More 2, 4-D-related damage feared

Area cotton growers had assumed that once their plans to file a lawsuit became public, damaging applications of ester formulations of the herbicide 2,4-D would come to an end.

But when the weekend rains ceased and the farmers checked their fields, they found what they believe to be another siege of damage from the powerful weed killer. So the Texas Department of Agriculture, which had closed shop last week after investigating damage to about 30,000 other acres of cotton, was contacted once again.

Bob Armstrong, a TDA investigator from Vernon, arrived in Friona Thursday to handle complaints from the 10 or 12 farmers who had reported their discoveries to the Friona Farmers Coop cotton gin. Armstrong said he could not confirm that cotton has been damaged a second time.

"It will be five days to a week before I can tell by a visual inspection if it was affected," he explained.

The landowners, though, are convinced 2,4-D has drifted onto their fields in the past few days. They think ester formulations were applied last week and traveled to their cotton patches with the recent rainstorm.

Parmer County farmers, who asked not to be identified because "We've had all the media coverage we want," said they are greatly surprised to learn that 2,4-D is still being applied. "We thought it was all over with." one man stated.

At a meeting earlier this month in Friona, a group of about 75 cotton growers voted to file a class action lawsuit for the purpose of recovering damages caused by the herbicide. The litigation is to be handled primarily by Benton Musslewhite, a Houston attorney who took part in the agent Orange settlement in May. "They've taken my living from acres of cotton have been heavily damaged. He said he had expected to get two bales per acre before the chemical drifted onto his land.

Dennis Anthony, whose 1,000 acres of the crop straddle the Deaf Smith and Parmer county lines, said he was "plenty surprised" when he discovered additional damage on Tuesday. "I can understand the weed problems of the wheat and milo growers, but there are other things they could be using to kill them," he added.

Anthony said he has a message for farmers who continue to apply ester formulations despite the pleas of cotton farmers to switch to something else. "If Deaf Smith farmers think this lawsuit is a big joke, they'd better sit back and look again."

Among the growers assembled Thursday at the cotton gin, the concensus seemed to be that forgiveness was a lot easier the first time around than the second.

De Lorean happy with verdict

LOS ANGELES (AP) - John De Lorean wept tears of joy after being acquitted of cocaine-trafficking charges, but he still faces huge unpaid legal fees, lawsuits, a bankruptcy case and a British probe of $17.5 million allegedly missing from his failed sports car company.

Nominees for three-year terms as directors were Mike Bowles, manager of Pre-Feeders; Terry Bromlow, executive vice president of Hereford State Bank; Bill Harris, vice president of Security Federal Savings & Loan; David Hutchins, owner and manager of The Store; Doug Manning, president of In-Sight Books; and Gerald Morgan, attorney with Thomas and Burdett law firm.

The chamber will accept other nominations from the membership in September, and ballots will be mailed out in October. Four directors are to be elected. Terms are expiring for Bob Sims, Irene McKinster, Danny Boyer and John Stagner.

In other business Thursday afternoon, directors approved the financial statement and heard progress reports on committee activities. Woman suffers minor injuries

Esidra Ortiz suffered minor cuts and abrasions Thursday as a result of a motor vehicle collision at the Park Avenue and Avenue A intersection, Hereford police reported this morning. She was a passenger in a 1974 Ranger pickup being driven by Mary Soliz Maes, 406 Paloma Lane. The other involved automobile was a 1981 Buick piloted by Rubye Walker of 348 Centre St. Meanwhile, police looked into several minor incidents, including two simple assaults. There were also two minor thefts and one case apiece of broken car window, civil disturbance, neighbors fighting and threat. One person was arrested, with the charge being no liability insurance, third offense.

In Miami, meanwhile, 132 investors including Sammy Davis Jr. and Roy Clark have filed a $414.7 million suit alleging De Lorean misappropriated funds intended for research and development of the gull-winged sportscar that bore his name.

In Detroit, a bankruptcy court is attempting to unravel the complex claims filed by unsecured creditors of De Lorean Motor Co., which filed for protection under federal bankruptcy laws just days before De Lorean was arrested. A creditors committee has filed liens on all of De Lorean's assets, including his homes in New Jersey, San Diego County and New York.

Civil litigation also is pending in New York state.

Government prosecutors had porrayed the narcotics case against De Lorean as open and shut, supported by the best evidence possible videotapes vividly depicting the lefendant's alleged drug conspiracy.

The most sensational tape showed De Lorean pointing at a suitcase full of cocaine and saying: "It's better han gold. Gold weighs more than hat, for God's sake."

FBI and Drug Enforcement Adninistration agents had masqueraded as tough-talking drug dealers and crooked bankers. Their videotapes of neetings with De Lorean were the coundation of the government's case.

The six men and six women found De Lorean had been illegally entrapped by agents who dangled a lure of quick money before the financially besieged De Lorean as his company sank in a sea of financial woes.

The jurors said they hoped their decision would have "an impact on the future."

"Praise the Lord!" the 59-year-old De Lorean exclaimed as the verdicts were read in the jammed courtroom. His wife, fashion model Cristina Ferrare, fell into the arms of her mother and sobbed.

The prosecutors, apparently stunned by their defeat, would say nothing more than that the outcome of the trial was a shock.

Conservatives finish platform

By MIKE FEINSILBER Associated Press Writer DALLAS (AP) - President

Reagan, zipping upward in the polls, will accept renomination next week from a convention unlikely to hear a squeak of ideological dissent. Republicans were topping off their platform today after quashing moderate initiatives in a series of one-sided decisions.

"When he reads this document he will love it," beamed Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi after his 106-member Platform Committee completed work on a statement of party dogma that suits Reagan's philosophy to a

He called the platform "progressive" and "looking to the future" and his co-chairman, Sen. Paula Hawkins of Florida, called it "radical" in its call for tax deferrals for money banked for education or new homes.

Party moderates - outnumbered, out-voted and sometimes outmaneuvered on women's rights, abortion rights and school prayer said their type of Republicans would have trouble running on so conservative a platform, but they lacked the votes to cause a stir, let alone make a difference.

The White House wasn't worried about the tilt.

Drew Lewis, Reagan's overseer in these proceedings, told reporters:

"It is a conservative document. But it should be a conservative document. We are a conservative party and we have a conservative candidate and, obviously, the delegates here are conservative. In no way are we uncomfortable with a conservative document."

About the only work left to do before the convention starts is to write a prologue to the platform hailing Reagan's achievements and portraying the Democratic team of Walter F. Mondale and Geraldine A. Ferraro as hopelessly out of step with American sentiment.

The platform's overall tone is one Reagan is sure to be pleased with: 'Americans are better off than they were four years ago."

Further satisfactory news came to him in the form of an NBC News voter survey that gives him a 23-point lead over Mondale and Ms. Ferraro.

The survey was conducted less than a week ago. A New York Times-CBS poll published earlier this week gave Reagan a healthy lead, too.

Surveys taken as the Democratic convention ended - glowing with pleasure over the selection of a woman running mate - showed Mondale and Ferraro neck-and-neck with Reagan.

But the party that's been paraded on television for a week always benefits, momentarily.

GOP moderates took such severe lickings that they lack the votes they would need to compel the convention to confront their issues.

They'd have to have the signatures of 27 committee members to wage a floor fight, and the votes showed that getting that many is highly unlikely. Lott anticipated no floor fights Tuesday, when the platform is presented on the second day of the Republican National Convention.

With Reagan's platform secure, Republicans here have already started partying. A week of big bashes await them in a Dallas anxious to put a new shine on a city whose image was shaped by the assassination of a president and by a television show about lustful, moneyhungry rich Texans.

For the Reagan crowd, the only jarring note came from an ally, Anne Burford, who has twice been driven out of environmental positions that Reagan appointed her to.

Mrs. Burford announced she is heading a conservative "truth squad" to discredit Ms. Ferraro.

United Way fund drive slated Sept. 10-Oct. 31

The United Way of Deaf Smith County has announced campaign plans and volunteer chairmen for the 1984 drive, according to James Self, president of the agency.

The campaign to fund the 10 participating agencies will kickoff Sept. 10 and continue through Oct. 31. Goal for this year is $128,150 and the slogan of the campaign will be "Caring More in '84."

"We sincerely ask for your support to fund these worthwhile agencies that could not exist without your contributions," said Self. "With generous gifts from the business and employee divisions, the agricultural sector and all individuals, we can continue to be a caring community."

B.J. Gililland will serve as campaign chairman this year. Other officers include Pauline Howard and Robert Mercer, treasurers; Jeryl Baker, communications; Raymond Artho, audit and evaluations; Raymond White, Margaret Bell and Mark Andrews, budget and admissions; and Morgan Cain, publicity.

Self announces

Self has named the following volunteer division chairmen and vice chairmen: Harold Easley and John Fuston, agriculture; Carol Legate and Terri Hutson, general; Mark Andrews and M.D. Gentry, major; Sid Shaw and Marilyn Leasure, metro; Ray Cowsert, professional; Temple Abney and Troy Don Moore, special; and June Owens and Helen Lee, Whiteface.

Gramm to address convention

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - When the Republican Party held its national convention four years ago, Rep. Phil Gramm wasn't welcome. This year, the Democrat-turned-Republican will deliver a primetime speech to the opening session.

Gramm, the GOP's Senate nominee in Texas, said the White House gave him the option of delivering an opening night speech to the convention or giving one of the speeches to nominate President Reagan.

The 41-year-old former Texas A&M economics professor chose to speak about the economy.

"I'm going to talk about the Reagan recovery in terms of the impact on the average citizen, in terms of bringing down inflation and the 7 million new jobs we've created," he said.

As a "Boll Weevil" Democrat, Gramm earned the wrath of Democratic leaders by co-authoring Reagan's budget resolution in 1981. As a member of the House Budget Committee, Gramm repeatedly supported the president's program.

Olympians honored at halftime

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Olympic gold medalist Mary Lou Retton said she won her gold medal for all Americans. Swimmer Steve Lundquist said his gold was a dream come true.

Retton and Lundquist were among about 200 United States Olympic athletes who got a Texas-size welcome during the Dallas Cowboys-Pittsburgh Steelers National Football League exhibition game at Texas Stadium Thursday night.

Dallas officials estimated a bigger crowd today when the Olympians were to be featured in an hour-long parade through downtown Dallas. Also scheduled today was a private barbecue at the Box Ranch in Frisco, Texas, which is where many scenes from the "Dallas" television program are shot.

The group - o:. the last of five-city celebration tour - arrived in Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport in three chartered jets Thursday afternoon.

They were driven to Texas Stadium where about 60,000 fans waved American flags and the crowd began to chant "USA, USA, USA," then gave them a standing ovation.

Guards to use force as needed

AUSTIN (AP) - Prison officials can't guarantee the safety of inmates, but Gov. Mark White says they are doing all they can to maintain order.

"I've given specific instructions that (prison officials) all be informed that they can take all necessary action - including force to maintain security of that prison," White said.

"There is very little that can be done to create absolute safety in that prison. We're going to take every step possible to try to achieve greater levels of safety.'

The governor's comments at a news conference Thursday followed the stabbing death of a 24-year-old inmate at the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis II unit. It was the 10th homicide in state prisons this year.

White said the TDC has been given additional money for equipment and manpower. He also pledged that any inmate involved in violence will face quick punishmet.

By TOM RAUM Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Republicans are providing President Reagan a tailormade platform that stands in stark contrast to the Democratic ideals expressed last month in San Francisco. The parties part company dramtically on issues from women's rights to defense, from taxes to the status of Hong Kong.

The GOP platform, completed by the 106-member GOP Platform Committee late Thursday, seeks to draw major distinctions between Reagan and Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale, especially on bread-and-butter economic issues

"During the Carter-Mondale administration, no group of Americans was spared from the impact of a failing economy ... Americans are better off than they were four years ago, and they're still improving," the GOP platform trumpets.

That's a far cry from the rhetoric of the Democratic platform, which states: "A second Reagan term would bring federal budget deficits larger than any in American history ... Interest rates, already rising sharply, will start to soar. Investments in the future will be slowed, then stopped.'

And even though the platform came through the process a bit more conservative than the president's aides had wanted, there was little doubt of its winning his support. "When he reads it, he'll love it," said platform Chairman Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi.

"We are a conservative party and we have a conservative candidate," said Reagan's emissary to the platform panel, Drew Lewis. "In no way are we uncomfortable with a conservative document."

Approval of the platform at next Tuesday's session of the Republican National Convention was assured. In fact, party leaders said it was unlikely that dissident party moderates would be able to muster the support needed to bring a single dissenting minority report to the floor.

Both the Republican platform and the Democratic platforms were drafted for specific candidates and specific campaign themes. In both instances, each party's standardbearer was known before the other party's convention. That gave each party a chance to go after the other's soft spots.

contain a plank suggesting a tax hike will be needed, since that assertion was contained in Mondale's acceptance speech, delivered two days after the platform was adopted.

However, it does pledge Democratic support for "reducing these intolerable deficits. We will reassess defense expenditures (and) create a tax system that is both adequate and fair."

The Republican document states that high deficits - blamed on "Carter-Mondale" policies - can be reduced with "continuing strong economic recovery" and "eliminating wasteful government spending."

The Democratic platform calls for endorsement of the Equal Rights Amendment but advocates no other change in the Constitution. Republicans rejected several efforts for a pro-ERA plank, but put into their platform a reassertion of "an historic commitment to progress for women" and a proposal to extend Individual Retirement Account coverage to homemakers.

Republicans did call for two other constitutional amendments not found in the Democratic outline: an antiabortion "human life" amendment and one to balance the federal budget.

The Democratic document "recognizes reproductive freedom as a fundamental human right" and does not specifically call for a balanced budget.

The Republican document supports Reagan's military buildup, backs his "star wars" program for research into a defense system to shoot down incoming missiles and calls for an aggressive civilian space program.

Democrats call for a nuclear weapons freeze, condemn Reagan's star-wars plan and advocate savings in defense spending by "modernizing our conventional forces." The Democratic platform also includes a so-called "peace" plank developed by Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado setting out military conditions under which military force would not be used overseas.

The Republican platform calls for self-determination for Hong Kong, urging that it not be turned over to the People's Republic of China when the present long-term British lease on the island colony expires in 1999.

The Democratic platform asserts that "our relationship with the People's Republic of China must be nutured and strengthened." It is silent on Hong Kong.

"Yes sir, Mr. President - we're putting it to its best possible use."

Burford out to discredit Ferraro

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite the official displeasure of the White House, Anne M. Burford has jumped back into the political cauldron by spearheading a conservative group's assault on what she calls "the real scandal" of Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro.

Mrs. Burford, who has resigned under a storm of criticism from two environmental posts in the Reagan administration, presented herself Thursday as the head of an anti-Ferraro "truth squad" and the star of a television commercial which assails the New York congresswoman for withholding information about her family finances.

The effort is sponsored by the National Conservative Political Action Committee, an independent, pro-Reagan group headed by John T. Dolan, brother of the president's chief speechwriter, Anthony Dolan.

Mrs. Burford told reporters she had not discussed the mission to discredit Ms. Ferraro with anyone at the White House or in the official Reagan-Bush campaign, and "I don't intend to." John Dolan agreed with that version, noting "it's against the law" for independent groups supporting a presidential candidate to coordinate with the regular campaign.

Agent Orange study criticized

ATLANTA (AP) - A government study published today that found no significant link between Agent Orange and birth defects in children of Vietnam veterans immediately drew fire from some veterans' groups, who called it inaccurate and incomplete.

"It's a government agency trying to protect the government," said Woody Willis, commander of Nam Vets of Georgia, who said the researchers were "trying to sell us down the river."

But CDC director James O. Mason defended the research as fair and truthful. "If anyone were to try to influence me, I would not be director of the CDC tomorrow," he said. "I would resign and leave." The findings were published in today's editions of the agency's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report and the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The CDC on Thursday released the results of the four-year, $2.8 million study which found that Vietnam veterans - including those exposed to the herbicide Agent Orange - run no increased risk of fathering children with birth defects.

Block said to be investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he has nothing to hide from a reported FBI investigation into his farmland transactions and suggests that some of the controversy about his finances has been politically motivated.

Block responded Thursday to earlier reports in Minnesota and Iowa that the FBI also is checking to see if he could benefit from a $400,000 loan by the Farmers Home Administration to a business partner.

The FBI would not confirm or deny that an investigation was under way.

Jim Nichols, Minnesota state agriculture commissioner, said Wednesday that the FBI is trying to discover whether Block disclosed all his assets in financial statements required of government. employees.

Nichols, a member of the Democratic-Farm-Labor coalition party, has frequently criticized Block and the Reagan administration's farm policies.

Block was asked at a news conference whether the FBI had contacted him in connection with the investigation.

Thus, while the Democratic platform stresses what Democratic leaders see as Reagan's biggest political liability - federal deficits in the vicinity of $170 billion - the Republican platform makes much of Mondale's statement that he would raise taxes to cut those deficits.

And, to underscore that Reagan won't spring a "secret" tax plan on voters if re-elected, as Mondale has alleged, the GOP platform contains a plank stating Republicans "categorically reject proposals to increase taxes in a misguided effort to balance the budget."

That was such a strong plank that Reagan aides complained it didn't give the president enough "wiggle room," but they eventually signed off on it.

The Continental Singers and Orchestra, a group of 24 vocalists and 11-piece orchestra, have scheduled a concert of contemporary Christian music at 10:30 a.m. Sunday in the sanctuary of First Christian Church. Everyone is invited.

The program is to feature medleys from the group's newest album, 'Come Love the Lord," as well as selections from previous albums. The singers are currently touring the United States after visiting western Europe and Yugoslavia, and are under the direction of Julia Winterberg.

Members of the group were selected by audition from thousands of high school and college-age young people across the nation and in foreign countries. Auditions are held after each local concert for singers, instrumentalists and technical staff. The program has proven so popular among young performers that Continental Singers has grown from one group in 1967 to 17 groups this year. Since Cam Floria organized the first group, various editions of the Continentals have made over 8,000 live domestic appearances and over 2,400 foreign appearances before more than 4.5 million people. Traveling from 100 to 500 miles seven days a week by bus, boat and plane, they perform nightly during the summer tour. Concerts are held in churches, auditoriums, outdoor pavilions, military bases and hospitals.

Each member of the non-profit group raises part of his or her expenses, with the remainder being supplied by local churches and organizations. The Continentals have recorded 12 albums on the Word and Light labels, plus 12 albums on Christian Artists Records.

Amarillo scramble benefits WT sports

The first-ever Buffalo Scramble golf tournament to benefit the West Texas State University football and basketball scholarship programs has been scheduled for 1 p.m. Monday at the Amarillo Tascosa Country Club.

According to Ken Sawin, WT assistant athletic director, all prospective players should submit their registration forms to his office as early as possible. However, fees will be accepted until shortly before the tee time Monday.

"I think it is very important to note that this (the scramble) is a joint effort between the basketball and football programs to help the overall athletic situation at West Texas State," Sawin said. "I've been very pleased with the cooperation displayed by both the Quarterback and Cager Clubs in an effort to make this a first-class fundraiser, one that can be a highlight of every sports year."

Following the scramble, dinner and a program will conclude the day's activities.

The tournament will be limited to the first 120 players. Persons interested in attending only the evening activities may do so beginning at 6:30 p.m.

For more informtion, contact Sawin at 656-3701, or Cordell Huddleston at 655-2176.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) - Even Raymond Floyd couldn't believe his incredible, scrambling round that gave him the lead after the raininterrupted first round of the 66th PGA Golf Championship.

The 41-year-old Floyd, who has not won since capturing the PGA title two years ago in Tulsa, fired a 4-under-par 68 Thursday over the 7,145-yard Shoal Creek golf course despite making only seven pars.

Floyd held a 1-shot lead over a logjam at 69 headed by Lee Trevino. Others at 3 under were Chip Beck, Victor Regalado, Scott Simpson, Dave Barr, Gary Hallberg, Nick Faldo and Andy Bean.

"That's not me," said Floyd of his round that included an eagle, seven birdies, three bogeys and a double bogey."It's a very unusual round for me when I get a double bogey, bogeys and chip in out of a bunker," said the 6-foot-1, 200-pounder.

A thunderstorm halted play at 5:10 p.m. CDT and suspended it until 6:50 p.m. CDT with 54 players still on the course.

Play was then suspended for darkness at 7:35 p.m. CDT with 30 players still on the course. They included Lanny Wadkins, tied with Floyd at 4-under-par through 17 holes. Wadkins had six birdies and two bogeys, but was disappointed with his play on the par-5s, which he parred.

Tom Watson, who has never won this title in his illustrious career, was one over par through 17 holes.

A group at 70 was led by British Open champion Seve Ballesteros. Also at that figure were Don Hammond, Jay Haas, hometown favorite Hubert Green, Peter Jacobsen, Bob Gilder, Don Pooley and Leonard Thompson.

Jim Colbert, Larry Mize, Craig Stadler, Rex Caldwell and Don Pohl were at 71. Defending champion Hal Sutton

"I'm not a power hitter," said Slaught. "I don't hit the ball up in the air. I don't think I've hit a home run in batting practice in a month. I'm looking for singles and doubles."

However, Slaught's homer - his second in two nights - came on the first pitch from Rangers' starter Mike Mason with the Royals leading 2-1 in the sixth.

"I was thinking, 'Wait for a ball I can hit," Slaught said. "And that first pitch was right there. It was a change-up, I think. Mason pitched a hell of a game and that one pitch cost him."

Hal McRae led off the inning with a single and advanced as Darryl Motley grounded to second and Frank White doubled to right.

Another wild season ahead for SWC football

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer.

DALLAS (AP) - The Southwest Conference could be in for one of its wildest races in years with every team except Rice considered capable of being troublesome.

There's not likely to be a strong national championship prospect out of the SWC this season like there was last year when the Texas Longhorns came within a fumbled punt of the title last year.

They were No. 2 but lost to Georgia 10-9 in the Cotton Bowl. Then Miami upset No. 1 Nebraska in the Orange Bowl and The Associated Press pollsters made the Hurricanes the No. 1 team in the country.

Texas has a salty schedule, including rugged Auburn in the opener, Penn State and Oklahoma before the SWC schedule gets underway.

Texas returns 44 lettermen and 13 starters, 12 of them juniors or seniors. However, the Longhorns lost seven starters from a defense which was ranked at the best in the school's history.

There is also some unsettled questions at quarterback.

Danny Akers, Rob Moereschell and Todd Dodger are returning lettermen, but redshirt Brett Stafford could beat them out.

No. 1 rated running back prospect Edwin Simmons has knee problems again and may miss the Longhorns' tough opener against Auburn.

SMU meets Louisville, North Texas State and Nevada-Las Vegas in intersectional play, giving the Mustangs' inexperienced but talented quarterback Don James time to settle into his new starting role.

The Mustangs have a 1,000-yard rusher in Reggie Dupard and 927-yard producer Jeff Atkins, and a muscular offensive line that will give Murray plenty of time to get ready. them opening to run through.

James, who is good passer and ballhandler, could make Mustang partisans forget quarterback Lance McIlhenny, who graduated.

SMU's defense lost such stalwarts as All-America defensive back Russell Carter.

The Texas Aggies should be tougher defensively behind All-SWC defensive end Ray Childress. A&M's weak non-conference schedule includes Texas-El Paso.

MOSCOW (AP) - With placards proclaiming peace and friendship, athletes prepared to begin competition in the Friendship-84 Games at color-splashed Central Lenin Stadium.

A reported 49 nations are expected to participate beginning today in the Soviet Union's answer to the justconcluded Olympic Games in Los Angeles. Included among them are the 14 nations that boycotted the Olympics.

Igor Ter-Ovanesyan, the chief Soviet track and field coach, said in an interview with The Associated Press that he believed several world records could fall.

"During preparations for the Olympics heats, we beat more than 10 - I guess 13 or 14 world records," he said. "So I think most of our boys now are in very good shape and ready to compete on a very good level."

The 103,000-seat stadium was awash with color and placards as thousands of athletes from Soviet sports clubs rehearsed for the grand opening of the Games, which will actually be held on Saturday, 30 hours after the competition begins.

The opening ceremony will include a torch run by 1980 Olympic 400-meter gold medalist Viktor Markin.

There will also be placards in Russian, French, German and English, reading: "Sports is the ambassador of peace," and the theme of the Friendship-84 Games, "Sports, Friendship, Peace."

Throughout the stadium, placards proclaimed, "Sports and labor go together" and "Physical culture and sport in the service of the five-year plan."

Computer receipts can help with food budget

COLLEGE STATION - Computerized price scanning systems provide grocery shoppers with speedier checkouts, and can mean lower grocery bills - if you read the receipts.

"Many people throw away the computer generated receipts listing each items, size and price without realizing that they provide an idea way to keep track of food costs," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist Bonnie L. Piernot.

Consumers can use the receipt information to determine how much they spend in certain categories, such as food and non-food items; or meat, vegetables, packaged products, convenience foods and staples, she says.

Reviewing the scanner receipt helps identify categories where spending could be cut. You might find, for example, they you're spending substantial amounts on non-food items that cost less at other types of stores, notes Piernot.

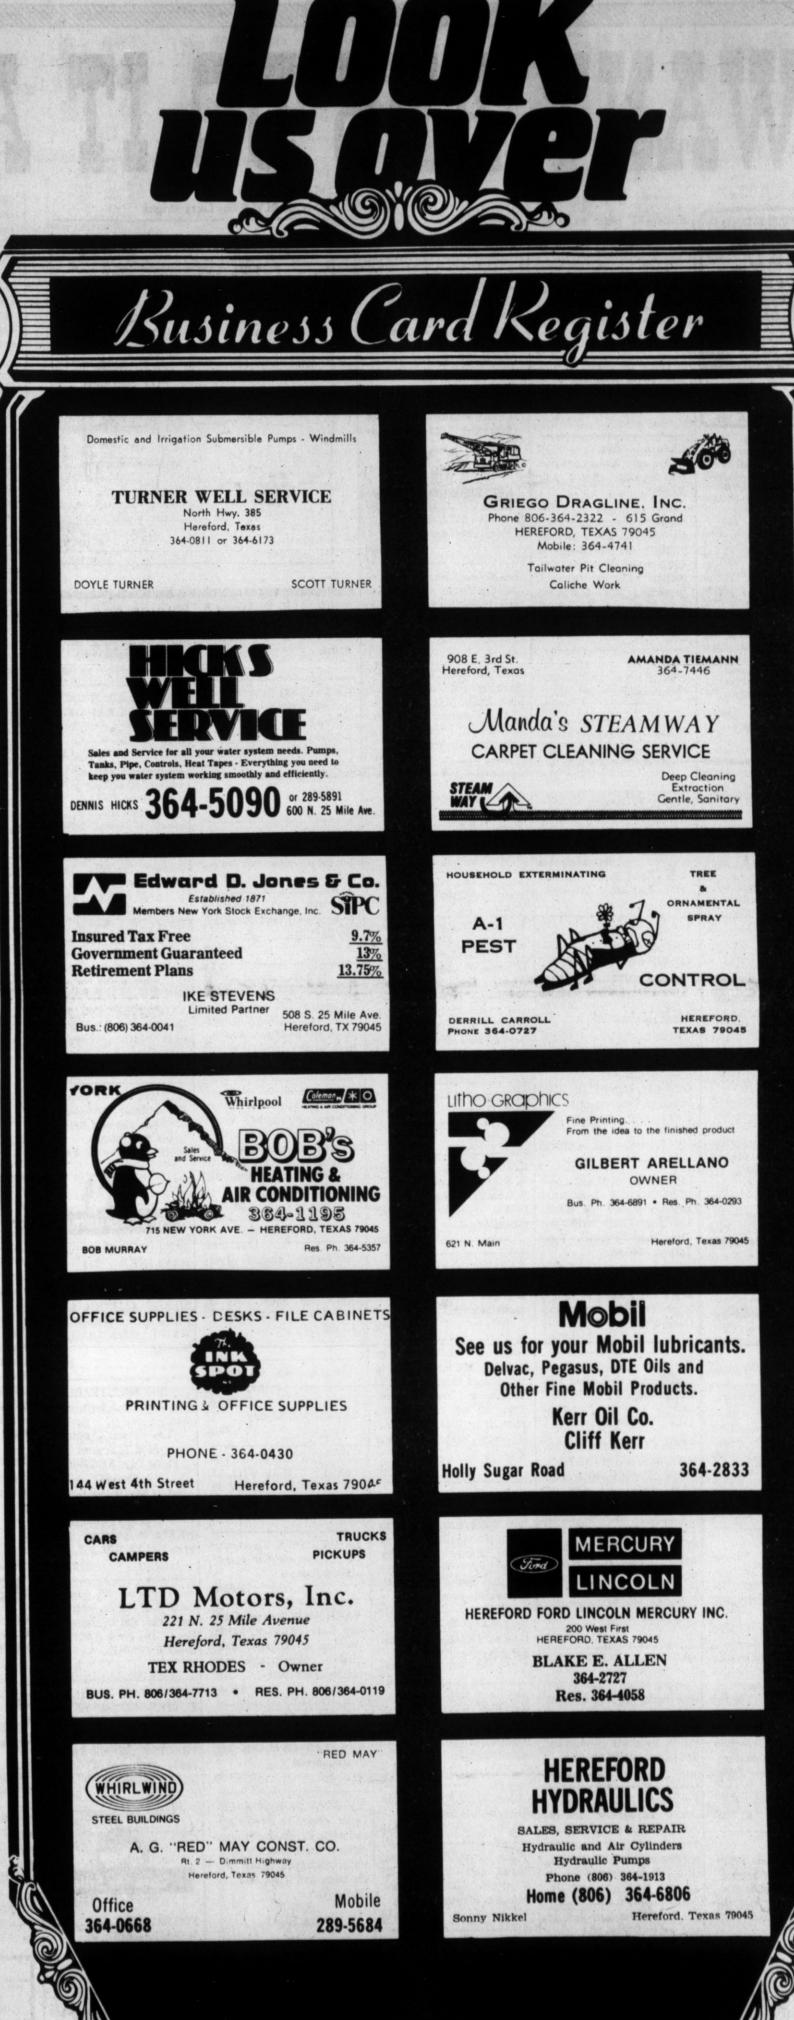

Scanner receipts also reveal impulse buying. Since impulse purchases make up about two-thirds of all supermarket decisions, reducing prices at the checkout counter.

these costs can cut overall grocery expenses, says the home economist. Regular review of scanner receipts permits consumers to track prices on products they frequently buy. Armed with a good knowledge of prices, shoppers can better detect true specials in weekly advertising and unadvertised specials in stores, she explains.

Over time, receipt-reading consumers can develop a shopping calendar of items that are better buys at select times of the year. They can stock up when the price is right and save about 20 percent on food buying by eating foods in greatest supply, emphasizes the home economist.

Shopping at supermarkets with computerized cash registers and scanning equpment is not without its disadvantages, observes Piernot. These supermarkets sometimes remove prices of items on the shelf as a means of reducing their costs.

Without item prices on the shelf, consumers have a difficult time comparison shopping among different brands. Lack of item prices also makes it more difficult to spot computer errors or unchanged special

The Hereford Brand-Friday, August 17, 1984-Page 7

Hereford chapter to host family dinner in the American Episcopal Church, is scheduled to speak at a family dinner sponsored by the Hereford Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship on Saturday evening in the private meeting room of Caison's Restaurant. Serving time is set for 7 p.m., and the meeting is to begin at 7:45 p.m.

A native of Idaho, Call cruised the South Pacific with the U.. Navy during World War II and graduated from college in 1948. A former radio and television producer, and owner of an advertising agency, he wrote two pornographic books and had an Max Call, a registered lay-apostle alcohol problem before meeting Jesus Christ in 1975.

The story of his dramatic turnaround has been published in the pages of Voice Magazine, Logos Journal, Christian Life, Christ for the Nations and Charisma. He now teaches an adult Sunday school class and has written four Christian books, the most recent, "Honey," being the subject of a movie which is to be released in September.

Call has appeared on the 700 Club and PTL with Jim and Tammy Bakker. As a Christian teacher, he has ministered at churches in 39 states as well as Jerusalem.

recently had surgery to remove malignant sunspots, diagnosed as basal cell carcinoma. This is the sec-1551, Radio City Station, New York, ond operation of a similar nature. The first was 10 years ago, diagnosed as melanoma.

Can you explain what a basal cell carcinoma is? I understand there are many different types of cancer cells.

DEAR READER - Cancer begins with an abnormal cell. If it is a thyroid cell it will be thyroid cancer. If it is a lung cell it will be lung cancer. Basal cell carcinomas involve cells of the skin. They are frequently activat-ed by too much exposure to sun. They can follow actinic keratosis, which is also caused by sun damage.

Fortunately, they are usually lowgrade malignancies, meaning that they don't progress rapidly. Nevertheless, they should be removed as soon as they are identified to minimize any tissue damage that can occur. They grow slowly if not treated and they don't disappear on their own. If neglected for long periods of time they can cause considerable tissue damage. Then when the entire area is removed reconstructive surgery may be required. Essentially, all can be cured by simple surgical techniques when diagnosed reasonably early

If you have one basal cell carcinoma you may develop another nearby or in a different location. Because the skin has usually been damaged by years of overexposure to sun and wind, a variety of locations may develop new cancers. This does not mean the original cancer has spread.

But melanoma, which you were diagnosed as having 10 years ago, is a different type of cancer. It usually arises from a pigmented mole. Stud-ies do show that sun exposure can increase the development of these, too. These need to be detected as early as possible and treated at once because they can be much more dangerous than the simple, much more common skin cancer.

I have discussed these points more completely in The Health Letter 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75

ATTENTION

Effective August 10, 1984 I, Dr. Tim Revell, will no longer be associated with the Hereford Medical and Surgical Clinic. My temporary office will be located in Dr. Barnett's office, 907 Park Ave. Effective August 13, 1984. Appointment may be made by calling 364-8082.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 62 and cents with a long, stamped, self-NY 10019. DEAR DR. LAMB - Would you express your opinion as to the safety of the amino acid L-ornithine capsules? The ones I am taking as a dietary supplement were bought in a health-food store. The label reads "100 percent natural, no sugars, starch, flavors, colors of preservatives. No corn, soy, yeast, wheat or derivatives."

I take one capsule before bedtime, which supplies 633 mg. of L-ornith-ine-HCl, which in turn provides 500 mg. of ornithine. Can taking these really eat up fat, causing loss of weight, as claimed? I understand some doctors are prescribing them.

DEAR READER - There are all kinds of doctors. Not all doctors are M.D.s or O.D.s or even licensed to prescribe medicines.

Ornithine is formed in your body from glutamic acid. Glutamic acid is a common, nonessential amino acid. Your own body can manufacture glutamic acid easily from a variety of food sources and common proteins in your food.

The ornithine you are taking is con-verted in your body to glutamic acid. It isn't causing you any harm and it isn't doing you any good. In my opin-ion, you wasted your money on that purchase.

A Prayer For Our Nation.

Oh Lord Our God, please show your power And let us see the way To fight the awful drive of Satan To snare mankind, we pray!

Help us to view the history of nations And know the weakness of man. When tempted by the lures of sin With Satan's cunning plan

He says that we should taste the apple And disputes the word of God. He says the fruit of sin is good This lie is brazen and odd!

He buys men's souls for a mess of pottage And tells them all is well. But in the night their life is ended And they wake up in Hell!

We know your patience is not endless When mankind sinks so low. Noah built an ark at your command And heard scorners voices flow.

But when the doors were closed by God And rain began to fall, Scorners beat up on the door and cried But water swept over them all!

At Sodom and Gomorrah your patience Was tried by awful sin. Sex and perversion sank man lower Than man had ever been!

Homosexuality was a way of life. Your patience came to an end, Man was so foul and impure You could no more contend.

Our nation was founded upon your word You blessed us for our dedication, Help us to mend your ways before We bring on our damnation!
