Feelings Toward Witches Stall Trial

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) - An attorney for self-professed witch Loy Dean Stone says exhaustive examination of potential jurors, which has delayed the beginning of testimony in Stone's murder trial, is needed to determine whether jurors are biased against witches.

Jury selection began on Monday and only 16 persons had survived initial questioning. A panel of 32 persons will be selected from which the final 12-person jury will be chosen. James Doores of Amarillo, one of Stone's attorneys, predicted the trial itself won't start until Tuesday or Wednesday. Stone and his wife Louise, both members of the Church of Wicca, are accused of the Halloween 1977 shotgun slaying of 15-year-old Roxanne Casas. Mrs. Stone will be tried separately. Judge John T. Boyd decided early last week to divide their trials. The trial was moved from their hometown of Dimmitt, near Plainview in the Texas Panhandle, on a change of venue.

Another 140 prospective jurors have been called to Boyd's courtroom for Monday, but only 40 were expected to appear. The second group of 140 will be questioned if 32 prospects cannot be selected from the original panel of 280. Doores said "a good hour's worth" of examination is necessary to obtain "good, objective jurors."

Miss Cases was killed as the pickup in which she and four friends were riding turned around in the Stones' driveway. Two shotgun blasts ripped through the passenger window and the bed of the truck, killing her and injuring two other teenagers.

The Stones had called the sheriff earlier in the evening to chase away carloads of youths who were harassing them. Some of the students said later that they had heard the Stones advertise a witches seminar two weeks earlier, and wanted to see what the witches were doing on Halloween.

Meanwhile, the Stones' status in the community of witches . has been questioned by other witches, who say they are members of older, more traditional covens.

Wicca has been called "mailorder witchcraft" by some because members join after taking a correspondence course that costs $100.

But Herman Slater, a high priest in Earthstar - a Welsh traditional coven - and owner of a New York store specializing in occult objects, said Wicca's members are not witches.

"It's pop folk magic," he said. "They claim to be heriditary Welch traditionalists, but practices in their 'Witch's Bible' are

THE AMERICAN FARMER DESERVES BETTER than he is

There's something wrong with the system when the most productive segment of our society is subject to the whims and decisions of political leaders and politicians.

The majority of Americans probably approved of the President's action in stopping the export of grains to Russia, but the step resulted in pulling out the props from a grain market which had finally shown signs of improvement after a long period of depression.

The fact is that other countries don't want anything else from us but grain. Manufactured products are too high in price. primarily because the union wage scale--aided by government policies - has priced these products out of the world market.

The American farmer, on the other hand, has increased production and continues to feed not only the people of the U.S., but many people around the world. To have his price pushed and pulled and manipulated by political rather than econômic forces is unfair to the farmer.

If the federal government is going to use grain as a political tool, then there should be some system whereby those who produce it will still receive a fair price.

Feds Outline Gasohol Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is lining up behind a program that would substitute "gasohol" for 10 percent of the nation's unleaded gasoline supply by 1981, using millions of tons of surplus grain in the process.

That would be a sixfold increase in production of gasohol, a mixture of 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent ethyl alcohol - or ethanol - a poisonous, undrinkable liquid.

In addition to providing power when it burns, the alcohol increases the anti-knock properties of unleaded gasoline.

Gasohol generally costs 5 or 6 cents per gallon more than unleaded gasoline, but its cost may decline with production improvements.

The $3 billion program outlined Friday by President Carter's aides stakes out a middle ground between a $5 billion gasohol program approved by the Senate and the absence of any such program in House-passed energy legislation. Stuart Eizenstat, the president's domestic policy adviser, said the administration was not submitting new legislation for the program, but was supporting the $3 billion figure in a congressional conference committee already considering legislation that includes the Senate's $5 billion version.

The 10-year program backed by Carter would provide loans and loan guarantees for construction of small-and mediumsized distilleries to produce additional alcohol that would be blended with gasoline.

Eizenstat told reporters the administration was not "earmarking" for the program the 17 million metric tons in grain being withheld from the Soviet Union in reprisal for its military intervention in Afghanistan. But he said supplies originally intended for Russia remain in for purchase by distillers. Eizenstat said Carter's gasohol policies were developed over the past 18 months and would have been announced about now regardless of events in

A number of measures have already been adopted or proposed to stimulate gasohol production. Perhaps the most important is the exemption, until 1984, of gasohol from the federal gasoline excise tax of 4 cents a gallon.

Eizenstat said Carter proposes to make that exemption permanent as a significant inducement to investment in new distillery capacity, now the bottleneck limiting alcohol produc-

"We will quadruple current gasohol production capacity by the end of this year," Carter said in a statement issued by the White House. "During 1981, we should be capable of producing ethanol at an annual rate of 500 million gallons more than six times the current

It would take about 5 million tons of grain to produce 500 million gallons of ethanol. This year's ethanol production is estimated at 80 million gallons.

Tax Appraisal Board Installed

By PAUL SIMS Manging Editor

Five Deaf Smith County residents were sworn in Friday night as the first-ever members of the county tax-appraisal district created by Senate Bill 621 as part of the voter-passed 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

The new directors were nominated by the county's taxing authorities--Hereford City Commission, Deaf Smith County Commission, Deaf Smith County Hospital District Board, Hereford Independent School District Board of Trustees and Walcott Independent School District Board of Trustees.

Receiving the oath of office from County Judge Glen Nelson were Melvin Jayroe of the city zoning commission, Bruce Coleman of the county commission, Frank Zinser of the hospital board James Gentry of Dan Hall of the Walcott ISD.

The new board then elected Bruce Coleman as its chairman, James Gentry vice chairman and Dan Hall secretary-treasur-

Coleman Announces For County Position

Bruce Coleman, Deaf Smith County commissioner of Precinct 3 for 15 years, Friday announced his candidacy for a fifth term while saying he wanted to make it clear that it will be his last.

"I have spent weeks trying to decide whether or not to run for county office one last time. Jo (his wife) and I would like to extend our travels. But, at age 51, I hope to have many good years left for both work and leisure," said Coleman, who farms and ranches 24 miles west of Hereford.

Coleman, who has had an opponent in each of his five races for the commission and is being opposed by Troy Moore, has lived in Deaf Smith County for 50 years. He is immediate past chairman of the regional board of Mental Health/Mental Retardation and is a member of the newly-created Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District Board, which met for the first time Friday night.

Coleman also is an elder at First Christian Church.

"The county, due to past and present leadership, is very sound and stable. Offices and personnel have never had a better attitude of cooperation.

"A county commissioner's responsibilities go far beyond the management of the county's $21/2 million-per-year service provision system. He must be an articulate voice of seasoned judgment speaking for our people at the county, state and federal levels."

The filing deadline for county and state offices is Feb. 5. Primary elections are scheduled for May 3 and the general election for November.

Grian Exporters

Meet Over Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) - Repesentatives of the world's major grain exporting countries are gathering at the State Department to discuss the United States' decision to cut grain shipments to the Soviet Union.

Saturday's meeting could provide a clue to how successful the Soviets will be in a drive to build up their meat supplies. Supplying more meat to Soviet citizens has been an important Soviet aim and has led to huge grain purchases from the United States.

If other countries do not step in to fill the gap, those plans could be hampered by President Carter's decision to deprive the Soviets of 17 million metric tons of U.S grain in reprisal for Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Invited to the State Department meeting were officials from Argentina. Canada. Australia and the European Economic Community which represents France, West Germany, Britain, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Ireland, Denmark and Luxembourg.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - With relatives still battling over the fortune of an eccentric oil heiress who insisted on being buried in her favorite sports car, a probate judge has ruled that Sandra West's $1.5 million stamp collection can be auctioned off in London.

But Deputy County Counsel Frank Scott said it may be quite some time before the proceeds from the sale are distributed because of the soap opera-like court fights looming over Mrs. West's two wills and her sizable estate.

On Friday, Superior Court Judge Franklin Dana authorized county Public Administrator Gordon W. Treharne to arrange for well-known philatelic brokers Harmers International to auction the collection, probably sometime in May after it is displayed at the prestigious London international stamp exhibition.

"We're quite sure it will bring in at least a million and a half," said Scott, the attorney representing the estate. "It could conceivably bring in $2 million."

At last accounting, in August 1979, Mrs. West's estate was valued at $4,765,192.43, according to Scott. But at that time the stamp collection was valued at only about $675,000.

Nor did he mention reports at the United Nations Friday that Iran was preparing some sort of compromise plan to stave off sanctions.

The Soviet Union has pledged to veto a sanctions resolution, but America has said it would try to enlist its allies in an independent sanctions plan if the U.N. measure fails.

The United States cut off its purchases of Iranian oil shortly after the embassy was seized by Iranian militants nearly 11 weeks ago.

Aubrey Gene Hester, a former employee in the school district's heatin and air conditioning and maintenance division, was sentenced to 6 months in prison and 41/2 years on probation. Leland Burnell Hall, an Irving businessman, was assessed 2 years in prison and 5 years on probation. U.S. Distict Judge Barefoot Sanders said neither man has a prior criminal record, but said that didn't outweigh the fact that "the purpose of the scheme was simply to steal public money." They pleaded guilty to reduced charges in exchange for their testimony against Hester's former boss, Richard A. Winger, who has pleaded innocent to conspiracy and obstruction of justice charges and 22 counts of mail fraud.

Winger faces a maximum $37,000 in fines and 130 years in prison if convicted.

Housing Industry In Nosedive

By KRISTIN GOFF AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The housing industry, long considered a bellwether of general economic trends, has taken a nosedive recently.

The Commerce Department reported this week that sales of new single family homes plunged 13.5 percent in November, the biggest decline in a single month in about a decade.

Sales of existing homes are also down sharply - they fell about 11 percent in November. said the National Association of Realtors.

The reports blamed much of the sales slide on moves by the Federal Reserve Board in October which tightened credit and forced interest rates up. In some places, mortgage interest rates reached 14 percent.

But in states with limits on how much can be charged for a mortgage loan, many lenders flation, went up only about 11 haven't been lending because it is not profitable.

That situation may be eased by legislation President Carter signed last month suspending usury ceilings on mortgages through next March.

But forecasts for this year still look for a substantial decline in housing construction and sales. Housing construction starts in

In other business developments this week:

-The nation's unemployment rate edged up slightly in December to 5.9 percent from 5.8 percent the previous month.

The Labor Department said just over 6 million persons were unemployed in December, about the same number as a year earlier. Total employment last month was 97.9 million, compared with 97.6 million in -Prices of wheat and other grains dropped sharply in frantic trading on commodities futures exchanges in the Midwest after President Carter's decision to embargo 17 million metric tons of grain in retaliation for the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan. However, prices recovered from their worst losses late in the week.

-The Commerce Department's chief economist, Courtenay Slater, estimated that the economy expanded at a 2 percent to 3 percent rate in the final quarter of 1979.

Discipline Needed!

By JAMES ROBERTS Andrews County News

Sixty-thousand Russian troops in Afghanistan... and Uncle Sam wants to call on the United Nations!

One senator took the floor of the Senate to ask for U.S. troops to support the rebels fighting the Russians. We looked it up...he's the same guy who consistently has voted down increases in our military budget for 17 years.

The American Legion magazine last month had a shocking story about the state of affairs in the nation's armed forces. The article pointed out that the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps have difficulty in training young men because so many of them can't read well enough to understand commands or carry out orders.

And, the report added, many of them were never exposed to sufficient discipline prior to entering the service to adjust to a military role.

Let's face it...this country is in no shape to fight anybody on land, sea or air. We've been too busy for two decades in cutting defense expenditures in order to distribute more to those without enough self-discipline to compete economically.

This nation is currently a sprawling giant whose strength has been sapped by self-indulgence, intelligence drained by sapless and guilt-ridden do-gooders, and rendered weak and ineffectual by perpetual verbal diarrhea at both ends.

Examples of the erosion of self-discipline are too numerous to start listing. But discipline is as necessary to a democracy as freedom to speak, assemble, or vote.

You can't rear children, learn, fight, or punish without discipline. And before we try to stop the Russians, we had better realize it.

Khomeini wants war

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini wants the United States to take some form of military action against his country. At least, that is the conclusion of a top secret psychological profile of Khomeini put together by U.S.

The profile's ominous conclusion is being taken seriously by the administration, and it forms the basis of President Carter's strategy in dealing with the crisis in Iran.

The profile is based on newly translated writings by the ayatollah, interviews with persons who have known him for years and information gathered from covert sources. It claims that Khomeini plans a worldwide Moslem political revolution, using Iran as his base. This revolution, Khomeini reportedly believes, will lead to a worldwide revival of Islam, with him as the spiritual leader of the reborn Moslem world. Khomeini apparently takes literally the Koran's declaration that "there awaits ... a mighty chastisement" for the unbelieving non-Moslem world.

Prescribed for you is fighting ...," the Koran tells its faithful. "O believers, take your precautions, then move forward in companies, or move forward all together ... When you meet the unbelievers, smite their necks and, when you have made wide slaughter among them, tie fast their bonds ... Those who are killed in the path of Allah, He does not let their good deeds

The first step in the ayatollah's grand plan was accomplished with the overthrow of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and Khomeini's return from self-imposed exile. The second step has proved more difficult, however. Khomeini's grip on Iran is shaky at best. Some outside event is needed to firm up his hold and to enable him to launch his "jihad" (holy war). Military action by the "the Zionist, imperialist" United States against Khomeini's Islamic revolution would best serve this purpose, the intelligence profile maintains. Thus, the ayatollah has done all he can to force the United States into attacking Iran. This also explains why, whenever a Khomeini-appointed official begins to take a moderate line, he is quickly removed from office.

The next best event from Khomeini's viewpoint, according to the psychological profile, would be severe economic sanctions, such as a blockade, which Khomeini could exploit to whip up Islamic fervor.

Sources close to administration planning say this belief that Khomeini needs some kind of radical response from the United States to solidify his powerbase within Iran and to spread his revolution to other Moslem countries - has tempered the U.S. response so far. And, these sources add, the administration hopes to continue this play-it-cool approach even after the hostage situation is ended. As one very knowledgeable source said, "It wouldn't do us any good to outlast Khomeini only to end up doing the very thing that he so badly wants us to do. Our most effective means of dealing with him over the long run would be simply to ignore him and his country as if they were so unimportant as not to be worthy of our bother. But, of course, this is impossible as long as he has our people and eventually it may be politically difficult when the hostages are released.

"But for now, it's important to realize that the hostages are his power. As long as he has them, we can be expected to react to his every action and the world will hang on his every word.

"His big problems will come when all this is over and he no longer has this war frenzy to hold his revolution together. Then he will rise or fall on what he can do for the Iranian

Sex in advertising

By Don Graff

While the exit from the Carter cabinet of Joseph Califano, former secretary of health, education and welfare, removed an outspoken foe of smoking from the government, the tobacco industry may have scant cause for celebration.

Califano's successor, Patricia Harris, may be less aggressive in her approach, but she is known as a formidable campaigner once she defines a goal.

Recently, she drew a bead on cigarette hustling. While stressing that at the moment she hasn't any plans to propose new restrictive regulations or legislation on the subject, she sharply criticized the industry practice of pushing brands by giving away free samples, which go in quantity to young people. That practice, she said, is "absolutely beyond the pale."

Mrs. Harris added that cigarette advertising in general should be handled with "great caution" and that in particular advertising featuring "sexy guys and sexy gals" should be

> When we think of energy today, we think of oil, electricity, gas and nuclear power, but we often forget that it was we Americans--the 6 percenters -- who developed these modern forms. Indeed. Novak insists: "Six percent of the world's population has invented 100 percent of the world's modern energy and distributed almost 70 percent of it to the rest of the world." Second, we must also realize that much of this awesome responsibility belongs to small business. The some 13 million small businesses in America already form the backbone for our economy. They represent 97 percent of all individual firms, employ more than half the labor force. provide the livelihood for 100 million Americans and create half our gross national product.

What small businesses provide best is precisely what we and the rest of the world need most--innovation and growth. Recent studies show it is the small innovative businesses that grow the fastest, generate the most new jobs, and often contribute the revolutionary technological break-throughs that have earned America her reputation as the country of the

But as we look to small business to provide the quality of leadership it has in the past, we must recognize how vulnerable it has become to our economic problems. Infaltion puts small business in a bind, since it must pay higher prices for raw materials and supplies, then risk the wrath of consumers if it raises prices. Capital is difficult to obtain because small business, by definition, is so risky, yet inflation compels firms to borrow more, even as it increases the cost of borrowed capital while devaluing the purchasing power of funds ultimately spent. Firms that do take risks, and succeed, face excessive taxes. Finally, regulations and paperwork are especially discriminatory because small business usually cannot afford the experts needed to interpret bureaucratic demands.

And one thing more. From race car drivers we have learned how to make synthetic oil that in most ways is better than the petroleum product.

Oil for an automobile engine does more than just lubricate moving parts. It should also seal and cool and clean an engine.

Oil must have a viscosity which is thin enough to allow for starting in cold weather vet thick enough not to break down under high heat.

Oils must include such compounds as detergents and dispersants to diffuse contaminants until they can be removed by the oil filter.

Antioxidants are included also to slow down the creation of acids and sludge.

When the Germans started running out of oil during World War II they began development of ersatz oil synthesizing hydrocarbons.

#These synthetics that proved better in many ways than the petroleum product were adapted for jet turbines.

Chemically constructed lubricants will flow freely at temperatures which turn most mineral-based oil to glue!

A "thinner lubricant" also creates less resistance--it takes less power to drive the oil pump. for example. This can mean a four to eight percent increase in gas mileage.

If the synthetic oils perform well from 60 below zero to 450 degrees above...

And if the synthetics are better able to lubricate such areas as the cam lobe and rod

And if the synthetics give better gas mileage...

And if the synthetics hold up so much better that you need "change oil" only after perhaps 15,000 miles....

UNCLE TOM'S CANDIDACY

Other folks trace their roots and find interesting people. I traced mine and found out I come from a family of men named Tom. It must have been the only name they could spell.

My Dad is named Tom. My brother, my nephew, an uncle and three cousins...all named Tom.

One of my Tom cousins decided to run for sheriff in my hometown. As is typical of my bunch, he did it

Everyone knows if you are going to run for sheriff in any county in America you must get a campaign picture made wearing a cowboy hat. Have you ever seen a sheriff's picture without one? Cousin Tom put on a suit and tie with no hat for his picture. It was helpful in one sense. No one had ever seen him cleaned up so no one knew who was running.

Everyone knows when they interview a new candidate they always ask, "Why are you running?" The candidate is suppose to answer with some grave rhetoric about the country being at the crossroads (we have been at the crossroads all of the 200 years of our existence). Then the candidate should say, "I feel it my patriotic duty to serve the citizens of my community. We need stronger law enforcement than the present incumbent is giving. I think I am qualified to straighten out the situation. "--or some such speech as that

Well, they interviewed cousin Tom...

"Why are you running for sheriff?"

"I need a job.

That's bad politics but I must admit, cousin Tom is the only honest candidate I have ever known.

I became intrigued with Tom's campaign. I went to

There were 13 of us there. All relatives and bums. The relatives furnished both relatives and bums.

Tom got up to make his big speech. The incumbent sheriff had been in office for 18 years. Tom's speech was, "Ladies and gentlemen (there weren't any of either there), the present sheriff has been in office for eighteen years. Now, I don't know what kind of job it is being a sheriff but, if it is a hard job then the incumbent needs a rest. If it is a gravy train, then it is time to pass the gravy!"

Cousin Tom finished third...in a two-man race. Warm fuzzies, Doug Manning

In an issue of the daily News-Journal of Clovis, announcement is made that the company holding the franchise for the distribution of gas in Clovis has contracted for gas to be received from the West Texas Gas Co., and that a line will be rushed from its terminus at Hereford to supply gas to Friona, Bovina, Texico, Farwell, Clovis and Portales. That was the logical thing to do in the first place, but it took a lot of bickering to get the job accomplished.

25 YEARS AGO

Very few people realize it. but the Hereford territory--along with Parmer and Castro Counties--has been the focal point of one of the most spirited real estate booms in the nation during the past 60 days. Estimates vary regarding the number of tracts sold, and total amounts paid. The figure generally ranges between $3 million and $5 million.

Prices are higher than they used to be, about which no one will argue. Three drunks had good reason for a double hangover, however, when they left Justice Court here. Each was assessed $25 and cost, total $49.50, by JP which was a definite increase over the $1 and costs; generally paid by previous "drunk" charges. "When you pay $10 for a fifth of bootleg hooch, then pay $49.50 for drinking it, you can figure there's inflation," said one of the prisoners as he marched back to jail, where he is still trying to figure out if he got his money's worth or not.

Billy Lee Edds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Edds, was the first baby in Hereford to welcome in the new year. The child was born at 7:30 a.m. New Year's Day in the local hospital and weighed eight pounds four ounces.

1 YEAR AGO

Temperatures dropped to bone-chilling record lows in the Panhandle today as winter kept a tight grasp on the Lone Star State. Hereford's low was 7 below 0, a record for Jan. 2. Temperatures in the Deaf Smith County area rose slowly after midnight but remained below zero at sunrise.

An intense cold front that socked the Rocky Mountain states and Midwest over the weekend appeared to be moving slowly eastward today hinting that the near-balmy East may vet get a taste of the icy blast that knocked power, stranded thousands and left at least 10-dead.

TV Commercials Better Than Shows?

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm takes a brief look at television this week, then finds a new reason for conserving oil.

Dear Editor: Frequently the commercials on TV are much better than the programs they're interrupting, so much so that you get the notion the programs are interrupting the commercials.

But like the programs, some commercials specialize in hokum. For example there's one advertising a computer, an item I've never been much interested in buying--I don't need a computer to tell me when to throw another log on the fire. It claims it's fighting inflation and says that if the price of a hamburger had dropped as much proportionately as the price of that computer in the last 25 years, a hamburger would now cost 5 cents. What it fails to mention is that if a hamburger 2 years ago had cost as much as that computer then did,

$150 apiece. Second price for hokum goes hamburgers would have cost to the car manufacturers who claim their cars go further on a tank of gas, without mentioning that perhaps their tanks are bigger. One claims that with an extra tank you can go halfway across the United States without filling up. With half a dozen tanks you probably could drive till early Spring.

Everybody talks about conserving gas but nobody seems to know how to do it, except to drive less, which is unthinkable. The problem is more serious than people realize because. look, the earth turns on its axis once around every twenty-four hours. Right? All right. Now if we pump all the oil out, what's going to happen?

Why the earth, without any lubrication, is going to start squeaking. People won't be able to sleep at night for the noise. . And already the dip stick shows we're two quarts low.

Yours faithfully.

Meanwhile, to change the subject, if the United Nations can't do anything about the Iranian situation, should we consider taking it up with the

SW Votes on Package

DALLAS (AP) - Looking at a possible strike at midnight tonight, the 106 mechanics, cleaners and stock clerks who work for Southwest Airlines were voting today on the airline's "complete and final" economic package. Union officials urged them to reject it.

Should the Texas airline be forced to shut down, its president said all 1,600 employees of the airline probably would go off the payroll "within 48 to 72 when its 3-year contract ex-

Officials of the airline and of the International Association of Machinists said they were far apart on fundamental issues. The main stumbling block, union officials said, is the base pay

Both management and union officials said chances for agreement appeared bleak. The union has been operating without a contract since last August,

The airline has offered to raise the base pay from $9.10 to $11 an hour during the first year of the contract, but increases over the next two years would be inadequate, said Lanny Rogers, president of the union.

Howard Putnam, president of Southwest Airlines, said the airline has a contingency plan calling for the operation of 12 planes, all 737s, with nonunion supervisory personnel providing maintenance. But he conceded the ability to continue would hinge on how many non-IAM employees honor the union's picket lines.

Rogers expressed confidence unions would honor picket lines if the strike occurs.

Southwest Airlines upped its offer to the union in talks Thursday. The new proposal included increased base pay for stock clerks and cleaners, increased severance pay provisions, additional license premium pay for mechanics and "numerous other improvements," the airline said.

Union officials, after balking initially, agreed Friday to submit the latest proposal to the union members.

Rogers had said there would be no vote on Southwest's offer because "it's so sketchy I'm not even sure what's in it.'

Putnam said the airline's final pay offer totaled more than $1.6 million in pay hikes and additional compensation and

Rogers said the union is demanding:

-a halt to unrestricted over--an increase in the base-pay scale to bring it more in line with other carriers. -premium pay for IAM members holding air frame and power plant licenses.

-increased pay for the evening and night shifts. -institution of line premiums of 10 cents per hour for employees working at terminals. -an additional day off per

-three weeks vacation after five, rather than six, years.

FARMERS BRANCH, Texas ground in front of the car, but (AP) — A 34-year-old man suspected of a kidnap-rape of a 12-year-old girl and the rapemurder of a Braniff flight attendant hanged himself Friday in his jail cell.

The man, Shelby LeTard, apparently was trying to kill himself by carbon monoxide poisoning when police arrested him Thursday morning in a vacant field in Garland, officers said.

LeTard was found hanged with a strip of blanket tied to the top portion of the bars in his Farmers Branch jail cell. An officer discovered the incident when he brought lunch.

The Dallas County medical examiner's office ruled the death a suicide.

He gave Farmers Branch police written and oral statements Thursday in which he admitted the rape-murder of Cheryl Susan Bellinger, 26, last Aug. 14 in her home. Her nude and battered body was discovered by her father.

LeTard had been arrested for the rape-kidnap of a girl who was taken from her mother's apartment Wednesday night. She escaped from LeTard's car in a field, ran to a nearby home and called police. The girl, who told police she had been raped twice, said Le-Tard ran a hose from the exhaust pipe and through a window, then closed all the windows. The girl's hands had been tied and she was bound in a she escaped while he was running the hose, she said.

Minutes later, when officers went to the field, they found LeTard in the parked vehicle.

A Texas Ranger who interviewed LeTard said he had one prior conviction, for auto theft in San Angelo.

LeTard was being held on bonds totalling $250,000 for two counts of aggravated rape of a child, kidnapping and murder.

A friend of the child's mother said that LeTard had visited in the woman's home and that both knew LeTard's estranged wife. After being informed of the arrest, the family friend notified LeTard's estranged wife, who then said her husband might have killed Miss Belli-

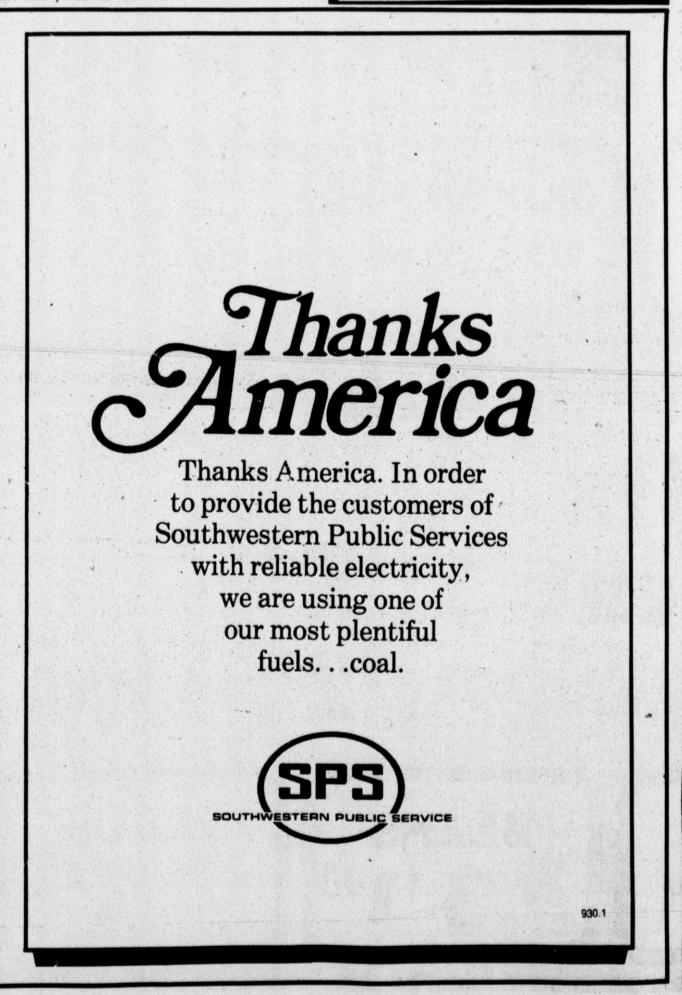

Farmers Branch police were notified and Sgt. Dennis Hazlewood was sent to Garland to interview LeTard. As Hazelwood walked into the room, Le-Tard said, "I'm the one that killed Cheryl Bellinger."

Police Sgt. Dennis Hazelwood said LeTard was "straight to the point" in discussing the Bellinger murder.

He told me he started raping her and she started screaming." Hazelwood said.

According to police, LeTard said he killed Miss Bellinger after she told him she was going to tell LeTard's estranged wife. whom police described as a "casual acquaintance" of the

Oil Rig Count Expected to Climb Later This Year

HOUSTON (AP) - Domestic small investors to commit their oil and gas drilling operations funds until later in the year have backed away from a 22year high.

The weekly average for rotary drilling rigs in use has dropped from 2,577 to 2,495 since Dec.

But drilling contractors indicate there is no cause for

Ed McGhee, executive vice president of the International Association of Drilling Contractors, says industry observers believe the rig count probably will repeat this year its historic pattern of first-quarter

"They cite as the main reason the traditional reluctance of when they can better predict their own tax liability," McGhee said.

"Almost as large a factor in precipitating a decline is the difficulty of moving land rigs over winter terrain.

The early December rig count of 2,577 was the highest since a 2,581 average the week ending Dec. 23, 1957.

Between those two averages, the industry had moved through a prolonged drilling slump that did- not bottom out until the weekly rig count plunged to only. 814 late in the first quarter of

McGhee said there is still reason for 1980 oiptimism in that several factors are at work to soften the potential first quarter drop.

"A major one is the final disposition of the long fought excise tax mislabeled as a windfall profits tax," he said.

"As bad as the final measure may be, exact knowledge of its provisions is better than the uncertainty that prevailed throughout its passage by the Congress."

Moreover, he added, high prices permitted under the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act continue to encourage activity in several

After 1980's first quarter, McGhee said, there are some predictions the active rig count will recover and climb during the fourth quarter into the same range as in 1956.

For new wells drilled, 1956 was drilling's best year ever, ern low of 27,300 in 1971. Inwith the industry completing a record 58,160 wells.

"In mid-Decemmber of that year, the active rig count hit 2.894," McGhee said. "However, the absolute all-time record count had been set 12 months earlier at a level of 3.137 active units." McGhee said the 1955 figure appears unattainable in 1980. "It is not that too few rigs will be available," he said. "Rather, represented a 4.5 percent operators just give no sign of requiring that many new holes

After the all-time high for well completions was recorded in 1956, the long drilling slump dropped completions to a modcreases in six of the next seven years enabled the completions total to move back to 47,057 in

Petroleum Information Corp. has placed 1979 completions at 48,709 and has projected an 0.8 percent increase to 49,101 in

The Denver data analysis firm said the 18,856 wells last year completed as oil producers decline from 1979 but the 14,394 natural gas producers represented a 15 percent gain. There were 15,851 dry holes.

McGhee says drilling contractors may face another shortage of diesel fuel during the first quarter. Watch for such supplies to grow scarce, he said, within the next 30 to 45 days.

"The disruption of Iranian supplies is being compounded by the peak winter demand for home heating oils in the United States," he said.

"The result is drilling contractors may expect a repeat of the diesel shortages and price jumps that grabbed headlines a year ago." At that time, McGhee said, the Department of Energy wound up assigning the same top priority to drilling rigs that had been given to agriculture.

"This time, no such favors will be given," he said.

"Election year politics won't permit the Democratic administration to make any encouraging moves toward the petroleum industry.

Silver Making American Shutterbugs Reluctant

NEW YORK (AP) - Silver shutterbugs. has become so valuable that the companies making photo- luctant to buy a roll of film," graphic film save all the little bits they punch out of 35-millimeter and movie film so the film fits on the sprockets.

"They're much too valuable says of the little punchouts.

There is no way around it: The price of silver, a key ingredient of both film and the up to 75 percent, take effect paper on which pictures are Jan. 26 for film and a month printed, is soaring.

That is pushing up photograindustry are worried there will be a lot fewer folks lining up to the price leader. say, "Cheese!" for American "People are going to be repredicts John Lauer, a vice president of Fotomat. "Instead of buying four or five rolls a year, they'll buy two or three."

A year ago, silver cost $6 an to throw away," Henry Kaska, a ounce. This month the price spokesman for Eastman Kodak, touched $40 before settling above $30, so prices are rising for both film and paper.

Kodak's increases, ranging later for photographic paper. There is little doubt that other phy prices, and people in the makers will follow Kodak, which dominates the industry and is take heart in the fact that color tober. And on Feb. 26, the Kofilm uses less silver than blackand-white, so the percentage price increases are smaller. Per roll, the cost of color film is rising between 15 percent and 25 percent.

A 12-exposure roll of Kodacolor Il color print film, size 110, which cost $1.76 in October, will rise from the current $1.86 to $2.15. And the Kodak charge for developing and printing the pictures will climb from $5.46 to $5.70 on Feb. 26.

A roll of 35-millimeter Kodachrome slide film with 20 exposures will have a suggested retail price of $3.69, up from the current $3.07 and from the Amateur photographers can $2.90 price that prevailed in Ocdak price for processing the film will rise from $3.15 to $3.40.

Instant film uses even less silver than regular color film. Prices of Kodak instant film rose just 10 percent. Polaroid imposed a 6 percent increase Jan. 1, blaming it on increases in all costs, not just silver.

Not everyone is hurting. Because film sales were disappointing for Polaroid last year, the silver it bought at relatively low prices was not used as quickly as expected. Donald Dery, a Polaroid spokesman, will not give details but says "We have not felt a severe strain as a result of the value," says Fred Nakamura, executive vice president of Fuji Photo Film U.S.A., a Japanese company that has carved out a segment of the American market. "There is no ready-made substitute."

The photo industry has long since taken steps to recover every ounce of silver it can. Kodak says it recovers 20 million ounces a year, but still has to buy 50 million more.

One place a lot of silver can be reclaimed is in film processing. Lauer estimates that Fotomat will recover silver worth $10 million in 1980 if the price of silver averages $40 an ounce. Industry research has cut the amount of silver in film but has failed to find an acceptable substitute. "There's no other material that has yet been found that can match silver's capacity in reacting to light," said

The nose cleans, warms and humidifies over 500 cubic feet of air every day.

The photo industry was less than robust in 1979. Merrill Lynch, the Wall Street firm, estimated that U.S. camera sales declined to 19.9 million from 20.7 million the year before, while instant camera sales fell to 7.2 million from 8.8 million. But film sales rose, indicating that people were still willing to use their old cameras.

Whiteface Girl Cagers Topple Tascosa Rebs, 65-49

By MAURI MONTGOMERY Brand Sports Editor

The word has got to be out by now! If you're a girl's varsity basketball player and the next game on your schedule reads Hereford, then you're a whole lot better off if you just grab a date and catch a show instead. The only thing you gain by going to Hereford and pairing off against the Whitefaces is a waste of gas and time.

And the Whitefaces gave that news to the Tascosa Rebels they scuttled the Rebels 65-49 in their last regularly scheduled game of the season and boosted their record for the year to 11-7 with the victory.

Lorri Turner brought Tascosa's early three point lead to a 7-0 margin in the first quarter with back-to-back field goals at 5:48 and 5:35 and following a spree, Rebel Debbie Dawson

They hadn't taken advantage of the Herd's slow start (a notorious trademark the Whitefaces have developed) and they would never get another opportunity to do so.

With 1:10 left in the quarter. brief three point HHS scoring Beverly Nixon faked a pivot shot that sent both squads into a 9-9 dropped in a bucket with less tie and then Deborah Rogers than four minutes remaining in delivered HHS its first lead of back performance as she took a Roger's assist and barrelled in for a last second lavup that gave the Herd a slight four point (13-9) advantage at the end of the first period. It was at that point that the ceiling caved in on the unwary Rebel team because the Herd opened up its big guns. Sophomore Lori Albracht (who averages 18 points or more per outing had 17 points for the night), Amy Schumacher 10, Cathy Lane 4, and Louise Mays also had 17 points and 11 at halftime) all found their marks in the second period as the Herd shot Tascosa right off the second quarter scoreboard (28-20).

And it was that rampant second quarter scoring spree that inevitably sunk the Rebels

Tech Tops Stats

The Texas Tech Red Raiders ranked fifth nationally in field goal percentage this week, according to statistics released by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Tech hit 354 of 648 shots for 54.6 percent, with Missouri the nation's leader with 387 of 665 for 58.2 percent. No other Texas or Southwest Conference teams were in the top 20.

The SWC's leading scorer, Terry Teagle of Baylor, ranked only 48th nationally with his 20.5 per game mark. Drake's Lewis Lloyd was No. 1 with 31.8 points per contest. Harry Kelly of Texas Southern was fifth with 27.7 ppg.

In team statistics, West Texas State was fifth and Southern Methodist 10th in offense; Arkansas was tied for 14th in defense; Texas-El Paso was third in rebounds; and Arkansas was tied for 13th and Texas-Arlington was 15th in free throw percentage.

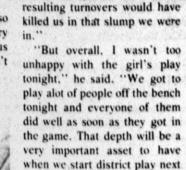

WTSU is averaging 89.5 points a game, with SMU pouring in 87.7. On the other end of the statistics, Arkansas' Razorbacks have been allowing only 61 points a game.

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - It didn't start off as a very good week for Vitas Gerulaitis, but it's getting better. A couple more victories in the $400,000 Grand Prix Masters tennis tournament would make it perfect.

"I've had the flu for the last week and a half and haven't been feeling well," said Gerulaitis moments after he knocked off top-seeded John McEnroe 3-6, 7-6, 7-6 Friday night in the biggest upset of the round-robin portion of the tournament.

It was a spirited rematch of the 1979 U.S. Open final between the two New Yorkers. But while McEnroe won that one in straight sets, the highlight of his climb to the top of U.S. men's tennis, Gerulaitis rallied from a miserable start to win the rematch by taking two tense tiebreakers 9-7 and 7-4.

"For us to play a match like this in New York is a big event," said Gerulaitis. "We grew up here and we played juniors together here. Last time at Flushing Meadow, I read that he owns New York. At least now I got a part of it back."

Gerulaitis, the No.5 seed, was scheduled today for a semifinal match against third-seeded Jimmy Connors. In the second McEnroe and Borg clinched their semifinal berths Thursday. Connors advanced by edging hard-serving Roscoe Tanner 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 Friday, winning the third-set tie-breaker 7-3. Gerulaitis qualified by advancing when Harold Solomon knocked off Guillermo Vilas 6-2, 6-2.

Borg assured himself of first place in his round-robin group of four - and a $10,000 bonus - by routing Jose Higueras 6-2.

Then, Gerulaitis knocked off McEnroe to win the other $10,-000 bonus and much prestige. That match also decided the semifinal pairings.

"I couldn't believe I was playing a match knowing that even if I lost I'd be in the semis, considering the week I've had." said Gerulaitis. "It's always tough to play early in the year, and between the flu and the lack of match play, I really wasn't ready."

Earlier, Connors bounced back from his third-set tiebreaker loss to Borg Thursday night to beat Tanner, who had 13 aces and 14 service winners

Decade of 70's Colored Orange for Syracuse

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Color the decade of the 1970s bright Orange for Syracuse basketball: nine consecutive post-season bids, including two in the National Invitation Tournament and seven in the NCAA playoffs.

Jim Boeheim was a big part of that shining success, coaching Syracuse to a 74-14 record the past three seasons, an average of nearly 25 victories a year.

Another 25-victory season at Syracuse is a strong possibility now that the 1980s have started. The Orangemen are one of the few remaining undefeated teams in the country with a 13-0 record following Friday night's 64-54 victory over Rhode Island. Roosevelt Bouie and Louis Orr combined for 37 points to lead a superior but obviously tired Syracuse team that was playing its fifth game in eight

"Our offense got us in trouble the first half, but we came back." said Boeheim. "We didn't have the energy. Our zone (defense) was effective, Syracuse will have to do again Sunday. The Orangemen continue their hectic schedule when they play No. 10 Purdue in a nationally televised game.

Also, Paul Little scored 16 points as Penn whipped Brown 64-57 for the Quakers' fifth straight victory. Cleo Robertson scored 27 points, including five in the second overtime period, to pace Dartmouth past Cornell 68-61. Andre Battle tossed in 18 points to power Cleveland State past George Mason 90-69. # Wrong Man is Tried in Robbery

DALLAS (AP) - Two years after the son of a Dallas policeman was convicted of an armed robbery, the Dallas County district attorney's office says the wrong man was brought to trial

"I'd like to think it's the only time this has ever happened." District Attorney Henry Wade told the Dallas Times Herald in a copyright story, "but we'll never know that. I hope that it's the only one we ever have. I've read about it happening elsewhere, but never here. We're doing the only thing we can do, dismiss the whole thing."

Judge James Zimmerman, who presided over Stiff's trial, joined the man's defense lawyer, Melvyn Bruder in asking the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to return the case to A transcript of the trial testiudge says he will set aside the jury's conviction and cancel the prison sentence.

Stampede of Birdwatchers Feared

DANSVILLE, N.Y. (AP) - At first, nobody paid much attention to the fact that ornithological history was in the making. But the word is out that the painted redstart is visiting here - and bird societies preparing for an onslaught of enthusiasts are warning watchers to mind their manners.

More at home in the canyons of Mexico and Central America than in this village south of Rochester, the redstart is making its New York debut at the home of the Charles Dilgard family.

It is the first sighting of the red, white and black bird in the Northeast since 1947, according to Richard Guthrie, Albany regional editor for Kingbird, the Audubon Society's newsletter. in Albany.

That previous sighting was in Marblehead Neck, Mass., he

Guthrie left his home at 3:30 a.m. recently for the plus mile trip to Dansville, arriving in the middle of a snowstorm. He described the 4% inch bird as a "warm, cuddly critter - I can't help making it sound seductive."

"It's beautiful," Mary Dilgard said. "And he's been very cooperative, posing for the photographers and then flying around - up on the roof and down to the feeder. He's so friendly, I'm afraid the cat will get him.

Administration Unable To Force Olympic Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration has concluded that it does not have the power to enforce an American boycott of the Olympics, casting doubt on U.S. ability to employ that sanction against the Soviet Union.

The most President Carter could do would be to ask for a voluntary boycott by athletes and spectators on grounds the Games should not be held in Moscow while Soviet troops are in Afghanistan, officials said Thursday.

Speaking on the condition that they not be named, the officials acknowledged that Carter would be unlikely to ask for such a boycott unless there was certainty his call would be heeded.

With such support appearing unlikely at the moment, the administration has decided to adopt a low-key policy of keeping the idea of a boycott alive and waiting to see how events in Afghanistan and elsewhere affect public attitudes, the officials said.

"We are opposed to the infusion of politics, national or international, into the worldwide Olympic movement," United States Olympic Committee spokesman Bob Paul said Thursday.

Individual athletes have voiced similar sentiments. "A boycott seems to have no value at all," said Al Oerter, four-time Olympic discus chamwho is making a comback this year in hopes of winning a fifth gold medal at age 44.

istration would want to be assured of support from other Western nations before proposing it, officials said.

It would be a propaganda victory for the Soviets if the United States isolated itself among the nations of the world in refusing to attend the Games on moral grounds. The implication would be that those nations that did participate approved the Soviet action. Thus far, only Saudi Arabia has announced a boycott because of the Afghan invasion.

Health Commissioner Robert to hard numbers." Bernstein says Todd Shipyards in Galveston has agreed to stop accepting low-level radioactive waste from nuclear reactors for storage.

Bernstein toured the shipyard's nuclear waste storage yards on Pelican Island on Friday at Gov. Bill Clements' request and later held a news conference here.

He said he gave two oral instructions to Charles Hathway, manager of Todd's nuclear storage facility:

-Permanently stop receiving waste cooling water - or any other radioactive materials, for that matter - from nuclear re-

Todd currently has 12,000 barrels of waste materials. compared with a limit of 2,000 barrels in its original permit, Bernstein said. But the permit three months ago to allow Todd until October 1980 to reduce its inventory to 2,000 barrels, he Bernstein said Todd is not technically in violation of its permit because of the October 1980 extension.

He said the storage area 'looked pretty good. The drums are on pallets, largely, I didn't see any evidence of leakage. There was a little rust, but I suppose a new Cadillac rusts down that way."

Clements had objected to the storage of wasté cooling water from a California nuclear reactor. Bernstein said the commissioner had no authority to stop shipments from other states which account for 80 percent of the wastes stored at Todd - but could prohibit storage of all

The Grandeur of Geese. . .

They come, in an ancient exodus from the north, the harbingers of fall.

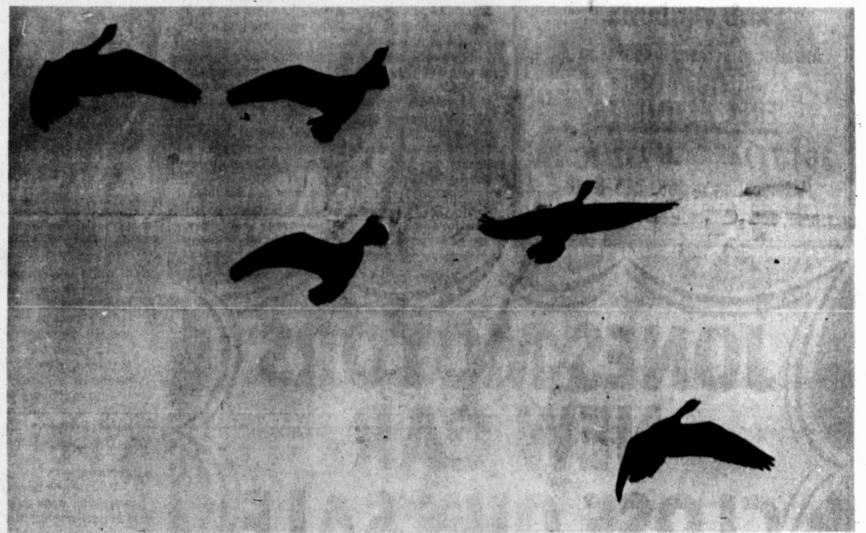

They bring winter and wonder on tireless wings.

Wary, hale and hardy, a picture of sagacity, he knows the wild regions where no man may tread.

No earthly bond may hold these creatures, for massive wings are their key to a heavenly realm.

In the solitude of winter evenings they ply the sunset skies , traveling to take their sustenance from man's grainfields. . . Their majesty is fair exchange for food.

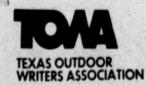

If a man is lucky, he may lure them within his reach, take one of their number, and capture for a moment. . .however brief. . . the magic of their wild world. . .

... And the beating of a waterfowler's heart will forever be measured against the fluid, sweeping power of the great Canada's wings.

TEXAS OUTDOOR

We couldn't have timed it much better. The norther that had loomed across the horizon for most of the morning arrived just minutes before we began to set the decoys.

Low clouds came scudding southward, propelled by a wind that suddenly turned stiff and took on a brisk air.

The geese, nervous over the weather change, had long-since begun trading back and forth from the lake to wheat and corn fields to the north...In fact, we pushed a feeding gaggle from the north corn field before we could set up the blocks.

Corn leaves and shucks were whipping skyward in a small whirlwind behind the pickup as we began unloading the plastic field decoys.

The point decoy, head erect, went into place at the northern end of the set, and then we began to string out the wings of the feeding V in a familiar

The metal stakes jobbed easily into the ground, and as we shoved each decoy stake deeply into the earth to anchor the replicas against the norther, the signs that this was a favored goose feeding ground were evident all around us.

A half dozen snow goose decoys were placed on each side of the wings and then, with the replicas deployed, it was time to set the blinds and get

The honkers were already settling in a wheat field just to the south, and as the howling wind heightened their feeding urgency, we felt certain that there would be geese over the spread before

The familiar rush of uncasing guns and stuffing pockets full of shells served to heighten the

I hid the pickup at the irrigation motor to the east, and in a routine that seems never to change, found myself running back toward the spread.

There's no breath left for blowing a goose call when you pull this sort of stunt, but I hate to be a quarter mile from the spread when the first skein turns into the wind, too.

Erick was standing, watching the feeding geese to the south, the only indication of something,out of place in the midst of a spread that looked like the feeding geese we had startled from this field only 20 minutes ago.

We rolled back the shuck-covered blinds, thumbed shells into our guns, and slid beneath the concealment provided by netting and nature for the nerve-tightening wait.

The wheat was a choice feeding area for flight after flight of honkers for the first half hour or so, then for some reason only the geese knew, they leaped skyward en masse, leaving the wheat field.

Sprawled beneath the blinds and struggling to see through the netting, we could make out the forms of seemingly hundreds of birds laboring against the howling wind as they angled toward the decoys.

With the blinds set so that we faced east, we hoped the honkers would come directly "up the tube" to the open area in the decoys.

But the great wild birds had other ideas, and began to drift westward.

With painful contortions we twisted our necks to see the birds angling in low to the ground at the head end of the blinds.

They came in great long skeins, all skimming past just to the west of the decoys, and we wondered why we hadn't placed the blinds 20 yards more to the west.

There was no chance now though, with the honkers overhead. We waited motionless and listened to their wild cries and the soughing of the wind against their wings. Even if there wasn't a shot to be had, we were getting the show we had come for.

Occupied as we were with the flights veering to the west, we nearly missed seeing a single snow goose as he came soaring directly over the decoys, hovering in the stiff breeze.

The snow uttered not one of the screeching barks that might have given him away, and was intent upon the decoys when we finally realized what was going on and hurled back the blinds.

The goose seemed surprisingly bright against the graying sky, an elusive, decoy-wary prize that had soared unnoticed within our reach. The great, black-tipped wings were holding the bird in place, his head working side to side, his fiery pink bill contrasting with the snowy head. With sharp barks he was suddenly climbing, and long-barreled shotguns were tracking his

Our two shots were muffled by the howling wind and the black-tipped wings folded as No. 2 shot hit

The snow cartwheeled into the corn stubble behind us, and almost before we could reload

Canadas were swarming around us one more, still sliding off to the west. We moved the blinds, faced westward this time, and settled in again, folding down earflaps and tightening collars against the breeze that was beginning to penetrate the warmth of our bulky clothing now. A flight of Canadas lifted from a field to the southeast, and again craning our necks so that we could look backward, we saw them made for the decovs.

These crafty honkers banked to the east, and again, we had nothing but a stand-on-our-head

We let them pass and turned the blinds again. By now, more geese were stirring from the lake to the south.

We could see the low, wavy lines of the flights as the honkers left the water and worked their way over the hillside corn field that was a mile away.

The beating wings of snow geese struck sparks of white in the midsts of the dark wings of the Canadas as flocks mingled and milled over various

They were coming again, their calls made high and thin by the wind.

The goose call emitted its own version of the familiar Canada song, and the pleadings, carried on the wind, brought a huge flight boring in on this new feeding field.

We could hear the hoarse barking as the honkers edged nearer.

They seemed to fly in slow motion as they battled the headwind, their long necks outstretched. With wings bowed, they coasted slightly to the west, then even as they climbed slightly, we could tell they wanted this field. They maneuvered slightly, then their wings took on the heart-quickening curve that meant the honkers were into a glide toward the spread. A big gander was out front. We could see his mud-spattered cheeck patch, then his black feet dropped as he began backpedaling his wings and braking with weaving motions.

Erick came up, the honker was still climbing after the first cough of the pump, then suddenly the great bird rolled on his back at the second shot.

He crashed to the west side of the spread, blown there by the persistent wind, and Erick was running almost before the bird hit the ground.

Another snow slipped over the spread later...We should have had him, but we got up late and my gun jammed...Those excuses are as good

We got up alright on the next two flights that came weaving low over the wheat field and made for the corn however, even if we did have to shoot " from some unusul positions to do so.

Two more Canadas came plummeting into the corn field at our shots and we were one short of the limit with twenty minutes of shooting time left.

Once again, we shifted the direction in which the blinds were pointed, hoping maybe the next flight of geese that veered west would be in range. We hardly got hidden before a flight of Canadas was upon us. There was no stunting or weaving. They came straight toward the spread, their grayish bodies and black heads contrasted against the ochre of

Lying on our backs, we could see the long skein of birds dip until they were only a few yards above

The geese were drifting westward, taking a circuitous route around where we were hidden. Already, they were on the north side of us, and I thought they were gone.

Then, with sharp barks, they banked and drifted back, directly over the blinds. We could see the long outstretched wings, the grays and browns and whites and blacks that made up their bodies.

They were hanging there on the wind and I called Erick up for one last go.

The birds were gliding on the wind by now in a scramble to get out of range, but Erick's shot sent another honker rolling on his back, and he fell through the midst of wildly scrambling wings as the other birds of the flight veered to the south.

There was now the shivering task of taking up in a wind that seemed even colder, but also the satisfaction of having done well in an outing for elusive and exciting gamebirds to relish on the trip

And for us both, new discovery and new friendship, bonded in the best manner of all, through an adventure afield.

Hunting Safety Record Improves

AUSTIN - Texas hunters may - fewest accidents and fatalities in be having their safest hunting season in 20 years.

Hunter casualty reports compiled by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Hunter Safety Section indicate that so far there have been only 35 hunting accidents -- five involving fatalities -- in 1979.

By comparison, during calendar year 1978 a total of 83 accidents was reported, involving 19 fatalities. With only a few days remaining to hunt in 1979, it appears we will record the Ina bloody 31/2-month sequel to the Ugandan-Tanzanian war of early 1979, Tanzanian soldiers slaughtered nearly 14,000 wild animals in Uganda-including thousands of hippopotamuses, and scores of lions and elephants--International Wildlife magazine reports in its current issue.

Using machine guns and even hand grenades, the undisciplined Tanzanian troops, occupying Uganda as a "security" force following dictator Idi Amin's overthrow, wiped out about one third of all large mammals in Uganda's huge Ruwenzori National Park, according to the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication.

In a signed story titled""I Witnessed a Massacre." Karl G. Van Orsdol, a Palo Alto, Cal., wildlife biologist, tells of seeing one section of the park turned into "a graveyard of dead and dying animals," with soldiers earning as much as $1,000 a day for killing ten hippos. Ugandan merchants then sold the meat off the carcasses for as much as $2,000 per animal, according to Van Orsdol's account, although there was no acute shortage of food in the country at the time.

Van Orsdol, who went to Africa in 1976 to study lions at the Uganda Institute of Ecology, first saw wildlife killed by soldiers in March of 1979, when Idi Amin's trops, camping in explained. The Institute staff was relieved when Tanzanian troops "liberated" the park, but within a few weeks "more animals were being killed than the (Tanzanian) troops could possibly eat," he reports,

In mid-June, Van Orsdol traveled 100 miles south to Ishasha, an isolated section of the park. At first, it seemed that area had been spared, and he resumed his study of lions. "Then," he writes, "while sitting out on the plains in the hot midday sun, I heard a loud rumble in the distance. About three miles south, I saw a large, open-backed truck moving straight toward a herd of resting buffalo. When it approached to within 400 feet of the herd, about ten Tanzanian soldiers standing in the back opened fir with their machine guns. The truck chased the fleeing herd for more than a mile as the soldiers continued to fire. Many buffalo fell to the ground dead or dying. while others limped away to die slowly later.

Attempts to reason with the troops proved fruitless. In answer to his pleas, one soldier pointed a gun at Van Orsdol's head. "He informed me that he could excute anyone who stood in his way," VanOrsdol recalls in International Wildlife. "Besides," the soldier continued, "if you don't let us kill the animals, then we will rob the people." The soldier said he hadn't been paid for six months.

In July, after deciding he must leave Uganda, the California scientist made a final heartbreaking trip along the shore of the Park's Lake Edward. "We passed carcass after carcass of hippo, sunbleached, with legs pointed skyward," he writes. "After a three-hour trip, our notebook carried grim statistics: 82 hippos seen alive on the trip. 75

In August, the day before Van Orsdol left the country, he and a Ugandan colleague reviewed their figures on the number of animals killed in the past 31/2-months. Their tally: 6,000 hippopotamuses out of a total park population of 14,000; 5,000 Uganda kob. an orange-red antelope; 2,000 buffalo; 400 topi, another species of antelope; 100 elephants; and 70 lions. # SmallmouthRecordThreatened

-AUSTIN - Canyon Reservoir ed by Allan H. Gallaway of San between Austin and San Antonio has firmly established itself as the state's prime producer of smallmouth bass, as a record five pound, two ounce fish was caught in November and two others within ounces of the record were weighed in recent weeks.

The current record, establish-

Antonio, displaced a four pound, 11 ounce fish eaught last April by Gene Oldham of Wimberley.

Also during November, a smallmouth weighing slightly over five pounds was caught, and another of 4.8 pounds came from the lake last weekend. Texas Parks and Wildlife

Department smallmouth bass program leader Wade Butler of San Marcos said he also has heard of several other smallmouths in the five pound class being caught but the fisherman apparently did not submit them for state record consideration. The department started stocking smallmouths, which are not native to Texas, in Canyon in 1974. Since then the fish have adapted well to the deep, rocky reservoir and have begun reproducing.

Smallmouths have been stocked in other lakes around the state, notably Meredith. LBJ, Travis, Amistad, Stillhouse Hollow, Medina, Mackenzie and Guadalupe River below Canyon.

Introduced Fish Flourish

AUSTIN--Four sport fish species introduced into Amistad Reservoir by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department apparently are doing well.

the Devils River. Also caught in the 1,600 feet of netting placed at various locations overnight were two striped/white bass hybrids at 41/2 pounds each, four walleyes averaging 11/2 pounds, one smallmouth bass and seven largemouths confirmed by scale counts as being the introduced Florida strain.

Several large Rio Grande blue catfish in the 20-30 pound class also were caught and returned to the lake, Dean said.

"The survey showed that we are getting good survival among the fingerling stripers placed in the lake this year."Dean said, "and beyond that it also indicated that our program of multiple predator introductions is making a contribution to angler success.'

Truffles, Not Burgers

A roadside cafe squeezed between two desert missile ranges would seem a likely spot to find a dab of grease on a spoon. Wrong.

Chef and owner Woody Johnston's hand-penned wall menu offers a French farmers omelet with caviar or truffles.

The little restaurant is on U.S. 54 between El Paso, Texas, and Alamogordo, N.M.

Johnston, a sort of serious joker, says most customers don't order his gourmet fare.

Until recently, he says, he refused to cater to hamburger

"You have billion dollar businesses that serve nothing but hamburgers - let them go there," says Johnston.

"A drunk cowboy came into my last restaurant (in nearby Ruidoso, N.M.) yelling for a hamburger," Johnston contends. "When he was told the chef preferred not to make hamburgers he staggered back to my kitchen and waved a $100

The bearded restauranteur charges $3 per burger.

"In spite of the price I sell quite a few." he says, adding, "I use 1/4 pound 90 percent-lean beef on a kaiser roll.

The sign above the kitchen door says, "Famous French Farmers Omelet With Bacon, Onions and Potatoes - $3. With Caviar - $12. With Truffles - $18.35." When asked if he really had any of the delicacies, Johnston dug out a large supply of truffles, the hard-to-find fungi.

Johnston is known as a character in this town where he owns one of the village's five businesses. Orogrande also is home for two gas stations, a rock shop (rocks are plentiful), and a justice of the peace office.

"A no-growth community," says Johnston, "I ran a head count a couple of times and came up v with 89 residents 40 water connections."

The former Dallas restaurant operator and gourmet food importer moved to Ruidoso "to get away from the crowd." When Ruidoso, population 2,216, became too much for Johnston, he moved to this barren spot.

"Not too barren," he reminds, saying he is the self-appointed park ranger for "Orogrande National Forest."

The forest is a single cottonwood tree along the 30-mile stretch between Orogrande and El Paso. Johnston says most stories on how the lone tree got there are lies, including his version. He claims the seed was released by a bird.

Johnston erected the most recent sign next to the "national forest.

"When I finish the lie about the tree then I'll tell you about the airport and the communications setup," says the smiling c chef.

After a border patrolman was forced to land his crippled plane on a road here last spring, the aircraft was parked at the gas

Johnston immediately erected signs dubbing the area 'Orogrande International Airport.

People enjoyed the sign,"says Johnston, "What else e could you do as simple that would cause a spark of joy to so many people?"

He says the communications system is three eight-party

As Johnston - well-trained lines. He uses his CB radio for local calls.

Johnston looks around his tiny, plant-filled cafe and jokes, "I just cook whatever I run over on my way to work." He admits he follows the cooking philosophy of the late French chef Auguste Escoffier. He explains the method:

"Take the best materials you can find and cook them as simply as you can," he says as he sautees a banana in bubbling

"You need the smallest possible menu to please the largest number of people. If you offer 35 items on a menu, everything can't be fresh. A good way to tell poor food is by counting the items on the menu."

Johnston, whose friends call him the "Sand Hill Curmudgeon," says he started cooking "as a wetback when I was stranded in Egypt." He says he was forced to work illegally at a Port Said hotel while waiting for a boat to return him to the United States

He says he visited France and "fell in love with the small crossroads eating places."

Many travelers stop at this lonely outpost to use the restroom. Reservations are not necessary.

"Maybe this place will make me a living. I like jokes," says Johnston, pointing to a sign on a small corner table. It reads:

"This table reserved for illicit romance and-or black market transactions. Cover charge $20. See maitre d'.'

Johnston, who owns three Mercedes-Benz cars, says Orogrande may have more Mercedes per capita than any other U.S. town.

Leaving the cafe, stepping out into this land of dirt, rocks, sagebrush and the one tree, a customer sees a sign on the "You Are Leaving One Of

The Last Outposts of Sanity and Returning to the Real World of Fantasy...Have a Good Trip and 65 years old. Bon Voyage."

Paintings on Display

Eight paintings by Lee Vandiver of Amarillo will be on display for the next six weeks in the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame, located downstairs in the Library. Mrs. Vandiver's work is exhibitited throughout the Tri-State area. She has often held workshops, and has held a few classes in her own studio. She has taught a continuing education class for Amarillo College, and in her spare time is out in fields or on back roads sketching pictures. Her technique of oil painting includes wet on wet and wet on dry. Above standing by a few of Mrs. Vandiver's paintings is Liz Barton, Hall of Fame secretary. [Brand photo by Denise Smith]

At this point, you no doubt think Dr. Jack Lee took leave of his senses three years ago when he took the St. Mary's University Law School entrance exam and abandoned his lucrative ophthalmology practice.

But there were a variety of circumstances three years ago that combined to land Lee in the

First of all, Lee was getting

Then there was the divorce from his wife of 36 years. "There was no other man or woman or anything like that. We just drifted apart," he explained.

And there were the often bitter battles between the medical and legal professions, usually centered around malpractice suits. Lee said he was never sued, but had plenty of fellow doctors who were. The bitterness troubled him.

Mix all that with a lifelong fascination with the law, and energetic Dr. Jack Lee was a of friends and opened a whole law student His family, fellow doctors and patients were supportive, but some would jokingly tell him he had gone crazy. "I think they were half-serious," he quipped. He also got a great deal of support from his new classmates - most of whom were 40 years younger.

'The first day at registration, the young fellows were kind of worried about what to call me. There had been a little publicity about my decision, so they knew who I was. But they didn't know what to call me," Lee recalled. "I said, 'Why don't you just call me Jack?' So they did.

"I asked for and received no special treatment. I didn't done anything any other student didn't do. Many of them did it better," he said. "I made a lot new life. That was important particularly after my divorce."

Lee intends to become a medico-legal consultant, working with lawyers at the secondary level in insurance, workmen's compensation and medical malpractice cases. He said he would not directly take any cases, entering one only when asked by another lawyer.

He hopes his expertise and understanding in both fields can bring doctors and lawyers closer together.

"There has been an unfortunate rift between members of the medical and legal profession. I'm certainly not conceited enough to think I can do everything, but I can do something.

"If I can do anything at all to bring them together, if only on the local level, then I've accomplished something," he said. "I understand the problems of both physicians and attorneys. I respect them both, even more so now.

Lee turns 66 in April, and will be making some grudging concessions to age. But he sees no reason why he can't be an effective lawyer past his 80th

"I'll work out of my home. I'm not going to open an office. I'm too old for that, too old to accumulate a law library or worry with a secretary," he said. "It would cost thousands of dollars to put together a law library. I'll use the bar association's library or the one at St. Mary's."

Lee said his 30 years as a doctor were profitable enough to leave him where he needs only a "small income" from his law practice. He doesn't expect his law specialty to be lucrative.

"It's difficult for someone who hasn't walked in my shoes to understand how I would give up what was a satisfying income and go to law school and then into a specialty of law where money is not the primary motive," he said.

"But if this all does nothing else, it will have broadened my horizons immeasureably. And a man can't help but be a better person if he has broadened his horizons," he added.

The University of Michigan was the first university in the nation to establish a course in data processing in 1929.

Help Getting to Needy

NEW YORK (AP) - Contrary to reports that Cambodia is blocking intergovernmental aid to its war-ravaged populace, religious agencies assert their relief is being distributed and they've verified it on the spot.

"It's getting through, and we've monitored it right down to delivery to villages and hospitals," says the Rev.sEugene Stockwell, who oversees Church World Service, the interdenominational Protestant-Eastern Orthodox relief arm of the National Council of Churches.

He says that instead of the Vietnam-backed government of Cambodia hindering deliveries, as some U.S. authorities have claimed, "we've found just the opposite. The government at Phnom Penh is helping us get the supplies in."

Similar statements came from numerous church relief officials amid considerable confusionhand conflicting reports on the matter, leading the World Food Program of the United Nations Jan. 2 to halt food shipments to Cambodia.

Church officials insisted the aid was reaching the decimated. often starving people despite a major transportation difficulties. "The food is getting to the people who most need it," says Ove R. Niegsen of Lutheran World Relief, citing information from an on-the-scene team.

The Rev. W. Stanley Mooneyham, president of the evangelical aid agency, World Vision International, returning from a trip to Cambodia to check on the matter, says "every available means of delivery is being used, including barges, tractors and trucks.

He disputed U.S. administration charges that the Vietnam-backed government is deliberately withholding food from the people.

Noting that the country is struggling to overcome the dev-astations of civil war, he says, "There are enough valid reasons for the slow distribution of food supplies without looking for some conspiracy theory. He met with Cambodia's President Heng Samrinhabout it.

The International Red Cross and a U.N. agency, through which international and U.S. aid is channeled, have complained that food shipments have piled up at Kompong Som seaport, undistributed.

Apparently one reason for the differing assessments by Red Cross-intergovernmental officials and religious agencies is that the latter seem to have the United Methodist Bishop Wayne Clymer of Minnesota who led a Church World Service delegation that met recently with Samrin, said he was "very positive" about the church agency's work, but when the U.N. and Red Cross were mentioned, "he gave us a lecture on the two faces of these organiwations 'who are feeding the enemy'.'

"He said Cambodia wasn't going to stand for that."

Sentiment Maintains 'Watch on Rhine'

NEW YORK (AP) - Broad- or critics didn't rave about a re- in. vival of Lillian Hellman's "Watch on the Rhine," the play's backers were businesslike: they gave up.

They planned to fold the show last Sunday, just four days after the 39-year-old anti-Nazi play opened in Broadway's Golden Theater.

But "Watch on the Rhine" wouldn't die. It survives because sentiment survives on Broadway - open-hearted. tearful, self-sacrificing, handholding sentiment.

It pulsed first through the play's cast. They said they'd raise money to keep the play on Broadway and they took pay

Then the crew volunteered to help; they took pay cuts.

Next, Lillian Hellman waived her royalties. The Shubert Organization said they'd charge only their costs for use of their Golden Theater.

Enough money was raised to keep "Watch on the Rhine" playing through this Sunday. Maybe longer.

"This play deserves to win because everybody cares so deeply," said Lester Osterman, one of the producers. "It's extraordinary. I've never seen anything like this. The stagehands even took cuts. Everybody's working for minimum or less - as little as they're allowed to get."

"The crew likes the company. likes the management," said production electrician Lowell Sherman. "They're lovely people. We wanted to help, HOUSTON (AP) - The American Automobile Association reported Friday that Texas gasoline availability tightened considerably as prices jumped by about 6 cents a gallon the past month.

The AAA said availability has declined to the lowest level since the end of the summer.

"But current supplies are certainly ample to meet the greatly reduced demand typical of the winter months."

spokesman said. A survey of 398 service stations indicated the number of stations operating on Sunday has declined from 44 to 38 percent since November and the number operating after 8 p.m. weekdays has dropped from 38 to 30 percent.

Hardest hit, the AAA said, are metropolitan areas.

Less than one-third of the stations in Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth, and San Antonio reported Sunday operations.

Only 10 percent of the Houston stations operate after 8 p.m., compared with 17 percent in Dallas-Fort Worth and 36 percent in San Antonio.

Russian Warns Against Complacency

GARLAND, Texas (AP) - United States. ev Kardonsky, formerly a vioinist with the Red Army Ensemble and now branded a "traitor" in Mother Russia, has been enlisted by corporate America to spread the free-enterprise gospel.

Five years ago, the bearded Kardonsky left the Riga Opera and Ballet Theatre, took $100. two suitcases and his violin and fled the Soviet-controlled provience of Latvia for Vienna.

From there, he traveled to Italy, where a Jewish organizataion arranged his trip to the

Since then he has built a comfortable life in this Dallas suburb, entertaining audiences with his rich, classical repetoire and promoting the capitalist cause on radio spots and in "Time" and "Newsweek" advertisements paid for by a Texas insurance firm.

Although Kardonsky says "the United States is the best country in the world," he quickly notes, "it's not perfect. In fact, its biggest fault is its liberalism.

"There are times when Americans don't know when to keep quiet. And that's one advantage the Russians have. Like (in) Afghanistan, they never said they were going to move, they just did," he explained.

"The Russians are very smart people. They know what they're doing. But they only do what they do because the United States and other capitalist nations just sit back and watch. And you can't deal with the Russians that way."

The 33-year-old musician's plight began in 1970 when he applied to audition with the Riga Symphony Orchestra, but was refused. He believes he was denied the position because he is Jewish.

Disilluisioned with the social. ist life. Kardonsky asked permission to leave his homeland lying on the western edge of the Soviet Union

"I guess I always thought of leaving." he said. "I don't like or believe in socialism. It doesn't progress a country.

However, his request became tangled in a maze of "conditions" established by the socialist government before he could abandon the Soviet Union.

"When they finally let you leave, you aren't allowed to take any documents with you," said Kardonsky, who arranged to have the vital records, including his master's degree in music, smuggled out of the country before his departure.

"Leaving, especially if you're Jewish, is very scary. You lose your job because the government considers you to be a traitor. You're watched very closely," he said.

"And it's especially tough now. I have a cousin who's supposed to go to Israel later this month. But right now it's hard to say, because of everything that's happening," referring again to Afghanistan.

'The military situation there is very bad right now."

When Kardonsky arrived in New York on May 7, 1975, he was "shocked. Everything was different. The customs, the

The following day Kardonsky, with $3 in his pocket, packed his bags and moved to Texas, where he went without work for three months while he learned English.

Finally, aided by the Jewish Vocational Services, Kardonsky landed a position with the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra and later was hired by a Dallas restaurant to entertain customers.

A year ago, Employers Insurance of Texas recruited the musician to endorse advertisements supporting the American corporate philosophy.

"In the Soviet Union, they told us how bad capitalisits make it for the American worker. Compared to the Soviet Union, most people live very well here," the ad begins.

"I know that's probably what most Americans expect to hear, but the fact is the wages are poor, your time is very tied, and you live in constant fear someone will tell the government what you say."

Although his parents, brother and sister have immigrated to Israel, Kardonsky admits he would like to return to Russia to see his friends.

"But I know I can't." The goverment believes all foreigners to be spies. I think it would be interesting to go back for a while. But I know for me that's impossible. Everything that's printed about what I say goes into a file," he said.

"And I think it wouldn't be wrong to say my file is growing. and growing and growing." he laughed.

You've got to know the score

More and more lenders are using statistical scoring systems rather than personal interviews to decide whose applications for credit will be granted.

Here's how it works, according to Citibank, the nation's second-biggest commercial

A sample of a lender's experience with a particular type of loan is fed into a computer, along with the information provided on the borrowers' application forms. The sample might, for example, include information on car loans. How many borrowers became delinquent? How many never paid off the loan at all? How many made payments on time?

The computer then figures out which characteristics are shared by the good repayers and which ones the delinquent borrowers have in common.

> It is the total that counts; you won't be turned down because you have a low score in one particular category. Suppose. for example, a lender finds that the good repayers in its sample have total scores of 16 or more. You will need 16 points to get credit. You could score four points for each of four characteristics. You could also score 12 points in one area, 2 points in each of two others and 0 in the fourth. Any combination > that adds up to 16 will work. REMINDER: The Citibank economists note that not all lenders use credit scoring. Mortgage loans, for example, are based on a lot of personal information that doesn't always fit a computer model.

Credit scoring has advantages and disadvantages. It lessens the risk of discrimination based on a lender's personal bias - conscious or unconscious. Credit scoring can, however, be arbitrary. Based on previous experience, for example, a lender may assign a low score to anyone who lives in an area with a particular zip code. That low score could make the difference in determining whether you make the grade; through no fault of your own, you could be shut out.

Contrary to popular belief, a large income will not guarantee you credit. "An applicant earning $15,000 a year may take a debt obligation very seriously and repay a single loan promptly," said Citibank. "A $50,000-a-year earner may live at a $60,000 level and have several loans to repay at once.'

March of Dimes Door-To-Door Drive Today

By KERRIE STEIERT Women's Editor Of the 250,000 babies born with birth defects, more than 50,000 could have been prevented, according to the March of Local residents will have the opportunity to support the work of the March of Dimes by contributing to the campaign against birth defects this afternoon. The Mothers March for the March of Dimes will begin at 1 p.m. today with headquarters at Hereford State Bank. It is hoped that volunteers will help collect contributions in the door-to-door drive, according to Lynne Carlile, local drive chairman.

This year, local donations will be combined with proceeds from 23 area counties comprising the Golden Spread district. This is the first year that Deaf Smith County has merged its fund-raising efforts with the Golden Spread campaign.

The focus of this year's drive will be the escalating problem of adolescent pregnancy, which comprise 21 percent of all births in the Texas Panhandle. This means that more than one-fifth of all Panhandle babies were born to youngsters aged 11-17. The March of Dimes is concerned because these babies are at the highest risk of being born with birth defects.

Residents visited by Mothers March volunteers today will be asked to participate in a survey of the adolescent pregnancy problem. The survey will ask citizens how seriously they view the problem in Deaf Smith County, how well the community is dealing with the situation, and whether they support or oppose family life education in genetics, nutrition and the biology of reproduction. Results f the survey will be compiled by the March of Dimes in an effort to better serve the needs of this area.

In addition to research, a portion of the March of Dimes collection goes into a health careers scholarship fund and part is used for the transportation of critical infants to medical facilities. Free educational materials for schools, hospitals and community organizations are funded by the March of

This year, a nurse from Deaf Smith County will take part in an infant intensive care training clinic at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. All expenses will be paid by the Golden Spread Chapter of the March of Dimes.

A breakdown of March of Dimes expenditures follows: Research, 17 percent; public health education, 19 percent; medical services, 15 percent; community services, 15 percent; professional medical education, 8 percent; management in general, 7 percent; and fund-raising, 19 percent.

Donations to the March of Dimes are tax-deductible. Individuals making a donation to a volunteer should look for the official March of Dimes insignia, verifying that the caller is working under the auspices of the health organization. Volunteers wishing to help with the drive are asked to report to Hereford State Bank at 1 p.m. today to get a collection

"The tragedy of many birth defects is that they could have been prevented with proper prenatal care," stated Ms. Donelson. "This is particularly true in the cases of adolescent

In some communities, girls as young as 10 and 11 are giving birth to babies, many of whom begin life too soon or too small. Fatal and disabling birth defects are common among infants born to mothers under the age of 18.

Drive chairman Lynne Carlile elaborated on this subject. "The impact of adolescent pregnancy on these very young girls and their babies has long-term health, educational and financial repercussions," she said. "We look forward to long-range planning in this area with our school system, the PTA. health providers and religious and civic leaders.'

The Golden Spread Chapter of the March of Dimes will summarize its survey results taken today for the voluntary health organization to apply toward new national programs directed at adolescent pregnancy. March of Dimes Mothers March volunteers will be visiting householders this Someday the March of Dimes hopes that all children will be born without the possible burdens of a birth defect such as the one suffered by Cliff Coker. The former March of Dimes poster child is seen here with a young friend, Chad Carlile, son of Mrs. Jeff Carlile, March of Dimes Chairman for Deaf Smith County.

Cliff Coker, 4 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Coker served as Deaf Smith County's Poster Child in the past. Cliff was born with an open spine, and urges local residents to donate to the March of Dimes to prevent birth defects such as his. Contributions are tax-deductible. Any mothers wishing to join Cliff in the fight against birth defects are asked to meet at the Hereford State Bank at 1 p.m. today.

Statistics are quoted in saying that in some communities, girls as young as 10 and 11 are giving birth to babies, many of whom begin life too soon or too small. "The impact of adolescent pregnancy on these very young girls and their babies has longterm health, educational, and financial repercussion on both," states Lynne Carlile while calling various mothers in the community and asking them to donate their time today.

Davidson as a live model, Mrs Springer showed the proper methods for cleansing massaging and apply beauty aids. As she progressed into each step. she fielded questions from the audience concerning the reasons for various procedures. She offered tips on buying beauty aids and explained important information offered on beauty aid labels. She stated that with practice, a woman should be able to apply a complete facial in 15 minutes.

Members present for the program were Mmes. Jim Bookout, L.N. Cox. Davidson, Arthur Dettman, V.R. Dodson, J.J. Durham, W.H. Goettsch, Jacobsen, Frank H. Morgan, F.O. Naylor, G.W. Newsom, John R. Stevenson, J.C. Williams, S.S. Williams, M.H. Wiseman, C.B. Womble, Jim Higgins, Robert Thompson and McCathern.

The club's next meeting will include a book review by Mrs. Dettman in the home of Mrs. Womble, 409 Star St. -

The following code puzzle appeared recently in the Official Crosswords magazine and caught the eye of several local residents. The decoded message appears at the end of this column.

We have heard, that if intelligent life exists elsewhere in the cosmos, they should be able to receive broadcasts originating from Earth. This encompasses everything from radio and television signals to satellite communications. But the fly in the ointment is that, because of the distance to be crossed by these emissions, there is a delay of at least 20 years.

This may explain why we have yet to be contacted by our interstellar neighbors. Who in the universe would want to get chummy with a civilization that might resemble the likes of Uncle Milty, Lucy Ricardo and Howdy Doody?

It's an interesting theory to ponder, imagining that there is such a time gap in our indirect messages to outer space and assuming that there is someone--or something--out there to intercept them. What would an intergalactic creature's concept of us be if he had only the transmissions from the 1950's by which to judge us??? We can only hazard a guess, but their impressions might go something like this:

"The civilians of Earth appear to be two-dimensional beings whose colorations are limited to tones of black, white and gray. Their lives are segmented in thirty to sixty minute time spans and the creatures are apparently dormant until the same time next week. These oddly-spaced existences are also interrupted at regular intervals by commercial messages about such unknown agents as Brillcream and Pepsodent. It is not certain, but we believe that such items are primitive weapons due to their stated clauses such as "A little dab will do you" and "You'll wonder where the yellow went." We are still researching such possibilities.

'Earth is apparently equipped with special machines that produce background music and recorded laughter which is activated at appropriate moments in the creature's active time span. Earthlings do not appear to notice these sound projections so we suppose that their hearing apparatuses are defective.

'Residents of Earth show a marked penchant for getting themselves in bizarre predicaments, which makes the laugh recordings work twice as hard. There is apparently great mirth elicited by men in dresses, women outsmarting their mates and slapstick in general.

"We have narrowed the species down to three sexes--men, women and Milton Berle. With such lengthy periods of dormancy and hectic life cycles, we have not yet been able to determine how these creatures reproduce. If they do engage in any form of sexual activity, it must be assumed that this occurs during the commercial messages.

'Although most earthlings appear to be two-legged anthropoids, it has been observed that there exists highly intelligent canine life, capable of great heroics. The code names for these creatures are Rin Tin Tin and Lassie. If our culture does one day make moves to contact Earth, it is recommended that we attempt communications first with these furry creatures for they seem to exhibit more logical behavior than their human counterparts.

"Few Earthlings appear to have gainful employment, although Ricky Ricardo does sing for a living. (Too bad he cannot speak in an understandable tongue.) For the most part, Earthlings spend most of their active lives solving domestic crises such as Beaver Cleaver's first dance or Ozzie Nelson's golf game.

"Speaking of games, the denizens of Earth seem fascinated with such pastimes with many such as Peggy Cass and Bill Cullen devoting their entire time spans to nothing else. It is not known whether this is a form of punishment, but we do believe that such individuals are outcasts, who have failed to equal the likes of Rob and Laura Petrie and have thus been banished to Quizdom. A cruel fate not comprehended as yet.

"Although life on earth seems banal if not silly, there appears to be no crime, poverty, illness, death or war. The most serious problem which seems to have surfaced concerned a marital split between Donna Reed and her mate, but this was resolved before the 30-minute time span had

"After much research and contemplation, we recommend that Earthlings be given more time to expand their development and maturity before any attempt to made on our part to contact them. This race shows promising potential if they can just manage to be active for longer than 30 minutes in a week's time.'

So there you are. It will be at least the year 2,000 before outer space dwellers get a glimpse of life as it is today. Meanwhile, they will be treated to such fare as "Gilligan's Island," "The Dating Game"

COST-OF-LIVING

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) - When an executive turns down a transfer one of the major reasons is the high cost of living in the new area, according to a recent survey sponsored by Merrill Lynch Relocation Management Inc.

The executive relocation service firm says 43 percent of 603 firms surveyed reported employees turned down transfer opportunities because of high living costs.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) - Argentina plans to spend $5 billion over the next few years to improve public works and road systems.

The Secretariat of Transport and Public Works says almost $2 billion will go for the immediate repair and renovation of existing sanitary facilities. The remainder will be used to expand services. Some $250 million is to be spent in 1980 to remodel and maintain provincial road networks.

"I read and play daily with them. I try to listen and answer their questions and I promise them activities that they can plan on during each week," she stated.

"If Jim and I travel, the children to with us. I very seldom leave them with a babysitter," she added.

What does an average day consist of for the young homemaker? Mrs. Campbell explained it this way:

'We all have an early rise. I prepare Jim for kindergarten then fix a large breakfast. After Jim and Jim Bret are off, I do my morning housework and Kenann watches Seasame Street. Then I devote some time to reading to Kenann. I pick Jim Bret up at 11:20 a.m. and come home to prepare lunch, which is usually a large

. Reverse Psychology

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It was quite obvious from your answer to "Hanging by a Thread and Suffering in Alexandria' that you never have had a brat for a little brother.

The young lady stated she was punished each time the brat started hollering because the little liar said she hit him.

The solution is obvious. The next time the brat starts to holler, she should hit him in the mouth. He will still holler, but at least he won't be lying when he says she hit him. When he gets tired of being hit, he will leave

At Wits End

Where has the time gone? In December of 1975, President Ford signed a bill into law which will bring the international metric system to this country by 1983.

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Can you believe I've only got three more years left to convert and I haven't spoken a word of metric yet? It's not that I'm stubborn or stupid. It's just that I cannot bring myself to think that large. This country has always put great stock in small feet, small waists, compact cars, short distances, and minute portions.

How do you think I'm going to feel renewing my driver's license when I report that my height is 1.52 meters and I weigh 286.0 kilograms? Why, it'll be all over town by noon.

That's why I've made a decision. At my age, I'm not going to waste time committing an entire metric system to memory. Instead, I made a list of the most used phrases in my vocabulary, converting words of measurement into metrics. You're welcome to use them.

To my neighbor: "Mayva, can I borrow 236 milliliters (1 cup) of flour/sugar/gin/cocoanut/rice/butter/etc?" -

To the police: "But, officer, I was only going 85 kilometers an hour." (55 mph.)

To anyone: "I hear it's going to be 30 degrees Celsius tomorrow. Wanta play tennis?"

To Weight Watchers: "All I had was 255 grams of candy (nine ounces). Is it a crime to taste something?'

To teenagers borrowing my car: "If you only went to the library, how come you used up 30 liters (eight gallons) of

To the butcher: "Don't tell me you can't get a one-kilogram rump and not have it tender!" (2.205 pounds.)

Loudly in the lingerie department: "Do you have any size 148 bras on sale?'

When I told my husband of my plan to memorize as much metric as I needed to get by, he was pleased. "As I've always said," he smiled, "30 milliliters of prevention is worth .454 kilograms of cure.'

Boy, I'm glad it's not something I've always said.

4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided 2-3/4 cups slightly undercooked brown rice (3/4 cup uncooked) 1/2 pound fresh spinach, coarsely chopped

1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese 4 eggs, lightly beaten

3/4 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper 1/4 cup soft bread crumbs

Grease a 9-inch pie pan. Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 5-1/2 cups). In a large skillet melt 2 tablespoons of the butter. Add mushrooms; saute until golden, 5 minutes, set aside. Preheat oven to 350 F. In a large bowl combine rice, spinach, cheese, eggs, salt, black pepper and reserved mushrooms; mix thoroughly. Spoon into prepared pan. In a small saucepan melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter; add bread crumbs; mix well. Sprinkle over mushroom and spinach inixture. Bake, uncovered, until firm, about 30 minutes. Cut into wedges and serve as a main dish. Yield: 4 to 6 portions.

Sweetest Sound I'll Ever Hear"

Having written at length (in my column of December second) about the celebrated violinist Yehudi Menuhin, I am happy to have further news of

Musical Notes

There appeared on December second in the Amarillo Sunday News-Globe an AP news item from Peking under the banner "Violinist Menuhin Plays in China." Before an audience of 2500 in the Red Tower Theater, Saturday night, the 63-year-old master played Mozart's "Concerto in A Major" and Brahm's "Concerto in D Major". As an encore, he performed Bach's "Double Violin Concerto" with Chinese violinist Zheng Rongquo, 38.

Like Menuhin, the Chinese artist had made his debut at the age of seven! Menuhin also conducted the Chinese Central Philharmonic Symphony. During his 12-day stay in that city, he will conduct classes and give lectures to Chinese musicians.

"It is really very touching to see the degree to which the Chinese want to regain their acquaintance with the West" he said. "Music is symbolic of that need and after all, it is representative of the whole culture of the West".

During the Christmas holidays, my daughter, Anne, and I listened to a television program on the music of Johann Sebastian Bach - as interpreted by outstanding contemporary musicians, each in turn playing "his own" instrument in various locations of our country and the world. From France, in his lovely home near Paris. Menuhin, simply dressed and amid the books in his study, played a movement from Bach's Concerto in D. unaccompanied. He, among others, that night honored the memory of a great Master - a man who for twenty years wrote daily twenty sheets of music. And what music!

And what a joy it was - after some forty years - to once again see and hear my favorite, Jehudi Menuhin, who as a little boy had broken a toy violin because it "wouldn't sing"!

Another happy event was the recent broadcast of the "Honors Program' from Kennedy Center in Washington, D.c. - an event at which five creative artists of America received the accolade of their fellow countrymen, including Mrs. Jimmy Carter. Those honored were: Tennessee Williams, Ella Fitzgerald, Henry Fonda, Martha Graham and Aaron Copland.

Aaron Copland, 77, is one of America's most distinguished and best loved composers. He possesses the ability to capture, in music, the spirit of the land and the essence of the character of the American people. In his precise and concise approach to the matter, in his candid and crisp treatment of his themes, in his lively tempos and intricate rhythmic patterns, he has preserved for us, through his clear and carefully worked motifs, our way of life.

No better example of his skill can be found than in the contrasting "Louisiana Hayride" and two compositions Riders Club Launches 980 Business Year

A new slate of officers night. "The Cowboy Ballet" assumed their duties for 1980 from "Rodeo", danced by the Thursday evening during the able and colorful troupe, and monthly business meeting of "The Dodger" (The preacher is Herefod Riders Club at the a dodger-The lover is a dodger..., we're all dodgers Community Center.

Travis Shields, ending his term as president, called the meeting to order and reported that he had met with the steering committee for the upcoming All-Girl Rodeo to make plans for the event.

Shields introduced the club officers for 1980. They are Angel Gomez, president; Buddy Edwards, vice president; Terri Johnson, secretary; and Marie Sears, treasurer. These individual assumed office following the introduction.

Mrs. Sears presented a plaque to Shields in appreciation for his service as president during the past year.

board. These directors will serve with Terry Johnson and Jerry Tisdale.

The club president asked the following individuals to continue serving in the same capacities as last year: Tom Hargrave in charge of stalls; Leon Bone in charge of the arena; and Travis Shields in charge of the public address system.

Part of the club's standing committees were appointed with Marie Sears, Oleta Tisdale and Linda Shipp named to the telephone committee. Appointed to the steering committee were Buddy Edwards and Tom Cunningham. Other committee vacancies will be filled at the February meeting.

Jerry Tisdale and Bud Thomas were selected to serve as delegates to the Range Association and Shields was named as delegate to the United Association with Carlton Richardson to serve as alternate. The first meeting of the United Association will be Jan. 18 at 8 p.m. in Southwestern Public Service on Bell Avenue in Amarillo.

Re-elected as junior sponsors for 1980 were Jerry Tisdale and Bud Thomas. Also, the club discussed service projects for the coming year and agreed to devote one day each month to improvements on the clubhouse and concession stand.

Annual dues are now being collected from club members and new memberships are welcomed. To participate in Playdays for children and adults, a family membership costs $33 per year. To participate in club activities only, a family membership is valued at $25. Interested persons are invited to contact any board member for an

Hall-iday Ball Approaching

"The Caisons" will perform Friday night for the first National Cowgirl Hall of Fame "Hall-iday Benefit Ball" from 8 p.m.-12 midnight at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Residents who have not yet purchased their tickets for the fund-raising event are urged to do so by contacting Patsy Patrick at 364-6893, Cissy Wagner at 364-6475 or the Hall of Fame, 364-5252. The $15 price for each ticket is tax-deductible and proceeds will go directly to the operating expenses of the Hall of Fame.

Theme of the first-time event will be "Rhinestone Roundup" with guests asked to attend in flashy Western costume. Cash prizes of $25 each will be awarded to the best-dressed "Rhinestone Cowboy" and 'Rhinestone Cowgirl." Although it is hoped that all attending will follow the costume theme, guests arriving in formal attire will not be turned away.

Beginning with a Grand March, the dance will include several special steps, such as Ladies' Choice, Virginia Reel, Tag and others. Dance music will be performed by "The Caisons," featuring Sandy Caison Walden, vocalist, Dee Anne Caison, organist, and Rodney Caison, drummer.

Western paintings and bronze sculptures will be sold to the highest bidders in a silent auction during the Hall-iday Ball. Artwork has been donated by Keith Avery, Dr. Clarence Kincaid and Kenneth Wyatt.

Hors d'oeuvres and drinks will be served throughout the evening.

The Hall-iday Ball is being organized by the following steering committee members: Jeanette Case, Roberta Caviness, Ruth Newsom, Sunny Lemons, Patsy McGinty, Betty Rudder, Thelma Marsh, Angel Stubblefield. Pat Hill and Margaret Formby.

Grainmen Hope Commodities Have Bottomed Out After Embargo's Historical Market Disruption

By JIM STEIERT

Brand Farm Editor It was a history making week on the American farm scene, but it was the type of history the nation's farmers would as soon not see made.

President Carter's announcement of an embargo on 17 million tons of grain originally destined for export to the Soviet Union stunned the agriculture industry and locked down the nation's grain futures trade from Jan. 4 through last Wednesday.

The boards at local elevators went blank Jan. 4 and remained that way until late Thursday.

The president's televised announcement of the embargo prompted a drop of 40 cents per hundredweight in the local cash price of corn fom the closing price of $5 per cwt. on Jan. 4 to the figure finally posted by local elevators on Thursday.

Wheat, the hardest hit commodity in the embargo, toppled over 50 cents per bushel on the cash market locally before bids were posted again, and grain sorghum dropped 35 cents per hundredweight.

In addition, the presidential announcement prompted the first grain trade shutdown in the nation's history and sent shock waves reverbrating throughout the grain industry and into the heart of the nation's farmlands.

When trading resumed on boards of trade in Chicago and Kansas City on Wednesday, grain futures plummeted the limit within the first few seconds after the market opened.

The embargo prompted quick reaction from the farmalnds

Farmers indicated they could understand and would support moves to counter the Soviet aggression in Afghanistan, but only if they were not the only faction singled out to make the sacrifices called for in national policy.

Commented one local commodity representative: "This is an American crisis, not just a farm crisis."

The administration announced measures aimed at serving as "shock absorbers" to cushion American farmers from the effects of the embargo, but the measures were labeled by most farm observers as "insufficient and ineffec-

Now, with the embargo just over a week old, grain industry spokesmen are warning against panic selling of grain, in order to give the grain industry a better chance of recovering, and for the most part, that warning is being heeded.

Market observers were surprised Thursday when in only the second day of grain futures trading since the shutdown, corn and wheat failed to close down the limit, and in fact, regained some of their losses from a plunge early in the day.

That was hailed as an indication that perhaps the bottom had been reached, and brisk trade on the futures market early in the day on Friday gave room for a bit more optimism in that respect.

Fred Bruegel Jr. of Bruegel & Sons

Grain of Dimmitt and president of the Texas Grain & Feed Association reported he feels the stunned farm commodity market may well have bottomed out.

"I think we've seen the season lows. At least I hope we have. Commodity prices could trend a little lower in the next week or two, but I think we've about reached our lows," stated Bruegel.

"We have a lot of buyers around looking to get bargain grain right now, but there hasn't been any selling in our area. Most of the farmers have taken a wait-and-see attitude. They want to see what the final impact of the Carter program will be and what the final loan rate will be. There are still some people in Washington trying to get the loan rate raised," he added.

The Carter administration announced a boost in basic price supports for wheat and corn early last week in part of a series of moves it claimed were intended to protect farmers:

Area commodity group spokesmen wrote off those hikes as "tokenism," calling for supports to be hiked to at least the price level which commodities had reached just prior to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Bruegel pointed out that the announcement of the embargo came as a surprise to him.

'The president had said as early as Friday morning (Jan. 4) that there would be no embargo. He changed all that on that night," stated Bruegel.

"We've had embargoes under the past two administrations and they didn't work. They don't raise prices to the farmers or lower them to the consumer, and the farmer and the grain industry ultimately pay the price," he added.

On The Turnrow

By Jim Steiert

Brand Farm Editor

Oh, for an issue in which the good guys wear white, the bad guys wear black, and the gray areas are merely those growing on one's head.

We've had plenty to go gray about the last week or so on the farm scene with an embargo on grain exports to Russia, a shutdown of farm commodities trading for the first time in history, and the tailspin for farm goods in the marketplace once trade was resumed.

Then, there's good old "meany Khomeini" to give the populace in general reason to pull the stopper on the bottle of Grecian formula.

How can you dance with the Russian bear and feed him fresh bread to wolf down as an appetizer when he's having one of your neighbors for lunch?...Literally.

Yet, when you holler for the woodsman to come run off the bear, there's the chance that the head of his axe may fly off the handle and bong you on

And it's not just the heads of state that smart from the lumps either.

So it is with the latest Russian escapade. Bopping the bear to get his attention probably hurt our rural folks a lot more than it did comrade bruin...He's accustomed to seeing red...Now a lot of farm folks are seeing red too...the kind on the wrong side of the ledger sheet.

And then, Khomeini keeps on with his insance tirades about our country and our "nest of spies" and you wish he'd walk under that nest and look up about the time the bald eagle decides to uncork

There are some things you can't second guess, and the Russkies are a "shining" example.

They've been using their Mark Eden wonder exercisers all along, and they put up a pretty good front now.

Meanwhile, we've sorta' gone flat, if you'll pardon the expression.

There are areas in which we can match their muscle with little more than pea shooters, and so one of the few alternatives we have available is to at least deny them the peas they think they ought to have to eat off the ends of their bayonets.

But in doing this, it gets mighty tough for a lot of the peapickers here at home, and all of the "bless your little pea-picking hearts" in the world don't make it feel or work any better.

The embargo on grain shipments and subsequent measures adopted to help ease the effects of the move on farmers are mistakes and woefully ineffective countermeasures from the rural perspective.

Yet, would we in any way stand for feeding the divisions of an army that is crushing Afghanistan in a fashion not unlike that of another agressor we remember as the "paper hanger" Hitler?

We are being shaken at the very roots of our economy by the actions of folks on the other side of the globe, and the world is indeed too small for

Only time will tell how we weather this one. Everybody more or less knew there was a storm blowing up

I was feeling really low about the Iranian situation the other day when I ran across an article that perked me up a bit.

The writing hailed the new sense of unity of purpose among Americans since the transgressions against our fellow citizens in Iran.

And the work went on to point out that although Americans were understandably miffed at the upstarts who seized the embassy, America was showing unparalleled strength through its restraint.

People come first, the state comes second, rather than the all things for the state mode of thinking of the Soviets.

I felt a little stronger myself after reading it, and hopefully, maybe we can feel a little stronger about taking a stand against the Soviets a little farther down the line, when we can see this whole distasteful thing from the perspective of distance.

But there are at least five minutes of every day when I'd like to see us play the 98 pound weakling and feed Khomeini and the Russians a knuckle sandwich.

Farmers Union Calls for Remedial Decisions

says the Administration's deciwith the Soviet Union still leaves much doubt about the impact on market prices and that loan rates for wheat, corn and soybeans should be moved to 90 percent of parity in concert with changes in the previously announced grain program.

The state farm leader said the Farmers Union will not be satisfied by government action that merely bails out grain traders for their losses on shipments from the 1979 crop unless it fully protects farmers' prices for the 1980 crop as well. much of which has already been planted, and for the balance of which farmers have already started to make land preparations and fertilizer commit-

TFU is asking the USDA to reverse an earlier decision that

WACO - Texas farmers the grain they wish for 1980 Union President Jay Naman harvest by announcing a mandatory setaside of at least sion to purchase grain contracts 20 percent which includes payments to farmers for diverting productive land or plowing back that which is already planted.

Without such action, TFU fears not only a temporary backlash of the decision to halt Soviet grain shipments but also a depressed market in1980. Without the diversion payment to lay out grain acreage, many diversified producers could also turn to planting increased acres of alternate crops and thus over-produce those commodities and suppress prices.

In a meeting with USDA officials, National Farmers Union President Tony Dechant called for an immediate increase in loan rates as the only means to avert economic catastrophe in the farm sector. While reiterating the organizafarmers be allowed to plant all tion's support for 90 percent of bushel for soybeans. NFU also called for policies to allow farmers to extend or 'reseal" loans or stored grain throughout the slump in the market and also increased shipments in the "food for peace" program, grain which the government buys outright and sends to third-world nations.

In regard to talk that the excess grain could be channeled into production of fuel alcohol for the making of gasohol, Naman criticized the Administration for "dragging their feet over the past two-years" and only recently showing limited support for programs to build facilities to produce grain

"It would take at least two years to build the facilities to convert this amount of grain to alcohol," said Naman. "Since the Soviet market will probably be a questionable one for years to come, we should obviously get very serious about an alcohol fuels program. But such an idea is no solution to our immediate needs to deal with the surplus."

Naman continued by saying that there are still many questions yet unanswered about how the government will administer the 1979 grain it will take over.

"Simply buying up contracts is not the end to the dilemma," he said. "When grain goes into a reserve, we must ask at what price it comes back out into markets. The government could certainly use this reserve to keep a ceiling on the market, and judging from past farm policies in the Administration, we're not sure they won't.

undersand and are sympathetic with the President's intentions in taking this action, although we question the impact since the grain was to be used primarily by the Russians to increase livestock feeding. Regardless of what action is taken, however. no one sector should pay the cost. Farm prices in 1979 averaged only 90 percent of parity and the 1980 forecast was already showing a 20 percent drop in farm income. The government must undergird the market both for the short and long term or this additional burden will prove ruinous."

Livestock Show Schedule Announced

By JIM STEIERT Brand Farm Editor

The annual Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show will be held here Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 24, 26 and 26 at the Bull Barn.

The show, open to young competitors from Deaf Smith. Castro, Parmer and Oldham counties, is regarded as one of the area's top livestock shows of its size.

Two outstanding judges have been signed to select the winners in this year's events.

Dr. Bob Kropp, associate professor of animal science at Oklahoma State University will judge lamb and steer classes and Howard Parrish, a prominent swine breeder from Edon, Ohio will judge the hog classes.

Events will get underway Wednesday, Jan. 23 with weighing-in of lambs and hogs from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

All steers will be weighed in from 8-10 a.m. Thursday, Jan.

Judging of the market swine classes will get underway at 10 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 24 and will continue through the afternoon. Stock show events get underway Friday, Jan. 25 with lamb classes set to go at 8 a.m. The steer show will follow that afternoon, beginning at 2

The textile leaders also heard about extensive market research that has documented that consumers desire more cotton in their apparel and such home furnishings products as sheets and towels. Economic studies were presented showing that in the 1980s, the price of petroleum-based synthetic fibers, such as polyester, will rise rapidly in proportion to the cost of oil, making it more economically attractive to shift fabric production to cotton.

In closing remarks to the group, Cotton Incorporated president Dukes Wooters sounded the "consumer is king"

He cited a recent article in the trade press that told how Southwestern stores were in a "frantic" hunt for all-cotton

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - The new year is getting off to a rough start for some Texas farmers due to uncertainties in the grain market resulting from President Carter's embargo of grain to the Soviet Union. The embargo will not only affect marketing decisions with 1979 crop grain but may also affect planting decisions as the spring season approaches, says Dr. Daniel C. Pffanstiel of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Aside from pondering an uncertain grain market, producers are getting land in shape for care remains a major activity, the extension director said in his weekly crop report.

Livestock are holding up well in most sections of Texas as winter weather so far has been generally mild. Feeding of hay and protein supplements is widespread due to lack of forage although some green grazing is available on wheat and oats pastures in the eastern half of the state, and on irrigated wheat in the plains.

Virtually all of the state's cotton crop has been harvested although much of it remains to be ginned, Pfannstiel said. A lot of this year's crop in West Texas and the plains has been field-stored in modules to enable rapid harvesting, and ginning will continue for some way, soil moisture conditions vary over the state from generally adequate over the eastern half to short in southern and western areas, Pfannstiel said.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions:

PANHANDLE - Cotton harvesting is winding down, with yields generally above average. Most wheat is dormant due to cold. dry conditions so there is little grazing for livestock. Most cattle are in good shape, with supplemental feeding widespread. Farmers are busy with land preparation.

SOUTH PLAINS - Virtually all the cotton has been harvested but ginning remains active due to large amounts of cotton field-stored in modules. Moisture is short throughout the area and the potential is high for wind erosion. Irrigated wheat looks good and is being grazed; dryland wheat needs rain. Cattle feeding is active.

ROLLING PLAINS - Cotton harvesting is winding down,

REC Director Nominees

Are Selected

The nominating committee of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative met January 4, at the REC Headquarters Building in Hereford and selected three members to run for two slots on the board of directors of the electric cooperative.

Those selected to represent Parmer County are incumbent A.W. Anthony, Jr. and Walter H. Mays from the Friona area.

Representing Deaf Smith County and running unopposed is incumbent Jerry Roberts from the Simms Community.

Nominations from the floor at the 1980 Annual Membership Meeting to be held February 23. at the Hereford Bull Barn are also encouraged by the Nominating Committee.

Those comprising this year's official Director Nominating Committee are: Floyd Brown, Jarrell Wright and D.L. Carmichael, Friona; Allen Dobmeier, Nazareth; Graham Sheffy, Dimmitt, Mrs. Argen Draper and Norman Hodges, with good grades on late-plant- is about complete, with above ed cotton. The wheat situation is average yields and quality. Some cattle are on full feed. particularly where green grazing is not available.

> FAR WEST - Crop harvesting is virtually complete although a lot of cotton remains to be ginned due to the large amount fields-stored in modules. Farmers are busy getting land in shape for spring planting. Range forage is limited due to continued dry conditions. but livestock are wintering well without heavy supplemental feeding. Calving and lambing are under way.

> WEST CENTRAL - Cotton harvesting is complete, but some ginning continues. Recent rains have boosted wheat growth but stands are uneven. Harvesting of an excellent pecan crop is complete but prices have been low. Livestock are in fair condition, with heavy feeding. Range conditions are average to below average.

> CENTRAL - Moisture remains short over a few counties. Small grains are generally in poor shape due to prolonged dry weather; acreage is down. About 25 percent of the pecan crop remains to be harvested. There is some decline in livstock conditions, with supplemental feeding heavy.

> EAST — Oats for winter pastures are making good growth and are providing green grazing for livestock. Gardeners are making preparations for planting early spring vegetables. Some pecan harvesting continues; scab disease hurt the crop in its late stages. Livestock are generally in good shape, with feeding active.

> SOUTHEAST AND UPPER GULF COAST - Farmers are busy getting land in shape for the upcoming planting season. Some pecans are still being harvested. Winter pastures are making good growth and are providing grazing for cattle. Livestock feeding is active. Soil moisture is adequate to surplus. SOUTH CENTRAL - Wheat and oats are generally making good growth and providing some grazing. Some areas need additional rainfall. Cattle are in good condition, with feeding active. Farmers are preparing land for the spring planting season.

SOUTHWEST - Recent scattered rains have given hope to small grains and range forage. Most livestock remain in good condition, with supplemental feeding active. Spanish goat kidding has started, but eagles preying on many of the young animals. The pecan harvest is about com-

COASTAL BEND - Dry conditions continue to hamper small grain growth and the growth of winter grasses on pastures and ranges. Farmers are preparing land for spring planting and are applying fertilizer and herbicides (chemical weed killers). Most cattle are receiving supplemental feed.

SOUTH - All but the Rio Grande Valley remains dry. Cattle have little forage for grazing so supplemental feed ing is heavy. Harvesting of citrus, lettuce and cabbage continues. Some 15,500 acres of sugar cane have been harvested to date. Cantaloupe panting is in

Cotton Subcommittee Hears Optimistic Outlook On Crop

GREENWOOD, Miss. - The House Cotton Subcommittee heard an optimistic outlook on the over-all state of the cotton industry at a regional hearing

Hoke Leggett, president of the National Cotton Council, acknowledged that the industry is contending with inflation, cost increases, and other serious short-term problems.

However, he told the committee, "It is especially gratifying that in the face of the largest U.S. crop in 14 years, our markets seem to be absorbing the new surge in volume and price trends have continued firm.

He attributed this primarily to a solid domestic market and to major increases in cotton export sales, especially those to China.

"Already this season, the Chinese have bought over 2 million bales of U.S. cotton and have moved ahead of Japan and Korea -- both one-million-baleplus purchasers -- to become our biggest export customer," the Hobgood, N.C., producer said. "In total, our export sales already exceed 7.5 million bales with nearly eight months in the crop year yet to go."

In addition to raw cotton sales, the Council president said the opportunity to export U.S. cotton textiles has improved and that domestic textile firms have been competing aggressively in foreign markets in recent months. He noted that U.S.

textile exports by October were up 40 percent over the same period last year, and this cut the textile trade deficit almost in

"Increased consumption of cotton and other textiles in Korea, Japan, and other Far East nations indicates a strong potential for raw cotton and cotton textile exports," he said. "It looks especially bright in some of the developing countries like China, where living standards are beginning to improve."

With foreign food demands expected to hold back major increases in overseas cotton production, Legett said this should cause foreign textile mills to look more and more to the United States for their cotton supplies.

"Just a few years ago, many in our industry were beginning to think in terms of an average annual market of 10 to 11 million bales," he added. "Today some specialists believe we are now stepping up our volume to the 12 to 13 million bale level, with an encouraging upward trend."

To achieve this potential, the Council president emphasized that problems like cotton dust, rising production costs, and static yields must be solved.

He also stressed the immediate need of obtaining more credit for Korea, U.S. cotton's second largest customer. Leggett pointed out that the U.S. has captured a 98 percent share of Korea's 1.4 million bale market, due largely to GSM-5 funds loaned at one percentage point above the U.S. prime rate and repaid within three years.

Because credit funds were cut from $1.6 billion to $800 million this year, he said Korea has been allocated only one-fourth of the $200 million requested. While Korea has agreed to try $100 million in GSM-101 credit -- a poltical risk insurance program for commercial credit -Leggett said the U.S. still needs to provide $50 to $100 million of GSM-5 funds in the next few months "if we are to avoid undue risks in losing part of this

He said the President's Special Export Council recently recommended that export credit be restructured to the $1.6. billion level and that the funds be put on a revolving basis.

"We wholeheartedly support these important steps," Leggett told the committee.

The Council president also warned against current attitudes regarding farm size.

"Without question, more discrimination against medium and larger farms could wreck the cotton program as we know it today," he stated.

The value of U.S. farm assets as of January 1, 1980, is expected to total $950 billion, up 16 percent from a year ago. according to Sperry New
