Mosbacher wants new state leaders

Rob Mosbacher outlined his five-point plan for business growth in Texas during a campaign stop in Hereford on Thursday.

Mosbacher, 38, is the Republican Party candidate for lieutenant governor in November. He faced no opposition in the primary and will face current State Comptroller Bob Bullock for the lieutenant governor's job in November.

Mosbacher said he, along with U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams and ag commissioner candidate Rick Perry top the GOP ballot with experienced business people.

"Every one of us have had to meet a payroll in private business. You look at the other side, and those folks have never been forced to meet a payroll. They don't know what it's like to have to pay worker's comp or insurance payments or the other things you have to do in private business."

"I think the people of Texas are looking for some new blood in Austin, some new ideas. We can do many things that will make state government more responsive and more responsible."

Mosbacher, during a luncheon interview at the Brand, said the Texas Business Enhancement Fund, the proposal for which he helped write, and the Texas Growth Fund approved by Texas voters in 1988 could spur business growth in Texas.

"The majority of new jobs in the 1990's will be created by small businesses, if we can keep government off their backs and out of their hair," Mosbacher said.

He developed the enhancement plan after looking at similar programs in many other states. He said the problem with most of the other plans is that the state government is too involved.

Under Mosbacher's plan, a bank, savings and loan or other financial institution that is reluctant to totally finance the plan could apply to the enhancement fund. The borrower would pay an origination fee of three to five percent of the loan amount, and the state would pay double the origination fee. That money would provide additional collateral and would be placed in a reserve fund. Since all banks participating would get a portfolio of loans, if any of the loans go bad the reserve fund will cover any loan losses.

"In Michigan, the average loan amount under this plan was $56,000," Mosbacher said. "If you divide $25 million to $30 million which we could have in the reserve fund by an average loan of $56,000, that is a lot of small businesses that can be helped."

Mosbacher also said he wants to further fix the difficulties with worker's compensation in Texas and end the "waste, duplication and red tape that keeps small businesses in knots and keeps people out of work."

He would like to see state government streamlined so that a person could call the Texas Department of Commerce in Austin and be directed to exactly the right place.

"So many times when you call someone in Austin that probably should be able to take care of the problem, you get sent in 15 different directions," Mosbacher said. "Sometimes you're directed to people who aren't even there anymore."

Mosbacher also wants to more aggressively market Texas products around the country and the world and help deregulate the state's trucking industry to improve the climate for intrastate trucking.

ENCORE reels in recyclables

Unwaxed cardboard, plastics, white paper, newspaper, vehicle batteries and metals were collected by ENCORE members Thursday afternoon at a recycling collection day at the parking lot at St. Anthony's Church in Hereford.

As people brought recyclable items, their names and addresses were taken by ENCORE members. After that, the "trash" was gathered and sorted.

Temperatures near 100 degrees did not about 10 children and five adults. "Isn't this tree wonderful?" asked ENCORE member Tonya Kleuskens, pointing upward.

Cardboard was flattened and put in a truck, which will be taken to Lubbock when full. Paper was put in sheds for holding. Metals, glass and plastics were sorted onto a trailer belonging to Fanfare Recycling of Amarillo.

"We got a lot more this time than we did last time (April 21)," ENCORE member Georgia Auckerman said.

ENCORE plans another recycling day on August 21.

On Monday, ENCORE members plan to ask County Commissioners for permission to set up a collection dumpster for cardboard so that cardboard can be collected on an ongoing basis.

Flattening cardboard

ENCORE member Tonya Kleuskens and Colleen Kelley flatten cardboard boxes Thursday afternoon. ENCORE members sponsored a recycling collection day and plan another on August 21.

Leaders warn of crises

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers predicted that the next regular legislative session will begin like the special session ended: in a fight over money for education and social services.

In addition, the next Legislature, new governor and new lieutenant governor may have to deal with a jail lawsuit that could cost $500 million.

After six special sessions, the 71st Legislature adjourned Thursday having passed a quarter-cent sales tax increase and increases in other fees to fund a $528 million public school finance bill and a $100 million bailout of social service agencies.

The public school bill was in response to a Texas Supreme Court ruling that ordered the state to make more money available for poor school districts.

But plaintiffs in the lawsuit have already said the bill signed into law by Gov. Bill Clements doesn't go far enough and they will challenge it in court.

The $100 million appropriation to the Departments of Human Services, Health and Mental Health and Mental Retardation was needed to prevent cuts in critical programs for the needy and to meet federal court orders in the mental health system.

But senate health leaders have said this was just a Band-aid to keep the programs going into next year and that another emergency appropriation will be needed. And a state district court judge has ordered the state to reimburse 12 counties for holding prisoners awaiting transfer to state prison. The case will be appealed, but state officials said if they lose it could cost $500 million.

"This is our next phase of crisis management," state Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, said. "You are going to have to vote for a tax bill to pay for that price," he told House members.

When lawmakers tackle these problems, there will be two new players in the top two jobs, since Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby have not sought re-election.

Kohl and Bush discuss German reunification, US-USSR summit

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - President Bush, shifting from two days of politicking back to international diplomacy, is consulting with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl on U.S.-Soviet differences over a reunited Germany.

Bush returns from a Midwestern trip to host Kohl tonight for dinner at the White House.

He planned to brief Kohl on last week's superpower summit, during which Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev disagreed on which alliance a reunified Germany will join.

Bush had consulted closely with Kohl by telephone before and during the summit talks, which ended without agreement on whether Germany will belong to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or the Soviet-allied Warsaw Pact.

The president acknowledged the current impasse on Germany, but still declared Thursday he believes "last week's summit can alter history."

"Our many hours of talks led to a better understanding and a new candor in our relationship," he said. He also noted the signing of a chemical weapons pact and a statement of intention to reduce strategic weapons.

Before returning to Washington, Bush today planned to wrap up a four-state Midwestern political swing with appearances to help raise money for Republican Gov. Terry Branstad in Iowa and Senate candidate Hal Daub in Nebraska.

He also was talking to the National Pork Producers' Council. The president on Thursday wooed Midwestern farm interests by touting the five-year grain export agreement he reached with Gorbachev, and looking ahead to a trade agreement he wants to take effect if the Soviets enact laws guaranteeing free emigration.

"This agreement, which depends on the passage of key emigration laws within the Soviet Union, certainly is in the best interest of the United States," Bush said in Chicago, where he helped boost the campaign coffers of Republican gubernatorial contender Jim Edgar at a $1 million fund-raising dinner.

"It will mean an improved trade relationship between our two countries, expanded markets for American goods and services - and expanded markets for Illinois workers and farmers."

Earlier Thursday, stumping in Wisconsin for Gov. Tommy Thompson's re-election bid, Bush praised his Soviet counterpart as a "remarkable man" with "a forthright spirit." However, he said, problems between the two nations can't be solved in one summit meeting.

Demonstrators in Chicago staged protests criticizing the president for not being tougher on Gorbachev on the issue of Lithuania.

Before the summit, administration officials, when discussing prospects for new trading relations with the Soviets, frequently objected to the Soviet economic blockade of the breakaway Baltic republic.

Bush, however, did not make Lithuania a condition of the trade agreement he discussed with Gorbachev at the summit.

'Cuomolot' wedding set

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - In a union dubbed "Cuomolot," two rising stars from prominent political families will wed this weekend.

Kerry Kennedy, a daughter of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and Andrew Cuomo, oldest son of New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, will be the bride and groom Saturday in a major social event for the political world.

"Everybody in the world knows the Kennedy family," said William Cunningham, a veteran Cuomo political adviser. "And the Cuomos - in New York state, in the political world - are at the top of the heap."

More than 250 guests have been invited to witness the ceremony Saturday afternoon in the Cathedral of St. Matthew in Washington, D.C.

Rory Kennedy, Kerry's youngest sister, will be maid of honor. Christopher Cuomo, Andrew's 19-year-old brother, will be best man. John F. Kennedy Jr., Kerry's cousin and son of the late president, will be an usher.

A reception will follow at Hickory Hill, the Kennedy family estate in suburban McLean, Va.

The bride, a 30-year-old graduate of Boston College law school, is the founder and executive director of the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Center for Human Rights.

The groom, a 32-year-old lawyer and his father's chief political adviser, runs HELP, a non-profit corporation he founded to build temporary housing for the homeless.

But Cunningham cautioned against blowing the wedding's importance out of proportion.

The couple have been dating for more than a year and became engaged on Valentine's Day this year.

While both are Roman Catholic, the children of liberal Democrats and running non-profit social agencies, there are differences.

Kerry Kennedy grew up in affluence and attended the exclusive Putney School before heading off for an Ivy League education at Brown University. Andrew Cuomo, grandson of Italian immigrants who ran a small grocery store in Queens, attended parochial schools and then Fordham University in the Bronx.

Kerry Kennedy is the seventh of Robert and Ethel Kennedy's 11 children. She was a baby during her uncle's "Camelot" presidency, which the New York Post alluded to by dubbing her marriage "Cuomolot."

She was 8 years old when her father was assassinated in a Los Angeles hotel the night he won the 1968 California presidential primary. Another uncle, Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy, ran unsuccessfully for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

Andrew Cuomo's father last week announced he'll seek a third term as governor but left the door open to becoming a potential 1992 Democratic presidential contender.

Bacteria used to remove water toxins

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - Texas researchers believe an aquatic bacteria could be used to clean groundwater contaminated by toxic waste.

"Under the right conditions, it can completely remove the toxic chemical," said Richard Egg, an agricultural engineer and co-investigator at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. "For a lot of contaminated groundwater, this could be one tool in the cleanup."

Egg joined three other researchers in a two-year, $178,000 study backed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to seek a formula for cleaning up unseen pollution in the nation's groundwater.

Egg, Charles Coble, Don Reddell and Don Lewis, are using a common bacteria in a simulated groundwater aquifer to break down one of the most common pollutants, trichloroethylene or TCE.

An industrial solvent used to degrease tools or equipment, TCE also is used in dry cleaning processes, refrigerants, fumigants and most septic tank cleaning fluids.

The President's Council on Environmental Quality reported 14 percent of nearly 3,000 water well samples taken in 18 states contained measurable levels of TCE.

While the EPA has not established a safe drinking water standard on TCE for humans, the National Research Council's Safe Drinking Water Committee has found the chemical affects the central nervous system and heart in experimental animals.

Researchers are trying to remove TCE, and other chlorinated hydrocarbons that don't degrade easily, with the naturally occurring bacteria - a cleansing method known as bioremediation.

"One concept of bioremediation is to create a treatment zone, rather than try to clean up everything," Egg said. "As water flows through the zone, it cleans up the pollution like a filter."

But the filtering bacterium must be stimulated with gases to begin the process, Egg said.

"Oxygen and methane are the nutrients which stimulate the bacteria to grow and produce the enzyme that works to break down TCE," Egg said.

Researchers are experimenting with techniques to add the oxygen and methane to underground aquifers and with rates required to stimulate the bacteria. Those gases later can be easily removed from drinking water, Egg said.

Bioremediation is better than other treatments because the method destroys the chemical, Egg said. For example, in air stripping treatments - in which groundwater is pumped to the surface and vaporized - the chemical molecules leave the water but attach themselves to air. The water is clean but the air is polluted.

"With bioremediation, the chemical is converted into microbial cells and carbon dioxide, then we don't have to deal with them any more," Egg said.

In the laboratory, the scientists built a stainless steel "aquifer" and filled it with ordinary brick sand and flowing water. TCE was added in four concentrations. Oxygen and methane were added to water withdrawn from and returned through the well, or opening on top, Egg said.

Dormant bacteria in the brick sand grew in the aquifer and began to break down the chemical as the water flowed through the treatment zone, he said.

The researchers now will determine the formula for adequate treatment, Egg said.

Egg believes the technology eventually will be adapted for pesticide contamination. Scientists already are trying to identify other bacteria that thrive on specific chemicals.

Dr. McElroy, his wife, Toni, and children Carrie and Andrew came to Hereford on June 11, 1986.

Staff members Steve Sobczak and Jo Linker were also recognized at the conference. Sobczak, who now serves as director of music, was introduced as a candidate for diaconal ministry. Linker, the director of Christian education and youth, was recognized as completing the certification process for professional Christian Educators in the United Methodist church.

Also announced was the appointment of the Rev. Daniel Reyna to a church in Plainview. Reyna has served here three years as associate pastor with responsibilities for Hispanic ministries.

Blazers win in OT, even series at 1-1

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - Imagine how the pressure-proof Portland Trail Blazers will do when they get to THEIR home.

Neither a hooting, hostile crowd, nor Bill Laimbeer's 3-point binge could shake them Thursday night. They tied the NBA Finals 1-1 with a 106-105 comeback win in overtime on Detroit's court.

Now they head back to Portland, where the Pistons have lost 20 consecutive games. The next three games are there, starting Sunday, and the Blazers, 9-0 at home in the playoffs, can dethrone Detroit as champions without leaving again.

"It's the ultimate challenge to go in a place where we haven't won and try to win a basketball game," Detroit's Isiah Thomas said.

"All I know," Portland coach Rick Adelman said, "is that we'll have Portland fans screaming for us." That will be a change.

As Buck Williams went to the foul line with the score 102-102 with 9.6 seconds left shortly after midnight today, shrieking, sign-waving fans tried to distract him. Calmly, he sank both shots.

Clyde Drexler got the same greeting after being fouled by Dennis Rodman with 2.1 seconds remaining and Portland trailing 105-104. The result also was the same.

His shots produced the third and final lead change in the final 9.6 seconds and ended Detroit's home playoff winning streak at 14 games, including 10 this year.

"They held their poise," Laimbeer said.

The Blazers lost it in a 105-99 opening loss when they squandered a 10-point lead in the last seven minutes Tuesday night.

"We learned a lot from the first game," Adelman said. "We were more aggressive in taking (the ball) to the basket."

It was away from the basket - Detroit's basket - where they had trouble. Laimbeer kept firing and hitting critical 3-pointers. He made six of nine. Five either tied the game or gave Detroit the lead, and five came in the last 8:38.

Laimbeer and James Edwards had 26 points each and Thomas 23. Portland was led by Drexler with 33 and Terry Porter with 21, including 15-of-15 free throws. Porter broke Magic Johnson's finals record of 14 without a miss.

The Pistons are 0-5 in this year's playoffs when allowing more than 100 points. They are 12-0 when they gave up less than that. And they were in good shape to make it 13-0 with a 94-91 lead and 49 seconds left in regulation.

But Drexler hit a free throw with 44 seconds remaining and Porter added two with 10.2 left to force the first finals overtime since 1984.

Laimbeer's second 3-pointer in 61 seconds put Detroit ahead 102-98 with 1:30 left, but Porter's two foul shots and Drexler's 18-footer tied the game.

Porter missed a shot with 10.9

seconds to go, but Joe Dumars fouled Williams with 9.6 seconds remaining.

"During the summer, I have a ritual of shooting free throws," said Williams, in his first year with Portland after eight frustrating seasons with New Jersey. "I make believe I have two free throws with the game on the line in the finals."

"I've done it the last eight summers and finally get placed in a real-life situation and had a chance to come through."

But Laimbeer wasn't done. He buried another 3-pointer with Drexler jumping out at him with 4.1 seconds remaining.

Rodman, slowed by an injured ankle, fouled Drexler as the Blazer began driving down the lane with 2.1 seconds to go.

"I just wanted to make it. Total concentration," he said of his winning shots.

With one foul left before Detroit would be in a shooting situation, Drexler wisely fouled Edwards with 1.5 seconds to play.

The inbounds pass then went to Edwards, who tried a 12-foot baseline turnaround. But Cliff Robinson got his hand on it and it fell short.

Detroit led 30-23 after one period but trailed 53-45 at halftime. Laimbeer's 3-pointer with 3:03 left in the third quarter put Detroit ahead 89-86, its first lead since 32-21.

Portland outscored Detroit 33-15 from the foul line but made five fewer field goals. The Blazers' bench, outscored 26-7 in the opener, held a 20-13 advantage in Game 2.

Pirates edge Mets, 5-4

By JOHN KREISER
AP Sports Writer

Shea Stadium has never been a pleasant stopoff point for Pittsburgh manager Jim Leyland. Until this year.

Pittsburgh beat the Mets for the third time in four tries in New York as Barry Bonds doubled in the go-ahead run in the eighth Thursday night for a 5-4 victory.

The Pirates have won four in a row and 10 of 13. They lead the Mets by 9 1/2 games in the NL East.

"I've had a lot of tough moments here," said Leyland, whose team hasn't won a season series from the Mets since 1982, four years before he took over as manager. "Before the game I congratulated Bud (Harcleson) on getting the manager's job. But I'll miss Davey Johnson. We always had close competitive games and he usually won."

This time, though, the Pirates made the big plays - and took advantage of the Mets' mistakes.

Bonds got his chance to be the hero after center fielder Keith Miller dropped Bobby Bonilla's long fly ball with two outs. The Pirates' left fielder, who threw out the go-ahead run in the bottom of the seventh, followed with a double over Miller's head for the game-winner.

Bonds is 18-for-37 (.486) this season with runners in scoring position.

"I missed the ball," Miller said. "I closed my glove and it came out ... the timing was bad ... such a big game, too."

In other National League games, it was Philadelphia 3, Chicago 1; Cincinnati 6, Houston 1, and Montreal 3, St. Louis 2.

The Pirates scored twice in the second and fourth innings off Dwight Gooden, but the Mets took advantage of a misplayed grounder by third baseman Wally Backman in the fifth to score three times.

Gregg Jefferies tied it in the seventh with a bases-loaded single to left. But Bonds kept the Mets from taking the lead by throwing out Mark Carreon at the plate, then won the game in the eighth off Jeff Musselman (0-1).

Scott Ruskin (1-1), who gave up the tying run, got his first major league win. Bob Kipper got the last four outs for his first save.

The Pirates won despite four errors that led to three unearned runs.

Phillies 3, Cubs 1

Len Dykstra extended his hitting streak to 20 games with an RBI double to break a seventh-inning tie and Ken Howell pitched a five-hitter. Dykstra's average is .414, by far the best in the majors, and he increased his average with men in scoring position to .488 (20-for-41) when he doubled home Darren Daulton to break a 1-1 tie off Mike Bielecki (3-5).

Howell (7-3) struck out eight and walked three. The Cubs' only run was Andre Dawson's second-inning homer.

Reds 6, Astros 1

Jose Rijo (4-1) allowed only one hit over seven innings.

Cincinnati scored twice in the first off Bill Gullickson (3-4) on a sacrifice fly by Barry Larkin and Eric Davis' RBI triple. Mariano Duncan added a seventh-inning homer.

Expos 3, Cardinals 2

Tim Wallach beat the Cardinals single-handedly - one-handing a forkball from Jose DeLeon down the left-field line for a tie-breaking RBI double in the sixth.

The Expos tied the game in the sixth on two singles, a stolen base and Andres Galarraga's RBI grounder. Wallach then got his bat on an outside pitch by DeLeon (5-4) and blooped it to left for the game-winning run.

Zane Smith (3-3) allowed eight hits and two runs in seven innings.

Johnson rolls on in AL

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Imagine how well Randy Johnson would pitch if he could face the New York Yankees.

Johnson, in his first start since a no-hitter against Detroit, pitched a five-hitter Thursday as the Seattle Mariners beat Chicago 2-1. He struck out a season-high 10 and retired the last 20 batters.

"I pitched as well as the other night, but, obviously, not with the same results," Johnson said.

The Yankees, meanwhile, again got the same results under new manager Stump Merrill as they did under Bucky Dent - no offense.

Greg Harris and Jeff Reardon combined on a one-hitter as Boston won 3-0 and completed its first four-game sweep of the Yankees at Fenway Park since 1969. New York has lost six in a row and 11 of 12, and gotten just three hits in two games since Dent was fired.

"We're struggling offensively," Merrill said. "It will get better. It can't get any worse. The way we're going right now, a two-out walk is a rally."

In other games, Detroit downed Cleveland 8-0, Texas beat Oakland 3-1, California edged Kansas City 2-1, Baltimore beat Milwaukee 5-2 and Toronto trounced Minnesota 10-3.

Harris, a converted reliever, retired the first 14 batters before Jesse Barfield singled with two outs in the fifth for New York's only hit.

Harris (5-3) struck out seven and walked none as Boston extended its longest winning streak of the season to five. Reardon pitched a perfect ninth for his seventh save.

Tim Leary (3-7) again got little support. The Yankees have scored just seven runs in his last six starts.

In Chicago, Johnson's bid for another no-hitter ended when Robin Ventura singled with one out in the first inning.

The Mariners broke a 1-1 tie in the eighth. Brian Giles led off with a single against Don Pall (0-1), was sacrificed to second and moved to third on a single by pinch-hitter Henry Cotto. Reliever Barry Jones then tried to pick off Cotto, but threw wildly for an error and Giles scored.

Tigers 8, Indians 0

A day after hitting three homers and driving in five runs, Cecil Fielder had a two-run single that increased his major league-leading RBI total to 55.

Brian DuBois (3-3) scattered four singles in eight innings.

Fielder grounded into a double play in the first inning with runners at third and first. He singled with the bases loaded in the third off Bud Black (4-3). Gary Ward hit a solo homer in the fourth.

Angels 2, Royals 1

Chuck Finley outdueling Bret Saberhagen.

Finley (8-3) allowed four hits, struck out seven and walked three in eight innings. Mark Eichhorn got his 12th save.

Saberhagen (5-4) had his four-game winning streak stopped despite striking out 12. He allowed six hits, including RBI singles by Max Venable and Lance Parrish in the second.

Danny Tariabull homered in the Royals' fourth.

Blue Jays 10, Twins 3

In Toronto, another record crowd of 49,845 saw the Blue Jays hit a team-record eight doubles and three home runs. George Bell and Fred McGriff each homered and doubled. Kelly Gruber hit his 16th home run.

Todd Stottlemyre (5-6) allowed two runs in eight innings. Kevin Tapani (6-4) gave up seven runs on nine hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Rangers 3, Athletics 1

Bobby Witt struck out a season-high 11 in eight innings.

Witt (3-7) tied for the league lead in losses, gave up six hits and walked one. Kenny Rogers struck out two in the ninth for his second save.

Rafael Palmeiro and Pete Incaviglia hit home runs that put Texas ahead 3-0 after four innings against Mike Moore (4-6).

Orioles 5, Brewers 2

Baltimore completed a 9-4 road swing as Joe Orsulak drove in two runs and Craig Worthington homered.

Dave Johnson (5-3) shut out the Brewers until Paul Molitor hit a two-run homer in the eighth. Gregg Olson pitched the ninth for his 14th save.

Paul Mirabella (2-1) lost in his second start since 1984.

Freer hurler throws no-hitter

AUSTIN (AP) - While the pitching duel between two of the nation's top schoolboy pitchers was getting most of the attention a pitcher from Freer in the South Texas brush country was getting the strikeouts on his way to the first no-hitter Class 3A state tournament history.

Freer's Juan Espinoza pitched the Buckaroos to a 2-0 victory over Abilene Wylie Thursday night while Duncanville's Todd Ritchie and Arlington Martin's Todd Van Poppell were dueling in a game won by Duncanville, 1-0, at the 42nd University Interscholastic League State Baseball Tournament.

Espinoza struck out 16 batters to tie a record set by Arthur Rhodes of Waco LaVega in 1988.

Freer, 27-3, will face Southlake Carroll, 21-6, in the 3A final. Carroll edged Orangefield 4-3 in the other semifinal.

Ritchie, 15-1, won the battle of the Todds as Duncanville scored the only run of the game on a seventh inning error to knock off Van Poppell and Arlington Martin 1-0. Both Ritchie and Van Poppell were masterful in their performances as both went the distance.

Ritchie, the first round selection by the Minnesota Twins Monday and No. 12 overall, threw only 80 pitches, 55 for strikes. He allowed three hits, fanned seven batters and walked two.

Despite losing, Van Poppell, the first round choice of the Oakland Athletics and 14th overall, allowed but one hit, a fourth inning triple by Steve Gibraltar.

The 6-foot-5 righthander threw 107 pitches, 59 for strikes. He struck out eight hitters and walked five. All eight of his strikeouts came in the first four innings.

While Ritchie plans to turn pro, Van Poppell says he will honor his scholarship to the University of Texas. Ritchie had previously signed with Mississippi State.

Duncanville, which won its last championship in 1976, will play Deer Park, a 6-5 winner over Austin Westlake, for the Class 5A title Friday night.

Paul Stovall erred twice on Shawn Trueblood's ground ball in the seventh and final inning and another error by shortstop Blake Martensen allowed pinchrunner Keith Putnam to score the only run of the game with none out.

Both teams collected their first hits in the fourth inning, with Kevin Tucker singling past second for Martin and Gibraltar tripling to center for Duncanville.

Martin, 23-9, had five errors on the night. Duncanville, 32-4, committed none.

Deer Park, 30-5, scored two runs on losing pitcher Jason Rathbun's throwing error in the second inning and two on a fourth-inning triple by Corey Pullig to hold off Westlake.

Deer Park led 6-3 going into the last inning but Westlake, 33-5, rallied for two runs and only a great play by shortstop Chris Floyd on Aron Waisman's hard grounder for the final out kept Westlake from tying the score.

Andy Pettitte, 15-2, was the winner, allowing Westlake seven hits. Deer Park got only five hits off Rathbun, 8-2, who lasted 3-13 innings and reliever Aaron Richards.

Robstown edged A&M Consolidated 7-6, and Carthage defeated Andrews 7-1 in the 4A semifinals.

Robstown lost a five-run lead then rallied on a two-out, two-run single by Domingo Garza in the bottom of the last inning for its victory.

Trailing 5-0 after three innings, A&M Consolidated scored three runs in the fourth on a two-run triple by Andy Deuel, who scored on a groundout.

A&M had single runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh, going ahead 6-5 on Lee Fedora's triple and a RBI fly ball by Brian Johnson.

Robstown won the game by scoring twice on a walk to Lee Roy Gonzalez, a single by Robert Cervantes, an infield single by Rey Gonzalez and Garza's slicing line drive that centerfielder David Bogart could not grab after a long run.

Bogart fell face down on the ground and his teammates ran to console him.

The winning pitcher was J.J. Velasquez, 13-3, who pitched two outs. The loser was Ray Kavanaugh, 4-2, who had shut out Robstown for four innings before Garza's winning hit.

Carthage won on a three-hit pitching effort by Robin Trimble, who also drove in two runs on a groundout and single.

Trimble pushed his season record to 16-0, striking out seven and walking seven.

Brent Leffingwell, 15-4, was the loser, leaving with none out in the third inning and the score 3-0.

Second baseman Terrance Goree had a third inning triple that drove in a run and a third inning double which led to another run.

Trimble was removed with two outs and two runners on the seventh and last inning. Reliever Jerome Jones, who had played third, got the final out.

Andrews' only run came in the first inning on a walk, stolen base and Leffingwell's two-out single. The Mustangs left 11 runners on base.

Carthage extended its record to 29-5. Andrews was eliminated with a 22-8 season record.

Robstown's victory gives it a 30-6 record, while A&M's loss dropped it 23-9.

Holliday defeated Palmer, 11-1, in a Class 2A semifinal game halted after six innings because of the 10-run rule. Gilmer Harmony defeated Schulenberg, 3-1, in the other Class 2A semifinal and will meet Holliday in the title game.

D'Hanis defeated Gorman, 3-1, and will meet Colmesneil, 3-2 winners over Maud, in the Class A title game.

Graf, Seles in women's finals of French Open

PARIS (AP) - In tennis, there are tournament finals and there are Grand Slam finals.

Steffi Graf knows the difference. Monica Seles is about to find out.

Graf, the top women's player for the last 2 1/2 years, and Seles, her latest teen-age challenger, set up a French Open championship meeting Thursday with remarkably similar victories.

Only a minute separated the elapsed times of the two semifinals. Both won in straight sets, with Graf dropping one less game. Both winners started like flash-fires and had to hold off late-match charges to wrap up the victories.

Graf beat 11th-seeded Jana Novotna of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-2, while Seles, a 16-year-old from Yugoslavia, ended 14-year-old Jennifer Capriati's amazing Grand Slam debut 6-2, 6-2.

The men's finalists were being determined today, with fourth-seeded Andres Gomez vs. seventh-seeded Thomas Muster and third-seeded Andre Agassi vs. unseeded Jonas Svensson.

Saturday's women's title match will be the 13th Grand Slam final for Graf, the first for Seles. Graf knows the difference between week-in, week-out events and the big four.

"Everybody is very motivated for Grand Slam tournaments," she said. It will be the fifth time Graf and Seles have met. The West German won the first three, but it's the latest meeting that places the championship match in a special light.

Seles stopped Graf's 66-match winning streak with a victory in Berlin three weeks ago. Neither has lost since, but Seles has more momentum, with a winning streak now 31 matches long.

"Suddenly, coming into the French, I was more of a favorite than Steffi or anyone else," Seles said.

Graf, plagued by sinus problems the first week and an unusual number of mistakes throughout the tournament, has not lost a set and has given up just 22 games. She said that the first 10 games in the 63-minute victory over Novotna were her best yet.

"For sure, I am playing better," she said.

Connally relinquishes title Saturday

By KAY CRISMON
Staff Writer

The beautiful and talented 1989 Miss Hereford, Wendy Connally, will relinquish her title during Saturday evening's Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant.

"This past year has been one of beautiful experiences that have given me a fuller awareness of the goals I am setting for myself," she said. "Just being able to represent Hereford has been a great honor."

"My heartfelt appreciation goes to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, local merchants, and Hereford residents. A very special thanks to Donna West for all her help and encouragement throughout the year. She would always tell me to relax and have fun because everything would work out fine.

"I would have never made it without the encouragement and support of my parents, Butch and Betty Connally. The look on my father's face when number eight was called displayed how proud he was. I was so happy for myself, and my parents, but I knew that God had a hand in helping me to win and a very special thanks was expressed to Him."

As Miss Hereford 1989, Connally has taken an active role in community affairs, promoting the city while appearing at banquets, Fun Breakfasts, Women's Division meetings, and participating in the Town and Country Jubilee. Among her duties was participating in the Miss Wheatheart of the Nation Pageant held in Perryton.

Although her past pageant experiences have had a positive impact on her life, Connally looks toward the future with enthusiasm, knowing that becoming 1989 Miss Hereford has helped her to be a better person.

She is attending Southwest Texas State University and is majoring in special education. She was nominated for Western Homecoming Queen at STSC.

Connally loves to sing Christian music because, she said, it comes from the heart. She also enjoys country music and playing tennis. She is looking forward to being with her friends in Hereford for summer vacation.

MISS HEREFORD 1989

The successor to Miss Hereford 1989, Wendy Connally, will be crowned at the annual Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant on Saturday evening at the Hereford High School auditorium. Fourteen contestants will be vying for honors. The pageant is sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

The next meeting will be July 2, at 8 p.m. Secret pals will be revealed and gifts exchanged.

Members present were Betty Boggs, Darleen Carroll, Maisie Heath, Loving, Essie Martin, Ruth Morris, Erma Murphy, Terry Rhyne, Sadie Shaw, Greta Short, Ruth Stethem, Williams, and Marie Goheen.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I almost choked on my toast this morning when I read your column. A woman in Wisconsin said she was worried about not paying taxes for seven years. I can tell you from experience that she has reason to be worried. I hope she gets a good tax lawyer immediately.

When I got married 12 years ago, I quit my job and haven't worked since. At the end of every year, I gathered all the information my husband would need to file his tax returns. Since I had no income, I didn't give it another thought. It never occurred to me that he would fail to file.

Well, he never did a damn thing. Eventually the Internal Revenue Service caught up with him, made a wild guess at what his income probably had been, added interest and penalties and informed us that we owed $1,300,000! Yes, that is correct. I didn't throw in any more zeros. My husband still ignored the IRS.

Several weeks later, I got a notice saying several of our checks were bouncing. I ran to the bank because I was sure there was plenty of money in our account. Well, the IRS had put a lien on the account and took every dime. Then they garnished my husband's paycheck and took half of it on a regular basis. We tried to get a new loan on our house and get it out of foreclosure, but, you guessed it, they put a lien on the property.

My husband is finally trying to work things out, but it has been a horrifying experience. Too bad he didn't pay those taxes when they were due. It's costing us a thousand times more now.

Tell 'em again, Annie. Whoever is ignoring IRS notices is asking for trouble. Contact them before they contact you. If you don't, it will be a real nightmare.—Another Day, Another Migraine in Southern Cal

DEAR MIGRAINE: My advice cannot possibly match the impact of advice that comes from a reader who has lived through the experience. Thank you for a letter that deserves to be taken seriously.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you printed a column about married children visiting parents without their spouses. I sent the clipping to my son and his wife and the results were just wonderful.

The very next weekend, my son put his wife on a plane to Nashville to visit her mom and dad. He then drove down to spend the weekend with me and picked up his wife at the airport Sunday night. My son and I had a marvelous time together, and her parents were delighted to have her alone. Although they seem to adore my son, and I really love my daughter-in-law, we all enjoyed that private time with our children. My son's in-laws phoned to say that it was a great idea and we should do it again.

One of my friends told me that she and her husband have never had an hour alone with their son since he was married years ago. Their daughter-in-law goes to visit her parents when their son is on business trips, but he had never visited them without his wife. She said they would love a solo visit but wouldn't suggest it.

Please continue to urge couples to visit their parents in this manner. My friend says she hopes you will print my letter so she can send the clipping to her son and his wife. Will you?—L.F., Greensboro, N.C.

DEAR GREENSBORO: Here it is. Start snipping, dear.

'Wednesday Surprise' choice for National Read Aloud today

I like surprises. But the one Grandma and I are planning for Dad's birthday is the best surprise of all.

We work on it Wednesday nights. On Wednesdays Mom has to stay late at the office and my brother, Sam, goes to basketball practice at the Y. That's when Grandma rides the bus across town to stay with me.

I watch for her from the window and I blow on the glass to make breath pictures while I wait. When I see her I call, "Sam! She's here!" and he says it's okay to run down, down the long stairs and wait by the door.

"Grandma!" I call.

"Anna!" She's hurrying, her big, cloth bag bumping against her legs.

We meet and hug. She tells me how much I've grown since last week and I tell her how much she's grown, too, which is our joke. Between us we carry her lumpy bag upstairs. I show Grandma my breath picture, if it's still there. Mostly she knows what it is, mostly she's the only one who does.

On Wednesday nights we have hot dogs.

"Have you heard from your Dad?" Grandma asks Sam.

"He'll be back Saturday, same as always," Sam says. "In time for his birthday."

"His birthday?" Grandma raises her eyebrows as if she'd forgotten all about that. Grandma is some actress!

When Sam goes she and I do the dishes. Then we get down to business.

I sit beside her on the couch and she takes the first picture book from the bag. We read the story together, out loud, and when we finish one book we start a second.

We read for an hour, get some ice cream, then read some more.

Grandma gives me another hug. "Only seven years old and smart as paint already!"

"I'm pleased." They're all going to be so surprised on Saturday," I say.

When Sam comes home we play card games, and when Mom comes she plays, too.

"You'll be here for the birthday dinner?" Mom asks as Grandma is getting ready to leave.

"Oh, yes, the birthday," Grandma says vaguely as if she'd forgotten again. As if we hadn't been working on our special surprise for weeks and weeks. Grandma is tricky.

Grandma usually has seconds but tonight she doesn't. I don't either. I can tell Mom is worried about the pot roast but Grandma tells her it's very good.

"Are you feeling well, Mama?" Dad asks Grandma. "How are your knees?"

"Fine. Fine. The knees are fine."

Dad blows out the birthday candles and we give him his gifts. Then Grandma shoots a glance in my direction and I go for the big bag and drag it across to the table. I scuttle it on the floor, between us.

"Another present?" Dad asks.

"It's a special surprise for your birthday, Dad, from Grandma and me."

My heart's beating awfully fast as I unzip the bag and give the first book to Grandma. It's called Popcorn. I squeeze Grandma's hand and she stands and begins to read.

Mom and Dad and Sam are all astonished.

Dad jumps up and says: "What's this?" but Mom shushes him and pulls him back down.

Grandma has the floor. She finishes Popcorn, which takes quite a while, gives the book back to me and beams all over her face.

"My goodness!" Mom is beaming too. "When did this wonderful thing happen? When did you learn to read?"

"Anna taught me," Grandma says.

"On Wednesday nights," I add. "And she took the books home, and practiced."

"You were always telling me to go to classes, classes, classes," Grandma says to Dad. She looks at Mom. "You must learn to read, you say. So? I come to Anna."

I giggle because I'm so excited.

Grandma reads and acts out The Easter Pig and The Velveteen Rabbit.

"It's much smarter if you learn to read when you're young," she tells Sam sternly. "The chance may pass along with the years."

Sam looks hurt. "But I can read, Grandma."

"Nevertheless." She takes out another book.

"Are you going to read everything in that bag, Mama?" Dad asks her. He's grinning, but his eyes are brimming over with tears and he and Mom are holding hands across the table.

"Maybe I will read everything in the world now that I've started," Grandma says in a stuck-up way. "I've got time." She winks at me.

"So, Anna? What do you think? Was it a good surprise?"

I run to her and she puts her cheek against mine. "The best ever," I say.

Today is National Read Aloud Day, part of the Summer Family Reading Challenge. We hope all children in the community will participate, and we hope all families will take just a few minutes to read, aloud, The Wednesday Surprise by Eve Bunting.

"I'll be here," she says.

Sam walks Grandma to the bus stop. As they're going down the stairs I hear him say, "What have you got in this bag, Grandma? Bricks?"

That makes me smile.

Papa comes home Saturday morning, and we rush at him with our Happy Birthdays. He has brought Sam a basketball magazine and me a pebble, smooth and speckled as an egg, for my rock collection.

"I found it in the desert, close to the truck stop," he says. "It was half covered with sand."

I hold it, imagining I can still feel the desert sun hot inside it. How long did it lie there? What kind of rock is it?

Dad has stopped to pick wildflowers for Mom. They're wilting and she runs to put them in water. Then Dad has to go to bed because he has been driving his big truck all through the night.

While Dad sleeps, Sam and I hang red and blue streamers in the living room. We help Mom frost the cake. We've made Dad's favorite dinner, pot roast, and our gifts are wrapped and ready.

I watch for Grandma and help carry the bag upstairs: Wow! Sam should feel how heavy it is now! Grandma has brought a ton of books. We hide the bag behind the couch. I am sick from being nervous.
