

Swift plant to close doors Saturday

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Reporter

While Saturday is to be the last day of operations at the Swift Independent Packing Company plant west of Hereford, some of the 490 employees will lose their jobs as early as Thursday.

The company announced Monday morning that because of "continuing losses at the facility", it will close the Hereford plant and increase production at its automated, more efficient plant at Dumas.

SIPCO General Manager Bud Nary said this morning that Thursday will be the last day for slaughter, so the 120 or so employees associated with that end of production will be terminated that day. Friday will be the last day for cutting for box beef, he said, and the plant will be "cleaned out" on Saturday.

"Failure of the Hereford plant to earn its way has not been the fault of the people who have worked there," said Chairman and Chief Executive Officer John A. Copeland.

Nary emphasized that point this morning. "The people are not the reason it is closing," he said. "They have nothing to be ashamed of. They did us a good job!"

Nary said the plant at Dumas is more efficient because it is computer-controlled, as opposed to the local plant which he described as "100 percent manual." Up to 150 hourly workers from Hereford can hope to find work at the Dumas plant, Nary predicted.

490 employees lose jobs

Copeland said Swift Independent will retain the plant, which could be re-opened if economic conditions for the box beef business and cattle procurement become more favorable.

SIPCO acquired the then-idle Hereford plant in July 1982 from Armour and Company.

"Recently increased boxing capacity in the area coupled with declining demand for beef made it difficult to realize adequate (profit) margins at the Hereford plant," Copeland said. "Further, with the long-term outlook being for lower supplies of cattle in the High Plains, the prospects of better livestock procurement conditions in the future remain slight."

Swift Independent is the nation's second largest fresh meats business with interests in beef, pork and lamb, and a network of sales and distribution centers to serve the retail and food service markets. The local plant is currently rated at an annual capacity of 400,000 head of cattle. Total company cattle slaughter will be reduced approximately 15 percent because of the shutdown, Copeland said.

In addition to the Hereford and Dumas plants, SIPCO has beef plants at Guymon, Okla. and Des Moines, Ia.

Things look 'bad' for laid-off workers

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Reporter

Alicia Moore, who depended on her paycheck from Swift Independent Packing Company to support her three children, says "things look pretty bad right now."

Moore and two of her co-workers were interviewed as they left work around 3:30 p.m. Monday—the day they learned the plant would close and their jobs end by Saturday.

The Hereford woman has been with the company nearly two years, so she will be eligible for unemployment benefits. But for a single parent, an employment check doesn't stretch very far.

Lester Rape, officer manager of the Hereford office of the Texas Employment Commission, said those who qualify for maximum benefits will receive $182 a week. The figure goes down from there depending on wages during 1984 and length of employment with SIPCO.

Rape said most of the 490 employees who will be out of work Saturday will be eligible for some sort of benefit. The local office had already begun placement efforts by noon Monday.

"We're working on a deal to send some of them to a plant at Plainview," Rape said. "Of course some can go to the Dumas plant, and maybe some to Friona." SIPCO officials said increased production at its Dumas facility could mean as many as 150 new jobs there.

Rape added that not all of the workers will have to be placed at another meat processing plant.

"They have a variety of job experiences," he said.

Manuel Riojas, 22, worked in a print shop in Amarillo before joining SIPCO nine months ago. The Hereford native said he will "just look for another job and draw unemployment."

Jose Ramos, 29, had only been with the company one month. "I'll work in the fields now," he said.

But according to Ninfa Leal, a one-year employee, even that alternative may not be available to some.

"The people from the Valley are promised jobs before they come up. Unless you know somebody it won't be that easy to get a job in the fields."

Moore said medical insurance benefits will continue until the end of the month, "but that doesn't help the ladies who are expecting babies."

She said those who have vacation time coming will see that pay reflected on their final checks.

Henry Billington, 29, has been driving from Clovis every day for the past year. He said he can live on unemployment for a while, and try to get hired again by one of the meat processors he has worked for in the past.

His brother Curtis Billington, who commutes from Amarillo, said he will "take a vacation" before looking for another job.

Asked if there was temptation to give less than 100 percent under the circumstances, the men replied that "everybody's doing their job."

According to Rape, the county's unemployment rate will rise to 12 or

The parking lot at Swift Independent Packing Company west of Hereford will be empty after Saturday—the last day of operations for the three-year-old plant.

Rural citizens discuss crime watch program

By JERI CURTIS
Managing Editor

Velcro strips and shredded paper can prevent rural crime.

Those unlikely suggestions made sense when explained Monday night during the first of several Country Crime Watch programs sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office and the Panhandle Regional Crime Prevention program.

John Bradshaw, who heads the regional program via a state grant through Amarillo College, said marking valuables and delaying the burglar are very good deterrents to rural crime.

But paper and Velcro?

Shredded paper with a person's Texas driver's license number on each piece can be baled into hay and mixed with grain as a deterrent and for identification if stolen. Bradshaw said the paper is harmless to animals and the shreds would be washed out when grain is prepared for human consumption.

The Texas driver's license is advised for use instead of a Social Security number because the latter cannot be traced. Bradshaw said that even when he was a federal agent, Social Security numbers were off limits for tracing people.

He suggests typing the page full of the identification number and then cutting strips.

The Velcro is handy for allowing windows to remain open, yet somewhat secure, when nobody is home. By attaching a Velcro strip to the window frame, then attaching the other strip to a piece of wood an inch or two shorter than the frame the window can be left open, but cannot be pushed open higher from the outside since the board prohibits.

His two unusual tips for crime prevention were accompanied by the ordinary — but oft neglected — cautions.

As shown in a film he presented, the first step is to deny the thief the opportunity.

Bradshaw said that one city in the east cut car thefts in half by simply having a campaign with the theme "Take your keys and lock your car."

He suggested that farmers who must leave heavy equipment parked near roads take the distributor with them to deny a thief an opportunity. He noted that the average time it takes to steal a piece of farm equipment is four minutes.

Keeping valuable locked and hidden keeps the temptation away.

A second step is to deter. Lighting will keep away some burglars away, lest they be seen.

Bradshaw said that making an empty home look lived in, perhaps by using automatic timers, can deter burglars.

He told a story about a mysterious burglary in another panhandle city in which a patio door was broken out into the yard. Once the subject was caught, lawmen asked why the door was broken outward instead inward. The subject explained that as he tiptoed around the house, a radio came on and he thought someone was getting out of bed for shift work — thus a hasty exit he chose. The family was on vacation, but had left the alarm clock on.

Detection is another key to prevention.

Whether an elaborate alarm system or a trusting dog protecting his domain, the noise from either makes a burglar skittish to hang around.

Delay the burglar, too. Make him think about going through a fence, over barbed wire, or across a ditch. Make him have to stop and check a lock. Chances are the burglar will not want to take the time to mess with it, and go on to an easier prey.

Heeding all the precautions is not enough, and the extra step is what the panhandle program is really about. Bradshaw practically asks people to get nosy. If something looks suspicious, call the law.

"Police would rather make 100 calls that don't pan out, than one that does turn out," Bradshaw said before the program. "They'd rather be rolling on a call than out cruising patrol."

No opposition to county budget

As required by law, Deaf Smith County Commissioners staged a public hearing Monday morning on the proposed 1985-86 budget—but the public didn't show.

In the absence of any comment, commissioners will most likely approve the $3.9 million budget that resulted from afternoon workshops during the past month.

County auditor Alex Schroeter told commissioners that because of revaluations currently being conducted by the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District, the tax base will most likely increase.

"If the projected increase in the tax base is correct," Schroeter said, "We'll be able to make this budget without changing the tax rate." The county's current rate is 51.3 cents per $100 valuation.

The budget is up from last year's figure of $3,540,000 with increases made in such areas as departmental expenses, the county library budget, road and bridge expenses and insurance coverage. There was an $111,971 increase in the county's general budget, Schroeter pointed out, which includes payment on bonds used to finance jail renovation.

Commissioners are to officially approve the budget at their regular meeting June 24.

Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul met with the court to talk about the formation of an employment grievance committee. The three-person committee has been ordered by U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson as part of the settlement of a hiring discrimination suit against the county.

The committee will serve as an appeals vehicle for anyone who feels he was not hired by the county because of racial discrimination. The steps to be taken by the unsuccessful candidate must be explained at the time he applies for the job, according to Robinson's order.

Saul reminded commissioners that the county will choose one person; Texas Rural aid, which represented the plaintiffs, another person, and the third member must be agreed upon by both parties. County Judge Glen Nelson asked commissioner Troy Don Moore, a licensed attorney, to see that the committee is named by the June 18 deadline.

Lake board changes venue

Members of the Buffalo Lake Water District board will meet in new surroundings tonight—the Randall County County Commissioner's courtroom.

The board was ousted from its meeting place at the Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge headquarters south of Umbarger after announcing at last month's meeting that it would oppose a dam permit to be issued by the Texas Department of Water Resources.

The 7:30 p.m. meeting will include a report from member Darrell Carey, an attorney, about his efforts to gain approval for a tax election to be held sooner than the law provides for.

The board will also discuss the position it will take at a July 2 hearing in Canyon conducted by TDWR over the controversial dam permit. The dam is a small structure constructed at the southwest end of the drained lake to impound water for waterfowl and other wildlife.

Hospital furloughs employees

Due to an extreme drop in census, Deaf Smith General Hospital has furloughed the equivalent of about 30 full time employees, according to administrator Jim Bullard. The short leave was effective Monday night.

"We have five physicians on vacations, so the census is down to a ridiculously low point," Bullard explained. With a low census and less work, the workers are to take absence days without pay. Bullard said the hospital will recall the workers when they are needed, most likely early next week when some of the doctors return from vacations.

Bullard said the furlough was pretty evenly distributed throughout the departments.

Gerry Hollinger, director of nursing, said the hospital census was at five patients when the decision was made, however the number had increased to 11 by this morning.

Nine alcohol arrests made

Hereford police made nine alcohol-related arrests over the weekend and Monday, which included one juvenile arrest.

There was also one arrest for disorderly conduct after a man was caught urinating in public.

Investigations included breaking up four domestic disturbances, two of which resulted in alleged assaults. No charges have been filed.

Taylor Petroleum Company reported the theft of $812 cash from a bank deposit bag, and Rivera Produce told police flowers in front of the West Highway 60 business were trampled on.

Hereford Volunteer Firemen made one run, to battle a wheat field fire on land owned by Lawrence Ruther 20 miles northwest of Hereford.

Sheriff's deputies made two arrests—one for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and another after a man created a disturbance over being served civil papers.

School board meets today

The Hereford Schools board of trustees will meet today at its new 6 p.m. time in the administration building.

In addition to routine reports, the agenda includes an item concerning a letter from the Texas Association of School Boards concerning the controversial teacher survey.

Among other items slated are discussion of the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills results, Walcott school requesting free tuition for transfers, a career ladder report, bids on floor covering, regional service center contracts, and a curriculum report.

No witnesses at AT&T hearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Not a single public witness appeared for the start of a long-distance rate hearing but a lawyer for 300 Texas cities suggested the Public Utility Commission staff already had sided with AT&T, which submitted the rate increase request.

American Telephone & Telegraph, the state's largest long-distance company, has asked the PUC for a $139 million increase, and a staff accountant has recommended hikes in basic rates and service charges of $81 million.

AT&T also would net nearly $31 million more in gross receipts taxes that it no longer has to pay because the Legislature eliminated that tax on telephone companies.

Grace Casstevens, a lawyer for the cities, indicated Monday that she had misgivings about the PUC staff's recommendations. She asked PUC Administrative Law Judge Phillip Holder for permission to cross-examine the staff, which is charged with representing the public in rate cases.

The cities had recommended an $18 million rate increase for AT&T, but Ms. Casstevens said the cities were lowering that recommendation to about $12 million.

She said the PUC staff is "basically in line with AT&T on most major issues in this case."

Holder responded that if he detected "flagrant instances of friendly cross-examination" by the staff on the AT&T rate proposal, he would consider the cities' request at that time.

Polygraph test on Lucas noted

WACO, Texas (AP) — Alleged serial killer Henry Lee Lucas' new attorney says his client had passed a polygraph test indicating involvement in no more than three murders.

The lawyer, Gary L. Richardson, also said Monday that there he has evidence that Lucas might have been drugged around the time that he confessed to hundreds of murders. But Richardson offered no evidence at a news conference in Waco.

Richardson, who has offices in Tulsa, Okla., and Dallas, said he has signed a contract with Lucas to represent the former drifter, who at one time claimed he had killed more than 300 people.

Richardson said Lucas "was asked about specific counties and specific states."

Lucas has told law officials he can "beat" polygraph examinations.

"Most people would like to think they can beat a lie-detector test, and I think there are some examiners where a person could beat the lie-detector test. But, with the caliber of person who administered this test, I don't think Lucas could have beat it," Richardson said.

"I'm not convinced (Lucas) is guilty of even three murders. I need some additional facts and evidence," Richardson said.

Von Bulow cleared of charges

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Well-wishers cheered as Claus von Bulow emerged from his retrial cleared of charges he twice tried to kill his heiress wife, whose son said, "We know and he knows he tried to murder our mother."

Von Bulow, 6-foot-3 with an erect bearing and penetrating blue eyes, nodded briefly and smiled as he strode victoriously through the crush of supporters, photographers and reporters, many of whom shouted their congratulations and shook his hand. The crowd later booed prosecutors who spoke to reporters.

But a block away from the Providence County Superior Courthouse where von Bulow on Monday was acquitted after a four-year legal battle, his stepchildren portrayed the 58-year-old Danish-born aristocrat as a villain who got away.

Possible Mengele remains examined

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A possible fracture in the pelvic bone of remains unearthed last week has strengthened suspicion that the dead man may be Nazi doctor Josef Mengele, who reportedly once suffered a broken pelvis.

"If we can confirm the fracture, it will be a great step forward," said Dr. Wilmes Roberto Teixeira, a member of the forensic team examining the body.

Experts today begin X-raying the 208 bones they say could be those of the notorious "Angel of Death," who performed cruel medical experiments at Auschwitz concentration camp and is blamed in the deaths of about 400,000 Jews.

"We have found nothing to suggest it is not Mengele," Teixeira said after preliminary tests Monday revealed what Teixeira identified as an abnormality on the pelvic bone that could have been a fracture.

Teixeira said there had been reports that Mengele once suffered a fractured pelvis. He said the team was awaiting data on Mengele from the Los Angeles-based Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies.

Rabbi Abraham Cooper, the center's assistant dean, said it was sending to Brazil information about a 1943 motorcycle accident in which Mengele hurt. However, he said the documents were not specific about Mengele's injuries.

Agca says assassination was ordered

ROME (AP) — Mehmet Ali Agca, convicted for attempting to kill Pope John Paul II, testified today that Soviet diplomats ordered and paid for the assassination attempt four years ago in St. Peter's Square.

Testifying in the trial of three Bulgarians and four Turks charged with complicity in the May 13, 1981, shooting, Agca, already serving a jail sentence for trying to kill the Polish-born pontiff, said he wanted to make a brief statement before answering questions.

"The order to kill the pope came from the Soviet Embassy in Sofia (the Bulgarian capital)," Agca declared. "The Grey Wolves acted with the complicity of diplomats in Rome that included Aivazov, Kolev and Antonov."

The names he mentioned are of the three Bulgarians on trial. The Grey Wolves are a Turkish guerrilla group to which Agca belonged.

U.N. seeks to treat hostage

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.N. officials have asked the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army militia for permission to send a medical team to treat one of 21 hostages from a contingent of Finnish U.N. peacekeeping soldiers.

U.N. spokesman Timur Goksel said U.N. officials met Monday with the South Lebanon Army militia, which took the Finns hostage last Friday, and the Israeli army. It asked to send a medical team to treat one of the 21 Finnish hostages, who had become ill, he said.

The Christian-led militia is holding the Finns hostage to force Amal, the Shiite Moslem militia, to release 11 South Lebanon Army members. The leader of the 11, Ali Jebber, has told reporters he and his men are Moslems who were forced to join the militia.

AUSTIN (AP) — Halley's Comet, which returns to Earth's skies late in November, likely won't be as dramatic as many laymen think, scientists say.

The comet will be behind the sun much of the time, invisible to the unaided eye, says Harlan Smith, director of the University of Texas' McDonald Observatory.

Unless one is far from city lights and equipped with a telescope or binoculars, the comet will be hardly noticeable among the rest of the stars in the night sky of the Northern Hemisphere, Smith said.

The comet named for Edmond Halley sweeps through the inner solar system and past Earth once every 76 years as part of a long, elliptical orbit that takes it beyond the orbit of the planet Neptune.

Halley was a British astronomer who first calculated the orbit of the comet in 1682. The comet is known to have been observed as far back as 240 B.C. by Chinese astronomers. But until Halley's work, it was thought that each sighting was a fiery new comet rather than another visit by the same body. Comets also were associated with the deaths of kings and other unfortunate events.

The previous visit of the comet, in the spring of 1910, was not much more exciting, despite widespread fears of imminent doom.

But Halley's came closer to the Earth then and was visible in the Northern Hemisphere just after sunset and before sunrise for about six months, and grew brighter each day.

As the orbit of the Earth took it through the tail of the comet, some Americans braved widespread reports of poison gas to gather on rooftops to party, and to use empty champagne bottles to catch what they thought would be lots of red dust.

Halley's appeared over Austin in late May 1910. It was visible just after sunset, halfway up the sky from the eastern horizon and, coincidentally, on the night of a lunar eclipse. A newspaper reported the eclipse was memorable, but the comet was not.

"Austinites saw Halley's much-advertised comet last night, but the celestial derelict failed to do any spectacular tricks," the paper said. "The comet appeared as a blurred star. (It) seemed to be frightened, probably on account of the moon going into total eclipse."

At the Westminster Manor retirement home in Austin, some residents who saw the event elsewhere in 1910 still share that opinion.

W.A. Cunningham, 81, a UT professor of chemical engineering, remembers his own reaction at age 6 in the West Texas town of Comanche.

"I was very disappointed," said Cunningham. "It was a kind of fuzziy bright star, and if you looked closely you could see dust particles behind it but no tail as such. It was white rather than red. I remember my dad said to look at it because I might never see it again."

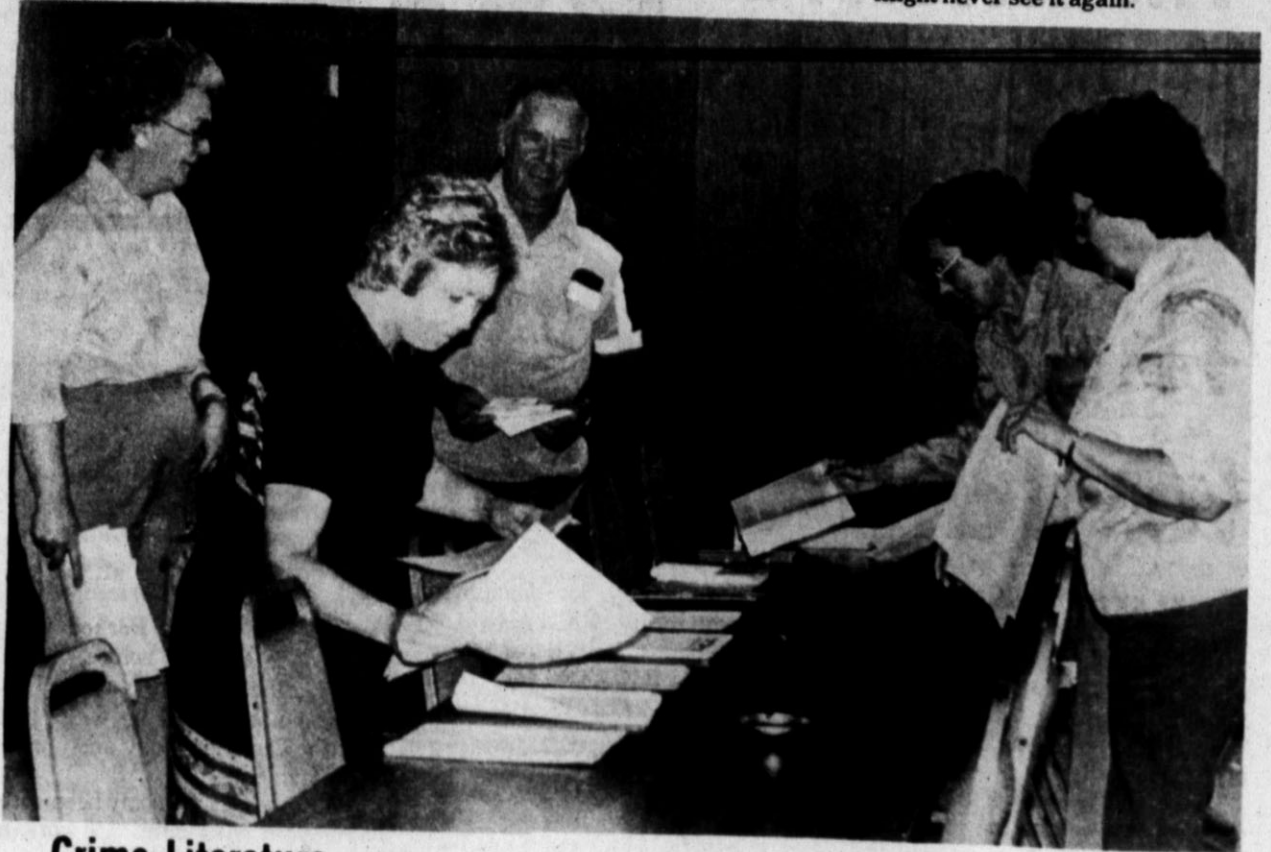

CRIME

At the next meeting, set for June 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center, Bradshaw hopes enough citizens from across the county will be there in order to divide the county into neighborhood watch areas, similar to that which is being done in town. The complete program organization with signs and bumper stickers will be presented then.

The neighborhood watch signs, Bradshaw said, tells a burglar not to rob there. First, the burglar knows people are watching for suspicious activity. Second, the burglar knows that lawmen have that address on the books and likely valuables have been marked.

He said that even reporting suspicious vehicles might lead to breaking a case in another county.

Also in the second meeting, Bradshaw will have forms for rural residents to use in conducting their own security survey to spot weak areas of protection.

Crime Literature

Rural citizens concerned about crime prevention received free literature Monday night explaining how individuals can slow down the rising crime rate. The citizens met for a presentation by John Bradshaw, who is director of a panhandle crime prevention program. The panhandle is the second area to conduct a prevention program on a regional basis in Texas.

Retired teachers to be eligible for health insurance next year

By MICHAEL HOLMES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Retired teachers and other public school employees are going to be eligible for health insurance coverage beginning next year under a bill signed into law by Gov. Mark White.

"Today marks the most historic event for retirees in Texas since the retirement system was established in 1937," White said Monday as he signed the legislation.

"No longer will we see retirees going without basic health insurance so they can meet their other living expenses," he said.

The legislation, authored by Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, will establish a group insurance plan for retired school employees at no cost to the retiree for basic coverage.

To fund the program, current teachers and other school employees will make non-refundable contributions equal to 0.25 percent of their salary starting Sept. 1. A state contribution totaling 0.35 percent of employee salaries starts in September 1986. That total increases in following years.

Howard said the program would cost about $26 million initially.

He and White hailed the contributions being made by currently employed teachers for their already retired counterparts.

"Active employees have shown by this action that not only do they care about their own future situations, they also care about their associates who are already retired," the governor said.

"No longer will we see people dropped from the local (school) district's health insurance program because the district cannot afford to keep retirees in the group," he added.

"It was an unselfish effort on each one's part," Howard said. "All of them have worked together for the common good of all."

Howard said most school districts in Texas don't provide health insurance for retired teachers. De to the high costs of such coverage for the elderly, he said, many are forced to do without.

"Most have to get it on the open market. At their age, it's high and they can't afford it," he said.

Also Monday, the governor signed legislation to make it a crime to illegally tap into cable television services or to decode or unscramble cable signals. Satellite reception dishes wouldn't be included, officials said.

The legislation, authored by Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, would make it a class B misdemeanor, punishable by up to a $1,000 fine and six months in jail, to use such equipment, officials said. Manufacture or sale of such devices would be a class A misdemeanor, punishable by up to a $2,000 fine and a year in jail.

Aides to Uher said some people have purchased basic cable television service, then used special decoder equipment to obtain extra-cost services such as Home Box Office and movie channels.

That bill takes effect Sept. 1.

Letter to the editor

Dear editor:

On behalf of all the boys and girls participating in the Hereford Track Club, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people who brought their vehicles to our car wash on Saturday. An extra special thanks goes to the owners and employees of the Taylor Diamond-Shamrock station on Highway 385 for the use of their parking lot and water facilities for our car wash.

We were able to raise $300 which will go toward paying entry fees for the kids in the six track meets we plan to attend during the summer track season.

Again, thank you to the community for their continuing involvement and support of our kids.

Secret can ruin life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 19 years old. When I was 13 (and for two years after) my grandfather abused me sexually. I have kept our "little secret" for four years. He told me he would go to jail if I told anyone. I didn't want him to go to jail so I kept quiet.

My grandfather died last year. I didn't even cry at the funeral. When I looked at my grandmother's lovely tear-stained face I felt so ashamed—as if it was my fault what happened between Grandpa and me.

He was a highly respected person in the community and everyone thought he was such a good man. If he was so good why did he do this to me? Please help me get over my anger.—STILL HURTING IN MO.

DEAR HURTING: You must talk this hideous experience out of your system. There is no other way. Counselors are available who charge on a sliding scale, according to what you can afford. You may even find a free counselor. Look in the phone book under Mental Health. Ask your physician. Check with the psychiatric department of a university hospital. You MUST ventilate your feelings to a professional and unload this terrible burden. Keeping the secret locked inside can ruin your entire life.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is the second time you have printed a letter on the subject of eyelash and eyebrow pulling and offered very little assistance except to suggest counseling.

As someone who has been plagued by this nervous habit for 20 years, I am dying to know the cause of it without having to spend a fortune on therapy.

According to one well-known psychologist, over 8 million people in America suffer from this problem. I'm sure many of them would appreciate some insight.

It is my opinion that this bizarre behavior is caused by anxiety, but I'd like to know what your experts have to say. Please check this out.—GOING BALD IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR GOING: There are a variety of reasons for pulling out eyelashes and eyebrows. Most authorities agree it is a compulsion caused by anger, frustration or anxiety. Here's another possibility:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding the 11-year-old girl who pulled out all her eyebrows and eyelashes: My daughter did the same thing. At first I was cross with her for not having enough self-control to stop it. Then I decided to take her to a doctor. My sister suggested a dermatologist.

In less than 10 minutes he diagnosed the problem—it was eczema. The itching and burning were driving her crazy. The only way she could obtain relief was by pulling the hairs out. The doctor gave her a tube of ointment. It solved the problem within three days.—THANKFUL IN CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

DEAR CHAP: Here's another, from Detroit:

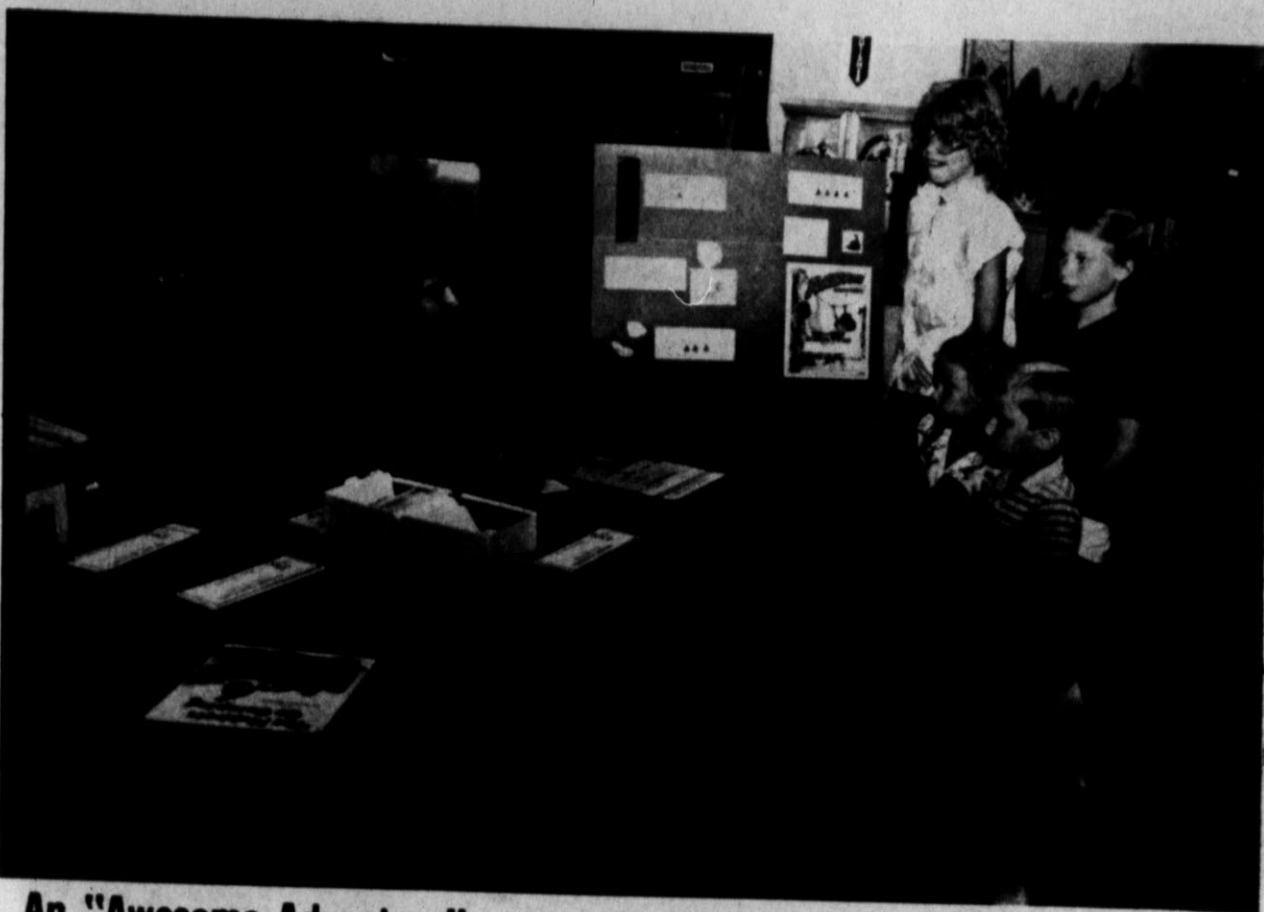

I was a slave to the eyelash-pulling habit and hated myself for it. I hid behind dark glasses and put pencil on my eyelids. When I took off the glasses I looked like a freak. Finally I went to an ophthalmologist. He told me to get a complete medical workup. Sure enough, the problem was caused by a hormone imbalance that was affecting the hair follicles. I am on medication now and the problem has been eliminated.—HUMAN AT LAST

So, dear readers, here is a smorgasbord of case histories. I suggest an M.D. first and if no physical problem is found, get psychological help.

Are you, or is someone you care about messing around with drugs or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot—in moderation? Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

HHS rodeoer wins barrels season title

A member of the Hereford High School Rodeo Club won the season title in barrel racing in the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association.

Jana Johnson, who will be a senior in the next school year, was also third in the season standings in goat tying. She had been in first place in the standings before the Tri-State finals.

Jana did not compete in the Thursday and Friday sessions of the Tri-State finals in Amarillo, because she was in Haiti.

On the trip home, she reports that the plane was two hours late in arriving at Amarillo, at 7 p.m. Jana managed to get to the Fairpark Coliseum by 7:30 p.m. and competed in the queen contest.

During the final performance of the Tri-State finals, Jana placed sixth in goat tying with a time of 11.404 seconds.

She won four all-around trophy saddles during the spring season, at the Spearman rodeo, the Dalhart rodeo, the Guymon, Okla., rodeo, and the Adrian rodeo which was held at Vega.

For her season championship in barrel racing, Jana won a trophy

Sports briefs

By The Associated Press
BASEBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — President Ballard Smith of the San Diego Padres said the club will not reinstate second baseman Alan Wiggins to the club's active roster this season.
 Wiggins entered a drug rehabilitation center earlier this year — the second time in three years that he had undergone treatment for cocaine dependency.
 Though a drug-abuse review panel said Wiggins is "ready to resume play from a medical standpoint," Smith said he considered the issue dead.
 Asked about Wiggins' status after this season, he said: "I don't see (Wiggins) coming back at all."
NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Kirk Gibson of the Detroit Tigers was selected as the American League's Player of the Week for the period June 3-9.
 Gibson compiled a slugging percentage of .920 and a batting average of .360.
 In the National League, Willie McGee of the St. Louis Cardinals, who hit at a .556 clip, received league honors for the week.
NEW YORK (AP) — First baseman Steve Garvey of the San Diego Padres is leading the early balloting for the 1985 National League All-Star team, according to figures released by Major League Baseball.
 Garvey and outfielder Dale Murphy of Atlanta were the overall leaders, each with over 300,000 votes.

GENERAL
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Prince, the voice of the Pittsburgh Pirates for nearly three decades and one of baseball's best known play-by-play broadcasters, died of complications following cancer surgery. He was 68.
NEW YORK (AP) — Six in 10 Americans believe sports in college are overemphasized, and seven in 10 say gambling on college sports encourages athletes to cheat, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.
 The nationwide telephone survey of 1,402 adults was conducted shortly after Tulane University abolished its basketball program following the indictments of eight people on bribery and conspiracy charges. The eight, including three basketball players, were charged in a scheme to shave points to control the outcome of three games last season.

Opening of 'Texas' made possible with $180,000 grant

The opening night of the musical drama "TEXAS" tomorrow, will be a gala celebration of the 20th season of the show.

It will be dedicated to Sybil Harrington and the other members of the board of the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation who have made so many creative grants in the Panhandle and who made the refreshing of the "TEXAS" production possible with a grant of $180,000.

As a result, audiences will find a new road, new sets, new side stages, many new costumes and musical arrangements, a new computerized lighting system and many surprises.

The United States Air Force and Navy will help to make the festive evening. Before the show, the navy's country band, "Country Empire" which often plays in Nashville, will appear in the patio area of the theatre.

In the appreciation ceremony on

When you've come to the end of a perfect day, brace yourself. Chances are they've saved all the hassles for delivery to you in the evening.

The boss grumps that, whenever his crew shows up, it's also quitting time.

the stage just before honoring the Harringtons, the US Air Force will be in formation on the stage carrying 26 historical flags, and will stay as the Harrington representatives are honored.

Four veterans return in leading roles in this year's production: Uncle Henry, Aunt Anna, Kate and Tuck. They are Gene Murray-teacher, artist in glass, and the Indian dancer in the first performance of "TEXAS", in 1966; Lois Hull, civic leader and daughter of parents who met while studying opera in Italy; Cloyce Beard - lead in many West Texas State University in Canyon, and Jerry Williams, speech pathologist, antiques appraiser and potter who has been delighting audiences as Tuck ever since 1968.

Calvin and Elsie, Dave and Parmalee are new to their roles in the show.

Calvin Wimmer from Snyder will play Calvin. A graduate of the Snyder High school theatre department which has won so many state awards, Calvin attends Angelo State University where he has played the leads in seven major productions. He is the second member of his family to be in the production.

Marianne Hyatt will be Elsie. Raised near Dallas and in Amarillo, she started in "TEXAS" as a dancer, was in the Boston Ballet Ensemble, the Chicago Ballet, the Lone Star Ballet, and the Dallas Metropolitan Ballet. She also appeared with the Spring Valley Players in Dallas. This winter she was studying in the University of Texas in Arlington.

Brian Mathis comes to play Dave from Fort Worth. This is his second year in "TEXAS". In addition to many appearances at Tarrant County College and West Texas State University, he sang in Aida with the Fort Worth Opera Company.

Parmalee's role will be shared by two actresses: Laura Burch and Cheryl Reyher. Cheryl (MWF) comes to "TEXAS" from Borger and has played many roles at West Texas State University. Laura Burch (TTS) is an Amarilloan who has appeared frequently in productions at Amarillo College and West Texas State University.

Over 1,500,000 people have seen "TEXAS" and it is well to make reservations in advance.

Call 806-655-2181 (The "TEXAS" office) or write "TEXAS", Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

Man who sparked formation of MADD to be tried again

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - The man who is credited with sparking formation of Mothers Against Drunken Drivers is to be tried in Sacramento County Superior Court on his last charge. Sacramento Municipal Court Judge Gary Ransom made the decision Monday after three witnesses testified at a preliminary hearing for Clarence W. Busch, 52, who was being held without bail. Busch, whose hit-and-run killing of a 13-year-old girl walking along a road in 1980 resulted in the formation of MADD, faces felony drunken driving charges from an accident last April in which the other driver was injured. The injured driver in the latest accident, Carrie Sinnott, 19, of the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael testified that she was driving across an intersection on a green light when a car driven by Busch slammed into the left front of her automobile. Sinnott said she didn't see the other car until it hit her. "I just looked and there he was," she testified. A doctor testified that Sinnott suffered no broken bones but had neck and back sprains and contusions on the shoulder and one hand. California Highway Patrol Officer Lloyd E. Boden testified that he first contacted Busch as Busch was "rifling through the glove box of his vehicle," half in, half out the open passenger door. Boden said he smelled alcohol and noted that Busch's speech was slurred and his eyes bloodshot. Busch failed a field sobriety test, Boden said, and was placed under arrest. A blood sample revealed a blood-alcohol content of 0.20 percent, twice the standard for drunkenness in California. Court records indicate that Busch was arrested and convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol in 1976 and 1977, and plea-bargained a 1979 drunken-driving arrest down to reckless driving. On May 1, 1980, Busch was arrested on misdemeanor drunken driving and misdemeanor hit-and-run charges. Released pending a court appearance on those charges, he struck and killed Cari Lightner two days later as she was walking to church in a bicycle lane. That prompted her mother, Candy Lightner, to launch MADD, an organization to combat drunken driving that has since gone national. Lightner has since moved the headquarters of MADD to Dallas. Convicted of vehicular manslaughter in the Lightner case, Busch served four months in prison and was placed in a work furlough program. Less than a year after his conviction, he was released on parole. He eventually served 16 months in prison because he twice violated the terms of that parole, state Department of Corrections officials said. Busch was discharged from parole Feb. 23, two months prior to the offense for which he is currently charged. He held a valid, 60-day, interim California driver's license at the time of the April crash. Under the two-count complaint alleging a prior conviction, he could be sentenced to up to four years in prison if convicted.
