Former teacher files for school board post

A Dawn woman who formerly taught in the Hereford school system and served as county Democratic chairman filed Monday for the District 3 spot on the Hereford Independent School District Board of Trustees.

Mary Parker, 39, will campaign for the now-vacant spot to be decided on April 6. Bud Patterson is the only other candidate for the post so far, with the filing deadline set for March 6.

The newest candidate is married to Gerald Parker, a rancher and Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Reserve officer and the mother of three children who attend Hereford schools.

A native of Corpus Christi, she holds a bachelors degree from the University of Texas at Austin and a master's degree from West Texas State University. Parker taught speech and drama in Corpus Christi, at WTSU and for Amarillo College before serving as a speech and English teacher at Hereford High School from 1979 to 1983.

"I believe every child should have the best education in the best possible educational setting that the resources of this community can provide," Parker stated. She said implementation of essential elements programs and communication between teachers and administrators are among important issues now before the school board.

"Many teachers feel a lack of esteem because they perceive themselves to be in a situation over which they have no control," Parker claimed.

She said the teachers of the HISD are fully capable of meeting the challenges placed before them, and that better communication will help them to do so.

Parker was a member of the district's five-year planning committee during her teaching years, and was active in a number of teacher organizations. Her community activities include work for the YMCA, United Way, Red Cross and the Deaf Smith County Historical Society.

The Parkers are members of the Dawn Baptist Church, which Mrs. Parker serves as an adult Sunday school teacher.

County names attorney

Rex Easterwood was named to the Deaf Smith County Industrial Development board Monday by the Deaf Smith County Commissioners, during a routine meeting that lasted less than an hour.

Commissioners approved Easterwood at the recommendation of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce executive Mike Carr, who sought the appointment following the resignation of Tom Burdett. Reappointed to the commission were Dick Montgomery and Bob Gentry.

County voters voted unanimously to endorse resolutions pertaining to bills now before the Texas Legislature. County Clerk David Ruland, who explained the resolutions to commissioners and voiced his support of the drafts, said he was especially in favor of the resolution against state monies being collected at the county level.

Ruland explained that several bills have been introduced in the Texas Legislature that would require county clerks to collect additional money, such as higher fees for marriage

Local union ratifies contract

The first union contract for the Swift Independent Packing Co. in Hereford has been ratified by the local Union No. 540 of the United Food and Commercial Workers International AFL-CIO.

Negotiations which started in early April, soon after the plant went union, were completed on Friday with a vote. The last sessions of negotiations began on Thursday for the three year contract.

Manager B.H. Nary said the local plant employs approximately 400 with an "undetermined number belonging to the union at this time."

The most immediate effect is the increase in hourly wages. Fabrication workers received a raise of 30 cents an hour to bring the pay to $7 an hour; Mechanics received a 70 cent an hour raise and slaughter workers a 20-cent raise to bring both of those hourly wages to $7.40.

A starting rate affecting employees hired in this period will be $6.20 for slaughter workers and mechanics and $5.90 for fabrication workers. Progressive raises are set at six month intervals until the basic pay is reached.

Combest wants probe

Congressman Larry Combest has asked the Legal Services Corporation (LSC) to conduct a full investigation into the Hereford office of Texas Rural Legal Aid. (TRLA)

The Lubbock representative from the 19th District announced Friday that he made the request of Thomas J. Opsut, director of LSC's Office of compliance and Review, after seeing the report of a preliminary investigation conducted last November.

"The situation in Hereford, Texas is one which needs immediate attention," Combest said in a letter to Opsut. "It is particularly distressing that taxpayer money is being spent on activities which are wasteful and counter productive."

The report Combest reviewed was prepared by Wendell Wylie, an investigator with the OCR, who visited Hereford and recorded citizen complaints for four days last fall. Although Wylie admitted that many of the allegations in the report were unsubstantiated, he nonetheless was critical of the local office on several points.

Combest is asking that LSC conduct a thorough investigation, and that defunding be "heavily considered" if the investigation confirms Wylie's report. He also asks the LSC board of directors to develop a medium through which Hereford residents can submit their comments regarding the function and conduct

Major crime bosses arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — The bosses of New York's five major organized crime families and four other reputed mobsters were arrested in a federal sweep overnight, a source close to the case said today.

The announcement of the arrests was scheduled to be made later this morning at a news conference with FBI Director William Webster, Assistant Attorney General Steven Trott and U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani.

Giuliani's office described the suspects as associated with "the Commission of La Cosa Nostra."

Arresting agents found all the suspects they sought, said the source, who spoke only on condition that he not be named.

The so-called Commission reputedly functions as a board of directors controlling organized crime activity across the country.

Spokesmen at the offices of Giuliani and the FBI in New York declined to give any details in advance of the news conference.

One suspect was identified by the New York Post as Paul "Big Paul" Castellano of Staten Island, believed to be boss of the Gambino family, the largest and most powerful organized crime family in the country.

The Daily News reported that Castellano "had been fingered by his underworld associates" as a leader of the commission. It said his role was to be revealed in the indictments being announced today against the top bosses and underbosses of the five crime families.

WCBS said the arrests were made before announcement of the indictments because authorities feared leaks to the press.

The Post said that besides Castellano, leaders of the Bonanno and Genovese families were among those arrested. Suspects also include three members of the Lucchese family and two members of the Colombo family, the paper said.

The Post said a ninth man was arrested, but did not say he was ar-

Farm relief vote may be today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm-state senators, in a showdown with Sen. Majority Leader Robert Dole, are seeking approval of emergency legislation to bail out farmers so deep in debt banks won't lend them money for spring planting.

The credit-relief measure, headed for a vote perhaps as early as today, was introduced Monday as an amendment to a bill authorizing $175 million in non-food drought aid to African nations.

The amendment, offered by Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., provides $1.85 billion in federal guaranteed farm loans in addition to $650 million already available for 1985.

It also eliminates a requirement that farmers show they can generate a profit before obtaining such loans, and authorizes the Farmers Home Administration to provide $100 million to "buy down," or induce banks to lower interest rates.

"This bill doesn't create any new bureaucracy. It merely calls for cooperation among the government, lenders, and farmers," said Zorinsky, ranking Democrat on the Senate Agricultural Committee.

"Not all farmers will be saved by this, nor should they be," he continued. "This measure is crucial for farmers who are fighting for economic survival."

Zorinsky, who was backed by Sens. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., and Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said the measure won't cost much because federal money would be spent only when a borrower defaults on a guaranteed loan. Historically, the default rate for FHA loans is about 5.5 percent, Zorinsky said.

Dole, R-Kan., reluctantly agreed to allow amendments to the African aid bill to end a filibuster on Saturday by farm-state Democrats against Senate confirmation of Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

On the Senate floor Monday, Dole — unwilling to give more ground to Democratic adversaries — said attempts to alter this year's farm aid package are unnecessary.

"We have a good, solid farm program already in place," Dole said. "I don't believe we do the American farmer any good by advancing more loan payments to him. We would be accomplishing more by concentrating on the nation's top priority — getting the deficit down."

All day hundreds of farmers, state legislators, and governors from the Farm Belt testified at hearings and met with congressmen to plea for federal help.

Plans for $12 million center delayed

WACO, Texas (AP) — Approval of construction plans for a proposed $12 million special events center and five other projects at Baylor University have been shelved temporarily because of potential church-state problems connected to tax-exempt bonds, university officials said.

Dr. Herbert Reynolds, president of Baylor, said Monday that university trustees withdrew the $32 million in projects from the March 12 agenda of the Texas Baptist Executive Board meeting to allow further study of a legal opinion on the repercussions of tax-exempt bonds the city of Waco would issue.

Reynolds said a 40-page report by the Houston law firm of Fulbright & Jaworski indicated the establishment of a non-profit corporation by the city of Waco could result in federal intervention if religious activities were held in buildings made possible with the proceeds of the bonds.

The opinion, requested by Baylor officials as part of preliminary planning, also casts questions on similar bond programs for Baptist schools and hospitals approved by the Baptist executive board.

One such bond proposal for construction at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene was approved last September.

Reynolds declined to comment on other Baptist projects, adding, however, "their circumstances may not have been the same as ours."

Included in the $32 million program is a $12 million special events center, a $5 million school of music building, a $4 million computer and engineering science building and $7.5 million for library renovation and expansion.

Vessel to find a home

WASHINGTON (AP) — The battleship Missouri will be based at either Pearl Harbor or San Francisco, according to officials who said Long Beach, Calif., had been eliminated as a possible home for the reactivated vessel.

However, Commodore Dudley Carlson, the Navy's chief of legislative affairs, said Monday in a letter to Capitol Hill that Long Beach, which already houses the battleship New Jersey, could get additional Navy ships.

Navy Secretary John Lehman said last July that the Navy was soliciting proposals from West Coast cities to provide a home for the Missouri, one of four World War II-era battleships that the Reagan administration is reactivating.

Also based at the same home port, Lehman said, would be four smaller ships in the Missouri's surface action group. Carlson said Monday that number may be increased to nine and that all three cities have been asked to reconsider their offers of land or construction funds because more ships are now in need of a home.

Patients discharged too fast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medicare patients are being discharged from hospitals "quicker and sicker" under a new payment system that sets treatment rates in advance, says the chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., said many elderly patients are "being sent out into a no-care zone, without access to the health care they so urgently need."

Heinz made the comments Monday in releasing a preliminary report he requested from the General Accounting Office on the impact of Medicare's new prospective payment system on post-hospital care for older Americans.

Because of the new payment procedures, patients are being discharged "quicker and sicker, and some may even be discharged prematurely," Heinz said.

Under the system, which was enacted in 1983, hospital payment is based on the average cost of care for a particular diagnostic related group (DRG). If a hospital can treat a patient for less than that amount, it can keep the savings. If the treatment costs more, the hospital must absorb the loss.

"Recent data on the use of hospitals under Medicare appear to show that hospitals have in fact responded by reducing lengths of stay," the study said.

Kyle admits lying to police

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Henry Harrison "Ricky" Kyle Jr. admitted under cross examination that he lied to police investigating the 1983 shooting death of his millionaire father.

"That was a lie about an intruder firing at my father, yes, sir," Kyle, 22, replied Monday when Deputy District Attorney Lewis Watnick questioned him about his initial report to police.

"I was trying to make the story work as much as possible," Kyle said when Watnick asked him why his account to police and the one presented in court differ. "I sort of put things together."

Kyle, who is charged with first-degree murder in his father's death, initially told police he and his father had been shot by an attacker.

Later, he admitted shooting his father but maintained Kyle Sr. fired first. The defense has argued that the younger man lied about an intruder because he was "scared, not knowing what to do."

His father's nude body was found on the floor of the dining room in his Bel-Air home July 22, 1983. He had been shot once in the back; his son had been wounded in the elbow.

Prosecutors contend Ricky Kyle "executed" his father to keep from getting cut out of his will, making up a story about burglars in the Kyle mansion to lure him to the darkened downstairs.

Man denounces detention as sham

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — A former Mexican lawman, one of four men being held for questioning in the abduction of a U.S. drug agent, claims he is being used as a scapegoat by authorities desperate for an arrest in the case.

"It's a show made by the Mexican police," Tomas Morlett Borquez said Monday, a day after he was picked up in connection with the abduction of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena Salazar.

The kidnapping in Guadalajara caused tension between the United States and Mexico as the U.S. stepped up border inspections along the 1,700-mile border in the search for the veteran agent.

Car-by-car checks at U.S. border stations, which led to delays of hours for northbound motorists over the past 10 days, were ended Monday shortly after Mexican police announced the apprehensions, said U.S. Customs Service spokesman Jerome Hollander.

Mexican officials had complained that the intensified checks damaged their nation's economy because tourists were avoiding border areas.

Authorities said Monday they had no information on where Camarena, 37, was and whether he was dead or alive. Witnesses said they saw four armed men abduct him on Feb. 7.

At a news conference, Mexican police officials said the four men in custody, including one detained in Guadalajara, had been picked up in response to a request from DEA Administrator Francis Mullen Jr.

The dollar has extended its unprecedented advance on foreign exchange markets, climbing yet again to new highs against the currencies of Britain, France, Canada, Italy and Spain.

Gold, meanwhile, slumped to between $284 and $283 an ounce, a 5½-year low, on Monday.

The U.S. economy, meanwhile, will expand through 1985 but rising federal budget deficits likely will contribute to a recession sometime next year, a national group of business economists predicted. And major U.S. carmakers said their mid-February sales fell 9.7 percent from a year earlier. But the latest sales still were considered strong since they were compared against an exceptionally robust year-earlier performance.

The dollar on Monday also reached a 13-year high against the West German mark and a 10-year peak against the Swiss franc.

"Fundamentally, the strong dollar reflects the bright performance of the U.S. economy compared with the lackluster behavior of other nations," Morgan Guaranty said in a quarterly economic report.

The recession forecast by the National Association of Business Economists differs sharply from economic expectations of the Reagan administration, which is projecting no recession through 1990.

A majority of the economists polled, 52 percent, said they expected the next recession would begin in 1986 with only 17 percent expecting the recovery to last into 1987 or beyond.

Giant federal budget deficits were most often cited as the reason for the belief that the current expansion will not last as long as the 46-month average for recoveries since World War II.

Sales of U.S. cars totaled 228,761 in the Feb. 11-20 period, or 25,418 a day in nine official selling days, the automakers said. The daily sales rate was down from 28,158 in mid-February 1984 when 225,260 cars were sold in eight selling days.

Chrysler Corp., which has many sales incentives programs in effect for customers and dealers, posted the best year-to-year gain — 15.3 percent.

"Actually, the numbers were pretty good," said David Healy of the investment firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. "This was really a strong period. It was better than it looks because last year was so good."

In other developments:

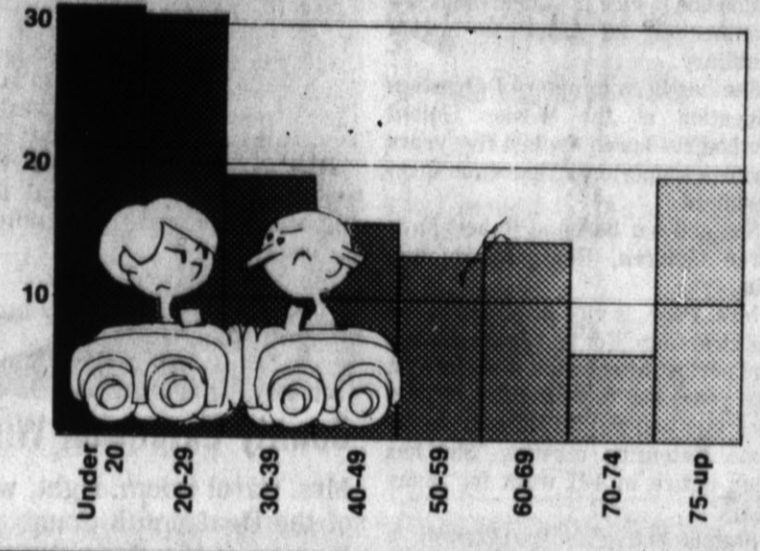

Yields on new short-term government securities hit their highest levels since December, the Treasury said following its latest weekly auction. Three-month bills sold at an average discount rate of 8.36 percent, and six-month bills sold at an average rate of 8.53 percent.

Average annual unemployment rates in the 50 states and the District of Columbia last year were below the levels of 1983, and 32 states had rates below the national average of 7.5 percent, the Labor Department said.

On Social Security freeze

Governors rebuffed by Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's governors, many of them angry and disappointed after a White House meeting, are ready to defy President Reagan and endorse a budget freeze that includes defense and Social Security.

At the same time, the governors are backing a balanced budget amendment the president wants.

A resolution calling for both the budget freeze and the balanced budget amendment topped the agenda for the closing session today of the annual winter meeting of the National Governors' Association.

And while several governors expressed misgivings about the freeze resolution, it appeared to have majority support.

The resolution endorses a one-year freeze on federal government programs, including defense and cost-of-living increases for Social Security recipients. It also left open consideration of a tax increase if budget cuts were not enough to achieve substantial reductions in the federal deficit.

The one part of the resolution Reagan would like was its call for a constitutional amendment mandating a balanced budget and giving the president authority to veto individual items in appropriations bills — the so-called line-item veto.

During a 30-minute meeting Monday in the White House East Room, Reagan flatly rejected appeals from the governors to reconsider his hard line on Pentagon spending, Social Security and taxes.

Democratic Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York said Reagan's rejection of any compromise on those issues "dooms any effort to get substantial deficit reduction."

Gov. Richard F. Celeste of Ohio, a Democrat, said, "I think that the approach that the president, his budget directors and others (are taking) is to pick the pockets of state governments in an effort to move toward a more balanced budget. It's like getting mugged."

"It's clear from the president this morning that Social Security, the defense budget (and) revenue (are) all off the table," said Kansas Gov. John Carlin, a Democrat and chairman of the National Governors' Association. "So, at least to this point, we haven't made that much progress."

Gov. Thomas H. Kean of New Jersey, a Republican, said Reagan offered "no change of position."

Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, chairman of the Democratic Governors' Association, called the White House session "very discouraging, very, very discouraging."

"I think the country's headed for trauma," said Democratic Gov. Richard Lamm of Colorado. "And I think the inability of the politicians to make the hard choices is leading us to a very bad situation for which there is no happy outcome unless we come to grips, as the governors' resolution does, with both raising revenue and cutting the defense increase."

Polish diplomat expelled in retaliation of treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angered by the expulsion of an American diplomat from Poland, the Reagan administration is retaliating by expelling a Polish diplomat and warning the incident will cool relations between the two nations.

That message was conveyed late Monday to the Polish charge d'affaires, Zdzislaw Ludwiczak, who was summoned to the State Department and informed that the Polish military attache, Col. Zygmunt Szymanski, had been declared persona non grata and ordered to leave.

It followed by just hours Poland's expulsion of a U.S. military attache, Col. Frederick Myer, who was accused of taking photographs in a military zone.

"It's definitely reciprocity because they kicked our guy out on baseless charges," said a U.S. official, speaking on condition he not be identified. "So we're kicking their guy out. They treated our guy abysmally."

Meanwhile, the State Department warned that "any repetition of such an outrageous action (will) have an even more serious impact on our relations."

Szymanski apparently was given 48 hours to leave the country, just as Myer was given 48 hours to leave Poland.

In addition, the administration said it was postponing talks on a science and technology agreement that were scheduled to begin this week, and delaying the return to Warsaw of the U.S. charge, John Davis, who had been in the United States for consultations and was to return to Warsaw on Monday.

The administration also issued a strong protest over what it called the outrageous treatment that Myer and his wife, Barbara, received at the hands of Polish security officials. Polish government spokesman Jerzy Urban promptly denied the allegations.

of TRLA. "The city of Hereford has been experiencing tremendous problems with its local TRLA office for some time," Combest said. "The situation greatly concerns me and immediate steps must be taken to ensure that this unnecessary conflict is resolved as soon as possible."

Last week, TRLA Executive Director David Hall traveled to Hereford to refute the charges in Wylie's report. He called it a "politically motivated hatchet job" and said it contained "outrageous lies" and "profound exaggerations of the truth."

would again be sent to Austin to fund other offices or projects. The resolution signed by the court opposes that move.

In other business, county fathers gave Sheriff Joe Brown permission to sell a van that he says breaks down every time it's on the road, and voiced their approval of a criminal justice grant that funds the Panhandle Regional Organized Crime Unit.

Annette Morrow's love of people is visible in all she does.

Before moving to Hereford in November, she worked with the W.I.C. (Women, Infants and Children) program in Worthington, Minn. Through the USDA-sponsored program, Morrow helped teach women the proper nutrition for infants and children.

Since coming to Hereford, she is a patient accounts representative for Deaf Smith General Hospital.

"It's like being a mystery detective," she said. "You must figure out what happened with an account by recreating the scene."

Some of the problems she has solved include determining why an insurance company paid the amount that it did and which account it was paid on.

"I like to work with and help people," she said. "It's really something when you can help a person. I miss some of that one-on-one contact with my job at the hospital."

Her husband, Don, brought them to Hereford with his promotion within Swift Independent Packing Company. A quality assurance manager, he started with Swift in Hereford, was transferred to Minnesota and then transferred back to Texas. Mr. Morrow is concerned with the quality of products that Swift turns out. He performs lab samples and works closely with the USDA officials at the plant.

"He is really a people person," Morrow said. "He is personable and caring."

Mr. Morrow attended Texas Tech University, but received his bachelor's degree in management from West Texas State University in December of 1982. He also has an emphasis in food and nutrition. Before attending college, he worked with his father in the family business, Blue Morrow Meats, in Amarillo.

Morrow also attended Texas Tech, where she received her bachelor's degree in history and minors in management, German and English. Her activities while attending Tech also show her love of people.

She was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, the Student Foundation, and the Arts and Sciences Council. She was a student representative for the dean's committee which chose the curriculum for the college of Arts and Sciences. As an RA, Morrow recalled two memorable experiences. One was a cake fight in the middle of the hall. Another occurred one weekend when she was gone. A few of the girls on the hall stuffed a room completely full of newspapers.

"When the girls whose room was stuffed with the papers returned, they threw all of the papers into the hall," Morrow said. "The hall was at least four feet deep in newspapers when the University Daily (campus newspaper) photographer came over and took a picture."

Morrow added that being an RA taught her not to judge people and that there is motivation behind everything a person does.

Their home in Minnesota was not all that different from the Panhandle except for the snow, according to Morrow.

"Where we lived it was pretty flat and in the middle of a cornfield," she recalled. "There weren't many tumbleweeds, though, and there were lots of lakes."

"The snow was something else," she continued. "At one time, from a distance, the telephone poles looked like fence posts because only the very top was showing, and all of the exit signs on the freeway were completely covered with snow."

Since moving to Hereford, the couple has joined the Chamber Singers and is attending First United Methodist Church. She attends the meetings for Newcomers Club.

Mr. Morrow enjoys outdoor sports and singing. While at Tech, he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. At WTSU, he was a member of the Herdsmen.

She enjoys all kinds of music in addition to playing the piano and flute. She also likes to play cards and cross-stitch.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: During this past summer I met and married a fantastic man. I had never been so happy in my life. He said he felt the same way.

We had a storybook honeymoon, but our happiness was short-lived. Soon after we returned home he became ill and died. I was devastated.

My husband had a will but I was not in it. I'm sure he believed he would live a long time and planned to rewrite his will at a later date.

His relatives behaved like vultures. Before the funeral they came to our home and took furniture, art and books.

His family has remained cool and distant. They feel that since we were married only a short time my husband's demise could not have been very traumatic. I don't know why I'm writing to you. Maybe it's because you are like an old friend and I am lonely.—SAD IN EL PASO

In Illinois, if your spouse had no children, you would get 50 percent of his entire estate, after payment of all just claims. If he had children, you would receive one-third. Also—if your husband willed various pieces of furniture, art and books to friends and relatives, they are entitled to those items."

Your letter underscores the importance of updating wills before marriage. If there is no will, however, the state law prevails. How sad that so many men and women who have worked a lifetime and done well fail to specify where they want their money to go—and it falls into the hands of people for whom it was never intended.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you would listen most closely to what your readers are saying in their letters instead of concentrating on a witty (?) comeback, you would do a better job of helping people.

When "Wiser in Walnut Creek" questioned your response to an earlier letter, you answered his question WITH a question: "How did it happen that a fellow as smart as you got mixed up with so many losers?"

The answer to the man's question appeared in his letter. he said,

"Ninety-nine percent of the single women out there are goldiggers, psychos, cold fish, goofballs and idiots—either crazy or so money-hungry they wouldn't recognize a decent man if they fell over one." Walnut Creek hit it right on the nose.

Pay attention to what people write, Annie, and you won't have to work so hard at being cute.—D.H.M. IN TULSA

DEAR TULSA: I pay a great deal of attention to what people write. Your agreement with Walnut Creek's evaluation of 99 percent of the single women out there suggests that you've been badly hurt and I am sorry. Ugliness, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder. What you see in others is what you are likely to get back.

On the Ball

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

The folks at Baylor University like to tell us that former head basketball coach Jim Haller endured the toughest season of his coaching career in 1983-84. That year, the Bears fell to 5-23 overall, 1-15 in Southwest Conference play.

But no matter how difficult last season was, it can't compare with the hard times Haller has fallen upon this year.

The 39-year-old Haller, who was in his eighth season at the head basketball post and 12th year associated with the BU program, turned in his resignation last Friday, the result of a public disclosure of a taped conversation about payments to a player and steroid drugs. A former reserve center for the Bears, John Wheeler, blew the whistle on Haller.

He shouldn't have done it, Haller, that is.

"I can't get inside Wheeler's head about why he did it (turned in Haller)," said Matt Rogers over the telephone Monday. The assistant athletic director at BU continued, "Wheeler had played a total of 12 minutes this season early in the year. He was off the team."

Maybe that explains why he did it. Wheeler wasn't getting as much playing time as he wanted, and he had it in for Haller. Before transferring to Baylor as a junior, Wheeler had played only five minutes in Cleveland State's initial game in 1982-83 as a sophomore. But then he suffered a stress fracture in his foot.

So he hadn't been playing and he was hungry. Right? That doesn't matter. Whatever his motive, Wheeler knew what he was doing when he squealed.

"What I did was wrong," Haller told The Associated Press last week. "I admit it was wrong. But I felt sorry for the kid and I feel sorry for him now."

I feel sorry for Haller. Not because he's out of a job, though. Like the coach said, he knew he was wrong. And if Haller was found out, surely he knew he could lose his job.

Rogers said he didn't know of any plans Haller had at this time, but it would suit me if the man can't find a job for awhile.

Any coach who gets involved with illegal practices — especially in drugs, whether or not it's athletically oriented — should be given a swift kick in the rump by his school and put on the black list by other institutions.

Take notice: not all coaches do get involved. Thank goodness. Surely there are many more athletic leaders who stay away from the wrong doings than ones who take part. It's those few who do, though, that give coaches and athletes the bad names that some of them have.

Prior to the season's beginning, Haller was said to have taken a big step in improving on last year's season slate with a big recruiting haul. The Bears were to benefit from scoring explosiveness, speed and quickness.

But with or without steroids (for the speed and quickness), Baylor isn't going to improve much. Currently, the Bears sport a conference record of 3-11.

That also could be a reason for Wheeler's tattling on Haller. Rogers said the 7-footer stopped going to practice about Feb. 16. At that time, he mostly was sitting but had played early in the year when the Bears were averaging 97 points per game "and kicking the foot out of people." But suddenly the Bears were losing.

"When you stop going to practice, you're off the team," Rogers added.

And, unfortunately for Haller, when the coach was caught talking of drugs to a player and giving him money, he was without a job.

Whether or not Haller actually was pressured into resigning is not known. He should have been. And all coaches caught in similar situations should have their contracts quickly bought up and walking papers in their hands.

AP Top 20 basketball teams

Wolfpack climbs back in poll

By JODY TAYLOR Associated Press Writer

The memories of the 1983 NCAA basketball championship are still fresh in North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano's mind, but he'll be proud of his 1985 team even if there are no banners to hang from the rafters of the school's gym.

The 1983 season was the dream season for Valvano, when his team came from nowhere to defeat Houston for the national crown.

But if 1983 was a dream, 1985 has been something of a nightmare.

"This team has been given a lot of adversity and they've been able to focus on the job at hand," Valvano said Monday after the Wolfpack moved back into the college basketball rankings at No. 16. "If they have anything in common with the 1983 team, it's that they don't quit."

Valvano has suffered through the loss of freshman center Chris Washburn, a highly recruited player who was dismissed from the team after he was arrested on charges of stealing a fellow athlete's stereo. He has been criticized for spending too much time promoting cookbooks and doing television commentary, and not enough on coaching the team.

But Monday, as he oversaw practice, he could smile because NC State once again was ranked. And the Wolfpack is riding a six-game winning streak and tied for the Atlantic Coast Conference lead with North Carolina at 8-4.

Two new teams in the Top 20 were Arizona, which is 19th, and Loyola, Ill., which came in No. 20. Arizona, 20-7 is tied for the Pac-10 Conference lead with Southern Cal. Loyola already has clinched the Midwestern City Conference regular-season title with a 20-6 mark.

St. John's and Georgetown — who meet this week — remained Nos. 1 and 2. For the first time this season, the 24-1 Redmen were a unanimous choice.

St. John's, which holds the nation's longest current winning streak at 19 games, received all 64 first-place votes from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The Redmen, undefeated in 14 Big East Conference games, face Georgetown, 25-2 and 12-2, which was named second on every ballot, Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.

Michigan, 21-3, and Memphis State, 23-2, remained third and fourth, respectively.

HHS male linksters finish third with 674

The Hereford Whitefaces finished third from a field of 10 high school teams Friday and Saturday at a Fort Stockton boys invitational golf tournament, and had three players place in the top 10 individual scorers.

The Whitefaces had a 36-hole total of 674 in the Blue Ribbon Classic, 16 shots off the pace set by Canyon. Andrews finished second with a score of 666.

"We brought home a trophy, so I guess we did all right," Hereford coach Stacy Bixler said. "We've got a dual match scheduled with Canyon sometime this week, probably Thursday or Friday. But with the weather the way it is, it's kind of hit and miss about when you can play for sure."

Matt Albracht paced Hereford golfers with a 165. He shot 81-84, and his score was low enough to put him in the sixth position among top 10 scorers.

Nevada-Las Vegas, 22-3, improved from 11th to ninth, while Georgia Tech, 19-6, was 10th.

Kansas, 22-6, leads the Second Ten followed by Syracuse, Southern Methodist, Georgia, Tulsa, North Carolina State, Virginia Commonwealth, Illinois, Arizona and Loyola of Illinois.

Michael Drake fired an opening-round 80, but followed that with an 87 on Saturday. Still, his score of 167 placed him eighth.

Hereford's Bobby Valdez tied for 10th best score at 169 (87-82).

Other Hereford golfers and their scores were: Bobby Baker 85-88 173, and Albert Valdez 91-88 179.

Hereford found itself in fifth place after Friday's round with a 333. However, turning in Saturday's second-lowest team total enabled the Whitefaces to move up.

The boys have a meet scheduled for March 7 and 8 in San Angelo before spring break. District 3-5A play begins shortly thereafter.

No scores were available from a girls match played last weekend.

The girls have a match next Monday with Plainview. Coach is Cathy Roughton.

No off-season trades

Astros' power still not right

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros will have a new spring training address and shorter fences in 1985, but they'll still be plagued by an old problem when the full team begins workouts in Florida this week.

The Astros made no off-season trades in their efforts to obtain right-handed hitting power. They failed to sign free agent Sixto Lezcano, once again leaving Manager Bob Lillis to his creative devices in figuring out a starting lineup.

Jose Cruz in left field and Bill Doran at second base at least know the positions they will play and Craig Reynolds is the likely shortstop because of the uncertainty of Dickie Thon's comeback after being struck in the eye by a pitched ball last year.

Terry Puhl is another certain starter but he may be shifted from right field to center field to allow Lillis to platoon Jerry Mumphrey in right field, possibly with Kevin Bass.

After that, the lineup picture gets fuzzy.

Lillis may platoon Denny Walling and Phil Garner at third and the first base possibilities include veteran Enos Cabell, Harry Spilman or Glen Davis.

Then there is catching. Lillis flatly says that the catching duties will be decided in spring training. Mark Bailey and veteran Alan Ashby are the front-runners.

Bailey has power potential at the plate and that's a key qualification for Lillis in his search for a steady catcher.

Joe Niekro, Nolan Ryan and Bob Knepper are solid as starting pitchers if they are healthy. Knepper is recovering from knee surgery and Ryan, 38, was slowed by several injuries last season.

The Astros will need to choose fourth and fifth starters from among Mike Scott and Mike Madden, who had inconsistent performances in 1984, and Jeff Heathcock, who is recovering from a serious knee injury.

The bullpen could be Houston's strongest area with Dave Smith, Frank DiPino, Bill Dawley and Joe Sambito as prominent figures.

The Astros have shortened the Astrodome fences by 10 feet down each foul line and six feet in center-field to help the power shortage. Astros hitters like it and the pitchers, whose margin for error is shortened, don't.

"It's something they should have done a long time ago," Puhl said. No one argues about the team's move from their dilapidated training facility in Cocoa, Fla. to a new, $5.5 million facility at Kissimmee, Fla.

The Astros have started 0-9 and 1-6 over the last two seasons and part of the blame is placed on the lack of practice time caused by flooded practice fields.

The new facility at Kissimmee is a drainage system that automatically goes into operation when it rains.

The Astros will host the New York Yankees March 8 in the first game played at the new Kissimmee training site.

JOE NEVER BUNTED

NEW YORK (AP) — Reminiscing about his extraordinary 56-game hitting streak in 1941, still a major-league record, Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees pointed out that not once did he get a bunt hit.

"During my streak I made 91 hits," DiMaggio said. "But none was a bunt. The speed the young players have today, they should be able to make many more leg hits than I ever did. But the record still stands."

DiMaggio batted .408 during the streak and had 160 total bases. He scored 56 runs and batted in 55. He made 15 home runs, drew 21 walks, and only struck out seven times.

PGA newcomer interviewed

SPORTS TALK
Corey Pavin

Corey Pavin, 25, of Los Angeles is the top newcomer on the PGA golf tour. Last season he earned a total of $260,536 — far more than any other PGA rookie ever. That included first prize at the 1984 Houston Open.

After your great pro debut, you must be setting your sights a little higher this season. Do you have any particular goals for 1985?

I want to make the top 10 on the money list. It's a high goal. And it will require a lot of hard work and dedication. It encompasses a lot — such as quite a few top 10 finishes, and winning a tournament or two.

Is there some way you're trying to improve yourself?

My No. 1 goal is to play more consistently and make fewer mistakes.

There were too many times last year when one mistake or two on the closing holes cost me a good finish.

You didn't qualify for a PGA card on your first try. Was it tough for you to eventually get by those tryout rounds of golf?

I wouldn't want to go through that again. The pressure is unbelievable.

I worked 18 years on my game. But I only had six days to prove I belonged on the tour.

Before reaching the U.S. tour, you won the 1983 South African PGA, the German Open and the Calherson Classic in France. Did that help prepare you for the United States? Is the PGA tour what you expected?

I had a good taste of the traveling part of it when I was overseas — and I did play in the Los Angeles Open twice as an amateur.

Were you confident about making it on the PGA tour?

Yes, I was confident. But I'll admit I did have just a little bit of doubt in the back of my mind. You know, I knew that maybe, just maybe, it would work out.

Your improvement has been obvious, for example, at the Bob Hope Classic which was your first official PGA start. This year you closed strong at the tournament, last year you didn't even make the cut.

I took a big step at the Bob Hope this year — even though I didn't get the top finish I wanted. I birdied five of the last eight holes the last afternoon and tied for 11th. I finished on a strong, positive note.

One week after being cut in the Bob Hope Classic, you led the 1984 Phoenix Open most of the way — before Tom Purtzer beat you by a stroke on the last hole. Was that a boost for you?

That tournament opened a few doors for me. It gave me the idea that I could win on my ability alone, and wouldn't have to rely on luck. I knew I could compete out here.

How about your Houston Open triumph?

When the year started, the top 125 for my exemption was my goal... I wasn't sure I could win so soon.

What was the difference between Phoenix and Houston?

I felt I handled the pressure well in Phoenix. But the last afternoon, I was a little nervous and a little quick with my swing.

In Houston, I was able to handle the adversity a little better.

What about your prize-money record for a PGA rookie?

That was very satisfying. I was beginning to wonder if I would make it. But the $22,400 at the Southern put me over the top.

Now you're beginning to feel more at home?

I grew up thinking about the tour. This is it. This is where I have always wanted to be.

Use poultice

DEAR POLLY — Would you please give me a formula for a compound to clean or remove water spots from marble table tops, such as rings from drink glasses? — R.L.B.

DEAR R.L.B. — A safe, gentle cleaning method for marble is to apply a poultice. Mix cornstarch with water to form a thick paste. Apply a layer of the paste over the stain. Then cover it with a damp cloth. Allow the paste to sit for a couple hours, keeping it moist with the wet cloth. Then wash poultice off gently. The spot should have bleached out. If it remains, reapply the poultice for several hours more.

A stronger poultice may be made of hydrogen peroxide and cream of tartar, but test this mixture on a hidden spot before using it on the visible marble surface to be sure it won't etch the marble finish. This poultice is also good for removing stains from plastic laminate countertops. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When I need brown sugar, I mix a cup of white sugar with a tablespoon of sorghum molasses. — H.S.Y.

DEAR POLLY — Wipe ashtrays with vegetable oil or wax them with furniture wax. Ashes won't cling, odors won't linger and you can wipe them clean with a tissue or paper towel. — P.B.

DEAR POLLY — To remove the cloudy scum that forms inside glass baby bottles, soak them in hot water and dishwasher detergent. Then, to keep them clean, throw away that worthless bottle brush and spend a dollar on one of those little sponges on a handle used to wash the inside of drinking glasses. They're available on the miscellaneous gadget rack at the grocery store, and you can really scrub the sides inside the bottle with one.

Save small coffee cans to dump ashtrays into.

Shower honors Rebecca Petty

The home of Beverly Bryant, 122 Kingwood, was the site of the bridal shower held recently from 4 to 6 p.m. honoring Rebecca Petty, bride-elect of David Chapman.

The bride's colors of pink, rose and burgundy were reflected in the floral centerpiece for the serving table which was covered with lace over a burgundy tablecloth. Peppermint punch, tiny sandwiches, cookies and nuts and mints were served the guests.

Guests were greeted by the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Barbara West, and her grandmother, Mrs. Thelma Ruffner of Lubbock, and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mrs. John P. Chapman.

Out of town guests included the honoree's sister, Melissa Harmon and her aunt, Mrs. Jenell Alexander, both of Lubbock, and Betty Irlbeck and Missy Irlbeck, both of Canyon.

Hostesses for the shower were Beverly Bryant, Margaret Ann Durham, Joyce Burford, Leta Kaul, Linda Thorell, Mary Jo Hamman, Janette Caviness, Billie Jo Gee, Mildred Furhmann, Oneita Davidson and Eloise McDougal.

Bridal Shower

Rebecca Petty, right, was honored recently with a bridal shower in the home of Beverly Bryant. Pictured with the honoree was the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mrs. John Chapman.

The first permanent wave was introduced by Karl Ludwig, in Germany, in 1872. He beat out Parisian stylist Marcel Grateau, father of the famed Marcel Wave, by a short time for the honor.

Dr. Cook speaks to NSDAR

Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR, met recently at the Deaf Smith County Museum. Refreshments were served to members and guests by the hostesses, Lois Gilliland, Margaret Bell, Edwina Thomas, Charlotte Clark and Beth Clark.

Chapter Regent, Ruth Knox, called the meeting to order and led the opening ritual. Kate Johnson led the Pledge of Allegiance; Nell Norvell, the American's Creed and the national anthem was sung as Kate Johnson accompanied on the piano.

Margaret Bell welcomed our special guests—Carla Frye, the winner of the DAR Good Citizens Award from Dimmitt High School, and Amy Mason, the winner of this award from Hereford High School. Carla was accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. Iva Hudman from Post. Amy's mother, Mrs. Don Tindall, attended with her.

Wanda Jones read the President General's Message. Kathryn Ruga gave the National Defense Report on an article by John Whitehead, entitled "Separation of Church & State: Myth and Fact."

Edwina Thomas introduced our guest speaker, Dr. Ron Cook, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Hereford. When Dr. Cook studied at Baylor University, he had a double major, Political Science and Religion. Dr. Cook spoke on "Thomas Jefferson and Democracy."

He noted the growth and development in Jefferson's life of a deep regard for democracy as a government by the authority of all the people. He discussed the beginnings of democracy before the American Revolution, during the formation of the laws and principles of government for this country and the results through our two hundred year history. Americans must never forget that in this society people of all kinds are of inestimable worth.

Ruth Knox welcomed a new member, Sarah Aikin Lawson, and her son, Pace. Patricia Robinson read the welcome to new members and gave her a handbook.

Committee reports were given. Ballots were distributed and Kimberly Rogers Thogmartin was voted into membership in Los Ciboleros Chapter.

Ruth Knox reported on proposed amendments to the state and national by-laws that will be considered at State Conference and Continental Congress.

The meeting adjourned at 5:30 p.m.

Other members present included Ruth Newsom, Bea Barrett, Corne Smith, Sue James, Helen Rose, Mildred Drake and Laura Blackburn.

Schools keep culture alive amid designer jeans, dolls

(AP) — Dressed in Brittonia jeans, Trax sneakers and a Members Only shirt, 8-year-old Raymond Wu slowly counted to 10 in Chinese along with his classmates, some of whom stumbled over the words.

Raymond and his fellow students, all American-born Chinese ages 5 to 8, attend the North Dallas Chinese School each weekend in the bedroom of a suburban Richardson home.

It is one of two such suburban Dallas schools in the forefront of a movement by some of the 40,000 Chinese-Americans in the area to preserve some of their children's language and culture in the face of an onslaught of Cabbage Patch Dolls, designer jeans and McDonald's hamburgers.

"Our main concern is our children's education," said Diana Cheng, chairman of the Dallas Chinese Chamber of Commerce board.

Mrs. Cheng first noticed that her two children were becoming too Americanized when they started questioning simple instruction. In traditional Chinese society, children learn not to question authority.

"We try to teach them culture and about where we came from," said Margaret Wu, a teacher whose two children attend the school. "My friends tease me that my kids are Texans already. We've been here four years, and they are trying to talk Texan."

About 5,000 of the area's Chinese are concentrated in Richardson, where Principal Loretta Shu started the North Dallas Chinese School in her home three years ago. From two students, the school has grown to 125, who attend the 1½-hour classes in private homes on Saturday and Sunday mornings.

And five months ago, Charles Ku, a dentist, started a similar school, the Sunray Chinese School, in Carrollton. He now has 90 students who pay $55 a semester for 2½ hours a week of instruction. Classes are held in the education building of the Woodlake Baptist Church, but Ku said he eventually plans to move into a permanent building and expand to Plano and Garland.

"We want them to learn the mother tongue. We realize that our skin tone is different. Even though we were born here in America, people will call them 'Chink' and their feelings will be hurt," said Ku. "We teach them that they are special, like the Jews. We teach them to be proud."

The schools' founders said they began offering the classes because of an absence of instruction in Chinese culture in the public schools.

The Richardson Independent School District, where 4 percent of the 33,461 students are Asian-American, does not provide instruction in Chinese, said Robin Baum, district consultant for bilingual education. The 137 Chinese students who speak limited English are enrolled in English-as-a-second-language classes with an instructor who does not speak Chinese.

Both Chinese schools emphasize reading and writing Mandarin, and both use elementary school books from Taiwan. Once students learn 2,000 characters, they can read simple words and maybe the newspaper, Mrs. Shu said.

Teachers at the schools have various occupations, but several taught in Taiwanese schools, and at least 75 percent have a master's degree, Mrs. Shu said.

The students, ages 3 to 19, generally speak some Chinese, and have numerous other extracurricular activities.

"I like Chinese school (more than elementary school) because it is shorter," said Mrs. Shu's 9-year-old daughter, Jeannie.

At 18, Mary Lee, a Richland College freshman, is one of the older students at the Sunray school. "I didn't want to come. My mom, she thinks a Chinese person should be able to read and write Chinese," said Miss Lee, wearing Converse tennis shoes and a light green jogging suit.

"I enjoy coming here now. It is sort of like being a kid again."

HOW TO LIVE HAPPILY EVER AFTER

May God who gives patience, steadiness, and encouragement help you to live in complete harmony with each other—each with the attitude of Christ toward each other. And then all of us can praise the Lord together with one voice, giving glory to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

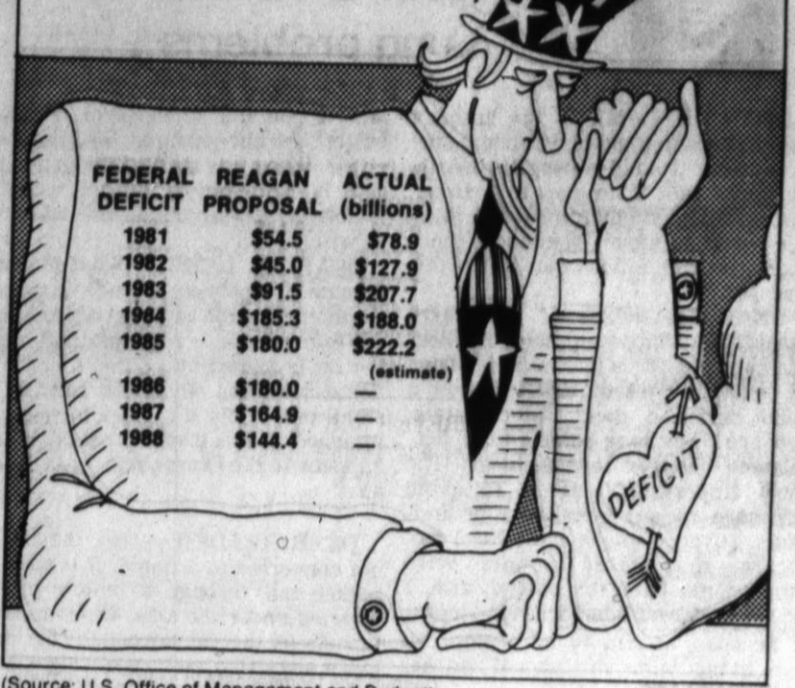

So, warmly welcome each other into the church, just as Christ has warmly welcomed you; then God will be glorified.

Remember that Jesus Christ came to show that God is true to His promises and to help the Jews. And remember that He came also that the Gentiles might be saved and give glory to God for His mercies to them. That is what the Psalmist meant when he wrote: "I will praise You among the Gentiles, and sing to Your name." And in another place, "Be glad, O you Gentiles, along with His people the Jews." And yet again, "Praise the Lord, O you Gentiles, let everyone praise Him." And the prophet Isaiah said, "There shall be an Heir in the house of Jesse, and He will be King over the Gentiles: they will pin their hopes on Him alone."

So I pray for you Gentiles that God who gives you hope will keep you happy and full of peace as you believe in Him. I pray that God will help you overflow with hope in Him through the Holy Spirit's power within you. Romans 15:5-13

Promises are hard to keep

From year to year, the U.S. deficit seems to defy prediction. It turned out that the actual 1982 deficit was three times larger than the Reagan estimate. However, previous White House also miscalculated.

Commercial success not a guarantee of Grammy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Top contenders for the Grammy Awards tonight include Cyndi Lauper, Prince and Tina Turner, each with hit albums, hot styles, lots of fans, critical acclaim and five nominations — guaranteeing them nothing.

The National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, whose three-hour awards show is set to begin before CBS-TV cameras at 8 p.m. EST, has a 26-year voting record that rewards cautious music and easy-listening lyrics.

The Beatles, the Rolling Stones, Bob Dylan, Bruce Springsteen, the Beach Boys and Elvis Presley have a cumulative career Grammy total of nine. Easy-listening king Henry Mancini has 20.

The Beatles, as a group, could only convince academy members that they deserved four Grammys. In the 1965 awards, the band won best performance by a musical group for "A Hard Day's Night," and best new artist. In 1967, the Beatles' "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" won album of the year and best contemporary album. And that was it for John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison, and Ringo Starr as a group. The Rolling Stones, rocking since 1963, are unlisted in Grammy annals. Not one trophy for a crew that has sold millions of records and can still fill baseball stadiums on a 22-year-old reputation as rock's bad boys.

Academy members apparently don't like to be rattled by lyrics. Bob Dylan was ignored by the academy in the 1960s when he was writing million-sellers such as "Blowing in the Wind," "Like a Rolling Stone," and "Just Like a Woman."

Facing the vagaries of academy voters tonight are Miss Lauper, nominated in a rare sweep of the academy's "Big Four" categories: album, record and song of the year and best new artist.

Her album "She's So Unusual" has sold 4 million copies and generated five hit singles, including "Girls Just Want to Have Fun," nominated for best female pop vocal and record of the year.

Prince, the 26-year-old superstar from Minneapolis, has four nominations with his group Revolution, including album of the year for the 9-million seller "Purple Rain," the soundtrack from the top-grossing summer movie.

"Purple Rain" also was nominated for best rock group performance, best film score recording and producer of the year. Prince also has a best rhythm and blues song nomination for writing the Chaka Khan hit, "I Feel for You."

Miss Turner's "Private Dancer" is nominated for best album of the year. She also has Grammy nominations for the single "What's Love Got to Do with It," which earned her nominations for best record of the year and best female pop vocal.

Two other tracks, "Better be Good to Me" and "Let's Stay Together," are nominated for female vocal nominations in the rock and rhythm and blues categories, respectively.

Bruce Springsteen's "Born in the USA" and Lionel Richie's "Can't Slow Down" complete the album of the year nominees.

Also in the record of the year category are Springsteen's "Dancing in the Dark" and "The Heart of Rock & Roll" by Huey Lewis and the News.

John Denver will be host of the show.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

EDUCATION AT THE CROSSROADS

AUSTIN — House Bill 72 — the education-reform bill — has the prospect of being one of the most complex and controversial measures ever passed by the Texas Legislature. And, the issue is far from dead.

We agreed with the basic premise of H.B. 72 when it came before the Senate during last summer's special session. Texas' school system should be the best in the country. There can be no substitute for excellence where our children's future is concerned.

But, like all issues, education reform can't be colored in black and white. Excellence is a tricky word. Different people have different definitions. Our job, as your representative in the Senate, is to try and guarantee excellence in all phases of education.

Some claim that education reform should be directed solely at the so-called academic courses. They say the state should re-emphasize English, math, science and history. We agree every student deserves a solid foundation in those subjects, for they are fundamental to preparing everyone for the "real world."

But, excellence shouldn't stop there. We firmly believe excellence in education should be across-the-board.

Students should be able to expect nothing but the best, whether they are going to college or preparing to enter the "real world" immediately after graduation.

Such a belief is a moderate one, one we hope will lead to the re-emergence of Texas as the nation's leader in public education. To that end, we already have filed two bills.

One, Senate Bill 244, would give students interested in extracurricular activities a little more leeway in class scheduling. H.B. 72 currently requires them to pass all academic courses. For most students, this averages out to five courses per grading period.

S.B. 244 allows students to pass five state-approved courses each grading period. Borderline students, those who have trouble in maybe one subject but do well in others, would be allowed to participate if they are passing all courses required for graduation.

We're not encouraging laziness; we're simply recognizing that a student might be having trouble in an occasional area. That student shouldn't be demoralized further by having all extracurricular activities stripped from him because of that one weakness.

Heart-liver transplant underway

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Fort Worth teen-ager today was undergoing a heart-liver transplant — only the third such operation of its type — at Presbyterian University Hospital.

The double surgery on 17-year-old Mary Cheatham began about 6:30 p.m. Monday after a donor — who was not identified — was located.

Officials said the double operation was expected to take 20 to 24 hours, barring complications.

The University of Pittsburgh transplant team was unsure late Monday whether it would be able to perform both the heart and liver transplant, according to Cara East, one of Miss Cheatham's doctors at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas.

East said doctors feared both operations together could be too long.

But as of 7 a.m. EST, the surgery was continuing, said hospital spokesman Mark Shelton. He declined to elaborate.

Miss Cheatham was born with a rare genetic disorder that inhibits her liver's ability to gauge cholesterol levels in her body and remove the excess. Cells then produce too much of their own cholesterol, clogging the arteries of the heart.

The surgery is the third such double transplant performed. Stormie Jones, a 7-year-old Texas girl, underwent the first operation on Valentine's Day 1984.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Lung problems

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has emphysema and black lung. Some days he has trouble getting his breath. He thinks that if he goes to Arizona, his condition might improve. I think this would be money wasted. Is there a diet he can follow that helps this disease?

DEAR READER — I wish there were a diet that would help. The best one can hope for is to eliminate obesity, if any is present, and to follow a good balanced diet. Unfortunately, you are describing some rather permanent changes in the lungs. The most important thing is to avoid exposure to any pollutants or irritants. Tobacco smoke is the No. 1 pollutant that most people with emphysema have to contend with. I do hope your husband does not smoke. If he does, he simply must stop. No one living with him should smoke, either.

Before considering a move to another area, check the pollution and air-quality information for that area. Many of those "clean" areas have become contaminated by such things as the copper industry. You also need to know the altitude, since individuals with chronic lung disease do better at sea level.

Another important aspect of managing such problems is to avoid respiratory infections. This often involves staying away from public gatherings and avoiding children. Such infections are contagious diseases. What may be a simple cold for a child may be a serious complication in a person with chronic obstructive lung disease.

Some patients find breathing exercises helpful. Improving the level of physical fitness, when that is possible, usually makes the patient feel better. In addition, a pulmonary specialist often can provide a program in which moisture is inhaled, as well as postural drainage, which can be most helpful. The quality of the care available probably is much more important than any benefits he might get from moving to a new geographic location.

I have discussed the things people with such problems can do in The Health Letter 17-8, Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema, which I am sending to you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am concerned about the health needs of my 6- and 7-year-old grandsons. To save money, their parents are buying skim milk for them, and they eat peanut butter, but do not use butter or margarine. I am worried that their need for dairy products may not be met.

DEAR READER — Don't worry another minute. Most skim milk that is commercially marketed has 2 percent non-fat solids added. This means that it contains more calcium and complete protein than ordinary milk. Even without the added non-fat solids, skim milk provides just as much calcium and protein as regular milk. Eliminating the fat is not harmful as long as the children are getting enough total calories from all food sources.

Nutritionally, neither butter nor margarine is necessary unless you need to consume more calories. Half of the fat in butter is saturated fat, and it contains cholesterol. Peanut butter is not optimal or needed, either. When it is made with no added fats, it contains less fat and usually less saturated fat. Sometimes natural is better.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is your opinion of lipolysis, the new surgical technique for the removal of impossible-to-move fat? I understand that the fat is turned into a liquid and the liquid is sucked out of the body by a small tube. Only a 1/2-inch incision is required. Is this a safe process? What happens to the excess skin, or is there any?

DEAR READER — No, the fat is not converted to a liquid. It is simply sucked out through a hollow probe inserted under the skin, which makes tunnels in the fat deposits. This can leave a waffled surface of ridges and valleys. The excess skin will not go away, which is one reason the technique should only be used with women under 40.

The technique is of little value in correcting much generalized obesity. It can only safely remove about 6.5 pounds at a time, and even removing that much fat can produce shock and may be dangerous.

THE DELICATE SKILL

By Bob Wear

WE HAVE great capacity for developing and continuing to improve our skills in working effectively with other people. One of these is known as the art of 'finesse' which has been called 'the delicate skill', and there is much that we can do to learn to employ this beneficial skill. Doing so will not weaken us, but will strengthen us; and enable us to gain the advantage, however slight it may be, in all dealings with other people.

MUCH OF the friction in human relationships is uncalled-for an totally unjustified. It is generated by loose and careless manners of speaking; by saying something that should not be said; by making criticisms that are not justified, even though they may be true; by not caring about the feelings of other folk; and in such other ways.

MANY TIMES it will be better not to answer questions, but we must be sure to be gracious in our refusal. We may be able to skillfully re-direct the thinking of those who may be baiting (tempting) us, if there is something that we must say, in this or any other situation; we can remain in control by being wise in our reply. We can do this, if we will just stay alert to all aspects of the situation and honestly say and do what is best for all concerned.

WE MUST NOT be answering a matter before we hear it. In other words, we must not be jumping to conclusions. We must be doubly sure that we know what we are talking about, if we are going to talk. Waiting for this degree of qualification will do much to help us remain silent, and silence is a very important part of 'the delicate skill'.

HONEST AND CHARITABLE regard for others; for their viewpoints and feelings is the basis upon which 'the delicate skill' can be developed.
