Barringer kept busy with special
Desert Storm duty

By C.A. Beatty
Norfolk, Va.--During Desert Storm the officers of squadron VAW-125 called Navy Ensign Greg Barringer "the Bull" and it wasn't because he hails from Hereford. The 32-year-old naval officer was the senior junior officer attached to the E-2C Hawkeye squadron, but no longer.
Barringer, the son of Roy and Wenonah Barringer, came back from the war in March and stepped into a promotion in May. Barringer is now a lieutenant junior grade.
Formerly of Dimmitt, Barringer joined the Navy in 1981, five years after high school graduation. He remembers wanting to "get away from what everybody else does" and he

Chiropractor using new techniques, computers

By DANEE WILSON

Since the invention of the personal computer, almost every industry has been revitalized and revamped to include the computer. The medical field is no exception. Computers are being used as diagnostic tools and to monitor treatment progression.

Dr. Gerald Glasscock, chiropractor, has one of 75 computers worldwide designed to read X-rays off the light board and make immediate diagnosis.

"The light board is connected to the computer," said Glasscock. "The computer memory has an image of a perfect spine. When the computer reads the X-rays, it compares the spines and immediately makes a diagnosis and pinpoints the problem areas. You can see it on the screen and make adjustments."

Glasscock's high tech office also has a machine hooked up to the computer that measures muscle strength. The machine looks like a weight machine. Patients do a series of tests involving all the muscles and the computer makes a diagnosis on muscle strength.

"We are using this machine for pre-employment evaluations," he said. "People who are entering jobs that require a lot of lifting come in to be tested to make sure they can handle the job. Some employers are starting to require endurance tests prior to employment."

The machine also helps in rehabilitation. It can be turned into a weight machine to strength and recondition the weakened area.

Nutrition is a hot topic of these days and it is a vital part of Glasscock's business.

"We do nutritional counseling to help people get their diets right," said the chiropractor who has been in private practice for four years. "We use a computer to measure fat and muscle mass. We enter information about the person's height, weight and habits. The computer makes a diagnosis of the physical fitness of an individual."

Glasscock uses a Futrex 5000 the muscle mass evaluation. A similar model was first used by the FDA to test leanness of beef.

Other fitness relation equipment Glasscock has available includes a computer read EKG machine and a spirometer.

"Before the computer read EKG, a cardiologist had to analyze the results, now the computer reads the data and we can have the results right then. The spirometer measures lung capacity. This is the strongest indicator of life expectancy."

"I see a trend in computers in general," said Glasscock. The

Guerrero chosen to give special musical program

By DANEE WILSON
Staff Writer

Raul Guerrero was blessed with the special talent of making music and expressing his beliefs through song.

Guerrero will be sharing his skills with others as he will help Sister Anita DeLuna, Superior General of the Missionary at the Mexican-American Cultural Center Summer program. The 1991 year marks the 100th Anniversary of "Rerum Novarum," which teaches modern Catholicism.

His program will be entitled, "Hispanic Spirituality: Hunger for Justice Expressed in Prayer and Song."

"Being asked to do this is a big honor," Guerrero said. "MACC is a nation wide program. They have their own publications. Hopefully they will help me publish my songs."

Music has always been of interest to Guerrero.

"When I was seven years old, I realized I could sing," he said. "I also play guitar and harmonica."

"Even though I've always loved music, I didn't start taking it seriously until five years ago. I started out writing for other people, but I didn't get much out of it."

Guerrero's songs have been distributed all over the U.S. He has received compliments from California to Michigan. Guerrero has been asked to speak in Michigan, but says he doesn't have time for speaking engagements.

"My album (titled "Ya Eres Una Mujer, You Are Now a Lady") did better in my hometown (Hereford) than I expected," said the singer-composer. "Hereford supported me and helped me out. The response was tremendous."

During the MACC program, most of Guerrero's songs off the album will be played and incorporated into the program.

"I made the album two years ago," he said. "It (the album) has taken longer to make it than I thought. I'm getting more response now. People are starting to recognize me as a composer."

Guerrero's songs cover a wide range of topics.

"I have songs to a daughter, son, friend, family, a Christmas song and even a ballad," Guerrero said. "All my songs have different messages. The album covers a wide range of areas."

Ideas for songs come to Guerrero in different ways.

Most of my inspiration comes from happenings. It starts out like sort of a wave that flows through my head. I take the idea and grab it. Some ideas have got away and some I have captured.

"The melody and words flow through my head. I repeat them over and over until they are recorded there."

Guerrero said his personal favorite song is "Un Mejor Amigo, A Best Friend."

"When I have a song that I have written and I need criticism, I sing it for about five or six people. I can tell by the way they are reacting with their hands and feet, whether it is good or not.

"I want people to feel a little meditation and relaxation from my music," Guerrero said. "We need more listening music where we can relax. That's what I'm looking for."

Guerrero has spent a lot of time recently getting ready for MACC.

"Getting ready for the conference involves lots of practice. I have also been getting speeches together," he said.

In January, Sister DeLuna was in Hereford and met Guerrero at San Jose Catholic Church.

"When Sister came here she wanted to meet me," Guerrero said with excitement. "She complimented me on my songs and asked if I would like to do the program with her. It was a really great honor. She said she believes in me. She told me 'Raul, I don't know if you know this, but you've got it.'"

Since MACC has its own publicity and publishing capabilities, Guerrero hopes to record with them.

"That is the area I need help with," he said. "I want to start moving my songs more. Now I'm having to get my own copyrights and they are $20 a song."

Already, Guerrero has recorded 24 songs that he hopes to put on an album.

"When I come back from MACC, I hope to put more time in recording. I'll have to give up some of my community activities. I'm involved in the community, but it takes so much time. I want to take my songwriting seriously and dedicate my time to working on songs."

Guerrero is proud of his talents and enjoys sharing them with the people.

"If you have a talent, then you should put it to work and share it with people," Guerrero said. "If you sit on it, it is wasted. Music is beautiful. I enjoy sharing my talent."

personal computer will revolutionize medical care. It allows us to document and analyze patients better."

Glasscock has been accumulating his computer equipment over the past 18 months and there are other pieces he hopes to be getting.

"There are some pieces that are on my wish list," he said. "I have ideas of an exercise rehabilitation facility in Hereford."

Not only does Glasscock offer chiropractic care and nutritional counseling, but the office offers a range of other services.

"We have a wide range of rehabilitation treatment procedures, homeopathic medicine, vitamin nutritional analysis, computer nutritional analysis and scientific exercise and weight loss."

With more high-tech equipment being invented everyday, Glasscock admits that his equipment could be dinosaurs in a few years.

Technology is always changing, but Glasscock hopes to always keep his office modern and stocked with the latest equipment.

"I think more and more doctors will be using computers in the future," Glasscock said. "I think a lot of doctors should be keeping up with the changing technology because it can be really helpful in diagnosis and treatment of patients."

wanted to travel. He enlisted and worked in the Navy's nuclear power program as an electrician's mate for eight years before earning a commission as an officer through the Navy's enlisted commissioning program. "I've always said as long as I'm in the Navy, I'll do any job and be happy," Barringer said, "but I never thought I'd do anything as interesting and exciting as Desert Storm. When I joined I just never really thought about going to war."

Barringer only recently graduated from advanced training as a naval flight officer. He had to meet his first squadron and his new shipmates aboard the USS Saratoga operating in the Red Sea. He got off to quite a start.

"I flew my first flight on Jan. 16, only two days after I arrived. It had only been a couple of hours before we were called back to the ship," he recalled. "We landed and I heard the captain of the ship make the announcement that the President had called for an attack on Iraq."

Barringer said he discovered that one way to really be trained operationally in an aircraft is to fly one in a war. "The Skipper's (commanding officer) policy was that everyone flies and everyone is involved so even though I was the new guy I was right up there with everyone else. Nobody said 'No, he's a new guy, he can't do it.' I just got tremendous support from all the squadron."

Barringer works as an air intercept controller and radar operator aboard the electronically sophisticated E-2C Hawkeye. Weighing in at over 25 tons, the aircraft is one of the largest airplanes used in carrier-based aviation. Using long-range radar and sophisticated computer-controlled electronic system, Hawkeyes detect, identify and report contacts while they are still miles from a naval task force. The planes also direct strike aircraft to their targets.

The Hawkeye normally performs its mission over water but during Desert Storm, VAW-125 performed command and control missions over Iraq. "I'd been trained over the water," he said, "and I'd never really worked with many other airplanes. Suddenly there I was just doing it alongside the other guys that had been training for months for this situation." VAW-125 first came to the Gulf region in August and spent seven months at sea.

Barringer says that now he's back in the States, it almost seems as if he wasn't really in the war because he wasn't on the ground. "You're concerned about your aircraft but on the ship you don't worry so much about being in danger. I thought a lot about the Army and the Marines there, right there."

Barringer also thought about the people who were thinking about him. "I got so much mail from my family and from family friends as well as from church members and school children, some I didn't even know," he related.

"I hope the people at home realize how much we appreciate the mail and how hard it was to answer everyone. We were so busy. We fly, eat, sleep. We were flying 24 hours around the clock so we kept our lights out in the berthing so that people could sleep. It was so dark we called it 'the cave'."

Overhead, on the decks, you could hear the E-2s turning up. It was hard to sleep and harder to write. But no one should think we didn't appreciate their effort."

Throw out all old medications

If you're like most Americans, cleaning out your medicine chest is probably not at the top of your list of things to do.

A recent survey, sponsored by the Council on Family Health, revealed that one in 3,000 households (35 percent) have never or can't recall the last time they discarded out-of-date medicines.

Like many other products, medicines have expiration dates. Once the expiration date has passed, that medicine should be discarded. It is no longer of any use and could become an extra hazard to a child's safety. Other medicines that should be discarded include:

- prescription medicines which, according to doctor's advice, no longer need to be taken.
- any medicine which has a noticeable change in color or odor.
- medicines for which the label or package instructions are missing or cannot be read clearly.

In light of continued product tampering incidents, the Council on Family Health advises consumers to examine all product packaging carefully. Do not purchase any medicine whose packaging has been tampered with or broken.

When disposing of medicines, pour the contents down the sink,

Utility companies improve education in America

Training tomorrow's workforce today: That's the goal of America's utility companies, who are working with educators to develop a skilled workforce that can meet the competitive challenges of the world marketplace of the '90s -- and beyond.

As they became involved in energy education following the Arab oil embargoes of the 1970s, electric companies across America discovered what educators have long known: energy literacy is tied to math, science and other skills; math and science scores of American students are declining--and we are consequently producing fewer scientists, engineers and mathematicians each year. The result: a workforce that doesn't have the skills--even for many entry-level jobs--to keep American companies productive, profitable and competitive; and a projected shortage of over half a million scientists and engineers by the year 2006.

That's why the member companies of Edison Electric Institute (EEI), located in urban, rural and suburban areas across the country, have forged a number of education partnerships with their communities. In Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, for instance, an electric company has spent $5 million placing computers, printers and networks in public school classrooms. In California, an electric company is a major force in implementing new teaching methods in multi-cultural classrooms. In Texas, an electric company is the major sponsor of youth organizations that help keep children in school, provide tutorial services and offer career guidance, such as Future Farmers of America and 4-H clubs. EEI's Educational Services Committee helps member companies deal with industry-related issues within the educational community.

Utility companies have an interest in their communities that goes beyond that of most other companies. They're concerned about economic development, about attracting new industry and businesses--and the quality of community schools is key. Thanks to utility-education partnerships, the quality of more of our schools may soon deserve a grade of A+.

THE PROFESSIONAL DIFFERENCE

Mortgages generally cost less than they used to. And under new regulations, lenders must supply more information about the terms and fees involved in their loans. Today's home buyers are having an easier time in understanding the whole story. The point is, that most prospective home buyers still come to a real estate broker, for help in finding the home that meets their needs and budget. Through interviews, I discover what they really want and how much money they can invest. Most buyers need this professional help; a few may be unrealistic about what their money can buy. If you're considering putting your home on the market, let me find you the buyer, who want a home just like yours and can afford it. We are experts in matching buyers and property, and getting top value for our clients.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says true religion is the life we live, not the creeds or affirmations we profess.

The most difficult thing for people to say in 25 words or less is "goodbye."

We join others in the community in welcoming "oldtimers" to the Mid-Plains Pioneer Reunion here Saturday. There'll be some special recognitions and a lot of recollections!

With high school graduation set here Friday night, we think it's a good time to reprint a "proclamation" made by the late John Wayne. The Duke wasn't a writer but a man of sound wisdom and a great symbol of the American way of life in his acting career. His statement makes good reading for high school graduates, and has a message all of us can reflect upon at this time of year:

I BELIEVE

I'm a lucky fellow . . . for many reasons.

Lucky that I was brought up to believe in a lot of things I've found worthwhile.

I believe in common decency, without which no society or goodwill can exist.

I believe in my country, my family, my fellowman, and my God.

I believe in giving a fellow a second—even a third—chance...but keep your eye on him.

I believe the moon's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there, because this country, on this planet, is man's last chance to make a go of it for humanity.

I believe there's time in my life and yours to get this country in such shape that God would be proud of it.

I believe your kids and mine are just you and me getting a second crack at the world. And our job is to see they don't make all the mistakes we did, and don't invent too many of their own.

I believe 99 percent of them are a credit to their folks, a pride to their country...and deserve a pat on the back from all of us for being what they are and not waving a white flag at life.

I believe in hope for people of all ages and that equal opportunity is based on equal obligation.

And speaking of opportunity, American opportunity has no limits.

It has been known to knock more than once.

How about young people who see a tough life ahead? Well, when Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox, Booker T. Washington was a 9-year-old slave. Yet by the time he was 28, he'd become President of Tuskegee Institute.

And at 8 months, Neil Armstrong took his first small baby step toward mankind, and fell flat on his face.

At 6 years, Mickey Mantle was settling for a base on balls.

At 7, Wilt Chamberlain nailed a practice hoop over his garage...without a ladder.

And at 8, Charles Lindbergh was flying a kite and wondering how it would feel to be up that high.

At 9, Burt Bacharach was thinking the piano lessons would never end.

How many of you are pushing 50 and complaining that the country is going to hell? Crispus Attucks was in his 40s when he died on State Street in Boston, fighting for the freedom that we share.

And John F. Kennedy was 44 when he asked, not what his country could do for him, but what he could do for his country.

And how many of you over 65 are just settling down to rest after a busy life?

Well, a fellow by the name of Eisenhower, who had already lived one lifetime as a soldier, was re-elected to the Presidency when he was 67 years young.

Well, by now I've made my point or I never will. Oh, there is one other thing.

Every man and woman or child I've ever known, met, seen or heard of wants one thing more than anything else in the world.

That one thing is Tomorrow.

Tomorrow...that's the only thing any of us have going for us.

And I believe this: If tomorrow, all of us, every single one of us, gets out of bed and says, "This is my country and I'm going to do good for it," we'll make the greatest step forward since a Pilgrim's foot found Plymouth Rock.

Tomorrow, remember: "This is my country and I'm going to do good for it."

It just might work.

And we'll never know unless we give it a fair try.

Oh, yes...there's one other thing I'll say tomorrow, because I say it every day of my life:

God bless America.

I could have used one of those $5 coupon books the other day.

You might have seen the stories about this bill now before the legislature that would allow you and me to buy books of $5 coupons that would allow us to drive over 65 on interstate highways. We could drive, say, 69 (and get blown off the road like we do now), and a representative of the Department of Public Safety would kindly beckon for us to pull our vehicle onto the shoulder.

Provided you are wearing your seat belt and your cruise control is properly adjusted, you would kindly detach one of the coupons from the book and present it to the officer. The officer would smile, give you a "have a nice day," and down the road you would go.

(In real life, you'd be teed off because you got stopped right after Mr. Truck blew your doors off. You'd fasten your seat belt real quick, wonder where in Hades your insurance card is, and verry slowly roll down your window. You'd rip the coupon out of the book and throw it at the trooper.)

Unfortunately, the coupon idea is only going to be used on most interstate highways, which won't help a whole lot on those trips to Dimmitt or Friona or wherever.

And the coupons will only be good for speeding up to 70.

Too bad.

We could use those coupons for other things. Here are some suggestions:

--Kid doesn't do homework: two coupons.

--Gripe at a teacher about too much homework: three coupons.

--Significant other burned supper: two coupons.

--Significant other wants to eat out because too tired to cook supper: two coupons.

--Significant other forgot birthday: one coupon.

--Significant other forgot anniversary: 10 coupons.

--Significant other remembered birthday or anniversary on wrong day: 12 coupons.

--Significant other late for supper: two coupons.

--Significant other brings home "cute" stray pet: five coupons.

--Parent forgot to pick up kid at school: two coupons.

--Child support late: 20 coupons.

--Argument with significant other: three coupons.

--Teenager late after a date: one coupon for every five minutes.

--Teenager on phone for more than 10 minutes: one coupon every three minutes.

--Married children don't visit folks at half the rate mom thinks they should visit: one coupon (send it with an "I feel so guilty" card).

--Simple assault of someone who really, really, really deserves it: five coupons.

--Control of the remote control for television: one coupon.

--Kids want to play Nintendo when there's a really good movie on: two coupons.

--If you have $500 deductible insurance, if you have another claim in same year: 10 coupons.

We could have double coupon days every Wednesday to spice things up even more.

Editorial opinion around the state

May 20
Dallas Morning News on Medicaid financing:

Medicaid, which pays for the health care of poor people, today accounts for about 13 percent of a state's budget. Only several years ago, it was just 4 percent. The quantum leap in spending is no mystery. Congressional mandates in recent years have required states to expand their Medicaid programs and provide coverage to millions more of the impoverished.

As welcome as the program expansions have been to the disadvantaged, they have placed a tremendous burden on state coffers. ... Faced with those additional requirements and fiscal pressures, eight states, including Texas, have resorted to a creative fund-raising technique to extract more money from the federal government.

Essentially, states collect donations from hospitals, count those contributions as part of the state share of Medicaid, then receive federal matching money for every dollar donated. ...

The states' fund raising is in jeopardy, however. Even though the federal courts have upheld the legitimacy of the financing technique and Congress explicitly has permitted it to continue, Bush administration officials complain that the matching payments are costing the federal treasury $1 billion a year. The budget watchers are writing rules to end the practice.

Sooner or later, Congress and the administration will have to come up with some comprehensive answers for escalating health care costs. But in the meantime, the administration should take a more charitable view of the matching payments. ...

If the Bush administration persists with its hard-nosed approach, it could end up hurting millions of America's poor.

May 16
Fort Worth Star-Telegram on speeding coupons:

At last, the Texas Legislature has come up with a proposal so ingenious - nay, brilliant - that we can bestow upon it our wholehearted endorsement and perhaps even enhance it with a few innovations of our own.

We are referring, of course, to a bill introduced by Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, that would give Texas motorists the opportunity to purchase, for a mere $5, a coupon that would allow them to travel up to 70 mph on most interstate highways. ...

And here's the really great news: The incident would not go on their driving record or affect their insurance premiums.

Guest Editorial Editor zaps Wal-Mart

Editor's Note: Snyder publisher Roy McQueen, in a letter to Sam Walton, head of Wal-Mart Corp., used the occasion of a visit to Snyder to editorially comment on a subject that afflicts most small towns across America. It's a message that bears repeating:

Dear Mr. Walton:
Last week, you visited Snyder and your store here. Since your store has chosen not to advertise with us since December, I was surprised that we were called to take a picture of your visit. Our staff, as trained, took the picture. I had to wonder why the U.S. Postal Service or your national mailer was not called, and the obvious answer is they are not in the readership business.

There has been no newspaper advertising since Christmas, yet we are expected as a newspaper to do our civic duty in promoting your store through our news department. We are frequently asked to take pictures of your contributions, etc.

I believe that a newspaper is an important and vital part of a small town. For the past four years, I have been personally involved and have used the resources of our newspaper to help attract the 1,000-bed prison unit and its $7 million payroll to Snyder. We are continuing to work to have that unit expanded by 1,000 beds. I have made numerous trips to Huntsville, Austin and other places at my own expense with the purpose of improving the economy of Snyder.

When we raised $1 million in just three weeks to pay for prison incentives, our newspaper contributed $30,000. Wal-Mart has yet to make a financial contribution. That's your business, but it would seem you would choose to do business with firms that help improve your market. We had no contributions from the post office or your national mailer.

You mentioned being impressed with our airport. It was at my own expense that a group of citizens went to Fort Worth to appear before the FAA to seek funds for airport improvements. Nobody from the post office or your national mailer helped with this project.

You owe us nothing but a chance. We have a darn good newspaper with the best local news coverage of any paper of any size. Our readership is excellent since we get into 88 percent of all households in Scurry County on a daily basis.

We are good corporate citizens and use our newspaper to promote the betterment of Snyder and Scurry County. Cooperation is a two-way street, and it seems that consideration of the Snyder Daily News as the medium for both your inserts and ads makes good economic sense.

Your national advertising likes to promote real America, and nothing is more real than the local newspaper that promotes the betterment of its town in rural America. You are the largest retailer in Snyder, and some help from you and your associates would be greatly appreciated. In return, you'll get more than your money's worth.

s/ Roy McQueen

The state would sell the coupons in books of five and pocket the money. According to Craddick, if one-third of the licensed drivers in Texas bought just one book each, the state could raise about $100 million in a year.

So why limit a clever revenue-producing scheme like that to such piddling transgressions as speeding along the state's highways? ...

The attorney general's office could establish a sliding price scale under which a variety of state-sanctioned indulgences could be purchased, ranging from $100 for simple assault to as much as $1,000 or more for shooting holes in people. Given the popularity of such sport in these parts, Texas could turn a tidy profit overnight - and solve prison overcrowding. ...

Now, aren't all of you out there sorry for thinking the Legislature does only dumb things?

May 20
San Antonio Light on state ethics bill:

The Texas House of Representatives last week came out with an ethics bill that amounted to half a loaf - and on this issue, half a loaf is not better than none.

Months ago the Senate came out with its own ethics bill, which is different from but necessarily much better than the House version. If the two chambers do not combine the best elements of each bill in creating the final version, Gov. Ann Richards should make them start all over again. ...

Some lawmakers have complained that the public doesn't care about the ethics issue, claiming that only the news media are harping on the subject. But the people do care about ethics - it's just that too many have already decided that the political system is corrupt, and that the elected officials cannot be trusted to do anything to clean it up. ...

A strong ethics bill will help win back the voters' trust in the political system. The Legislature should settle for nothing less.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor,

This is to let everyone know what a wonderful hospital we are so very fortunate to have in Hereford.

I feel that not nearly enough good things are ever said about something that we take for granted all too often. I have lived and worked here for 21 years and in all that time of raising kids (they are all grown now), it seems at one time or another they were there for things like football breaks, tonsils, those things that just go with raising two boys and two girls. All my grandchildren have been born here, too, and my beloved mother was also in there.

I had not been a patient until a few weeks ago. I was there for a week, very, very sick. The wonderful care, consideration and respect that I received around the clock is something that would be hard to put into words. I thank everyone from the bottom of my heart.

Please, people of Hereford and the surrounding area, stand up and take notice of how lucky we are to have a fine hospital and staff right here at home.

Mary Kaye Sandoval

Dear editor,

Recently an incident occurred that really upset me and made me realize, again, how narrow minded people can be in the area of racial prejudice, especially when human feelings are completely ignored.

One of my closest friends (Hispanic by the way), I'll call her Mary, was at a local business. She was there to pick up a previously-placed order. When asked for a name, Mary stated her name, first and last, correctly pronounced. The clerk asked if she had ever had a phonics class when growing up. Confused and not knowing where the conversation was headed, Mary answered no, but replied she had phonics and linguistics classes at West Texas State University where she is a senior education major.

The clerk replied that this was America and Mary needed to pronounce her last name "like an Americans."

Thanks to very cooperative owners, this matter was handled with respect and complete sincerity. All apologies have been accepted. Unfortunately, the damage has been done and the result is a lost customer. How would you feel if you were the owners trying to build a reputable business?

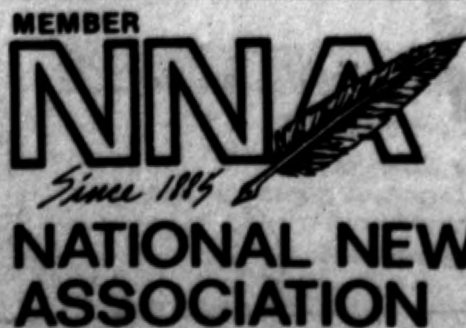

It's almost inconceivable that someone would have the nerve to tell other persons how to pronounce their own names, especially when the level of education that Mary possesses is literally and obviously greater than that of the clerk.

Granted, there have been times when languages have been used negatively, and unfortunately, many people remember or choose to remember only the negative experiences. I can't begin to think of all the times when knowing a little Spanish, with correct or incorrect pronunciation, has benefited me and certainly bridged a few gaps. I am currently completing an education degree, also at WTSU, and I am proud and eager to learn and grow with each culture with which I am involved. Moreover, I am greatly appreciative of each culture that my future students will represent.

Imagine the possibility of cultures learning about each other as well as respecting, honoring and realizing the many differences of each. As an Anglo citizen of Hereford, I enjoy and seek to learn more about the Hispanic culture and its language. If you choose not to learn and grow with cultures, I respect that, but please keep your comments and insults to yourself. It's amazing. Culture never ceases to amaze me. The educational value of studying or comparing cultures is immeasurable, and I encourage everyone to learn about the many cultures that surround you.

Knowing where you came from is just as important as knowing where you are going. It's even more important to be proud, coming or going.

Chad M. Fitzgerald.

Rangers talk World Series after win

By The Associated Press
 An 11-game winning streak does a lot for a team's confidence. Just ask Texas reliever John Barfield.
 "If we keep playing like this, there's no doubt in my mind we'll be playing in the World Series," Barfield said Friday night after the Rangers extended their club-record winning streak to 11 games with a 7-3 victory in Seattle.
 Steve Buechele hit a three-run homer in a five-run third inning as Texas prolonged the longest winning streak in the major leagues this season.
 "I knew in spring training we'd surprise a lot of people," said

Barfield, who pitched two perfect innings for his first save this season and the second of his career. "Now we're even surprising ourselves."
 Kenny Rogers (4-3) won his fourth straight start, allowing nine hits in seven innings, striking out three and walking two.
 "This was a pitching performance we really needed," Texas manager Bobby Valentine said. "My bullpen was real short tonight. Rogers knew that and gave us the effort we needed."
 In other games, Oakland beat Chicago 6-5, New York beat Baltimore 7-1, Minnesota beat

Kansas City 3-2, Toronto beat California 3-2, Milwaukee beat Cleveland 1-0 and Boston beat Detroit 10-9.
 Brian Holman (4-5) allowed six runs and seven hits in three innings as the Mariners lost for the fourth time in five games.
 Kevin Reimer's two-out RBI single gave Texas the lead in the first and the Rangers broke the game open in the third. Holman hit Rafael Palmeiro with a pitch and Ruben Sierra hit into a fielder's choice. Julio Franco singled, Reimer hit a comebacker and Sierra beat Holman's throw home.

After a flyout, Geno Petralli singled and Buechele followed with his seventh home run of the season.
Athletics 6, White Sox 5
 Bobby Thigpen (2-1) gave up a game-tying two-run homer to Mark McGwire in the eighth at the Oakland Coliseum, loaded the bases in the ninth with two intentional walks, then walked Terry Steinbach and forced in the winning run.
 In the ninth, Thigpen walked leadoff hitter Rickey Henderson, who stole second and was sacrificed to third. One out later, White Sox manager Jeff Torborg decided to intentionally walk Harold Baines and Dave Henderson. Thigpen then walked Steinbach on a 3-1 pitch.
 Dennis Eckersley (1-1) got the victory by getting the final out in the top of the inning.
Yankees 7, Orioles 1
 The Orioles had a new manager but experienced the same old results as the Yankees spoiled Johnny Oates' debut.
 Scott Sanderson (5-2) threw five no-hit innings at Memorial Stadium before leaving with a stiff right shoulder. Greg Cadaret kept the Orioles hitless until the seventh, when Cal Ripken led off with a double and scored on Joe Orsulak's double.
 Lee Gueterman and Steve Farr pitched one inning each, completing the three-hitter. Jeff Robinson (2-3) was the loser.
Twins 3, Royals 2
 Hal McRae's managerial debut was unsuccessful as Minnesota won in the Metrodome behind four hits from Chili Davis. McRae, named earlier in the day as the replacement for John Wathan, was managing a major league game for the first time.
 Jack Morris (4-5) allowed five hits in 8 1-3 innings as the Twins ended a four-game losing streak. Rick Aguilera finished for his eighth save.

 Storm Davis (2-5) gave up eight hits in 5 2-3 innings.
Red Sox 10, Tigers 9
 Carlos Quintana had four hits and drove in four runs as visiting Boston took a 9-3 lead and hung on.
 Tom Bolton (5-1) won despite allowing six runs and six hits and five walks in 6 1-3 innings. Jeff Reardon pitched 1 1-3 innings for his 14th save in 15 chances.
 Dan Petry (2-3) gave up five runs and eight hits in 3 1-3 innings for Detroit.
Blue Jays 3, Angels 2
 Chuck Finley walked Pat Tabler with the bases loaded, forcing in the go-ahead run as visiting Toronto rallied for three runs in the eighth inning.
 Finley (7-2) gave up a two-run double to Roberto Alomar, intentionally walked Joe Carter and followed with walks to John Olerud and Tabler on 3-2 pitches, pushing home the tie-breaking run.

Mike Timlin (4-2) got one out for the victory.
Brewers 1, Indians 0
 Jaime Navarro pitched a four-hitter for his first career shutout and Robin Yount singled home the only run.
 Navarro (4-2) struck out six and walked none.
 Rod Nichols (0-3) pitched a five-hitter for the Indians.

Dodgers hammer Reds; Braves get Giants, 3-2

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer
 Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda has a warning for the National League.
 "We have a good hitting ballclub

... even when we weren't getting much from Darryl Strawberry and Kal Daniels. Wait until they start hitting the ball."
 While it's true that Strawberry and Daniels have not hit well - both have hovered around the .220 mark for the first quarter of the season - the Dodgers have parlayed the exploits of Eddie Murray and Juan Samuel and great pitching into a 1 1/2 game lead in the NL West.
 Murray and Samuel, both above .300 virtually all season, have combined for 11 homers and 48 RBIs. They each had two hits and Murray drove in four runs as the Dodgers' offense overshadowed the eighth victory of major league leader Ramon Martinez in an 11-3 drubbing of the Cincinnati Reds on Friday night.
 "Everybody's contributed," Lasorda said. "That's what I like about our team."
 Winning on a night when your ace doesn't have his good stuff is very comforting. The most grateful Dodger of all was Martinez (8-1), who allowed eight hits in 6 2-3 innings. He struck out three and walked one while winning his seventh straight decision.
 Elsewhere, it was Atlanta 3, San Francisco 2; Houston 1, San Diego 0; Chicago 4, Montreal 3; Pittsburgh

9, Philadelphia 1, and New York 6, St. Louis 2.
 Los Angeles collected 13 hits at Riverfront Stadium, batting around in a three-run first against Chris Hammond (3-2) and sending 11 men to the plate in a five-run fifth.
Braves 3, Giants 2
 Ron Gant singled with two outs in the last of the ninth inning to lead Atlanta and streaking Tom Glavine over San Francisco, which lost its seventh straight game.
 Glavine (7-2), matching a career-high with 10 strikeouts, got his fifth consecutive victory with his third complete game. He allowed six hits and no walks.
 Gant, batting with the bases loaded against Dave Righetti (2-3), bounced the ball over the head of leaping third baseman Matt Williams to score pinch-runner Mark Lemke.
Astros 1, Padres 0
 Casey Candaele's RBI single in the bottom of the ninth enabled Houston to beat visiting San Diego.
 Houston's Pete Harnisch allowed two hits in eight innings, striking out six and walking four while lowering the opposition's batting average against him to .193. Curt Schilling (1-3) pitched the ninth, striking out the final two batters he faced.
Cubs 4, Expos 3
 Bob Scanlan allowed three hits in 7 2-3 innings and Ryne Sandberg and Shawon Dunston had solo homers as Chicago won its third straight game since Jim Essian replaced Don Zimmer as manager.
 Scanlan (2-0) went 7 2-3 innings, allowing three hits while walking none and striking out three. Heathcliff Slocum got his first major league save.
Pirates 9, Phillies 1
 Pitcher Zane Smith's tie-breaking hit set off a six-run rally and he continued his dominance at Three Rivers Stadium as Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia.
 Smith (6-2) doubled to break a 1-1 tie in a sixth-run fifth inning against Terry Mulholland (5-3). Bobby Bonilla's sixth homer, a three-run shot, capped the inning.
Mets 6, Cardinals 2
 David Cone struck out 12 and drove in two runs with a single while pitching an eight-hitter for New York.
 Keith Miller, who later homered, doubled home a run in the third off Bryn Smith (4-2) and Cone singled with the bases loaded in the fourth to give New York a 3-2 lead.

Chris Perry leads, 4 tied at one shot back in Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Chris Perry says he's spent seven fun-filled years on the PGA Tour, earning a fair share of money and flirting with a victory or two.

Now he's ready to win one and he is determined to do so.

"I may not win this week but I'm sure going to try," said Perry, 29, who took a 1-shot lead into today's third round of the $1.2 million Colonial.

The former Ohio State All-American fired a 5-under-par 65 Friday after an opening 66 and at was at 9-under 131, one stroke ahead of a veteran quartet that included 1987 Colonial champion Keith Clearwater.

Clearwater and Stan Utley attacked the rain-soaked Colonial greens with a vengeance, shooting 6-under-par 64s and sharing second place with Gene Sauers and Wayne Levi, the reigning PGA player of the year.

Sauers shot his second straight 66, while Levi had a 65 to go with an opening-round 67.

Mark Calcavecchia and Fred Funk, co-leaders after the first round with 65s, shot 68s and reached the midway point tied at 133 with Loren Roberts, who had a 66 on Friday.

Perry, whose best finish was a tie for second last year at Hartford, said he's been struggling to overcome "self doubts" with a more confident, aggressive approach.

Almost to a man, the leaders joked that they needed psychiatric help more than professional instructions to cure their various golfing ills.

"It was an exciting round," sighed Tom Watson, who spliced a 66 onto an opening 68 and was only three shots back at 134. "I missed the short putts and made the long ones, typical of what I've been doing all year. I've accepted the fact that I'm not perfect."

Asked if he turned a 64 into a 66, he said, "No. I turned a 70 into a 66. I got away with something."

Among the name players who failed to make the cut was Ben Crenshaw, the defending champion whose 145 missed by three shots. Others at 143 or above were Payne Stewart, Peter Jacobsen and Mark O'Meara.

Lakers rebound

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Vlade Divac didn't play very well in the first two games of the Western Conference final, but he made up for it with an inspired six minutes in Game 3.

"Vlade was very active; he was a spark on both ends of the court," the Lakers' Magic Johnson said. "He was very aggressive."

Divac scored 10 points, blocked three shots and had a steal during a third-quarter run Friday night as the Lakers pulled away to beat Portland 106-92 and take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 series.

"Vlade has a lot of heart and desire and he's the most resilient player I know," Los Angeles coach Mike Dunleavy said of Divac, who had drawn some criticism for his play in the first two games.

The coach added, however, that he thought his players were determined to be more aggressive in Game 3.

Portland coach Rick Adelman said the Trail Blazers, who shot just 37 percent from the field to the Lakers' 49 percent, simply had an off-night.

Game 4 is Sunday at the Forum. The series then switches to Portland

Los Angeles, outrebounded 51-28 in losing Game 2, were closer this time, although Portland still held a 48-40 edge on the boards.

Los Angeles won the opening game 111-106 at Portland, with the Trail Blazers taking the second 109-98.

A&M romps at regional

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - Conrad Colby drove in four runs and Texas A&M pounded out 22 hits en route to a 16-4 victory over Southwestern Louisiana in Friday's opening round of the NCAA South Regionals.

Colby had a double and two singles in four at-bats as Texas A&M (43-21) advanced to a Saturday winners' bracket game against South Alabama, a 5-4 winner in 10 innings over Oklahoma in the tournament opener.

Southwestern Louisiana (46-19) plays the loser of Friday night's game between top-seeded Louisiana State and No. 6 seed Northwestern State in an elimination game Saturday. The LSU-Northwestern State winner plays Oklahoma (47-19).

After spotting Southwestern Louisiana a 2-0 lead, Texas A&M scored five runs in the third inning, two more in the fourth and eight runs in the third to break open their game.

Texas A&M sent 12 men to the plate and went through three Southwestern pitchers in the third inning.

WTSU to host coaches

West Texas State University will host a barbecue dinner and information sessions for area high school coaches next Tuesday.

The dinner, scheduled for 6 p.m. at President Barry Thompson's home, will be followed by a discussion titled "Trends in Freshmen Eligibility." The presentation, led by WTSU athletic director Mike Chandler, will focus on current NCAA regulations concerning eligibility and recruiting.

"This is a great way to get things started," Chandler said. "I am looking forward to meeting area coaches and hope that it will be a fun and informative gathering."

Early arrivers are also invited to participate in an informal tourney at Palo Duro Golf Course in Canyon. Tee time is 1 p.m. Tuesday.

YOUR EYES

ASTIGMATISM

When the eyes work as perfectly as they should, light rays passing through the cornea meet in a single focal point. If there is a defect in the cornea so that light rays don't meet at the ideal spot, the image seen may be blurred. Headaches, squinting and fatigue may follow. This is astigmatism.

But nobody's perfect, so almost everyone has a small degree of astigmatism. The less-perfectly-round the cornea is, the more the image will blur.

Astigmatism may exist as an eye defect in itself, but more generally, the condition coexists with nearsightedness or farsightedness. The optometrist can incorporate a prescription to correct for the astigmatism with that for any other eye condition so that the person can see clearly. Special contact lenses (toric lenses) are now available that can correct for astigmatism, enlarging the options of those who suffer from the condition.

Star emerges at A&M

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Spring football training has ended at Southwest Conference schools and perhaps the single biggest star to emerge was at College Station.

If you missed it, here are redshirt freshman Greg Hill's numbers from Texas A&M's final intrasquad scrimmage: 24 carries for 165 yards, including a long run of 66 yards.

The Aggies lost Darren Lewis, the leading rusher in SWC history, but they have waiting in the wings a running back from Dallas who runs a legitimate 4.4 in the 40. They also return Randy Simmons, who had 14 carries for 73 yards, not to mention a celebrated crop of recruits that includes Rodney Thomas. "Greg has the ability to break one all the way for a touchdown from any place on the field and we haven't had that kind of speed in a longtime," said Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum.

Defending champion Texas got a long, strong look at its quarterback cadre after Peter Gardere suffered a knee injury. Steve Clements showed a strong arm. And so did the Longhorns defense, which could rate right up there with some of the very best in the burnt orange helmet-rattling tradition.

Baylor welcomed back quarterback J.J. Joe from injury as did Texas Christian with Leon Clay. Both were lost for the season after injuries last year. Also, Baylor coach Grant Teaff greeted a defense that will be the envy of every school from the Atlantic to the Pacific next year.

Texas Tech's Robert Hall, another quarterback injured last fall campaign, was back on duty and coach Spike Dykes put in a 3-4 defense to replace the 4-3 setup to be able to defend the pass easier.

"I thought we adapted very well to the new defense," said Dykes. "We are unknown on defense but I do know we will be faster. On offense, we have a chance to be outstanding."

Houston spent spring training trying to find a running back to replace Chuck Weatherspoon while new Southern Methodist new coach Tom Rossley was busy getting his offense installed on the Hilltop.

Also, did you hear about David Klingler's spring scrimmage at Houston where he passed for over 1,000 yards and threw 22 touchdown passes? Obviously, the Cougars still have plenty of receiving talent to complement Klingler's golden arm.

At Rice, the fast-improving Rice Owls were grooming Greg Willig to replace Donald Hollas and over in Fayetteville, Ark., the devastated Razorbacks were trying to piece together a team and find a replacement for quarterback Quinn Grovey after winning just one conference game.

Arkansas will play one more year in the SWC before leaving for the Southeastern Conference, which the Hogs consider more competitive.

"If our players report back hungry and in good condition and if we keep everyone academically, there is no reason we shouldn't be an improved football team," coach Jack Crowe said. After last year's 3-8 disaster, it wouldn't take much.

The SWC shook up its schedule for 1991 to promote interest and there are some interesting changes.

Baylor got the biggest blow because it lost a bye before playing Arkansas and the Aggies gained a bye before playing Baylor in what traditionally is a physical matchup.

Arkansas must play Houston and Texas back-to-back. The Cougars have to play A&M and Texas back-to-back but get a week off in-between.

Texas has only one change. The Longhorns must open against Jackie Sherrill's Mississippi state team on Sept. 7.

Texas Tech gets TCU as an SWC opener instead of Baylor which has opened the Raiders SWC schedule for 13 years.

National magazines are touting Texas, A&M, Houston and Baylor as Top 25 teams.

Houston, of course, returns Klingler, who is sure to be at the top of the Heisman Trophy lists.

Texas has a wealth of talent on hand from its Cotton Bowl team but the Longhorns will have to somehow get over the fearful beating they took from the Miami Hurricanes.

The Aggies are loaded again with veteran quarterback Bucky Richardson, MVP of the Holiday Bowl, guiding a run-oriented offense.

Baylor will be dangerous if the offense will keep its defense off the field.

The big surprise could be at Lubbock if the Red Raiders develop their offensive line and the new defense catches on.

Texas wins, Baylor loses in NCAA region tourney

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - Brad Brown's complete game lifted California to an 8-3 victory over Baylor in the NCAA Midwest Regional on Friday.

It was the sixth complete game of the season for Brown (7-7).

Baylor's runs came in on home runs. Kevin Ellis hit a solo shot in the fourth. Michael Briley got a two-run homer in the fifth.

A fourth inning play with California at bat left both teams confused.

Baylor leftfielder John Finke caught a pop fly, but bobbled the transfer to his throwing hand. An umpire signaled no catch but the batter, Matt Luke, did not run to first and the runner at first advanced to second. Baylor relayed the ball for forceouts at second and first and then threw home as Jon Zuber scored safely, although Baylor claimed there was not an umpire in position to see the play.

California improved to 53-25. Baylor dropped to 40-19.

Alabama-Birmingham's first taste of post-season action was a bitter one.

No. 5 Texas pounded the Blazers 16-3 Friday night in the first round of the NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament at Dusch-Faulk Field. Freshman Brooks Kieschnick and Scott Pugh hit towering homers during a 10-run fifth inning.

"We just came out hitting the ball," said Kieschnick. "We hit the ball real hard, real well. I just hope we have some left."

Annual partnership tournament slated

The annual Hereford Partnership Golf Tournament is scheduled next Saturday and Sunday with a low-ball format and a shotgun start both days at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The field is limited to the first 80 teams. Entry fee is $100 per team. A dinner will be held Saturday night at 7:30 in the KC Hall, and a free continental breakfast will be served both days.

Teams will be flighted on the low handicap of each duo. Tee times will be announced Friday. Merchandise awards in the amounts of $400, $240 and $160 will be awarded the top three teams in each flight.

Special prizes will also be offered, and local sponsors include Stevens Chevy-Oldsmobile, Scott's Oil Change, 19th Hole Package Store, Boots & Saddle Western Wear, Hereford Home Center, The Country Store and Bob's Hickory Pit.

Cats at risk from FIP

Feline infectious peritonitis (FIP) is a viral disease that kills at least half a million cats a year in the U.S. This makes FIP the most serious disease of cats for which there is no effective treatment. However, cat owners can now protect their cats from FIP with a new vaccine.

Since its discovery 25 years ago, FIP has been one of the most frustrating diseases facing veterinarians and cat owners. Among the frustrations, FIP cannot be cured. Once a cat shows clinical signs of the disease, death is virtually certain. Treatments can only ease the cat's suffering somewhat and prolong life briefly.

Experts also don't know exactly how it spreads. And there is no way to specifically diagnose FIP in its early stages. Signs of the disease include everything from loss of appetite, lethargy and weight loss to excessive thirst and urination, fever, vomiting, diarrhea, liver failure, paralysis, eye inflammation, seizures, loss of balance, and blindness.

The new vaccine, Primucell FIP, enables veterinarians to protect against FIP for the first time. Developed by SmithKline Beecham Animal Health, the intranasal vaccine is given in two doses, three to four weeks apart. Then, annual boosters are recommended.

Pet owners, concerned about FIP, should visit their veterinarian to determine the level of risk faced by their cats and whether vaccination is appropriate. For cats at risk from FIP, prevention is the best medicine.

PRICILLA ESCANUELA, ROBERT GAMBOA

Couple to wed

Pricilla Marie Escanuela and Robert Gamboa, both of Hereford, plan to marry Aug. 31 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Escanuela Sr. of Big Spring and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gamboa of Hereford.

Miss Escanuela, a 1985 graduate of Big Spring High School, graduated in 1990 from West Texas State University with a bachelor of fine arts degree in graphic design. She is employed by The Hereford Brand.

Gamboa, a 1984 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated from WTSU in 1990 with a bachelor of arts degree in Spanish and physical education. He is currently employed by the Hereford Independent School District as a coach and teacher.

DEAR READERS: Remember the letter from N.S. in Singapore, the woman who had picked up a book in the reading room of a hotel in Thailand? The title was "Pillars of the Earth" by Ken Follett.

Inside the book was a note from the man who had left it. It read, "It is OK to take this book with you, but will you please leave it in another hotel so others travelers may enjoy it? Just let me know where it is. Thank you. Don Hoskins, Saugatuck, Mich., U.S.A."

I assured "N.S." that we would hear from Don Hoskins -- that someone would let him know his name had appeared in my column or perhaps he would see it himself in the Bangkok Post.

Sure enough, a few days ago, I received a letter from Don Hoskins. He wrote:

DEAR ANN: You were right. Your column produced a flood of mail, including letters and cards from long-lost friends. Clippings are coming in from all over the world.

Perhaps you would like to know how this practice of leaving books for strangers started. Well, I sold my Chicago-based business in 1969 and decided to travel around the world. Southeast Asia, especially Thailand, has been a constant magnet.

I have always been a voracious reader and since I travel a great deal, paperbacks make the most sense. But what to do with the paperbacks once read? It occurred to me that I ought to share them with others so I hit upon the idea of leaving them in visible places in the hotels I had visited, and I always enclosed my card.

It would not be an exaggeration to say I have left several hundred books in hotel lobbies from Tokyo to Sydney. Dozens of people have written to me where they had found the books and how much they enjoyed them.

I have no idea who your Singapore correspondent might be, but I am flattered and pleased that she wrote to express her pleasure. It is nice to know that so many others enjoy my choice of reading material. The end result has been many new friends. Cordially -- Don Hoskins, Bangkok

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a junior at Yale. My father graduated from Yale in 1969. A few days ago I was going through his yearbook and found a column he had clipped, dated March 17, 1967. I split my sides laughing. Please run it again. -- R.M.

DEAR R.M.: I split mine, too. Here it is:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I sent for your booklet, "Teenage Sex and 10-Ways to Cool It." I tried all 10 ways but none of them worked. Now I am in trouble. You can guess what kind. My boyfriend has suggested four alternatives. Marriage was not among them.

Please do not suggest that I go to my parents because I am an orphan. And don't tell me to try religion because I am an atheist. I hope you will not ask me to speak to my counselor because she has gained a lot of weight lately and the word is that she is in the same kind of trouble I am in. Can you help me? -- Misguided Angel

DEAR ANGEL: I should have added an eleventh way to cool it. Use your excess energy on homework so there will be no strength left for anything else, like writing phony letters.

The New Haven postmark is always the tip-off. I received more clinkers from you birds at Yale than any other group. Knock it off, will you please?

Hammond, Brorman wed in Vega May 11

Niki Hammond and Jeff Brorman, both of Lubbock, were married early Saturday evening, May 11, in Immaculate Conception Catholic Church of Vega. Officiating was Monsignor Peter DiBenedetto of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bev Hanyen of Hereford and Tim Hammond of Conrad, Iowa and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Brorman of Vega.

Paula Miller served as maid of honor and Todd Marnell was best man.

Debbie Hammond was bridesmaid and David Brorman was groomsman.

Candles were lit by Julie Shelley and Sandra Brorman.

Troy Skarke, accompanied by Denise Detten, sang "The Wedding Song," "God, A Woman and A Man" and "Surely the Presence of the Lord."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown of white sheer organza. It was fashioned with a wedding ring collar of beaded alencon lace accented with clusters of hanging crystals and pearls. The molded bodice, which featured a sheer illusion yoke, was designed with a front panel of alencon lace heavily beaded with bridal pearls and sequins. Each lace flower and leaf swirled with pearls and sequins and dipped to points in the front of hanging pearl clusters. The back bodice was decorated with alencon lace and was marked by a large designer's bow.

The sleeves were poufed at the shoulders and were trimmed with alencon lace. The long sheer cuffs, which were outlined with pearls and applied with beaded lace, came to bridal points over the bride's wrists.

The mermaid skirt was adorned with large front diamond-shaped appliques and was accented with pearls and pearl clusters. The back of the skirt was trimmed with beaded appliques and bands of lace and a large organza flounce. The hemline was edged in a beaded band of scalloped alencon lace and swept into a chapel-length train.

The V-shaped headpiece of simulated pearls featured pearl loops and delicate pearl sprays. The bridal illusion veil with pencil edging formed a large pouf at the crown.

She carried a bouquet of white roses with pink carnations and greenery. Her jewelry consisted of diamond earrings with pearl drops.

The reception was held at the church hall.

Cake was served by Kelly Brorman, Lenna Frerick, Cindy Rohrbach and Renae Doss.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo. They are residing in Borger.

The bride, a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School, attended West Texas State University and South Plains College. She worked at Highland Medical Center in Lubbock.

The groom, a 1986 graduate of Vega High School, is attending Texas Tech University where he is studying mechanical engineering. He is employed with Phillips Petroleum in Borger.

Out-of-town wedding guests included Betty Shutt and Leann Trowbridge, both of Marshalltown, Iowa, and Tim Hammond of Conrad, Iowa.

Three-step beauty hints

More than 130 hostages held in Washington, D.C., by Hanafi Moslems in 1977 were freed after ambassadors from three Islamic nations joined the negotiations.

In just one day, your skin takes quite a beating and you don't even know it!

From the moment you wake up in the morning to the time you go to bed, you expose your face to the build up of dirt and oil. Now, you can fight this "invisible dirt" and uncover your natural beauty with a "three-step" routine suggested by skincare authorities.

To be sure you reach beneath the skin's surface and tackle hard-to-see, hard-to-reach dirt, try this skincare three step program for healthy-looking, clean results:

Cleanse twice daily: Cleansing once a day is never enough. Wash your face in the morning and before bedtime with a non-abrasive facial cleanser. A medicated, deep-down cleansing formula will not only get dirt where it lies, but will also threat your skin to the freshest feeling ever.

Reach down deep: Remember not all dirt is visible, so you need to clean as far down as you possibly can. Supplement your daily deep-cleanser with a refreshing, gentle-to-the-skin astringent. The astringent removes excess dirt and oil on even the most sensitive skin.

Battle blemishes boldly: The above simple cleansing steps will help blemish problems from starting. However, when a blemish does occur, use a medicated pimple product with benzoyl peroxide. Don't let the blemish throw you. By continuing your regular, daily cleansing regimen, you're assuring yourself of quick blemish removal.

Clean, healthy skin is a "three-step" snap with the help of a deep-reaching, super-feeling astringent. Skin will feel super-clean and revived and the invisible dirt will truly become a thing of the past.

Former president and U.S. Chief Justice William Howard Taft was buried in 1930 in Arlington National Cemetery.

Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter installs officers

XEA officers installed

The final meeting of the 1990-91 club year for Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority was held recently in the home of Mary Herring. During the meeting, a dinner was catered by "Something Special", the identities of secret sisters were revealed and outgoing president Gaye Reily was presented with a chapter gift and scrapbook. The 1991-92 officers installed were, from left, Holly Bixler, president; Ruby Sanders, vice president; Danell Culp, treasurer; Melinda Henson, recording secretary; and Dona Hendrickson, corresponding secretary.

Members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently in the home of Mary and Dean Herring for a salad luncheon and the installation of officers.

A humorous "Gaye Reily Test", which was composed by Mark and Carol Kelley, was read to Reily to break the ice before the formal presentations were made.

President Gaye Reily, installing officer, installed the new slate of officers. Officers for the 1991-92 year are Holly Bixler, president; Ruby Sanders, vice president; Melinda Henson, recording secretary; Danell Culp, treasurer; and Dona Hendrickson, corresponding secretary.

A program on adult literacy was presented by Peggy Hyer, hostess. She emphasized the great need for tutors to aid adults in learning to read. Anyone with an hour to three hours per week to spare may take a workshop and help someone become more self-sufficient. The local library can supply information for those interested in helping with the program.

President Reily welcomed Ruby Lee, who recently joined the group. Appreciation was extended to secret sisters by Sanders, Carol Kelley, Dalene Burns and Linda Arellano. Connie Matthews expressed appreciation to everyone for helping with the recent garage sale.

Reily announced that a yardstick meeting, consisting of outgoing and incoming officers, will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 11, in the home of Bixler.

Susan Shaw welcomed adopted sister, Billie Brown, to the party.

A card was circulated for all to sign, which will be sent to Pene

Coplen, a former member of XEA, whose dad passed away recently.

Henson, chairman of the scrapbook committee, read the dedication of the new scrapbook and presented the scrapbook to Reily. It is the tradition of most Beta Sigma Phi Chapters for the president to keep the scrapbook from her year in office. Also, Connie Matthews, presented Reily with a crystal serving platter and the president's gavel guard.

Gift opening and revealing of secret sisters was the final part of the evening.

Those attending were Arellano, Marge Bell, Bixler, Sharon Bodner, Susan Cardinal, Culp, Denise Hafliger, Deann Harris, Hendrickson, Henson, Hyer, Kelley, Matthews, Reily, Sanders, Shaw, Kay Williams, Burns, Lee, Billie Brown, and Heidi Hafliger.

Now, a single policy with double protection.

Imagine a life insurance policy that protects your family's future in more than one way. Suppose it also protected you from the financial consequences of long term health care while you're living, without reducing the life insurance benefit.

That's the policy our independent agency recommends for many customers thinking about retirement. It's called the Total Protection Plan from the CNA Insurance Companies, one of several we represent. It's the first policy that pays the full cash value or death benefit of your life insurance even after you receive long term care benefits.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Communication and Leadership

Great leaders are almost always great communicators. Studies show that those who rise to the top in their professions express themselves well. They are the movers and shakers who get things done. They persuade others by speaking fluently and writing convincingly.

Several years ago, Harvard University studied the success characteristics of a large group of corporate leaders. The group was comprised of board chairmen, presidents and chief executive officers of Fortune 500 companies. These men and women listed the top three reasons they had risen to leadership roles.

Their responses may surprise you. The No. 1 reason for success was the ability to get along well with people. Second, they listed the ability to communicate effectively. In third place was enthusiasm.

As I considered these answers, I wondered, "How can we get along with people if we don't communicate effectively?" Perhaps, the most important success factor is the ability to communicate well.

All Fluff, No Stuff

Good communication skills are a part of good leadership. However, they are not a substitute for leadership. I know several talented talkers who can excite an audience. Unfortunately, their words hold no lasting message. They are like cotton candy -- all fluff and no stuff.

These charismatic characters accomplish little. They often bounce from cause to cause and from project to project. When the false excitement dies, they move on.

True leadership is hard work. We are not born as leaders. Neither are we born as great communicators. Most of us were born as babies, lacking leadership skills and nearly devoid of communication abilities. My daughter's early cries of "wet diaper" and "I'm starved" sounded the same to me.

Good communication is more than fluff. Speaking and writing skills must be developed. Like good leadership, communication is hard work.

Tips for Better Speaking

1) Be prepared. Gather information well in advance. Collect more information than you can possibly use. Then, prioritize until only the best remains.

2) Practice. Go over your presentation again and again. Practice in front of a mirror. Use a tape recorder. Eliminate difficult words and phrases.

3) Be brief. A good 30-minute speech should last about 15 minutes. Former President Roosevelt said, "Be sincere, be brief, be seated."

4) Don't worry about being nervous. Mark Twain once comforted a friend by saying, "Just remember, they don't expect much." Everyone experiences some pre-speech anxiety. Good preparation and practice will help you relax.

5) Don't read your speech. That is "public reading," not public speaking. Condense it into an outline so that you work from key phrases and words.

And Better Writing

1) Before you write, ask four questions: To whom are you writing? Why are you writing? What do you wish to accomplish? When do you want the action to occur?

2) Get right to the point. If you are writing letter, make sure the person's name, title and address are correct. In the first paragraph, tell your reader why you are writing.

3) Identify key information. Give your reader precise details. If you are referring to an order, use the invoice, order and check number. If you refer to a third party, give the full name.

4) Keep it short and simple. Write like you talk. Avoid big words and pompous phrases. Use short sentences and paragraphs.

5) Edit until your hand cramps. We usually revise this column four or five times before sending it to the publisher. We check spelling and grammar and eliminate unnecessary words.

I encourage you to use these tips in your speeches and letters to continually build your communication skills. The world needs your leadership!

89 YEARS AGO

Did They?

When the drouth killed your crops and you had no money to buy goods, did Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co. carry you on their books and tide you over the hard times? Did Koch & Co. and Seigel Cooper visit you when you got sick and sit up with you all night? Did Barr or Nugent ever go on your note or bond or let you have a dime's worth of goods on credit? When your baby was born and your daughter got married and your school house was built and your mule kicked you, were these facts announced in "Victory's Fireside Visitors" and the Home Queen? Did you ever think of the fact that every cent which goes out of the country is a loss to the whole and that you ought to patronize your home people because they patronize you, even if they do happen to charge a little more than big concerns in big cities? We believe in commercial reciprocity even in a small neighborhood.

At the ice cream social given by the ladies of the Christian Church last Friday evening $40.05 was cleared above expenses. This is a nice little sum to be added to their exchequer and the ladies who managed the affair are deserving of great credit for their enterprise. It is gratifying to see that these enterprises are so well patronized -- it shows that our people appreciate the good work that is being done here by the followers of the lowly Nazarene.

NEW YORK (AP) - "Today" co-host Bryant Gumbel predicts NBC's revamped morning show will be back on top by January.

ABC's "Good Morning America" has been first in the ratings among the networks' morning news shows for 72 weeks.

"We'll celebrate our 40th anniversary in style - as No. 1," Gumbel told NBC affiliates and advertisers Thursday. "Today" began on Jan. 14, 1952.

Gumbel's opinion was seconded at the meeting by NBC News President Michael Gartner, who last year admitted "we screwed up the 'Today' show" with personnel changes that involved the departure of Jane Pauley.

Pauley was succeeded in January 1990 by Deborah Norville, and "Today" dropped out of first in the ratings. The show began rebounding after Norville left in April. She was succeeded by Katie Couric.

smarter than playing the stock market.

Your emotions stabilize in middle age. Young adults admire your ability to stay calm -- but since you've experienced almost everything, what can shock you? Getting your priorities straight seems to be important -- like eating dessert first.

When you are middle age you can look around your home and truthfully say that you enjoy having all the family around you. It's easy to feel the pinch of the Grim Reaper trying to pull you on his side.

Baby booming--blast or bust? No matter which it is, we will continue to be impacted by this sizable segment of the population at whatever corner it seems to be turning.

The Amazon is too wide at many points for a person on one bank to see the opposite shore.

References to baby boomers (born after World War II) tend to be preceded by such words as "maturing," "graying" or "aging." A Bowling Green (Ohio) University professor says the boomers are a large and generally narcissistic group and are fascinated with whatever phase of life they are in. Problems of aging, as well as satisfactions of aging, will be around more because the boomers are experiencing them.

Physical, behavioral, intellectual and emotional experiences at middle age set the stage for this group's adjusting to older adulthood. When physical changes such as baldness, bridges, bifocals, bulges and bunions are part of your physical being, middle science is upon you. Recliners and foot stools may have more appeal than sitting in the floor. Your behavior is not so negative that you yell at the kids playing in your yard, but you sure want to. It seems like a good idea to put a rubber band around your checkbook. Then when you stay up to watch the weather, you fall asleep during the commercial just before it comes on. There may even be some mysterious appeal to knee-high nylons or an attraction you've never before experienced to flat-heeled shoes. Men even find that hats protect their heads and are pleasant to wear while driving. Your appetite may savor a grilled-cheese sandwich to smoked free-range chicken and organic jalapeno and fig salad. Your mind tells you there is more and more to know and less and less worth knowing. Your work seems to improve if you have an afternoon nap. Even your financial skills sharpen. BURBANK, Calif. (AP) - It's no joke: Somebody left a two-story house on Bob Hope's property.

"I went by there and said to the guy, 'What are you doing?' and he told me he just wanted to leave it there for 20 minutes or so," the comedian said Wednesday. "But come to think of it, that was a month ago."

DONANN CUMMINGS, RICHARD MASON

The bride-elect is the daughter of Joe Don and Ann Cummings of Hereford and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Richard and Marge Mason of Columbiana, Ohio.

Miss Cummings is a 1986 graduate Hereford High School and attended Harding University at Searcy, Ark. majoring in social work. She is a member of Shantih Social Club and active in (SWAT) Social Workers Action Team.

Mason is a 1986 graduate of Columbiana High School. In 1990 he graduated from Harding University with a degree in accounting and in 1991 he received a degree in management. He is a member of Knights Social Club.

Summer program set

The Hereford Independent School District will sponsor a summer food program for children beginning June 3.

Free meals at lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. will be offered to all eligible children in attendance with no physical segregation of, or other discrimination against any child because of race, color, handicap, sex, age or national origin.

Meals will be served at the West Central School and high school cafeterias on Mondays through Thursday from June 3 through August 8. Meals will not be served on Fridays, nor will meals be served on July 4th.

June is gift giving month

What do a blender, a computer and a necktie have in common? They are three of the most popular gifts given in June--to brides, graduates and fathers.

Other than December, June is the biggest gift-giving month on the calendar. There are more weddings in June than in any other time of the year. Combine them with high school/college graduations and Father's Day and you can see why gift-giving is on the minds of many June shoppers.

Listed are a few suggestions to help make it easier at gift-giving time:

* For Father's Day, consider yard equipment for the summer ahead. Depending on your dad, yard equipment may vary from a hammock and good book to read while lying in the shade to the tools he needs to build a shed or tend the garden.

* Brides will always be delighted with time honored traditional gifts, like a major household appliance, a few pieces of their selected china, silver patterns or kitchen utensils.

* For graduates: items to furnish that first apartment, luggage or a trunk if they're planning to travel or move away to college, or perhaps a briefcase and a daily planner to help in that first job.

The Salvation Army arrived in the United States from England in 1880.

Country western concert set

The Magic Plains Arts Council in co-operation with the National Park Service will conduct its 1991 benefit fundraiser by presenting Rex Allen, Jr. in a Country-Western music concert Saturday, June 8, at the Lake Meredith Amphitheater.

Proceeds from the 8 p.m. show are earmarked for the Arts Council's general fund, supporting cultural, arts, and entertainment projects in the Tri-City area. "This is the fifth season of the summer Lyceum series held at the amphitheater. Each year the season begins with a Nashville Country and Western star.

Last year over 1,000 people enjoyed the Becky Hobbs concert," said Tambre Lupkin, president of the Arts Council. Other events scheduled this year in the series include July 4-7 cowboy weekend with Red Stegall and the Adobe Walls Indian Dancers Summer Ceremonials Aug. 1-3. The beautiful lakeside view, cool evenings, and Panhandle sunsets are an added attraction for the shows.

Allen, son of the famous singing cowboy of the 1940s and 50s, Rex Allen, has been acclaimed as having one of the most versatile and sensational voices in country music today. He is backed by his band, Arizona.

"The nicest comments, and one we often receive," says Allen, "is when an avid rock and roll fan walks up to one of us after a concert and says something like, 'I never enjoyed country music until I saw your show.'"

Allen's brand of country music has been shaped over the course of a successful and varied career, both on stage and in the recording studio.

Allen quickly established himself as a talent to be reckoned with as he turned out a string of Top 40 hits such as "Lonely Street", "No, No, No", "Two Less Lonely People", "Can You Hear Those Pioneers", "Drink it Down, Lady", "Cup of Tea", "It's Over", "Dream on Texas Ladies", and a host of others.

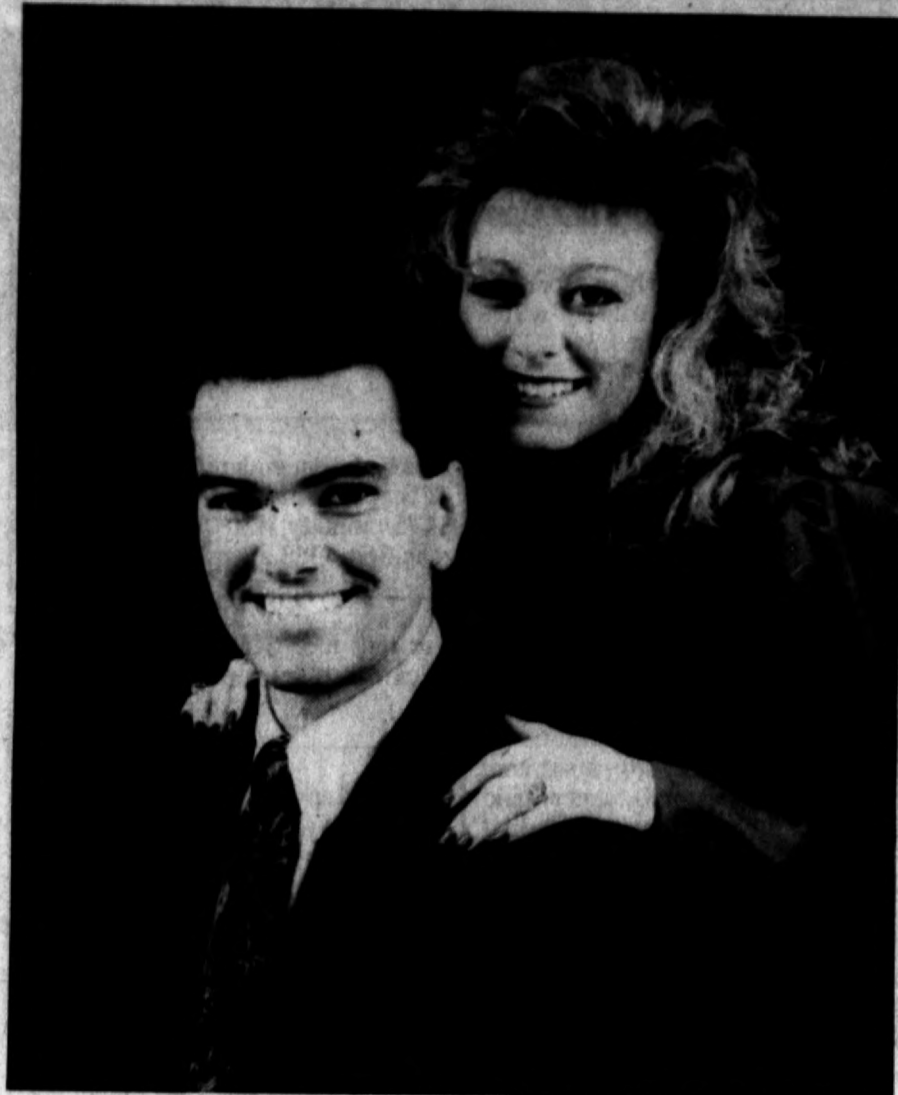

Allen's "Arizona" was soon adopted as the official son of that state.

Success has brought with it recognition and national media exposure. He was named "Most Promising Male Vocalist" by the fan-voted Music City News Awards, and won Country Music Magazine's coveted "Bullet Award" as "New Entertainer of the Year".

Among his long list of television credits is a stint as co-host, with Jim Stafford, of 52 episodes of the highly rated "Nashville of the Road".

In all, Allen has had 25 Top 40 hits since 1973.

Advance general admission tickets for the show, offered at considerable savings over the "at-door" price, are available by calling 273-2800. This year a special "family" ticket is also available that will admit as many persons to the show as the holder wishes. The "family" ticket is available only in advance.

KAYE NASTA, KYLE LEE

June wedding planned

Former Hereford residents, Rusty and Sharla Nasta of Roswell, N.M., and Pat and Eugene Lee of Portales, N.M. announce the engagement of their children, Kaye Nasta and Kyle Lee.

The couple plans to exchange nuptials June 8 in the New Mexico Military Institute Chapel in Roswell.

Miss Nasta will be attending the University of North Texas to finish her degree and Lee is currently employed as an auditor for Blue Cross and Blue Shield in Dallas.

Many of the first houses in the American colonies were built from bricks used as ballast in the holds of ships.

Penny likes challenge of 'Jake' role

Joe Penny gives it his acting all as suave investigator Jake Styles in CBS' criminal-catcher Jake and the Fatman, broadcasting Wednesdays. The show, one of CBS' highest-rated programs, is in its fourth season and looking for a final fifth.

By Amy Schmidt

The predictability trap. That's probably Joe Penny's biggest complaint with his district attorney series Jake and the Fatman. The CBS criminal catcher is now in its fourth season and looking toward its fifth. But after 90-odd episodes, what can you do differently, asks Penny?

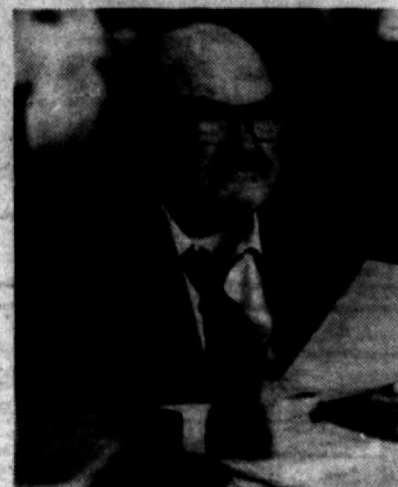

"The show is kind of its own entity. Now it's got its own rhythm and its own format: Bad guy kills the girl. OK, second act — good guys try to find out who did it. Third act — we know the good guys are chasing the bad guys. Fourth act — the good guys get the bad guys. Fifth act — the crime is over, boom, smile and we're out."

Whether he wants to or not, Penny's under contract to do a fifth season of the show. "If my boss Mr. Jeff Sagansky decides to pick it up a fifth year, then I'll do a fifth, and if they decide to end it right now, then I'll end it right now. It's quite OK with me."

Penny's Fatman co-star William Conrad, also under contract for five years, says he'll definitely retire after next year. "This time I'm going to make it stick," says Conrad, whose career spans over 50 years and 350 movies and telefilms.

Both Conrad and Penny have expressed, at one time or another, unhappiness with the show's scripts. "Basically, what I'm always yelling about is for better scripts and better ideas," says Penny. "The actor is only as good as the written word. You can't do Shakespeare if you've got 'See spot run.'"

But Penny is quick to point out the show's writers have only about five to 10 days to crank out script after script after script. "You say 'OK, how can I go on and make this fresh everyday?' Sometimes you want to get away from that format, and the producers and executives who are making millions on this package say, 'Don't screw with it, kid. If it ain't broke don't fix it. Just do it.'"

And they would definitely like to see the drama keep on doing it. Jake and the Fatman is the sixth-highest-rated drama on TV behind Murder, She Wrote; Matlock; In the Heat of the Night; L.A. Law and Knots Landing. Andy Griffith has signed for one last season of Matlock, and Angela Lansbury has more than once said, "Murder, She Don't." CBS has not yet officially announced it will pick up Jake and the Fatman, however.

If the show's not picked up, what will Penny do? "A lot of people have the attitude, 'Well, you should have something else on the air besides your series. Meanwhile, that's gonna be hard to enjoy from a hospital bed,'" says Penny. "There is a thing called rest."

And after spending two years shooting the series in Hawaii, Penny still spends a lot of time on the road shooting the series.

Will Smith takes role in comedy seriously

'Fresh Prince' to return to NBC in the fall

According to novice actor and series star Will Smith, working on Fresh Prince of Bel Air definitely is, well, fresh.

Grammy-winning rapper Will Smith plays a street-wise Philly kid sent to live with snooty L.A. relatives on the NBC comedy Fresh Prince of Bel Air, Mondays.

The comedy, which replaced ALF on NBC last fall, centers on a young man who holds on to his upbeat, hip-hop lifestyle despite being transplanted from the ghettos of Philadelphia to the home of his uppercrust aunt and uncle in California.

Besides having input into the dialogue to keep it realistic, Grammy-winning rap artist Smith says he likes the show because he can simply be himself. "That's what's so good for me, is that the same person that you see now and the same person that my fans will see on stage and hear on the records is the same person that they'll see on television Monday nights at 8:00."

Despite the fun, Smith takes his role as the nephew of a wealthy, powerful Bel Air attorney seriously. "What really makes me happy about this show is ... there's black people on television that are articulate, you know, strong, powerful black men and women. And, you know, they're being accepted."

Smith appreciates the fact that his first-ever acting role brings a positive black experience to young viewers. "You know kids will watch them, you know, they would," he says.

Evidently he's right. The series became the highest-rated new situation comedy of the 1990-'91 season and ranks 38th among all prime-time shows. It was among the first shows NBC confirmed would be returning next fall.

Kids apparently relate to the show because it represents the new slang, the new clothes and the new perspectives that set them apart from their parents' generation. "Fresh" in the name, for example, is what an earlier generation referred to as "cool."

"Hip-hop is a sub-culture," Smith explains. "And that's what a lot of people don't realize. When they say rap they think rap is everything. But no, it's a subculture.... We can be proud of ourselves and proud of our own."

STAR NOTES

Kathie Lee Gifford always an achiever

By Lisa Otupal

On the kind of show that would give many performers ulcers, Kathie Lee Gifford successfully brings warmth, humor and charm to millions of viewers as the co-host of Live With Regis & Kathie Lee.

Gifford says her success in surviving a live show is largely because of her upbringing. She was born in Paris and lived there five years before her family relocated to Maryland. Kathie, her brother and her sister constantly put on plays and carnivals. With her parents' encouragement, she and her sister organized a folk group called Pennsylvania Next Right's.

At 17, Kathie Lee became Maryland's Junior Miss. She got her first commercial by winning the Kraft Hostess Award, a national competition. After studying drama, arts and communications in college, she moved to Hollywood. Within a day she was an extra on Days of Our Lives.

In 1977 she was a singer on Name That Tune and then co-starred in Hec Haw Honeys, a spin-off of Hec Haw. She appeared on A.M. Los Angeles (Regis Philbin's old show) and was spotted by the producers of Good Morning America. Within five weeks Gifford was substituting for Joan Lunden.

When not spending time with their son, Cody, Kathie and her husband, sportscaster Frank Gifford, are involved with the Special Olympics and The Children's Charity. © TV Listing Inc.

TIME OUT

ABC hits the road for Indy 500

By Steve Paschal

The greatest one-day event in sports celebrates its 75th anniversary Sunday, May 26, when the top names in auto racing line up for the running of the Indianapolis 500.

More than 300,000 fans are expected to converge on the fabled brickyard to watch the field of 33 drivers burn rubber for $4.5 million in prize money. Millions more will be tuning in to ABC Sports for live race coverage complete with commentary by three-time Indy-winner Bobby Unser and racing experts Paul Page and Sam Posey.

This will be the sixth consecutive year that ABC Sports, which has earned four Emmys for its Indy specials, has presented live coverage of auto racing's most prestigious event. From 1971 through 1985 ABC provided exclusive same-day network coverage, and prior to that the race was carried on a delayed basis on ABC's Wide World of Sports. This year, ABC will be in the pits, the hospital area and the garage to bring up-to-the-minute reports in addition to the live telecast of the race.

The Indianapolis 500 has come a long way since 1911 when Ray Harroun made the 200 trips around the original 2.5-mile solid brick course in his Marmon Wasp with an average speed of just under 75 miles per hour. Last year's winner, Arie Luyendyk, was clocked at over 167 miles per hour streaking into his first Indy victory.

SOAP TALK

Emily McLaughlin will be missed

By Candace Havens

The soap world has lost one of its legendary favorites. Emily McLaughlin, who played nurse Jesse Brewer on General Hospital, passed away after a courageous battle with cancer on April 26.

Gloria Monty, executive producer of GH, commented, "Emily McLaughlin was the original female lead of General Hospital and has been an important part of the show for all of its 28 years. I think I speak for her fans all over the country, as well as our entire company, in saying she will be greatly missed." Her co-star John Berardino continues on the series as the remaining original cast member.

McLaughlin was born Dec. 1, 1928, in White Plains, N.Y. She received her bachelor of arts degree in American literature from Middlebury College in Vermont. She began studying acting at the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York City in 1950.

An accomplished stage actress, McLaughlin appeared on Broadway in The Frogs of Spring and The Lovers. Throughout her extensive television career, she appeared on Studio One, Kraft Theater, The Twilight Zone, The Eleventh Hour and many other series. She made her daytime debut as Dr. Ellen Seaton on Young Dr. Malone and starred on GH from the first broadcast on April 1, 1963, until her death.

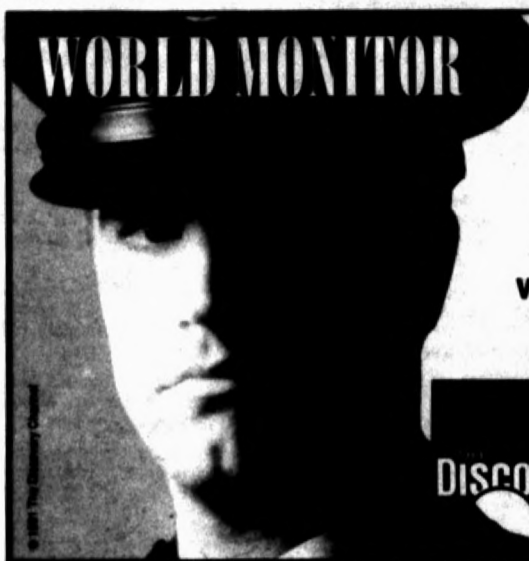

She always portrayed her character, Jesse Brewer, as one of the most devoted nurses in the medical profession. She was always a true heroine in the face of adversity. McLaughlin is survived by her daughter, Mary Ann Anderson, and son, Robert Lansing.

Dear Candace: I was a big fan of the soap Generations, which was canceled at the end of January. I was so disappointed! On their last day on the air it said, "To Be Continued..." When? I am anxiously awaiting its return! —Thank you, Erica Walters, East Liverpool, Ohio

Dear Erica: There is no plan to bring Generations back to NBC. It has been reported the cable station BET has bought all the previous episodes and plans to show them.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to send off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, TX 76161-1009.

CBS adds four cartoons to Saturday mornings

By Christy Bergalien
CBS has announced it will add four new children's shows to its Saturday morning lineup this fall. Back to the Future, Where's Waldo? Riders in the Sky and Mother Goose and Grimm will join the network's already top-rated Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles on the lineup kicking off Sept. 14.

Back to the Future capitalizes on the popular film series of the same name starring Michael J. Fox. The animated show will feature likenesses and voices of Fox and his co-stars Christopher Lloyd and Tom Wilson.

And where do you find Waldo on the CBS schedule? You find the vanishing character airing at 11:30 a.m. Eastern. Where's Waldo? is based on the fastest-selling children's book in history, written by Martin Handford.

Mother Goose and Grimm is based on Pulitzer Prize-winner Mike Peters' syndicated comic strip. "Grimmy" is a rambunctious dog who lives with a thoroughly modern Mother Goose and a variety of other offbeat characters.

Riders in the Sky combines the performances of live singing cowboy stars with puppetry, animation and claymation for a western children's show.

Also returning to the lineup are Jim Henson's Muppet Babies, Garfield and Friends and CBS Storybook, hosted by Bob Keeshan.

Richard Lewis returns as staff writer Marty Gold on ABC's Anything But Love, Wednesdays.

Julia Roberts

The romance of Julia Roberts and Kiefer Sutherland continues to blossom on and off the screen. The two first starred together in Fatliners and now it is likely they will be co-cast in the romantic western Renegades. Renegades is the story of a half-blooded Indian who robs and gives to her people. Sutherland plays a bounty hunter who stalks and, ultimately, falls in love with her.

Sting, Peter Gabriel, Gloria Estefan, M.C. Hammer, Sinéad O'Connor, Rod Stewart and Chris De Burgh have signed up for a worldwide television concert to benefit Kurdish refugees. No date has been set for The Simple Truth concert broadcast.

Jackie Collins and NBC have signed a deal for two four-hour miniseries based on Collins' books Lady Boss and Hollywood Husbands. It will also be the first time an author has produced a TV adaptation of her own book.

Corbin Bernsen and Mel Harris will star in NBC's new miniseries Grass Roots, based on best-selling author Stuart Wood's novel Chiefs. The political thriller is the sequel to the miniseries Chiefs, which debuted in 1983. It will telecast during 1991-92.

CBS is selling a videotape chronicling the events of the Gulf War. Desert Triumph, culled from CBS news footage and narrated by Dan Rather, costs $49.95 plus shipping and handling.

The Airport Channel will be tested June 3 through July 14 in the nation's largest airports, including Atlanta, Chicago and Dallas. TBS is launching the new station, which will consist of news, consumer and travel features produced and anchored by CNN/Headline News. American, Delta and United airlines have already signed on to receive the service.

LET'S TALK

James Stacy made comeback despite motorcycle accident

By Polly Vonetes

Q: What movies did James Stacy appear in after his accident? Could you also tell me his age? —Natalie Cross, Abilene, Texas

A: James Stacy was born on Dec. 23, 1936, in Burbank, Calif. A few years after his 1973 motorcycle accident, in which he lost an arm and a leg, he returned to acting in the TV films Just a Little Inconvenience (playing a Vietnam double amputee), Posse and My Kidnapper, My Love. His Lancer series has been syndicated since 1971.

Q: Would you please tell me how many movies John Wayne performed in? If not, would you please tell me where I might find this out? —Doris Conner, Lamar, Colo.

A: I have in my possession the Los Angeles Times June 29, 1979, edition that carried a full section on John Wayne when he passed away. I quote from his obituary: "In terms of longevity and popular appeal, both in the United States and elsewhere, there simply never was an actor like him. He appeared in at least 154 films (some experts estimate as many as 217, but not even Wayne himself knew for sure)." I hope this answers your question.

Q: My husband and I were avid fans of Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald years ago. We are wondering if they are still active and what they have been doing? They were great! —Lorraine Ellsworth, Park Rapids, Minn.

A: Videotapes of some of their movies are available, but that is the only way you can enjoy their music now. MacDonald died in 1965, and Nelson Eddy passed on in 1967.

Q: I am a real big fan of Avery Brooks, and I have been wondering what he has been doing lately. I have been watching the reruns of Spenser: For Hire and really love Avery as Hawk. Can you please give me some information on him? How old is he, is he married, and has he done any other TV programs? Also, an address where I could write him. —Diane Baley, Mankato, Minn.

A: Avery Brooks was born Oct. 2 in Evansville, Ind. (There is no year of birth listed.) He attended both Oberlin College in Ohio and the University of Indiana, where teaching and music were his prime interests. After earning his master's degree in fine arts from Rutgers University in New Jersey, he stayed on for more than 13 years as a professor of theater arts. He then took a leave of absence to film the series. He is also a stage director and musician. He sings opera and plays keyboard in a jazz band. A very private person, he and his wife, Vicki (also a professor), reside in New Jersey with their three children. Brooks' credits include a rave review for his performance on Broadway in the one-man show Paul Robeson, Roots: The Gift, host of the series Trackdown and star of the ABC series A Man Called Hawk. You may write to him c/o Rutgers University, New Brunswick, NJ 08903.

Q: Could you please tell me who the two men were who were in the movie Sabrina with Audrey Hepburn? I think one of them might be Humphrey Bogart. I would love to see this movie again but can't seem to find it at video stores. Is it ever shown on TV? —Marys McNamara, Goodhue, Minn.

A: You are right about Humphrey Bogart; he was the older brother who ended up with Sabrina (Audrey). William Holden was the younger brother with whom Sabrina was first infatuated. I have seen the film on television several times here in Texas. Call your local channel and request they rebroadcast it for you. This four-star film is also available on video.

Not good or great; but not that bad. Sweet Talker features Bryan Brown as Harry, a sweet talking con man who convinces a sleepy Australian coastal town that the town can be turned into a major tourist attraction. The town's goal is to save its declining economy. Harry's is to bilk the locals out of their money. Complications arise when Harry falls for the owner of a quaint bed and breakfast (Karen Allen), whose young son thinks Harry is a great guy. Some shady characters, local and the out-of-town sort, further complicate things by trying to get in on Harry's action. It's all fairly simply, predictable stuff; very broadly played in an amiable, inoffensive way, and never portends to be anything else but modest, fun fare. The quick pacing and tongue-in-cheek acting move things along very quickly. The south Australian coastline is breathtaking with the gorgeously photographed scenery making the film worth your time. But, you could easily wait for this one on video. Rated PG for mild profanity. Two Boxes

AVALON: (1990) Starring Armin Mueller-Stahl, Aidan Quinn, Elizabeth Perkins and Joan Plowright. Writer/director, Barry Levinson's Academy Award nominated film chronicles the lives and evolution of the Krinchinskys, an immigrant Jewish family in Baltimore, from the arrival of the patriarch, Sam, on July 4, 1914, through the marriages and parting of off-spring in the 1950s. Levinson, the writer, uses multi-generational experiences that broadly span several lifetimes. In contrast, Levinson, the director, uses his camera on a more intimate scale. The two techniques produce a generous and touching film; a film whose story is essentially smaller than it's own crowded and skillfully drawn landscape. It isn't, however, a sentimental tale of love and resiliency. Rather, it is more a thoughtful examination of how modern American has torn apart the extended family. Four Boxes

Avalon, with brilliant direction and superb ensemble acting, is touching, funny and insightful. Rated a mild PG. This is a family film.

THREE MEN AND A LITTLE LADY: (1990) Starring Tom Selleck, Ted Danson, and Steve Guttenberg.

Emile Ardolino's film picks up about five years after its predecessor, Three Men And A Baby. Though the child (Robin Weisman) has aged, her three caretakers still live in a child's paradise of self-centered obliviousness, and the baby's mom (Nancy Travis) still lives with the rich and carefree bachelors. When mom's wedding bells threaten to break up the gang, the guys are off to England, to attend, or prevent, the nuptials. The journey to England does allow some entertaining antics, and overall the movie has a gentler, more sweetly old-fashioned style than it's predecessor. Rated a mild PG. Another family film. Two Boxes

HAVANA: (1990) Starring Robert Redford.

There is romance in Sydney Pollack's sprawling, atmospheric film, but it has more to do with the city of Havana on the eve of a revolution that it does with its stars. The story is a grand epic set against the fiery backdrop of the Cuban Revolution. Playing an over-the-hill playboy gambler, Robert Redford is drawn into the country's turmoil by the beautiful revolutionary, Lean Olin. The film's very slow pacing works against any real excitement the story could generate. It's rated R for mild violence, and mild mature themes. Get a very, very big bowl of popcorn before you roll the tape and you'll make it to the end just fine.

Margie's Notes

Today we got up to a glorious world! The air was so fresh and wet! We saw some of this on our tour to Branson, but didn't realize how dry we really were until we got back from there. Our roses and wild flowers at the Center are so pretty in spite of the lack of rain. They will really do good now! We thank the Golden K Club for all their work in the flower beds and lawn.

I want to thank all the volunteers who helped with the Joint Conference on Aging. You did a great job! It was a lot of work but all-in-all everything went really well. The people who visited our Center were really impressed with it. I have a letter from Dorothy S. Asher, director of social services of Katy, Tx., I would like for you to read:

"Thank you for performing such a superb job with the Joint Conference on Aging in Amarillo. I enjoyed the conference, enjoyed seeing all the people I only see once a year and felt Amarillo a great place to have the conference. The Civic Center worked out beautifully. The Hereford Senior Citizen Center certainly surpasses all expectations of a 'Senior Center.' The trip to Hereford was the highlight of the convention and certainly gives all of us something to strive for. Thanks to your Senior Citizens for a delightful tour of your Center."

Also our ladies quilted a quilt to be given as a prize at the conference. We received a wonderful letter from the lady who won it. It reads as follows:

"Well, I had never, ever won anything in my life and imagine my surprise when I arrived at the airport in Amarillo and several people told me I had won the beautiful quilt. I was speechless (for once). I received it this week. IT IS GLORIOUS! I have one bedroom that I call my 'antique bedroom' and the iron bedstead was 'crying' for a quilt. I grew up in Clarendon (not so far from Hereford), but have lived in San Marcos for many years. Again, thank you all so much. Rest assured that your quilt has a good home and if ever any Hereford folks come to our beautiful town, please stop and visit me and 'our' quilt. /s/Adell Hurst.

When we receive comments like these and many others at the conference, it makes us even more thankful for what we have in Hereford for our seniors and our community!

We had wonderful comments on our banquet speaker, Doug Manning. Doug was not only humorous but got right down to the nitty-gritty business of a care giver's life. All agreed we received counseling and comments that we all needed at this time and benefited from. Also all enjoyed Kenneth Wyatt, speaker for TASC and TANASP luncheon. As for JCOA speakers, these two are at the top of the list!!

I'm almost through with the proposed itinerary for the tour to Pennsylvania, leaving Sept. 14th. Mark your calendars, come by the office or call me for more information at 364-5681. Some of the places are St. Louis (with dinner on the Belle of St. Louis), through Columbus, Ohio and on to Lancaster, Pa., for three nights and visits to Valley Forge, Gettysburg and Amish country; then to Niagara Falls, staying in Buffalo, N.Y.; to Saginaw, Mackinaw City, Sault Ste. Marie, Green Bay, Peoria, Kansas City, Ft. Hays and through Dodge City before coming home. We will see a lot of history, pretty country and have lots of fun. Make your reservations soon.

See you at the Center!!

This is the season of the year when the beauty of God's creation glows in most parts of the country, as witnessed by those of us who were fortunate enough to make the trip to Branson, Mo.

We were reminded that our prayers are much needed for rain in our area. Margie, our director and tour leader, had the trip well planned and we literally received a red-carpet welcome at most of our stops.

Our bus driver was a swell guy, very congenial and a good driver. We had a wonderful group of people and all had a good time.

This also is the season to clean out your closets and garages. We can use the unwanted items and pieces of furniture for our garage sale, scheduled for July 26-27th. This is one of the few events held during the year to help support our many activities.

Comings, goings at Center

John and Regina Warren went to San Antonio early in May for their daughter Belinda's graduation from St. Mary's University. They also took a trip to Del Rio to attend the wedding of a friend.

Nola Drager visited her daughter, Irene Heritz, in South Bend, Ind. Then together they went to Madison, Wis., for the wedding of a nephew's son. There, Nola saw all her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

We are always happy to welcome visitors at our Center. Some of those who have honored us this month:

Power of attorney benefits those mentally incompetent

POWER OF ATTORNEY FOR HEALTH CARE
By Sid Ham,
Attorney-At-Law

We are daily bombarded with advertisements and suggestions that a "Living Will" will satisfy all concerns regarding medical decisions concerning your ability to experience a natural death without long term medical procedures prolonging life in a manner that many would not want to endure. Whether this document takes the form of a "Living Will" (which in most circumstances is unenforceable in Texas) or a Directive to Physicians (as provided in the Texas statutes) the total problem is not addressed.

The U.S. Supreme Court, in a case entitled Cruzan vs. Missouri, recognized that we have a fundamental right under the U.S. constitution to refuse unwanted medical treatment. However, the court was also clear that when a state was enacted procedures which control this decision, these statutes must be followed or your decision cannot be implemented. This is even more important when you need someone else to make these decisions for you after you have become unable to do so yourself.

In the Supreme Court case, Justice O'Connor wrote a concurring opinion which strongly urged people to use durable health care powers of attorney. She also strongly urged states to enact legislation to help implement this legal decision by those concerned with their future health care.

Last month in this column, we discussed the Texas Directive to Physicians under the Natural Death Act. The directives only apply to procedures which the act defines as a "life-sustaining procedure." The definition is narrowly drafted and does not apply to all decisions which might cause a patient to be placed upon life support machinery for extended periods of time.

Did you know that in Texas a husband and wife may not automatically consent to the treatment of each other and that the only other person who could consent to such treatment would be a legal guardian? Did you know that in the event you are facing a life-threatening trauma, the state law presumes that doctors can use any and all procedures necessary to save and prolong your life?

The State of Texas has enacted legislation which, when used together with the Directive to Physicians, can address these concerns. A durable Power of Attorney for Health Care Purposes, if executed according to the provisions and procedures provided in the statute, allows someone you trust to make decisions concerning your health care. This person which can implement your wishes in the event you are unable to make the decision yourself. As Justice O'Connor of the Supreme Court pointed out, this is a very powerful tool in exercising an individual's freedom to control medical treatment of his body.

If you have questions concerning these documents or other areas of legal planning to avoid unwanted events which might occur upon your disability, please contact our office or another attorney concerning the matter.

This article is presented as a general discussion of the law concerning the areas involved and is not intended as individual legal advice for your circumstances. There is no substitute for consulting a professional trained in the area of your concerns as a senior.

Nutrition labeling revised

The Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990 (NLEA), approved and signed into law in the waning days of the 101st Congress, mandates the first major changes in food labeling in almost 20 years.

Virtually all packaged foods are required to contain nutrition information on the label.

The required nutrition information must focus more on macronutrient data (calories, fat, protein, etc.) than current emphasis on micro-nutrient information (vitamins, mineral, etc.).

Nutrition information for fresh produce must be available at the point of sale under guidelines—not regulations—issued by the FDA.

Descriptors, such as "free," "low" and "light" may be used only according to FDA-regulated definitions.

Cholesterol information on labels must conform to detailed requirements spelled out in the law.

No health message may be on the label unless it fits the message approved by FDA.

All packaged products, including products for which there is a standard of identity, must contain full ingredient labeling.

States now have the right to enforce the new federal law while being pre-empted from adopting their own food labeling laws.

Earlier last year, FDA had initiated rulemaking proceedings on most of the issues included in the new law. Despite request from both industry and consumer organizations to withdraw those proposals in view of the legislation, FDA steadfastly refuses to do so.

Nevertheless, agency officials have candidly observed that most, if not all, the proposals will have to be significantly revised to conform to the new law's requirements. The revisions will require additional public comment.

Under FDA regulations prior to the NLEA, nutrition labeling was voluntary unless a nutritional claim was made for the food. If a product contained nutrition labeling, however, it had to follow the format and contain only the information prescribed in the regulations.

The NLEA makes nutrition labeling mandatory for virtually all packaged foods, changes to the content of nutrition labeling and directs FDA to adopt new regulations regarding format.

The new law calls for a label to contain a statement of serving size, number of servings, total calories, total calories from fat, amount of total fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, sodium, total carbohydrates, complex carbohydrates, sugars, dietary fiber and total protein in each serving.

FDA has the authority to require additional information. If a food contains "insignificant amounts," as determined by FDA, of all the required nutrient, nutrition labeling is not required unless a nutritional claim is made.

There also is an exemption for small business ($500,000 or less in annual gross sales to consumers or $50,000 or less of sales of food to consumers), and for products to restaurants or institutions.

The NLEA, as reported from the House Energy and Commerce Committee, extended mandatory nutrition labeling to the 20 varieties of fresh fruit, 20 varieties of fresh vegetables and 20 varieties of raw fish most frequently consumed annually in a given region, as determined by FDA. The retail grocery industry launched a massive lobbying effort against this provision and was at least partially successful.

As approved by Congress, the new law provides that within 12 months, FDA, after an opportunity for public comment, will issue guidelines for retail establishments selling fresh produce or seafood. FDA also must issue a regulation defining what constitutes "substantial compliance" by retailers with the guidelines.

Eighteen months later, FDA must report on whether or not there has been substantial compliance with the guidelines by retailers. If so, reports must be issued every two years; if not, FDA must issue regulations governing the provision of the required nutrition information for the 20 most consumed varieties of fresh fruits, vegetables and fish.

The regulations are to allow nutrition information to be provided at a single location and permit the information to be expressed as an average or range per serving.

Using the terms that characterize the level of any nutrient is forbidden by the new law unless the term has been defined by an FDA regulation. FDA is specifically directed to issue regulation. FDA is specifically directed to issue regulations defining the terms "free," "low," "light or lite," "reduced," "less" and "high."

This means once the law is in effect, no word or phrase characterizing a nutrient level may be used until there is a specific FDA regulation defining the term.

High fiber claims are prohibited unless the food is also low in total fat. The law expressly forbids a claim that a nutrient is not present in the food unless the nutrient usually is present in the food.

No claim may be made on cholesterol if the food contains fat or saturated fat in an amount that increases the risk of disease, unless FDA finds, by regulation, that the level of cholesterol is "substantially less" than the level usually present in the food.

FDA may allow a statement regarding the absence of cholesterol but only if such a statement would assist consumers in maintaining healthy dietary practices and if the label also discloses that cholesterol is not usually present.

The label also must disclose with "appropriate prominence" the level of saturated fat in the food.

No health claims for food will be allowed unless the claim is specifically authorized by FDA regulation. The regulation must be based on "significant scientific agreement" supporting the claim. For the first time, the law introduces the concept of preclearance of food label claims by FDA.

The law appears to differ from the Federal Trade Commissioner's policy that, before making an advertising claim, an advertiser must provide "substantiation" of the claim being made.

Historically, the food label has had to contain a list of all ingredients in descending order of predominance except for foods subject to standards of identity.

Young at Heart Choir

"YOUNG AT HEART CHOIR"

The "Young at Heart Choir" was honored to participate in the revival services Friday, April 26, at Avenue Baptist church. Twenty-seven members filled the choir loft and were led by Rob Veal of Sweetwater, Texas, who was the director of the music for the revival. A time of fellowship followed the service.

The choir had a called practice session Tuesday, April 30 led by Steve Paul, minister of music at First Baptist church. Our purpose was to "entertain" the tour group from Amarillo from the Joint Conference on Aging. Two bus loads of people came to tour our center and were very impressed with our center and all the activities.

Sunday, May 5 was senior adult day in all Baptist Churches. The First Baptist Church of Vega invited the choir to present the musical, "Some Golden Daybreak" on Sunday night. Thirty-five members, directed by Steve Sobczak, participated and again there was a time of much food and fellowship following the service. We always look forward to the good times we have sharing with others.

We encourage anyone who enjoys music and good fellowship to come join us. A knowledge of music is not necessary. Just come and have a good time with us.

Golden Line Dancers

By JOLENE BLEDSOE

The Golden Line Dancers continue to kick up their heels and enjoy fun and fellowship.

Stan and Ruth Knox enjoyed a trip to Dallas. Their daughter, Kathleen, did a flute solo in a program that was enjoyed very much by the Knoxs.

Chick and Mary Helen Askew Miller of Irving were guest of Jolene

Bledsoe at the Center. Mary Helen, formerly of Hereford, especially enjoyed seeing her old friends.

Bonnie Manley has been quite ill and spent several days in the hospital. She is home and feeling much better.

Edna Johnson went to Carlsbad, N.M. to attend the wedding of Matt Allen, her grandson. She was accompanied by her daughter and husband, Anna and Mike Solomon of Hereford. Her daughter, Donna Allen, of San Antonio met them in Lubbock to make the trip. Edna spent Mother's Day in Amarillo with her son and other family members.

Audrey Powell visited her daughter, son-in-law and granddaughter, David, Sharli and Jessie Lyne in Bowling Green, Kentucky. She was impressed by the green color and the dogwood, azaleas and rhododendrons.

Ed McCreary enjoyed a trip to Hurst where he did some square dancing with friends. He then went to Bryson and visited with old friends. Ed's sister, Frances Kirkvold, of Mesa, AZ came to see him and spent a few days in Hereford. They then traveled to Burkburnett to their high school reunion.

Betty Jo Carlson attended the graduation of her greatniece, Marilyn Osburn Stevens, from nursing training in Lubbock.

Marchetta Hutcheson spent her vacation with her brother, Karl Hutcheson and family in Aransas Pass, TX.

Bill and Addie Cunningham, Stan and Ruth Knox, Lloyd and Frances Crume and Carolyn Hutcheson were in the group that went on the trip to Missouri, sponsored by the Hereford Senior Citizens.

Congratulations to Bill and Addie Cunningham on their 51st Wedding Anniversary on May 9.

Happy Birthday to Wilma Carmichael, Leona Kimball, Edna LeClaire, Leona Schilling and Billie Watts.

The Golden Line Dancers performed at Golden Plains Care Center during National Nursing Home week.

Do you like to play Skip-Bo? Any Senior Skip-Bo player is invited to King's Manor at 1:30 p.m. the first Monday of each month to participate in these games.

Eye Openers

By Dr. Hugh B. Currie
Ophthalmic Surgeon
Currie Eye Institute

The surgical removal of a cataract is one of the most frequently performed operations in the United States.

Removing a cataract means removing a cloudy lens from inside the eye. Prior to 20 years ago, the cataractous lens was removed in toto and the patient was fitted with thick glasses or contact lenses.

Around 1975, a new technique utilizing phacoemulsification came along. A phacoemulsifier is a rapidly vibrating ultrasound device with breaks up a cataract and allows it to be removed by suction through a small incision.

This technique was often mistaken for laser and many patients believe they have had their cataract removed with a laser. A true laser is not used to remove cataracts from the eye.

Intraocular lenses then made their appearance. These are small plastic lenses which are implanted in the eye. They require a larger incision and therefore phacoemulsification, being a small incision technique, fell from favor.

In the last few years, small plastic lenses and foldable lenses have been developed and phacoemulsification is once again becoming a preferred technique. At this time, approximately half the cataracts in the United States are removed using the phacoemulsifier.

With this small incision and new techniques of fashioning a smaller wound, patients are now hearing about one-stitch procedures and no-stitch procedures. These procedures both have a smaller wound size. It is an advantage to have a smaller wound, as the eye heals more rapidly, there is less distortion of the cornea and a better visual result. Most ophthalmologists now use the small wound techniques, unless there is a contraindication.

Angel Food Cake

This cake is anything but devilish! It's a light, flavorful alternative that the whole family will enjoy.

1 cup sifted cake flour
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 1/4 cups (10 to 12) egg whites, room temperature

1 tsp. cream of tartar
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1/2 tsp. almond extract

Preheat oven to 350° F.

In 2 medium bowls, sift flour and 1/2 cup sugar together 3 times. In a large mixing bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Add cream of tartar, vanilla and almond extract. Continue beating until soft, moist, glossy peaks form. Gradually add remaining sugar and continue beating at high speed until volume increases and stiff peaks form. By hand, gently fold in sifted flour-sugar mixture only until all flour is moistened.

Pour into 9-inch tube pan. Cut through batter carefully with a thin spatula to break up large air pockets. Bake 40 to 45 minutes.

Remove from oven and invert pan for 1 1/2 hours or until cold. Remove cake from pan before storing.

Makes 12 servings.

Depression is common

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Depression often is misdiagnosed or not taken seriously among older Americans, and many of them never will receive proper treatment, a gerontology specialist says.

Vicki Schmall emphasizes in a brochure she helped write that depression is highly treatable. More than 80 percent of its victims can be treated effectively and their symptoms alleviated within weeks.

The 34-page brochure, "Depression in Later Life," is available nationwide through county extension service offices. It's published by the Oregon State University Extension Service in Corvallis.

Without treatment, depression can last for weeks, months, even years, and suicide is disturbingly common in the older population, Schmall said.

Men over 65 have the highest incidence of suicide in the population, three to four times that of the general population.

"Overall, they attempt fewer suicides, but are the most successful when they attempt it," Schmall said. "For the older person in general, it is an actual intent to die, not a cry for help."

The prevalence of depression among older Americans is about the same as among younger Americans, affecting about 25 percent of the population.

One problem in recognizing depression is that people often think its symptoms are normal signs of aging, Schmall said. Symptoms include stooped posture, physical inactivity, sleep problems and a loss of appetite.

"They simply assume it's related to the fact that Mom is 82 or that she has a certain chronic disease," Schmall said.

And some people figure Mom or Dad ought to be depressed: They're old.

Older people are more likely to express emotional distress in physical terms: complaints of vague aches and pains or health problems for which there is no medical basis, Schmall said.

"An older person is less likely to say yes, they're depressed," she said. "They grew up in a time when to be depressed is to be a weakness."

And depressed people, regardless of age, "may appear to change in their personality. The person who is outgoing may become withdrawn," she said. Depressed people may also be agitated, suspicious, irritable or anxious.

"You may see hostility and anger that are actually part of the depression, but we don't recognize them as depression-related," she said. "We may just label them as difficult to get along with."

The critical first step is encouraging the person to get a medical examination, Schmall said.

"There are two things you initially want to rule out: whether there is a physical cause, for example, a chronic illness or some change in endocrine activity; you also want to rule out any cause from medicines."

"In later life, depression is more commonly caused by illness or medication than it is early in life," she said.

"One of the things that tends to be more characteristic in later life is loss: loss in terms of a loved one, in terms of a home because they may not be able to keep it, loss of health," she said.

"Often as they become more frail, their losses come closer together. Before they get over one loss, they may have another loss piled upon it."

"Depression in Later Life" is among 17 booklets published at Oregon State University covering topics affecting the elderly. Some are distributed nationally, others only in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. All are available at cost.

New approaches aid diagnosis in elderly

NEW YORK (AP) - Doctors may be able to better diagnose disease in the elderly by adding four special approaches to standard diagnostic strategy, a study suggests.

"The diagnostic process when people get older really is a lot more complicated than it is with younger people," said Dr. Linda Fried, director of the Johns Hopkins Geriatric Assessment Center in Baltimore.

She and colleagues at Hopkins and George Washington University in Washington developed the new approaches by analyzing records of 86 patients evaluated at her center. They then tested the approaches in 56 other patients at the center.

Many good doctors use the approaches already, but formally describing the strategies could help in medical training, Fried said.

The standard approach is that symptoms and signs in a patient correspond to a specific disease, the authors wrote in the February issue of the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society.

But in elderly patients, they said, doctors should also be aware of four other possible situations:

- Multiple chronic diseases combine to reduce a patient's functioning to a level the patient finds intolerable.

In one case, a 79-year-old woman complained of urinary incontinence that affected her social life. It turned out that a medicine she had been taking for a heart condition increased her need to urinate, but that she was slow to reach the toilet because of arthritis in her knees and hips. Treatment was aimed at better managing the heart disease and arthritis that teamed up to cause her incontinence.

- A patient senses a decline in health and falsely blames it on a previously diagnosed chronic problem. The real trouble can be a new, unrecognized condition.

One 74-year-old man said he felt unwell and blamed it on a worsening of his long-standing constipation. But it turned out there was no significant change in his bowel habits. Evaluation showed his uneasiness was due to a new disorder of paranoia, in which he felt persecuted by neighbors. Psychiatric medication rapidly made him feel better.

A variant of this situation occurs when the patients cite not their real problem, but rather one they think will get them help. A 68-year-old woman was brought in by her daughter for evaluation of asthma and arthritis. But the real concern turned out to be mild memory loss.

Another variant involves caretakers who bring in a patient for a medical complaint when the real issue is the caretaker's own burnout, the researchers said.

- One illness causes another as well as producing an impairment.

A 76-year-old woman complained of weight loss and abdominal pain when she ate. Evaluation showed that some time before, a detached retina had destroyed almost all the vision in one eye. That made her give up activity in many community organizations in which she had been a leader.

She became increasingly unhappy and socially isolated, losing appetite and weight. Several months later she started having the abdominal pain when she ate. Evaluation showed that major depression had caused a stomach inflammation called gastritis.

- A stressful event unmasks a hidden medical condition that was stable or slowly progressing.

PRICING POLICY: Not all items in this publication are on sale. Prices marked "Only" refer to our everyday low prices.
REFERENCE RETAIL: An item's Reference Retail price is your guide to its regular selling price at department stores and similar retailers. It is not our present or former selling price. You may want to make an exact comparison of retailer prices before you buy. Our Reference Retail price is either the suggested retail price recommended by the manufacturer in this publication's distribution areas or our own determination of full retail price based on customary retailer markups for similar merchandise.
LOW PRICE GUARANTEE: If you find a lower price within 30 days on an identical item, just bring us the proof and we'll match the price! And if we advertise it for less within 30 days, we'll refund the difference. The BEST Low Price Guarantee cannot apply to clearance prices, manufacturer's rebates, going-out-of-business sales, floor samples, one-of-a-kind items or limited quantities, nor can it apply if the local retailer does not have the merchandise on the premises and available for sale at the advertised price. We will match the competitor's advertised price for up to 30 days after you purchase an item from BEST. Simply bring us your receipt. Because quality and workmanship vary so greatly in jewelry, no two items are ever truly identical and our standard guarantee cannot apply.
JEWELRY SATISFACTION GUARANTEE: After you buy your jewelry from us, take up to 90 days to consider your purchase. If you're not completely satisfied, just return the item to us and we'll offer you an exchange or refund.
WARRANTY INFORMATION: Our own limited and full warranties, as well as all manufacturers' warranties for products we sell for $15 or more, are available in our showrooms or by writing. Best Products Co., Inc., P.O. Box 26303, Richmond, VA 23260, ATTN: Warranty Department.
RAIN CHECKS: If ever a temporary shortage of any advertised item occurs, we will offer you a RAIN CHECK assuring you the advertised price on re-supply, unless the advertised price is marked "Limited Quantity," "Clearance" or "Special Purchase." Rain checks may not be available on merchandise that is seasonal in nature.
IN ORDER TO ASSURE THE FAIR DISTRIBUTION OF MERCHANDISE, WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITY PURCHASES PER CUSTOMER.

FOOD AWARENESS By Ann Crowley R.D., Ph.D.
 Pasta for Everyone
 Pasta can be prepared in dozens of different ways to add variety and interest to your meals. You can choose from 40 different shapes and sizes of dried pasta. Pasta is also available in whole grain, spinach or tomato. These varieties add color to your pasta dish.
 More variety can be added to pasta by varying the cheese or the sauce. Some types of cheese that are frequently used in pasta dishes are cream cheese, mozzarella, provolone, cottage cheese, parmesan, romano and gruyere.
 Sauces can be purchased with different vegetables and either thick, chunky or smooth varieties. The sauce can become quite different from the product in the jar simply by adding spices and seasonings.
 The addition of minced garlic, and vegetables such as fresh tomatoes, onions, olives, parsley and oregano add a different flavor. No two sauces turn out quite the same.
 Cooked seafood, meat, chicken or eggs can also be added to either hot or cold pasta. Cold pasta salads have grown in popularity the past few years. The taste of a pasta salad can be varied by using different salad dressings. Try a pasta salad for your Memorial Day.
