Arid catch-all bill could end session

By LARRY MARGASAK Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers were ready to adjourn the 98th Congress today, confident President Reagan would sign a catch-all money bill that was drained of every single water project to prevent a veto.

Following House approval by a 252-60 vote Wednesday night, only today's scheduled Senate vote was needed to send the bill to the White House. But before Congress could leave, senators also had to vote to extend the government's borrowing authority.

The spending measure, which will keep most government agencies operating in the 1985 fiscal year, contains a provision that likely will cut off aid to Nicaraguan rebels next year. The administration opposes the language.

House and Senate conferees finally reached agreement on the omnibus spending bill Wednesday after a week of gridlock that kept Congress in session an extra week and forced postponement of numerous re-election campaigns.

Negotiators saved the toughest part for last, giving up cherished programs for ports, municipal water supplies, barge locks and dams.

"They really bit the bullet," said Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., senior Republican on the House Appropriations Committee.

But in fact they had little choice, with President Reagan insisting he would veto a bill containing the water projects. When the projects evaporated, the threat apparently dried up too.

White House Budget Director David A. Stockman sent lawmakers a letter saying the administration backs the compromise.

Before the agreement on water projects, the negotiators reached compromises on the aid to Nicaraguan rebels and key items in the defense budget.

Up to $14 million could be spent to assist to so-called "contras," but the money cannot be released unless both houses of Congress approve it next March.

To be signed by president

The money bill will permit three tests of a proposed anti-satellite weapons system, provided that the Congress approves it next year and certain conditions are met. Reagan's proposed "star wars" military program would be financed this year at a compromise spending level of $1.4 billion — Reagan asked for $1.8 billion. The futuristic system contemplates use of laser and particle beams to defend against missile attacks.

Also left in was President Reagan's anti-crime package, plus a number of Democrat-initiated crime-fighting measures.

Congress stripped from the money bill Wednesday — but then gave separate approval — to a $101 billion measure to run the departments of Labor, Education and Health and Human Services.

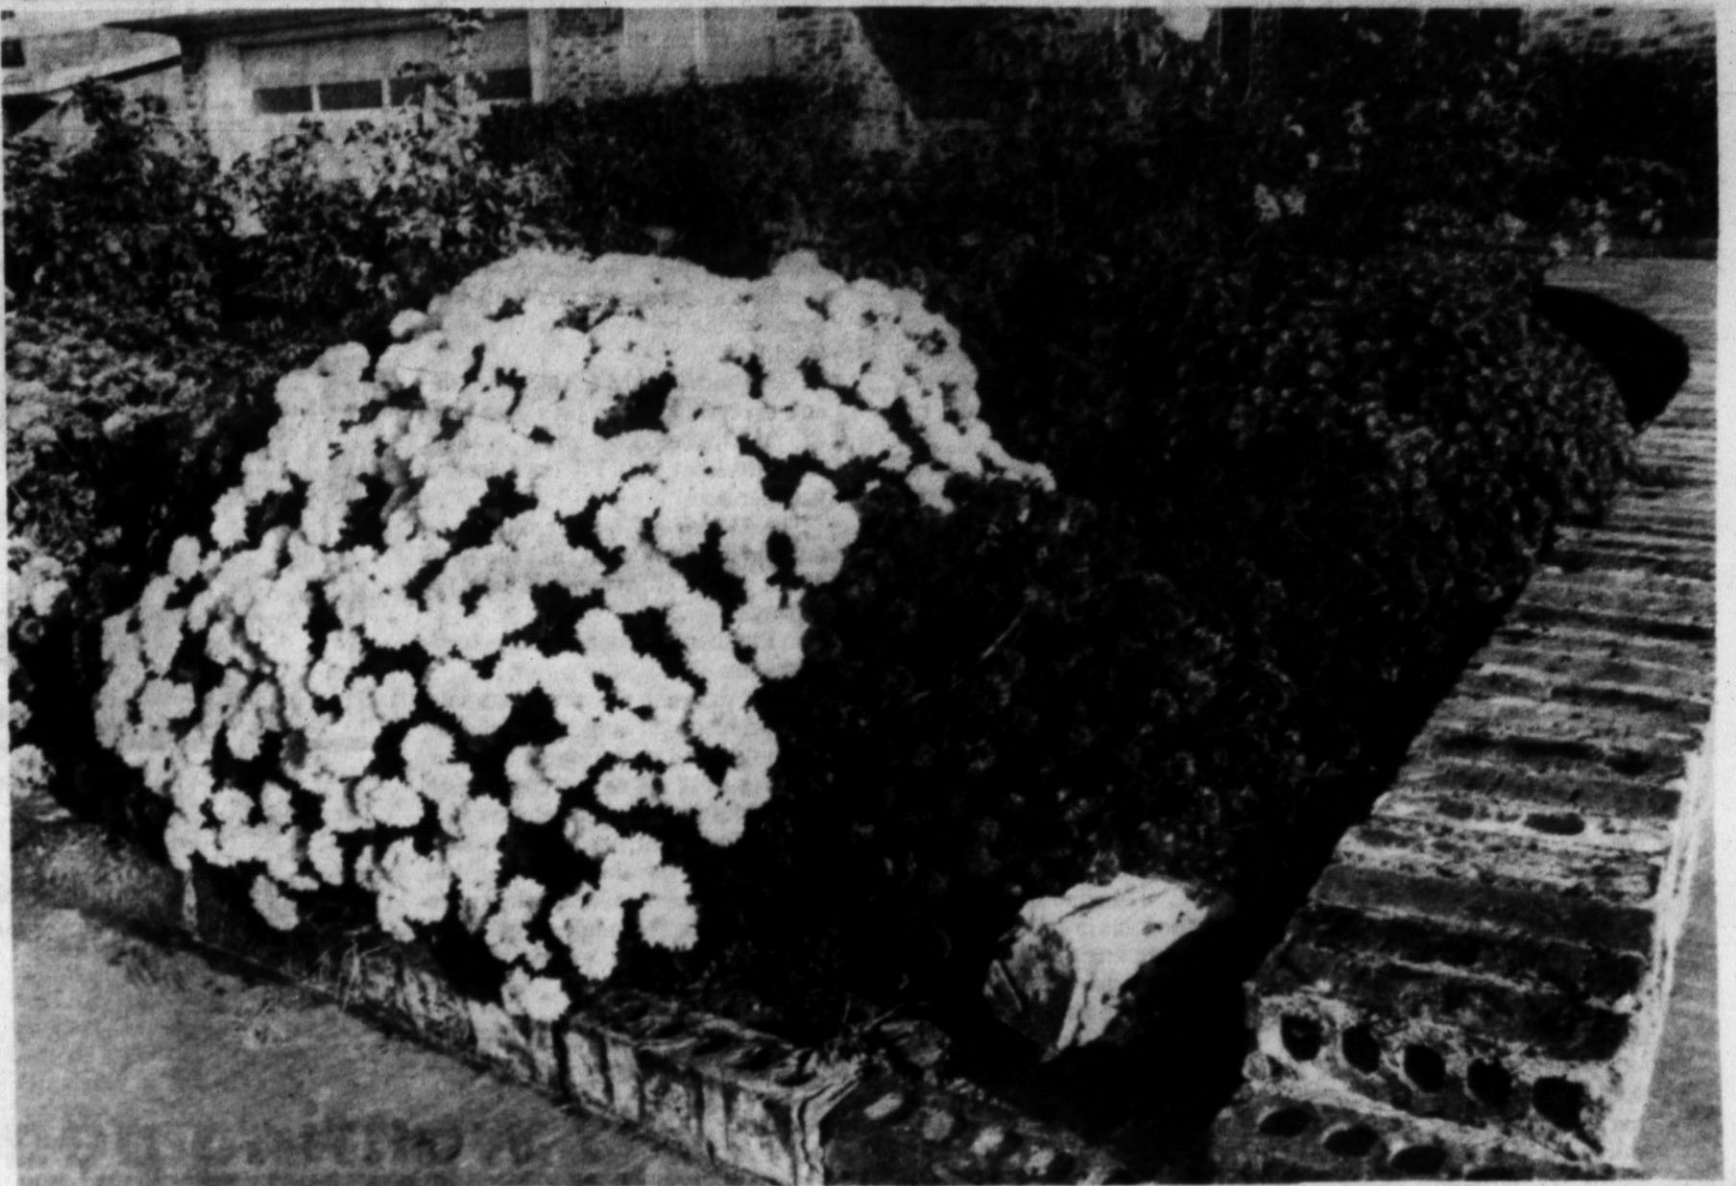

The measure would leave unchanged current law, which restricts federal money for abortions and prevents use of government funds to stop voluntary school prayer programs.

The administration's refusal to even negotiate on water projects angered Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee — who lost the Bonneville Lock and Dam project in his state.

He said the appropriation for water projects was "not even the petty cash fund at the Pentagon." Referring to defense items, he added, "The White House seems to have no limitation on its lust to increase those projects."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., defending the water projects, said he gave up because "the president wants to veto it and will blame the Democrats as big spenders."

The House had written some $139 million in water projects into the omnibus bill, while the Senate's figure was $82 million.

Blue Water management denies claims

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

The management of Blue Water Garden apartments, which a group of tenants says is guilty of discrimination, has denied the allegations made in a class-action complaint filed in federal district court in Amarillo.

In their recent response, defendants Lewis and Carol Orthman and the Maxwell Management Corporation dispute the claim of one member of the class that she was given an eviction notice for reasons that had no basis in fact.

They also offer an explanation as to why a woman who claims to be handicapped has not been moved to a downstairs apartment. Furthermore, they say another woman who accused them of refusing to rent to her never filled out an application.

In the complaint filed last month by attorneys for Texas Rural Legal Aid, Opal Lee Walker claimed her apartment was in disrepair and that she has repeatedly asked for and been denied maintenance to the unit in which she resides.

Made in recent class-action complaint

She also charged the Orthmans with failing to adjust her rent after her income changed and insinuated they gave her an eviction notice because of her involvement in the lawsuit.

According to the defendants' answer filed by Hereford attorney John Aikin, Walker was given the notice to vacate because she was at least two full months behind on her rent. The request for a rent adjustment, they pointed out, was not made to them until after the eviction notice was served.

Denying that conditions in Walker's apartment are such as to "threaten the health and safety" of the tenants, the Orthmans claim they "promptly honored" her requests for repair or maintenance.

Dolores Martinez, another tenant listed in the complaint, claimed her rights were violated because she is handicapped and was not moved to a downstairs unit. She also complained of the condition of her apartment.

"Third persons have informed defendants that plaintiff Martinez appears to negotiate the stairs without assistance and at a run," the answer states. "However, defendants did receive a physician's notice of plaintiff Martinez physical condition on or about July 30, 1984."

Martinez claimed to have moved to the complex in March of 1983, but the Orthmans say she leased an apartment in March of 1984.

With regard to why she has not been moved, the managers say Martinez is on a waiting list along with others wanting ground-level apartments for medical reasons.

Rules governing tenants eligible for Section 8 federal housing assistance say the occupant must be given an apartment that corresponds in size to the number of people living there. While vacancies did occur after Martinez made her request, the answer explains, they did not meet the size requirements she was qualified for.

Helen Ruth Stotts, who is described in the complaint as being eligible for participation in federally assisted rental housing, had claimed she was denied admission to Blue Water Gardens. According to the defendants' answer, Stotts "did orally discuss the availability of housing and declined an application."

Finally, the apartment management says the Blue Water Garden Tenants' Association lacks standing to present claims for monetary damages since it is a "non-existent association, having no members except the named plaintiffs in this suit."

The association, the answer suggests, "is the creation of plaintiff's counsel (TRLA), formed solely for this litigation and does not in fact represent the tenants of Blue Water Garden Apartments."

The defendants are asking for a jury trial.

Gramm to be in town Friday

U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, candidate for the U.S. Senate, will make a campaign stop in Hereford Friday, holding a press conference and public meeting at the Community Center Lounge beginning at 3:15 p.m.

"All interested voters are invited to meet and visit with Rep. Gramm," according to Mary Thomas, Gramm campaign chairman for Deaf Smith County.

Gramm, 41, from College Station, was elected to Congress in November, 1978, and was reelected in 1980 and 1982 as a Democrat. Upon being stripped of his seat on the House Budget committee in January of 1983 for co-authoring the Reagan economic program, he resigned from Congress and was re-elected in February, 1983. He was the first Republican representative in the history of the Sixth Congressional District.

Gramm co-authored the Gramm-Latta budget, mandating spending reductions totalling $143 billion in fiscal years 1983-84, and the

Daily attendance to determine funding

By REED PARSELL Managing Editor

Absences from school are costly here in October, as this month's average daily attendance (ADA) is to help decide what state funds the Hereford Independent School District will receive next year.

According to a revised state allocation system, HISD is to pull in $104 per student in its ADA. Last week's average absence rate of 173.4, therefore, represents a potential loss of $18,033.60 from what would be given with full attendance.

To encourage students' presence this month, prizes are being given throughout the district to those children who answer the bell daily. At Hereford High School and the two junior highs, for instance, drawings are held at the end of every week for such things as a stereo receiver.

According to Bill McCauley, principal at HHS, a beach chair and Walkman-style cassette player have already been awarded. He could not yet say, though, whether the raffles have had any effect on attendance.

Hereford Independent School District

Kids enrolled at any of the district's six elementary schools are entitled to an ice cream treat each Friday should they have gone to classes every day that week.

Any HISD student with perfect attendance during the four-weeks period Oct. 1 through 26 is to receive coupons for a free burrito at Taco Villa, french fries at McDonald's and a 16-ounce drink at Mr. Burger.

Transportation will not be provided.

Statistics given by Dr. Harrell Holder, HISD superintendent, indicate the incentives may be boosting the district's ADA somewhat. Last week's attendance was running at about 96.7 percent of enrollment, he said, whereas the normal ADA is between 95 and 96 percent.

Holder said he felt most every other Texas independent school district is also trying something to jack its attendance during periods

ADA is being eyed for state funding purposes. At a Texas Association of School Boards convention last week in San Antonio, Holder said, the Houston ISD outlined one type of incentive program.

Next spring, another four-weeks period is to be monitored by state officials. Holder said it is likely more incentives will be offered students then, since an increase of 10 to the ADA figure would pay for the prizes.

The $104 per student allotment for HISD is not definite, Holder explained. The state has a limit of what it will give districts - a little more $4.65 billion - so under-projected ADA totals may result in pro-rating disbursements, the superintendent said.

Enrollment for the entire local district was 4,874 as of Monday. Though that is two more than the previous week, it represents a 1.7 decrease from the 4,957 students signed up as of Oct. 11, 1983.

Also as of Monday there were 376 kindergarten students (311 last year), 382 first graders (452), 394 in second grade (393), 388 in third (406), 372 in fourth (322), 331 in fifth (372) and 365 in sixth (382).

Broken down per building, there were 523 kids at Aikman, 554 at Northwest and 463 at Tierra Blanca Primary Schools, along with 344 at Bluebonnet, 400 at West Central and 324 at Shirley Intermediate Schools.

A total of 2,608 students were enrolled in Hereford's elementary schools as of Monday. That is 30 fewer than were registered one year ago.

Enrollment in the two junior high schools is down from 1,179 to 1,159. La Plata has 568 children while Stanton boasts 591. There are a total of 371 seventh, 387 eighth and 401 ninth graders.

Nine hundred eleven youngsters were on the HHS rolls as of Monday, 49 fewer than were written down in 1983. The most recent figures show 357 10th, 305 11th and 249 12th graders.

Twelve-year-old takes stand

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An attorney defending 12-year-old Patricia Dempsey says there is no evidence to suggest she intentionally killed her best friend and classmate and that testimony shows the shotgun slaying was accidental.

The softspoken, brown-haired defendant would take the stand today and personally tell what happened the day Kerry Thomas, 11, was slain in the Dempsey's suburban Benbrook home, said Harold Ray, the girl's attorney.

Ray told the juvenile court jury Wednesday there was no "animosity or jealousy" between the longtime friends and that the Sept. 8 shooting occurred because a gun "unfortunately and accidentally discharged."

Ray insisted that Patricia acted out of "fear and panic" when she dragged the body from the blood-splattered living room and buried it beneath a pile of debris in a thicket behind the family home.

Kerry's body was found Sept. 12 by a neighbor who was moving his lawn.

Domino-effect suicides feared

HOUSTON (AP) — Three teen-agers in a Houston suburb may have been inspired to kill themselves by the suicides of two other teen-agers, parents of the victims say.

But parents and local officials in the Clear Lake area said Wednesday they could not confirm reports that the deaths during the last two months stemmed from a suicide pact.

Harris County Medical Examiner's Office records indicated Wednesday that five suicides have occurred in the Clear Creek School District area, an upper middle class area which includes the Johnson Space Center southeast of Houston, since Aug. 9.

All of the victims were between the ages of 15 and 19. The two most recent victims were students at Clear Lake High School. At least two others had attended schools in the Clear Creek Independent School District and the other lived in Clear Lake.

Deputy Superintendent Jimmy Larrabee said rumors persist that there is a pact in which 20 to 30 people swear to take their lives within six weeks.

TUEC rate cut questioned

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite his hand-picked commission's order cutting Texas Utilities Electric Co. rates by $9.8 million, Gov. Mark White has not fulfilled his promise to cut utility bills, says one of his top political foes.

"My response is, 'Congratulations. You've made a start, but you haven't done it yet,'" said George Strake, chairman of the Texas Republican Party. "The point is, he hasn't kept his promise yet."

The Public Utility Commission on Tuesday turned TUEC's $304 million rate hike request into a $9.8 million rate cut. White, who made utility bills a keynote in his 1982 campaign, heaped praise on the commission Wednesday.

"I never promised to lower utility bills. Some of my detractors have tried to infer there's been a promise to do that. To the extent that they even want to infer that, then we've done it," the governor said.

"We haven't done it for every person in Texas. I would like to see this effort continue," he added.

First woman walks in space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Kathy Sullivan was set to make space history today as the first American woman to walk in space, stepping out of Challenger's cabin with a male colleague to test a refueling technique for restoring spent satellites to useful life.

She and astronaut David Leestma planned to spend 3½ hours in the shuttle's open cargo bay, attached to 50-foot safety lines and bundled in $2.1 million spacesuits that provide protection from radiation, micrometeorites and the extremes of heat and cold.

With the other five crew members monitoring from Challenger's cabin, the spacewalkers were to work their way to the rear of the 60-foot-long bay where two fuel tanks are mounted. One contains 170 pounds of volatile hydrazine fuel; the second is empty.

Leestma, assisted by Ms. Sullivan, was to install a ball valve on the empty tank and run a fuel line to the second tank. Back inside the cabin, they will test the new plumbing by transferring fuel between the two tanks.

This hardware is being developed to service satellites that have run out of maneuvering fuel, and should extend their lifetimes indefinitely.

Soviets accused of violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has sent Congress a report accusing the Soviet Union of widespread "material breaches" of arms control agreements over nearly a quarter-century.

The accusations ranged from illegal missile tests and forbidden radar deployments to polluting the atmosphere with radioactive debris from underground nuclear weapons explosions.

According to a presidential panel, the Soviets have violated about half the agreements they entered, including the controversial 1972 and 1979 Strategic Arms Limitation Treaties (SALT I and II) with the United States.

The panel, formally called the General Advisory Committee on Arms Control and Disarmament, studied Soviet practices for a year. It said its inquiry was unprecedented in scope.

The report itself is classified. A summary was made public.

Reagan informed House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. in a cover letter that he was pursuing Moscow for an explanation and "corrective actions."

However, the report suggested it might be futile.

Gentor takes over corporation

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — The Gentor Corp. and a private businessman have taken control of the financially troubled Valores Industriales Corp., Gentor has announced.

No details have been released on the amount of stock that changed hands during a private meeting between the two Monterrey-based companies and businessman Jose Calderon late last week.

But a spokesman for the Gentor Corp., who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the two companies would continue to be run separately, although the Valores Industriales, known as Visa, board of directors most likely will be altered.

Neither company reportedly has called a board meeting to discuss the matter and Gentor board president Javier Garza Sepulveda has not granted interviews.

Visa, which lost about $25.4 million in 1983, has been struggling to overcome losses resulting from the 1982 pesos devaluation and inflation that ran nearly 100 percent in 1982 and 80 percent last year.

Eugenio Garza Laguera, president of Visa's board of directors, attributed the financial problems to the peso-dollar exchange rate.

Mondale gains in polls

Reagan defensive about age

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

With President Reagan put on the defensive over his age and Walter F. Mondale registering improved poll ratings, their seconds are poised to meet tonight for a nationally televised debate.

Vice President George Bush and Democratic challenger Geraldine Ferraro will face questions for 90 minutes in the second bout of a three-round match between the Republican and Democratic tickets. The debate at Philadelphia's Civic Center begins at 9 p.m. EDT.

Fallout from last Sunday's Mondale-Reagan debate was still registering on the eve of the vice presidential debate. Mondale and Reagan exchanged barbs over their TV appearance and the White House scrambled to quell growing questions over the president's age and stamina.

Asked by reporters about statements that he appeared tired during the debate, Reagan showed irritation as he said, "No, I wasn't tired."

"And with regard to the age issue and everything," the president added, "if I had as much makeup on as he (Mondale) did, I'd have looked younger, too."

The 73-year-old former movie actor said he didn't wear makeup — "I didn't wear it when I was in pictures."

In Pittsburgh, Mondale, 56, returned the fire.

"This morning the president said the problem in the debate was makeup. That's the same answer Nixon gave," he said, referring to the 1960 Kennedy-Nixon debates.

"Mr. President, the problem isn't makeup on the face — it's the makeup on those answers that gave you problems," Mondale added.

Responding to the growing attention being focused on Reagan's age as a result of his halting performance Sunday, the White House released a report on Reagan's physical examination five months ago. Spokesman Peter Rousel declared it showed the president "in A-1 health."

The physician who supervised the tests at Bethesda Naval Medical Center, Capt. W.W. Karney, said it showed Reagan to be "mentally alert, robust," and appearing younger than his years.

Emboldened by his debate reviews and appearing fiercer with every appearance, Mondale declared in New York that Reagan has begun "sounding frantic" this week.

"It's just sort of machine-gun scattershot comments that really don't go to the issues," he said.

Mondale enjoyed another day of big crowds, appearing before an estimated 15,000 people at a luncheon rally in Pittsburgh before going to New York, where he met with Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres.

Three public opinion polls released on the eve of the vice presidential debates give Mondale cause for hope — though Reagan still maintains a huge, double-digit lead.

A CBS News-New York Times poll of 515 voters showed Mondale trimming 6 points off Reagan's margin in the last week, though Reagan still leads by 20 percentage points, 58-38, according to the survey.

An ABC News-Washington Post poll put Reagan's edge at 15 points, down 3 points from a week ago at 56-41.

In the CBS-Times poll, Mondale was called a winner of last Sunday's debate by a margin of 66 percent to 17 percent. Still another poll, done by Louis Harris for Business Week magazine, showed Mondale the winner by a 62-27 score.

For Central America

Shultz wanting peace treaty alterations

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, in Panama for the inauguration of its president today, is pressing for substantial changes in a proposed Central American peace treaty backed by Nicaragua's leftist government.

Shultz believes the proposed pact gives Nicaragua an edge over Central American nations more friendly with the United States.

Among the regional leaders who conferred with Shultz on Wednesday was Nicolas Ardito Barletta, who today becomes the first directly elected civilian president in Panama after 16 years of direct or indirect military rule.

The new president faces a $3.5 million foreign debt, 14 percent unemployment and the threat of growing political unrest. Riot police clashed with about 1,000 demonstrators Wednesday during a protest over alleged vote fraud in the May 6 election, in which Ardito Barletta was supported by the military.

Shultz came to Panama from El Salvador, where he met Wednesday with President Jose Napoleen Duarte and praised him for offering to hold peace talks with leftist rebels who have been fighting the Salvadoran government for five years.

Rebel leaders agreed to meet with Duarte on Monday in La Palma, a Salvadoran mountain town in a guerrilla stronghold near the Honduran border.

Shultz said Duarte's initiative had the Reagan administration's "unqualified support." Shultz also said Duarte "is trying to do something that the Contadora process envisages — to bring about reconciliation within a framework of democratic institutions."

The Contadora group — Mexico, Panama, Colombia and Venezuela — has been trying to arrange a negotiated settlement to the various Central American conflicts.

The Reagan administration contends that Nicaragua's close ties to Cuba and the Soviet Union endanger the security of pro-U.S. countries in Central America. The United States has supported the rebels, who are based in Honduras and Costa Rica, with money, weapons and training.

The Sandinista government agreed three weeks ago to accept the latest draft by the Contadora team. The treaty calls for democratic elections, an end to foreign military intervention and negotiations among Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Guatemala, El Salvador and Honduras on achieving military parity.

U.S. officials contend there is no assurance such negotiations would be held or that military might would ever be reduced.

Concerns old people

Doggett refuses to apologize for ad

AUSTIN (AP) — Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett said he plans to substitute a photograph of two elderly people in a television ad but will continue broadcasting the advertisement in which Republican candidate Phil Gramm is quoted as saying he doesn't feel sorry for old people.

The ad controversy stems from a Doggett TV commercial on social security in which a photo of John Pennington and his daughter, Ruth Pennington, both Republicans, is flashed on the screen. In the background Gramm is quoted as saying: "They are 80 years old. Most people don't have the luxury of living to be 80 years old, so it's hard for me to feel sorry for them."

Doggett on Wednesday called the remarks made by Gramm "outrageous and callous" and said he has no apologies for the television ad even after a relative of the two people in the photo complained.

"I don't really think there's anything to apologize for," said Doggett.

On Tuesday, Ralph Pennington, 73, of San Antonio, held a news conference to say he objected to the ad, in which his father and sister are pictured.

"My sister and I believe this is a gross invasion of our family privacy and we ask that Mr. Doggett remove this ad from the television immediately," said Pennington, adding that he planned to vote for Gramm.

On Wednesday, Gramm accused Doggett at a news conference in Dallas of violating federal copyright laws by using the photograph and said his opponent is "willing to exploit the memory of people's dead relatives in order to make points politically."

"I believe any gentleman would go to that retirement center in San Antonio (where Pennington lives) and apologize to that man personally," Gramm said.

"I'm not going to let up on this issue until he does it. ... I'm going to make him apologize to this man before this campaign is over," Gramm said.

Doggett said Pennington never contacted his campaign before calling the news conference to voice his complaints.

He said the news conference was a Republican effort to divert attention from Gramm's words.

Saudi Arabian lifestyle described

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

The price of gas is 12 cents a gallon. Wheat sells for $28 a bushel. Water costs $1 a bottle and one head of lettuce is priced at about $3.

Doesn't sound like America, does it? It's not.

Those are the current prices in Saudi Arabia—a country who is so eager to improve its agricultural stance that it brings in Americans to show the native people how to farm.

More specifically, Saudi Arabia employed two Hereford men, George Muse and Charles Vasek, to teach the people how to grow wheat and other crops.

Charles was in Saudi Arabia last year and lived 90 miles from Riyadh, a city of about one million people, where he grew wheat and alfalfa.

"He enjoyed it very much," Joy Vasek said. "It was a wonderful experience, and growing on the land was such a challenge."

George is still in Saudi Arabia and has been there for about one and one-half years. He is a farm manager and grows wheat, lettuce and other vegetables.

George is employed by Prince Fawaz Najjar who attended Texas Tech University at the same time George did.

"George did not know the prince well when they were at Tech," Lyndia muse explained. "But he saw his (the prince's) name in a newspaper and called him. That's how he got started."

Presently, George lives in Riyadh, and Lyndia and her son, Chad, are hoping to join him at Christmas.

When George went over to Saudi Arabia, the land he was given to work with was desert land.

"The land had hills as high as a house," Lyndia said. "They finally just took road machinery and leveled the land. The equipment they have is the best."

The next step, Lyndia explained, was to fertilize the ground because it has so few nutrients. Then, after the crop is planted, the sprinkler system must run 24 hours a day.

"Farming was just getting started about 10 years ago," Lyndia said, "and now they're trying to upgrade their vegetable production because vegetables are so expensive to buy."

Most of the vegetables are shipped in from Holland.

After the crop is harvested, it takes approximately four days to take one load of grain to the government-controlled elevators. The grain is graded on a different scale from that used by the United States, and the grain must be good for the elevator to take it. Consequently, if the grain is labelled as bad, the farmer must take it himself and sell it for feed because the elevator operators will refuse to take it.

"Egyptian and Saudi farmers can do as well as Americans, but they want to have the Americans there," Lyndia said. "They like to have the best of whatever they can get."

Because of the fierce heat, the day starts early for the farmers. The temperature frequently reaches 125 to 130 degrees.

"The hottest day last year was 140 degrees," Joy said.

The men go inside for lunch about 2 p.m., then most of them take a nap. Work is resumed about 4 p.m. As a result, dinner is later than in America, usually 9 or 10 p.m.

The heat subsides just a little in the winter. Last winter, there were only a couple of freezes and the temperatures stayed in the 50s and 60s.

"It's like living by the ocean," Lyndia explained. "It's hot during the day, and cool at night."

Not only is the agriculture different in Saudi Arabia, many of their customs vary from those of the United States. The religion in Saudi Arabia is Moslem and their native language is Arabic. English, however, is the second language. All the road signs are in both English and Arabic.

The women, when in public, wear long, black dresses and veils over their faces. They may not drive, but have drivers to take them wherever they need to go. When in public, however, a woman must have a man with her for her protection.

Women also work only as teachers or in hospitals. They are not allowed to stay in hotels, according to Joy. Women have someone to do their shopping for them and usually have a maid.

"The malls over there are like those in Houston," Joy said. "You can find all the latest fashions from Paris and all over. It's also fun to get to see the European products beside the American ones at the grocery stores."

The country also offers ladies clubs which meet once a month as well as sports clubs.

"The women's clubs offer wonderful tours," Joy said.

"There are also cooking classes in Riyadh once a month," she continued. Each month a different country's cooking is featured. For example, one month it was Lebanese and another it was British."

The food in Saudi Arabia is good and elaborate, Joy said. They have fruit drinks which are beautiful to look at and pretty pastries. During meals, the men and women eat separately.

Since the country is dry, they serve elaborate fruit drinks, according to Joy. Another consequence of the country's dry stance is the inability of visitors to come through customs with anything which might contain alcohol.

"You can't take rubbing alcohol, vanilla or lemon extract through customs because the custom's officials don't have time to determine if the substance is drinkable," Lyndia explained.

"George says that Saudi Arabia is a very trustworthy, very honorable country," Lyndia said. "They can leave thousands of dollars laying around and no one touches it. A handshake, too, is enough to clinch a multi-million dollar deal."

"George didn't even have a contract when he went over there," Lyndia continued. "All he had was Fawaz' word and he has honored every word and has done more."

Prince Fawaz Najjar earned his appointment of Prince by service to his country. He graduated from Texas Tech with a bachelor's degree in Civil Engineering. He currently has a master's degree in that field.

Prince Najjar's wife is an American, and he is extremely adaptable to western culture, according to Lyndia.

"He comes to the United States every summer," Lyndia said. "He knows what to wear in all the different countries."

In conjunction with its strong moral code, the Saudi Arabian government punishes crimes of murder and rape by beheading the guilty at noon on Friday. Joy added that most people do not get out on the streets past eleven or twelve o'clock at night. As far as their involvement goes with the more violent Third World countries, the Saudis are very peaceful.

"They don't like to fight," Lyndia said.

The Saudis are not as time oriented as Americans are, both women agreed. Their news is sanctioned by the government.

Marriages in Saudi Arabia are the traditional type in which the parents arrange a partner for their child.

The royalty have extravagant feasts to celebrate a marriage, and the ladies and men have separate parties. Some of the men have never seen their bride before the wedding.

"You really get a taste of the old and new there," Joy said. "You see adobe homes that have televisions, electricity and modern conveniences, and tents that have water coolers and televisions."

Due to the country's Moslem religion, if a person is caught in a Christian church service, he is warned the first time and then expelled.

Another unique aspect of Saudi Arabia is the camels which may be found just about anywhere. The animals are very expensive, comparable to American horses, only better.

"The people use the milk of the camel, its hair and hide," Joy said in explaining why the camel is so important. "Camels also transport the men across the country."

Where Joy and Charles lived in the country, they could hunt for fossils just across the road.

"We found a clam and an eight inch tooth," Joy said. "The desert was really pretty in a harsh, beautiful way."

Surprisingly enough, Joy's two neighbors were Texans.

Martha Kirk of Crosbyton and Rachel Armstrong of Grady, along with Joy, would get together for dinner parties and to play cards. They helped to support each other.

Joy said that she found it difficult to adjust to being back in the United States.

Gold Market

Kharj. The gold in Saudi Arabia is less expensive than in America and only comes in 18 and 21 karats.

"I still find it hard to go places by myself," she admitted.

Lyndia is currently preparing to go to Saudi Arabia. She and Chad, 12 have never been.

"I'm real excited to go," Lyndia said. "How exciting to learn about other cultures!"

She and Chad have been trying to learn Arabic, and she said that Chad has been learning it quickly.

"George speaks enough to get by," she added.

In preparation for their living in Saudi Arabia, Prince Najjar has had a villa built for them with a pool, tennis courts and a racquetball court.

"He's also put video recorders in the rooms, so we can see American movies," Lyndia said.

Lyndia has done a little preparation of her own in the area of cooking. She and Joy shared some of the recipes that they enjoy, and which are native to Middle Eastern culture.

Bullard speaks to Veleda members

Jim Bullard, Deaf Smith General Hospital administrator, was guest speaker during the Monday evening meeting of Veleda Study Club held in the home of Marcella McLain.

Bullard spoke about the importance and need of having a community hospital in this city. He stated that it is natural for people to feel that "bigger is better" thus the Hereford facility is sometimes passed by for those in Amarillo, Lubbock or Dallas.

Bullard went on to explain about new equipment purchased over the past six months which does enable the local hospital to give the community top notch care in many fields of health care. Another factor Bullard emphasized was that this hospital has excellent doctors, nurses and staff.

He gave as goals, wanting to provide the best care possible at a reasonable cost and to be the kind of facility which people will use. He also stressed the importance of interaction and good communications between the staff, committees and executives saying "take care of your employees, they will take care of your patients and your reputation will take care of itself."

During the business meeting with President Margaret Zinser presiding, roll call was answered with "my most memorable medical experience" by those present. Also, it was decided to purchase two tickets to the Community Concert for the use by Hereford students.

The next meeting was scheduled in the home of Donna Lindeman, Oct. 22.

Those present included Marcella Bradly, Juanita Brown, Betty Gilbert, Donna Lindeman, McLain, Jean Ruther, Norma Walden and Margaret Zinser.

Interior decorator presents program

Sandy Stockstill of Stockstill Interiors presented a program entitled "Interior Decorating" to members of the Hereford Newcomers Club at a luncheon Tuesday at K-Bob's.

The guest speaker told those present that any house can be made to look like a home "It does not take a lot of money, but it is important to create an atmosphere. A home should make everyone feel at ease and not be considered a museum," she stressed.

During the business session, plans were discussed for a coffee to be held in November and it was announced that the next regular meeting will be held at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Door prizes were contributed by First National Bank and Cabachon and were received by Beckie Fry and Vernia Elliott.

Members present included Cheryle Anderson, Joy Miller, Doreatha Dotson, Camille Williamson, Ruth Evans, Marcie Ginn, Karen Barela, Susan KoJogn, Lisa Ball, Kim Lappin, Alice Eades, Vernia Elliott, Beckie Fry, Shirley Allen, Suzanne Stevens, Linda Seth and Carol Kelly.

Ann Landers

It's worth last effort

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 32 years old. My husband, Kevin is 34. We have been married 12 years. I love Kevin very much and cannot imagine my life without him.

The problem: I want a child more than anything in the world. Kevin does not. Whenever we discuss the subject he says, "Maybe next year." He has been stalling for four years. I am so frustrated I could die.

Our sex life is deteriorating. Every time we made love I want to try for a baby. He will not allow it. I cry and he gets upset. Then I become depressed and he says, "I can't stand your moods."

Last night we had a terrible argument—same old thing. In a fit of rage he yelled, "Why don't you divorce me and marry someone who will give you a family?" I was so shocked and hurt I couldn't believe my ears.

The irony of all this is that Kevin is great with kids. He is terrific with my nieces and nephews. I just know he would make a fabulous father.

Money is no problem. We could provide for a child or two. We both have excellent jobs and have a nice nest egg. Meanwhile, time is running out because of our ages. I need some good advice, Ann, and I hope you can come up with something soon. I'm signing myself—Too Many Tears In Oklahoma

DEAR T.M.T.: I suggest joint counseling as a last-ditch effort to save your marriage. If Kevin refuses to go, go yourself, and consider his refusal a sign that he is less interested in staying married than you are.

For whatever it is worth, I can tell you that the vast majority of the Kevins in this world are crazy about the baby they didn't want, once it arrives. I'll bet your husband fits that mold. But don't get pregnant on the sly or you might regret it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter says I am out of my mind. Maybe I am, but I would like an opinion on a matter that has me very troubled.

Lisa, my 2-year-old grandchild, is an unusually pretty and sweet child. A 12-year-old neighbor boy has what I consider an extraordinary attachment to her. He spends every minute he possibly can with Lisa—constantly touching her hand, patting her hair, straightening her hair-bow and catering to her every whim.

When I was visiting the other day, I took Lisa to the bathroom. The 12-year-old followed us. I asked him to please wait outside. This seemed like unusual behavior. When I mentioned it to my daughter, she said I was evil-minded and all children are curious. I was then told to M.Y.O.B.

I wonder what you think of the boy's extraordinary devotion to this child? Am I reading too many newspapers and watching too much TV? What do you think?—Portland Grandma

DEAR PORTLAND: I recommend that your bat-blind daughter wake up and smell the coffee. A 12-year-old boy who shows so much interest in a 2-year-old girl needs some looking into. Most 12-year-old boys like to be around boys their own age. Your daughter should never leave these two young people alone unsupervised. She should also talk to her pediatrician about this unusual attachment and ask his opinion. Meanwhile—where is the boy's father? I'll bet he would take a very dim view of this attachment. I certain do.

Drugs? How much is too much? Is pot OK? Is cocaine too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Landers' "all-new" booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

San Diego rallies Wednesday

Padres tie Series

By HARRY ATKINS

AP Sports Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — With three runs in, two men on and the game only two outs old, the Detroit Tigers started playing numbers games early in the second game of the World Series. It turned out to be too early. The Tigers, with the first game already in hand, were looking for a quick finish as they burst to a 3-0 lead Wednesday night. But the San Diego Padres stormed back for a 5-3 victory, sending Detroit home with only a split of the first two Series games.

"After scoring three runs in the first inning, we were naturally thinking sweep," infielder Darrell Evans said. "You can't take anything away from the Padres, though. They came back and won it with some of the best relief pitching I've ever seen."

It was some of their own medicine — air-tight relief pitching and a three-run homer — that made the Tigers rearrange their arithmetic.

Andy Hawkins relieved starter Ed Whitson with two outs in the first and faced only the minimum 16 batters over the next 5 1-3 innings. Then Craig Lefferts came on to shut the Tigers down on only one hit over the final three innings.

"Eight innings pitched and two hits, that's some pitching," Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "Hawkins put a complete stop on us."

Anderson said he was disappointed at splitting the two games in frenzied Jack Murphy Stadium.

"We certainly didn't accomplish what we wanted," he said. "When we go out there, we feel we can win

Just For Kicks

Hereford High School football player Jesse Andrade leans back and punts the ball near the ground during workout Wednesday at the practice field. The Herd meets the No. 1-ranked team in New Mexico Friday when Clovis comes to town for a 7:30 p.m. ball game at Whiteface Stadium. Hereford is looking to even its season record at 3-3 in the non-district affair.

Wildcats bring top-ranked New Mexico team to town

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

How does a coach prepare his team to face a three-time defending state champion in high school football?

For Hereford High School coach Jerry Taylor, he just keeps on keeping on, he said.

"I think it's a different tempo (in practice), but the preparation is about the same," Hereford High School coach Jerry Taylor said. "I can't really detect that getting ready to play somebody is any easier (following a Whiteface win than it would be had the Herd lost)."

It is Taylor's Whitefaces who must meet Clovis, N.M., at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Whiteface Stadium. And Clovis is that three-time defending New Mexico champion. Three-time as in three consecutive years, that is.

To add to the awesomeness of that statistic, Taylor said he thinks Clovis' coach Eric Roanhaus and the Wildcats will be just as formidable this season.

"Frankly, I think they're headed for their fourth straight title," he said. "But my job is to coach our team and not our opponent. I can't get overly concerned about what they are going to do when our team gets sacked 10 plus times a game, for example."

When the Whitefaces and Wildcats take the field Friday, the Herd not only will be looking for its first win at home in 1984, but also to score its first points in Hereford. At home, the Whitefaces have been defeated 21-0 by San Angelo Central and Palo Duro, and 45-0 by Amarillo.

The fact Hereford hasn't scored at home is one that bothers Roanhaus.

"I guarantee you that statistic will change this Friday," he said. "Hereford has had some key people hurt. I predict they'll break that (scoreless) string."

Prior to 1984, Hereford's last loss at home was Oct. 19, 1980, to Plainview 21-0. But Roanhaus realizes the quality of the teams Hereford has faced, especially at home.

"If we played Hereford's schedule," he said, "we'd be lucky to be 2-3. And that's the truth. We might be 1-4 at this point."

Instead, Clovis brings to town the New Mexico No. 1 ranking, a 4-0-1 record with a four-game winning streak and a host of healthy players. The Whitefaces are coming off an upset win over Coronado in Lubbock and are looking to even their season record at 3-3. Hereford also is healthy this week.

Only two players are listed as questionable for Clovis, split end Steve Hill and defensive end Sean Bunch. Roanhaus plans to use Ronnie Cordova some at the offensive position and Lance Langan at the defensive slot. Roanhaus listed Langan as a probable starter.

The Wildcats' lone mark on their near-perfect record is a 0-0 tie the first game of the season to one of Hereford's league counterparts, Palo Duro. The Wildcats managed 163 total yards against Palo Duro in that game.

"The two teams (Hereford and Palo Duro) are not similar, not really," Roanhaus said. "I think

With Campbell gone

Back believes Oilers to throw

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — An eventual side-effect of the Houston Oilers' trade of Earl Campbell to the New Orleans Saints could be the long-awaited diversification of the offense, Oiler running back Larry Moriarty believes.

Moriarty and rookie Willie Joyner, who will fill the void left by Campbell, are more adept at pass receiving than Campbell, but it may take awhile.

With a 0-6 record, the Oilers have plenty of time.

"I think we will but we haven't really been accustomed to throwing the ball too much to the backs," Moriarty said.

"Even though there are plenty of plays in there to throw the ball to the backs, Warren (Moon) hasn't thrown much to the backs but the more confidence he gets and the more the backs catch, the more you will see the diversified offense.

"You'll see less blitzing, the whole thing. It will start like a snowball and keep rolling."

Moriarty, who last week renewed his desire to be traded, isn't sure he'll be around to enjoy the expanded Oiler offense.

Moriarty, a bullish-type runner and one of the strongest players on the team, thinks the Oilers want someone with Joyner's speed and maneuverability at the position.

"I think they are looking for more of a shake-and-bake-type back, I've always said that," Moriarty said. "But all I can do is my best and help the team win."

Oiler Coach Hugh Campbell says both Moriarty and Joyner can expect more playing time.

"The people who are here will carry the load," Campbell said. "I would guess that Larry would carry a little bit more in relationship to, say, Willie Joyner but I also think Willie demonstrated that he earned some playing time in preseason which he hasn't gotten."

"Willie's been a little short-changed. I would expect some of that time to be made up to him. Larry has played more downs than Earl. We feel a loss but we don't feel decimated at that position. We have some capable people."

Moriarty, a fifth round draft choice from Notre Dame, was disappointed in his late selection and thinks the Oilers will try to deal him a lower contract because of where he was drafted.

"When you get down to the bargaining table, they are going to try to buy their apples as cheaply as they can," Moriarty said. "I think there's going to be a hassle there."

"I probably wasn't labeled as that top back coming out of college and it seems once you get a label in this business you are kind of stuck with and I am determined not to be stuck with that label."

Hugh Campbell said there would be no change in the Oilers' offense but it could make the offense less predictable.

"If you want to look at the plus side, we were admittedly a little bit predicatable when Earl was in," Campbell said. "We were more apt to run the football and when he was in there and we were more apt to pass when he wasn't."

Linkster aims for Vardon

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Calvin Peete, golf's most consistent player the past three years and leading the Vardon Trophy race this year, seeks his second consecutive victory this weekend in the $300,000 Southern Open golf tournament. Peete, coming off a triumph in last weekend's Texas Open — his first in 15 months — is one of the favorites over the par 70, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

The field scheduled to tee off today included Jack Nicklaus, defending champion Ronnie Black and Denis Watson, the South African who has won three of the last nine tour events and over $400,000 for the year.

Peete, who has won $232,000 this year, at 41 has become the most successful black ever on the Tour with eight victories and nearly $1.3 million in nine years.

He says the winning is fine, but capturing the Vardon Trophy — for the lowest scoring average — is his goal.

Peete finished second in the race in 1983 to Raymond Floyd by .001 percentage point with a 70.62 average. This year he is No. 1 with a 70.56 average, ahead of Craig Stadler's 70.73 with three tournaments left in 1984. Stadler is not entered here.

Peete captured his first tournament in 1979 but didn't win again until 1982 when he won four times.

AP picks Oklahoma over Texas Saturday

By The Associated Press
"I've been involved in these for 19 years now and it really and truly is what a football classic is all about," says Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer.

What Switzer is talking about is the annual college football border war between Texas and Oklahoma — the universities, not the states, although sometimes on Friday night in Dallas it seems the latter is the case.

The Longhorns and Sooners go into Saturday's clash as the nation's No. 1 and 3 teams, respectively. Offensively, they are even closer than that. Oklahoma is averaging 378.8 yards a game, Texas 371.3; Texas has averaged 33.7 points, Oklahoma 29.7.

But where last year Texas was the nation's top defensive club, this time the Longhorns are only 43rd, yielding 326.7 yards a game, while Oklahoma ranks second at 229.7. The Sooners also are second in rushing defense at 64.0, Texas 38th at 138.3.

And although Texas Coach Fred Akers says that "more times than not, this kind of football game is a tossup," the Longhorns are 3½-point favorites. But with quarterback Todd Dodge a question mark and operating under the theory that it's not healthy for a team to be No. 1 week after week, the pick is . . . Oklahoma 17-14.

Last week's score was 33 right, 16 wrong and one tie for a percentage of .673, dropping the season record to 203-72-9—.738, although two of the three Upset Specials — North Carolina State over Georgia Tech and Houston over Baylor — came through. Against the spread, the count was 13-19—.406; for the year, 74-75—.497.

No. 2 Washington (favored by 8½) at Stanford: Upset Special of the Week, Stanford 24-20.

Temple at No. 4 Boston College (by 15): Boston College 31-14.

Wyoming at No. 5 Brigham Young (no line): BYU 35-14.

Missouri at No. 6 Nebraska (by 10½): Nebraska 21-17.

No. 7 Southern Methodist (by 8½) at Baylor: Second Upset Special, Baylor 24-17.

Illinois at No. 8 Ohio State (by 6½): Ohio State 28-17.

No. 16 Auburn at No. 9 Florida State (by 3): Auburn 27-20.

No. 10 Miami, Fla. (by 24½) at Cincinnati: Miami 38-7.

No. 11 Penn State (by 2) at Alabama: Alabama 24-17.

Vanderbilt at No. 12 LSU (by 6½): LSU 28-14.

Iowa (by 4) at No. 14 Purdue: Iowa 27-17.

Mississippi at No. 15 Georgia (by 7½): Georgia 24-14.

No. 18 Florida (by 6½) at Tennessee: Florida 27-18.

No. 19 Kentucky (by 2) at Mississippi State: Mississippi State 21-14.

No. 20 Georgia Tech (by 1½) at Virginia: Georgia Tech 24-13.

Capitals want change, title as NHL opens season today

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

For the Washington Capitals, even the slightest improvement could mean a division title. And the Caps know exactly where that improvement can come from.

"If we get off to any kind of a decent start, we'll have a real good shot at finishing in first place," said Washington captain Rod Langway, the National Hockey League's best defenseman the past two seasons. "We went into last year with such high hopes and fell apart. If we'd gotten off to a good start, I think we would have won the division."

The Capitals, who open the NHL season tonight in Philadelphia, lost their first seven games last October. In doing so, they gave the rest of the Patrick Division — arguably the league's toughest — a significant head start.

Washington dug its way out of that deep hole and carried the race for the division flag down to the final week. The Caps wound up second with 101 points, three behind the New York Islanders. They also posted the best defensive record in the NHL, allowing only 226 goals and getting four shutouts each from goaltenders Pat Riggin — who had the best goals-against average in the league (2.66) — and Al Jensen (third at 2.91).

"It's no secret that defense is our strength, the thing we've built around," said Bryan Murray, the NHL coach of the year last season. "We had our confidence built from last season and we'll take it from there."

What the Capitals may need to keep moving up is more offense. While their defense was easily the best in hockey — by 31 goals over Buffalo — they scored only 308 goals. In these days of high-powered offenses, Washington found itself lacking on attack in the playoffs.

The Flyers, swept in the opening round playoffs by the Capitals, are under a new regime. Longtime star center Bobby Clarke retired to become the team's general manager. His first move was to hire Mike Keenan — a success in the minor leagues and Canadian college action — as coach.

The Oilers, who open in Los Angeles tonight, set an NHL goal-scoring record for the third straight year by notching 446. But they've also upgraded their defense and, coupled with the maturity gained last spring in the playoffs, enter the season a solid favorite in the Smythe Division.

In other games tonight, it's Pittsburgh at Boston, Montreal at Buffalo, Hartford at the New York Rangers, Toronto at Minnesota, Detroit at Chicago, Quebec at Vancouver and St. Louis at Calgary.

On Friday, the New York Islanders open at New Jersey.

Hereford has the better passing attack and Palo Duro the better running attack. Both have some quality athletes.

"We don't throw as well as Hereford does. We're primarily pedestrians."

Clovis operates from the same principal formations that Hereford does. On offense, the Wildcats run from the veer formation behind running backs Darren Kelly (5-10, 155) and Kevin Meister (5-11, 185) and quarterback Eddie Guajardo (5-9, 155). Hereford will use the services of running backs Alan Dudding and Vincent Brown and quarterback Mike Scott.

"One tough thing about Hereford is that you can't only concentrate on their passing game," Roanhaus said. "You can't ignore those running backs. They compliment the passing game very well."

PADRES

every night. We're disappointed that we didn't win tonight."

It was the Tiger's first defeat in five post-season games. The club has a history of streaking, having won their first nine during the regular season enroute to a record 35-5 start in the American League East.

"We didn't expect it to be a cakewalk. A lot of people were hoping it would be, I know — including me," right fielder Kirk Gibson said. "I think it says a lot about their ballclub. They showed a lot of character."

Detroit starter Dan Petry, who lasted only 4 1-3 innings, walked Graig Nettles to open the Padres' fifth and Terry Kennedy singled off Lou Whitaker's glove to set the table for Kurt Bevacqua's game-winning three-run homer that wiped out a 3-2 Detroit lead.

"The ball had a lot of top-spin," Whitaker said of Kennedy's hit. "It was just a bad break. I was lucky not to have pieces of bone sticking out of

"I respect very much Jerry Taylor and his staff. They'll hit your body."

On defense, the Wildcats use a 5-2 formation, just as Hereford does.

"We haven't scored at home and haven't won here," Taylor said. "It's time."

"This is a good hitting park, but I think this is a terrible field. I wouldn't want to play defense here."

Petry, who was in trouble in every inning, seemed frustrated at having blown the first-inning lead.

"You're supposed to hold a lead like that and I just couldn't do it," he said. "All season long I didn't walk many. This was just so uncharacteristic of me."

Heading back to Detroit, catcher Lance Parrish said the Tigers would prevail.

"It might go seven games, it might go five. Who cares? I'm not going to worry about it. I still think we've got a pretty good ballclub. We'll be OK."

'The Cosby Show' has NBC thinking big

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS won the ratings war for the week ended Oct. 7, but NBC appears to have dealt it a heavy blow on Thursday night, a CBS stronghold until Bill Cosby returned in a new comedy series.

Although NBC finished third for the week, the strong showing by "The Cosby Show" has raised hopes at the network that it will end the ratings decline it has been in since the mid-1970s.

ABC was second, although the network dumped three new series and revamped its Tuesday and Thursday-night schedules after its worst opening week ratings since 1962. The network had only one program in the Top 10 this week, and not even a regular series at that. The prime-time runner-up of its coverage of the final game of the National League baseball playoffs was seventh.

NBC fell to third after a second-place finish the previous week. But for the season overall, NBC is still in second place. And the huge ratings from the movie "The Burning Bed," plus the big ratings expected from its coverage of the World Series could put NBC in first place for the season.

The presidential debate Sunday was not given a rating because it was not a sponsored program. ABC said, however, that it attracted an estimated 90 million viewers on all three commercial networks. This does not include its audience on other networks and cable.

CBS won the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey with a network average of 18.5. ABC was second with 16.0 and NBC was third with 15.9. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 18.5 percent of the TV homes were tuned to CBS.

CBS was first once again among news shows. ABC was second and NBC was third. The ratings: CBS 11.9, ABC 10.0, NBC 9.7.

Here are the week's 10 top programs:

1. "Dallas," CBS, a rating of 24.7 or 20.9 million households.
2. Movie—"He's Not Your Son," CBS, 23.2 or 19.6 million.
3. Movie—"Passions," CBS, 22.4 or 19.0 million.
4. "Simon & Simon," CBS, 22.0 or

18.7 million.

5. "The Cosby Show," NBC, 21.9 or 18.6 million.

6. "The A-Team," NBC, 21.8 or 18.5 million.

7. National League Playoffs, Game No. 5, ABC, 21.5 or 18.2 million.

8. "Knots Landing," CBS, 21.1 or 17.9 million.

9. "Family Ties," CBS, 21.0 or 17.8 million.

10. "Murder She Wrote," CBS, 20.3 or 17.2 million.

Following a luncheon, members exchanged plants. After a brief business discussion, Johnnie Messer, president, gave a program on "Sugar in Your Diet."

After the program she told of her trip to the state meeting in San Angelo.

Members present were Messer, Blackwell, Wanice Jones, Carmen Rickman, Brenda Pagett and Tonie Vaughn.

The next meeting will be Nov. 7 in the home of Carmen Rickman.

Abundant Life

Bob Wear
WE ARE CAPABLE of developing great skill in the use of the power of speech. Although we may never reach perfection in this area, we must continue to work for the greatest possible skill in our talking. The tongue, the instrument of our talking, is controlled by the mind; we must be working to develop the best possible mental conditioning.

OUR FOOLISH and useless talk can be hurtful to others and to ourselves, but wise and constructive talk will be helpful to others and to us. It has been said, "A sword the body wounds, a word the soul." Whereas the unwise and the uncharitable talk can wound and make sick, the wise and charitable talk can heal and soothe; can encourage and build up.

THE INCLINATION to let others know that we know about people or situations or conditions must be restrained if we wish to become skillful in our talking. It is not wise to "speak unadvisedly what we know, but we will wait for the opportune time, either from humility or wise caution." Being quick to reveal what we know, or think we know, is like "the merchant who puts all of his goods in the window, and it becomes obvious that he is not the owner of a large stock." The vain display of knowledge is said to be one of the weakest traits of humanity. In this connection, what we usually call gossip may be the most unskillful stewardship of the power of speech.

OUR KNOWLEDGE must be cherished and guarded well, because it will help us to make the right and the wise use of life. It is best preserved and applied by developing the greatest skill in our talking. This skill will protect and enrich all other skills.

AN OPEN & SHUT CASE.

Sure, your bolls will open sooner or later. But new PREP™ ethephon plant regulator builds a very strong case for opening them a lot sooner. And all together.

First, only PREP can open up to 95% of your mature bolls. It actually releases ethylene — nature's ripening agent — inside the cotton plant. This speeds the ripening process, so you can harvest almost all your cotton with just one pick. Sell it at a first pick price. And usually save the labor and fuel expense of an additional picking.

Second, PREP plant regulator lets you harvest 7 to 14 days earlier than usual. So your cotton is safely out of the field before late season pests and frosty, wet weather get to it.

Also, witness the enhanced defoliation you get with PREP. It helps eliminate the need for a second defoliant spray. And sheds late season squares and bolls that do nothing but feed overwintering insects.

Finally, PREP plant regulator brings order to your cotton harvest. You spray a different portion of your crop every few days, then harvest in sequence to maximize your use of time and labor.

The verdict: clean, high quality cotton, bottom-crop to top. And a first pick price for a whole field of first pick cotton.

Judge for yourself. Spray your crop with PREP, and build your own strong case for higher quantity, higher quality cotton yields.

DIDN'T LIKE DICKENS ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - An authority on the works of Charles Dickens says that when he was young he "never liked" the 19th-century British novelist.

Young Hispanic woman finally comes of age

DENTON, Texas (AP) - A young woman passed down the aisle of the church, stepping solemnly to the music in her lacy white dress, complete with hooped skirt. She bent her head to go through an archway, formed by 13 dames holding batons, and their escorts, holding ribbons that streamed from the batons. As she arrived at the altar, she gave the sign of the cross.

It wasn't a wedding, but an event almost as important to a Hispanic girl in the Catholic Church, a quinceanera. The word translates loosely to "sweet 15 anniversary," but it is more than a birthday celebration. It is a recognition of a girl coming of age in the Catholic Church, of the passage from girlhood to womanhood. Sylvia Ann Serna of Denton took that step recently at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church.

Sylvia's mother, Connie Sosa, explained the quinceanera is part of a process that begins with the baby's baptism and continues with first Holy Communion at age 7.

"At a quinceanera, you take the sacrament, and when you get to the age to be married by the church, that's another vow you take," she said.

Sylvia took classes to learn the meaning of the quinceanera and the sacraments and doctrines of the Catholic church. A few weeks before the event, though, she was still lukewarm about its importance, telling her mother she planned to wear blue jeans under her dress.

"I told her to wear the dress instead of me," Sylvia said.

But her mother said the ceremony should have special importance to her only daughter pointing out a streak of grey in the girl's dark hair. The grey marks the place where Sylvia had a brain tumor removed when she was a child and now has a plastic plate in place of the bone. Although Sylvia has been healthy for years, Mrs. Sosa said no one knows when problems might occur again.

"If God takes you away, at least you'll have this, and I have it to remember for the rest of my life," she said. "I'm trying to make these kids understand the meaning of the quinceanera - it's something you will treasure the rest of your life and wish everybody will have the way you did."

During the ceremony, the significance seemed clear to Sylvia. Although some of her dames and escorts stifled giggles as they came down the aisle, she looked thoughtful throughout.

The ceremony began with music in both English and Spanish, and the Mass was bilingual as well. Sylvia, her white dress trimmed in deep purple to distinguish it from a wedding dress, took her seat alone on a front pew near the altar. Her mother; her escort, Tony Juarez; and the dames and other escorts sat behind her, dressed in lavender lace dresses and grey tuxedos accented with lavender.

The quinceanera was performed during a regular Mass at Immaculate Conception, and the Rev. John Mitchell explained the ceremony for those unfamiliar with it.

"In Mexico, and many other countries, when a girl becomes 15 it's a sort of coming of age, something like a bar mitzvah in the Jewish religion," he explained. "Sometimes, it's done for both a boy and a girl if they are twins. We consider it a change from a little girl, or a nina, to mujere, a woman."

"In the Mass, she says she wants the Lord to guide the development of her personality and her emotional development and spiritual development."

Popo Gonzalez came before the congregation to explain the four symbols of the quinceanera: the medal, the ring, the flowers and the crown.

"The medal is the religious expression of faith," he said. "The ring symbolizes her responsibility to her community and to God. Flowers represent newness in any ceremony, and here they represent the newness of her commitment and responsibility to the community. The crown represents the victory the young lady has won in trying to lead a Christian life in the midst of all the problems and challenges of her environment."

As he spoke, Sylvia's godparents presented her the four gifts: the necklace with the medal came from Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Serna and Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Juarez; the flowers and crown were from Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Padron.

Sylvia continued facing the altar to recite a brief statement about her commitment to the church, and then was the first to take the wafer and wine during communion.

The scene after the ceremony was much like the scene after a wedding: a happy mother flitting among formally dressed young men and women outside the church, people lining up for pictures and arranging rides to the dance. Sylvia danced the first dance at the Civic Center with her escort, then danced with her uncle, who replaced her pure glass crown with a simple crown for dancing. The party went on until midnight.

A quinceanera is an expensive proposition, but Mrs. Sosa said Sylvia had more than 100 sponsors who contributed for her dress, shoes, jewelry, jewelry box and other essentials such as the cup she drank from at the dance, the pillow she knelt on during the ceremony, her rosary and Bible, the cake for the reception and photographs of the ceremony and dance.

Mrs. Sosa said she began planning for the ceremony for more than a year.

"When I was growing up, we were too poor to have a quinceanera," she recalled. "I was trying my best to have a nice one for her."

NEWS SHORTS

ATLANTA (AP) - There are two common mistakes to avoid about arthritis, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

One is to believe arthritis is not serious, the other is to think nothing much can be done to treat arthritis.

"Although some kinds of arthritis may start with what seems to be minor aches and pains, they can end up making you seriously ill," the foundation says.
