Clinton picks Gore for running mate

Democrat ticket will feature an all-South flavor

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - Bill Clinton offered the Democratic vice presidential nomination to Sen. Albert Gore Jr. early today and the Tennessee senator accepted, a senior Clinton aide said. Clinton settled on Gore as his running mate during a late night session with aides at the governor's mansion in Little Rock, said a source close to the process. Clinton's choice of the Tennessee senator gives the Democrats an all-Southern, youthful ticket in the three-way race against President Bush and independent Ross Perot. The announcement will end a weeks-long hunt that put a bevy of the party's rising stars on Clinton's short list. Gore, 44, is known in the Senate for his work on the environment and arms control. An unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1988, Gore opted against making another run this year. He said he wanted to spend more time with his family. Among those present in Little Rock this morning was Warren Christopher, the head of Clinton's search committee, who met earlier Wednesday with Gore in Tennessee to make sure he would accept the offer, according to two sources familiar with the process who spoke on condition of anonymity. Clinton then placed a phone call to Tennessee, and Gore accepted the vice presidential slot, said the senior Clinton source. Besides Gore, Clinton's short list of potential vice presidential candidates had included Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, Bob Graham of Florida, Harris Wofford of Pennsylvania and Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia, as well as Indiana Rep. Lee Hamilton. Gore gives the ticket a generational appeal, senior advisers said, and should help in Southern and border states that traditionally are Republican strongholds but that they believe will be competitive because of the likely independent Perot candidacy.

One senior Clinton aide said that the Arkansas governor was impressed - and a bit surprised - at the immediate rapport he felt with Gore during their first meeting, held weeks ago. "I don't think he thought this one would feel right, but he kept going back to Gore, saying, 'He's so smart. I feel so comfortable talking to him,'" the aide said. Clinton's advisers were initially concerned about picking Gore because it was "breaking the mold, age-wise, region wise," the aide said. But in the end, Clinton decided to forego those worries because he wanted "someone he felt he could have as a partner, to campaign with, to work with," the aide said.

Gore was elected to the House in 1976 and to the Senate in 1984, following the political path of his father. In the last few years, Gore has staked out a position as a leading Democrat on the environment. Author of a recent book on global warming called "Earth in the Balance," Gore led the critic's charge against President Bush at the Earth Summit. He also broke with the party leadership in January 1991 and voted to authorize the use of military force against Saddam Hussein of Iraq. Gore's wife, Tipper, successfully campaigned to get record companies to label off-color lyrics of some hard rock songs, which she deemed too sexy for some young ears. The couple has four children.

Some pesticides banned from all processed foods

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - In a victory for environmentalists, a federal appeals court has banned cancer-causing pesticides in processed foods. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals did not order any products removed from grocery shelves or say that any currently sold products are unsafe. But Wednesday's 3-0 ruling could affect thousands of processed foods - such as ketchup, jellies and grain mixes - and encourage farmers to use safer means of pest control, said Albert Meyerhoff, a lawyer for the Natural Resources Defense Council. The court ordered the Environmental Protection Agency to enforce a 1958 federal law, the Delaney Clause, which forbids cancer-causing substances in processed foods at levels that exceed concentrations in raw foods. "The language is clear and mandatory," Judge Mary Schroeder wrote. "The Delaney clause provides that no additive shall be deemed safe if it induces cancer. Congress intended to ban all carcinogenic food additives, regardless of amount or significance of risk." The EPA had argued that the Delaney Clause did not apply to pesticides. The agency in 1988 issued a list of 67 known cancer-causing pesticides but said farmers could continue to use them because the risk of cancer was minimal. The Natural Resources Defense Council and the AFL-CIO challenged the agency, saying the Delaney Clause applied to pesticides that posed any risk of cancer. Environmentalists, consumer groups and unions have argued for years that pesticides are poisoning the environment and threatening people's health. The ruling Wednesday applied to four pesticides but could restrict use of all 67 pesticides on thousands of foods. The four pesticides are benomyl, found in raisins and tomato products; mancozeb, in raisins and in bran or flour of barley, oats, rye and wheat; phosmet, in cottonseed oil; and trifluralin, in peppermint and spearmint oils. EPA spokesman Luke Hester said Wednesday that the agency had not yet seen the ruling and had no comment. Attorneys for the processed food industry denounced the ruling. "It imposes a zero tolerance of carcinogens on food that is unrealistic," said Peter Barton Hutt, a lawyer for the Grocery Manufacturers of America Inc. "You can't find any food that doesn't have natural carcinogens. (The ruling) allows natural carcinogens at an unsafe level but not man-added carcinogens at a safe level." Jay J. Vroom, president of the the Natural Agricultural Chemical Association, whose members make and distribute pesticides, said in a statement that pesticides "are among the most rigorously tested products today," subjected to at least 120 tests before approval. The decision drew praise from Stephen Berzon, a lawyer for the AFL-CIO. "This is a critically important case," he said. "What this case is really about is whether pesticides can continue to be used on the market in their present form."

Even hot for zebras

The zebras at Merrick Petfoods-Hereford Bi-Products stayed in the shade most of this week at temperatures were around 100. The highs should be "only" in the 90s the rest of the week, and there's a chance the zebras will get rained on tonight through Sunday.

3 sentences handed down in district court

A prison term was assessed a defendant in 222nd District Court Wednesday and two other persons entered guilty pleas to charges, receiving probated sentences from Judge David Wesley Gulley. The term in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division was given Juan Pablo Florentino, 21, on revocation of probation on a 1989 drug conviction. He will serve a seven-year sentence for possession of a controlled substance, cocaine. On a plea of guilty to felony driving while intoxicated, Alejandro Alviar, 22, was sentenced to a five-year probated term. He also was fined $1,500. Charged with tampering with government records, Diana Castillo Moreno, 28, entered a guilty plea and received a 10-year probated sentence in TDCJ-ID. She also will be required to make restitution of $12,000.

Torture alleged in Yugoslavia

LONDON (AP) - Civilians are being tortured and massacred by all the warring factions in the former republic of Yugoslavia, Amnesty International said in its annual report today. Military forces in many countries were committing abduction, torture and murder with impunity, breeding contempt for human rights, the organization said in a report covering 142 nations. Iraq, Burma and China were scenes of some of the worst brutality last year, and government troops were responsible for disappearances and deaths in Sri Lanka and Peru, it said. The London-based group also deplored the use of the death penalty in the United States, and said U.S. soldiers jailed for refusing to take part in the Gulf War were prisoners of conscience. The report covered 1991 and supplements updated it through this May. In Yugoslavia, the fighting led to large-scale human rights violations "including torture and massacres of civilians by all sides in the conflict," the London-based human rights group said. In Croatia last year, Yugoslav federal army forces, Croatian government forces, and Croatian and Serbian paramilitaries all massacred civilians, it said. It said it was seeking details on reports of arbitrary killings in the former Yugoslav republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina, where the conflict between ethnic Serbs and Muslim and Croat forces continues. Elsewhere, it said that since the end of the Gulf War in March 1991, Iraqi government troops have killed thousands of Kurds and Shiites.

Military rulers have turned Burma into a "secret state of terror" in their crackdown on opponents and in China widespread violations have continued after the suppression of pro-democracy protests in 1989, it said. It said millions of Chinese were believed held without charge in 1991, hundreds of prisoners of conscience were held and thousands of people were executed. In Sri Lanka, it said government troops have caused the disappearances or deaths of several thousand civilians since the war against Tamil separatists resumed in 1990. But it said virtually none of those responsible have been brought to justice. It said evidence in South Africa links hit squads responsible for political killings with covert police and military operations. It said investigations of abuses by Israeli forces since the Palestinian uprising started in 1986 are often inadequate and rarely result in prosecution. The Israeli Embassy in London countered in a statement: "Amnesty bases most of its claims of torture and ill-treatment solely on information gathered from persons who have an interest in condemning and undermining the Israeli authorities. Obviously, the credibility of such sources is questionable." "As long as the agents of repression believe they can kidnap, torture and murder without fear of discovery or punishment, the cycle of violence will never be broken," the report said. But it said that in El Salvador the pattern of security force immunity was broken last year when a colonel was convicted for the 1989 murder of six priests and two university staff.

Poll seeks response to television violence

How do you feel about violent television programming? You can let us know in this week's Hereford Brand poll. This week's national issue: "Do you feel violent television programming is contributing to violence in our homes and streets?" All you have to do is answer yes or no by calling 1-900-407-8550, extension 13. Each call to that number is 99 cents. You will be charged on your telephone bill. Persons under 18 must have parental permission before calling. The results of the national poll will be forwarded to the three major networks. We still want to know, for our local topic, if you think the City of Hereford should establish a curfew for persons under 18 to be off the streets. If you would like to vote on that topic, call 1-900-407-9550, extension 13. Just follow the instructions. In the recent national poll on the Rodney King case, 34 percent of the respondents said they felt the federal government was justified in pursuing further civil rights charges against one of the policemen. In the latest local poll on whether doctors and medical professionals should be forced to post their prices, callers were split 50-50.

Bill could make college cost easier

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is sending President Bush a higher-education bill aimed at making it easier for students and middle-income families to pay for college. The House voted 419-7 on Wednesday to approve a compromise worked out earlier with the White House and congressional conferees. The Senate approved the compromise last week, and Bush is expected to sign it.

The bill extends the life of federal higher education programs and authorizes spending of $115 billion over five years. "The bill opens up federal student aid programs to students from middle-income working families," said Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont. To make subsidized loans available to more students from such families, the bill would drop a family's equity in their home or farm and college savings accounts from the calculation of assets now used to determine student aid eligibility. Income ceilings also would be raised for students seeking Pell Grants of up to $2,400 a year. Students from families of four with an annual income of up to $42,000 a year could now qualify for the grants. The present family income cutoff is $30,000. The bill would require all lenders of federally guaranteed student loans to offer borrowers either graduated or income-sensitive repayment options. Among other changes, the bill establishes a new unsubsidized loan program for students and families who now don't qualify because their incomes are too high. The compromise that permitted passage involved establishment of a "direct loan" pilot program at 200 to 250 schools that eliminates banks and other intermediaries.

Assistant ag agent employed

A new assistant agricultural agent will begin work Monday in the Deaf Smith County Extension office.

The new agent is a candidate for a master's degree in December. He earned his bachelor's degree in animal science in December 1990.

Johnson has worked extensively in feedyard operations and completed an internship with Continental Grain in Colorado.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Johnson of Happy.

Textbooks sent to schools still have errors, says TEA

AUSTIN (AP) - Some textbooks shipped to Texas schools still contain errors despite publishers' affidavits that corrections were made, according to state education officials.

"Clearly, I think some drastic and substantial action needs to be taken," Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno said Wednesday.

A total of 161 mistakes were listed in more than two dozen books covering a variety of subjects. They include some of the history textbooks that drew widespread attention after thousands of mistakes were found in sample books.

More than half the errors were listed for teacher editions, rather than student editions. One publisher said at least for his books, the same mistake was listed separately for both editions.

"There are at least an equal number (of textbooks) that were provided to the schools error-free," Meno said. "It demonstrates that publishers can deliver an error-free book, because some of them did. What is of great concern is that there are a number that still have yet to be able to do that."

A list of mistakes was not immediately available, but Texas Education Agency staff said they included some factual mistakes along with grammatical or punctuation errors.

Publishers were told they must correct identified errors when the books were adopted for use in Texas schools by the State Board of Education.

Education Board members on a special textbooks committee Wednesday asked Meno to bring the board recommendations for publisher penalties, and for correction sheets that could be sent out for the books.

They also said they wanted to look at the specific errors in the books, which besides history included pre-algebra, physics, English, geometry, business and office skills. There were 26 textbooks, and one learning system, which includes other educational materials besides books.

"It may be it's just impossible to be perfect," said Joe Bill Watkins, a lawyer representing the Association of American Publishers.

But he said publishers "have spent tremendous amounts of money trying to be perfect." He also said he had heard that some of the items listed as errors were simply changes publishers had planned to make but did not.

David Anderson, regional manager for Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc., said errors cited in his company's two history books were only such items as "an apostrophe in the wrong place, or a duplicated date on a timeline."

He emphasized that there were no factual errors in the two books' student editions. Anderson also said errors that appeared in the student editions were duplicated in the teacher editions, and so would be counted twice.

Anderson said he believed that publishing officials who signed affidavits saying corrections had been made did so "in good faith."

Some board members expressed frustration.

"We promised the people of Texas there would be error-free books. Now we're saying there are going to be some errors," said board member Geraldine Miller of Dallas.

TEA general counsel Kevin O'Hanlon said the board's options would include canceling the books. But Board Chairwoman Carolyn Crawford of Beaumont said, "I think there will be a great difficulty out in our schools if we open school and there are not textbooks there."

Ms. Crawford said she believed the textbooks are "essentially error-free."

Board member Bob Aikin of Commerce said, "I don't know how strong the message has got to be" to publishers. But he said he also wanted to look at the list of errors: "You may not want to make a capital offense for a misplaced capital letter," he said.

Student scores show mixed bag

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas students in their early grades rank above average in a national comparison, but fall behind in later grades, according to a new test.

Test results released Wednesday showed that Texas students in grades three, four, five, six and 10 performed above the national average, while students in grades seven, eight, nine, and 11 ranked slightly below the national average.

"These results seem to indicate that the investment at the elementary grades is resulting in student achievement and scores that are above the national average," Education Commissioner Lionel Meno said.

Meno cited elementary education reforms, such as the 22-to-1 pupil-teacher ratio, and prekindergarten programs, as helping boost performance in the early grades.

The test - called the Norm-Referenced Assessment Program for Texas - was given for the first time in April to 1.9 million public school students. The test compares the achievement of Texas students with that of students across the nation.

The highest ranking Texas grade was the third-grade, which scored at the 61st percentile, which means those students scored better than 61 percent of other students in the national sampling.

Fifth-graders scored at the 59th percentile; fourth-graders, 55th; sixth-graders and 10th graders, 53rd.

Meanwhile, eighth- and ninth-graders scored at the 49th percentile; 11th graders, 48th; and seventh-graders, 47th.

Texas students' performance was highest on language and science sections of the test, with performance above the national average at nearly every grade level.

At the elementary level, students scored lowest in reading with only third-graders scoring above the national average at the 52nd percentile.

GOP complains about Dome

HOUSTON (AP) - Some sights and smells in the Astrodome, site of next month's Republican National Convention, have drawn complaints from Republican National Committee staff members, according to a published report.

The Houston Chronicle today quoted sources as saying that RNC staff members have complained of a "disgusting sewer smell" and have reported numerous sightings of "roaches and rats in the hallways."

There have been more sightings of rats than roaches, the sources said.

Houston Astros owner John McMullen says "The Dome is in impeccable condition."

He said the complaints stunned him.

"I have heard nothing of this," McMullen said.

The Houston Host Committee, the group of corporate and community leaders helping to finance the Aug. 17-20 convention, is paying McMullen's Houston Sports Association about $850,000 in rent money for the RNC staff to work in the Astrodome, which includes the Astrodome, Astrohall and AstroArena.

McMullen denied the Host Committee is paying rent to him for the Dome, saying the $850,000 is for "capital expenditures."

"That's not rent," he said. "All they're paying are direct costs."

The RNC will officially take over the entire Astrodome on July 27, a day after the Astros leave for a 28-day road trip. That long trip resulted in sports fans' criticism of McMullen.

America's love-hate relationship

Americans love to entertain, especially when guests arrive on time, are easy to please and pay their host a compliment on the beautiful table setting. And, if you hope to be invited again, its best to mind your table manners.

These findings, among theirs, surfaced from a recent nationwide survey on America's "love/hate" relationship with entertaining. The survey was commissioned by The Pfaltzgraff Co., a leading American manufacturer of stoneware and bone china dinner ware.

According to the survey, the "worst" guest is someone with poor tablemanners, a faux pas that is especially unnerving to southerners. Bringing along an uninvited guest without asking first also irritates a host, followed closely by dominating conversation. Picky eater are also unwelcome, as are guest who dress inappropriately.

Hosts are not immune to few follies either. Here's a list of "Top 10" common entertaining blunders, according to the survey:

1. "Let my spouse/children help me in the kitchen" -77 percent
2. "Forgot to serve something prepared" -51 percent
3. "Served dinner much later than planned" -48 percent

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem I can't share with anyone. You are the only person who can help me.

I was in the Oak Brook Marshall Field's department store last year, shopping for after-Christmas bargains. The store was very busy and the salespeople were directing customers to various registers on different floors.

I was on my way to one of these registers when I ran into some friends and we decided to have lunch. In the excitement of our meeting, I absentmindedly left the store with $260 of merchandise, for which I had not paid.

I was scared to death to go back and pay for the items for fear no one would believe me and I would get arrested. This has been on my mind ever since and I have been unable to think of a solution I decided to send the $260 to you, Ann, and ask that you find a way to get this money to Field's. I need to clear my conscience. Thank you so much. -Anonymous in Oak Brook, Ill.

DEAR ANONYMOUS: When I received your letter and the $260 in cash, I phoned Linda Swanson, general manager of Marshall Field's Oak Brook store, told her the story and asked how to handle it. She was absolutely delighted with your honesty and suggested that I send the store a money order.

I've followed Miss Swanson's instructions and am happy to be the instrument that cleared your conscience.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I believe your answer to "Feeling Guilty in Texas" was less than your best. The mother asked if it was unfair to give more financial assistance to one child than another—even if the other didn't need it. You said the wealthier child would understand. Ann, to help one child less than another is a disservice, not only to the well-off but to the disadvantaged. Just because children have made successes of their lives doesn't justify unequal treatment. Too often continually helping the needy discourages them from helping themselves.

My wife was a victim of such flawed reasoning. Because we had worked hard and were not in need of financial assistance, her father gave large sums of money to his other children who, due to laziness, gambling and poor judgment, were always broke.

Children who need help should receive it, but an equal amount should be put aside for the others as their inheritance. Countless sibling relationships have been soured because parents decided not to leave anything to the child or children who "didn't need it." Also, the winds of fortune do change and while siblings A and B may be very well off at the time the parents' will is written, things could be vastly different down the road.

A great many readers are going to see themselves in your column today, Ann. Sign me—Been Down That Road Myself

DEAR BEEN: You've made some valid points but I keep questioning the wisdom of carrying coal to Newcastle.

Cummings hurts knee; may be lost for season

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - San Antonio Spurs forward Terry Cummings has suffered a knee injury that could cause him to miss the entire upcoming season, a newspaper reported today.

The San Antonio Express-News reported that Cummings tore two ligaments in his right knee when another player fell on him Monday during a pickup game in Chicago.

Cummings was seen on crutches Tuesday night at San Antonio International Airport, sources said.

Spurs vice president Bob Bass Wednesday confirmed that Cummings was injured and underwent a Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) examination Wednesday night.

Bass said the team will release an official statement today. The MRI is a procedure in which a radio frequency pulse causes certain electrical elements of the injured tissue to react. The test is used to diagnose soft tissue, disc and ligament damage.

Sources told the newspaper that Cummings tore the anterior cruciate ligament and the medial collateral ligament and will require two operations. The first may take place Monday and the second in about three weeks after the first, the sources said.

Sources indicated that Cummings should be able to begin running about three months after the surgery.

The injury requires only surgery and not reconstruction that could mean the end of his career, sources said.

One source said Cummings might be able to return to the team by mid-season.

Cummings, a 10-year NBA veteran, has played with the Spurs for the last three seasons. He has averaged 22.4, 17.6 and 17.3 points per game for the Spurs.

His playing minutes were reduced last season with Antoine Carr rotating at the power forward slot and because Cummings missed 11 games with a fractured rib.

Angola hopes to limit US to 50-point margin

FLINT, Mich. (AP) - The coach expects to lose by at least 30 points and the point guard by 50. Still, the Angolan national basketball team looks forward to playing the Dream Team at the Olympics.

"When we won the championships of Africa we said we wanted to play the U.S.A. because they're the most powerful team in the world," coach Vitorino Cunha said. "Our goal is to lose between 30, 35, 40 points, no more."

The Angolan team, in Flint for exhibition games, drew the United States in the Olympic opener July 26.

The Angolans lost 90-83 Wednesday night to Ragnone AAU, a traveling amateur team.

There's not much argument that Team USA, led by retired Los Angeles Laker Magic Johnson and the Chicago Bulls' Michael Jordan, is the best basketball team ever assembled.

Angola, on Africa's southwestern coast, qualified for the Olympics by winning the African zone championship. Team USA qualified by beating six opponents by an average of 51.5 points at the Tournament of the Americas.

"We will probably lose by 50 points, but we will play hard," Angolan point guard Panto Macedo said through a translator, teammate Nelson Sardinha.

Macedo said he looked forward above all to playing against Jordan. Then he grinned and looked down at the Air Jordan basketball shoes on his feet.

The biggest player on the Angolan team is the 6-foot-7, 286-pound center Ivo Alfredo, who started playing basketball just 18 months ago.

During a drill Wednesday, Alfredo got the ball, spun past his man but nearly fell on his back when he changed a dunk off the front of the rim.

Cunha revealed some of his strategy: "Put pressure on the ball, double team, overload the passing lanes, that is all I can do."

The practice was held before about 100 spectators at a community college gymnasium, with no ball rack, no Gatorade, not even a water cooler.

Gustavo Conceicao, head of the Angolan delegation, said the team hopes to play well enough at the Olympics "to become the best representatives" of Africa.

"We know that we don't have a chance," he said.

Kitchens' team wins Scramble

Kelly Kitchens led his team to a low-ball score of 29 and first place in the Wednesday Scramble on the back nine at Pitman Municipal Golf Course yesterday.

Other members of the winning team were Don Summersgill, Steve Sanders and Dee Hamilton. The second-place team with a score of 30 was composed of Gilbert Leal, Bartley Dowell, Leland Shelton and Dwayne Robbins.

Three teams carded a 31. Taking third on a scorecard playoff was the team of Bobby Weaver, D.R. Bone, Mel Charest and Robert Kuback.

Rick Hopping, Bill Brown, Avis Blakey and Paul Hamilton also teamed up for a 31, as did the team of Max Goforth, N.D. Kelso, Jim Holmes and Mary Shelton.

The nine-hole scramble tourney is held each Wednesday and is open to all interested golfers.

Baltimore teenager to swim at Olympics

BALTIMORE (AP) - Olympic swimmer Anita Nall has endorsement contracts, her picture on the cover of this month's "Baltimore Magazine" and enough trophies to fill a dozen showcases.

Clearly, this is no high-school kid. Then again ...

"Oh, Anita acts like any 15-year-old," insists her mother, Marilyn Nall. "She's just a teenager who happens to be a record-holder in the breaststroke."

"The biggest thing in her life right now besides the Olympics is getting her driver's license. She's studying for it between practice sessions, and one of the first things she's going to do when she gets back is take the test."

If she can find time, that is.

Upon her return from the Summer Olympics, Nall won't have to practice four hours a day anymore. But she'll still be bogged down by interviews, photo sessions, promotions and endorsements.

And then there's that school thing. Come September, Nall will have to deal with life as a junior at Towson High School.

If she is asked to write the seemingly inevitable essay on what she did on her summer vacation, Nall should have quite a story to tell. The world record-holder in the 200-meter breaststroke, Nall is expected to participate in three Olympic events.

Nall has never been to Barcelona, site of the Olympics, though she is quite worldly in her own way. She has already appeared in dozens of advertisements - flaunting her 5-foot-5 frame in the latest teen fashions - and granted more interviews than many members of the

Aggie hoops star Smith shot dead

DALLAS (AP) - Vernon Smith, Texas A&M's all-time scoring and rebounding leader, was fatally shot by an angry dice player who apparently mistook him for someone he'd fought with, police say.

Smith, 33, was shot outside some apartments in the Oak Cliff section of the city on Tuesday. Police charged Steven James Thomas, 21, of Dallas, with capital murder.

Detectives said that moments before the shooting, the gunman argued with a dice game opponent, left the game and came upon Smith sitting nearby in his car.

"We believe he mistook the victim for the man he'd been fighting with and shot him," homicide Sgt. Gary Kirkpatrick told The Dallas Morning News.

Smith's girlfriend, Bobbie Perkins, said Smith had been waiting for her to meet a relative at a nearby apartment when the gunman ran up to their car. She said Smith saved her life by yelling for her to run away.

Perkins said she heard Smith and the gunman exchange words and then she heard a shot. "I knew Vernon was shot and was trying to get to him, but the guy pointed his gun at me and said he would shoot me too, so I ran."

He is survived by a 5-year-old son. Smith was an order filler for Sears Roebuck and Co. and played piano and organ at his church, where his father is minister. Smith played for the Aggies from 1978 to 1981 and holds the school records for most career points (1,778) and rebounds (978).

He led the Aggies to a 26-8 record and a berth in the NCAA tournament in 1980. Texas A&M beat Bradley and North Carolina in the playoffs before losing in overtime to eventual champion Louisville.

"It's just like losing a member of the family," former Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said Wednesday night. "His dad was preaching last week and Vernon was playing the piano."

"I talked to him and he had talked to me about coming back to school to get his degree. He had left here at the end of four years to play in Europe."

Metcalf said services would be Saturday in Dallas. Other details weren't available.

Smith, a 6-foot-9 forward from Dallas Carter High School, was part of the Aggies' famed "Wall" in the late 1970s and early '80s that included Rudy Woods and Rynn Wright.

"That was a good group of players and a great bunch of young men," Metcalf said. "That bunch beat Kentucky in Lexington ... beat Dean Smith in North Carolina. My best team, they were all good players."

New evidence might not matter in Tyson's appeal

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - One of the jurors who convicted Mike Tyson of rape says new evidence that the victim might have discussed a book or movie deal prior to the trial doesn't cast doubt on the verdict.

"We were not looking at a movie deal or a book deal," juror Michael Wettig told WRTV-TV in Indianapolis. "We had to decide what happened in a room that night. Our decision was whether or not a rape occurred."

Harvard law professor Alan Dershowitz filed a petition Wednesday seeking a new trial in Marion Superior Court, where Tyson was convicted Feb. 10 of raping Desiree Washington, an 18-year-old beauty pageant contestant from Coventry, R.I.

Tyson is serving a six-year sentence at the Indiana Youth Center in Plainfield.

Dershowitz argued in his petition for post-conviction relief that money was the motive behind Washington's accusations.

Dershowitz wrote in the petition that newly discovered evidence shows not only did Washington contemplate a civil lawsuit against Tyson for monetary damages, it also entered into a contingency fee agreement with an attorney to bring such a lawsuit prior to the criminal trial.

Washington filed a civil suit for damages against Tyson on June 22. Her new civil attorney, Duvall Patrick, said recently that Washington made the final decision to sue several weeks before she took the action.

Dershowitz also claimed that the marketing of book and movie rights

Cards' Smith elected to 10th All-Star game

NEW YORK (AP) - When the opening pitch is thrown at Tuesday's All-Star game, the starting lineup will have a 10-year wizard, a pair of repeating brothers and a trio of Padres.

Ozzie Smith of the St. Louis Cardinals was elected Wednesday to start his 10th straight All-Star game, the most consecutive starts since the voting was returned to fans in 1970. "It's consistency to my craft and what I bring to it," Smith said. "I've tried to be as consistent as I possibly can, and I think that I've done that."

Smith beat Tony Fernandez of the San Diego Padres by 135,002 votes, breaking a tie with catchers Johnny Bench and Gary Carter for most consecutive elections.

While Fernandez didn't win, catcher Benito Santiago, first baseman Fred McGriff and outfielder Tony Gwynn of the Padres did. It's the first time since 1982 that the host has had as many as three elected starters. Montreal had Carter, Andre Dawson and Tim Lincecum 10 years ago.

"This is very exciting. My fans came through," said McGriff, who edged San Francisco's Will Clark by 16,163 votes in the closest race in either league. "Now I don't have to go home tonight and sweat it out to see if the manager will name me as a reserve."

On the other side of the field will be the brothers Alomar, second baseman Roberto of Toronto and catcher Sandy Jr. of Cleveland. They were re-elected, only the sixth time brothers were picked to start for one team.

Shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. of the Baltimore Orioles received the highest vote total at 2,699,733, the most since Carter got 2,785,407 with Montreal in 1982. It will be the eighth start for Ripken, who beat second-place Manuel Lee of Toronto by 2,312,212, the largest margin at any position.

"I think a lot had to do with last year and the fact that I performed well in the All-Star game," said Ripken, last year's All-Star MVP.

Second baseman Ryne Sandberg of the Chicago Cubs led the NL with 2,434,660, the second straight season he received the most votes in his league. Sandberg is an eight-time starter.

McGriff was one of four first-time NL starters, joining outfielders Barry Bonds and Andy Van Slyke of Pittsburgh and third baseman Terry Pendleton of Atlanta.

Bonds returned last Saturday from a nearly three-week injury layoff resulting from a strained rib cage muscle, and said he won't miss the game.

"When you're voted in, you play," he said. "It's an honor."

Santiago, on the disabled list while recovering from a broken finger, is on a rehabilitation assignment in the minors.

"Last night was my first game back and I didn't have any problem with the finger, and so I think I'll be able to play," he said in Tucson, Ariz.

The American League lineup includes outfielders Kirby Puckett of Minnesota, Ken Griffey Jr. of Seattle and Jose Canseco of Oakland. The Athletics said Wednesday that Canseco wouldn't come off the disabled list until after the All-Star game, forcing the AL to replace him.

Mark McGwire of the A's is at first base for the fifth consecutive year and Wade Boggs of Boston is at third base for the eighth straight season.

Roberto Alomar earned a $50,000 bonus for his election, while Bonds, Griffey Jr., Gwynn, McGriff, McGwire, Pendleton and Sandberg earned $25,000 each.

Overlooked by fans were John Kruk and Darren Daulton of the Phillies and Gary Sheffield of the Padres. Kruk leads the NL with a .354 average, while Sheffield was second to McGriff with 17 homers. Daulton has a league-leading 58 RBIs. Detroit's Cecil Fielder, who leads the AL with 70 RBIs, was third in the voting at first base.

Cubs concerned about business, not baseball

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Cubs are thinking about business, not baseball, in challenging baseball commissioner Fay Vincent's decision to ship them to the National League West, the team's attorney says.

"This is a business matter, not a baseball matter," attorney Geoffrey Anderson said Wednesday after a court hearing aimed at reversing Vincent's decision. "The real interest is whether (the Cubs) are better off business-wise in the western division."

But the Cubs, who haven't won a pennant since 1945, may be facing the longest longshot of all in their lawsuit: All previous lawsuits against the commissioner have failed.

"Basically, we believe we have the authority to do this," said Joseph McEntee, an attorney for the commissioner.

During a hearing Wednesday, U.S. District Judge Suzanne Conlon gave Vincent until July 16 to file a response to the Cubs' lawsuit. The judge will schedule another hearing after the response is filed.

Anderson said Vincent's decision Monday to shift the Cubs and the Cardinals to the NL West and Atlanta and Cincinnati to the NL East was wrong and that the court ultimately would agree.

Vincent's office has contended the Cubs' parent company, Tribune Co., may be motivated in part by another of its holdings, superstation WGN-TV. The station broadcasts Cubs games and may be hurt by later starting times if the realignment takes place.

But Anderson said the Wrigley Field team has a longstanding interest in staying in the NL East, which predates the Tribune Co.'s 1981 purchase of the team.

"When the division alignment was made in 1968, the Cubs were very strongly in favor of being in the eastern division," Anderson said.

The National League's constitution requires a three-fourths majority approval on any realignment, but teams involved in the move have veto power. The Cubs voted against realignment, which would have scuttled the arrangement had Vincent not stepped in.

"The commissioner can no more order the Chicago Cubs to play in the western division of the National League than he could order them to play in the American League," the Cubs contend in their 26-page complaint.

Vincent stood by his decision. "The Cubs had threatened suit even before I made the decision," Vincent said. "I'm not surprised there is a suit."

Dodgers, Expos split triple-double

By The Associated Press

After three doubleheaders in three days, the Los Angeles Dodgers and Montreal Expos are back where they started.

The teams split their final twinbill on Wednesday, giving them a 3-3 record in the baseball marathon.

"I'm glad it's over; my legs are pretty well shot right now," said Montreal's Tim Wallach, one of only five players to play every inning of the rare triple-double.

Montreal manager Felipe Alou saluted both teams for their efforts.

"It was tough, but now that it's over, I've got to tip my hat to my team and also to the Dodgers for taking care of business in a most professional way and playing hard, interesting games," Alou said.

The three doubleheaders were needed to make up games lost during the Los Angeles riots in April. The Dodgers swept both games on Monday, the Expos won a pair on Tuesday and the teams split on Wednesday, with LA taking the opener 1-0 in 11 innings and Montreal winning the nightcap 4-1.

"It's mentally exhausting," said Dodgers pitcher Tom Candiotti, who won Wednesday's first game in a rare relief appearance.

Pinch-hitter Bret Barberie had a two-run single and hot-hitting Delino DeShields hit a solo homer to lead the Expos in the nightcap.

Bill Risley, called up from Indianapolis the previous day, got the victory in his major-league debut. He went five innings, giving up one run on four hits. Mel Rojas pitched the ninth for his fifth save.

Dodgers starter Pedro Astacio, who pitched a shutout against Philadelphia in his big-league debut last Friday, was the loser. He gave up four runs on nine hits in seven innings. After the game, Risley and Astacio were sent back to the minors.

DeShields got his fourth homer of the season in the seventh inning, his 13th hit in three days.

Dave Hansen drove in the only two runs the Dodgers scored Wednesday, including a bases-loaded single in the 11th inning to win the first game.

Astros 3, Pirates 2

At Pittsburgh, Pete Incaviglia homered on reliever Bob Patterson's first pitch in the ninth inning and also had a run-scoring double for the Astros.

Houston starter Brian Williams allowed only one run and four hits in the first seven innings, but was lifted after Alex Cole's game-tying, RBI single in the eighth. Doug Jones (6-5) got the final four outs for the victory.

Cubs 3, Reds 2

At Chicago, relief ace Rob Dibble hit Rey Sanchez with a pitch to force in the winning run.

With one out in the 10th, Derrick May singled and went to third on a single by Rick Wilkins. Dibble ran the count to 2-0 to Doug Dascenzo before walking him intentionally to load the bases. His next pitch clipped Sanchez on the left forearm, forcing in May with the winning run.

Paul Assenmacher (2-1) was the winner.

Giants 4, Phillies 3

At San Francisco, Robby Thompson homered and drove in the deciding run with a bases-loaded groundout in the eighth inning.

Philadelphia's Jeff Grotewold tied it with his third pinch-homer in as many days, a two-run shot off John Burkett in the seventh.

Reliever Mike Jackson (4-2) pitched one scoreless inning for the victory. Rod Beck pitched the ninth for his eighth save.

Braves 2, Mets 1

At Atlanta, Tom Glavine won his seventh consecutive decision and became the National League's first 13-game winner.

Glavine (13-3) allowed nine hits, struck out five and walked one in seven innings.

The Braves scored an unearned run in the third off Wally Whitehurst (1-4) and added a run in the sixth on an RBI double by Greg Olson.

Cardinals 1, Padres 0

At San Diego, Tom Paganzzi homered with two outs in the ninth.

Paganzzi's fourth homer came off reliever Randy Myers (2-3).

Omar Olivares (5-4) allowed six hits in eight innings before yielding to Bob McClure. Lee Smith got the final two outs for his 21st save. Padres rookie Frank Seminara, who had won his previous four starts, pitched eight shutout innings but didn't get the decision.

Key gets support vs. M's

By The Associated Press

The key, said Jimmy Key, was getting an early lead.

Thanks to Joe Carter and friends, Key was ahead of the Seattle Mariners nearly all of Wednesday night. Carter had a three-run homer to back Key's six-hitter in a 6-0 victory, Toronto's seventh consecutive win.

Key (6-6) struck out two and walked one in his first shutout and second complete game of the season. It was the seventh shutout of his career.

"You can take the liberty of not trying to pitch too fine when you have a big lead," Key said. "It took the pressure off me and put it on them. In the middle of the third I started locating the ball, moving it up, down, in, out. That's what I have to do to be successful."

Blue Jays 6, Mariners 0

At Toronto, Carter stated his case for a spot in the All-Star game. Carter, who was not voted a starter by the fans, has a .280 average, 19 homers and 62 RBIs. He did not get enough support to beat out Jose Canseco, Ken Griffey Jr., or Kirby Puckett. Canseco is on the disabled list and not expected to play.

Erik Hanson (6-11) allowed six runs and nine hits in 6 1-3 innings.

Indians 8, Angels 4

At Cleveland, Albert Belle - benched by manager Mike Hargrove

on Monday night after he failed to hustle after a ball in left field the previous night - had a grand slam and knocked in five runs. His line-drive homer, his 18th of the year, came off the first pitch by reliever Joe Grahe.

Charles Nagy (11-4) survived a three-run first inning while Langston (8-7) took the loss.

Brewers 4, Rangers 3

At Arlington, the Brewers came back with three unearned runs in the eighth off Jose Guzman (7-7). Jim Gantner started the rally with a one-out single, and Texas shortstop Dickie Thon committed his second error of the night, booting a grounder by Scott Fletcher.

Pat Listach singled in a run to make it 3-2, and Fletcher scored the tying run on Darryl Hamilton's groundout to shortstop. Then Paul Molitor singled in the go-ahead run. Mike Fetters (4-1) got the win in relief.

Robin Yount doubled home a run for the Brewers in the fifth.

Twins 3, Yankees 2

At New York, Mel Hall gave the Yankees a 2-0 first-inning lead with his 12th homer. But the Twins shut down the Yankees' bats after that, with John Smiley (9-4) getting his sixth win in his last seven decisions. Rick Aguilera got the last four outs.

Minnesota got its runs in the second off Melido Perez (8-7).

Tigers 6, Athletics 3

At Detroit, Dave Bergman and Scott Livingstone highlighted a three-run seventh with RBI singles off Jim Corsi (1-1).

Les Lancaster (3-2) got the win with 1 2-3 innings of one-hit relief.

Red Sox 5, Royals 4

At Boston, Phil Plantier contributed a two-run homer and a game-winning single off Tom Gordon (1-9), while Jeff Reardon increased his all-time saves record to 345.

In the eighth inning, Tony Pena hit a ground-rule double and was on second with two outs. Jody Reed then grounded to Gregg Jefferies. Pena stopped running to third about five feet before reaching Jefferies, who hesitated, then threw too late to first as Pena took third. Plantier then singled in the go-ahead run, giving Tony Fossas (1-1) the win.

Orioles 5, White Sox 3

At Baltimore, Joe Orsulak hit a tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning as the Orioles foiled Charlie Hough's bid for his 200th major league victory.

Palmeiro keeps good attitude despite slump

By T.R. SULLIVAN
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
ARLINGTON (AP) - The hints and insinuations are back, suggestions that are vague and unspecific but still present and increasing with a corresponding drop in batting average.

And the batting average has dropped. In fact, it has plummeted, down 69 points from last season and 49 points from his career average going into this season.

Rafael Palmeiro is struggling at the plate, trying to find that sweet stroke that everybody marvels at and predicts will one day carry him to an American League batting title.

With the slump comes the suggestions that he has gone into a mental funk, similar to his 1989 season, worried too much about his batting average, and letting it get him down too far and spreading unpalatable vibrations into the environment around him.

"That might be right," Palmeiro said candidly Tuesday. "My attitude probably is not as good as I need it to be. I've tried to keep my head in the game, but it's hard. I still think I'm playing defense better than ever. That might tell you right there that I'm not as bad as I was two years ago."

His 1989 funk reached epic proportions. He led the league in hitting with a .361 average on May 28, then hit .235 the rest of the year and finished at .275. He readily admits he didn't handle that season well and developed a poor mental outlook that got worse as his average dropped.

The inside word among his teammates is he has not nearly been as bad as he was in 1989 and that his batting slump has not affected his defense or his attitude in the clubhouse.

"I thought he'd be worse than this," hitting coach Tom Robson said. "But his attitude has been pretty good. He's been coming out a lot early for extra hitting."

"He's playing defense better than he ever has," dugout coach Toby Harrah said. "This is a tough game, especially when you're playing every day. One day you're going to get three hits, the next day you go 0 for 4. It's tough to stay positive every day."

Still, Palmeiro knows he needs to shake himself up and keep from coming down hard on himself over what's happening at the plate.

"It's hard," Palmeiro said. "I admit I've been down. Guys try to pick me up, but it's hard to come to the game and be positive after the way I've struggled. I've never struggled like this."

Palmeiro, going into Tuesday's game, was batting .216 in his past 42 contests, dropping his batting average from .293 to .253. Tuesday night, he went 2-for-3 with two walks to raise the mark to .257.

He remains a perfectionist at the plate, fretting and worrying about what goes wrong, constantly making adjustments to find the right feel.

Sometimes, the more adjustments he makes, the more it takes him away from his natural approach to hitting. Before he knows it, Palmeiro is in his slump and has to come full circle before he's back to hitting properly.

Early batting sessions with Robson helped and, before Tuesday's game, Palmeiro was driving balls into souvenir territory beyond the outfield. A smile was returning to his face.

"I don't know about my attitude, if it's been good or not," Palmeiro said. "But from this day on, it's going to be good, it's going to be positive. I think it's been different from 1989. Back then, I was totally lost."

"Now, I'm more in tune with my teammates. I cheer for them, stay in the game and play good defense. I'm still producing runs, hit-and-run when I have to, putting the bunt down. I'm not totally out of it. Everybody seems to be concerned about the average, because it isn't what they're accustomed to seeing."

There's no doubt, however, that Palmeiro's slump and Julio Franco's injury problems have been the two largest contributing factors to the Rangers drastic drop in offensive production. In the period of 1987-91, Franco was the fifth-leading hitter in the major leagues with a .315 average. Palmeiro was seventh with a .304 mark in that stretch.

"With Ruben (Sierra) and Juan (Gonzalez) having good years, if Julio and I were hitting well, we'd be making this offense go," Palmeiro said. "I don't want my teammates to be thinking I'm down. I want them to believe in me."

"From now on, whether I'm hitting or not, I'm going to be a positive force. If I haven't been that, it's going to change because, believe it or not, some of the guys look up to me and they have to have somebody to be a positive influence on them," he said.

OLYMPICS

Baltimore Orioles.

Alas, her coach has ordered her to forego all interviews from now until the Olympics so she can better focus on her duties in the pool.

"His orders are for her to concentrate on swimming and relax," Marilyn Nall said. "Last weekend she signed about 350 autographs at the pool, and after watching that her coach decided to put his foot down."

After all, Nall has spent much of her life preparing for this. Competing in the Olympics is her reward for those miserable early-morning practices and sacrificing time with her friends.

"She missed an awful lot of things in school, a lot of things that other kids her age normally do," Marilyn said. "But she did get to go the prom, and think if there's something she really wanted to do, she found a way to do it."

It's not as if Nall's parents made her go to practice, throwing her in the pool at an early age and insisting that she stay there until she did 25 laps.

"To be this successful, you've got to want to do it," Marilyn Nall said. "She's always wanted it. It was always her choice, not mine. She's very self-motivated. ... I can't remember her ever saying that she's regretted her decision, in any instance."

World premiere to be presented Aug. 2

The world premiere of "The Legend of Columbus," an opera written by local resident Gee Murray, is scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 2 at 8:30 p.m. "TEXAS's" Pioneer Amphitheater located in Palo Duro Canyon State park. The idea for the performance, part of the area's participation in this year's salute to Columbus, was initiated in 1988 by Margaret Harper, a founder of the internationally acclaimed outdoor musical drama "TEXAS." Harper, who died last year, also helped found the Amarillo Opera.

"Opera is a union of all the arts, so when an opera company can thrive in an area it is proof that the artistic skills have matured and been able to unite. The Amarillo Opera has proved this for our region," Harper said of the local opera company.

Mila Gibson, Founder and Director of the Amarillo Opera Company, is excited about the upcoming performance.

"When we first started working on founding the Amarillo Opera, people told me an opera company in the Texas Panhandle was a crazy idea," Gibson said.

"But we are quickly proving this art form's viability in the community," she added. "We have at least two major productions each year and are involved in extensive outreach."

The upcoming production makes full use of an abundance of local talent. All 50 members of the cast live in the Panhandle of Texas.

Murray, who wrote "The Legend of Columbus" is gaining increased recognition for his work with folk operas. Murray also plays a leading role as "Uncle Henry" in "TEXAS."

Murray was commissioned by the Amarillo Opera Company to do the Columbus work. "It is a full opera," he explained. "With two acts and three ballets."

The ballets were written specifically for the Lone Star Ballet, which also is based in Amarillo. Several of the dancers with the Lone Star Ballet company also perform in "TEXAS" each summer.

Amarillo also has been included in the first edition of the Grove's Dictionary of Opera, a real distinction for a company only five years old. Gibson said Amarillo is one of only 400 cities in the world to be included in the listing.

A grant from the Britain Fund, administered by the Amarillo Area Foundation, has enabled the opera company to hire Murray as outreach director.

"We are the first recipient of money from that fund," Gibson said. "One of the reasons we hired Gene was to expand our focus on outreach. His ability to write operas with a wide spread local appeal made him the perfect person for the position."

Murray cites the abundance of local talent a one reason for his involvement with the Amarillo Opera and with the Columbus project.

"There is so much local talent, and they have had limited places to perform," he said. "We have outstanding talent and solid programs in the arts at both Amarillo College and West Texas State University. The opera provides an additional performance venue."

According to both Gibson and Murray there is also a frequent misconception about opera.

"Operas aren't always in a foreign language," Gibson explained. "And they aren't just for the wealthy or the elite."

"The Legend of Columbus" is an excellent vehicle for dispelling those misconceptions.

"It is light, easy, entertaining and suitable for all age groups," Murray said. It also is in English.

The work is about two hours long and will be performed in the canyon amphitheater in a casual atmosphere that should further add to its appeal. It is the first opera ever performed in Palo Duro Canyon.

"The Legend of Columbus" uses narrators to help tell the story of Columbus' journey to the New world.

Jerry Williams, a 25-year veteran of "TEXAS," portrays a grandfather who is relating the tale to his granddaughter, Katherine Kuster.

Lee Kendle will carry the role of "Columbus."

Other leads include Lynn Tyler as "Queen Isabella"; Rock Matis as "King Ferdinand"; Erma Rush as "Beatrice"; Pamela Thrash-Horn as "Felipa" and Jerry Perales as "Frey Antonio."

Racell McDonough, LuAnn Lane and Bart Elliott will be accompanists for the opera. Kevin Lane, Caprock High School Choral director will serve as conductor. Neil Hess, artistic director of the Lone Star ballet, is the choreographer. The talents of the Amarillo Opera Chorus, students from Amarillo Public schools and members of the "TEXAS" cast also will be featured in "The Legend of Columbus."

General admission tickets for the performance are $12. They go on sale July 1. Tickets can be purchased in advance at the "TEXAS" Box Office e, 2010 4th Avenue, P.O. Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015. They also may be purchased at the Amarillo College Box Office in Concert hall Theater at 22nd and Jackson in Amarillo. For additional information, call (806) 655-2181 or (806) 371-6359.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am sending you two columns about chronic fatigue syndrome — one by you and a conflicting column that says patients with chronic fatigue syndrome had lower concentrations of magnesium in their blood cells and that giving them injections of magnesium improved their energy level. Also, the report says Italian physicians found that magnesium pills relieved symptoms of PMS.

I have a friend who has been suffering from this condition for three years and am anxious to help her. I would appreciate your thoughts about the use of magnesium.

DEAR READER: You have asked about two ill-defined conditions. The truth is the exact cause of neither premenstrual tension nor chronic fatigue syndrome has been established.

All reliable information about chronic fatigue syndrome supports the idea that it is caused by one or more viral illnesses. Some viruses that may be involved have been identified. There is also good evidence that the body's own immune reaction that is triggered by viral infections may then cause the continuing symptoms, as I mentioned in the previous column you sent me. There is no indication from any of these studies that magnesium injections will counteract viral and immune responses. I wish it was as simple as having magnesium injections, but that seems quite unlikely.

Although there is some difficulty in defining the premenstrual syndrome (PMS), it seems clear that it is related to the changing hormone levels during the menstrual cycle. These two are unrelated to magnesium. That is not to say someone who had low magnesium levels would not benefit from magnesium supplements, but in that case, you are not talking about PMS but about magnesium deficiency.

To give you more information about PMS, I am sending you my new Special Report 126, Update on Premenstrual Syndrome (PMS). Others who want this report can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/126, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

When magnesium deficiencies do occur, it is usually in association with many other mineral deficiencies because of poor absorption from digestive diseases or from alcoholism. There is an abundant amount of magnesium in a normal diet, so healthy people on a sensible diet should not develop a deficiency.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I need some information on sciatica, which is giving me fits. Is there a way to avoid sciatica? What causes this condition and how do you treat it?

DEAR READER: Sciatica is more of a symptom than a diagnosis. It really refers to pain associated with the sciatic nerve. This is the longest nerve in your body. It originates from spinal nerves from the sacral portion of your spinal cord. These exit through the lower spine and form a long, large nerve that supplies the buttock, thigh, leg and even the bottom of the foot. The sciatic nerve can cause pain in the buttocks, the back of the thigh, the back and outside of the calf and the foot. Involvement of the sensory nerves may also cause tingling, numbness or "pins and needles."

In 95 percent of the cases, it is caused by some compression or irritation of the nerve associated with abnormalities in the spine, such as arthritis and intervertebral disks or sacroiliac disease. The proper treatment depends on identifying the underlying cause, such as a disk. Relieving compression of nerve roots is possible in some cases.

NEW YORK (AP) - A judge granted Linda Lavin a divorce, saying the actress' husband, actor Clifford "Kip" Niven, was unresponsive and unfaithful.

Niven, 47, had sought $6 million from Lavin, 54. But the judge ruled Thursday that Niven had contributed nothing financially to the marriage and ordered Lavin to pay only $675,000.

Lavin, best known as the star of the old TV series "Alice," married Niven in 1982 and filed for divorce in 1989.

"We feel triumphant," said Lavin, who now stars in the TV comedy "Room for Two."

State Supreme Court Justice Phyllis Gangel-Jacob found Niven had at least two adulterous affairs and spent Lavin's money on the women.

Spend evening with Baxter Black

Amarillo will be the hottest place in the five-state area when Old West Days take the city by storm in August. Just one day after Garth Brooks rocks the city during a vivacious country concert, the American Quarter Horse Heritage Center & Museum and Civic Amarillo present "An Evening With Baxter Black," a benefit dinner and performance by America's best-selling cowboy poet.

Made possible by The Big Texan Steak Ranch and Coors of Amarillo, this special performance will be held Friday, Aug. 21, beginning at 7 p.m. in the Amarillo Civic Center Grand Plaza. The evening will include a cash bar reception, dinner catered by The Big Texan, opening entertainment by The Big Texan Opry and entertainment by Baxter, who has taken the art of rhyme one step further using his lunatic wit and animated delivery.

Kris Miller, Civic Center manager and director of Civic Amarillo, said, "We are excited about the opportunity to work with the Heritage Center and Baxter on this event. Civic Amarillo has tried for many years to secure a date with Baxter because of his notoriety and the popularity of our cowboy poets at Old West Days."

Baxter's talents have been enjoyed by millions at banquet and concert appearances and through network television. He is a nationally syndicated columnist and regular guest on "The Tonight Show." Although his subject matter is strongly agricultural, Baxter's humor and insight carry universal appeal. People Magazine called him "an American original," and "The Denver Post" referred to Baxter as "Will Roger's weird grandson."

Johnny Carson may have possessed the best grasp of the Baxter Black phenomenon when he amusingly remarked, "It's just a tragedy Keats didn't live to hear this."

In addition to his books, including the favorite "Croutons On a Cow Pie," Baxter recently has released his Emmy award-winning videotape featuring 10 of his favorite oems acted out "cowboy MTV" style.

Baxter grew up in the livestock business near Las Cruces, New Mexico. He became a veterinarian, dispensing his medicine and practicing his humorous songs and poems on countless cowboys who worked with him on ranches and feedlots around the Mountain West.

Before long, Baxter was spending as much time entertaining as he was doctoring livestock. Choosing the cleaner of the two options, Baxter hung up his plastic sleeve and jumped head-first into show business. He hasn't treated a case of foot rot since.

Ticket for "An Evening With Baxter Black" are $25 per person. Proceeds will benefit Civic Amarillo and the American Quarter Horse Heritage Center & Museum, a showcase of the history and modern activities of the world's most popular breed of horse. Tickets go on sale Saturday, August 1 at the Civic Center Box Office, (806)378-3096. Cash, Visa, MasterCard, and checks are accepted.

A major tourist attraction in Amarillo, the Heritage Center is located along Interstate 40 East at Quarter Horse Drive, and its store, Quarter Horse Outfitters, offers books and videotapes by Baxter.
