 17 rebounds for the Timberwolves.

Suns 125, Bullets 110
 Phoenix won its eighth straight game, setting a team record by hitting 10 of 13 3-pointers against Washington.

Charles Barkley scored 36 points and Danny Ainge hit three 3-pointers and scored 16 of his 23 points in the final quarter for the Suns, whose previous record for 3-pointers in a game was nine three years ago against Golden State.

SuperSonics 108, Bucks 100
 Seattle handed visiting Milwaukee its eighth consecutive defeat behind Gary Payton's 22 points.

Todd Day's 3-pointer pulled the Bucks to 104-100 with 50 seconds left. But two free throws by Derrick McKey with 32 seconds left and a layup by Shawn Kemp sealed the outcome.

Warriors 109, Clippers 90
 At Oakland, Tim Hardaway and Chris Mullin each had 27 points, lifting Golden State past Los Angeles.

Rookie Latrell Sprewell had 19 points, including 11 in the crucial third period when the Warriors outscored the Clippers 30-21 for an 85-71 lead.

Bulls 125, Hornets 110
 Scottie Pippen scored 26 points and Michael Jordan 25, leading Chicago to its 16th straight victory over visiting Charlotte.

Charlotte, which trailed by 19 in the second quarter, pulled to 67-60 early in the third period. The Bulls countered with an 11-2 run.

Lakers 107, Spurs 101
 Sedale Threatt scored 24 points and Vlade Divac's buzzer-beating 3-pointer capped a 13-0 Los Angeles run at the end of the third quarter at San Antonio.

David Robinson scored 25 points for the Spurs.

Magic 119, 76ers 107
 Dennis Scott's 25 points was one of four 20-point efforts by Orlando in a victory over Philadelphia that snapped a six-game losing streak.

Jeff Turner scored 22 points, Nick Anderson 21 and Shaquille O'Neal 20.

Knicks 108, Nets 94
 Patrick Ewing scored 27 points and John Starks and Greg Anthony keyed a game-breaking 12-0 second-half run as New York won at New Jersey.

There were 69 personal fouls, 74 free throws and four technicals, all against the Knicks.

Cavaliers 124, Rockets 97
 Larry Nance overcame a stomach virus and scored a season-high 30 points as Cleveland dominated Houston's No. 2-ranked defense.

A 20-5 run gave the Cavs a 60-39 lead in the second quarter.

Heat 106, Kings 98
 Rony Seikaly scored 13 of his 27 points in the final eight minutes and grabbed 15 rebounds as Miami handed visiting Sacramento its fifth straight loss.

Duquesne upsets Florida St.

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Florida State's Bob Sura was back in his home state for the first time since high school, and he certainly made himself at home with an arena-record 34 points. The trouble was the No. 10 Seminole decided to relax after getting a big lead.

Up by 18 points over Duquesne, a team unaccustomed to success against Top 10 teams since the 1970s, Florida State put its game on autopilot and tried to cruise over the final 10 minutes.

Big mistake. The very same Duquesne pressure defense that was so unsuccessful early suddenly became effective in the second half as the Dukes scored 50 of the final 75 points to upset the Seminole 91-84 Tuesday night. "I saw some people get up and leave early in the second half," Duquesne coach John Carroll said. "What a shame."

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 14 Syracuse over Maryland-Baltimore County 93-86, Alabama-Birmingham over No. 18 Tulane 75-69, and No. 23 Michigan State taking Illinois-Chicago 79-75.

The Seminoles (3-3), currently without injured regulars Andre Reid and Chuck Graham, expect to improve when point guard Charlie Ward returns next month. Ward, the quarterback of Florida State's No. 3-ranked football team, will return after the Orange Bowl.

No. 14 Syracuse 93, UMBC 86

At Syracuse, the Orangemen overcame sloppiness and the pesky Retrievers, who had no player taller than 6-foot-8. Syracuse committed 27 turnovers, but Michael Edwards' 3-pointer killed Maryland-Baltimore County's late charge and started a decisive 12-2 run. Lawrence Moten had seven of his 22 points in the run for Syracuse (6-0).

Alabama-Birmingham 75, No. 18 Tulane 69

At Birmingham, Stanley Jackson scored 19 points and Carter Long chipped in 17 as Alabama-Birmingham upset Tulane's Green Wave.

Tulane was led by Matt Greene with 17 points.

Scholars differ on birthday of Jesus

By DAVID BRIGGS
Associated Press Writer

The date of Christmas was originally established in December partly to transform a pagan Roman ritual, but some 1,600 years later, finding the historical birthday of Jesus remains an epic quest for scholars.

After more than a decade of research each, two people in the field came up with the same year for Jesus' birthday - 6 B.C. - but separate dates in recent presentations to the Nativity Conference II.

Jack V. Scarola, author of a "Chronological Analysis of the Nativity," suggests Jesus was born on Oct. 25; E.W. Faulstich, president of the Chronology-History Research Institute in Spencer, Iowa, puts the date at May 14.

Other scholars have come up with dates ranging from 12 B.C. to 2 B.C., and research into the date of the historical Christmas remains an object of scholarly and public fascination even though churches that celebrate on Dec. 25 have given no indication they would change the commemorative day.

"For people who want to pursue the truth to the ultimate, you're not satisfied just because this date is on the calendar," said Jerry Vardaman of Mississippi State University. "You can't help but ask questions like that."

Even the early Christians were unsure of the date of Christ's birth, and the December celebration did not come about until the third and fourth centuries, as Rome endorsed Christianity and church leaders sought to give converts a more spiritual alternative to the pagan Saturnalia festival around the time of the winter solstice.

Most scholars believe the first Christmas occurred no earlier than 4 B.C., since historical accounts indicate Herod, who figures prominently in the infancy narratives, died that year. But even that date is open to question, and at least one scholar has proposed Herod died in 1 B.C., and Jesus was born in 3 B.C. or 2 B.C.

Faulstich said he has been working for two decades to come up with the computer methodology to cross-reference historical accounts and determine dates such as the birthday of Jesus. An examination of the priestly cycles and evidence provided by the second-century historian Clement of Alexandria helped him come up with the May 14, 6 B.C., date.

When he started, Faulstich said, he was interested in the question of whether the Bible was a book of myth or a true history. But now he views issues such as the actual birthday of Jesus as a matter of natural curiosity for Christians.

"Sometimes, some try to even use it to defend their faith. However, I think it's more appropriately stated it's just a curiosity," he said.

Scarola, who also presented his findings to the Nativity Conference convened last month in San Francisco, said he has spent 14 years researching the question "and I enjoyed every minute of it."

"I feel he is the most important person in history and no one knows his actual birthdate," Scarola said.

He based his Oct. 25, 6 B.C., date in part by counting back 40 days from the date he says Jesus was presented as an infant at the Jerusalem Temple. That date can be arrived at from evidence in the Book of Haggai.

Vardaman proposes a 12 B.C. date based in part on evidence he has found indicating the census that prompted Mary and Joseph to travel to the site of Jesus' birth was held from 12 B.C. to 11 B.C. He also says an earlier birthdate would be consistent with the chronology of the apostle Paul.

But don't expect Christmas in July, or October or May for that matter, anytime soon, researchers said.

"I would think that we will reach a scholarly consensus with continued research, but I don't think in a thousand years it will change the way people celebrate Christmas," Vardaman said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sending you a letter my husband and I received from a 17-year-old relative. We both felt it was extremely ill-mannered and want your opinion.

We were thinking about sending this young man money for Christmas, but after receiving the enclosed letter, we are really puzzled about whether or not we should. Here's his letter:

"Dear Relatives: This letter is in regard to the upcoming holiday. Of course I mean CHRISTMAS! This year, I would like nothing but money, but if you have already picked something out for me, that is OK.

"Over the past couple of weeks, my luck in rodeo hasn't gone very well. Just last weekend, I lost $250. Next month, I've got a big roping that I plan to compete in, and I'm a little short on cash. My birthday is coming up soon, and I would like money for that, too. Like I said earlier, if you've already got something for me, that is fine, but I need money very badly."

"P.S. This is no joke.

"Sincerely yours..."

Ann, my husband says the boy's parents are at fault and that he just doesn't know any better. I feel that at age 17, he should realize that writing a letter like this is downright rude. We are undecided about what to do. Will you please give us some guidance?--Concerned Relatives in the Midwest

DEAR CONCERNED: I'll bet a dollar to a donut the author of the letter above is your grandson. I suggest you write him the following:

Dear--: A gift is not something that is owed to you. It is whatever a person wants to send. At the moment, I can't recall that you have ever sent us anything.

Sorry you haven't done too well in the rodeo. Since the competition costs more money than you have, maybe you'd better pass it up this year.

Since money is tight for everybody these days, we are sending lots of love, which is really the most priceless gift of all--Your Loving Grandparents

And now back to you, grandparents: I suggest that you not send this boy money or anything else. This could be the most valuable lesson the kid ever learns.

Since his parents obviously didn't teach him the basic fundamentals, it would be a great favor if you provided him with the lesson.

Here's a big P.S. to all parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles: DO NOT continue to send gifts and checks to children (of any age) who do not write and say thank you.

When you send money and gifts to children who do not bother to write and express appreciation, you promote selfishness and bad manners, and help breed another generation of Gimme Pigs. Keep reading for another letter about gift giving.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Next month, I am marrying a man I love a lot. His aunt sent us a wedding gift with a note saying, "I spent a lot of time on this quilt. I want it to be an heirloom. If you get divorced, I want the quilt back."

I am hurt and insulted. What should I do?--Southern Illinois

DEAR SOUTHERN: Return the quilt with a note saying, "We are superstitious. Conditional gifts usually bring bad luck. Thank you anyway."

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Commencement scheduled

Degrees will be conferred on 423 West Texas State University students at winter commencement exercises at 7 p.m. on Friday, in the Amarillo Civic Center's Cal Farley Coliseum. Dr. Vaughn Nelson, head of the Department of Mathematics, Physical Sciences and Engineering Technology and director of the Alternative Energy Institute at WTSU will be the commencement speaker.

Nelson received his Ph.D. in physics from the University of Kansas in 1967. He received his Ed. M. from Harvard University in 1962 and his B.S.E. in 1957 from Kansas State Teachers College in Emporia, Kan. Nelson has been at WTSU since 1969 and became the Department Head in 1986. He has been director of the Alternative Energy Institute since 1977.

Nelson has received various awards and honors since he has been a professor at WTSU. In 1990, he won the academic award at the Windpower '90 convention, and he was also awarded the Distinguished Alumni Award from Emporia State University in 1985. In 1984, he was awarded the Research Excellence Award at WTSU. Governor Mark White appointed Nelson to the Science and Technology Council for the state of Texas in 1984.

Reduce holiday stress

Aching feet, stiff neck and tense muscles - just a few side effects incurred by stressed-out holiday shoppers battling crowded malls and long lines. Holidays bring additional burdens - especially for women - as family members deal with travel schedules, holiday entertaining and budget constraints.

To reduce stress created by holiday deadlines and duties, give yourself a "gift" that combats tension during holidays and year-round. A few suggestions to help you unwind this season:

- Take copy winter naps
- Prepare holiday goodies early, freeze until needed
- Enjoy a private, peaceful bath
- Give yourself a massage

Make cookie baking family play, fun

The holiday season isn't complete without a day spent baking. Kids love rolling out cookie dough with a rolling pin, making shapes with cookie cutters (use their own cleaned-up toy kitchen sets if you have them) and decorating the baked cookies with frosting, candy sprinkles and gumdrops.

If old-fashioned sugar cookies have been your standby from year to year, how about trying gingerbread cookies? Here are some ideas to make baking fun for everyone in the family:

Mix up a batch of gingerbread cookie dough from a recipe in your favorite cookbook, or follow the cookie directions on a store-bought box of gingerbread cookie and cake mix. Roll out the dough and use gingerbread boy and girl cookie cutters to make shapes. Transfer to a baking sheet. For fun, gently twist the arms and legs to give them a look of motion. Squeeze scraps of dough through a clean garlic press and pat lightly on top of the cookies for hair.

If you'd like to hang the cookies as ornaments, make a hole at the top of each one with a soda straw just before baking.

While the cookies are in the oven, arrange an activity in another room for your younger kids. When the cookies finish baking, turn the oven off, quietly remove the pan without telling the children and hide the cookies somewhere away from the kitchen. Place the cookie sheet back in the oven.

Then, ask the kids to come into the kitchen to see if the cookies have finished baking. When they discover the cookies are missing, as in the story of the runaway gingerbread man, they will be delighted to look for them!

"Run, run as fast as you can. You can't catch me, I'm the Gingerbread Man!"

PARIS (AP) - Guillaume Depardieu, son of French actor Gerard Depardieu and an actor himself, has been charged with dealing heroin, French authorities said.

Depardieu, 22, who co-starred with his father in the hit French film "Tous Les Matins du Monde," was arrested Saturday while allegedly selling heroin in front of a train station in a Paris suburb, judicial authorities said.

Depardieu picked up some 30 grams of heroin in a recent trip to the Netherlands, authorities said. Police searching his home found more heroin and a large wad of cash, authorities said.

Prompt action helps lessen fire, damage

Knowing exactly what to do immediately following a crisis situation, such as a fire, can help consumers minimize loss to slightly damaged personal property. At the same time, there are a number of steps that will merely result in costly mistakes.

ServiceMaster, a national commercial and residential cleaning and disaster restoration service, offers the following "DOs" and "DON'Ts" for salvaging household items damaged by small fires:

- Fire and Smoke Damage - DO:
  - Blow off or brush-vacuum loose soot particles from upholstery, drapes, and carpets.
  - Cover carpet traffic areas with towels or old linens to prevent more soiling.
  - If electrical service is off, clean out freezer and refrigerator. Leave doors propped open or place charcoal in unit.
  - Clean formica and chrome fixtures in kitchen and bath to prevent tarnishing, wipe residue from porcelain bath to prevent etching.

- Send clothing with heavy smoke damage to a professional restoration cleaner, rather than a dry cleaning company.

- Change air filters on forced hot air furnaces, tape cheese cloth over intake and exit hot air registers to capture any loose soot in the air.
Fire and Smoke Damage - DON'T:

- Do not touch anything. Soot on hands can impregnate upholstery, walls, and woodwork causing more damage.
- Do not wash any papered or flat painted walls. Improper cleaning could compound the soot residue problem.
- Do not clean carpets or upholstered furniture. These items should be cleaned by a professional cleaning service that specializes in fire and smoke restoration projects.
- Do not use electrical appliances that have been close to the fire or water before having them checked.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEARDR. LAMB: My mother died of lung cancer this past year. It spread to become cancer of the throat and brain. Doctors and other personnel found it hard to believe a healthy, active 74-year-old woman who had never smoked could develop lung cancer.

She had many allergies, including to smoke. I have nine children and many of them also have allergies. Do people who have allergies get cancer of the respiratory system easier?
DEAR READER: Your mother's case was rare. Over 85 percent of all lung cancers occur in smokers. Lung cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths in both men and women. It is a sobering fact that 85 percent of these cancers need never occur if everyone would just stop smoking. We spend millions on trying to find a cure for cancer, when we have the ability to prevent the leading cause of cancer deaths so simply.

Your mother's lung cancer, despite never having smoked, may not be so hard to believe in the light of recent studies that show breathing tobacco smoke from other people's habits significantly increases a person's risk of lung cancer — and also heart attacks. That is interesting, since you comment that your mother was allergic to smoke. Was she exposed to family members who smoked or smoke in a workplace?

No, allergies are not known to increase a person's risk of respiratory cancers. But as suggested above, exposure to other people's smoke or other sources of smoke may increase the risk through means other than allergies.

Some individuals develop an uncommon, and different, form of lung cancer than usually found in smokers. It is interesting to note that deaths from lung cancer before 1920 were less than 5 percent of all cancer deaths, and now they cause over 70 percent of all cancer deaths in men and are the leading cause of cancer deaths in women. That shows you how environmental factors can influence whether you get cancer or not. I have discussed factors that determine whether you get cancer or not, how cancers spread and general principles in treatment in my new Special Report 123, Understanding Cancer, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/123, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Environmental factors are believed to be an important in getting 70 percent of all cancers.

DEARDR. LAMB: My family jokes that I am strange. A year ago I had a lump under my tongue blocking a salivary gland. The doctor operated and said it was a calculi. Now I developed a second blockage in the upper cheek gland. I've had surgery again to remove it. Why me? How and why do they form? How can they be prevented?

DEAR READER: Your first calculi was in the submaxillary gland and the second in the duct that drains the parotid gland. When the normal production of saliva cannot drain from a salivary gland, it swells. The submaxillary calculi can often be felt in the duct under the tongue. When the calculi is in the opening of the duct that drains a salivary gland, the opening may be dilated and the calculus extruded. Otherwise, the duct must be opened to extract it.

The calculi occur when there is poor drainage from the gland. Inflammation may be a factor. Prevention is questionable, but do drink plenty of liquids. You might want to consult with an ear, nose and throat specialist.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

NFL owners, players can't agree on contract

GRAPEVINE (AP) - Last week's optimism that an end was imminent in the five-year labor stalemate between NFL owners and players has turned into this week's semantics.

Negotiators for the two sides spent a long and apparently fruitless day Tuesday trying to agree on a contract the league has been without since the 1987 strike.

According to the representatives of the players, they already have agreed. According to commissioner Paul Tagliabue and the owners, there's still a lot of negotiating to do.

"We're a lot closer to going to bed. I don't know about bridging the gap," Tagliabue said when the owners' negotiating committee ended its session just before midnight Tuesday after a 16-hour day.

And Dan Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, chairman of the owners' negotiating committee, said it was unlikely anything would be settled today, when the 28 owners meet to discuss labor and other issues.

All this followed last week's developments, when it appeared that the two sides had at least found a framework that would bring a form of unrestricted free agency to the league for the first time with a salary cap that would help keep costs in line and keep the competitive balance the owners say they need.

The players certainly thought they had.

"We've put our offer on the table," said Jim Quinn, their lawyer and chief negotiator, who met with the owners for three hours in the morning and again for an hour-and-a-half in the afternoon. "The ball's in their court now."

But Tagliabue and the owners seemed ready in the evening to take it back to another court - the one in Minneapolis presided over by Judge David Doty. It is Doty, who presided at the trial at which the Plan B system of free agency was thrown out by a jury, who will make the final decision - although he has urged both sides to come up with an agreement rather than rule.

Tagliabue and Rooney, along with league spokesman Joe Browne, insisted that the deal on which the players say they have agreed is simply the players' last proposal.

"They say it's up to us to accept the proposal they now call a deal or renege," Browne said. And the three league officials said there are a half-dozen points left unresolved, among them how to implement the new system if it takes effect Feb. 1 as scheduled.

That proposal, agreed upon a week ago, includes the NFL's first unrestricted free agency and its first salary cap. Depending on when the cap applies, players would get free agency after four, five or six years and teams would be allowed to protect at least one superstar player.

Much of the disagreement on Tuesday seemed to be in terminology.

A union source, for example, described as procedural the issues discussed at a three-hour morning session. He identified compensation for free agents with less than five years' service as one and compensatory draft picks for signed players as another.

"It wasn't to the level of stuff we discussed last Wednesday," he said.

Tagliabue, meanwhile, said that there was still a lot of work to do on implementing the salary cap.

The NFL has given the seven-member committee the power to vote on the contract rather than put it to all 28 teams. In that case, under league by-laws, 21 of the 28 teams would have to approve a contract instead of four of seven.

According to various sources, there appeared to be three solid votes for the contract - Rooney, Wellington

Mara of the New York Giants and Patrick Bowlen of Denver. One opponent appeared to be Al Davis of the Los Angeles Raiders, who wants more players exempted from free agency. But there also were reports he wouldn't mind being the fourth vote that makes the deal.

The other three members - Mike Brown of Cincinnati, John Kent Cooke of Washington and John Shaw of the Los Angeles Rams - are believed to be in the middle, with Cooke reportedly worried that the high-paying Redskins would have to rid themselves of some players they want in order to fit under the cap.

In addition to Quinn and Jeffrey Kessler, the lawyers who have been handling league negotiations, the players were represented by Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association; Doug Allen, his assistant; Dick Berthelsen, the NFLPA's counsel, and Mike Kenn of the Atlanta Falcons, the association's president.

The NFLPA renounced bargaining rights after its strike so that it could pursue its quest for free agency in the courts.

Johnson is bad loser

IRVING (AP) - Dallas owner Jerry Jones says Jimmy Johnson is the hardest loser he has ever seen. He wouldn't have it any other way.

"Jimmy puts his heart and soul into what he's doing and I'm glad," Jones said. "That's just his way."

Johnson was still smarting on Tuesday from Sunday's 20-17 loss to the Washington Redskins.

"If you've been around me very long you know I have difficulty getting over something I've got my heart set on," an emotional Johnson said. "If I get to the point where losing doesn't bother me then I shouldn't be coaching the Dallas Cowboys."

Johnson, his voice cracking at times, said the loss to Washington in a game that would have clinched the NFC East championship for the Cowboys was the hardest he has had to deal with in the professional game.

"It was like the 1986 loss (to Penn State) in the national title game when I felt we (Miami) maybe had the best team to ever play the game," Johnson said. "We did win the national title the next year but that game still hurts."

He added, "When you give your heart and soul for something and don't achieve it then it hurts. But I'll deal with it. We have a new challenge next Monday night in Atlanta. It's a very important game to us. To win the division was our goal prior to the season. We need to do it."

The Cowboys can clinch the NFC East title with a victory over the Falcons if Washington hasn't already done Dallas a favor by knocking off Philadelphia on Sunday.

"I think having an extra day will help us put the Washington game behind us," Johnson said. "It will be difficult to do. In some way the extra day can help us improve in some areas. It just hurts to have a game in hand and let it get away."

Dunbar has two on All-State team

DALLAS (AP) - Southlake Carroll, which hopes to cap a record-setting season this weekend with a state title, is one of five schools placing two players on The Associated Press Sports Editors' Class 3A All-State team.

Dragons quarterback Will Mantooth was named offensive player of the year with the defensive honor going to Daniel Johnson of Lubbock Dunbar, which is being converted to a junior high school in June.

The APSE All-State team, which was announced Tuesday, was chosen by sports writers and editors from across the state on the basis of statistics from regular-season play.

Other schools placing two players on the first team were Dunbar, Taft, Reagan County, and Elkhart, which was a Class 2A school last year. Reagan County was eliminated 50-14 by Carroll in the regional finals.

Coldspring (14-1), which faces

Carroll in Saturday's title game, was represented on the first team by running back Ray Fisher, who rushed for 1,854 yards and 27 touchdowns.

He finished second to Mantooth for offensive player of the year.

Mantooth, an accomplished rodeo competitor, led the Dragons to a 15-0 record as they seek their second title in five years.

In his second year as a starter, Mantooth led Carroll to its sixth consecutive undefeated regular season and upped its regular-season winning streak to a state-record 61 games.

"I think the kids rallied around him," Dragons coach Bob Ledbetter said. "Will's a very quiet young man. He's also very confident. He leads by example."

The 5-10, 155-pound Mantooth completed 62 of 125 passes for 1,239 yards and 17 touchdowns. He was intercepted only twice.

Carrizo Springs' Michael Ross and Dexter Butler of Vernon, which was eliminated 39-35 in the quarterfinals by Carroll, join Fisher in the first-team backfield. The ends are Jason Ryan of Liberty and Graham's Reggie Jackson.

Ross, who gained 1,847 last year in Class 4A, ran for 1,800 yards and 25 touchdowns. Butler had 1,257 yards and 22 touchdowns.

Ryan caught 44 passes for 1,024 yards and 13 touchdowns. Jackson turned 45 receptions into 883 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Rounding out the first-team offense are center Majin Castillo of Taft; linemen John Altmiller of Elgin, Todd Cagle of Floydada, Scott Francis of Orangefield and John Mark Henderson of Reagan County; and place kicker Jason Lesley of Palacios. Lesley made all 25 extra points he attempted and hit six of nine field goal tries, including a 50-yarder. Half of his kickoffs were touchbacks. He also averaged 38 yards per punt and was named second-team at that spot.

Johnson, a linebacker, and teammate Kelvin Ross, a defensive back, prowl the first-team defense as they did for Lubbock Dunbar's final season. The Panthers were 7-2 but finished third in the district.

"We got to a point where teams were double-teaming the middle linebacker ... (and) they were pretty much throwing away from Kelvin, so we pretty much knew where they were going," said Dunbar coach Otha Woodard.

The 6-2, 215-pound Johnson still managed to make 110 solo tackles, 120 assisted tackles, two interceptions, cause 18 fumbles and recover 10. He also rushed for more than 300 yards in five games before being limited to defense.

Irish's Wessel is all-purpose coach

SOUTH BEND (AP) - Whenever Notre Dame loses a defensive coach, Joe Wessel gets a new job.

Wessel last year was a volunteer assistant who stepped in and plotted the gimmick defense the Irish used to defeat Florida State in the Sugar Bowl. The departures of defensive coordinator Gary Darnell and assistant coaches Dick Bumpas and Jay Hayes created the opportunity.

That resulted in a full-time job this year as Holtz's outside linebackers coach. But with the departure of secondary coach Ron Cooper - who's taking over the Eastern Michigan program - Wessel assumes those duties for the fifth-ranked Irish as they prepare to face No. 4 Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl.

Wessel, a former Florida State defensive back who coached the position for four seasons at Louisiana State, is happy with the new assignment.

"I feel very comfortable back there," Wessel said. "With the situation, this was the best move for the team and a great move for me. It took very little transition for me to make the move."

"On the field, I didn't have much time to watch what the secondary was doing," Wessel said. "I was primarily concerned with what my guys (the outside linebackers) were doing. Watching films, when we'd run a play over three or four times, I would follow the secondary just because I love the position so much."

"The chemistry on this staff is so good that we talk a lot about pass coverages. There's good communication, so it's not like I'm being thrown into something I don't know a lot about."

Wessel already knew most of defensive secondary players through their play on the special teams, which he coordinates.

"Nothing's going to change," Wessel said. "We're going to keep our focus on the same areas we focused before - break on the ball, stay low and do things a good defensive back is supposed to do."

Whether or not Wessel's new job will be permanent hasn't been determined. His expertise gives Holtz the flexibility to seek a secondary coach or an outside linebacker specialist while looking to fill Cooper's spot in the offseason.
