Around Town

Sights and Faces Seen

Mont Baker is losing his amateur status this week working at the Quality Grocery while Jimmy Robinson is sick. Anyway, the fish ought to be getting a little rest.

The county library reports one of the biggest days in its history Saturday a week ago. Which proves that the war must stimulate interest in reading. The transportation shortage is reflected in the fact that people are checking out fewer seven day books.

Dr. G. W. Heard, talking to George Cantrell this week, sounded as though he were "agin" this idea of gasoline rationing. Looks as though now that those of us who don't want to be rationed may get a chance to avoid it by gathering up scrap rubber, which may fill the big gap in tire stocks.

George Jones, who is now stationed in Florida, is in Hereford this week giving the stay-at-homes the low down on army life.

Dr. W. N. Lemmon is in Amarillo, where he went early this week to undergo an operation.

J. H. Brooks is really a doting grandfather, and very happy this week that his grand-daughter, 14-year-old Kay Mitchell, of Roswell, N. M., is here spending her vacation with him and Mrs. Brooks.

Miss Sadie Lee Oliver, who tries to keep up with all the garden developments in Hereford, reports this week that Mrs. C. H. Dyer has some very beautiful Madonna lilies, 30 plants, in her garden now. One plant has 16 open blossoms and stands four feet high. The Regal lilies in H. L. Rice's and Mrs. J. P. Stanton's gardens are beginning to open, Miss Oliver says.

Collect Rubber Scrap Or Have Gas Rationing

A telegram received this morning by the county salvage committee requested that citizens prepare now for the fullest cooperation with the drive to collect rubber scrap, complete plans for which will be announced in a press release from Governor Coke Stevenson.

Directors hope that the collection will be big enough to make nation-wide gasoline rationing unnecessary and point out that a good collection of all available rubber scrap is looked to now as the only possible means of averting nation-wide gas rationing to conserve tires now in service.

case of flu and bronchitis. He invites all church members and interested persons to attend both morning and evening worship services next Sunday.

The entire Hereford territory was saddened this week by the death of Dr. G. F. LeGrand, 77 years old, who died yesterday following a brief illness which came after a heart attack suffered Saturday.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock at the First Baptist Church under the direction of Rev. W. E. Barnes for the doctor who had served the people of Hereford tirelessly since 1908 and who represented, to the highest extent, the virtues of the pioneer general practitioner.

Born June 6, 1865, in Breckinridge County, Ky., the son of Dr. George H. and Elizabeth (Tanner) LeGrand, Dr. LeGrand came to Texas in 1878 with his family, who settled at Graham, Young County.

Dr. LeGrand received his education in the public schools of Graham, at the University of Texas, and at the Medical Department of the University of Louisville, from which he graduated in 1892. He was married in 1894 to Miss Mary Milling of East Lynne Parish, La., and besides Mrs. LeGrand, three sons, George F., Louis L. and Eugene A. LeGrand, all of Hereford, survive. A daughter died in 1921.

Coming to Hereford with his father in 1903, Dr. LeGrand purchased large land holdings. He practiced for two years at Brownsville, Cameron County, before returning to Hereford in 1908, since which time he had lived here.

Dr. LeGrand came to this country when the title "Horse and Buggy Doctor" meant more than just the name of a popular book. He continued his practice long after purely personal desires might have made him retire, and he continued to keep up with latest developments in his profession. He was a member of the Potter County Medical Association and the Texas and American Medical Associations.

In addition to his work in his office, he was a member of the (Continued on Page 12)

War Bond Award In Walgreen Products Month

That a $25.00 U. S. Defense Bond will be awarded in connection with Walgreen Products month, which is being celebrated during June by Halle Drug, in connection with a nationwide celebration in all Walgreen stores, was announced this week. The award will be made June 30th.

"In addition, we are offering special prices on all Walgreen products," Mr. Halle said. "This is an annual event, and has been very popular in past years."

FLAG DAY PROCLAMATION

On January 1, 1942, twenty-six Governments signed the Declaration of the United Nations. They pledged support to the principles of the Atlantic Charter of International Freedom. They pledged their full resources—military and economic—against those Axis nations with which they were at war. They pledged never to sign a separate armistice or peace with the enemy.

Each year, on June 14, the people of this community have observed Flag Day as a symbol of our allegiance to the ideals of our country. But, in this year of all-out war against tyranny, our allegiance is entwined with loyalty to all who battle alongside us, wherever they may be. As we have united in the past to build a mighty America out of pioneers who came here from many lands, so today we join with United Nations on every continent to fight for the age-old human ideal of freedom. We may differ with many of our allies in language, or religion, or form of government, but we are united on a basic principle now challenged by Axis aggressors. It is the principle that human beings have a right to be free, that they have a right to decide for themselves what kind of government they wish, that they have the inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

To pay tribute to the unconquerable determination of the twenty-six United Nations—to give the citizens of this community an opportunity to express their conviction that the spirit of freedom will never die, and that our cause will be victorious—to express our confidence in the sincerity, the gallantry and the mutual respect of the United Nations whether they are now on the battle-lines, whether their lands are temporarily under the heels of Axis tyranny, or whether they serve by supplying the vital materials of war.

As Mayor of Hereford, I hereby proclaim June 14, 1942, Flag Day and I ask all citizens to cooperate with the Flag Day Committee in carrying out a fitting observance of this day. I ask the people of Hereford to display the flag of the United States as well as the flags of other United Nations which may be in their possession. I ask for full participation in all ceremonies which may be held in this community so that the world will know that Americans stand shoulder to shoulder with our allies in the undying determination to fight until victory is ours.

(Signed) C. J. PADDOCK,
Mayor of City of Hereford

The commissioners court room will be registration place in the county and the hours will be 7 o'clock a. m. until 9 o'clock p. m.

A bill now before Congress provides for making the 18 and 19 year olds liable for military service and is expected to pass, though the provisions for registration do not as yet entail liability for military service.

Men born on or after Jan. 1, 1922 and on or before June 30, 1924 will be expected to fill in a registration form. State headquarters has instructed the local board to be (Continued on page 12)

Oliver To Teach Nutrition Course

E. C. Eubanks, county Red Cross Chairman, announced this week that Miss Sadie Lee Oliver has been authorized by national Red Cross headquarters to teach a nutrition course as part of the Red Cross sponsored war activities. Miss Oliver asks that persons interested in taking the course notify her in writing, stating that this means of notification will provide a more accurate check on the number of persons desiring the course and will enable her to make plans within the next few days.

Information to be offered in the course include facts about new discoveries on food needs and food values, proper food practices and ways of applying knowledge of wise selection and preparation to everyday foods.

Class activities will include food demonstrations, exhibits and field trips.

The importance of adequate nutrition in increasing physical and mental efficiency and building morale is pointed out by Red Cross officials, who state that completion of the nutrition course is prerequisite in taking the nutrition course which will also probably be offered here.

D. P. Vaughn Rites Sunday

Rites for D. P. Vaughn, 83-year-old retired farmer and rancher who died Friday, were held Sunday afternoon at the Vaughn home, 418 D. Street.

Mr. Vaughn, who came to Deaf Smith County 37 years ago from Denton County, had lived in Hereford since 1917. He was a native of Tennessee and had lived in Texas for 63 years. Retired from active business life for several years, Mr. Vaughn is remembered by many old-timers of the county for his neighborliness and devotion to his many friends.

Survivors besides his wife, Mrs. Martha Vaughn, are five sons, W. A. Vaughn and W. D. Vaughn, both of Hereford; J. C. Vaughn, Amarillo, E. E. Vaughn, North Hollywood, Calif., and L. T. Vaughn, Tacoma, Wash.; two daughters, Mrs. Iva Mae Norton, San Bernardino, Calif.; and Mrs. Claude Higgins, Hereford; 28 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

Rev. H. P. Cooper of the Church of Christ was in charge of the funeral rites, assisted by Rev. H. M. Redford of the Christian Church.

Palbearers were Charles Hodges, Doyle Rose, E. Ramey, E. H. Norton, W. M. Adams and G. C. Hartman.

Burial was in West Park Cemetery.

Farm Bureau Asks Early Reply To Letter

All farmers who received a letter or card from the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau are asked to mail the reply in by June 15 to J. T. Gilbreath or to the Deaf Smith County A. C. A. office, Jim Hill of the Farm Bureau said today.

All letters will be sent to College Station to be used as part of a petition to be sent to senators and congressmen urging ceiling and parity price protection for farmers.

"The maintenance of farm price parity means a great deal to every farmer in this county," Hill declares, stating that the replies should be mailed in immediately to insure early congressional action on the matter.

Commissioners Will Not Meet On June 22

Because of the expected harvest rush, the regular meeting of the commissioners court on June 22 will not be held, County Judge A. J. Schroeter stated this week.

"Most of the commissioners expect to be busy in the harvest fields by that time," Schroeter says. "And we believe that nearly all regular activities will have to be postponed while the crop is gathered."

Public Invited To Attend Musicale Given At Christian Church Tonight

The public is invited to attend a musicale which the Music Study Club is sponsoring at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the First Christian Church.

Saturday, June 13, is the last date for candidates to file for a place on the Democratic ticket, E. S. Ireland, county Democratic chairman, announced today. The first Democratic primary will be held July 25, Ireland says, and the county committee must file an expense report for all candidates by June 25. Expense accounts for the second primary, August 22, must be filed by July 27, the county chairman says.

Princt Chairmen will meet Monday, June 15, to determine the place on the ballot of all candidates.

Interest in local political races has been eclipsed by war developments, but the race for the four commission posts, that of county judge and sheriff and tax collector will be contested. No opponents have announced against present holders of the county clerk and county treasurer posts and no candidate is in the field for the office of county attorney.

Main interest in state politics is in the contest for the junior U. S. senatorial post now held by (Continued on Page 12)

CCC Wheat Bins To Be Shipped

A promise of help in the wheat storage situation was contained in a telegram received this week by the local AAA office from B. F. Vance, state administrative officer of the government farm program. Vance's telegram follows:

"Commodity Credit Corporation will purchase for resale to farmers two thousand 1592 bushel capacity and five hundred 1843 bushel capacity pre-fabricated wheat bins at $225 and $270, respectively, delivered by rail, prepaid, to county points in car-load lots of five bins each. Suggest you contact producers to determine the number of bins required. Wire order daily giving number and size of bin and shipping points."

The county AAA office announces that 84 bins have been ordered and suggests that farmers who want such bins get in touch with the local office immediately.

Scrap Drive Result Still Unsatisfactory

Stating that 40 tons of scrap materials have been collected in the salvage drive in Deaf Smith County, members of the county committee this week pointed out that this result is still far short of the desired total.

"We know that this is a busy season in this territory," the committee point out, "but the importance of the scrap salvage drive cannot be put second to our own business interests. Our country needs this metal and scrap rubber, and we should make a sacrifice, if necessary, to gather it up and put it where it can be made into war materials."

Study Shows 72-Inch Wheat Root Length

How long do wheat roots grow to be?

You'd be surprised how many experienced farmers will answer that question with something like, "Oh, two or three feet," according to A. W. Erickson of Minneapolis, Minn., who conducted a crop report survey here last week, and proved among other things, that just an average wheat root in Deaf Smith County this year has reached a record 72 inch length.

The length of the root, together with a study of Deaf Smith County soil structure has provided Erickson with some interesting data on the cause of the high calcium content of Deaf Smith County products as well as a basis for some convincing theories on the practice of irrigation in wheat farming.

Roots Answer Questions
The crop specialist, conducting his study in this county for the Fraser Milling Company, last week literally dug up an exhibit which he declares is convincing proof of why Deaf Smith County people are noted for their good teeth. The exhibit, a complete wheat root system, showed that the 72 inch roots extend not only to the caliche but penetrate deeply into this caliche base of all the soil in the Hereford territory.

son says, explains why the 1942 harvest in this section will be the best, perhaps in history. "Wheat roots," Erickson points out, "will always seek the deep moisture in the ground," and he adds that there was a 113 inch moisture penetration from last summer's rains. This moisture penetration is present in continuously cropped ground; in summer fallowed ground the penetration is even deeper. Excavation Difficult

The matter of excavating a complete root system is a good three day's job for three men, according to the veteran crop reporter, whose work here took up most of a week. A representative wheat field was chosen and the digging of a pit about eight feet deep was started around the chosen wheat plant, whose entire root system was left intact in a central column of earth, which was then shaped and fitted to a wooden box, and the bottom of the column sliced off with a quarter-inch thick steel blade. The top of the box is securely nailed on, and the entire structure, which measures 75 inches long by 23 inches wide and 15 inches thick and weighs about a ton, is tamped out of the pit. Next comes the careful washing of the dirt to expose the root system, and this job itself takes nearly a day. The 72 inch root in the Deaf Smith County exhibit is the longest Erickson has ever seen in many years of conducting similar studies in every state in the great wheat belt.

"Penetrating into the calcium as these roots do," Erickson declares, "it is no wonder that your town has become known as 'The Town Without A Toothache.'" Roots feed the plant the vital minerals found in the soil, he says, pointing out that not only wheat but all other products raised in the county derive benefit from the calcium in the soil. To a certain extent, this calcium permeates the soil, though the pure caliche base is sharply marked from the surface dirt. Don't Irrigate Now

Besides the explanation of the high calcium, general high test record of wheat raised in the Hereford territory, Erickson's study, conducted in a bumper crop year when heavy moisture was received in the fall and winter, points to what he considers the most important lesson for irrigation farmers.

Wheat irrigation, Erickson believes, should come in August and should be enough for a 72 inch moisture penetration—that is 12 acre inches. Farther irrigation, he is convinced is unnecessary, and he points to the boxed root system as living proof that the roots will seek out the deep penetrating moisture—and in this particular soil structure will get the benefit of the rich calcium content of the caliche base.

Caliche Part of Sea Floor
It is Erickson's theory that surface dirt in this territory is that which has blown in. The caliche is part of what was the floor of a vast shallow continental sea in past geologic ages. The same geologic formation is found in parts of Swisher, Hale and Castro Counties.

With the best wheat crop in ten years ready to overflow granaries, farmers are listening with interest to reports of Erickson's study, for, in cropped land, this deep moisture penetration is already exhausted; though it remains in summer fallowed soil, and his theories on proper irrigation practice, the value of summer fallowing and early seeding, backed up by proof of the uncanny reaching ability of the wheat roots, may point to a changed farming procedure as farmers learn to take greater advantage of the soil formation.

Sunny Brooks tells a story which he says he is going to send to "Believe It Or Not" Ripley. I know what Mr. Ripley is going to do, too. He is going to read it, then he is going to shake his head. Anyway, Mr. Brooks says it is the absolute truth and I feel sure that it is, because he told it in front of his sister, who was visiting here last week from Oklahoma City.

A few days back Mr. Brooks went into his barn to gather up the eggs and was surprised to hear baby chicks chirping away. He started looking for the chick, but was unable to find it. Finally, he began trying to follow the sound. He did this for about thirty minutes and in desperation climbed onto some rafters from whence the sound seemed to originate. About 15 feet from the ground he discovered a pigeon's nest. In the nest was a tiny squab and one baby chick. How the chicken egg ever got up there is the puzzling part of the story. Miss Brooks also pointed out that pigeons always lay their eggs in pairs.

The story leaves a splendid opening for folks who like to jump at conclusions. Personally, I am not willing to admit that the pigeon laid a chicken egg. Maybe one of the chickens flew to a rafter, laid an egg which fell into the nest and broke the other pigeon egg. Anyway, if the papa pigeon didn't get mad and leave the happy home, I'll bet he makes mama pigeon quit eating sorghum and maize—which are supposed to contain an abundance of Vitamin B-1.

Here's a letter which recently came from Mrs. J. H. Wilson, who is now located in Amarillo and who has a host of friends here who will be glad to know that she is well and happy.

It's a little crowded for a country boy, but I guess I will get used to it. I can get around now without getting lost. Have to drive seven miles to work.

Here's Mine, Where's Yours?

—From Huntington (W. Va.) Advertiser.

are four gentlemen, we might even be a little bit happy that someone else made the same mistake we made. I know just how Harry felt. He was taking the new-fangled mower out to demonstrate its many features to Mrs. Danforth—and to his dismay, it just barely worked. Again, I want to warn folks against this article. It is called the Monta-Mower; it has little round wheels instead of blades. Harry is sending his mower back and hopes to get part of his money back. If you decide you want to order one of these mowers, see me. I know where you can buy one at a discount.

More people are fishing this year than ever before. Bill Clutter is rapidly coming to the front as an expert angler. Every time you talk with anyone they generally mention that Bill caught a lot of perch or maybe a couple of two or three pound bass. Tess Fox went out again the other day and snagged a three pound bass.

It seems like I am the only guy who never catches anything. No matter how well they have been biting, they always stop the day I decide to go. I have fished by the calendar, by the barometer, and even by the dark of the moon—and I just don't have any luck.

Mont Baker has promised that next time he is fishing and they are biting real good that he will go to a telephone and call me. This probably means that the fish will immediately stop biting. Anyway, I have my doubts about whether he even calls or not.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

A few weeks ago, I had occasion to visit some friends of mine in Nebraska.

Nebraska certainly is a great State. I like Nebraska. I like those immense cornfields that seem to stretch from horizon to horizon. (Plenty of wheatfields in Nebraska, too.)

But the thing that interests me most about Nebraska right now is the very important social experiment the beer people started there several years ago.

Beer itself is naturally a beverage of moderation. Yet, all too often, people are inclined to blame beer wrongly for any misconduct of the customer or the proprietor in a place licensed to sell beer.

So, the brewers got together to see what they could do about this. They weren't really responsible for their retailers. . . . In fact, they're not allowed to control retailers. But the brewing industry worked out a plan by which it cooperates with the public authorities to eliminate bad conditions in the minority of places whose conduct would reflect on the law-abiding majority.

No. 38 of a Series

The beer people urge proprietors of retail places to conduct them properly and to obey the law. They urge consumers to cooperate, and ask the public generally to report law violations, to the authorities. They send warnings to careless retailers and if conditions are not corrected they take the case up with the authorities. Naturally the authorities and the public have welcomed this as an added force in building respect for law and order.

That program is now operating in many states — and with the Nation at war, brewing industry organizations cooperate with civil and military authorities to assure good conditions in beer joints around the army camps and stations.

Somehow, to me, the important, public I don't know of ever having been people really with that great!

Shower Is Given To Compliment Mrs. C. E. Grenard, Recent Bride

A military theme, significant of the present connection with the U. S. Army of her husband, Mrs. C. E. Roberson and Miss Eunice Caldwell, a toast to the bride was given by Miss Imogene Roberson, and Miss Caldwell entertained with a piano solo, "Nipper the Double Eagle." Betty Hodges sang "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree" and Wanda Terry played an accordion selection.

The "Mess Call" was given by Bugler Myers Hudson and refreshments were served from a table centered with red rosebuds interspersed with white and blue larkspur. Mrs. W. L. Alexander poured punch.

Gifts of china, crystal and linens presented to the honoree by the party guests were attractively arranged on display tables.

Club Work Is War Work H-D President States

Because war intensifies the importance of home demonstration work annual meeting of the Texas Home Demonstration Association likely will be held this fall in spite of transportation problems and many other difficulties facing the Association's 45,000 members.

Mrs. W. Q. Kennedy, Bailey County farm woman and president of the rural women's organization, indicated during a recent conference with Extension Service workers, that plans for the state meeting will be made at an executive session tentatively set June 24.

"Home demonstration club work is vital and important in periods of peace, but in time of stress its contribution is even greater," Mrs. Kennedy said in discussing how rural women are aiding in the Food for Victory program, are conserving food, clothing and equipment, and are sustaining the morale of their families. She quoted Lady Halifax, wife of England's ambassador to this country, who said recently in a radio broadcast that the only clubs still intact in England are the "rural women's institutes." These are comparable to home demonstration clubs in Texas.

Farm prices approaching parity after 20 years of depression offer a great temptation to farm families to compete for reasonably-priced consumer goods, the state president points out. "When you've been getting along without a kitchen sink for a long time and at last have the money to buy one, it's hard to keep on carrying your bucket to the windmill and invest your money in War Bonds. But we are willing to withstand that temptation if we can save our country and give our boys better equipment for winning the war."

Thousands of club women and their neighbors have profited from first aid and home nursing courses this year, upon the recommendation of the Texas Home Demonstration Association the president indicated. She added that the Extension Service war-time program, the Victory Demonstration, is popular because it helps every farm and ranch family in the state know its war-time responsibilities. Conservation and fair distribution of several seasonal food surpluses will be given much consideration by county home demonstration councils and clubs this year, Mrs. Kennedy explained. Waste is considered poor business and is unpatriotic.

Let's Cook Something

More than ever before, attention is focused on the summer garden. With victory gardens in almost everybody's back yard the war-emergency program of the nation is finely emphasized in the American kitchen. One of the first things we are able to enjoy from our gardens is spinach and someday when you want a variation from the ordinary way of preparing spinach, try this recipe for spinach cheese ring.

SPINACH CHEESE RING

- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk
- 1-2 lb. American cheese (grated)
- 3 beaten eggs
- 1 cup finely chopped, cooked spinach
- 1-2 cups soft bread crumbs
- salt and pepper to taste

Make a sauce with flour, butter and milk. When thickened and smooth add grated cheese and remove from fire, stirring until cheese is melted. Add eggs, thoroughly drained spinach, crumbs and seasonings to taste. Pour in a buttered ring mold and bake in moderate oven 40 to 50 minutes. Unmold on serving plate, fill center with hot mashed potatoes and garnish with tiny cooked beans. This tastes as good as it looks.

SEEDS of ADVICE

The Garden Club

The Chinese have an old proverb which runs: "If you would be happy for three hours, get drunk; if you would be happy for three days, kill a pig and eat it; if you would be happy for three months, get married; but if you would be happy all your life—become a gardener."

(The following article was prepared for the Garden Club by Mrs. Ralph McCullough.)

Gardeners everywhere are being urged to add the salad-bowl garden to flower beds this year, for war time emergencies call for more than the beautification of premises with shrubs, flowering perennials and annuals.

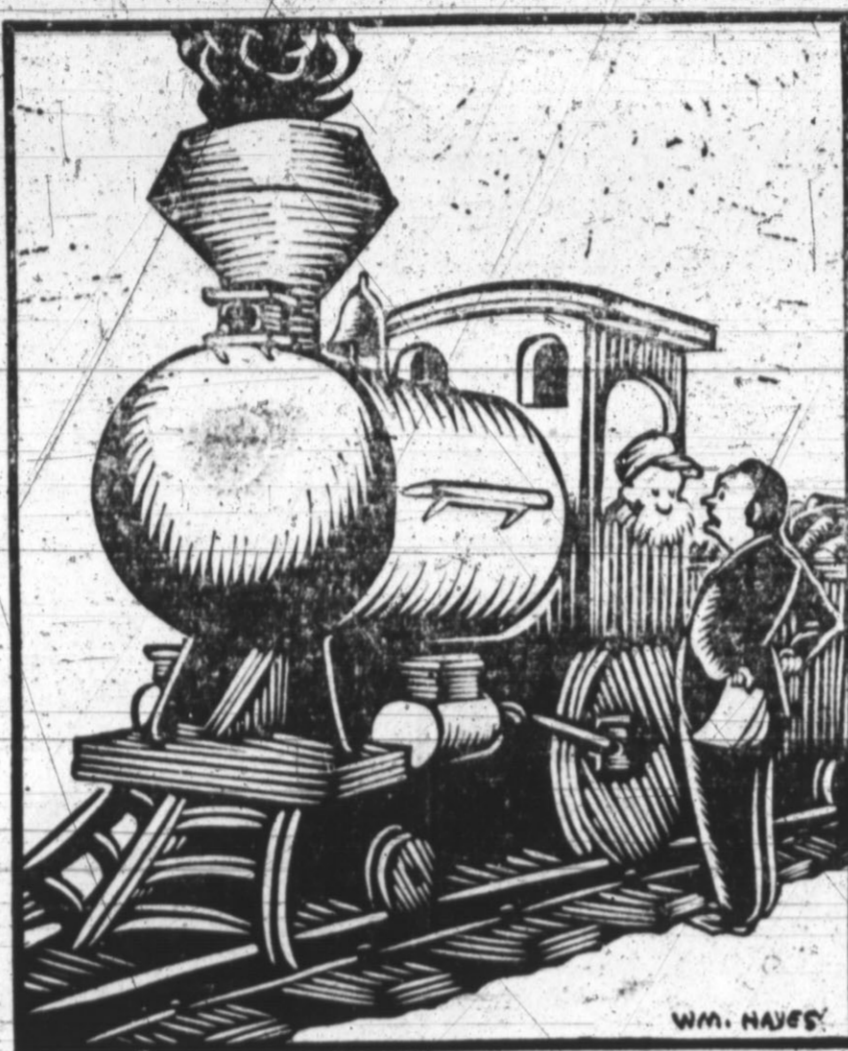

Many Hereford gardeners are bordering their flower beds with vegetables. An attractive border can be made of beets, radishes and carrots, and it is not too late to add these salad garnishings. Parsley will come up in two weeks and make a lovely border and radishes are ready to eat in six weeks and leafy vegetables, such as lettuce, mustard and spinach, can be cut three or four times before going to seed. June is the month to reap the flowers you have sown. You'll be cutting many flowers in June, and it is also the time to sow seeds of perennials, Foxglove and Canterbury Bells should be sown now—it is wise too to cut out the faded blooms before the seed-pods form as this will not only result in more blooms, but will insure a longer blooming period.

The proper cutting back of perennials is important. Michaelmas daisies may be kept at almost any desired height by cutting them judiciously in June.

TICKLERS

By Hayes

"I thought we had replaced all of these."

Delphiniums will bloom again after the first cutting and the hollyhock is greatly encouraged if given a hard cutting back after blooming, allowing for a special stalk for seeds. Some plants will do better if they are pinched back when they are six or eight inches high. Zinnias and chrysanthemums will develop a much bushier plant if this method is used. Low growing plants should be severely cut back and well-fertilized to give assurance of next year's blossoms.

Now is the time to prune many trees and shrubs. Spirea should be pruned and shaped now in order for the plant to put on new growth for next year's bloom. If pruned now it will not appear ragged through the summer and fall and new growth will soon appear and heal scars and bruises.

If your tulips have faded or turned yellow and brown, it is time to dig the bulbs and scatter them out in a well ventilated and dry place. After they have rested during the summer months they will be ready for late fall planting.

Texas Shows How To Win a War

Something for Texans to treasure is an article which appeared in a recent issue of "Business Week" on war-time Texas. Signed by the initials, "W. C." the article was presumably written by Wilton Chevalier, the Brooklyn-born publisher of the magazine.

Here is the tribute paid to the Lone Star State:

What does it take to win a war? According to slogans, war bonds will win the war, or production, or taxes.

But none of the slogans, of course, is true. Only one thing can win the war, and it has not been put into any slogan. For it reeks of blood, sweat and tears, and such grim matters do not make slogans.

That one thing is fighting. Only fighting will win the war. And before any people can fight to win, they must be filled with a fighting spirit. They must be for something or against something hard enough to throw in all they have. They must be willing to fight as naturally as they eat, sleep or breathe.

Those to whom such a notion is distasteful should be reminded that their country was won for them by such fighters only a few generations ago; and that our one hope of survival now is that their fighting instinct still glows beneath the ashes of self-indulgence and easy living. No nation, rich, productive, pampered, scornful of others; can be maintained by any means short of readiness to fight at the drop of a hat.

I am writing this in Texas. And I write it because of all the places I have seen since Pearl Harbor, this is where the fighting spirit seems to burn the fiercest. Down here, you almost sense a sort of private Texas-Axis war. I don't know what proportion of the Texans are in the army and navy, but I'd suspect that it's high. For Texas has gone to war with the only weapon that can win wars—a fighting spirit and a heart for battle. Here I feel that more than anywhere else. The other evening someone asked me why that should be, and ever since then I've been mulling it over.

Certainly, man for man, the Texans are not radically different from the rest of us. They come all kinds and pack about the normal quota of American virtues and vices. But it does seem that down here this vital fighting spark is more universal and intense than elsewhere. Why should that be?

Yesterday it seemed to me that I got a glimpse of the truth. Once again I stood in the Alamo. I thought of that desperate Sunday morning and of the men who there deliberately chose certain death in preference to surrender. And as I read the records there, I was struck for the first time that these men should be called Texans and honored as Texas heroes.

For, of the nearly 200 who died in the Alamo, only nine were native Texans, and all these were of Mexican blood. The others were native to many states and six foreign lands. Travis was of South Carolina, Crockett of Tennessee, Bowie of Kentucky or South Carolina, I'm not sure which. Even Sam Houston, who averaged the Alamo at San Jacinto seven weeks later and established Texan independence, was a Tennessean.

But for more than a century these men have been honored as Texans, above any who has been born on the soil they freed. Why? When you answer that question you'll be close to knowing what breeds a fighting spirit and why it runs so strong in the Texans.

For the thing that made Texans of Travis, Bowie, Crockett, Houston and all the rest of them is not what they got from Texas but what they gave to Texas. Texas did not give birth to them; they gave birth to Texas. And that's what makes them THE TEXANS of all time. They gave their all that Texas might be. They were fighting men. And they fought for something bigger than ourselves.

Ever since then, Texans have had to be fighters. They have fought to build an empire on the site of the nation their fathers founded. They had first to fight wild beasts and wild men, then they had to keep up a running fight with the elements to make their dreams come true. Even after most of our country had been "civilized" and already started softening—Texas still bred fighting men. Until quite recently, the conditions of the Texan's life have preserved his fighting instincts. Whatever his future success may do to soften him up, the Texan of 1942 is still close to the fighting generations of his tribe.

So, it seems to me, if the rest of us Americans would share that fighting spirit, we must fight off the temptation to esteem our country only for what we can get out of it, and not at all for what we put into it. That is a weakness that comes to older lands; lately it has been getting to us. Too often the American's prowess is judged by what he is willing to put into it.

Here is no place to speculate on the origins or implications of that falling. Here let me say that such an attitude does not win wars, it does not breed the fighting spirit we need to win our war. And it surely does not make us into good Americans, any more than a tick becomes a Longhorn just because he lives off one.

In short, what I am trying to say, I guess, is that it's too bad we haven't an Alamo in every state.

TEXAS OUT-OF-DOORS

A marked increase in the number of several prized game animals of the Trans-pecos region as the result of control of the devastating golden eagle and other predators, was reported today to the game department by wardens stationed in that desert country.

Game wardens who have been thinning out the over-abundant eagles since the legislature last year placed it on the unprotected list of Texas birds have been assisted by many landowners, sportsmen and other interested conservationists.

As a result antelope, mule deer, and Bighorn Mountain sheep have picked up in numbers since there are fewer eagles to devour their young.

The executive secretary of the department emphasized that there was no intention of utterly destroying all golden eagles, even if it were possible, but that it was practical to kill some of them, even several thousand, in an effort to restore a balance of nature that would permit all species to live in relative harmony.

Golden eagles are native to the Trans-pecos country but are not found elsewhere in Texas. Occasionally a bald eagle, bird symbol of the United States, is found in those parts and also in the Panhandle-Plains area, but not often. The bald eagle is definitely protected by law, but the golden eagle is not and may be killed at any time.

The golden eagles attain great size, the average wing-spread being seven and one-half feet and they have powerful talons and habit, now duplicated in modern war, of "dive-bombing."

Their usual method of destroying game, say veteran Trans-pecos game wardens, is to fly up to about 3,000 feet, spot newly-born or very young antelope, mule deer, or other animals, fold their wings and dive upon the unsuspecting game, clutching the young in their talons and soaring aloft to some craggy retreat to enjoy a good meal.

Thousands of young antelope, mule deer and mountain sheep have been thus destroyed.

With the game department actively engaged in an extensive antelope restocking program in the Trans-pecos and with efforts being made to restore the mule deer and mountain sheep, the eagle control program is believed to fit well into the desert country game rehabilitation picture.

Of late one game warden and a pilot have been shooting the eagles from an airplane, and several hundred have been brought down. It is unlawful to shoot any game bird from an airplane, but since the golden eagle is no longer protected it is not a game bird and hence this airplane hunting is legal. The warden kills the eagles with a shotgun loaded with BB shot. To date he has 400 flying hours to his credit on eagle hunts, with a record of one eagle per hour.

Largely because of the control of this bird, Brewster County this fall should have an antelope population of about 800, compared to the present 550; Presidio County should have about 700 antelope compared to the present 400, and other counties in the antelope range should show a comparable increase, the warden said.

Make Advance Preparation For Canning

Homemakers canning fruit this year will save themselves time and trouble if they do some advance preparation before applying to their local rationing board for certificates.

"Be prepared to answer these three questions when you go," advised Winifred Jones, specialist in food preservation for the U. S. and M. College Extension Service: How many quarts of fruit did you can last year? How many quarts of fruit do you plan to can this year? How many quarts of last year's fruit do you still have on hand? Another word of advice is "Keep a record of the fruit you can with your rationed sugar because your rationing board will ask for it when you apply for more sugar."

Answering these questions will be relatively simple for the thousands of rural homemakers who have kept records and filled food preservation budgets as recommended by county home demonstration agents of the extension service.

Rural homemakers may stretch their sugar allowances by using thinner syrups for canning fruits and fruit juices and by using corn syrup or honey as substitutes in canning recipes, Miss Jones says. Information on these methods can be obtained from county home demonstration agents. She warns that saccharine, a coal tar product with an extremely sweet taste, cannot be used in canning because it becomes bitter when heated.

Here is the specialist's summary of the rationing regulations as they apply to sugar for canning:

"You will get one pound of sugar for every four quarts of finished fruit you are putting up, and you may can as much fruit as your family needs. You may have an additional pound of sugar for each person in your family to make a small supply of jams, jellies, and fruit butters."

New Program For Union Services

Stating that the first union service of the summer had a total attendance of about 200 last Sunday night, pastors of the Methodist, Christian and Presbyterian Churches this week announced further plans for the summer services. Children from the pre-school age through the intermediate group will meet at 8 o'clock on Sunday nights at the Methodist Church throughout the rest of the summer months. Other age group meetings will be at 8 o'clock and will be held alternately at each of the three churches, starting next Sunday at the Presbyterian Church. Preaching services will be at 8:30 o'clock Sunday at the Presbyterian Church.

At meetings last week W. E. Dameron, was named chairman of the adult group with Mrs. Arch Conklin and Robert L. Thompson as directors. About 40 young people were organized into four different groups, each group to be responsible for some phase of the total youth program, which will include planned recreation for the summer months.

The young people had charge of special music for the service Sunday night and special numbers included a solo by Miss Nola Margaret Blue, accompanied by Mrs. John Jacobsen, Jr., Rev. H. M. Redford preached the sermon on "The Life of Faith." Ministers extend a cordial invitation to all persons to attend next Sunday's services at the Presbyterian Church. The name of the speaker they say will remain "a theological secret" until the program begins.

To Fill Allied Bread-Basket

Farmer Roy Bousseau inspects nearly filled heads of wheat on his big farm near Coldwater, Kan. Ripening grain will be ready for harvest soon and a bumper crop is expected to exceed all records for the past 10 or 15 years. It's good news for the United Nations, who depend on wheat-producing areas in the southwest to fill their bread-basket.

C. C. C. Lists Loan Requirements For Farm-Stored Wheat

Announcement of 1942 granary requirements for C. C. C. farm-stored wheat this week indicated that the general ruling is to store wheat to provide reasonable safety from damage to quality and quantity of the grain.

Specific instructions are as follows:

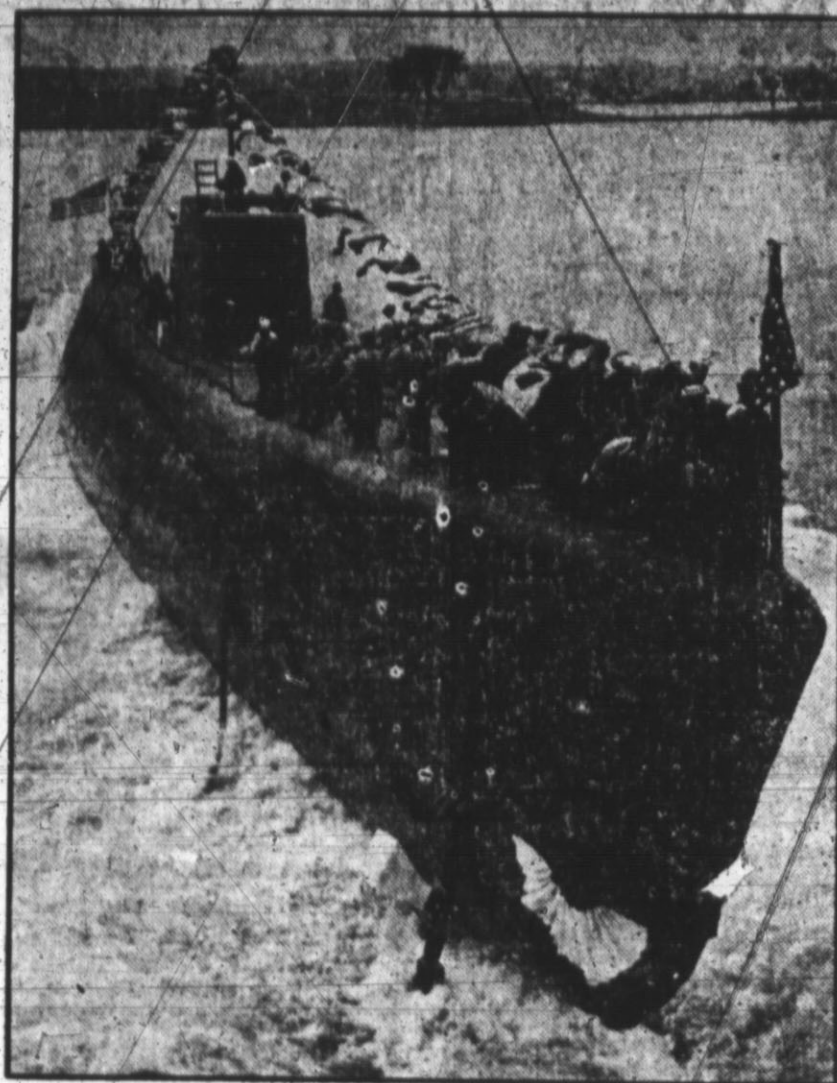

1. A bin or granary must be of such substantial and permanent construction as to afford safe storage for the grain and to protect it against rain, snow and surface water.
2. Hold the wheat without loss of quantity. Protect the wheat against weather conditions which may cause deterioration in quality.
3. Afford reasonable protection against thieves, rodents, birds, poultry and insects.
4. Permit effective fumigation for insects.
5. Provide reasonable safety against fire and wind.
6. Require forcible breaking in order to be entered after sealing.
7. Bins must have not less than four feet of head room between top of wheat and roof, in highest place.
8. Bins must be wholly enclosed and convenient means provided for inspection of wheat.
9. Producers must provide locks with duplicate keys for granary—one key to be furnished the inspector at the time the granary is measured and wheat sample taken, and one key to be retained by the producer.
10. Wheat must be level in bin or bins, and producer must be present to assist inspector in measuring bins and securing samples when he calls for that purpose.

Wheat must be in storage not less than 30 days before bins are measured and samples taken.

Plant Hot Weather Vegetables Now For Later Summer Needs

Sharpen the hoe and plant some hot weather vegetables to come along after the spring garden has burned up or gone to seed, J. F. Rosborough, horticulturist of the A. and M. College Extension Service, advises home gardeners.

Summer leaf lettuce of the Grand Rapids variety will produce young, tender leaves in three or four weeks, he says. Other vegetables which should be planted at this time for a late crop of the best quality are tendergreen mustard and squash. If a larger assortment of summer time eating is desired, plant butter beans, okra, green pepper, eggplant, cream peas and cantaloupes along with them.

If certain spring plantings are not to be repeated, use those spaces for planting hot weather vegetables. For example, english peas may be followed with cream peas, and after white potatoes are dug, use that ground for cream peas also while the soil is well worked up. If plants of green pepper and eggplant are available, use them and thereby hasten production three or four weeks.

Cantaloupe for breakfast, the horticulturist says, has the same place in the diet as tomatoes or oranges, or other fruit juices. The Perfecto variety, which has a tender, highly flavored, salmon-colored flesh, is recommended.

South Main Street Bridge Completed

Traffic started moving Tuesday on the South Main Street Bridge, $9,600 structure which was completed this week.

Timber piling is expected to do away with much of the flood danger which made the old bridge unsafe at times when the creek was on a rise.

County commissioners state that completion of the bridge at this time is fortunate, pointing out that the speeding up of the war effort has now made it almost impossible to get building materials for any but emergency purposes.

Rosborough reminds that it is good garden practice to give plants which grow into the summer months an extra meal of plant food. For tomato plants apply about a half teaspoonful of fertilizer, like 612-6, in a circle 12 or 18 inches away from the plant and mix into the soil about six inches with a hoe.

Watering the more tender vegetables such as lettuce, mustard etc., during hot weather will hasten growth and improve quality.
