Hightower inquiry termed 'cheap shot'

DALLAS (AP) - An Austin consultant and fund-raiser for state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says a federal grand jury investigation into improper solicitation of campaign monies is a "politically partisan cheap shot" directed at Hightower.

Bob Boyd, president and owner of Associated Consultants Inc., said through a Dallas lawyer Thursday "the timing of the investigation would lead one to suspect partisan politics were involved."

Dan C. Guthrie Jr., who is representing Boyd, said his client is the target of an investigation about the possible use of federal funds in raising campaign monies for Hightower, who is seeking reelection.

Guthrie said that Ron Ederer, the U.S. attorney heading the investigation, is a Republican and Hightower is a Democrat.

"I think those two facts taken together can be viewed by a person of reasonable intelligence as leading to a conclusion that there is political motivation," Guthrie said.

Ederer told The Dallas Morning News that politics had no role in the investigation.

"Mr. Boyd is fully confident that a determination that he has done nothing wrong will ultimately be made," Guthrie said.

The Austin American-Statesman on Thursday reported the FBI and a federal grand jury have questioned people connected with the Texas Department of Agriculture about contracts the agency had with Associated Consultants Inc., which Boyd leads.

Sources said Boyd, who was a longtime employee of the Agriculture Department, solicited campaign contributions for Hightower from people regulated by the state agency.

Records on file with the state comptroller's office show that between 1987 and 1989 the department had three contracts totaling $24,900 with Boyd's firm. Each contract was for $9,950 or less.

By entering into contracts for less than $10,000, the agency was not required to publicize the hiring.

Boyd was to advise the state agency about seed laws and enforcing weight and measure regulations.

The Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday that Hightower's campaign received $6,600 from seed and grain dealers when their chief regulators met them with Boyd, identified as a consultant who solicited the donations.

The newspaper said financial disclosure reports show that virtually all of the donations were made within a day of the visits by Boyd and Bill Quicksall, the interim director of the Texas Department of Agriculture's grain and seed warehouse division.

Some dealers were quoted as saying they agree with Hightower's policies and intended to contribute to his reelection anyway. Others said they felt an implied threat to ante up, or it could be bad for business.

"Mr. Boyd flatly denies any improprieties of any kind in connection with the consulting contracts he has had with the Department of Agriculture," Guthrie said.

"Mr. Boyd never threatened or coerced anyone to make any campaign contribution," he said.

But Guthrie conceded, "there could have been an appearance there that could be misinterpreted, but that was not the intent at all."

Hightower's campaign refunded some contributions.

"I don't want any kind of contribution brought to me under any kind of duress," Hightower told the Dallas newspaper.

A spokesman for Hightower, Andy Welch, told The Associated Press Thursday that the ag commissioner had no further comment.

Anti-drug cartel comes from summit

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush, expressing no surprise that the high-security drug summit in Colombia was peaceful, hails it as an "ice-breaking meeting" that will lead to more ambitious international efforts to control drugs.

"We in fact created the first anti-drug cartel," Bush declared after he and the presidents of Colombia, Bolivia and Peru signed a communique vowing closer coordination in the war on drugs.

And while the "Document of Cartagena" broke no major new ground in specifics, Bush hailed the session as "having forged an unprecedented alliance against the drug trade."

The president said he hopes to enlist U.S. allies in Europe and elsewhere in the drug fight, and that an international effort against drug trafficking will be high on the agenda at the July economic summit of major industrial democracies in Houston.

"I'll give a full report" to U.S. allies "on this ice-breaking meeting here," he said.

The communique, which aides said was written before Thursday's session, calls for a "world conference against illicit drug trafficking" in 1991 and a "high level" Latin American followup in six months.

It also commits the Bush administration to provide economic aid to help the three Andean nations wage the drug battle and help persuade their farmers to switch to legal crops. It calls for tougher enforcement of drug laws, better exchanges of information and increased restrictions on the movement of firearms.

And, it asserts that the drug problem is one equally troubling to drug-producing nations and drug-consuming ones.

Bush returned to Washington without incident late Thursday after the day-long trip that was made under intense security.

He was leaving again later today for a three-day weekend at his oceanside vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine.

Because of security concerns over the safety of the airport at Cartagena, Bush flew into and took off from the more secluded airport in Barranquilla, about 60 miles away. He flew back and forth between Barranquilla and Cartagena by helicopter.

But Bush shrugged off any concern about his own safety.

Asked in Barranquilla if he was surprised there was no violence to protest his visit, Bush said "I am not surprised," and he complimented Colombian and U.S. Secret Service security details for doing a good job.

Richards: no drug abuse

AUSTIN (AP) - State Treasurer Ann Richards, front-runner in the Democratic gubernatorial race, says she never abused illegal drugs and that's that.

"I have said all I am going to say on this issue," Ms. Richards said in a statement issued by her campaign Thursday after rival Jim Mattox made public his medical records and declared himself drug-free.

Mattox, who most polls have shown running third in the March 13 Democratic primary for governor, said his medical history is an open book.

"I have never used any illegal drugs, including marijuana, cocaine, cocaine derivatives, heroin, methamphetamine, hallucinogens, mood-altering chemicals or any prohibited substance - period," Mattox said.

His statements come as most of the major gubernatorial candidates in both parties have made a war against illegal drugs a key campaign issue.

During a debate last week among those two and former Gov. Mark White, Ms. Richards, a recovering alcoholic, was asked if she could assure voters she'd never abused illegal drugs.

"I can assure voters my addiction was alcohol," she replied.

Asked later whether she had abused illegal drugs, Ms. Richards said, "The answer is no. I have revealed more information about my personal life - including my alcoholism and recovery - than any other candidate running for governor this year, or any time in the history of Texas."

But both Mattox and a White spokesman said they didn't think Ms. Richards had fully answered the question.

"She talked about alcoholism, and that was not the question that was asked," Mattox said, adding that his opponent "obviously dodged the question both times it was asked."

Said White's press secretary, Gary Rasp, "I don't think she has sufficiently answered the question."

Mattox and White told the debate they've never used illegal drugs. In 1986, White had released to The Associated Press medical records showing him to have tested drug-free.

"Governor White's in great health and we'll be glad to provide evidence of that," Rasp said. "It's (providing records) not a problem, it's just a matter of logistics."

Glenn Smith, Ms. Richards' campaign manager, Thursday said the campaign was releasing a letter from Dr. Charles E. Felger, who has treated Ms. Richards since 1975.

The letter, dated Sept. 13, 1989, said there was no evidence that Ms. Richards has "at any time, resumed the consumption of alcohol since 1980," when she was treated for alcoholism.

"She last underwent a complete medical evaluation on 3-22-88 at the Austin Diagnostic Clinic. At that time, she was on no medications and she remains on no medications at the present time. Her complete physical examination was well within normal limits," Felger wrote.

"In my opinion, Ms. Richards is in excellent physical and mental health," his letter said.

Asked about criticism over her answers to the question, campaign manager Smith said Thursday, "Ann made a statement that finally closes the door on that ... She's said the last thing she's going to say on this."

Smith renewed the campaign's demand that Mattox follow Ms. Richards' lead and release his income tax returns. Ms. Richards, state treasurer since 1982, has made public her returns for the time she has held public office.

The BIG winner loses

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) - It was a great scheme that almost worked. Someone who wanted to win a new car very, very badly almost did, but they were just too lucky.

Officials at the Snacks and Tracks Car Center, an Exxon service station-convenience store, thought it was strange that the person who won the new Pontiac Firebird at their drawing Wednesday also won all three runner-up prizes.

So they opened the box containing the handwritten entries, numbering more than 2,000, and discovered they were all entered by the same person.

It is unknown how the real ticket box was taken, according to Nick Davis, manager of the station. Davis believes the theft of the estimated 6,000 real tickets took place between 12:30 a.m. and 6:45 a.m. Wednesday.

Davis said police told him they would question the man named on the tickets. The company plans to press charges in the incident, Davis said.

A new drawing for the car will take place on March 1, Davis said. The old entries, if they are recovered, will not be valid, he added.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek remind us that the only people without problems are in cemeteries.

Some people seem to have opinions that have been in their families for generations.

"Maintenance free" really means that when it breaks, it can't be fixed.

If you have an athlete at home, you might be interested in reading the following article, entitled "Parent Responsibilities." It was put together by a girls' coach at another school where trouble developed with parents who "knew more about coaching than the staff." It is not an uncommon problem here, or at any school. The suggested role of parents applies to mothers and dads of all athletes:

1. Be sure your child has a minimum of six to eight hours of sleep each night. If athletes manage their time properly, they will have plenty of time for studies. Learning to manage one's time is part of becoming an adult.
2. As a parent, it is your responsibility to feed your child three meals a day. Be sure he is eating nutritional meals and not junk food.
3. When the weather is cold, be sure your child is wearing a coat or sweater to school.
4. As a parent, it is your responsibility to know where your child is going when they leave home, who they will be with and what time they will return.

5. Listen to your child when they are down-hearted about their progress in their particular sport. If a player is dissatisfied with something - playing time, position, etc., he/she should talk to the coaches about it first. Parents should not interfere. Teach your child to work out his own problems.

6. Do not coach your child at home. If you want to coach, apply for a coaching job. Do not interfere.

7. Be positive with your child at home. Do not criticize the coaches, the program, or your child's abilities at home; he/she will get constructive criticism and correction in the program.

8. If your child is sick, be sure the coaching staff is notified in advance that the player will miss practice. As a parent, you should take your child to the doctor or do whatever is best for a quick recovery.

9. If your child is too sick to go to practice, he is also too sick to go other places. Keep him at home until he is well.

10. Do not gossip. This creates dissension among the parents and the team.

11. Do not try to live your athletic endeavors through your child. Allow him to perform to his capabilities, not to your level of expectations.

Western leaders meet on Eastern Europe aid

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - Officials from 24 Western nations met today to discuss appeals by five East European countries for desperately needed aid to restore their crippled economies.

The officials streamed into a building near the headquarters of the 12-nation European Community to consider the requests of Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Yugoslavia.

The new governments in those once solidly Communist countries want to be included in a program originally set up last summer to promote economic and political change in Poland and Hungary.

Foreign ministers of the 24 Western nations taking part in the program have agreed in principle to offer assistance to the other countries to encourage their drives toward democracy and free-market economies.

But it was unclear whether the lower-ranking officials meeting today would give the go-ahead to put together packages of aid for the others.

Some had indicated before the meeting a final decision was unlikely and would probably be deferred to their foreign ministers, expected to meet later in the year, possibly in June.

But others today appeared ready to act more quickly. "You've got to maintain the momentum," said another official as he entered the conference. Both demanded anonymity.

The plan is one of several Western mechanisms aimed at restoring economic health to Eastern European economies languishing after decades of central planning under hard-line Communist rule.

The aid programs are expected to amount to the largest campaign of regional assistance since the Marshall Plan rebuilt Western Europe after World War II.

In July, President Bush and other key leaders of industrial nations put the European Community, a group of Western European nations, in charge of fashioning an economic aid package for Poland and Hungary.

Since then, other emerging democracies in Eastern Europe have appealed for help.

Officials said Bulgaria, Romania, East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia have submitted papers giving details of their reform efforts and outlining their economic needs.

They are now trying to move their economies to the free-market models of the West. But some, such as Poland, are strapped with hefty foreign debts.

Polish Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki has already asked the creditor nations would accept a moratorium of payments on their share of Poland's $39 billion foreign debt while he implements a radical economic plan to transform Poland's economy.

Their requests are expected to be discussed at the meeting of the Group of 24, the name given to the Western nations participating in the program. But officials said they doubted whether any final decisions would be made on extending the aid program.

Foreign ministers of the participating nations are likely to meet later in the year to settle the question.

Under the program, about $6 billion has been granted or promised to Poland and Hungary in the coming years, according to officials. The aid ranges from emergency food shipments for Poland to export and investment credits for both countries.

On Monday, finance ministers of the European Community approved a $1 billion loan over five years for Hungary.

The initial draw of money will be available once the Budapest government works out an economic plan with the International Monetary Fund, which helps financially ailing countries.

The Soviet Union has not been invited to submit a request for help.

Nations attending the meeting include the European Community members: Britain, Ireland, Norway, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Germany, France, Spain, Italy and Portugal.

Also attending were Austria, Australia, Canada, Finland, Iceland, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and the United States.

Ivana wants 'fair and equitable share' of $1.7 billion

NEW YORK (AP) - Donald Trump's lawyers deny that the billionaire has agreed to give his estranged wife, Ivana, $100 million in exchange for quickly settling their much-publicized divorce.

"There are no offers and there will be none," Trump lawyers Jay Goldberg and Stanford Lotwin said in a statement. They said the Trump prenuptial and postnuptial agreements were "ironclad."

The last written agreement calls for Ivana to receive $25 million, custody of the couple's three children and the couple's mansion in Connecticut.

But she wants more. And according to reports in New York's tabloid newspapers, which have avidly covered the Trump divorce, she'll probably get it.

Liz Smith, gossip columnist for the Daily News, reported in today's editions that Trump is negotiating to offer Ivana "more money than even the aforesaid $100 million."

New York Newsday had quoted Trump associates as saying Trump planned to up the ante to $100 million.

Mrs. Trump, who runs the Plaza Hotel and Trump Castle in Atlantic City, N.J., has said she wants "a fair and equitable share" of Trump's estimated $1.7 billion fortune.

The usually media-friendly Trump said nothing.

Security men hustled him in and out of the Plaza Hotel Thursday for a news conference about the championship boxing match between Thomas Hearns and Michael Olajide.

Asked by a reporter if he planned to give Ivana more money, Trump smiled politely and said: "Have a good time."

Hearns' manager, Emanuel Steward couldn't resist a gentle jab at Trump.

"I want to thank The Donald for getting the crowd out for us today," he said. "The Donald" is Ivana's pet name for her husband.

Hearns, asked to predict the winner in the Trump vs. Trump fight, made a sure bet: "A Trump is gonna win somewhere."

Trump, 43, walked out on his wife Sunday after nearly 13 years of marriage amid reports he was involved with 26-year-old actress-model Marla Maples, whom a source said he met at the church where the Trumps were wed.

Ms. Maples has not commented on the Trump split, but her agent, Chuck Jones, denies she's involved.

Try telling that to the New York Post, which today ran this headline across its front page: "Marla boasts to her pals about Donald: 'Best sex I've ever had.'"

The Post said Maples once told an unidentified actress who studied with her from 1987 to last spring at the Actors in Advertising school in Manhattan that Trump was a "wonderful, wonderful lover."

The Post also said that Trump told Maples' parents he would "take care" of their daughter.

Reagan giving taped testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former President Reagan gives videotaped testimony today for the Iran-Contra trial of John Poindexter, whose lawyers are trying to destroy the former president's claim that he knew little about the activities of overzealous aides.

Reagan's testimony at the federal courthouse in Los Angeles could be the toughest questioning he has faced about the scandal that caused heavy political damage to the final two years of his presidency.

With the press and public barred from attending, Reagan was being asked 154 questions plus follow-ups that focus on his meetings with Poindexter, his former national security adviser. Then Reagan faced cross-examination by Iran-Contra prosecutors, in questioning that could carry over until Saturday.

Poindexter goes on trial March 5 on charges of concealing from Congress Oliver North's assistance to the Contras and lying about a 1985 shipment of Hawk missiles to Iran.

Three years ago, Reagan portrayed himself as a president who was kept in the dark. But Poindexter contends he kept his boss fully informed about all aspects of the affair - with the apparent exception of the diversion of Iran arms sale money to the Contras - and that Reagan authorized his activities.

Reagan said early in 1987 that he hadn't known about "secret bank accounts and diverted funds," two products of the Iran-Contra affair which he found "personally distasteful." He told the Tower Commission he didn't know the National Security Council staff was assisting the Nicaraguan Contras.

Poindexter subsequently told Congress, however, he believed Reagan understood that "Col. North was instrumental in keeping the Contras supported in without maybe understanding the details of exactly what he was doing."

Details emerged at North's trial last year of Reagan's telephone call to the president of Honduras to get the release of a seized shipment of ammunition destined for the Contras.

Also at North's trial, an NSC staffer testified that CIA director William Casey said Reagan had designated North as the "principal point of reference" for sustaining the Contras during a congressional ban on military aid to the rebel force.

In 1987, Poindexter said it was understandable that Reagan didn't recall a briefing in which the national security adviser provided details about the Contra support program.

But today's questions by Poindexter's lawyers sought to press the former president about his almost-daily meetings with his national security adviser.

On Thursday, U.S. District Judge Harold Greene rejected a request by news organizations to attend today's deposition. However, Greene said he would order the videotape released within a few days, after editing to remove material deemed to touch on classified matters.

Fight periodontal disease

Despite recent advances in modern dentistry, periodontal diseases continue to be the leading cause of tooth loss in adults, according to Dr. Stephen F. Goodman, clinical professor of dentistry at Columbia University School of Dental and Oral Surgery.

The Save Teeth, Exercise Prevention (STEP) Program developed by Teledyne Water Pik provides step-by-step instructions for establishing a proper routine for optimum oral hygiene.

The STEP Program begins with a home-care regimen of conscientious daily flossing, brushing and for people who have trouble controlling plaque, using an oral irrigator to reduce the amount of bacteria associated with disease on tooth surfaces and gums.

FLOSSING

Floss first to disrupt plaque, making it possible to brush it away.

Both waxed and unwaxed dental floss are acceptable; however, studies reveal that unwaxed floss may be more effective in reducing plaque because it separates and becomes more abrasive.

Use a gentle sawing motion to get between the teeth so that you don't injure the gum. Curve the floss into a C-shape around the tooth and gently slide it into the gumline. Move the floss up and down and back and forth against the tooth; then, wrap floss around the adjacent tooth and repeat. Don't neglect to floss behind your back teeth.

BRUSHING

Daily brushing is important for removing plaque and food debris from the inner, outer and biting surfaces of the teeth.

Use a soft, multi-tufted toothbrush with rounded corners to protect the gums while brushing.

Use a toothbrush with a handle that is long enough to reach the back teeth. Hold the toothbrush snugly between your thumb and index finger.

Help protect tooth enamel and root surfaces from decay by using fluoride toothpaste or gel.

Brush daily in two-to-three-minute sessions after each meal and snack, as well as before bedtime.

To brush, place the toothbrush on a 45-degree angle with the bristles against the gumline. Use short, horizontal motions to lightly "scrub" all tooth surfaces, one or two teeth at a time; then move to the next area.

First, brush inner surfaces of the lower teeth, then the outer-lower surfaces, then brush the inner-upper surfaces, outer-upper surfaces, and finish by brushing the biting surfaces of the teeth.

Brush the top side of the tongue to freshen breath and reduce remaining bacteria in the mouth.

ORAL IRRIGATION

For people who have trouble controlling plaque or are susceptible to periodontal diseases, using an oral irrigator completes an effective home-care dental hygiene program.

By sending a pulsating stream of water or antibacterial solution-a recommended mouthwash or rinse-beneath the gums, an oral irrigator, such as the Water Pik, can help remove plaque-causing bacteria below the gumline, where both flossing and brushing miss.

Teeth and gums-when properly cared for-can and should last a lifetime. By following the Water Pik STEP Program and visiting your dentist regularly, people can significantly increase their chances of maintaining healthy gums and teeth.

Make after-exercise grooming organized

If you're like most men today, maintaining your health, staying fit and improving your physical appearance have become important priorities. You probably find yourself scheduling exercise into your lunch hour, after-office time or even before work. This means that your workout session and after-workout grooming regimen must be as organized and efficient as possible.

Start by setting an exercise schedule for yourself and sticking to it. For example, commit yourself to exercising every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Plan to make exercise a personal priority on those designated days. Follow a simple but effective exercise routine that will tone your body and relax your mind. This can be a real energizer and will also help relieve stress from everyday situations.

Some of the most common exercise time-frames, like lunch hours, make it especially important to return to the office looking well-groomed and refreshed. Maintaining good grooming habits can also enhance your positive self-image and confidence.

Concentrate on hair, face, skin and hands. It is important to maintain all of these physical features in order to look your best.

One of the easiest ways to make your after-exercise grooming regimen simple is to have your gym bag always ready and fully equipped. Use a light bag that is easy to carry and has side compartments to store toiletries and other accessories.

When showering, use a bar of deodorant soap to get that clean, refreshed feeling. Be sure to shampoo your hair with an effective body-building shampoo. Pack a mini hair dryer so you won't leave the gym with wet hair after shampooing.

Other necessities to have in your gym bag include: Anti-perspirant, cologne, toothpaste, toothbrush, combination lock, sweat bands, weight gloves and a tee-shirt and shorts for your workout. Also, bring an extra change of clean clothes for afterwards.

A disposable razor and trial-size shaving cream also come in handy if you choose to shave at the gym. Be sure to apply facial astringent after shaving to clean the pores of your skin. Follow with a light moisturizer (tubes are great for carrying) to deep skin soft. Apply moisturizer to hands as well to avoid dryness.

Before, during and after your workout, drink a lot of water. This will keep your body hydrated. It will also keep your skin looking clean and healthy.

By following these helpful exercise and grooming tips, you can look and feel your best every day.

Valentine party held

A Valentine party was given by the Velda Study Club members to honor their husbands. The group gathered at the George Ritter home for a salad supper.

Valentine bouquets of red carnations and white hearts decorated the serving table and the individual tables for four. Red plates and napkins were used with white tablecloths to continue the Valentine theme. Assisting the hostess, Joyce Ritter, were Deaun Sisson and Betty Gilbert.

The group played games of Pictionary. Prizes were awarded to Lloyd Crume, Juanita Brown, Marcella Brady, Gid Brown, and Betty Dickerson. Brown won the grand prize of the evening.

After the games, pie and coffee were served to Gid and Juanita Brown, Lloyd and Francis Crume, Beryl and Ruth Fish, J.D. and Betty Gilbert, Billy Wayne and Sisson, George and Joyce Ritter, Bill and Norma Walden, Bradley, Dickerson, Della Hutchins, Betty Roberts and Margaret Zinser.

The next meeting will be a program presented by Deaun Sisson on "Ways to Tie a Scarf".

approach to life is too restrictive; that it means being too careful about too many things or that it requires too much effort or they may have some other objection. It may be possible to be overly cautious and unduly fearful. Of course, this is not recommended; however, we know that sensible, knowledgeable caution is always justified and generally profitable. This helps us to prevent many of the problems and difficulties that might otherwise develop.

The hurtful restrictions and exhausting efforts eventually come to the careless, unconcerned and reckless persons. The difficulties that they could have prevented eventually become their heavy burdens. Just a reasonable interest in preventive action could have saved them the trouble and loss that they must endure.

Here is a golden maxim that has been proven profitable with the passing of time: "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." This works as a practical and profitable guideline in all important areas of life. It applies in personal health care; in the formation of personal habits; in the wise management of our financial affairs; in the maintenance of our automobiles and all other necessary equipment; in the upkeep of our dwellings and our public buildings; and in many, many other aspects of the whole life structure.

There is real profit in prevention. Preventive practices are life savers, money savers, time savers, energy savers, and health savers and there is almost no limit to the "profit in prevention."

We would be wise to remember this homespun philosophy: "A stitch in time saves nine."

Vincent 'pessimistic' about spring training starting soon

NEW YORK (AP) — The doors to spring training were shut and Commissioner Fay Vincent sounded down. The sides were talking on the first day of the lockout of 1990, but there didn't seem to be much common ground.

"I am extremely pessimistic. It was not a very productive day," Vincent said Thursday after a four-hour meeting in his office. "I am pessimistic about resolving this in the near term. I am pessimistic because we're talking, but we don't seem to be making much progress. As of tonight, I'm not very encouraged."

"We're talking, and that's a good thing. Tomorrow's another day. But as of tonight, it does not look very good."

There was sunshine in Florida and Arizona as baseball began its seventh shutdown in nearly 20 years. But the outlook was grey in New York, where negotiators for players and owners met for the 22nd time since talks began.

"Beauty is in the eye of the beholder," Chuck O'Connor, the chief negotiator for management, said in his description of the talks. "I think the fact that we spent that amount of time in the room is progress. That is in the eye of a labor negotiator. If anyone (else) was sitting in the room, you might say, 'My God, if that's progress, I'd hate to see a bad day.' It was in inches, not in quantum leaps."

Vincent's plan, which would impose a 75 percent cap on salary increases for players in arbitration, met with stiff reaction from the players association on Wednesday. Union head Donald Fehr had a softer tone Thursday.

"Certainly nothing was settled today or anything reasonably like that," Fehr said, adding that he wanted to wait a day before assessing the talks.

Vincent's plan replaced the revenue sharing and pay-for-performance proposals that management had advocated since last summer.

"The need to reach an agreement in a certain point of time overrides the adherence to a particular method of getting there," O'Connor said in his explanation for the switch.

Now that the sides are talking about the same issues, they're talking about the same disagreements they've had in the past. Fehr said the sides spent most of the day discussing arbitration and the benefit plan. Sources familiar with the talks characterized the arbitration discussion as acrimonious.

"Arbitration is, as it has been in all the previous negotiations, a major stumbling block," Fehr said in a briefing for reporters at his office.

While management is proposing to restrict arbitration rights, the union proposes to expand them by allowing players with between two and three years in the major leagues to file. The union agreed to increase eligibility from two to three years in the settlement of 1985's two-day strike.

O'Connor said the debate had come down to three sticking points — arbitration, minimum salary and the pension plan.

The union has asked the minimum salary be raised from $68,000 to between $100,000 and $125,000. Vincent proposed minimums of $75,000 for first-year players, $125,000 for players with one year of service and $200,000 for players with two years.

Management is proposing that its $39 million yearly contribution to the benefit plan stay the same while the union is asking for a proportional increase in line with the new national television contracts.

O'Connor objected to the way the media portrayed the union's initial reaction, saying the negative remarks were misinterpreted as a rejection.

"The publicity of an out-of-hand rejection became the evening news story, and that was not accurate," O'Connor said. "Sometimes changes come in incremental steps."

Cal wins first at Pauley

By The Associated Press

California had never won at Pauley Pavilion and the UCLA faithful were letting the Bears know about it before the game.

California beat No. 23 UCLA 79-71 on Thursday night to end 30 years of frustration. The last time the Bears had beaten UCLA at Los Angeles was Feb. 20, 1960, 32 games ago which included an 0-25 mark at Pauley Pavilion.

"I had a funny feeling before the game when our student section was getting on them for never winning here," UCLA coach Jim Harrick said.

The Bears (18-6, 9-4) pulled into a tie for third in the Pac-10 with UCLA (16-6, 9-4) as Keith Smith scored 22 points and Roy Fisher 21.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 5 Michigan 77, No. 17 Minnesota 73; No. 7 UNLV 109, No. 25 New Mexico State 86; Kentucky 100, No. 9 Louisiana State 95; No. 13 Georgia Tech 83, Fordham 78; Washington 66, No. 16 Oregon State 57; No. 18 Louisville 97, Virginia Tech 78; No. 20 Arizona 71, Arizona State 50; No. 22 Xavier, Ohio 71, Evansville 52.

UCLA shot 65 percent from the field in a 106-97 victory at California on Jan. 21, but were held to 41.2 percent in the first home loss of the season.

UCLA took a 44-43 lead with 15:22 remaining on Darrick Martin's 3-pointer, its only lead of the second half. Bill Elleby's 3-pointer with 13:05 left broke a 46-46 tie and started a 10-1 run by California. Elleby capped it with a short jumper to make it 56-47 with 9:11 minutes left. UCLA, which made just six of 23 3-point attempts, never got closer than five at the end of the way.

No. 5 Michigan 77, No. 17 Minnesota 73

Rhumal Robinson scored a career-high 33 points. With Michigan leading 53-50, Robinson made a layup and a 3-pointer and Terry Mills, who finished with 24, made two short jumpers to give the Wolverines a 12-point lead with 10:10 left. Minnesota was led by Willie Burton's 25 points.

No. 7 UNLV 109, No. 25 New Mexico State 86

The Runnin' Rebels made 11 3-pointers in the first half, with Anderson scoring on eight as he scored 26 of his 31 points in the first half.

UNLV's biggest lead was 75-47 with 15 minutes left. Keith Hill led visiting New Mexico State with 21 points.

Kentucky 100, No. 9 LSU 95

Richie Farmer made six free throws in the final 1:05.

The victory was the fourth in a row for the Wildcats, who were led by Derrick Miller's 29 points. The Tigers trailed 87-70, but rallied behind Chris Jackson, who finished with 41 points.

But Farmer hit both ends of a 1-and-1 then made two more foul shots 17 seconds later to give Kentucky a 98-92 edge.

No. 13 Georgia Tech 83, Fordham 78

Kenny Anderson, the highest scoring high school player in New York state history, made a triumphant return to his home city with 19 points and 13 assists.

Georgia Tech got its running game going with a 21-5 run for a 12-point lead with 3:21 to play. Brian Oliver led Georgia Tech with 26 points, while Jean Prioleau led the Rams with 23.

Washington 66,

No. 16 Oregon State 57

The Huskies put the clamps on guard Gary Payton, holding him to 13 points, half his season's average. Washington led 29-22 at halftime on its home court and held on as the Beavers closed to within 58-54 with 1:13 left, but the Huskies quickly got it back to a 10-point lead.

Eldridge Recasner led Washington with 28 points, while Payton led the Beavers.

No. 18 Louisville 97, Virginia Tech 78

The Cardinals beat the Hokies for the 11th straight time as six Louisville players scored in double figures.

Oiler nose tackle wounded in North Carolina bar shooting

NEW BLRN, N.C. (AP) — Houston Oilers nose tackle and Mesic, N.C., native Doug Smith was listed in good condition on Thursday at Craven Regional Medical Center after he was shot in the right knee with a hunting rifle.

Smith, 30, in his fifth year with the Oilers, was wounded Tuesday night during an argument at a nightclub known as Felix Jones' Place outside of Mesic, according to Pamlico County Sheriff Leland Brinson.

George Credle, 40, of Mesic was charged by the Pamlico County Sheriff's Office with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. Credle allegedly fired two shots at a running Smith with a 30.06 rifle, hitting him once, Brinson said.

Credle was arrested without incident after deputies stopped his truck about five miles from the nightclub.

"The knee remains functionally intact," said Dr. Carl Hiller, the orthopedic surgeon here who is treating Smith. "Barring complications, Smith plans to return to his football career."

Hiller has been in contact with the Houston Oilers team physician.

"We would like to get him to Houston in the near future to be looked at by our doctors here," said Tip Namias, director of media relations for the Oilers. "The most important situation is making sure Doug's okay."

In 1978 after his senior year at Pamlico County High School, Smith went to East Carolina for two years, then to Auburn.

A second-round draft choice of the Oilers in 1984, Smith opted instead to sign with the Birmingham Stallions of the USFL. He joined the Oilers during the 1985 season and has started 14 nose tackle for the last five years.

The 6-foot-6, 286-pound Smith played 15 of 16 regular season games for the Oilers during the past season, starting 13 of those, according to Namias.

Rockets blast NY with Thorpe, Floyd

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The Akcem Olajuwon-Patrick Ewing battle of All-Star centers was a virtual standstill. The less ballyhooed matchups were a rout for the Houston Rockets.

Olajuwon's 25 points, 15 rebounds and eight blocked shots were matched by Ewing's 33 points 13 rebounds and six blocks for New York. The Rockets got the better of the other individual battles in a 124-105 victory over the Knicks Thursday night.

Otis Thorpe had a career-high 26 rebounds and 21 points and point guard Sleepy Floyd had 27 points and 10 assists as the Rockets snapped the Knicks' six-game winning streak. Thorpe's counterpart, Charles Oakley, had two points and five rebounds and Knicks point guard Mark Jackson had eight points and two assists.

"The biggest factor, and the reason we lost, is that Houston was outstanding," Knicks coach Stu Jackson said. "They dominated us. They got 70 rebounds. I've never seen that in the NBA or anywhere else."

"I hope this is the start of something good," Rockets coach Don Chaney said. "I hope we can keep it up."

"Akcem was sky-high for Ewing and he will be for Saturday night" against San Antonio's David Robinson.

In other NBA games, it was Seattle 103, New Jersey 92; Atlanta 130, Orlando 123; Golden State 113, Washington 107 and the Los Angeles Lakers 101, Sacramento 92.

The Rockets pulled away in the final period, outscoring the Knicks 30-17, and finished with a 70-42 rebounding advantage.

Thorpe had 18 rebounds and 13 points in the first half, helping the Rockets lead 64-53.

"I thought I needed to make things happen," Thorpe said. "I'm charging to the basket more. Things pick up when you're rebounding and running and opening the floor."

The Rockets built the lead to 86-70 in the third quarter before New York rallied, outscoring Houston 18-8 over the final 5:07 of the period.

But Houston pulled away in the final eight minutes, outscoring the Knicks 20-13.

The Rockets led 38-30 at the end of the first quarter despite Ewing's 14 points. Houston outscored the Knicks 14-6 over the final 4:54 of the period.

SuperSonics 103, Nets 92

Seattle handed New Jersey its 12th consecutive loss behind Derrick McKey's 31 points and 14 rebounds.

The SuperSonics, who have won four straight road games after a 2-17 start away from home, outrebounded the Nets 66-33 as Michael Cage added 13 rebounds and Nate McMillan 10.

Ahead 55-43 at the half, the Sonics outscored the Nets 12-3 to open the third period, taking a 67-46 lead as Dana Barros, who scored 21 points, hit a pair of 3-pointers.

The Nets, who got no closer than eight in the second half, were led by Purvis Short with 25 points.

Lakers 101, Kings 92

Wayman Tisdale scored 23 points for Sacramento and Antoine Carr added 17 in his debut for the Kings, who acquired him from Atlanta on Tuesday. Carr scored nine points in the final three minutes as the Kings tried to rally from a 14-point deficit.

James Worthy had 20 points and Byron Scott and Magic Johnson 17 points each for the Lakers, who stayed in front with free throws during an 11 1/2-minute span without a field goal in the second half.

Warriors 113, Bullets 107

Golden State set a franchise record with its 15th consecutive home victory as Tim Hardaway scored 24 points and Chris Mullin 23 against Washington.

The loss was the ninth in 10 road games for the Bullets, who were led by Jeff Malone with 30 points and Bernard King and Harvey Grant with 24 each.

The Warriors trailed by eight points with 7:46 left in the game, but a 12-4 spurt tied the game, and Golden State took the lead for good on Mullin's layup with 3:47 left.

Hawks 130, Magic 123

Atlanta defeated Orlando as Kevin Willis had season highs with 30 points and 17 rebounds.

The Magic, who never led in the game, trailed nine different times by 17 points, but a basket by Michael Ansley with 7:37 left made it 102-100.

Willis then scored 11 points in the final 7:15 to keep the Hawks ahead.

Dominique Wilkins led the Hawks with 32 points, 24 in the first half. Reggie Theus scored 32 points for the Magic, while Ansley added 24 and Terry Catledge 23.

'Hush money' tape sent to AG

AUSTIN (AP) - Portions of a tape-recorded interview between former Texas A&M football player George Smith and school officials about allegations of NCAA violations are excluded from public disclosure, Attorney General Jim Mattox said.

Last year, Smith, a running back, said an A&M official offered him "hush money" to publicly recant statements he made to The Dallas Morning News that the school earlier paid him to keep quiet about NCAA recruitment violations.

The allegations touched off a controversy that led to football Coach

Jackie Sherrill's departure from the school.

But Smith later denied making the statements about the "hush money."

In the attorney general's opinion released Thursday, Mattox said a more than two-hour tape-recorded interview between A&M officials and Smith concerning the recruitment allegations was excluded from the Texas Open Records Act.

Mattox said the tape could be kept secret because the interview dealt with the "education record" of Smith. This includes recruitment information because it is related to a students' education record, the opinion said.

Part of the Open Records Act prohibits the release of information contained in education records under the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act. This act prohibits federal funds to educational institutions that permit the release of education records without the consent of the student.

Smith was interviewed by A&M general counsel James Bond and Vice President of finance and administration Robert Smith, according to the opinion.

Smith, who played high school football in Coffee County, Ga., answered questions about his recruitment by A&M and other schools, his contacts with A&M coaches after transferring to another university, and other events of his life at A&M, the opinion stated.

Some information on the tape recordings has appeared in newspaper articles.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:

If you were faced with an emergency and had to call a 911 operator for assistance, would you know exactly what to do? Both the information you give and how you give it are equally important. So you can give all the necessary information properly and get the help you need, here are a few guidelines.

If you need assistance in the event of an emergency, dial 911 for an emergency operator. If you are out of state or abroad and you are not sure of the emergency number, dial 0 for an operator, who will be able to direct your call.

Tell the operator the exact location of the emergency, including the street address, apartment number if necessary, city or town and any landmarks in the area. Emergency operators sometimes take calls from a large area so they may not know exactly where you are. This is why the exact address and landmarks are important. Let the emergency operator know what type of service is needed: medical, police or fire. If possible, describe the situation and tell the operator how many people are injured. Describe the condition of the victim or victims and any first aid that has been or is being administered.

The emergency operator may give you instructions, so listen carefully. If you have a pencil and paper handy, write them down because it's easy to forget in the confusion.

If you are not able to watch for the arriving help, have someone meet the emergency vehicles and direct them to the victims. Or open a door, hang a towel over a railing, turn on all the lights, anything to show where help is needed.

Do not hang up the phone until the emergency operator tells you to because it may take a few moments to dispatch emergency help before taking further information.

Teach everyone in your household these important and potentially life-saving guidelines.

Children can also learn the 911 number, its importance and these guidelines. You should make a chart for them to follow in the event of an emergency and then practice. It just may save a life.

Most of us can imagine what it would be like to be helpless, but can you imagine being an uninformed child who must watch his loved one suffer? — Heloise

PLANT-WATERING ALTERNATIVE

Dear Heloise: I have several hanging plants that are in inconvenient places to water. My solution includes recycling various sizes of plastic soda bottles.

I fill a bottle with water and plant food and freeze it. After it is frozen, I poke three or four holes in the bottom of the bottle and put it in the plant pot. The frozen water melts and drips slowly into the soil.

Ice cubes can be used too, but caution is advised with delicate leaf plants. — D. Tatum, Costa Mesa, Calif.

Another great recycling hint! One hundred lucky readers will receive a personally autographed copy of my new book, "Heloise's Hints For a Healthy Planet" printed on recycled paper. Just send in your best recycling or conservation hint and be sure to include your name, mailing address and telephone number to Heloise, Recycle, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, Texas 78279 — Heloise

Send a money or time-saving hint to Heloise, P.O. Box 795000, San Antonio, TX 78279 or fax it to 512 HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

In parts of Europe, it was once believed good for the crops to pluck chicken feathers.

Tips for parents given

Because of the potential danger of small batteries being swallowed by little children, parents should keep miniature watch, hearing aid, camera, and similar small batteries away from children.

If your child should swallow a miniature battery, immediately call the National Battery Ingestion Hotline (202) 625-3333. The public is being alerted to the 24-hour hotline by the American Watchmakers Institute. The most serious and immediate danger when a child swallows a battery is whether it will clear the esophagus. If it does, and if the battery does not get "hung up" or become damaged, it will usually pass normally through the digestive system.

Another hazard of letting small children gain access to small (button) batteries is that in many cases they will stuff them into their nose or ears. This is easier to deal with, but a call to the "hotline" is also recommended for this situation.

It is also important to remember that heavy metals, such as mercury, in miniature batteries pollute the environment. For safe disposal of used batteries, return them to a member of the American Watchmakers Institute.

Our Best Friends Are Cutting Us To Pieces.

Our best friends don't always give us the best treatment. Typically, they invite us into their homes, read us like a book, take what they need from us, and put us aside to use again at their convenience.

It's a tough existence, but we don't mind. In fact, we like it. The news, editorials, and advertising coupons clipped from our pages provide our readers with knowledge, enlightenment, even an occasional 30¢ off on breakfast cereal. We're kind of flattered that people enjoy hanging onto bits and pieces of us - sometimes for years. That's something no other local advertising medium can offer.

So, although our friends keep cutting us to pieces, we'll keep showing up at their homes. Our only request: sharp scissors and a steady hand.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband has been diagnosed as having Prinzmetal's angina. Just exactly what is Prinzmetal's angina? My husband told me that it is nothing more than muscle spasms around the heart. Maybe I'm being too cautious, but when his problems first started, I would have sworn he was having a heart attack. Originally he had pain in his left arm, then both arms and eventually into the chest area, causing a queezing sensation.

The weird thing about this is it only happens early in the a.m. — around 4 or 5 o'clock. The last two times before he went to a doctor he vomited, turned a gray color, broke out in a cold, clammy sweat and was a little incoherent for a short period of time. I really thought it was the big one. But after about 20 minutes of lying perfectly still, he started coming out of it.

He passed all his tests, including a treadmill test, only his cholesterol was on the high side of normal. The doctor suggested an angiogram, but this meant going 100 miles from our home and he was cutting beans. We farm. My husband is also one of the world's most stubborn bull heads.

His heart doctor has prescribed Cardizem and nitroglycerin when needed. The medicine is controlling these spells. Maybe once a week he takes a couple of nitro tablets. He is 43 years old, 5 feet 9 inches and weighs 190 pounds. What is going to become of this situation? Will it just remain as it is for the rest of his life?

DEAR READER: The most common form of angina is chest and arm pain precipitated by exertion and subsiding with rest, called effort angina. Underlying blockage of one or more coronary arteries is usually the cause.

Prinzmetal's angina occurs at rest — commonly in the night — and that is why it is also called nocturnal angina or variant angina. Most of these episodes are caused by spasm of the coronary arteries, but that does not mean it is not dangerous. The calcium channel blockers such as your husband is getting are used to treat this form of angina.

In about 10 percent to 20 percent of people with Prinzmetal's angina the coronary arteries are normal. But in the others there is blockage and that may make the arteries more susceptible to spasm. I would strongly urge your husband to have his coronary arteries studied even if he has to travel 100 miles and take time off from the farm to have it done. The test does not take very long. If he has some significant underlying obstruction it may need treatment — such as angioplasty, the balloon operation to open the coronary arteries, or he may even need a coronary bypass. The best approach to treating him cannot be determined without a complete understanding of what is in his coronary arteries.

I have discussed angina and myocardial infarctions in Special Report 79, About Heart Attacks, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/79, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

It is not possible to predict what will happen in an individual case of heart disease, but the outlook is much better if the risk factors are controlled. And your husband's outlook may depend on what coronary artery studies show and what he is willing to do about it. For his height, 190 pounds is far too much for a person with angina. He needs to pay attention to his diet and his weight.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am in my late 50s and just had a much needed circumcision. I feel fine physically, except I cannot get an erection to have a normal sex life. My family doctor put me on yohimbine pills. If I keep taking these pills, I can get an erection, but it is difficult. I also take vitamin E tablets daily.

Had I know this would happen, I never would have had an operation of this type. I've tried not to take the yohimbine for 10 days and having an erection is impossible. My family doctor recommends that I see a psychiatrist. I hope you can give me some help or advice.

DEAR READER: A circumcision should not cause you to become impotent. Usually there is increased sensitivity — sometimes to the point of being uncomfortable — after the surgery. That goes away as the surface of the glans (head) undergoes changes.

There certainly could be some psychological problem, including loss of confidence. In young men, "fear of failure" is a frequent cause of impotence. It is less likely to be a factor in an experienced man. However, there are so many medical causes for impotence that I personally favor a complete medical evaluation before deciding that impotence has a psychological basis. In experienced males, impotence is caused by some other factor in at least 75 percent of such cases. In young inexperienced males, psychological factors may occur in over 75 percent.

You need to be evaluated in terms of any medicines you may be taking that could cause impotence. Do you use alcohol? Excess use of alcohol can be a major factor. Do you have diabetes that has not been recognized? Are you having a depression that can be manifested as impotence? A psychiatrist could certainly help with that one. Do you have a tumor of the pituitary gland as a cause of impotence?

If they have not already been done, you should have sleep studies to see if you have normal nocturnal erections. If you do not, your impotence is probably not because of psychological factors. I would have sent you Special Report 70, Doing Something About Impotence, that tells you what can be wrong, what needs to be tested and what can be done, but you didn't include your address on your letter.

Those who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/70, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. A good place to start on these more detailed studies is with a urologist.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Please tell me the difference in ACE inhibitors, beta-blockers and calcium channel blockers.

DEAR READER: All of these can be used to lower blood pressure. A major factor in how high your blood pressure is is the size of the small arteries. When the arteries are constricted, the blood pressure goes up. If they relax, it falls.

A chemical called angiotensin acts on the muscles in the walls of the arteries to cause them to constrict. The active angiotensin is formed by the action of an angiotensin converting enzyme (ACE) and a medicine that inhibits this enzyme is an ACE inhibitor. By preventing the formation of active angiotensin, these medicines lower blood pressure.

Beta-blockers such as Inderal block the sites in the arterial wall where adrenaline acts to constrict the arteries.

The movement of calcium into muscle cells affects their ability to contract. Calcium channel blockers affect this movement and causes arteries to relax. They can be used to dilate the arteries of the heart or to lower blood pressure.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Pediatrician warns parents against "bug"

One out of every 200 children in the U.S. will be infected before he is five years old by Haemophilus b, a "bad bug," warns a pediatrician who consults with one of the nation's leading child care providers.

Dr. Bob Beshear, a Montgomery, Ala. pediatrician, notes that Haemophilus b causes many kinds of infections, some of them potentially deadly, such as meningitis. The Haemophilus bacteria is spread through contact with those already infected.

"Every year, 12,000 children, most under five, contract Haemophilus b meningitis and up to 10 percent of them die," he says. "Survivors are likely to have permanent damage to their central nervous systems, which can include mental retardation and cerebral palsy."

Dr. Beshear, a consultant to Kinder-Care Learning Centers, says another life-threatening infection possible from Haemophilus b is epiglottitis, an infection of the flap of tissue covering the opening of the windpipe.

When they occur, these infections can be treated successfully with antibiotics, he said, but the bacteria are becoming increasingly resistant.

"If your child is from 18 months to five years old, ask your doctor about prevention of Haemophilus b infection through immunization," Dr. Beshear advises. "The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends immunization with a single injection of Haemophilus b vaccine for all children from 18 months to five years old.

"Of those who receive this vaccination, tests have shown that 90 percent will develop good immunization against Haemophilus b," he added.

"Dr. Bob," as he is known to parents and children in Montgomery, is a practicing pediatrician with 15 years experience. He is a graduate of the Duke University School of Medicine and completed his pediatric training at Duke and the University of Virginia. He is accredited by the American Board of Pediatrics.

"Dr. Bob" advises parents that "the very best way to manage a child's health is to maintain wellness and prevent illnesses before they occur."

TREES GIVE MOISTURE

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) - Trees not only supply oxygen to the atmosphere, they also release moisture.

Depending on the climate, some trees can transpire more than 178 gallons of water a day, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp., a forest products company.

Leaves release moisture to maintain the proper water balance within a tree for growth. During its lifetime, a tree can transpire many times its weight in water.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in my junior year of high school and not doing very well. When I was in the ninth grade, I had a very demanding history teacher whose reputation was well known. He assigned killer research papers, tough book reports and loads of outside library work. His tests were murder.

I complained to my parents, because I didn't want to work that hard. Also, the chemistry between us wasn't the greatest. My parents came to school and had a meeting with the principal. I was taken out of that teacher's class and placed in another class where the kids had very little homework, watched films a lot and never flunked.

Now, when I look around, I see the students who sweated it out with that tough teacher, and they are doing a lot better than I am. They learned discipline and good study habits.

I wish my parents had insisted that I stay in that class and do the work. I still don't like the teacher, but I have to admit there was no horsing around in his classes. He wasn't trying to win any popularity contests. He did what a teacher was supposed to do. He taught.

Please tell kids not to take the easy way out. Tough teachers and hard courses may not be a barrel of fun, but they teach you something. -- Too Late Smart, Casper, Wyo.

DEAR CASPER: Thanks for a letter I can relate to. When I was in high school, I opted out of taking Latin, because science was easier. I have regretted it ever since. I also ducked French, and I'm sorry about that too.

When I was a teen-ager, there was no Ann Landers. You kids have ME. I hope you listen.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A year ago last Christmas, the man I was going with gave me a very expensive piece of jewelry. When he presented it to me, I was speechless, because it was much too lavish a present given the nature of our relationship.

My first reaction was to tell him that I couldn't accept such an expensive gift, but I was afraid of hurting his feelings. I thanked him profusely and wore it when we were together, which pleased him.

Several months later, the relationship fell apart and ended in a sour note. Now I am wondering what to do with that piece of jewelry. I will never wear it again, because it is too much of a reminder of the bitter arguments and awful things we said to one another when we parted. I can't return it to him, because he has moved out of the city, and I don't want to ask anyone where he is.

I took the piece to a jeweler last week and asked what he would give me for it. The answer was, "Not nearly what it's worth. Secondhand jewelry goes way down in value when you try to sell it." He advised me to wear it and forget about where it came from.

It seems a shame to cash it in for a fraction of what it's worth, but I'm sure I'll never wear it again. Any suggestions, Ann? -- Lost Sparkle in Santa Ana

DEAR SPARKLE: Hang on to the jewelry and keep your eyes and ears open for a charity auction. (Ask around. A friend or colleague will surely know of one sooner or later.) That piece could bring a handsome bid, and you will feel awfully good about donating it to a worthy cause.
