Vote counting stalls, but runoff foreseen

By REID G. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Bickering among election officials stalled the vote-counting, but moderate Jose Napoleon Duarte and rightist Roberto d'Aubuisson appear headed for a runoff in their bitter contest for the presidency of El Salvador.

A runoff will be required if no candidate gets a majority of the vote from Sunday's election, and by Duarte's own count, that won't happen.

The first round of balloting was seen all along as a showdown between Duarte and d'Aubuisson, who differ sharply on how to end a civil war that has claimed more than 50,000 lives and shattered the nation's economy.

In the absence of an official tally, only Duarte's Christian Democratic Party was providing unofficial election returns, and these figures showed him without a majority.

The official results were delayed by squabbling within the Central Election Council, a supposedly nonpartisan supervisory agency.

By 8 p.m. Monday, not a single vote from the 6,598 ballot boxes had been officially counted. Asked when tabulating would begin, council vice president Roberto Meza Delgado replied, "I haven't an idea."

If neither Duarte nor d'Aubuisson received a majority, a runoff would be required by law within 45 days of the first election, May 9 at the latest.

D'Aubuisson, 40, who has been linked to right-wing death squads, has said he would never talk with the leftist rebels who have been waging war against the government for 4½ years, vowing instead to crush them militarily.

A cashiered army major, d'Aubuisson is founder and leader of the far-right Republican Nationalist Alliance party.

Duarte, 58, favors dialogue with the insurgents, and has said his government would represent all factions of the divided nation.

So deep is the rift between Duarte and d'Aubuisson that some U.S. officials fear a victory by either man will heighten tension to such an extent that new political violence or even a coup attempt might result.

Sunday's election was marred by bureaucratic foulups and rebel interference that prevented thousands from voting.

In one attack Sunday, 35 miles northeast of San Salvador at Tejatepeque, guerrillas killed 30 soldiers. The regional military commander, Lt. Col. Carlos Alfredo Rivas, said it appeared some of the troopers were slain after they were captured.

Jorge Roche, a Salvadoran who works for the election council and helped set up the voting process, noted the agency had only five weeks to prepare for the balloting after the legislature approved the election law in February.

He said there was not enough time to work out many of the details, such as locating polling places.

One school earmarked as a polling place had been taken over by a nearby army garrison and was walled off from the street, he said.

Certification status still question

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

With one of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards representatives unavailable, area officials were not able Monday in Austin to find out about juvenile certification for the county jail.

Deaf Smith County Commissioners trekked to the state capital along with County Judge Glen Nelson, District Attorney Roland Saul, Sheriff Joe Brown and State Senator Bill Sarpius.

Part of the group was to meet with members of the Texas Historical Commission, though details of what went on during that session were not made available. The THC is reportedly concerned proposed additions and renovation work to the Deaf Smith County Jail will detract from the county square area.

One of representatives absent

The local jail is certified to contain juveniles only through April 4, Nelson explained during a telephone interview this morning. New federal regulations have changed the requirements for housing juveniles, though Nelson said the exact details of the legislation are unknown, as is its inception date.

Two extension certifications have been granted since the beginning of the year: one for 90 days and the other for 10. The second, Nelson said, was made to accommodate the intended gathering in Austin.

The absent TCJS official - one of two to meet with the Deaf Smith group - was instead in Dallas Monday, the county judge understood.

Nelson said he is fairly certain the jail meets all juvenile requirements through this year, as the juvenile area is already separated by sight and sound. "We darn sure don't want to do it without being sure we're right," he said.

Eventually, federal law calls for all juvenile inmates are to be housed under a different roof than other prisoners. The long-term answer to that problem, Nelson believes, is a regional facility incorporating several area counties.

In the meantime, should certification not be extended beyond April 4, any Deaf Smith juvenile inmates must be transferred to acceptable facilities in Amarillo, Plainview or Lubbock, Nelson said. He thought such a system would be quite costly, as in Amarillo prisoners would have $50 worth of tests administered before entering the facility at $50 per day.

Nelson hopes to arrange a meeting soon with Amarillo Family District Court Judge Jerry Shackelford, chairman of the state juvenile commission. Wesley Guiley, 222nd District Court judge, and members of the local juvenile board would attend along with Nelson.

Saul, also contacted by telephone this morning, said he would present a complete report of the historical commission session April 9 during the next county commission meeting. Those area officials who attended Monday's gathering were Brown and Saul along with Commissioners Bill Bradley, Bruce Coleman and Austin Rose.

Industrial Byrd opposes proposal

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Thirty years ago, an early ice storm hit Swisher County and destroyed the corn crop just before harvest time. Wylie Byrd decided to try and save it.

The young farmer went in his shop and built a spiral implement he thought would lift the ears of corn right off the ground. He took it out to the field and it worked, he claimed, "much better than we ever thought it would."

Byrd's wife gave it a name, they applied for a patent, and the Roll-A-Cone was born. Today, that "invention born of necessity" is the basis of a multi-million dollar industry that employs 35 of Tulia's 5,000 or so residents. An annual payroll of $700,000 is one of the largest in the county.

Last week, Byrd and about

Regarding nuclear waste dump

17 other landowners learned their property is included in a nine-square-mile site selected for further geological study by the Department of Energy. The farmland four miles north of Tulia is a possible location for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste repository. The 200,000 square feet Roll-A-Cone Industries factory sits just inside the southern boundary of that patch of prime farmland.

The DOE says that if—and only if—the Tulia site is selected as one of three final possibilities for location of the dump, around 75 acres will be purchased by the department so a test hole can be bored. DOE officials are expected to recommend three locations to the president next January and a final decision is to be reached by March.

Should the site be selected, acquisition of the rest of the 9-square-mile area could begin as early as 1990. DOE claims an office and support buildings would occupy about 400 acres, and the remainder of the site would be leased from area landowners.

At a public meeting in Tulia last week, a DOE bureau chief said farmers should be able to continue using their land even though it would be leased by the department. Dr. Ted Taylor, who met first with landowners and later with the public, claimed the only disruption would be a requirement that DOE approve any drilling for water on the site premises.

Most of the farmers say that what with the threat of a nuclear "accident" or the possibility of water contamination, they may not want to continue farming the ground. And they certainly are not crazy about living there.

Byrd said he has not stopped to count how many homes are located within the newly-defined boundaries, but he alone owns 10 houses that were built for his employees on the Roll-A-Cone grounds.

"Now do you see why I want to fight this?" he asked as he circled the plant in a late-model pickup truck. "I'm too old to start over."

Man may change his mind

A Hereford man set to go to trial this week has indicated he may change his mind and enter a plea of guilty to a charge of indecency with a child.

Jacinto Esqueda, 46, is slated to appear Wednesday in 222nd District Court. Assistant District Attorney Roxanne Davis said Esqueda and his attorney, Patrick Abeyta, may decide to accept a plea bargain offered by the district attorney's office.

Jury selection began at 9:30 a.m. today for the district court docket that also included the trials of Alvin Solomon and Guermo Franco.

Solomon, 23, was arrested Nov. 4 and charged with burglary with intent to commit sexual assault. Solomon's name appears first on the docket, with his trial expected to commence this afternoon.

Fifty-five-year-old Franco, still awaiting sentencing following a jury conviction last month, is set for trial on another, separate charge of driving while intoxicated. The current case stems from a July 17, 1982 arrest, and Davis said there is a possibility Franco will also enter a guilty plea.

Both men are Hereford residents.

Fifty-two watches stolen

Fifty-two watches, valued at around $100 apiece, were stolen sometime during the last three weeks, Hereford police reported this morning.

Reece Lawson, 404 E. Seventh St., told police he did not know when or from where the merchandise was taken.

Judy McCarter of 333 Douglas St., meanwhile, had her $500 clarinet stolen sometime last week. Police were informed of the theft shortly after 2 p.m. Friday.

Saturday between 9:30 and 10 p.m., a purse was lifted out of a 1978 GMC pickup somewhere within city limits, police said. Victim of the crime is Teresa Phillips, Amarillo, whose purse reportedly contained between $200 and $750 worth of items.

Hereford Volunteer Firemen responded to a structure fire in the San Jose Labor Community early Monday afternoon, though details of the incident were not available.

Verified owners list released

U.S. Department of Energy officials have issued a verified list of land and sub-surface mineral rights owners within the nine-square-mile area in Deaf Smith County under consideration for a nuclear waste repository.

The names of landowners reportedly include Virginia Bates Allison, Bess Bates, J.C. Cox Corporation, James H. and Geraldine Fangman, Mack Forrester Ranch and Dorothy Groneman. Also shown are Donald and Mildred Hicks, R.D. Hicks, Priscilla McFarland, Jill Byrd, Dick Murphy, Eugene Murphy and Richardson Seed Company.

Those who own sub-surface mineral rights supposedly are Ethel Armstrong, George C. Ball, Kindell R. Ball, R. Lawrence Ball, Juanita Brillhart, U.S. Secretary of the Interior William P. Clark, Elizabeth B. Lambouren and J.A. and Susie Weeks.

Ralph Paschel, Ed Rohrback, Norman Gray, Albert Schoenenberger and Paschel and Son are listed as operators of land within the defined boundaries.

Richards reception slated

A public reception for Don Richards, Democratic candidate for U.S. Representative of the 19th Congressional District, is scheduled for 5 to 7 p.m. today in the Hereford State Bank's community room.

The meet-the-candidate affair is to be hosted by local supporters. All interested people are invited to attend. Punch, coffee and cookies are to be served.

MONDAY'S HIGH: 60 (normal high today: 64 record: 84 (1971))

OVERNIGHT LOW: 43 (normal: 35 record: 7 (1931))
OUTLOOK: Cloudy and windy tonight with a 50 percent chance of showers, which are to turn to snow by late tonight with an accumulation of one inch possible. The low should be in the upper 20s, with northerly winds of 20 to 30 miles per hour expected.

Wednesday should bring a 30 percent chance of showers, with the high to be near 45. Northwesterly winds of 20 to 30 miles per hour are forecast.

Moores named top family of year

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A local family of five was named Hereford's "Family of the Year" on Sunday by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

Troy Don and Kathy Moore, along with children Shaun, Jayme and Jay, were chosen from a field of around 30 nominees and named during presentation ceremonies at 3 p.m. in Hereford Community Center.

The program also included an introduction of each nominated family, special musical numbers and a talk by Dr. Sam Richards of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Dr. Richards praised the families for their commitment and success, often referring to biblical passages that he said can help a family in its desire to maintain a happy home.

"Today we honor families that have been nominated based on skill and contributions to their community and to their family," he concluded.

The Moores are members of the First United Methodist Church, serving as family life coordinators and on other related committees.

The children study music and are involved in school and YMCA sports. All three

Selected from 30 nominees take part in youth activities at their church.

"The couple credit their own parents with the success in their home. 'They are real interested in our children, and the kids spend a lot of time with both sets of grandparents,' Mr. Moore said.

"It's a real unique situation, and the grandparents are a real input into our family."

Mrs. Moore has made the choice to remain at home with the children "for as long as it is economically possible." Her husband says she is a very patient and understanding mother.

"There is a concern one for the other in our family," she said, "and we build our lives around our faith in God."

"We try to discipline with understanding," Mr. Moore added. "And we are just lucky in that we have three good kids."

Geter charges officially dismissed

DALLAS (AP) — Lenell Geter had known since last week that armed robbery charges against him were going to be dropped.

On Monday, the "black cloud" finally disappeared, said Geter, when a state district judge formally granted a prosecution motion to drop the charges for which the 26-year-old, black engineer served 16 months of a life prison sentence.

Geter, who attended the five-minute afternoon hearing with his attorneys, thanked State District Judge John Ovard.

Said Ovard, "There has been some negative experience, but we still have the finest criminal justice system that allows you to have rights, and I hope the people continue to have faith in the jury system."

Later, outside the courtroom, Geter told reporters, "Two or three tons have been lifted and the black cloud is gone."

Prison change proposals adopted

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas Board of Corrections adopted the recommendations of a consulting firm which suggested the job of corrections department director be divided between two people.

However, the board decided to wait before enlisting an executive search firm to assist in the hunt for the new top officers of the department.

Some board members said Monday that a search committee of the board should handle those duties, although the department has been offered an opportunity to have the search paid for by a criminal justice foundation in New York.

A decision on whether to employ a Boston law firm, Issacson, Ford, Webb and Miller, will be made by a search committee at a meeting Friday in Austin.

Misidentification plaguing inmates

HOUSTON (AP) — Many innocent people are in prison today because, like Greenville engineer Lenell Geter, they were misidentified by witnesses, says the president of the Harris County Lawyers Association.

"I think that (misidentification) happens all the time," Jack Zimmermann said. "I think a lot of innocent people are in prison on the basis of misidentification."

Zimmermann's statement came in the aftermath of the sensational case of Geter, 26, who was sentenced to life in prison after five witnesses identified him as the man who robbed a Kentucky Fried Chicken outlet in Balch Springs near Dallas in 1982.

Charges against Geter were dismissed when four witnesses who originally identified Geter identified another man similar in appearance who was being held in a Houston jail.

Democrats seek to end bickering

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the race for the Democratic presidential nomination still wide open, party leaders are approaching the drafting of a 1984 party platform with caution, hoping to avoid the bickering among rival candidates that plagued the 1980 platform debates.

"What we're doing on the platform is not focusing on differences among candidates but on our differences with the administration," said Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro, D-N.Y., who chairs the Democratic Party's platform committee.

The 184-member panel today was beginning the process of crafting a party issues document to be adopted in San Francisco in mid-July at the Democratic National Convention.

Cookie plant to be inspected

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Reports of needles and paper clips in Girl Scout cookies have prompted federal officials to order an investigation of the plant where the cookies are made following suspension of distribution throughout Maine.

Robert C. Fish, director of compliance for the Food and Drug Administration's regional office in Nashville, Tenn., said Monday his office will inspect the Louisville, Ky., plant where over 50 million packages of the cookies were baked. He said the possibility of sabotage had not been ruled out.

Cookies baked at the Louisville facility were distributed in 43 states, the District of Columbia and West Germany, a company official said.

"Every kook in the country is starting to make claims," James Yowell, president of Mother's Cookies, said in a telephone interview from his office in Augusta, Ga.

Chemical weapons evidence found

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Four experts dispatched to Iran to investigate charges of chemical weapons use by Iraq say they found evidence that aerial bombs containing chemical agents had been dropped near the Iranian border.

But their report, issued Monday, does not suggest who was responsible for the bombings.

The four, appointed by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, spent a week in Iran, from March 13-19. They visited a sector of the Iranian war zone, examined alleged victims of chemical weapons in Iranian hospitals and the bodies of victims who allegedly died from exposure to chemical weapons.

They did not visit Iraq, where much of the war's recent fighting has taken place.

French diplomat seriously wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A French diplomat was shot and seriously wounded today in Beirut's Moslem sector, and at least 20 civilians were reported wounded in an artillery barrage on Christian neighborhoods.

Spokesmen at the French Embassy identified the wounded diplomat as cultural attache Sauvour Gliozzo, but would not give details about how he was shot or how serious his condition was.

At the American University Hospital, spokesmen said Gliozzo underwent emergency surgery to remove at least two bullets from his stomach and arm. They also declined to classify the seriousness of his condition.

There was no immediate responsibility claim for the attack, and local radio stations said the assailant or assailants escaped.

Lebanon's state radio said Gliozzo was shot as he was on his way to work at the French Embassy. It said he was hit four times and rushed to the hospital.

No Loss For Words

Why Wylie Byrd talks about nuclear waste, he makes his feelings known in phrases that are at once humorous and cutting. Personal remarks about one DOE official's physical appearance were part of his speech at a public meeting in Tullia last week. "I'm a farmer, and I use language that other farmers can understand," he said afterwards.

Paul Harvey News

Last year, 1983, the United States economy improved dramatically.

You'd never have known it from listening to the three major television networks.

Unemployment was reduced from 10.7 percent to 8.2 percent.

Employment increased by four million to a new historic high.

But the prime time newscasts on the big three networks persisted in seeking out and concentrating on pockets of poverty, black clouds of economic misery.

Maybe they didn't know — or didn't care — that the Institute for Applied Economics was listening, recording, keeping score.

Last July 8, the Labor Department announced a drop in unemployment.

For Dan Rather's program, reporter Ray Brady focused your attention on worsening unemployment in certain industrial areas.

In October unemployment

continued to decline to the least in 20 months.

Construction, mining and manufacturing all showed improvement.

ABC stated that the unemployment drop was the result of many jobless Americans ending their search for work; implied that the Reagan economic policy was a complete failure, and turned to Democratic presidential candidates for their views.

November, again unemployment declined sharply, to the lowest level in two years.

ABC used that announcement to focus instead on two men who'd been unemployed, for 18 months and on their despair and talk of suicide.

In last year's third-quarter the gross national product grew at a robust 7.7 percent.

Irving Levine for NBC focused on "pockets of poverty" where recovery is still just a dream.

Inflation abated last year to the lowest rate in 20 years.

CBS sought and found an economist who talked only of "the three years' recession, unemployment, idle factories."

He said, "Most industry is flat on its back."

Dan Rather somehow figured out that, quote, "when inflation stays low, too long the wealthy benefit disproportionately."

Factor output increased 6.5 percent and ABC followed that mention with a lengthy story about the closing of an International Harvester plant.

During the six months' span of this study every aspect of our nation's economy was improving but....

Of all economic stories of an interpretive nature on the three networks evening news shows, 86 percent were primarily negative.

Reagan wants aid package

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, buttressed by congressional observers' endorsement of the integrity of El Salvador's election, will buttonhole senators this week to urge passage of an emergency military aid package for the embattled Central American country.

Reagan, who called the election a "victory for freedom over tyranny, of liberty over repression, of courage over intimidation," picked up some support for that view from a bipartisan group of congressional observers who returned from El Salvador after watching the election and went directly to the White House to report to the president.

"The consensus was, without exception, that it was a very, very impressive event," Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del. said Monday. "I have never been more impressed or more inspired."

Hart searching for Connecticut win

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer

Gary Hart looked for a victory today in Connecticut's Democratic presidential primary while Walter Mondale, after widening his lead for delegates in Virginia's caucuses, focused his sights on New York's big delegate prize next week.

Hart and Mondale debated at a distance on the eve of Connecticut's voting, voicing distinctly different views on the use of U.S. troops in Central America.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, also vying for Connecticut votes, told Yale University students he would end poverty in three years if president.

Hart, the Colorado senator, accused Mondale of backing a Central American policy that will lead to "the rather large loss of American lives" by the end of the decade.

Mondale countered that Hart was wrongly trying to link him to President Reagan's policies in the region.

"I believe my opponent is getting frantic," Mondale said.

Polls were opening at 6 a.m. across Connecticut today; they close at 8 p.m.

Connecticut Democrats will decide 52 of the state's 60 national convention delegates through their primary, and Hart hopes the voting will provide more momentum going into neighboring New York's primary next week.

There will be 252 delegates at stake then.

Party officials expected a turnout of only about one-third the state's 660,000 Democratic voters.

Hart is hoping to complete a clean sweep of the six New England states. It was the surprising victory in New Hampshire one month ago that started Hart's surge and put him alongside Mondale as a top contender for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mondale, meanwhile, appeared headed toward another caucus victory based on incomplete results from Virginia, which held its second night of statewide Democratic "mass meetings" Monday.

With 3,382 of the 3,500 state and congressional district convention delegates already chosen, the former vice president had 31 percent, Jackson 27 percent, uncommitted 27 percent and Gary Hart 15 percent.

Total popular votes weren't immediately available, and party officials were still figuring how the 68 national delegates that were at stake would be divided.

Hart campaigned hard right up to today's voting in Connecticut. Neither Hart nor his aides would venture a prediction, but the only pre-election poll, conducted by the University of Connecticut last week, gave him a 20 percentage-point lead over Mondale with Jackson far behind and 19 percent undecided.

Mondale made only two brief campaign trips to the state. He was concentrating on New York, where a recent poll has him leading Hart, and Pennsylvania, which holds its primary April 10.

"Tomorrow, I need ya," he told several hundred senior citizens on a 90-minute trip to Connecticut Monday night.

"This is a tight contest. It's close."

Later, however, Mondale told reporters: "I don't know what's going to happen tomorrow. I used to read polls until I found they were very unreliable."

Jackson ended two days of campaigning in the state Monday, when he said he would fight poverty by abandoning or freezing weapons programs such as the B-1 bomber, MX missile and nuclear aircraft carriers.

"If elected president, I will send to Congress a budget package that will eliminate hunger in America within six months," he said. "I will eliminate poverty in America within three years."

Hart and Mondale offered differing views on troops in Central America in separate campaign appearances Monday. Hart said the troops must be pulled out as soon as possible, while Mondale said he would keep "a few" troops in El Salvador and "temporarily" ... a modest number of troops in Honduras.

Meanwhile, a new New York Times-CBS News poll of 1,217 adults around the United States, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, reported that 42 percent supported Mondale to 35 percent for Hart and 9 percent for Jackson. The sampling included 862 who said they were registered to vote and 429 who said they were Democratic primary voters.

Of Camp David accords

Delay disappoints Carter

DALLAS (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter says he is disappointed that — on the fifth anniversary of the Camp David accords — the settlement he worked out with then-Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and then-Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has yet to be fully implemented.

"I don't think either nation would allege that the other has violated terms of the accord, but both would say that the other has failed to carry out the spirit of the agreement," Carter said Monday during a speech at Southern Methodist University.

"That was a great step forward. My prayer is that it will eventually be put in full effect. Still, a cold peace is better than a hot war," Carter added.

He spoke to about 2,000 people at Southern Methodist University Monday night. After a half-hour speech, he participated in a question-and-answer session for 40 minutes.

There were signs of progress, Carter said, noting that Begin dismantled Israeli settlements along the West bank, as he promised, despite a failure by his party to ratify the accords, which were signed on March 26, 1979.

"But Begin has never offered any measure of full autonomy, as required by the accords. And I had hopes Jordan would join the peace talks. They did not because they would have to recognize the right of Israel to exist," Carter said.

None of the three principals in the agreements is still around. Carter was defeated in his reelection bid, Sadat was assassinated, and Begin resigned.

The talks were an example of a role he sees vital for a U.S. president, but one that President Reagan has forsaken, Carter said.

"There is a way to handle controversy," said Carter. "Bringing disputing parties together, try to wipe out prejudice, listen to arguments of others, use your influence and power to bring differing parties together. This is the approach I took."

Carter said he was constantly negotiating with foreign leaders on topics such as the Panama Canal, SALT Talks, normalizing relations with China, the Camp David talks or the Iranian crisis.

"That philosophy has changed dramatically the last three years, not because the office has changed, but because President Reagan's attitude, emphasis and priorities are different from mine and my predecessors, both Democratic and Republican alike."

"As far as I know, there are no negotiations going on to alleviate the tensions or challenges to peace around the world," Carter said.

"For negotiations to be successful they have to be known as originating from the secretary of state or the president himself," said Carter.

Carter called Sadat, "the greatest leader I ever met in my life."

"He was a bold, generous, courageous, far-sighted man. There are not any more Anwar Sadats. I wish there were. He was despised by those who did not want peace. He was a hero of mine," said Carter.

Carter said the Iranian crisis was the most traumatic time of his administration, but that the hostages' release was also the happiest day of his life.

Ann Landers Wrinkle smoother

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the lady who lies about her utility bills hit home.

I tried to eliminate all the unpleasantness from my husband's life. I now know I was trying to accomplish the impossible. Whenever I failed, I felt guilty.

After two years of therapy, I learned that his temper is HIS problem and I should now allow it to become mine. I also learned that he is old enough to deal with life's realities.

The results have been terrific. I am seeing much less of his temper and receiving a lot more appreciation.

I suggest that the woman with the utility bills, as well as all wives who make themselves crazy trying to smooth the wrinkles out of the lives of others, stop it. Let an immature spouse grow up and learn to cope. It is the biggest favor of all.—N.M.F.

DEAR N.M.F.: Beautiful. I couldn't have said it better myself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a high school sophomore who would like other teenagers to know how the problem of drunk driving is handled among my friends.

Last September, when I entered high school, I became friendly with many students who drive. Every weekend someone in the suburbs had a party. A few phone calls the night before settled the question of who would drive.

Six people easily can fit into one car, so five drivers is all we need for 30 people. We all took a pledge that when it was our turn to drive, we would stick with Coke or 7-Up. It is as simple as that.

I'm sure we aren't the only high school students who do this. Please publish this letter. It may save a few lives.—Sophomore In Cedarhurst, N.Y.

DEAR SOPH: Thanks for sharing your common-sense approach to a serious problem. Did you know that the most frequent cause of death among teenagers is accidents? And at least 70 percent of teenager car crashes involve alcohol or drugs. Paste these statistics on your dashboards, fun-lovers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

My husband's family lives in a home that is filthy. This causes me great distress whenever we visit them, which is once a year.

The bathroom is a health hazard. I am afraid to eat in my mother-in-law's kitchen. Her dishes are dirty and the stove is disgusting. The whole house smells.

My husband says his family is just "different." I have tried to help out, but there are no sponges or scouring powder to clean the bathtub or sinks. Can you help me?—Washington, D.C.

DEAR D.C.: Take sponges, scouring powder, soap and disinfectant along and leave everything when you depart. Perhaps your mother-in-law needs "educating."

Show pig production and a discussion of important factors in buying and selling boars will highlight the annual Texas A&M University Swine Short Course for producers on the High and Rolling Plains. The course, April 11, will be at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Lubbock, just east of I-27 on FM 1294, at the Shallowater exit.

It is one of three which A&M will present across the state, said Dr. Robert S. Cohen, Texas Agricultural Extension Service swine specialist at Lubbock. Cohen noted that the Lubbock course differs entirely from those to be presented April 10 at Stephenville and April 13 at Luling.

The Lubbock course was developed by the swine task force of the South Plains Development Program to meet special interests of producers and breeders in the Rolling and High Plains, Cohen said.

Registration begins at 8:30 a.m., followed by a morning session on production, selection, marketing and feeding of show pigs. This will include facilities for small operations, board and sow management to optimize pig production, the influence of the show data on the farrowing date, and ration selection for show pigs.

Also to be covered will be preventive vaccination programs for show pigs, preparing show pigs for sale, ensuring that the new boar is a success in your operation, and a panel discussion of qualities to seek in a pig show.

Following lunch, a panel of commercial producers and purebred breeders will discuss qualities they consider important in buying and selling boars. Other topics in the afternoon will include benefits of a computer in swine operations, results of the Houston barrow show, report on the test station sale, and an update on swine research.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Black House site of bridal shower

Mrs. Eldon Officer, the former Cathie Weldon, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday morning at the E.B. Black House.

Brunch was served from a table covered in white lace by Trinetta Bowling, Carrie Hanbury of Amarillo, and Vickie Cosper. The centerpiece, wandering Jew accented with silk flowers, was a gift to the bride.

The registration table was decorated with a shell and pink silk flower arrangement.

Pink and white carnation corsages were presented to the new bride; her mother, Patricia Weldon; and her grandmother, Lorraine Vernon of Vivian, La.

Assisting as hostesses were Virginia Skaggs, Janice Conkwright, Susan Perrin, Betty Quillen, Elaine Rains, Lucy Rogers, Ella Mae Veigel, Laurie Owens, Charlotte Tyler, Glenda Keenan.

Also, Alva Lee Peeler, Judy McCarter, Mary Panciera, Ann Bowling, Elaine Jones, Diane Rowton, Susan Marquis, Barbara Foster, Delores McCuistian, Betty Martin, and Norma Walden.

Pope presents program for Cultural EH Club

Nell Pope gave a program on flowers created from Kleenex when members of Cultural Extension Homemakers Club met Friday afternoon in the home of Marie Thames.

She gave each member three tissues, a silk leaf and a stem, and showed how to tear, fold and tie them.

Ms. Pope made two arrangements of assorted pastel colored flowers and suggested that they might be useful in decorating for a special meeting.

Bertha Dettmann presided at the meeting and Wilma Goettsch read a poem entitled "Fulfillment" for opening exercise.

Members answered roll call by naming their favorite cookies. Jewell Rogers suggested that if cookies are old or hard, they can be freshened and softened by placing them in a warm oven.

Ms. Dettmann urged the members to be at Westgate Nursing Home following the council meeting Monday afternoon when tablecloths and bibs made by Bippus, Dawn, Wyche, and Cultural Clubs will be presented.

She read a letter from the Miss Hereford Pageant Steering committee inviting everyone to attend a style show April 12 at 7 p.m. in the Community Center. Styles will be furnished by local merchants.

Others present were Carrie Mae Doak, Edith Hunter, Tillie Scott, Elizabeth Conway, Vernis Parsons, and Jewel Hargrave.

After leaving the White House in 1921, President William Howard Taft served eight years as U.S. chief justice.

Martin Luther King made his "I Have A Dream" speech to 250,000 people in Washington on Aug. 28, 1964.

Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street" and F. Scott Fitzgerald's "This Side of Paradise" were both published in 1920.

Meet Your Neighbor

"We are very happy to be here; the people are so friendly and open. We really appreciate that," stated Ike Stevens, who along with his wife, Suzanne, and their two sons, moved to Hereford in November.

The couple opened the local office of Edward D. Jones & Company, an investment firm, in the middle of January. Both work in the business full-time, Ike as limited partner; and Suzanne is presently studying to be registered as a broker.

The Stevens have been associated with this company for over seven years, and operated the office in Sulphur Springs (the last three years with a partner) before coming here.

"The company was moving out in this direction, and several new offices were opening in West Texas. We chose to come here," noted Ike. "We like living in a smaller town, and we like West Texas, the people and the climate."

"West Texas people seem receptive to new ideas and challenges, and the people really do make a place."

The Stevens are currently preparing for the grand opening of their new office, which is scheduled all day Thursday.

Prior to his association with Edward D. Jones & Company, Ike was a coach and history teacher in Era, his hometown, for two years. Suzanne is a native of Muenster.

The couple lived in Lubbock while attending Texas Tech University. He earned a degree in education and she studied several different subjects.

Suzanne is currently taking a computer class in Hereford through Amarillo college.

She is a member of the animal action committee in the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, and is involved in United Methodist Women at the First United Methodist Church, where the family attends.

Ike is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, and the couple has already sponsored the most recent chamber fun breakfast. He also joined the local Rotary Club, which he had been involved in about eight years in Sulphur Springs.

The couple's two sons, Aaron and John Isaac, are looking forward to baseball season. Like their father, they enjoy sports. Ike worked with the soccer program in Sulphur Springs and also enjoys playing golf.

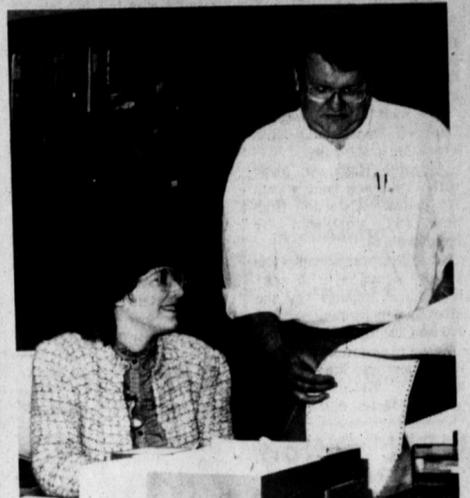

Both boys attend Northwest School. Aaron, who just turned 8, is a second grader and 6-year-old John is in kindergarten.

Ike and Suzanne enjoy going places with their children. They went to Carlsbad Caverns recently, which the boys found especially interesting. They are looking forward to seeing "Texas" in Palo Duro Canyon, and have already been hiking there.

Free time is often hard to find when one is working full-time and studying, but when Suzanne has a few moments she enjoys sewing and candlewicking.

The official language of Haiti is French, but the majority of its people speak Creole.

Mother's Day was first celebrated in Philadelphia in 1908.

HHS girl tracksters race to third

Three track meets in the past three weeks have provided three third-place finishes for the Hereford High School varsity girls track team.

The most recent being the Lubbock Invitational Girls Track Meet Saturday.

Amarillo High ran away with first-place honors with 175 points. Estacado High had 102, followed by Hereford's 64.

Lisa Redmon provided the varsity squad with its only first-place finishes on the afternoon by winning both the 100 and 200-meter dashes.

Several runners posted their best clocking of the season. Selma Moreno posted a 12:14.7 and Frances Flores a 12:58.9 in the 3,200 meters for personal best times.

The 400, 800 and 1,600-meter relay squads also ran to their best time of the year.

HHS's junior varsity tracksters also competed and placed fifth out of nine teams.

Irene Serna won the 3,200-meter run and Terry Valdez won the 1,600 meters for the Whiteface JVers.

The varsity tracksters will travel to Amarillo for the Amarillo Relays Friday and Saturday.

In Plainview meet

La Plata girls compete well

La Plata Junior High captured a second and two third-place team finishes at Saturday's Plainview track meet.

Stanton Junior High's girls were scheduled to compete in Dumas but it was reported that meet was canceled due to inclement weather.

Three first-place finishes by Maverick relay squads sparked the La Plata ninth grade girls to place second as a team. Dana Hazel also won the 800-meter run to give the ninth graders four first-place events.

Sandra Straffuss won the high jump clearing the bar at 4-8, and Mindy Rowton won the 100-meter hurdles to lead the eighth grade tracksters to a third-place team finish of 114 points.

La Plata's seventh graders also placed third in the team standings. First-place efforts were given by Sonia/Estrada in the 800-meter run (2:53.19) and Patricia Rodriguez followed right behind (2:53) for second place.

Estrada also speeded her way to first place in the 1,600 meters. Wisty Mars won the high jump and the Maverick seventh grade 800 relay team also captured first place.

La Plata and Stanton will compete in the Hereford meet April 5.

USFL action

Panthers top Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Michigan quarterback Bobby Hebert is doing his best to silence critics of the United States Football League, who say the second-year league is not exciting.

"I don't see how you can't enjoy this," he said after passing for a league-record 444 yards Monday night in leading the Panthers to a 52-34 victory over the Houston Gamblers. "If you like to see points scored, then you have to like this, whether it's college, NFL or USFL."

The second-year pro from Northwestern Louisiana also tossed four touchdown passes in topping the record 440 yards set Sunday by New Orleans' Johnnie Walton. The teams combined to set a league record for most points scored in a game.

Birmingham beat Tampa Bay 27-9 in the only other Monday night game.

Hebert completed 26 of 37 passes, including 9-12, 230 yards and three touchdowns in the second half in leading the defending league champions to their fifth victory in as many games. Houston, now tied with Oklahoma behind Michigan in the Central Division, fell to 3-2 before 38,754.

"I think our offense needs a lot of praise," said Michigan Coach Jim Stanley. "I think Bobby showed the world that he is a great quarterback. We've got great receivers, a good offensive line, and a hustling defense."

The game matched Hebert, the league's top-rated quarterback a year ago, against rookie Jim Kelly, who was 18-23 for 298 yards and three touchdowns. But Kelly suffered two interceptions, and the Gamblers, who hadn't fumbled in their four previous games, lost two.

Houston opened a 14-7 advantage early in the second quarter when Kelly hit Scott McGhee and Richard Johnson on 9-yard scoring passes sandwiched around John Williams' 1-yard TD run for Michigan.

But Hebert engineered a drive to Novo Bojovic's 22-yard field goal and collaborated with Anthony Carter on an 11-yard TD pass to give Michigan a 17-14 halftime edge.

Hebert and Kelly traded long touchdown passes midway in the third quarter before the Panthers scored 28 unanswered points. Hebert hit Derek Holloway for 72 yards at 5:08 while Kelly tossed a 63-yarder to Clarence Verdin at 6:17.

Then Linnie Patrick scored on runs of 14 and 11 yards and caught a 19-yard pass from Hebert, and Carter caught a 55-yard bomb to make it 52-21.

Houston countered with Greg Moser's 65-yard scoring reception and Todd Fowler's 4-yard run.

Stallions 27, Bandits 9
 In Tampa, Fla., Cliff Stoudt ran for one touchdown and set up another with a 47-yard pass to Joey Jones as Birmingham rolled over Tampa Bay.

The triumph was the fourth straight for the 4-1 Stallions, who spoiled the debut of Tampa Bay rookie quarterback Wayne Peace. The Bandits, 3-2, dropped their second straight decision before a crowd of 37,899 that watched in intermittent rain.

Stoudt ran 2 yards for a touchdown and used his completion to Jones to set up Leon Perry's 1-yard scoring plunge for a 20-9 lead.

Whitefaces win second district game

The Hereford boys varsity baseball team lifted its District 3-5A won-lost record to 2-1 with a 8-4 win at Palo Duro High School Saturday.

The Herd was aided by eight Palo Duro errors as Mickey Stengel cruised to a complete game victory. Big hits came off the bats of Sammy Suarez and Ronnie Collier, who each socked doubles in the contest.

With the win Hereford is in second place in the 3-5A race behind Monterey High (2-0) and Caprock (2-0). HHS is 6-4 for the season overall and is scheduled to host winless Tascosa High today at 4 p.m.

Tascosa is coming off a 14-8 wallpopping to Caprock Saturday.

Derby race results reported

Results of the Pinewood Derby held in St. Anthony's school cafeteria by Cub Scout Pack 54 have been reported. In Den Two first place went to Cameron Burrus; second place to Jason Paetzold; and third to Jeremy Lueb. Den Three winner was Matthew Reiter; followed by Cody Whitfield; and Tim Wagner placed third. The Webelos winner was Andy Sciumbato; Stephen Banner came in second; and Randy Robbins finished third. The overall pack winner was Sciumbato. Car design winner was Russell Sander-son with Jeremy Lueb second and Chad Johnson third. In horse racing, a colt is not considered a mature horse until he reaches the age of 5.

Gets huge purses

Leonard boxing's money man

ED SCHUYLER JR. AP
Sports Writer

There is one fighter in the world who can back up his demand for huge purses — Sugar Ray Leonard.

Of course, there are other good fighters. Roberto Duran, Thomas Hearns and Larry Holmes are veterans who have learned their craft. Hector "Macho" Camacho and Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini are young and exciting.

All of them are well known and closely followed by boxing fans. But Leonard is well known among the general public. His personality and flair, the eye injury that forced him into retirement and his decision to come back have kept him in the public spotlight even though he hasn't fought in two years.

Leonard is a gate attraction. His "how high, the moon," purse demands are backed up by the money his fights gross.

Because of his financial success, other fighters, and their managers, also are demanding super purses.

It's good for the fighters. If they can get their asking prices, more power to them. But a lot of people in and around boxing are wondering why.

At a news conference last week, Shelly Saltman, who is involved in the promotion of the Duran-Hearns junior middleweight title fight June 15, said he would not disclose the purses, but, "I will say they are substantial."

The word is that Duran is to get about $4.5 million and Hearns $3.2 million. The cost of the undercard and other expenses should push the total outlay over $8 million.

Saltman, a principal in Shelteron, which will promote the match with Walter Alvarez and Gold Circle, said the gross from the fight was expected to be between $15 million and $17.5 million.

That would make the fight a money maker.

Duran's fight against Marvelous Marvin Hagler last year didn't do as well financially as anticipated. Duran's biggest money fights in his colorful and controversial career were against Leonard. Hearns' most attractive gate fight also was against Leonard.

The Duran-Hearns fight will follow by one week the Holmes-Gerrie Coetzee heavyweight title fight, which also will be shown on closed-circuit and pay TV.

Before the fight — scheduled to be formally announced in New York on Wednesday — was made, promoters Don King and Bob Arum both said it was at best a $10 million show.

Well, promoters JPD Sports and Murad Muhammad better do a lot better than that.

King, who has a promotional contract with Coetzee, is being paid well to step aside.

He said he is getting $8 million. Others say it's $7.75 million. Of that, King said, he will pay $3.2 million to Coetzee, $2.2 million to Cedric Kushner, Coetzee's advisor, and keep the rest. So far, King has received a letter of credit for $750,000.

Holmes is getting $8 million.

Rangers look to trade shortstop Bucky Dent

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Texas Rangers are looking to trade veteran shortstop Bucky Dent, possibly to the Toronto Blue Jays, The Dallas Morning News reported Tuesday.

Quoting sources close to the club, the newspaper said the Rangers want to trade Dent so they can open up a starting spot for rookie Curtis Wilkerson.

Such a trade would also allow a spot on the team for Dave Hostetler, who has played first base and served as designated hitter for the American League club.

Dent, who came to the Rangers from the New York

Yankees, is batting .179 in spring training and the Rangers have high hopes for Wilkerson.

Rangers General Manager Joe Klein, who denied he was trying to trade the popular Dent, described Wilkerson as "an up-and-coming young player."

"Not one person has called me about Bucky," Klein said, "But that doesn't mean the phone won't ring."

Asked if he had called anyone about Dent, Klein hedged, saying, "I talk to a lot of people about a lot of things."

Wilkerson is hitting .167 in spring training.

AUSTIN — Understanding why various countries produce different educational strengths can be shown by looking closely at the basic differences in their educational approaches.

The differences between Texas and U.S. students and those from abroad are due to many factors, including cultural, social and educational. In many cases these ingredients cannot be separated.

In Japan, the school system is characterized by fierce competition and difficult work, which is a part of the Japanese culture and is ingrained in the population.

The Russian students see their educational instruction emphasizing pure sciences and mathematics and social sciences are excluded for ideological reasons.

In Texas and the U.S., the minimum school year is 180 days. It is longer in all foreign countries. Switzerland has a 190 day school year. In West Germany, Japan and Russia, the minimum is 210 days and most recently Japan has begun a 240 day program.

Examinations also play a greater role in foreign countries. In the Soviet Union, examinations are required before students go to the next grade. In Switzerland, students must pass exams to get into academic high schools. In Japan, to get into the best school — from elementary through college — passage of exams is required.

The pressure is so great in Japan, that 45 percent of the high school students attend private after-hours schools to prepare for college exams.

In Texas and the U.S., there is a different emphasis placed on courses of study. While other countries lean to mathematics, science and language, they do not stress social sciences to the extent that Texas schools do. While technically Japanese students are not required to take more math and science than Texas students, most college-bound Japanese have several more years of study than our students. Japanese students at least reach trigonometry in high school, while proficiency in calculus is common.

Homework is more often the rule in foreign schools. A study concluded that Japanese junior high students averaged two hours of homework, while U.S. high school students averaged less than an hour.

Next we will look at teachers in the systems.

Tourney time

The National Invitation Tournament began in 1938 in New York's Madison Square Garden, one year before the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament. City College of New York in 1950 was the only team ever to win both the NIT title and the NCAA tournament in the same year.

The U.S. dirigible Akron crashed off the New Jersey coast in 1933 during an electrical storm, killing 73.

Entrepreneur banking on wars game

DALLAS (AP) — Science fiction fans now have a place to live out their fantasies — the planet Photon, an amusement center billed as a "living video game."

Inventor George A. Carter III expects players, up to 20 at a time, to pay $3 each for six to eight minutes of adventure in the dimly-lit, heavily-carpeted environment he has created.

Contestants are divided into red and green teams, with the number of players depending on how many patrons are waiting to take part.

"But it's really not a team sport — it's an individual sport," said Carter, 38, who pointed out that players compete against each other for points tracked on one of three Apple IIe computers used to run the game.

Players score points for shooting an opposing team member, but lose points for hitting a teammate or being shot themselves. The biggest target is the goal of the opposite team.

"Until players get familiar with the game, it's quite possible for everybody to have negative scores, with zero being the winner," said Carter as he prepared for the April 2 opening of his 10,000-square-foot facility.

The amusement center includes a snack bar and "staging area" where players are fitted with the equipment needed to do battle on the planet.

Motorcycle helmets have been studded with lights and light-receptors connected to a control module chest plate. There's also a light-firing "phaser" pistol. All are powered by a 23-volt battery belt.

The equipment was designed especially for Carter, who said it costs about $700 to outfit each "Photon Warrior" with 18 pounds of gear.

Because of the equipment's weight, participants must be at least four and a half feet tall.

"It's quite physically demanding," Carter said of the sport, which requires stamina and agility in addition to quick thinking and good marksmanship.

If a player is zapped, his phaser is "disrupted" for 10 seconds and he loses points.

The same thing happens if he is caught in the open when one of the two "alien towers" fires a burst during the game.

It sounds like a scene from "Star Wars," or "TRON," and Carter readily admitted he was heavily influenced by movies. But he added that the game also resembles an updated and computerized version of "capture the flag" or "cops and robbers" — with no arguments about who "gotcha."

There are, however, unarmed "game commanders" on the playing floor who enforce rules against physical contact.

"Some people get so excited about being shot that they try to hit the other player," Carter said, adding, "in any amusement operation you have to let the public know who's in charge."

So far, the game is geared to teenagers, with the center to be open after school and on weekends. But Carter said there has been interest by older people and parents.

And that, he hopes, will lead to franchises and centers in every state.

Pair accused of attempted murder

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A man's wife and teen-aged stepdaughter have been charged with attempted murder after he was doused with gasoline and set on fire while he slept, officials said.

Nick Eugene Oates, 38, was in critical but stable condition Monday at Lubbock General Hospital, said a hospital spokesman. The spokesman said Oates suffered second- and third-degree burns over 50 percent of his body and will probably need skin grafts on his back.

Investigators said the family told them Oates had threatened them and that a family argument had been going on for about two days.

Charged Monday were Cheryl Kay Oates, 38, and her 17-year-old daughter, Robin Renee Elliott, said Justice of the Peace Sam Matta.

Both were released on $10,000 bond. The attempted murder charge carries a possible penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Mrs. Oates' 14-year-old son was being held by juvenile authorities, who were seeking to place the boy in supervisory custody.

Police said the three told investigators that they set fire to Oates at 5:50 a.m. Sunday by pouring gasoline on him and igniting it as he slept. Investigators said the family accused Oates of physically and verbally abusing them over a long period of time.

The family said Oates came home at about 1 a.m. after drinking and threatened the family, which also included three girls aged 18, 12 and 11 and a 9-year-old boy.

Investigators said the family contended that Oates frightened them on numerous occasions to the point that they would arm themselves with kitchen knives, bats or sticks for protection.

Police said they were told the two women and the boy ran from the house after setting fire to Oates, and that when they left the house they looked back to see Oates standing in the doorway, his body burning and his arms raised.

Of teaching English

Parents endorse 'Immersion' method

McAlLEN, Texas (AP) — An experiment at an elementary school to teach English to Hispanic kindergarten students by immersing them totally in the language has won the enthusiastic support of their parents.

Feliciana Asencio said she believes if her daughter, Monica, is taught in Spanish before she learns English, as Texas law now requires, she will fall behind all-English students.

"For her future, to go to college and to get a job, the more English she knows now, the better she'll do," Mrs. Asencio told the Dallas Times Herald.

McAllen is a city where 85 percent of the schoolchildren speak little or no English. The neighborhood where Sam Houston Elementary School, site of the experiment, is located is a first stop for immigrants coming across from the Mexican border, for laborers and farm workers who hunger for their children to rise above the neighborhood.

Teachers here have taught both by the immersion method and by the dual-language method, and are keeping records of results to students in both groups who are offered identical material.

They also polled parents of 20 kindergarten students about their impression of the immersion method.

The unanimous answer was that the parents want their children to speak only English in school, school officials said.

"In the old program we couldn't really teach them to read English; we had to teach Spanish first. And I think that holds the child back," said kindergarten teacher Ampara Olivarez.

By now, she said this year's immersion kindergarteners are reading books, writing sentences and playing simple word games.

Teachers at another

McAllen school believe at the end of the second year of immersion, most of the students will be able to transfer to all-English classes in the second grade — at least one year and more typically two or three years faster than many Texas bilingual students make the transition.

"This method, I feel, is longer-lasting," said first-grade teacher Consuelo Anaya. "This one will go on with the students."

Educators estimate that about 260,000 Texas schoolchildren, speaking 101 languages, lack the English skills to thrive in class.

The McAllen experiments are among more than a dozen sanctioned by the Texas Education Agency in the area of bilingual education. A report on the result is to be given to lawmakers this year.

Many educators hope the results could lead to a change in the state law requiring students to be taught in their native language first.

McAllen is the only school district running a strictly controlled experiment testing "all-English immersion" classes against dual-language classes.

On any given day in McAllen and at any time, teachers using the same methods are teaching precisely the same subjects, precisely the same way. McAllen educators believe that precision will make their results more credible than the research that has gone on before.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—In the wake of several executions in Texas and the nation, a prison-reform group is going grassroots to build support to abolish the death penalty.

The head of that organization, Citizens United for the Rehabilitation of Errants, wants precinct caucuses to approve resolutions opposing the death penalty and said CURE is considering endorsements of political candidates.

Up to now, CURE has been a non-partisan group lobbying the Texas Legislature for a fair shake for Texas prisoners.

But with the court system again permitting capital punishment and with a majority of legislators making no move to stop executions, CURE now has no alternative but to throw itself at the mercy of the electorate.

Charlie Sullivan, who leads CURE, argues that while several public opinion polls may have indicated support for the death penalty, the recent series of executions have produced a backlash.

"At one time, the majority of the people in this country were against the death penalty. Now that we're having executions again, we're hoping that people think again and go back to their roots by opposing capital punishment."

Both Parties

Sullivan is going to both major political party caucuses for support, hoping to join with anti-abortion or "pro life" forces among Republicans and to emphasize to Democrats that most death row inmates are poor or minorities.

President Reagan is an advocate of executions, while all his Democratic challengers are apparently against them. Mondale and Jackson are on record in opposition and Hart recently voted against the death penalty in the U.S. Senate.

Political Ads

The Texas law imposing discount rates for political advertising was struck down last week by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The High Court ruled 6-3 that the law was unconstitutional, upholding an earlier decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

A 1971 federal law requires broadcasters to offer discount rates just prior to primary or general elections, but a 1975 Texas law imposed the discount rates year-round. The courts upheld the federal law.

State Oil Lands

The controversial oil and gas leases which the state took back from Mobil Oil Corp. a couple of months ago may be bought by a Dallas-based corporation, American Resources, Inc.

According to Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, the agreement is tentative and other companies are still looking at the property, 78,000 acres on the Duval County Ranch.

The oil leases were the center of a $1.7 billion lawsuit the state filed against Mobil for failing to meet drilling requirements, and after the oil company surrendered them, several Texas politicians have clashed over the estimated revenues to be received on future energy production.

New Farm Program

Two state officials, Gov. Mark White and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower last week announced a new state program that will provide about $40 million in '84 to help small farmers buy land to begin farming.

Actually the law was passed in 1979 but never implemented, partially because of political opposition. Hightower has rejuvenated the program to allow farmers and ranchers with a net worth less than $100,000 to borrow with 90 percent backing from the Department of Agriculture.

The loans must be for land only, and cannot be used to buy stock, equipment or to refinance existing debt.

Glenn Supporters

With Glenn out of the presidential race, his Texas supporters last week were recruited by other political camps, and a good many were joining Hart's campaign.

The most notable is State Sen. Ray Farabee, but still uncommitted as of last week were Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and finance heavyweights Jess Hay of Dallas and James C. Calaway, Sr. of Houston.

Women's Caucus

The Texas Women's Political Caucus last week endorsed Democrat Lloyd Doggett and Republican Rob Mosbacher campaigns for the U.S. Senate party nominations.

The group considered giving a dual Democratic endorsement to former Ambassador Bob Krueger, but went for Doggett on the basis of his Texas Senate voting record.

Chagra to be in federal prison

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra is being transferred to a maximum-security penitentiary in Illinois to await trial on charges he conspired to murder a federal prosecutor, authorities said.

Chagra was transported to San Antonio early Monday en route to the federal prison in Marion, Ill., said U.S. Marshal Bill Jonas.

The convicted narcotics trafficker had been held at the medium-security Federal Correctional Institution in Bastrop, near Austin.

"It just appears that it's going to be awhile before he comes up for trial," Jonas said. "This is all being done purely because we wanted him transferred. Nothing has happened."

Chagra and James R. Kearns are scheduled to go on trial June 25 in the November 1978 assassination attempt on former Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr.

Marxist president of Guinea dies

CLEVELAND (AP) — President Ahmed Sekou Toure of Guinea, a black African Marxist who led his country to independence in 1958, died on an operating table after a 5,000-mile flight for emergency surgery on his deteriorated aorta.

Sekou Toure, 62, was rushed to the Cleveland Clinic early Monday on a special plane arranged by King Fahd of Saudi Arabia after a team of four physicians from the clinic examined him in Guinea on Saturday, clinic spokesman Frank Weaver said today.

The flight to the famous U.S. heart clinic, which has treated many other heads of state, was required because the African leader's health was failing, Weaver said. The decision was made after consultation with physicians for King Hassan II of Morocco.

When Sekou Toure arrived at the hospital, massive internal bleeding was discovered from an aneurysm in the aorta, the main blood vessel from the heart, Weaver said.

He said doctors had to replace the aorta from the heart to the abdomen in an operation that began at 10 a.m. Monday.

"He was in serious condition when he arrived, and the decision was made immediately to operate," Weaver said. After the aorta

Sekou Toure was pronounced dead at 3:23 p.m. Monday, according to Weaver.

In Guinea, Prime Minister Lansana Beavogui announced the death of Sekou Toure over Radio Conakry today, and the ruling Guinean Democratic Party met in emergency session.

Sekou Toure was a founding member in 1946 of the African Democratic Rally, an umbrella group of West African parties seeking independence from France.

He was widely admired by militant Africans for his often stormy anti-colonial posturing, but critics were shocked by his ruthless communist-style dictatorship. His years in power were marked by economic paralysis and bloody purges in reprisal for countless plots against his rule.

Sekou Toure came to power in 1958 when President Charles de Gaulle offered France's colonies in Africa a choice between partial autonomy in a French community or full independence.

When a referendum was held, Guinea cast the lone vote for immediate independence. Sekou Toure's defiance of France was explained in his remark, "We prefer poverty in liberty to riches in slavery."

Of smoking

Hidden cost is $3 a pack

BOSTON (AP) — An extra tax of $3 on every pack of cigarettes would be needed to recover all the medical expenses and lost wages caused by smoking-related illnesses in the United States, researchers contend.

A study released Monday found that a man between the ages of 35 and 44 who smokes more than two packs a day will cost an average $58,987 over his lifetime in cigarette-related medical bills and lost work.

The cost for a woman in this category was put at $20,152, largely because of lower projected earnings for women.

The figures were compiled by health economists who calculated the hidden costs of smoking. The figures are averages for all smokers, not just those who get sick.

their potential loss of earnings is lower.

For a heavy-smoking man between 55 and 64, for instance, the extra smoking cost is put at $15,945, and for a woman, $11,717.

Oster said the estimates are probably low, because they considered only smoking's contribution to lung cancer, heart disease and emphysema. Smokers also face higher-than-usual risks of other kinds of cancer and lung disease.

A man between 35 and 44 who gives up his habit of smoking more than two packs a day will save society $37,401, the study determined, while a woman in this bracket will save $13,029.

"It literally pays to quit," Oster said.

The study was conducted at Policy Analysis Inc., a Brookline, Mass., firm that researches health-cost issues, and released Monday at a meeting of the American College of Cardiology in Dallas.

It was directed by Oster and conducted with Graham A. Colditz of Harvard Medical School and Nancy L. Kelly of Policy Analysis.

The study was financed by Merrell Dow Pharm-

Cancer hospital

The first hospital in the United States devoted to the treatment of cancer was incorporated in New York City back in 1884, with the financial support of John Jacob Astor. Now known as the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, it pioneered treatment at a time when the disease was considered incurable.

Fighting the High Cost Of Owning

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

Here is a four bedroom ranch style home which charmingly produces a true feeling of rustic western hominess. Yet any "city slicker" must agree its livable plan includes all expected conveniences and then some.

That rustic charm stems from a number of factors. Note, first of all, the delightfully long, low roof line. And see that full-length-of-the-house front porch, charmingly railed and accented by those reminiscently old-timey turned posts. The used brick adds its charm, too.

The location of the front door creates the effect of an entry without the space-cutting necessity of added interior entry walls. Thus the already big living room is that much bigger — a fine place for a gathering of all "the hands." The raised hearth fireplace makes it a cozy gathering spot, too.

And, taking a cue from the wide open spaces, the dining end of the kitchen is here left open to the living room for extra spaciousness. Note, too, that sliding glass doors supply additional vistas for the lovely dining room. And see the excellent U-shaped work area in that kitchen — what a delightful amount of work and storage space it provides. A door from the dining area offers convenient access to the garage.

Two baths and a laundry-utility room are lined up for plumbing efficiency. And note how this laundry's location offers step-saving efficiency, too. The utility room also is handily equipped with extra storage space.

Take a good look at the bedrooms, too. Two of the four have walk-in closets and, of course, the master bedroom is extra large and has its own private bath. Note, too, how that fourth bedroom's location would allow it to serve equally well as a den or sewing room.

For homeowners who want a delightful style of living, this ranch style provides an ideal setting.
