Quake sends Mexico City reeling again

MEXICO CITY (AP) - A strong earthquake centered southwest of the capital shook Mexico City early today, sending frightened residents into the streets. There were no immediate reports of serious damage or injuries.

The quake registered 6.1 on the Richter scale and struck at 1:35 a.m. (3:35 a.m. EDT), according to the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

The epicenter was about 180 miles southwest of Mexico City, said Waverly Person, the center's director. The quake lasted about 15 seconds.

"The only damage reported is a few utility poles down," said Carlos Aguilar, a radio operator for the Mexican Red Cross. "A lot of people were in a state of panic."

The quake was also felt in the Pacific resort of Acapulco, about 200 miles south of the capital. Night clerks at three hotels in the city said there were no immediate indications of damage.

Mexico City is in an earthquake-prone region and suffered one of the century's most devastating temblors on Sept. 19, 1985.

That quake, which registered 8.1 on the Richter scale, and an 7.6 aftershock the next day killed about 9,500 people, destroyed more than 400 buildings and left 150,000 people homeless.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs.

An earthquake of 4 can cause moderate damage in the local area, 5 considerable damage, 6 severe damage. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage; 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says money may not be the key to happiness, but he figures if you have enough money, you can have a key made.

Spilling the salt might be bad luck, but spilling the beans is much more dangerous.

With Memorial Day just behind us and graduation ceremonies taking place Sunday, we think it's a good time to reprint a proclamation made by John Wayne several years ago. The Duke wasn't a writer but a man of sound wisdom and a great symbol of the American way in his acting career. His statement makes good reading for high school graduates, and has a message all of us can reflect upon at this time of year.

I BELIEVE

I'm a lucky fellow... for many reasons.

Lucky that I was brought up to believe in a lot of things I've found worthwhile.

I believe in common decency, without which no society or goodwill can exist.

I believe in my country, my family, my fellowman, and my God.

I believe in giving a fellow a second--even a third--chance...but keep your eye on him.

I believe the moon's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there, because this country, on this planet, is man's last chance to make a go of it for humanity.

I believe there's time in my life and yours to get this country in such shape that God would be proud of it.

I believe your kids and mine are just you and me getting a second crack at the world. And our job is to see they don't make all the mistakes we did, and don't invent too many of their own.

I believe 99 percent of them are a credit to their folks, a pride to their country...and deserve a pat on the back from all of us for being what they are and not waving a white flag at life.

I believe in hope for people of all ages and that equal opportunity is based on equal obligation.

And speaking of opportunity, American opportunity has no limits. It has been known to knock more than once.

How about young people who see a tough life ahead? Well, when Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox, Booker T. Washington was a 9-year-old slave. Yet by the time he was 28, he'd become President of Tuskegee Institute.

And at 8 months, Neil Armstrong took his first small baby step toward mankind, and fell flat on his face.

At 6 years, Mickey Mantle was settling for a base on balls.

At 7, Wilt Chamberlain nailed a practice hoop over his garage...without a ladder.

And at 8, Charles Lindbergh was flying a kite and wondering how it would feel to be up that high.

At 9, Burt Bacharach was thinking the piano lessons would never end.

How many of you are pushing 50 and complaining that the country is going to hell? Crispus Attucks was in his 40s when he died on State Street in Boston, fighting for the freedom that we share.

And John F. Kennedy was 44 when he asked, not what his country could do for him, but what he could do for his country.

And how many of you over 65 are just settling down now to rest after a busy life?

Well, a fellow by the name of Eisenhower, who had already lived one lifetime as a soldier, was re-elected to the Presidency when he was 67 years young.

Well, by now I've made my point or I never will. Oh, there is one other thing.

Every man and woman or child I've ever known, met, seen or heard of wants one thing more than anything else in the world.

That one thing is Tomorrow.

Tomorrow...that's the only thing any of us have going for us.

And I believe this: If tomorrow, all of us, every single one of us, gets out of bed and says, "This is my country and I'm going to do good for it," we'll make the greatest step forward since a Pilgrim's foot found Plymouth Rock.

Tomorrow, remember: "This is my country and I'm going to do good for it."

It just might work.

And we'll never know unless we give it a fair try.

Oh, yes...there's one other thing I'll say tomorrow, because I say it every day of my life.

God bless America.

Bush, Gorbachev begin post-Cold War summit

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush welcomed Mikhail S. Gorbachev to the White House today for summit talks marked by hopes for a strategic arms control agreement but sharp differences over the shape of a united Germany in the post-Cold War era.

As Soviet and American flags waved side-by-side along Pennsylvania Avenue, Bush and the Soviet president headed for their first negotiating session in four days of summitry at the White House and Camp David, Md.

A few hours before ritual welcoming ceremonies on the White House South Lawn, Secretary of State James A. Baker III held out the prospect of "significant and concrete progress" on arms control at the summit, the first since Bush and Gorbachev met six months ago at Malta.

Baker, interviewed on ABC's "Good Morning America," saw encouraging signs of a "dialogue" on Lithuanian independence, an issue that has left plans for a Soviet-American trade agreement in limbo.

On his arrival from Canada late Wednesday, Gorbachev declared that the summit "stands out in its importance, first of all, for the promise it holds as the first major step to reduce strategic nuclear arms."

White House chief of staff John Sununu, like Baker, sought to discourage speculation of major breakthroughs at the summit.

"I don't think it ought to be measured in terms of what gets signed and what doesn't get signed, but how it develops the relationship," Sununu said on NBC's "Today" show.

Treaties and lesser agreements covering arms control, chemical weapons, air travel and other subjects were in various stages of readiness.

But the list of differences ran to conventional weapons cutbacks, trade, human rights, Gorbachev's handling of the secessionist republic of Lithuania - and Germany.

Whatever the diplomatic prospects, Washington was eagerly awaiting its springtime summit.

Oversized American and Soviet flags hung side by side over the entrance to the federal office building next door to the White House - Old Glory on the left and the Hammer and Sickle on the right.

In the elegance of the White House, waiters were setting out the china for the state dinner on the first evening's schedule. Across the street at Lafayette Square, authorities doled out space to competing protest groups, and assigned undercover officers to keep an eye on things.

For his part, Gorbachev moved about town in a motorcade that stretched for more than 50 vehicles.

Even as Gorbachev arrived came a fresh reminder of his difficulty at home. Newly elected Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin said he would press for swift sovereignty for his republic.

Clovis an uneasy city after Mass

CLOVIS (AP) - Now that Matthew Roberts has been laid to rest, residents who joined the two-week search for him say they're determined to learn how the 6-year-old died.

He disappeared May 8. Passersby found his body May 23 in a small self-latching rear compartment of the family's borrowed station wagon. An autopsy concluded the body had been there at least eight days. No sign of violence was found, but the cause of death remains undetermined.

Funeral services were held Wednesday.

"The questions are eating this city alive," Mark Sintas, 27, said after a graveside service. "Everyone has their own idea about what happened, but nothing adds up. People have given too much to Matthew not to know how he died."

"I believe there is still fear in the community," said Murge Mileg, 34, the mother of a 7-year-old. "Until it is completely cleared up, there will be fears. As parents, it is only human nature to react that way."

Police Chief Caleb Chandler says results of medical and crime lab examinations probably won't be available until late next week. Meanwhile, he says the investigation leans neither toward homicide nor accident.

"Everyone wants the question answered, no one more than the investigators. But it is going to take some time," Chandler said Wednesday. "The reports are terribly backlogged. The unanswered questions frustrate us all."

More than 1,000 Clovis citizens have signed a petition asking the state attorney general's office to investigate Matthew's death.

"All the people worked together to try to find Matthew," said Carol Rollins, who started the petition signings late last week. "Now we're all pulling together to find out why he died."

More than 700 people who had helped search for Matthew paid final respects to the boy they adopted as "Clovis' child" during a Mass of resurrection Wednesday at Our Lady of Guadalupe Roman Catholic Church.

Legislature ready for a 6th session

AUSTIN (AP) - As they look toward a record sixth special session, legislative leaders and Gov. Bill Clements said this time they hope they can reach a compromise on court-ordered school finance reform.

"I think we realize that we have an issue before us that we have to solve, and we're going to do it," House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said Wednesday.

Clements said, "Hopefully by Monday we will have a bill in good shape that will be submitted to the Legislature, and we'll get through this business right quick."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, when asked whether he would negotiate with Clements, said, "That seems to be the way it works."

The Republican governor killed two previous school finance reform plans approved by the Democrat-controlled Legislature after objecting to a sales tax increase needed to fund them.

Clements wouldn't give a firm starting date for the new session, which will be lawmakers' fourth on school finance reform. Their third ended Wednesday, when the Senate adjourned.

There were two special sessions on workers' compensation after the regular Legislature's session ended last year. The previous record for special sessions is five, set in 1929-30.

Willie's July 4 concert to be in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) - After a two-year hiatus, Willie Nelson is reviving his Fourth of July picnic and outdoor concert, with the help of the city of Austin.

Nelson's last Fourth of July bash was in 1987 in Carl's Corner in north Texas, between Hillsboro and Waxahachie, where it drew only about 8,000 people.

Nelson's daughter Lana Nelson and city of Austin Mayor Lee Cooke announced Wednesday that the bash will be revived this year in Austin's Zilker Park.

Over the years, the singer's Fourth of July picnic has been held in a variety of locations and generally marred by problems.

Without mentioning earlier problems with the picnic, Cooke said his city would be happy to sponsor the annual event with the promise that $1 of every ticket sold would benefit a children's playground in the park.

"I say welcome back Willie," the mayor said.

Nelson, who is performing at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, was not on hand for the announcement.

This year promoters hope the picnic, which features mostly country and western music from local and nationally known artists, will draw a crowd of 30,000. Tickets can be purchased in advance or at the concert gates.

Nelson's concert lost a substantial amount in 1987 because of the small north Texas turnout.

This year, nearly a dozen individual artists and groups have agreed to perform at the all-day bash, including Johnny Cash, Kris Kristofferson, Waylon Jennings, Kinky Freedom, Johnny Gimble and Kimmy Rhodes. The Geetzinslaw Brothers, Asleep at the Wheel, Little Joe y La Familia, and Little Whisper and the Rumors will also appear.

Willie Nelson's Fourth of July concerts began in 1973 at Dripping Springs, Texas, outside Austin. The concerts stopped for a three-year period beginning in 1981 after a series of problems with earlier concerts. Concerts had been marred by rapes, substantial arrests or damage to concert facilities. At one concert a roof collapsed.

Heat exhaustion has also been a problem at the mid-summer concerts. This year's concert goes will be provided with ice water, showers, shade tents, free bus rides, and food and beverages from local restaurants and non-profit organizations, promoters said.

Human Services bill planned by Clements and lawmakers

AUSTIN (AP) - Legislative leaders and Gov. Bill Clements say they foresee quick action in the next special session on a bill to bail out troubled state human service programs.

"We're certainly going to put the DHS (Department of Human Services) payments on the fast track, and that'll be one of the first issues we'll take up," said House Speaker Gib Lewis.

The abrupt end Wednesday to the most recent special session scuttled a pending bill to provide emergency funds for DHS, the Department of Health and the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

"There are a number of life-threatening cases there and that's why I'll make it my first priority to get that funding taken care of just as early as possible," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Hobby said the Legislature could move quickly to boost health and human services funding by cutting and transferring some $100 million from other programs.

can. That avoids any of the agencies going over the cliff," Hobby said.

Gov. Clements said he will call lawmakers back for another special session next week, adding that welfare programs will be included on the agenda.

Three agencies report financial trouble:

- The Department of Health says it will be forced to suspend some services in the Chronically Ill and Disabled Children's program, a medical provider of last resort for thousands of children suffering major illnesses.

- Human Services officials say their budget shortfall could force a possible suspension of Medicaid payments for more than 50,000 nursing home patients.

- The Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation says it needs some additional funds to meet orders of the federal judge who oversees that agency.

Clements said he wasn't worried that services might have to be cut but declined to say just where the extra welfare money would be found.

"I think we'll take care of them in due course," he said. "Everything is moving in exactly the right way, and we'll take care of that in due course."

Lawmakers' marriages and businesses suffer

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers have had more to worry about than school finance reform during the special sessions that have taken them away from home the past several months, says House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Their marriages and businesses can suffer from their absence, Lewis said Wednesday.

He suggested that a "real interesting" human interest story might be the number of lawmakers' divorces - although when asked for his estimate, he hedged, "More than I want to say."

Lawmakers are preparing for an unprecedented sixth special session. There were two on workers' compensation reform after last year's regular session ended, and three so far this year on court-ordered school finance reform.

Each special session can last up to 30 days. The record of five was set in 1929-30. The Legislature meets in regular session once every two years.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, was quick to say that his own label-manufacturing business, and his marriage, are doing well.

"I have one of the neatest wives that you've ever seen," he said. "I've got probably the best deal anywhere: I've got some good, quality people managing my business, and I've got a good wife that understands everything."

But for others, he said, "It's been a hardship."

"Everybody's under a financial strain right now, not only because of the economy, but because of the time they spend here," he said.

Money woes can have an unhappy effect on marriages, Lewis added.

Celebrity Waiter ala Heart Dinner slated

The public is invited to an evening of food, fun and entertainment at the Celebrity Waiter ala Heart Dinner to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Hereford Community Center. The benefit is being sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Heart Association.

According to Karen Flood, chairman of the event, "Celebrity Waiter ala Heart will be a great time for the waiters and their guests. It could be our best opportunity to watch Hereford celebrities act as crazy as they can to raise money for the American Heart Association.

"The waiters will earn tips based on the quality—or lack—of service. All the waiters hope to convince their guests that they're the best and most entertaining waiters," Flood added. "Accordingly, they'll perform antics such as singing, dancing, magic tricks and more. Anything goes on this fun-filled evening!"

Members of the 4-H Parent Leaders Association will prepare the meal which will consist of smoked roast beef, baked potato, green beans, salad, wheat bread and dessert.

Tickets are priced at $10 per person and reservations are required. Those wishing to attend may call Flood at 364-0480 or one of the following celebrity waiters: Charles Greenwalt, HISD; Margie Daniels, Hereford Senior Citizens Center; Don

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have never seen this subject discussed in your column. I am talking about being ripped off by the bridal industry. I work in a bridal shop, and you would not believe what goes on.

First, almost everything must be paid for before the merchandise is delivered. We've had bridesmaids in tears, because their gowns were too small and floor-length instead of tea-length. The shop owner says, "Sorry, take it to a seamstress, and have her trim some fabric off the bottom and put it in the side seam."

Last month, a $5,000 wedding gown came in two days before the wedding, and it was the wrong style. The shop owner said, "If you want a gown for that day, you'd better take it."

Recently, an order came in for six bridesmaids' dresses. Five gowns were too small. Even though the bridal shop had been aware of the problem for three weeks, alterations were not done until the day before the wedding. The bride and her mother were nervous wrecks.

My cousin's wedding cake was delivered to the reception undecorated—with just the frosting. When my aunt asked what happened, she was told, "The pastry chef didn't feel well, and he went home."

The bridal industry is ripping people off left and right, because they know it is an important day, and they can call the shots. I've never seen anything in print about this scandalous racket, and it would be a public service if you took them on. -- R.M., Connecticut

DEAR R.M.: Several of my family members and friends have had lovely weddings, and I do not recall hearing any horror stories such as the ones you describe.

We called a local bridal salon, and this is what the spokesperson said:

There are some shady characters and slick operators in the bridal business -- the same as in other businesses. They should be reported to the Better Business Bureau.

The best way to find a reputable bridal merchant is to ask friends and relatives for recommendations. It is always wise to go to a store whose reputation is well-established. Crooked operators do not survive for long.

The usual procedure is a request for a 50 percent down payment. There should be a written agreement spelling out the cost of the gown (or gowns), an approximate price for alteration and an agreed-upon date for delivery.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from J.J.C. in Upland, Calif., who feels that, because he is 75 years old, he has nothing but his gold teeth to offer from his body. He is mistaken.

We completed our first quarter of medical school yesterday, and it included an anatomy class. Four students were assigned to a cadaver, which we dissected and studied for 100 hours.

It is my opinion that the woman who made it possible for us to learn from her remains taught us more than any other single person ever will during our education process. After the final exam, my three lab partners and I stood around Molly, the name we had given her, and said, "Thanks."

Please let your readers know that a body of any age is of great value to medical students. -- W.P., Sacramento

DEAR SAC.: You did, and in a way that I never could. Thank you. Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $4.45)

Pistons move to within win of NBA Finals

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Depth and defense have the Detroit Pistons one victory away from their third consecutive trip to the NBA Finals.

The Pistons, bidding to become only the third franchise in league history to repeat as champions, can advance to the championship series again by defeating the Chicago Bulls on Friday night.

The problem is that neither their depth nor their defense has made any impact so far at rowdy Chicago Stadium, where the Bulls are 7-0 in the playoffs and 2-0 against the Pistons.

With Mark Aguirre scoring 13 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter Wednesday night, the Pistons won 97-83 for a 3-2 lead in the Eastern Conference finals. If a seventh game is needed, it will be Sunday afternoon back at the Palace.

"Cotton Fitzsimmons has a theory that the bench plays better at home," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said of the Phoenix Suns' coach. "He's one of my idols, a guy I watched coach growing up."

Detroit now is 10-3 during the playoffs. All three defeats have come on the road and were the only games in which the Pistons allowed more than 100 points.

"I can't predict what will happen in Chicago," said Aguirre, whose effort helped the Pistons' bench outscore Chicago's reserves 35-13. "But if we could win, it would be great. I think whoever wins this series might win the NBA championship."

Detroit's bench has outscored Chicago's bench 183-115 for the series.

"We needed those guys to come off and play well," Detroit's James Edwards said. "We know what we have to do, and when we go into their place we have to set up our offense and not rush things. That's what we did tonight and it worked."

The Pistons shot 55.9 percent while holding the Bulls to just 28-of-84 (33.3 percent) shooting.

"We're going to have to play hard in Game 6," said Joe Dumars, who led Detroit with 20 points. "We can't play in spurts to beat them. We have to play consistently."

The defensive key, as usual, was handling Michael Jordan.

"The key to controlling Michael is to go at him on offense," said John Salley, who led Detroit with 10 rebounds off the bench. "When you let his defense become his offense, that's when he scores 45."

Jordan scored 89 points in the Bulls' two victories in Chicago. But in the three games in Detroit, he is averaging only 28 points.

He scored only 22 points on 7-of-19 shooting in Game 5. Scottie Pippen had 19 and Horace Grant 15 for Chicago.

"Home court and home fans and home cooking can inspire you to pick up your defense," Jordan said. "The keys for us to win in this building is we have to shoot the ball better, control the boards and get the score up around 95 points. Tonight, nobody could generate anything."

Because Daly likes to run his reserves in and out of the game frequently, nobody in the Detroit lineup played more than 38 minutes.

By comparison, Pippen played 45 minutes while Jordan and Grant each played 39 minutes of the fast-paced game. The wear and tear began to tell in the fourth quarter when Jackson rested Jordan for four minutes.

Detroit used that opportunity to increase its lead from nine to 15 points. The Pistons eventually stretched the lead to 89-71 on a basket by Aguirre with 5:28 remaining.

Levi looking for another win at Kemper Open

POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — Three days after celebrating his first PGA victory in five years, Wayne Levi was playing golf with four amateurs who were whacking the ball all over the TPC at Avenel course.

One could forgive Levi for not fully concentrating on the task at hand, or for his dismal 6-over-par 77 on Wednesday. Coming off a one-shot win at BellSouth Atlanta Golf Classic, Levi was finding it tough to focus on the Pro-Am event that served as a prelude to the $1 million Kemper Open.

"I'm probably still just coming down off that win," Levi said. "It was a really great thrill for me. You like to savor those things, and it's hard for me to get out there and bear down again on another tournament."

It was no ordinary victory. After a lengthy rain delay, Levi made a birdie putt on No. 18, in the dusk, to avoid a four-way playoff and win his first title since the 1985 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Classic.

Levi is not usually recognized as one of golf's bigger names, probably because he's never won a major event. But he's captured 10 tournament titles and amassed more than $2 million in winnings since joining the tour in 1977.

Levi, 37, was 16th on the money list last year, earning a best-ever $499,292. He entered 26 tournaments and finished in the money 17 times.

Now he has a chance to pull off a rare double-winning tournaments in consecutive weeks. Even if he gets over last week's success, he knows that the momentum he generated in Georgia will in no way give him an advantage over the 155 other golfers vying for the Kemper's $180,000 top prize.

"There are just too many good players out there," he said. "It's not like tennis, where maybe a dozen guys are capable of winning. Here there are 150 guys who can come from anywhere to win. Even after the cut, there are about 50 players who can take it all."

Even if he misses the cut at the Kemper, Levi will not soon forget his accomplishment of last week.

"My game was starting to come around two or three weeks ago, but I was making too many mistakes on the course and I wasn't making enough putts," he said. "Last week everything finally fell into place."

Drexler shakes off slump

PHOENIX (AP) — Clyde Drexler, who's been unsuccessfully fighting a cold, conquered his shooting slump and brought the Portland Trail Blazers within a victory of the Western Conference championship.

Drexler, shooting 40.5 percent from the field in the playoffs, hit 13 of 24 shots and scored a career playoff-high 32 points as Portland beat the Phoenix Suns 120-114 Tuesday night for a 3-2 lead in their best-of-7 playoff series.

Drexler had a clutch 3-point goal with 6:09 remaining and made the go-ahead free throws with 34 seconds left.

He finished with 10 rebounds, four assists, three steals and one blocked shot despite a cold that's lingered since Game 7 of the San Antonio series.

"It's going on three weeks now. I'm still congested and it takes away from my stamina," Drexler said. "The first week, I was so tired that after four or five minutes of a game, I almost took myself out. But I don't care if you have pneumonia. You still have to go out and play."

"He was untouchable the way he played," teammate Buck Williams said. "Clyde showed what an exceptional player can do for a ballclub."

Portland can gain its first berth in the NBA Finals since its 1977 championship season with a win here tonight.

"We want to focus on winning Game 6. We want to finish it in Phoenix," Trail Blazers coach Rick Adelman said before Wednesday's practice. "We don't plan to wait to come home" for a possible Game 7 Saturday in Portland.

"They say they'll finish it here. That will be a first for them," said Suns coach Cotton Fitzsimmons, noting that the Trail Blazers are 1-6 on the road in this year's playoffs.

"We still know what we have to do. We just have to get it done. We need to win at home and get another shot at them up in Portland. They can only hide under their security blanket for so long."

Phoenix is trying to become the fifth team in league history ever to come back from a 2-0 deficit to win a seven-game playoff series.

But the Trail Blazers are 9-0 at home in the postseason and the Suns have lost 20 consecutive games at Portland's Memorial Coliseum since April 26, 1984.

"We're not snakebitten in their building. We've always played them close and I think they know that," Fitzsimmons said. "But we have not been able to stop Portland down the stretch there. They've been getting whatever they need and it's frustrating. Once we make a defensive stop, we'll win in Portland."

Now, Phoenix needs a similar effort from someone to avoid elimination from the conference finals for the second straight season.

"It takes a little extra to be champions," Kevin Johnson said. "We've been giving what we think is 100 percent and it's good enough to get to the conference championship but not the NBA Finals. All of us have to do more. No one is exempt."

"We have to work on the intangibles and reduce our margin of error. We're allowing way too many offensive rebounds, which is building Portland's confidence. We can get away with that at home. On the road, we're finding out that if we blow one or two fast-break opportunities, that can cost us the ballgame."

Celtics lure Gavitt away from Big East

BOSTON (AP) — A few years ago, Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics recommended Dave Gavitt for a job — as head coach of the New York Knicks.

Gavitt was rejected in favor of Hubie Brown. Gavitt went out to build the Big East into one of the nation's most successful athletic conferences. Along the way, he also became the leader of amateur basketball in the United States.

Now, after 11 years as Big East commissioner, Gavitt is moving into the pro ranks. A longtime fan of the Boston Celtics, he was named on Wednesday to restore the NBA club's sagging court fortunes as director of operations.

And, with an aging team led by Larry Bird, 34 in December; Robert Parish, 37; and Kevin McHale, approaching 33, Gavitt has his work cut out as the man in charge of personnel, including trades.

"I have a lot to learn, but I'm going to try to be a quick learner," he said, also conceding he is stepping into "hazardous ground for me because I'm a little bit amateurish here."

At 52, Gavitt, former Dartmouth and Providence College coach, emphasized the major factor in the move was Auerbach, a longtime friend who has guided the Celtics to 16 NBA championships in 40 years as coach, general manager and president.

There was, of course, the challenge. Gavitt had taken the Big East as far as possible at this time, including a new television contract negotiated last week. And he'll step down later this year as USA-ABA president, the most prestigious amateur post in this country.

"It's time for a new challenge in my life," Gavitt said. "Some of the challenges are the same, but the scoreboard is a little brighter than the arena I'm coming from."

The bright scoreboard in the NBA might have been attained when the Knicks were looking for a coach in 1982, three years after Gavitt helped found the Big East and became its first commissioner.

"Sonny Werblin of the Knicks asked me about a coach and I recommended Dave very highly," Auerbach said. "I hated to do it, but I couldn't hold a guy down. It's a long story, but they picked Hubie Brown. I never could figure that out. But Sonny Werblin said he was kind of out-voted."

Gavitt wasn't out-voted when Auerbach, Celtics co-owners Don Gaston, Paul Ducepe and Alan Cohen and general manager Jan Volk decided at a meeting that a basketball man was needed to run things.

That was on May 8, when they decided to fire Jimmy Rodgers as head coach, just two days after the Knicks eliminated Boston from the playoffs in the first round.

"I believe we have landed one of the best basketball minds in the business," Auerbach said.

Gavitt said one of his first duties will be to hire a head coach to replace Rodgers, who was fired after just two seasons. Chris Ford, an assistant coach, is a leading candidate, but Gavitt said he wants to investigate all options.

O'Rand team wins scramble

The team of Jeff O'Rand, Steve Sanders, Mary Shelton and Cal Mitts took the win in Wednesday's weekly Pizza Hut Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The foursome combined to shoot a 29 over nine holes to top the 15-team field. Three teams finished tied for second one shot back of the winners.

Members of the winning team each received $45 merchandise certificates.

Rangers finally find way to win, drop BoSox, 4-3

Benes beats Phils again

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Texas Rangers wanted to win in the worst way. And they did.

The Rangers ended their poorest month since 1983 with a victory in spite of themselves, beating the Boston Red Sox 4-3 in 10 innings Wednesday night and stopping a team-record nine-game home losing streak.

Five times Texas put a runner on third base with less than two outs and failed to score. In the ninth inning, the Rangers seemed so certain to win that manager Bobby Valentine rushed out of the dugout to celebrate, only to see Gary Pettis thrown out at the plate.

But in the 10th, Pete Incaviglia doubled home the winning run with one out. That halted Texas' five-game losing streak and made it 8-19 in May, the team's worst month since July 1983.

"Who would have ever thought that the Rangers would win after all the things they did and all the things they didn't do and all the things we did to prevent it?" Red Sox manager Joe Morgan said.

In other games, Chicago beat New York 5-2, Oakland topped Toronto 8-5, Kansas City held off Detroit 4-3, Minnesota trounced Baltimore 12-3, Seattle beat Milwaukee 2-1 and Cleveland downed California 4-2.

Texas took an early 3-0 lead before Wade Boggs ended a 2-for-20 slump with a home run and sacrifice fly as Boston battled back to tie.

The Rangers, who hit into four inning-ending double plays, put runners on first and second with one out in the ninth. Rafael Palmeiro hit a drive off the right field wall and Valentine left the dugout, but watched as Pettis, who tagged up at second base thinking the ball would be caught, was thrown out at the plate.

In the 10th, Julio Franco led off with a single for his third hit of the game. He stole his third base of night and scored when Incaviglia, who struck out with the bases loaded in the eighth, doubled to the opposite field in right.

Kenny Rogers (2-1) pitched one inning for the victory. Kevin Brown limited the Red Sox to six hits in nine innings. Wes Gardner (0-2) pitched the 10th for Boston.

Twins 12, Orioles 3
At the Metrodome, Brian Harper and Fred Manrique each drove in three runs as Minnesota hit six doubles.

Roy Smith (4-4) pitched 7 2-3 innings for the victory.

Pete Harnisch (5-2) had given up just six runs in his last four starts. He allowed six runs on eight hits in three-plus innings.

White Sox 5, Yankees 2
Scott Fletcher hit a rare home run and Sammy Sosa also connected.

Greg Hibbard (4-3) gave up four hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Chuck Cary (2-1) allowed four hits in 7 2-3 innings.

Fletcher's first home run since last Sept. 12 capped a four-run fourth inning.

Athletics 8, Blue Jays 5
Jamie Quirk tripled, doubled and drove in two runs.

Quirk put Oakland ahead 1-0 with an RBI triple in the first inning and gave the Athletics a 6-5 lead with a run-scoring double in the fifth.

Reliever Todd Burns (1-0) got the victory.

Royals 4, Tigers 3
Royals starter Storm Davis left the game with a bruised knuckle after stopping Cecil Fielder's hard smash in the fourth inning and starting a double play.

Luis Aquino (1-0) pitched 2 1-3 scoreless innings and Steve Crawford followed with two shutout innings. Jeff Montgomery got his fourth save.

The Royals took the lead for good in the fourth when Bo Jackson doubled and later scored on Willie Wilson's sacrifice fly for a 3-2 lead.

Indians 4, Angels 2
Tom Candiotti outpitched Mark Langston as Cleveland won in California. Doug Jones went two innings for his major league-leading 17th save in 18 tries.

Candiotti (5-2), making his second start since a stint on the disabled list with an inflamed elbow, gave up one run on eight hits in seven innings and was helped by three double plays.

Mitch Webster homered in the first inning.

Mariners 2, Brewers 1
Jeffrey Leonard hit his first home run in two weeks and five Mariners pitchers limited Milwaukee to three hits.

Bryan Clark (2-0) relieved starter Brent Knackert, who left in the fourth inning with a sprained right ankle. Mike Schooler got two outs for his 14th save.

Leonard hit his seventh home run in the fourth against Chris Bosio (4-3).

San Diego's Andy Benes isn't superstitious, his perfect record against Philadelphia and Los Angeles notwithstanding.

"I just try to make pitches against batters, not uniforms," Benes said after raising his career record against Philadelphia to 4-0 with an 8-3 victory Wednesday night.

The 22-year-old right-hander is a combined 7-0 against the Phillies and the Dodgers. Against the rest of the National League, he's 4-7.

Even though the opposition was the Phillies, Benes was surprised with his success Wednesday night.

"I didn't feel I had my good stuff," he said. "It's a war every time you go out there to make good pitches."

He made a few that weren't so good, including home run balls to Ricky Jordan and Von Hayes. That also is part of his pattern.

"It's funny," Benes said. "When I give up home runs, it seems to be in twos. I've given up eight, two each in four games."

Benes (5-4) credited his teammates, who had 13 hits against Bruce Ruffin (3-5) and three relievers, with making the victory easy.

"The bats took over, especially scoring five runs after two out in the fourth," Benes said. "The last six or seven games we've been swinging the bats real well."

Benes, who allowed seven hits and three walks in 6 1-3 innings, said his career record against Philadelphia had nothing to do with the outcome of the game.

"They hit balls real hard, but right at us," he said. "I don't care how I get them out as long as I get them out."

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Pittsburgh 5, Los Angeles 3; Montreal 9, Atlanta 6; Houston 2, St. Louis 1, and San Francisco 4, Chicago 1.

Bip Roberts, Tony Gwynn, Mike Pagliarulo and Joe Carter drove in two runs each for the Padres.

Rookie first baseman Jerald Clark had the first four-hit game of his career as the Padres collected 13 hits against Ruffin and three relievers.

Pirates 5, Dodgers 3

Barry Bonds had a two-run homer and three RBIs, and Sid Bream went 3-for-4 with a solo shot as Pittsburgh completed its first three-game sweep of Los Angeles at Three Rivers Stadium in 16 years with its fifth straight victory.

Walt Terrell (2-4) ended his three-game losing streak by allowing three runs and five hits over 6 1-3 innings for the Pirates, who had 14 hits. Bill Landrum, the fourth Pittsburgh pitcher, worked the final inning for his seventh save, giving the Pirates their 13th victory in their last 15 home games.

Expos 9, Braves 6
Montreal, getting four RBIs on a homer and two doubles by Tim Wallach, overcame injuries to three pitchers.

Wallach's 11th homer, in the fourth inning, left the Expos with a 3-1 deficit. But Montreal batted around in a five-run fifth to chase Tom Glavine (2-3).

Dennis Martinez, Montreal's scheduled starter, reported a stiff neck while warming up and was replaced by Bill Samped.

Reliever Dave Schmidt (1-0), who allowed three hits in 2-3 innings in relief of Samped, left in the seventh after one of Ron Gant's three hits caromed off his leg.

Relief ace Tim Burke left the game after injuring his right leg covering first base in the ninth. Drew Hall, the fifth Montreal pitcher, got the last out for his second save.

Astros 2, Cardinals 1
Glenn Wilson extended his hitting streak to six games with an eighth-inning single that scored Ken Caminiti as resurgent Houston beat skidding St. Louis.

Caminiti doubled to the left field wall off Joe Magrane (2-8) with one out and slid home safely after second baseman Jose Oquendo slapped down Wilson's hit and made a late throw to the plate.

Reliever Juan Agosto (4-1) pitched one inning for the victory.

Giants 4, Cubs 1
Rookie John Burkett pitched seven scoreless innings and had his first major league hit and RBI, and Matt Williams hit a two-run homer for San Francisco.

Burkett (4-1) blanked the Cubs until Ryne Sandberg led off the eighth with his 10th homer. Burkett gave up five hits and was taken out after eight innings for a pinch hitter. Steve Bedrosian got his seventh save.

AL suspends Robinson

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Baltimore Orioles manager Frank Robinson still has a long way to go to catch one of baseball's all-time umpire baiters.

Robinson, who played under former Baltimore manager Earl Weaver from 1969-71 and coached under Weaver in 1985 and 1986, on Wednesday was suspended for three games for verbally abusing American League umpire Drew Coble last Monday.

He was scheduled to have his appeal heard by AL president Bobby Brown this afternoon.

If the appeal is denied - and it almost always is - Robinson would become the second Baltimore manager to be suspended.

Guess who was first.

The feisty Weaver was suspended six times, most recently in September 1985 for three games.

And, like Weaver, Robinson thinks certain umpires have it in for him. Last year he threatened to quit because he said umpires were harassing his players.

Robinson didn't follow through on his threat and went on to become AL Manager of the Year. The Orioles, who went 54-107 in 1988, were 87-75 last year and were in the AL East race until the final weekend.

On Monday, he called Coble "a liar" and "a no-good human being" after an argument that resulted in his ejection from the Orioles' 6-4 loss to the Minnesota Twins.

Robinson, who is black, has also accused Coble of being prejudiced. Coble said Robinson should be ashamed of himself for making such an accusation.

Brown said the suspension was for "physical contact with the umpire, use of abusive language, delay of the game and inappropriate post-game remarks to the press."

Robinson said that Coble initiated the physical contact. Asked if he regretted either getting into the argument with Coble or calling him names afterward, Robinson said: "No."

Other than to say he looked forward to his appeal, Robinson declined comment Wednesday. So did most of his players, although some said they appreciated having a manager who sticks up for them.

"We haven't had real good blood with Coble," Craig Worthington said. "He's made a few bad calls against us and Frank was just sticking up for us. When he feels cheated, he is going to state his opinion."

Said Randy Milligan: "He's just interpreting rules the best way he knows how and is sticking up for the team."

But Milligan added: "Sometimes I don't even know what he's arguing about."

Coble was home-plate umpire Monday when, in the eighth inning, Twins manager Tom Kelly replaced pitcher Juan Berenguer with Terry Leach. Kelly finished speaking with Leach, took a few steps toward the dugout, stopped, turned around, and again conferred briefly with Leach before leaving the field.

Robinson, already angered about a called third strike against Mickey Tettleton earlier in the inning, argued that Kelly should have been charged with a second trip to the mound and that Leach should have been removed. Robinson became irate when Coble told him that it wouldn't be considered a trip because Kelly hadn't crossed the foul line before returning to the mound.

"He said, 'In the American League, you have to cross the line,' like I don't know the rules in the American League," Robinson said.

Actually, rule 8.06 states: "A manager is considered to have concluded his visit to the mound when he leaves the 18-foot circle surrounding the pitcher's rubber." But Kelly didn't appear to go that far away from Leach.

OU makes final payment to Switzer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) - Barry Switzer's ties to the University of Oklahoma will end Friday when the former football coach receives a $145,000 payment from the school.

The payment is part of a settlement Switzer reached with regents last year in agreeing to resign.

Sports information director Mike Treps confirmed that Friday's payment will end all contractual ties between Switzer and the university.

Under the termination settlement, Switzer was paid his regular salary from June 1989 until Feb. 1, collecting a total of $50,750. Regents agreed to keep Switzer as a salaried employee until Feb. 1 to allow him to draw a larger pension.

After being removed from the payroll in February, Switzer continued to draw payments of $7,250 a month. Those payments end Friday, when he collects the lump sum payment.

The entire settlement amounted to $224,750.

Switzer announced his resignation

June 19, 1989 after months of controversy that included the Sooners' three-year probation by the NCAA, a shooting and rape in the athletic dormitory that involved football players and the cocaine-selling conviction of quarterback Charles Thompson.

Accent on Health

A growing number of women and children living in supervised shelters for the homeless are benefiting from nutrition services offered by the Texas Department of Health (TDH). The department's Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) safeguards—through sound nutrition—against health problems among low income mothers, their babies and children.

WIC services include providing nutritious foods, health assessments and nutrition counseling to eligible pregnant or breastfeeding women, new mothers, and their babies and children less than five years old.

To be eligible, applicants must undergo health screenings at WIC clinics to establish their nutritional needs. They also must meet state and federal guidelines for low income.

In addition, health officials have adapted WIC services and rules to meet the unique needs of homeless participants.

According to Debra Stabeno, chief of TDH's Bureau of WIC Nutrition, "Our challenge in serving the homeless is greater than it is with other participants."

"We must provide homeless participants with foods that are not easily perishable. These people don't have refrigerators, freezers or other kitchen conveniences, so we try to supply a more durable food package," she explained.

The supervised shelters where homeless WIC participants stay must follow specific guidelines set by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Among those conditions:

• WIC foods must benefit the authorized participant, not a facility for the homeless or other institution. The facility may not gain financial or in-kind benefits from any person's participation in WIC.

• WIC foods may not be included in communal feedings.

• Shelter personnel may not make collective or bulk transactions for participants living in their facilities, although in certain situations—such as illness or disability—a proxy may represent a participant.

• No facility may place constraints or restrictions on any person because of that person's participation in WIC.

For detailed information on the WIC program in Texas, its eligibility requirements, or the guidelines for shelters for the homeless, persons are urged to contact their county WIC office or clinic, or call, toll-free, 1-800-WIC-FOR-U.

Free game booklet brings fun to family fitness

Remember the good old days when an evening of "Twister" beat the "Ed Sullivan Show" hands down, and dinner meant the whole family sitting down at the table together?

Today's busy two-career homes have little time for togetherness, let alone fitness. According to the President's Council on Physical Fitness & Sports, "More than 58 percent of mothers and 61 percent of fathers never exercise with their children for 20 minutes or more a day in a typical week." The President's Council recommends a minimum of three workouts per week, including aerobic exercise.

This spring, the President's Council on Physical Fitness & Sports, the California Raisin Advisory Board, and Alan Thicke of "Growing Pains" have teamed up to show that family fitness can be "fun and games."

To prove it, they're giving away a free "fold-out" booklet, "The Great Raisin Family Fitness Caper," that transforms into a poster-size board game for the whole family. The game invites families to "sleuth out" exciting new fitness activities together, while learning fun facts on nutrition and exercise.

"Part of the problem is perception—parents still believe that "childhood" is synonymous with "exercise," notes national celebrity advisor Thicke. "With one in four U.S. children obese, it's critical that parents begin to develop good exercise and eating habits early in a child's life. Getting started is as simple as riding bikes together and substituting healthy snacks like raisin for junk foods."

Thicke, who played involved parent Jason Seaver on ABC's "Growing Pains," has made good nutrition and fitness a priority in his real-life family. Pursuing family fitness helps him build strong emotional and physical bonds with his two sons, Brennan, age 14, and Robin, age 12.

"My sons help to motivate me and I motivate them. Whether we're playing basketball or football, it never seems as if we're "working" at staying fit or eating right. Being together is fun," Thicke says. "And that's what family fitness is all about."

The free booklet is available by writing for "The California Raisins' Family Fitness Game," The President's Council on Physical Fitness & Sports, Washington, D.C.

Camp Fire Summer Camp begins Monday

Camp Fire Summer Camp will be held Monday through Friday, June 4-8, at the east end of the City Golf Course and West of Old Veteran's Park.

The Camp Lani Wa Day Camp is for youths four years of age through the third grade and the Outdoor Progression Lani-Wa Day Camp is for youths in the fourth through sixth grades.

Both camps will be held from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Monday through Thursday and from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Friday. Ceremonials are scheduled on Friday.

Those wishing to attend the camps may register at the Hereford Camp Fire Lodge, 903 14th St. (364-0395), or call Brenda Pagett at 364-4626 before Monday. Youths may also register Monday morning at 8 a.m. at the camp site.

Registration fee is $15 for Camp Fire members or $22 for non-members.

Those participating in the Lani Wa Day Camp will have the opportunity to meet new friends, learn songs and games, make craft items and enjoy the out-of-doors. The campers are asked to wear play clothes each day, no sandals or shorts. Nita Lea is the camp director and she will be assisted by Brenda Pagett and Johnnie Messer.

During the Outdoor Progression Day Camp, youths will work on Outdoor Progression ranks by learning the basic skills for living in the outdoors. In this program, campers progress through four ranks, Fire Tender, High Adventure, Trail Maker and Gypsy. Participants will spend at least one night outdoors cooking supper, breakfast and dinner.

JAMES PEACH

Rev. Peach graduates

James Peach, pastor of Westway Baptist Church, is a 1990 graduate of Southwestern Theological Seminary. Rev. Peach was presented with the Certificate in Christian Studies through the Seminary Extension Center in Amarillo. Rev. Peach was one of two men in the nation to receive this certificate.

Tour taken by club members

Members of Bippus Extension Homemakers Club met recently for dinner in Littlefield and a tour of the town's American Cotton Growers Plant.

The plant is the site where thousands of yards of heavy weight denim is made. The 500 employees work 12-hour shifts and the plant operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The business is operated by local cotton growers and makes most of the fabric that is used by Levi.

Welcomed as guests were Alta Mae Higgins, Mona Gee, Sue Thweatt, and Juanita Kooting and her daughter, Dallas.

Members present included Kate Bradley, Mariellen Homfeld, Juanita Perrin and Elaine Pinnell.

The next meeting will be held in September.

Northcutt presides at meeting

Fifteen members were in attendance at the regular meeting of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 Tuesday evening.

Noble Grand Rosalie Northcutt presided at the business session.

Three visits, 17 cheer cards, four dishes of food and 37 flowers and memorials were reported.

Thanks was extended to the Craig family from Rebekah members for the assistance they gave by picking up the memorial flags that had been placed at Rest Lawn Memorial Park.

It was announced that members will join Friona Rebekah Lodge #308 in presenting the Rebekah Degree to two new members.

Dorothy Lundry served as hostess to Northcutt, Genevieve Lynn, Marie Harris, Stella Hershey, Susie Curtsinger, Anna Conklin, Jo Irlbeck, Tony Irlbeck, Erma Loving, Jim Loving, Sadie Shaw, Verna Sowell, Irene Merritt and Gene Bishop.

Composer Jules Massenet was born in 1842 in Montaud, France.

Military Muster

Army Pvt. Lisa D. Winters McDonald has arrived for duty in West Germany.

She is an intelligence analyst with the 207th Military Intelligence Brigade.

McDonald is the daughter of John W. Winters of 5714 Leigh and Sandra E. Winters of 4623 Cherokee, both of Amarillo.

Her husband, Kirt, is the son of Donald and Vi McDonald of 800 Union, Hereford.

The private is a 1987 graduate of Amarillo High School.

Senior Airman Steven C. Tohm has been decorated with the Air Force Achievement Medal at Falcon Air Force Base, Colo.

The achievement medal is awarded to airmen for meritorious service, acts of courage, or other accomplishments.

Tohm is an electrician with the 1002nd Civil Engineering Squadron. He is the son of Marvin E. and Leona M. Tohm of 521 Ac. J. His wife, Charlotte, is the daughter of Jesse and Bertha Childress of Meeker, Okla.

The airman graduated in 1982 from Hereford High School and received an associate degree in 1984 from Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo.

Airman 1st Class Huston P. Jewell Jr. has been decorated with the Air Force Achievement Medal at Altus Air Force Base, Okla.

The Achievement Medal is awarded to airmen for meritorious service, acts of courage, or other accomplishments.

He is a fuel specialist with the 443rd Supply Squadron.

Jewell is the son of Huston P. Jewell of 700 Lukfata, Broken Bow, Okla.

His wife, Regina, is the daughter of Robert Fish and Mickey L. Neely, both of Hereford.

The airman is a 1984 graduate of Broken Bow High School.

The ballpoint pen was invented by two Hungarian brothers—George and Ladislao—who agreed on the advantage of quick-drying ink for use in pens. They constructed the prototype and in 1938 applied for a patent.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I know that with proper diet and exercise you can build muscle. I also think if you do not exercise, or cease to exercise after building muscle, the muscle turns to fat. What I'd like to know is: can fat be turned into muscle by starting to exercise and following the proper diet again, or do you have to lose the fat and start all over building muscle?

DEAR READER: Technically, you can't convert fat to muscle and muscle does not become fat. If you have good muscles and stop exercising, the muscles will decrease in size. Muscles only become as large and strong as they need to be to accomplish the level of exercise you engage in. As the muscles degenerate, the calories in the muscle tissue may be used to form body fat. But that only happens if the calories in the muscle tissue plus the calories in your diet are in excess of your body needs.

To illustrate, a person who is ill may not eat enough to maintain body fat and may not exercise. He will not get fat as his muscles degenerate from lack of use because he needs the calories.

Sufficient calorie intake is essential, so that the protein in your diet can be used to build muscles and not used for calories. Calories from fat can be part of the total nutritional aspect of building muscle. But the muscles are mostly from protein and water. High-calorie diets and high fat consumption sometimes used in bodybuilding may result in excess fat in the muscles—like marbled beef.

With a good exercise program and a sensible diet, you can develop muscles in response to the exercise stimulus at the same time you are losing body fat, because you are using more calories than you are consuming. You don't have to lose fat and then develop muscles as your question implies.

Often, with a good fitness program, a person will not lose body weight, because pounds of new muscle are being developed at the same time calories in body fat are being used to support the calories needed for exercise.

I have discussed this point in more detail along with other points about exercise in Special Report 74, Exercise to Control Body Fat, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/74, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

DEAR DR. LAMB: When I had my annual checkup, the doctor told me my white blood count and my platelets were low. So he sent me to the hospital for more blood tests. They came back a week later and the count hadn't changed. My doctor said it wasn't dangerous. Should it be rechecked again later or will it clear on its own? I've never had this before.

DEAR READER: How low your count is, is important. There are wide variations in the number of white blood cells in normal people. There are many more white blood cells outside your blood vessels than in your circulation. In some people a low count only means more of the cells are outside the circulation.

In other instances the white cells stick to the walls of the vessel and the blood sample doesn't really represent the true picture.

The blood cells—except lymphocytes—all are formed in the bone marrow. The low platelet count and the low white count would raise the suspicion that your bone marrow was not producing enough cells. This may be temporary, after a viral infection. But the combination is significant enough to warrant follow-up blood tests. And depending on the results, additional tests, including bone marrow studies, may be indicated.

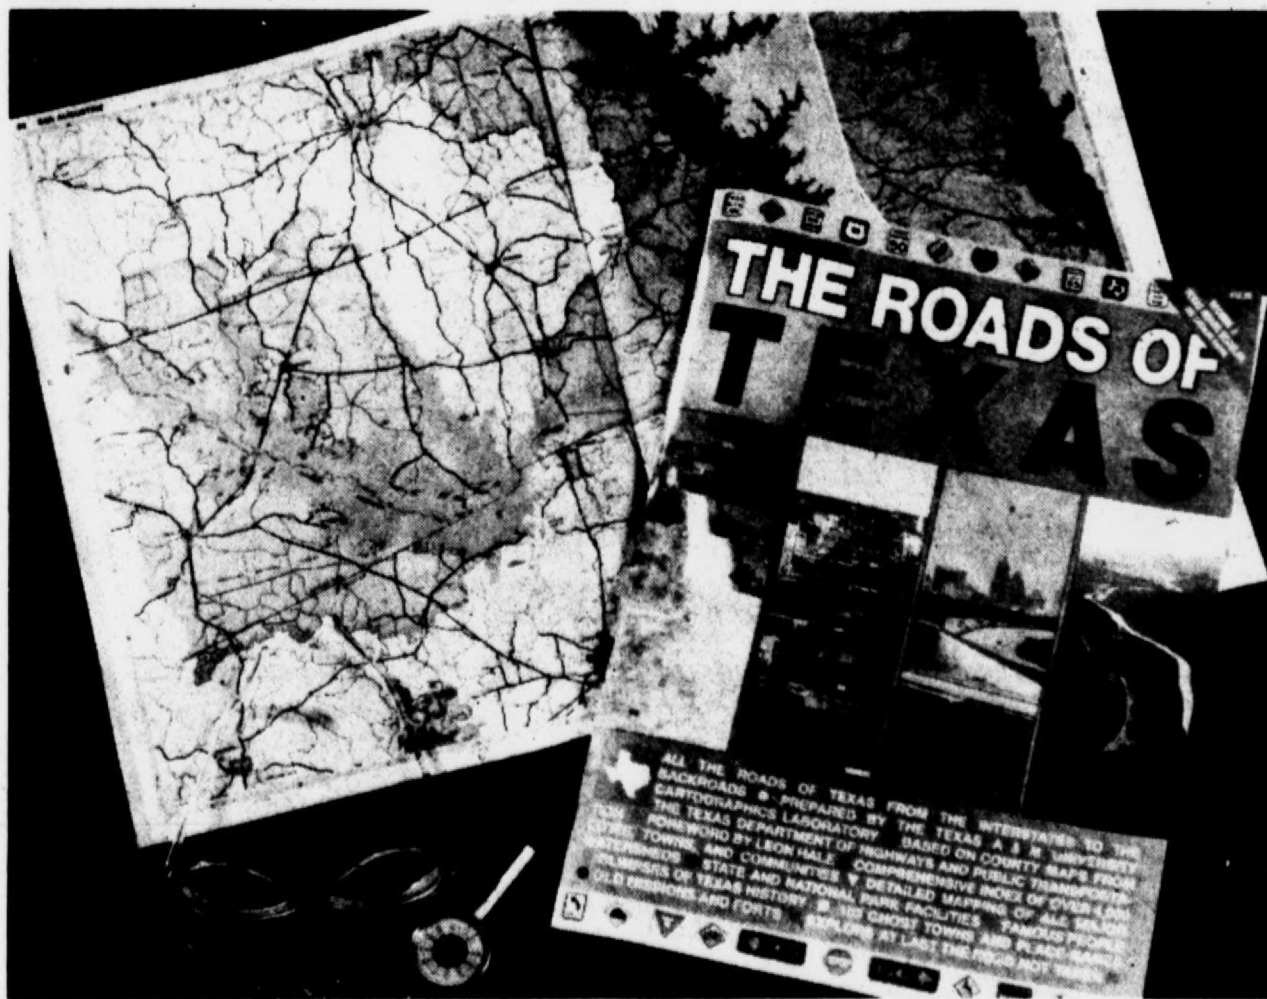

DEAR DR. LAMB: My father is 71 years old and the doctors have told him he needs a bypass operation. He has severe blockage of the arteries to his heart.

Dad says he is too old for surgery and is going to die soon anyway so why go through the problems of having major surgery. I would like to know if he is too old for the surgery and what his chances would be from having surgery at his age.

DEAR READER: His chances are rather good. Coronary bypass surgery was originally used only in younger patients, but as the technique has developed, many older patients do have bypass surgery. Dr. Charles J. Mullany from the Mayo Clinic reported on 159 patients over 80 years of age who had bypass surgery. They were extremely ill patients in the cardiac care unit and some required emergency surgery or a mechanical heart assist. Considering the state of the patients, they could not have survived without surgery. Only 12 percent died in the hospital and 70 percent of those who survived were still alive three years later. So even being over 80 years of age doesn't mean a bypass cannot be done if indicated.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Questions of athletes' eligibility compound NC State's problems Sanchez-Vicario knocked out of French Open

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - North Carolina State faces potential fines and future ineligibility rulings after an internal probe turned up athletic eligibility violations in what NCAA officials call the most wide-ranging case to date.

The school has reported to the NCAA and the Atlantic Coast Conference that an in-school investigation into all sports since 1985 found the violations.

"It's safe to say we will suffer some consequences," university counsel Becky French told the Charlotte Observer on Wednesday. "I think the consequences will come in several different forms. But when we self-reported, we decided no matter what we find our objective is to fix the situation, get it right and suffer whatever consequences there may be."

Two NCAA staff members, director of enforcement Bob Minnix and special investigator David Didion, said there has never been an eligibility case as broad as N.C. State's is now. Neither would predict potential penalties nor whether the case would come before the NCAA Committee on Infractions.

"I think it's a serious matter, but I'm not sure how serious," said Didion, who led an NCAA probe of the N.C. State men's basketball program last year. "I don't know it occurred initially, how it was discovered and to what extent it occurred."

The probe is described as very complicated and is not expected to be completed until the summer. French said it is too early to tell what NCAA penalties N.C. State will face, if any, but some possibilities include fines, changes in teams' won-loss records, repayment of NCAA tournament earnings and perhaps future ineligibility rulings for athletes.

Already, Wolfpack athletes are being affected by revised interpretations of eligibility requirements. N.C. State officials say some athletes are having to attend summer school classes in order to be eligible this fall because of the changes.

Women's basketball star Andrea Stinson, for example, will be unable to try out for the U.S. teams playing in the Goodwill Games and World Championships because she must attend summer school. And baseball pitcher Michael Butler recently was ruled ineligible for the NCAA tournament.

Interim athletic director Harold Hopfenberg said he does not yet have a full count of how many athletes will be affected, but said the number will be "less than 100 and more than 10." He said he believes all of them will be able to retain their eligibility by the fall. However, French said the NCAA will have to restore eligibility in most cases.

N.C. State officials say the most common problem they have discovered involved a 1985 interpretation of how to apply the NCAA's academic progression rule to special courses at the university. The rule states that athletes must average 24 semester hours of credit a year and that the credits must count toward a degree.

The special courses involved at N.C. State are known as "C-wall" courses, because students are required to receive a "C" grade in order for the class to count toward graduation.

Hopfenberg and French said the university has determined the violations occurred when "D" grades in "C-wall" classes were allowed to count toward the NCAA's 24-hour requirement. A "D" grade in other courses normally counts toward graduation.

Sanchez-Vicario knocked out of French Open

PARIS (AP) - Defending women's champion Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario was eliminated from the French Open today, upset by Mercedes Paz, her doubles partner.

Paz, who has spent most of her career in the shadow of fellow Argentine Gabriela Sabatini, ran down the 18-year-old Spaniard's varied shots to win 7-5, 3-6, 6-1.

It was a sloppy match, with nine of the first 12 games being decided on service breaks and both players making many errors. But Paz was steading on the big points, especially in the third set, and Sanchez-Vicario never found the magic that helped her win the title at 17 a year ago.

The opening match on center court jolted the tournament, which was just getting over the upsets of men's top seeds Stefan Edberg and Boris Becker. And it removed one of the more colorful of the current crop of tennis teen-agers, with Sanchez-Vicario's smiley, bouncy style a crowd favorite.

But the favorite helped beat herself. Dropshots and volleys that found the corners and lines a year ago landed long and wide, and Paz, ranked 39th in the world and the winner of last week's tournament in Strasbourg, France, was good enough to capitalize.

When Sanchez-Vicario sent a forehand long on the final point, Paz dropped her racket at the baseline, raised her arms above her head and broke into a big smile. She ran to the net, where she and Sanchez-Vicario exchanged kisses and hugs, then walked to her chair, sat down and sobbed with joy.

Two other women's seeds playing early matches won easily Thursday.

Sixth-seeded Manuella Maleeva beat Australian Anne Minter 6-1, 6-0, and 16th-seeded Laura Gildemeister of Chile beat American Elise Burgin 6-3, 6-4.

Men's fifth seed Aaron Krickstein of the United States won handily, as did American teen-ager Jennifer Capriati, who took just 40 minutes to beat Cammy MacGregor. But 12th-seeded Juan Aguilera of Spain was upset by Thierry Champion of France.

On Wednesday, all 11 seeds in action advanced, quite a change from the upsets of the previous day. Among the winners were Americans Andre Agassi and Michael Chang, both convinced they have the right stuff to win the French Open.

Nicholls State makes third try at joining Southland Conference

DALLAS (AP) - Nicholls State University, already rejected twice by the Southland Conference, tries again today when presidents of the league's member schools meet to discuss expansion.

Also seeking admission is Texas-San Antonio, which has neither a football program nor a baseball program.

"Expansion will be one of the issues, and Nicholls State will be one of the schools the presidents will have to vote on," said Southland Commissioner Don Landry. "They've been considered before, and they're going to be considered again. It looks promising this time."

The Southland Conference has eight schools - five from Texas and three from Louisiana. Only seven of the eight schools participate in Division I-AA football.

"We could use an eighth football-playing school," Landry said.

"The last time we attempted to get in was a couple of years ago, and we didn't have men's track," said Nicholls State athletic director Phil Greco. "Since then, we've added that sport. I'm very optimistic about getting in this time. I think we could add something to the conference."

While Nicholls was hopeful, Landry said anything can happen.

"I think it looks good for them, but it's too close to call," he said. "I don't think they can get too cocky about it. It's not a cinch," Landry said.

"In our system, voting is done by secret balloting, and it only takes two negative votes to keep a school out."

Landry acknowledged North Texas openly opposes Nicholls's admission.

"They've been very honest about their position all the time," Landry said. "They play about three Division I-A teams every year in football and say if Nicholls State is added, they would have to give up the money they'd make from one of those games."

Nicholls State reportedly is supported by the three Louisiana members - McNeese State, Northwestern State and Northeast Louisiana - and two Texas schools, Southwest Texas State and Stephen F. Austin.

Sam Houston State and the University of Texas-Arlington are the two undecided votes that could keep Nicholls State out.

"The key is how everybody else is going to vote," Landry said. "Nobody else has come out publicly against it. I think the presidents will enter with open minds."

The Southland's last expansion was in 1987, when it accepted Northwestern State, Southwest Texas State, Sam Houston and Stephen F.

Austin. Nicholls State, which was a member of the Gulf Star Conference with those four schools, was left out of the expansion when it applied for admission in 1987 and 1988.

Landry, Nicholls State's basketball coach for 13 years and athletic director for nine years, had just been named commissioner when the conference last expanded. He said it turned out to be poor timing for Nicholls State the second time.

"The last time they applied, we had just brought in four schools and weren't ready to expand again," Landry said. "Now, everybody's real comfortable with one another, and there's no talk of defection."
