Another fire in record year

The fire was the 457th call of the year for the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department, almost 100 more than the previous record.

Romanian forces face deadline

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) - The revolutionary government warned security police holdouts to surrender today or face summary justice, and said most officials who served under Nicolae Ceausescu will not lose their jobs.

Corneliu Bogdan, the new deputy foreign minister, said most of the bureaucrats who worked in government during the executed president's 24 years of repressive rule need not fear.

"They are not all criminals, they were at the most too servile and obedient. We must try to avoid a witchhunt at any costs," he told reporters.

Most of the country was calm Wednesday, two days after Ceausescu and his wife, Elena, were executed by firing squad after being convicted by a military tribunal of "genocide" and other grave crimes against the people.

The government said members of Ceausescu's ruthless security police, or Securitate, would face a similar fate if they did not turn themselves in by this afternoon.

Securitate units terrorized Romanians over the weekend, killing hundreds in an attempt to crush the popular revolt that, thanks to the support of the military, toppled Ceausescu on Friday.

"If they surrender voluntarily, with their weapons, they will be tried and the death penalty will not be applied," said a communique read on Bucharest radio Wednesday.

Since Ceausescu's body was shown on state television Tuesday, Securitate forces have been reported surrendering en masse, though no figures have been provided. International aid and messages of support continued to pour into Romania Wednesday, and a member of the 37-member ruling National Salvation Committee assured Romanians - who lack a democratic tradition - that the provisional government intends to build a democracy.

"We want Romania to become a member of the free civilized world," Dumitru Mazilu, vice chairman of the new leadership, told reporters.

"Romania is no longer a Communist country. Romania is a free land, and we will create a real democracy," he said. The government has said free elections will be held in April.

The state news agency Agerpres reported that an "initiative committee" had set up a panel to organize the country's first free trade unions, which would replace the Communist-dominated General Trade Union Federation.

The new unions are to have the right to petition, demonstration and strike and will struggle "for the observance of the fundamental human rights," the agency said.

The National Salvation Committee named a new foreign minister, 58-year-old university professor Sergiu Celac. His predecessor, Ion Stoian, has been ousted along with all other high-ranking Ceausescu loyalists.

The country's new leaders have already begun discarding Ceausescu's repressive laws - including statutes that required the registering of typewriters and banned unreported conversations with foreigners.

They have promised a new constitution that will lay the groundwork for multiparty democracy, but some Romanians are skeptical because many of the new leaders are Communists who once held high-ranking posts in the Ceausescu regime.

Some Securitate members attacked national television headquarters, early Wednesday but were repelled in a half-hour firefight.

The state news agency Agerpres said security police also were holding out in "isolated positions" in other parts of the country, but that army forces loyal to the government were for the most part in control.

Bush wants Noriega to face U.S. justice

BEEVILLE, Texas (AP) - President Bush says that, despite complications and delicate negotiations on the fate of ousted Panamanian dictator Manuel Antonio Noriega, "I am determined to bring him to justice."

However, administration officials said privately that little headway has been apparent in prying Noriega from the Vatican Embassy in Panama City to stand trial on drug trafficking charges in the United States, and they expressed some frustration at the pace of negotiations.

"I want to see this man who is under indictment brought to justice for poisoning the children of the United States and people around the world," Bush said at a barbecue held here Wednesday night in his honor.

The president and fellow Texan, Secretary of State James A. Baker III, are spending the next few days quail hunting here on the 10,000-acre ranch of William Farish, a wealthy Houston oilman and longtime Bush friend.

Bush, who has been coming here for a holiday season quail hunt annually for more than two decades, thanked the crowd of more than 700 people "for this homecoming."

Presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said Bush planned to receive briefings by phone today on any new developments in Panama, but otherwise intended to spend the day hunting.

"Look, I don't make any cover. I'm going to be enjoying myself and I think the American people understand that," Bush told reporters on his arrival Wednesday at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

The president spent several hours fishing on nearby San Jose Island, where he said he and Baker caught about a half-dozen fish.

Meanwhile, the Justice Department asked four European nations on Wednesday to freeze bank accounts where Noriega is thought to have hidden illegal drug profits.

David Runkel, a department spokesman, said the legal papers were filed with the governments of France, Switzerland, Luxembourg and the United Kingdom, requesting authorities to order banks to block any transactions in the Noriega accounts.

Authorities in France responded by freezing accounts in two banks holding $3.3 million under the names of Noriega and members of his families. Swiss officials placed a "precautionary" freeze on two accounts in banks in Zurich and Geneva.

Speaking to reporters in Corpus Christi, Bush congratulated Romania's new president, Ion Iliescu, and said he was "amazed and respectful" of the changes there.

"My concern is for tranquility and freedom in Romania," Bush said.

He declined to criticize harshly the quick executions of former dictator Nicolae Ceausescu and his wife, adding, "We did say that we were concerned that the trial of Ceausescu should have been more open, but that's their matter."

Regarding Noriega, the president said a Vatican refusal to simply turn over the former Panamanian dictator to U.S. officials does "complicate matters."

Hinting that trying Noriega in Panama remained an option, Bush said: "The main thing is he should be tried and brought to justice." He made clear, however, that bringing Noriega back to the United States remains a clear first choice.

Bush, speaking from a podium standing behind bales of hay, received a hearty ovation when he told the crowd in Beeville, "I am determined to bring him to justice."

Administration officials, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said the talks with the Vatican were frustrating because the decision rested almost entirely with the Vatican - and that the Holy See did not seem anxious to make a speedy decision.

Noriega entered the Vatican Embassy on Sunday.

Bush said there was "no time limit" to bringing Noriega to justice. The president also said he was not concerned that Noriega, a former CIA informant, might seek to embarrass the agency or Bush, a former CIA director, by seeking to make public sensitive intelligence information at a trial.

But Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Narcotics Committee, released a statement in Washington on Wednesday urging Bush to drop his effort to bring Noriega to trial in the United States.

"The trial would be a circus," Rangel said. "Noriega would undoubtedly call as witnesses President Bush as former director of the CIA" and other federal officials who had contact with Noriega.

Bush not sorry about taking break

BEEVILLE, Texas (AP) - When President Bush's plane landed in Texas, the first person to emerge from Air Force One was an aide carrying the presidential fishing pole.

The president is on vacation, and he's making no apologies.

"I'm going to enjoy myself," Bush said upon his arrival in the Lone Star State on Wednesday. "The American people understand that. I've worked pretty hard all year long."

Bush has been hunting and fishing here annually for several years, the guest of Houston oilman Will Farish on his Lazy F Ranch in Bee and Goliad counties.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said Bush and Secretary of State James A. Baker III bagged 10 quail between them Wednesday in a morning shoot. The president also caught three fish off San Jose Island and showed off a 22-inch redfish to reporters to prove his claim.

Among those waiting for Bush was a group of Britons on their way to a wedding in Laredo.

"We just happened to be going through, and we saw that the president was going to be here, so we decided to stop and see him, give him a big hello," said Andrew Jennings, 25, of Brighton, England.

"We understand he's coming over here for quail hunting," Jennings said, setting up a joke. "Is that the vice president (Dan Quayle) or what?"

Christmas Day is behind us, but we don't think it's too late in the holiday season to repeat one of our favorite Yuletide stories.

Wallace Purling's performance in his school's annual Nativity play has become a legend. Wally was nine years old and still in the second grade. Most people in town knew he had difficulty keeping up. He was big and clumsy, slow in movement and mind.

Still, Wally was well liked by other children, all of whom were smaller. Wally was always helpful, willing and smiling.

Wally fancied himself being a shepherd in the pageant, but the teacher assigned him another role. She reasoned, the innkeeper did not have many lines, and Wally's size would make his refusal of lodging to Joseph more forceful.

There was a packed audience and Wally stood off stage, caught up in the magic of the evening. When the time came for Joseph to appear, tenderly guiding Mary, Joseph knocked hard at the wooden door set into the painted backdrop.

Wally, the innkeeper, was waiting. "What do you want?"

"We seek lodging," replied Joseph.

"Seek it elsewhere," Wally said, looking straight ahead. "The inn is filled."

Joseph pleaded, "Sir, we have asked everywhere in vain. We have traveled far and are very weary."

Wally, looking properly stern, said, "There is no room in this inn."

Joseph continued to plead his case, telling the unyielding innkeeper that his wife, Mary, was heavy with child. Joseph pleaded for just a small corner.

For the first time the innkeeper relaxed his stiff stance and looked down at Mary. The pause was so long that those in the audience began to shift with embarrassment. In the wings, the prompter whispered, "No! Begone!"

When Wally finally got the lines out, Joseph placed his arm around Mary and the two of them started to move away.

The innkeeper did not return inside. He stood watching the couple, his brow creased with concern and his eyes filling with tears.

Suddenly, this Christmas pageant became different from all the others. "Don't go, Joseph," Wally cried out. "Bring Mary back." Then Wally's face broke into a wide smile. "You can have my room."

Most in the audience thought the play's ending was in the real spirit of Christmas.

oOo

One more story came from a church bulletin: Now is the time when we pause to remember the child of Mary. A perfect time to recall the stall, a manger bed, and those who journeyed far.

The only thing to lead them was a star. Or was it faith, stretching across any barrier, to bring true Hope and Strength, to make life merrier, for those who saw a God given world, forgetting God! And where, pray tell, do we find Him?

A young lad and his grandmother were walking together one cool and wintery afternoon. The day was crisp and beautiful.

"Look," she said, as they topped the hill and viewed the valley clothed with frost. "Look what God has done for the world, and creature, and all that has life to enjoy."

"Yes," said the young boy, "And all with His left hand!"

"What do you mean?" asked the grandmother.

"Well, in Sunday School the teacher said that Jesus is sitting on the right hand of God!"

Truly, we find God everywhere. 'Tis the season to be jolly." And in our merriment, pray that we might remember the meaning of Christmas.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

New Year's resolutions are made to be broken, of course. But you can't break 'em if you don't make 'em. Resolutions start as the best of good intentions. No one should smoke, so I'll resolve to quit smoking. One time I actually quit for six weeks. It was the most miserable six weeks in my life since right after my daddy died. I quit smoking back in the days before nicotine gum or these fake cigarettes or any of that other stuff. The only thing they had back then was electric shock therapy. The only thing they had back then was that cigarettes would shock your system. They do, but they didn't, if you know what I mean.

I should also resolve to lose more weight. I think the weight I had lost found its way back home over the holidays. It's amazing what a four-day holiday eating binge can do to wreck a four-month diet. It's back to the ol' ball and chain. And believe me, it's hard to cut that chain that's welded onto my refrigerator.

I guess I oughta resolve to find me a companion or something. I thought I had one, but she "wants to just be friends." Friends are great, but I don't think friendship is something most men want to discuss when their testosterone level is at an all-time high.

I can't believe I'm even talking about this. I got a picture of my former stepson (is that the right way to put it?) from his grandmother in a real nice Christmas card. She said my ex is doing well, and that soured my holidays. I'm still not over my ex, and I'm thinking about rejoining the wars.

There's this other person that I'd like to ask out. She's just barely thirtysomething and I've known her since she was just barely twentysomething. I almost got up the nerve to ask her out one time when she told me that one of these days she was going to marry someone tall and handsome and have a big family. Well, she hasn't married anyone, I'll ask her to do lunch or something. But I'm still a little reluctant, seven or eight years after she told me all that.

That can be another resolution. If she says no, it's just another resolution down the drain. But dang it, I'm tired of being alone all the time. If nothing else, cooking for one is boring and expensive, and I'd like to eat someone else's cooking in the comfort of my own home.

I can also resolve to buy another car this year. My old car deserves a decent burial. I really wanted to buy one last year, but the bank that was handling the special financing on these special deals said ix-nay, thanks to some transgressions in a past life. They didn't ask any questions or anything. They just used the Nancy Reagan approach of just saying no. I think I'll buy one and then drive it through the other place's lobby, just to see what the reaction might be.

Maybe that last part isn't a good resolution, but that doesn't mean I can't consider it. If I resolve it and don't do it, it can be just like my other resolutions.

Braun charged with jail threat

RATON, N.M. (AP) - A Kansas man accused of killing five people in four states last July now has been charged with threatening a jail administrator during an incident inside his cell on Christmas Day.

Gregg Francis Braun, 28, is charged with aggravated assault on a peace officer, assault by a prisoner and possession of a deadly weapon by a prisoner.

Braun allegedly threatened jail administrator Chuck Talley with a homemade shank when Talley entered the cell to give Braun coffee. Authorities said Talley pretended he was going to throw the coffee on Braun, and was able to leave the cell when Braun stepped back.

No one was injured in the incident. Braun was arraigned Tuesday in magistrate court and bonded on the new charges was set at $10,000.

He is being held in the Colfax County Detention Center in lieu of $1 million bond in connection with the July 23 point-blank shooting death of convenience store clerk Geraldine Valdez. Ms. Valdez, 48, was shot twice in the head at the mini-mart in Springer.

Talley for Braun, who was charged with first-degree murder in Ms. Valdez's death, is set for May 7.

Braun also is charged with two counts of murder in the July 19 shooting deaths of two convenience store clerks in his hometown of Garden City, Kan., and with first-degree murder in the July 21 shooting death of a woman in an Ardmore, Okla., flower shop. He also is charged with murdering the owner of a photo processing shop in Pampa, Texas, on July 20.

Braun said at an Aug. 5 preliminary hearing that he killed Ms. Valdez but has denied involvement in other slayings.

Finney County Attorney Rick Pierce in Garden City has said Braun will be sent to Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, in that order, after his trial in New Mexico.

Lawyer will run for state appellate court

AUSTIN (AP) - Austin criminal defense lawyer Frank Maloney, who describes himself as always a Democrat but "not much of a politician," has announced as a candidate for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

The former prosecutor and law professor said he would run in the Democratic primary for the seat being vacated by Judge W.C. Davis, who has said he will seek office in 1990.

"I've seen good judges and I've seen bad ones, and I've appeared before them. I know what a good judge is, and I know what a bad judge is," Maloney said.

Maloney, 62, also suggested that a recent lawsuit challenging the at-large system of selecting judges to the criminal court, which has exclusive jurisdiction over death penalty cases, could jeopardize past capital murder convictions.

The lawsuit was filed in federal court in Brownsville by the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund on behalf of the League of United Latin American Citizens and others.

"I think this lawsuit is a very severe challenge not only to our court but to the existence of prior affirmed, settled cases," Maloney told a news conference Wednesday.

Asked if he thought death penalty cases might be overturned if the lawsuit is successful, Maloney said, "I'm suggesting that is a potential problem, yes."

Maloney said "if you have selected judges in the past as a denial of equal protection" for people who have issues before the court, "The question is, 'Who decided them, and were those people properly elected, or selected. Were they properly judges?'"

"That's really the big issue," Maloney said, "and I think it is a matter that is going to have to be approached and is going to have to be approached soon. This is a serious lawsuit."

Maloney, a soldier in the Korean War, was shot and temporarily blinded but had the sight of one eye restored, he said.

He graduated from the University of Texas Law School, and was an assistant district attorney in Travis County for five years. He became chief of the Law Enforcement Division of the state attorney general's office, and taught at the UT law school from 1963 to 1986.

For the last 20 years he has been a defense lawyer, and is past president of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association.

Maloney estimated that as a prosecutor and defense lawyer he has tried more than 300 cases before a jury.

"I've just reached a time in my life where it's time to do something else," he said of his decision to run for the criminal court.

In other political developments, Matt Harnest said he would run as a Republican for the congressional seat held by U.S. Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Texas.

Harnest, 32, said "it is time for some new blood. At 76 years old, Mr. Pickle deserves to enjoy his 'golden years.'"

David Beilharz of Lake Travis scheduled a press conference today to announce he also would run as a Republican for Pickle's seat.

Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, 41, filed in the Democratic primary for re-election for a third four-year term. He pledged to work to improve the Texas economy and environment.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Dec. 28, the 362nd day of 1989. There are three days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 28, 1917, the New York Evening Mail published "A Neglected Anniversary," a facetious essay by H.L. Mencken on the history of bathtubs in America which asserted, among other things, that Millard Fillmore was the first president to have a bathtub installed in the White House. Much to Mencken's disbelief, many readers regarded his spoof as the truth.

On this date:

In 1694, Queen Mary II of England died after five years of joint rule with her husband, King William III.

In 1832, John C. Calhoun became the first vice president of the United States to resign, stepping down over differences with President Andrew Jackson.

In 1846, Iowa became the 29th state to be admitted to the Union.

In 1856, the 28th president of the United States, Thomas Woodrow Wilson, was born in Staunton, Va.

In 1869, William Finley Semple of Mount Vernon, Ohio, patented chewing gum.

In 1982, Nevell Johnson Jr. a simple man, was fatally wounded by a police officer in a Miami video arcade, setting off three days of racial disturbances that left another man dead.

In 1987, the bodies of 14 relatives of R. Gene Simmons were found at his home near Dover, Ark., after Simmons went on a shooting spree in Russellville that claimed two other lives. Simmons has been sentenced to die in all of the killings.

Ten years ago: President Carter withdrew from participating in a forum in Iowa with other Democratic presidential contenders, citing the Iranian hostage crisis.

Five years ago: Vote-counting continued in India, where Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and his Congress Party went on to win a majority of seats in Parliament.

One year ago: British authorities investigating the explosion that destroyed Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, concluded that the blast had been caused by a bomb on board the jumbo jet.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Lew Ayres is 81. Actor Lou Jacobi is 76. United Auto Workers union president Owen Bieber is 60. Actress Maggie Smith is 55. Pianist Richard Clayderman is 36.

Thought for Today: "A big lie is more plausible than truth." - Ernest Hemingway (1899-1961).

Austin celebrates 150th birthday

AUSTIN (AP) - Austin celebrated its 150th birthday by recognizing those who have given park land to the city, unveiling an historical marker and breaking ground for a convention center.

The downtown marker at First and Colorado streets bears an 1839 original plan for the city, an 1889 illustrated map and a 1989 aerial view of Austin.

Kelly Guest, chairman of the ground-breaking committee, said that ceremony symbolizes the city's accomplishments and its foundation for future economic growth.

"It will be one mark on the way to having the convention center open on the Fourth of July 1992," Guest said.

An invitation-only brunch Wednesday honored eight people and their families who have given park land to the city, Guest said.

Austin had its beginning when President Mirabeau B. Lamar of the Republic of Texas asked a special commission in January 1839 to inspect the area for a possible site for the permanent capital of the Republic. The commission selected Waterloo, which became Austin.

The city was incorporated in December 1839, and has been the permanent capital of the state of Texas since an election in 1850.

State seeking rehearing in Brandley murder case

CONROE, Texas (AP) - Neither the facts nor the law support an appellate court's decision that Clarence Lee Brandley was denied a fair trial in the 1980 rape-strangulation of a teenager, the Montgomery County district attorney says.

In a motion filed Wednesday with the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, District Attorney Peter Speers asked

Without their "soldiers" to defend them from many predators, hived colonies of samurai aphids, pile one on top of the other in dense mats of tens of thousands, could be devoured at will.

the court to reverse the 6-3 ruling that overturned the former Conroe High School janitor's conviction and death penalty.

Speers must decide whether to retry Brandley or dismiss the charges against him in the rape-strangulation of Cheryl Ferguson, 16, of Bellville.

Ms. Ferguson was killed Aug. 23, 1980, while attending a volleyball tournament at Conroe High School, where Brandley, 38, was a janitorial supervisor.

Judge David A. Berchelman, who wrote the appellate court's majority opinion, concluded that the investigation and trial that sent Brandley to death row "lacked the rudiments of fairness."

But Speers argued in the motion for rehearing that "neither the facts, in any version, nor the law support the conclusion that Clarence Brandley was denied a fair trial."

"Clarence Brandley is guilty of this heinous crime, and nothing in this Court's opinion even suggests that it believes otherwise," Speers wrote.

Speers has conceded it would be "virtually impossible" to retry Brandley because most of the physical evidence is missing and because key witnesses have recanted testimony. He said he won't decide whether to retry the case until he has exhausted his appeal options.

In defense appeals that led to the appellate court's majority opinion, Brandley's defense team argued that Montgomery County officials railroaded Brandley by ignoring or suppressing evidence pointing to other potential suspects.

But Speers' motion suggests it was Brandley's defense team, not the state, that has been a party to manipulating witnesses, throwing out physical evidence and twisting facts, all in a concerted effort to steer evidence away from Brandley.

"If this court's opinion of December 13, 1989, is allowed to become final, a vicious killer will walk free," Speers wrote.

Defense co-counsel Paul Nugent of Houston described Speers' accusations as "the outrageous allegations of a desperate man."

"Peter Speers apparently has a personal desire to see Clarence executed and apparently will go to any length," Nugent said.

Retired state District Judge Perry Pickett of Midland, who re-examined the Brandley case for the Court of Criminal Appeals, concluded after an evidentiary hearing in October 1987 that Brandley's conviction by an all-white jury was racially motivated. Brandley is black. Ms. Ferguson was white.

The Court of Criminal Appeals seldom reverses its decisions, "but it does happen," said Speers, who has not ruled out the possibility of appealing to the U.S. Supreme Court if his motion is denied.

Now You're Cooking

BY KAY CRISMON
Staff Writer

Priscilla Lacey is a woman who is involved in transforming the lives of handicap students. In her teaching techniques she incorporates optimism, courage, dedication, love and hope.

Lacey and her assistants, Aurora Flores, Jovita Salazar, Dianna Compean, Gloria Cruz, and Linda Mendez, teach the students at various Hereford schools to be independent. Developing good general hygiene and communication, home management, money, and vocational skills are just a few goals the students work toward.

Lacey's goal is to prepare the students for the outside world. Many of the trainable students are able to find jobs and become independent. Some of the students are employed with the Hereford school system and others at local businesses.

"It is rewarding to see the students accomplish goals that you and I take for granted," Lacey said.

Her students range from nine to 21 years of age. Computers are used for non-verbal students and are an asset to the learning process. Special equipment is provided to help the students progress in certain areas.

"Charles Greenawalt, Nena Veazey, and the Hereford school system have been great in backing and supporting the program", she explained.

"Sometimes love suffers, but through the suffering blossoms a beautiful, loving and unique person. These students want to be accepted and loved by others," Lacey said.

She is the wife of Ed Lacey and the mother of three children: Ann, 19, Lori, 18, and Eddie, seven. She was born in Paris, Texas and graduated from the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga where she was cheerleader. She enjoys sewing, arts and crafts, cooking and bowling as her hobbies. She is sharing some of her children's favorite recipes with the public.

NEW YORK (AP) - ABC's program chief isn't putting to much stock in Roseanne Barr's threat to leave top-rated "Roseanne."

Robert A. Iger said Tuesday that while he hasn't discussed the matter with Barr he assumes she'll be back for a third season of the television comedy series.

"I'm not that worried," Iger said. "I'm outta there," Barr said earlier this month on NBC's "Today" show when asked about her television career if her movie "She-Devil" was a hit. If the movie flopped, she said, "I'm going to leave TV anyway."

"I've spoken with her since that quote. ... I didn't address that comment at all," Iger said. "I just let it go. She has a contract to do the program and I assume she'll be back."

The St. Lawrence River Valley is the most densely populated region in Canada.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I'm writing you this letter with a big thank-you for the school-bus safety tips in your column. They are the best safety tips I've read!

My husband and I lost our 6-year-old daughter three years ago in a school-bus accident. For some unknown reason she ran back to the bus after she was dropped off, the bus driver did not see her and she was run over. She died instantly. It was such a tragic loss to us and it happened right in front of our home.

Let people know that unexpected accidents can happen and that they should instruct their children carefully about school-bus safety so these accidents can be prevented.

Thank you again for printing this important information. — Becky Gifford, Balaton, Minn.

My deepest sympathy to your entire family. Tragedy can strike anyone at any moment. You were very kind to write and I only hope other lives will be saved by following bus-safety rules. Bless you. — Heloise

A DIFFERENT TWIST

Dear Heloise: A dear friend of mine became engaged recently and will be marrying in the spring. Since she is a professional businesswoman who has already established her home and furnishings, I was stumped as to what type of bridal shower I could give her.

A miscellaneous shower covers a variety of things from linen to lingerie, so I came up with a different twist that has everyone talking: I have decided to give her an entertainment shower. I made out the invitations and a short explanation of the kind of shower it was and then included a sample list of the bride-to-be and her fiancé's likes and dislikes in hobbies and home-entertainment choices.

Everyone on the guest list has answered and we are all excited about the upcoming shower. So far, the gifts that have been mentioned are gift certificates for videotape rentals, gift certificates for local restaurants with home delivery, a gift certificate for the videotaping of their wedding ceremony, an assortment of their favorite adult board games, craft and hobby kits and numerous other ideas. The guests say they really enjoyed shopping for a different kind of bridal gift.

With all the positive comments I have received from this idea, I just had to write you and share it with others. — Liz Schmidt, Buena Park, Calif.

What a brilliant idea, especially for those who have everything they need for their home. An entertainment shower is a great alternative.

We recently printed another great idea for a shower from a lady in New York City. They gave the couple tickets to shows, concerts and sporting events. — Heloise

RECYCLE

Dear Heloise: This is a tip for the re-use of the plastic bladders found in boxed wines. Save the bladders for the warmer months when they can be very useful in coolers.

When picnics are on the agenda, fill one of the wine bladders half to three-quarters full of water (depending on the size of the cooler) and freeze it. When frozen, it will fit perfectly in the bottom of a picnic cooler when you need to keep your foods cool.

This hint enables the user to have block ice that stays frozen for a long time, no water mess, and as it thaws, fresh water when you need it. The bladders are relatively strong and can be refrozen and used again. — Gwen Klawunder, Anchorage, Alaska

Recycle Christmas trees

After Christmas, don't make your last gift one that goes to the dump. Instead of throwing your Christmas tree away, figure out a way to recycle it to benefit the environment and save space in landfills.

Many communities, faced with limited room in their landfills, are collecting trees and shredding them for use year round as mulches and soil stabilizers.

The idea makes perfect sense, said Dr. Michael Walterscheid, forester with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. One Christmas tree occupies the same amount of landfill space that eight shredded trees would. "And if the shredded trees are used in landscaping," he said, "that's better yet because they don't wind up in the landfill at all."

"A project like this saves tremendous amount of landfill space," Walterscheid said. "For example, one city of about 70,000 people saved 1,000 cubic yards of landfill space last year." That's equivalent to over 160 dump truck loads.

Along the Texas coastal area, 4-H club members will be collecting trees to use as sand dune stabilizers, said Charles Moss, Extension marine agent in Brazoria County.

Christmas trees have been used successfully along beaches to rebuild dunes, which serve as barriers to the sea surges created by hurricanes and storms, he said.

"The dunes protect inland property from contamination by salt water," Moss said.

The fragrant foliage of Christmas trees can be stripped from the branches and snipped into small pieces for potpourri, said Dr. Peggy Owens, Extension consumer expert. Branches can be used in floral arrangements. To restore the fragrance, add a little oil of cedar or pine.

A Christmas tree standing in the garden or backyard could serve as a bird sanctuary during winter. Orange slices can be used to attract birds seeking shelter, said James Chandler, Extension forester.

"Trees stacked to form brush piles at the edge of a field or forest can provide shelter for such small animals as rabbits and birds," he said.

Another option is to use trees as homes and nesting areas for fish in small lakes, Chandler said. Trees can be grouped together and tied to concrete blocks, then dropped into the water.

Although some people burn their trees in fireplaces, he said, it's not a good idea. Pine contains a lot of tar and resin, flammable substances that can build up in a chimney, increasing the risk of a chimney fire.

Herd tops Tulia in Canyon tourney opener, 76-52

The Hereford Whitefaces returned to the floor Tuesday for their first game after Christmas and picked up a 76-52 win over the Tulia Hornets in the first round of the Canyon Rotary Holiday Tournament.

The Herd upped its record to 5-9 on the season with the win and advanced to meet host-team Canyon in the semifinals at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

In other Hereford High School basketball action, the Lady Whitefaces were scheduled to face Belton at noon today in the opening round of the Texas Lions Basketball Festival in Kerrville.

Russell Backus led the Herd attack with 28 points, including seven three-point field goals over the Hornets zone defense. Backus hit for 11 points in the first quarter as the Herd opened a 15-8 lead.

Tulia changed defensive strategies in the second period, and the Herd spread the scoring among six different players to take a 37-24 halftime advantage.

"We shot the ball much better tonight than we did against Pampa (the Herd's last game on Dec. 19)," Herd coach Jimmy Thomas said.

"They came out in that zone and Russell started hitting threes so they switched to a box," Thomas added. "That opened up the backside and we were able to get the ball in to Leo (Brown) for some easy, easy layups."

UA players escape accident unscathed

DALLAS (AP) - Last year, the Arkansas Razorbacks suffered a double jolt two days before they left for Cotton Bowl week.

Wayne Martin, the Hogs top defensive player, and starting guard Freddie Childress tested positive for drugs which made them ineligible.

The Hogs proceeded to lose 17-3 to UCLA and only got four first downs on New Year's Day.

Arkansas coach Ken Hatfield got another scare on the way to Dallas this week, but the Hogs lucked out this time: Six players were involved in a chain reaction accident Tuesday afternoon but none was seriously hurt.

Defensive back Anthony Cooney complained of a stiff neck on Wednesday but was expected to play against Tennessee on New Year's Day.

"I had a nightmare at 3 a.m. and I could see the whole episode all over again," Cooney said. "I sat up in bed and it took me a long time to regroup."

Cooney and five other Razorbacks were on an interstate on the southern edge of Dallas Tuesday afternoon when they ran into a car and a truck that had collided.

"Thank God for seat belts," Cooney said. "I made everybody put on their belts when we stopped at a service station before the accident."

Offensive tackle Curtis Johnson was driving and Cooney was in the front seat.

"We would have gone through the windshield if we didn't have our seat belts on," Cooney said. "I've never seen a hood foldup like mine did. It just crumpled like toilet paper."

Cooney said "my neck is still sore and stiff and I'm sore across my chest where the seat belt was connected. I just hope this is a good luck sign for the game. All my bad luck has happened. My 1984 Grand Prix is history. It was totaled."

Cooney is a vital cog in the Arkansas secondary which is saddled with the task of chasing down Tennessee's fleet corps of receivers. "I think I'll be OK by game time," Cooney said. "I just have to work the soreness out. Tennessee has some great receivers and I need to be at my best."

The Southwest Conference champion Razorbacks and the Southeastern Conference tri-champion Volunteers meet for only the third time in their long football histories on Monday.

Hatfield said he hopes his team won't be distracted by all the pregame hoopla like it was last year. "We've cut down some of our activities this time," Hatfield said. "We're trying to take everything in but it seemed like last year we were on a bus all the time. We want to have fun and I told the players that when they danced to dance hard. We'll just cut some things out."

Hatfield is 1-4 in bowls since he has been the Arkansas coach and the Hogs were whipped 17-3 last year by UCLA, getting only 42 yards offense and four first downs.

"It would be a great feeling to beat Johnny Majors and a very good Tennessee team," Hatfield said.

Majors, who was Hatfield's secondary coach at Arkansas in 1964, said "It's great to renew some old relationships. I'm just happy I got back to the Cotton Bowl game again. I hoped I wouldn't leave this earth before I had a chance to come back."

Two Arkansas teams made it to the Cotton Bowl while Majors was an assistant there.

"I've never been to a bad bowl game but this one is special," Majors said.

Both teams are 10-1 with Tennessee ranked No. 8 in The Associated Press poll and Arkansas No. 10. "I think the winner of this game should be considered for the national title if Notre Dame beats Colorado in the Orange Bowl," Majors said. "Why not? The winner here will have as many victories as anybody else."

Duke WR no worry to Tech

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - Clarkston Hines, 20th-ranked Duke's "Frequent Flyer," holds the NCAA record for career touchdowns, 38, has three 1,000-yard receiving seasons and is sixth in career yardage with 3,318.

So, how will No. 24 Texas Tech handle the All-American receiver in tonight's 13th All American Bowl?

"Our defense bends but doesn't break," said Tech linebacker Charles Rowe.

"We'll give Hines a few catches here and there but we don't want him to break a long one," he said. "We don't believe anybody can drive the ball down our throat. That's the way we've played all year and that's the way we're going to play Duke."

Coach Spike Dykes of Tech (8-3, as is Duke) said he knows how to defend against Hines: "Just hope. He's a great player."

Hines said he is glad to be playing for Steve Spurrier, an offensive-minded coach whose passing won him the Heisman Trophy at Florida in 1966.

"His passing offense is the dream of any wide receiver," Hines said. "He employs an explosive attack, and if used properly, it's almost unstoppable."

Hines has played with two quarterbacks this season, Billy Ray and Dave Brown while Ray was hurt, and said he has no preference.

Neither does Spurrier, who plans to start Ray and then insert Brown in the second period and "see how it goes."

Dykes said that facing a good passing attack will be nothing new for his team, which gave up 475 yards to Houston's Heisman winner, Andre Ware. "We've seen a few passes," Dykes said.

Tech, though not immune to passing itself, relies largely on the running of James Gray, fifth-leading runner in the nation this year with 1,509 yards.

"He's scored more points than anyone ever in the Southwest Conference," Dykes said, "and some pretty good players have come out of our conference."

Gray, the coach said, "fakes hard, runs hard and blocks hard. A lot of the things we do depend on him."

Duke linebacker John Howell said Gray "has very strong legs. He is quick on his moves and a great cutback runner. It will be a defensive showdown for Duke."

The All American Bowl is Duke's first postseason game in 29 years.

"It will be good to let the nation know we've got a football school as well as a basketball school," Brown said.

ESPN will televise the 7 p.m. CST game (Hereford Cablevision Channel 11). The game can be heard on KPAN AM/FM (860 AM, 106.3 FM).

Rodgers denies charges

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska denied contacting 1989 Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware, but Rodgers said he did buy Ware's mother a fur coat and other items.

A sports marketing firm on Wednesday also denied illegal contact with the University of Houston quarterback and the firm's president accused Texas Secretary of State George Bayoud of fining Rodgers and the company for political gain.

Bayoud fined Rodgers and Total Economic Athletic Management of America Inc., $10,000 each for allegedly violating a Texas law that forbids sports agents from contacting players who still have college eligibility.

A spokesman for the secretary of state repeated allegations Wednesday that Rodgers met directly with Ware, a junior, and offered $20 million if Ware would sign a professional contract.

"Our findings found that during this contact, Johnny Rodgers apparently asked Andre Ware what Ware had been told about Rodgers that made him turn down Johnny Rodgers and $20 million," said Mark Toohey, an aide to Bayoud.

Toohey said Rodgers met with Ware Dec. 7 when Ware was in New York City for some additional ceremonies surrounding the Heisman Trophy.

Toohey also said the gifts to Mrs. Ware were illegal because they were an attempt to "lure" Ware into signing the contract.

But Rodgers and TEAM America President Howard Misle said during a news conference in Omaha Wednesday they did not meet directly with Ware. They said they did not believe their contact with Mrs. Ware violated Texas law.

Misle said he met with Ware's mother, Joyce, while in New York professionally while continuing his education. "He could get the highest football contract of anybody coming out of college if he wanted to go pro," Misle said. "And I stand by that."

Misle said Rodgers isn't a sports agent. He said TEAM America contracted with Rodgers' company, Idea Marketing and Management, for marketing and endorsement purposes.

Rodgers said Mrs. Ware came to New York for the Heisman Trophy awards ceremony with "two pair of jeans, a coat up to her elbows and an outfit not even fitting for her to wear."

Rodgers said he purchased clothing, including a fur coat, worth no more than $1,000 for Mrs. Ware for the ceremonies. Mrs. Ware said she would reimburse him, Rodgers said.

He said he acted independently of Misle's company and never tried to talk Mrs. Ware into ending her son's college football career. "I said he (Ware) should stay in school and get an education and she thought that was just wonderful," Rodgers said.

But Rodgers said he did talk with Mrs. Ware about lining up promotions and endorsements for Ware when he graduated from school.

The fines against Rodgers and TEAM America are the largest assessed since the law was enacted in 1987.

The secretary of state office, which investigated the matter, also alleged that TEAM America isn't registered with the state. Misle said he tried to register three times but the office claims not to have him listed.

The investigation found that Rodgers, representing himself as an agent for TEAM America, contacted Mrs. Ware by telephone several times around Nov. 30 in an attempt to convince her son to sign a contract with the company. Mrs. Ware lives in Dickinson, south of Houston.

The report alleges that Rodgers and Misle met with Mrs. Ware in a New York hotel room Dec. 1 and presented her with a packet of information titled, "Cash Flow and Tax Projections Prepared for Andre Ware."

During that meeting, Rodgers and Misle allegedly told Mrs. Ware their company could market her son's football skills for $20 million, Bayoud said.

The report also alleges that Misle and Rodgers took Mrs. Ware shopping and bought her several items of clothing, including a fur coat, dresses, shoes and purse containing $300.

Timberwolves rout Rockets, 108-91

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

After nine consecutive losses, Minnesota coach Bill Musselman figured it was time for a change.

Taking a page from Don Nelson's book, Musselman started a front line of 6-foot-7 Sam Mitchell at center, 6-7 Tony Campbell and 6-6 Tyrone Corbin at forward and 6-1 rookie Pooh Richardson and 6-0 Sidney Lowe at guard.

Musselman's decision came up roses as the expansion Timberwolves routed Houston 108-91 Wednesday night.

"You might see anything next game," Musselman said. "From now on, I'm going to play according to who we play."

Richardson and Lowe were the biggest surprises. Both played the entire game, running a "motion" offense that Musselman decided to use just minutes before the opening tip.

Richardson scored a season-high 18 points and Lowe had 22 points and 13 assists after going the entire season without a double-figure scoring game.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was San Antonio 107, Washington 97; Indiana 106, Orlando 101; Detroit 99, Cleveland 82; Dallas 114, Atlanta 101; Seattle 110, Philadelphia 106, and Boston 115, Sacramento 112 in overtime.

Lowe came within two rebounds of a triple-double for the Timberwolves. "Yo, Sid, I'll give you two of my rebounds," Mitchell said.

Mitchell, a 26-year-old rookie starting his first game at center, had 10 rebounds and 17 points in his head-to-head matchup with Akcem Olajuwon, who scored 32 points, but only two in the final 18 minutes.

Richardson's 20-footer gave the Timberwolves an 83-78 lead after three periods. They were leading 86-81 early in the fourth when they turned the game into a rout with a 19-4 spurt, during which Lowe had 10 points, including two 3-pointers.

Spurs 107, Bulls 97
San Antonio pulled within two victories of last season's victory total with its seventh straight win as David Robinson scored a season-high 34 points against Washington.

The game was tied 33-33 with 10:19 remaining in the second period when reserve guards David Wingate and Vernon Maxwell keyed a 13-0 run that gave the Spurs a lead they never lost.

Washington was led by Jeff Malone with 26 points.
Celtics 115, Kings 112, OT
Boston extended Sacramento's losing streak to 10 as Larry Bird scored nine of his 37 points in overtime.

Bird, who also had 11 rebounds and 10 assists, had a scoring duel with former teammate Danny Ainge, who scored 39 points, including nine of the Kings' 11 in the extra period.
Sonics 110, 76ers 106
Dale Ellis scored 12 of his 33 points in the third quarter when Seattle took control against Philadelphia with a 28-12 surge.

The Sonics' run during the final 9:50 of the third quarter turned a 66-64 deficit into a 92-78 lead.

Derrick McKey had 21 points for the Sonics. Charles Barkley led the 76ers with 22.
Pacers 106, Magic 101

Indiana moved into a tie for the Central Division lead with Chicago as Rik Smits scored 11 of his 23 points in the final 6:50 against Orlando.

The Pacers led only 92-91 when Smits started his game-closing run.

Reggie Theus led the Magic with 30 points and 10 assists. Reggie Miller scored 22 points for Indiana.
Pistons 99, Cavaliers 82
James Edwards scored 25 points for Detroit, including a tiebreaking jumper that started an 11-1 run in the third quarter against Cleveland.

Cleveland trailed by as many as 18 points in the second quarter, but the Cavaliers tied it 57-57 on a 20-footer by Mark Price, who scored 22 points. Edwards responded with a short turnaround shot that put the Pistons ahead for good with five minutes left in the third period.
Mavericks 114, Hawks 101
Derek Harper scored 25 points and Sam Perkins and Rolando Blackman added 22 apiece for the Mavericks, who shot 54 percent from the field.

Dallas, second in the NBA in scoring defense (98.6 points), held the Hawks well below their 111 points-per-game average. The Mavericks' biggest lead was 99-77 in the fourth quarter.

Dominique Wilkins led Atlanta with 16 points.

Missouri wins battle of Tigers, 69-65

By The Associated Press

Missouri coach Norm Stewart wasn't surprised. Then he was - which is why the seventh-ranked Tigers are now 10-1.

"John McIntyre makes two good plays in succession. He comes in with a three, then makes a good defensive play and steal," Stewart said of the senior.

"Quite honestly, we expected the three. Quite honestly, we didn't expect the defensive play."

No. 15 Memphis State led 65-61 with 1:43 remaining when McIntyre hit his 3-point basket from the corner. That cut the margin to 65-64.

Then, when Memphis State was bringing the ball up the court, McIntyre stole a pass, drove the length of the court and dunked, giving seventh-ranked Missouri a lead it never relinquished.

"The difference was we didn't make the shots when we had the chances," Memphis State coach Larry Finch said. "We didn't shoot the ball well, something like 27 percent in the first half. Even then, we were only eight points down (34-26), which is a tribute to our hustle."

McIntyre scored only seven points, but five came in that 15-second spurt.

In other games involving ranked teams Wednesday night, it was No. 6 Oklahoma 142, James Madison 109; No. 16 UCLA 74, Fresno State 65; No. 10 Indiana 75, Wichita State 54; No. 14 Georgia Tech 98, Morehead State 76; No. 17 St. John's 77, Howard 65; No. 19 North Carolina State 90, Florida State 72; No. 20 LaSalle 74, Ohio State 62; No. 23 Oregon State 86, Boston University 66, and No. 24 North Carolina 121, Kentucky 110.

Missouri's Doug Smith, who finished with 10 points and 12 rebounds, sealed the game after McIntyre's heroics, hitting three of four free throws in the final 20 seconds, the last two giving Missouri a 69-65 advantage with 18 seconds remaining.

With the victory, Missouri boosted its record to 10-1, while Memphis State dropped to 6-2.

Nathan Buntin led Missouri scorers with 14 points and Anthony Peeler had 10.

Memphis State's Elliot Perry scored 16 points, Cheyenne Gibson 14 and Ernest Smith 11.

No. 6 Oklahoma 142, James Madison 109

William Davis scored 33 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead Oklahoma's rout.

The undefeated Sooners scored 88 points in the second half and raised their nation-leading scoring average to 136 points a game.

Steve Hood topped James Madison with 36 points.
No. 10 Indiana 75, Wichita St. 54
Seventeen points each by Eric Anderson and Calbert Cheaney paced Indiana's victory in the first round of the Hoosier Classic.

Indiana took command with a 16-2 spurt midway through the first half.

John Cooper led Wichita State with 16 points.

No. 14 Georgia Tech 98, Morehead St. 76
Brian Oliver scored 23 points and Dennis Scott had 21 in Georgia Tech's win over Morehead State in the first round of the Kuppenheimer Classic in Atlanta.

The Yellow Jackets built a 51-26 halftime lead.

Elbert Boyd led Morehead State with 16 points.

No. 16 UCLA 74, Fresno St. 65

Hancock Bowl gaining support from El Pasoans

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - A year ago there were serious doubts whether another post-season college bowl game would be played in El Paso.

That was then. This is now. Last year, the bowl, known as the Sun Bowl, didn't have a sponsor. This year, the John Hancock companies agreed to sponsor the game.

And the new leader of the organization coordinating John Hancock Bowl activities asked county commissioners Wednesday for another $50,000 for expenses for a game that has drawn more fans and interest than anticipated.

"More expenses are incurred when we have a game of this magnitude and this many visitors," said Sun Carnival Association director John Junker. "Instead of 50 writers we have 80, we have more ticket sellers ... the popularity of the game is swamping us."

The Sun Carnival Association coordinates activities surrounding the game, such as hosting the teams, organizing the parade and handling administrative chores associated with the Saturday matchup between Pittsburgh and Texas A&M.

The teams have attracted enough people to help fill at least 12 local hotels, an influx that could translate into an estimated $18 million for El Paso, officials say.

The association says about 35,000 tickets to the game have been sold and, if tradition holds up, many more will be bought this week. Sun Bowl stadium seats about 52,000.

"This place is a madhouse, the phones are ringing off the wall and the ticket master outlets are doing really well too," said Katie Carlson, marketing manager.

The city had promised to give the Sun Carnival Association $150,000 of hotel tax revenue, but later reduced the contribution to $100,000. Junker says he needs that extra $50,000 to meet additional administrative expenses and to hire extra people for the stadium for Saturday's game.

"We only keep 25 cents of every dollar spent on tickets, 75 cents goes to the universities. For us to make up $50,000 lost ... we'd have to sell another 200,000 tickets which is a physical impossibility because the stadium isn't large enough," Junker said.

The commission voted to give the association $25,000 as long as the city agreed to contribute $25,000 as well.

Junker said bowl officials don't want to always depend on public funds, but he reminded commissioners the bowl is "El Paso's only regularly scheduled national television event."

"It's not that we're the only thing El Paso has or the best thing, but we are one of the few things that bring this kind of impact to the city."

The game is being aired on CBS (KFDA, Ch. 10). Kickoff is at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

Oilers seek fan support

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers missed out on winning the AFC Central Division title but they did make the playoffs for the third straight year, and coach Jerry Glanville hopes that fact isn't lost on the fans.

"I think after you go a couple of years and you're expected to win the division and you don't, the worst thing that can happen is your fans and your city aren't excited about you being there," Glanville said Wednesday.

The Oilers (9-7) will host Pittsburgh (9-7) Sunday as a wild card instead of division champions.

"We're a little down and depressed and we're asking the whole city to help them come back," Glanville said. "I think the feelings of the city can help bring this team back."

The Oilers have been accused of backing into the playoffs because they lost their final two games 61-7 to Cincinnati and 24-20 to Cleveland.

A victory in either game would have given the Oilers their first division title and a bye in the first week of the playoffs.

Defensive end Sean Jones can't understand any fans being unhappy.

"Some people seem like they are mad that we're in the playoffs, but we're here," Jones said. "We're one of the better teams in the league and that's how we should be acting, not like a team that lost two games."

The Browns rallied in the final 39 seconds to take the division crown from the Oilers. Glanville gave the Oilers a three-day break from practice to recover from the heartbreak.

"We are a loose team and we seem to be coming out of it," center Jay Pennison said. "I think by Sunday, our confidence will be where it should be and we'll be ready to play."

The Oilers have been hampered by injuries in the defensive line the past two weeks.

End Ray Childress has missed two games and has not practiced this week because of a broken bone in his right leg.

Nose tackle Doug Smith was slowed by injuries against the Browns and his backup, Richard Byrd, suffered from recurring back spasms.

"You go into a game and you don't have anyone to play," Glanville said. "We've done that two weeks in a row and we've got to do something about it."

Glanville is at least glad the Oilers have a playoff game at home.

"We wanted it to be here no matter who we played," Glanville said. "We would have liked to win the division, but we didn't and we can't worry about that anymore."

The three-day vacation helped, Glanville said.

"I think the extra day off will help us come back," Glanville said. "We were all drained after the Cleveland game."

Pittsburgh lost its first two games of the season by a combined 92-10 margin but they finished with five victories in their last six games, losing only to Houston in that stretch.

"I think the advantage in playing the Steelers is that we both know each other so well," Glanville said. "I think it will be a very good game based on what they have done recently."

"They are playing their best football right now."

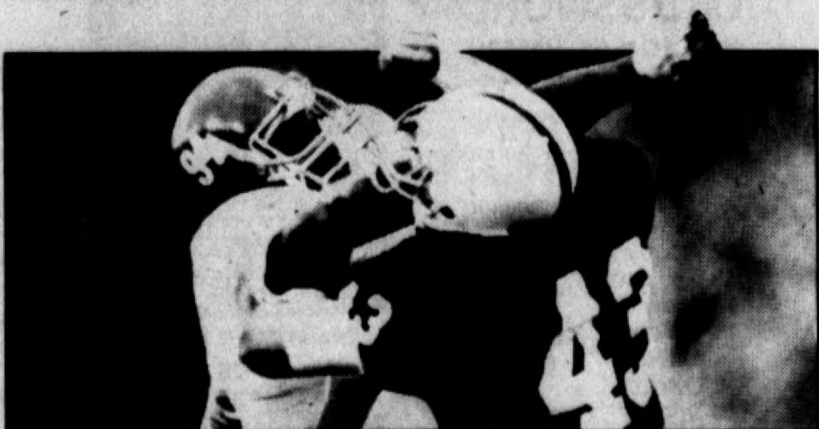

The Oilers beat the Steelers 27-0 and 23-16 this season.

Houston has an 8-8 all-time playoff record. They beat Cleveland in the 1988 wild card game and lost to Buffalo in the second round.

The only other home playoff game in the Astrodome this decade was a 23-20 victory over Seattle in 1987.

Houston is one of four teams to qualify for the NFL playoffs at least three straight years. The others are San Francisco, Minnesota and Cleveland.

Former Hereford resident honored

Former resident Marilyn Sue Shirley May, Lamb County extension home economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, received the Texas Superior Service Award recently at Texas A&M University.

Mrs. May graduated from Hereford High School in 1972 and is the daughter of local residents J.B. and Teriece Shirley.

Dr. Zerle Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, presented the award, highest given by the educational agency to its faculty.

May was recognized for "implementation of an innovative consumer shopping skills program which enables consumers to conserve resources and to meet financial goals."

Realizing the need to reach clientele not in usual Extension audiences, May created unique methods to disseminate educational information to consumers. Volunteers trained by May assisted in teaching consumers at the point of purchase. The four-year program

LONDON (AP) — Rock stars will record a remake of Rod Stewart's hit song "Sailing" to protest the forced repatriation of Vietnamese boat people from Hong Kong.

Guitarist Steve Hackett, formerly with Genesis, said the musicians include Brian May of Queen, Bonnie Tyler, Curt Smith of Tears for Fears, Mike Rutherford, Jack Bruce and the Sutherland Brothers, who originally recorded the song before it became a hit for Stewart in 1975.

involved 77 percent of Lamb County consumers and made a 4.2 million impact on the Lamb County economy.

The success of the consumer program in Lamb County created interest in the program statewide as well as in other parts of the nation. May presented programs on the concept developed in Lamb County for two regional plan of work trainings and as part of the consumers concerns technical course during state Extension Staff Conference. State extension specialists reproduced and distributed the teaching plan which May wrote on "Generic Foods and Drugs" to all county extension offices in the state, and later distributed a consumer guide which outlined the concept and methods to each county office in Texas, as well as to the extension headquarters in each state. Numerous counties throughout the state adopted the program, including 10 Gulf Coast counties where the methods were used extensively to reach over 100,000 consumers. Air Force Family Support Centers in five states - Texas, New Mexico, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Oklahoma - are using the concept with military personnel who are having financial problems.

May also received the first annual Catherine B. Crawford Award for Innovative Programming at a South Plains district awards luncheon. This award was presented in honor of Dr. Catherine Crawford, District Extension Director Emeritus.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Another mystery has been solved.

Angela Lansbury has agreed to return for a seventh season in CBS' highest-rated entertainment show "Murder, She Wrote."

Miss Lansbury had not planned to return for 1990-91, but CBS reached an agreement for next season, said Howard Stringer, president of the CBS Broadcast Group.

"Murder, She Wrote," in which Miss Lansbury plays a mystery novelist who keeps happening upon murders, is CBS' only hit entertainment show. Usually, Miss Lansbury's show and "60 Minutes" are the only CBS shows to make the 20 top shows in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings.

Her return is so important to CBS that the network has granted her enormous concessions.

Decorate with castoffs

Coleen Johnston has furnished at least three houses with garage sale and flea market finds. Her finest hour was when she picked up a wicker sofa and matching chair for $3.

"They were sitting in a driveway and people were passing them by," she recalls. "I looked at them and thought 'how soon can I get them to my car?'" She cautions that not all forays are so fruitful, and nearly every second-hand purchase - including the wicker - needs some work.

"A lot of the furniture at garage sales, flea markets and auctions is truly junk, but if you're patient you'll find something," says Johnston, whose new book, "Garage Sale Decorator," tells how to redo and decorate with castoff furniture.

As a veteran of garage sales in the Midwest, Southwest and upstate New York, the Zumbrota, Minn., resident says chairs are the most plentiful.

"Often, they are dirty and you may not like the fabric," she says, but that's no reason to reject them. "Sit down to see if the chair is comfortable. This will give you an idea of the condition of the springs."

If springs need retying or the chair is wobbly, move on. You don't need the headache. But if it is sturdy and you like the style, consider recovering it.

"Almost anyone can upholster something if they have a staple gun," says Johnston. But she advises buying inexpensive fabrics for a first try.

If you're in the market for wood side chairs, remember that the most likely damage is a missing stretcher or side piece. A lumber yard will cut stretchers to fit, or you can buy hardwood dowels and have them cut to fit. You'll have to whittle the ends of the stretcher to fit it into the leg.

Refinishing, says Johnston, is easy, and glue can work wonders on loose joints. Easy it may be, but refinishing chairs is tedious because they have so many surfaces and so much detail.

"You can do a dining room table in less time than one chair," says

Betty Dixon, supervisor of the telephone hotline for Formby's refinishing products.

After the $3 outlay for the wicker set, Johnston spent several hours and another $50 or so restoring it. She fixed the sofa's sagging seat by pulling taut the bamboo strapping that had come loose and retying it with cane she had on hand. She also retacked the seat to the frame.

Working outdoors, she spray painted the blue pieces white - it took 15 cans of paint - and fitted the sofa with foam cushions picked up for 25 cents each and then slipcovered with six yards of remnant fabric that cost about $20.

"Buying (wood) furniture that is covered with paint is the biggest gamble," says Johnston, "because you don't know what is underneath."

As an example, she says many pieces with a very red mahogany look are actually maple stained to look like mahogany.

A restoring tip from Formby's Betty Dixon: Use a hypodermic needle to apply glue to furniture joints. Make a solution of 9 parts white glue and one part water. Fill a hypodermic syringe with the solution and insert the needle in the loose joint. Fill the joint with the glue and clamp it for 14 hours, protecting the piece with blocks of wood.

If you don't have clamps, cut an old car inner tube in long strips and wrap the rubber around and around, pulling it taut. Clamping is essential to the repair, and Dixon says water not only thins the glue, it allows it to penetrate the wood better.

Before refinishing an old piece, clean it first to assess the damage. You may find that cleaning, buffing and rewaxing is all that is needed. If that isn't the case, test the surface to determine whether a wood refinisher (which removes shellac, lacquer or varnish) or paint remover (for polyurethane or paint) is required.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I grew up in an alcoholic and abusive home. Food was my solace, my salvation, my means of survival. When my parents let me know that I wasn't good enough, smart enough or pretty enough, food was there to comfort me. I remember bicycling to a diet center on Saturday and on my way home, I'd stop for a hamburger and a pound of fudge, which I smuggled into my room.

My parents locked up all the sweets, so I learned how to pick the lock. My father would bring home four different kinds of ice cream and say, "You can't have any because you're fat." So I waited until everyone went to bed and then I'd eat all the ice cream in the cooler.

If a child has a weight problem, the parents ought to look at their own attitudes about food. Maybe the kid is acting out the family's illness. Maybe if they let the child know that he or she is loved, irrespective of physical appearance, the child might feel secure enough to solve his or her own problem.

If my parents had seen this letter, maybe it wouldn't have taken me 40 years of being overweight and more than five years of therapy to begin to deal with their miserable legacy. -- Feeling Better Now, Thank You (L.A.)

DEAR L.A.: I'm glad you're Feeling Better. So will millions of overweight readers. Thanks for sharing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are probably sick to death of this subject, but please, just one more letter about those telephone sales pitches.

Imagine this scenario: You are expecting a call from the emergency room or your boss. The phone rings. You scurry down the ladder, dropping the paintbrush on the cat. You dash up the stairs, out of breath and heart pounding, lunge for the kitchen phone, only to discover that a man you don't know is calling you by your first name and offering you a weed-killing service.

Never mind that you didn't ask him to call. Never mind that his service will pollute the ground water. You have a phone and he has a finger. You must dance to his tune because you have no way of knowing who is calling until you answer.

I did not have a telephone installed so strangers between jobs can call and subject me to sales pitches any more than I bought a home so some desperado could have a free salesroom for his vacuum cleaners.

Thanks for letting me have my say. I know what your position is, but I'm sure more people agree with me than with you. -- Louisville Fan

DEAR LOUISVILLE: No doubt you are right, but I still say those phone folks (pests though they are) aren't making calls because they like being cussed out and hung up on. They are trying to make a living.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A word, please, to Uncle Claude in Riverside, Calif., who was wearing his wife's underwear because she is always behind with the laundry: Why doesn't the dummy learn how to run the washing machine? -- Saskatoon

DEAR SAS: About 5,000 readers asked that same question. I wish I had thought of it when I gave a less brilliant answer.

Pursuit of beauty easy with natural products

Traditions may come and go, but the pursuit of beauty is timeless, probably going back to the days of the cave man.

The Greeks and Romans sought ideal beauty through the use of absolutely pure and natural beauty practices. So did the ancient Egyptians, who were extremely adept in the use of nature's herbs and plants to beautify their bodies.

Cleopatra, for example, kept her complexion fresh and glowing by applying the mud from the Nile River as a facial masque, and by soaking her body for hours in a bathtub filled with milk.

It is the native American medicine man, however, who we have to thank for the discovery of witch hazel; the first natural botanical astringent that can be used to cleanse and tone the skin without fear of irritation.

As the story goes, the medicine man, always on the lookout for curative plants, chanced upon the Hamamelis virginiana bush, from which he made a witch hazel potion by boiling its twigs in water. So effective was witch hazel in soothing skin rashes, cuts and sores, that the Indians attributed "magical" powers to the plant and its use.

Today, the "magical" powers of witch hazel are enjoyed by millions of contemporary women who attribute their healthy complexions to the use of witch hazel products.

To keep your skin fresh and glowing, at home, or at the office, or anywhere, here are some quick and easy tips:

-Wash your face with mild soap or cleanser to remove makeup and superficial oil.

-Use witch hazel, a natural, non-drying astringent in a convenient form to wipe away any residual oil, soap film or makeup.

-To soften skin on both face and body, use an oil-free moisturizer, preferably one that contains a sunblock of at least 15 SPF.

-To soothe and smooth your skin anytime of the day or night, tuck a few witch hazel towelettes into your purse. You'll feel refreshed right away!

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Columnist Art Buchwald came up with an original idea when he proposed a movie based on the comic adventures of an African king in America, says the co-creator of the old TV series "Barney Miller."

Buchwald is suing Paramount Pictures Corp. for $5 million, alleging the 1988 Eddie Murphy hit "Coming to America" was based on an idea he optioned to the studio in 1983.

Make holiday breakfast with sunny side-up eggs

Did You Know

Using vegetable spray-on in a nonstick pan is a good way to cut calories and fat when frying eggs? Try the spray with omelets too. An herb omelet made with 2 large eggs cooked with 1 tablespoon of butter is 262 calories, while the same omelet cooked with spray is 171!

There is no difference in nutritive value among eggs graded AAA and B?

Two large eggs provide 30 percent of the U.S. RDA for protein? When substituting eggs for other protein foods in recipes, 1 egg = 1 ounce of lean meat, fish or poultry.

The color of the egg shell and yolk have nothing to do with the quality or nutritive value of the egg? The breed of hen determines the color of the shell. Yolk color depends on the diet of the hen—the more food she eats which contains yellow-orange plant pigments, the darker yellow the yolk will be.

It's best to refrigerate your eggs on an inside shelf in the carton. The egg carton helps prevent the loss of moisture and carbon dioxide from the eggs and helps keep them from picking up undesirable odors from other foods in your refrigerator.

One large egg contains only about 80 calories: A medium egg contains about 70; and extra large egg about 90; and a Jumbo egg about 100. In varying amounts, eggs contain all of the vitamins except vitamin C and many minerals. Only fish liver oils top the amount of vitamin D in eggs. Among the important minerals provided by eggs are phosphorus, magnesium, potassium and iron.

You can make brunch, lunch or dinner fiesta time with Arroz con Huevos? This cherty dish has a snappy flavor that can add pizzazz to your menu!

Arroz Con Huevos (2 servings)

- 1 cup water, 1/2 cup uncooked rice, 1/4 cup chopped onion, 1 clove garlic, minced, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons bottled taco sauce or red salsa, 1/2 cup chopped tomato, 2 to 4 eggs, 2 tablespoons to 1/4 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

In medium saucepan, stir together water, rice, onion, garlic and salt. Cover. Over high heat, bring to boiling. Reduce heat to simmering. About 10 minutes before rice is done, stir in green pepper and taco sauce. Cover and cook until rice is tender, about 10 minutes. Stir in tomato. Remove from heat, cover and keep warm while poaching eggs. To serve, spoon half of the reserved rice mixture onto each of 2 plates. Top each with 1 to 2 of the poached eggs. Sprinkle each egg with 1 tablespoon of the cheese.

To poach eggs: In saucepan or deep omelet pan, bring 1 to 3 inches of water to boiling. Reduce heat to keep water gently simmering. Break cold eggs, 1 at a time, into custard cup or saucer or break several into bowl. Holding dish close to water's surface, slip eggs, 1 by 1, into water. Cook about 3 to 5 minutes, depending on desired doneness. With slotted spoon, lift out eggs. Drain in spoon or on paper towels and trim any rough edges, if desired.

To poach eggs in microwave: Pour 1/3 to 2/3 cup water into 10-ounce custard cup or 1 quart bowl. Break and slip in 2 to 4 eggs. Gently prick yolks with tip of knife or wooden pick. Cover with plastic wrap. Cook on full power about 1 1/2 to 3 minutes.

Teens reveal hot trends

School-related activities, black clothing, convertibles and hanging out at the mall are "hot" heavy makeup, television and sushi are not, according to thousands of American teens from 250 high schools in 45 states who participated in the Sunkist Trendset Survey.

Conducted by Sunkist Soft Drinks, Inc., the survey asked the nation's teens their opinions about everything from their favorite activities, foods, clothes and sports to their most pressing concerns and peer role models.

"We were delighted to discover that the current crop of teens value independence and individuality; their survey answers and essays show that they care about peers but clearly prefer to be themselves, rather than one of the pack," says Edward S. Moerk, president of Sunkist Soft Drinks.

HOW THEY SEE THEMSELVES

Appearance was by far the one thing both male and female teens would change about themselves. But makeup is clearly out, with 88 percent of guys and 84 percent of girls saying that girls look best with minimal makeup.

The hottest fashion color is black (61 percent) followed by fluorescent colors, blue and red. Thirty-eight percent of survey participants say they are traditional/preppy dressers and fully 22 percent wear "whatever is in the closet."

Jeans-faded, washed out or ripped-are still the hottest single clothing items, with baggy, oversized clothes, cardigans and anything in leather also highly ranked. The styles of the '60s are "in," including mini-skirts, bell bottoms and tie-dyed apparel.

When asked what is their favorite trendy food, frozen yogurt and pizza, in all its incarnations, are the most popular answers. Chinese food, French fries and pizza rolls are also favorites.

Sushi and tofu are teens least favorite trendy foods.

FAVORITE ACTIVITIES

When teens are asked about their preferred activity, watching television is at the bottom of the list. More than half prefer "just being with friends."

Girls overwhelmingly like to be with their friends at a mall or shopping center, while guys enjoy participating in sports.

When they do watch television, "Roseanne" is the number one choice among 15 percent of the teens; "The Wonder Years" is the next most popular choice. Other favorite programs are "A Different World," "21 Jump Street" and "The Cosby Show."

In addition to being with friends, almost everything about school receives high marks from the trendsetters, including pep rallies, dances and proms, shows and plays, and sports events.

When they participate in sports, volleyball is the number one choice among girls (30 percent), and football and basketball are tied for number one among guys (22 percent).

Accent on Health

Two simple precautions that save lives on crowded Texas highways every holiday season are driver sobriety and use of seat belts.

"Many people who died last year might be alive today if they had buckled up or had driven sober," Dr. Robert Bernstein, Texas Commissioner of Health, said today. "It just makes sense to use your seat belts and to drive without drinking," he added.

Statistics from the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) show that in 1988, 73.6 percent of the 3,395 persons killed in traffic mishaps in Texas were not wearing safety belts.

The combination of bad weather, drinking drivers and weary travelers driving too fast makes Texas roadways especially hazardous during this time of year. Last year, according to DPS, 42 persons were killed in traffic accidents during the 78-hour Christmas period and another 38 died during the 78-hour New Year's period.

Safety belts hold passengers in place, preventing a second "human collision," in which unbelted passengers hit the windshield, dash, door or are thrown from the vehicle. Young children, who are especially vulnerable to being injured or killed in a traffic accident, should ride protected in child passenger safety seats.

Texas law requires children younger than 2 to ride in a safety seat. Youngsters from age 2 to 4 are required to ride either in a safety seat or secured by a safety belt. All front-seat passengers, regardless of age, are required by state law to ride buckled up.

"Some people brag that they can drive just fine when they drink," Dr. Bernstein said. "If this is true, why do so many deaths on Texas roads involve alcohol?"

Last year in Texas, 42 percent of all rural fatal accidents involved driving while intoxicated (DWI) as a contributing factor. Safety officials indicate that almost 40 percent of all statewide fatal accidents involve DWI.

Dr. Bernstein recommends a "designated driver" plan, in which one person in a group volunteers not to drink and assumes the responsibility of driving others home. Some restaurants and bars now provide free non-alcoholic beverages to a designated driver. In addition, many communities are arranging free or low-cost taxi service for persons unable to drive safely.

Dr. Bernstein said each ounce-and-a-half of liquor or 12-ounce beer requires about an hour to be metabolized in the bloodstream. Food helps slow the absorption of alcohol, but eating while drinking will not keep someone from getting drunk. Also, coffee and cold showers cannot help someone become sober.

Hatfield lets assistant coach run Razorback offense

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Crowe got fooled, big time, by his boss. It was Oct. 7 and Arkansas was at Texas Christian University.

Crowe, hired in February as the Razorbacks' offensive coordinator, was in the pressbox, calling the plays.

While Crowe and the other coaches had tinkered with the Arkansas offense, Crowe had warned before the season began that nothing was set in stone. He was waiting for Ken Hatfield's final say-so and even told the head coach they needed to talk.

"He said, 'No, y'all got it. Just bring me a playbook,'" Crowe said.

Once the season began, Hatfield would come in for 15 or 20 minutes and Crowe would give him an overview. If Hatfield had a question, he would ask.

"We'd get to the game and what he said was almost always a reminder of what we had told him," Crowe said. "It's not in the way of a 'Do This,' it's an idea to work on."

By the time the fourth game arrived, Crowe had about concluded that Hatfield was a big-picture man who left the details to his assistants.

Hatfield's sideline headset is equipped with a switch which allows him to tune in and out on Crowe's play selection.

"I don't know when he's on there," Crowe said. "Every once in a while, he'll say something. Just a comment."

"About the time I was thinking, heck he ain't even looking, it was at TCU, I called a formation. I said, like, 'right trips, 19-down.' I mean it got right out of my mouth and he said, '18, 18.'"

Crowe had called the play to the wrong side of the formation.

"I mean it barely got out of my mouth and he said it and I thought to myself, um-h'm. He knows where the detail is. He may know everything that is going on."

Normally, Hatfield's remarks to Crowe are succinct — like, make sure to establish the fullback. "They were usually things that would tell me we were getting away from something or maybe not using a player or something," Crowe said.

And, he said, they always agree. The transition from Clemson to Arkansas has been surprisingly easy, he said as the Razorbacks prepared for Monday's Cotton Bowl game with Tennessee.

"It's not that he said one thing and looked another. He said and you read the way he said it, every inch of the way. Not for one moment has it not been on the same line."

Like Hatfield, Crowe is a stickler for details.

He has a box of manila folders, with various categories, situations, etc., on each side. Before each game, he fills in every available blank — running plays against infrequent defensive fronts, passes against two-deep coverage, plays with home-run potential, plays to use while running out the clock, plays against various blitzes — all sorts of contingencies.

There's even a section for two-point conversions.

"We have three of them," he said. "Used to have only two."

There's a reason for that.

When he was at Clemson, the coaches felt they could come back from a 30-0 halftime deficit with four touchdowns and four two-point conversions.

Clemson lost, 28-30. "We made two two-point conversions. The other two we didn't have a plan for, we didn't make them."

Vols have own motivation

DALLAS (AP) — Tennessee players and coaches say they realize Arkansas wants to avenge its loss to UCLA in the 1989 Cotton Bowl, but point out that they have motivations of their own.

The Razorbacks have pointed to a 17-3 loss to UCLA in the 1989 game as a spur to this year's 10-1 record and Southwest Conference championship, which carries an automatic Cotton Bowl bid.

Tennessee, on the other hand, was driven this year by the misery of losing its first six games of 1988. The Vols rebounded and also finished 10-1 this season.

The two teams will meet for just the third time in the 54th annual Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day. Tennessee is ranked eighth, Arkansas tenth.

"I've never been too concerned about Arkansas losing last year," Tennessee coach Johnny Majors said Wednesday. "I don't think that's going to make much difference."

"Obviously they'll be fired up. That'll be a little motivational factor. But we ought to have some motivational factors, too. We're playing to stay in the Top 10 and improve our ranking, and so are they."

"We're excited about coming to the Cotton Bowl. There are a lot of things to get ready for."

Majors said the game will be decided by the same things that decide most football games — kicking, turnovers and field position.

Tennessee defensive end Marion Hobby noted that Arkansas has been to the Cotton Bowl before "and some of our guys have never even been to Texas. I guess I wouldn't say it's an advantage, but this is the bowl site for their champion."

Nevertheless, he said, "It's all in the game."

Volunteer linebacker Darryl Hardy was even more succinct when asked if he thought Arkansas had a motivational advantage.

"Nah," he said.

Defensive end Tracy Hayworth said losing last year's Cotton Bowl "is going to be a great motivational factor on their part, but we've come here to win, too."

"So I think it's going to be a battle," he said. "We're not going to come down here and lay down for them or anybody else. I feel that we have a chance to win against anybody. We've got as much chance to win as they do."

Whether the Volunteers can take advantage of that chance may hinge on how well they can contain the powerful Arkansas running attack. The Razorbacks will be the first true option team Tennessee has seen this year.

"That's our main concern. We've seen it so infrequently," Majors said. "We'll be tested like we haven't been tested before. Arkansas' offensive backfield talent is the most potent we've seen this year as far as a running trio."

The main cogs in the Arkansas running game are Barry Foster, James Rouse and quarterback Quinn Grovey, who paced the Razorbacks to an average of 314 yards a game on the ground.

The 26 major-league baseball teams set a record in 1987 with 4,458 home runs.

"We haven't seen (an option offense) with as much speed as they have, especially with their quarterback being such a factor," Hobby said.

Foster, Rouse and Grovey split the load pretty evenly. Foster carried 154 times for 833 yards, Rouse 163 times for 869, and Grovey 120 times for 565.

Tennessee held a short workout Wednesday morning at Texas Stadium before breaking for media pictures. The Volunteers visited Children's Medical Center Hospital in the afternoon.
