Vernis Parsons of the Cultural Extension Homemakers Club was named the 1992 Club Woman of the Year during the Annual Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council Appreciation Luncheon Monday at the Hereford Community Center.

Speedy Nieman, publisher of The Hereford Brand, presented Mrs. Parsons with a silver engraved tray in recognition of her 56 years of dedicated service in extension work. Other Club Woman of the Year nominees included Carolyn Evers of Westway E.H. Club, Maudette Smith of Ford E.H. Club, Christine Larson of Bippus E.H. Club, Corcen Odom of Wyche E. H. Club and Edna Schulte of North Hereford E.H. Club.

The honoree, who began her E.H. membership in Donley and Randall Counties before moving to Deaf Smith County, is a charter member of the Cultural E.H. Club, having joined the organization 45 years ago.

Mrs. Parsons explained, "Being a member of an extension homemakers club has helped me develop my talents to be a better leader as well as a follower. It has also helped me overcome my timidity and be willing to accept club offices as well as take part in programs."

"I am thankful for the many years as an extension club member," she continued. "The close association with club friends has helped me to grow as a person. It is quite an honor and achievement to have been permitted to participate in E.H. work this long."

Mrs. Parsons is currently serving as the cheer committee chairman for her club and served on the club's nominating committee. She has attended numerous council meetings, leaders training, district E.H. meetings and entered two crochet covered garment hangers in craft exhibits. She was involved in the Extension Homemakers Council Sweet Bee, the Annual Festival of Trees and Westway Bazaar.

As an active member of First Baptist Church for 40 years, Mrs. Parsons says she especially enjoys her Sunday school class and participating in the W.M.U. Bible Study and mission programs. She is also a member of the Hereford Senior Citizens Association and assists with making lap robes, bibs and table cloths for residents of King's Manor and the Golden Plains Care Center.

Mrs. Parsons has two children, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Her hobbies include sewing, crocheting and cooking.

The six nominees were recognized for their leadership, growth and development in extension club work and their involvement in the community, church and family life. Each nominee's resume was judged by an out-of-county extension agent for home economics.

Johnnie Messer, District 1 T.E.H.A. chairman and a member of Draper E.H. Club, recognized the women who have 50 years or more of service in the E.H. organization. Presented with white roses were Mrs. Parsons, who has been an E.H. member for 56 years; Tillie Scott, 53 years; Leta Kaul, 56 years; and Pet Ott, 62 years. Messer was assisted by Jewell Hargrave of Cultural E.H. Club and Tonia Vaughn of Draper E.H. Club.

Smoking banned in all county buildings

County studies juvenile detention center; adds to health care plan

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Smoking will be banned in all buildings owned by Deaf Smith County, beginning March 1.

In Commissioners' Court action Monday morning, the ban was approved by a three to one vote of the four commissioners.

The court also added to the health care package provided county employees by adopting the Deaf Smith General Hospital wellness program at a cost of about $5,000 per year.

And, commissioners agreed to spend up to $750 for a study of the possibility of creating a juvenile detention center in the Fullwood Building, located at Third and Lee and owned by the City of Hereford.

In other business, commissioners: -- Received a report on increasing insurance liability limits at an expense of about $1,200 more than the original premium of about $41,252.

-- Heard a request from the Hereford Beautification Alliance for assistance during the April 3 "trash-off" in Hereford.

-- Took under consideration a policy on medical service for county jail inmates.

-- Approved a proposal from County Clerk David Ruland for consolidation of voting precincts for the May 1 state constitutional and senatorial election.

-- Authorized the purchase of a radio for the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers investigator.

-- Accepted a bid of $2,500 from Oldham County for a snow plow.

-- Approved requests for crossing two county roads with water lines.

The smoking ban in county buildings came after a brief discussion. Commissioner Lupe Chavez of Precinct Two said he had changed his opinion on the proposal and no longer feels the need for designated smoking areas, especially in the courthouse.

Chavez then offered a motion to prohibit smoking in all county-owned buildings, including the courthouse, Bull Barn, library, museum, E.B. Black House and precinct shops. Excluded are two homes owned by the county in precincts.

Troy Don Moore, Precinct Three commissioner, seconded the motion. Johnny Latham, Precinct Four, voted with Chavez and Moore for the ban. Tony Castillo, Precinct One, voted against.

Prior to the vote, County Judge Tom Simons said he had received letters from county employees as well as residents of the county supporting the ban. The issue first was discussed at the commission meeting on Feb. 8 but action was delayed until Monday to allow an agenda item to consider the proposal in all county buildings.

The wellness program, also outlined at the Feb. 8 meeting of the commission, drew some discussion from Castillo and County Tax Assessor-Collector Margaret Del Toro. They both insisted that the program should be optional for employees.

Simons said the program, which includes certain check-ups for employees, is another part of the county's benefit package for employees and elected officials.

On a motion by Commissioner

Moore and second by Commissioner Latham, the program was approved by a three to one vote. Commissioners Moore, Latham and Chavez in favor and Commissioner Castillo opposed.

The need for a juvenile detention center for Deaf Smith County was reviewed by Commissioner Latham, a member of the juvenile board; Lou Serrano, juvenile probation officer, and Judge Simons.

A joint service of the county, City of Hereford and Hereford schools, the juvenile board recommended that the Fullwood Building be considered for a detention center.

Serrano said the second floor of the building could be converted. Previously, second floor was an apartment complex while the ground floor was an automotive center. After purchase by the City of Hereford, part of the building was used briefly by the fire department.

Serrano reported that the county will spend as much as $80,000 during the current fiscal year for detention facilities for juveniles.

"We're budgeted for $60,000 but last year, we spent $76,000 and this year, it will be $76,000 to $80,000," said Serrano. He estimated a center could be operated in Hereford for $125,000, including staff salaries and other expenses. Accessibility of a center would improve handling juvenile offenders at night and on weekends, he said.

Anthony's to move to larger store here

C.R. Anthony Co. will move its Hereford retail outlet across 25 Mile Avenue next month into the North Gate Plaza, resulting in a larger store featuring a new company look.

Store manager Evonne Herrin said the store will have all new fixtures and will be "the third like it in the company."

A building permit was taken out for the work on Jan. 8 in the amount of $85,000. The new store will have 14,950 square feet of space.

"We're going to try to move about the middle of March if at all possible," Herrin said. "It's going to be a lot more space than what we've got now."

Anthony's is currently located in an 8,000-square-foot site in Sugarland Mall.

The additional space, Herrin said, will mean additional employees. She said she anticipates "hiring 10 more people than what we had," bringing the total work force to 21 people, including an assistant manager. Herrin said the move is being made because the owner of the Amarillo Anthony's also owns North Gate Plaza.

The new Anthony's will be located next to Homeland near the north end of the shopping center.

The new outlet measures 115 feet by 130 feet.

Clinton ends trip, sets sights on world affairs

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton is turning his attention to world affairs following a two-day West Coast trip where he touted plans to spend billions of dollars creating high-technology jobs and promised help for the troubled aerospace industry.

Sounding hoarse and looking worn from the visit to California and Washington state, Clinton returned to the White House early this morning. He planned an afternoon meeting with U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali.

Topping the agenda was the possibility of U.S. airdrops of food and supplies to needy areas in Bosnia. The president said he had made no final decision on the airdrops, but administration and Pentagon officials said the flights were almost certain.

Asked Monday if airdrops would be made, Clinton said, "It's a possibility. I want to wait a couple more days before I announce a policy on it."

"We're still consulting," he said.

Clinton also planned to discuss Somalia with the Boutros-Ghali. He was noncommittal about a statement by U.S. special envoy Robert B. Oakley, who accused the United Nations of stalling plans to take over peacekeeping duties in Somalia.

"Before I use that characterization, I better talk to Mr. Boutros-Ghali, but I think the plan should be fully effected," Clinton told reporters aboard Air Force One.

The president plans to meet Wednesday with visiting British Prime Minister John Major.

But Clinton's attention Monday was not on foreign affairs. Clearly enjoying the campaign-style trip to the Silicon Valley in Mountain View, Calif., and the Seattle area, Clinton gave his economic program the hard sell.

"I can't promise you overnight miracles. We didn't get into this fix overnight," he told Boeing Co. workers in Everett, Wash.

He blasted European subsidies for hurting U.S. aircraft manufacturers and promised "tough new discipline" to respond to them in the future.

Boeing last week announced it was eliminating 27,000 jobs by mid-1994.

Clinton blamed some of the layoffs on competition from Europe's Airbus Industrie, a consortium that enjoys the support of government subsidies and that competes for world markets with Boeing and other U.S. plane makers.

Although Clinton stopped short of advocating direct government involvement in such consortia, the technology program he outlined Monday calls for government assistance to "industry-led" joint efforts.

The president also met with aerospace industry executives and touted a bill before Congress that would establish a commission to quickly recommend ways to help the industry.

Tax breaks and "peace dividend" money from scaled-back defense spending would be used to implement the new strategy.

One tax hike may not be enough; money needed for health care

WASHINGTON (AP) - One tax increase this year may not be enough.

After outlining billions of dollars of tax hikes last week to reduce the deficit and revitalize the economy, President Clinton may ask Americans this spring to dip into their pockets to overhaul the nation's medical-care system.

The possibility is strong enough that White House Budget Director Leon Panetta acknowledges publicly that specific taxes - on tobacco and alcohol - are among the likely targets.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen stops a bit short, saying only that "they will remain an option on the table."

Clinton's top health advisers are said to be weighing other options. Among them: requiring workers to pay tax on part of the health insurance premiums paid by their employers; limiting Medicare benefits for upper-income retirees, and even imposing a limited national sales tax.

But less than a week after Clinton urged Congress to raise taxes by about $60 billion a year in the name of deficit reduction, it is difficult to find a lawmaker wanting to discuss a new round of taxes for health care.

"Nobody can ever say we can get to 100 percent (health insurance) coverage without a tax," said Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., an authority on the system and a member territory and is responsible for slightly more miles, receiving 29 percent of the fund, County Judge Tom Simons said.

Castillo argued Monday at the Commissioners' Court meeting that he "should be compensated" for the miles his precinct is assuming from Precinct Two.

Judge Simons said that the question of extra funding cannot be addressed until a new budget is prepared. The 1993 budget is in effect until Sept. 30.

Simons also observed that Precinct Two has not received more money because of the 40 miles of Precinct One roadways.

Castillo prefaced his request by asking "how long the overlapping precincts" have been utilized in the county road system.

Commissioner Johnny Latham of Precinct Four said he believes it has been a practice of 25 years, or more.

In recent years, say commissioners, the county has continued the practice because precinct boundary lines have been changed in re-districting and it has been advantageous for commissioners to maintain the same roads.

Deaf Smith County's road system, separate from state-maintained roadways, includes about 1,072 miles, with only about 58 miles paved.

The most recent record shows 224 miles in Precinct One; 230, Precinct Two; 265, Precinct Three, and 353, Precinct Four.

of the Senate Finance Committee. But Durenberger advocates a gradual approach to health-care reform, rather than an effort to fix the system in one massive sweep.

Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., who pressed for action on health care while a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, says Congress has no alternative but to act this year, but adds it is too early to talk higher taxes.

"Hopefully, savings generated by (medical) price controls or cost containment will finance a health-care plan," Dorgan said.

"Health care is the 500-pound gorilla in the deficit," Dorgan says.

COUNTY

"If the police pick up a juvenile on a weekend, we have nowhere to go," said Serrano.

Commissioners voted unanimously to seek an estimate of feasibility of using the Fullwood building for such a facility.

A proposed policy for medical care for inmates of the Deaf Smith County jail was referred to District Attorney Roland Saul for an opinion on the policy's legality.

A primary proposal of the policy is to make prisoners responsible for their own medical expenses. Judge Simons said inmates who have funds on deposit will be required to pay for health care, if the policy is approved.

The county has been picking up the tab for medical attention and prescriptions for inmates, at an expense of about $25,000 per year. Indigent prisoners would be referred to the hospital district, Judge Simons said.

Purchase of a radio for use by Kenneth Chambers, Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers investigator, was approved at a total cost of $711.10 for equipment and installation. His request was supported by Sheriff Joe Brown and District Attorney Saul.

"He's used as any other law enforcement officer in the county," said Saul. "They call him on anything related to cattle and supplies."

Brown noted that Chambers "works here" with us. The investigator is commissioners by the Texas Rangers and covers a nine-county area.

Lotto win prompts 'sick' day

AUSTIN (AP) - Dick Shanklin has always preferred working behind the television camera rather than in front of it.

But after winning the $7.2 million Lotto Texas jackpot drawn Feb. 20, he made an exception.

Shanklin, 47, called in sick from his job as a technician for a Dallas TV station to claim his riches Monday.

"I don't like being in front of the camera as much as being behind the scenes pushing the buttons," said Shanklin, who lives in Grapevine. "But for this two days of fame I don't mind it."

Shanklin collected $365,983 on Monday and will receive a check for $362,000 each of the next 19 years. He said he would quit his job Tuesday.

"With this kind of money, your time is your own," he said.

Shanklin said the winning numbers - 3-18-27-36-41-43 - came to him while watching the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles cartoon near the end of a 12-hour shift Friday.

"They kept popping into my head, and I kept writing them down," he said.

After watching the lotto drawing at 10 p.m. Saturday, Shanklin said he kept the news to himself and returned to work at KDFW-TV in Dallas for his midnight shift.

"I was just weird the rest of the night," Shanklin said. "I couldn't concentrate."

"I didn't want to say anything to anyone because until they verify it, you don't have the $7 million," he added.

He says he will build a new house in Grapevine and add a 10-car garage for his collection of "old 1960s model cars."

One of the ports in the garage will house a new "Cadillac Sedan Seville," he said.

Shanklin also wants to share his riches with friends and family.

"I want to give about $10,000 each to some friends and two other brothers," Shanklin said. "I want to help them out and give them a little money to play around with."

Shanklin said he was still considering whether to buy season tickets to the Dallas Cowboys.

"I am definitely a (Dallas) Cowboys fan, and I am glad the coach is almost as rich as I am," Shanklin said.

Quick Way Food Store in Grapevine is also a winner. The store received $72,440 for selling the winning ticket.

Shanklin said he will quit his $5-a-week lotto habit.

Shanklin added that in several years of entering contests, "I had never won a thing - nothing."

Virgie Duncan gave the opening exercise entitled "A Friend" and President Jo Lee conducted the business meeting.

Shirley Brown led the T.E.H.A. prayer and the pledge to the United States flag. Roll call was answered by "the fats I use most."

Special visitors included Merle Lehman, Thelma Auten and Moveda Busby.

Hostesses were Virgie Duncan and Carol Odom. Other members present were Mary Lou Aven, Louise Axe, Shirley Brown, Argen Draper, Camelia Jones, Jo Lee, Coreen Odom, Pet Ott, Audrey Rusher, Mary Stubblefield, Barbara Sterne and Clara T. Wrbidge.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Harry Connick Jr. may have two Grammys, but he says the greatest honor of all is leading one of the biggest parades of the Mardi Gras season.

The 25-year-old singer-songwriter-pianist will preside as the god of wine and revelry in the Krewe of Bacchus' 25th anniversary parade on Sunday, two days before Mardi Gras.

"No award in the world could mean more than this," Connick, who grew up in New Orleans, said Thursday. "To try to explain what it means to be king of Bacchus - you just can't put it into words."

Bacchus has 27 floats, including a 100-foot-long "Bacchagator" that carries 100 riders.

Women honored at luncheon

The 1992 Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Club Woman of the Year, Vernis Parsons, at left, was recognized at Monday's Annual Appreciation Luncheon for having been a member of the organization for 56 years. ## Business manager, employer workshop set Wednesday Delivering quality service will be the topic presented by Susanna Coppermol, Extension Assistant with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, at workshops to be held on Wednesday at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Office Board Room at 701 N. Main.

Anyone interested in learning or updating their skills on customer service relations is invited to attend. The workshops are free.

The same material will be presented at two different workshop times. The first will be held from 8:30-10 a.m. and the second time will be 10:30 a.m. - noon. Reservations may be made by calling the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce at 364-3333 or the Deaf Smith County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at 364-3573.

The training program is designed to address both managers and employers as they provide quality service by both management and front-line personnel. Manuals will be available to those attending the workshop.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting the Extension office or Chamber of Commerce Office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Firing across the diamond

Third baseman Josh Tice of the Hereford junior varsity baseball team prepares to throw a batter out at first base in the first baseball game of the year. In the background are shortstop Michael Marquez and left fielder Gregg Kalka. The Herd JV won 13-7 over the Canyon JV Monday at Whiteface Field.

JV starts season with win

The Hereford junior varsity baseball team celebrated the beginning of baseball season with a 13-7 win over the Canyon JV Monday at Whiteface Field.

Hereford's varsity starts its season today when the Tascosa Rebels come to Whiteface Field for a 4 p.m. game.

Tied 1-1 going into the second inning, the Hereford JV broke loose for six runs, getting RBI hits from Louis Hernandez, Gabriel Guerrero, Jeremy Brock and Marc Haney. Brock's hit was a double over the center fielder's head.

Hereford gave the runs right back in the top of the third, and the score was tied at 7-7, but only briefly. Hereford scored five more in the bottom of the third, two on hits by Gregg Kalka and Haney and the rest on errors.

Hereford held Canyon scoreless in the fourth and fifth innings, and the game was called because of darkness before the bottom of the fifth started.

Armando Zambrano scored a single run for Hereford in the fourth. Guerrero scored in the first inning.

Hernandez started the game on the mound, but Josh Tice relieved and picked up the win.

Hereford to host Canyon, Dimmitt

Hereford will host a boys' bi-district basketball game Thursday between Canyon and Dimmitt.

Dimmitt (13-14) is the champion of District 2-3A, and Canyon (17-11) finished as the runner-up to Perryton in District 1-3A.

The game will be played at 7:30 p.m. in Whiteface Gymnasium.

Reinauer makes finals in San Angelo

Bri Reinauer made it as far as the girls' singles finals in the San Angelo Tennis Tournament, which was played Friday and Saturday, highlighting the Hereford tennis team's first tournament of the season.

Reinauer won four straight matches before falling 6-3, 6-2, to Christy Teakell of Wichita Falls Rider.

Several other Whitefaces won in at least one round.

"When you enter a single elimination tournament you have one chance to shine," Herd coach Natalie Sims said. "Our players played very well even though we only had one make it to the finals. We lost several critical 3-3 points which could have made games turn into sets."

Most of the Hereford players, including Reinauer, played in the B division, which is for 4A schools. Two players, Jamie Kapka and Greg Coplen, entered the A division boys' singles bracket. A division is for "5A or anybody who dares," Sims said.

"Jamie and Greg played A division not only for experience but to gain when it comes time for seeding information," Sims said. Hereford players usually have trouble getting seeded at the regional tournament.

Both lost in the first round. Kapka lost 6-4, 7-5 to Daniel King of Lubbock Coronado, and Coplen lost 6-0, 6-3 to Bradlee Holland of San Angelo Central. Sims said Holland was the tournament winner and is ranked fourth in the state and 11th in the nation.

Reinauer helped her chances of getting seeded at regionals by beating several "Southern players," Sims said. Reinauer's first four victories were: 6-0, 6-2 over Nicole Agnew of Odessa High; 6-0, 6-1 over Laure Garabelewis of Del Rio; 6-1, 6-2 over Courtney Grote of Mason; and 6-4, 7-5 over Lyndey Roberts of Abilene High.

Hereford's three girls' doubles teams found success, as two duos made it to the quarter-finals and one made it to the second round.

--Hereford's Emily Fuston and Sherry Fuston beat Anderson and Wilkes of Rider, 6-3, 6-1, then beat Tucker and Flores of Uvalde, 6-0, 6-1, before falling in three sets to Black and Thompson of Brady, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5.

--Hereford's Natalie McWhorter and Paige Robbins drew a bye in the first round, then beat Haigood and Estes of Rider, 6-0, 6-2, before losing to Graham and Nelson of Lubbock Monterey, 7-5, 6-3.

--Hereford's Brooke Weishaar and Kara Sandoval beat Patrick and Rodriguez of Fort Stockton, 6-0, 6-1, then lost to Curran and Bauer of Rider, 6-2, 6-3.

In girls' singles, Michelle Berend defeated Heather Jackson of Monterey, 6-3, 6-2, then lost to Mason's Shelly Spiller, 6-1, 6-0. Both Gabriela Gamez and Melissa Berend lost in the first round: Gamez to Abilene's Jill Levert, 6-1, 6-0, and Berend to Tehan Scully of Rider, 6-3, 6-2.

In boys' doubles, all three Hereford teams lost in the second round. Chris Lyles and Jason Cole beat Corey and Weatherman of Brady, 6-2, 6-4, then lost to Shaw and Garza of Del Rio, 6-2, 6-2.

Richard Drager and Tom Jarecki got a first-round bye, then lost 6-3, 6-1, to Bhandari and Caffey of Lubbock High, who eventually won the tournament. B.J. Lockmiller and Pete Vargas got a first-round bye, then lost 6-4, 7-5, to Gerdes and Dorris of Uvalde, who lost in the finals.

In boys' singles, Hereford's Justin McWethy fell to Mike Breier of Abilene Wylie, 6-1, 6-3.

Hereford girls 3rd, boys 6th in Big Spring Golf tourney

Both of Hereford's golf team finished in the top half of the standings at the Big Spring Golf Tournament, which was played Friday and Saturday. The Hereford girls finished third and the boys finished sixth.

Hereford's boys were eight strokes out of second place in their first tournament of the year. Monahans dominated the 12 team boys' field, putting four golfers among the top six individuals and winning with a total of 608--51 strokes ahead of second place Lamesa. Only eight strokes separated second place and sixth place, though: Lamesa shot 659; Pampa, 660; Odessa Permian, 664; Big Spring, 666; and Hereford, 667.

Hereford's girls totaled 759, trailing only Amarillo High at 717 and Abilene High at 751. Hereford was 29 strokes ahead of fourth-place Snyder.

On Friday, the girls played at Big Spring Country Club and the boys played at Comanche Trail Golf Course. On Saturday, they switched.

Individually for Hereford, Cecelia Albracht finished seventh overall with a 181 total, one place ahead of teammate Dusty Saul, who shot 184.

Four ranked college teams stumble on road

By The Associated Press

Pitt was the pits and Tulane was terrible. Kansas ran into a hot home team and UNLV was upset in front of former coach Jerry Tarkanian.

All four ranked teams lost on the road Monday night.

No. 25 Pittsburgh shot 30 percent from the field and scored its fewest points in eight years in a 53-48 loss to Providence.

"What do you think? We set the game back about 50 years?" Pitt coach Paul Evans wondered at his postgame news conference.

Iowa State remained perfect at home by beating No. 7 Kansas 75-71. The Cyclones are 14-0 at Hilton Coliseum this season.

Kansas played without starting center Eric Pauley, who injured his left knee in pregame warmups. Patrick Richey started in Pauley's place and scored nine points before fouling out with 5:07 left.

Eddie Jones scored a career-high 29 points and Temple frustrated Tulane with a tough zone defense for a 79-57 upset over the No. 16 Green Wave.

Idris Jones scored 25 points and UC Santa Barbara upset No. 13 UNLV 86-83 as Tarkanian watched from behind the Santa Barbara bench. It was the first UNLV game Tarkanian has seen in person since he left the school under a cloud of controversy at the end of last season.

Iowa St. 75, No. 7 Kansas 71

At Ames, Fred Hoiberg and Justus Thigpen each made a free throw in the final 25 seconds and Hoiberg made a key defensive play for Iowa State (16-8, 6-5 Big Eight), which rallied from a six-point deficit in the second half. Kansas (21-5, 8-3) stayed in the game behind reserve center Greg Ostertag's 16 points. Thigpen led Iowa State with 17 points.

Temple 79, No. 16 Tulane 57
At Philadelphia, Temple (12-10) led all the way against Tulane (20-5), which shot only 37 percent from the field.

Aaron McKie had 24 points and 11 rebounds for Temple, while Pointer Williams scored 13 points for Tulane.

UC Santa Barbara 86,
No. 13 UNLV 83

At Santa Barbara, the Gauchos beat the Rebels for only the fourth time in 29 meetings. Ray Kelly scored 11 of his 13 points in the second half and had 15 assists for the Gauchos (14-9, 7-8 Big West). Duane Carter had 10 points and eight rebounds for UCSB. J.R. Rider led UNLV (17-4, 10-3) with 24 points.

No. 18 Iowa 74, Penn St. 58

At State College, Iowa's Val Barnes scored 33 points, including six 3-pointers, and a Penn State fan was thrown out of the arena for arguing with an official. Barnes made 11 of 12 shots from the field and all five of his free throws. Jeff Kindig, a Penn State sophomore, was ordered to leave Recreation Hall after cursing at referee Sid Rodeheffer following a block by Iowa's Acie Earl in the first half. Kindig said he thought goaltending should have been called. Iowa improved to 17-6 overall and 6-5 in the Big Ten, while Penn State dropped to 6-16, 1-12.

Sun Belt Conference regular-season title. New Orleans (21-2, 15-0), unbeaten in eight road games this season, squandered an 11-point lead in the final five minutes of regulation and fell behind at the beginning of both overtime periods. Williams finished with a season-high 27 points, while Darnell Mee led Western Kentucky (18-5, 11-4) with 20.

Providence 53,
No. 25 Pittsburgh 48

At Providence, Pittsburgh went scoreless for 8:25 late in the second half of a sloppy game. Both teams were plagued by turnovers and poor foul shooting. The Panthers (15-8, 7-8 Big East), who lost their third straight, scored just six points in the final 10 minutes and shot 24 percent in the second half. The Friars (14-9, 7-8) won their fourth consecutive game despite missing 15 of 25 free throws and committing 15 turnovers. Michael Smith had 18 rebounds for Providence.

No. 19 New Orleans 71,
W. Kentucky 67, 2OT

At Bowling Green, Gerald Williams hit the go-ahead basket and two key free throws in the second overtime as New Orleans clinched the

Aggies blast Longhorns by 20

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - It had been a long time since Texas A&M had been able to beat Texas; but the Aggies finally did with some help from the cold-shooting Longhorns.

The Longhorns were held scoreless for an 11-minute span in the first half and the Aggies routed Texas 77-57 in the only Southwest Conference game played Monday night.

David Edwards contributed the first triple-double in Aggies history with 12 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists as Texas A&M improved to 9-14 overall and 4-7 in the Southwest Conference.

The Longhorns, led by Terrence Rencher's game-high 22 points, dropped to 9-13 and 3-7.

The Aggies put the game away with a 19-0 run that spanned 11:04 in the first half, helping turn an 18-16 deficit into a 35-18 halftime lead.

The Longhorns, who shot only 23 percent (7-30) from the field in the first half, missed 15 shots during the stretch. Texas shot 35 percent for the game to 59 percent for the Aggies.

Michael Richardson added 15 points and Tony Watson 10 for Texas.

Chuck Henderson chipped in 16 points for Texas A&M, while Brett Murry had 13.

The first half provided several new lows for the Longhorns under coach Tom Penders, including fewest points and lowest shooting percentage.

"I have never had a team that went 11 plus minutes without scoring," Penders said. "We could not knock our shots down. Then, it is very difficult to come back when you get that far down."

"It is also hard to come back when you only shot 23 percent."

"At the half, I gave them the old 'The score is 0-0' spiel, but they aren't going to listen," Texas A&M coach Tony Barone said.

Barone credited Edwards with the Aggies' 41-22 rebounding advantage and their first victory over Texas in 10 tries.

"David did a great job of swiping those long rebounds after their long shots off to the side," Barone said.

"This win is a tremendous boost for our kids. Any time you beat Texas is a big win, but hopefully this will propel us."

Shaquille knows he'll have to wait his turn

By JIM LITKE

AP Sports Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - If The Kid knows his NBA lore, then he knows that Magic and Bird and even Michael had to settle for bit parts in their debuts, too. And just like them, Shaquille O'Neal will have to wait his turn to become The Man.

"Shaqui is the future of the NBA," Charles Barkley, the league's resident sage, said Sunday. "And some day us old guys will face reality and step aside."

Unfortunately for the 20-year-old O'Neal, Barkley would not be any more specific on when.

Some of the smart money and most of the NBA's higher-ups were expecting that day would come Sunday, fittingly in The Kid's first All-Star game appearance. And for a while, it looked like a cinch.

At an auction Friday night, an Orlando Magic jersey worn and autographed by O'Neal went for $55,000, while a Chicago Bulls version, similarly used and signed by Jordan, brought in only a relatively paltry $25,000. All day Saturday, O'Neal got top billing in the TV promos. And any remaining doubts about the theme for the weekend should have vanished Sunday when the appropriately named vocal group, "Boyz II Men," turned up to sing the national anthem.

All that careful scripting, however, went down the drain shortly after the ball went up for grabs.

San Antonio center David Robinson, playing for the West, went over O'Neal to control the tip, and no one on either squad gave the Shaq much more leeway after that. Karl Malone and John Stockton of the hometown Utah Jazz stole the ball and the MVP award and East coach Pat Riley stole whatever thunder O'Neal might have mustered by sitting him down the stretch as the West scratched out a 135-132 win in overtime.

Trying to be diplomatic, Riley explained O'Neal's limited role this way: "I wasn't trying to rest him. This game wasn't about rest. ... I intended to get him back into the game. It was just a matter of finding time for everybody to play."

But Michael Jordan, perhaps mindful of the way a few of his East teammates conspired to freeze him out of the offense in his 1985 All-Star debut, didn't see the need to be quite as diplomatic.

"It took guys like us a while to get our respect," he said, "and I don't think a lot of publicity is going to change that. That's why it was all the vets at the end."

O'Neal finished with a respectable 14 points, but 13 came in the opening half. He tried to herald his own arrival with a hard foul on Robinson barely 30 seconds after tipoff, but found everybody else on the floor more than willing to play it that way. And truth be told, all of them were a lot more practiced at it than he was.

Afterward, O'Neal sat in his locker stall long after the game was finished, throwing off short, muted answers to the waves of reporters who wanted to know whether the old guys were sending him a message. Bright as he is, or perhaps because he knows the same thing happened to each of his illustrious predecessors, O'Neal simply stated the obvious:

Time is on his side.

"Stuff like that doesn't matter to me. If I keep doing the things I've been doing, I'll be up there."

"And," The Kid added with just the right amount of defiance, "I'll be back."

Oilers want to keep Carlson

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers are trying to keep backup quarterback Cody Carlson from becoming a free agent, and he's willing to listen to their offers.

Carlson and his agent, Vic Vines, met with team officials for more than nine hours Monday, three days before the team must either re-sign him or make him one of their three protected players.

"I think this is a show of good faith by the Oilers," Carlson told the Houston Chronicle in Tuesday's editions.

"I feel they have made it clear to me for quite a while now that they want to keep me around if they can. But it's hard for me to say right now what will happen."

"We discussed all the new rules and how it will affect my situation and (the team's) situation," Carlson said.

Men needed for study

More than 150 urologists across the nation are currently recruiting men to participate in a research study looking at a drug treatment for symptomatic benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH). BPH is a common condition of the prostate gland characterized by bothersome urinary symptoms such as difficulty starting urination, a weak urinary stream and frequent urination.

"Many men are bothered by the symptoms of BPH without knowing that they suffer from a treatable condition," said Mark Soloway, M.D., chairman of the department of urology at the University of Miami School of medicine and one of the investigators participating in the study. "This study will seek to determine the clinical and cost-effectiveness of a non-surgical treatment to relieve the symptoms of BPH."

Researchers are currently enrolling men who suffer from symptoms associated with BPH for the study. To see if they qualify for participation in the study, individuals can call a toll-free phone number, 1-800-227-4623. Men who qualify for the study will be referred to participating urologists in their area.

"This study is an opportunity for men to play an important role in a nationwide research effort that could help other men who now have BPH or will develop it in the future," Soloway said. BPH is a very common condition, affecting more than half of men in their sixties and as many as 85 percent of men in their eighties.

BPH is a condition of the prostate, the male sex gland that produces the fluid that carries sperm. BPH is caused by two factors - enlargement of the prostate and contractions of smooth muscles that are prominent in the bladder neck and prostate. Since the prostate surrounds the urethra (the tube that carries urine from the bladder), both of these factors affect the ease with which urine can pass from the bladder.

A surgical procedure known as transurethral resection of the prostate (TURP) is currently the most widely used treatment for BPH. According to most recent data, this surgery was performed more than 320,000 times in 1991 for management of problems related by BPH.

Symptoms of BPH to be aware of include:

- Weak urinary stream
- Frequent urination - especially at night
- Difficulty postponing urination

-A sense of incomplete bladder emptying after urination

-Difficulty starting urination

-Interruption of the urinary stream

Please call 1-800-227-4623 for more information about the BPH study.

SUNRISE, Fla. (AP) - After canceling plans for at least four U.S. tours in the past five years, Prince is finally going to do it.

His 10-city tour will begin in this Ft. Lauderdale suburb on March 8 with a concert at Sunrise Musical Theatre, which seats only 4,080 people, his spokesman, Michael Pagnotta, said Thursday.

The reclusive pop music icon plans to play smaller arenas throughout the tour, but will perform several nights in most cities, Pagnotta said.

"We've been through this drill at least half a dozen times," said Ron Cohen, president of Cellar Door Concerts, the local promoter. "This time, it's finally happening."

Price and his New Power Generation will perform in New York, Boston, Chicago and other cities. Not all dates and locations have been set, Pagnotta said.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 27 and was adopted as an infant. Recently, my birth mother had an investigator locate me. He found all the necessary information in the Arlington, Va., courthouse. Through process of elimination, my birth mother learned my whereabouts in a week.

I am deeply resentful that this information was allowed to be seen. I have written letters voicing my outrage and have received no satisfaction.

My birth mother seems to be a pleasant person, and the medical knowledge she has given me has been helpful. However, I did not want to be found, and it has caused a great deal of stress to me and my family.

My birth mother continues to call me, and she wants very much to be a part of my life, but this is NOT what I want. This may sound harsh, but I already have a loving family, and I want my life to remain the same as it's been for the last 27 years, without my birth mother in it.

I understand that giving me up for adoption caused her pain, but she made that decision, and it is now MY decision to keep it that way. I feel that the people who adopted me have become victims with no rights in the matter.

I want to warn others: If you think you can't be found, beware. You are mistaken.—Adopted in Arlington

DEAR ARLINGTON: Unfortunately, you are correct. Persistence will almost always make any so-called sealed record attainable.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis made it clear that one of the most valued of ALL rights is the right to be left alone.

I agree with that concept. However, I know of no way to keep persistent people from making pests of themselves unless they break the law.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Well, you finally got me. An offhand remark in your column compelled me to write to you.

I am inquiring about the woman who was complaining about her tedious marriage. She wrote, "The only good thing that has happened in the last few years is that my husband has stopped bothering me in bed."

This cold-blooded comment is so typical of what I've heard all my life. It seems the majority of married people get sick of their spouses. And it's not just sex that gets tiresome—it's everything.

I want to know what happens to human beings when they sign that marriage license. As soon as the ink is dry, the husband or wife becomes an albatross, someone to endure. Their opinions are no longer as interesting, and their involvement in your life becomes annoying.

I'm 29 and single. As someone who is still looking for a person to love and respect, someone with whom I can share the ups and downs of life, I think most married people take too much for granted. Human nature seems to get more and more unnatural. Please give me some insight. I have this uncontrollable urge to take six aspirin and crawl under my desk.—K.S., Belvidere, Ill.

DEAR BEL: There is no way you can hide from the foibles of human nature. I do hope, however, that you don't believe all marriages are miserable. Actually, there are some very good ones around.

Covered dish dinner held for organization

The Hereford Whiteface Good Sams Chapter met recently for a covered dish dinner and meeting in the Hereford Community Center.

The Pledge of Allegiance to the flag was led by Roy Campbell and the invocation was given by Bill Patton.

Following the dinner, President Jess Robinson conducted the business meeting. Communication was discussed from J.W. Jackson of Amarillo, assistant-state director of Area 10, Texas Good Sams. Also, a list was made of members celebrating their 49th and 50th anniversaries where they will be given special recognition at the State Samboree in Abilene and in the Texas Good Sam Magazine.

Chapter members were asked to join the Highway Cleanup Program through International Sams.

The chapter's projects include supporting the Special Olympics and the Dogs for Deaf programs. Dogs go through costly and extensive special training before being given to hearing-impaired owners. Hereford Whiteface Good Sams presented a telephone for the deaf to Marti McMinn of Amarillo in 1992.

Whiteface Sams are interested in working with a hearing-impaired individual in this county. Please call Jess Robinson, 364-4171, for additional information.

The State Samboree will be held April 22-25 with plans being made to tour Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene.

The first camp-out is scheduled the last of April in Quartz Mountain State Park near Altus, Okla.

During the Valentine ceremony, Jess and Patricia Robinson were chosen as 1993 King and Queen. Past honorees, Carl and Pauline Kropff, assisted when the crowns were presented to the Robinsons.

During the March 11 meeting, Leta Campbell will present a program on PALS—Personal Alert Security.

Members attending included Delbert and Verlea Bainum, Raymond and Ruby Campbell, Roy and Leta Campbell, Carl and Pauline Kropff, Bob and Ruth Morris, Bill and Gene Patton, Jess and Patricia Robinson, Clyde and Catherine Russell and Larry and Geneviva Summers.

Hospital toured by chapter

Members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently at Deaf Smith General Hospital for a tour.

Janice Betzen, sorority member and hospital employee, gave the tour showing members the new patients' rooms and the employee cafeteria facilities. The group discussed plans for further renovation at the hospital.

Several members expressed gratitude to their secret sisters for presents.

Members attending were Janice Betzen, Jaime Broman, Glenna Calaway, Danell Culp, Patty Frerich, Carmen Gonzales, Teresa Hopping, Wanda Huseman, Marrie Leverett, MaryBeth Messer, Jill Savoini, Judy Schumacher, Mary Bob Ward and Donna Weaver.

BOX 310, Hereford, Texas 79045 has applied to the Texas Water Commission for an amendment to Permit No. 03196 to authorize an increase in the capacity of a feedlot operation from 7,000 to 18,000 head and to incorporate improvements constructed after the permit was originally issued. Stormwater is to be retained in one storage pond. Wastewater from the pond is disposed of by evaporation and/or irrigation on agricultural land. No discharge of pollutants into the waters of the State is authorized by this permit. The feedlot operation is approximately 2 miles east of the intersection of U.S. Highway 385 and Farm-to-Market Road 1412, approximately 18 miles north of the City of Hereford in Deaf Smith County, Texas. The feedlot is in the drainage area of the Prairie Dog Town Fork Red River in Segment No. 0229 of the Red River Basin. The Executive Director of the Texas Water Commission has prepared a draft permit based on the application submitted by the applicant and other information presently available. Legal Authority: Section 26.028 of the Texas Water Code and 31 TAC Chapter 305 of the Rules of the Texas Water Commission. No public hearing will be held on this application unless an affected person who has received notice of the application specifically requests a public hearing. Any such request for a public hearing shall be in writing and contain (1) the name, mailing address and daytime phone number of the person making the request; (2) the statement "...request a public hearing"; and (3) a brief description of how the requester, or persons represented by the requester, would be adversely affected by the granting of the application. If the Commission determines that the request sets out an issue which is relevant to the application, or that a public hearing, would serve the public interest, the Commission shall conduct a public hearing, after the issuance of proper and timely notice of the hearing. If no sufficient request for hearing is received within 30 days of the date of publication of the notice concerning the application, the permit will be submitted to the Commission for final decision on the application.

Requests for a public hearing on this application should be submitted in writing to Kerry Sullivan, Assistant Chief Hearings Examiner, Texas Water Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711, Telephone (512) 463-7908. Information concerning any technical aspect of this application can be obtained by writing Scott McCoy, Wastewater Permits Section, Texas Water Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas, Telephone (512) 463-8201. Issued this 9th day of February, 1993.

Face empty nest with open door, open hearts

By JOHN KANELIS
Beaumont Enterprise
BEAUMONT, Texas - They call it the empty nest syndrome, and now I know what it's all about.

For months friends and colleagues had assured us that it wouldn't be so bad, but they also warned us that our lives would undergo profound changes.

This is the moment for which parents prepare their children. We want them to find their way in the world, just as we did. We don't wish for them the same mistakes we made, but we know instinctively they'll make a few.

Perhaps they'll call with a question: Dad, I can't figure this out. Can you help?

And if of Mom or Dad don't have the answer, the next best thing is to steer them toward someone who does.

We nudged our second child out of the nest the other day. It was both the saddest and happiest day of our lives. Our first son already is in his second year of college, and is well into college life.

We are fortunate to be able to see him every three to four weeks, since he's only 125 miles away. He's ensconced in his dormitory (which college officials call "residence halls" these days). But when he comes home for weekend visits, he seems genuinely happy to be around familiar household haunts.

We don't expect to see our second son quite as often. He's moved to Dallas to attend school. Our younger son is a five-hour drive away - if you don't stop too often along the way. Sure, he hasn't fallen off the face of the earth, but the fact is he lives about twice as far as our other son, which makes it impossible to see him as often as we would like.

The nest is empty, if only for three weeks at a time. My wife and I joked for years with our sons that while we know they no longer are "babies," they'll always be "our babies." And we hope they have understood the subtle distinction.

So it came to pass on a recent chilly afternoon that we bid so long to our second "baby." We had packed him - and all his stuff - off to Dallas. We had helped him unload it and watched as he began to set up house in his new surroundings. Leaving him there to fend for himself was the most difficult task we've ever accomplished - and the drive back from Dallas was one of the longest, and quietest, trips we've ever taken.

The phone company hadn't yet hooked up the telephone in our son's place, which meant we couldn't call him when we got home. So he seemed just a little too far out of our reach.

You see, we bypassed many of the transitional aspects of breaking away that our older son is enjoying. The second son lives in an apartment in a major metropolitan area. He must find a part-time job, which he must work while attending art school - while finding the discipline to balance school, work and recreation on a limited budget.

We no longer will be there all the time to hold him up. We've done our part, and we hope it was good enough. I'll be honest. We're a little scared for both of our sons as they make their way inexorably into full-fledged adulthood, dealing with life's problems as they present themselves.

Maybe we're a little nervous, too, about our move into full-fledged empty-nesthood. Sure, all this has its positive spin. We're young enough and healthy enough to enjoy life, perhaps to get reacquainted after spending all those years chasing after two energetic boys who came into our lives when we weren't much older than they are today.

I anticipated a flood of memories that weekend as we prepared to send our younger son on his way. One stands out. It is of both our boys scurrying from room to room through the house and watching their little figures disappear through doorways as they scooted around the corner. They were full of the spirit of fearless adventure.

That memory kicked in the other day as our son ran from the car toward the security gate that allows him entry into his new home. He opened it, ducked inside and was gone - no doubt to explore a new world away from our protective grasp.

A colleague said the other day, quoting some philosopher she once read, that parenthood is the only endeavor in which doing a good job renders one obsolete.

Well, I think we've done a good job, although I find it hard in these first few days of tending that empty nest to consider myself obsolete. How might we gauge our success? Maybe one way is to see if, after spending some time in the "real world," our sons still enjoy coming home. Our door and of course, our hearts, always are open.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am 65 years old and have started getting facial hair on my upper lip, chin area and cheeks. I am very disturbed about this.

I went to a dermatologist who suggested I have it waxed off, and I would just have to have it done every six months. I talked to a beautician who said it would have to be done at least every two months and might come back heavier and darker. Right now it is fine and light. I would appreciate your advice.

DEAR READER: This is a common change in older women. It is related to changes in hormone balance that occur after the menopause. The testosterone that can be formed is converted by an enzyme into dihydrotestosterone which is the hormone that stimulates hair growth. It is also the same hormone that stimulates prostate enlargement in men and baldness in male pattern baldness.

A diuretic, spironolactone, has been used frequently to help control this problem. There may be new approaches. Proscar, currently used to attempt to reverse prostate enlargement may also help as it blocks the enzyme that converts testosterone into dihydrotestosterone. There are reports that Eulexin (flutamide), which has an anti-testosterone effect, will also help eliminate such problems. This is still under study. Eulexin is commonly used in treating prostate cancer because it neutralizes the actions of testosterone.

Mechanical solutions can be used. That includes electrolysis to destroy hair follicles, but this is a long and usually expensive procedure. There is really nothing wrong with shaving. Waxing is a method that continually pulls out the hair, but it does not destroy the follicle and regrowth does occur. It is not true that either shaving or pulling out the hair will cause it to grow back thicker or darker or make matters worse. The stubble of hair is always more stiff than the tip of the shaft.

I have discussed the current concepts of this problem in Hirsutism: Women's Excess Hair, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/107, P.O. Box 5537, Riverport, NJ 08077. Let your dermatologist guide you on your choice of treatments.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I know peanut butter has a lot of fat in it, but doesn't it also have a lot of nutritional value?

DEAR READER: You could say that, because calories are part of nutritional value and peanut butter is a very high calorie food. If you want to limit your calorie intake, it is not one of the foods you should be consuming. Just one level tablespoon contains 95 calories. A 100-gram quantity contains 591 calories. A pound contains 2,682 calories. Compare that to one pound of raw, lean round steak that contains only 600 calories.

Yes, it is very high in fat. About 78 percent of its calories come from fat. The saving grace is that only 13 percent of its total calories are from saturated fat, meaning it is not exceptionally high in saturated fat. The rest of the fat is unsaturated fat which is not believed to be as harmful in terms of affecting your cholesterol level.

Peanut butter is fairly high in protein - 28 grams in 100 grams of peanut butter and 129 grams in a pound. (For comparison, one pound of lean, raw round steak contains 100 grams of protein.) And it is fairly good quality protein. It also contains a reasonable amount of niacin and folic acid. It is not all bad - unless you need to watch your calories.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a 62-year-old male with a history of high blood pressure and heart trouble. Although I have not had a bypass operation on my heart, I have had bypass surgery to both legs due to blocked arteries and surgery for an aneurysm of my aorta. After the surgery, when they removed the tubes, I noticed that I was deaf in my left ear and have a constant noise. My deafness is permanent. Can you tell me why this might have occurred?

DEAR READER: With your history of vascular disease requiring that much surgery, it is likely it is on a vascular basis. You may have developed an obstruction of the artery supplying the hearing portion of the inner ear or the area of the brain that receives signals from the ear. These can be from a limited stroke or just gradual loss of circulation from blockage. But such an event will cause a sudden loss of hearing. Events like these may also be associated with what people think are ear noises, but they may really be head noises associated with circulation in the brain. Such sounds are more evident when there is no competing sound from the environment. A virus infection of one ear can also cause sudden loss of hearing.

I presume you have had an evaluation by an ear specialist. If not, you should. I am sending you Special Report 87, About Your Hearing, for more information on the causes and what can be done for loss of hearing. Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/87, P.O. Box 5537, Riverport, NJ 08077.

If your hearing is good in the right ear, an audiologist may be able to put a microphone on the left side to transmit sound to your right ear. That way you can hear when someone is talking to you on your left side.

People often overlook the point that fatty-cholesterol deposits in arteries which cause heart attacks and strokes affect all the arteries in the body.

Resident's granddaughter recently accepts position

Lorri-Anne McDaniel, granddaughter of Ellen Bumpass of Hereford, has accepted a position at the Clay County Mental Health Center in the Clay County Memorial Hospital in Henrietta.

McDaniel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McDaniel of Lake Arrowhead, is a 1986 honor student graduate of Henrietta High School and received a bachelor of arts degree in social work from Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls. Her social work certificate was awarded from the Texas Department of Human Services in June 1992.

McDaniel plans to continue her studies toward a masters degree.

Genetic splicing discussed

Deaf Smith County Extension Agent Beverly Harder presented a program on genetic splicing when members of North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club met Thursday at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Harder explained how splicing effects the quality of fruit and vegetables and also discussed a new way of packaging foods-the vacuum procedure which extends the shelf life.

With Edith Higgins presiding, the opening exercise on shopping was read.

Higgins was nominated as a delegate to attend the upcoming district meeting in Canyon.

Evelyn Crawford served as hostess.

Scholarships available

A scholarship program for young people who have epilepsy may bring many deserving students greater hope for a successful future—and show others just how much these remarkable young people can achieve.

The second annual Parke-Davis Epilepsy Scholarship Program recognizes high school seniors and college freshmen, sophomores and juniors with epilepsy who have excelled in academics and extracurricular activities. This year, 14 award winners will share $42,000 in grants.

The Epilepsy Foundation of America reports that some 300,000 school-age children have this illness, including about 125,000 teenagers. Epilepsy, which refers to a group of brain disorders characterized by various types of seizures, can often be frightening for both those with the condition and their peers who may know very little about the disease. The goal of this scholarship program is to help show that these students can and do lead normal lives.

Requests for applications have been sent to some 12,000 neurologists nationwide. An awards ceremony will be held April 24 at the American Academy of Neurology meeting in New York City.

For more information about the scholarship program write to: Susanna Silverman, Parke-Davis Epilepsy Scholarship Program, c/o IntraMed, 1180 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036 or call 800-972-7503.

Springers attend insurance agent meet in Austin

Farmers Insurance Group agents Daleine and Charles Springer of Hereford will be in Austin today as part of a delegation of agents in the state capitol for a Texas Legislative Conference.

They are attending the session with 10 Farmers Insurance Group agents from Amarillo and plan to meet with state lawmakers regarding concerns about increasing insurance costs.

An estimated 1,000 agents, employees and state legislators will attend the session, which will conclude on Wednesday.

Conference speakers will include Farmers' chief executive officer and chairman James A. MacKinnon; midwest zone vice president Stephen Feely, Attorney General Dan Morales; State Rep. Kim Brimer; and House Speaker Pete Laney, who will deliver the keynote address at Wednesday's closing luncheon.

Other activities will include a legislative issues forum, a reception and meetings with individual legislators.
