HISD Increases Salary Supplement

By GAIL FIELDS
Staff Writer

The Hereford Independent School District Board of Education last night approved an increase in the local supplement to the state base salary schedule, and appointed a new board member to replace David

Hutchins, who resigned in June. The Budget and Salary Committee, made up of James Gentry and Bill Townsend, recommended to the Board a $200 increase in the local supplement to the state base teacher's pay. This increase over last year brings the supplement from $1,200 to $1,400. The state's 12-13 percent base salary increase makes up the predominant portion of the HISD budget, which is now at $8.5 million, a 9.4 percent increase over last year. Townsend said the HISD supplement is fairly comparable to other local supplements offered by school districts about the same size as Hereford, but not quite as high as the board would like it. However, he said the 25:1 student-teacher ratio the board hopes to maintain while possibly eliminating 6-8 teaching positions, plus the abundance of teaching supplies in the HISD, are some comparisons for the supplement. Other than salary increases, teacher's supplies and energy costs make up the remainder of the HISD budget. The committee held two formal meetings concerning the salary increase and has discussed the matter with the principals of all the schools in the district.

Bobby Griego, of Griego's Ditching Service, was appointed to fill the Board position vacated by Hutchins in June. Members of the Board met in closed session for nearly an hour to discuss nominees for the position. Two other names besides Griego's were brought up to a vote. Board president Gentry said the Board was pleased with all the nominees.

"I believe we had three excellent candidates nominated for the Board. I believe the people we represent would be pleased with any of the three," Gentry said.

Gentry, Hereford representative to the Texas Association of School Boards, will take a resolution passed last night by the board members to the TASB convention August 1.

The resolution, pushed by Sallie Strain, opposed a constitutional amendment to exempt all cattle from taxation be voted on November 4. Currently, only feedlot cattle are exempt from taxation. Strain said she wanted the resolution so other school districts will stop and think about the burden that would be placed on HISD if the amendment was approved. Holder said he thinks the HISD will be the district most affected by the amendment in the state. According to Board members, cattle constitute 11 percent of the total tax revenue in Hereford. The cattle exemption could amount to about a $34,000 loss on the school tax roll. However, the school district could recoup about $230,000-$240,000 of this loss through state taxation. The county, however, might not be so lucky. Holder said the county's losses would have to be recovered through service cuts or tax increases. Holder said the cattle (See SCHOOL, Page 2A)

CIA's Director Facing Ruling on Accusations

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the CIA's spy chief already forced out by allegations of stock manipulation, CIA Director William J. Casey faces a federal judge's ruling that he knowingly misled investors in a separate business venture in the late 1960s.

Max Hugel, an outsider whose appointment had irked career intelligence officers, resigned as the agency's deputy director of operations Tuesday, hours after The Washington Post published allegations that in 1974 he slipped inside information about a firm he headed to two Wall Street brokers.

Later Tuesday, reporters discovered an overlooked May 19 ruling by U.S. District Judge Charles E. Stewart Jr. in New York against Casey and others in a damage suit over their efforts to raise capital for an unsuccessful farming corporation in 1968.

Both Casey and the CIA refused to comment on Stewart's ruling, and President Reagan said Hugel's departure was distressing because "once again we seem to be taking an accusation as a conviction."

Hugel said: "I have done nothing wrong."

Casey, 68, and Hugel, 56, are both self-made millionaires. Casey brought Hugel with him to the agency from the Reagan presidential campaign. As campaign director, Casey had admired Hugel's style and work as chief of ethnic group activities.

Casey, who broke into spy work with the Office of Strategic Services, the CIA's World War II predecessor, had endured harsh criticism from former CIA officers for putting Hugel in one of the agency's most sensitive positions. Hugel's intelligence background was limited to some post-war work for the Army in Japan.

Before the day was out Tuesday, Hugel was out of the CIA — replaced by a career officer hailed by the "old boy" network — and attention had shifted to the financial dealings of Casey himself, who headed the Securities and Exchange Commission during the Nixon administration.

Judge Stewart's 19-page ruling came in a 1974 class-action suit filed by investors in a New Orleans firm called Multiponics Inc., of which Casey was an officer and director.

In an effort to raise capital for the firm, Casey and the other defendants issued a stock offering circular in October 1968 which said the company's assets at the time included seven operating farm units and two tracts of uncleared land, Stewart said.

But in September 1969 and July 1970 statements filed with the SEC, the firm stated that "of the seven so-called operating farming units, two were not operating at all at the time they were acquired by the company, two were not operating other than sharecropping and one was operating at a loss," Stewart wrote.

The offering circular also stated that $1,354,000 of the proceeds from the sale of debentures would be used to retire short-term debt, Stewart said. In fact, the judge said, the SEC registration statements showed that the company used $917,000, or about 68 percent of the proceeds, to repay officers and directors of Multiponics for loans to the firm.

Although noting that the defendants denied deliberate concealment, Stewart said they "do not dispute that they knew the material facts misstated or omitted."

Stewart still must rule on whether the investors relied on the offering circular to buy Multiponics' securities and therefore are entitled to damages.

In his resignation letter, Hugel called the allegations against him "unfounded, unto conservative Democrats. The Finance Committee has made still more changes.

Even before the president spoke, numerous amendments had been prepared, many of them by Republicans. One would enact a special charitable-contributions deduction for

Poles Agree On Chief's Selection

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The divided delegates to Poland's emergency Communist Party congress, clearing a logjam that had blocked their work on the nation's urgent problems, agreed today on how to elect their party chief.

First Secretary Stanislaw Kania was expected to win re-election in voting that officials said might come either today or Friday.

The delegates settled the debate by agreeing to elect a new Central Committee first. That panel will then nominate candidates for the top party job. The full congress will vote on the party leader and will be able to add its own nominees to the committee's slate.

Soviet-style congress protocol provides for election of a Central Committee which then elects the party leader itself. But Poland's party has been trying to find ways to make its leader more broadly responsible to the membership.

The congress was called to deal with the issues that have come up in nearly a year of economic crisis and political turmoil. But Wieslaw Bek, editor of the Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu, told reporters that by the start of its second day, the gathering had dealt only with the election issue.

In a move whose political implications were not immediately clear, delegates also agreed in closed session today to boost the size of the Central Committee from 143 to 200 full members.

Rough Ride

A cattle truck leased to Plains Livestock overturned at 7 p.m. last night at the intersection of Highway 60 and 15th Street. The truck, which received extensive damage, was driven by Dewie Kizer. Kizer was headed East on 60 and came upon a stalled truck leased to TH Sossaman, which he swerved to avoid, overturning his truck. He was taken by ambulance to Deaf Smith General Hospital, where he was treated and released. His cargo of cattle were freed from the damaged trailer by the Hereford Fire Department Rescue team using the "Jaws of Life" to open the trailer. (Brand Photo by Debe Graves)

Malathion Danger Discounted By Local Sprayer, Official

By JULIE SMILEY
Farm Editor

Residents of the Santa Clara Valley in California are fleeing their homes, Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., said the Reagan administration "put a gun to my head," and California farmers are pleased with its use.

The varied reactions are due to use of an insecticide, malathion, in a spraying program begun Tuesday in San Jose, Calif., and the surrounding 120 square miles to eradicate the mediterranean fruit fly.

The medfly eradication project was expanded to include three San Jose neighborhoods which are outside the original 97 square-mile infested area. The target area was expanded to include 120 square miles.

Malathion is a pesticide federal officials say is completely safe, but residents are fearful of its after effects, and are leaving their homes anyway. Some local doctors have advised pregnant women, nursing mothers and chronically-ill patients to leave the spray area.

Brown ordered the aerial spraying after U.S. Agriculture Secretary, John Block, said the government was ready to quarantine all California produce unless aerial spraying was used to stop the medfly.

The insect threatens the $14 billion California farming industry.

Jim Campbell, American

Dusting Company, Hereford, said malathion has been used for "years and years" and has never caused ill effects on those who work with the insecticide or those in a spray area.

He said malathion was used last year in the government's grasshopper control program for the county.

"It is the safest insecticide we have available to us. EPA rates it in the caution category, which is the weakest of the three categories in which EPA rate chemicals," said Campbell. "It is the least toxic."

"Any time someone mentions agricultural chemical, an immediate panic goes out, and everybody gets scared," said Campbell. "It's a lack of understanding and education on what's being done."

"I have mixed and handled the chemical for years and I have two perfectly healthy children," he contends.

"Sure it's dangerous, but so is electricity. But, electricity is not dangerous if used with caution. Malathion is the same way. If it is properly handled and mixed, there is no danger to the handlers or people in the spray area," Campbell continued.

Dudley Bayne, Hereford city manager, said, "I don't know why it has gotten so out of hand in California. It (malathion) is used all over the world, and has been for years on mosquitoes and flies. It's been proven non toxic."

"We used it two times last year to control mosquitoes in Hereford, and there was no danger," said Bayne. "If there were (danger),

Reagan Urges GOP To Ax Amendments

By JIM LUTHER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, hoping to recoup from a first-round loss in the House, is urging Senate Republicans to put aside pet amendments as they consider the largest tax cut in history. His plan is expensive enough already, he says.

Senate leaders hope to finish work on the bill within a few days — well before the measure is to be taken up by the Democrat-dominated House. All sides want a bill passed in time for the first individual tax reductions to take effect Oct. 1.

In the House, meanwhile, the Ways and Means Committee is nearing the end of the first round of work on its own tax bill. The panel on Tuesday rejected Reagan's proposed three-year individual tax cut and then, on a 22-13 vote, approved a two-year plan drafted by Democrats and slanted to low- and middle-income families.

Reagan's bill would cut personal taxes by $50 billion over the next five years, compared with $419 billion under the House measure. In 1982, 34.7 percent of Reagan's tax reduction would go to those with incomes above $50,000; the Democratic bill would target 20.6 percent to that group.

Reagan branded the Democratic measure "a wolf in sheep's clothing." He contended that plan, by cutting taxes only 15 percent, would not offset an estimated 22 percent increase in federal taxes due to inflation and rising Social Security taxes.

The House committee was expected to approve today a sharp reduction in estate and gift taxes, similar to a provision already in the Senate bill.

The biggest obstacle to quick Senate passage of a tax cut is the dozens of amendments that usually are offered to such a sweeping measure. There is no way to keep senators from bringing up such amendments, but Reagan put in a personal plea at a luncheon with Republicans on Tuesday.

"We've done more in a shorter period of time to put this economy back on a sound footing than any government in 50 years," Reagan said. "But we're a long way from home."

After the doors were closed, said Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., "He made it rather clear that he's agreed to add on some $30 billion in amendments, and he just doesn't believe in putting on any more expensive amendments."

Reagan was referring to the long-run cost of several amendments that he already has accepted as a concession

Feds Say Spending To Top $7 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite deep budget cuts and receding inflation, stubbornly high interest rates will prevent President Reagan from holding federal spending under $700 billion next year, the administration now estimates.

An updated budget and economic forecast due today sees consumer prices, which jumped 12.4 percent in 1980, rising less than 4.6 this year and less than 7 percent in 1982.

But with virtually no economic growth from last spring through the rest of this year, unemployment will climb above 7.5 percent and short-term interest rates will stay in double digits through 1982, the report predicts.

The mid-year forecast says Reagan is abandoning plans to hold spending in 1982 to

Sirens To Be Tested

Hereford's new tornado warning system will undergo tests again at 10 a.m. Thursday according to county civil defense coordinator Jay Spain. Spain said the company installing the sirens will be conducting the tests as they near completion of the installation of the system.

Urban Violence Continuing In London

LONDON (AP) — After a dozen straight nights of urban violence, British police struck back today with a pre-dawn search for gasoline bombs in Brixton, the immigrant community where some of the worst rioting exploded.

The raids on 11 homes in the South London suburb were carried out by more than 100 officers armed with search warrants, Scotland Yard reported. They were the first such raids announced during the wave of urban violence that has bloodied Britain's streets for nearly two weeks.

The fury is showing signs of subsiding despite sporadic rioting, and police now have permission to use rubber bullets, tear gas and water cannon to try to end the violence.

The only previous use of those mob-scattering weapons by British police and soldiers has been in Northern Ireland.

Man Held After Raid

Deaf Smith County Sheriff's officers last night arrested a Hereford man after conducting a drug raid at the man's home.

Eldon Ray "Butch" Casey was scheduled for arraignment this morning on charges of possession of marijuana. A spokesman at the Sheriff's office said charges are expected to be dropped on another man connected with the incident since he did not live at the location.

Officers seized a five-gallon bucket full of marijuana, some marijuana seeds and paraphernalia as well as some baggies of marijuana found in Casey's house at 201 Beach. Officers weeded out the marijuana, which was found growing among Casey's tomato plants.

"Jaws of Life"

Joe Rice, Deputy Chief of the Canyon Fire Department, was in Hereford last night to demonstrate methods of extrication to local Emergency Care personnel, EMT students, and Volunteer Firemen. Rice, who is an EMT instructor and a Paramedic, demonstrated use of the "Jaws of Life" and other methods of extrication along with methods of transporting an accident victim. The demonstration took place at the Fire Field where Volunteer Firemen also practiced using air packs in a house filled with smoke. (Brand Photo by Debe Graves) exemption would probably cost taxpayers more since the school board losses would have to be recovered through state taxation.

Also last night, the Board passed on second reading policy concerning transfer students. The policy is an attempt by the school board to keep the decisions involving students transferring in and out of the district more within the district's grasp. Last year, Holder said about six to eight students were refused the opportunity to transfer out of HSD by state authorities on the grounds that the transfers might have made some schools in the district ethnically identifiable. A school is ethnically identifiable if 66 and two-thirds of its students are minorities. The students in HSD wishing to transfer lived closer to schools in other districts, such as Vega and Wildorado, but were still within HSD boundaries.

The Board voted to accept First National Bank's bid for the district's depository contract. The bid was the only one submitted to the Board.

The contract will operate on a seven percent interest rate. Certificates of Deposit over $100,000 will be concurrent with treasury bill rates and CD's under $100,000 will operate on a 5 1/2 percent interest rate. The contract includes the right for the district to buy, with the bank's help, any eligible U.S. securities, and to invest up to $100,000 in savings and loans.

The board also took action in other policy matters. The dress code policy that allows children in kindergarten and first and second grade to wear shorts to school was extended to include the third grade, thus encompassing the entire primary schools. The change is intended to make the policy more consistent.

The Board adopted the textbook selected by the textbook committee and okayed the YMCA's request to use the stadium for the "Almost Anything Goes" competition to be held Saturday.

Spending

$695.3 billion — the ceiling he set in February, when he proposed $48.6 billion in federal program cuts.

Reagan still intends to keep the government's deficit for 1982 within $40 billion to $45 billion — but only because he has scaled down the size of his proposed tax cut for next year, the administration says.

Interest rates also are pushing spending this year above Reagan's earlier ceiling of $655.2 billion, but the anticipated budget deficit is expected to remain unchanged at $55 billion because of the smaller tax-cut proposal.

Reagan's forecasters are sticking with their optimistic predictions that the economy will grow by a healthy 5 percent in 1982 because of the stimulative effect his proposed tax cuts are supposed to have. Still, at least 7 percent of the workforce is expected to be unemployed for the rest of next year.

Even though the administration sees inflation unwinding, it expects interest rates to remain substantially higher than it had forecast in February. At the time, administration economists said interest rates will fall rapidly as Reagan's anti-inflation policies are implemented.

Instead, rates are running close to record levels because of government efforts to dampen inflation by limiting the growth of credit.

Interest rates on three-month Treasury bills, which carry among the lowest yields on short-term securities, initially were expected to average 11.1 percent this year and 8.9 percent in 1982. Now, the administration expects the average for all of 1981 to show little change from the current rate of more than 14 percent. Rates are expected to stay above 10 percent in 1982 as well.

The revised estimate means higher costs for the government, which must borrow money to cover its budget deficits.

Thus, despite congressional approval of more than $37 billion in 1982 budget cuts and plans by Reagan to trim even more, his revised budget shows outlays topping $700 billion for the next fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

Interest payments alone in 1982 are expected to exceed $90 billion, up from an earlier estimate of $82.5 billion.

Charges Dropped In Killing Of Woman

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Prosecutors have dropped charges against a teen-ager accused in the death last fall of a Houston, Texas, woman.

Epheriom Williams, 17, was arrested with two companions about a week after the Sept. 24 slaying of artist Melanie Asquith, who was shot as she and a friend walked near the city's downtown Rivergate convention center.

Williams and co-defendants Lawrence C. Johnson, 27, and Kenneth Robinson, 21, confessed to participating in the killing, police said.

But District Judge Jerome Winsberg ordered their confessions suppressed because prosecutors could not prove the statements were voluntarily given.

Williams claimed that officers rammed his head through a wall during questioning.

Police officers said the hole was made more than a year ago when furniture was rearranged.

Police who investigated the case and quizzed the suspects denied brutalizing anyone, but photographs showed that Robinson was wounded over his right eye while in custody and before being booked at the Central Lockup.

The defendants claimed that police beatings, administered on and off for about 10 hours in a police station, caused them to confess.

The state's case evaporated after the confessions were ruled inadmissible as evidence. Police have found no one who can positively identify who shot Ms. Asquith and her companion.

Prosecutors dropped charges earlier against both Johnson and Robinson and instead planned to take the case to a grand jury. Their attorneys said both men are innocent and neither could offer any evidence against Williams, and charges against him were dropped Tuesday.

All three suspects have been released from custody.

One of the officers in the Asquith case, Detective Ronald Brink, was indicted last week by a federal grand jury for allegedly beating people questioned in the killing of a police officer.

Federal authorities have subpoenaed evidence in the Asquith hearings, along with the 1,500 page transcript of the hearings.

Polish

The threat of a new outbreak of labor unrest in Poland while the congress was meeting seemed to be easing. Baltic Coast dock workers said today the government had "responded" to their demands for better benefits and official recognition and plans for a "hunger march" today in Kutno to protest food shortages were called off.

But in the manufacturing city of Torun, workers at an electronics office equipment factory threatened a warning strike July 24 unless the government dismisses the factory director.

Official sources at the congress had said that continued delay in electing Kania could weaken the moderate leader's position.

One source, asking not to be identified, said Kania's opening speech to the congress Tuesday left many delegates unhappy, thinking that it offered no new solutions to Poland's economic and political crisis.

"People were not so satisfied with his speech," the source said. "Even if it was the Central Committee speech, he still read it. The language was hard and the same as speeches in the past."

taxpayers who don't itemize deductions; another would give more tax relief to small business; one would reduce the 1980 tax on crude oil; another would help the timber industry.

The Senate bill is a far cry from the original Reagan plan, which would have cut personal tax rates by 30 percent over three years and allowed corporations a faster write-off for buildings and equipment.

In addition to a 25 percent, across-the-board cut in personal tax rates over 33 months, the Senate bill now includes partial relief from the marriage penalty, a cut in the maximum tax rate on investment income, liberalized tax treatment of Individual Retirement Accounts, a $1,000-per-person tax exemption for interest from a proposed special savings certificate, special tax relief for owners of oil royalties, partial repeal of the 1980 crude-oil tax and a sharp cut in the estate tax, so that no estate worth less than $600,000 would be taxed.

Although something close to Reagan's bill is almost certain to pass the Senate, there is no such certainty in the House.

White House spokesman David Gergen conceded

Tuesday that the fight is uphill, but he added, "We obviously are not saying we expect to lose on the House floor."

"We don't have the votes at this time" in the House, Gergen added. He noted the administration, in the recent fight over budget cuts, came from behind and won. "I think we're probably in a comparable position" on the tax bill, he said.

If Republicans side solidly with Reagan, he would need 26 Democratic votes. The most recent count, Gergen said, shows 10 to 15 House Republicans wavering and only about 20 certain Democratic votes.

proven and untrue."

But he said, "These allegations...have become a burden which I no longer believe is fair to impose on the administration, the agency, my family and the splendid men and women who work with me."

Casey accepted Hugel's resignation with "deepest regret" and immediately named career CIA official John Stein as his successor.

At the White House, chief spokesman David R. Gergen said Casey discussed the impending Post story last Thursday with White House chief of staff James A. Baker

III and White House counsel Fred Fielding, who met later with Hugel.

The White House denied a Washington Star report that Baker had told Casey to get rid of Hugel. "He resigned on his own initiative and with consultation with Mr. Casey," Gergen said.

Gergen said he anticipates no official investigation, noting that a five-year statute of limitations applies to the allegations made against Hugel. He said it will be up to Casey to decide whether to review why the CIA's background check of Hugel had not turned up the allegations.

Tuesday evening, Reagan told reporters: "I was distressed that once again we seem to be taking an accusation as a conviction. He resigned because he didn't want to in any way cause trouble for the administration. It should be remembered there's been nothing but the allegation."

The State Department's 1974 Biographic Register lists only one John Stein, a Yale graduate now 48. The Register shows Stein served as a foreign service reserve political officer, a typical CIA cover, in Belgium, The Congo, Cameroon, Cambodia and Libya.

Hugel went to the Post in person last Friday to rebut the charges the paper was preparing to publish. He was accompanied by his lawyers and CIA general counsel Stanley Sporkin, a Casey appointee who had been enforcement chief for the SEC.

Outside his home Tuesday night, Hugel said: "I have never made a penny of unlawful profit nor have I done anything else to bring discredit upon my company, my family, myself, the agency for which I so briefly worked or the United States government. I have done nothing wrong."

The Post quoted New York brothers Thomas R. McNell, 49, and Samuel F. McNell, 47, as saying they and Hugel participated in a series of prohibited practices in 1974 to promote the stock of Hugel's electronics company, Brother International Corp.

They said Hugel gave them inside information about the company's potential earnings in advance of disclosure to other investors and improperly funneled $131,000 to their brokerage firm, McNell Securities.

A Syrian official, who declined to be quoted by name, said Syria will not change its policy of keeping

Observers said the loss of the Syrian jet could make President Hafez Assad's government even less receptive to Habib's diplomatic effort to defuse the missile crisis.

PLO sources confirmed a warplane crashed east of the southern Lebanon port city of Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut. Lebanese reporter Nabih Basho said Syrian and Israeli aircraft were seen trading rocket fire over the town of Roum, midway between Sidon and Jizzine.

The Palestinian guerrilla command claimed one Israeli jet was hit by a shoulder-fired SAM-7 missile during the air strike and was seen flying in flames toward Israel. But the Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said all its planes returned safely.

Teen-agers Taken In For Criminal Mischief

Hereford Police have turned two juvenile girls, ages 12 and 13, over to the County juvenile officer in connection with a criminal mischief incident. Complainants in the case are Gary Kriegshauser, Mike Watts, Carl Last and the City of Hereford. The girls reportedly wrote with shoe polish on cars and other private property, and on city sidewalks and dumpsters.

Police also received a report of a burglary from Betty Word, 806 S. Schley. Mrs. Word told police that someone took a queen-size headboard, a table and two small pictures from a storage house on her property sometime in the last 10 days. The loss is estimated at $200.

Police issued 13 traffic citations in the last 24 hours.

Spray

the FDA and EAA wouldn't approve its use. We feel safe using it," he said.

A twin-engine plane makes the aerial application over Hereford, using five percent malathion. A spraying company from Hart does the spraying for many Panhandle cities, according to Bayne.

Aerial application of the insecticide is the best application method, Bayne said. It takes about two hours to spray Hereford, and the insecticide gives an immediate kill of mosquitoes.

Bayne said the city has not been sprayed this year, because mosquitoes have not been the problem they were last year. "I don't know why we haven't had mosquitoes this year. Usually after a shower we get more mosquitoes, but we haven't had that many this year, even with the showers."

Ground spraying with trucks is the other method of application. Bayne said it takes about two days, but it is not as effective as the aerial application and costs as much as using planes to apply the insecticide. He said Plainview, Dimmitt and Friona also use the aerial application method to control mosquitoes.

People that use Raid in their homes to kill insects are probably using a more potent form of malathion than what is being sprayed from the air in California, according to Campbell.

4-H Members Will Stage Fashion Revue

Hereford-Ten 4-H members from Deaf Smith County will model apparel they have created in this year's Panhandle District Fashion Revue, Thursday, July 16 at the Sunset Center Shopping Mall, Plains Boulevard, just east of Western Avenue in Amarillo.

Members from 4-H Clubs in 20 counties will compete for honors and the right to represent the Panhandle in state competition.

The theme for this year's event is "Fashion Extra," said Ms. Penny Cribbs, county Extension agent.

Representing Deaf Smith County will be Senior-Robin Conkright, Junior 12-13-Kelly Stokesberry, and Junior 9-11-Leslie Conkright.

Already these entrants have won in county competition. Contestants are judged on their sewing and construction skills, overall appearance, modeling abilities and their 4-H record books.

Participants in the district competition will register at 9 a.m. at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Boulevard West, in Amarillo. Judging will begin at 9:30 a.m.

While the judging is being conducted, parents, leaders and guests will attend a special program from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Energas Company Flame Room, 301 South Taylor, in Amarillo. The program will be "Summer Entertaining With the Gas Grill," conducted by Joy Gibson, consumer information specialist with Energas.

At 1 p.m., fashion revue contestants will report to the J.C. Penny Company dressing rooms at the Sunset Center to prepare for the public revue at 2 p.m. The Revue will be narrated by Bill Sexton, KGNC Radio personality.

In addition to naming the top seniors who will advance to the State 4-H Fashion

Revue, Sept. 16-18 in San Angelo, awards also will go to winners in the junior divisions and to contestants having the best record books chronicling their work on the project.

Two junior level contests will be staged in addition to the senior competition, Mrs. Cribbs said. These younger 4-H members, ages 9-11 and 12-14, will not compete beyond the district level.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

'The Wednesday's Child'

By: TONYA SAVAGE
4-H Member

4-H teaches many things including Child Care and Development. This training has been helpful to me because of my interest in this area. Child Development teaches how a child grows. But I have found out that there are many things that hinder a child's growth. One of these is abuse to a child.

Child abuse is not a very pretty topic to be dealt with. Perhaps this is the reason so many of us continue to be uninformed about it. Now, you may have read about the awful things that happened to Robbie Wayne in Reader's Digest, but that does not give all the facts.

In 1980 alone, the Department of Human Resources found 27,878 cases of child abuse, this is nearly half that were reported. About 43 percent of all abused children are six or younger and confirmed cases of abuse tripled in three years, 1977-1979.

Child abuse is defined as the nonaccidental injury or pattern of injuries to a child for which there is no reasonable explanation. There are four different degrees of abuse: Physical, Neglect, Sexual, and Emotional. Deaf Smith County has its share of all of these, but especially sexual abuse.

Contrary to many beliefs, child abuses are not BIG BAD MONSTERS. In reality these parents love their children very much. Child abuse is likely to occur when the parent has the potential to abuse. Having the potential could be the result of being abused as a child or viewing a child with unrealistic expectations.

Although parents may abuse their children over and over, they can learn to cope with their problems. With the right support and treatment, abusive parents can learn to provide a safe environment for their children.

It is everyone's responsibility to report child abuse to the Department of Human Resources. Or call the Child Abuse Hotline. It is 1-800-252-5400. You do not have to identify yourself when reporting child abuse, but it is better if you do. Persons who report a suspected case in good faith are granted immunity from civil or criminal liability. All state laws do not require a person to know or to be certain that he has seen child abuse, only that he has reason to believe abuse has occurred.

Child abuse has gone on long enough. Let's see if we can help stop it.

I have done a lot of research on this subject and through 4-H I hope to open everyone's eyes. I have given an illustrated talk on this subject at County, District and State contests in 4-H. Also, I have given this program to clubs in Hereford. If anyone would be interested in having a program on this subject, call the Extension Office at 364-3573. I would be more than happy to share my information with you.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Beef Cubed Steaks Are Ready in Jiffy For Appetizing Meal

Even when the youngsters are on vacation from school there's no let up in the family's hectic schedule. Swimming lessons, baseball practice, day camp and numerous other activities still keep everyone on the run and hurried meals continue to be a must.

On those days when there's little time to cook, try Beef Cubed Steaks with Tasty Topping, suggests the National Live Stock and Meat Board. In just a matter of minutes, these serving-sized steaks are table ready. In this recipe they sport a delicious topping.

While helping meet the family's demanding schedule, cubed steaks also help meet many of their nutritional needs. Beef is an excellent source of high-quality protein necessary for growth and the maintenance and repair of tissues. The B-vitamins, niacin, thiamin, riboflavin, B-6 and B-12 and the minerals iron and zinc are among other valuable nutrients found in beef.

- Beef Cubed Steaks with Tasty Topping
- 4 beef cubed steaks
 - 2 tablespoons cooking fat
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 cup catsup
 - 2 tablespoons chopped green onion
 - 1/4 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- Brown steaks on both sides in fat for 5 to 6 minutes. Pour off drippings. Top each steak with 1 tablespoon catsup, 1/2 teaspoon onion and 1 tablespoon shredded cheese. Cover and cook over low heat 2 to 3 minutes. 4 servings.

Ann Landers Copping Out

DEAR ANN: Come on, Old Girl - you are copping out by perpetuating the greatest piece of deception of all times. It's the best-kept secret in history. Why don't you level with the world and tell us exactly what DO women get out of sex?

Females have been faking it since Eve bit the apple. Don't you think it's high time men were told all that moaning and sighing in the boudoir is a put-on to satisfy their egos?

If one woman out of 20 has a climax half the time, that's a lot. Maybe it has something to do with their anatomy, but women were short-changed in the sex department at birth, and it's a rotten shame.

I am sure you have received many letters on this subject - and you've even printed a few - but you dismiss them with casual contempt, almost as if you don't believe they are for real.

Surely Ann Landers, the confidante of millions, must know the facts. Why not bring them out into the open? Perhaps more female readers will have the courage to confess themselves. I believe it would be therapeutic as well as informative. And maybe the men out there, who always manage to get them, will be a little more considerate.

I realize this is a hot potato, but I'm tossing it into your lap and will watch with interest to see what you do with it. -One Who Has Been Acting For Years

DEAR ONE: Granted, millions of women are quietly servicing their bed-partners, feeling nothing and getting very little joy out of sex. And some men couldn't care less, but a great many DO care. Unfortunately, they are completely unaware that while it's the Fourth of July for THEM, it's Labor Day for the person they are with.

I have said it before, and I will say it again: it is up to the woman to communicate her needs and desires to her partner. She should guide him - tell him what is pleasing to her and what is not. In other words, women who are willing to be passive receptacles instead of active participants are destined never to experience what is rightfully theirs. A healthy, mutually rewarding sexual relationship requires candid conversation, experimentation and practice. If women want "theirs," they must speak up and not be so laid-back-if you will pardon the expression.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My dear wife passed away recently. We had no children. I am 65 and live on a fixed income. Fortunately, I have never had to ask for financial help from relatives. As a matter of fact, my wife and I helped my brother-in-law and his family for many years because they needed it and we wanted to.

This same brother-in-law told me last week that my wife had promised his children her diamond rings and valuable coin collection. My wife and I were very close and she never mentioned a word to me about wanting to leave those items to her nieces and nephews.

Do I have an obligation here? My brother-in-law seems to think so. What does Ann Landers think? -S.C. In Van Nuys

DEAR S.C. If your wife wanted her brother's children to have her diamond rings and coin collections, she should have put it in writing. This is called a WILL.

In the absence of such a document, Ann Landers thinks you are under no obligation to hand them over.

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality?" You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It - A Guide For Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

The Newspaper BIBLE

TRAPPED!

On one of those days when Jesus was teaching and preaching the Good News in the Temple, He was confronted by the chief priests and other religious leaders and councilmen.

They demanded to know by what authority He had driven out the merchants from the Temple. "I'll ask you a question before I answer," He replied. "Was John sent by God, or was he merely acting under his own authority?"

They talked it over among themselves. "If we say his message was from heaven, then we are trapped because he will ask, 'Then why didn't you believe in him?'"

"But if we say John was not sent from God, the people will mob us, for they are convinced that he was a prophet." Finally, they replied, "We don't know!"

And Jesus responded, "Then I won't answer your question either."

Albert The Alligator Getting Thrown Out Of Home

The World Almanac®

By The Associated Press
Albert the Alligator has the crowds cheering at Denver's City Park as he taunts zookeepers trying to force him out of Duck Lake. And a runaway cousin in Indianapolis, Oscar the Alligator, has a few tricks of his own.

The first to find freedom was the wily Albert, a 4-foot-long alligator who escaped from the Denver Zoo June 17 and took up housekeeping in a pond in City Park, a haven for ducks and Canada geese. Albert began drawing crowds as each day he eluded zoo officials who waded after him or went out on the pond in boats, armed with nets.

Many people now bring their lunches to Duck Lake to watch the war of wits. Others have taken to spending the day there, searching with binoculars for a sign of the alligator's lumpy profile.

Albert's would-be captors had him by the tail, but he slipped away. They snared him with a noose, but he squirmed free. The sight of nets causes him to take evasive action. So do searchlights at night.

On Tuesday, zoo officials in boats and others in hip-waders mounted a two-pronged assault on Albert as he was sunning himself on the island in the middle of Duck Lake, but he slipped into the water before they could reach him.

Minutes later, as if to taunt his pursuers, Albert surfaced within yards of the waders, who were looking back at the cheering crowd. When they turned to take a swipe at Albert, he ducked underwater.

Albert's feistiness — after all, his namesake is the smart alligator character in the old Pogo comic strip — has made him a hero of sorts among Denver residents. Reports that Albert is thinning the duck population have helped the crowds, too, although zoo officials say that because of Albert's size they doubt the reports are true.

Assistant zoo director Albert Linger says Albert's popularity isn't making the job of catching him any easier. "He's so scared of people now that I'm beginning to wonder how we'll ever get close enough to catch him," he said.

Zoo officials have been unwilling to shoot Albert with a tranquilizer and haul him back to the alligator pond because they fear he would sink to the bottom of the pond and die, Linger said.

Meanwhile in Indianapolis, a man named Mudd has been trying without success to get his pet alligator back from a neighbor's pond. The alligator, Oscar, turned up his nose at chicken bait Monday and wouldn't be lured away.

Charles Mudd isn't sure when he'll try again to catch his 4-foot-long alligator, who escaped 11 days ago.

Mudd said crowds drawn to the edge of Gerald Cannon's half-acre pond by alligator reports have made Oscar too excited for Mudd to get close enough to pull the creature into a boat.

Local television stations have sent crews out to Cannon's pond, hoping to catch sight of the elusive alligator, and The Indianapolis Star has begun a "Gator Watch" column.

DuPont Is Selling Conoco

NEW YORK (AP) — Du Pont Inc. has raised its bid for Conoco Inc. to $7.4 billion — more than twice the largest amount ever paid for a company — and some analysts think the price will go even higher before Conoco is sold.

Du Pont raised its bid Tuesday from $6.9 billion, countering an offer from Seagram Co. Ltd., the Canadian distiller. But Seagram said it was still in the competition and such oil companies as Mobil Corp. and Texaco Inc. were still considered likely to offer bids.

The bidding war has been sparked by beliefs that Conoco's reserves of oil, coal and natural gas are worth more than the value indicated by the stock price, and by signals from the Reagan administration that it is less likely to challenge big mergers on antitrust grounds.

Du Pont said it will pay $95 a share for 40 percent of Conoco's stock and exchange 1.7 Du Pont shares — worth $80.33 at current prices — for each additional share. It had offered $87.50 or 1.6 Du Pont shares, worth about $6.9 billion.

Sanford Margoshes, an analyst with Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc., a Wall Street firm, said he expected more bidding, including another figure from Seagram and a bid from Mobil. It would not surprise me for the final figure to exceed $100 a share.

Any takeover of Conoco will be the largest corporate acquisition in U.S. history, surpassing the $3.6 billion Shell Oil Co. paid for Belridge Oil Co. two years ago.

Conoco, the nation's ninth-largest oil company, accepted the new Du Pont offer as it had the original one. Chairman Ralph Bailey said shareholders would benefit from the combination of chemicals and energy operations.

Du Pont Chairman Edward Jefferson said the merger, which would create the seventh-largest industrial company in America, was "fully consistent with the nation's energy imperatives and will not have anticompetitive consequences."

The Justice Department said it will investigate the proposed merger, but administration officials have said they are more receptive to mergers and some Wall Street analysts think a Du Pont-Conoco marriage would not be challenged.

Seagram is offering $85 a share for up to 51 percent of Conoco, or a total of $3.77 billion. It started the bidding war last month by offering $73 a share for up to 41 percent, or $2.55 billion.

The only survivor of the Battle of Little Big Horn, where Custer made his last stand, was the horse Comanche, whose embalmed body now stands on display at the University of Kansas.

Beef Short Ribs Go Western in Flavor For Family Barbecue

No matter what part of the country you live in, put a little Texas in your backyard with an old-fashioned Western barbecue. You'll have no trouble rustling up an enthusiastic chow line when Lone Star Short Ribs head the cookout menu.

Since short ribs are naturally less tender, the National Live Stock and Meat Board recommends first braising them on the grill in a covered frying pan or precooking them indoors if you prefer. Then the ribs are dipped in a spicy homemade barbecue sauce and broiled over the coals.

Lone Star Short Ribs

- 3 to 4 pounds beef short ribs
 - 2 teaspoons salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
 - 1/4 cup catsup
 - 1/4 cup brown sugar
 - 1/4 cup vinegar
 - 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
 - 1/2 cup chopped onion
 - 1 clove garlic, minced
 - 1 tablespoon chili powder
- Place short ribs in covered frying pan on grill and cook at low to moderate temperature for 1 1/2 hours, turning occasionally. Pour off drippings. Season with salt and pepper; add 1/4 cup water and cook, covered, 30 minutes or until tender. Combine tomato sauce, catsup, brown sugar, vinegar, mustard, onion, garlic and chili powder in small saucepan and simmer 5 minutes, stirring to blend. Remove each short rib from pan, dip in sauce to coat and place on grill. Cook at moderate temperature 15 to 20 minutes or until done, brushing with sauce and turning. 4 servings.

THE HEREFORD BRAND FARM NEWS

Area Potato Harvest Off to Earlier Start

By JULIE SMILEY
Farm Editor

Starting about a week earlier than the 1980 season, local potatoes are being harvested now, and harvest will continue until about September 10.

This year's harvest began July 6 and should also receive better prices than the 1980 potato crop, according to Cameron Gault, Howard Gault Co., Hereford.

Cartons of U.S. No. 1 potatoes range from $12 to $24 per hundredweight. A count carton is a selected, uniform package of baking potatoes. "It is the highest quality potato a shipper can put out," said Gault.

He said the count cartons are sold to restaurants and institutions, but chain groceries are also big customers.

Gault said his company will harvest about 900 acres this year. Total acreage for Deaf Smith, Castro, Parmer and Bailey counties, plus acreage in Roosevelt and Curry counties in New Mexico, totals about 5,800 acres.

Panhandle potatoes have national distribution, but freight charges are the key factor in determining where they will be shipped.

Norgold Russett, a white potato, is the volume potato grown in the area, according to Gault. However, Red Norlands, usually harvested before white potatoes, are planted in small acreages.

"We use them (Red Norlands) to start the season," he said.

Average yield for russetts is 200 to 250 hundredweights per acre, according to Gault.

The Panhandle is not the best place to grow potatoes, but markets make the crop appealing to producers. Extremely hot weather is not good for the crop, and Gault said, "Our weather is a bit of a detriment to the ideal potato production."

"That 108-degree weather that we had in June is very hard on potatoes. It takes a lot of water to keep potatoes growing in hot weather."

Once potatoes are harvested by a mechanical harvester, they are shipped to the warehouse in bulk. There, they are dumped, washed and sorted by an electric eye. The eye sorts potatoes into six size categories, 60s, 70s, 80s, 90s, 100s and 110s.

After they are sized, potatoes are sacked or cartoned for delivery as far west as Albuquerque, N.M., north, and east as far as Arkansas. Later in the season, some Panhandle potatoes will be shipped as far east as the Atlantic coast.

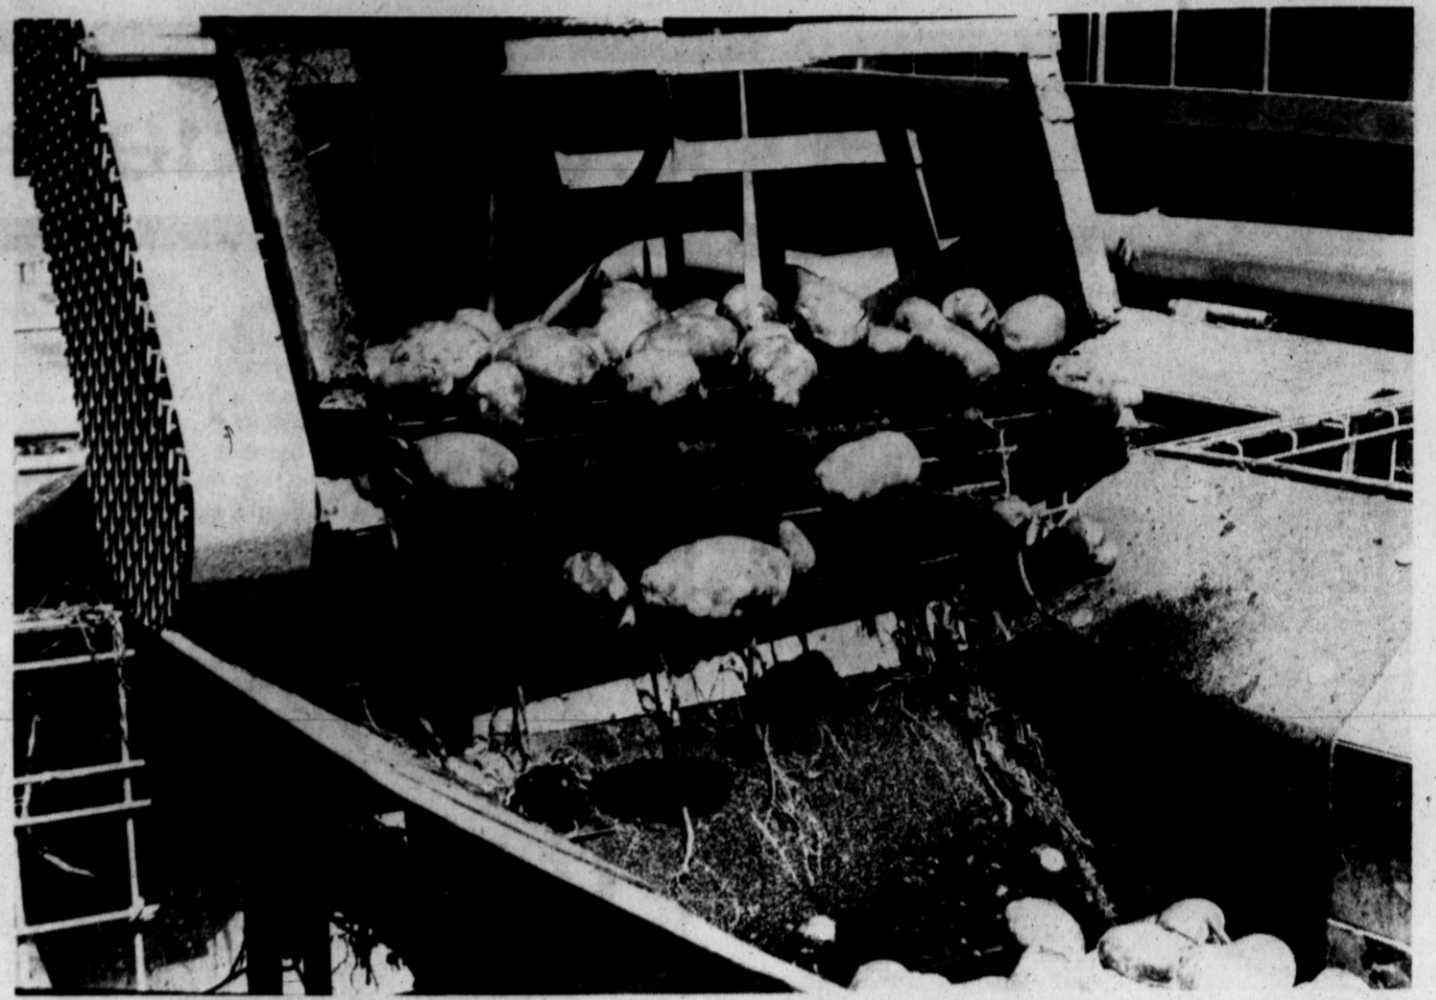

"Potatoes are good for to eat," according to Gault.

If you are a local potato lover, and have heard that potatoes are unhealthy for a diet, Gault said "Potatoes are high in mineral content, and a lot of doctors see and feel the need for potatoes in anyone's diet. Of course they delete the butter and sour cream to cut out calories."

One medium-size potato is 90 calories, said Gault, and that fact makes a potato "truly a dieter's friend."

He suggested a baked potato with salt and lemon juice.

For a more exotic way to prepare potatoes, try this recipe taken from the Potato Lovers Diet Cookbook.

The Texas Corn Growers Association and the Grain Sorghum Producers Association will hold a meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Co-op Room of the Deaf Smith Electric Co-op.

President of the Texas Corn Growers, Carl King, Dimmitt, said the meeting will discuss the potential lawsuit against the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Corn, shipped by the CCC from northern corn-belt states, is being sold in competition with grain produced by High Plains farmers, and GSPA believes this is illegal, according to a July 1 press release.

King said the corn sales have depressed local grain prices, and "the CCC should export that grain like they should have in the first place."

The July 10 deadline for raising funds has been extended to raise more money for the possible lawsuit. King said over $100,000 has been raised, but GSPA needs $250,000 to begin legal action.

Any money not used in the suit will be returned to farmers, according to King.

GSPA Executive Director, Elbert Harp, Abernathy, will be the speaker at the meeting.

Harp said, "We have worked with USDA and our High Plains congressmen for months, seeking a solution to this problem. All political avenues have been exhausted."

GSPA has been joined by Texas Corn Growers, Texas WIFE, Texas Farmers Union, and members of all area farm organizations, according to Harp.

FARM NEWS AG NOTES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Producers of major fresh-market vegetables have planted an estimated 384,000 acres since April 1, about the same area as planted in the same period last year, the Agriculture Department says.

The vegetables included snap beans, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, sweet corn, cucumbers, eggplant, escarole-endive, lettuce, green peppers, spinach and tomatoes.

In addition, according to the department's Crop Reporting Board, producers planted about 156,000 acres of melons - cantaloupe, honeydew and watermelon - during the three-month period that began April 1. That was up 3 percent from a year earlier.

Actual production of major vegetables in the first six months of this year was reported at 80.4 million hundredweight, compared with 79.5 million in the same period of 1980, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn farmers may see somewhat higher prices for their grain in the 1981-82 season, the Agriculture Department says.

But wheat producers are facing huge world supplies and the prospect of weaker prices.

Last Friday, the department's Crop Reporting Board estimated corn output this year at 7.12 billion bushels.

While that would be up 7 percent from last year's drought-reduced harvest, it still would be considerably less than the record yield of 7.94 billion bushels in 1979.

In a new analysis of the supply-and-demand situation, officials said Monday that corn prospects point to an average farm price of $3 to $3.50 a bushel in the marketing year that will begin on Oct. 1.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has put into effect an interim plan to overhaul the inspection of cattle after they are slaughtered at packing houses.

Officials said the change has the effect of reducing slightly the number of federal inspectors required nationwide at points of slaughter.

One reason for the hurried order was to comply with Reagan administration budget constraints on federal employment.

Donald L. Houston, administrator of the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service, said the change was put into effect immediately with Tuesday's announcement but will remain open for a final decision until a 60-day period for public comment has elapsed.

"We are publishing the standards as an interim rule because current federal hiring restrictions require more efficient use of personnel," Houston said.

Will Russian Grain Crop Recover With Recent Rain?

By DON KENDALL AP
Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the questions being pondered by analysts who study the Soviet Union's agriculture: Did the generous rains of last week arrive in time to trigger a major recovery of this year's grain crops?

The government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility said Tuesday that rain over much of the affected area did help freshen crops that had been hit severely by dry, hot weather last month.

No production estimates were provided, however, and the Agriculture Department will not have another Soviet crop estimate ready until Aug. 12.

"Above-normal rains brought widespread relief from the dryness in the Ukraine, North Caucasus, southern Chernozem region, lower Volga Valley, western Kazakhstan and southern Urals," said the report for the week of July 6-12.

"This moisture will benefit the late filling of spring wheat and barley and should diminish further yield losses from a hot, dry June," it said.

"Row crops will benefit the most. The rainfall disrupted winter grain harvesting, but only in the central and western Ukraine should persistent dampness be causing substantial problems."

Last Friday, the Agriculture Department estimated the 1981 Soviet grain harvest at 200 million metric tons, down from earlier prospects for 210 million. Although the estimate puts the crop below Moscow's goal of 236 million metric tons this year, it would be larger than the 1980 harvest of 189.2 million.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds, equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

The Soviet Union's crop situation is watched closely for signs that might give U.S. officials, the grain trade and farmers an idea of how much grain the Russians might buy on the world market in the coming season.

Looking at the U.S. situation, the report said drier conditions returned to much of the wheat and corn areas, although "damp weather persisted in southern Missouri and southern Illinois." Wheat harvest conditions improved, it said.

NEW YORK (AP) — With President Reagan cheering from the sidelines, Labor Secretary Ray Donovan is coming off the bench and joining talks aimed at ending the 34-day-old major league baseball strike.

"I think we're getting very near a settlement," baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Tuesday as officials announced that Donovan would appear at today's bargaining session.

Donovan planned to accompany federal mediator Kenneth Moffett at talks this afternoon in New York. Talks broke off Saturday after the club owners rejected a settlement proposal drawn up by Moffett.

"The secretary is deeply concerned about the economic impact that the strike is having on many American cities," said Donovan aide Earl Cox. The 24 cities with major league teams have lost 392 of the 2,106 scheduled regular-season games.

President Reagan, who was a play-by-play announcer for the Chicago Cubs years ago, said Tuesday that he'd like to see the strike settled soon.

"I agree with Samuel Gompers, who created the American Federation of Labor, who said, 'Anytime there's a strike, there's a breakdown in communications.'" Reagan said.

Donovan was to open today's negotiations by making a statement but didn't plan to stay for the entire session, Moffett said.

"I believe Mr. Donovan's presence at this meeting will emphasize the importance of bringing this dispute to a conclusion," Moffett said. He and Cox said that if the new round of talks fails, Donovan would summon representatives of both sides to Washington for intensive bargaining.

The strike by the Major League Players Association began June 12 over the type of compensation a team should be awarded when it loses a free agent, a player whose contractual obligation to the team has ended.

The club owners had imposed a system under which a team that lost a free agent to another team would be permitted to take a player from the second team. The team getting the free agent was allowed to take some of its players out of contention, but the rest were fair game.

The players objected, saying such a system made owners reluctant to hire free agents and therefore threatened the players' mobility.

As a compromise, Moffett proposed limiting the instances in which teams would have to provide compensation for free agents.

In an interview aired on the CBS network, Kuhn said Tuesday that he believed the club owners had made a "significant step forward in their rewrite" of Moffett's proposal last week.

Kuhn said he was looking at a number of ways to resume the season once the strike ends, including the possibility of a round-robin tournament.

Irsay Has Last Laugh

OWINGS MILLS, Md. (AP) — If there was any derisive laughter when Robert Irsay bought the Los Angeles Rams for $17 million in 1972 and swapped them for the Baltimore Colts, the snickers have long since subsided.

The last laugh, it turns out, belongs to Irsay — who said this week he had rejected a $50 million offer for his National Football League franchise.

While at the club's training complex Tuesday to sign Baltimore's No. 1 draft pick, fullback Randy McMillan, Irsay recalled a conversation he had with the late Carroll Rosenbloom when they swapped franchises.

"He told me people would probably laugh at me for the amount of dollars I paid," Irsay said. "But he said, 'I bet you that 10 years from now, the franchise will be worth $50 million'...This is my 10th year."

Properly impressed, someone wanted to know if the Colts were indeed the best investment Irsay ever made.

"Well, no," replied the Chicago businessman. "I bought some stock once for $1, and it went up to $60."

Irsay tossed some heavier numbers around when asked about NFL finances. He noted that the television income of $2.1 million per club when he joined the league jumped to $5.3 million in 1977, and could reach $12 million or more when the next contract is negotiated.

Babe Ruth All Stars Drop to Pampa Stars

PAMPA — The Hereford 14-15 Year-Old Babe Ruth All Stars dropped a 12-8 decision to the Pampa Stars here Tuesday night in an error-filled game to see themselves dropped into the loser's bracket of the double-elimination District 1 Tournament.

Hereford will face off against Randall County, a 12-9 winner over High Plains Tuesday, in a 7 p.m. game tonight. The winner of tonight's game will play Pampa at 6 p.m. Thursday, with a second game to follow immediately if needed.

Despite Ronnie Collier's second three-run homerun in two games, the Hereford stars saw Pampa erase an early 3-1 deficit to notch the win. Collier lofted his tape-measure four-bagger in the bottom of the first to give Hereford a 3-1 bulge.

Pampa came back to take a 4-3 lead in the third, but the Hereford stars knotted the game at 4-4 in their half of the frame. The winners tallied five runs in the decisive fifth inning and added three more in the sixth to gain the victory.

Mike Scott took the loss for Hereford. The probable starter for tonight's game for Hereford is lefthander Ernest Reyes.

Dallas to Host NCAA Finals

CHATHAM, Mass. (AP) — Dallas has been picked to host the finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 1986 Division I basketball tournament, an NCAA committee announced Tuesday.

Dallas received the bid Tuesday morning after the Division I Basketball Committee, headed by Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke, considered presentations from Dallas, Atlanta, Kansas City, Mo., and Birmingham, Ala. The presentations were made in Chatham.

"All four presentations were excellent," said Dave Cawood, NCAA director of publicity. "The committee evaluated each of the four and just determined it wanted to go to Dallas."

Dallas never has been the site of the NCAA's semifinal and final games.

"We are very excited about being able to host the NCAA basketball finals in Dallas," said Dallas Mayor Jack Evans. "Dallas is one of the great sports towns in the country and Reunion Arena is quickly gaining a reputation as one of the country's outstanding sports arenas."

Reunion Arena also will host the 1985 Midwest Regional championship, NCAA officials said.

The committee also announced the sites of first- and second-round competition, as well as the regionals, for the 1983 tournament.

In the East Regional, the first and second rounds will be in Hartford, Conn., and Greensboro, N.C. Syracuse, N.Y., will host the regional finals.

In the Midwest Regional, opening rounds will be at Evansville, Ind., and the campus of Southern Florida, with the University of Tennessee the site of the regional finals.

Louisville and Houston will be the first- and second-round sites for the Midwest, with Kansas City hosting the regional.

In the West, Boise State and Oregon State will host the first two rounds. The regional finals will be played at Weber State College, in Ogden, Utah.

The University of New Mexico already had been chosen as the location for the 1983 finals.

"In reviewing the sites that were selected for 1983, the mood of the committee was to take the tournament into areas it has not been," Cawood said.

The site selections are subject to formal approval by the NCAA Executive Committee in August.

Strike Hinders Hemophilia's Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — Major League baseball's first midseason strike has taken more than a toll in games and revenue. It has stolen something even more precious from Marc DeCosta and three friends — "The Great American Baseball Journey for Hemophilia" — at least temporarily.

DeCosta, a 24-year-old hemophiliac from Wantagh, N.Y., was about halfway through his dream vacation — a 52-day, 9,000-mile trip to the 26 major league cities and ballparks — when the major leaguers began their walkout on June 12.

It was a trip that 10 years ago would have been simply a dream to anyone who suffered from hemophilia, a disorder of the blood clotting mechanism which can result in uncontrolled bleeding and hemorrhaging. But to Marc DeCosta in 1981, it was a chance to disprove a stereotype of a hemophiliac being an invalid.

"We started the idea last August at a ballgame and started saving money last winter," said Steve Latour of Bath, N.Y., who along with Carmen Reale and Jimmy Downs, both of Syracuse, N.Y., joined DeCosta on the trip, none of whom suffers from the disorder.

The trip took DeCosta and Co., who work as bartenders or waiters, to Boston, Montreal and Toronto. But it was Toronto which supplied the fireworks.

"It was the height of 'Billy Ball,'" said Latour, referring to the A's hustling style, "and they had hyped it up in Toronto. When Martin came out with the lineup card, it was like the second coming had arrived in Toronto."

It was also the night Martin and umpire Terry Cooney had their little disagreement. In the next two weeks, the group visited Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Cincinnati and both Chicago parks, and St. Louis before the strike began.

For DeCosta, the trip would have been impossible without something known as a Factor VIII concentrate.

"It was not easy to travel being a hemophiliac because the treatment 10 years ago was that you had to go to a specific hospital," DeCosta said. "They had to know your blood type and past history and it made travel more difficult."

Factor VIII makes living a normal life possible for DeCosta and the nation's 25,000 other hemophiliacs. It's also makes cross-country vacations a reality, even if they are interrupted by a strike.

The trip which was supposed to end at Tuesday night's postponed All-Star Game in Cleveland remains in limbo. If the season never gets going again at least Marc DeCosta will have half a dream and the Hemophilia Foundation will have what is wanted — proof that hemophiliacs are self-sufficient.

The foundation has endorsed but not financially supported the trip.

CLASSIFIED ADS PRODUCE RESULTS!

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have varicose veins and they are big, bulging and ugly. I'm 39 years old and have had them since I was 18. I have had two children. My doctor didn't seem to think there was anything to worry about. But I have a girlfriend who has them and she has had injections twice and an operation on one leg but she still can't stand too long or sit too long so she hasn't been able to work.

My veins don't bother me at all but they are 10 times as bad looking as my friend's. People keep asking me if they bother me. How come I have been so lucky? Is there a chance that an operation on my legs would make them look normal again? Or should I just leave them alone and not bother them?

DEAR READER - Sometimes the old saying, "you can't judge a book by its cover" applies to medical conditions; that can be true with varicose veins.

You have two sets of veins in your legs, an external set you can see and an internal set that you cannot see. The external system of veins drains into the deep venous system. If your external system that you can see is damaged and looks bad, it can certainly affect the appearance of your legs, but if the internal system is working fine you still have good venous drainage from your legs and your leg circulation is pretty good. So that may be why your legs look worse than your friend's but she has had more trouble than you have had.

The superficial veins can often be treated by injections around the veins that sclerose and scar the area. Or they can be stripped surgically. You cannot use injections for the deep veins. A successful operation often returns a leg to normal appearance. If you want to consult a surgeon for an examination and see if your type of varicose veins can be treated by either injections or stripping. Meanwhile, you should use some form of external support while standing or sitting.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Please comment on the process used in removing the caffeine from coffee to make decaffeinated coffee. I understand that a known cancer-producing element is involved in the process.

DEAR READER - Several years ago there was a flap about the use of trichlorethylene in decaffeinated coffee. Large doses instilled in mice stomachs through a tube caused the mice to develop cancer. However, the amount of the agent given the mice was equivalent to a human drinking 50 million cups of decaffeinated coffee each day. So the experiment had very little to do with ordinary human consumption. Nevertheless, the companies using that method discontinued it. A more pertinent concern has been raised by the apparent association between coffee and pancreatic cancer. This is from the coffee itself and it is apparently an association

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Difference in veins with both the decaffeinated and regular coffee. Coffee is a natural product. Natural foods and products are not without their effects on health and not all such effects are good. It doesn't have to be "chemical" to be harmful.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a problem with a skin cancer on my nose. It started as a little bump about half way between the middle and end of my nose about two years ago. I went to the doctor and he burned it off. About a month later it came back. He burned it again. In the last two years he has burned it five or six times. Each time the cancer goes a little lower on my nose until now it is almost on the end.

It heals each time and after the scab comes off it looks just fine with a clean scar, then it pops out again.

My doctor told me that other people had this problem, too, but not as persistent as mine. I have begun to get worried about it but he said it wasn't the dangerous type. But I am getting tired of going around with a scab on the end of my nose all the time. Is there anything else that can be done about it? Can you send me any information on this problem?

DEAR READER - Such skin cancers are the most common form of all cancers. The mild type are so common and so seldom a serious problem if not neglected that they are not usually included in cancer statistics. The exception is the malignant melanoma skin cancer which is serious.

The type you have are usually the end result of excess exposure to the sun - often over years. The young person bent on getting that deep tan may look good today but in years to come that abused skin will be old, wrinkled and prone to skin cancers. That is why dermatologists try to get people to use sun screens and avoid sunburns or excessive tans.

If such slow-growing cancers are neglected they can cause enough damage to present cosmetic problems. But you can have the area surgically excised and repaired. The problem is that a damaged skin that may spawn one such skin cancer may, and usually does, spawn new skin cancers from other damaged areas. So it is often a job to keep getting rid of them as they occur.

DEAR DR. LAMB - As there are any drug for tic doloureux besides Dilantin and Tegretol? I have become immune to both. Do you know how successful the shot or needle into the jaw is for tic? I know of a lady who had this done and it lasted about five years. She says the side of her face was left numb but it was better than having pain.

DEAR READER - Tic doloureux is a very severe pain in the face and jaw region. Many who have it would do almost anything to be rid of it, so I understand how important this is to you.

Besides the medicines you have taken, there are some newer surgical techniques that can relieve the pain. The pain is transmitted by the trigeminal nerve which is why it is also called trigeminal neuralgia. The neurosurgical techniques involve either selective destruction of the individual pain fibers without destroying other fibers for sensation, or another procedure that exposes the root of the nerve and removes local pressure. The pressure often is a loop of artery pressing on the nerve. Ask your doctor to refer you to a neurosurgeon familiar with these techniques to see if you can be helped with one of these procedures.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My wife and I will be trying to have children in the near future. We need to know whether taking regular hot baths can affect a man's fertility by killing sperm.

DEAR READER - Studies show that heat will decrease the number of live healthy sperm cells. That will include hot baths. It includes jockey-type shorts that prevent normal descent of the testicles away from the body to maintain a lower body temperature. It includes a varicocele (varicose vein to the testicles that prevents normal temperature control).

If a man produces a lot of healthy sperm cells none of these things may prevent him from fathering a child. If the number is marginal, any of these can be a significant factor in causing male infertility.

RULES AND HOW TO PLAY

1. TO OBTAIN MATERIAL: No purchase necessary. Get a free game card and game ticket on request at the end of checkout or at store office. Limit —one (1) ticket per visit, per day. Adults, 18 years of age or older only eligible to play.

2. TO PLAY: Each game ticket contains four markers. Simply punch out the perforated portions of the game ticket, then separate the punched out portions to reveal your four markers. Each marker corresponds to a square in one of the games on this game card. Carefully insert each marker in their appropriate square on your game card. Example: If one of your markers is a 761 in the $100.00 game, insert that marker in the square marked 761 in the $100.00 game on this game card. Some games contain squares marked "free," and it is unnecessary to collect a marker to be placed in such free squares. Free squares are not transferable.

3. TO WIN: There are three separate games to play and win: Instant $1.00 and $2.00 winners. If one of your markers shows "You Win $1.00" or "You win $2.00," you may be an instant winner and can immediately submit that marker for verification. Collect $5.00, $100.00, $1,000.00 and $2,000.00 in diamonds plus $1,000.00 cash game winners. These games play just like regular bingo, simply complete the required row either down, across or diagonally. Collect $25.00, $50.00 and $100.00 grocery certificate winners. Simply complete the spelling of any of the three words down and you can win the prize indicated.

4. CLAIM A PRIZE: All markers which are not part of the winning row should be removed and transferred to a new card. Submit the game card and winning row to authorized store personnel, who will arrange for verification and awarding of prizes. The game card must be signed and each marker submitted initialed by the customer in the presence of authorized personnel. Winners of instant $1.00 and $2.00 prizes and the $5.00 cash collect game can be verified and paid in cash at the store. Redemption of the $100.00, $1,000.00 and $2,000.00 in diamonds plus $1,000.00 cash collect games and the $25.00, $50.00 and $100.00 GROCERY certificate games must be submitted to the sponsor for verification and payment. Only one prize will be awarded per game on any one game card. All game materials submitted for verification become the property of the game sponsor. All tax liability on prizes is the responsibility of the prize winner.

5. ALL GAME MATERIAL: Will be rejected and judged void if not obtained from and verified by authorized personnel or, if any part of any game pieces are illegible, altered, mutilated, defaced, tampered with, forged, contains printing or other errors, or is irregular in any way. Any attempt to forge game material or to defraud in any way will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. Game materials void where taxed or prohibited by law.

6. GAME ENDS: Upon distribution of all game tickets. All prizes must be claimed within five (5) days after the announcement of termination or they are forfeited. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, at such times as the verified claims for prizes in any category equals the number of prizes advertised for that category, then the game, as it relates to that specific prize category, shall immediately terminate without notice, and any unverified claims at or after that time shall be automatically rejected.

7. ONLY GAME MATERIAL: Marked series DJB2 are valid for this game.

Texas Folklife Festival Starts 10th Year

It began as a get together of a few hundred Texans with special skills and talents they wanted to share. The idea was a good one and it became an annual event. Ten years old this August, the Texas Folklife Festival has become one of the state's most popular and unique showcases for Texas talent and history.

Staged each summer on the 15-acre grounds of its sponsor, The University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures, the Texas Folklife Festival is an outdoor extravaganza featuring food, music, dancing and crafts of 32 different cultural and ethnic groups that helped create Texas' diverse and colorful heritage. Six thousand participants from 170 Texas towns and cities work, learn and have fun together to create this celebration of Texas.

Nine Festival stages stay continuously busy with the song and dance of 115 performing groups. Visitors not only watch performances, but are invited onto the stages to try the steps.

Ethnic folk dancers perform traditional dances that are exciting to watch and fun to learn. Participants urge visitors to hop onto the stage to experiment with the Dutch "clogging," the Filipino "tinkling" and the Cajun "fais-do-do."

Few of the couples in stitons and boots on the dance floor dancing the "schottische" realize their footwork was originally a traditional Scottish folk dance. But many of the dances common to Texas honky tonks have roots centuries old. The Hermann Sons Polkateers demonstrate the rollicking Czechoslovakian dance which acquired widespread popularity in Europe and America during the 1840's—the polka. The stamping steps and heel-clicking actions of the "mazurka" are derived from folk dances of the Polish Mazurs, a people living on the plains of Masowaze in the 16th century. Music is provided by dozens of groups such as the Wurstfest Opa Band, the East Texas String Ensemble, the United Fiddlers Association, Hickory, Marcia Ball and Allen Dameron. Visitors can hear bluegrass bands in one corner of the grounds while strains of gospel groups come into hearing and the rhythms of a flamenco guitar resound in another area.

During the four-day celebration, the entertainment spills off the nine Festival stages and onto the grounds themselves. Booths laden with the arts and crafts of the state's multicultural settlers offer a decorative look at Texas history. Polish papercutting and ornamental Wendish crocheting delight visitors in one area, while the more practical-minded find pleasure in learning how to quilt, make rope or even build a log cabin. Children will have the opportunity to make a torn husk doll, watch the syrup maker or use their bare feet to help make adobe bricks.

Explaining and teaching early Texas crafts is one purpose of the Texas Folklife Festival, and participants relish the opportunity to share their knowledge. As Arnold Griffin, a participant for all ten years, put it, "I want to give young folks an idea of the way this state and nation were built, the way their granddaddies lived. I like the idea of bringing history to life so people nowadays can appreciate what pioneer life was like."

For the more competitive in spirit, the Festival offers contests ranging from chicken flyrig contests to crawfish racing; from Belgian mast climbing to "boece," an Italian lawn bowling game. Frontier Playland, a place for the children, gives younger visitors the opportunity to pet a cow, milk a goat and take a ride around the grounds on a mule-drawn wagon.

After racing, dancing and learning, visitors will get "mighty hungry," and the Festival becomes a restaurant featuring food and drinks from around the world. For an appetizer, visitors sample the Italian "cappucino" or the Lebanese "mihshee malfoof," and then move on to the Hungarian "gulyas," Jewish "machshi" or the Swiss "bratwurst." And for dessert, visitors will enjoy delicious Belgian honey cakes or Asian "chat." The Festival is full of delightful aromas, and visitors can recreate the smells—and menus—at home by asking for any of the exotic recipes or sharing secrets with downhome cooks.

Visit the downtown San Antonio grounds of The Institute of Texan Cultures August 6 through 9 to celebrate a decade of fun at the tenth annual Texas Folklife Festival. Tickets are $4 for adults ($3.50 in advance), $1 for children under 13 and children under six get in free. In honor of the tenth reunion, children ten years of age will be admitted free. Park and ride services will be available from major shopping malls and a shuttle bus will serve downtown parking lots. For more information write The Institute of Texan Cultures, P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio, Texas, 78294, or call (512) 226-7651.

Drug Payoffs Tempting To Low-Paid Police

By STEPHEN C. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — By simply turning away as a plane skims over the Everglades dropping duffel bags of cocaine or standing lookout when smugglers sneak a boat packed with marijuana into the Keys, a Florida policeman can make more money in one night than he could in a career.

The American appetite for cocaine, marijuana and other drugs is skyrocketing, prompting South American smugglers to use old-fashioned bribery to assure the safe arrival of their illicit cargoes.

The bait is money, lots of money, enough to pay off the mortgage and the bills and buy the luxuries that are only dreams on a police officer's salary.

"Have you ever seen $50,000 in one pile? I'll tell you, it's impressive," said Maj. Ed Little, chief of the Florida Marine Patrol's South Florida region.

"You can let your mind run loose. Just think, you could pay off your house or pay cash for a fancy car. You could buy all sorts of things. Hell, yes, the temptation is there. The temptation is great."

Although law enforcement leaders say nearly all Florida officers are honest, hard-working cops who would never take a bribe, they admit some haven't been able to say "No."

"You take a police officer who is making $12,000 a year and simply by turning his head one night and allowing an aircraft to come in, he can make $50,000," said Allan Pringle, deputy director of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration's southeastern region.

"It goes on all the time. In Florida, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, smuggling aircraft are coming in every day by the hundreds," Pringle said.

ingle said.

Said U.S. Attorney Atlee Wampler: "Nobody in law enforcement makes the kind of money that will come anywhere near what can be earned in a single night by just helping unload a boatload of marijuana."

One of the longest and most complex investigations into drug-related police corruption climaxed Tuesday when nine former Dade County homicide detectives were indicted by a federal grand jury and accused of accepting drugs and money from Mario Escandar, described by Drug Enforcement Administration officials as a major trafficker of cocaine.

The officers, who Escandar reportedly once called his "young men of iron," were indicted on a variety of charges, including racketeering, narcotics trafficking and stealing drugs from the scene of a crime.

So far, one-third of the detectives assigned to the homicide unit in 1979 have been investigated for corruption. Law enforcement officials say almost every police agency in the state has been touched in some way by drug corruption. Some examples:

—Florida Marine Patrol Capt. Ralph Tingley faces

trial next month on charges he accepted a $50,000 payoff to ignore a marijuana smuggling operation. Prosecutors claim Tingley promised that an unidentified person wouldn't be apprehended bringing ashore two boatloads of pot. No marijuana was brought ashore, but Florida Department of Law Enforcement agents said they found $50,000 cash at Tingley's home when he was arrested.

—Four former Key West city policemen were convicted along with eight other people in connection with a Customs Service bust on Stock Island that netted more than 100,000 pounds of marijuana.

—Monroe County State Attorney Jeff Gautier was suspended by Gov. Bob Graham last November on accusations that Gautier used and possessed marijuana and methqualone.

—A jailer and four Taylor County sheriff's deputies were recently suspended after federal agents investigated allegations they were involved in drug smuggling. One of the deputies, Broward Reed, has been indicted by a federal grand jury on conspiracy, marijuana possession and perjury counts.

—An "officer of the year" in the small Dade County community of Medley was charged in connection with what Miami police detectives said was a ring that kidnaped drug dealers and then held them for $1 million ransom. A former policeman who worked for several departments in Dade and Broward counties also was charged in the case.

—A 16-year veteran Miami policeman was arrested in what agents nicknamed "Operation Giraffe," charged with being a courier for a drug ring and helping its members detect undercover police operations.

Battered Women Have Options

NEW YORK (NEA) - Almost every night, there are 60 women and children in the YWCA shelter for battered women in Salt Lake City; 49 at the one in Tacoma, Washington.

That's the capacity for each, but only one-fifth of those who "want in" there, and at the 87 other Y shelters around the country. "Only one out of five women gets service at our shelters because we don't have enough resources," says Ruth E. Curry, ordained minister in the United Church of Christ and specialist in battered women's programs on the YWCA's National Board.

According to a survey by the National Board conducted last May among the Y's 398 associations - 134 of which maintain battered women's programs, 125 of which responded by deadline - 46,186 women and children were sheltered by Y's between 1978 and 1980, and 62,000 counseled. Multiply by five and "you get the actual number you asked for help," she says.

Those asking are mostly between 21 and 35, said the survey; mostly white, black, Hispanic or whatever other group composes the majority of that community. They're married to all kinds of men who make all kinds of money and who beat them mainly, perhaps, because "they don't have an alternate way of dealing with conflict or hostility," she says.

So, like one woman Ms. Curry knows of who'd been beaten so badly so often that her 3-year-old developed a severe case of ulcers from watching, they eventually seek help: perhaps first calling a YWCA crisis line anonymously, or going straight in for counseling by one of the trained volunteers; or, in cities like Cincinnati where hospital emergency rooms maintain hot-line numbers to the shelters, going straight from the former to the latter.

Whether the shelter resembles a YWCA residence or a former boarding house, its location is either kept secret or the premises securely patrolled so the batterer cannot harass his wife. If there's a fee for room and board, Ms. Curry says, "It may be as little as $2.50 a day, but no woman is turned away if she does not have the fee."

She is, however, turned towards a new point of view. "We want her to see she has options," she says, "and to look at whether she wants to stay with her husband, under what conditions; whether she wants a divorce and transitional housing or support from us in getting help from other agencies. But whatever she decides, we try to help her become independent as quickly as possible and make her own decisions."

While she's deciding, in many communities her children can attend nearby schools "without being identified, no questions asked," so they don't fall behind and don't incur a stigma because they're living in a shelter.

In many communities, too, there's a "shelter network." "If a woman should not stay in the shelter in her own town - perhaps her husband is a policeman there who knows the address, or a prominent figure - that shelter will call one in another community which will accept that woman on a priority basis."

But not all YWCA associations or communities do all things. To find out what they are doing for battered women and how to improve on that, the YWCA National Board in New York held a Consultation on Domestic Violence last December, attended by 30 YWCA professionals from 23 states and experts from the Office of Domestic Violence of the Department of Health and Human Services, the National Institute of Mental Health and elsewhere.

"One of the things we learned," says Ms. Curry, "is that there's a need to provide the battered woman with someone from her own ethnic background to talk to, someone who can really listen and hear what she's saying. And, we need to have available to every program a person trained in therapeutic counseling or social work. Perhaps someone from the local mental health organization. Some of the women who come to the shelters really do need long-term counseling to develop their strengths. That has been available, but not to the extent we want it to."

But what the battered women's programs all need most of all, she says, is money. "We're hoping state funding will increase," she says. "And we will ask the United Way for an increase in our allotments which vary from community to community. We will also be asking for help from the business community and foundations."

And if there is no help? "We WILL get funding," she says, adamantly. "We will keep these programs going and we will increase them because we are not interested in applying a Band-Aid to the problem. We want to change the way the women and children are coping, and the way in which they can proceed whether they go back home or not."

"There is," she says, "no way we can let this program stop."

Heloise Lives On Through Daughter

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Heloise argued with a plumber about dumping coffee grounds down the sink.

Not unusual for a woman who keeps a tablecloth wadded up in her freezer.

Heloise - the columnist synonymous with household hints - chats with as many exclamations as she uses in her writing.

The San Antonio resident, talks about her second book, taking over her late mother's column and life with her new husband, David. He's the plumber.

And she talks about her latest household crusade.

This time it's perspiration buildup.

Of the 2,000 to 3,000 letters Heloise receives in one week, 20 to 30 readers have complained lately that they can't get stains out of new T-shirts. Heloise has put the Soap and Detergent Association on the case.

Yes. The youthful Heloise with naturally gray hair listens to her readers. Yes, she tries every one of the hints she recommends. And yes, she writes her columns.

With help from her household of four animals -

"They're just like children except you don't have to send them to college" - two secretaries, father and husband, Heloise tries anything that doesn't sound too dumb.

But "some of the hints are really dumb," Heloise said. "I got one letter from a woman. She said she had the 'ultimate use' for nylon net. She cuts up green nylon net and puts it into salads - to help her cut down on eating. God forbid she swallows it."

Picking hints is the hardest part of the job. "What I think is a dumb hint you may think is fantastic," she said.

For example, Heloise would never re-use a coffee filter.

"But now, I re-use coffee," she said with a laugh.

And re-using coffee can cause commotion with David. "My husband thinks it's gross. So, each to their own."

Despite the savings from Heloise's decision to use black ties and tails instead of bridesmaid dresses at her Feb. 14 wedding, her husband doesn't easily follow Heloise's hints.

"David doesn't believe me a lot of times and I tell him, 'David, 75 million women across America listen to what I tell them.' And he says, 'But are you sure?'"

Some questions make Heloise grow weary of being Heloise. "Once in a while when I come off a book tour or something, I think, 'If just one more person says 'ring around your collar' ..."

At her mother's death in 1978, the daughter - born Ponce Cruse - became Heloise II, and assumed a lifestyle she knew well.

Growing up where it wasn't unusual to catch Mom in the back yard testing hints on her blue jeans, Heloise never thought her childhood was out of the ordinary.

"It was unusual, but I didn't know it at the time ... Then I went off to college."

During a cooking spree with friends "we'd burned something and so I went and called my mother," Heloise said. "She said 'oh yes' and told me how to fix it. I went back and told my friends. They said, 'do you know how lucky you are? How many people can call home to Heloise?'"

But life as the daughter of the homemakers' hint-helper wasn't always so helpful.

"I remember when my mother went to New York when I was 8. I really didn't understand. Why are you leaving me?" I asked her. She tried to explain to me that she wasn't leaving me, she was just leaving. But I didn't understand."

As she speaks, Heloise admitted her admiration of homemakers - male or female - that stems from her mother's respect of "the backbone of the world."

"I'd rather run an office with four people than be a mother with four children. It's easier. You can go home in the evening," she said.

When her mother died, readers made it easier for the new Heloise.

"The people in New York (who syndicate her column) were so concerned when mother died. Would people accept a 27-year-old single lady as Heloise? I told them, 'You don't know the trust of the readers.' We didn't lose any accounts."

Within a week after her recent wedding, and even now, readers sent "the most beautiful cards, congratulations on the wedding - pretty cards with all the glitter and gold. And some sent checks," Heloise said. "What do I do with these?"

Heloise - always observant, always ready with a suggestion - will think of something.

She sees herself as Heloise for the rest of her life.

"This is me. I don't see this as a job," she said. "Now, I don't spend 24 hours a day, hinting and I don't go in someone's house and open the cabinets."

But she is dedicated. The other morning, for example, she got up at 2:30 to write down a hint that came to her in the middle of the night: You can make five flower arrangements from two arrangements that you pick up at the grocery store.

To prevent children's crayons from breaking, wrap a two-inch-long piece of cellophane tape around the center of the crayon.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White
Attorney General

AUSTIN - Sometimes it's hard to say "no" to a door-to-door salesperson, even one selling something you don't particularly need or want.

And many Texas consumers find only after that persuasive sales pitch has ended and the salesperson has departed with a signed contract that they could have bought the same or a similar item in stores all over town, sometimes at a much lower price than they had agreed to pay.

Under the Texas Homes Solicitation Transactions Act, a consumer who is solicited at his/her home by someone selling goods or services that cost $25 or more, or real estate costing $100 or more, has a chance to change his mind.

The act gives consumers the right to cancel a home solicitation transaction up until midnight of the third business day following the day the contract was signed.

The person soliciting the sale must furnish the consumer with a copy of the contract or a fully completed receipt before leaving the premises. In it, the date of the transaction, name and address of the seller, and a notice of the right to cancel must be printed in large, dark type near the spot on the contract reserved for the buyer's signature.

In addition, the law requires that a completed "notice of cancellation" be attached to the contract or receipt for the consumer to use if he decides to cancel the sale. If the seller receives such a cancellation from the consumer, he must return any payment or contract within 10 business days.

One important point for the thousands of Spanish-speaking Texans is that the contract or receipt, the notice of right to cancel, and the completed cancellation notice must be in the same language the salesperson used for his sales pitch. In other words, if the sales person spoke Spanish, everything must be written in Spanish.

The act also states that the seller cannot transfer your contract to a finance company or other third party until midnight of the fifth business day after your contract was signed.

Additionally, the seller must pick up any merchandise or title to realty he sold you within 20 days after cancellation or you can keep them with no obligation.

However, our attorneys point out that consumers who want to cancel a home solicitation sale also have some obligations under the law. To cancel such a sale, a purchaser must mail or deliver a signed, dated copy of the cancellation notice or his own written notice, or must send a telegram to that effect to the seller no later than midnight of the third business day after the sale. Our lawyers recommend sending a registered letter or telegram so you have proof the seller received the notice.

Protection under this law does not extend to purchase of farm equipment; insurance regulated by the State; real estate sales where the buyer is represented by his lawyer or where the transaction is made by the licensed real estate broker; sales made according to a pre-existing retail charge account or agreement; or sales where the two parties had previously met and negotiated at a business office where the goods or services were offered or displayed.

Our attorneys point out that a violation of the Home Solicitation Act is also a violation of the Deceptive Trade Practices Act, and that a person who believes such a violation has occurred should contact our Consumer Protection Division, the county or district attorney, or a private attorney.
