Onward through the flames

Hereford firefighters are framed by flames as they attempt to extinguish a grass fire this morning at the west end of Lake Street. About one acre of dry lake bed was torched in the blaze, which fire marshal Jay Spain said was "probably set by kids." The fire was the second grass fire this morning. They also extinguished a small grass fire near Homeland earlier in the morning, which Spain said also may have been started by juveniles.

Area food producers brief each other on activities

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Food producers in the Hereford area are looking forward to growth and stability this year, according to reports presented at Tuesday's quarterly meeting of the Hereford Area Food Council.

Jeff Carlisle of Merrick Pet Foods noted that they are hoping to make their first shipment of dry dog food to Japan this month, and that they are starting a packaging project for a national brand product, where the goods are shipped here, then packaged at the plant.

Dennis Printz of Holly Sugar said no big changes are planned there, and that the company is looking at about 40,000 acres of sugar beets this season.

He also noted that employment is steady at the plant.

Glenna Calaway, financial manager for Frito Lay, said the facility is sending corn to company plants in Vancouver, Canada; Modesto, Calif.; Dallas; and Lubbock.

In addition, plans are in the works for a couple of projects at the plant, but they have not received final corporate approval.

Frank Ford, meeting chairman, said Arrowhead Mills directors are contemplating possible expansion, but stressed that a project is still in

Arredondo given 50-year sentence in district court

A jury in 222nd District Court took less than 30 minutes Tuesday afternoon to assess a 50-year prison sentence to a defendant who entered a guilty plea earlier in the day to a charge of aggravated assault.

Augustine Arredondo, 35, elected to plead guilty to the charge Tuesday morning although a jury trial on guilty or innocence had been expected. A jury was seated for the punishment phase of the case.

Testimony during the afternoon revealed that Arredondo had a record of two prior convictions on felony charges and, in fact, was on parole from prison at the time of the attack on Francisco Olguin on April 2, 1992.

Arredondo was convicted of delivery of marijuana in 1986 and of burglary of a vehicle in 1984.

Another aggravated assault charge, related to the same incident last April, is pending against Arredondo. He is accused of aggravated assault against Amy Lopez.

Testimony was heard Tuesday afternoon and the jury began deliberations a few minutes after 5 p.m. The punishment determination was returned at 5:32 p.m.

Formal sentencing of Arredondo will be made by District Judge David Wesley Gulley at a later date.

Another case scheduled for trial Tuesday was canceled when the defendant, Johnny Quiroz, charged with attempted murder, decided to plead guilty. He will appear in court Thursday to enter the plea.

the preliminary stages.

Ford said the company experienced about a 20 percent increase in sales over February 1992, which reflects a steady pace over the past several months.

Council members agreed to keep meeting on a quarterly basis, and Ford said sessions will be scheduled to avoid crop- and production-related conflicts.

The meeting was held at the Hereford Country Club and was sponsored by Hereford State Bank.

Democrats plan early vote on Clinton budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton and Congress' top Democrats plan early votes on Clinton's proposed budget cuts to let rank-and-file Democrats show they are serious about deficit reduction.

In the face of mounting Democratic defections, the White House announced Tuesday that a vote on the president's $16 billion "economic stimulus" spending increases would be delayed. First - or simultaneously - will come a vote on a budget resolution laying out his plans for tax increases and spending cuts.

White House spokesman George Stephanopoulos said that in a Tuesday evening telephone conference with Democratic congressional leaders, Clinton "asked them to put the budget resolution on a fast track so we could lock in the spending cuts as soon as possible, and they have agreed."

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said the short-term increases in road-building and other programs would be voted on "a week or two" later than had been planned. The budget resolution would be adopted about a month earlier than anticipated.

Foley said he expected votes on both measures to occur between mid-March and April 2, when Congress begins its Easter recess.

"It's important and valuable to demonstrate to the whole country our commitment is to the whole program, not just the stimulus program," he told reporters.

The decision came after numerous Democratic lawmakers - mainly fiscal conservatives and freshmen - signaled a revolt over earlier plans to approve the spending increases in March and the budget resolution about a month later.

"The credibility of Congress is not the greatest, and people are cynical, and if we voted on the stimulus package first, they'd say, 'Ah, you'll never do the cuts,'" freshman Rep. Jerrold Nadler, D-N.Y., said.

Rep. Tim Penny, D-Minn., who pushed for the schedule shift, said moving up the vote on the budget resolution would help the stimulus package pass.

"The only way to sell that plan to a majority of Congress is to place it in the context of the larger investment and deficit-reduction initiative," he said.

DSGH occupational health program starts

Employees in the Hereford Independent School District are learning more about how to "Work Smart" this month with the help of Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The district is offering employees a series of health screenings as a benefit for their employees.

"A healthy teacher is usually a better teacher," said Richard Souter, school assistant superintendent. "Working with children is such an important but demanding job that we want to help our people stay in top condition."

The first phase of the "Work Smart" program consists of a series of health screenings at each school campus every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday during February, said Mark Collier, director of the hospital's Occupational Medicine program, which is called "Work Smart."

Hospital chief executive officer Ron Rives praised the school district for offering the program.

"It's wonderful to find a school district so concerned about the welfare of their employees. The school has committed time, effort and money to help their employees develop a healthier lifestyle," he said.

School personnel pay a small fee for the screenings, and the balance of the charges are paid by the district.

Employees may have a pulmonary function test to measure lung capacity; HDL, LDL, coronary risk profile blood test, to measure levels of "good" and "bad" cholesterol; an electrocardiogram (EKG), which measures the electrical pattern of the heart; blood pressure; and body fat measurement.

"Our goal is to help school employees improve their productivity by spotting potential health problems in the early stages," Souter said. "By working with Deaf Smith General Hospital we are able to provide this important benefit to our employees."

In addition to health screenings, DSGH is offering wellness programs for employers, drug screenings, employee physicals, work place evaluations and safety counseling.

Goals set on youth, gang problems here

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

An estimated 200 people gathered at the Hereford Community Center on Tuesday night and decided that they want to work to create a "dream" community.

Alan Stephens, drug-free schools/parenting coordinator for the Region 16 Education Services Center in El Paso, told the full-house audience that they need a vision for the community, then need to bring that vision about.

"We want Hereford, Texas, to be gang and drug and violence free," Stephens said, summarizing the feelings of those present.

The goal - and strategies for bringing about the vision - were the culmination of a nearly two-hour session where Stephens explained gangs, how and why youth join them and what the schools, law enforcement, community and families can do to curb the problem.

Some suggestions to improve Hereford included: creating better communication within the community; having activities for youth; having tighter discipline in the schools and home; putting youth to work; imposing a curfew; talking to parents of known gang members; control alcohol sales; get more parents involved; create a hotline; create educational programs; providing a counseling program for youth and parents; and find ways to create unity among children throughout Hereford.

Stephens then encouraged the audience to select the three hardest ideas to implement - talking to gang members' parents, improving discipline and creating unity among youth - and the easiest - creating education programs, imposing a curfew and establishing a hotline to report gang activity.

The group was directed to work together to establish a hotline before a meeting on March 25, then Stephens gathered volunteers to put the program together.

Joe Hernandez volunteered to be "dream protector" and coordinate the project. Other volunteers were: Brent Harrison, Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers Coordinator; Nena Veazey, administrative assistant to school Superintendent Charles Greenawalt; Leticia DeLaCruz; Marilyn Leasure; Pam Wagner; Eva Valdez; Emilio Valdez; Corky Lockmiller; Terry Souter; David Fanning; Jill Robinson; and Erin Bullard.

The committee was charged with working with Crimestoppers to push forward existing plans to establish a high school hotline, to coordinate volunteers to man high school telephones after school to take information about gang activity, to raise money to help fund a hotline and to create, print and distribute a flier advertising a hotline.

Stephens said much gang activity can be curtailed if a hotline exists that students can use anonymously to report gang activity in the schools.

Stephens said he always urges community groups to begin with easy projects and work up to more difficult tasks, in order to keep enthusiasm up, to start with successes and to keep momentum going.

"If you're going to do something, do it before next month," he said, calling for the group to meet at 7 p.m. March 25 in the community center.

Finally, he said, "If you want to solve your problem it's in your hands."

School board sets election, extends administrator pacts

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

The Hereford School Board, in regular session Tuesday evening, officially called the May 1 trustee election, approved the purchase of two school buses, approved a request from Nazarene Christian Academy to allow their students to participate in the HISD band program, held a hearing concerning student discipline, approved contract extensions for administrators, and approved the 1993-94 school calendar.

The board also adopted a resolution on energy management, tabled a discussion on reapportionment of trustee districts until after the May 1 election, heard the superintendent's report, and heard updates from professional and student organizations.

Placed up for election will be the at-large seats of board president John Fuston and Dennis Newton, and the District 2 position of Raul Valdez. Fuston, who has served on the board nine years, announced he would not seek reelection. Newton and Valdez announced that they would seek reelection.

Supt. Charles Greenawalt reported to the board that he will be making public appearances to "encourage local voters" to vote for the May 1 constitutional amendment, which has three provisions concerning school funding.

The three provisions are: validation of CEDs and limited recapture, unfunded mandate relief, and authorizing $750 million in bonds for financing school facilities. The superintendent will appear at various civic clubs to explain the election.

Greenawalt recommended approval of the Nazarene Christian Academy request "because it will benefit our high school band program." The school has a program for students in grades 6 through 8 to prepare them for the high school level.

Greenawalt said the request was different from one earlier where a private school sought participation in an academic program, and which the school rejected. He said the action leaves the door open for other private schools to request participation in the band program.

The student hearing involved a boy who was suspended for the remainder of the school year for shooting a dart blow-gun and striking another student. His parents appeared at the meeting to question the fairness of the disciplinary action. The mother admitted her son was wrong, and should have been punished, but she questioned the lesser suspension action against the owner of the dart gun. She claimed that the owner was more involved than was first reported.

High school principal Terry Russell and assistant Ken Cole outlined the events, saying the three students involved all told basically the same story at the time of the incident, and that the tougher suspension was based on the fact the student used the dart gun, while the other boy only had it in his possession in a vehicle on school property. Greenawalt recommended the board uphold the decision of the administrators, and the board voted to support the action.

The board accepted a low bid of $87,392 for the purchase of two new school buses. Only two companies submitted bids, reported assistant superintendent Don Cumpton, and Longhorn Bus Co. won the bid.

The board had discussed a reapportionment project at last

Damages for injury to be made harder by House proposal

AUSTIN (AP) - The House has approved legislation that would make it harder for injured people to recover damages from companies in Texas courts.

One bill would make it more difficult for people in other countries who claim injuries from a product with some Texas connection.

The bill, which already has passed the Senate and now goes to Gov. Ann Richards, would allow Texas courts to dismiss certain lawsuits brought by non-Texans if the judges believe the action should be tried elsewhere.

It's meant to reverse a 1990 state Supreme Court ruling that allowed Costa Rica farm workers to sue two companies in Texas for injuries they said were caused by handling a pesticide produced by the companies.

A second measure approved Tuesday by the House would limit businesses' liability for damage caused by various products, including tobacco and alcohol. It returns to the Senate, which earlier passed the bill, for consideration of House amendments.

Under that bill, tobacco and alcohol companies could not be held liable for damages because consumers should already know their products are classified as unsafe.

To recover damages in which a design defect is alleged, a person would have to prove a safer alternative design existed at the time the product was made. The alternative would have had to be economically and technologically feasible.

Richards is expected to sign both bills into law when they reach her desk, according to her spokeswoman, Leticia Vasquez.

Public Citizen wants Richards to veto both bills, said Tom Smith, the group's Texas director.

John Hildreth, director of the southwest regional office of Consumers Union, said his group won't ask for a veto because that "would probably only generate another round of legislation with an even worse outcome. I would not be disappointed by a veto ... but I don't expect it."

Consumer groups have criticized the two bills as harmful and costly to Texans. Backers say they would improve the state's business climate, reduce frivolous lawsuits and balance the rights of consumers and companies.

Sen. Carl Parker, a sponsor of the products liability measure, said he probably will ask the Senate to accept the House amendments.

He said he's "not real proud" of the legislation, but added that some bill is sure to pass this session because of public attitudes toward products liability lawsuits. His bill and the one on foreign lawsuits were touted as a compromise between lawyers who represent injured people and business interests.

"It's either pass this, or be run over and completely do away with product lawsuits," said Parker, D-Port Arthur. He charged that consumer groups haven't done enough to educate the public.

"The consumer groups have sat on their hands ... while lawyers have been beaten up on and made the villain in product lawsuits," Parker said.

"They haven't explained why product lawsuits are in the public interest. So now we are faced with a hostile public. ... It's a little late for them to start bellyaching."

Smith, of Public Citizen, said consumer groups "work on a lot of things besides protecting lawyers. There are tens of thousands of lawyers in Texas. There are but a few active members of consumer groups, and we're not able to spread the word as efficiently about the good things that products liability lawsuits do as is the legal community."

Indian trunk program presented to club

Members of Bay View Study Club met recently at the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum to continue the study "Discovery: Art, Artists and Artifacts" with Juanita Koetting, former museum director, presenting the program on the contents of the Indian trunk which is furnished by the museum.

In reflecting on the prospect of the program, the program committee used the following quote: "When asked by an anthropologist what the Indians called America before the white man came, an Indian said simply, 'Ours.'" by Vine Deloria, Jr.

To begin her talk, Koetting gave information on how the Indian trunk program was instigated. It was the presentation of a similar trunk by the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum at Canyon presented to the museum staff through Mrs. Henry Sears and Suzanne Knorpp, a former Hereford resident and an employee of the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum. Through this inspiration, the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum began collecting artifacts and information.

Koetting reported that this program has been given to 1,200 elementary school children including all of the Hereford public schools, St. Anthony's Catholic School, the Nazarene Christian Academy, and schools in Adrian and Dimmitt.

The trunk consists of artifacts of the Comanche Indians who lived in this area in the period of 800-1890. Indians of the Southern Plains lived mainly in parts of New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas numbering 20,000 at one time. When they left the Plains, their numbers had dwindled to less than 2,000 because of smallpox, diphtheria and other unknown illnesses contracted from the white people.

The Comanches lived mainly on Buffalo and in tipis so that they could move easily as they followed the Buffalo herds. They used every part of the Buffalo for food: the liver was eaten raw (a special treat for the children); the extra long hair was used to help extend the braids of the men; hoofs were used to make glue; horns were made into cups and digging tools; the sinew was used in sewing; and the women would tan the hide which was used for clothing and material for the tipis. Each tipi would take five buffalo hides and in the cold winter, they used the furry part for warm robes and long boots sewed with the fur inside.

Koetting explained that north of Adrian, there are pictographs and an area where you can see how the Indians lived.

The Indians gave the white settlers a difficult time. They would steal the white man's women and children.

Koetting also noted that the tipis was much warmer than the nesters' cabins. The Indians could erect a tipi or take it down in 15 minutes.

The Alibates National Park contains an extra hard rock that Indians used as a knife to clean the hides and make arrows. The Comanche women made the clothing by using an awl and did the beautiful bead work with them.

At one time, the state of Texas sent a committee to try to make a reservation for Indians but this project failed.

Koetting showed many of the items from the trunk as she explained the life of the Comanche Indians in this area.

President Ruth McBride opened the business meeting. Secretary Lois Scott read the minutes which were approved and a donation was made to the museum in appreciation for the program.

Margaret Bell, hostess, served refreshments from a table depicting the Victorian setting of the museum. Placed on the table were floral cups, plates and napkins and a dried centerpiece arrangement.

Aging process topic of recent program

The Rev. Lanny Wheeler, chaplain at King's Manor, gave a program titled "Myths Concerning the Aging Process" when members of the Hereford Study Club met Feb. 18 in the home of Virginia Winget.

Rev. Wheeler distributed a question and answer statement sheet to each member. A discussion was held on the 20 topics.

During the business session with President Gladys Setliff presiding, plans were discussed for members to attend a luncheon in April at the E.B. Black House. Also, the president appointed a nomination committee to present a slate of officers for 1993-94. Serving on the committee are Doris Bryant, Gracie Shaw and Mary Stoy. Winget and co-hostess, Carol McGilvary, served refreshments to Barbara Allen, Jean Ballard, Willie Braddy, Bryant, Morgan Cain, Elizabeth Cesar, Hazel Ford, Elizabeth Hellman, Setliff, Shaw, Helen Spinks, Bessie Story, Stoy, Joan Yarbro and Leta Kaul.

Herd rallies to start with win

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Whitefaces started the 1993 baseball season in stirring fashion, scoring two runs in the bottom of the seventh to take a 6-5 victory from Tascosa Tuesday at Whiteface Field.

After an afternoon of hitting liners and hard grounders directly at infielders, the Herd got the winning rally started with a bloop and a bunt. Pinch hitter Stacey Sanders led off the inning with a hit that went barely twenty feet in the air and fell between the pitcher, first baseman and second baseman.

Rene Cano followed with a perfect bunt up the third base line and beat it out for a single. A wild pitch by Jody Hickox, who pitched the complete game for Tascosa, moved both runners up. Jake Head's sacrifice fly scored Sanders, and Cano moved to third on the throw home, enabling him to score easily on Hickox' next wild pitch.

Tascosa hit the ball hard early off Herd starter Sammy Casarez, but instead of going right at fielders, the ball often found the left-center gap. Tascosa hit three triples and three doubles in the game. Shannon Stapp led off the game with a triple and scored on Darrell Barron's single, staking the Rebels to a 1-0 lead.

Back-to-back Tascosa doubles set up Ken McCabe's two-run triple in the third inning, and McCabe came home on Shane Garcia's single for a 4-0 Tascosa lead.

Meanwhile, Hereford batters were making contact but not finding the holes. In the fifth, Hereford lost a chance to score when Chris Brummett's line drive went straight to the Rebel shortstop.

"What you lose on (plays like) that comes around for you--like that little bloop single by Stacey Sanders," Herd coach T.R. Sartor said. "I thought we swung the bat well the whole game for the most part. If we continue to swing like that, the scoring will come on."

The scoring came on in the sixth. Cano led off the inning with a walk, then three of the next four batters hit singles. Cano went to third base on Head's single to right field and scored on Ruben Ramos' sharp bouncer up the middle. Head scored on Jerry Rincon's line drive single, and Sanders (courtesy-running for Ramos, the pitcher) scored when the outfielder's throw to third went wild. Chris Vallejo pinch-ran for Rincon and scored when the Tascosa outfielder miscommunicated on Vince Castillo's two-out pop-up.

Winning play

Hereford's Ruben Ramos jumps out of the way as a wild pitch scoots by Tascosa catcher Ryan Johnson. Rene Cano came home from third to score the winning run on the play. Hereford got two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning and won the season-opener 6-5 Tuesday at Whiteface Field.

Tascosa had scored an insurance run in the top of the sixth, so the Herd's rally cut the Rebel lead to 5-4. In the sixth, Tascosa loaded the bases with one out on an infield hit and two walks by Casarez, then Ramos relieved and gave up only a sacrifice fly to score one run. Cano, at shortstop, went into the hole and threw out a runner at first for the third out.

Hereford's defense late in the game kept the rally in order. Tascosa's Ryan Russell led off the fifth with a triple and tried to score on a shallow fly to right. The throw from right fielder Head beat him by 15 feet.

Tascosa put two men on base with one out in the seventh, but a botched first-and-third double steal attempt resulted in the lead runner being thrown out at third. The trailing runner ended up at second, but later was caught stealing third by catcher Castillo.

Ramos picked up the win, allowing one hit and no runs in 1 2/3 innings. Casarez gave up five runs--all earned--in 5 1/3 innings. He gave up nine hits, but five were for extra bases. He struck out six and walked four.

The win was a good start for the Herd, which has struggled for the past three seasons. Many of the current Whitefaces were on last year's team; some played two years ago.

"It's always important to start good," Sartor said. "They needed to do that just to see that they could. I think it helped a lot."

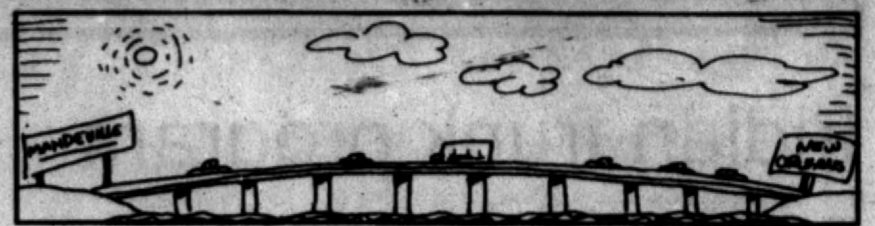

They'll try to keep it rolling Saturday in a doubleheader with Estacado. The first game starts at 1 p.m. at Whiteface Field.

Rangers getting Johnson unlikely

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) - The Texas Rangers are intrigued by Seattle pitcher Randy Johnson, whom the Mariners are trying to trade, but a deal isn't likely, Rangers general manager Tom Grieve says.

"There are very few teams with the exception maybe of Atlanta that wouldn't welcome the opportunity to improve their pitching staff. A pitcher like Randy Johnson certainly could improve most pitching staffs, ours included," Grieve said Tuesday.

Johnson, a lefthander who will earn $2.625 million this season, was 12-14 last season with a 3.77 earned-run average and led the American League in strikeouts, walks and hit batters.

The world's longest bridge, the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway, extends about 20 miles between New Orleans and Mandeville, Louisiana.

Mr. October to have spotlight to himself

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Reggie Jackson won't have to share the spotlight in Cooperstown this summer. He's headed into the Hall of Fame alone.

"He will have his day in the stars, so to speak, to perform on the platform by himself," Hall of Fame president Ed Stack said. "I'm sure he'll enjoy that very much."

Jackson, the only player elected by the Baseball Writers Association of America this year, will be inducted Aug. 1. The Veterans Committee had an opportunity to give him company, but didn't Tuesday.

The panel that considers candidates in two categories - players who have been retired for 23 years or more and executives, managers, umpires and stars of the old Negro Leagues - failed to elect anyone for the second time in five years.

Fifteen members of the 16-man committee were present, meaning 12 votes were needed for election. The group, which also failed to add anyone to the Hall in 1988, has been criticized in recent years because of the difficulty it's had in giving candidates the necessary 75 percent support.

A year ago, the committee elected pitcher Hal Newhouse and American League umpire Bill McGowan on the first ballot.

"There were a total of four ballots inside that room," Stack said, adding that two votes were taken in each category.

"A couple of individuals got 11 votes and came close. I can't tell you who they are. The rest of the votes were scattered with guys receiving six, seven or eight."

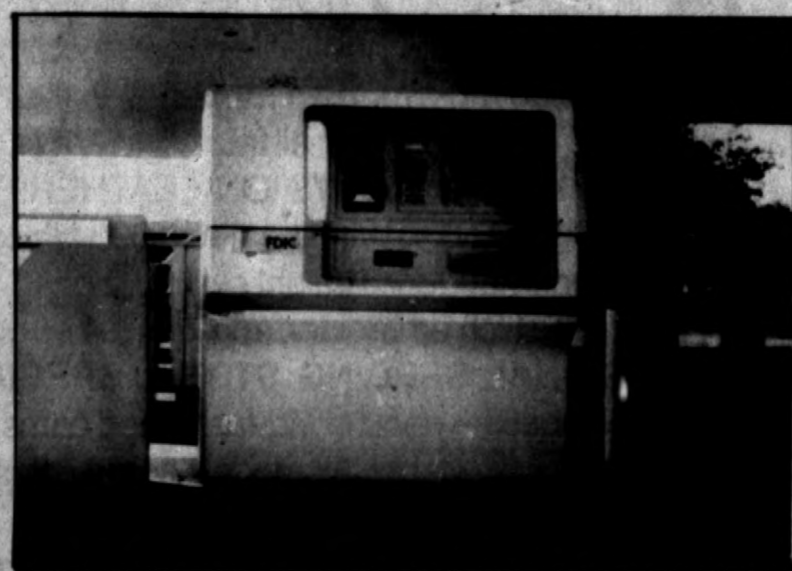

Stack said the most-discussed players were Nellie Fox, Joe Gordon, Gil Hodges, Carl Mays, Phil Rizzuto, Cecil Travis and Vic Willis. In the other category, umpire Nestor Chylak, Negro League star Leon Day, manager Leo Durocher and William Holbert, founder of the National League, received strong support.

The only member of the committee who did not attend was Roy Campanella. The rest of the panel includes Hall of Famers Stan Musial, Ted Williams and Monte Irvin.

Stack acknowledged that the perception the Veterans Committee may not be functioning well is a concern. While changes could be coming, he wouldn't speculate on what they might be.

"We had a discussion about that following the vote, and we're going to be looking at the election process during the course of this coming year," he said, adding any changes would have to be approved by the Hall of Fame Board.

Suns end Spurs' 15-game victory streak

By The Associated Press

Although the NBA All-Star break is over, the stars continue to shine. Charles Barkley and David Robinson had a showdown in San Antonio, where the Suns ended the Spurs' 15-game home winning streak with a 105-103 victory Tuesday night.

Barkley had 29 points and 12 rebounds for the Suns, while Robinson got 35 points and 11 boards for the Spurs.

Mark Price duplicated his All-Star game performance by sinking six 3-pointers in Cleveland's 102-100 win over visiting Miami. Price scored 29 points, including 6 of 9 from long range.

"I'm probably shooting them better than I ever have. I don't know how long it's going to last," Price said.

In Chicago, Michael Jordan sprained his ankle in the fourth quarter but still scored eight of the Bulls' last 15 points in a 99-95 win over Milwaukee.

Jordan, who finished with 34 points, hurt his right ankle when he landed on Anthony Avent's foot. After getting treatment for more than 30 minutes following the game, Jordan left Chicago Stadium on crutches and did not speak with reporters. He was scheduled to get X-rays as a precautionary measure, but was listed as probable for Thursday's game at Orlando.

"Tonight's loss can be described in only one way - Michael Jordan," said Milwaukee's Fred Brickowski.

Utah teammates Karl Malone and John Stockton, who were co-MVPs of the All-Star game in Salt Lake City, had an off night in a 105-78 loss to visiting Houston.

Malone was held to 18 points, 10 below his average. Stockton got only six points - on 3-of-12 shooting - and seven assists.

Hornets 104, Nets 95

At Charlotte, Larry Johnson had 17 points and 14 rebounds, and Charlotte held New Jersey to 38 percent shooting. The Nets committed 22 turnovers and their starting backcourt of Drazen Petrovic and Kenny Anderson was a combined 8 of 27 from the field. Rookie Alonzo Mourning had 12 points and 15 rebounds for the Hornets.

Knicks 95, Timberwolves 91

At New York, Patrick Ewing scored 23 points and the Knicks survived the ejection of John Starks and Minnesota's 20-6 stretch run. The Knicks led 59-44 with 7:11 left in the third quarter before Ewing was called for two fouls in barely a minute, sending him to the bench with four. Just 34 seconds later, Starks got in a shoving match with Lance Blanks and both were ejected. The Wolves played without rookie star Christian Laettner, serving a one-game suspension for missing practice.

Hawks 109, Bullets 94

At Atlanta, Dominique Wilkins scored 26 of his 31 points in the first half and Mookie Blaylock led a third-quarter surge by the Hawks. Blaylock, who finished with 15 points, scored a basket and a 3-pointer and Stacey Augmon added two baskets as the Hawks increased their 62-58 halftime lead to 73-61 in the third quarter. Augmon scored 22 points for Atlanta.

Pacers 113, Celtics 86

At Indianapolis, Detlef Schrempf scored half of his 24 points on perfect free-throw shooting.

Reggie Miller had 19 points and Rik Smits 18 for the Pacers, while Pooh Richardson handed out a season-high 14 assists. Sherman Douglas led Boston with 18 points.

Magic 125, Blazers 107

At Orlando, Shaquille O'Neal scored 28 points and Orlando used a 46-point third quarter to beat Portland. Scott Skiles scored 17 of his 23 points in the third period for the Magic.

SuperSonics 103, Nuggets 99

At Denver, Ricky Pierce scored 26 points, including the game-clinching basket. Nate McMillan, who scored 16 points off the bench, made a layup with 1:30 left to give Seattle a 101-97 lead.

Pistons 101, 76ers 89

At Auburn Hills, Mark Aguirre

scored 24 points and Dennis Rodman had 25 rebounds in what may have been his last game for Detroit. According to a published report, the Pistons are going to trade Rodman to the Los Angeles Clippers for guard Gary Grant and forward Loy Vaught plus a first-round draft pick.

Clippers 123, Kings 116

At Los Angeles, Stanley Roberts had 18 points, a career-high 16 rebounds and six of the Clippers' team-record 17 blocks. Ron Harper scored 12 of his 25 points in the final 5 1/2 minutes to help the Clippers blunt a Sacramento rally.

Buckeyes upend Hoosiers in OT

By The Associated Press

Not even a great play by Bob Knight could save No. 1 Indiana this time.

The Hoosiers' hopes of a perfect season in the Big Ten ended Tuesday night with an 81-77 loss in overtime at Ohio State.

Indiana (24-3, 13-1) had won 13 in a row, including an escape in double overtime earlier this month at Penn State. The Hoosiers were the last team to go undefeated in the Big Ten, doing it in consecutive seasons in 1975 and 1976.

Knight almost saved the Hoosiers after Jamie Skelton's 3-point shot with three seconds left in regulation put Ohio State (13-10, 6-8) ahead 71-70.

With two seconds remaining, Knight set up an inbounds play designed to draw a foul. The coach's plan worked when, on a length-of-the-court pass, Ohio State's Derek Anderson ran over a pick set by Chris Reynolds.

Reynolds made his first free throw but missed the second one, sending the game into overtime.

"Bobby Knight - look what he did," Skelton said. "He set up a great play and got them to the free-throw line."

Skelton, who finished with 22 points, hit another 3-pointer, this time with 40 seconds left in the extra session, to break a 77-77 tie. After Indiana's Brian Evans missed a 3-point try, former Hoosier player Lawrence Funderburke added a foul shot.

Ohio State, which trailed by 13 points early in the second half, won for the third straight time against a No. 1 team. The Buckeyes beat Iowa in 1987 and Indiana in 1983 in their last two meetings with top-ranked clubs.

"It's been a tough year for the players," Ohio State coach Randy Ayers said. "They've been through a lot of adversity. This one was for them. They deserved to have a good win over a quality team."

Greg Graham had 21 points for Indiana and Calbert Cheaney had 12. The Hoosiers played their second game without starting forward Alan Henderson, who is out indefinitely with an injured right knee.

Funderburke and Greg Simpson each had 12 points for Ohio State. "We made enough plays to win," Knight said. "We made a lot of great plays, but we made some bad plays, too. ... The team that makes the plays deserves to win, and I think that's what happened tonight."

No. 3 North Carolina 85, Notre Dame 56
Eric Montross scored 19 points and North Carolina won easily at home for its sixth straight victory. The Tar Heels (23-3) avenged a loss to the Irish last year at Madison Square Garden.

Notre Dame (9-15) has lost 10 of its last 12 and is 0-7 against ranked teams. Monty Williams scored 20 points for the Irish.

The Tar Heels led 23-10 midway through the first half. They outscored

Notre Dame 30-6 to start the second half in taking a 70-33 lead.

No. 14 Seton Hall 85, Miami 73
Conference scoring leader Terry Dehere had 21 points and helped Seton Hall stay on top of the Big East. The Pirates (21-6, 11-4) are one game ahead of St. John's.

Dehere scored 13 points in the first half as Seton Hall took a 39-27 lead. He later made two consecutive 3-pointers, giving the Pirates a 51-34 lead.

Constantin Popa had 17 points and a career-high 18 rebounds for Miami (9-14, 6-10), which is 0-4 against Seton Hall since joining the Big East last season.

Georgia Tech 73, No. 22 Virginia 61
Travis Best scored 26 points and Georgia Tech beat Virginia for the eighth straight time.

Malcolm Mackey added 15 points for the host Yellow Jackets (15-8 overall, 7-6 Atlantic Coast Conference). Cory Alexander had 15 points for the Cavaliers (16-7, 8-6).

Baylor's Lewis dunked too hard

WACO, Texas (AP) -- Baylor's Anthony Lewis was too animated in his wide-open slam dunk of a shot that appeared to give the Bears a four-point lead over Houston with under two minutes to play in their Southwest Conference basketball game.

On television replays, it appeared that Lewis slammed the ball so hard in the Tuesday night game that the rim snapped back while the ball was still in the net. The ball shot back out of the basket.

Longhorns' Tyler to return for Tech

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The struggling Texas Longhorns expect to have starting point guard B.J. Tyler back in the lineup Thursday night for the first time since Dec. 30.

Team doctors have cleared Tyler, a junior, to return after he missed 14 games while recovering from surgery on his right foot. A pin was inserted to secure a broken bone.

"We're excited to have him back," said Texas coach Tom Penders, whose team was picked to win the Southwest Conference title but has a 9-13 overall record, 3-6 in conference play.

"I know there will be an adjustment period for him, but I think just having him on the floor will take pressure off of (Terrence) Rencher, (Mike) Richardson and (Tony) Watson."

Texas was 5-3 with losses to North Carolina, Utah and Oklahoma when Tyler went down. He had been averaging 16.9 points, 3.4 rebounds and 6.8 assists per game. The Longhorns were 4-10 in his absence.

The Longhorns likely must win the postseason SWC tournament to keep alive their four-year streak of being invited to the NCAA tournament.

After conferring, the referees waved off the basket - saying the ball bounced out after hitting Lewis in the head before clearing the cylinder - and awarded the Cougars the basketball with 1:44 to play.

Houston outscored Baylor from there, 7-4, to beat the Bears, 76-75. With the victory, the Cougars improve to 17-6 overall, 7-4 in conference play. The Bears drop to 14-9, 6-6.

Charles Outlaw led Houston with 18.

The controversial play was set up when the Bears' Willie Sublett blocked a Jessie Drain layup attempt, got the rebound and threw an outlet pass to a wide-open Lewis.

Lewis said his basket should have counted. "I knew I put the ball through the rim. I think everybody in the stands saw the ball go through the rim," Lewis said. "It went all the way through the net before it hit me on the head."

Houston Coach Pat Foster said he didn't see the play. He said he was pleased, however, that his team found a way to win after an emotional victory over 22nd-ranked Louisville in Houston Sunday.

"We prepared for that game (Louisville) for two weeks, even though we had other opponents during that time. It was impossible for us to get to the emotional level of that game," Foster said. "We played hard but we weren't sharp because our edge was off."

"I feel good because we'd get down five and we'd keep making the play, making the play and getting back into it," Foster said.

Baylor also was coming off a big game -- an 88-73 loss to Texas in Waco Saturday -- and Bears coach Darrel Johnson said he was glad to see the team snap back.

"I'm disappointed, but I'm more disappointed with our players. They played their hearts out and deserved a better ending to this game."

"That was a big play, no question," Johnson said of the missed slam dunk. "But when you lose a game by one point, there's 100 things you can point back to."

With only 5 seconds remaining, Sublett hit a 3-point shot to bring the Bears within one. Anthony Goldwire then picked off an errant Bear pass with less than three seconds left to ice the victory.

Trade rumors illustrate Mavs' desperation

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Mavericks have lived up to expectations this year. That's not good news for a team picked to challenge the 10-year-old league record for futility.

The Mavericks are on track to tie or break the 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers' record for the NBA's worst record, 9-73. Entering tonight's game against Denver, they are 4-45.

There also are off-court worries for Dallas, mainly the team's inability to sign top draft pick Jim Jackson. He has said he'll never play for the team and that he won't agree to any trade made after Thursday, the in-season deadline.

If the Mavericks don't deal him and can't sign him, he's likely to re-enter the draft next year and the team will have nothing to show for having had the fourth-overall selection in last year's draft.

If they do trade him, they probably won't get a player or players equal to expectations for the high-scoring playmaker from Ohio State.

Another problem facing the team is the status of guard Derek Harper, whom they expected to teach Jackson the ropes in the NBA before himself being swapped for young players or draft picks. But Harper has been injured twice this year and has been surrounded by inadequate teammates.

So as the trade deadline approaches, the rumor mill is heating up. One of the most popular reports has the Mavericks sending Jackson's rights to the Los Angeles Lakers for underachieving reserve center Vlade Divac.

"We're trying to talk the Mavericks into taking Divac," one Lakers official told The Dallas Morning News.

Divac, who has been booed by his own fans at the Forum, is expendable now that the Lakers have acquired Seattle center Benoit Benjamin and the rights to rookie guard Doug Christie. The SuperSonics got forward Sam Perkins, a former Maverick, in the swap.

The Divac deal is just one of many being discussed in NBA board rooms from coast to coast.

Another involves a report that the Detroit Pistons will trade Dennis Rodman to the Los Angeles Clippers for Gary Grant, Loy Vaught and a first-round draft pick.

Until the 8 p.m. Thursday deadline, the Mavericks figure to maintain their lead in the rumor-mill category.

"I don't comment on trades," Mavericks vice president Rick Sund said. "There's going to be a lot of rumors in the next few days about Dallas, especially with the Jim Jackson situation."

The Mavericks are in no hurry to assume Divac's $3.6 million salary, which increases to $4 million next season. Dallas might need that money to sign next year's No. 1 pick.

Another stumbling block might be Jackson's reluctance to play for $942,000 - Divac's base year compensation. The Lakers are over the cap and his salary from last year is what counts as a slot.

Initially, Dallas offered Jackson a five-year, $13.75 million deal. Jackson's agent promptly submitted a counterproposal of six years at $22.8 million. That request was later lowered to $21 million.

The two sides have maintained such vastly different projections of the market that they found it difficult to negotiate.

Divac, 25, could immediately start for the Mavericks and the club would come out of the Jackson stalemate with something.

Some of the scenarios that have been rumored include:

-Sending Jackson's rights to Orlando for forward Dennis Scott and a No. 1 pick. The Magic recently offered that package, but the Mavericks want guard Nick Anderson.

-Acquiring Charlotte shooting guard Kendall Gill for either Harper or Jackson. The Hornets have expressed an interest in either guard, but the Mavericks are reluctant to trade for a player who can become an unrestricted free agent after next season.

-Getting Sacramento swingman Walt Williams and forward Anthony Bonner for Jackson's rights. This deal was a hot topic in December until Williams scored 40 points in a game.

-Shipping Jackson's rights to Minnesota for center Luc Longley, or center Felton Spencer, and Minnesota's lottery pick this June.

-Moving Jackson's rights to Phoenix for reserves Negele Knight, Cedric Ceballos and Jerrod Mustaf.

Baylor to hire ex-Hog coach

WACO, Texas (AP) - Fired Arkansas head coach Jack Crowe is expected to become Baylor's offensive coordinator, according to a published report.

The Waco Tribune-Herald reported in Wednesday's edition that Crowe will fill the final spot on Chuck Reedy's nine-man coaching staff that includes three holdovers from Grant Teaff's staff.

Teaff is now athletic director at Baylor.

Crowe, 44, was dismissed in September after the Razorbacks opened their season with a 10-3 loss to The Citadel, an NCAA Division I-AA team.

He spent three years as an assistant coach with Reedy under Danny Ford at Clemson before joining Arkansas' staff. Crowe was named the Razorbacks' head coach in January 1990 when Ken Hatfield replaced Ford at Clemson.

Crowe was one-game deep into a five-year, $83,000-a-year contract, a pact he is still trying to settle with the Razorback Foundation.

He had a record of 9-15 with Arkansas and is 14-30 as a head coach, including a two-year stint at Livingston (Ala.) University.

Most of Crowe's success has come as offensive coordinator, a position he has held for eight years at four different schools - North Alabama (1979-80), Wyoming (1981), Auburn (1982-85) and Arkansas (1989).

Howe hopes for late-season help

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) - Houston Astros manager Art Howe said Tuesday that he will be concentrating on more than just his key players when the team convenes for its first full squad workout.

Howe said he will continue to search for pitchers capable of providing help later in the season during Wednesday's drill. "We're going to need somebody for our triple-A club," Howe said after Tuesday's workout.

Howe cited last year's national league division winners as examples. Atlanta received a combined 10-0 record from Pete Smith and David Nied, and Pittsburgh benefited from Tim Wakefield's 8-1 performance. "That's what you need - contributions from somebody you're not looking for," Howe said.

The busiest of the 54 Astros who will be working out Wednesday could be shortstop Andujar Cedeño, who is likely to receive plenty of extra fielding practice.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I recently read the letter from a New York reader who thanked you for emphasizing the importance of the PSA blood test for early detection of prostate cancer. I, too, was motivated by a column of years, and a lot has happened since.

Three years ago, my first three PSA tests, spaced six months apart, registered higher than normal. At the same time, follow-up sonograms and biopsies were negative. After the fourth PSA test, prostate cancer was diagnosed from the follow-up biopsy. When the organs were checked for any spreading, a cantaloupe-sized lymphoma was found. During exploratory surgery at the Mayo Clinic, another growth was discovered. After a year of chemotherapy and medication, the prostate cancer is localized for now.

I have experienced firsthand the lifesaving potential of the PSA test, and one purpose of this letter is to thank you for the tip. The other reason I'm writing is to express my concern and bewilderment at the indifference of others.

Of the hundred or so people I've urged to get tested, the majority had never heard of the PSA test and showed little interest. I'm also amazed that this test is not routinely given to all males who take annual physicals.

And now a word to the wives: If you want your man around for the golden years, make sure he takes the PSA test. I am a 74-year-old who plans to live a lot longer because of it.--Red in Beloit, Kan.

DEAR KAN: Your letter will save some lives. The only thing you might have added is how simple the PSA test is. It requires just a few minutes with a doctor or technician who takes a blood sample. Men over 60 should have this done twice a year.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago, I met what I thought was the best man in the world. We dated for a year and then decided to live together.

We agreed that I would pay that rent and buy groceries, and "Barry" would pay all utilities and car expenses. His take-home pay is much more than mine, so he usually pays for our evenings out.

Barry has a brother who lives in Las Vegas, and he visits this brother every year. Since we've been together, I've gone with Barry to visit his brother twice, and he has always paid my way.

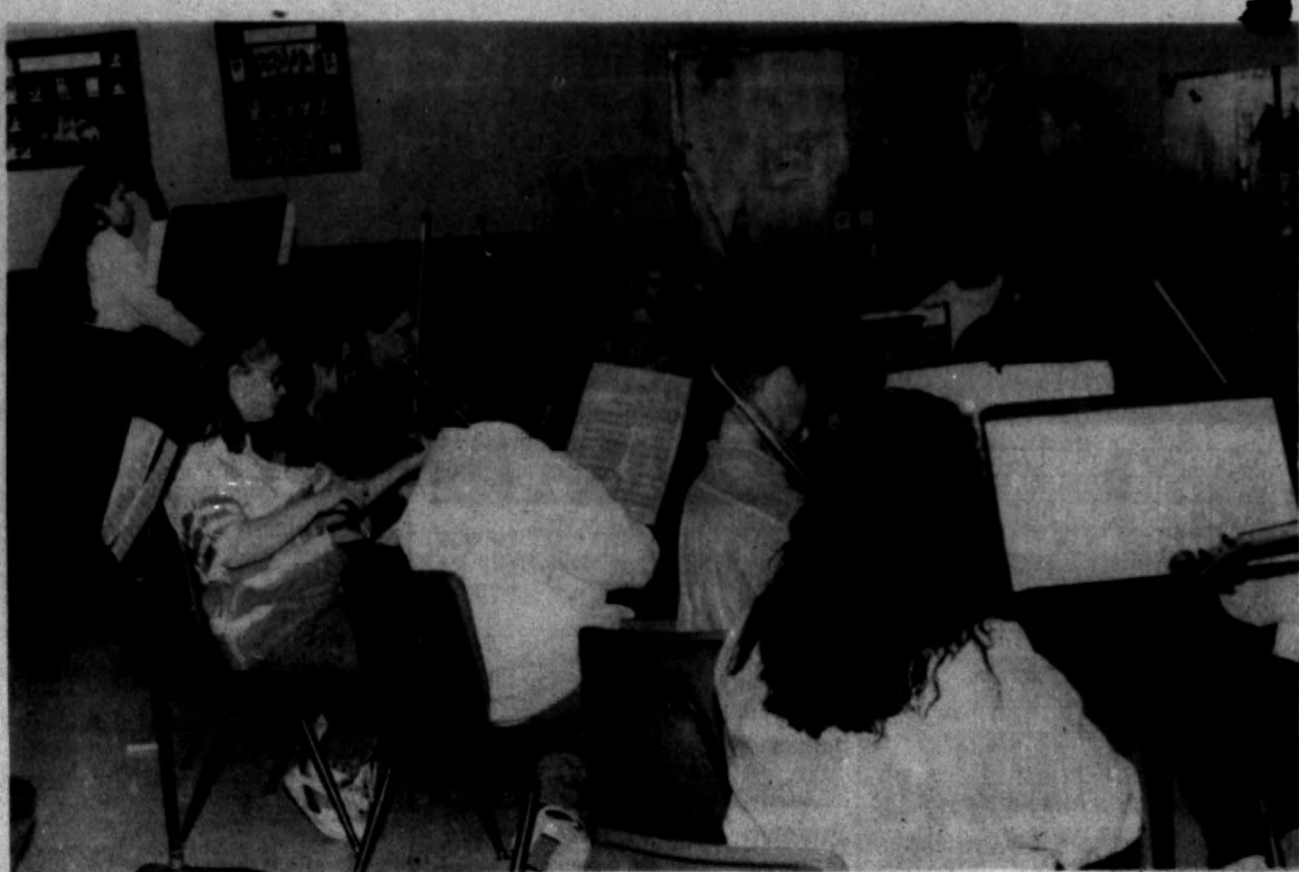

Here's the problem, Ann. Barry told me last week that he is going to visit his brother alone, because he can't afford to buy my ticket. I said fine. Today I learned he had invited friends to go along and had bought their tickets.

I'm so hurt I don't know what to do. When I confronted him, he said, "If you don't like it, you can move." Ann, I don't have enough money to spend a night in a hotel, much less move. Please give me some advice.--Bummed Out in Indiana

DEAR BUMMED: You say you pay the rent and buy the groceries and all Barry pays is the utility bills. Sounds as if you could make it alone if you wanted to.

Your real problem is not financial, it's that Barry lied to you. Is this a one-time thing or a pattern? You two need to talk about trust. If Barry is not willing to play it straight, you're better off without him.

Preparing for concert

Members of the Hereford High School orchestra, directed by Ray Jenkins, right, practice Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Messiah" in preparation for a concert on Thursday. The concert will be held at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium and will feature the high school and junior high school orchestras performing together, as well as a selection of numbers by the high school orchestra. It is open to the public at no cost.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am nearsighted and want to know what causes it and if there is a way of reversing the process. My uncle said that if you watch television and you're too close to it, you will get nearsighted because of the radiation emitted by the cathode tube. My mother says that if you read while you are lying down or inside a moving car or read a book too close to your face, that will cause it. Is it true that looking at a television screen or a computer monitor for prolonged times will gradually cause you to be nearsighted or have some other eye defect?

DEAR READER: No to all of the above. In the first place, TV screens do not emit electromagnetic radiation. For years, the sets have been perfected to prevent any risk of radiation damage. No, sitting too close to the TV will not cause you to be nearsighted. Rather, some people sit close because they are already nearsighted. The same applies to reading. Some hold books close to their faces because they are nearsighted.

Being nearsighted or farsighted is related to the anatomical length of the eye chamber behind the lens. You are born with that characteristic. The lens focuses images on the retina at the back of the eye. If the eye chamber is short, the image is focused at a point behind the retina and a person has trouble seeing things that are too close. But things in the distance are more perfectly focused and can be seen easily.

Nearsighted people have an eye chamber that is too long and the images are focused in front of the retina. You can accommodate for this by holding an object close to your eyes. The lens can be adjusted to improve focusing, but that has its limitations. As people get older and the lens is less pliable, it can't change its shape and tends to become farsighted.

You will better understand this and other aspects of vision and testing after reading Special Issue 36-10, About Your Vision, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/36-10, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

Eyeglasses are the answer to most such refraction problems. Surgery is also done on the cornea, which changes the focusing of rays that pass through the cornea to the lens. It may take years to learn what happens in those cases as people get older.

DEAR DR. LAMB: In 1984, I slept under an air conditioner vent for several evenings and woke up one morning with Bell's palsy. I still have only 60 percent use of the right side of my face. I was 23 when this happened. I had physical therapy and used a battery-operated shocker for awhile until I got some use of my facial muscles back. Can anything be done for it now? Will I ever be able to pucker or whistle? Will my face always droop because of muscle paralysis?

DEAR READER: It is caused by damage to the facial nerve, causing facial paralysis on one side. That causes the asymmetry you describe. The cause is not definitely known, although a virus infection has been suspected in some cases. Most cases do recover within a few days, and 80 to 85 percent recover completely or well enough to not be noticeable. But there are some with permanent nerve damage.

It is too late now for you to expect any improvement from nerve regeneration. But if you have a significant problem, you could see a neurosurgeon. In some cases, another nerve can be connected to the muscles (hypoglossal-facial nerve anastomosis) to restore the tone of the involved muscles.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Three years ago when I was 59 my doctor told me I had a slightly enlarged prostate. I had frequent urination during the day and late at night. We were driving to visit our children and grandchildren, and on the trip I had a frequent urge to urinate, but each time I went to the restroom I couldn't. When we got to my daughter's home, I was in such pain I went to the emergency room. I was fitted with a catheter, but after 24 hours the catheter stopped working. I was admitted to the hospital and operated on.

The surgery went well, and the urologist said my prostate was huge. I had asked him if this would affect my sex life and he said no. I have not had any problem getting an erection but only rarely can I expel semen, which leaves me with a feeling of being incomplete and puts a strain on my wife, because I must keep trying. Is my problem from the operation?

DEAR READER: Probably. That does not mean the surgeon did something wrong. It is the nature of the operation. When you asked him if it would affect your sex life, he meant you would still be able to have an erection and engage in intercourse, which is usually the case. But you are most likely describing retrograde ejaculation. You are still able to have an orgasm, but the fluid is ejaculated into your bladder rather than the normal forward ejaculation. This occurs in most men who have a prostate operation.

You should still have an orgasm, only the feeling of forward ejaculation is missing. Most men are not bothered with this change, and when you feel the normal sensation of an orgasm there is little point in continuing to try to achieve a forward ejaculation.

Normally, a valve mechanism at the outlet of the bladder closes during orgasm which prevents retrograde ejaculation. During surgery to remove prostate obstruction, it is not possible to save the valve or at least to avoid damaging it. When it no longer closes, retrograde ejaculation occurs.

When the British threatened Philadelphia during the Revolutionary War, the Liberty Bell was hidden in the Zion Reformed Church of Allentown, Pa.
