

Seiver not indicted for Moya incident

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A Deaf Smith County grand jury, meeting Wednesday in special session, "no-billed" Hereford farmer John Seiver after considering evidence resulting from an altercation with labor leader Jesus Moya.

The Deaf Smith County District Clerk's office said the jury met for about two hours Wednesday morning with special prosecutor Ebelardo Lopez, an assistant district attorney from the Potter County District Attorney's office.

Moya, who represents the International Union of Industrial and Agricultural Workers based in the Rio Grande Valley, had reported to sheriff's deputies that Seiver, an employee of Griffin and Brand packing shed, ran over him with a pickup truck. He said the fracas took place on July 13 and that Seiver was angry with him for broadcasting his pro-labor union messages to workers harvesting onions in a field just off West Highway 60 near Hereford.

The investigation of the complaint was handled by Herman Benavidez of the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's department. Sheriff Joe Brown said this morning that Seiver's version of the incident differed considerably from what Moya reported to the department.

A few days after the disagreement, in which Moya claimed to have suffered a broken finger and sprains to his shoulder and back, Moya filed civil suit against Seiver in 222nd District Court. Represented by attorneys from Texas Rural Legal Aid, Moya is asking for $25,000 in actual and punitive damages as a result of his injuries.

Lopez was appointed special prosecutor over the Moya case by 222nd District Court Judge David Wesley Gulley at the request of Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul. Saul cited pending litigation involving himself and Moya when he asked to be taken off the case.

While the no-bill decision means there will be no indictment against Seiver at this time, the jury could look at the case again should additional evidence be presented.

Still Moist From Rain

Small drops of water were still visible this morning as the sun came up. Wednesday afternoon, Hereford lawns and gardens were blessed by 1.1 inches of precipitation, the first measurable amount of moisture here in almost a month.

Oil slick approaches beaches

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A 25-mile-long oil slick as thick as molasses loomed three miles off the Texas coast today, pushing toward beaches east of Galveston as Coast Guard officials held out hope that it would bend back out to sea.

The oil, spilled from a British tanker grounded off the Louisiana coast, could wash ashore anywhere along the 25-mile stretch between High Island and Galveston between this afternoon and Friday evening, said Coast Guard spokesman Keith Spangler said.

But an aerial survey of the slick this morning found that the spill was bending slightly to the southwest and might turn parallel with the coastline and move back into the Gulf of Mexico, Spangler said.

"It may just miss that coastline," he said. "It's starting to make its bend — just slightly. We just don't know if it's enough (of a turn) to spiral back into the Gulf."

'Thick as molasses' for 25 miles

The slick was three miles southwest of High Island about 10 a.m., he said.

Lt. Joe Ocken, a spokesman for the Coast Guard office in Galveston, said he had lined up contractors ready with loads of straw and dirt-moving equipment to begin mopping up beaches when the oil hits.

Spangler said winds are "moving the oil about twice as fast as it was before. We really don't know the extent of this — what it will cause — but with 1.25 million gallons in the water, you're going to have some on the beaches."

Specialists from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the state Parks and Wildlife Department arrived on the scene Wednesday night to survey the slick and assess possible damage to marine life.

Spangler said the oil will be thick and goeey when it hits, tarring any bird or other wildlife it contacts.

"Someone just brought in a sample of it from the leading edge of the spill

Air France hostages reportedly saved

By SCHEHEREZADE FARAMARZI
Associated Press Writer

Iranian Foreign Ministry officials in Tehran reported an explosion aboard a hijacked Air France jetliner today, but said all its passengers were safe. Air France said the three hijackers were with Iranian authorities.

The ministry officials, reached by The Associated Press by telephone from Beirut, Lebanon, said the people from the Boeing 737 were on the runway near the plane. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity.

"All the passengers, our passengers and the crew are safe," said Maurice Bouhog, a spokesman for Air France in Paris. "The hijackers are with the Iranian authorities."

One Iranian official said no one, hostages or hijackers, had been injured. He said it was not clear what caused the explosion, but that it apparently took place after everyone left the plane.

Air France said a total of 14 passengers — including a 10-year-old American boy — had been released in Tehran by the hijackers in addition to a steward who escaped in Cyprus. That left 46 passengers and crew — all men — on the airport runway in Tehran.

The hijackers earlier rigged the aircraft with explosives and said they would blow up the plane and their hostages if France did not meet their demands, an airport official told The Associated Press.

The official, who had been reached by telephone from Beirut, reported "They've given them (French officials) until 4:30 p.m. (Tehran time, 9 a.m. EDT)." He spoke on condition of anonymity.

It was the second deadline set by the hijackers. They said earlier they would kill a French hostage every hour after 9 a.m. local time if the French did not release five men from their prisons. That deadline passed with no one reported harmed.

The hostages aboard the airliner reportedly included French, U.S., Japanese, Indian, Swiss and Finnish passengers.

Among 14 passengers freed by the hijackers in Tehran was a 10-year-old American boy, Air France said. The airline refused to identify him, and would not say if his parents were aboard the plane.

Air France said 12 women, a girl and the boy were released from the plane at Tehran today and that a steward had escaped earlier in Cyprus. With 58 passengers and six crew reported on the aircraft originally, that would leave the three hijackers and 46 hostages.

Cypriot authorities said the hijackers carried knives and perhaps explosives. The plane landed in Geneva, Switzerland, Beirut and Lanarca, Cyprus on the way to Tehran.

Tehran Radio reported the French pilot of the Boeing 737, Jean Nicol, had told Iranian officials by radio that the Arabic-speaking hijackers had set explosives throughout "most parts of the aircraft" and were "ready to blow it up."

The radio, in a broadcast monitored in London, said the hijackers took one passenger outside the aircraft and indicated they would execute him. The radio said the hijackers relented and returned the hostage to the plane after Iranian officials agreed to read their demands over the radio.

The Islamic Republic News Agency quoted a French Embassy official in Tehran as saying "it was not possible" for the government to free the prisoners on short notice.

Tehran radio, monitored in London, broadcast a statement from the hijackers that was signed "The Islamic Organization for the Liberation of Jerusalem."

It said in part: "The French government is bent on reviving past colonialist methods" and is responsible for "a great many crimes throughout the world" and in France itself.

The radio did not say in what language the statement was made. It quoted it as saying France was entertaining the idea of setting up "a new empire."

Tehran radio described the hijackers as men in their early 20s and said they demanded that the French government release five imprisoned "comrades," whom they named.

The nationalities of the hijackers were not known, but in a taped conversation earlier with a Lebanese official at Beirut Airport, they spoke with Lebanese accents.

Shortage problems absent this summer

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Despite very little local precipitation from the middle of last October through May, the city of Hereford has not experienced the water shortage problems it encountered last summer.

From June 18 to Aug. 17 in 1983, more than 440 million gallons of city water were used by local residents. The 233.5 million gallons pumped out during the second month of that period represent an all-time high. For a while, rationing was mentioned as a possible necessity.

A few factors have helped the water usage situation this summer, explained Dudley Bayne, city manager. A lot of little showers during the last two months, he said, have helped keep people from watering. Also, all the city's wells have remained operable, whereas several required repairs at one time or another during the summer of 1983.

Water levels 'holding their own' now

The city owns 30 wells, Bayne said. All are "holding their own" as far as their water levels go, according to the city manager. Four other wells are annually leased to the city by Holly Sugar Corporation in case of emergency need.

Water usage in May and June this year was up substantially from the same two months in 1983. During May of last year, 111 million gallons were consumed, while 172 million were pumped in May of 1984. June consumption rose from 133 to 153 million gallons.

Figures for June 18 to July 17 of this year have not been released.

Precipitation in Hereford is actually down from last year and below the average amount. According to news director Chip Formby of KPAN, the town's official weather station, 10.2 inches is normally received by Aug.

1. Through July of last year, 10.02 inches had descended.

Wednesday afternoon's shower brought the 1984 precipitation total from 8.62 to 9.72 inches, Formby reported. The 1.1 inches represented the first measurable rainfall for Hereford since July 4, when only .03 inches were recorded.

The average amount of moisture annually received by Hereford for an entire year is 12.35 inches.

Regarding the possibility of implementing rationing last summer, Bayne this morning commented, "It never got that close. It'd look bad for a couple of days, then consumption would drop and things would look all right again."

WEDNESDAY'S HIGH: 86 (normal high this date: 91 record: 105 (1943))

OVERNIGHT LOW: 60 (normal: 66 record: 56 (1925))

PRECIPITATION: 1.1 inches (year-to-date: 9.72 inches)

OUTLOOK: Partly cloudy tonight with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. The low should be near 62 with southerly winds of 5 to 10 miles per hour. Winds are to increase about 5 miles per hour Wednesday, foreseen to have a high in the upper 80s. There is a small possibility of afternoon showers.

Drug not helping rabies victim

HOUSTON (AP) — The pediatrician treating a comatose 12-year-old rabies victim refuses to deem the girl's case "hopeless" but concedes the child is "incurable."

"We all feel that we're dealing with an incurable situation," Dr. Dixie Swanson said Wednesday at a news conference about the Laotian immigrant. "But we all go home and hope in our private moments."

Doctors at Texas Children's Hospital have refused to identify the girl further. The child was in "very critical condition," in a coma and on life support systems, doctors said.

An experimental anti-virus drug has had no apparent effects on their patient, Ms. Swanson said.

"So far we have seen no response," she said. "She is very far advanced in her disease."

Dr. Ralph Feigin, the hospital's physician-in-chief, said that the experimental drug ribavirin had been effective against rabies virus in lab tests.

Houston to vote on gay rights

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston voters will decide next January on the fate of two gay rights measures that city council members have refused to rescind.

The council voted unanimously Wednesday to conduct the election, after denying efforts by an anti-gay group to remove the two laws, which guarantee employment rights for homosexuals.

The measures, passed June 19, ensure that the city will not discriminate against homosexuals in its Affirmative Action program and will not keep personnel records on municipal employees' sexual preferences.

Council members were forced to call a vote on the issue after the Committee for Public Awareness, an anti-gay group, gathered 61,400 signatures in a petition drive to repeal the measures. The group needed 28,127 signatures to force the council's action.

Councilman John Goodner, chairman of the Committee for Public Awareness, said the issue should be "submitted to the people of Houston, not to the council. It is important for the council to uphold the people's right to be heard."

Crash kills Amarillo men

FORT LUPTON, Colo. (AP) — One of the engines on a twin-engine plane exploded on Wednesday, blowing off part of a wing, and sending the plane plummeting into a cornfield, killing the two Texas men on board, officials reported.

The Weld County Coroner identified the victims as the pilot, Beryl Brister, 56, and his son, Jerry Brister, 30, both of Amarillo, Texas, where the plane was registered.

A Weld County sheriff's dispatcher, who asked not to be identified, said the sheriff's office received the call on the crash about 4:40 p.m. Wednesday.

Arnold W. Scott, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said he would be investigating the crash of the Cessna 421 for the federal agency.

A witness to the crash, Ean Arth, told officials that he heard an engine on the plane sputtering, and looked up and saw the engine explode, blowing off part of a wing.

World's Fair scam found

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "Low-level" workers at the debt-ridden World's Fair may have stolen season passes worth up to $150 apiece and sold them, say authorities who seized thousands of records in a sweep of the exposition's ticket sales office.

The seizure of documents Wednesday by a task force armed with search warrants came as a legislative council began its own probe of the fair, which is expected to be about $60 million in debt when it closes Nov. 11.

The fair estimates it sold 160,000 season tickets at costs ranging from $90 to $150, but fair officials have been concerned that some of the money has not been reaching the exposition's coffers.

Season pass holders account for more than a fourth of the daily average attendance of 43,000.

Members of the staff of Orleans Parish District Attorney Harry Connick confirmed Wednesday that they were investigating allegations of theft and fraud in the distribution and sale of season passes.

"There are for sure some low-level employees involved. How high up it goes, we don't know," said Assistant District Attorney Eric Dubelier.

Nancy Reagan prompts response

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan, prompted by his wife, says he's doing everything he can to convince the Soviet Union to begin anti-space weapon talks, but a White House official maintains Moscow isn't seriously interested.

During a brief picture-taking session at the president's isolated mountaintop ranch, Reagan was asked Wednesday what he could do to lure the Soviets to the bargaining table to discuss anti-satellite weapons.

Standing outside his relatively modest, white adobe home, the president paused for a moment before answering. His wife, Nancy, standing at his side, gazed downward and mumbled softly, "Doing everything we can."

Reagan quickly replied, "We're doing everything we can."

Meanwhile, back at the Santa Barbara hotel that lodges the press corps, National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane had told reporters that recent pessimistic statements emanating from the Soviet Union cast doubt on Moscow's intentions.

Guatemala installs assembly

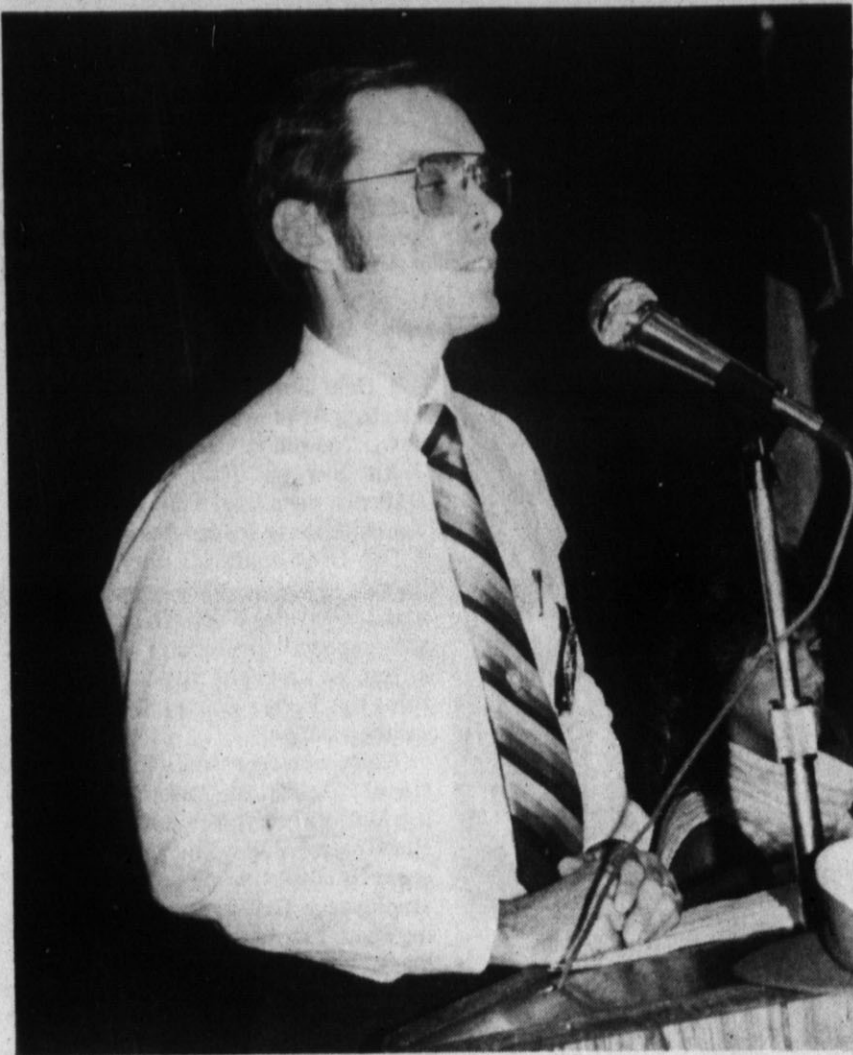

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Guatemala's military chief of state installed a new Constituent Assembly and promised a "free and pure" presidential election after the assembly writes a constitution.

Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores on Wednesday swore in the first assembly president, Roberto Carpio Nicolle of the Christian Democratic Party, who was elected after negotiations among the assembly's three major factions.

Mejia Victores said there will be no "official candidate" in the election and promised a "democratic government based on free and pure elections, the product of the people's search for peace and democracy."

The 88-member assembly's task is to write a new constitution and, once it is finished, call a presidential election — probably early next year.

In Nicaragua, the country's nine Roman Catholic bishops demanded Wednesday that the government-run news media stop writing "slander" about Archbishop Miguel Obando y Bravo. And in Honduras, the armed forces chief said his country's relations with the United States are "magnificent."

Community Awareness

Lt. Ted Langgood talked to Hereford Lions Club members Wednesday about the work of the Hereford Police Department and asked for more community involvement in helping prevent crime. Officer Randy Williams was also part of the program and outlined details of the Neighborhood Crime Watch program in the city.

Convention controversy

Compromise set for fence

DALLAS (AP) — Protest coordinators say they are ready to compromise on a controversial fence around the site of the Republican National Convention.

The Dallas March and Rally Committee has sued the City of Dallas over the 1.5-mile long, 6-foot high, chain-link fence.

The committee says the fence violates the free speech rights of demonstrators by isolating them from their intended audience of Republican delegates and officials.

The city maintains the fence was not intended to segregate protests and is necessary for security and traffic control. Demonstrators, the city argues, are not entitled to a "captive" audience.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders said he would rule at noon today on the committee's request for a preliminary injunction.

The committee at first wanted Sanders to halt construction of the green vinyl-clad fence.

By the end of a hearing Wednesday on the injunction, the American Civil Liberties Union attorney representing the protest committee said his clients "conceded" convention security needs. He said they would be satisfied if the city was told to move part of the fence so demonstrators would be closer to the convention center entrance.

The fence now corrals demonstrators more than 700 feet from the entrance in the back third of a parking lot reserved for the cars of GOP officials.

A grassy slope, a wall and a cemetery also stand between the designated protest area and the convention center.

Police and Secret Service officials testified Wednesday that crowds should be kept at least 350 feet from delegates and party officials — a distance based on the range of most handguns.

Protest organizers also said they want the fence moved in spots that block city streets and sidewalks so they can "encircle" the convention center.

Sanders prepared for the hearing with a 90-minute walk along the perimeter of the fence Tuesday.

that will make contact with the beach, and it's very thick. We turned the container upside down that it was in, and it wouldn't come out. It's hard and thick and glossy black," Spangler said at 6 a.m. today.

Dennis Palafox, pollution surveillance program leader for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said that if the oil passes into inland bays through Rollover Pass or Bolivar Roads, it could devastate aquatic nurseries.

"If the oil gets in there, it can go just about anywhere the winds and tides push it," he said.

Spangler said workers have abandoned efforts to vacuum up the oil already in the water and are concentrating on getting the rest of the tanker's cargo safely unloaded.

"Ten times the amount of oil that's in the water is still on that ship," he said.

With seas getting higher in the stiffer winds, only about 1 percent of the oil already in the water could be recovered, he said.

"Since we can't do much about what's in the water — and we're going to have to clean the beaches anyway — we're saying let's put all of our efforts on the ship and make it safe."

When the 690-foot Alvenus struck and ran aground Monday afternoon, a split opened along either side of the bow and across the deck.

Booms that had been deployed to contain the slick were picked up and moved to the ship itself, Spangler said. Workers prepared to surround the ship with the booms to contain any oil that spilled during the move and transfer.

The team of experts assembled here to cope with the spill estimated it could be about half as bad as the spill resulting from an oil well blowout in the Bay of Campeche in 1979. Some of that oil drifted ashore at Padre Island on the eastern Texas coast and onto the western coast of Louisiana.

Earlier Wednesday, the experts felt the situation in the Gulf was under control and stabilized. But Spangler said conditions in the Gulf of Mexico are hard to predict.

"This thing could get better quickly, just as it suddenly got bad," he said.

Before sundown Wednesday, the slick was strung out like a ribbon for 25 miles from the ship. In places, the slick was 100 yards wide, in others only 100 feet. There was one break where there was no oil for about three miles.

Spangler said the leading edge of the slick was split into a Y-shape, with one finger heading west and the other southwest.

The oil had been spilling from a crack in the ship since the accident Monday, which crumpled a 115-foot-long seam in three of the ship's seven compartments.

Paul Harvey Ferraro Faces Up

Prominent among lapel buttons around the Democrats' political convention was the one which boasted simply: A WOMAN ON THE TICKET!

It was a calculated risk, that Geraldine Ferraro would upstage candidate Mondale. She upstaged everybody.

But before the tumult and the shouting died, the lady from Queens was under the media X-ray.

Before she was even nominated, she was being subjected to a kind of exposure she has never known before.

Congresswoman Ferraro has campaigned and won three times before. She has faced criticism before. Some of the criticism, relating to the fact that she, a Roman Catholic, approves abortion, became vitriolic, personal, even vicious.

But that was nothing compared to what comes now.

For example: It is federal law — it is part of the federal government's "ethics law" — that members of Congress must reveal all financial data about themselves and their spouses.

She never has.

During three terms in Congress she has filed five disclosure statements — and never did disclose anything about her husband.

Husband, John Zaccaro, inherited much money, is a successful developer of real estate in New York and derives considerable income from that; probably from other sources.

One remembers that Idaho Congressman George Hansen was convicted by federal jury last April for failure to report his wife's assets; further was recommended by the House Ethics Committee for a formal reprimand.

Compounding the Ferraro "oversight" is the fact that she owns stock in her husband's company and is an officer of that corporation. She will not be able to claim "no knowledge" of her spouse's holdings.

And that's not all: Husband John Zaccaro owns 352 low-rent apartments in New York and is charged by the New York Housing Authority with 106 building violations in those apartments.

Why didn't she anticipate these embarrassments?

She did advise Mondale of her vulnerability on the Catholic-abortion issue, but apparently did not apprise him in advance of her neglect of congressional ethics requirements.

Well...

Mondale backers yell at anti-abortion group

HOUSTON (AP) — Supporters of Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro exchanged shouts and insults with anti-abortion demonstrators when the Democratic presidential and vice presidential candidates stopped in Houston on the second leg of a two-day campaign tour in the Lone Star State.

About 500 people, many waving Texas and U.S. flags and hoisting placards that said, "Texas is Mondale-Ferraro Country," waited for the candidates more than two hours Wednesday night at a private landing area at Hobby Airport.

About a fourth of the group represented pro-life groups. Many carried signs that read: "Shame On You, Geraldine!" "Ferraro & Fritz Kill Babies" and "This Catholic Mother Doesn't Believe In Abortion."

Ms. Ferraro, a Roman Catholic, has come under criticism repeatedly from anti-abortionists who disapprove of her pro-choice stance as a congresswoman from New York.

Mondale and Ms. Ferraro, who opened their first campaign swing through the South in Jackson, Miss., were scheduled answer questions from students at Houston Community College this morning before flying to San Antonio.

As the plane landed Wednesday night and the candidates emerged, demonstrators chanted "Life, Yes. Abortion, No." Protesters tried repeatedly to disrupt the candidates' speeches and Mondale-Ferraro supporters shouted at them for quiet.

Ms. Ferraro asked the crowd, "Tonight, you've given me yellow roses. On Nov. 6, will you give me the state of Texas?" Most of the crowd applauded, but pro-lifers shouted "No."

In one incident, several anti-Mondale demonstrators held up a sign saying, "Mondale and Ferraro kidnapers," in reference to the group's contention that Mondale friends and supporters were responsible for the kidnapping of the wife of a South American who was active in fighting drug smuggling.

A half-dozen police officers moved in to break up a confrontation between shouting and cursing Mondale supporters and members of the protest group after the sign was ripped from their hands. There were no arrests, police said.

Mondale and Ms. Ferraro ignored the protesters, most of whom were at the back of the crowd.

Earlier in Austin, Mrs. Ferraro said she won't ask Texans for their votes, she will earn them.

"I can show that I should have the confidence of the voters of this state," Ms. Ferraro told a news conference before attending a Capitol rally with Mondale.

"I've worked hard for what I've gotten. I'm not going to ask these Texas voters to give me their votes. I'm going to show them that I earn it, and come Nov. 6 they're going to give it to me," Ms. Ferraro said before attending a Capitol rally with Mondale.

The two spoke to a late-afternoon rally on the Statehouse steps, a gathering that drew several thousand onlookers and which Mondale described as "one of the most encouraging" he ever attended in Austin.

Texas is considered crucial by Democratic strategists, as no Democrat ever has been elected president without carrying the state.

At the news conference, Mondale said he wanted Texans to get acquainted with Ms. Ferraro.

"I know Texas, and the people of Texas know me," Mondale said. "This state has been a source of enormous support for me, and now they will get to know Geraldine Ferraro, and I'm confident they will love her enormously."

Asked if he smelled victory in the South, the former vice president said, "I sure do."

Mondale noted that in the 1982 general election in Texas, a woman, Ann Richards, candidate for state treasurer, got more votes than anyone else.

Ferraro says

She'll earn those votes

AUSTIN (AP) — Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro met chants of "Gerry! Gerry!" from an outdoor crowd of about 7,500 Wednesday with an equally enthusiastic "You're incredible, you're incredible!"

"Anybody who thinks Texas won't vote for a woman doesn't know anything about Texas," she shouted to spectators. "I've got a feeling I'm going to like it here, and I'm going to be back before the fight is over."

Many at Wednesday's rally on the Capitol lawn waited more than an hour in the hot sun to see Ms. Ferraro and presidential nominee Walter Mondale, who flew in from Jackson, Miss., for a news conference and the rally.

They spent the night in Houston, and planned to campaign today in Houston and San Antonio.

State Treasurer Ann Richards, the only woman among Texas' statewide elected officials, introduced Ms. Ferraro by poking fun at cheerleaders who presented western-style hats to President Reagan and Vice President George Bush here on July 25.

"We don't have any cheerleaders — we've got a woman on the ticket," said Ms. Richards, adding that State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower "told me Ronald Reagan thinks 'gender gap' is a town south of Lubbock."

In reference to Mondale's choice of the New York congresswoman as his running mate, Ms. Richards said, "The Democratic Party and Fritz Mondale opened the door to the future, and a woman walked through it."

Ms. Ferraro and Ms. Richards hugged and shook hands after the introduction, which touched off the waving of yellow ribbons by women in the crowd.

Ms. Ferraro described Texans as "confident, tough, can-do people who don't make excuses but get results." She added that "that's the kind of vice president I'm going to be."

At the news conference, Ms. Ferraro said, "I've worked hard for what I've gotten. I'm not going to ask these Texas voters to give me their votes. I'm going to show them that I earn it, and come Nov. 6, they're going to give it to me."

Texas is considered crucial by Democratic strategists, especially since no Democrat ever has been elected president without carrying the state. Mondale even considered two Texans — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros — before choosing Ms. Ferraro.

Mondale told the news conference he wanted Texans to get acquainted with Ms. Ferraro.

"I know Texas and the people of Texas know me," Mondale said. "This state has been a source of enormous support for me, and now they will get to know Geraldine Ferraro, and I'm confident they will love her enormously."

The Northwest Territory included Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and eastern Minnesota.

All-Star basketball

South downs North, 108-99

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Clear Lake's Glenn Puddy may want to share his most valuable player trophy with teammate James Gulley following the South's 108-99 victory over the North in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star basketball game.

"We worked real hard all week in practice," the Southern Methodist-bound Puddy said. "I went against Gulley every day and he beat me up pretty good. That helped tonight."
 Gulley, 6-8, 280, also was a crowd-pleaser, finishing with eight points, including a booming dunk shot late in the game.

Puddy scored 21 points in the game including eight quick points to start the third quarter when the South built up a 17-point, 77-60 lead.

"I just got into the flow of things and it started happening for me," Puddy said. "I love it. It was great to end it like this."

The North was led by Frank Williams of Dallas Samuell. Williams had 20 points and earned MVP honors for his team.

"I'm not saying I didn't deserve it but I don't feel I accomplished what I really wanted in this game," Williams said. "I wanted to see how I could hold up against people my own size and I didn't feel I accomplished that."

A crowd estimated at 3,300, the lowest basketball attendance since 1954, watched the free-wheeling game in Hofheinz Pavilion on the University of Houston campus.

The South victory avenged a 91-86 loss last year at Fort Worth and narrowed the North's overall lead in the series to 20-19.

The Rebels took the lead for good with 7:26 to go in the second quarter on a pair of free throws by Cross Road's Danny Hughes although the North tied it at 45-45 shortly before halftime.

The South was leading 100-90 with 2:36 to play when the North put on one last surge cutting the margin to 104-99 with 48 seconds remaining. Hughes sank a pair of free throws with 13 seconds left to put off any North comeback hopes.

Aldine Nimitz Tom Grant, headed for the University of Houston, scored 13 points for the South and Coyle Win-born of Pampa added 12 points for the North, including 10 in the fourth quarter.

Cheyenne Rodeo

Hereford riders do well

Hereford's Wade Lewis and Kim Gripp finished in top slots in the Cheyenne, Wyo., Frontier Days Rodeo, held July 20-29.

Lewis tied for first place in the steer roping contest with Gripp taking second place in the calf roping event. Finals were Sunday.

The top 15 individuals in each event's preliminaries qualified for the finals Sunday. A field of 247 entered steer roping, and approximately 300 cowboys were in calf roping, Lewis said.

The Cheyenne rodeo was a sanctioned Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association event.

Twenty qualify

Track Club set for state meet

By DENNIS BALL
 Sports Editor

Twenty of 24 Hereford tracksters have, via the regional meet July 14 in Lubbock, qualified for the state summer track meet Friday and Saturday in Brownwood.

Through the Hereford Track Club, which kicked back into action this year after a lay-off of about eight years, the young people—aged nine to 18—will take part in seven different events in five divisions. They were scheduled to leave from Brownwood at noon today.

"I can't overemphasize how hard these kids have worked," coach Suzanne Duvall said. "They will represent Hereford well in Brownwood."

Jill Robinson, Barbara Banner, Melinda Salazar, April Roddy and Stacy Sander are entered in the state meet's 9-year-old and under division. Robinson, Banner, Salazar and Roddy are teamed in the 400-meter relay. Sander is high jumping at the state meet.

In addition, Robinson and Banner are to throw the shot.

Shantel Cornelius is entered in shotput for 10 and 11-year-old, as is Johnny Cornelius for 12 and 13 year-olds. Zack Farr, Christopher Tardy, Steven Banner and Scott Robinson qualified as a 400-meter relay team in the 12- and 13-year-old division.

Daphne Roddy is a state meet competitor in the 100 meters for the 12- and 13-year-olds.

Another 400-meter relay team has qualified in the 14- and 15-year-old division. Members are Kathy Banner, Lynn Hanyen, Manisay Sisamouth and Lisa Garza. Also in the 14- and 15-year-old division, Carolyn Rieves will compete in the 1,500-meter run.

Bernice Thomas and Jimmy Hazzard are state competitors in the 16-, 17- and 18-year-old division. Thomas is putting the shot and throwing the discus, and Hazzard is running the 200.

"You had to place either first or second in the individual events (at the Lubbock meet) to qualify for state," Duvall said. "The relay teams qualified only if they were first."

Only 24 of 52 people in the Hereford Track Club went to the qualifying meet in Lubbock. The better than 83 percent successful mark pleased Duvall.

"I'm so proud of the kids," she said. "If we had taken more, I think we would have qualified at least seven more. But of a lot of the kids had conflicts."

"That's something that's going to happen, and it's one of the great things about summer track—you can miss a meet and you're not kicked off the team."

In summer track programs, each person may participate in each track meet, regardless of his abilities, Duvall said. Some restrictions are placed on the number of events each person may enter, however, depending on the particular track meet, she added.

"Every track meet we went to this year, and there were four (Hereford, Amarillo, Borger and Lubbock), was sanctioned differently and had different events," Duvall said. "That gave the kids a little variety in their running, but in order to get better the kids need repetition."

Duvall said different trackmeets would consist of, for example, 1,500-meter runs, 200-meter walks and 2,000-meter walks.

"It was hard to practice for the same events, knowing there were different events at different meets," she said.

The Hereford Track Club began practice for the season June 1. Duvall said practices originally were every Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, but the participants desire to become better necessitated a change in the schedule.

"We started practicing every morning, Monday through Friday," she said. "When kids, Inc. wrapped up their season (last week), we started working out at nights."

Duvall said tracksters are charged $6 for summer participation, with the Track Club and donations from people and businesses picking up the extra costs.

COMBEST COMMENTS

By Larry Combest

Keeping in Touch with the 19th District

It was hot and sunny last August 30th, when my wife, Sharon, and I made our trip across the 19th Congressional District. We began at dawn and it was late that night when we got back home.

Our congressional district covers a large part of West Texas. There are fifteen counties: Ector, Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Yoakum, Dawson, Terry, Gaines, and Andrews counties.

The people of the 19th District have much in common. We share a growing concern for the future of our family, our community and our country. And we share one voice and one vote in the United States Congress.

I'd visited people across the district many times, but my trip last August was different. This time I was announcing my candidacy for the office of Congress. This time I was asking for the opportunity to represent you in Washington.

As I made my announcement at each county courthouse, I made a promise to stay in touch with you, the people of the 19th district. That's why I chose to announce my candidacy in every county in our district. That's why I'm writing this column.

Since I began my campaign last year, I've met and talked with thousands of people. But it's impossible to talk with each of the more than 200,000 voters in the 19th district personally.

Television and radio ads aren't necessarily bad. However the best they can do in thirty seconds is give a brief summary.

So, I've decided to use this newspaper space to discuss the problems facing our district and our country and to tell you what I, as your representative, would do to help solve them.

The Founding Fathers were very clear what they wanted the House of Representatives to be. They made it much larger than the Senate so each representative could spend more time with his constituents. And they made house members face the voters every other year so they would be more responsible to the people. From the beginning the House was intended to be the branch of government that most represented the will of the people.

The office of Congress belongs to you, the people of the 19th district. Let me know how you feel on the issues discussed in these columns. If you agree or disagree with my position, let me know. You can write me at 1606 Avenue X, Lubbock, 79401, or call me at (806) 762-1984. If your club or association is planning a meeting and would like to discuss your concerns, please let me know.

Last August I asked a farmer what his Representative could do that would help him the most. He smiled and said, "Could you get us a little more rain?" I told him my dad always said not to make promises you can't keep. So, I will make you this promise: I'll work hard to serve the people of West Texas and I'll always keep in touch with the 19th District.

I thank all the people who worked so hard with me in the primary election campaign. I'll never forget your kind words, your encouragement, and your support.

Larry Combest is a fourth generation West Texan. He has worked as a farmer, teacher, for the A.S.C.S. and for Senator John Tower as legislative assistant for agricultural policy and constituent services. He is a candidate for U. S. Congress, 19th District.

Cubs take over first place in National League East race

By JONATHAN VITTI Associated Press Writer

The Chicago Cubs have worked hard and fought long for first place in the National League East.

They took over by winning seven of 10 games against their two division rivals, the New York Mets and the Philadelphia Phillies.

Padres 4, Dodgers 3
Kevin McReynolds went 4-for-4 and drove in three runs, including two on a solo homer and a tie-breaking eighth-inning dour.

Alejandro Pena, 11-6, got two outs in the eighth before Carmelo Martinez singled. McReynolds then lined Pena's first pitch to the center-field fence to score Martinez.

Pirates 4, Expos 0
Larry McWilliams pitched a six-hitter and Lee Lacy's two-run homer capped a four-run Pittsburgh sixth inning. McWilliams, 6-8, tossed his second shutout of the season.
Lee Mazzilli led off the sixth with a triple down the left field line, but was thrown out at the plate on Jason Thompson's grounder. Tony Pena's double scored Thompson, and Johnny Ray followed with an RBI single. Lacy then stroked his eighth homer of the season.

Cardinals 11, Mets 2
Joaquin Andujar won his major league-leading 15th game and St. Louis pounded out 17 hits against Dwight Gooden, 9-7, and two relievers as the Cardinals won their sixth in a row. The Mets dropped their sixth straight.

"I was surprised to see us get 17 hits," Andujar said. "I expected a four- or five-hitter — because he (Gooden) is tough."

Braves 6, Astros 5
Dale Murphy's league-leading 26th home run, a two-run shot in the eighth inning, gave Atlanta a comeback victory. Phil Garner's RBI single and a two-run pinch-single by Jim Pankovits gave Houston a 5-4 lead in the bottom of the seventh.

Rafael Ramirez led off the eighth with a single and Murphy followed with his drive off reliever Julio Salano, 0-1.

Reds 6, Giants 3
Gary Redus drove in three runs with a homer and a seventh-inning single while Joe Price hurled a four-hitter to send the visitors to their fourth straight defeat.
Redus highlighted the three-run seventh inning with his RBI single.

United States Olympians continue to pull in medals

By TIMOTHY HARPER Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Americans continued to pile up precious medals as authorities reassured Southern California of the eventual return of the familiar heavy traffic, smog and tourist dollars so strangely absent during the 1984 Summer Olympics.

The United States won gold medals in cycling and wrestling Wednesday. The women's gymnastics team won the silver in a strong showing, and the U.S. pentathlon team also earned a silver. Going into today's finals in swimming, shooting, weightlifting, fencing and men's gymnastics, the United States had 18 gold medals and 29 overall.

Jim Birakos, deputy director of the Air Quality Management District here, said the Los Angeles economy is paying for the unusually clear air and light traffic. He said many companies have cut back operations 50 percent to ease industrial and highway pollution during the fortnight of the Games.

However, Birakos said, planners are carefully watching the temporary trends for clues to whether people are willing to give up their cars to improve air quality. "We'd always assumed people were married to their cars," he said. "As we move toward tougher standards, we're going to have to look more and more at such options."

Traffic was still down slightly from normal levels Wednesday, but authorities said it was sure to increase Friday. "Black Friday," they're calling it, because it marks the beginning of the track and field events that will bring up to 90,000 fans to each of two daily sessions at the downtown Los Angeles Coliseum.

The Los Angeles visitors bureau said there were nearly 7,000 vacant hotel rooms in the city this week. Business was off as much as 25 percent in some shops and restaurants, largely because travelers who would normally be in town for business or pleasure stayed away during the Olympics.

At the Games, some spectators said the United States' mounting medal total was an embarrassment of riches. "I kind of feel sorry for the little countries," Buz Smith of Pasadena said. "I'd like to see some underdogs win."

Others said the more American victories, the better. "All the flags and flowers are so colorful," exulted Debbie Hoyt of Fayetteville, N.C. "Winning the gold — it's hard not to be patriotic. It's fun."

Trap shoot set for Saturday

A warm-up trap shoot for the state 4-H trap shooting contest has been set for Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Hereford Gun Club on east Highway 60.

Approximately 25 boys and girls, ages 10-19, are expected to compete. The event should draw contestants from several surrounding counties, Jim Lassiter of the Hereford Gun Club said.

"We should have four or five people from Hereford qualify for the state meet in San Antonio this year," Lassiter said.

Classes will be sub-junior, junior and senior at the Saturday shoot.

Softball tourney announced

The Littlefield Women's Softball Association is sponsoring a women's slowpitch tournament Aug. 10-12.

Fee is $75 per team and must be paid by 5 p.m. Aug. 8. Fifteen players will be allowed on a team.

Trophies are to go to the top three teams and individuals of the first-place team. LWSA requests teams to furnish two Blue Dot softballs for each game.

American Softball Association umpires will call the contest.

Q. This is more curiosity than problem right now. I've noticed, occasionally, cars spewing clouds of smoke of various colors - white, gray, black, etc., and wonder what problems are connected with each.
A. It's a good idea to check your exhaust smoke occasionally. It can warn you in advance of trouble. White smoke on a cool morning is perfectly normal. However, billowing clouds of white exhaust smoke when the temperature isn't cold is a sign of water in the engine, possibly due to a faulty head gasket, warped cylinder head or cracked block. Blue-black smoke could be a sign of worn piston rings allowing excess oil into the combustion chambers. Black or gray smoke after the car is warmed up is not as serious, but shouldn't be ignored, either. It usually indicates improper air-fuel mixture in the carburetor, and may call for anything from a simple adjustment to a rebuilding.

Traces missing persons

Shulman inspires ABC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's a case of life imitating art and art imitating life: an old radio show, "Mr. Keen, Tracer of Lost Persons," inspires Lloyd Shulman to become a missing persons investigator and he in turn inspires an upcoming ABC series, "Finder of Lost Loves."

Shulman, 55, has spent 24 years tracking lost persons — most specifically, lost loved ones. He reunites mothers and sons or brothers and sisters who haven't seen each other for decades. He estimates he's found more than 85,000 persons.

"I look for clients with an emotional need to get in touch with somebody," he said in a telephone interview. "A lot of people don't know where their mother or brother or daughter is. I solve so many of these problems and every time I do I get a tremendous personal feeling."

Shulman said he began by tracing missing persons for banks and insurance companies but found it too impersonal.

Shulman was the inspiration for "Finder of Lost Loves," according to Sal Iannucci of Aaron Spelling Productions. But, he said, the detective played by Tony Franciosa is not directly based on Shulman.

He said loved ones usually become lost because of divorce and broken families or because someone leaves home after an argument.

Shulman said he traced people with the help of 10 staffers. He also has numerous contacts around the country.

A simple case that's quickly solved costs about $500, he said. Tougher cases can run to $2,000, but the average is less than $1,000. Shulman said clients pay 10 percent of the estimated cost in advance and nothing more until the person is found.

"If I don't find him," he said, "they don't pay."

Shulman added: "If everyone knows where everyone they care about is, that's a good feeling."

The deer family includes about 60 species, ranging in size from the huge Alaska moose down to the Chilean pudu, which is almost as small as a rabbit.

Young Royalty

Jeremy Brock, age 6, and his sister, Michelle, 8, were named king and queen at the conclusion of the county library's summer reading program, "Magical Mysteries" Tuesday morning. The honor was bestowed on the pair because they read the most books during the summer; Jeremy read 138 and Michelle read 179. Over 800 children were enrolled in the summer program, and over 400 finished, reading at least 20 books, according to Library Director Dianne Pearson.

Ann Landers

Hurried motorists

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I borrow your column to speak to a certain someone we all know? He is the motorist who cuts us off on the freeway when we try to enter from a ramp; the one who tailgates, then passes, giving us the finger because we weren't going fast enough to suit him. The one who sticks his head out the window, shouting obscenities, as we pass him going in the opposite direction because we prevented him from making a left turn. The one who thinks the world should give him the right-of-way because he is in a hurry.

you probably won't make it there on time, anyway.—Burbank Motorist

DEAR BURBANK: The cheers you hear are from motorists all over the continent who have experienced the same frustrations and irritations. Thanks for a honking good letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a second marriage for us both. My husband and I enjoy each other's company immensely. For years we have been anticipating the day when our children would be on their own and we would have the house to ourselves. So now my mother has moved in with us.

She is a wonderful person and we get along fine, but her presence inhibits communication between my husband and me. Our sex life has diminished to almost nothing.

The woman is in good health, has many friends, drives her own car and money is no problem. I honestly believe she would be happier if she had her own place. Now that Dad is gone she could do all the things she always wanted to do—from staying up late at night with her pals to sleeping all day.

I don't want to sound like an unloving daughter but I'd give anything to be alone with my husband. Please tell me how to handle this gracefully. The last thing I want to do is hurt my mother's feelings.—Nameless

DEAR NAMELESS: There is no easy, painless way to get Mom out, but since she can well afford a place of her own, I hope you are equal to the challenge.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It took me eight months to write this letter, but here I am.

In a column last fall you made a plea to runaway kids to call their parents. I had been running for 14 months and decided to take your advice. I trusted you when you said, "They will be thrilled to hear your voice. Call collect."

Well—I did and you were right. My life is so much better now I can't believe it. I owe you a lot.—Back in The Real World(Texas)

DEAR BACK: Your letter made my day. Thanks for letting me know.

Gina Griffin to compete Saturday

Gina Griffin, who has served as Miss Hereford this year, is scheduled to participate in the Miss Wheatheart of the Nation pageant in Perryton Saturday evening.

Rehearsals begin Friday, according to Chamber of Commerce sponsor Janis Kelley, who will accompany Miss Griffin to Perryton. Contestants are scheduled to ride in a parade and attend a barbecue on Saturday. A Little Miss pageant is to be held along with the Miss Wheatheart pageant Saturday evening.

For the talent portion of the pageant, Miss Griffin is planning to perform a vocal number accompanied by Linda Gilbert. The current Miss Texas will serve as emcee at Saturday night's event. The winner of the Miss Wheatheart pageant will be eligible to compete in the next Miss Texas pageant.

Lisa Snyder, who preceded Miss Griffin as Miss Hereford, was named first runner-up in last year's Miss Wheatheart pageant.

McPherson, ex-Deaf Smith sheriff, initiated practice

Police hypnosis . . is it legal?

By LAURA HONEYCUTT Tyler Morning Telegraph TYLER, Texas (AP) — She was raped. She witnessed the rape of her mother and 8-year-old sister. She saw her mother and younger sister stabbed to death by the attacker. Although she escaped, fear and horror compelled her to forget the man who had committed those acts. Subconsciously, she repressed all memories of him. She was brought into a law enforcement agency, induced into a hypnotic state and gave investigators a detailed description of the rapist and his car. Later, officers found a man who fit the description and charged him with rape and murder. This girl's testimony, to be used in a rape-murder trial, probably will determine legal guidelines for hypnosis under testimony in Texas trial courts. Hypnosis, although it has been used since the time of the Greeks and Romans, is gaining wider recognition as an investigative tool — a way to bring witnesses' memories into sharper focus or recall forgotten numbers and facts. Lt. Jim Casper of the criminal investigation division of the Smith County Sheriff's Department, returned recently from a school sponsored by Texas A&M on forensic and investigative hypnosis.

The videotape could be played for jurors, who would actually see the witness living the moment again. "They (defense attorneys) don't want the jury to hear the testimony of a rape victim (under hypnosis) because she's going through it," Casper adds. "It becomes a reality." Under hypnosis, the subject recalls the incident just as it happened and remembers it clearly after he or she becomes fully conscious. Investigators also learned how to remove the fear or danger to a subject, and they can end the session if it's too painful.

Lions Club Contributions

The Hereford Lions Club made three contributions during the weekly meeting Wednesday at the Community Center. President B.J. Gilliland presented checks to the Boy Scouts, with Gary Billingsley accepting, and to Big Brothers-Big Sisters and the Lions Crippled Childrens Camp. The local donations were made from a weekly fund-raiser, and the club voted to give $10 per member to the camp. Director Raymond White accepted the latter check.

"I see hypnosis as playing an even greater part in the investigative process," Casper explains. "Hypnosis is only a tool. It can't take the place of a good investigation." Teachers at the 50-hour school included Travis D. McPherson, who is considered the "father of investigative hypnosis in Texas," Casper says.

Other instructors included Dr. Walter Stening, chief psychologist for law enforcement at Texas A&M; detective Lt. Jerry Smith of the Odessa Police Department; and Bill McKoy, who holds degrees in criminal justice, human relations and curriculum development. Texas law does not provide specific guidelines for hypnosis during trial and testimony, but officials expect a case of first impression to be set soon — possibly in this pending rape-murder case.

Some states forbid admitting any testimony stemming from hypnosis, while others have set guidelines on how it may be used in an investigation. "One of the biggest arguments against hypnosis is that it doesn't allow cross-examination," Casper says.

If a precedent is set soon, officials expect the guidelines in Texas to include videotaping and recording the hypnosis session, requiring the hypnotist not to have any prior knowledge of the case and assuring he does not lead the witness during the questioning. In other words, the investigator may ask for a description of the suspect, but he does not suggest a height or hair color, Casper explains. The videotape could be played for jurors, who would actually see the witness living the moment again.

"Witnesses may have repressed memories. They can give information that may be vital such as a license number. They can freeze that moment. They may have just glanced at something, but it's in the subconscious." Casper became interested in hypnosis while he was an investigator with a Harris County police department. He saw a subject was hypnotized to remember a license plate number.

Since then, he has read books, taken courses, hypnotized subjects and then hypnotized himself. Casper helped one Smith County detective find an expensive watch which was lost, and he helped another remember where he had seen a license plate.

Bullock gives up Governor goal

By JACK KEEVER Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock had a simple campaign strategy mapped out for the governor's race: "After the first of the year, I'll just get in my car and leave."

Bullock seemed so sure of himself during the recent special legislative session that he sketched what he would — and would not do — as governor. He said he expected Gov. Mark White to run for reelection, but predicted he would win. Bullock said he was twice as good an administrator as White, or anyone else in statewide elected office.

A race against Bullock would tax nerves and resources, and when one major White supporter was asked how White would run against the indomitable comptroller, he responded, "The governor would run scared."

On Monday, however, in a one-page statement, Bullock said he was quitting the governor's race because Texans just didn't want him. The dream had died, his lifetime quest for governor was over. "I found that there just wasn't any demand for my services, frankly," Bullock, 55, told a reporter.

He also spoke about the cost of a campaign, as high as $10 million, and said it also would be expensive just to hold office. It seemed a quiet way to bow out for a man who 10 years ago used a credit card and long solo miles on the road to win his first race for comptroller, and has since exerted more power in that office than anyone else.

In an interview in his office last month, Bullock was reminded of his vow in January 1983 to make White a one-term governor, and he was asked if he was still "dead certain" that he would run in 1986.

"I don't know — I wouldn't necessarily, that's what I want to do," Bullock said.

Now You're Cookin'

By LINDA CAUDLE
Lifestyles Editor

Although it has been seven years since Kathryn Chapman and her husband, Jack, returned to the United States from a two year mission term with the Mennonite Brethren Church, the memories of a difficult but very fulfilling experience are still vivid.

"It was the most blessed time of our lives, but also the hardest because of all the changes. We were constantly changing from modern city to a very primitive lifestyle," remembered Kathryn.

The couple spent the major portion of their mission term in Panama at the request of the Choco Indians, whom Jack assisted as agricultural advisor. They had an apartment in Panama City and traveled into the jungle by small airplane for two weeks at a time, carrying their beds, mosquito netting, clothing and food for the entire two weeks. The Chapmans often traveled in dugout canoes to reach isolated areas.

As they were only able to take 25 pounds each, which included the beds and all other items, normally simple tasks such as meal planning became challenges for Kathryn. Since there was no refrigeration, only foods that would not spoil could be taken. Food preparation techniques were also quite different under these conditions.

Following their service in Panama, the Chapmans took over the operation of a rescue mission in Flagstaff, Ariz., for a brief period before coming to Hereford.

Jack is presently an agronomist with Center Plains of Amarillo. He was a field man for a fertilizer company in Yuma, Ariz., where they had resided for 18 years prior to their mission service, and before that he was a county agent in Illinois, where both he and his wife are from originally.

The Chapmans have four children and two grandchildren. Their three daughters are all married and live in Milwaukee, Wis., Flagstaff, Ariz., and Sacramento, Calif. Their son, who is to be married soon, resides in Happy.

The couple enjoy traveling, especially visiting their children. They also had a chance to visit several different places while preparing for their overseas service. They became interested in missions while studying at Faith City Bible School in Amarillo, and after being accepted by the mission board, they were sent to Fresno, Calif., for seminary, and then to a world convention in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, followed by cross-culture training in Guadalajara, Mexico, and language school in Antigua, Guatemala.

Kathryn has taught several local prayer groups and Bible studies since she and her husband have been here, and it was through these experiences that her current project was launched. She is writing a book which takes key events, people and scriptures from the Bible and puts them in chronological order for ease of understanding.

"I see the Bible as a continuing story of God's grace. Many people have no idea of how the Bible is tied together and how specific events fit into the total picture — they only see separate, isolated incidents," noted Kathryn.

She is excited about this new endeavor, which began as a simple time line to aid those she was teaching. Prior to this time she had only written for her own study and to assist participants in her Bible studies.

She is currently devoting most of her time to completing the book. "My goal is to finish writing by the end of the summer," she commented.

Kathryn also enjoys sewing and family activities. Her husband likes to play golf.

After putting so much effort into meal preparation and planning in Panama, Kathryn said she prefers simple recipes so that she can spend less time in the kitchen. She likes casseroles, and suggests using Monterrey Jack cheese in the Minneapolis hot dish which follows. The brownie pudding is a good dessert to make when in a hurry. "If you like you can mix and bake in the same casserole," remarked Kathryn.

HEREFORD, TEXAS

Of its reputation

Lean-mean battalion proud

LA PORTONA, El Salvador (AP) — Three years after American Green Berets formed the first guerrilla warfare unit in the Salvadoran army, the soldiers of the Atlacatl Battalion proudly guard their reputation as the army's toughest fighters.

The Atlacatls are known as unruly, sometimes brutal, soldiers, but U.S. military advisers call them the best fighting unit in Central America. And even guerrilla commanders say that when the Atlacatl Battalion arrives, the guerrillas usually run.

The 1,200-man battalion was created in March 1981, the first of five so-called Immediate Reaction Battalions formed by U.S. trainers. Before the formation of the Atlacatl, the Salvadoran army had not been trained for guerrilla warfare.

The Atlacatl, christened after a 16th-century Salvadoran Indian leader of the ill-fated defense against the Spanish conquest, quickly developed a reputation as an effective unit.

It's lean-and-mean label was linked at first to the unorthodox attitude of its original commander, Lt. Col. Domingo Monterrosa, a soldier's colonel. Unlike most Salvadoran commanders, Monterrosa spent nights with his soldiers in the field, fought on the front lines, was friendly to foreign reporters and adapted quickly to U.S.-taught tactics.

The alleged use of marijuana, and a devil-may-care attitude about such matters as hair length and hierarchy added to the unit's freewheeling reputation.

But after scores of bush-beating patrols, thousands of miles of walking and hundreds of casualties, the unit maintains high morale, as evidenced in a recent three-day visit with the Atlacatl on patrol in the central province of San Vicente.

"We're the best," said Jose Enrique Rivera with a grin. The 18-year-old corporal, who has been with the battalion for two years, cursed for emphasis. He then trudged across the Acalhuapa River, 40 miles east of the Salvadoran capital, near the village of La Portona.

Local legend says that bathing in the river causes men to turn homosexual, and the battalion's executive officer, Maj. Ricardo Murcia, ordered a soldier to carry him across, though he denied believing the story.

Rivera said enlisted men used marijuana freely at one time, but he claimed the problem had been eliminated. One soldier, however, later asked reporters if they had any "monte," roughly translated as "weed."

The first state to allow 18 year olds to vote was Georgia.

"I was surprised how quick the variety was ready to graze."

"In fact, some of my neighbors tried to rent my pasture when they saw how much better established it was than others all around us."

Pioneer® variety 2157 gets off to a fast start, quickly establishing the kind of healthy, vigorous growing stand so necessary for good pasture. Its upright growth habit helps provide maximum available grazing.

And because 2157 has proven to be such a good yielder, you can count on it to deliver top-quality wheat at season's end. If pasture is part of your wheat program, new 2157 should be, too.

New Wheat Variety 2157

Superior Yield • Excellent Standability • Outstanding Grazing

"When I pulled my combine into the field, I knew for sure this wasn't an ordinary wheat crop."

"That 2157 was standing out there good and straight. And when I moved down the rows, I could hear the cylinders running full."

Farmers who've seen this impressive new high yielding variety like its standability and tolerance to dry growing periods and severe weather. It has excellent resistance to leaf rust, fungal leaf blights, soil borne mosaic virus and the Hessian fly.

In side-by-side comparisons, Pioneer® brand 2157 wheat has consistently out-yielded other popular varieties. And it has shown consistently high test weights.
