To Local Wheat

Scattered showers Sunday and Monday nights brought some hope but little help to most Deaf Smith County wheat farmers.

Although general rains were reported over most of the state on Easter Sunday, precipitation in this area was scattered and, for the most part, inadequate.

Although a heavy rain, ranging from an inch to an inch and a half, was reported in the northwest corner of the county, no moisture at all was received in some sections west and southwest of here.

T. B. Cox, who lives 5 miles west and 7 miles north of Hereford, reported an inch and a half of rain Sunday night, while George Brumley, from 15 miles west, received no rain at all.

Official report in Hereford Monday morning was 63 inch, with a bare trace of moisture reported from the shower Monday night. Fred Inman, 3 miles west and a mile north of Hereford, reported an inch of rain Sunday night.

Wyche community reported a total of a quarter of an inch of moisture from showers Sunday and Monday nights. Daniel commurity reported a quarter inch of moisture Sunday night.

At Dawn the two-day total was 83 inch, with heavier rainfall ranging up to an inch northwest and south of the

In view of the fact that the city is to vote Tuesday on a $50,000 bond issue for Parks Improvement, Mayor E. S. Ireland, with the concurrence of Mayor-Elect W. E. Dameron, has issued a statement of the city's financial condition.

Pointing out that the city's present favorable balance is due largely to the fact that heavy payments of delinquent taxes have been made during the last few years, and that this reservoir is virtually exhausted now, the Mayor advises that property valuations for tax purposes must be raised if the City is to keep step with progress.

"The city needs some kind of swimming pool, as it needs and will need many other things," Mr. Ireland summarizes, "and we can have what we reasonably need if we are willing to pay the cost, and that we will have to do, one day on another, Valuations must go up (1) to make up for the loss in delinquent tax revenues, (2) to make it possible for city improvements to keep step with growth and development, and (3) to make bonds issued more attractive to investors. The difficulty with 40-year bonds is that it is unlikely that the city can sell 2 percent bonds on the basis of 40 years. The shorter maturities are in demand.

Does Hereford Want A Swimming Pool?

For more than a decade the people of this community have been discussing the need for a swimming pool. The youth of the town, along with numerous adults, are definitely for a swimming pool and can point out hundreds of reasons for its necessity. On the other hand, quite a few people are opposed to the building of a pool and carefully point out the costs and needs for other projects.

There seems to be no question, however, about the sponsor. There seems to be no question, however, about the sponsor. Ship of a swimming pool—if one is to be built. The City of Hereship of a swimming pool—if one is to be built and operate.

Complete figures as to size, cost and other specifications will be found on Page I, Section 2 of this issue of The Brand. Roughly speaking, the pool will cost the people of Hereford 15 cents additional in taxes on each $100 in valuations along lines outlined in the article. This means that the average home valued at $2,000 for tax purposes would pay $3 more in taxes each range for disposition of buildings and surplus properties.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article touches on a subject of immediate and major importance to Deaf Smith County. The Brand welcomes this and other letters on this subject from interested citizens of the county, and will publish any such letters received, stating opinions on either side of the question, provided they are signed by the writers. No anonymous letters can be published. The Brand reserves the right to delete libelous statements. Letters must be received at The Brand office before Tuesday noon of the week of publication.

By FRED W. BAIRD County Judge and Ex-Officio School Superintendent

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which taken at the flood, leads on to fortune:
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries.

Is bound in shallows and in miseries.
On such a full sea are we now afloat;
And we must take the current when it serves,
Or loose our ventures."
Old Bill Shakespeare sure knew how to put words together to make them say the right thing at the right time and in the right way. Most of us who have lived since his time are not so gifted.
So please be not unkind with your criticism if we fail here to create a literary masterpiece.

Back however to the thought suggested by the above quotation. There occasionally comes a time in the growth and development of a town or community, when sound thought coupled with well directed action along constructive and progressive lines, may mean the difference between going backward or forward; between poverty or prosperity; between "miseries" or "fortune." Such a time, I believe, is here now with regard to our schools. It's "flood tide" and time to act. "On such a full sea are we now afloat; and we must take the current when it serves."

The Hereford School and also the rural schools of Deaf Smith County have always been considered among the best. They were established and grew in a town and country, and among people

Nearly 500 Deaf Smith County war veterans marched in a parade last Saturday morning to inaugurate Hereford's first "X; Day" celebration sponsored by the Veteran's of Foreign Wars and the American Legion as a feature of their program to raise funds for a proposed Veteran's Memorial Building.

The X-Day program opened at ten o'clock Saturday morning when nearly 500 veterans of three wars gathered at the District Court room for a brief memorial program.

There they were welcomed by representatives of three local civic organizations, Chesten Strickland, speaking for the Hereford Llons club, Herman Ford for the Rotary Club, and Alex Thompson for the Hereford Chamber of Commerce.

J. A. Loerwald, and L. A. Finch of Conshyton, formerly of Here-ford, were present.

The parade, which formed at length of Main street, was led by a color guard composed of soldiers, sailors, and marines. Following in order were the Marine Corps detachment, Navy veterans, the Hereford High School band, army veterans of World War II, and last, the American Legion veterans of World War I. be had, and especially in the way of schools, is still our goal

The tendency in recent years has been a gradual movement toward the city schools, both here and elsewhere, for the reason that they are thought to offen greater advantages to the child. Again the idea of wanting and providing the best is the governing factor. Now it happens that the Hereford Schools are woefully overcrowded, and if the 'best' in schools for Hereford and the surrounding country is to be continued under the present setup, then more room, more buildings, more equipment and more teachers must be provided. And this means simply that more money must be raised—in short, more taxes. In order to provide these necessary additional funds, it has been suggested—and the idea has had considerable publicity—that all the area now being served by the Hereford Schools be consolidated into one school district; under one authority and management, and that the tax burden be equitably distributed throughout the entire district. To my mind that is the wisest solution to this very vexing problem. There are, as we all know arguments FOR and AGAINST this proposed consolidation—and good, sound arguments too. I be-proposed consolidation—and good, sound arguments too. I be-lieve I have heard them all on both sides of the question, and have weighed them quite carefully before arriving at this con-Let us consider some of the various phases of this school problem that have already been given serious thought by those most concerned in the matter—the parents of school age children. To begin with, those school patrons and tax payers living within the present Hereford Independent School District are, for the most part, in favor of the consolidation. There is good reason for this stand. Their taxes will not be raised appreciably by reason of the consolidation and the standards of the school which their children will attend will certainly not be reduced—they may even be elevated. As to the rural districts, when considering this proposition of consolidation, there seems to me but two points to consider. The first and most important is, "which course will give my children and my neighbor's children the better school advantages." The other consideration is of course, the question of cost. I believe that if the parents of school age children can settle the first question, then that, for thm at least, will automatically settle the matter of cost. WE CAN AFFORD TO PAY ANY SCHOOL EXPENSE—we might qualify this statement by saying, "within reason"—THAT WILL PROVIDE THE BEST THERE IS IN SCHOOLS FOR THE CHILDREN OF OUR COMMUNITY. And as I have stated before, it is my opinion that the "best" can be had in the present instance only through consolidation of all the school districts within the area now being served, in whole on in part by the Harmford Schools.

in the present instance only through consolidation of all the school districts within the area now being served, in whole on in part by the Hereford Schools.

Let us suppose for a moment, that the area within this proposed consolidation was already in the Hereford Independent School District; you had grown accustomed to referring to the school District; you had grown accustomed to referring to the school District; you had grown accustomed to referring to the school District; you had grown accustomed to referring to the school District; you was a part of the school of the school and for paying off the bonds; your children rode the school busses operated from a centrally located bus garage; in short, you were a part of the school district. And then it became apparent to all that, due to crowded conditions, new school buildings were necessary, which would mean an increase in your taxes—would you then join a group in your part of the district to pull away from the "big school" district, to set up youn own district, build your own school houses, operate your own buses and hire teachers? And assuming such a move was forced upon you in some way by a majority vote, would your children thereafter have the advandages that they had enjoyed in the city schools? I think not. There is, of course, no getting away from the fact that under the proposed consolidation the taxes in the present common school districts would be increased. The farmer living within the present common school district, would after the consolidation, be taxed on the same basis as his neighbor living just across the fence in the now Independent District. They would then be equal partners and have equal interests in the same school system.

There has been some misunderstanding as to the proper proceedure for getting this proposition of consolidation before the people. Some have been laboring under the misapprehension that the County School Board had the authority to set up the consolidated district and to say just where the boundary lines would be located.

shows that the County School Board has no atthorny and no duties of any nature whatsoeven in connection with such a consolidation. Here briefly is an outline of the proceedure. First, there must be, in each common school district considering such consolidation, and also in the Hereford Independent School District, a petition signed by at least twenty qualified voters of the district, or a majority of such voters, presented to the county judge asking him to call an election in said school district for the purposition of creating a consolidated school asking him to call an election in said school district for the purpose of voting on the proposition of creating a consolidated school district. Then the county judge must order the election to be held on the same day in each district so petitioning him, and he must advertise the same in the newspaper and by posting notices for at least twenty days prion to the date set for holding the election. The county commissioners court at their next regular meeting after the election shall canvass the election returns and announce the results. If a majority of the votes cast in each school district voting are for the consolidation then it shall be declared as having carried. But if in one or more of such districts there is not a majority vote for the consolidation then the proposition shall be declared as not having carried in that district and the entire

I know there are many, perhaps a majority, who do not hold with my views on this proposition of an enlarged, consolidated school district. We shall not fall out on that score. But I am sincere in the belief that the time is now here for the development and expansion of a centrally controlled managed school system within the area embraced by this proposed consolidation. A school system that will give to all the children within its bounds, the best school advantages possible. A school system sec-fancy prices for a lot of items as a large crowd which thronged the Bull Barn got into the spirit of the affair.

One tire was sold to Dave Alexander for $300, and after Alexander tossed the expensive tire back to be re-sold, it was sold at least twice more for more than $100 additional.

An electric iron went to L. Ellis for $150 after some of the hottest bidding of the sale. Six pairs of nylon hose, donated by J. C. Penney Company, brought an everage price of $15

Items donated to the Veterans for the auction included an electric iron and a fluorescent light by Earl Nipper, an electric clock by Burk Furniture Company; two tires by Shelton Tire Company, 1 tire each by Earl Phillips, Clarence Beauford, and Kinsey Motor Company, and two tires by Lee Little; a grease gun and drum of grease by Pat Lawered Hereford cow by Bob Higgins, a Whiteface steer yearling by Jim Higgins, a whiteface steer by Wiley Roberson, . a Whiteface heifer by Doyle Rose; a Whiteface steen by Mc-Donald and Kerr, a meat hog by Homer Brumley, a shoat by Ed Dziuk, two shoats by H. issue letters from readers who are opposed to the project. Maybe we are wrong, but for a period of more than 10 years not one project of any size or consequence has been enstructed by Hereford or Deaf Smith County. If individual homes and businesses were operated along the same lines conditions would be practically intolerable. Naturally, a swimming pool will cost money. Anything worthwhile costs in money, time and effort. If we elect to build a swimming pool, it will be the first step in a series of progressive additions to the community; if we elect to turn down the issue, it will indicate an indifference toward other future developments—and a town, like a nice lawn, will surely go to seed unless it receives careful consideration, care and sensible planning.

These things will more or less be determined when the voters go to the polls next Tuesday, April 30. The Brand hopes that a majority sees fit to vote for the "kids" and for a progressive community. However, no matter how you choose to east your ballot, either "For" or "Against", it is highly important that you do vote in the election. The question is greater than "just a swimming pool"—for on the outcome rests a Second priority goes to state or local agencies, which, he said, includes the city and county, mystery, the rumor has it that and independent school and road districts.

Third in order of priority for buildings only are non-profit institutions, such as hospitals, colleges, the Boy Scouts, or similar organizations.

Priorities on the land itself, however, are rated differently. Third priority (after federal, state and local agencies) goes to the former owner of the land, fourth to any formen tenants of the former owner, and fifth to veterans. Aften these come the right of an owner-operator to buy land for personal farming, and last, non-profit institutions.

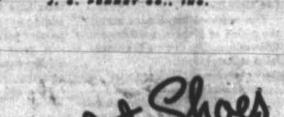

A&M College, which earlier this year had voiced an interest in acquiring the campsite for use as an experiment station, has apparently withdrawn without filing an application. No definite statement has been received from the College. After these applications have been submitted and approved, the Public Housing Administration will take over control of the remaining buildings for use in the Veteran's Housing program.

Indications are that the City of Hereford may seek some of buildings at the campsite for use in housing transient labor. Both Hereford and Friona school districts are interested in acquiring some of the buildings.

igations and is on a cash basis It entered the present fiscal year with cash balances of $25,-699.37 in Bond Interest and Sinking Fund and $15,243.87 in the general fund, a total of $40,-943.24, the largest surplus in the history of the town.

The City has neither drastically reduced operating expenses on fixed the tax rate too high. The tax rate of $1.30 would not have produced enough income to pay operating expenses and take care of maturing bonds and

The surplus is due to the following facts: last year the City collected $13,939.61 in delinquent taxes, interest, and penalties. Our deficit without these collections would have been

Over a period of eight years, 1937 to 1944, a total of $62,866. 45 was received from delinquent taxes. But for these collections the tax rate would have had to average one-third higher than the actual rates fixed.

The City cannot enjoy this extra income each year because the greater part of the mountain of delinquent taxes that ac-the thirties have been paid.

Now the question to be pondered is this: Our town has been growing the past two yars, and most of us believe it will continue to grow for some time. That means that the city will be called upon constantly for more water and sewer connections, for this and that, and that
