MX missile headed for show down vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The MX Missile, survivor of more than a decade of controversy and debate, headed today for a crucial congressional showdown with Senate backers holding a thin edge. But even with President Reagan counting on an intense personal lobbying campaign to see him through "a make-or-break vote," the outcome in the politically splintered Senate remained too close to call. An Associated Press survey of all 100 senators showed 45 senators ready to vote for the MX or leaning strongly in that direction with 43 opposed and 12 uncommitted. A respected Senate vote counter, assistant Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California, says the contest is even tighter with 48 probable votes for MX, 47 probable against it and five still uncommitted. Vice President George Bush, whose vote last year broke a Senate tie and staved off an MX defeat, was prepared, if needed, for a repeat performance. On Monday, Bush repeated the theme that has had the most telling effect in the Senate, even among lawmakers who view the MX as a flawed, unneeded, and strategically destabilizing weapon: "If Congress pulls the rug out from under our negotiators in Geneva, the damage to our hopes for successful arms talks may be irreversible." Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan was making a "full court press" to win the votes of "a dozen or so" undecided senators. "This vote is an absolutely ... make-or-break vote," the spokesman said, adding that the White House was hoping victory on the first tally would carry MX past three remaining congressional votes on authorizing and appropriating money for it. The Senate Armed Services Committee gave MX supporters a boost on Monday, voting 11 to 6 to recommend freeing $1.5 billion to build and install 21 additional MX missiles in underground silos in Wyoming and Nebraska. The money was blocked by Congress last year pending the outcome of this month's Senate and House

Discrimination suit final

Garza to receive $8,500

U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson Monday signed a consent decree that finalizes settlement of the Garza versus Deaf Smith County discrimination suit.

Under terms of the settlement reached Jan. 25 by attorneys for both sides, Deaf Smith County will create a class settlement fund, for the purpose of back pay, of $60,000. The county also agreed to pay attorneys fees amounting to $56,500, and a settlement of $8,500 to class representative Cecilia Garza.

Garza, the original plaintiff in the suit, claimed she was denied employment in the sheriff's office because she is Hispanic. As a result of the trial before Judge Robinson, the county was found to have engaged in discriminatory hiring practices in its sheriff's, social services, building maintenance and county commissioner Precinct 3 departments.

"I'm just glad it's over," County Judge Glen Nelson commented this morning. "As I said before, we are not admitting to any intentional discrimination. But we felt that it would be to the benefit of the taxpayers to go ahead and settle this thing."

Nelson added that despite the expense to the county, he feels some good may have come out of the suit.

"I think we know better where we stand now. We've established some guidelines to protect us in the future."

Robinson had earlier certified the eligible class as all Hispanics who since March 6, 1979 have applied for and been denied employment with Deaf Smith County. As a result, 64 persons filed proof of claim forms and were identified as claimants.

The settlement also included injunctive relief regarding the county's hiring practices in the four departments in which it was found to have been discriminatory.

According to the settlement, job openings not filled by lateral transfer or promotion within the departments shall be filled only after notice of such openings is posted on a courthouse bulletin board and advertised for three days in the Hereford Brand.

Notices of job openings must specify the name and office of the person from whom applications are to be obtained, the name and office of the person to whom completed applications are to be returned, and the deadline for filing an application.

In addition, persons handed applications must also be given a written description of the job's requirements and duties, a written description of any specific job qualifications, and a description of the necessary testing procedure for the job.

The settlement further states that all applicants must be notified that they were not hired for the position within five working days after the position is filled.

Other injunctive relief requires the county to adopt hiring goals to increase Hispanic employment in the four departments, create a Title 7 Grievance Committee and inform applicants not accepted for employment of their rights to file a complaint with the grievance committee.

The county had at one point appealed Robinson's decision, but the appeal was dropped under terms of the settlement reached in January. One stipulation of the settlement was that the county did not by its agreement admit to any sort of discrimination on its part.

Garza, who was represented by Texas Rural Legal Aid, is now an administrative secretary for the local TRLA office.

The county received legal assistance from Bill SoRelle, an Amarillo attorney. From 1983 to date, the county paid SoRelle $151,451.33.

De la Garza says administration wants to exclude rural America

The Reagan administration wants to separate rural America from the rest of the nation's population, the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee told Deaf Smith REC members Saturday night.

Rep. Kika de la Garza was the featured speaker for the annual rural electric cooperative membership dinner, which also included election of three board members and issuing of the annual report for 1984. Fish and chicken dinners were served to 1,150 members and their families.

"We're only three percent or less of the population, but we feed all 237 million and more," de la Garza told the crowd. The longtime Congressman drew applause for proclaiming that "the good Lord made the farmer to feed his children, and we're going to do it come hell or high water."

Like many other legislators who are battling for the farmer, de la Garza pointed out that farm subsidy programs amount to only about one percent of the total federal budget.

"I don't care what they say. If one percent of the total budget isn't worthy of those who produce all the food and fiber, I don't know what the dickens is."

The congressman claimed a lack of understanding is also hurting the farmer.

"The public perception of what we are hasn't been favorable. It isn't fair, and that's why I'm traveling as many places as I can."

Admitting that the 1981 Farm Bill hasn't worked well, de la Garza said he doesn't know what's going to happen with the 1985 version. "I know more credit isn't going to help," he added.

The administration is blaming farm debt problems on "a bunch of greedy bankers," de la Garza pointed out, but said the farmer knows as well as anyone that the banker can't be in the business of charity.

The democratic congressman said his friends laugh when he tells them food, not weapons, is our real power against foreign aggressors.

"This thing of matching Russia missile for missile is bordering on the insane. It ain't gonna make any difference once we get past it."

"Food is our power," de la Garza exclaimed. "That's what they're coming to buy from us. I'm more concerned about keeping one more young farmer on the land than having one more missile."

REC year successful, incumbents re-elected

1984 was a successful year for Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, General Manager James Hull told a crowd of more than 1,100 persons Saturday night.

REC members met for their annual membership dinner and business meeting at 5 p.m. Saturday at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

"As we are observing the 50th anniversary of REA, the current administration is proposing another round of budget cuts for REA and even possible elimination of this agency by 1990," Hull announced.

"Included in the proposals would be the shedding of engineering standards, budget and personnel functions. If this type of dismantling is successful, Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative will almost certainly be faced with higher construction and energy cuts."

Hull added that should REA be eliminated, the board and management of the local cooperative will continue to strive to find alternative sources of financing.

For every dollar paid by members for electricity, Hull told the membership, 71 cents was spent last year for wholesale power. Interest, taxes and depreciation cost another 10 cents, operating and maintenance required 11 cents, and membership margin per dollar increased from five cents in 1983 to 8 cents in 1984.

Three incumbent directors were

City votes on bids, may purchase phones

The Hereford City Commission approved expenditures for airport runway improvements, a cathodic protection system, incinerator repair and a trash compacting unit during Monday night's regular meeting.

Dalworthy Slurry Seal, a company previously used by the city for airport work, was awarded the bid for taxi and runway improvement at the municipal airport. The $77,944 bid was the lowest and was also lower than what was budgeted for the project. The work will take 30 days to complete.

Allied Millwrights' bid of $9,544 won the job of supplying sheet metal for repair of the city incinerator.

A 25-yard trash compacting unit will be purchased from PakMor for $20,370.

An automatic cathodic protection system, used to prevent accumulation of mineral deposits inside city water storage tanks, will be purchased from Wallace and Tiernan of Dallas for $4,510.

The commission agreed to advertise for bids on a loader for the street department.

The city will also be considering purchase of telephone equipment. Ballpark figures on purchase of equipment show that the city could own phone equipment for the approximate cost of leasing it for two years.

The selection of an architect for a fire station was tabled.

Alcohol part of over half of traffic deaths

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Alcohol consumption figured in more than half of the traffic deaths in 10 Texas counties, a Texas A&M researcher says.

While accident reports from the counties studied show drunken driving played a part in 21 percent of the fatal accidents, autopsies indicated 51 percent of the drivers were legally drunk, said researcher Olga Pendleton.

Ms. Pendleton said her study for the university's Transportation Institute was the first to compare blood alcohol concentrations from autopsies with the corresponding accident reports. She looked at autopsies for 558 fatally injured drivers.

"There is apparently more drinking and driving going on out there than accident reports would lead us to believe," she said.

"We found that 66 percent of the accident reports on DWI drivers did not show alcohol as a contributing factor," she said. "We also found that the average blood alcohol concentration of all 558 fatalities was 0.11, exceeding the legal limit of 0.10."

The researcher said Texas does not require blood alcohol concentration tests for fatally injured drivers, as do 35 other states, and officers filing accident reports make only subjective judgments concerning alcohol as a factor in accidents.

Included in the studies, she said, were accident records in Bexar, Harris, Dallas, El Paso, Tarrant, Travis, Nueces, Johnson and Wichita counties because blood alcohol concentration tests are conducted in autopsies there.

She said, "the proportion of legally intoxicated driver fatalities ranged from the highest of 55.4 percent in Travis County to 39.4 percent in Tarrant County."

Ms. Pendleton said her studies showed that the average blood alcohol concentration for fatally injured drivers was highest in October, with December and January next. Monday through Wednesday were the days safest from drunken drivers, she said.

Between 11 p.m. and 3 a.m., she said "there's a different kind of driver" on the road. The studies showed that 70 percent of all drivers killed between those hours were legally drunk.

Farmers want profits, not credit

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A survey of U.S. farmers shows they are anxious to make money and don't want to continue borrowing, according to U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm.

Stenholm, D-Stamford, said the same consensus is forming among members of a house agricultural subcommittee on cotton, rice and sugar. The subcommittee took the survey, and has been listening to farmers in visits across the country.

The "thin thread" of consensus is that "farmers don't need more credit," Stenholm said. "They need to make money so they can pay off the loans they have now."

Stenholm said he will help write legislation to make farming in the United States more profitable. Such a bill would include maintaining "some semblance of the current loan and target price structure," he said.

Mattox: No image problem

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox, insisting his acquittal on a commercial bribery charge left him stronger politically, says he has nothing to fear from the public.

"The trial was something I did because I was not guilty of anything. I did not violate the law and I would not ... I think the people out there understand that," Mattox said Monday.

Although stopping short of announcing that he will seek reelection, Mattox said he was ready for anyone the Republican Party might run against him next year.

"The political campaign trail has been strewn with the bodies of Republicans that thought they could unseat me. I suspect I'll have opposition. Tell them to put up their money," he said.

Mattox also ridiculed a pledge from state Republican Party chairman George Strake of Houston, who said the GOP will have a solid candidate to challenge Mattox.

UT president takes exception

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — University of Texas President Peter Flawn says it may be time for a blue-ribbon study of higher education to prove state colleges are not fat with funding and are doing a good job.

Flawn's remarks came Monday after State Comptroller Bob Bullock told an Austin audience that the state's colleges "have their noses in a $3-billion bowl of gravy which is in their local bank accounts and which the Legislature never sees."

Bullock said the Legislature should look at each school's total budget, including locally generated funds, in determining how to allocate limited tax dollars to higher education.

"We know that we're not fat, and we don't have any gravy bowl," Flawn countered.

Court rejects newspapers' effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts by two Texas newspapers to gain access to millions of pages of documents filed over the construction delay of the $3.3 billion South Texas Nuclear Project have been thwarted by a Supreme Court ruling.

In arguments before the high court Monday, lawyers for the Austin American-Statesman and the Houston Chronicle contended that the public and press have a constitutional right to such documents.

But the Supreme Court rejected the arguments without comment. Texas courts had previously ruled against the newspapers.

Twelve injured in fire

CHICAGO (AP) — A smoky trash fire at the Chicago Board of Trade building injured 12 people Monday night, fire officials said.

Fire Department spokesman Jerry Lawrence said the fire started just after 9 p.m. in a pile of trash placed in containers near freight elevators on the 10th floor. The fire was put out about 10 p.m.

Fire officials said they didn't know the exact cause of the fire, but Lawrence said it was being termed accidental.

Lawrence said the injured, many of them custodial workers, probably suffered smoke inhalation.

The injured were taken to five area hospitals. Hospital spokesmen said the injured were being examined late Monday night, but that none was seriously hurt.

Ohio Senate rejects bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Senate early Tuesday rejected a bill designed to help reopen 69 Ohio savings and loan associations by bringing them under the umbrella of federal insurance after the House passed the measure in an emergency session.

A Senate committee received the bill early Monday evening from the House and rewrote key parts of the legislation before leaders from both chambers hashed out a new version. Senators then voted to adjourn early Tuesday after attempting to make further changes on the Senate floor.

The Senate was scheduled to reconvene at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Blast shakes Baghdad

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — A pink flash lit the dawn sky in Baghdad today and seconds later a powerful blast shook buildings in the Iraqi capital. Iran reported the explosion was caused by a ground-to-ground missile that hit the industrial district of Dora.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said the missile caused "considerable losses and damage." There were no immediate reports from Baghdad on damage or casualties.

Iran and Iraq — at war for 4½ years — renewed attacks on each other's cities more than two weeks ago. Iran also has launched a ground offensive into southern Iraq.

Starting today at 8 p.m. Baghdad time (noon EST), Iraq said it would shoot down any aircraft in Iranian airspace. Many airlines canceled service to both Tehran and Baghdad. Iran said it protested to the International Air Transport Association and the International Civil Aviation Organization.

The blast came hours after Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and King Hussein of Jordan departed the Iraqi capital after discussions with President Saddam Hussein of Iraq. The two Arab leaders are Iraq's closest allies.

On his return to Cairo, Mubarak told reporters: "Iraq does not need more military assistance because it is in a better military position" than Iran, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency reported.

It was the fourth explosion in five days to rock Baghdad. Reporters have been barred from the sites of previous blasts. Iran claims the blasts were caused by long range missiles. Baghdad is about 100 miles from the Iranian border.

Bills approved by committee

AUSTIN (AP) — A senate committee has approved bills that would prohibit drivers in Texas from drinking and require them and all front-seat passengers to wear seat belts.

The Senate State Affairs Committee vote Monday on the seat belt bill came after several senators said they don't appreciate the federal government dictating state law.

The bills now go to the full Senate for consideration.

Democratic Sen. Bill Sarpaluis, D-Canyon, won 11-1 committee support for his bill that would make it a $200 fine for drinking while driving.

A similar "open container" law failed in the 1983 Legislature.

Under Sarpaluis' bill, drivers cannot have alcoholic beverages in their possession. The law would not apply to passengers. In the original bill, open containers were prohibited if they were in the driver's reach.

"The main objective is to stop drinking and driving. It is very important that we emphasize whether it's being consumed or had it in their possession," Sarpaluis said.

Legislation requiring drivers and front seat passengers to wear seat belts gained committee approval on an 8-5 vote.

The mandatory seat belt bill introduced by Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite, excludes large trucks. A so-called "Bubba amendment" that excluded pickup trucks was dropped from the bill.

Lyon said including teepvqz wade the bill stronger.

Sen. Don Henderson, R-Houston, tried to add an amendment that would have allowed for the use or non-use of a safety belt to be admissible evidence in a civil trial. The amendment failed 8-4.

The amendment had received criticism from some lawyers.

"The only people in the state that this provision will benefit are the plaintiff's trial lawyers who will continue to be enriched with money they make off of these people's injuries," said John Golden, president of the Texas Association of Defense Counsel.

should tell someone to protect his or herself," Edwards said.

He said the same logic used to back the bill would lead to laws banning cigarette smoking and hand guns.

Henderson also said he did not like the federal government telling states what to do.

The U.S. Department of Transportation has said it would make air bags mandatory if states that include two-thirds of the nation's population don't make seat belt use mandatory.

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, said he considered the seat belt law similar to the mandatory safety helmets which the Legislature passed one session only to repeal the next.

Long Term Parking

Have you ever seen a pickup with a trunk. One never knows what problem may occur with inactivity — staying parked in one place too long really put this vehicle out on a limb.

Senate confirms 14 board members

AUSTIN (AP) — Two senators have called for the State Board of Education and educators to use common sense in adapting the 1984 educational reform bill to Texas' public schools.

Sen. Carl Par'can't attend an awards banquet if they have an 'F' or that they can't participate in the senior prom."

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said, "They know and we know, and anybody with any common sense knows, that nobody ever intended that. What we intended by the no-pass, no-play rule was that students should give attention to their studies first ... before they spend their time on ongoing time-demanding activities."

The Senate voted 28-0 Monday to confirm 14 of the 15 appointed members of the new Board of Education although Sen. Chet Brooks said he had a "great feeling of reluctance" about the board.

Brooks, D-Pasadena, said in board members' responses to senators' questions "there seemed to be no real expression ... of, 'Hey, I want to do what's best for the kids, and I want the education system to work.'"

"I will reluctantly vote for these people but it is my firm hope, my plea — it would be such a wonderful experience for me if one of them would show some common sense in trying to deal with problems," said Brooks.

The Senate confirmation vote was held up a week after the board approved a no-pass, no-play rule which knocked thousands of students who had failed a single course out of extracurricular activities for six weeks. The Senate in a resolution had directed the board to reduce the penalty to a week.

REPRESENTATIVE

Concluding his address by asking the crowd not to get frustrated with government policy toward the farmer, de la Garza assured them the system is working well.

"There's no better prof than me that the system works. It's a long long ways from the banks of the Rio Grande to the banks of the Potomac."

REC

re-elected to the board; Clark Andrews, Donald Wright and Clarence Martin. Other board members are Jerry Roberts, Eldred Brown, Dub Anthony and Anthony Acker.

Deaf Smith REC boasts 2,607 members in Deaf Smith, Oldham, Parmer and Castro counties. Capital credits totaling $400,000 were returned to the membership during Saturday's meeting.

Recognized as Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative pioneers were James Ramey, Leo Forrest and Gooes Witherspoon. Ramey served as board member from 1939 until 1945, Forrest was manager from 1945 to 1969, and Witherspoon was instrumental in founding the cooperative 48 years ago.

On Monday, however, Parker said, "I think it is very important that our chairman Jon Brumley, Fort Worth, and added, "I think there was a lot read into our resolution the other day by people who would like for us to get into a big cat fight over many things."

Parker said the main reason he had introduced the resolution "was to offer a way to lessen the impact on hard-working kids without backing away at all from the thrust of what we wanted to accomplish and that is academic excellence ... and a statement to the public that academics in public education come first — that's what the taxpayers are paying for."

Chairman Brumley assured me that any apparent slight to this body was one of inexperience in political matters and not one of intent or desire to fly in the face of any expression of concern or will on the part of this body," Parker said.

He said House Speaker Gib Lewis had assured him that he would not prevent the House "from expressing its will" on the no-pass, no-play rule. He also said Brumley had assured him that if the House acted on a similar resolution he would call an immediate board meeting to respond.

Brooks said the Senate had made mistakes in passing the education reform bill last summer, "and we're going to have to correct them."

He said one board nominee not before the Senate for confirmation had spoken from "mass ignorance" and "made a personal attack on the Senate without understanding what our obligations are in the nominations and confirmation process."

The only board nominee who was not confirmed Monday was Volly Bastine, Houston, who still must appear before the Senate Nominations Committee.

The board members confirmed included Mary Berlanga, Nueces County; Rebecca Canning, McLennan; Emmett Conrad, Dallas; Carolyn Crawford, Jefferson; Charles Duncan Jr., Harris; Paul Dunn, Hockley; Maria Flood, El Paso; William McBride, Bexar; Geraldine Miller, Dallas; Pete Morales Jr., Medina; John Prescott, Brazos; Katherine Raines, Johnson; Jack Strong, Gregg; and Brumley, Tarrant.

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators met today for their third session on reducing nuclear arms, while a Soviet newspaper accused the Reagan administration of pursuing an MX missile "trump card" for the talks.

The American negotiators were driven through the iron gates of the Soviet mission shortly after 11 a.m. in a seven-car convoy of grey and black Ford sedans.

A U.S. spokesman said the meeting was a full session, with 21 delegates on each side.

Chief U.S. negotiator Max M. Kampelman, who was in the first car, did not acknowledge the handful of reporters who waited outside the mission under sunny skies and near-freezing temperatures.

It was not clear how long the U.S. team would meet with their Soviet counterparts, who are headed by veteran negotiator Victor Karpov. Reporters were not permitted to enter the Soviet grounds.

The two superpowers held their sagacious policies of the white-minority government.

Black workers in Port Elizabeth, an economically depressed Indian Ocean port city, on Monday completed a three-day strike against price increases for fuel, bus fares and consumer goods. Prices for gasoline were raised by 25 to 40 percent last month.

A leader of the protest, Sipo Hashe, said the action effectively showed the ruling white minority of 5 million "that the people are suffering." South Africa's black majority of 22 million cannot vote and is bound by a strict racial segregation system called apartheid.

Police spokesman Col. Gerrie van Rooyen said there was violence in several black townships around Port Elizabeth on Monday. A three-year-old child died in the house-torching, and two youths were killed when police, in separate incidents, fired at crowds stoning police patrols. Three other blacks were killed in rioting, but the details were unclear, he said.

Two youths were killed in Soweto, Johannesburg's sprawling black township, on Monday, police said, but it was not clear if the killings were politically motivated.

Coming to Hereford so Bob McLeod could fill the position of interim pastor at the First Presbyterian Church, Bob and Cheryl McLeod are interested in giving their talents to the community.

The McLeods are to remain here until a pastor is found for the church or until Mr. McLeod is called to a church full-time.

"We could be here for one month, a year or his time could be renewed," Mrs. McLeod said. "We expect, though, to be here for six to eight months."

A full-time pastor at one time, Mr. McLeod has spent the last nine years in private counseling and working with drug and alcohol rehabilitation in a Presbyterian hospital in Oklahoma City.

"Counseling was an extension of his pastoring. Something he pursued more in-depth," Mrs. McLeod said. "He's ready now to get back into pastoring because it uses the full range of skills that he's trained in."

Living here only four weeks, Mrs. McLeod is anxious to share her special talent — painting.

She has been painting professionally for nine years and taught art in Massachusetts schools for five years. She especially enjoys pastel painting, landscapes and commissioned portrait painting.

In New York, she studied under Albert Hande, who currently resides in Ruidoso, N.M., and Daniel Greene.

"I really welcome the opportunity to give evidence of my profession," Mrs. McLeod said. "I want to start painting portraits here and would really like an opportunity to show my work."

Presently, she has some of her work displayed in two galleries in Oklahoma City: Dodson Gallery and Art Place II.

In painting portraits, Mrs. McLeod said that she most enjoys "getting into the personalities of the people."

"There's a lot of psychology involved, and I really like that," she said. "Landscape painting is where I find out who I am. I love painting the outrageous colors of the West."

Culminating her lifetime interest in art, Mrs. McLeod received her art education degree from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. She attended Massachusetts College of Art and Boston University where she pursued graduate work.

She is a member of the Copley Society — a professional art association in Boston — South Oklahoma City Art Association and Pastel Association of Oklahoma. Through the organizations, she is kept in contact with other professionals.

Mrs. McLeod will teach private lessons for adults who wish to learn to draw and paint beginning April 22 at her studio, 138 Liveoak.

To keep her busy before the lessons start, she has applied to substitute teach in the public schools.

Both McLeods participate in sports. He enjoys sailing, hunting, fishing, golf and tennis. She prefers golf, tennis and swimming.

"I consider myself an athlete for my age," Mrs. McLeod laughed.

The couple have four children. Andy lives with them and works full-time in the food service industry. Jeffrey and Brian both live in Massachusetts where they attend school. Bruce works in the food service industry in Oklahoma City.

Mr. McLeod's mother, Alice, resides with the McLeods.

Ann Landers Be smart

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 40, divorced and have grown children. The man I have been seeing lives 100 miles from here, but his business brings him into town quite often. "Harold" is married, 50, and has four children.

Harold is a very honest person. He made it clear when we started to see each other that he would never lie to me. He said he would never lie to his wife either. He told her about us from the beginning. Her response was upsetting. She said no marriage is perfect and she understands a man's need for variety. Harold has her permission to see me on the side but under no circumstances would she consider a divorce.

I love this man. He said I make him very happy and he would hate to give me up. Last week his wife bought a king-size waterbed. He told me yesterday how much fun it was and suggested that I buy one for my apartment.

I don't want to live in the shadows for the rest of my life. What is your opinion of this relationship?—Waiting In The Next State

DEAR WAITING: The relationship is terrific for Harold. He has all the comforts of home, plus the pleasures of being a family man. He also gets the "variety" that his wife seems to think he needs. If you have a brain in your head you will tell Harold to enjoy the waterbed at home and forget your name, address and telephone number.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading "Brainwashed by Bells," I'm compelled to report that one religious group in Butte, Mont., is forcing its religious beliefs on an entire city.

Next summer on top of the Continental Divide, overlooking Butte, will be a statue of Mary nearly as big as the Statue of Liberty. Members of other faiths in this city believe it is another golden calf.

Many spoke against this figure in the newspaper and on talk shows, but it's going up anyway. To be forced, day in and day out, to look at something one does not believe in is NOT freedom. Sign me — Against It

DEAR AGAINST: According to my old friend Bert Gaskill of the Montana Standard, "Our Lady of the Rockies" will be up (all 94 feet) possibly by next fall. It's a voluntary effort, paid for by contributions, and is expected to be a tourist attraction and not a symbol to be worshipped.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you indicated that you had been hoodwinked. You referred to the incident involving a small girl who disappeared in a supermarket and was later found in the men's restroom. A man had sedated her and was cutting her hair in order to disguise her so he could carry her out unnoticed.

If you were hoodwinked, so was a very good newspaper. The Columbus Dispatch carried that story a few weeks ago.

It was worth printing even though it may not have been true. Parents need to be reminded that there are people out there who are just as crazy as the hoax and they should keep a careful eye on their young ones at all times. You didn't need to apologize for being taken in.—Lebanon, Pa.

DEAR LEB: Thanks for those kind words. I feel better already.

Things change. When you were a kid you avoided, if possible, a good tanning. Now you pay good money for a half hour of rays in the tanning salon.

NCAA basketball

N.C. battling despite absences

By TOM FOREMAN Jr. AP Sports Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Michael Jordan left early for the pros. Sam Perkins and Matt Doherty graduated. So, there is North Carolina, left with a lot of young players and still challenging for the national collegiate basketball title.

That challenge was supposed to have occurred last season, when Jordan, Perkins, Doherty and a good supporting cast were to have waltzed into Seattle's Kingdome for the NCAA Final Four. Indiana cut short the dance in the East Regional semifinals, yet Coach Dean Smith is convinced the No. 1 ranking his Tar Heels took into the tournament was deserved.

"If we were not the best team, Georgetown and us were the best teams in the country," Smith said. "Although we did have some injuries at the end of last year, we hit Indiana when they played a super game."

With his three top players gone, expectations were not high for 1985. Yet, Smith and the 26-8 Tar Heels are headed into the semifinals of the Southeast Regionals, where they will face Auburn.

"We're delighted to have won 26 games," said Smith. "I think you can point to young talent which has gained experience."

Smith draws no comparison between the 1984 team and the 1985 team.

"This team has its own chemistry," Smith said.

The 1985 Tar Heels were picked to finish fourth in the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season race and didn't draw enough points to warrant a spot in the college basketball preseason polls. They did, however, win 12 of their first 13 games to climb into the top 20.

That streak stretched into January, where the Tar Heel fortunes started to skid. A loss to Southern Methodist was followed by losses in three of the next four games and there was concern that a string of 18 straight appearances in the NCAA tournament was in jeopardy.

Those worries faded as Smith coached the team to an 8-2 record in February. North Carolina tied for the top seeding in the league tournament and got to the finals, where they lost to Georgia Tech.

"I think we became a good basketball team in February," said Smith. "Or, one that was coming of age through experience."

Brad Daugherty, the 6-foot-11 junior center, is the veteran among the starters at age 19. Sophomore point guard Kenny Smith missed the stretch run last season with a broken wrist.

Sophomore Joe Wolf and junior Curtis Hunter, both hurt in the midst of the January slide, returned.

Wolf has played some of his best basketball in the postseason. He is averaging 9.3 points per game and contributed clutch shooting in the ACC tournament and also at the Southeast Regional. Hunter has been fighting off injuries which has plagued him since he arrived at Chapel Hill and is shooting 56.1 percent from the floor.

Senior Buzz Peterson, who had been an occasional starter, was pressed into service when Steve Hale suffered a separated shoulder against Middle Tennessee State in a first-round Southeast Regional game.

The biggest surprise has been the emergence of Warren Martin, the 6-11 junior who joined Hunter on the sidelines last season. Martin is shooting 60.1 percent from the field, second best on the team, and has blocked 74 shots, a team best.

Gamblers plow past Denver Monday, 36-17

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Denver Gold Coach Mouse Davis finally got a chance to look into the teeth of the run-and-shoot monster he created with the Houston Gamblers a year ago.

And it bit him. The Gamblers, paced by four touchdown passes from quarterback Jim Kelly and three field goals by Toni Fritsch, blasted Davis' Gold 36-17 Monday night in a United States Football League game with the run-and-shoot offense Davis created last season as the Gamblers' offensive coordinator.

"Mouse is just like any other coach we play against but it was sure good to beat him," Kelly said after completing 32 of 61 passes for 433 yards. "After the game he (Davis) said he couldn't believe how much punishment I could take, but he said he knew that I was a hard-nosed player."

The Gamblers fell behind 17-13 in the third quarter before Kelly and the Gamblers rallied to their fourth straight victory of the season. The Gold dropped to 2-2.

"We did what we've been doing all year, keeping our poise and fighting back," Kelly said.

Houston started slowly against the Gold. After taking a 13-7 lead on Kelly's four-yard touchdown pass to Richard Johnson and Fritsch's field goals of 27 and 42 yards, Denver rallied to a 17-13 lead in the third quarter.

Gold running back Bill Johnson shoved off four tacklers in a 26-yard touchdown run for Denver's first score and Vince Evans hit Marc Lewis on an eight-yard touchdown pass for a 14-13 halftime lead.

NIT roundup

Cavs gang in tourney

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
In their first National Invitation Tournament game, the Virginia Cavaliers "won one for Jimmy." For the rest of the tourney, they're playing for the "New York Gang."

"If we get to New York, I know I'm gonna be about three stories high," said Mel Kennedy, a freshman guard for the Cavaliers who is a native of Long Island. "Maybe there we'll win for the New York gang."

Kennedy and the rest of the "New York gang," — 6-11 sophomore center Olden Polynice of New York City and 6-5 senior guard Tim Mullen of nearby Ridgewood, N.J. — hope to take a step in that direction tonight in a second-round NIT game against visiting St. Joseph's (Pa.).

Quarterfinals will be held this Saturday at sites to be determined with the semifinals and finals on March 27 and March 29 in New York.

In other second-round play tonight, it's Richmond at Indiana; Marquette at Cincinnati, New Mexico at Fresno State and Nebraska at UCLA. On Wednesday night, South Florida plays at Louisville, Southwestern Louisiana meets Tennessee and Tennessee-Chattanooga plays at Lamar.

The Cavaliers are still alive in the tournament by virtue of a 56-55 squeaker over West Virginia last week.

"It doesn't have to be pretty, as long as you do what it takes to win," said Jim Miller, a 6-foot-8 Virginia forward who took plenty of abuse from the Mountaineer crowd in the game at Morgantown.

Miller was the West Virginia high school player of the year four years ago as a senior at Princeton, and the crowd did not let him forget that he had left the state to play elsewhere. But the crowd's jeers motivated Miller's teammates, as well as Miller himself.

"We got there (to Morgantown) and saw how arrogant the crowd was," said Kennedy. "That was what really got us pumped up. They were all over Jimmy from the early warm-ups on. We came back in the locker room, and we were really pumped up. We said, 'All right, let's play some ball for Jimmy.'"

UCLA Coach Walt Hazard, meanwhile, hopes the Bruins get more crowd support for their game against Nebraska than came to Pauley Pavilion last week to watch them beat Montana 78-47. Only 4,280 were on hand last Thursday night.

Marquette and Cincinnati advanced to the second round with overpowering victories — the Warriors stopping Bradley 77-64 and the Bearcats outscoring Kent State 77-61.

Xavier Coach Bob Staak, whose team lost twice to Marquette this season, thinks the Bearcats will have their hands full with the Warriors.

"Contrary to what is often said about them, they have very good size," Staak said of the Warriors. "They are the most physical inside team we faced all season."

In no-pass no-play rule

Hereford athletes run into tough competition

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

High school and junior high athletes in the Hereford Independent School District may now be facing their toughest opponents ever — grades.

The State Board of Education recently voted 10-3 in favor of a part of House Bill 72, more specifically the no-pass no-play section of the bill, which makes it mandatory for students who participate in extra-curricular activities to pass every subject they're taking in school.

Hereford schools began feeling the crunch of the rule earlier this month at the end of the fourth six weeks. Jerry Taylor, HHS athletic director, said 23 football players, eight track athletes, seven volleyball players and two baseball players now are ineligible for high school competition until the final six weeks of school, April 19.

No figures were available on the number of basketball players who now cannot participate.

"I have no idea how we compare to other schools in the district (3-5A) on the percentage of players we've lost," Taylor said Monday. "I imagine we're close to Palo Duro (High School) in that category (23.3 percent)."

Marilyn Leasure, assistant principal at Hereford High School, had no percentages either, but said a survey conducted by HHS band director Johnny Martinez indicated 427 failures during the fourth six weeks, ending March 1.

Leasure explained that the figure could mean as many as 50.4 of the 848 students in Hereford High School could have failed one course. However, if every student at HHS were taking a full course load, she said, the number is only eight percent of the total hours taken.

"There are possibly 5,088 total grades if everybody takes full loads," Leasure said. "One student could possibly have as many as three or four failing grades, and one may not have any.

"We don't know what the percentage is of the number of students involved (in extra-curricular activities) that are failing, though."

According to the no-pass no-play rule, students may qualify for extra-curricular events only if they have grades of at least 70 in all courses. The rule became law Jan. 1 and varied taking effect with each subject.

The Brand learned Monday that three of the ineligible track participants were thus so because of incomplete courses. However, two of those students now have completed their class work and are eligible.

"Seven of those 23 football players (who failed at least one course the fourth six weeks) are seniors, and it won't matter as far as eligibility for next year goes," Taylor said. "And one of those football players who is failing also runs track.

"I imagine if you don't count our junior highs, we have less than 10 percent who are ineligible."

By including the junior highs, La Plata and Stanton, the ineligible figure substantially increases. Fifty boys and girls are failing at least one course at La Plata, and 95 boys and girls are failing a subject at Stanton.

Taylor said he could list several ineligible high school students who were failing a course by only a few points but had strong marks in other subjects.

"There's a lot of relative things," Taylor said. "The person who wants to play but who wants to get a good education at the same time might be ineligible because he takes some harder subjects.

"I don't believe there are very many who I can say aren't trying."

HHS may be one of the schools hardest hit by the rule, already suffering from a decline in numbers. Taylor said the law couldn't help but cut away even more at athletic programs.

"We've always stressed quality over quantity," he said, "but you've still got to have X number of people to play. We've been working more with our freshmen (next year's sophomores) trying to incorporate them into our football program in case we need more of them."

Plainview High School, also a member of District 3-5A, figures its high school enrollment by counting students in grades nine through 12.

Taylor said he didn't foresee students in those classifications playing football. He added, however, that HHS may have to include freshmen to remain in Class 5A if enrollment continued to drop.

"I don't anticipate it (the rule) changing drastically," Taylor said. "I think if it's going to change, it's going to have to be done by the state legislature and not by the Board of Education. This is what the Board wants."

Evident by the Board's 10-3 vote.

Hereford girls take third place at Perryton

Despite running with an incomplete team, Hereford High School captured third place in girls track at the Rangerette Relays in Perryton Saturday.

Pampa won the event with 146 total points. Panhandle was second with 78 followed by Hereford with 77.

"We ran in terrible weather," Hereford coach Martha Emerson said, "rain and cold. We had only 13 girls competing of the 23 out for track. Some were out of town for various reasons during spring break and several were sick."

"Under the circumstances, the girls competed well. Each of three relays had at least two different members, but the girls all gave their best."

While the Whitefaces failed to take any first places, the local girls won four seconds, four thirds, two fourths and one sixth.

The girls will run in Snyder Saturday at the Canyon Reef Relays.

Mickey Mantle, Willie Mays

Commissioner reinstates baseball stars

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Peter Ueberroth promised "new and stricter guidelines," for baseball's future relationship with legalized gambling after restoring Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays to the sport they starred in for so long.

Mantle and Mays had been barred from baseball by Ueberroth's predecessor, Bowie Kuhn, when they accepted jobs as goodwill ambassadors with Atlantic City gambling casinos.

After studying their cases for the last two months, the new commissioner on Monday moved to return them to the sport but at the same time defended Kuhn's original action.

"I find no fault with the previous ruling," Ueberroth said. "Baseball must remain free from any connection between it and gambling. That is vital. I am making two exceptions for these two great players because of what they mean to our game.

"I read everything there is to read on the subject. I checked what they had been doing. They don't deserve to be out of the game if they want to be in it."

Ueberroth said he had consulted with Kuhn before making the Mays-Mantle ruling. "Bowie has only been helpful. I consider him a friend. I discussed the matter with him. He spent 15 years in this job. He knows it very well."

However Kuhn, now employed by a Manhattan law firm, did not agree with Ueberroth's action.

"I don't know of a basis for changing my decision," he said. "I have trouble going along with it. I told him that. He expected me not to agree. He thinks this should be treated as an exception. I didn't. That is a judgment he has to make.

"He says he is not changing policy, merely making an exception based on the character and conduct of Mays and Mantle. I have no question about their conduct. I never have. My problem is with their employment."

"Baseball needs some definitive guidelines even tougher than the policy that exists to date."

Ueberroth promised that the sport will have exactly that, probably within the next month, to tightly control future associations between baseball personnel and casinos.

"We've got to look at the subject," he said. "It's a complex issue. But I don't think we can start dictating who you can play golf with."

That, essentially, is the role Mays fills with Bally's Park Place and Mantle with Del Webb's Claridge Hotel. Both receive $100,000 a year for promotional and public relations duties and for rubbing elbows with the casinos' best customers. Kuhn, however, found that relationship dangerous for baseball even though Mantle and Mays never quite understood the former commissioner's position.

"I couldn't figure it out," Mantle said. "It was a dumbfounded feeling. I wondered why I was banned. It seemed to me I was a better guy (at that time) than I used to be (when I played)."

"I acted like it didn't bother me, but it did. You don't want to get kicked out of your favorite bar or be banned from baseball."

Mays said "I don't think I did anything wrong for baseball."

Neither did George Steinbrenner, owner of the Yankees. "This was a tremendous action," Steinbrenner said. "To arbitrarily ban two of the greatest players in the history of the game because of their association with a legalized activity, while we allow fellows who were convicted of using drugs to play, I don't see the balance. I don't think justice was served. I think justice has been served now."

CELTIC MYSTIQUE

BOSTON (AP) — That well-known Boston Celtic mystique is not exaggerated, according to Dennis Johnson, the sharpshooting guard of the NBA champions.

"On the court we have the uncanny sense of knowing where everybody else is," Johnson said. He played for Phoenix and Seattle before joining the Celtics.

"Playing in Boston is different from any other place I've played," Johnson continued. "The fans love the game. The players do also and they are really close, both on and off the court. We are really tightly-knit and that's one of the reasons we are so successful."

MEDICARE.

They pay. You pay.

Medical and hospital bills. They can be overwhelming if you're not prepared.

Medicare will pay a part of the bill and generally you are left with the rest. That's where WE come in.

Southland Life. We have a Medicare Supplement Insurance Plan to help cover those bills. We supplement your Medicare coverage. In other words:

They pay. You pay. We pay.

With our Medicare Supplement policy, we help reduce the "You pay" portion. Call or write for details. There's no obligation.

Talent search being conducted

Showcase of Stars International Talent Search is now accepting applications from vocalists, dancers, comics, magicians, acrobats, bands, models, etc. for its first annual competition to discover new stars. All auditions will be held in the contestant's local area.

The winners of the vocal, dance and novelty categories will each receive a week's paid engagement at the Maxim Hotel in Las Vegas plus round trip air fare, bands will receive a record contract and record release and winning models will be paid to appear in a full page national magazine advertisement.

The competition is open to all talented people who have had some experience in front of an audience.

Showcase of Stars executive producer Dr. Marv Cutler has announced that all finalists in all categories will appear on Broadway in New York City at the Milford Plaza Hotel, the New York home for the Boston-based entertainment organization, in front of numerous agents and producers. Finalists will also appear on television shows to be announced.

For the past 10 years Showcase of Stars has discovered many new talents that have gone on to television and featured with the likes of Rod McKuen and Tony Sandler, appearances in night clubs like Jilly's and Storyville, Broadway shows including the original cast of "ANNIE" and featured in concert with people like Buddy Rich, Lionel Hampton, Linda Hopkins and Professor Irwin Corey.

Dr. Cutler pioneered music television in New England on cable for Warner-Amex and Colonial Cablevision before the creation of MTV and was also the subject of a documentary film that played in film festivals world-wide. He has also produced and hosted a television variety series and is currently heard daily on Boston Radio and writes a newspaper column. He has produced many top stars and new discoveries in concert.

For more information and entry form write to: SHOWCASE OF STARS, 310 Franklin St., Suite 7, Boston, MA 02110.

Around the County

By SUSAN RANEY
County Extension Agent

With spring arriving tomorrow and our warmer days not far behind, it delights me to be able to put away the woolen skirts, corduroy pants and warm sweaters and bring out my Spring and Summer clothes. I am so glad we have seasons so that we can alternate our clothes styles every 5 or 6 months!

So, as we are pulling out last year warm weather clothes, we may wonder what's new for Spring/Summer '85. According to a report developed by the Clothing Specialists at Texas A&M University, fabrics for Spring are lighter and brighter with flatter textures and touches of luster.

The laundered, wrinkled, and crinkled fabrics will still be strong. Newer directions are found in smooth textures such as sateen, chino and polished fabrics.

Featherweight wools are being designed for spring dresses and light weight coats. Shirtings, such as Oxford cloth are better than ever, as is terry cloth.

Patterns will be primarily floral in soft pastels, joyous bright tropical prints and soft delicate flowers.

The biggest news in color: White will be the major emphasis, used alone or with clear colors. Navy is replacing black as the summer dark, while other colors are being lightened, brightened and whitened for a refreshing new look.

All this fashion information and much more can be learned by youth joining 4-H and enrolling in a clothing project.

Members who are enrolled in clothing projects for 1985 will not only learn how to sew but they'll learn many new and exciting things about clothing and textiles—such as what styles are new for Spring/Summer and how to coordinate colors with skin tones.

If you'd like to learn more about clothing and are interested in fashion, accessorizing, and modeling, then contact Susan Raney at the County Extension Office. It could be that you've been missing out on a great deal of fashion by not being in 4-H.

Faith is what leads you to believe you can hold anything still long enough for the "instant" glue used to repair it to take hold.

Assisting Hartman will be Ernie Morris, presently serving the interest of Jehovah's Witnesses in this area, as circuit overseer. Both Hartman and Morris arrived in Amarillo this week to finalize the arrangements. Hartman said the Assembly theme, "Our Position In An Unstable World", would stress that although some persons have labeled our time as an age of doubt and skepticism, a stable faith can still be found.

Robert L. Hartman, now assigned to this area, has been an ordained minister of Jehovah's Witnesses since 1951 and has served full time since 1954. His assignments have included more than 15 states, with 16½ years spent in Alaska and the Yukon Territory of Canada. While serving there Hartman covered more than 250,000 miles to visit the congregations in all Alaska and the Yukon, an area of more than 700,000 square miles.

Hartman will be the feature speaker of the assembly Sunday, at 2 p.m. speaking on the subject "Basic For Faith In An Unbelieving World."
