Bank deposits generally lower

Deposits at Hereford's two banks totaled $147.7 million at the close of business Dec. 31, 1989, according to statements filed recently.

The combined total was $5 million less than the previous year-end figure.

Statements from the two banks and from Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union were published in The Brand, and deposits at all three institutions totaled $169.3 million. Statements were not submitted by Olney Savings and Loan or Bluebonnet Savings Bank.

Deposits at First National Bank were listed at $82.3 million at year's end, compared to $88.1 million the previous year. Loans totaled $40.1 million, compared to $39.1 million a year ago.

Hereford State Bank had deposits of $65.4 million on Dec. 31, compared to $64.7 a year ago. Loans were listed at $37.6 million, compared to $39.1 million the previous year.

HTFCU showed deposits of $21.6 million at year's end, and loans totaled $13.6 million.

State firm on jail plan

AUSTIN (AP) - Despite an order from the Legislature, and pleas for fairness from some officials, the Texas Criminal Justice Board voted to wait six more months before tackling the politically sensitive issue of determining how many inmates counties can send to state prisons.

The delay Monday angered county officials, who said they are being unfairly penalized under the current allocation formula, which is based on 2 1/2-year-old statistics.

But counties that would have lost under a proposed plan praised the criminal justice board's decision, which in effect leaves the current system in place until at least August.

Under the current system, Bexar County is allowed to send fewer inmates to state prisons than Travis County, although Bexar County is about twice as large in population.

State Rep. Orlando Garcia, D-San Antonio, a member of the prison legislative oversight board, said that "is not equitable."

Criminal Justice Board Chairman Charles Terrell of Dallas said, "Neither is life."

Terrell pushed for keeping the current system in place until prison officials could recommend an allocation plan that will take into account what actions individual counties are taking to ease jail overcrowding through alternatives to incarceration, such as restitution centers, supervision and counseling.

"I do not believe that a change in our current historical allocation can be made at this time," Terrell said.

Board member Allan Polunsky of San Antonio, the lone dissenter on the board, said Bexar County already has taken the initiative to divert inmates from the state prison system. "We're being penalized for doing an excellent job. Those who did a bad job are rewarded," he said.

Lawmakers passed legislation to change the allocation plan by Thursday because of state prison and county jail overcrowding. More than 10,000 convicted felons awaiting transfer to state prisons are backed up in county jails. Several counties have sued the state over the problem.

Stock show sale successful

Auctioneers Kenneth Gregg and Jack Howell rustle up bids for Greg Urbanczyk's steer during Saturday's premium sale at the Hereford Young Farmers Livestock Show. The sale netted over $95,000. The sale was very successful for Deaf Smith County youngsters: in 1988, with almost twice as many animals in the sale, the net was $100,000.

Luce, Williams unveil new plans

Among other proposals in Luce's environmental plan:

- Reduce toxic air emissions and hazardous waste production.
- Arrest more illegal dumpers.
- Decrease dangerous materials in water.

As governor, he will veto any mandates from Austin that do not provide the necessary state funds and therefore make it necessary to raise taxes at the local level," Williams, a Midland businessman, said Monday.

The education plan would give local school districts control over spending, he said in a position paper. "The folks who are the closest to the problems should have the freedom and responsibility to structure their education system as they see fit."

Among other items, the plan also would experiment with allowing parents to choose the schools their children attend; reduce teacher paperwork; and give students whose annual family income is below $30,000 a chance at two years' free college tuition.

Also Monday, Republican gubernatorial contender Tom Luce released an environmental plan that calls for putting Texas prisoners to work in new, regional recycling centers.

"As governor, I want to be personally responsible in the war on pollution in Texas," said Luce, a Dallas lawyer. "The buck will stop with me, and so will the threats to our environment."

The prison recycling center program would put selected first offenders and nonviolent criminals to work sorting solid waste, Luce said. It would be funded with money set aside for regional alternative prisons.

White House begins selling budget plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Bush administration is beginning the push to sell its $1.23 trillion 1991 budget to a skeptical Congress, where Democrats are calling the spending plan's priorities skewed and outmoded.

"I'm going to try to be charmin' Darman again," White House budget chief Richard Darman, who antagonized many lawmakers during last year's bitter budget process, told reporters as the president unveiled his spending plan on Monday.

Bush said his fiscal blueprint keeps "an eye toward future growth," halving the federal deficit to $63.1 billion while beefing up government science, space, anti-drug and environment efforts.

But majority Democrats on Capitol Hill accused the president of being too kind to the Pentagon despite diminishing tensions with the Soviet Union, too stingy with domestic spending and overly dependent on phantom savings and unrealistic economic projections.

"At a time when we need bold leadership, what we have is another slide-by-budget," complained House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

White praising the president's plan, many Republicans conceded fiscal 1991 - which begins Oct. 1 - poses so many difficult problems that budget work is likely to be time-consuming and thorny.

"I believe there is a real chance here of stalemate," lamented Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, the Senate budget panel's ranking Republican.

Bush proposed paring $36.5 billion from next year's projected budget gap, finding nearly half the savings by collecting $15.7 billion in additional tax revenues. Bush revived his push to cut the capital gains tax rate - which the Senate denied him last year - arguing it would raise $4.9 billion next year by encouraging property sales.

The new levies are partially offset by $1.8 billion in specific tax breaks, including a $1,000 credit to poor families for each child under 4 years old.

Other savings would come from slashing domestic programs by more than $14 billion below the rate they would otherwise grow - including $5.5 billion from Medicare - restraining growth in the military budget, collecting new and higher user fees and leasing federal property.

"We have taken pain to exclude gimmicks," Darman told reporters.

But Democrats saw the spending plan differently. They pointed to unspecified "management" savings of $5 billion in the Pentagon and $2.5 billion at the Internal Revenue Service, among other items.

They also grumbled that it assumed a brighter economy this year than many congressional and private analysts expect.

"In other words, there's no change in fiscal direction in this budget," griped Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn.

Bush presented his spending plan as one responsive to "the dramatic changes in the world political situation."

He limited Pentagon spending to $292.1 billion - higher than this year's $286.8 billion, but 2 percent less than the total needed to stay even with inflation. Bush sought increases for expensive weapons systems such as $900 million more for the Strategic Defense Initiative, but a cutback of 38,000 troops and the shutdown of dozens of military bases.

He also hiked spending for foreign aid and other international expenditures to $18.2 billion, a 12 percent boost that included $300 million for Eastern Europe.

But again, Democrats were left wanting. In a preview of an issue that will recur throughout the year, they complained Bush should have carved more out of the military.

"You'd think Joe Stalin had come back and entrenched himself in the Kremlin," Sasser said.

Bush's proposals to raise domestic spending read like a menu of his past campaign promises. He sought a $1.2 billion hike - to $7.6 billion - in environmental programs, including an effort to plant 1 billion trees annually.

Federal anti-drug efforts would balloon from $6.9 billion to $9.7 billion, the Head Start pre-school program for poor children would get a $500 million infusion to $1.9 billion, and NASA's budget would soar from $12 billion to $14.1 billion.

Democratic staffers on the Senate Budget Committee said they found 24 programs that Bush was proposing to eliminate, including the Economic Development Administration, federal subsidies for the Amtrak passenger railroad, and energy conservation grants to state and local governments.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., called the budget "another year of spending too much on weapons systems we do not need; another year of shortchanging our schools, our environment and our local governments."

Fully 14 percent of the budget - nearly $180 billion - will go toward interest payments on the government's nearly $3 trillion debt.

Lubbock still barometer

By The Associated Press

Lubbock's city fathers have taken their role as President Bush's national bellwether seriously. Since last March, when Bush told the nation that residents of the South Plains city strongly support his policies, the city has commissioned a monthly opinion survey.

The survey is sent - express mail - to the White House. Bush sometimes reads it on weekend retreats at Camp David, Md.

Lubbock already had a claim to fame as the birthplace of rock 'n' roll legend Buddy Holly. Now, as Bush's barometer, the city's 186,000 residents have gained fame anew.

The president may want to take a closer look at the next "Pulse of America" poll. The poll gauges the public's response to the 1991 federal budget that Bush sent to Congress Monday.

And, he will likely peruse the Lubbock data for reviews on the State of the Union address he is scheduled to deliver to a joint session of Congress on Wednesday.

The poll does back up Bush's assertion that Lubbock residents overwhelmingly approve of his policies of more than 90 percent.

The city's residents have thrown a few surprises, however. In a conservative city with 150 churches, Lubbock's citizens strongly opposed Bush's anti-abortion stance, with 63 percent of those polled saying the decision should be left entirely to a woman and her doctor.

"I've been somewhat startled because I assumed that Lubbock is so much more conservative than the rest of the country," said Ken Towery, an Austin political consultant and Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist who helps compile the survey. "But we've found that's just not so."

The poll brings the city some needed attention, Towery said.

"It's good to see a town like that get a little bit of recognition," he told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram from Washington. "It's just natural for people in this part of the world to put down people in that part of the world."

Lubbock's Board of City Developers would pay Towery and Lubbock pollsters Jane Anne Stinnett and Lisa Nowlin $1,000 a month to conduct the survey. The poll is based on random telephone calls throughout Lubbock County.

Former rancher Bob Blake initiated the idea for the monthly poll after the March 7 news conference during which Bush said Blake told him, "Things are going just great."

Blake, who met Bush in 1951, says his friend uses the information to gauge the public mood.

Bush gets high state marks

By The Associated Press

Texans join the rest of the nation in giving President Bush high marks after his first year in office, a poll shows.

Seventy-eight percent of those polled said Bush is doing a good or excellent job; 19 percent said fair or poor; and 2 percent were unsure.

Bush is at "the absolute pinnacle of his popularity" and is cresting on public support of the U.S. invasion of Panama and the overthrow of the regime of Gen. Manuel Noriega, said University of Houston political scientist Richard Murray.

job performance was ranked excellent or good by 64 percent of those polled, with 31 percent rating him fair or poor and 6 percent unsure. Republican Phil Gramm, who is up for re-election this year, also was rated excellent or good by 64 percent, fair or poor by 26 percent, and 10 percent were unsure.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements is still rated "moderately negative," Murray said. Fifty-seven percent rate him fair or poor, 38 percent excellent or good, and 5 percent unsure.

Communities fight to keep bases; DOD tries to ax domestic bases

The Pentagon's plan to close or scale back 72 U.S. military installations has riled officials in large cities and small towns. Targeted communities nationwide are mobilizing to "fight like the dickens" to avoid the cuts.

California would be the hardest hit under Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's proposal, with 10 bases employing more than 35,000 servicemen and 22,000 civilian workers slated for closure or reductions.

But the closings also would hit hard in communities such as Charlestown, Ind., a southern Indiana town of 5,700 where the Defense Department plans to mothball a munitions plant and lay off about 900 workers.

"It's the only place a lot of the people have worked," said Mayor Bob Braswell, who once worked as a security guard at the Indiana Army Ammunition Plant. "They've worked there all their lives."

In announcing his $292.1 billion fiscal 1991 spending plan Monday, Cheney called for Congress to "have the guts" to make tough decisions about closing military bases.

The response in affected communities came quickly.

Pennsylvania's two Republican U.S. senators, John Heinz and Arlen Specter, showed up outside the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard, pledging to fight the recommendation that the yard be closed.

"The Philadelphia Navy yard is a winner," said Sen. John Heinz, "and we are going to keep it a winner. Anybody who is going to try to make it a loser will find out they are wrong."

Some lawmakers accused the Republican administration of targeting military installations in Democratic districts.

Rep. Glen Browder, D-Ala., sounded a battle cry to save Fort McClellan, which officials said if closed would cost the Anniston area in eastern Alabama 2,700 military positions and 1,500 civilian jobs.

"If they are looking for a political fight, they've come to the right place. We're ready," said the freshman congressman, who defeated Republican John Rice last year in a special election to replace the late Bill Nichols.

California would bear the largest share of the cuts.

One of the bases that would be closed is the Alameda Naval Air Station, which has 8,300 servicemen and employs 5,100 civilians for a combined annual payroll of $340 million in the island city of 77,000 in the San Francisco Bay area.

"This is really a terrible thing to hear, and we're not going to lay back and let it happen," said Mayor Chuck Corica.

"We're going to fight like the dickens to keep this base open."

The largest possible closure in California would be Fort Ord near Monterey and the Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

McWilliams to implicate Barry

WASHINGTON (AP) - Prosecutors have a second witness to corroborate the testimony of a convicted drug dealer who claims he sold crack cocaine to Mayor Marion Barry and smoked it with him, law enforcement sources say.

James McWilliams, a longtime friend of convicted drug dealer Charles Lewis, will plead guilty to a misdemeanor charge of aiding and abetting a drug sale and will cooperate with the investigation of Barry's ties to Lewis, a law enforcement source said Monday.

Barry, who has denied using drugs, was arrested in an FBI sting operation on Jan. 18 on a misdemeanor cocaine possession charge for allegedly smoking crack in a Washington hotel room. He is in a private facility in Florida for what an aide says is primarily treatment of alcoholism.

McWilliams, a motor vehicles department employee, is expected to appear before a grand jury investigating Barry's ties to Lewis, according to the law enforcement source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

McWilliams has told prosecutors he saw Barry and Lewis enter the bathroom of Lewis' hotel room, where they allegedly smoked crack cocaine before emerging a short time later, said a law enforcement source.

Allegations that Barry used cocaine in the past were also supported by Carol Bland Jackson, a former business partner of the woman who lured Barry into the FBI sting. She said in interviews Monday that she and others used cocaine with Barry at a party in 1986.

Lewis pleaded guilty in the nation's capital to cocaine conspiracy charges last November and was convicted on cocaine distribution charges in the Virgin Islands last spring.

In meetings with prosecutors in the past week, McWilliams also said the mayor called him after Barry's ties to Lewis became public and told him he trusted him to keep quiet about what he had seen in the hotel room, two law enforcement sources said.

Barry has said he only called McWilliams to urge him to cooperate with authorities investigating the case.

Sources have said that in addition to McWilliams, members of Barry's police security detail are expected to appear before the grand jury investigating the mayor.

Q. How long does half-and-half keep after the expiration date on the carton? E.N., Stowe, VT

A. Expiration codes vary among companies, but generally, half-and-half will keep about five days unopened after expiration date and one or two days opened. Discard half-and-half that has curdled and contains small particles.

Q. Why do loaves of bread crack on the sides? W.H., Naperville, IL

A. Either dough is too stiff and contains too much flour, or it is rolled too tightly and stretched too much during shaping.

Q. My grandmother used ammonia cubes for one of her cookie recipes. What are they and what do they do to cookies? A.T.E., The Dalles, OR

A. Ammonia cubes or Ammonium Carbonate are used in porous recipes from which ammonia can escape during baking. They are used to give a fine, light texture to cookies. The ammonia odor disappears after baking and leaves no ammonia taste in the baked products.

Q. How can I prevent lettuce from becoming rubbery after a few day's storage? S.L.L., IA

A. Drain lettuce thoroughly after washing and store in crisper. Moisture softens lettuce.

The 42nd Annual Willson Lecture Series, focusing on ethics in the fields of law, business and healthcare, will be presented Monday, Feb. 12 on the WTSU campus.

Individual presentations by Jim Bob Brown, attorney at law; John Marmaduke, president of Western Merchandising and Hastings Books; and Dr. Gerald Holmann, Veterans Administration Medical Center, will be supplemented by group discussions. Brown will discuss ethics in the legal profession at 9 a.m. and will be followed by Marmaduke's discussion of business ethics at 10 a.m. Both presentations will be in the Classroom Center, Room 101. Holmann will discuss ethics and healthcare at 2 p.m. in Old Main, Room 220.

All presentations are free and open to the public.

The Willson Lecture Series is sponsored by West Texas State University and is made possible by gifts from Mrs. J.M. Willson and

HJH teams take seven from Dumas

The Hereford Junior High and freshman basketball teams moved into the final week of the season Monday night, taking seven of 11 games from Dumas.

On the home side of the schedule, the girls teams picked up three wins with the seventh Maroon holding on for a 15-13 decision while the seventh White won 23-15 and the eighth Maroon coasted to a 41-20 victory. Dumas took games from the eighth White, 45-42, and from the freshmen, 34-22.

Netters rip Harvesters

The Hereford Whiteface tennis team completed a successful season-opening weekend Saturday with a 16-2 dual meet win over Pampa at Whiteface Courts.

The win gives the Herd a 2-0 record in dual meets to open the spring season. The netters will host Plainview and Borger for separate dual meets Saturday. The Plainview match is scheduled for 10 a.m. with the Borger tilt to follow at 2 p.m. Hereford will get its first taste of tournament competition Feb. 9-10 at the Wichita Falls Invitational.

Players on both sides had to deal with temperatures that were in the low 40s as play began and gusty winds.

The Herd girls picked up where they left off in the fall, scoring a 9-0 sweep of their matches.

Hereford picked up five straight-set wins in girls singles by Kristie Allison, Brenna Reinauer, Misty Reed, Gina Alley and Trisha Munoz with only Robyn Sublett being forced to a third set.

The girls continued their dominance in doubles play as the teams of Allison-Reinauer, Reed-Alley and Munoz-Sublett picked up three more straight-set victories.

In the boys competition, Randy Robbins, Torey Sellers, Greg Coplen and Eric Cortez all won singles matches in two sets while Jamie Kapka picked up a three-set decision.

The boys also claimed two of three doubles matches, all three of which involved a tie breaker.

Robbins and Jeff Eades claimed the 13th game of their opening set 7-5 before dropping the match in three.

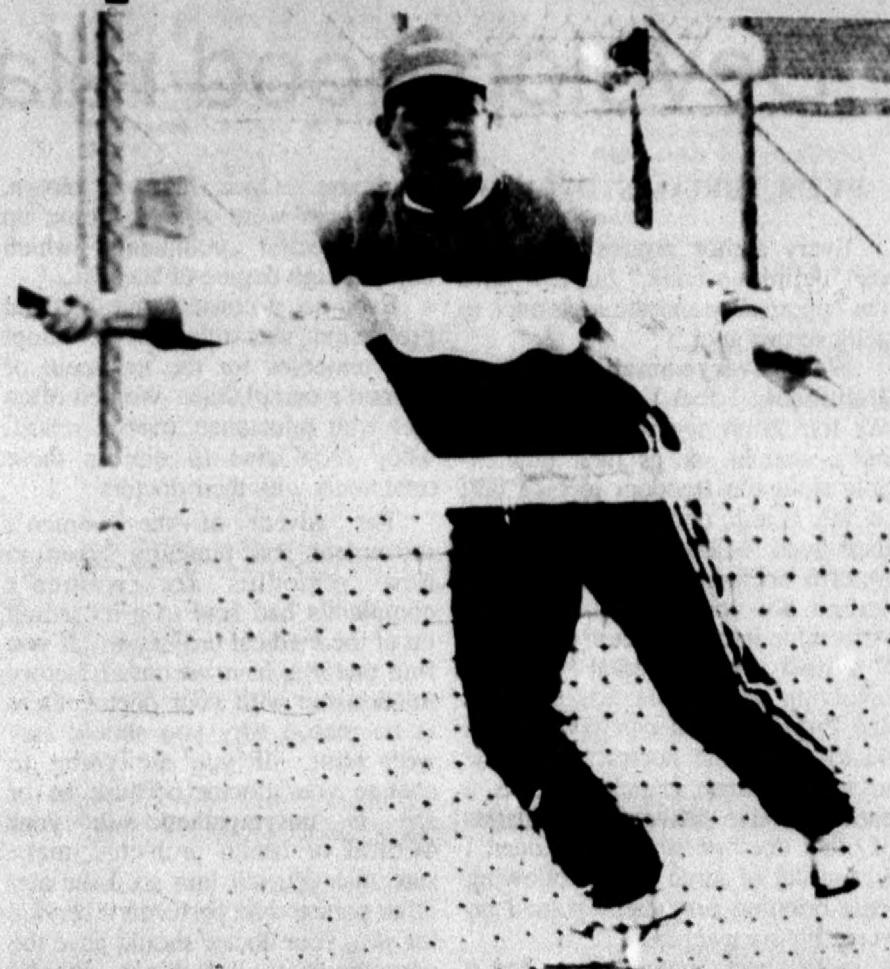

Sellers and Coplen overcame a 0-6 loss in the first set to win the match with a 9-7 third-set tie breaker.

Cortez and Kapka took a 7-4 tie breaker in the first set before blanking their opponents 6-0 in the second.

Herd coach Luis Zavala said one advantage his team had was better conditioning.

"We haven't taken a day off (since the end of the fall season) whether it was out here hitting or working inside in the gym," he said.

"Some of (Pampa's) players have only been working on tennis for two weeks and it showed," he added.

Net rushing

Torey Sellers of the Hereford Whiteface tennis team reaches for a shot at the net during Saturday's dual meet against Pampa. Sellers won his singles match and teamed with Greg Coplen for a win in doubles as the Herd took a 16-2 decision from the Harvesters.

TCU wins, SMU loses

By The Associated Press

Craig Sibley scored 11 points in the first half enroute to a 17-point performance to lead the Texas Christian Horned Frogs to victory over a non-conference foe, but the Southern Methodist University Mustangs fell to a weaker team from the Ivy League.

The Southwest Conference finished only .500 against a pair of weaker non-conference foes Monday night. TCU defeated Northern Arizona, 88-69, and SMU lost to Penn, 56-49.

The Frogs went on a 13-0 run over a four-minute stretch of the second half to secure the victory and up their season mark to 10-9 in the process.

The troubled Lumberjacks, who recently lost their head coach and leading scorer in a mid-season reshuffling of the program, slipped to 7-12 with the setback.

After trailing by 17 with a score of 49-32 at the half, the Lumberjacks battled back to trail by just 12 with a

Home video makes difference in kicker's scholarship chase

DALLAS (AP) - A homemade video may have meant the difference for a Dallas high school student who has won a scholarship to kick footballs for Illinois -- despite the fact that his team won only five games in three years.

Adding to Chris Richardson's apparent problem was the fact that he has never had a chance for a game-winning field goal.

"I wonder what the odds are of a guy from Dallas on an 0-10 team getting a scholarship for kicking at a Big Ten school?" Richardson mused.

They probably would have been nil except for Richardson's persistence and the help of one of his friends, who shot a video of him kicking.

The power of Richardson's booming kicks was outlined graphically for Illini coaches in a video that was shot with a hand-held camera by his friend, John Plant.

"I told (Plant) he saved my parents $60,000," said Richardson who will sign a letter of intent on Feb. 14, the national signing day for prep recruits.

"That was the difference, the Illinois coach told me. They had narrowed it to me and a guy from Alabama. They wanted to see a film, but we hardly had any."

Richardson said.

For one thing, the Berkner High School football team tried one-point conversions only six times during a 0-10 season. Richardson made five of those.

Field-goal opportunities were almost as rare, although Berkner coach Bob Dubey did not shy away from calling on Richardson. In fact, one time he gave him a 68-yard try.

Richardson's longest successful field goal in 1989 was a 53-yarder, but he has hit from 71 yards in practice.

Richardson already has been told by Illinois coach John Mackovic that he likely will handle kickoffs and long field goal attempts.

Illinois was not the only school to which Richardson sent letters informing them of his abilities. The 6-4, 230-pound youth had sent letters to 15 colleges, including eight in the Big Ten.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are concerned about my grandmother, who is 84. She lives in a dilapidated house jam-packed with junk, old clothes, spoiled food and 20-year-old newspapers. She never throws anything out because "you never know when you might need it." There hasn't been any hot water for years because she won't let anyone in to fix the water heater.

Grandma's daughter lives with her. "Aunt Bessie" is in her 50s and mentally ill. She has not been to a doctor or a dentist in 20 years because she "feels fine." The woman hasn't left the house in 15 years and is very thin and undernourished.

Please don't suggest that my parents talk to Grandma because their house is starting to look like hers. My father can't throw anything out either. Mother tries, but she gets yelled at and has given up. What would you suggest? -- Troubled in California

DEAR T: What you describe are classic symptoms of mental illness. It is unlikely that you can reason with your grandmother, your aunt or your father.

Call the health inspector and the fire department and let them do what needs to be done. Then contact the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill (P.O. Box NAMI-A, Arlington, VA 22216). This is a splendid organization that will send literature (no charge) and suggest ways in which you might help. The Alliance has thrown many a sinking soul a lifeline when all else has failed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently, while I was driving along an interstate highway in Ohio, a truck passed me with a message hand-printed in the dirt on the back door. It said: "OK LADIES MAKE MY DAY!" I had no idea what it meant.

A few days later at a different location I saw another message on the back of an 18-wheeler. It read: "SHOW LEGS, PLEASE." An arrow pointed toward the truck's passing side. I began to catch on.

Yesterday on I-65 in Louisville I passed a truck with a permanent message painted at the rear left corner: "LEG CHECK--50 FT. RAISE SKIRT PLEASE!"

I may be hopelessly naive, Ann, but are there women who do such things? -- Dim Bulb in Kentucky

DEAR DIM: Search me. You'll have to ask the truck drivers. How about it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I belong to the YMCA in New Jersey that allows fathers to bring daughters under 7 into the men's locker room. Everything is open, including the urinals and stalls. There are no curtains. The little girls, after changing into bathing suits with the men, are exposed to all this on their way to the pool.

I approve heartily of fathers sharing in child care, but I cannot understand how a father can bring his young daughter into the men's locker room.

I complained to the director of the "Y" and was told that this is their policy. Period. I then called the state attorney's office of New Jersey and was told that unless there was child abuse they could not intervene.

How do you feel about it, Ann? -Stymied in N.J.

DEAR N.J.: I believe that no child 3 years of age or older should be brought into a locker room for members of the opposite sex. I hope this "Y" will consider changing its policy.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.15 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $5.05.)

The Romans built more than 50,000 miles of road in their empire. Some are still in use today. They are distinctive in that they run in almost straight lines, passing over hills instead of cutting around them.

Says noted author

Develop good relationship

BY DR. MIRIAM STOPPARD

Every author aspires to writing the "definitive book," but few have the opportunity and the assistance to achieve this goal.

With Everywoman's Medical Handbook, I feel I've come close. We live in an age where more and more women see as their unalienable right the freedom to take part in the health decisions that affect their lives. Many of these decisions involve doctors, and without information, a woman goes unarmed and vulnerable into the doctor's office.

I feel many medical practices involving women are less than fair and I think this needs saying-by a doctor, a female doctor. I include myself in these criticisms. As a patient, I have suffered at the hands of other doctors; as a practitioner, I was guilty of some of the following male-oriented prejudices passed on to me by my teachers.

In the past, women have had a notoriously bad relationship with doctors. There is no question that male domination of the medical profession is at the root of women's dissatisfaction. For years, bona fide medical complaints such as premenstrual syndrome and dysmenorrhea were looked upon by male doctors as "all in the head" or a woman's "natural inheritance" and therefore not in need of proper medical attention. Women's complaints were not seen as deserving first-class attention.

Over the years, the medical profession has done women a great disservice. Women have been unjustly made to feel and think, in some instances, that they were neurotic and that their symptoms were not real. A decade or so ago, however, research showed that there was a real cause for conditions such as dysmenorrhea and pre-menstrual syndrome. Once this was known, researchers were able to come up with specific treatments which enjoy a high degree of success.

Even so, a conservative medical profession was reluctant to adopt new remedies for the treatment of women's complaints. Women often met with reluctance, even a rebuff, when they tried to discuss these treatments with their doctors.

The advent of the women's movement and publicity given to new remedies for women's complaints had lead to a loosening up of the medical profession. If you find that you have an unsatisfactory relationship with your doctor, there is no reason why you should stay with him. If you are going to change your doctor because he or she is unsympathetic to your medical or health problems, make sure that you tell him so. Like any other person who performs a service for you, your doctor should have the opportunity to put things right if you are dissatisfied and to agree to a change if your differences are irreconcilable.

You should go into your doctor/patient relationship thinking of yourself as an equal. Before you go to see the doctor, go over in your mind what your dissatisfaction are, list your questions and decide what you'd like to get out of the discussion. Most important of all, be aware of your patients' rights.

Every patient has the right to:
-Be listened to.
-A sympathetic hearing.
-Participation in decisions which affect her health.
-An equal relationship with her doctor.
-A full discussion of treatments and side-effects.
-A second opinion.
-Change her doctor.
-Refuse treatment if her concerns cannot be allayed.

-Take advantage of alternative medical practice as well as mainstream medical practice.

-See a specialist.

-Have the most modern treatments available.

-Be informed about potentially fatal conditions such as cancer-if she wants to be.

One of the most uplifting sensations is the awareness that you are in control of your life; lack of control is one of the most depressing experiences. The Everywoman's Medical Handbook aims to help you to gain control of a crucial aspect of your life-your health. If you feel in control of your body, its health and maintenance, you are well on the way to finding tranquility and happiness.

Hair trim works wonders

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) - You can't do a thing with your hair so you race off to your hairdresser, pleading for relief.

He shampoos it, snips off maybe a half-inch, gives it a blow-dry, and you walk out happy.

How can so little do so much? For one thing, it reduces the weight and thus lifts the hair. It also gets rid of split ends and cleans up the hairline.

"Men and women suffer equally, but those with shorter hair might need only a quarter-inch trimmed while women with long hair might need up to an inch taken off," says Dan Garvey, who teaches stylists at 500 Supercuts salons around the country.

ADDRESS: 313 N. LEE

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I wish you would alert people to the dangers of their parents being exposed to cold. My mother is 76 and has always been a very independent person. She has insisted on living alone and not with any of her children. I keep a careful watch on her but can't get to her house to see her every day.

Three weeks ago when I went to see her, I thought she had had a stroke. She was disoriented, confused and behaved like she was senile. I was scared to death and got her to the hospital. Her body temperature had fallen and the doctors said that was what caused her problem.

Mom is not poor, but she has always been thrifty, and she has refused to keep her home as warm as she should in the winter. The doctors said that was what caused it. She also doesn't eat as much as she should and is on the thin side. I'm sure that is from living alone. I don't understand why she didn't realize that she was getting cold.

Fortunately, she recovered nicely and is back home. But she has strict instructions to keep the house warm and wear warm clothing when she goes to bed. The doctors said this could have been fatal. Her confusion and senile behavior are completely gone.

DEAR READER: Thank you for sharing your mother's experience. A drop in body temperature, called hypothermia, is a significant risk for older people. Their body thermostat doesn't work as well as in young people. And they are often unaware that they are getting cold. It is a good idea to take older people's temperature every day if there is any chance of hypothermia.

There are at least 50,000 people admitted to U.S. hospitals every year because of hypothermia, and the number of episodes may be far greater. Your mother is lucky because about half of the victims of hypothermia do not survive.

Good nutrition is important to prevent this problem. It is also important to avoid alcohol. But most of all, older people should be in a room or area that provides a constant temperature of at least 65 degrees F. And they should dress warmly when they go to bed. I have discussed all of this in Cold Weather May Be Fatal, which I am sending you. Others who want more information can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/34-11, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My 69-year-old sister has been under treatment for three years for bladder cancer. She's ANAPOLIS, Md. (AP) - Instead of staying up to watch the American Music Awards, Bill Pettaway set the timer on his videocassette recorder and dropped off to sleep. His slumber didn't last long.

Toward the end of this week's three-hour program, a caller woke him up to say that "Girl, You Know It's True," which he co-wrote for Milli Vanilli, had been named the pop-rock single of 1989.

A few hours later, after congratulatory calls from all over the world, the 29-year-old was back at his "day job," pumping gas at a service station.

"The excitement's over for me," he said Wednesday, less than 48 hours after winning the award.

Pettaway co-wrote "Girl, You Know It's True" with Ky Adeyemo. Milli Vanilli's version has sold 2.5 million copies worldwide.

had tumors removed, a regime of chemotherapy, then regularly scheduled cystoscopies. Tumors keep coming back. This cycle keeps repeating itself. Can't the bladder be removed to prevent recurrences?

DEAR READER: One does not burn down the house to kill a rat. Having the bladder removed is major surgery and requires rerouting the ureters that drain the kidneys. As long as the tumors can be managed with periodic resection and even chemotherapy, that is the right way to go. If her condition can't be managed by these methods, then the bladder could be removed. Obviously, her doctor doesn't think this is necessary, at least at this time.

Bladder cancer is more common than might be realized — 40,000 cases in the United States in 1985. Chemicals produced by the body are concentrated and remain in the bladder for some time, increasing the risk they can cause cancer. Individuals who use tobacco are twice as likely to have bladder cancer.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Key Club donation

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:

Many times in the past I have written about donating items from your cleaned-out closets and pantries to your local battered women's shelter or an area shelter of your choice. Here's a thought: Every time you shop for clothes, think about picking up an extra item for a few dollars to give to the shelter.

I do a lot of browsing through two or three of my favorite discount outlets and when I do, I make a point of looking over the sale rack, sale table and all the closeout items. Each time I will pick up one item which costs under $5, $6 or $7 depending on what the budget will allow. Many times I have found wonderful shirts, blouses, slacks and lingerie for as little as $3. The clothing has been marked down because it is an off size, didn't sell well or is missing a matching half. What a bonanza for our women's shelters!

Please do me a favor and the next time you're shopping in one of your favorite bargain stores, think about those who are less fortunate than yourself and pick up an item every so often. You will amaze how in a short amount of time, possibly six to eight months or even a year, you may have enough to outfit someone in an area shelter. It only costs a little bit each and every time, but in the long run it will add up to great rewards. — Hugs, Heloise

PROTECTING CARPET

Dear Heloise: To keep my two toddlers from staining my carpeting when they eat at the dinner table, I put a flannel-backed vinyl tablecloth under their chairs.

It is easier to clean than the carpet, and any liquid spills won't soak through into the carpet. — Denise Pace, Little Rock, Ark.

Designers predict trends

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newseas

Housewares and home appliances will be smaller and more socially responsible and interiors will rely on furnishings for distinction since new housing will be Spartan in the 1990s, according to designers' predictions.

Steven Holt, head of a product design program at Parsons School of Design in New York, says home electronics will become more portable. Curiosities now, he says pocket-size telephones and copiers and portable stereos with full-size sound will become the norm. Small kitchen appliances that now clutter countertops also will take less space.

A new product's effect on the environment will be measured before it is introduced, he says, and preference will be given to environmentally neutral or enhancing products. Sectioned garbage containers, for example, will make recycling easier at home.

Packaging will be ecologically more responsible. Recycled paper will replace blister packs, and some items may do away with packaging altogether, says Holt.

"Instead of eating out, people will use microwaves and gadgetry to make eating at home easier, more economical and pleasanter," says Jack Lenor Larsen, a products designer and president of the American Crafts Council.

In interior design, Larsen says the new look will be furniture that seems to float away from the wall, bold color statements and fabrics that rely on texture and color rather than pattern.

The retro look will be the '50s. Collectors will seek the original pieces, and manufacturers will crank out reproductions. Because of the high cost of custom homes, there will be more multi-family units and modular homes.

"Thousands of architects and designers are being let go by large firms as commercial construction projects diminish in number and lavishness," he says, "so lots of talent will be freed to design residences, now rejected as not profitable enough."

As a result, he says, we'll see a more creative approach to home design.

Some of the most creative ideas, says Larsen, could come from the mobile home industry allied with designers with new ideas. Holt, meanwhile, predicts that mass-produced homes will be designed as a series of choices around a function, with buyers able to choose from a list of options.

"Everything that makes a home special and gives it color will have to come from the furnishings," says Larsen. "I see fantasy furniture as one alternative, pieces that recall an eastern European folk or country motif. Since our houses all look the same, we're desperate to distinguish our own look."

Beverly Russell, editorial director of Interiors magazine, says the 1990s will build on the 1980s when the No. 1 design issue was energy efficiency. "What's coming on for the '90s," she says, "is compassionate, environmentally-conscious design."

Some of the impetus for new products in the 1990s will come from marketing factors, she says.

The office furniture market is saturated, according to Russell, so companies will expand into new markets created by an aging American population and consumer interest in living in a healthy environment.

Products for special populations, such as the sick and elderly, will be adapted for everyone's use. Better bathroom design and beds for people with bad backs are two of Russell's predictions for the 1990s.

Some designers are already responding to the new concerns, she says: "They don't specify furniture with toxic glue, carpet with formaldehyde backing or laminates that give off toxic radiation. They see that computer users are provided with safety shields against excess radiation."

"We've been living with the illogic of affluence: Why be rational? We can afford not to be," says Larsen.

Now, he says, it's time to adopt a logic of scarcity.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) - Country music star Waylon Jennings said he erased a "blot on my record" when he received his high school equivalency diploma from Kentucky first lady Martha Wilkinson.

Instead of the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance," Monday's brief ceremony at the Capitol was preceded by a recording of some of Jennings' biggest hits, which include "Mama, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to be Cowboys" and the theme to "The Dukes of Hazzard" TV show.

Despite his fame and wealth, Jennings said the fact that he had dropped out of school during the 10th grade had always been a source of regret.

The first ship to cross the North Pole beneath the ice was the Nauticus on August 3, 1958.
