Playing the role of good guy, some animal rights groups are blasting in places close to cattle raisers' hearts. Some of the 'facts' simply aren't, some say.

ANIMAL RIGHTS AND WRONGS

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Beef, it's been said, is real food for real people.

Several individuals and groups are going around the country making some unreal claims about the "real food."

Today (Sunday), if you watch any news at all, you will hear thousands of persons making a big deal out of animal welfare and other concerns.

Those are issues we haven't heard much complaining about in the Hereford area, but there are a variety of animal rights groups making those complaints in the confinement of animals in feed yards and the veal production industry has been especially hard hit for several years by animal rights activists.

Those groups will be on the news, says Kathleen Hartnett of the National Cattlemen's Association's

Washington, D.C. office, because they strike a sympathetic chord.

"Everyone's against abusing animals," Hartnett, who grew up on a farm in central Kansas, said. "The media is sympathetic to them, and these groups play on those sympathies. They're trying to make a big deal out of things and opinions seem reasonable."

Some of those groups, who have denied for years that they had a vegetarian agenda, are now coming out of the woodwork to make a big deal out of things.

There are a few new vegetarians who are doing better, because agriculture is doing better. "While agriculture was down in the early to mid-80's, we didn't hear much from animal rights groups. It wasn't in vogue to bash farmers," Harrison said last week. "Now that agriculture especially beef, is doing better, they will point fingers at us about all kinds of things and use misleading facts to do it."

The animal rights folks are not just out to do in the beef industry; they want you to give up all meats, milk products, eggs and anything else that comes from animals.

At the forefront is People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, known as PETA. It has begun extensively touting a vegetarian-only lifestyle. PETA, which claims a membership of 280,000 persons, says in its 1990 annual report that it has a warchest of over $10 million.

"You can add about $13 million to that," Hartnett said. "They have directly tied in with a group in New England that has been around for many years."

For most of its early years, PETA worked on ending the use of animals for research (they have been extensively involved in fighting the research done with cats at Texas Tech University in Lubbock) and furs.

Now they've gone after meat.

In their May-June issue of PETA News, PETA makes many "claims." One claim includes the use of animals in research each year. "Every year, 100 million animals are used in research," PETA claims. "The average American consumes more than half a pound of meat each day. That's 175 million pounds of meat each year. That's 175 million animals a year. That's 175 million animals a year." PETA also claims that "the average American consumes more than half a pound of meat each day. That's 175 million pounds of meat each year. That's 175 million animals a year. That's 175 million animals a year." (See WRONGS, Page 2A)

PETA is also pushing a book by John Robbins, Diet for a New America.

If Robbins' last name sounds familiar, it's because he is the heir to the Baskin-Robbins ice cream folks. He isn't pushing ice cream anymore.

Robbins moved himself, his wife and children to an island where he changed his lifestyle. He stayed there for seven years, where he had a self-imposed, two-year vow of silence. He spent the time writing the book, which calls for a meatless diet to save, and change, the world.

The book doesn't just hit on meat, but attacks most agricultural practices in the United States. In a nutshell, it calls for an end to the production of animals for meat and other products and for everyone to produce only what vegetables they need to provide for themselves.

PETA is not just pushing their stance to a few. They are working intensively with the national media and produce items for use in schools, churches and other areas.

Among their materials is a special publication, with a coloring book, for children. The kids' publication depends on maltreatment of animals because they are confined in zoos. There's a picture of a cow wearing a "No Meat" sign. Another sign says "Not Pork." Atop the sign is a pig. "Make Love, Not Meat," says another sign.

The magazine also claims that "the average American consumes more than half a pound of meat each day. That's 175 million pounds of meat each year. That's 175 million animals a year. That's 175 million animals a year." (See WRONGS, Page 2A)

Schools likely to get more state funding

Public schools in Deaf Smith County are likely to get more state funding in the future if Senate Bill 1, approved by the Texas house and senate last week and signed by Gov. Bill Clements, goes into effect.

The bill, and accompanying reforms, must be approved by State District Judge Scott McCown of Austin. McCown has appointed a master, former State Supreme Court Justice William Kilgarlin, to come up with a plan to equitably fund Texas public schools.

According to State Rep. John Smithee (R-Amarillo), Hereford schools will receive an additional $576,198 under the provisions of SB1. However, if the Hereford school district would raise the tax rate, it would receive another $750,000. Under the master's plan, HISD would lose $1.17 million if the tax rate were unchanged, but would gain over $5 million with a 7-cent tax increase.

Smithee explained that Hereford is unique because of the tremendous amount of change between the two plans, and how much new money would be received with a tax increase. HISD Superintendent Charles Greenawalt was not available for comment on the proposals.

HOLLIS KLETT AND BOB SIMS
...Making plans for Feedlot Challenge

Feedlot Challenge will benefit CHOF

Area feedlots and industries allied with the cattle industry could provide a big boost to the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center at the first-ever Feedlot Challenge on June 29-30.

The activities will be held in conjunction with the annual Rhinestone Round-up Weekend, the CHOF's big annual event that includes two nights of activities and induction of new honorees into the hall.

The Feedyard Challenge was the brainchild of Bob Sims and Dr. Hollis Klett of Hereford. Several persons were looking for fund-raising events to benefit the CHOF when the challenge was developed.

The challenge will begin with a calcutta on June 29, with the CHOF to receive 25 percent of the funds. The first team event will be a ladies' paint-gun competition that night.

On Saturday, June 30, events begin with an 18-hole golf scramble, doubles tennis and team stray sorting.

The competition will end with a washer pitching tournament at the CHOF. Awards for each event and for all-around winners will be made on Saturday night.

Sims explained that because some feedyards are small and others are large, each feedyard will receive points for the three events in which it scores highest.

"Some of them will have more people to choose from, so we'll even it out a little so no one will dominate the competition and everyone will have a chance," Sims explained.

All event placings will have equal value, with first place in the washer pitch receiving the same money and points as first place in any other event.

The competition will be open to feedlot employees, their immediate families, and customers of the feedlots.

The paint gun contest will have teams of two ladies each competing with guns aimed at targets, with paintballs for ammunition.

The golf scramble will have four team members from each feedyard competing in a low net 18-hole handicapped scramble. The scramble is limited to the first 36 teams with paid entry fee.

The tennis contest will have a two-person team from the first 16 feedyards to pay their entry fee. It will be either round-robin or tournament play.

Two pen riders from each feedyard will compete in team stray sorting. They will identify by cartag and remove two stray cattle from other cattle in a pen. Winners will be decided by the least time used and the ability to pull strays without disturbing other cattle. There will be a 2 1/2 minute maximum.

The washer pitching tournament will have a two-person team per feedyard.

The entry fee per feedyard is $725, with entry information available from Sims at 364-4030. The entry fee includes tickets to Friday and Saturday night events at the CHOF.

Moore resigns board seat

Kathy Moore, Hereford school board vice president who serves Place 4, has resigned her position on the board effective immediately.

Moore, who had served for four years on the board, is the second board member to resign in the past two weeks. Shirley Wilson resigned earlier. There resignations will be formally considered at Tuesday's school board meeting.

"It has been a privilege for me to serve on this board and I hope in some small way that I have helped the children in the district," Moore said in her resignation letter to Supt. Charles Greenawalt.

"I have enjoyed working with my fellow board members and wish them the best in making difficult decisions for the coming year," Moore said.

Moore further elaborated on her reasons for leaving in a letter to the editor that appears in today's Brand.

Vandals shooting up roads signs could endanger lives in county

By CINDY POTTORFF
Staff Writer

It was not just another drive-by shooting. Precinct Three Foreman Bobby Hammock figured. He was talking about a road sign that had taken at least 17 gunshots before falling to the ground.

The destruction of the sign was not an isolated incident. In the past two months, Hammock has found 17 road signs that have been used for target practice.

Shooting road signs is illegal; the vandals probably know that. What the vandals probably don't know is that many of the signs they are destroying are part of the emergency 9-1-1 system being developed in Deaf Smith County.

"My main concern is just to make people aware they (road signs) are not up there for targets," Hammock said. "They have a specific purpose."

Deaf Smith County has recently been mapped for the 9-1-1 system, with the signs put up to direct emergency personnel. Although the emergency dialing isn't yet in service, the map and numbering system are now being used for emergency calls.

Roads running east and west are numbered 1 through 29, with the southernmost road in the county numbered 1. The numbers increase as one travels to the north.

Roads running north and south are given letters such as A, AA, B, BB and so on. The alphabet begins at the east end of the county, progressing as one travels to the west.

Fire Marshall Jay Spain, who is on the advisory board of the emergency 9-1-1 telephone system for the entire Panhandle, said the new signs are a big help in emergencies.

"We can identify where we're going immediately," Spain said. "It (quick response time) might make a difference sometime in whether somebody lives or dies."

"It has to do with all emergency services, medical services and law enforcement as well as the fire department. People are beginning to use those directions; they might say, 'at the intersection T on Road 12.'"

Shooting road signs is a misdemeanor carrying a penalty of up to a $200 fine and $17.50 court costs.

Shot down

This road sign fell to the ground after the pole it was mounted on was shot in two. The sign was part of the emergency 9-1-1 service being developed for Deaf Smith County.

Local Roundup

County will meet Monday

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will meet at 9 a.m. Monday at the court house in Hereford.

The agenda includes a public hearing for and possible adoption of the 1990-91 budget; a request for funds by the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA; the annual report on the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum; the contract with the appraisal district office; a trash receptacle at the Bull Barn; appointment of a records supervisor; opening bids for painting the courthouse; discussion of a request for funding from the High Plains Food Bank; and consideration of a maintenance agreement on the copier.

HAEDC to meet Monday

The Hereford Area Economic Development Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the council chambers at City Hall.

The agenda includes consideration of assistance on the food processing plant proposed by Larry Malamen and general discussion on the status of the HAEDC.

Medical fund established

A medical assistance fund has been established for Oliver Satterfield of Hereford.

Mr. Satterfield works at Lawrence Ward Trucking and is hospitalized at High Plains Baptist Hospital.

Persons wishing to help with his expenses may contribute at the Hereford State Bank.

School board meets Tuesday

The Hereford school board will meet at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the Hereford school administration building.

The agenda includes professional organization, student organization, administrative and general reports; employees of the month; resignations of board members Shirley Wilson and Kathy Moore; swearing in of recently elected members John Fuston, Sylvia Flores and Dennis Newton, and election of board officers; a transfer request; and achievement test results.

Police arrest two persons

Two persons were arrested Friday by Hereford police, including a man, 43, for public intoxication, and a man, 26, for driving while intoxicated.

Reports included a girl, 17, who was slapped by her stepfather, but she would not file charges; a water meter was stolen in the 500 block of Western; a back window, worth $200, was broken in a vehicle in the 600 block of Ave. G; officers spoke with the parents of children who were throwing rocks at cars in the 100 block of Ave. H; child welfare workers were called in to investigate a case of unsupervised children in the 100 block of S. Douglas; a bicycle was found by a citizen in the 400 block of Ave. H; and harassing phone calls were reported.

Hereford volunteer firefighters responded to a vehicle fire at Seventh and Jackson and assisted police with a minor accident at Ave. B and Grand.

Police issued eight citations and investigated four minor accidents Friday.

Sharing his caring

Kevin Hull presents $50 to Karen Martin, director of the Hereford Satellite Work Training Center. Hull received the money as part of the New Generation Award he received May 15 at KVII-TV's annual "Seven Who Care" awards ceremony. The award is sponsored by KVII-TV and Pepsi.

Hull helps local groups

When Kevin Hull won the New Generation Award at KVII-TV's annual "Seven Who Care" awards ceremony in May, he decided to put the money to good use.

Monday, Hull donated $50 of the award money to the Hereford Satellite Work Training Center. The center trains mentally retarded adults for jobs and helps them get jobs in the community.

In addition to donating money to the Hereford Satellite Work Training Center, Hull made donations to Boy Scout Troop 52, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department and the Senior Citizens' building program.

Hull won the award because of his service to Scouting, the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department, the Hereford Emergency Medical Service, and Hereford Senior Citizens Association.

Justice of the Peace Johnnie Turrentine said.

First-time offenders will be fined $45. "For the first offense, that's quite a bit of money," Turrentine said. "If they're juveniles, they'll have to have their parents come in with them. We'll deal with them as we get them in."

The fine will go up with repeat offenses, Turrentine said.

People are probably shooting at the road signs for fun, Turrentine said. She wants people to realize the negative consequences shooting the signs could have on emergency services.

Game Warden Larry Nutt said he files charges anytime he catches someone shooting off the road, regardless of what they are shooting.

Often, people who shoot signs or inanimate objects are hunting, Nutt said. "If they can't find something alive to shoot at, they shoot at anything they can find."

When people who damage the signs are caught, charges of criminal mischief may be filed against them. In that case, they may have to pay to replace the sign.

"Some of the guys that are doing that are younger guys who are kind of mischievous," Nutt said.

"A lot of the time, they need something like a citation and a fine to get their attention. If something like that happens when they're 16, 17, 18, maybe it'll get their attention. Most of the time, once they get caught, they stop."

Nutt has some help watching for the people who are shooting road signs. The sheriff's office is helping him patrol the area, and members of the Walcott Crimewatch are looking for the vandals.

"A lot of times, there's something going on and I'm not there. But people let me know and then I'll be there," Nutt said. "If I have people giving me information, I will catch them eventually."

"They can let the sheriff's office know. The deputies know about it and they'll let me know. There's not one of those calls I won't answer."

Although there has always been some problem with people shooting road signs, Hammock said the problem got worse this spring.

The worst problem areas in Precinct Three seem to be around well known prairie dog towns.

"I sure don't have any problems with people shooting prairie dogs, with permission from landowners," Hammock said. "But it's not okay without permission and it's not okay shooting road signs."

In order to help save the county money, the Precinct Three crew built the new signs. The cost of the signs is about $30 apiece, not including labor or posts. That means Deaf Smith County taxpayers have shelled out at least $510 to replace shot-up signs this spring in Precinct Three alone.

But the cost is a minor consideration when one thinks of what could happen if an emergency crew were unable to get where they were going in time.

"I know of at least two and maybe three instances in the last month or two where emergency vehicles were needed in that area," Hammock said. "This far from town, seconds count in getting to people."

The new emergency response road signs are not the only signs which are being destroyed. The few regular road signs along county roads are fair game, too.

When harvest starts, custom cutters will be using the road signs as guides, Hammock said.

Being able to respond quickly to emergencies will be critical during harvest.

"The more activity that's going on, the more chance there is for something like that to happen," Hammock said.

WRONGS

"Suppose they gave a war and nobody came." Nonviolence begins at breakfast. Just one lifelong vegetarian saves the lives of more than 1000 animals."

PETA isn't alone. Roger Mikeska of NCA in Washington said he "can see a coalescing of groups" including the Humane Society.

Mikeska said the Humane Society used to steer clear of the vegetarian-only movement, concerning itself with animal welfare concerns.

"Their baseline has been the basic 'Neuter your pet, give them adequate feed and shelter and stuff,'" Mikeska said. "But they are getting closer to that position (vegetarianism). They are getting more involved in what they consider are health and environmental concerns."

Harrison said the group is working with other meat-producing and agricultural groups, including the national pork producers' organization, milk producers, the American Farm Bureau Federation and others to present a different view to the media.

While PETA, the Humane Society, other groups and non-aligned individuals will be marching in Washington on Sunday and lobbying on Capitol Hill on Monday, Harrison said groups representing the other side will be available to the media to counter claims made by the animal-rights groups.

"We are going to take the high road," Harrison said. "We decided long ago to be proactive, not to go on an issue-by-issue basis."

That decision was one of many reached by Bob Josslerand and others. Josslerand, of Hereford, was the 1989 president of NCA and developed the group's approach to the animal rights-animal welfare-environmental issues.

"We also know from talking to consumers that they are not taking seriously these claims made by animal rights groups," Harrison said. "We know that consumers are happy with our product and the way we produce it. Consumers feel that we are smart business people who have the interest of everyone and everything, including animals, in mind."

They are not just playing on the heart-strings of consumers. Hartnett said there have been demonstrations at several major livestock shows in Florida, Indiana, Arkansas, Denver and Kansas City.

"They says there is abuse of animals in those shows," Hartnett said. "Personally, not speaking for NCA, that is ludicrous."

"They also convinced two entertainers not to perform at Frontier Days in Cheyenne this year because of 'abuse' of rodeo animals."

"These groups have the corner on being the good guys. They are compassionate and caring, but a person who has never raised cattle should not establish the way to raise them. Someone in a feedlot or a cow-calf operation can tell you that if an animals eyes are off there is something wrong with that animal, and they know how to best treat that animal. We're committed and responsible, and we're compassionate."

"It is going to be a challenge for our industry to corner some of that compassion. We have solutions that are more than government regulations and controls. More government regulations are not only a hassle but take away some of the incentive and independence we need."

"Even as obscene and obnoxious as some of their claims are, we are just going to make sure everyone knows more about agriculture," Harrison said. "People know we are good, honest folks and do take care of animals. We are not going to take what they say and do standing still, but we are going to go out and tell our story in a responsible way. They want us to go out and yell at them. We can't stop them from promoting vegetarianism, because that is a right. We just want them to be correct in what they say, to use facts."

State school bill must still pass court muster

AUSTIN (AP) - The state's battle over public education funding didn't end when Gov. Bill Clements signed a $528 million reform bill designed to make more money available to poor school districts.

The new law will be challenged by poor districts that won a unanimous Texas Supreme Court order for a fairer school funding system, said Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

State District Judge Scott McCown, who is overseeing the case, has scheduled a June 25 hearing at which Kauffman plans to argue the new law does not institute a school finance system that is constitutional.

"I don't think there's any real change in the system... Rich districts can basically spend whatever they want, and poor school districts cannot," said Kauffman.

"It (the new law) didn't put enough money into the system to counteract those differences," he said.

The $13.5 billion-a-year school finance system relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

The new law would pour $528 million more in state money into schools in the 1990-91 school year and make other changes, such as the method of calculating enrollment. It would not take away the reliance on local taxes, nor limit how much school districts can spend in locally raised money.

The Supreme Court in October 1989 ruled the school finance system unconstitutional after finding "glaring disparities" in funding available to the state's rich and poor school districts.

Kauffman represents the 13 school districts - led by San Antonio's Edgewood district - that originally sued the state over the funding system.

Rick Gray, an attorney for 55 other poor school districts that joined the lawsuit against the state, said he had not yet met with his clients but thought that they also would challenge the new law.

"We're at the point in time where we have a chance to fix the system," Gray said. "And if we don't fix it now, what we'll have is over a period of time whatever gains are made now will be eroded."

Gray spoke for a proposal in which the amount of money available to each school districts would be based on how much a relatively wealthy school district actually spends.

Without such a system, he said, school districts with high property values eventually will again outpace poorer school districts in spending on education.

"You end up where you are constantly chasing a target that you can never reach... It's the tortoise and the hare concept," Gray said.

Clements, House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby have said they think their plan is constitutional. The Republican governor and Democratic legislative leaders worked out the reform bill after three months of wrangling on the issue.

The governor on Thursday signed the legislation, along with the tax and fee increases that it relies on - including a quarter-cent sales tax increase.

The reform measure also makes changes backers say will improve education performance and accountability. For example, it allows the governor to appoint the state education commissioner, who currently is named by the State Board of Education, and it increases student testing.

"I think it went beyond what it probably has to do, and therefore I think it's a bill that the courts will sign off on quickly and be done with," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

Clements said, "I think that what we have passed here and what we have agreed upon will more than satisfy the courts."

Even if school districts don't like the new law, they might feel forced to accept it for the coming school year so that they can plan their budgets, Gray said.

He said he would not expect a ruling on the law's constitutionality from Judge McCown until mid-July, and that the matter then would go the Supreme Court on appeal. School districts need to set their tax rates by Aug. 1, he said.

So even if the school districts he represents want to challenge the law, Gray said, "My great fear is that we may be stuck with this legislative plan for next year now, no matter what."

Musical drama "Texas" honors 25th year

Four premier performances and a sprinkling of new show surprises open the 25th anniversary season of "Texas" as the musical drama prepares to entertain another 100,000 this summer beneath the towering cliffs of Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

Beginning June 13, "Texas" will play nightly except Sundays through August 25 at 8:30 p.m. in the Pioneer Amphitheater near Amarillo and Canyon.

Wednesday, June 13, is Foundation Night when members of the non-profit producing organization Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Inc. are invited to the dedication of the new Silver Anniversary Patio with a reception following.

Chuck Nash, Chairman of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Board, will cut the ribbon for the new area located at the entrance to the theater. A large granite star in the center of the patio honors the donors and their families who contributed to the half million dollar electrical refurbishing of the theater.

Miss Texas, Leah Kay Lyle, will also attend this gala, sponsored by First National Bank of Canyon.

Legislative night on Thursday, June 14, begins with a reception at 5:30 p.m. at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon for state legislators and U.S. congressmen, followed by a barbecue dinner and show. The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce is arranging transportation for the state officials to the event.

Texas Department of Commerce commissioners and staff and American Airlines executives will also attend the preview party.

Since the show opened in 1966, each souvenir program of "Texas" has honored and displayed the works of a variety of national artists. Art Night, Friday, June 15, honors these artists with the former "Texas" souvenir programs and samples of the works of some of the artists on display at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon.

A special reception to honor the cowboy artists and their works will be held at the museum on Friday from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., followed by a performance of "Texas" dedicated to the artists.

Several original pieces of the 1990 Souvenir Program feature artist Frank Reaugh will also be shown. Reaugh is remembered for his remarkable landscapes including "Painter to the Longhorn," "Rembrandt of the Longhorn," "The Approaching Herd," and "Watering the Herd."

Called the "Dean of Texas Painters," Reaugh is considered one of the greatest painters. He died in 1945.

On Saturday, June 16, visitors are encouraged to wear their cowboy boots and hats to "Country and Western Night" at "Texas." Ed Montana will play on the patio at the theater from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Courtesy of Great Western Distributing Company, Montana is noted for his original works that include "Step Into The Real Texas" and "On The Golden Spread."

Throughout the season visitors can win a variety of prizes. Every 250th person gets a musical cassette of the show. Each 2,500 person is awarded a Palo Duro Canyon poster, courtesy of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, and a Cowboy Morning Breakfast, courtesy of Tom and Ann Christian.

The 10,000th person wins accommodations at the Hudspeth House Bed and Breakfast in Canyon, and every 25,000th person gets a cowboy hat, courtesy of Boots & Jeans in Amarillo.

The 50,000th and 100,000 persons win the grand prizes, free trips back to Texas, courtesy of American Airlines.

The traditional chow call triangle, given nightly to the person who travels the farthest distance to "Texas," is silver this year. This award has not gone to anyone in the continental United States since 1966.

Written by Pulitzer Prize winning Paul Green, "Texas" is the story of the settling of the area. A cast of 80 relives the struggle between the farmers and ranchers and how their eventual collaboration brings prosperity to the area.

Director Neil Hess blends lively acting with dramatic song and dance and accents it with the latest sound and light. This year he has added several 25th anniversary sensations that must remain surprises until opening.

Even though the basic script remains the same, it is this constant upgrading of sets, costumes and special effects that continues to draw spectators from every state and a hundred different foreign countries each year.

Two million have seen the production in the past 25 years and

Feel secure with summer driving

Now that school is out and vacation time is here, motorists are heading for the road in droves, thus increasing their chances of experiencing unfamiliar driving conditions.

Major V.J. Cawthon, Department of Public Safety Commander of Region 5 said, "When driving in the rural areas, slow down before, not after entering a curve. If you wait until it seems urgent to slow down, it is too late. Your engine should be pulling your vehicle through the curve. This pulling force aids in directional control, when you use a safe speed in a curve."

The Major reminds the Texas motorist to be alert to the fact that many people lose their lives within 25 miles of departure and/or destination. This fatal fact of the road is due, in great part, to abusing the speed laws.

Plan your trip so that you have plenty of time to reach your destination and return in comfort. This means a minimum of night driving, no speeding and no driving when fatigued. For a happy and safe school's out vacation remember to drive carefully.

80 percent travel over 100 miles. Over half the audience returns to see "Texas" again.

Part of the attraction of the nation's "largest" (according to figures released by the Institute of Outdoor Drama) outdoor drama is the inability to see all the action in one performance.

Visitors find a variety of action in unusual places: on cliffs, on rocks and on horses. Trains and surreys cross the terrain. Lightning strikes the canyon wall exploding a tree that sizzles and burns.

Another charm is the patriotism that eludes from the stage as flags and horsemen mingle in the beginning, middle and end reminding viewers of their heritage.

A optional chuckwagon barbecue is served by Sutphen's of Amarillo from 6:30 to 8 p.m. for an additional $6 per person.

NO BACK PAIN, BUT...

Maybe you're not aware of any pain or discomfort in your back. But if you're feeling pain in some other part of the body, an examination may show that it's caused by a misalignment in your spinal column. This may be the case even if the pain happens to be in your ankles or calves of your legs, or in your thighs, even your stomach or head.

Your body's nervous systems are connected to the brain which sends impulses through the spinal cord to all the body's organs, structures, and cells. Spinal misalignments can interfere with the proper functioning of this system. When any part of your body is not receiving an adequate supply of nerve impulses, this may cause pain and discomfort and other health problems.

Pain-killing drugs won't solve the problem. They may mask the symptoms. But they can't restore your body to good health. If the problem is a misalignment of your spinal column, a chiropractic examination and treatment may give you the help you need to feel well again.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says old age is when you're no longer interested in major medical, but rather major miracle!

In some of today's marriages, people still take each other for better or worse--but not for long.

The City's approval of a $20,000 funding request from the YMCA apparently came as a surprise to many citizens this week. We've heard quite a number of opinions this week, pro and con. Some taxpayers don't understand the action at all, and think it will open the door for all kinds of funding requests. Others see it merely as an expense the city has not budgeted under the parks and recreation department, because the "Y" is providing for youth programs and other recreation activities.

One commissioner said he viewed the issue with the thought that if the YMCA folded, the city would probably be asked to take over the programs--and that would be a lot more expensive. If not for the YMCA programs, he says, citizens may have demanded the city provide such programs for the youth.

The funds for the "Y" will come from the city's contingency fund, which does not require a tax increase...yet. Should the city have an emergency and need those contingency funds, then we might another decision to make. A number of progressive businesses in the city probably agreed with the action, since some have not been able to contribute as much to such programs the last year or so. Some citizens who do not participate in any YMCA programs, on the other hand, may think the funds should come from those who use the YMCA and from private donations, not from tax money.

Personally, my first thought was: "The city commission has lost its cotton-picking mind!" But the more discussion I heard on the issue, the more I could see the commission's thinking on the matter. It's one of those issues where there is more than just black and white involved--there are shades of grey to consider.

As folks are inclined to say, time will tell.

Texas guest column

Tele-logic, when all else fails, push 'O'

By JIM SCHUTZE Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS (AP) - There begins to be a problem with the computerized phone switchboards where the tape-lady asks you questions and you punch in the answers on your touch-tone phone. It's not that it's a bad basic idea at all. It's potentially a great idea.

It's much better than the old human system where you tell the real lady on the phone that you made a deposit last week and you need to know if the larger check has cleared yet and has been credited to the account; you hear a click; a man answers; you tell the real man your life story; he switches you to a teenager; by the time you're done, you've told it so many times that you're the one who sounds like a computer.

If the new systems are set up properly, they can be great. The new systems operate on a scheme of logic-trees. The system asks two questions to determine in which major division your question falls. Then another message asks more questions to get you focused down to the one person or room of people who will have the information you need. If it works, it can save you a lot of time. How many hours have you spent the old way, getting to the right person?

The problem is that not all of the phone-system setter uppers in this world are gifted with finely tuned logical abilities. Today I called a major bank in town. In the very first go-round, the tape lady told me to listen to all of the questions. Then she asked me about 12 questions - so many I would have needed to take notes in order to remember them all - and all of them were cast in the advertising slogan-talk of the bank.

Did I want the Express Connection? Sure! Wait. Maybe. Depending. Express connection to what? Better wait. Did I want Bank-Now, Check-Quick, Minute-Stub, Estate-Guard? Gee, I don't know. Estate-Guard? Are those the things those inserts are about that they stuff in the envelope with my monthly statement?

I throw those things out. I take out the statement, spread open the envelope and shake those things into the wastebasket. I don't know what any of those terms mean. Better wait.

I missed all of it. She told me to punch another button for clarification. I did, but it sounded as if I was going to have to hear the whole message all over, and I heard a word that sounded like customer service, so I punched that button. A different tape-lady came on.

She told me that there were several kinds of customer service, and that I needed to punch a button for the one I wanted. I listened to all of them, and none of them seemed to have anything to do with what I wanted. So I punched the last button, which was for people who didn't know what to do.

A tape-man came on and told me to call a number. I almost hung up to call it, when I realized it was the number I had just called. I figured, if this was a logic tree, that I had gotten lost and was now wandering somewhere down in the roots.

So I tried something wild and illegitimate. I pushed zero. You know: that old familiar zero. For operator. And lo and behold, that old familiar bank operator came on - bored, busy, barely audible. I told her my problem she cut me off in the middle as per usual and switched me to customer service. Home free!

You know what the answer is? This is a self-important new technology that needs to be disciplined by us, the marketplace. Give the system 15 seconds. If it is still talking and has not yet made sense, push zero. When they answer, say, "Hi, I have a huge big complicated problem with my account, and I don't have no buttons on my telly-phone."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We would like to commend the Hereford City Commission for their decision to grant $20,000 to the Hereford YMCA. In doing so, they have sent the message that programs such as the YMCA offers are important to the kids and to Hereford.

Since 1976 when the YMCA was first chartered, volunteers have contributed their time and money to insure that the YMCA continues in Hereford. We know the future of Hereford is invested in the youth of the community and believe that YMCA programs and volunteers are a positive influence in their young lives. The money received will help fund these youth programs and insure that no child is turned away.

The City Commissioners deserve a lot of credit for the many good things that attract people to Hereford and make the rest of us want to stay. We are fortunate to have City Commissioners that care and would like to thank them publicly for their support.

Sincerely, The Board of Directors Hereford & Vicinity YMCA

Dear Editor:

As of June 5 I will have resigned as vice president of the Hereford School Board. In many cases when someone resigns before the end of the term of office, it is because they can no longer endure the constant phone calls and criticism. This has not been a problem for me. During the past four years, I have had phone calls from parents and teachers expressing their concerns and wanting to do something. These concerns were passed on to the superintendent and, unless the full board was asked to participate, there was nothing I could do. (This is as it should be.)

Some people can be on a school board, attend and vote at the meeting, then go home and forget about it. Unfortunately, I am not one of those. I have read and studied everything I could get my hands on concerning education, including policy, curriculum, bilingual and special education. I have asked many, many questions and have expected answers. If this not part of my job as an elected official, then there is no reason for me to be there!

Any school district needs improvement, but the Hereford public schools do an exceptional job with our children. The State is slowly, but surely, "taking over" our schools and we must take a stand by calling and writing our legislators. I visited with Sen. Bivins and Rep. Smithee in Austin and told them: "All the money in the world will not teach children how to read." Rep. Smithee informed me that his young children attend a private school because he wants them to learn to read phonetically. Emphasizing reading in the lower grades has been my major goal for our district. I hope it will always be at the top of the list for Board goals!

The public needs to be aware of the power that the Texas Education Agency has. I'm sure that many of these people are intelligent and dedicated. However, many members of the monitoring teams are "rejects" from school districts all over the state and therefore not really qualified to tell a school district what they are doing wrong. There is no doubt in my mind that TEA came to Hereford in October, 1989 to find fault in our schools and the Board. I truly believe that Dr. Holder (our past superintendent) had nothing to do with this.

Some of the changes they demanded had been suggested many times by certain board members. What was not expected was the "Governance" issue and the resolution that had to be signed by each board member. This was really aimed at four board members who have served for several years. We were never given the opportunity to sit down with these people and find out exactly what we were doing wrong--and never given the chance for rebuttal. Therefore, how can we know if they will "sight" the same problem in October, 1990? I guess I just thought we lived in a democracy where individuals are innocent until proven guilty!

I was one of three board members interviewed by TEA. I answered truthfully every question and did not, in any way, "put down" our administration or school district. However, I was told by the administration that my interview "was bad." The TEA monitor never told me this because were were not "allowed" to ask questions or visit with them before they left. We will never know from whom they got their information. I hope it was not from the administration.

When you have worked diligently to help all children in the district, it doesn't make you mad--it hurts! I cannot serve on a board where "BIG BROTHER" (state or local) is constantly watching my every move or writing down my questions and opinions! Yes, I have made mistakes, but I know in my heart that I have given my "best shot."

I would like to thank the many parents and taxpayers for their support. A special thanks goes to the teachers for their encouragement. They know where we were 5 or 6 years ago and how much work it has taken to make some necessary changes. I have enjoyed working with my fellow board members and wish them the best in making decisions for the coming year!

I would also like to thank Carolyn Hiltbrunner, Margaret Daniels and Bobbie Kitchens for their dedicated work for our district.

This has been an extremely difficult decision for me because I sincerely care about the children in the Hereford public schools! However, when a volunteer position begins to affect someone physically and emotionally and also affects their family, it is time to let someone else take her place.

Sincerely, Kathy Moore

Dear Editor:

Once again, it's been proven Hereford is a great place to live. The American Legion Auxiliary wished to thank the whole town for their support of Poppy Day, and especially Mayor Wes Fisher for the proclamation on May 23rd.

Thanks to The Hereford Brand for the picture and publicity, and KPAN for promotion spots and having Troyce Hanna and Pet Out tell the Memorial Poppy story. Our thanks, sldo, to Hereford State Bank for giving us space for a headquarters.

Thanks to numerous businesses for their support, to Senior Citizens and Kings Manor, and the ladies who carried buckets of poppies for a contribution. A special thanks to the 20 ladies that volunteered many hours of time visiting the establishments in town.

The contributions will be used for the rehabilitation of veterans and their families. For God and Country...

Change Our National Anthem?

Erich Kunzel is conductor of the Cincinnati Pops Orchestra and a nationally renowned guest conductor. He has won two consecutive Billboard Magazine Classical Crossover Artist of the Year awards.

YES

Should we change the national anthem to "America the Beautiful"?

Absolutely. First, the music of "The Star-Spangled Banner" was not written by an American, but is an 18th-century English drinking song. Second, the text of our national anthem written by Francis Scott Key is about war (the War of 1812 against England). In fact, the third verse of "The Star-Spangled Banner" actually implies hatred for the British, long since one of our closest allies. Moreover, musically speaking, it is almost impossible to sing well, covering the range of an octave and a fifth.

In what ways is either song more appropriate?

"America the Beautiful" was written by the American musician, Samuel Augustus Ward, in 1882. The words are by our fellow citizen, Katherine Leo Bates, written in 1893. The melody is so beautiful and easy to sing. And the text is about the beauty of our land, not about war and hatred. It emphasizes the love we have for our country, brotherhood and pride in accomplishment.

Are there other alternatives?

There are always alternatives to anything. If we want a loud, boisterous national anthem, we could use the grand finale of John Philip Sousa's stirring march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," with text by Sousa himself. We could, of course, ask our leading popular composers and songwriters to give it a try; such as, Marvin Hamlisch, Henry Mancini, John Williams, Jerry Goldsmith, Neil Diamond, Bruce Springsteen or Quincy Jones, to name a few.

We should not be afraid of change. "The Star-Spangled Banner" only became our national anthem in 1931, when Herbert Hoover signed it into law. It really is a relatively recent part of our historical heritage. Let us sing about peace and the beauty of our land, not "rockets red glare; bombs bursting in air!"

Governor William Donald Schaefer has been the governor of Maryland since 1986. A lifelong Maryland resident, Gov. Schaefer served as mayor of Baltimore for four consecutive terms.

NO

Should we change the national anthem to "America the Beautiful"?

No. No. No. A thousand times no. The very suggestion that "The Star-Spangled Banner" be replaced as this country's national anthem is ridiculous. Our stirring anthem was written by Francis Scott Key, a Marylander, when he was held prisoner aboard a British vessel during the bombardment of Baltimore in the War of 1812. It represents to all Americans the courage, honor, heritage and, above all, hope of our great nation. "The Star-Spangled Banner" was created during a heroic defense of the nation. What words or music could be more appropriate as a reminder that the price of freedom is the willingness to defend it?

In what ways is either song more appropriate?

For 175 years, "The Star-Spangled Banner" both unofficially and officially has been this country's national anthem. The words and music are woven into the fabric of our patriotic heritage. The circumstances surrounding the attack of Fort McHenry, the defense of Baltimore and the heroic survival of our young nation are an intricate part of American history and of "The Star-Spangled Banner." The symbolic importance of "The Star-Spangled Banner" in 1812, as a young nation defended itself against foreign tyranny, is proudly recalled each time we sing our national anthem. The words of Francis Scott Key are as significant and appropriate today as they were when he wrote them.

Are there other alternatives?

No. The lyrics we now sing as our national anthem mean something. They have a history and a patriotic message that cannot be found in any other piece of music. This patriotic hymn is Maryland's shining gift to this nation's rich traditions of freedom and independence. To even suggest that some other song replace "The Star-Spangled Banner" as our national anthem borders on sacrilege. ■

COLORFUL IMPORTS

NEW YORK (AP) - America plants about 1.6 billion flower bulbs every year, and three-quarters of them come from abroad.

Most of these imports - 90 percent - are from Holland, says the Netherlands Flowerbulb Information Center, and the most popular spring varieties are tulips, followed by narcissus, hyacinths, crocuses and irises.

Home owners buy 70 percent of the bulbs available. Others who plant bulbs are landscaping firms and professional growers of cut flowers or potted plants.

Composer Johannes Brahms was born in Hamburg, Germany, in 1833.

Composer Peter Ilich Tchaikovsky was born in the Ural region of Russia in 1840.

Outdoors feature to debut Thursday

"Southwest Outdoors"—it's what fishing, hunting and camping are all about and it's a new column which will appear in The Brand each Thursday.

Mel Phillips, a tournament bass fisherman and host of "Panhandle Outdoorsman" on KGNC TalkRadio, is the author of the column. Mel says his column is dedicated to sharing information, so he invites readers to drop a note about their experiences.

Mel says he has been an avid outdoorsman "since my father took me out fishing to Buffalo Lake when I was four or five. I've been hooked since then." Mel is an avid hunter as well. Hunting advice will include quail, dove, pheasant, and duck trips that will be worth your time and money.

But the column will be more than hunting and fishing. "I hope to tell about some great trips to take—not necessarily expensive and not too far away, but where the fish are biting and the whole family can have a good time."

To get everyone ready for such trips, Mel will talk to professional guides to get the inside information on what is biting and where, the best camp sites and local excitement spots.

Watch for "Southwest Outdoors" in Thursday's edition of The Brand!

Yankees fall in 10

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

George Steinbrenner's new Yankees might be more exciting than the old ones. But the results are still the same.

On Friday, one day after the Yankees' owner promised a youth movement in New York, the team called up Jim Leyritz and Alan Mills.

Hours later, Leyritz hit a two-out, game-tying RBI single in the ninth inning off Baltimore relief ace Gregg Olson in his first big-league at-bat. Then, in the bottom of the ninth, Mills struck out Joe Orsulak with the bases loaded to force extra innings.

Ah, those kids. But in the 10th, Mills walked three batters with one out and Lee Guetterman relieved. Phil Bradley hit a grounder to third base that Leyritz fielded cleanly, but he bounced his throw to the plate for an error that gave the Orioles a 5-4 victory.

Mills (0-1) was the loser in the Yankees' seventh straight defeat. "It's a shame how it turned out," Yankees manager Stump Merrill said. "At least we saw some positive things for a change."

The Yankees fell to 0-3 under Merrill and are 18-34, the worst record in the majors.

In other games, Boston beat Cleveland 4-3, Oakland downed Kansas City 3-1, Toronto topped Milwaukee 11-5, Chicago defeated Minnesota 3-2 and Seattle and Detroit split a doubleheader, the Mariners winning the opener 5-2 and the Tigers taking the second game 6-3.

Orioles 5, Yankees 4
Bradley got four hits, including Baltimore's first inside-the-park home run since 1976, and the Orioles led 4-3 going into the ninth.

In the 10th, Randy Milligan drew a leadoff walk from Mills. Bob Melvin sacrificed and two walks, one intentional and the other not, loaded the bases.

Bradley hit a one-hopper to Leyritz, who decided to throw home, rather than stepping on third and trying for a double play. His throw skipped and catcher Matt Nokes could not control it.

Rangers 10, Angels 6
In California, Rafael Palmeiro and Ruben Sierra each homered as Texas got a season-high 16 hits.

Sierra, who had just three RBIs in his last 20 games, hit a two-run homer as the Rangers scored four times in the seventh inning for a 7-3 lead. Palmeiro's seventh home run gave him four hits and helped the Rangers take a 10-3 lead in the eighth.

Red Sox 4, Indians 3
In Boston, Roger Clemens became the first 10-game winner in the majors as the Red Sox and Indians played peacefully. Last weekend in Cleveland, the teams got into a brushback battle, including one Sunday when Clemens hit leadoff batter Stanley Jefferson with a pitch. The Red Sox extended their longest winning streak of the season to six. Cleveland's worst skid of the year reached six straight losses.

Athletics 3, Royals 1
In Oakland, Curt Young shut out Kansas City on two hits for six innings and Dennis Eckersley got his 19th save.

The Royals, who scored 18 runs in two consecutive victories over the Athletics last weekend at home, have lost four straight since then. They have gotten just four runs in their last three games.

Mariners 5, Tigers 2
Tigers 6, Mariners 3
In Detroit, Seattle's Jay Buhner homered in both games and Ken Griffey got five hits during a doubleheader split.

Erik Hanson (4-4) struck out nine in eight innings to win the opener. Frank Tanana (4-4) took the loss as the Tigers' four-game winning streak was stopped.

Detroit won the second game when pinch-hitter Gary Ward was hit by a pitch from Billy Swift with the bases loaded in the eighth inning for a 4-3 lead.

Scoreboards light up across NL

By JOHN KREISER
AP Sports Writer

Rick Parker had a career night. The San Francisco Giants had a slugfest. The Atlanta Braves had a nightmare.

Parker, a rookie who had only three RBIs in his first 16 major league games, drove in six runs as San Francisco set team records for runs and hits in a 23-8 pummeling of the Atlanta Braves on Friday night.

The Giants wore themselves out - and did a pretty good job on the Braves' pitching staff, too - by blasting 27 hits off seven Atlanta pitchers.

In other games, it was Montreal 18, St. Louis 2; San Diego 12, Los Angeles 6; New York 7, Pittsburgh 1; Houston 3, Cincinnati 1 and Chicago 15, Philadelphia 2.

Giants 23, Braves 8
Parker's three-run homer in the fourth off Derek Lilliquist (2-8) put the Giants ahead to stay. Clark's first three-run homer capped a seven-run sixth inning and he homered again in the eighth.

The 23 runs were two more than the San Francisco team record set against St. Louis on July 9, 1988, and the 27 hits were one more than the Giants had against Los Angeles on May 13, 1958.

Expos 18, Cardinals 2
Montreal spoiled the return of former Expo Bryn Smith to Olympic Stadium, scoring six times in each of the first two innings.

Nelson Santovenia drove in a career-high six RBIs, three with a first-inning homer, and Tim Wallach added four in the first two innings.

Grijalva second in tournament

Sabino Grijalva of Hereford fired a final-round 77 Thursday to finish second in the boys 12-13 division of the Roswell, N.M. Junior Open.

Grijalva opened the tourney Tuesday by finishing in the top eight in a round of medal play to qualify for Wednesday's match-play round.

Grijalva defeated Lance Wood of Portales 6-5 before downing Artesia's Cord Winburn 4-3 to qualify for the final round of medal play.

Padres 12, Dodgers 6
Benito Santiago's three-run homer snapped a seventh-inning tie as the Padres survived four Dodger homers at Jack Murphy Stadium.

Santiago's eighth homer of the season came off Jim Gott (0-1) after an error and a walk and broke a 6-6 tie as the Padres scored six times in the seventh.

Astros 3, Reds 1
Glenn Wilson's pinch-hit three-run homer in the 10th saved the day for Mike Scott, who allowed only three hits and struck out a career-high 15.

Todd Benzing singled home a run in the top of the 10th and the Astros appeared headed for their eighth straight loss until Wilson connected off Randy Myers (1-1).

Mets 7, Pirates 1
The Mets had more trouble with the weather than with the Pirates. Two rain delays at Shea Stadium lasted for 2 hours, 48 minutes, but between storms, the Mets got two homers by Darryl Strawberry and another by Gregg Jefferies to snap Pittsburgh's four-game winning streak.

Jefferies hit a two-run homer in the fifth off Bob Walk (4-4) and Strawberry followed with a 440-foot that hit near the batter's eye in center field. He added a solo shot in the seventh.

Cubs 15, Phillies 2
Shawon Dunston hit a grand slam in a nine-run third inning at Wrigley Field as the Cubs routed the Phillies.

Ryne Sandberg started the third with a homer and was walked intentionally later in the inning to load the bases, but Dunston spoiled the strategy with his second career grand slam.

Oilers add new look with 4-3 defense

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers linebacker Johnny Meads sees beauty in the Oilers' new 4-3 defense. That's beauty as in bashing the quarterback with a blitz or dropping off in coverage to crunch a receiver or make an interception. Meads and his Oiler teammates got their first on-field look at the new alignment in first year coach Jack Pardee's Operation Headstart program, which closed down on Friday. The 3-4 defense the Oilers used last season placed pressure on the cornerbacks, often forced into mismatches with the opponents' top receiver. Now the linebackers must become more versatile. "It's nothing that the linebackers can't adjust to," Meads said. "It's just that we came from a system that focused on pass rushing and now we'll be involved in coverage," Meads said. The linebackers will be featured in the new defense, Meads said. "In the 3-4, we were geared toward attacking the quarterback," he said. "That was my mind-set. Now you have a chance to make big plays either way, with sacks or an interception. That's the beauty of it." The Oilers ranked 26th among the 28 NFL teams in points allowed in 1989. Defensive coordinator Jim Eddy expects his new defense to plug the flow of points. Linebackers will be the key. "We're fortunate to have plenty of linebackers," Eddy said. "It's unfortunate they've been utilized in a different way. They are for the most part rush people." In the new scheme, the linebackers must rush and cover.

"There are some learning situations going on out there," Eddy said. Eddy expects the new alignment to ease pressure on the cornerbacks. "That's the toughest position to play on the football team," Eddy said. "Whenever you can give a cornerback some help, that's what you need to do." In addition to a new defense, the Oilers also have discarded their two-back offensive alignments and will go full time to the run-and-shoot that Pardee pioneered in the World Football League and at the University of Houston. The Oilers used the run-and-shoot and called it the Red Gun last season but they also used other formations. Offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride, who was quarterbacks coach under Glanville, thinks a full-time run-and-shoot will be harder to defend.

"Last year, many defenses recognized that when we were in the two-backs we were going to run the football so they lined up and played one defensive approach," Gilbride said. The Oilers' offense prospered with Pro Bowl quarterback Warren Moon last season. It'll be better this year, Gilbride said. "We don't have to practice two separate offenses," Gilbride said. "We ought to be able to give them enough different looks so when they see a defense, they should be able to beat it." The Oilers finished Headstart with two problems unsolved: backup quarterback and an over-supply of running backs. Backup quarterback Cody Carlson did not participate in any of the off-season program, underscoring his trade demands. Carlson, Moon's backup the past three seasons, is not demanding more money. He wants more playing time and he's unlikely to get it with the Oilers. The run-and-shoot calls for one running back and the Oilers have Mike Rozier, Alonzo Highsmith, Allen Pinkett and Lorenzo White trying to wedge into the superback position.

"We've already started working Allen into the receiving positions," Gilbride said. "They will have their opportunities to play." The Oilers return to San Marcos in mid-July to begin pre-season drills at Southwest Texas State University. They'll open the regular season at Atlanta, Sept. 9, where they'll face Glanville and the Falcons.

SWC facing major upheaval

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Jackie Sherrill once predicted radical upheaval in the Southwest Conference by 1995. It might happen yet. The pressures of television, money and a Federal Trade Commission investigation of college football have changed attitudes about conference ties. "The college scene is experiencing change," said Arkansas athletic director Frank Broyles. "We see it with Penn State joining the Big Ten and Notre Dame bolting from the CFA (College Football Association) package. It seems to me that it's the responsibility of every school to evaluate what is happening." The Southeastern Conference has Arkansas at the top of its expansion list. Broyles said if the SEC calls, Arkansas won't hang up. They'll listen to any offers, Broyles said, and evaluate them.

rejoin the SWC. They were charter members when the conference came together back in 1914. Former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer said the Sooners orientation was always towards Texas anyway "because that's where we recruited." The fact that Arkansas is allowing itself to be courted is already causing some hard feelings in the SWC.

Texas and Texas A&M University also are also plans for the picking. If Sherrill was still the head coach and athletic director at A&M instead of an automobile dealer, the Aggies would probably already be entering negotiations with the SEC. Sources in the University of Texas athletic department say there is unhappiness with the leadership of the SWC and the Longhorns will be all ears when the telephone rings. The FTC investigation is sending shivers through the collegiate athletic department community. Broyles said the possibility exists that the FTC could rule that the largest group of schools that can have a television package is a conference. That would kill off the CFA package. The stronger and more attractive conferences would get top dollar from the television networks. "There would be a tremendous shuffling of conferences to convert television sets to dollars," Broyles said. The SEC, particularly if it adds Miami and Florida State, has a more diverse geographical area to offer with Tennessee, Florida, Mississippi, Georgia and Alabama. What if it adds teams from Texas and Arkansas? The bidding could reach "megabuck" proportions. There's even talk Oklahoma and Oklahoma State might be willing to

Gridder wins battle against cancer

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Over the course of the past nine months, Midland Lee High School offensive lineman B.J. Siruta has walked through the darkness that only cancer can bring. Now he is the miracle of Rebel inspiration as he prepares to play football his senior season.

Last August, Siruta was ready to play football. It was the only thing on his mind. Then came that routine preseason physical - and something was wrong.

"I had no idea anything was wrong with me," said Siruta. "I was just ready to play football. But the doctor found something he didn't like in my groin area, and they sent me to another doctor right away."

In fact, Siruta saw a couple of other doctors before exploratory surgery was performed. Siruta had cancer.

"They ran a scan and discovered that the cancer had spread into my lower back," said Siruta. "I was shocked when they told me I had cancer. Everyone left the room and all my emotions just came out. Suddenly, football just wasn't that important anymore."

Now Siruta had another battle on his hands - one laced with fear and uncertainty instead of one with confidence and hope. Football was easy compared to this.

During the following months, Siruta was treated with extensive chemotherapy. And after the chemo treatments, an additional surgery was required to remove a small benign tumor that was left behind.

Treatment performed its mission well, but for Siruta, returning thoughts of football consumed him. He had a personal vision. He was going to play football again.

"While I was going through chemo treatments, I would come to school and watch those guys in football. It depressed me that I couldn't be out there with them. But I always knew in the back of my mind that I would be back with them. I just didn't know how long it would take."

"But I know one thing, it kept me going through all the treatments and surgery. I had a lot of other goals, but football is one of them that helped me make it through this."

Siruta missed all the games Lee played in 1989, but he kept up with the team the best he could.

"I couldn't go to the games because I was either in the hospital or too tired from the chemo," said Siruta, "but I kept up with them. I listened to all the games on the radio and would read the newspaper first thing on Saturday morning. I started reading Sports Illustrated and that made me want to come back."

But it was still tough as Lee made its seventh consecutive voyage into the state playoffs and Siruta wasn't a part of it.

"I remember the last playoff game when we lost to Arlington Lamar," he said. "I was in Memorial Hospital at the time and I was listening to the game on the radio. In fact, I could see a little of the game from my hospital room window when the teams moved to the south end of Memorial Stadium. I felt the defeat just like everyone else on the team."

Following the football season, Lee went into its off-season program. Again Siruta was, for the most part, on the sidelines.

In addition to missing the offseason program, Siruta had to deal with another bothersome result from his chemotherapy treatments. He lost his hair.

"That wasn't really a big deal," said Siruta. "I wore a baseball cap to school. My hair is back now, but it grew back curly. Before it was straight. Still, I would rather have it this way than to wear it like some of the kids I see in school."

Lee's off-season training period gave way to spring training on May

4. Siruta was still on the sidelines. But the day he had waited for finally came on May 14. He got the OK from his doctors and was told he could again resume football. He finished Lee's last two weeks of spring training - on the field and part of the team.

Siruta never lost much weight through his experience.

"I only lost 10 to 15 pounds. I only got down to 180. I'm back up over 190 now," Siruta said.

"I'm behind a little. I'm still trying to get my plays down because I played a guard as a sophomore and they moved me to tackle. I was pretty out of shape from the surgery and chemo, and I'm still not all the way back. I still get tired faster than the other guys, but I'm going to work hard this summer and get ready to play. I've got some catching up to do if I want to play next year, but I'm going to play."

Lee head football coach Earl Miller still shakes his head when you mention Siruta.

"He's our miracle out there. He puts everything in perspective for all of us," said Miller.

"We thought we had lost him. When something like this happens, football isn't very important. But when a kid bounces back like he has, maybe football is important again. Hopefully, it gave him a focus when he was going through some rough times."

So now, Siruta looks to the 1990 football season and his senior year in high school, but he still has focus.

"When the playoffs come this year, I won't be in the hospital. I'll be out there playing."

'Y' seeking volunteers to help with track meet

The Hereford YMCA is seeking volunteer workers to help conduct its TAC-Junior Olympic track and field meet, according to YMCA Director Weldon Knabe.

The meet will be held Saturday at Whiteface Stadium.

Workers will be needed to help run off field events as well as working as timers, clerks, starters and in other capacities. Field events will include the long jump, high jump, triple jump, shot put and discus.

The meet is scheduled to get underway at 9 a.m. with the field events with the running preliminaries set to start at 10 a.m. Running finals will begin at 2 p.m.

The meet, which will be sanctioned by the West Texas Association of The Athletics Congress, is open to anyone registered for the 1990 season.

Entry fees are $3 per person for the first event entered and $2 for each additional event. Athletes participating in the Bantam Division (10 years old and younger) and the Midget Division (11-12 years old) are limited to participating in no more than three events. Participants in all other divisions are limited to competing in no more than four events.

For more information about the meet or to volunteer as a worker, contact the Hereford YMCA at 364-6990.

MRS. PHILLIP WORSHAM
...nee Courtney Robbins

Robbins, Worsham wed Saturday in Virginia

Wedding vows were exchanged by Courtney Kay Robbins and Phillip Blake Worsham, both of Alexandria, Va., during an afternoon ceremony Saturday in Christ Church in Alexandria. The Rev. Dr. Mark S. Anschutz officiated at the marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William Grigsby of Lake Wylie, S.C. and Pat Robbins of Hereford. The groom is the son of Jack Worsham of Richmond, Texas and the late Jo Worsham.

Two six-foot silver candelabra and four silver vases filled with casablanca lilies, bridal roses and delphiniums decorated the altar of historic Christ Church parish of George Washington and Robert E. Lee.

Casey Robbins of Tampa, Fla. served as her sister's maid of honor, and the groom's brother, Tom Worsham of Austin, was best man.

Bridesmaids included Monica Brandes of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Karl Oakley of Chickasha, Okla.; Mrs. Robert Roark of Cincinnati, Ohio; Kate Taylor of Washington, D.C.; and Mrs. Jeff Wills of El Reno, Okla. Paige Robbins of Hereford was her sister's junior bridesmaid.

Groomsmen were Mark Devlin of Houston; Karl Dunn of Peakskill, N.Y.; Enoch Gatson of Pompano Beach, Fla.; Todd Mills of San Antonio; and Randy Robbins of Hereford, the bride's brother.

Samantha Worsham, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl.

Vocalist was Gene Tucker, tenor with the National Symphony Orchestra, and he was accompanied by Ted Gustin, organist. Prior to the ceremony, Mr. Tucker provided a 10-minute concert, and during the service, he sang "Panis Angelicus" and "Hymn to Joy."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk taffeta and beaded alencon lace. The fitted, basque bodice featured a scalloped lace neck and off-the-shoulder puffed sleeves with small taffeta bows. The chapel-length train was trimmed with hand-clipped and beaded medallions, accented with a taffeta bow.

The matching headpiece was a tiara of alencon lace and white cluster pearls with four small puffs and a chapel-length veil scattered with pearls.

She carried a bouquet of sanserre lilies, bridal roses, gypsophilia and Italian ruskus.

Bridal attendants wore floor-length teal gowns with straight skirts, fitted bodices, and white lace shawl collars. They carried single stems of sterling star lilies, gypsophilia and ruskus tied with teal ribbons.

The flower girl wore an ankle-length teal cotton dress with a white linen smock that featured cutwork at the yoke and around the hem. She carried a white basket filled with white statice and gypsophilia.

Attending the guest book were Mia Grigsby of Rock Hill, S.C., stepsister of the bride, and Kellie Sims of Lubbock, cousin of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony, a high tea reception was held at the Lyceum, a museum in Old Town Alexandria. Music for the reception was provided by Dale Anthony, formerly pianist at the White House.

The four-tiered wedding cake featured different layers of lemon torte, carrot cake, hazelnut and white chocolate mousse. The buttercream icing was adorned with fresh boxwood, roses and freesia.

The German chocolate groom's cake was iced with chocolate fudge and adorned with fudge flowers and leaves.

The buffet tables were centered with Portuguese silver wine coolers filled with roses, watsonia, larkspur, delphinium, lilies, statice, pepper grass and caspia. Tea was served from matching silver tea services and guests enjoyed a variety of hors d'oeuvres and desserts.

Individual guest tables were draped with floral chintz cloths and centered with baskets of fleur gerbera daisies, monte casinos and springarie.

Pre-nuptial parties culminated in a bridal luncheon held at the Mt.

Vernon Inn on the grounds of Mt. Vernon and a rehearsal dinner in the Mansfield Room of the United States Capitol.

Area guests included the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Fred Sims of Hereford; the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Zorns of Clovis, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Gear and

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Smart, all of Hereford; Mr. and Mrs. Gil Sims, Kellie Sims and Charlie Sims, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Todd Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Marland Ribble, and Steve Robbins, all of Lubbock; and Patti Robbins of Houston.

After the wedding, the couple will make their home in Hilton Head, S.C.

Spice up grilled meat with something-special toppers

Take it easy! Grill your favorite cut of meat, poultry, or fish, then serve it up with one of these easy-to-make, something-special toppers. The toppings keep up to two weeks in the refrigerator or one month in the freezer, so mix up one or two and keep them on hand.

Flavor 1/4 cup softened margarine or butter with one of the following combinations and spread or brush on foods toward the end of the cooking time or at serving time:

- Blue Cheese Butter: Add 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice, 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and 1/8 teaspoon pepper. Mix thoroughly. Fold in 1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese and mix just until combined. Serve with meat or baked potatoes.

- Cajun Butter: Add 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano, crushed; 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin; 1/8 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed; and dash crushed red pepper. Serve with poultry or fish.

- Fennel Butter: Add 1 teaspoon fennel seed, crushed; 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice; and dash pepper. Serve with fish.

- Italian Herb Butter: Add 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder, 1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed; and 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese. Serve with meat, poultry, fish or vegetables.

- Lemon-Basil Butter: Add 1/2 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel,

1/2 teaspoon lemon juice, and 1/4 teaspoon dried basil, crushed. Serve with meat, poultry, fish or vegetables.

- Parmesan Butter: Add 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese; 2 teaspoons snipped parsley; and 1 small clove garlic, minced. Serve with fish or vegetables.

- Tarragon-Onion Butter: Add 1 tablespoon chopped green onion, 1 tablespoon snipped parsley, and 1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed. Serve with poultry, fish or vegetables.

BREAD SPREADS
Use these spreads on bread, also. Slice a 1-pound loaf of white or wheat French or Italian-style bread into 14 to 16 diagonal slices, cutting to, but not through, the bottom crust. Spread flavored margarine or butter between every other slice of bread. Wrap loosely in heavy-duty foil. Place on edge of grill. Grill over slow coals about 15 to 20 minutes or until heated through, turning frequently.

Yale University was named in 1718, after Elihu Yale, a governor of the British East India Company.

MRS. WESLEY WADE BLACK
...nee Trista Lyn Brashear

Wedding announced

Trista Lyn Brashear and Wesley Wade Black were united in marriage Saturday, May 12, at the Dogwood Baptist Church in Athens.

The marriage ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Phil Greenwalt.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jeanne Ann Ashley of Athens and Thomas Brashear of Hereford. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gore and Mr. and Mrs. Ercel Brasher, all of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Julia Williford and Norman Black of Athens.

Angela Anding served as maid of honor and Chuck Brown was best man. Guests were escorted by Mark Sartain and John Holland.

Melody Sartain served as flower girl and John Wesley Dodd served as ring bearer.

Paula Vincon, pianist, accompanied Mark Sartain as he sang "I'll Be There" and "Here and Now."

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride was attired in a white taffeta designer's gown fashioned with a fitted bodice. It also featured a dropped basque waistline which fell to a full skirt and swept into a flowing chapel-length train. The fingertip-length bridal illusion veil consisted of lace trimmed in tiny pearls.

A reception was held at the Dogwood Baptist Church with Chana Williford registering guests.

The bride's cake was served by Cindy Hart and Leah Dodd served the groom's cake. Beverages were served by Jill Chaney.

The couple left for a wedding trip to San Marcos and San Antonio. They will make their home in Anchorage, Alaska.

The bride is a 1989 graduate of Crossroads High School and attended Tyler Junior College for two years.

The groom, a 1989 graduate of Crossroads High School, is in the army and is stationed in Anchorage.

Out of town wedding guests included Hayden Gore of Arlington, Gary Gore of Colorado Springs, Co., and Thomas Brashear, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gore, and Mr. and Mrs. Ercel Brashear, all of Hereford.

NEW YORK (AP) - Mike Wallace says he was treated for depression and thought about suicide during the Westmoreland libel trial five years ago.

In an interview that aired Tuesday on WNYW-TV, the CBS correspondent said he kept the treatment a secret from his colleagues.

"Depression is something you do not want to talk about," the 71-year-old Wallace said. "The reason I'm talking about it now is so people who are looking in will be aware of the kind of thing that can happen. It is a sickness."

LOOK TO THE SEA URCHIN
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Scientists at the University of Rochester have found an ally in the tiny sea urchin.

The scientists have found the gene responsible for producing epidermal growth factor, a protein that helps control and stimulate cell growth.

Such proteins are found in many organisms, including humans. The scientists are hopeful their investigations will yield some clues into diseases, such as cancer, where some cells grow out of control.

In addition, the sea urchin is a readily available study subject: one female can produce 10 million urchin embryos for study.

MRS. TIMOTHY PAUL ALBRACHT
...nee Ann Marie Kelley

Kelley, Albracht united in marriage

Wedding vows were exchanged by Ann Marie Kelley of Hereford and Timothy Paul Albracht of Prescott, Ariz. in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Amarillo on May 28.

The marriage ceremony was officiated by Father Ken Keller of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Amarillo.

The bride is the daughter of Guy Ford of DePere, Wis. and Rue Ford of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John Albracht of Amarillo.

The bride's sister, Michelle Ford, served as maid of honor and best man was the groom's brother, Dr. Nick Albracht of Dallas.

Serving as groomsmen were the groom's brother, Dr. Jack Albracht, and Michael Keating, both of Amarillo.

Amber Kelley, daughter of the bride, served as flower girl.

Scriptures were read by Melinda Walden, sister of the bride, and the groom's sister, Cheryl Hohertz of Canadian.

Dr. Kevin Raef of Canyon accompanied on the guitar and sang, with Suzie Merrick, "Wind Beneath My Wings".

Presented in marriage by her brother, Airman John Ford of Lubbock, the bride was attired in a designer's gown of ivory satin, bowed puffed sleeves, empire waistline with tea-length skirt and ivory shoes.

The bride's tulle netting veil formed a pouf with tulle snood at the neckline.

She carried a cascade of white and mauve roses surrounded by mauve and white carnations and mauve streamers.

The bride's jewelry consisted of pearls borrowed from Jan Carroll and a pearl enhancer belonging to her maternal great-grandmother.

A reception was held outside at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Tammy Hardin served cake at the bride's table and Jan Carroll poured punch and coffee.

Sisters of the groom, Mrs. Kevin Raef and Lyn Albracht, served cake and punch at the groom's table. Others assisting were Janice Brownlow, Monta Smitherman, and Polly Simpson.

Tables were decorated with silver and pink balloon bouquets.

The bride's cake was decorated with mauve and candlelight roses and crystal appointments. The groom's cake was decorated with an airplane and silver appointments.

The couple will make their home in Chino Valley, Ariz.

The bride is a graduate of Hereford High School and was previously employed with Little's as an Estee Lauder consultant.

The groom is a graduate of Alamo Catholic High School and is enrolled in Emory Riddle Aeronautical University in Prescott, Ariz.

Out of town guests were from Dimmitt, Hereford, Canadian, McLean, and Canyon.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER County Extension Agent

Designer outlets offer merchandise 25 percent to 80 percent off the regular full price. The upscale outlets started appearing only about six years ago. The number of outlets of all kinds grew 18 percent last year, compared with 5 percent for full-price, specialty, stores and one-half of one percent for department stores.

According to Value Retail news, an outlet and off-price trade journal, outlets average annual sales of $211 a square foot. That's slightly higher than ladies' specialty stores in large shopping centers. The difference is that the outlets are owned by the designer-manufacturer, thus eliminating middlemen. Advertising costs are almost nonexistent.

Outlet centers and malls have begun to affect shopping habits in the United States. They are found on major highways, either between two major cities, or in tourist areas. A recent Gallup poll of Money subscribers found that nearly a third consider shopping opportunities when planning vacations. A majority (54 percent) reported that non-food shopping is a family activity. An estimated 500 bus companies now offer a range of special tours, some just to malls, others to a mall plus traditional tourist attraction.

Some generalities of what you will find in a typical designer outlet mall include:

--A broad mix of merchandise, as designers favor their outlets over off-price stores.

--Stock tends to lag behind what you'll see in department stores and specialty stores by as much as one season. For example, if you need a sweater this month, the place to look for it is in the outlets and not department stores, where they are already pushing those items.

--Premises are usually unattractive but clean and easy to shop. Dressing rooms are ample and often have private booths.

--Return policies vary but are usually clearly spelled out in signs near the checkout areas. Service is minimal, usually just cashiers and dressing-room monitors.

--Most outlets discount their discounts at different times during the year, especially in January and the summer.

RICHMOND GROWTH

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - Investment in new industrial and office facilities in the Richmond area in 1989 reached a record $1.3 billion, up from $1 billion in 1988, according to the city's Metropolitan Economic Development Council.

The council says a total of 344 companies moved to, relocated or expanded in the area in 1989, a 35 percent increase from the 255 companies in 1988.

Miss Hollingsworth is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School and will be attending Amarillo College in the fall. She is presently employed at Keeling Cattle Feeders.

Hamilton is a 1989 HHS graduate and is presently employed at Southwest Feedyard.

Amy Michele Hollingsworth and Gary Ray Hamilton plan to wed July 28 in the E.B. Black House in Hereford.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Carl and Nancy Hollingsworth. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Tim and Debbie Meyr.

MRS. LEE EDWARD LINE
...nee Jill Mahaffey

Mahaffey, Line wed June 2

Wedding vows were exchanged by Jill Alison Mahaffey and Lee Edward Line June 2 in University Baptist Church in Austin.

The marriage ceremony was officiated by Jeryl Hoover of Western Hills Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Mahaffey of Conroe and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Line of Hereford.

The church alter was adorned with two candelabra flanked by variegated ivy garlands. Church pews were decorated with dark red roses accented with scalloped edge lace bows. A small table displayed a unity candle etched with white wax roses and preserved fern garlands.

The bride's sister, Jan Mahaffey of Austin, was matron of honor and Kenny Vaughn of Austin was best man.

Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Terie Beth Dillard of Dallas, and Donna Vaughn of Austin.

Groomsmen were the groom's brother-in-law, Phil Dillard of Dallas, and the bride's brother, Scott Mahaffey of New York City, N.Y.

Communion ushers were David Fullbrook, Patrick Hudspeth, and Phil Powell. Jim Reed served communion to the guests during the ceremony.

Alexann Dillard, daughter of Phil and Terie Beth Dillard of Dallas, served as flower girl. Candle lighter was Claire Mahaffey, the bride's mother.

Songs of commitment were sung by Teri Alliston and Donna Vaughn. "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" was played by organist Charles Smith.

"The Lord's Prayer" was sung by Jeryl Hoover, and "Wedding Cantata" by D. Pinkham. "Set Me As A Seal Upon Thy Heart" was sung by Teri Alliston, Phil Dillard, Jeryl Hoover and Donna Vaughn.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white silk wedding gown fashioned with a fitted bodice decorated with gagoon lace. The bell skirt was edged in lace and tiny pearls with a cathedral-length train accented with a gagoon lace and pearl hemline.

Sprays of pearls and white silk rose buds accented the knee-and-floor tulle veil.

The bride carried a bouquet of dark red and shell pink roses surrounded by pale pink netting.

Her jewelry consisted of teardrop pearl earrings, and her grandmother's lace handkerchief, great-grandmother's silver and diamond ring, and mother's powder blue garter.

Bridal attendants were attired in ruby red Moire taffeta tea-length dresses and carried roses of red and pink with pale pink lilies.

Carol Reed and her daughter, Kate, handed out programs and attended to the guest registry at the dinner and reception held at the University Baptist Church fellowship hall.

Others assisting were Ruthann Hoover, Bonnie Hudspeth, and Gwen Fullbrook.

Centerpieces for the tables were hurricane lamps surrounded by a red candle with red roses and fern garland.

Susan Provenzano served cake and poured punch and coffee.

The bride's three-tiered white cake consisted of buttercream almond icing, candy roses, and apricot almond filling. The groom's cake was chocolate cheese cake with white chocolate chips.

The couple will reside in Austin. The bride is employed as a Macintosh computer specialist and graphic designer at Boon-Chapman in Austin and attended The University of Texas at Austin.

The groom, born and raised in Hereford, graduated from The University of Texas at Austin in 1978 with a Bachelor of Science degree in engineering. He is currently studying classical guitar at U.T.

Out of town wedding guests were Winifred Line of Albuquerque, N.M., Fred and Virginia Brook of Pampa, Mitch and Welda Mitchell of Tyler, Marie Stringer of Hereford, Frances Tipton of Brownsville, and Gwen and Everett Hruska, Tom and Marilyn Phillips, and Kieth Mahaffey, all of Conroe.

The rehearsal dinner, held June 1 at the "County Line On The Lake," was hosted by the groom's parents.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

The Library's Summer Reading Club "The Secret Code is R.E.A.D." is getting underway with over 100 children to register in the first two days of pre-registration.

To enable the staff to prepare for the summer activities, the library has started the summer hours of service for the months of June, July and August. The library hours will be: Monday and Thursday, 10 a.m.-9 p.m.; Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m., and Saturday, 10 a.m.-1 p.m.

In the tradition of Clive Cussler and Alistair MacLean, Blood Tide by Robert F. Jones is a gripping novel of betrayal and revenge set in a remote and lawless corner of the Philippines. James Culdee, a career U.S. Navy noncom, had served his country with distinction but is suddenly forced into a disgraceful retirement because of a failed escape attempt from a North Vietnamese prison. Devastated, Culdee retreats into alcoholism until his daughter, Miranda, asks him for help.

The "Seamark," Miranda's sloop, has been stolen and when she learns the Seamark has been sighted in the dangerous Flyaway Islands of the Philippines, father and daughter sail off in pursuit. Arriving in the Flyaway Islands, Miranda and Culdee find the local pirates and drug smugglers as treacherous as the hidden shoals and reefs. Culdee and Miranda decide the best approach to getting the Seamark back is to join a band of Filipino insurgents plotting to overthrow a tyrannical American drug lord.

This drug lord may turn out to be the same "slimy" who betrayed Culdee in Vietnam. This father and daughter struggle against overwhelming odds in infernal jungles where murder is sport and madness is a way of life is a tale of suspense you won't want to miss.

Stone City by Mitchell Smith is a brilliant nightmare journey into the hard-edged walls of a state prison. Bauman is a college professor convicted of killing a young girl while driving under the influence. Bauman's education makes him an anomaly in a population of youthful, hard-core criminals.

Trying to bury his pain and the memories of the past and with an unusual edge of toughness, Bauman begins to teach the inmates how to read.

Clothing project Thursday

Deaf Smith County 4-H will sponsor a clothing and textiles workshop on Thursday at 9:15 a.m. at the Community Center ballroom.

Participants will tour the historical clothing at the Deaf Smith County Museum. A project of paper twist dolls, wall decorative picture book hats and dying socks with modern dyes will help participants focused on the old-to-new clothing and accessory practices.

Other sessions will be on how to choose and know fabric types and will conclude with a video on sewing notions.

Participants will be given rules for the county fashion show. Local competition in the sewing and buying division will be held on July 10 with district competition on July 23 in Borger.

There is a $10 charge for the supplies for the workshop, and pre-registration is a requirement. For more information or to register, call the County Extension Office at 364-3573.

TANYA GAYE JONES, MARK LOUIS CARDER

Couple plans wedding

Tanya Gaye Jones and Mark Louis Carder plan to wed July 21 in The Hudspeth House in Canyon.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Betty Jones of Hereford and the late Lee W. Jones. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Wilson of Amarillo and the late Alvin L. Carder.

Miss Jones is a 1989 graduate from West Texas State University with a bachelor of science degree in elementary education. She graduated from Hereford High School in 1983.

Carder received a bachelor of science degree in criminal justice and is a graduate of Texas Department of Public Safety Academy A-87. He graduated from Tascosa High School in Amarillo in 1982. He is employed as a highway patrol trooper with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON

The garage sale to raise funds for disaster relief was very successful. More than $1,200 will be used to help pay for 76,900 meals served to flood victims and the 1,000 families helped in 6 Texas counties. The funds will be combined with donations from all over the Southwest to help flood victims and victims of other storms. Appreciation goes to all of the volunteers and those who donated items for their help with the sale.

A lifeguarding class will begin Monday at the City Pool. For more information on this class, call Monday morning.

Our Chapter needs more Water Safety Instructors and aides to teach water safety. A class will begin in July. For information on how you can help, call the Red Cross office.

A CPR instructor class will begin Friday, June 22, at 7 p.m. at the Red Cross office. The class will continue Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. To become an instructor you need to be 17 years old, have excellent skills in the class you want to teach and have a current certificate in that class.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

Study club garage sale planned

Toujours Amis Study Club garage sale will be held Saturday, June 16, from 8 a.m. - 3 p.m. at the old Frosty's Meat Market, 220 N. 25 Mile Ave. The proceeds will benefit the March of Dimes.

Anyone interested in donating items may do so on Monday, June 11, and Wednesday, June 13, at 6 p.m. at the old Frosty's Meat Market.

For more information, contact Kyla McDowell at 364-5415 or Sarah Lawson at 364-5243.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I saw myself in your column the other day. It was the letter from a man who had the same problem I lived with for 38 years—a wife who didn't think sex was worth the trouble.

The man had written a letter to his wife on their 32nd wedding anniversary. He was starved for affection and pleaded with her to talk to him about it. The wife did not respond. She died two days later of a heart attack, at the age of 54. He found his letter in the pocket of her bathrobe. He closed his letter to you by saying he was feeling guilty and looking for guidance.

I want to tell that poor guy that he has nothing to feel guilty about. There is no way you can get a woman to discuss a problem if she doesn't want to. I was married to exactly the same kind. My wife was cold and unresponsive. She hated sex. She knew I was unhappy but refused to go for counseling because "the problem is yours, not mine."

On my 62nd birthday she gave me the best gift imaginable: a sponge cake (no frosting!). In the hole of the cake was a rolled-up piece of paper—her petition for a divorce.

Eight months later I met a wonderful, warm, beautiful woman whose husband had died the year before. We have a fabulous time together. Our sex life is terrific and I feel like a teenager. I hope the man who wrote to you finds a woman who appreciates him. Please tell him I wish him all the luck in the world.--

Ann Landers

Happy Second-timer in N.J.

DEAR HAPPY: Thanks for sharing your story. I loved the ending. Here's more on the subject:

From Calgary, Alberta: The only time my wife is interested in sex is when she sees something terribly expensive and beyond our means. Then she really turns on the heat. She has three sisters whose husbands have told me they do the same thing. Can this be something women learn from their mothers?

From Lakeland, Fla.: I am writing about the man whose wife died of a heart attack after withholding sex from him for several years. I say he is better off. Now he is free to look around (without guilt) for a woman who will be a loving companion.

My wife and I fought about this for more years than I care to admit. She wanted full control of every aspect of our lives and sex was No. 1 on the list. I she decided she wasn't in the mood (which was most of the time), she made damn sure I lost my desire for it, too. We always ended up in a fight which would have lasted the rest of our lives if I had waited for her to make up.

My wife grew up in a home where there was no affection between her parents and they never showed the slightest bit of affection for their children. They were the coldest bunch I had ever seen. I should have known what I was getting into.

From San Francisco: I felt sorry for the man whose wife lost interest in sex after years of marriage. It happened to me and I couldn't understand why. A friend of mine who was much more experienced in the ways of the world suggested that it might be another man. I couldn't conceive of such a thing but decided to keep my eyes and ears open and look for clues. Well, I caught her. But it wasn't with a man, it was with a woman.--Shell-Shocked in Calif.

Dear Shell: Me, too. What an O. Henry ending!

HAVE FUN at the Movies

Gail Reagan

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

TOTAL RECALL: Starring Arnold Schwarzenegger. This film is an enormous disappointment. The premise is so innovative; a man embarks on a dangerous voyage of self-discovery to Mars - a colony wracked by political unrest. Doug Quaid's (Arnold Schwarzenegger) everyday world has suddenly begun to crumble around him; a world in which everything he thinks he knows and has experienced may be a fabrication. He is not the man he thinks he is - now he must travel to Mars to confront the mystery. So, what goes wrong in a movie that could have been and should have been, a top-notch science fiction action-adventure film? What goes wrong is filth and repulsiveness, all wrapped up in four-letter words and dirty sex. It's so sad, because Total Recall could have been so much - it could have been a film that challenges the mind and the sight. The year is 2084 A.D. and only a few of the special effects are dazzling. In fact, the most modern advance that the production designers used to illustrate the world one-hundred years from now was a moving sidewalk. The language is vile, the sex is crude, and the violence is laced with disgusting gore. If it were not for all of this, Total Recall would be a good adventure comic-book film for teenagers. (However, I wouldn't want my teenagers to have that many four-letter words shouted at them in two hours.) Schwarzenegger gives a wooden performance punctuated by the phoniest laugh in the movies, but, like the three-hundred-pound gorilla, he can laugh any way he wants. If you like your sex dirty, your language foul, and enjoy crashing, smashing, gory, obscene violence - have we got the movie for you! Rated R (should be X).

Two Boxes

VIDEO RENTAL MOVIES

One of the best Schwarzenegger films is Twins, with Danny DeVito, which has been reviewed (Four Boxes) earlier. There is another...

STAY HUNGRY: (1976) With Jeff Bridges and Sally Field. This is a very underrated film based on the Charles Gaines novel about body-building in the "new South". The entire script is an eccentric mixture of comedy and drama.

Jeff Bridges plays a young, southern aristocrat who attempts to complete a real estate deal by purchasing a body-building gym. During the process, Bridges begins to appreciate those who work and train at the gym - as well as acquiring insight into his own life. Sally Field, as the love interest, gives one of her most relaxed and charming performances - as does a very young and unself-conscious Arnold Schwarzenegger. This is an adult film, with violence, brief nudity and profanity. Justly rated R but highly recommended for the over-eighteen.

Four Boxes

And two other Schwarzenegger films for hard-core fans of Mr. Muscle are...

TERMINATOR: (1984) In this science-fiction/time-travel adventure, Schwarzenegger plays a cyborg (half-man and half-machine) sent from the future to present-day Los Angeles to murder a woman. It seems that her offspring will play an important part in the world from which the killer came. Michael Beihn is the rebel soldier sent to thwart Schwarzenegger's plans. The film starts off like a shot-out-of-a-cannon with fast-paced action that fills the screen for the first twenty minutes. After that, it lurches along in fits and starts. Nevertheless, it is essentially an enjoyable, old-fashioned B movie - unfortunately, rated R for nudity, simulated sex, violence and profanity. (Arnold, Arnold - why can't you clean up your act?)

Three Boxes

THE RUNNING MAN: (1987)

(Don't rent all of these films at once or you will have a terrible case of deja vu). This is a silly - but exciting - outing about a man (guess who?) who is an honest cop, but just a little dumb. He is framed for a crime he didn't commit and is forced to fight for his life on a bizarre twenty-first century game show. Admittedly, this is just another successful variation on the big guy's standard film formula. Again, rated R for violence and profanity.

Three Boxes

You might also want to take a look at Schwarzenegger's Predator and Red Heat films. Red Heat is the best, but BE CAREFUL and don't get Linda Blair's 1985 turkey by the same name. Read the credits before you take the video out of the store.

RED HEAT: (1988) With James Belushi and Peter Boyle. The story appears to be a remake by Walter Hill of his successful film 48 Hours, only this time with an internal theme. Big Arnold plays a Soviet police officer forced to team up with a wisecracking Chicago cop (Belushi) to track down a Russian drug dealer. The movie is fast and rousing; a best bet for action buffs. Again, Rated R for violence, profanity and nudity - all the food groups for Arnold Schwarzenegger. (Someone ought to tell the Big Man that he has become a role model for young people and to start acting (that's definitely a pun) like a responsible citizen.)

After hype, Tracy ready for big roll

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer
First there was "Dick Tracy: The Hype." Now it's time for "Dick Tracy: The Movie."

"Dick Tracy" bears the Walt Disney Co.'s hopes for another smash such as "Who Framed Roger Rabbit." The production cost was high (estimates range from $23 million to $30 million) for a film with little apparent built-in appeal for the younger crowd, the backbone of today's film audience.

The competition for summer tickets is fierce with the already hot "Total Recall," and the upcoming "Days of Thunder" and reshapes of "Die Hard," "Robocop," "48 HRS." and "Back to the Future."

Against such predictable fare, "Dick Tracy" is distinguished by its originality.

The plot is basic comic strip: good cop vs. the bad guys. Chief bad guy Big Boy Caprice schemes to rule the metropolis with his band of grotesques ranging from Flattop to Pruneface. Big Boy mows down his opposition, but his efforts to destroy Dick Tracy repeatedly fail. Even his luscious moll, Breathless Mahoney, can't seduce the dedicated cop.

Forget the plot. The essence of "Dick Tracy" lies in characters and style, and there it exceeds last summer's clunky, over-produced Batman.

The characters are outrageous and for the most part entertaining. Dustin Hoffman does a delightful bit as the unintelligible Mumbles. Al Pacino is properly obnoxious as Big Boy Caprice. James Caan is wasted as the gangster Spaldoni.

Beatty plays Tracy straight and true blue. There's no wit to the character and little sagacity; on a scale of 1 to 10, with Sherlock Holmes ranked 10, Tracy ranks 3 among fictional detectives. But Tracy's very straightness provides a solid core for the film.

After a few flops, Madonna finally registers on the screen as Breathless. She's busy and brash with the kind of lines that Lauren Bacall used to murmur to Humphrey Bogart. "What I'm looking for is a driver, preferably one with some mileage," she says at one point.

As the orphaned Kid, the only sympathetic character, Charlie Korso almost steals the film. Glenna Headly registers nicely in the thankless role of Tracy's patient girlfriend, Tess Trueheart. Also notable: Mandy Patinkin as 88 Keys, Paul Sorvino as Lips Manlis, Charles Durning as Chief Brandon and Dick Van Dyke, also unrecognizable, as District Attorney.

Richard Sylbert's design for "Dick Tracy" is self-conscious but eye-filling. The same reds, greens, blues, etc., are everywhere as in the Sunday comics.

As a director, Beatty maintains a staccato pace punctuated by Danny Elfman's overpowering score. In keeping with the 1930s atmosphere, Beatty uses three extended montages to advance the plot. The few quiet moments with Tess and Kid are welcome relief.

Disney's Touchstone Pictures is releasing the film, which originally was designed for the Walt Disney Pictures banner. The switch seems logical, since the PG-rated movie contains Madonna's sexual innuendo and much gunfire, although no blood.

TV may be what you eat

NEW YORK (AP) - Television might make your brain cry out for sustenance, but it could be worse for couch potatoes if it inspires them to down the same junk they see actors eating on TV shows at night.

No kidding, that's the opinion of a study that analyzed the food content of 11 top network shows and almost burped in dismay.

"The prime-time diet is inconsistent with dietary guidelines for healthy Americans," says a summation of the study, published in this month's issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

The study, conducted in the summer of 1988, was designed to examine whether what we see eaten on TV has any impact on what we eat. Could be, it concluded. "However," it added, "this is speculative and further research is needed."

But the report makes clear that such good-for-you eats as wheat germ, apples, spinach, fish and even the mighty banana get short shrift in prime time.

The study finds that 60 percent of all food references in the studied shows "were for low nutrient beverages and sweets."

A big boo to you, Mr. TV Producer.

The food references don't include the 261 commercials found here and there in the shows. But they, too, indicate TV has become Munchy

City. The study says 35 percent of the ads were for food, with fast-food wares - hamburgers, fried chicken, pizza and breakfast sandwiches - leading the pack.

The shows analyzed for their depictions of TV dining ranged from "Who's the Boss" to "The Golden Girls" from "Murder She Wrote" to "ALF."

Even "L.A. Law," which often has a fruit bowl on its conference table to indicate the series is about a Los Angeles law firm, got the gimlet eye.

All this analyzing proved a veritable Tums festival, finding that references to food occurred an average of 4.8 times per half-hour for a grand total of 134 food references. For what it's worth, fish got only one mention, but then, so did muffins. Almost three-fourths of the food eaten on the shows was "eaten between meals," with sweets the most popular, the study says. Sweets had a 44 percent consumption rate, whereas fruits and vegetables had a combined total of only 9 percent.

The formal-dining analysis included the category of entrees, which among other things, the study says, consisted of "stir-fry vegetables and chicken which the children refused to eat."

Let's hear it for the kids. But their parents should turn off the TV set and make them read. Or take them to a play, maybe something by Shakespeare. Not "Twelfth Night," though. No one has conducted a food analysis of it, but it does have a character who would be ideal to conduct such a study. Better yet, he could have a go at the art of dining on TV. His name is Sir Toby Belch.

YOUR EYES
WHEN SMOKE GETS IN YOUR EYES
Most of us know that smoke irritates the eyes and eyelids. It also affects the way some people see.
In some smokers, the blood vessels in the eye constrict and the eyes have less ability to adapt when going from darkness to light. In others, sensitivity to side vision is also diminished.
Scientists at Johns Hopkins University Wilmer Eye Institute found in a recent study that there is a link between smoking and the development of premature cataracts. After studying over 900 fishermen, aged 30 to 94, the scientists found that those who smoked were twice as likely to develop cataracts before they were 70. The risk of developing cataracts early was also increased in heavy smoking. It was also found that when subjects stopped smoking, the risk of developing cataracts at an earlier age was cut in half. The study also implies that cataract development hastened by substances such as tobacco may be reversed if the smoker discontinues the habit.
In general, eye health can improve when one stops smoking because the proper oxygen level is restored to delicate eye tissues.

Master Bedroom Suite Provides Unsurpassed Elegance TWO STORY PLAN RICH IN CLASSIC STYLE

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

A full formal entrance foyer directs you to formal and informal areas of this plan. The living room and dining room are separated by same and are arranged to prevent wear from daily traffic and to include excellent wall space for furniture placement. The large family room on the rear is endowed with a real wood burning fireplace, bay window, deck access and a wet bar. A half bath separates this room from the expanse of a country kitchen, which also includes a bay window and deck access, as well as access to the private laundry room.

An island surface unit cabinet is shown.

There are four large bedrooms upstairs, the master bedroom suite extending the full depth and utilizing approximately one third of the second story. The master bedroom suite enjoys the privacy of a full compartment bath and a large walk-in closet. A central hall bath services the remaining three bedrooms and a disappearing stair to attic and an attic fan are shown in the main hall of the second floor.

The Williamsburg exterior is symmetrical with the simple lines of a truly traditional home. A detached two car garage plan is a part of the working plans.

The plan is Number 2549. It includes 2,588 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Garage doors need work

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures
Lifting and lowering a heavy sectional overhead garage door should normally be an easy task because of built-in mechanical advantages: pulleys and counterbalance springs.

But over time, this job can become very difficult due to neglect of simple maintenance, or because some parts are broken, worn or misaligned. It doesn't take much time and only a few simple tools are needed to get your garage door into tip-top shape once again.

The most common cause for a door to move sluggishly is lack of lubrication - coupled with an accumulation of grime - in the roller bearings. Another source of friction can be traced to grime-caked or rusted roller shafts that prevent the roller hinges from pivoting freely as the door moves through its tracks. Periodic oiling of the rollers and hinges, as well as the pulleys and the insides of the tracks, will help keep the door functioning trouble free. But keep in mind that oiled tracks tend to collect dirt, so don't overdo your lubrication. Just apply a thin film of lightweight oil to the rollers and occasionally wipe the tracks clean with an oil-dampened cloth.

Severely neglected roller assemblies may well call for removal to do a thorough job of cleaning and lubrication. If you have to go this route, be sure to remove only one roller assembly at a time and replace it before removing another.

When replacing the hinge, attach the bottom leaf first, then insert a thin cardboard shim between the adjacent door panels before tightening the nuts on the upper leaf. This will prevent the door panels from binding when the door is closed.

Although the rollers are designed to function in the tracks with a fair amount of play, loose hinges will invariably cause the rollers to move out of alignment and bind.

Another trouble spot to check when the door is balky and functioning poorly is track alignment. Hard use and abuse in operating the door, as well as normal setting of the garage structure, can cause the tracks to become misaligned. Visual observation of the rollers in the tracks and checking for plumb with a spirit level will indicate whether an adjustment of one or both tracks is required.

The counterbalance springs on the typical modern door have no built-in adjustment mechanism like some of the older doors had. The only way to adjust the springs is to increase or reduce the tension by tightening or loosening the connecting lift cable.

If the spring has lost its tension it should be replaced. This is indicated when the spring, under tension, does not close tightly and shows spaces between the coils. This determination, as well as the adjustment or removal of the springs, must be done with the door in the fully opened - raised - position.

Some experimentation is required to adjust the counterbalance springs. If your door is sluggish, tighten the spring slightly by pulling more cable through the locking bracket. If the door lifts too quickly, loosen the cable. In either case be sure to reattach the cable to its locking bracket.

Questions and answers

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures

Q. - All summer long our toilet tank sweats and drips water, especially when it's humid. We've tried several products, but they only work for short periods. One plumber suggested we hook up the tank to the hot-water line, but others had never heard of this. Who's right?

A. - The first plumber knows his business. When warm, moist room air hits your water-cooled tank and bowl, condensation forms. Tell your plumber to install a mixing valve that will flush your toilet with room-temperature water (not straight hot water). The valve can be adjusted to maintain the correct water temperature without wasting hot water.

Q. - I've repainted the plaster walls of my living room several times, filling a large crack that starts at the corner of a finished opening with joint compound. Shortly after each paint job, the crack reappears. How can I repair it permanently?

A. - The position of that crack is a sign that the framing is inadequate. The best solution would be to beef up the header or top plate of the bearing wall - the sooner the better.

If you're not prepared for such an extensive repair presently, chip out all loose plaster and clean the crack out thoroughly. Lay an ample bed of compound about 3 inches wide over the crack. Place wallboard tape down with a 4 inch taping knife, squeezing out the excess compound and making sure there are no air bubbles underneath the tape. When the compound dries (in a day or so), apply a second coat over the tape, feathering the edges flush with the wall surface.

Q. - My insulation installer recommended urethane foam in my attic. He claims that 1 inch of urethane will equate to an R-30 value. He claims that's a lot better than fiberglass can't get anywhere near that R-value. But I have heard that plastic foams should be avoided.

A. - You'd better change installers. Never even consider using foam in the attic. The material was developed for use in walls or on flat roofs (mainly commercial ones). By the way, don't confuse all "foams" with urea-formaldehyde, which the Consumer Product Safety Commission has deemed harmful to your health. Most foams, however, are flammable and certain precautions must be taken.

Q. - What can I do to prevent water from coming through cracks in my concrete basement walls and floor?

A. - If cracks are very narrow, epoxy resin paint applied to the inside of the basement wall may solve the problem. Fill wide cracks with trowel-grade epoxy mortar (2-part epoxy system with sand filler).

If filling a crack from the inside doesn't stop the leak, dig a trench around the outside to make repairs.

Q. - Why is it paint sticks to every surface of our house except underneath the eaves?

A. - There is probably no vapor barrier behind the eaves sheathing. Installing one or venting the eaves will preserve future paint jobs. Another possible-trouble source is airborne dirt and dust particles carrying natural and industrial salts which lodge behind the sheathing and affect the paint bond. After scraping and sanding the eaves, scrub them with detergent and let them dry thoroughly, then prime the paint.

Leaks shouldn't spoil a skylight

By READER'S DIGEST
For AP Newsfeatures

Skylights can turn a dark room into a sunlit oasis. At the same time, they have been known to leak.

Skylights must also be kept very clean to live up to their promise. Here are suggestions for proper cleaning and repair. Caution: Work carefully and take all reasonable precautions when you are on a ladder or the roof.

Cleaning
- Glass: Clean as you would a glass window; a solution of two table-spoons household ammonia or white vinegar with a quart of warm water works well. If you use a commercial glass cleaner, be sure to rinse. Dry with paper towels, crumpled newspaper, a chamois cloth or lint-free rag.

- Acrylic plastic: Clean with a mild ammonia solution. Remove grease or tar with a soft cloth and kerosene, methanol or high-grade naphtha.

- Polycarbonate plastic: Use a mild soap or detergent solution. Remove grease or tar with a soft cloth and naphtha or isopropyl alcohol.

Avoid window-cleaning preparations and strong solvents such as acetone, alcohol or gasoline which can cause the surface of the skylight, especially a plastic one to develop fine cracks.

Never use abrasive cleaners or pads on any plastic skylight, or scrape off stubborn spots with a putty knife or razor blade, all of which can cause scratches. Minor scratches already present can often be obscured with a light buffing of automobile wax, which also protects a skylight's luster.

Repairing Leaks
If water stains develop on the ceiling around the frame or if water drips from the edges of the skylight after a heavy rain, here's what to do:

- First, look at the flashing on the roof above the skylight. (Flashing is the metal strip that seals the seams around the skylight.) Then check the outside joint where the skylight and roofing meet. If you see any cracks or gaps, plug them with roofing cement and smooth the surface to get rid of pockets where water can collect.

If you can't see any gaps, line the entire joint with cement anyway to seal any invisible pinholes.

- If you patch all cracks and gaps and still have a problem, the leak's origin may be elsewhere on the roof.

- If water leaks through the skylight itself, the problem may be the watertight seal, or gasket, has deteriorated or come loose. Pry out the old seal with a chisel or screwdriver, clean the surfaces, and install a new seal with the adhesive recommended by the manufacturer.

- A persistent leak in a new skylight may indicate a faulty product or improper installation.

LEARNING CAPITALISM

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) - Teaching capitalism to the communists is an important task, says Dr. Juan Rada, director of the International Institute for Management Development (IMD) here.

Rada contends only the West can show Eastern European managers how to compete and survive in a free market. He says some U.S. business schools are training these managers, as is his organization which has helped establish a management training center in Kiev in the USSR.

Rada says he believes effective management training is the key to avoiding chaos in Eastern Europe.

Farm and Ranch

Tractor school set

There will be a tractor driving school on June 13 at 9 a.m. at the Bull Barn in Hereford. This will be sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Participants will receive training in tractor safety and operations to certify them for farm employment. The school is open to all youth between the ages of 14-19. Interested persons may contact the Deaf Smith County Extension Office by Monday, June 11.

Pit, pipeline conserve water

The tailwater pit (top picture) and pipeline (bottom picture) under construction on the Jimmy Broman farm, is designed to store excess irrigation water that would otherwise be lost. According to Pat Reily of the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District, 25 percent of the water applied to row irrigation systems is lost as tailwater. The pit and pipeline will recover about 65 percent of the runoff and return it to the irrigation system, helping to lower pumping costs and conserve water.

Processors teach capitalist lessons

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. food processors and processing-equipment makers took a few steps closer to converting the Soviet Union to the capitalistic system during a conference this week.

Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher signed an agreement Wednesday with the Soviet Union that promises that federal officials will work with the Soviets to find ways to adapt the U.S. food making and distribution system to their country.

Vladilen Nikitin, the Soviet equivalent to the U.S. agriculture secretary, said the agreement was a small step, "but everything starts with a small step."

"For you, it's a key if you want to participate in the strengthening of our economy," he said through an interpreter.

The pact was signed on the last day of a three-day conference sponsored by the Food Processing Machinery & Supplies Association and the National Food Processors Association.

Demos want export stop

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democrats on the Senate Agriculture Committee say legislation to halt export of pesticides that can't be sold in the United States will help American farmers.

"By stopping the export of banned and unregistered pesticides, we will level the playing field for our producers," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the committee. "Both domestic and foreign farmers will be treated the same."

The committee inserted the ban Wednesday in its version of the 1990 farm bill, under protest from ranking Republican Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana and other GOP members on the committee.

Lugar said he didn't think the provision belonged in the legislation that establishes the government's agricultural policy for the next five years.

Sen. Christopher Bond, R-Mo., said the legislation could lead to loss of jobs at chemical companies that may decide to do their manufacturing abroad.

He also said, "If we phase companies out, it would take other companies very little time to gear up."

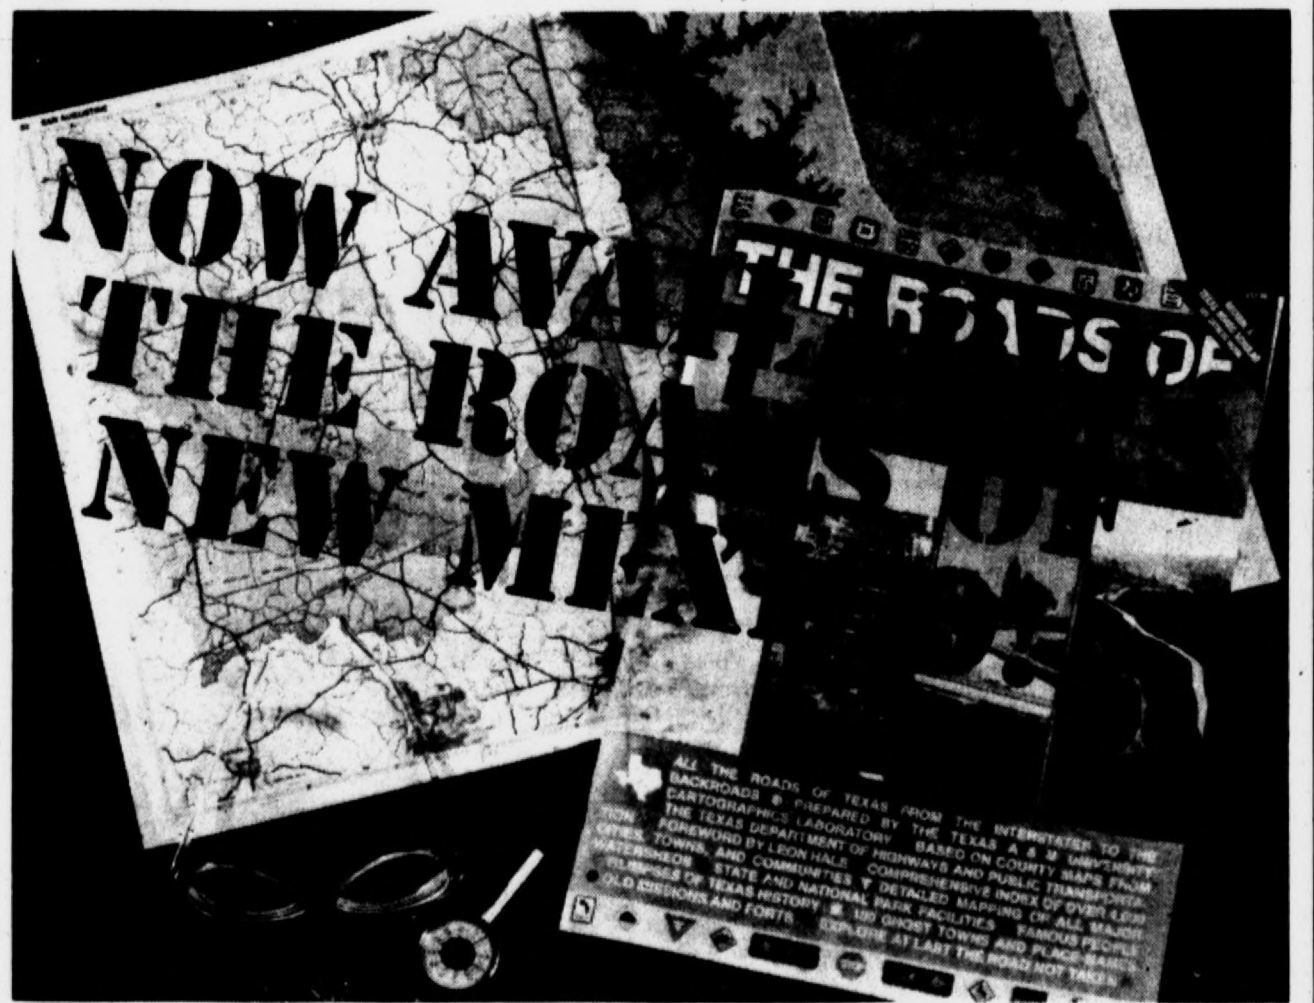

Jay Vroom, president of the National Agricultural Chemicals Association, said his organization would continue to try to get the committee to change certain provisions of the bill.

He said proposed restrictions on experimentation with chemicals would be detrimental to U.S. scientific discovery.

"We could be shooting ourselves in the foot," Vroom said. "Some companies will move research plants to Europe where the likelihood is better of moving products around the world unfettered during experimentation on crops."

He said many of the unregistered chemicals sold abroad that would be banned from export are awaiting approval by the Environmental Protection Agency, which has a backlog. Thus, they could eventually be registered here, he said.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.
