Church of Christ Revival Begins June 1

Brother G. A. Dunn of Dallas, and J. W. Dennis of Floydada to Conduct Ten Day Revival

Brother G. A. Dunn of Dallas, well known evangelist, will begin a ten days revival meeting in Big Spring on Friday night, June 1st, at the Church of Christ tabernacle on West Fourth St. J. W. Dennis of Floydada, evangelist singer, will be in charge of the song services during the revival.

Big Spring rejoices at the return of Brother Dunn, who has conducted revival meetings in our city in former years, and the inspiration and encouragement brought to Big Spring and community by Brother Dunn has a lasting influence.

Brother Dunn is an able preacher bringing the Gospel message to his listeners in plain truth and his delivery is most impressive. Many of the Big Spring people will remember the revival meeting conducted last summer by Brother Dunn in Big Spring and the church people are planning a still more successful revival this year.

Brother Dennis is a splendid song leader, possessing an unusually fine voice. The local choir under his leadership, will render exceptionally fine music throughout the revival and this will be one of the big features of the meeting.

These two men come prepared to do what the Lord has commanded, and all they ask is the cooperation of the church members and friends. The Church of Christ extends a cordial invitation to the entire community to come and hear the Gospel preached in the real way.

Come where every message of the Bible is given to all. You are sure to be benefited, after hearing one of these soul stirring sermons. Remember the meeting starts June 1st. Be there and don't miss a single service.

Postmaster is Named For Big Spring

He Was Nominated For This Place May 22nd, By President Calvin Coolidge

On Tuesday May 22, President Calvin Coolidge nominated Emil E. Fahrenkamp to be postmaster of Big Spring.

Mr. Fahrenkamp has been performing the duties of acting postmaster since January, following the death of former postmaster J. W. Ward.

Mr. Fahrenkamp is one of our popular and successful young businessmen and his appointment to this important post meets with the approval of the entire citizenship.

He is qualified in every way to capably fulfill the duties of this office and a big improvement in the service since he has been in charge has been noted. He is working under a serious handicap due to the cramped quarters in which the business of this growing office must be carried on.

The new postmaster is going to do his best to give the patrons the very best service possible under the circumstances and asks the cooperation of the patrons. He is going to secure adequate quarters for the local postoffice, since first class service cannot be given until a larger building is secured to serve as a postoffice.

If you have any complaints as to the postal service Postmaster Fahrenkamp will be glad for you to report same so he can have any irregularities promptly eliminated.

Ringer Cleared Of Murder

B. C. Ringer was acquitted by the jury in district court at San Angelo Tuesday night. Ringer was charged with the murder of Manuel Vasquez on April 14, 1926.

Ringer was indicted by a Howard county grand jury several months after the offense is alleged to have been committed and the case was brought to Tom Green County on a change of venue. At the first trial here last November a hung jury resulted.

Clyde E. Thomas of Big Spring and Guy R. Mobley of San Angelo were attorneys for the defendant.

Santa Fe Ry. Is Eyeing Oil Field

It is Believed That Santa Fe Railway Contemplates Extending Line From Sterling City to Oil Field

If the Texas and Pacific Railway and the Santa Fe system are not lined up to fight for the oil field business of Howard and Glasscock counties in the very near future we are going to miss our guess.

It is rumored that the investigators for the Santa Fe Railway have been looking over oil development to the southeast of Big Spring. Santa Fe officials are not going to be satisfied to permit the Sterling City spur to remain a small money maker with a wonderful oil field within 20 to 30 miles.

We can't believe the Texas and Pacific will remain inactive while the Santa Fe is pulling off this scoop, because the T. & P. officials know the value of oil development to their line.

One or two refinery men we understand, are postponing the establishment of plants pending this railroad situation. If a railway is to tap the field, the refinery or refineries will be located right in the oil field; but if the railroad building is to be postponed, the refineries will be located near Big Spring.

Big Spring would certainly like to see a railway line from Lamesa to Sterling City and if no big system cares to build such a line it would prove a good thing for local citizens to sponsor the proposition.

There is not a doubt but that some $2,000,000 could be secured for such a line.

We haven't built a railroad for a good many years. Here's a chance for us to tackle one that will be a winner.

ROBERTS OIL FIELD EXTENSION SECURED AT 2,952 FEET

The Merrick and Bristow Well in For An Estimated Production Of 4,600 Barrels

Located Fifteen Miles Southeast of Big Spring, East of Mag. No. 1 Roberts, Discovery Well

An extension of a half mile east was made Sunday in the deep lime field of the Roberts area of south Howard County when the Merrick & Bristow test No. 2 Roberts, drilled into production at a depth of 2,952 feet with good production. The well is fifteen miles southeast of Big Spring and a half mile and on location east of the Magnolia's No. 1 Roberts, the discovery well of this area. The location is in the southwest corner of section 187, block 29, W. & N.W. survey The sand was topped and by afternoon the pay horizon had been penetrated twenty-two feet with the well still drilling. According to Dr. J. E. Bristow, drilling will continue until the hole has reached 3,000 feet.

A production test has not been made, but when the pay was hit the hole-filled with oil and flowed at ten minute intervals. At 1,900 feet a producing horizon was passed through what would have made better than 100-barrel well. The test was made with cable tools. This is the eighth production from this deep pay and is important in that it is the first extension east.

World Well to Spud
The World Oil Company will spud in their test well on the L. S. McDowell ranch before May 31st. The rig is up and material on the ground for this test which is to be known as the World Oil Company's Wildcat No. 8.

This test will be 1-3/4 mile north-west of the Marivether Oil Company's test on the McDowell ranch which is now drilling near the 2500 foot depth.

New Oil Well to Drill
A new derrick has been erected in the south part of Section 14, blk. 2, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. 13 miles north of here in the Spade pasture to the west of the Spade Company. This location is about 1.2 miles east of the old Lohanthe postoffice.

John Hoffer of the oil and gas division of the Railroad Commission of Texas reported recently that this well was scheduled to be spudded in about June 1st.—Sterling City News Record.

California Enters
E. L. Doherty Jr. of California has entered West Texas with the making of location in Borden County for No. 1 Koonsman in section 2, block 2, Texts and New Orleans Railway Company survey. 150 feet from the north and west lines Doherty visited West Texas last summer and acquired scattered acreage most of it through Kemper Kimberlin of San Angelo.

Test on Section 8
The McGinley Corporation is making preparations to locate the test well on section 8, block 32, tp. 2 South.

It is planned to send the drill on down to the 3,000 foot depth in search of the big lime pay.

Oil News of Reeves
The Grisham-Hunter well, Alex. Slevens No. 1 in Reeves county, is reported to have a total depth of 3,985 feet in Borden County. They look for the black lime soon, and the Delaware sand. They believe they will get a show of oil, as all of the other wells in this territory, and fall back on the inevitable question of whether they get production or not.

The Lepp No. 1 of the Lockhart & Co. in Loving County in the field is reported to be still fishing at 2,200 feet for lost tools.

The Lepp No. 2 is now running pipe to the grey lime at a total depth of 3,980 feet, and look for the black lime and sand around 4,200 feet. This well just completed fishing out some lost tools, and getting over a run of tough breaks. They expect to complete the well in the next few weeks and get a producer.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Rev. P. B. Fitzwater, D. D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago (© 1921 Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for May 27

THE WICKED HUSBANDMEN

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:1-12; 1:1-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Jehovah knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the wicked shall perish.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Some Wicked People Punished.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Wicked Husbandmen.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Playing Fair With God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Misuse of National Privileges.

I. Demanding the Fruit of His Vineyard (Mark 12:1-12).

1. The man (v. 1).

The certain man who planted the vineyard is God himself.

2. The vineyard (v. 1).

This means Israel (See Isa. 5:1-7, Jer. 2:2, Ez. 34:5-8).

The Lord went to particular pains to make this nation separate. He bestowed peculiar favors upon it.

3. The husbandmen (v. 3).

These were the rulers and teachers of Israel, every member of the Sanhedrin. They were the spiritual guides of the people.

4. Servants sent for the fruit of the vineyard (v. 2-5).

These were the various prophets whom God sent to the nation. The maltreatment and rejection of the prophets are fully set forth in the Scriptures. They were beaten and killed.

5. The well-beloved son sent (v. 6-9).

The son here is the Lord Jesus Christ, God's only and beloved Son. He came into their midst. They knew Him to be the Son, but they would not receive His message, nor bow to His authority, so they cast Him out of the vineyard and slew Him.

6. Their punishment (v. 9-12).

Jesus now asked them for their own verdict upon such villainous ingratitude. He took the place of a judge and pronounced judgment upon them on the basis of their own verdict. They not only rejected the kingdom, but the Son who was King; therefore the kingdom was taken from them and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.

7. The Son of Man Coming in Glory (13:1-37).

This is part of the well-known Olivet discourse. It gives a prophetic view of the course of time from its utterance just before the crucifixion to the second advent of Christ. Two great facts are before us in this prophetic utterance, the destruction of Jerusalem and the second coming of Christ. The one was near, having taken place within forty years of the crucifixion of Christ; the other is still future. The order of events as outlined are:

1. Moral condition of the world during Christ's absence (vv. 1-13).

This pictures the present age and the result of preaching the gospel. In this age many shall come saying, "I am Christ, and shall deceive many." There shall be wars and rumors of wars. Nation shall be pitted against nation and kingdoms against kingdoms, with earthquakes in divers places, accompanied with famine and pestilence. The witnesses of Christ shall be persecuted and arraigned before rulers and kings. Brother shall betray brother to death and the father the son. Children will rise up against their parents and cause them to be put to death. The preachers of the gospel shall be hated for Christ's sake.

2. The days of the tribulation (vv. 14-28).

In this time the Antichrist will appear according to the prophecy of Daniel. No severe will be the persecution that except the Lord shorten the days no flesh could be saved, but for the elect's sake the days shall be shortened.

3. The great advent (vv. 24-31).

This shall be preceded by great physical disturbances in the world. The moon shall be darkened, the stars of heaven shall fall. "Then shall they see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with great power and glory and He will gather His elect from the uttermost parts of the earth and heaven."

4. Instructions in view of the coming of the Lord (vv. 32-34).

The day and the hour of His coming are unknown to man. In view of this uncertainty we should watch and pray, for Christ is "as a man taking a far journey who left his house and gave authority to his servants and to every man his work and commanded the porter to watch."

III. Warnings.

Running through the thirteenth chapter is the exhortation to take heed. In teaching the lesson it would be well to gather them up in their order.

1. Take heed against deceivers (v. 5).

2. Take heed to yourselves (v. 9).

3. Take heed against the time of the Lord's coming (v. 33).

The one command to all is "watch."

In the first place Judge Woodward gave some reasons why Big Spring should have one of the biggest and best delegations at Fort Worth. He said that at this time there was not a city in Texas which needed worthwhile publicity more than does Big Spring. He pointed out that every good city in West Texas was going to be well represented at Fort Worth while the backward and nonprogressive cities will not be represented. He said there is not a better method of creating good will for our town and letting the world know it is going to fight to win a place in the sun. He said it was indeed gratifying to note the enthusiasm that is being manifested in the trip—all agreed that this is one time Big Spring is not going at the proposition half-hearted.

He said if the citizenship would accord the cooperation this movement deserved the Big Spring delegation will be one of the outstanding delegations at the convention.

He urged that the folks talk the Fort Worth trip early and late so that we can have 500 Big Spring folks in the parade on the streets of Fort Worth. He said we should have from 150 to 200 automobiles in the caravan, and we can if the citizenship wakes up.

Judge Woodward announced that headquarters of Big Spring would be at Weber Bros. building, the most central place in Fort Worth and the choice place for headquarters for such an occasion.

Judge Garland Woodward Outlines Plan for Motor Caravan and Asks Whole Hearted Cooperation

NASH AMBASSADOR

NASH AMBASSADOR for five... $1925 f.o.b. factory

Convincing thousands that LUXURY is not necessarily High Priced

Because the Nash Ambassador is produced in the great-volume Nash factory, along with thousands of other models each month, you can buy style and luxury at a very moderate price. The Ambassador, which costs less than $2500 and more, produced in limited quantities, have no more value than the Ambassador.
Beauty and its desirability, either as a chauffeur-driven or owner-driven car, are unmistakable.
Interior decoration is surpassingly good. First-quality mohair is used for the Ambassador upholstery. Wood trim

is in solid walnut, with an inlaid design.
Another exclusive item is the period
interiorware—silver encrusted.

And the Ambassador is a car of exceptional spirit, powered by a motor much more powerful than others, due to its precision balance and valve-in-head design. A motor, moreover, that is always low-toned and quiet, because of the perfection achieved by Nash in the development of the 7-bearing principle.

The Ambassador has convinced thousands that motoring of the most luxurious type is not necessarily prohibi-tively in price. Let us see your present car and appraise it on a new Ambassador.

In Heaven's name when are you going to pay it?

I am very much interested in your town. I do not say that because I am speaking here tonight.
You have things out here that we do not get back yonder. Your highways from Gulf to Gulf, the Bankhead Highway from Dallas to El Paso, next year in my car and I will take pleasure in stopping here and seeing you. You have many wonderful things here. Take care of your new industries—look after your creameries. What about your water supply? I don't care what it costs you ought to have water here that you will never, never suffer when drouths come. I don't think your town will ever boom
but only meanness, petty politics and selfishness will keep your town from being a city of 2000.
There are just naturally a lot of people who don't like to see a town grow, they have all they want and they don't want to see it grow.
Don't be too conservative. You owe the future generation something.
Please don't try to hold it back. I had rather live knowing that people loved me, than to die as a skin-flint.

Do your boys have to leave home for cooperation or do they get it at home. When a new industry comes to town, cooperate and give to it.
A great many people object to anything that doesn't put a few dollars in their pocket. These petty growlers, these back scratchers, I have never been in a town where there weren't some of them. They want to tell you where the trouble lies. They always have a grouch and are sore. You cannot build up a town on sore-toes and sore heads.

The railroad shops are a wonderful help to you. The railroad people are the finest bunch of people in the world. I don't sorry I did not get to speak in the shops here.
The railroad shops help a town,
their payroll is no little thing. Encourage them, take care of your railroad shops. You have as wonderful a section as I have ever been in. The shops are one of your main assets. You are very fortunate on being on the main line of the Sunshine Special.

Scholastically this last last year has been good I believe Dr. Elling-ton heads the School Board. You have voted $150,000 for a High School building. The boys and girls of tomorrow will rise up and call you blessed. Don't fail to take care of your schools. What are the four walls which guard your city: the four concrete walls which every city must build to keep in good and out the evil? The home—you cannot build a real city on apartment houses. You cannot build a city without sub-divisions. I have seen your new subdivisions. You will have to have them for the 20,000 people that you expect your city to have and which it will have. Encourage these, they bring the people in. Put in your white way. All you put down in permanent beauty will be attractive to the tourist.

I like the sizes of your homes I think it is wonderful to have a little home, five six or seven rooms.
You don't have to build a mansion
"It takes a heap o' livin' in a house to make it Home." You are building for a future. Let me suggest that you have one night that you stay at home. Stay at home next Monday night and talk to your wife and family. The automobiles have taken the people from the homes, the radio is bringing them back. Do you love your home?

God made the home primarily.
From the home came the church.
I am happy to see your pretty homes here. You don't have to pay cash for them. Bankers, encourage them. No man that owns a home can fail to be a good citizen. Let him have the money to buy his home, let him pay a little each month. If you build your homes you will have a big little town of homes a town built with homes rather than a town built with apartments and boarding houses. Boys, when you get married, don't take her to an apartment. Take her to a home.

You also need a first class office building. You need that and need it badly. If somebody who has the money, why don't they build one.
Why doesn't some citizen put up a building that will flirt with the stars. You can sit here and let Midland walk away with the people.
Get on the job and build an office building. You are not suffering from lack of money but from cold feet. You need to take a hot bath and get the blood circulating.

I have never been to a town yet but that they have some old sand scratches I don't know why. I don't care what you start they will get on the job. Get on the sand scratches and chase them out of Big Spring. Be an optimist, not a pessimist. Don't curse them or kick them but persuade some fine business man to build this building for you. "All you can hold in your cold dead hand is what you have given away." Write your name on the base of some fine office building. Lawyers, doctors and dentists will look out over this fine office building with your name on it. I had rather have it there than in the bank or tombstone.
Carve your name high o'er the drifting sand,
Where the steadfast rocks defy
decay;

All that you can hold in your cold,
dead hand
Is what you have given away.
Count your wide conquests o'er sea
and land,
Heap up your gold, and hoard as you may;
All you can hold in your cold, dead
hand
Is what you have given away.

Build your pyramids skyward, let them rise;
Stand gazed at by millions, cultured they say;
All you can hold in your cold, dead
hand
Is what you have given away.

Silver and gold and jewels so grand King of the saloon or mart for a day;
Yet all you can hold in your cold,
dead hand,
Is what you have given away.

You have made a fine start, but don't allow just anybody to teach in your schools. Your girls and boys will be made by those teachers. Look at the personnel of the graduating class last night. Train them for the future.

One cannot break the law, stand by your mayor and your officers.
If you don't like them and then in a couple of years you can go up and vote for someone you do like.
Don't criticize, cooperate. How many of your break laws, how many of you have broken the speed laws. Be sure you don't live in a glass house before you start throwing stones. Cooperate with your mayor, city commissioners and officers; backbiting will not help. I despise a backbiter. Sell your hammer and buy you a horn.
Running down your competitor that is small town stuff. Act like Dallas, don't act like Midland. Take your eye off Midland and put it on Dallas. You don't have to ask Midland or Abilene for anything. The only thing that you need to quit pitying yourself. You have been sucking sugar tits long enough.
Keep your eyes on your home your schools and the law.

Talk Big Spring, get back to your paper. You need a daily paper. I understand that your editor here is trying to start a daily paper. Give him your cooperation for he is pushing, pulling and tugging for a daily paper. Get your Associated Press. Don't live twelve hours behind the time.

Your home, your schools, your law enforcements and last but not least your Church—you cannot build a city in blood, you cannot build a city on cheap little shows coming into your town. Quit spending your cash on the mail order houses, buy from the townspeople pay your bills. I despise a deadbeat. Trade with the men who pay taxes in your city. If this is a good enough place to live in and make your home and money in, stand by your merchants and help them Remember you can build a town on a desert with men.

Be known as a sympathizer and not a criticiser.

- Following is a few of the suggestions given by prominent business men of Big Spring in which they state Big Spring's greatest need:
1. Provide water for a city of 25-000 or 50,000 population, while the engineers are making survey.
 2. An office building.
 3. Another 7 story hotel.
 4. Development of our natural resources, and obtain such industries
as refineries, rock crushing plants, bric kplants, creameries, etc. and other industries that will create big payrolls.
 5. Increase church activities and emphasize the moral teachings.
 6. Development of our schools.
 7. A abundant water supply.
 8. A citizenship that puts God first, family second, and business third.
 9. Men with vision.
 10. Ten first class funerals.
 11. Enlargement of shops.
 12. A county and city hospital.
 13. Establish a faith in the town, and have confidence in that faith.
 14. Sell Big Spring to Big Spring people.

Roberts Oil Field Extended

week while meetings of operators in the Yates pool, Hendrick field in the Seminole area of Oklahoma continued to hold a curb on the ever-threatening tide of over-production.

As one operator expressed it "the oil industry has made more progress during the last year than it made throughout the previous thirty years" referring to the present tendency toward stabilization. This was foretold by the fact that the meeting held here Friday when approximately fifty lease and royalty owners in the district surrounding Gibson and Johnson's discovery well discussed steps that could be taken to prevent excessive drilling in that region, and unanimously voted to ask the Railroad Commission to do what it could to accomplish that end. This is an area where a new pool of major size has almost certainly been opened. A year or two ago such a proposition would have been regarded as absurd and the man who proposed it would have been regarded as tottering on the verge of insanity.

The discovery well was opened Wednesday afternoon for a test after remaining shut down for a week. The starting results are well known, for this particular test has been regarded by everybody as one of the most important in the entire country. After flowing open for about four hours it was turned into the tanks and showed about 98 per cent sulphur water. The next day another hourly gauge was taken and that showed some oil with the water. The owners have been experimenting with different sizes of chokes in the hope that they can reduce the water content and increase the oil percentage as much as possible, but it is doubtful if this well ever will produce much oil.
Total depth is 3,167 feet and it is the opinion of the owners that the contractor who drilled it that it was drilled too deep.
Nevertheless, even if No. 1 Daugherty doesn't produce any more oil than it has shown to date it is regarded by the industry as having proved the existence of a new oil field which may be as large and prolific as the Hendrick pool, nine miles to the South. That is why a curtailment plan in the surrounding sections is of vital importance.

Before long it will probably be necessary to call a meeting of Lea County, New Mexico, operators to talk about proration north of the Winkler County boundary line if Marland Oil Company's No. 1 Eaves, about four miles north of the Gibson & Johnson well, performs as many expect it is. The latest report from this well showed it running heavy mud to shut off 65,000,000 feet of gas at 2,927 feet.

Pay $200 Acre For Lease
Fox Stripling and B. Reagan sold a lease on part of their acreage in the northeast quarter of section 3, block 32, Tsp. 2 South for $200 per acre; $100 cash and $100 in oil. C.
L. Witherspoon and Glascock
Bro. of San Antonio were the purchasers. The deal carries a drilling contract with work to be started within thirty days.

Messrs. Stripling and Reagan are negotiating with Pennsylvania oil men for a lease on a tract in section 3.

This land is about three miles west of the Roberts pool and about 2 miles northeast of the Texon Oil Company's wells on the W. R. Settles ranch.

Cosden and Co. Inc to Drill
Cosden and Co. Inc. are going forward with their plans to start a

the southwest quarter of section 129

1300 Foot Sand Shows Better
In drilling their deep test Roberts No. 2 offsetting the F. H. E.
Oil Company's deep test in section 126 block 29 W. and N. W. survey, the Magnolia Oil Company tested out the 1300 foot sand and found it good for 300 to 400 barrel daily production. The first few shallow tests in this section were thought to be small producers, but the Magnolia test proved there is an oil sand from 30 to 40 feet in thickness between 1300 to 1350 feet. The Owen & Sloan and other shallow tests, which heretofore were but small producers, are to be deepened to 1350 feet to get the benefit of this

Pellagra And Miss. Floods

Pellagra has become greatly discussed recently because of its prevalence in the flooded districts of the Mississippi River. The urgent need for relief workers brought to that area many kind hearted doctors and nurses, who gave their time and skill toward the prevention of diseases that are so common after such catastrophes.

To their astonishment they found Pellagra in almost every home among the rural population. Not being residents of the South, these doctors at once came to the conclusion that these victims of Pella-gra had contracted the disease as a result of the flood. The lack of proper nourishment to some parts of the body has been the popular theory as to the cause of Pellagra.
Naturally the devastating flood caused starvation and self denial.
Hence it was easy to couple the two things and conclude that the deprivation caused by the extended flood caused the many cases of Pel-lagra.

Pellagra is not a deficiency disease. It is caused by an infection which destroys the normal functioning of the digestive processes of the intestines. The flood had nothing to do with Pellagra as it now exists in that section.

It had been there for years before the flood. These good doctors and self sacrificing nurses only discovered what they had before not had the opportunity to discover—viz, that in the Southland one woman in almost 75 per cent of rural homes is suffering with Pellagra.

Pellagra is a disease that is acquired through the skin. Contact by bare hands with vegetable foliage such as cabbage, beans, col-

Postoffice Department Anxious to Make Improvements. Citizens Fail to Meet Requirements

Failure to extend the free delivery of mail to many sections of our city are due to citizenship too lazy to help itself. For months past an effort has been made to have street signs installed, houses numbered and a little sidewalk building carried out so the post office inspectors would have some grounds to grant improvements and extensions to the postal service at Big Spring.

Many cities in Texas would be only too glad to make the improvements designated in order to secure the resulting mail facilities but Big Spring folks seem unwilling to stir a peg towards assisting the postmaster in getting the improvement he has requested.

When the inspector recently made his report he pointed out that much of the territory now served is seriously lacking in civic improvements. Although natural drainage is good throughout the town, many sections are without any kind of walks. It is believed that 15 per cent of the points of delivery in the residential section are without house numbers; and about the same are without mail receptacles. Not over 2 per cent of the possible points of delivery in the business section are numbered. Not over 20 per cent of the street intersections are provided with signs. No sidewalks connect the older portion of the city with the new additions. The postmaster must decline to begin delivery to a new portion in the future until the house is properly numbered and a suitable receptacle is provided.

Several sections in which the postmaster would like to extend service because many new homes have been constructed and these sections are being settled rapidly it will be impossible to consider because the requisite improvements for free delivery service are apparently being given no consideration or thought, as walks, signs, crossings, numbers, etc., are almost wholly lacking. These items are lacking within the present delivery limits to such an extent that it contributes largely to the present inefficient and unsatisfactory operation of the delivery service.

So there's how the matter stands. The postmaster may do his best to improve our postal facilities and the department may be entirely willing to comply with his requests but if the citizenship absolutely refuses to turn a hand to meet the requirements we are unfair to our postmaster to say the least.

Every citizen in Big Spring should be more than willing to assist in correcting the defects and meeting the requirements. A cooperative movement by Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Luncheon Clubs, City Federation and other organizations should be started at once.

If we meet these requirements it will be easier to convince the postal authorities that we need and should have a larger postoffice in Big Spring.

Religious Meetings to be Held

Your community is just as good as you and your neighbors make it. We are proud of Big Spring, Texas. We want it to be the finest place in Texas to have a home in. We want to be able to say to new comers, "Here is a town you can be proud to rear your children in." You can help make this so.

Meetings will be held this summer in each district of our town. These meetings will be "style shows." Claude Wingo of the First Christian Church, with two or three workers, will come into your community and will spend one week. We will make a survey of that section while there. We hope to be able to reach every boy and girl not connected with some church.

Children's songs will be one of the features of these meetings. Bible quotations will be stressed. Your child can't go wrong studying the Bible.

Benches will be provided and all services will be held in the open. We want every man, woman and child in each of the several communities to eat supper and then walk, walk I said, walk over to the meeting place. You will not have to change clothes, come in your work clothes, come to rest enjoy the songs, have fellowship together and to hear in a brief but earnest way, God's word preached.

Whole program not to exceed one hour.

Dates of these meetings:
June 11, 17 inclusive, Cole and Strayhorn.

June 18, 24 inclusive, South Security.

June 25, July 1, inclusive, Jones Valley.

If you are sick in mind, body and spirit, call us.

If you are in need let us be of service.

I don't know how many acres the Delco-Light factory covers—how many thousand square feet of floor space there are in it—or how many skilled craftsmen work there. Parking Difficult In Big Spring

The City may or may not adopt and enforce a time limit parking on the main streets of our city, but it does seem the streets were provided for the use of all our citizens and not to furnish parking privileges for the chosen few. Some of our citizens drive down town in their cars early each morning and except when going to meals, the owners leave their cars in the same spot the following day. It may be fair to others but we fail to see it. The business men could well afford to buy a tract of land and give free parking space to the all day parkers. Tourists and folks from the rural sections are almost barred from driving up to business houses to do their shopping under conditions as they exist in Big Spring at present.

Higher Prices Are Predicted

With demand steadily rising, the domestic production of oil has been cut down 100,000 barrels a day under proration programs. An early result is certain to be an actual shortage, and something interesting should happen to prices.

Nine New Wonders of World

The seven wonders of the ancient world have been superseded by a modern list of nine. In an effort to designate specifically the most important achievements of modern man, popular Science Monthly, after compiling a list of fifty suggestions made by several hundred leaders in American science, industry and education, has submitted its compilation to Dr. Samuel W. Stratton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and former director of the United States Bureau of Standards, for reduction to its most concrete terms. Dr. Stratton's list follows:

1. Discovery of bacteria and the application of bacteriology to human welfare.
2. Progress of our knowledge of the constitution of matter and radiation phenomena.
3. Progress of electricity as to light, power and communication.
4. The internal combustion engine and its application.
5. Modern methods of structure building with metal and cement.
6. Modern metallurgy.
7. Processes of food preservation including canning and refrigeration.
8. Aircraft and aerial navigation.
9. Development of machinery to lessen the burdens of labor and increase its output.

Death Lurks While We Wait

Another near fatal accident at the railway crossing on Gregg St. ought to arouse the city and county officials to action. Each interested party claims to be ready to proceed with their part of constructing a viaduct but they prefer to dilly dally until someone is killed.

Millionaires And The Law

Its at least encouraging to note that the law is big enough to indict Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana must stand trial on a charge of refusing to answer questions propounded by the Senate Teapot Dome committee.

Citizens Complain Of Open Ditches

Citizens in many parts of Big Spring are complaining of the dangerous ditches now to be found at many street intersections. They contend that the city officials should at least make an investigation and have repairs made at some of the most dangerous places.

Engineer Writes Of Travels

Ann Arbor Michigan, and both are old and in many respects obsolete. It is really surprising how parsimonious our government is in regard to such things; it is only now making appropriations for the first Hydraulic Structures laboratory; and yet Europe has some fifteen such laboratories.

To be sure Vienna has some wonderful old churches, monuments to Goethe, Schiller, its various emperors, etc.; a very famous theatre, in fact many, and also many numerous quaint and interesting cafes, but one can read about those in "Baedeker's" and those are the things all tourists see. One of the most famous sights as well as one of the most beautiful is the palace of Schon-Brunn and its environs.

An American is likely to receive a surprise when he visits Budapest for the first time because he is not prepared to such a beautiful capital city add one which has such a rich and modern culture. The royal palace is undoubtedly one of the most gorgeous in the world in spite of the fact that it is now only used as a museum. The Ball room of this palace is one continual glitter and brilliantly wrought lamp chandeliers. The House of Parliament in Budapest is the second largest in the world and is certainly as beautiful as any. The location of the city on either side of the Danube gives it a beauty which is difficult to excel. The city has numerous hot mineral springs which attract people from all parts of Europe who are seeking cures of various kinds. Budapest's museum contain the work of some of the greatest artists who have ever lived.

The Hungarian people are today very sad and dissatisfied. Although Hungary went into the World War reluctantly she has lost more territory and has been placed in a more dangerous position than any of the other countries. Almost all of her neighbors were given a slice of Hungary, even friendly Austria was given some of Hungary's territory. Some of the Hungarians point out that territory was taken from Hungary which has been Hungarian for more than a thousand years. All of her citizens would gladly fight to regain these lost possessions but they are helpless, the beautiful capital of Budapest could be shelled from the north without ever crossing the Hungarian border. The country has been deprived of nearly all of its Hydro-electric resources, its minerals and its natural boundaries. It is today principally an agricultural country. However, it has a Technical University at Budapest which has a Hydraulic Structures laboratory which is something of which America cannot boast at the present moment. Budapest is also the former home of the famous Professor Banki, who is now dead. He invented the Banki Hydraulic turbine, which is a cross flow turbine, very cheap and easy to make and especially adapted for use by farmers who have small quantity of water and a relatively low water fall. Prof. Banki's son is carrying on the manufacture of this turbine which as yet has not been introduced into America.

In Graz Austria, is located another of the Technical Universities of Austria which has an Hydraulic Laboratory and near Graz is the Pernag Hydro-electric plant which is as modern and as well equipped as any in the world, and although the Social Democrats of Vienna may cry that the country is poverty stricken an engineer would never guess it from looking at this Pernag Plant which is a work of art in every respect. In Graz is also one of Austria's oldest manufacturers of Hydraulic Pumps and Turbines, the Andris Marchnefabrik.

The ride from Graz to Venice is very picturesque and especially that portion through the Alps where one is many times reminded of the Sierra Mountains of California. In entering Italy for the first time one is treated quite differently than in entering the other countries of Europe. Your passport is taken up, your baggage inquired into much more curiously and the train is searched for newspapers having news or propaganda against Mussolini and his government. Everywhere there are soldiers Mussolini is governing Italy with an iron hand and all travelers who have visited Italy before and after he took charge of things testify that there has been a marvelous betterment. The people seem to be very patriotic and whenever the national hymn or the Fascists hymn is played in the cafes and restaurants, which is quite frequently it seems, all the people stand up and sometimes join in singing the hymns. It is very difficult to find any criticism of Il Duce (The Chief). However the recent bomb disaster at Milano, which occurred just four days prior to the writer's arrival in Milano, shows that all are not satisfied with things as they are. One intelligent Italian said he thought Mussolini the greatest leader in the world today and although he did not agree with the principles of the Fascists Party he thought that Mussolini's method was the only one which could be applied in Italy today.

Venice with its canals, gondolas, ancient culture and beautiful old architecture, almost exactly as it was four hundred years ago; without subways, street cars or automobiles is really a city in a class by itself. Everything about Venice breathes an air of romance, so when one comes to Venice as an engineer seeking professional information and not as a lover on a honeymoon, he is likely to see as did the writer and think mostly about the murky water, the dirty narrow streets and the slow indolent looking inhabitants.

Venice is also the headquarters of Engineer Luigi Miliani who is the president of the Royal Board of Water Administration of northeastern Italy, he is also incidentally chess champion of Italy, and a very highly cultured gentleman in every respect. He is one of the progressive who have disturbed somewhat the mental attitude of the romance lovers of Venice by introduction of the modern high speed motor boats into use in Venice. A motor boat may not be as romantic as a gondola but it certainly moves a great deal faster and enabled the writer with Mr. Miliani's son, who speaks excellent English, as a guide, to see a great deal of Venice and especially the new Marghera Power plant which is a steam plant which will have an ultimate capacity of 100,000 K. W.

Mussolini has also further disturbed things in Venice by decreasing that a bridge shall be built connecting Venice to mainland. At present there are only two ways of entering Venice, by boat and by train. It is difficult to picture San Marco Square crowded with automobiles, and just what the streets will smell like when they have mingled with their present odors, that of exhaust gases from an automobile is exercise for a fertile imagination or research work for a concocting chemist.

To be appreciative of the romantic side of Venice one should stand at the quay near the station just after a train has arrived and watch English and American girls between the uncertain ages of 16 and 36 take their first gondola ride; it is a picture no artist can paint nor words describe.

To a University man it affords quite a thrill to visit a University over 700 years old. Hence, although the real purpose of the stop in Padua was to visit its Technical University and Hydraulic Laboratory which is in charge of Prof. Ettore Scimeni; the old University was not to be passed by. The Assembly room where upon the walls hang the coat of arms of all the famous nobles who have attended this University during the last 700 years, and various parts of the main building were undergoing repairs. Near Padua is the factory which manufactures all of the Hydraulic and Geodetic instruments used by the Italian government in its extensive study of its many rivers of which the Po is the largest. This river has, it appears received much more attention than has our giant, the Mississippi, yet it is about the size of the Wabash River in Indiana and not as large as the Sacramento in California. Padua also has a current meter rating station, and not many miles away is one of the largest pumping stations which is used to reclaim about 5000 hectares (2,000 acres) at this particular time one of the levees of the Gorzone River had broken and the water had flooded a great deal of land. The method used in filling the breach was that of pick, shovel, wheel barrow and man power. This of course looked very primitive and slow compared to our large levee building machinery on the Mississippi. This river has many quaint old fashioned ferries and almost every quarter of a mile there is a paddle wheel mill. These consist of a boathouse anchored to the bank and equipped with a large paddle wheel which is of the underhot type of course driven by the current of the stream. This paddle wheel in turn drives a mill which grinds grain.

Sunny Italy did not on this particular day live up to its reputation. While driving along a road, which had water on either side at least three feet deep, a terrific rain storm almost approaching a cyclone overtook us, and compelled us a delay of several minutes during which time we were all badly frightened and one member of the party lost his hat.

Technical University of which its faculty are justly proud. They call it the work of young Italy. It is only two years old and has an enrollment of over 1300 students. In one class which was engaged in conducting a test on a Uniflow steam engine there were five girls. The hydraulic laboratory which was not yet completed promised to be a splendid one. The Riva Construction Co., which is the largest manufacturer of hydraulic pumps and turbines in Italy is also located in Milano. This company also has a very interesting testing laboratory. It is very difficult to get around in a country and understand the people and their reasons for doing things when one does not speak their language. Hence the stay in Italy was not a long one.

Switzerland is a jewel of a little country. Not only is the land naturally beautiful but its cities and their streets are clean and its citizens progressive. It is a wonderful mixture of languages and nationalities. In southern Switzerland the people are largely of Italian extraction and much Italian is spoken in northern and western Switzerland Germanic people predominate and German is spoken and is the official language, but to one coming from Germany it is sometimes very difficult to understand. In Switzerland it is not uncommon to find a native German who cannot understand his own language when spoken in Swiss dialect. In Eastern Switzerland French is spoken. The surprising thing about this mixture is how well these people get along together, yet the nations from which they originally came apparently hate each other. In Switzerland every citizen is a soldier and keeps his gun in his home yet they never start a revolution or go out and shoot one another simply because they are Germans, French or Italians. Switzerland is a living demonstration that these peoples can get along together if they want to.

The Technical University of Zurich is high class in every respect; its faculty is composed of excellent men most of whom has international reputations and physical equipment are excellent. This institution has one of the finest collections of models of engineering work in the world. It is only excelled as far as the writer knows, by the marvelous Deutscher Museum in Munich, and that is not of course a Technical University. A word about the use of this expression "Technical University." The real word is Technische Hochschule, which translated literally means Technical High School, which to an American would mean a Technical school for boys from the 9th to 12th grades or about the ages of 14 to 18; and that of course is not what a Technische Hochschule is for. Furthermore it cannot be translated as Technical College because the institution gives more than one degree, and it teaches frequently many branches of engineering. On the whole these Technical Universities of Europe offer about the same training as is given in our Technical Universities in America, hence the use of the term, "Technical University."

Zurich is also the home of the famous Escher-Wyss Co. which has been a pioneer in the manufacture of Hydraulic turbines ever since the turbine industry became a reality. This firm has been manufacturing turbines about 40 years and somehow, somehow, it has always managed to either know a little more or have a little more courage than most of its competitors. The firm was originally established in 1805 and has built for actual operation over 7,500 hydraulic turbines totaling over 6,000,000 H. P. of this number 4675 were Francis turbines 3190 Pelton turbines and 86 were propeller and Kaplan turbines which total 78,000 H. P. This latter type of turbine is not yet in use in America. The pioneering work of this firm is demonstrated by the fact that it recently guaranteed 90 per cent on a Pelton turbine. This is the first time in engineering history that 90 per cent has been guaranteed on a Pelton impulse wheel. When the writer asked the chief engineer if he did not think that a bit dangerous he received this reply. "Yes, it is, but we got 90 per cent with a model and if we can make the large wheel as good as we did the model we will get and we believe we can. This company has one of the finest commercial testing laboratories in the

Cost of Crime Is Billions

Directly and indirectly, crime costs this country an economic loss of at least $13,000,000,000 a year. Mark O. Prentiss, organizer of the National Crime Commission, estimates. Writing in the Manufacturers Record, Mr. Prentiss computes crime's economic bill at more than the total United States war debt. "Every year the United States loses more money in its war on crime than the $11,500,000,000 advanced to Europe during and since the war. Every year the United States foots a crime bill as great as the money cost of a year of our war with Germany. This war shows a direct money loss of $4,000,000,000, representing property alienated through criminal activities; the cost of maintaining the army of 500,000 men engaged in the suppression of crime, and of supplying them with weapons—courts, jails, penitentiaries, prisons, etc.—is at least as much more. The economic wastage through loss of potential productivity and the diversion of money to illegal activities, such as commercialized vice, gambling, dope and booze, is another $5,000,000,000. If the people who discuss the economic waste of war were to stop to consider the war which society wages against the criminal, they would receive a severe jolt." Here is a war in which 12,500 people die a year—murdered; in which 500,000 people, judicial, and enforcement officials combat the inert malevolence of 2,000,000 criminals, men and women, engaged in illegal and economically unproductive activities. The police hold 200,000 prisoners of war in this ceaseless battle to protect life and property. There are now probably 135,000 murderers at large in this country; in Chicago six policemen are shot to every criminal hanged.

Yet, this money otherwise could be put into the building of more and better schools, into the construction of more and better churches, into higher pay for teachers and preachers, into more music and art and books and drama, into finer standards of living. Crime is always cowardly. And the present fearful proportions of crime in this country are the obvious result of leniency. We have played at enforcement of law, gambled at the feet of Justice. We've plied and wept. We've sat on our livers in the jury box and dozed while conscientious prosecutors have brought in the damning evidence. We've lightly punished or sweetly exonerated the same offenders over and over again.

Up in New York they've been experimenting with the Baumes law, which aims at lifelong incarceration for habitual criminals. And New York already is breathing easier. Many of its worst criminals have either fled the state or been put permanently behind bars. All over the country good citizens are awakening. Business, agriculture, industry, education are beginning to see the terrific drain that crime is to their own pocketbooks. We are learning to stop thinking of crime in abstract terms. From now on, it is to be hoped, the way of the lawbreaker will be increasingly hard. We cannot enter too soon upon an era of common sense, in dealing with this problem. —Holland's Magazine.

One reason why the Republicans will never cut much ice in the South is because it is the nigger's party. A nigger will always vote the Republican ticket. He ought to do so, for the Republicans are the only class of whites that will mix with him in the summer conventions. However, there are two species of Republicans—"Lily Whites" and "Ivory Blacks." The "Lily Whites" claim they do not consort with the nigger. It is the "Ivory Blacks" we refer to.—Sterling City News Record.

Farmers Should Have Vacation As Well As Business Men

W. C. Smith in Farm and Ranch
Back in the days when I was a barefooted kid on the farm very few farmers dreamed of going away from home for a week or two much less to take their families with them, and vacations were regarded as belonging only to the well-to-do business people in town. True, we did get away once in a while for a day's fishing at some near-by stream, and an all-day picnic was something of an event. We had some splendid times, but we certainly never considered a vacation essential to better work.

But viewpoints change. Folks are looking differently at things now, and a farmer's vacation becomes just as sensible as a vacation from any other business man. Fresh viewpoints are necessary and change with the angle of approach in any business. That is the chief reason why many business people attend conventions, and should be a reason why more farmers should attend their own organization meetings. The different slant obtained through looking at things through the eyes of others is valuable. Business men gain much from contacts with competitors and fellow tradesmen. They see new equipment, obtain new ideas, and find the experience of refreshing their minds while resting their bodies helpful, and not only that, but the experience is financially profitable. Looking at Home from a Distance. Seven years of business experience have taught me the value of looking at my business from a distance. As a farmer, I find the same thing true, and in the light of modern engineering for the farm, the rapid strides in production of new equipment and the necessity for the modern farmer keeping pace with the times makes the matter of visiting with his progressive neighbor, even though he be miles away a very common sense proposition.

A vacation need not be elaborate or so very expensive. Nor, in order to derive the greatest benefit from it, need it be made an excuse for a business trip. If your family likes to boat, fish, motor, picnic, why not do these things, providing first that you, too, like those things. A vacation is a very sad affair with one person inclined one way and another pulling in some other direction. Too many people spoil the vacation just as surely as too many cooks spoil the broth, and more vacations have probably been spoiled through differences in tastes, desires and aims when several folks flock together than from any other cause. After spending a week or so trying to have a good time with a family or group of friends whose tastes are opposite to your own, vacation time becomes a rather meaningless term.

Learn to Respect Others' Rights. I am constantly being reminded of the lack of respect for the rights of others, especially the property rights. We have been accused of being an extremely rude nation and it seems that a considerable proportion of people who get away from home for a week or two without any special binding strings try to prove it. Personally, I am of the opinion that our lack of politeness and perhaps polish is of no momentous importance. We are really better than we look, and I think enough of my fellowman and especially of my fellow countryman, to believe that the deeper you dig the better he gets. But at that I certainly would hesitate to do some of the things to others that have been done upon occasions to me—they have not been so expensive as irritating.

Cost of the Vacation. The cost of a vacation depends upon personal taste. A good many are spent as cheaply as the time could have been spent at home. Costs vary, and few men can honestly give an excuse for not spending at least a week or two away from the day-in-and-day-out grind that they cannot afford it. As a matter of fact, very few can afford not to do so. A few years ago one of my neighbors who was very hard hit by the deflation caused a mild sensation in our neighborhood by packing up his family and leaving the farm work in care of a neighbor boy. Folks said it was no wonder the man did not get ahead. He, himself, told me that he never lost a cent in his life by getting out and seeing what the other fellow was doing. I do not know that the vacation made him money, but I do know that he has gone ahead and pulled out of the hole, and each year he spends a week at some agricultural conference, farmers' week or short course and every summer his family climbs into the car with him and leaves the cares at home. He has had a tough grind and he is coming through.

It's Just Common Sense. "It is just common sense," he told me, "to get away from your business for a while. You not only get the other fellow's attitude and ideas, but you get a new slant on your own affairs. Somehow I can always think straighter when I get away from the farm for a while. Besides I owe that much to my family."

"And the vacation places the entire family on a more friendly footing, if you know what I mean. If you don't try it, I know a man whose idea of a vacation is to take his family to one of the more fashionable summer resorts each year. They wear good clothes, have their meals served, and do absolutely nothing but enjoy themselves. He says that is all of the luxurious case any of them needs for a year. I know another man who is a dairyman and poultry farmer, and his idea of a real vacation is to visit all of the dairymen and poultrymen he can in a few days. His family seems to enjoy it too. They, too, stop at good hotels and "splurge" as they say, for the time being.

It does not make much difference how, when and where. The main thing is unity of opinion in all parties participating. Even a change of work is often a rest, so a vacation does not necessarily mean idleness if you are absolutely "work-broke," as my grandmother used to say. But it is only reasonable that a man and his family will better enjoy work, plan to greater efficiency, produce more profitably and live greater and fuller lives if they will get away from the same-ness of things once in a while. A fly, you know, bees only the portion of the wall immediately beneath his eyes, and who wants to be a fly on a wall?

The State National Bank has the largest amount of deposits and resources, also the greatest number of customers of any Bank in Howard County.

you don't try it, I know a man whose idea of a vacation is to take his family to one of the more fashionable summer resorts each year. They wear good clothes, have their meals served, and do absolutely nothing but enjoy themselves. He says that is all of the luxurious case any of them needs for a year. I know another man who is a dairyman and poultry farmer, and his idea of a real vacation is to visit all of the dairymen and poultrymen he can in a few days. His family seems to enjoy it too. They, too, stop at good hotels and "splurge" as they say, for the time being.

Twice Winner of Cotton Contest

John McFarlane twice winner in the cotton contest, sponsored by the Dallas News, is out with a statement of what he made on his farm last year. The income from the entire output from his farm was $21,946.88. Here is the list of products he sold and the amount he received for each: Cotton $3,618.86; milk $6,135.50; cream $2555; butter $2,564.00; all milk products, $11,244.50; truck $4,017.77; berries $1,375.25. You know a few years ago McFarlane was a railroad conductor at Palestine. He left the railroad and went on a farm which was considered very poor land. The first year he entered the cotton contest, he produced almost five bales to the acre on five acres. It won him the championship of all the cotton growers in the state, and many of them were growers of the staple on the finest black land farms of Texas. McFarlane treated his land to a plant life food. Now the farm that was abandoned as a nonentity for growing crops, has blossomed into one of the most productive in the State. Intelligent farming did it, and any farmer who applies himself to his work as McFarlane has will prosper like him.—Graham Leader.

FOSTER'S WEATHER CHART

WASHINGTON, May 18.—May 19 is expected to be central date of cool period following severe storm period centering on 15; during this cool period a northern cold wave reaching down as far south as would be seasonably normal, will occur; during this cool period, near 19, killing frosts will threaten northern Pacific Slope, mountain country and as far south as latitude 43 in great central valleys; these forecasted conditions are of normal occurrence during the average season and would therefore not be expected to do any unusual damage; more damage is probable during this period, near and east of meridian 90, by precipitation that will not be needed, but will further delay spring work and cause conditions favorable to insect propagation later in season. This will be a wet weather insect season as a rule. Storm waves of moderate intensity are expected to cross continent in central transcontinental storm path during weeks centering on 22 and 26, making a stormy period 21 to 27, inclusive, but not with severe nor dangerous features; this period expected to average about to a little above normal temperatures and precipitation near meridian 90 and least from Rockies east to meridian 97 will be expected during this period. Last half of May will average much better crop weather than has first half of the month and a large percentage of May 15 to 31 will be expected to be of intensive growing kind of crop weather. After May 15 all farm work should be advanced as fast and as thoroughly as possible, keeping in mind that frosts will threaten northern country near 19. General features of expected June crop weather will appear in next issue.

WHY I AM STILL HERE

I have been bawled out, bawled up, held up, held down, bulldozed, back jacked, worked on, cheated, squeezed and mocked, stuck for war tax, excess profits tax, liberty tax, dog tax and syntax, liberty bonds, baby bonds, and the bonds of matrimony, red cross, green cross and double cross. Asked to help the Society of John the Baptist, G. A. R. Woman's Corps, Men's Relief and stomach relief I have worked like hell, been worked like hell; and because I won't spend and lend all the little I earn, and go beg, borrow and steal I have been cursed and discussed, boycotted, talked to and talked about, lied to and lied about; held up, hung up, banged up, robbed and damn near ruined. And the only reason I am sticking around now is to see what the hell is coming next.

AS UNCLE PANTHER SEES IT

By John Sorrels in Ft. Worth Star Telegram
I am as rich as Rockefeller—in some respects.
What I mean to say is there are some things I have and enjoy that are just as good and beautiful as anything Rockefeller could buy.
Take my back yard for instance. It is filled with rose bushes and peach trees and vegetables and croquet mallets and one thing and another, all of which I enjoy.
Rockefeller can buy a bigger yard, but he can't grow any prettier or more fragrant roses than I have.
He can have a better laid out park, but his peaches won't taste any sweeter than mine.
He can sit on his lawn after nightfall, and he can't see anything on his estate that I can't see or feel.
There are deep pools where the peach trees cast their shade. The moon sends a shimmering stream of light through the boughs and the wind whispers some mighty secrets to the leaves.
The grass about smells of fresh water, and I can see the drops sparkling on the rose bushes.
Down the street is the shrill cry of children at play, and all about are the sounds of home life.
After a while the shrill cries cease. Doors bang, windows scrape up, lights wink out, and the neighborhood has gone to bed.
Then one can hear the night sleeping—a sort of low, soft breathing.
The sky looks like blue satin, sprinkled with gold dust.
All about is peace and tranquility.
My back yard is not so large, as yours go.
It wouldn't take any prize at all so far as landscaping goes.
But it is priceless to me.
I can look at the deep pools under the peach trees and think of other pools I have known, real pools of water where the wind sets up a kind of ruffling and the bass are jumping at daybreak.
I can watch the white clouds sweeping through the heavens, and think I see a mighty angel, with the white sails of many ships sailing there—and that leads me into imagining the seaports and people of many strange lands.
I chase this thought about—turn backward and see the purple sails of the Phoenicians standing off the great city of Tyre—or the cloud of ships which Xerxes set in

SUMMER READING

There is a tendency to consign to the warmer months the light, trashy reading that is avoided by intelligent people during the rest of the year. Just why fluff, sexy, neutric writings should be less worthless as the mercury climbs is one of the puzzles of the age. As a matter of fact, summer is the time to prove the triumph of mind over matter, of intellect over flesh. The better the quality of reading, the more does one's mind defeat the beating rays of Old Sol. Let's not waste June, July, August, and September. Let's keep as cool and sane as possible, this year.—Ex.

Norma Talmadge to Be Shown at Lyric

To Appear in "The Dove" First United Artists Picture, Next Monday and Tuesday

Norma Talmadge in "The Dove" her first United Artists Picture, is to be the feature at the R. & R. Lyric theatre next Monday and Tuesday. Based on Willard Mack's stage play, which ran for a year on Broadway, "The Dove" is a melodramatic, romantic tale of Costa Rojas, the "red coat," Miss Talmadge is supported by Noah Beery and Gilbert Roland. Roland West directed the picture from the scenario by Wallace Smith and Paul Bern.

"The Dove" is the colorful, quick action narrative of a virtuous young American employed by a gambling house, and the "best damn caballero in all Costa Rojas." Don Jose Maria y Sandoval. Against a background of guitars, stiletos, roulette wheels, fine ladies and grand gentlemen, the charming performance of Miss Talmadge as Dolores, "The Dove" a beautiful dancer, comes to glowing life according to advance reports.

Directed by Roland West, who has previously made Norma Talmadge pictures, and supported by Noah Beery and Gilbert Roland, who were accorded considerable roles by the star, Miss Talmadge has a role of Mrs. Tempestuous, loving, defying and yielding in its several shades. The film is said to retain all of the color which David E. Selznick put into the stage version of "The Dove," in which Judith Anderson and Holbrook Blinn appeared. Roland West, the director believes the story is even more suited to films, and that in "The Dove" Miss Talmadge achieves new heights in a part as different from her prior characterization as that was from its predecessors.

"The Dove" was made at the United Artists Studio in Hollywood, lasting six months in the making. First, Roland West and Wallace Smith adapted Willard Mack's stage play to films, then Smith and Paul Bern wrote the scenario, then West directed Miss Talmadge in the picture, which Oliver Marsh photographed. It was Marsh who won himself so much critical commendation with photography of Miss Talmadge's "Camille." Photographic effects in "The Dove" are said to be so novel that the set in the United Artists Studio was closed to visitors by Director West while certain sequences were being filmed.

Norma Talmadge not only becomes a United Artists star through "The Dove" her first picture for that organization, but she is also now one of the eight owner-members of United Artists. Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, D. W. Griffith, Joseph M. Schenck and Samuel Goldwyn are the others.

"Of all books" said an eminent Doctor recently. "I suppose that Webster's Dictionary contributed as much to my elevation as any. I used to sit on it regularly at meal times when I was a boy." (Writer's Monthly).

Rickets

2. I'm the mother of five children and most of them we have had to be treated for rickets. Does rickets occur more frequently during certain seasons of the year? (Lucy Lee M. Kyle)

2. Rickets is not only more prevalent at certain times of the year but in certain climates. It occurs frequently in the winter and spring. While a very common disease of the temperate zone, it is almost unknown in the tropics. This is probably due to the very important influence of sunlight in the prevention of this condition.

What Are The Symptoms of Paratyphoid? 3. Our family are all ailing and one of my neighbors thinks we have paratyphoid fever. Will you kindly tell me how I can know what are some symptoms? (Mrs. James O'R. Alvin)

3. Paratyphoid bacilli are associated with a train of symptoms of a kind usually understood to be highly characteristic of food poisoning; nausea, abdominal pain and diarrhea following a few hours after the meal at which bad or infected food was eaten. The short period elapsing in certain paratyphoid food poisoning outbreaks between the ingestion of the food and the appearance of symptoms, has lent color to the belief that poisons already found in the food or arising from the disintegrated bacterial cells, were the cause of illness rather than the growth of the bacilli in the human body.

Prevention of paratyphoid food poisoning may be effected in various ways. Two human types of paratyphoid fever, which in some of their manifestations are closely related to food poisoning, can probably be best combated by avoiding contact with the sick by guarding food supplies, especially milk, against contamination by carriers or convalescents and by eliminating polluted drinking water. Protective inoculation against the two paratyphoid fevers has been largely practiced in recent years in the use of the so-called triple-vaccine, but there is no absolute statistical evidence that their prevalence has been lessened by this procedure.

Foodstuffs that are thoroughly cooked are in a measure a safeguard against the noxious germs, and also there must be protection from vermin.

A darkey went to consult the local doctor. As he was leaving the doctor remarked:

"You've forgotten something."

"No, I haven't" replied the darkey.

"Yes you have," said the doctor, "my fee for the advice I have given you is four dollars."

"Yes," answered the darkey, "but I ain't going to take your advice."

GOLDEN SILENCE

Silence is golden. Men have made money by knowing how to keep in check the "unruly member." Lots of men would be rich today if they had known enough to keep their tongues between their teeth. The story comes to mind of an undertaker who appreciated this point. The body of an unknown young man had been picked out of the water. It was discovered that he was the son of very well-to-do people. The father came from some distance and after a hurried visit to the undertaker was satisfied that the dead body was that of his wayward son. He made arrangements for shipping it home. He called the next day for another look at the corpse. The jaw had dropped and disclosed a set of false teeth. He realized that he had made a mistake and cancelled the arrangements. On his departure, the undertaker put the body into a pine shell and jammed down the lid with the remark: "There you chump, you might have had a decent funeral if you had kept your mouth shut." It pays to be cautious. "A fool uttereth all his mind but a wise man keepeth it in till afterward."—The Batteryman.

Beauty of Texas Cities

them from any objectionable vulgarity and who should be thoroughly familiar with the town story, do not hesitate to allow strings of salivary to drip from them and fall upon the frequented sidewalks. They do not even take the trouble to go to the edge of the walk to relieve themselves. It is true there are those who pride themselves upon spitting in spirals and in curves. It is from these experts that I have to dodge to avoid receiving a volley in the face or on my clothes. Only their skill saved my self-respect.

It is indeed a blessing that women wear short skirts. I have no doubt that the mid-Victorians brought back into the home much more bacteria than our shoes can carry today. I am reasonably certain that we have needlessly and heedlessly spread tuberculosis and flu through Texas by this careless and dirty habit, for the germs are powdered and carried into our offices and homes daily.

Now, when we are attempting to safeguard the public by laws of sanitation of all sorts it seems to me we should put on a general educational campaign in every city to insist that spitting ordinances should be put upon the statute books of every town and that such laws should be strictly enforced. Street cars and many public buildings have signs forbidding expectoration and if they can make people refrain from this abominable habit surely cities can do the same.

If every paper in the State would get busy and make this a paramount sanitation issue I am sure Texas could then be more boastful of being a healthful State, to which to invite visitors and home seekers. Now is the time, because hundreds of people who never had thought of coming to Texas will be here for the many national conventions scheduled. We will either make or break our reputation for cleanliness and sanitation. We have already done what a few years ago would have been deemed impossible. We have almost eradicated the mosquito and the fly, and with them malaria and typhoid.

Why can we not spread propaganda that will lessen the danger of lung troubles and other infectious diseases by stopping public expectoration? I challenge the Dallas News to start a state-wide campaign—Lillian Winter Michelson, alias News.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL M O

A Word From Mr. Edison

I WELL REMEMBER the afternoon of September 4, 1882 which marked the opening of the Pearl Street electric generating station, the first station in the world for the production and distribution of electric power.

The reporter from the EVENING SUN who came to interview me at the station was an alert and agreeable young man, with an average degree of skepticism. It was obvious that the little station with its "thirty balloon-shaped globes, ranged at intervals on either side of the room" and glowing "with incandescent horseshoes," seemed hardly more than an amusing toy to him. He could not conceive that it meant the end of the candle and oil lamp, the end of the horse and carriage, the end of one epoch in civilized life and the beginning of another.

Some of us saw farther than he did, but even our imaginations fell short of visualizing all the changes that began that night. Many minds, working together, produce progress that outruns the imagination of even the most courageous.

That was forty-five years ago. I was a young man then. I am an old man now. I have lived to see the street car, the elevator, the electrified railroad, the automobile, the phonograph, the motion picture, the radio, the airplane, and the beginnings of television. It seems today to many, as it seemed to most men and women in 1882, no great forward steps remain to be taken which are comparable to those that have been taken.

It may be that the next forty years will not produce inventions of such revolutionary character. Progress has been so rapid that we may require a breathing spell in which to consolidate our gains and develop present inventions to their full capacity. But of one thing I am more positive than I was even forty years ago—the electrical development of America has only well begun.

So long as there remains a single task being done by men and women which electricity could do as well, so long will that development be incomplete. What this development will mean in comfort, in leisure, and in opportunity for the larger life of the spirit we have only begun to realize. Great days are ahead of this nation and the world. And electricity will have a great part to play, granted only that it can be unfettered, with full opportunity for the largest possible individual initiative and energy.

I look back with happiness to that eventful afternoon forty-five years ago. What will be happening in electricity forty-five years from this evening? I wish I might

200,000 Buyers Can't Be Wrong

When the Pontiac Six was first introduced less than two and a half years ago, immediate buying enthusiasm was aroused. The public accepted the statement of General Motors and Oakland that here was a new car offering six-cylinder value never before enjoyed at such low price. 75,000 Pontiac Sixes sold in 1926 established a world's record for a new make of car. Sales for 1927 carried the total of satisfied Pontiac owners beyond the 200,000 mark. And now, even if its unrivaled value could not be proved by comparison with other cars in its field—even if its superiority could not be demonstrated by scores of advanced features combined in no other low-priced six—even if all its claims to leadership were based on generalities—you could still buy the Pontiac Six with complete confidence for 200,000 buyers can't be wrong!

world. It was designed by Prof. R. Dubs of Zurich Technical University several years ago. It is now undergoing extensive alterations to permit more advanced tests which were unknown at the time the laboratory was first designed. This firm not only uses the laws of dimensional similarity but is now for rapid work conducting tests with air and by the use of Reynolds function determining what the results will be when water is used.

Each year on the 21st of April the people of Zurich stage a big celebration to welcome the Spring. This consists of at least two large parades and various ceremonies. One organization which held a banquet in the same hotel at which the writer was staying insisted on holding a number of parades during the night with lighted torches. It was very picturesque and each time they turned out their band, the writer arose and went to his window to see the performance. Nature did not aid by the calendar this year in Zurich as each of the large parades were held in a mixture of rain and snow. All of the trade guilds participate in these parades wearing their ancient costumes and carrying their coat of arms. The snow man, symbolic of winter, was burned in a downpour of rain. Hundreds of children took part in the parades, more than twenty hands were there to play and there was not a single automobile in the parades.

Near Zurich are the towns of Winterthur and Schaffhausen. In the former is a "Technicum" which is a sort of an apprentice school, yet its Mechanical Engineering laboratories are better equipped than those of most engineering schools in America. Winterthur also is the home of Sulzer Bros, which every engineer knows for its diesel engines and pumps. Some of the largest diesel engines in the world are manufactured in this small town. There were many of these engines in process of construction in April 1928 and one of them was for 7500 H. P.

Schaffhausen is not very well known to the American public or its engineers, but its fame rests with the former on the fact that there are located the famous "Falls of the Rhine" and although they are nice and pretty, a Californian who has seen Yosemite would hardly give them a second look because they are so small. With engineers Schaffhausen holds an honorable place because it is the home of the Amster Co., which manufactures testing machines of all kinds, a very excellent and famous planimeter and numerous kinds of hydraulic instruments. There is probably an Amster testing machine in every high class technical university in America. The writer was shown a letter he had written four years ago concerning an ammeter dynamometer which is now in use in the University of California.

Bern is the capital of Switzerland and is beautifully located, but for that matter one can hardly select a site in Switzerland which isn't beautifully located. The entire business section of the city is connected by arches similar to the famous quadrangle at Stanford University, Palo Alto, California. Not far from Bern is a number of very interesting Hydro-electric plants which account for the authors stop there. The nearest plant Muhlbach is only a half hour's drive by auto and it has many things of interest to the engineer, only one of general interest will be mentioned. The army engineers of Switzerland insisted on having a ship passage down the river so a ship crane has been constructed. The boats of the army which are largely ponton type are rowed onto the crane which then lifts them, carries them on rollers over the dam and again lowers them into the water on the other side of the dam.

Geneva Switzerland is noted for its beauty and the fact that it is the seat of the League of Nations. The average European whom you meet on the street knows that we in America have had many presidents, but Woodrow Wilson is the only one about which he knows or talks very much and here in Geneva they have named one of their principal and most beautiful streets for President Wilson. Near Geneva are also various hydro-electric plants such as Chancy Pougny, and Chery, the latter being one of the oldest in the world. Geneva also has a Technician, and is the seat of another very old and well known turbine manufacturer, Ateliers des Charmilles. This firm is especially noted for its new type of automatic governor which is exceptionally sensitive, small compact and the like. It is very simple and accessible.

Germany was mentioned in "Impressions from Northern Europe" However, it has been impossible for the writer to visit western Germany until quite recently. The original impressions are still valid. The Germans are essentially a scientific people. Everywhere one goes he sees and finds testimony to that fact. Even Germany's most bitter enemies acknowledge her superiority in that field. The Germans are very thorough and they work with great force. This is soon seen from a trip through Germany's chief industrial center which extends from Basel, Baden north through the great valley of the Rhine.

Karlsruhe is the home of one of Germany's great Technical Universities. Here under the direction of Prof. Dr. Ing. Th. Rehbock is probably the best equipped and administered Hydraulic Structures laboratories in the world today. Engineers interested in this kind of laboratory will find a complete description of the Karlsruhe laboratories in "Wasserbau Laboratories of Europe" an American edition of which is soon to be published and information concerning it may be secured from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, 29 West 30th St. New York. This laboratory is particularly noted for its work on weirs, backwater produced by bridge piers, an dike, Zahnscwellle. The latter is a device for destroying the energy in water flowing over a dam or spillway so that it will not erode the material at the base of the dam and thus weaken it to the extent that it might give way. Here too the writer saw for the first time some excellent motion pictures which demonstrated better than anything else could the action of flowing water around certain types of structures.

Not far from Karlsruhe is Heidelberg, famous for its ancient University, researches in medicine its dueling fraternities, and a song known to every American who has visited Germany, "Ich hab' mein Herz in Heidelberg verloren." It's a beautiful place, is Heidelberg; quiet, serene, picturesque and an ideal place for study.

Darmstadt, the capital of Hesse, also has a noted Technical University, and although it has both Hydraulic machinery and Hydraulic Structures Laboratory it is perhaps best known for its work in electricity and Chemistry. In hydraulics Darmstadt is an exponent of the doctrine that hydraulic models should be made as large as the facilities at hand will permit, while at Karlsruhe the doctrine is to keep the model as small as possible, first for convenience in study and second for economy.

An American feels at home in Darmstadt. Its streets are nice and clean and wide, and it has some very beautiful and artistic homes. Its railway station is one of the finest and most convenient in Europe, although of course not as large as many others. At the time of the writer's visit, there was going on in the town a so called "Exhibition of Man" (Ausstellung der Mensch). This was typically German. Here in a large exhibition hall was shown with models of the most marvelous exactness, cleverness and thoroughness, the structure of the bones, the muscle system, the blood system, the digestive system, the nervous system, the eyes, the ears, mouth, etc with their various functions, all shown with models.

Also one saw here models of babies and men with all the common contagious diseases, and how to avoid them, and the complete evolution of a baby from a cell until it is born into the world were all shown with models. Of course, wherever it was possible the actual organ was shown; for example the 223 bones of the human body were actually laid out before you so if anyone doubted he could count them. This love for teaching scientific truths by means of models is one of the most impressive traits of the German people and is one which Americans can well afford to imitate.

Size of Town Not an Asset

The small towns owes something to itself, as well as to the rural territory out of which it draws its living, in the opinion of Elva E. Miller, author of a recent book published by the University of North Carolina Press under the title of Town and Country. In a vague way every small town realizes this. But usually the realization is limited to a desire to become a big town and do things in big town and city fashion.

Bigness without beauty and wholesomeness is a mistake. "Plan to become the right sort of a town," the author urges. The right sort of a town can't keep people away, even if it should wish to try. There are thousands of people who would be glad to live in the right sort of town who are altogether disappointed in the big towns in which they reside. Bigness is a curse anyhow, he finds:

"Let the cities of any land draw into themselves too much of the wealth and intelligence and aspiration of that land, and those cities are doomed. The face of the earth is littered with ruins of broken and fallen civilizations every one of them, so far as we know or have reason to believe, a civilization in which the cities gathered wealth and acquired culture and waxed strong and beautiful and proud, while their food was provided for them by countrymen far inferior in knowledge in understanding and in opportunity."

The little town, being closer to the country than any other, has the best chance of reaching out into the country with the opportunity and social contacts which rural life tends to lack. It is easier to make a small town beautiful than to make a large one so. And it is easier to make a small town useful to those who live about it than to draw up a practical program in which a great city can be of real help to the growers of its food and fiber materials upon which it depends for existence.—Dallas News.

DUNLOP CITY

Throughout the world, the productive Dunlop properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

Times as big as PITTSBURGH

of all the great factories at Pittsburgh, and yet the 29,226 acres occupied by that plant is about a fourth the area of the productive properties occupied by Dunlop.

It proves great quality, Dunlop could have grown to its present magnitude unless it had given outstanding value.

The size makes possible greater quality. Today is making far better tires than in years since John Boyd Dunlop founded the pneumatic tire industry.

When you put Dunlops on your car, you will realize the economy, comfort and safety.

Big Profits In Dairying And Why Many Fail

There are many reasons for failure to make a profit with cows. Chief among these may be placed a scarcity of home grown feed of the right kind. Just as soon as the supply of home-grown feeds begins to dwindle, many owners of cows try cutting the rations with the hope that they can get by until pastures improve or their new crops are harvested. Every time one short-rations his cows they retaliate by reducing production. Thus profits dwindle and that man will say that there is nothing in the dairy business.

He who contemplates keeping cows should make his plans to have good pasture and to produce grains and roughage in sufficient quantities to feed those animals throughout the entire year. The man who does this, and then feeds scientifically, will make money with his cows if he has animals with good production capacity. The man who runs out of feed and has to buy will lose money unless he has cows of more than ordinary producing ability and a market above the average level for his milk and cream.

Every cow, as an individual, has a limit to its capacity to produce. They should be fed up to that limit, but no more. Extra feed after the limit has been reached is money thrown away. Most cows, however, are underfed rather than overfed. Too many have an idea that a cow with a full stomach of any kind of feed should produce its limit, but cows cannot make milk unless provided with the kinds of milk that production requires, and this should be borne in mind before judgment is passed upon the producing ability of any cow in the herd. Give every cow a chance to make good, and then if she fails the quicker she is sent to market, the better it is for the owner.

Home-grown feedstuffs should be charged to the cows at a fair market price. Livestock on the farm should make a profitable market for feedstuffs produced. The farm should be credited with this profit, and then if one breaks even on the livestock, the farm has produced a profit anyway, and that is what every farmer is trying to do. Too many fail to credit the farm with the feedstuffs, or the animals with the increased fertility brought about by the utilization of the manure.

The chief value of keeping livestock on the farm is in the market they produce for home-grown feedstuffs. Another item, however, is of importance. Producing legumes and grains for livestock makes possible a crop-rotation system which will improve the soil and make for increasing yields from year to year. In the end it is possible that this phase of a change in the farm program will prove most valuable of all.—Farm and Ranch.

Should Have Plenty of Water

Just because the water problem is solved for the present is no reason for Big Spring to discontinue her water development program. Some years ago Abilene imagined her water problem had been solved for all time to come by the building of Lake Abilene. During the past year Abilene has had her lesson, and though Lake Abilene Lake Kirby and Lake Lytle have a bountiful supply of water, Abilene citizens have joined hands to develop a greater supply so there will be no more water shortages.

Big Spring has had no lack of water, but lack of facilities has at times prevented delivery of all the water needed, but we do not want any shortage even though our city attains a population of 25,000. The city with an adequate supply of good water has the edge on any other city which cannot boast of this the most important foundation for city building.

Poultry Raising Is Neglected

The Poultry Craftsman, published in Los Angeles, calls attention to the fact that California poultrymen are almost entirely breeding for egg production, and that well-fed heavier breeds are very scarce in the markets.

The same may be said of Texas and many other states in the Union. Where one sees a flock of standardbred heavy birds, he will see three or four flocks of Leghorns. Breeding for egg production throws a large number of light-weight chickens on the market. While it is true that Leghorn broilers, if well-fattened, make excellent meat, the hundreds of old hens and cull from the laying flocks depress the market and do not make for a larger consumption of poultry.

Certainly there is one branch of the poultry industry that is neglected. Large, rapidly-maturing chickens, especially prepared for the market should be in good demand at profitable prices. This is especially true if the producer would send to market birds of the same age and of uniform color. Consumers buy chickens on looks quite as often as they buy other meats.—Farm and Ranch.

PREACHING, PRACTICING

The young fellow was panting and out of breath.

"Whew!" he gasped. "I sure had a nacro waquawk that time. Fellow came within an inch of running over me with his big lumbering car. Never made any effort to slow down or dodge me—just kept a-comin' like he hadn't a second to spare."

"Did you get his number or know who he was?" the excited young man was asked.

"No," he replied. "All I noticed was that he had one of those green 'Save-a-Life' stickers on his windshield."

Yesterday, Today And Tomorrow

Since oil fields don't grow in everybody's backyard and the average man or woman is usually quite unfamiliar with the magnitude of the industry it is very easy to fail to appreciate just how big a business the American oil business is.

Some recent facts and figures released by the American Petroleum Institute provide considerable illumination on this great industry, revealing incidentally how dominating is America's position in the world petroleum field.

Since recorded oil production began the United States has produced roughly 65 per cent of the world's oil. Over 70 per cent of the world's petroleum industry now calls the United States home.

American railroads carry more petroleum and petroleum products than any other commodity. The oil industry is second only to the agricultural industry in size.

Invested in American oil companies bank cars and other details of the industry is a staggering total of around 11 billions of dollars. More than a million five hundred thousand people hold the stocks, bonds, interests, leases, royalties, etc., which represent this giant investment.

Employed by the American oil industry are between 1,100,000 and 1,200,000 workers, from roustabouts roughnecks and drillers on the leases to presidents of great, globe circling companies. A quarter of a million more Americans make their living operating the ubiquitous filling stations which supply the millions of automobiles with gasoline and oil.

In the great oil producing States the taxes on the petroleum industry, petroleum products and on industries directly dependent upon petroleum are the mainstay of the State support.

In Texas, for example, the State government disburses about $70,000,000 annually, according to recent statements. Of this giant sum the oil industry alone contributes $30,000,000.

Gasoline taxes, automobile licenses and the like have built thousands of miles of good roads for the United States. Around a billion a year is spent on American rural highway improvements, with the petroleum industry and allied businesses paying the big share. Good roads breed prosperity.

The significance of all these facts and figures is that the American oil industry is one of the principal businesses of our Nation. It is no more a fit subject for monopoly or government ownership and control than any other major industry. Nobody ever suggests that the United States should try government ownership of agriculture, for instance, or grant a monopoly on it. Yet the waste from soil depletion alone a far more serious waste than any the oil industry could exhibit, is a tremendous but practically never mentioned annual loss to agriculture.

We might get along without petroleum. We did once. But we can't get along without food. Some day future Americans may be saying very bitter things about a generation that raised a great to-do about little troubles of oil and blithely passed over its big problem of preserving and taking care of its agriculture.—Western World.

WHY THE EDITOR LAUGHED

The Editor is helping himself to a big laugh. He has a letter from a home merchant urging that he send folks who trade out-of-town. What's funny about that? It's written on a letterhead printed out of town.—Sandusky (Ohio) Tribune.

One of the main things to remember is that there is a real oil field and makb etwo or three, not a great distance from Big Spring. No wasteful hurry is necessary to get the oil to the surface, the oil operators can wait until the time and price are right.

A delicately "crunchy" dessert which is sure to delight the children is Peanut Brittle Delight. To make it, beat one cup of heavy cream and fold in one cup diced sliced Hawaiian pineapple, one and one-half cups boiled rice, three-fourths cup crushed peanuts, eight chopped marshmallows, and one-half cup pineapple syrup. Chill and serve piled in a sherbet glass. Fruit tarts for summer seem particularly appropriate. Here is a filling recipe which is new and destined to be popular. Cook one cup ground pressed figs in two cups crushed pineapple (pulp and syrup) six tablespoons of sugar and one tablespoon flour mixed together. Pour in two slightly beaten egg yolks. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Cool. Put into previously baked tart shells and garnish the top with whipped cream. This recipe makes about twenty-four small tarts.

Three tables of players found diversion in the bridge games of the afternoon and Mrs. Joyce Fisher was declared the lucky winner of high score among club members. Miss Spencer Leatherwood made visitors' high score.

At the tea hour Mrs. Ellington served a delicious two course luncheon to the twelve guests.

Howard County Is Assured Health Nurse

Services of Public Health Nurse to be Sought by Howard County Public Health Association

Howard County is practically assured the services of a public health nurse. The Howard County Public Health Association is backing this movement and this week passed a petition to the city and county officials, civic organizations, etc., and every group seemed very enthusiastic over the prospects of securing a nurse. Howard County has long been in need of a Public Health nurse and the good that she will do in our town promoting better health in the community will be worth twice what it cost.

Through the Townsend Sheppard Act, the services can be secured by the state paying $1,500 and the county to match it with an equal amount $1,500, making $3,000 for the budget each year.

The nurse will come to Big Spring in September and start her work through the schools. She will also conduct training schools for mothers, and do many other worth while things, which will be given from time to time.

"There should be no child who is not born under proper conditions who does not live in hygienic surroundings, who suffers from malnutrition, who does not have prompt and efficient medical inspection and attention, and who does not receive primary instruction in the elements of hygiene and health," and the nurse will endeavor to perform these duties in our community.

Following is the petition and signatures of the organizations and individuals who favor securing the services of the Public Health nurse: To The Honorable Commissioner's Court of Howard County, Texas:

We the undersigned citizens of Howard County, Texas, do hereby petition your honorable body to make an annual appropriation of $15,000.00, to match an equal amount appropriated by the State under the Maternity and Infancy Act, to pay the salary of a trained nurse to assist in taking care of Howard County babies:

EVANGELIST G. A. DUNN

M. E. Revival Closed Tuesday

The revival meeting that closed last Tuesday night was in every way a very successful revival according to Rev. W. G. Bailey, the pastor of the Methodist Church. Dr. Culpepper preached the gospel of Christ in its purity and in such a simple way that even the children enjoyed each service. This mighty man of God got into the hearts and lives of the entire town. He spoke in all the schools and to the clubs, also in the jail. All who heard him spoke of him as a sincere man of God. While it was primarily a Methodist Revival every church in town took some part. Many were led to believe in God and to join some one of the churches of town. 138 came into the Methodist church, 38 went to the Baptist, 13 to the Christian church, 4 to the Presbyterian 2 to the Church of Christ, 2 to the Nazarine and 20 gave their names and have not decided what church to join. Our town is a better town since Dr. Culpepper came our way and we are all happy. He left with a smile just as he came to us. He had no idea what a man's creed would be that he wanted to lead him to a better way of living. The Methodist church wants to thank each and everyone who took a little part of any kind in making the meeting a success. We thank you for the donation which you gave. Now that he is gone let us keep the home fires burning. Let everyone be in his place of worship next Sunday morning and don't stop until you get into the church that you want to join. If you stop now it will be harder some of these days. Help to make ours a town of churches, and where God is first. Don't let it be said that Dr. Culpepper took the meeting off in his pockets, that when he left the revival went also. It will not if each one will see that he does his part by being at some one of the churches next Sunday morning. God is counting on you. All will be received into the church of their choice next Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock hour? Will you be there.

Newest Town in West Texas Is "Forsan"

Name Derived From Four Sands In Producing Oil in The Roberts Pool of South Howard County

The newest town for the West Texas oil fields is "Forsan" named after the four sands that are producing oil in the Roberts pool of South Howard County. The new town is located about 15 miles Southeast of Big Spring in section 130, block 29, W. & N. W. survey, and joining on the west section 123 recently leased by Cosden & Co. for which that company paid $1,000 an acre.

The Forsan Townsite Company will be the owners and developers of the new town and a corporation is now being organized by S. F. Befentine and associates. "The corporation" according to Befentine, "will be organized for 15,000 shares of no-par stock and when the surveying and platting has been completed and filed for record, the shares of the company will have a book value of more than $10.00 a share with the pre-opening price, ranging from $5 to $150 a lot."

The Roberts pool already has 8 producers in the deep pay with production estimates ranging from three to six thousand barrels daily and all of these deep producers found commercial production in the upper sands, which are developed at approximately depths of 1300 feet, 1900 feet and 2200 feet. A well known petroleum engineer, who is familiar with this South Howard County field, has placed an estimated production recovery of 50,000 barrels per acre where the four producing horizons are developed.

"Forsan" is ideally located with all the natural environments that go to make an oil field town. Practically all the traffic between Big Spring and the field will pass through the town and it is convenient to the field for those who are employed in oil field work.

Befentine reports that water, gas and electricity will be available and that maps of the plat will be ready in a few days as soon as the surveying is completed. 160 acres is being platted into townsite.

The Meriwether Test Well

Everything is moving along nicely at the Meriwether Oil Company's test well on the L. S. McDowell ranch 20 miles South of Big Spring. The drill is now making around 70 feet per day in a sandy shale formation. A little lime is occasionally encountered. The depth of the well is now around the 2450 foot mark.

This test is now being watched with considerable interest as something interesting is likely to show up in the next day or two.

In the old General Oil Co. well, a short distance to the southwest an oil formation was picked up around 2560 feet which furnished oil sufficient to supply fuel for several drilling operations in the McDowell ranch section.

If this formation is found in the Meriwether Oil Company's test it will be thoroughly tested.

The old General Oil Company test was given too heavy a shot and could not be properly completed.

Our folks are convinced an oil field is going to be developed on the McDowell ranch.

Democrats Scrap at Convention

A Dry Delegation Secured For National Convention Due to Hard Fight Made By Gov. Moody

Beaumont, Texas, May 23.—Sixty men and women, wielding a total of 40 votes, were delegated tonight by the State Democratic Convention to attend the national convention and vote for a dry platform and dry presidential candidates, as a result of dramatic victories by Governor Dan Moody over first one and then the other "extreme" factions of the party in Texas.

Applying the steam roller to Smith-for-president supporters, Governor Moody's forces defeated a move that would have assured several Smith delegates on the Texas slate, after having voted down, with Smith aid, an attempt to instruct the delegation specifically against Governor Smith.

A definite break with the Smith supporters, who had helped the Moody group defeat the ultra-dry faction for control of the convention, came over the manner of choosing the Texas national delegates. The Smith men wanted to let the congressional district state delegations choose their own national delegates, but the Governor, "crucifying" himself, as he called it, renounced a previous stand for supremacy of the districts, and swung a convention majority for a resolution providing selection of the delegates by a committee appointed by the chairman. This method insured only dry delegates.

When a roll call on the question was halted Governor Moody went before the microphone with a drawn face and almost husky voice and explained what he called his "awkward position," reminding the convention of his campaign for a dry platform and dry candidates, and the response to it in the country with precinct conventions.

He pointed to the Governor's adoption a few minutes before of a state platform bearing out his stand, and declaring that as far as he was concerned, the state convention never should vote for Governor Al Smith.

Summary of Governor Alfred E. Smith for president suffered a crushing defeat in the state democratic convention when Governor Dan Moody took a prohibition delegation to the Houston convention and pulled a victory out of the fire.

The Smith men were defeated 464 to 370 in their fight to allow each district to name its delegates to the national convention.

Moody won his victory by taking direct charge of the situation in the midst of a roll call that appeared to be going against him. The Governor, fearing that the delegates did not understand the issue, took the platform, forced the howling convention to listen to him, silenced heckling and made his position clear.

When the roll call was resumed the pendulum swung to his side with the result that the Texas delegation to Houston will consist of men whom the harmony group of Democrats endorse as satisfactorily dry and opposed to Smith as long as it is possible to oppose him without scratching the ticket.

Having crushed the ultra-dry faction of the party with the aid of Smith votes yesterday, Moody today announced flatly against delegates instructed for Smith and supported the resolution of Tom Ball of Houston to allow a convention committee to name the delegates.

He stated frankly that he favored such a course because he felt the Texas delegation to the national convention should be the plank in the state platform favoring prohibition.

A motion was made to table the Ball resolution and many of the delegates apparently thought that a vote of "aye" was a vote for the resolution, instead of a vote to kill it. It was at this point that Moody intervened.

After the roll call was announced the Ball resolution was passed by viva voce vote immediately.

This means that a committee appointed by the chairman can nominate delegates from the districts in case the districts pick men not considered to agree fully enough with the prohibition sentiments in the state platform.

The chairman then, in the midst of angry protests from noisy delegations, named the following committee to pass on nomination of delegates from the districts: J. R. Wheeler, Texarkana; Kester Denman, Lufkin; Gust E. Tyler, L. L. Bowman, Greenville; Cullen Thomas, Dallas; Claude Henderson, Bryan; A. W. Norris, Jr., Conroe; Sam Polk, Houston; Sam Hopkins, Gonzales; W. H. Nunn, Georgetown; W. E. Spell, Waco; F. G. Johnson, Cleburne; W. I. McFarlane, Graham; R. L. Ball, San Antonio; A. Y. Baker, Edinburg; Al Petch, Fredericksburg; Ben Cox, Abilene; Joe Dooley, Amarillo.

Resolutions were adopted indorsing Governor Moody "as worthy of the highest honor of which the people of this state and nation can bestow," and Jesse Jones of Houston as the "choice of Texas democracy for president," without actually presenting him as a candidate.

Bankhead Cafe Is Remodeled

Mr. F. F. Ater of the Bankhead Cafe has just completed some very extensive improvements and this place now ranks as one of the very best eating places in the city and one of the best in the South Plains country. The entire place has been completely renovated and re-decorated, this work being done under the supervision of Mr. Sam Burns of Ft. Worth and Big Spring.

The color schemes that were used are very pleasing to the eye, soft pleasing colors that blend together well. Additional light has been installed which adds to the appearance and a semi private dining room is now used. By having this type of dining room it gives a more dignified air to the place without sacrificing any of the room.

A cold storage box has been installed in which all perishable food may be kept in perfect safety. This storage box is one of the largest in the city and is a product of Texas, being made in San Antonio and constructed especially for this city.

This box is a large commercial type Frigidaire for Mr. Ater realized that in order to keep foods according to government specifications, a more even and colder temperature must be used, than which can be obtained with ice.

The public in general are fast being educated to the fact that public eating houses that do not use automatic refrigeration are, in a way, dangerous to health, for with ice as a preservative, the different forms of food spoilage and decay can be prevalent long before it can be seen, smelled or tasted but with the cold, dry air used with this system, these dangers are eliminated.

Generally speaking the improvements that Mr. Ater has made, has made the Bankhead Cafe one of the leading places of the city and it will be appreciated by the large trade that it now enjoys.

Passenger Train Hits Automobile

The death trap railroad crossing on Gregg street, came very near claiming two lives about 5:45 o'clock last Friday morning when the fast T. & P. passenger train, The Texan, crashed into an automobile.

The Dodge roadster of Jim Earley was smashed, and Mr. Earley and a companion who were coming from the T. & P. shops where they are employed narrowly escaped death or serious injury by jumping. A string of tank cars obscured their view of the main line of the T. & P. and they did not note the approaching train until it was almost upon them. The auto was hurled, head on, against one of the tank cars and front wheels, windshield and radiator smashed. Luck continued to ride with the T. & P. at this dangerous crossing.

Our people will certainly give a sigh of relief when the viaduct eliminates this dangerous crossing.

Delegates to Have Plenty Cold Water

Drinking water for delegates in session at the Democratic national convention in Houston, Texas, will be chilled by automatic electric coolers. To insure fast cooling, oversized motors will be used, as the water flows from the mains at a temperature of 85 degrees in the summer months.

The cooling equivalent of nine foot melting ice daily will be installed by the equipment to be received according to information Frigidaire, S. L. Everhart, local office of dealer from the main office, "The company at Dayton, Ohio, will give each delegate a liter of 15 pounds of ozonized water in a can, each by the city of Houston purchased further the comfort in order to tending the convention, gates at hand said. "When the Everadours, the city plans to install in public buildings, parks, "ben places."

Howards County's Gasoline Bill

When we were given an estimate of the amount of gasoline sold in Howard County we were inclined to doubt the figures.

According to the figures given us our folks are paying around three quarters of a million dollars annually for gasoline.

It is estimated that the wholesale companies in Big Spring receive 40 carloads of gasoline each month. With the capacity of these cars averaging over 8000 barrels we have a monthly total in excess of 320,000 gallons. Retailing at 22 cents per gallon the monthly gas bill is right around $70,400. And for the year it will be three times this amount, approximately $840,000.

Austin & Jones Entertain Help

Bob Austin and R. O. Jones and Jones daughters of the Austin and Spring element stores in Big Spring fish in a delightful picnic works park Tuesday evening.

Messrs Austin & Jones, who claim to be champion fishermen and who keep their employees entertained with stories of great catches were bantered by great fish to feed the employees. They took the dare and made a they trip to the Pecos river to catch or buy enough fish to feed quite a company.

The employees were game, and provided cakes, bread, pickles and other trimmings and one of the finest feasts ever was enjoyed by the Austin and Jones employees and a few friends.

Twenty fish hungry folks gathered around the board but they were unable to consume the inexhaustible supply of fish. John Curtis acted as chief cook and when it comes to frying catfish there is no one who can hold a candle with him.

It was one of the jolliest picnics ever staged and only one kick was registered. B. O. Jones was on the sick list the next day because he ate as much as would have satisfied two or three ordinary individuals.

FOR SUMMER DRINKS

WHO hasn't fished with zeal and determination and one wobbly straw for the cherry in the bottom of a glass of lemonade? And what a sense of victory hard won there was when the elusive bit of red was finally captured! That one bit of fruit simply made the drink.

But cherries are not the only fruits for which you can fish in summer drinks. There is pineapple. Of course you always save the syrup from a can of pineapple to use in punch, but did you ever think of adding a few tins of pineapple to each glass? Try using them and you will like the beverage even better, for the fruit gives just the tang that may be missing in the taste, and the dressiness that may be lacking in the appearance.

The Final Prill

So when you serve pineapple in salad or dessert, be careful to pour all the syrup into a glass jar and save it; do the same with other fruit syrups; then, as a wonderfully short time, you will find that in your ice-box are enough scraps for a delicious beverage.

Here are some recipes which will be all the better for the final prill of bits of pineapple and dropped in each glass:

Pineapple Morning Glory: Mix two-thirds cup syrup from canned Hawaiian pineapple, one tablespoon honey, each of salt and lemon juice by taste (one or two tablespoons). This makes a delightful treat. Get drink or eat.

Site of Ancient Lost City Found in Iraq

Toledo, Ohio.—The site of the ancient city of Opis, near the Tigris river in Iraq Asia, has been located by an expedition sponsored by the Toledo Museum of Art and the University of Michigan. It was announced here by H. L. M. Godwin, curator of the Toledo museum.

Godwin said the expedition reported finding inscribed bricks identifying as Opis a mound of ruins near the Tigris where excavations have been going on for several months.

The discovery of the bricks confirms an archaeological triumph, Godwin said. Approximately 500 other relics from six periods have been found, he added.

One of the two tablets, upon which rest the success of the expedition, is inscribed in cuneiform characters with a list of dynastic kings, and the other, the more precious, deals with the kings of Akkad, the ancient name for Opis.

The two tablets, one taken from pavement and the other from a side wall, have yet to be read completely, Godwin declared.

Opis was a strategic point in ancient Babylon and the local point of innumerable wars and conquests.

Piercing a mound dotting an Iraq plain, the explorers found a temple site, a cemetery site, a part of a city wall, pavement, foundations and several wells. The wells yielded a wealth of relics.

Recall Dickens' Pain at Seeing Own Play

London.—The announcement of Eden Philpotts that he had never seen one of his own plays and furthermore that he never would has prompted curiosity as to whether he fears the same experience which Charles Dickens suffered when he saw the dramatization of "Oliver Twist."

The night Dickens went to see "Oliver Twist" he sat in a box with friends, but before the end of the first act he was so horrified by the performance and the manner in which his own words came back to him over the footlights that he sat on the floor so that he could not see the stage and the audience could not see him; and there he remained until the final curtain.

Two of the greatest successes of recent years have been Philpotts' "The Farmer's Wife" and "Yellow Sands," but he was never even in the theater district when those plays were on. "The Farmer's Wife" ran nearly three years and "Yellow Sands" more than a year.

A few good shoves would put Big Spring over the hump. We could insure the future of our home town by landing a office building, refinery, pipe lines, a north and south railroad and a few industries such as a creamery, poultry packing plant and other manufacturing plants.

"Why Should I Buy a Goodyear Tire?"

Come into our store, and ask this question, man to man: "Why should I buy your tire?" You won't need to ask another.

All we want, whether you buy or not, is an opportunity to explain why the Goodyear is called The World's Greatest Tire.

Here's why:

- 1 Its sturdy carcass is made of Supertwist, which means fewer fabric failures and less tire changes on the road.
- 2 Its new design of tread gives the best traction and car control ever afforded by an automobile tire.
- 3 Its tenacious ability to grip the road gives the greatest possible degree of safety.
- 4 Increased area of road contact and added All-Weather blocks insure slow, even tread wear and greater satisfaction to the user.
- 5 Quietness and smooth running are also made certain by the new design of tread.
- 6 This new Goodyear is admittedly the World's Most Beautiful Tire.

The best proof of all this is the tire itself. Come in today and see this masterpiece, the Goodyear All-Weather Balloon

Desired North Light Proved Not So True

New York.—Science has cast another tradition into the ash heap. North sky light, long accepted by artists, engineers, housewives and store clerks as the perfect standard of white light for examining color has been found to vary in intensity and color, not only from day to day, but also from hour to hour.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers is responsible for the latest upset. North sky light is not white, but blue, it was found, and examination of colors under such light exaggerates blue and minimizes reds and yellows. The engineers declare that noon sunlight and not north sky should be accepted as the standard, and that artificial white light for color discrimination purposes should approximate noon sunlight.

WILD HORSES OUTGROWTH OF FEW LEFT BY DE SOTO

Indian Moved on Foot Before Whites Lost Animals and They Multiplied Here.

Washington.—Herds of wild horses have recently been rounded up and slaughtered in Oregon and Washington, that their hides might be preserved and their meat sold to fox farmers.

"It is an ignominious end to horses whose lineage could be traced to the first horse families of America," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society. "And, incidentally, it brings to mind one of the most remarkable revolutions in folk customs that the world has known in the last 500 years."

Practically all of the wild horses of the West came from the few animals which escaped from the army of Cortez in Mexico, between 1529 and 1530, or from the still fewer horses that De Soto's adventurers left on the west of the Mississippi in 1542. Although horses had lived in North America in prehistoric times, as shown by fossil bones, none had existed on the continent for thousands of years when Europeans first landed.

"The Indian lived without the help of domestic animals save the dog. When he moved, he went on foot. As a result, both the hunting and agricultural Indian lived in semipermanent villages; and the hunters did not range over a large territory."

"But when the escaped Spanish horses had multiplied and began to appear in herds on the western prairies, the Indians caught them, tamed them, and began hunting the buffalo from horseback. Soon they adopted a roving life, following the herds on horseback until their winter's supply of meat was obtained and cured. This movement over a greater territory brought the tribes into regions previously recognized as the abode of other tribes, and was followed. The western tribes soon were in a continual state of warfare, for which the horse was largely responsible."

So rapidly did the herds of horses increase (mustangs, they came to be called) that they were in a fair way to equal the buffalo in numbers. The advance of civilization and the fencing of the prairies put an end to their increase, however, and in late decades they have run wild in relatively few regions in the least settled parts of such states as Nebraska, Arizona, Nevada, Oregon and Washington."

On the third day after marriage the San Blas Indian groom of Panama lifts the veil of his bride and sees her face for the first time.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC: Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation, which may appear in the columns of this paper, will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to attention of the editor.

With vacation days at hand the parents of town boys are anxiously casting about for some employment for the long summer hours. It is a difficult problem, indeed, particularly in the smaller towns. There is not much that a boy can do outside his own home and too often, he is not required to do what he might about the house. Without a doubt, it is easier to let children run and play than it is to teach them to do useful things and so they are allowed to "run wild" until the habit becomes so fixed that they resent being asked to work. Then the parents wonder why, it is possible for a boy to have a garden plot or a few chickens in almost any small town but even this outlet for his excessive energy is denied him in cities. There is no end to the mischief that a bunch of idle boys may get into and the thoughtful parents spend many anxious hours endeavoring to provide appropriate occupations for their vacation time. The sentiment for all-year-round school seems to develop very slowly in spite of the difficulty that most parents encounter in finding ways and means which will prevent the annual summer vacation from being something even worse than wasted time. Because the summer is the busiest time on the farm the parents in rural communities are not confronted with this difficulty to so great an extent, for which they should be duly grateful, but at that it is not always easy to persuade a youngster of the superior attraction of pulling weeds or cultivating garden when he wants to play "two old cats." The idea that there is plenty of time to teach children to work "when they are older" doesn't work out very well for unless they are taught to assume responsibility for small tasks early in life, they will be very apt to consider themselves imposed upon when work is required of them later.—Southwest Plainman.

THE NAKED TRUTH It is said by the ancients that Truth while bathing had her clothes stolen by error, and to this circumstance is attributed the fact that we have had the "naked truth" with us ever since. Today the naked truth is as unpopular as in the days of Socrates. The brazen liar is horrified at her audacity, and indignantly protests that her nakedness is not supposed. The polished villain whose culture and good clothes hide his leprosy, turns up his eyes in holy horror at her shocking indecency. Yes, we have five keepers and gamblers who can give ministers of the Gospel and social reformers pointers on purity of thought and elegance of diction. It takes a full-fledged adulterer or an unscrupulous libertine to point out the obscenity or immodesty of an exhibition of the social evil. It is the business cut-throat or the political hunchback that waxes eloquent on the necessity of preachers leaving business and political issues alone. You mean old baggage, mean your ways and neither the preacher's shots nor the editor's price will get under your hide.

The editor of the Olney Enterprise won a prize given by a nationally circulated magazine for giving the best solution of this question "What My Town Needs Most." Editor Shuffler's answer that won the prize was this: "Six or eight funerals rightly placed." What Olney needs most is what nearly any town needs, although funerals don't especially mean slow music, a hearse, floral tributes and mourning friends stumbling blocks to progress can be removed in other ways than death, and the best way to remove them is, convert them and let them put forth the same effort in building as they did in obstructing. If every knocker would use the same energy for progress that he uses for pulling back, there is no limit to what could be accomplished and the world soon discover that he had nothing at all to bellyache about. Progress is not expensive; it doesn't cost money or raise taxes. But standing still and knocking is very expensive. It reduces property values, decreases business and otherwise is expensive. Let's all get on the band wagon of progress.—Honey Grove Citizen.

IT WAS Phil V. Jones' custom to leave his office at about four o'clock and drift down to the little avenue parlor where The Blinn held forth. Under one of Abe's counters was a pile of philosophical works which he read with understanding, and Phil enjoyed chatting with the wise, intelligent old Jew. Besides, the shop to Phil was full of romance in the thousands of stories its counters told and to the people who came there. And it was there that he saw Tice Girl. He was in the back room when she came, and he saw the whole proceedings. His interest was aroused still more as he saw she was offering Abe some old-fashioned jewel, and accepted his price without objection or comment; and then Phil saw her, as Abe turned to his cash register, kiss the jewel, press it with white fingers before she laid it down.

"Some sweetheart's affair," Phil thought, but as she went out, he asked Abe to let him see it. It was a pendant, and a valuable one. He turned it over and read an inscription—"To Ruth from Mother." He stared at it, stirred by the few words.

"What arrangements did she make, Abe?" he asked. "She told him a week, and added that she had left her address so he could forward the pendant when she sent money for the keepsake. Phil advised himself, "and she is of no common sort."

When over a week passed and the jewel was not reclaimed, he acted quickly. He bought the jewel and went to the address. He found it a clean but shabby boarding house in a dull and dismal end of the great city. After some debating with himself, he made up his mind to follow the trail to the end, even if the end was rubbish but not romance. He engaged a room, and that evening through the landlady, Mrs. McCarty, he met The Girl.

It was a brief meeting, but it told him much. She looked even more weary and worn than the week before, and in her brown eyes were shadows—and her name was not Ruth, but Georgia Wright.

Then he lured her out for an evening, although Mrs. McCarty had warned him that the "girl turned ten down cold."

Using all his skill, Phil managed to break through her depression until the shadows went from her eyes. She seemed to forget herself under his fun and the cheery places which he took her, and he sensed the real girl under the shadows. In a week's time, he knew he was hopefully in love with her.

Weeks later, in the pleasant, half-dusk of the quiet restaurant which was their chosen place, he leaned back and looked at her. He had taken her to a happy play that night, and a glow had come to her cheeks and a light to her eyes.

"But—," he began, and stopped short. He had not used that name.

"Stull? How did you know?" she whispered. He reached in his pocket and handed her the box with the pendant. She took it, looked and pressed it convulsively to her lips. He saw under the soft light what he knew were tears.

Then, gently, he told her the story of his first sight of her in Abe's shop, and what he had done since. She listened in a tense silence that his keen and sympathetic mind told him meant a struggle for self-control, and he sought to aid her.

"Phil, why have you done this?" she asked enthusiastically. "The reason that a man gives truthfully probably has but once in a lifetime—because I liked you from the first, and because I love you now," he answered quietly.

"Please, could we go home now?" she whispered. As he turned from the attendant at the checking booth, he was almost startled at the change in the girl he loved—some mysterious change that made her beautiful in spite of the simple, cheap dress she wore.

A taxi was at hand, and soon they were rolling toward the city's outskirts. Phil was glad it was a long way home; even if she were to pass out of his life, he would have her with him for a while anyway. He glanced at her and saw that the little box was held tightly still as a child might cling to it.

He slipped his arm around her shoulder, and started to speak. She suddenly seemed to crumple against him, and with joy thrilling him, he kissed her wet cheek where the choked-back tears had fallen.

"I do love you, but—" Then she told the old woman story: a girl whose mother had died, left in the care of a father to whom love was little or nothing, an engagement to her father's friend, her realization and her breaking of it, her father's anger, a wild scene—then her departure, and her struggle, untrained, alone in a great city, the change of her name to avoid pursuit; and finally, her hatred of love, and all it suggested.

"That's because you don't know what it is—" he kissed her as he added: "I'll teach you." She sighed and relaxed, smugly against him as a child might, sure at last of love and protection. (Copyright.)

Removing Ink

On account of the difference in composition of writing inks, it is impossible to give exact directions for removing ink stains; for instance, for a carpet. Absorbents may be tried first, and then repeated applications of oxalic acid, potassium permanganate, or the cut surface of a lemon alternated with rinsings with a clean, wet cloth. Rub the spot then with a clean, dry cloth, and after the carpet is dry, brush up the nap with a stiff brush.

Up the Mohawk Trail

By DOUGLAS ROTH

OLIVE MACFARLAND had succeeded in eluding the other members of the party with whom she had motored up the Mohawk trail and into the old Vermont town wherein they had decided to spend a few days. She had stolen out of her room early in the morning, begged the old cook in the kitchen of the ten-house in which they were staying for a cup of coffee and a sandwich, an extra bill to take in her pocket, and had ex-coated across the river alone, on foot, into New Hampshire.

When she had spoken of eluding the great mountain that overlooking the river there had been no wild enthusiasm on the part of the others. So she had decided to climb the hills alone. She was the only thing to be feared, in Olive's mind.

Enjoying every moment of the morning, she had climbed up, up the narrow trail and not encountered a human soul. She had sung aloud, she had gathered blueberries, she had sat down on the soft, tufted soil of pine needles. Her every nerve was alive; she was happy—almost.

Olive always added softly to herself, the adviser. For she was not altogether happy when, in her heart was the feeling that a big thing had passed her by. She had not won the love of the man whom she had adored since school days.

Now, as she climbed up the mountain trail, supported by the big stick she had picked up on the way, she thought of him. He seemed to be vividly before her here in the silent places of the hills.

At last she sat down beneath three friendly white birch trees and unwrapped her meager lunch. How often, back in her school days she had sat beneath the birch trees and eaten her midday meal together with the girls in her botany class—and the other branches, in the preparatory school in the Middle West to which Olive had been sent before entering college. Every girl in the class had fancied herself in love with the big, handsome, kindly professor, but he had treated them all alike, as little girls, and was interested in teaching them all the growing things. The girls enjoyed their hours with him more than they would admit to each other.

Olive had always been a student of nature, and perhaps in her George Darling found a particularly companionable mind. At least, Olive felt that he liked her, though she dared not believe that he thought of her in any way save as a pupil among the others.

Today she sat dreaming of him—for in perspective he had grown more truly to be her ideal man—her eyes sought a leaf growing near by that seemed to recall memories of him. She reached out to pick the little cluster of juniper leaves and found the white berries, once so familiar to her, growing on the stem.

"Checkerberries!" she cried aloud, "I have not gathered any for years."

She found a number of the tiny plants and gathered them all into a bunch and sat down again.

"You're right," he would remember her name if he should send him a specimen and ask him for a description of it?" she soliloquized.

It must have been the cushions of the mountains that got into her blood, for then she descended she was literally walking on air, so lightly did she touch the paths, and in her pocket were the checkerberries with their pungent fragrance, recalling those happy schooldays. In her soul was a determination to see if these leaves gathered in the remote but wonderful woods, could spell romance for her.

She stopped at the post office on her way back to join the others that night, and when her friends scolded her for coming, for having taken the lonely trail alone, she did not seem to mind.

It took only time for a return post to reach her before Olive had a letter in a hand once familiar to her.

"Dear Olive," it ran, "I can't not only the wintergreen as I like into the little cluster of leaves you have sent me from the mountains, I sense our romance, dear, in their fragrance. I have been wondering, day after day, if you would ever recall me. When you were in school I dared not let you know I loved you; it would not have been fair to you. I wanted you before you were to join your beautiful young life to my old, moldy, colorless existence. But—this little cluster of leaves brings you back so poignantly to my life that I must tell you of my love. Have you remembered? Do you care? May I come and tell you?"

There was more, but Olive could not read it with difficulty. Her heart was full to overflowing. The seven years during which she had been out of his presence had only made him more dear, and yet she had feared that he had forgotten her. Now to know that she was all the world to him was almost more than she could understand.

When she wrote to him again, it was to tell him where he might find her on her return to town.

She wore a little cluster of checkerberries on her coat and he pulled a pressed leaf from his pocket when they met.

Beautiful and impressive were the services conducted Sunday evening in the auditorium of the First Methodist church for the members of the 1928 graduating class. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. Burke Culpepper, evangelist an eloquent and wonderful message to the large gathering who crowded the auditorium to attend these services.

Lester Fisher is going to show Geo. White, Reps Guitar and other would-be farmers how to farm this year. The rains were just about right out his way and he has 900 acres of crops planted. He will have 1400 acres in crops on his fine farm in the Knott community this year.

Petty thieving is again on the increase and auto owners complain of these thieves stripping various accessories off their cars. We need a few more officers and detectives on the night shift to capture this bunch of crooks.

Some of these days the organizations of our city will learn to steer clear of Rodeos and other schemes which need the sponsoring of responsible people to come into a community. It's ninety nine chances to one that you are going to get stung when you put your name on the dotted line.

That's why it is time to equip your car with fresh new Silvertowns—the best defense against tire trouble—the surest investment in long mileage which we can offer you. By the "plate glass test" you can see why Goodrich Silvertowns deliver such remarkable mileage. Glance at the picture. Let your eye follow those grooves, and you will know why the rubber in this tread does not "pile up," causing rapid, uneven, choppy wear. Because those three deep grooves can close up so easily, the massive shoulders are protected from harmful distortion. Gambling Devices Are Prohibited

Some years ago the good women of Big Spring circulated a petition asking that Carnivals with gambling devices be prohibited from coming to our city...

In keeping with this request and carrying out the letter of the law the city officials have decreed that nine of the gambling devices operated in connection with the Rodeo, being conducted under the auspices of the City Federation must be discontinued.

We are satisfied the members of the City Federation did not know these gambling games were to be operated for many of them signed the petition opposing the bringing of Carnivals to our city.

The officers will be commended for insisting that the laws be enforced.

Californian Likes Big Spring

Ernest Hayward, building contractor of Los Angeles, California, who came for a few days visit with his friend, E. F. Robbins and family, has decided to spend the summer and fall here, and may locate here permanently if Mrs. Hayward can be persuaded to give Los Angeles the cold shoulder.

It is very seldom any city can win Californians away from the Golden State, but the three days visit in Big Spring and a survey of the oil and agricultural possibilities has caused Mr. Hayward to become a real booster for our city.

The Sign of Violet and Blue

By MARTHA BLAKE

"THE Susan Jane Gift Shop," These words pointed in a vivid violet on a soft blue background, startling, but not inhospitable, greeted young Dr. Lester Clark when he arrived at last at the objective of his long trip to the East.

Lester Clark had not actually lived in Sprucehurst for a decade or so. He had gone away to college and medical school, with only vacations spent at home. Then his father, old Doctor Clark, had died suddenly while Lester was an inmate at a big New York hospital, an aunt had closed the house, disposed of the furniture in storage or at the second-hand stores.

Lester Clark stood looking rather blankly at the Susan Jane Gift shop. Just beyond the pile of gay wools he caught sight of a neatly coiffed chestnut head. The head was bent as if its owner was intent on fine work. Doubtless this was Susan Jane.

So Lester Clark went to the office of Quick & Snell before taking time to look up any of his old friends in Sprucehurst. Mr. Quick was embarrassed. Still he felt sure that within a day or so matters could be adjusted.

Lester Clark had so definitely made up his mind on starting in in his father's old office that this information seemed to leave him at sea.

It was on Lester's third call that first day, after they had read through the lease with the greatest scrutiny, that Mr. Quick seemed to see a way out.

"Of course," he said, with a mild smile on his face, "it isn't likely that Susan Jane will remain in business—as it were—indefinitely."

"That isn't it. She really seems to be going very well. The point is that Miss Jane is more than commonly attractive. I know of two—I might say three—young men who would marry her tomorrow if she consented."

Lester had a distinct anticipatory image of this Susan Jane person—aggressive, calculating, possibly pretty; just the kind of woman that would appeal to Quick, with a horizon that stretched only from one business deal to another.

Still Lester decided that he would try to appeal to the sentiment of this unyielding Susan Jane person if he could.

Susan Jane proved disarming. There was nothing the least aggressive or stubborn in her appearance. She stood before him as he explained, her shadowless blue eyes opened round, looking straight into his. They were disconcerting, those eyes, and, as Susan Jane stood there the picture of trustful innocence, he did not know whether the real Susan Jane beneath was laughing at him; whether she was about to yield to his request, or whether she was really flirting with him just a little. The effect was that Lester Clark didn't carry out his errand just as he had planned it.

When he left he shook hands, and with a boldness unlike him held the hand and drew Susan Jane a step nearer to him as he looked into the blue eyes. "Be a good girl, now, and give up the lease," he said.

"When are you coming again?" "Tomorrow," he said, and they both laughed. He was almost out of the door and turned back. "I have heard that you may have to give up anyway," he said. "Mr. Quick says you will probably get married."

"Perhaps I shall," she said. Doctor Clark's courtship was a quick one. His days were spent in pursuit of Susan Jane, fathomless eyes and waiting for the intoxication of her laugh, and at night after he was away from her he used to steal time from thinking of her to make plans about the office when he had his sign in place of the violet and blue one. He proposed within a week of his return to Sprucehurst. Susan Jane accepted. The next day he gained her promise to be married within the month.

"And I suppose people will say that the only reason you married me was to get me out of my shop," laughed Susan Jane.

Party Bitterness Forgotten The two administrations of James Monroe are known in American history as "the Era of Good Feeling."

There was never a time before or since when party bitterness was so nearly absent in our political affairs. Through the conciliatory policy of the President the former Federalists united with the Republicans to support the administration. When Monroe ran the second time he received every electoral vote except one.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Cooling Systems For Theatres

The coolest spots in Big Spring during the summer months will be the two R. & R. theatres. A temperature of 70 degrees will be maintained throughout the hottest days. This is made possible by the installation of a new cooling system at the R. & R. Lyric and R. & R. Queen theatres. A carrier air washer, cooling system purchased from the Buffalo Engineering company of Buffalo, N. Y., one of the latest cooling devices on the market, is now in operation at these two places. The air passes through a solid sheet of water, which cools the air and at the same time removes all of the impurities. The theatre became so chilly one evening this week, that it was necessary to shut off this cooling system.
