Cypriot vessel runs into mine

By MAURICE GUINDI Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - A Cypriot ship struck an underwater mine in the Red Sea and suffered severe engine damage, shipping experts said today. It was the 17th vessel reported damaged by explosions in he waterway since July 9.

The report came as the U.S. transport ship Shreveport, with four mine-hunting helicopters aboard, sailed into the Gulf of Suez and joined an international force seeking to clear the Red Sea of explosives.

A spokesman for Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence in London, which monitors shipping movements worldwide, said Mobil Oil Co.'s London office reported that the Mobil Swift tanker picked up a distress signal from the 11,765-ton Cypriot motor vessel Theoupolis.

The signal indicated the Theoupolis struck a mine Wednesday night at the south end of the Red Sea, just north of the strait that opens into the Indian Ocean, the Lloyd's spokesman said. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

The spokesman said the ship reported severe engine damage. No further details were available immediately.

The Shreveport made the trip from the Mediterranean through the 100-mile-long Suez Canal and today joined the U.S. ship Harkness and four British minesweepers and a British support vessel in the Gulf of Suez, the northwestern fork of the Red Sea. About 200 American personnel are reported to be involved in the effort to clear the huge sea - 1,450 miles long and up to 225 miles wide - of ex-

In Paris, an Iranian exile opposition group, the Mujahedeen, today claimed Iran's Organization of Military Industries had been involved in a secret project to produce sea mines since the start of the year. The group said information about Project Sadaf (Oyster) was received from sources in the Iranian army. There was no immediate comment from

The statement said the project is overseen by the most senior authorities of the regime of Avatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, including President Ali Khamenei.

The British ships were anchored at a small Egyptian naval base at Adabiya, a few miles south of the city of Suez, while crews worked on some last-minute steering and sonar pro-

Officers aboard one of the ships said they expected to begin operations this evening or Friday and to continue searching for two weeks to two months.

Egyptian naval sources said the 9,000-ton Shreveport did not dock at Adabiya because the harbor was too small to accommodate it. They declined to pinpoint the ship's loca-

U.S., British and Egyptian officials said that apart from locating and dismantling mines, they want to determine who sowed them.

idea what we are looking for." Officals are unsure who is behind the mysterious explosions in the Red Seas, or what kind of devices have caused the blasts. There are many different kinds of mines: mines that float on the surface and are activated by metal.

One expert aboard the Gavinton said he believed the mines were small, a few hundred pounds of explosives. But he said he felt they would have to have been professionally sown.

Egyptian officials have speculated Libya or possibly Iran may be responsible for laying the mines, but both countries have denied it. Iran has repeatedly blamed the United States, and Washington has denied that accusation.

In addition to the U.S. and British minesweepers, Egyptian and French vessels are also taking part in the multinational effort. Egypt's defense minister, Abdel-Halim Abu-Ghazala, has said Italy would send two minesweepers, but Italian diplomats in Cairo said the Italearching Egypt's territorial waters in the Gulf of Suez and the Red Sea since July 30, French Embassy sources said two French minesweepers and a support ship will arriveng for Saudi Arabia, which is located across the Red Sea from Egypt, on a similar mission. The United States has flown three mine-hunting helicopters to Saudi Arabia at the Saudis' request.

That operation is expected to focus on Saudi Arabian territorial waters, particularly the ports of Yanbu and Jidda, where thousands of Moslems are flocking for the annual pilgrimmage to the Islamic holy places.

The Israeli daily newspaper Yediot Ahronot, quoting intelligence sources in London, said Wednesday that Western experts fear the same people responsible for mining the Red Sea may start mining European

The paper quoted the sources as saying terrorists plan to mine the Netherlands harbor of Rotterdam and a French port with Soviet-made mines. It said the unidentified French port is a shipping point for arms to Iraq, which is at war with

Homeowner may needle condos

AUSTIN (AP) - Speech does not have to be nice to be protected, a judge says, and that includes a "Condos Stink" sign emblazoned across a west Austin homeowner's garage.

Last fall, Grant Lannon started raising a stink over an 18-unit condominium project that overlooks his home. He erected signs in his backyard - in full view of the development - saying "This view will get worse" and "Condos Stink."

Robert Hughes, the condos' owner, went to court to make Lannon pull the signs down because he said they kept him from selling the last 11 units. He won a temporary injuction last week against the irate homeowner.

But on Wednesday, the case came to an end.

State District Judge Juan Gallardo refused to prohibit Lannon from placing signs on his property declaring his disgust for the three-story consominium project.

"I would like other property owners to know that they can do the same thing I'm doing," Lannon said. "That's what we proved

Prison to explain reform delay

HOUSTON (AP) - A federal judge has ordered the Texas Department of Corrections to explain why it has failed to comply with a plan to give prisoners more work and recreation opportunities at the Coffield and Ellis units.

U.S. Distaict Judge William Wayne Justice on Wednesday set an Aug. 31 hearing to determine why an experimental program was not started by June 1 at the two units.

Donnna Brorby, a lawyer for the prisoners in the long-running reform lawsuit against the TDC, said the program got underway at the end of July at the Ellis Unit, outside Huntsville, but has not begun at the Coffield Unit.

TDC lawyer Rick Gray did not return telephone calls to The Associated Press on Wednesday night.

The TDC has blamed its failure to start up the program at Coffield on delays in getting plans from experts to construct exercise yards, Brorby said.

Brorby said the prisoners' lawyers are particularly concerned about the failure to keep inmates busy at Coffield, where 489 weapons were seized on July 19.

Dallas hopes for souvenir profits

DALLAS (AP) - Collectors of Republican National Convention memorabilia can spend as much as $3,600 for a 14-karat-gold commemorative belt buckle or as little as $2.50 for a paper shopping bag.

Among the other souvenirs on sale will be a jumbled assortment of mugs, sculptures, hats, aprons, bookmarks, jewelry, posters, sports equipment, dolls, pens, games and, of course, that perennial political standby, campaign buttons.

The city, which gets a cut of all novelty sales, is anticipating making enough money to help defer the $1 million spent on lights and security for the convention, said assistant city manager Levi Davis.

Texas Novelty Co. Inc. of Dallas is handling local souvenir sales, while Westport Marketing Group Inc. of Westport, Conn. is in charge of mail-order catalog sales.

We hope to make in excess of $200,000 from Texas Novelty," Davis said. "They say they'll make $100,000, but I have confidence that they'll do better than that."

Balanced budget not promised

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ronald Reagan's last budget report before Election Day holds no promise for the balanced federal budget that he pledged when campaigning for the presidency four years ago.

Rather, the report, released Wednesday by the Office of Management and Budget, foresees little change in the red ink over the next few years.

New burn treatment from tubes

BOSTON (AP) - The use of sheets of skin grown from postagestamp size scraps to save the lives of two critically burned young boys offers new hope for the 15,000 Americans who suffer extensive burns each year, a report published today said.

The skin grown in test tubes from skin cells taken from the two brothers allowed them to survive burns as extensive as any ever described in medical literature, researchers said.

The treatment culminates years of research to find a substitute for natural skin that can be used when people are burned so badly that their own skin cannot be used for grafts.

"This is the first real evidence that it works," said Dr. G. Gregory Gallico, a plasitc surgeon at Massachusetts General Hospital and Shriners Burns Institute in Boston.

The doctors decided to try the test-tube skin last summer after two youngsters were burned over 97 percent of their bodies. The skin was applied in repeated operations over a period of months. Without the experimental therapy, Gallico said, the boys had little chance of

Protestants battle police in large riot

By ED BLANCHE Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Hundreds of Protestant militants threw gasoline bombs and battled the predominantly Protestant police force early today in wha officers said was one of the worst such riots in a decade.

The Protestant attacks came after several outbreaks of rioting this week by Catholics opposed to British rule in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland.

In the Shankill Road district, about 500 Protestant rioters set two shops afire, and erected barricades and ignited them. Others ripped up paving stones and tore down concrete lampposts, smashing them into chunks on the road and hurling them at police.

Housewife Rosemary Wilson told reporters: "The IRA can get away with it - killing and bombing and taking lives every day. Now it's our turn to be heard."

Her comments echoed a growing sense of frustration among Northern Ireland's million-strong Protestant majority, alarmed at what they see as propaganda successes by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The mainly Catholic IRA is fighting to drive the British from Northern Ireland and unite the province with the Irish Republic.

The Protestant majority fears British authorities may try to push them into a union with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic in a bid to end 15 years of sectarian

A police spokesman reported "no serious injuries" and said several arrests were made in the rioting, which described as among the worst by the so-called "loyalist" Protestants in 10

The violence began shortly after baton-wielding police fought with 47 alleged Protestant terrorists on trial in Belfast's Crown Court Wednsday. Screaming women relatives of the defendants, arrested on the word of an informer, lobbed plastic bags of urine at police officers in the heavily guarded courtroom.

Police reported several minor injuries in the 20-minute courtroom clash. Reporters covering the trial said several defendants and their supporters were seen bleeding from truncheon blows by officers of the Royal Ulster Constabulary.

The 47 defendants, including 64-year-old grandmother Agnes Calderwood, faced 227 charges ranging from murdering Catholics to membership of the outlawed Ulster Volunteer Force.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary today was to bury the 200th officer to be killed by terrorists. Sgt. William McDonald died Sunday, the 15th anniversary of the start of the current phase of the province's sectarian bloodshed in which at least 2,387 men, women and children have died.

Protestants are bitter at widespread condemnation of the police for an assault on a rally in Belfast Sunday organised by Sinn Fein, the IRA's political front.

A Catholic, 22-year-old Sean Downs, was killed and 20 other persons were wounded when riot police firing plastic bullets waded into the unarmed demonstrators in an unsuccessful attempt to arrest Martin Galvin, 34, a leading American supporter of the outlawed IRA.

Galvin, 34, publicity director of the New York-based Irish Northern Aid Committee, had been banned by the British from entering Northern Ireland. He escaped the police swoop at the rally and is still believed in hiding in the Catholic stronghold of West Belfast.

Party worrying about television appearance

By MIKE FEINSILBER Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Republican leaders, polishing up President Reagan's 1984 campaign platform, are worrying over how television will play next week's GOP convention and about energizing loyalists who might take the president's reelection for granted.

Those issues — and not the sparring over naunces in writing the party platform - were uppermost as a made-for-television convention was taking shape in the August heat of Texas. The convention begins Mon-

Election day over-confidence was on his mind.

"The greatest threat, as I view it, to the re-election of Ronald Reagan and George Bush is not domestic policy; it is not foreign policy," Fahrenkopf said. "The greatest threat is over-confidence by those in this room and throughout this country who are charged with the responsibility for voter motivation and voter turnout."

Dear editor:

About 20 participants were in the Road Rally on Saturday that was sponsored by the Simm's Lions Club, and we had the most fun!

Each vehicle had a driver and a navigator. Vehicles were started at 10-minute intervals making it unlikely to see any of the other contestants during the course. We were given clues to specific destinations and given road signs to search for, which we recorded on an answer sheet.

We were penalized for going too slow or too fast which required us to drive the speed limit. Answers and times were tallied for a total score. The 31-mile round trip course led us on a 11/2 hour "treasure hunt" through town and surrounding areas.

I'd like to thank Ricky Lloyd and Jim Bob Perrin for putting the rally together and the rest of the Simm's Lions Club helpers for making the Road Rally run so smoothly. We didn't quite know what to expect before entering, but we hope it's an

"Having been to a great many conventions, I would not feel that a convention is a cross-section of the typical mainstream of America or the maintstream of the Republican Party," Percy told reporters in Springfield, Ill. "This convention tends to be somewhat more conservative."

Convention preparations rolled along. Work crews unfolded thousands of bright red padded seats on the floor of the empty Dallas Convention Center, where the air conditioning made the hall frosty cold, in sharp contrast to a blistering heat outside.

All was moving toward the nomination, without opposition or dissent, of Reagan and Bush in a single call of the states Wednesday night. Reagan, back in Washington from his California vacation, will arrive that day and accept renomination Thursday.

Fahrenkopf said the American people would get a "good show" if those who make the decisions in television allow. His big worry, he said, is "whether or not it goes out over the air."

The three commercial networks abandoned their customary gavel-togavel coverage of the conventions this year, and ABC opted for entertainment over politicians during a prime-time half-hour of the Democratic convention last month.

The convention master plan calls for tightly timed two-hour, primetime sessions. Long, windy speeches are out, Fahrenkopf said in an inter-

Scaffold collapses at Olympic parade

By MARJORIE ANDERS Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - "It was the end of the world," a bleeding victim said after a construction scaffold loaded with revelers collapsed, injuring 101 people as heavy plywood sheets and bodies toppled onto spectators at a ticker tape parade for U.S. Olympic athletes.

Just moments after the 221 Olympians began marching at noon Wednesday, the platform designed to protect pedestrians from falling debris at a building renovation site gave way. About 40 people and plywood sheets cascaded onto the crowd below.

When school starts in a little over two weeks, Nancy Sanchez will begin her fourth year as a teacher with the Hereford Independent School District. A fifth grade instructor at Shirley Intermediate School, she stands only 4 feet, 11 inches tall and admits that she always wears heels so that her students won't be taller than she is.

"They respect me even though I'm small," said Nancy good-naturedly, "and I believe in giving them each respect too." She added that it is interesting discussing current events with her students, as they are old enough to understand that kind of thing.

Nancy considers her teaching career something of an accomplishment, considering the obstacles she had to overcome in order to get where she is today.

The Carrizo Springs native grew up in a migrant family, spending part of each year there and the rest in this area. She stayed with her grandparents in Carrizo Springs after entering high school so that she could have a more stable school environment.

"My responsibility had always been to keep the house, being the oldest child," said Nancy. "So I couldn't be involved in a lot of things. My last two years in high school I was finally able to become a member of the drill team and I really enjoyed

Nancy decided to move to Hereford after graduation, and began working as a teacher's aide, taking night classes at Amarillo College. After three years, she moved to Canyon and entered West Texas State University as a sophomore. She managed to finish her final three years in two, and it was a hectic two years, but worth it, she said. She graduated on a Saturday and started teaching at Shirley the following Monday.

"I was really excited when I graduated from WT," commented Nancy. "I was the second one in our whole clan to finish college. My parents always encouraged all of us to finish school, and they wanted me to go to college, but they couldn't help me financially, so I worked to put myself through.'

Nancy met her future husband when they were in junior high. "He was my first boyfriend," she grinned. Sammy, who was raised in Hereford, spent four years in the Navy after graduating from Hereford High School. When he returned, he and Nancy became reacquainted, and in 1980 they were married.

Sammy is a corporal with the Hereford Police Department. He attended West Texas State University and then went to police academy at Amarillo College.

The couple's daughter, Cassandra, will be 3 years old next month, and after working so hard to finish school and get started in teaching, Nancy has enjoyed staying home and spending time with her child the past two summers. The family moved into a house in December and are enjoying the extra room after having lived in apartments. They have a puppy and a rabbit, which Cassandra especially Nancy and Sammy are sponsors for the Catholic Youth Organization at San Jose Parish, and Nancy is involved in the San Jose Women's Organization. She is planning to assist with Bible classes this year.

She has been involved in several teachers' associations, and has done latch hook rugs, crocheting and needlepoint. She enjoys listening to music, and she and her husband enjoy dancing. They took square dancing lessons a couple of years ago. "We recently discovered some of the nearby lakes, and have been camping," said Nancy.

Being a teacher as well as a wife and mother is a big responsibility, and Nancy appreciates kitchen appliances that are designed for convenience. She is able to make a hearty meal without spending hours in the kitchen by using the crock pot roast recipe below. She also shares two other favorite recipes, chicken enchiladas and party punch.

Ann Landers

Playing nurturing role

I am in my early 60s and have an 8-to-5 job outside the home. When I return from work my house looks like something between a war zone and the Good Ship Lollipop: bottles everywhere, bowls of dried-up pablum, diapers, toys and magazines all over the place. To top it off, Betty feels like going out at night after being cooped up with the kids all day. This leaves me stuck with the babies.

I'm exhausted and need some advice. Don't tell me to put Betty and the kids out on the street. I couldn't do it. At the same time I owe something to myself. Please point me in the right direction.-Zonked In

DEAR ZONKED: The clue to your problem appears in your second sentence. Go back and read it. Why did you feel you should cook and clean and pick up after a woman who was old enough to marry?

Obviously Betty is spoiled rotten and selfish, t'boot. I'm not suggesting that you throw her and the kids out, but you have every right to insist that she keep your house clean and stay with her children during the evening so you can relax-or go out if you choose.

Make it plain that your home is not a hotel and that she had better shape up or look for a job and hire someone to watch the kids during the day.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A story I heard about a recent Illinois lottery winner is so incredible I can't believe

I was told that a man won more than $2 million and gave it to a friend who is married and has three children. He said he was perfectly happy with his life and that he wouldn't know what to do with that much money. He also said he had had "a feeling" that one day he would strike it rich and had promised he would give it all to this friend. Can this be?-Unconvinced In W.

DEAR W. VA .: It's true. Harold Collins of Peoria, a 57-year-old engine repairman who makes $360 a week, said he didn't need any more money and gave his winnings of $2.3 million to a 33-year-old woman in Florida. He described her as "sort of an adopted daughter" to whom he had promised "a lot of money some-

When one considers what sudden wealth does to some people, maybe Harold is smarter than most folks

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the 67-year-old man who put a dollar into the envelope every time he made love and then gave his lover the money at the end of the year compelled me to write.

I did the same thing-only I was 67. When I opened the envelope on New Year's Eve. I found several 10s and 20s mixed in with the singles. When I asked my sweetie, "How come?" she replied, "Do you think everyone is as

Pete Rose named manager of Cincinnati baseball team

CINCINNATO (AP) - Visions of the Big Red Machine of the 1970s were dancing in the minds of the Cincinnati Reds owners when they decided to hire Pete Rose as a playermanager for the struggling ball club.

"He and Tony Perez remind the people of the times when the Reds were big winners," said Marge Schott, a minority shareholder, who believes the fans will turn out for the game despite the team's next-to-last position in the National League West.

"Pete is history. If he gets close to the record (Ty Cobb's all-time career hit reord), the people will pack the stadium," Schott said.

Reds spokesman Jim Ferguson said Wednesday in St. Louis that Rose had been acquired as a player from the Montreal Expos and would replace Manager Vern Rapp starting Friday night when the Reds host the Chicago Cubs. The Reds, who were

The announcement was well received by veteran players. Team captain and shortstop Dave Conception, who played with Rose, said: "Pete will be a good manager and he will make a difference in the attitude

Rose left Cincinnati as a free agent in a wage dispute ith former Reds President Dick Wagner. He went to Philadelphia, where the Phillies won National League pennants in 1980 and 1983.

The 43-year-old Rose had difficulty finding a club to play with this year before he was signed by Montreal. But he was benched when the Expos acquired first baseman Dan Driessen from Cinncinnati. The Reds have not said who will be sent to Montreal to complete the deal.

The switch-hitting Rose, who holds the major-league record of 10 season with 200 or more hits, started the 1983 season with 3,990 hits, 201 shy of Cobb's mark of 4,191. Through Wednesday, Rose had appeared in 95 games this season, collecting 72 hits in 278 at-bats for a .259 average.

Rose broke in with the Reds in 1963 and spent 16 seasons here. He helped lead the Reds to four National League pennants (1970, 1972, 1975, 1976) and two World Series championships (1975, 1976).

Rose, named the NL Player of the Decade of the 1970s by The Sporting News, won the league's Rookie of the Year award in 1963, was named Most Valuable Player in 1973 and was the MVP in the 1975 World Series when

Oakland's Flores, Raiders face uphill battle in '84

By TIM LIOTTA AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Los Angeles Raider Coach Tom Flores knows his team has a big challenge in trying to measure up to last season's National League Football championship season.

The Raiders, who took the NFL Championship with a 38-9 victory over the Washington Redskins, will be trying to become the first team to repeat as championship since the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1979-80.

Four teams - one on the rise, one on the rebound, and two rebuilding in the Western Division of the American Football Conference will be trying to bring the World Champions down.

Twenty-one of 22 starters return from the Super Bowl victory for the Raiders. Perennial All-Pro linebacker Ted Hendricks retired recently. Led by 14-year quarterback Jim Plunkett, the offense looks almost the same with Marcus Allen and Kenny King the running backs and Cliff Branch and Malcolm Barnwell giving the Raiders at wide receiver.

Tight end Todd Christensen's holdout, seeking contract renegotiaquestion mark, but the Raiders signed free-agent tight end Dave Casper, rusher in 1983, blending it with the who played with the Raiders from 1974-80, as a precaution.

Defensively, the absence of Hendricks will be the biggest change on a squad which led the NFL in quarterback sacks last year with 57.

In cornerbacks Lester Hayes and Mike Haynes, acquired mid-season from the New England Patriots, L.A. may have the best duo in the NFL.

The Seattle Seahawks are a team on the rise that appears to be the Raiders' biggest threat. Under Chuck Knox, the Seahawks made the playoffs with a 9-7 recovered and ousted the Miami Dolphins before losing to the Raiders 30-14 in the AFC championship game.

Texas may have reduced rates

By KEN HERMAN

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas could wind up with reduced long distance rates, but higher local bills, if AT&T Communications wins approval for a $101 million rate cut, says a Southwestern pockets. Bell official who opposes the reduction.

AT&T on Wednesday asked the Public Utility Commission for a decrease of more than 14 percent on intrastate long distance calls. The company wants an increase on other services, plus a 50-cent charge for long distance directory assistant calls.

Tom Jones, AT&T vice president, said the rate reduction is possible because of management pennypinching and a recent PUC ruling he said allows chaper AT&T access to the Southwestern Bell network.

"We have discovered a viable means of reducing our cost, and we intend to pass that savings along to our customers in the form of a long distance price reduction," Jones said.

AT&T also withdrew the $301 million rate hike it asked for in March

The problem with the AT&T rate crease," he added.

cut, according to Southwestern Bell, is that it would come out of Southwestern Bell's pocket. Bell Vice President Richard Harris said that means it could come out of Southwestern Bell customers'

Under the proposal,, AT&T would cut its "access" payments to Bell and other local phone companies by $100 million.

AT&T is "simply trying to wave a magic wand and decrease the revenue they pay to Southwestern Bell and others," Harris said. "We intend, in fairness to our customers, to ask the PUC and the Federal Communications Commission whether AT&T should get lower rates" for access to the phone network.

"We don't think they're entitled to those rates," he said.

Jones said, "We're disappointed that Southwestern Bell would attempt to stand in the way of our customers getting a long distance rate reduction."

"I don't think we ought to just automatically assume that if they have a reduction from access revenues that it automatically follows that there will be a local in-

Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle, the state lawyer who represents ratepayers, said the AT&T request "overall, is very positive."

"I think that more utilities should do what AT&T is doing, look for ways to cut costs and cut expenses," he

As to whether an AT&T rate decrease would cause a Bell rate increase. Boyle said, "It's our opinion that Bell already is overcompensated."

In addition to cutting the payments to Bell, Jones said aT&T has found money by freezing management salaries and cutting its budget by 11 percent since Jan. 1.

The aT&T request cut package includes increases in several services. including WATS (32 percent) and private line (33 percent) used by business customers and competing long distance companies.

Some long distance companies buy WATS service from AT&T and resell

"AT&T is proposing increases, substantial increases, in services we take," said Martha Smiley, attorney for U.S. Telephone.

The long distance battle has heated up in Houston, where some customers now can have "equal access" to all long distance companies; an end to having to dial a long series of numbers in order to use one of the less expensive AT&T competitors.

A federal judge has ordered equal access for most of Texas by the end of 1986

What we are trying to respond to is the fact that we have a great deal of competition and the fact that we are having these equal access conversions in Texas," said Jones. "It is very important to us that we remain very competitive in those markets."

FLAT TIRES

NEW YORK (AP) - A flat tire can be fixed with an aerosol can in seconds without changing or removing the tire. according to race driver Bill Adam. Adam says products such as "Instant Spare," for example, can inflate a flat tire by simply attaching a plastic nozzle to the tire valve stem and forcing compressed air into the tire.

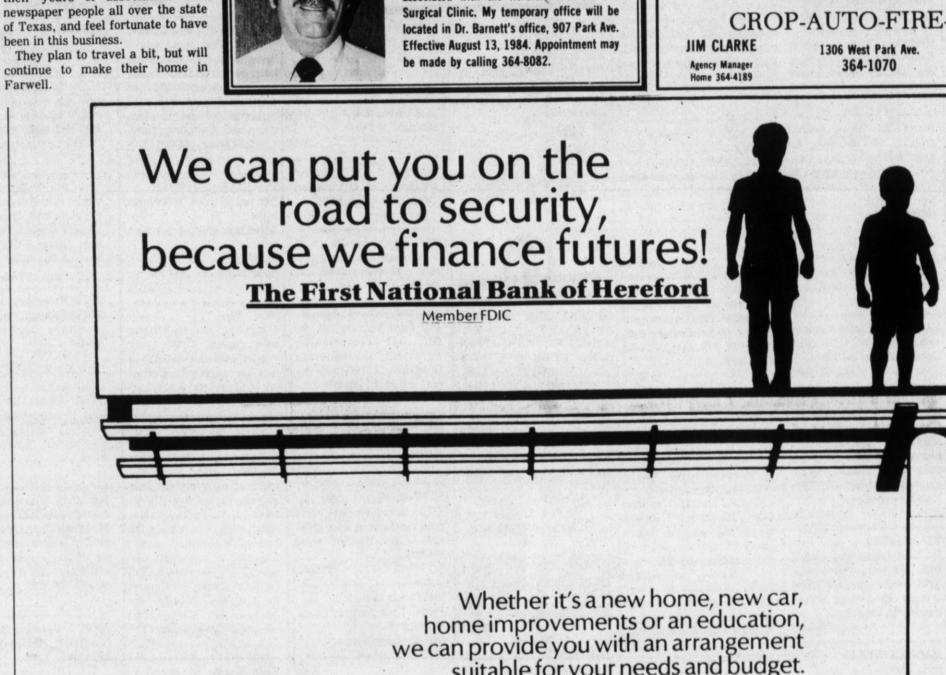

YOU AUTO HNOW

Don Henslee

Q. What is the life span of an automotive drive belt, and what are some signs that a belt needs replacement?

A. The normal useful life of a drive or fan belt is about three years. It's a very good practice to give your belts an inspection each time you change oil. Things to look for include cracking or tearing which is evident along the V side when the belt is pushed inward. Check for oil soaking which is a visible as well as touch inspection. Glazing is also an indication a belt should be replaced. This shows up as shiny streaks on the sides of the belt, and is caused by wear of the belt against the metal pulley. Check for lamination separations by twisting the belt or by holding outer and inner surfaces and pulling.
