Commission votes for 3 percent tax hike

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County Commissioners approved a $3.7 million budget and voted in a three percent tax rate increase during Monday's regular commissioner's court meeting.

The .40994 per $100 valuation rate, up from the effective rate of .398 determined by the tax appraisal district on this year's tax base of $472,388,243, should produce an income for the county of $1,842,773. The rate is actually lower than the 1984-85 budget year tax rate of .513, but taxpayers will see an increase in their tax bills because of a recent revaluation which raised most property values considerably.

Together with an opening balance of $593,000 and expected fine and fee collection of $1,333,599, the county should bring in enough to cover the 1985-86 budget of $3,746,188 and still have about $20,000 in surplus for unexpected expenses.

In other business Monday, county fathers approved a contract with the Governor's Nuclear Waste Programs Office which will enable a local intergovernmental committee to obtain funds from the U.S. Department of Energy.

The committee was formed earlier this year after county officials learned it can use DOE funds, which are collected from utilities companies that will use a high-level nuclear waste repository, to study the impacts of site characterization on the county.

Land in rural Deaf Smith County is expected to be nominated later this year as one of three sites in the country to undergo detailed site characterization as the search for the nation's first repository continues. Also favored are sites in Nevada and Washington state.

The contract, which expires Sept. 30, provides for a grant of $9,975 for the county. New funds can then be applied for during the state's new grant period which begins Oct. 1.

There were several visitors at Monday's meeting, including Garth Thomas on behalf of the county's Sesquicentennial Committee, two Walcott area farmers and two representatives of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Thomas, who chairs the committee along with Argen Draper, asked the commissioners to consider providing "starter dough" so the committee could sell sesquicentennial memorabilia as a fund-raising project. He said the county would be paid back money it granted for purchasing a starting inventory as soon as profits are realized.

Thomas said he would have the matter placed on the agenda for the next meeting so commissioners could make a decision about the project.

Comments from farmers Eldred Brown and Joe Perrin regarding the county's new regulated status under the Herbicide Law were followed by remarks by TDA representatives Angela Lamb and Dennis Maloney from the district office in Amarillo.

Brown and Perrin both said they have been able to live with TDA's presence in the county since the regulated status went into effect, but wondered if the restriction was necessary for some farmers in the western part of the county.

County Commissioners voted last fall, mostly because of drift damage to cotton crops in Deaf Smith and Farmer counties, to become a herbicide-regulated county and outlaw the use of butyl ester formulations of 2,4-D during the cotton growing season.

Brown said it was a rather speedy decision, and asked the commissioners to hold another hearing on the matter in October, the only month they are legally allowed to do so.

Lamb, who is the district supervisor, told commissioners there has been very little cotton damage reported since she decided late last month to cancel all blanket spray permits issued to farmers in the City couple hit while walking, hospitalized

A Hereford couple was injured Monday night after they were struck by a pickup truck as they walked on a street in northeast Hereford.

Werner and Betty Koelzer, 424 Ave. J, were taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital after the accident occurred around 9:30 p.m. in the 1600 block of Irving Street.

According to Hereford Police, the pickup was driven by Richard Long, 1604 Irving. While the officer's report was not complete this morning, no traffic tickets were issued and it is believed Long did not see the Koelzers because it was dark outside.

DSGH Administrator Jim Bullard said this morning Koelzer is still in the intensive care unit for observation, but his condition is stable. He sustained abrasions and contusions and a bruised kidney, Bullard said.

Mrs. Koelzer was in good condition this morning, also with abrasions and contusions.

Hereford police had a typically busy weekend, making eight arrests for public intoxication and driving while intoxicated and several traffic arrests.

Police also investigated several burglaries, including the Saturday break-in at Bluebonnet Laundry which resulted in a loss of nearly $1200 in cash, tools and damage to vending machines.

Reagan calls names of 'terrorist states'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says the United States is the target of "acts of war" in the form of terrorism from five countries ruled by "the strangest collection of misfits, looney tunes and squalid criminals since the advent of the Third Reich."

Reagan singled out Iran, Libya, North Korea, Cuba and Nicaragua on Monday as members of a "confederation of terrorist states" that represent "a new, international version of Murder, Inc."

Without spelling out specific steps, the president declared, "The American people are not — I repeat, not — going to tolerate intimidation, terror and outright acts of war against this nation and its people."

"And we're especially not going to tolerate these attacks from outlaw states run by the strangest collection of misfits, looney tunes and squalid criminals since the advent of the Third Reich," Reagan said.

Reagan spoke before thousands of attorneys attending the annual convention of the American Bar Association. They gave him a standing ovation when he said Americans will always defend their country, and they laughed and applauded at his description of the leaders of the five "outlaw states."

While mentioning the hijacking of TWA Flight 847 and the slaying of four Marines in El Salvador, Reagan did not announce any retaliatory action or military steps being considered by the United States.

He said his purpose was to "simply state the facts about the nature of international terrorism and affirm America's will to resist it."

Oddly, Reagan's list of countries did not match the list published by the State Department of states that support terrorism. The State Department includes Syria and South Yemen, along with Iran, Libya and Cuba. It does not include North Korea and Nicaragua, as Reagan did.

While saying that his list was not complete, the president said, "I submit to you that the growth in terrorism in recent years results from the increasing involvement of these (five) states in terrorism in every region of the world." He said the countries he cited "are simply the ones that can be most directly implicated."

He said terrorists are trying "to cause us to retreat, retrench, to become 'Fortress America'. Yes, their real goal is to expel America from the world."

"That is the real reason these terrorist nations are arming, training and supporting attacks against this nation. And that is why we can be clear on one point: these terrorist states are now engaged in acts of war against the government and people of the United States."

"And under international law," Reagan added, "any state which is the victim of acts of war has the right to defend itself."

So far, there have been no retaliatory strikes during the Reagan administration for the many terrorist actions directed against Americans.

Fires still raging in west, nearly 1 million acres burned

By DENNIS ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

More than 10,000 firefighters grappled today with high temperatures and brush, forest and range fires that have forced thousands of people to flee in 11 western states and Canada as they charred at least 900,000 acres — an area larger than the state of Rhode Island.

Firefighters, many of them having gone without sleep for days, battled blazes large and small, many of them lightning-caused, in California, Idaho, Oregon, Utah, Montana, Washington, Nevada, Oregon, Arizona, Nebraska, South Dakota and British Columbia. Residents of San Luis Obispo, Calif., returned warily to their homes on Monday after eight buildings were destroyed by a 30-foot wall of flames. About 5,000 to 10,000 people were evacuated earlier in the day, authorities said.

Gov. George Deukmejian declared a state of emergency Monday for San Luis Obispo County, the third California county to receive that status this month as fires seared the state, destroying or damaging more than 150 homes and killing three people.

The fire gutted seven homes and 14 other buildings in its early stages and, fanned by erratic winds on Monday, swept toward the city of 35,000, destroying another three homes and damaging five, authorities said.

Classes were canceled at schools and youth camps in the hills were evacuated as the fire grew to more than 60,000 acres. Highways and the airport closed, phone lines jammed and water pressure dropped as people sprayed homes.

Firefighters who saved the city, about 40 miles south of William Randolph Hearst's mansion at San Simeon, suffered 14 minor injuries, said Mike Cole, a California Department of Forestry spokesman, adding: "Some of them have been on their feet for 48 hours."

Temperatures under the orange-tinted sky climbed over 100 degrees.

The blaze, which began 130 miles northwest of Los Angeles on July 1, was among the latest and largest of a series of fires that has charred over 900,000 acres — about 1,400 square miles — since June in the western United States and Canada. By comparison, Rhode Island encompasses 1,214 square miles.

Heat also hampered firefighters battling the biggest California fire, which grew to 85,000 acres Monday in the Los Padres National Forest near Ojai, 65 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The arson-caused blaze no longer threatened the small cities of Ojai and Carpinteria.

Geologist uncovers dinosaur bones

STEPHENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Scientists say fossils of a previously unknown creature buried on an ancient flood plain near here could fill in a major gap in dinosaur history.

"The thing that is important about this discovery is that these fossils are from dinosaurs and other critters of an age that we know little about," said Dr. Philip Murry of the Tarleton State University Physical Sciences Department.

The remains of a type of plant-eating, dinosaur-like creatures that lived 100 million years ago were found in June by TSU sophomore Rusty Branch during an excavation project in June.

So far, the team has uncovered six dinosaur skeletons on the western part of Lake Proctor in Comanche County, about 75 miles southwest of Fort Worth and they suspect the site holds even more fossils.

Murry and Dr. Louis Jacobs of the Shuler Museum of Paleontology at Southern Methodist University headed the excavation.

Jacobs describes the project as monumental because of its contributions toward creating a more complete view of how the earth and animals have changed.

"This finding fills in a major gap in the record and gives us a more complete picture of the workings of these animals in their environment," Jacobs said.

Relief from heat expected

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas may be in for a respite from the unrelenting heat of the summer of 1984, but only to a degree — or two.

The National Weather Service said Monday that the long-range forecast calls for temperatures around the state to be a couple of degrees cooler than normal through September due to an upper level high pressure system.

Although it may be slightly cooler than last summer, "Hot is still hot," said weather service meteorologist Bill Alexander.

Forecasters at the weather service office here said the 90-day outlook from the National Climatic Analysis Center in Washington predict a 55 percent chance for slightly cooler weather across most of the state and a 60 percent chance for cooler weather in Central Texas.

In August, that still means highs for most of Texas in the high 90s. Changes in the upper level high pressure system have prompted the forecast, Alexander said.

"Generally, it extends in a band across the southern portions of the U.S., across South and South Central Texas and the desert Southwest," he said.

"Now it will be peaking as a ridge over the western U.S., somewhat split, with a high pressure center over the Gulf and another high over the West."

Creationism law struck down

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Evolution is just as much a religious belief as creationism, says a former state senator whose legislation requiring their teaching side-by-side in public schools failed a constitutional test.

The nation's only law requiring the teaching of creationism along with evolution was struck down Monday by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The law, enacted in 1981, was never enforced and was similar to an Arkansas law struck down in 1982.

Attorney General William Guste said he would have to study the opinion before deciding whether to go on to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The three-judge appellate panel upheld and expanded on U.S. District Judge Adrian Duplantier's finding in January that the law was unconstitutional.

Star wars might be allowed

NEW YORK (AP) — Research on President Reagan's "Star Wars" shield against nuclear missiles would be allowed under an agreement Soviet negotiators at the Geneva arms talks have indicated they could accept, according to a published report.

The Soviets indicated for the first time a willingness to accept a nuclear arms treaty allowing research on strategic defense, The New York Times said today.

Progress at the talks has been blocked because the Soviet Union until now had rejected any proposal allowing such research. The United States has refused to consider placing any limitations on the Reagan plan.

Administration officials said Soviet negotiators informally approached members of the American team two weeks ago to say Moscow would no longer insist on banning all research, according to the Times.

However, according to the officials, the Soviets said they still want to draw the line between research, which would be allowed, and development and testing, which would be banned, the Times reported.

PRI control shows in national vote

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Claiming a sweeping victory in national elections, the Institutional Revolutionary Party is demonstrating once again the political machinery that has kept it entrenched from the smallest village to the presidency for 56 years.

There had been widespread expectation that minority parties would make at least some gains in the elections for the 300-seat lower house of Congress, seven governors' offices and a handful of state and local posts.

COUNTY

county. The permits were canceled after TDA received reports of about 1,000 acres of damaged cotton in western Deaf Smith and eastern Farmer counties.

TDA has set up a temporary office in the courthouse, so that farmers can be issued permits to spray specific fields if it is determined the field is not too close to a susceptible crop.

County Librarian Diane Pierson was given permission to attend the Texas Library Association's Annual assembly July 10-20. Pierson told commissioners library funding in the state is based on population, and the county often loses out because it has a low population in comparison to the geographical size of the county.

She said she feels the county needs to be represented at such meetings for that reason, and also because rules that govern county librarian certification are made at the assembly.

County Treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley again visited with the court regarding the county's compliance with the Fair Labor Standards Act, which governs overtime pay and compensatory time.

Nunley told commissioners they may need to change an item in the employee handbook which says no overtime will be paid county workers, because the county is now obligated to pay overtime wages as the result of a recent Supreme Court ruling.

EDITOR'S NOTE — President Reagan is proposing a big revision of the federal income tax system. This first installment of a five-part series looks at past efforts at tax reform and how they fared.

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Joseph W. Barr was dreading on about trade and a balanced budget in his final report to the Joint Economic Committee before the Johnson administration left office in January 1969.

In the course of his dissertation, he casually mentioned a new Treasury finding that 120 Americans with incomes of $200,000 or more had paid no federal tax in 1967. "This kind of unfairness could trigger a middle-class taxpayers revolt," Barr cautioned. The committee — and the reporters — woke up.

The resulting firestorm lasted through April, Barr recently told the House Ways and Means Committee. As a result, Congress later that year passed a "minimum tax" aimed at nabbing some of the wealthy individuals and corporations that escape the federal tax net by taking legal deductions.

Sixteen years later, a new Treasury report shows 262 Americans above the $200,000 level paid no federal income tax in 1982. And President Reagan is advocating a tougher minimum tax to symbolize support for bringing fairness to the tax system.

For the same reason, Reagan is asking Congress to limit the deduction for business meals — the "three-martini lunch writeoff that has been under attack since it was known as simply a martini lunch.

And so the battle for "tax reform" goes on. Only the characters change. A quarter century's tax-overhaul efforts demonstrates mainly that if the goal is cutting deductions, credits and exemptions, a president's appetite for major change is greater than that of Congress. There are more of those "preferences" in the law — and more costly ones — than ever before.

President Kennedy recommended lower tax rates, curbs on tax shelters and a crackdown on expense-account living. Congress bought the tax cut and little else.

President Johnson had better luck.

In addition to passing the minimum tax in 1969, Congress raised taxes on capital gains, limited deductions of capital losses, restricted the writeoff for charity, created a low-income allowance for the poor and raised the personal exemption.

In 1971, the scales tipped in the other direction. The lawmakers limited the amount of earnings that could be subject to the top tax rate. But they also raised the exemption. Four years later, Congress liberalized the standard deduction, created the earned-income credit for poor working families and authorized tax-deferred contributions to retirement accounts for workers not covered by a company pension.

Tax shelters gained the attention of Congress during the Ford administration, in 1976, when the Internal Revenue Service audited fewer than 1,000 tax returns involving questionable shelter investments. (Last year the figure was about 300,000.) As part of a voluminous change, the lawmakers restricted deductions allowed for investments through limited partnerships in such areas as oil and gas and movie production.

The 1976 package also included a broadening of the minimum tax and yet another increase in capital-gain taxes.

President Carter came to office in 1977 decrying a disgraceful tax system.

In 1978, Congress accepted his proposed energy conservation credits, raised the personal exemption and standard deduction to help lower-income Americans, and once again toughened the minimum tax. It voted to repeal the deduction for state and local gasoline taxes but dropped most of the other "reforms" Carter had suggested. Reversing a policy of several years, the lawmakers granted more favorable treatment to capital gains.

Then along came Reagan with the biggest tax cut in history — rate cuts for everybody and a generous depreciation system for business. Congress added a lot of benefits but took away few. The pricetag came in 1982 and 1984 when, with deficits soaring, investors and corporations were hit with tax increases. Some wage-earners also were affected; the medical deduction was restricted and income averaging was made less available.

Reagan's 1985 overhaul plan — probably the most-sweeping in history — is now being examined by Congress. It would cut tax rates for most individuals and businesses, raise the personal exemption and wipe out or reduce several deductions and credits. It would remove from the tax rolls just about every person or family with income below the poverty line. It would, the president claims, cut taxes for 58 percent of the people and raise taxes for 21 percent, and keep 21 percent of the people about the same.

The president's toughest problem with the bill is likely to be convincing Congress to repeal the deduction allowed for state and local taxes. As yet, few people on Capitol Hill will bet against him.

But while Reagan, some lawmakers and a variety of experts are saying this is the year for tax reform, there is little evidence the public is clamoring for such big changes.

Tri-Church youth fellowship Wednesday

The Tri-Church youth fellowship will have the second of its summer activities Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Church of the Nazarene.

The host church, with First Christian and First Baptist Churches, welcome youth from junior high through college age to the fellowship.

Ted Taylor will be in charge of this Wednesday's program.

Suit filed over attorney fees

The owners and managers of a local apartment complex have filed suit against a Hereford law firm, claiming the $57,140.17 in attorneys fees charged by the firm are "excessive and unconscionable."

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Amarillo against the Witherspoon, Alkin and Langley law partnership, with plaintiffs listed as the Maxwell Management Corporation and Blue Water Garden Apartments of New York City, and Maxwell Management President and Vice President Murray Haber and Nickie Van Winkle.

The legal fees in question were charged by the Witherspoon firm for its defense of Blue Water Garden in a housing discrimination suit filed in the same Amarillo court. The suit was brought on by tenants of the complex, represented by Texas Rural Legal Aid, who claimed blacks and Hispanics were treated unfairly by the local management.

One plaintiff, who claimed to be handicapped, said she was made to live in a second-floor apartment even though her doctor had given her papers indicating she needed a ground-level unit.

Another woman said she was denied admission to the complex because she is black, while a third named plaintiff, who complained of rats and roaches in her apartment, said she did not receive a rent adjustment when her income was reduced.

A proposed settlement of the housing discrimination suit was submitted to U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson April 30, but the judge has yet to sign the settlement.

The discrimination suit was filed in September of 1984, and the Witherspoon firm was retained to represent the apartments at the prevailing rate of $100.00 per hour, the complaint against the firm states. That arrangement existed until May 14 of this year, when the judge permitted the firm to withdraw as counsel for the apartments.

"The number of hours devoted by counsel (John) Alkin to the case to irrelevant and fruitless pursuits and the failure of counsel Alkin to urge by pleadings and motion and in other appropriate ways pertinent available statutory defenses under the federal statutes upon which the class action suit was sought to be brought had the effect of greatly, exorbitantly, unconscionably, and knowingly, enlarging and increasing the size of the claimed entitlement for services," the complaints reads.

Maxwell Management offered the law office $17,500 for services rendered, which it claims the firm rejected.

Along with accusing the Witherspoon firm of charging an unreasonable amount for its services, Maxwell also claims it failed to inform them that "settlement overtures and offers to settle had been received" from TRLA attorneys on behalf of the plaintiffs.

Maxwell is asking the court to determine that the bill is excessive and the offer made to the firm be declared a "just and fair amount", and asks for attorneys fees and damages incurred in filing the suit and employing an Amarillo attorney.

POLICE

The burglary of Bill Bradley's photography studio was discovered Sunday morning, with an undetermined amount of cash and part of a knife and gun inventory taken. Entry was gained by removing an air conditioner from a window.

Around $300 worth of beer was stolen from Larry Ulibarri's business on West First Street, and $150 damage and the theft of beer was discovered Monday morning at Taylor Petroleum on North 25 Mile Ave. A juvenile was arrested for that theft, and a Hereford police officer complained that the owner was verbally abusive to the investigating officers after the theft was discovered.

The Hereford High School building was burglarized over the weekend, with the intruders shattering two windows and ransacking the library.

Assault with a deadly weapon charges were made by a Hereford woman who said a man took her out in the country and pulled a gun on her. She told police she escaped on foot.

An Odessa woman presented herself at the police station Monday, wanting an officer to call the Odessa Police Department and see if she was wanted in connection with a murder there on Friday. She told police a neighbor of hers had been stabbed and she might be suspected since she had a prison record.

An officer made the call and was told the woman was a suspect but an arrest warrant had not been issued. The woman told police here she did not remember how she got to Hereford.

There were also several reports of domestic squabbles and two fights over child custody.

Cop killer executed

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Henry Martinez Porter, calling society "a bunch of cold-blooded murderers," was executed early today for the slaying of a Fort Worth police officer nearly 10 years ago.

Porter, the second Texas prisoner to be given lethal injection in two weeks, insisted to his last breath that the killing of Officer Henry Mailloux was in self defense.

"I want people to know that they called me a cold-blooded murderer, and I shot a man who shot me first," Porter said in a final statement as he was strapped to a gurney in the death chamber.

"I didn't tie anyone down on a stretcher and put poison into his veins from behind a locked door. I call this and I call your society a bunch of cold-blooded murderers."

Business Advice

A seminar on money management was presented Monday night at the Hereford Community Center by John Galivaz of Galivaz and Associates Financial Services of Amarillo. The seminar was sponsored by the Mexican American Chamber of Commerce and preceded the regular monthly meeting of the newly-formed organization. Galivaz addressed his remarks primarily to small business owners, reminding them to search for the financing that will best serve their particular business and to remember to "set something aside for yourself."

Victor, Vanlandingham vows spoken Saturday

During a family gathering Saturday afternoon, Donna Lynn Victor and Cary Lee Vanlandingham exchanged nuptials in the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Bob Hufaker, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary L. Victor of 116 N. Texas and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Vanlandingham of Route 2.

Vows were solemnized in front of a fireplace decorated by a kneeling bench and candelabra.

Jamie L. Victor served her sister as maid of honor and Tyson Jones was best man.

Jill Cocanougher was bridesmaid and the bride's brother, Jared L. Victor, was groomsmen.

The bride's grandfather, N.E. Tyler, vocalized "The Lord's Prayer" as Mrs. Gene Streun played the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a two piece wedding ensemble including a white lace blouse designed with a V-shaped neckline, and a white eyelet skirt fashioned with a deep flounce at the hemline.

As something borrowed and old she carried a Bible given to her grandmother, Mrs. N.E. Tyler, on her wedding day 40 years ago. As good luck, she had two pennies depicting the couples' birthdates in her shoe. As something blue, she wore the traditional blue garter and as something new, she wore a gold watch given to her by her parents and a necklace which was a gift from the groom.

The bride carried a blue and white daisy bouquet trimmed with a royal blue and baby blue ribbon streamers arranged on a Bible.

She also wore a family heirloom, a 40-year-old locket, given to her by her grandmother, Mrs. Jimmie Victor.

Bridal attendants were attired in pastel blue blouses trimmed with lace and white skirts. Each carried bouquets of daisies.

Mrs. J.T. Tyler invited guests to register at the home reception.

Jill Cocanougher served cake and punch and coffee were poured by Jamie Victor. Others assisting included Mmes. Kelly Tyler, Gene Victor, N.E. Tyler and Jimmie Victor.

The white wedding cake was trimmed in blue flowers and was decorated by a large wedding bell. It was arranged on a blue cloth. Also, adorning the serving table were blue and apricot candles belonging to the bride's grandmother, Mrs. N.E. Tyler.

The bride wore a western ensemble as she and her husband left for a wedding trip to Tucumcari, N.M. The couple will make their home at 111 Ranger.

The bride is a junior at Hereford High School where she is active in FFA and band.

The bridegroom, a 1985 graduate of HHS, was a member of FFA and president of the high school rodeo club. He is currently employed by Fry Farms.

Recognized as special guest were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Victor of Amarillo.

Cut budget

DEAR POLLY — It amazes me to see people buy country-style spareribs for a high price when these ribs are basically pork chops with the lean center cut removed. These same folks probably cut off all fat and throw it away, then buy expensive shortenings. I always buy a whole pork loin when they're on sale. I have the butcher cut as many center chops as I want. I can stuff these or prepare them in other ways — or I might have him leave a center piece whole, to serve as a roast.

I remove the fat from the two end pieces, dice it and render it. I use the resulting lard to make pie crust or gingersnaps, or to use in frying. No shortening substitute can equal the flavor of real lard. The browned cracklings can be fried with eggs or salted and eaten like popcorn.

I then remove all the meat from the bones. These bones can be used to flavor spaghetti or in soup. With a little more meat left on them, these bones can be roasted with a barbecue sauce.

I cut the meat removed from the bones in thin slices across the grain, then pound each slice with a steak mallet or dull knife. When dipped in flour, then in beaten egg and fried, this tastes just like expensive veal steak.

Any meat that is impossible to separate from the fat I grind, add some salt, crushed red pepper and black pepper, then form the mixture into hot sausage patties. To test for seasoning, fry a small portion of the meat mixture in a pan until it is thoroughly cooked, then taste. Add more seasoning if desired. These patties are delicious on a hard roll with fried onions on top. — MRS. J.D.

DEAR MRS. J.D. — As you have proven, one can save quite a bit of money and get a very wide variety of high quality meat products when one is willing to put a little time and effort into cutting up large cuts. It's a particularly useful project when one has a home freezer that needs to be filled without breaking the family budget. I heartily approve (and I confess I love doing this myself) and thank you for showing us your way with a pork loin. Your helpful Pointer earns you the Pointer of the Week award, a copy of my book "Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Household Hints for Making Everything Last Longer." Others who would like this book can order it for $6.50. Make check payable to POLLY'S POINTERS and send to POLLY'S POINTERS, Box 1216, Dept. 55, Cincinnati, OH 45201. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — It's not a good idea to leave your car motor running while you dash into a store or the post office for "just a minute." You waste gasoline and pollute the air, and it's dangerous as well. The other day I almost walked into the path of a car on the street near our post office. I couldn't see the car because of the exhaust from a car that had been left running by the curb, and I couldn't hear the oncoming car because of the noise from the parked car's engine. — JUDITH

Make your own air fresheners, sweeten up an old stale trunk, dispel the odors of frying fish and boiling cabbage from the kitchen, get rid of odors in furniture and appliances and more with the odor-eating Pointers in Polly's newsletter "Eliminating Household Odors." LOOK FOR FITNESS IN THE NEWSPAPER

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sports equipment doesn't have to be expensive, especially for fitness products such as barbells and dumbbells.

Larry Albright, president of an aerosol packaging company, says smart shoppers need only search through the classified advertising of newspapers and penny-saver publications.

Frequently, the owners of weight lifting equipment are eager to get rid of all those iron plates gathering rust in the basement at a fraction of their original cost.

In Babe Ruth district tourney

Hereford team wins opener

The Hereford Kids Inc. Babe Ruth League 13-year-old all-star team won the opening game of the district tournament Monday night in Hereford, scoring an 8-6 victory over Plainview.

Hereford plays Friona today at 8 p.m. at the Babe Ruth League field. The district tournament continues Wednesday at 8 p.m. with a contest between Plainview and the loser of tonight's game. The winners of Tuesday's and Wednesday's game play in the championship game at 8 p.m. Thursday.

If a second championship game is necessary, it will be played at 8 p.m. Friday.

Hereford scored all its runs in the first two innings in defeating Plainview 8-6 Monday.

Youth soccer

leagues will not be organized

YMCA summer youth soccer leagues will not be organized because of not enough interest in the program.

Hereford and Vicinity YMCA officials said registration fees for the program will be refunded.

Parents who registered their children for the soccer leagues are asked to pick up refunds at the YMCA office.

In the first inning, Hereford scored five runs while recording just two hits—singles by Johnny Cornelius and Russell Backus.

Seven Hereford batters walked, and another Hereford batter was hit by a pitch.

Plainview then scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the first inning.

The second inning began with Jason Walterscheid hitting a single, and a walk. Shane Kapka batted in a run with a single, and Hereford later added two more runs, one of them scoring on an error.

After two complete innings of play, Hereford held an 8-3 lead.

Plainview scored one run in the third inning but left the bases loaded. The inning ended when Hereford shortstop Russell Backus made a leaping catch.

In both the fourth and fifth innings, Plainview had runners at second base and third base, but failed to score.

In the fifth inning, a Plainview baserunner tried to score on a wild pitch, but was caught in a rundown and tagged out by Hereford catcher Shane Kapka.

Hereford also had runners at second and third in the sixth inning, but did not score. Jim Anima hit a ground-rule double in that inning.

The first two Plainview batters of

The great racehorse, Man o'War, had a 25-foot stride, one of the longest in turf history.

the sixth inning grounded out, but Plainview pushed two runs across home plate with RBI singles following an error and a walk.

Plainview threatened to score in the seventh inning, getting runners on base on an error and a walk.

The Hereford infield recorded a double play off the bat of the next Plainview batter, and Plainview had a runner at third base with two outs. The game ended moments later when a fly ball was caught in the outfield.

Hereford had five hits in the game, and 10 Hereford batters walked.

Pitching stats for Hereford pitchers Jason Walterscheid and Russell Backus were two strikeouts, nine walks and eight hits allowed.

As starting Cowboys quarterback

Landry leaning toward Danny White

DALLAS (AP) — Returning to his office after a month's vacation, Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said he is leaning toward Danny White as his opening-night starting quarterback, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

Landry said Monday that Gary Hogeboom still is in the running for the starting assignment, but that White will have to falter for Hogeboom to move up.

"He's our quarterback," Landry said of White. "He's got the ball. He is going to play until he proves he can't do the job the way I want him to."

"He (White) has got to play poorly (before he loses the job). How poorly? I can't tell you. If in my eyes he's performing as well as he can and the failure is someplace else, I'm not going to penalize him. I'm going to make a decision based on what's best for the team."

Landry is favoring the 33-year-old White over the 26-year-old Hogeboom, he said, because he detects a difference in the way White is perceived by his teammates.

Last year at this time, Cowboys players favored Hogeboom and were down on White for a variety of reasons: White's anti-union stance in the 1982 strike, his reluctance to pal around with his teammates, and an arm that isn't as strong as Hogeboom's. "It wasn't Danny's ability last year, it was the team and how they felt. The climate was not right, so I made a change," Landry said.

"We had a problem with morale. We needed solid team unity. So we went with Gary and won the first game. We probably would have won more if our receivers would have stayed healthy."

"Then last year he (White) re-established his relationship with the team, and there's a good feeling. If he doesn't make it this year the way we hope he will, it won't be because the team isn't behind him. It will be because he failed on his own. This year our theme is 'Get the job done.' If you get the job done, it's OK."

"Now there's nothing to prevent Danny from playing well. Last year I didn't think he could do it. Now I do. It's just a feel I have."

Hogeboom was a surprise first-game starter last season who later lost, regained, then lost the position to White again.

Hogeboom's greatest downfalls were his inexperience and a tendency to force the ball into tight spots, leading to interceptions and incompletions.

Landry said he hopes Hogeboom responds positively to the situation. "It's competitive all the way," Landry said. "Danny knows he's got to work to hold it, and if I thought Gary could do a better job, then I'd switch."

Landry said he anticipates keeping both quarterbacks. After last season he had indicated the starting job would be decided in training camp, with the loser likely to be traded.

Jason Walterscheid, a member of the 13-year-old all-star team of the Kids Inc. Babe Ruth League, pitches during the opening game of the district tournament Monday night. Walterscheid and Russell Backus combined to pitch the Hereford team to an 8-6 win over Plainview.

Junior boys' divisions to be part of tourney

Competition in junior boys' tennis will be held July 18-21 along with the Hereford Women's Tennis Tournament, directors of the tournament noted today.

In a previous announcement, the tournament was open to junior boys only if they entered mixed doubles.

There will be junior boys' singles and doubles divisions, but singles and doubles competition will not be held for men. Men may enter the tournament only in the mixed doubles divisions.

Entry fees for the tournament are $6 for singles events, and $6 per person in doubles events.

Entry deadlines are July 16 for juniors divisions and July 18 for adult divisions.

For more information on the tournament, call the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3456.

Ward reportedly will be on all-star team

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Detroit Tigers manager Sparky Anderson has decided on outfielder Gary Ward as the lone representative of the Texas Rangers to play in the 1985 All-Star Game, next Tuesday at Minnesota's Metrodome, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

The newspaper quoted unnamed sources close to the Detroit manager.

Ward has played in one previous All-Star Game. He was 0-for-1 while representing Minnesota in the 1983 classic.

"He deserves it," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said before Monday night's game with Cleveland. "He's been my All-Star. Toby (Harrah) has played well, too, but Gary's gone out there every day and done it."

After going one for three Monday night, Ward is hitting .286 with five home runs and 38 runs batted in. He has hit .344 over his last 40 games to raise his average from .225. He already has matched his career high with 13 stolen bases.

"I'm very happy if that's true," Ward said when he was told it appeared all but certain he would be an American League All-Star. "That's just letting me know that I've accomplished something."

"I wanted to come out and have a super first half because I had such a bad one last season," Ward said. "I'm a little slow in homers right now, but I think those will come."

Rod Carew of the California Angels has been the people's choice since the Gillette Baseball All-Star system of fan voting was instituted in 1970. Going into this year's balloting, Carew had amassed the amazing total of 32,803,104 votes. That's an average of better than two million votes per year.

Among active players, the runner-up through 1984 was Steve Garvey of the San Diego Padres, who had been named on 22,611,743 ballots. Carew is also the leader in winning the Gillette Trophy, which is awarded to the top vote-getter each year. Carew won it four times, in 1975, 1977, 1978 and 1979. This year's All-Star contest is scheduled on July 16 in Minneapolis.

4-H Around the County

By SUSAN N. RANEY
County Extension Agent
"Records" "R's an "R" work like "roaches, rats, and revenge." What healthy, sane 4-H member would ever want to subject himself to the ravage of record keeping for even 30 minutes...much less for 12 months and maybe even years?

But at the very least, thousands of Texas 4-H'ers choose to keep records on their various 4-H projects (and do a very good job at it, I might add) each year. The obvious rewards are scholarships, trips to National 4-H Congress or other national conferences, and profuse praise from their agents, leaders and parents. However, the even more valuable rewards are quite subtle.

To this day if I were to name my 10 most precious possessions I'd keep with me forever, my 4-H record book would make the list. (As it is, I'm moving to Chicago in about one and one-half weeks and you can bet my 4-H record book is already packed!) It's an organized treasury of memories...a real keepsake. It reminds me of precious people...some I helped a little and some who helped me a lot. It's a reminder of long hours spent working with my Guernsey heifer and crazy mistakes I made in the kitchen, of struggles and struggles overcome.

The few hours of work on that record book seem insignificant (in fact, almost forgotten) compared to its value now as a lasting tool for reminiscing.

A real value of 4-H record keeping is monitor of growth. For project work, charting the number of items made, steers fed, demonstrations given, members helped, tous taken and items exhibited really make progress (or lack of it) obvious. A good personal challenge would be to do more ture project work each year; a terrific challenge would be to at least double the project work done before.

Record keeping is one of those temporarily painful experiences that leaves a young person with a good feeling when it's complete...a sense of pride and accomplishment. It's something impressive they can be proud of, even if they chose not to compete. Completion of a difficult task is sometimes its own reward. The completion of 4-H record books helps youth learn to organize materials and information.

Most members use calendars as an aid; some use boxes and files. But no one tries to keep everything in their head until record book time! Just keeping up with news clippings, project work results, expenses and project income and even things learned is a learning experience in itself.

Digesting that information and reassembling it into a logical and understandable record is learning by doing at its best. I've heard college professors, familiar with 4-H club work say, "If you've done a 4-H record book, doing a thesis won't be any problem at all."

Record keeping is filled with personal lessons in diligence, decision making, self-expression, time management, initiative, consistency, creativity and honesty, if the young person's own project work and progress is reflected by that young person himself.

Sometimes, adult "help" can be a mislabe if the 4-H'er isn't allowed to really experience tough lessons required in record keeping. Those lessons are some of the greatest values in 4-H work...skills really needed for success as an adult.

I guess I've made record books sound a little dreary, because that's how members look at them. Down deep, though, most 4-H'ers will (later) admit that they aren't so bad and that they're glad they did one. Some members may even look forward to the day when record books are to be turned into the county extension officer, which is, incidently, Thursday at 5 p.m.

The 4-H'ers are pleased with the way they've recorded their 4-H growth and proud of the hard work they've done for the past 12 months. They even look forward to showing their books to their agents, friends and grandmothers.

"Rare", "Radiant", "Rewarding", those are "R" words too.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Southwestern Bell's

French Riviera trip criticized

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans' telephone bills could go up because Southwestern Bell sent more than 100 people to the French Riviera for a week, says Public Utility Counsel Jim Boyle.

A company executive said the April 1984 trip was a reward for top Yellow Pages salesman. Increased Yellow Pages ad sales can help keep local rates down, the executive said.

Boyle, the state lawyer who represents ratepayers, was not convinced.

"It looks like a nice boondoggle on an annual basis for some executives," he said Monday, the start of the second week of a Public Utility Commission hearing on Bell's rate hike request.

The company wants a $277 million annual increase. Boyle says there's fat to be cut and the company could stand a $124 million rate decrease.

"This is another indication of extravagance, of a failure to operate efficiently," he said of the trip.

"If this company is entitled to a rate increase it should show that it is spending wisely and not foolishly, and this is an indication it is not doing that," Boyle said after questioning Bell Texas Vice President Richard Harris about the trip.

Boyle said any money spent on the trip comes out of Yellow Pages revenue that could be used to offset requested rate hikes.

A company publication touted the trip as a week of "experiencing the lifestyle of the rich and famous."

"This was one of the most luxurious trips I've ever been a part of," said Leonard Bagelman of Austin, a Bell employee quoted in the company publication. "It was one good thing after another."

Bell's top Texas official said the trip is routine in the business world. Texas Bell President Jim Adams called it "the type of trip often set up to motivate people to sell more."

"The more revenue they generate... the more revenue there is to impute to the ratepayers. So, in fact, the better and more successful that kind of a trip is in motivating a sales force, the more net revenue flows through to the bottom line," said Adams.

Neither Adams or Boyle had figures on how much the trip cost. A company publication showed that 43 "winners, their spouses and guests" made the trip.

The winners were members of the company's "President's Club."

Southwestern Bell President Zane Barnes of St. Louis also made the trip.

"The week was filled with activity, the weather was lovely, the accommodations were great and the food — although too much — was good," employee Gayle Frazier of St. Louis said in the Bell publication. "I even became something of a wine connoisseur."

The week's highlight was an awards dinner featuring a "nine-course feast of exquisite French dishes," according to the company publication.

Adams said such trips — the 1985 trip was to Hawaii — are a valuable incentive.

"The bottom line is plus or firms would not be doing these types of activities," he said.

Illinois, with a land area of 55,748 square miles, is ranked 24th in size among the states.

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

The old way is the safest

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Once upon a time, there was Boston doctor who was interested in curing a certain form of heart disease by using a delicate operation. No one had ever operated in quite this way before, but the surgeon was optimistic that his daring technique had the potential for saving many lives. So he began by working in the laboratory with dogs.

After two trying years, he had ironed out most of the wrinkles and he wrote a short report of his findings. The report was published by an obscure journal of experimental medicine. Other surgeons, who read of the experiment, attempted to duplicate the findings.

Meanwhile, the doctor continued to operate on dogs. He streamlined the surgery, defined the indications for it and made alterations that improved the success rate.

At the same time, a French surgeon — also working with dogs — verified the operation's beneficial effects. A Danish doctor reported that, in his hands, the procedure was a failure, and he discarded it. However, a group of scientists in England carefully reviewed the Danish data and concluded that the Scandinavian study had omitted a seemingly inconsequential step; this appeared to explain why their confirmation had failed. Once the British report was published, several surgical teams in other countries — notably Japan and South Africa — operated on monkeys and achieved conspicuous successes.

During this interval of about four years, the Boston surgeon perfected the procedure and performed it on more than 50 dogs; the last 40 animals lived and did well. An international surgical academy invited him to present his findings at a convention in San Francisco. This he did. In his paper, he acknowledged that he had incorporated several Japanese modifications so that his stunning success was due not only to his own skills, but to the alternatives developed by his Asian colleagues.

Upon his return from the convention, the doctor was asked to examine a hospital patient who was dying of untreatable heart disease. She had been given two months to live, and her physicians had concluded that although the new operation had not been performed on humans, it might save her. The surgeon agreed.

The patient was given a concise description of the surgery, its risks, expense and possible complications. After two days of deliberation, she signed a consent form, indicating her awareness of the experimental nature of the operation and her conviction to proceed.

There was no press release.

The surgery was unobtrusively carried out; the woman recovered uneventfully and was able to live a normal life. She was never interviewed on television news. In fact, she requested that her name not be publicized, to protect her family's privacy.

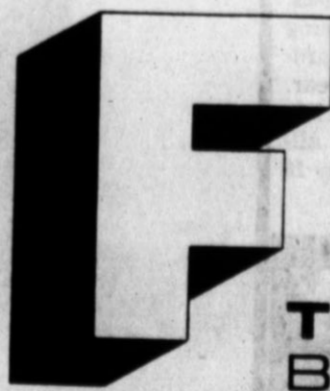

French explorer Jacques Cartier, who explored the Gulf of St. Lawrence in 1534, is generally regarded as the discoverer of Canada.

Hereford - People Helping People

In 1900, people were coming from all walks of life to Hereford - looking for a better way to live. These pioneers were looking for a small community that would survive the hard times. They wanted to raise their families in a safe environment and be able to retire with their spouses, secure in the knowledge that their children would have the same opportunities for success which they had.

When our bank was chartered, we made a commitment to Hereford and the surrounding community. We still hold that same strict policy. We've set out to become a part of Hereford and a part of the people in the Texas Panhandle. We believe that a strong community needs a strong bank. That's why people have counted on the First National Bank of Hereford for over 84 years. It's this kind of dedicated service that has made us the bank with the pioneer spirit.

Meet Your Neighbor

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Coming from a rather glamorous lifestyle to the more conservative hometown atmosphere of Hereford would seem mundane to some.

"Oh, everyone has been so friendly and pleasant," Connie McGill, wife of the new city manager, said. "The people have given us such a warm welcome here."

McGill grew up in an all-girls school, the Lincoln School for Girls, in Providence, R.I. which she attended all 12 years.

"I never had a boy in my class," McGill admitted. She attended college at Russell Sage College in Troy, N.Y. majoring in business. She was involved in the usual extracurricular activities including Glee Club and also played in NCAA tennis.

McGill admits she has done some modeling for Glamour Magazine, "several years ago."

"It was in the '50's and I made a few guest appearances," commented McGill.

Although she wouldn't elaborate, McGill has made several television appearances including the "Arthur Godfrey Show" and the "Today" show which was then hosted by Dave Garraway.

Darwin and Connie McGill moved to Hereford recently after living in Louisville for seven and a-half-years. Prior to that they lived in Irving.

"Darwin has been in municipal work for over 21 years now," explained McGill.

The couple has been married for 10 years and have five children and three grandchildren between them. "All but one have made their rounds," said McGill of their children, "and all approved of Hereford."

McGill, who has been associated with banking for many years, is employed by Hereford State Bank as supervisor of the commercial loan department and secretary to the president, Craig Smith.

McGill was vice-president of Western State Bank in Denton and was the marketing and administrative officer of M-Bank in Louisville.

"I miss my professional relationships," McGill noted, "but life goes on and there are new things to make up for it."

She has always been active civically. "I used to have my own column," McGill mentioned. "I wrote a weekly financial column for the Denton newspaper."

McGill is a former member of Irving Park and Recreation Board, a commission appointed position that she held for two years. She also served as chairman of a budget priority committee and was the former director of the Louisville YMCA.

"Maybe I shouldn't say this," she began, "but, I am VERY active in the Republican party," McGill stated.

Living with the city manager, McGill is often in the public eye. "I'm used to a fish bowl existence," she said.

What's it like being the city managers' wife? "Anytime you marry a public official it can be an advantage," she said, "and disadvantage at the same time."

McGill is very supportive of her husband being the city manager. "Any decision he makes goes," McGill was quoted, "because I know his top priorities are meeting the needs of the city people in as an agreeable a way as possible."

CONNIE MCGILL
...newcomer adjusts easily to lifestyle

Animals play a big part in McGill's life. She has two "adopted" children, her dachshunds. "They are our babies since the children are all grown," McGill commented, "and they are treated as such, as ridiculous as that may be!"

McGill and her husband also have an interest in horses. They have a farm in Zephyr, located outside of Brownwood. "It's a hard six-hour drive and we can only go about once a month," McGill sighed. The couple have quarterhorses on the farm.

What else does McGill do down on the farm? "Oh, I work in the garden, mow, and work like a regular farmer," McGill offered. McGills' interest in animals does not stop at the farm, although she enjoys animals, McGill also hunts them.

"I am an avid hunter," McGill announced. What does she hunt? "You name it, I hunt it."

In this part of the country, McGill enjoys hunting deer, dove, quail, pheasant, and "prairie dogs, (if that's what you call them out here.)"

As she sat gazingly, one could tell that some big plans were being thought out. "I'm going on a safari," exclaimed McGill. She is planning a safari in August of '86, "but it is still in the preliminary stages."

McGill is looking forward to hunting 15 different kinds of animals. "Oh, I plan to hunt zebra, kudu, and wildebeest, there are red and blacks ones, you know!" McGill concluded. With hunting at the top of her hobby list, McGill also enjoys yardwork, gardening, and canning.

"We have a very nice garden, here..." she laughed, "with enough squash to feed all of Hereford. With a new town, a new home, and a new job, Hereford seems to be growing on McGill."

What assets do the McGills bring to Hereford?

"I think everybody is an asset," McGill stated, "everybody lends their own charisma, if you will, in their own individual way."

McGill hopes to accomplish several goals while in Hereford.

"I'd like to see the city attract new industry and business will follow," McGill explained, "industry that will correlate with our agriculture here," she added as an after thought.

As for McGills' personal motto for living, "Live for today, don't fret about yesterday, and don't worry about tomorrow."

Presidential pay

The president of the United States receives an annual salary of $200,000, plus a $50,000 expense allowance. Congress also provides all former presidents with lifetime pensions of $69,600 a year, free mailing privileges, free office space and up to $96,000 a year for office help.

RRC adopts Panhandle order

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission has tightened its control of the Panhandle Fields by voting to notify all operators that they must get their oil and gas production records up-to-date and in compliance with commission rules and state law.

The commission's decision Monday put operators on notice that they are not free to produce from any level they please.

Some viewed the commission's 3-0 vote as yet another effort to halt "white oil" production but commission general counsel Susan Cory said that was not the case.

Ms. Cory said, however, the order would apply to oil operators who produce gas from a gas-only zone, which is prohibited by commission rules and state law.

White oil operators chill vapors to liquid which they count as oil for purposes of classifying wells as an oil or gas well. A commission order prohibiting this practice is pending in state district court.

The Monday memo, which was recommended by the commission staff, would require information on all wells that have been reworked to be submitted to the oil and gas regulatory agency.

"It has come to the attention of the commission that many wells have been completed in the Panhandle Fields in a manner which does not comply with current field rules," the memo said.

It noted that a 1938 commission special order stated that "no gas well or oil well shall be permitted to produce gas from different levels, sands or strata at the same time through the same string of casing."

Also, the memo reminded operators that a 1941 special order had instructed operators that no oil well could produce more than 500,000 cubic feet of gas a day.

The memo ordered oil and gas operators to submit within 30 days any changes in production records on file. Hearings would be set in cases where a well appeared to be improperly completed.

"Some operators feel free to perforate (wells) anywhere in the Panhandle Field, and that is not the case," said legal examiner Patrick Thompson. "They are not free, and we want to make that clear at the outset."

Thompson said the order was proposed after reports of "recurring regulatory problems" in the 1.5 million-acre Panhandle Field, which has attracted much attention in recent months.

On Monday, Commissioner Jim Nugent asked, "If we've got rules out there we haven't enforced for the last 20 or 25 years, are you saying you're going to invoke them?"

J.H. Morrow, director of the Oil and Gas Division, replied: "It's been a problem ... we've attempted to obtain compliance in the past, done a lot of testing and asked operators to report well completion conditions, so possibly we have not enforced them but that's what we're trying to do now."

"Obviously, we haven't done as good a job as we would like to."

Ms. Cory said, "I don't think it's so much a question of knowing of violations and choosing not to do anything about it, because we have continual — even as recently as 1977 — directed the operators as to what we thought the rules were and told them to stay in compliance with those rules."

"Most of the operators, from what we can tell, who have added or changed their interval open to production have not reported the changes to us."

George Singletary, senior technical examiner, underscored the value of the Panhandle Field by estimating its reserves at 1.37 billion barrels of crude oil and 5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

He acknowledged that as many as 10,000 Panhandle wells might be 25-years-old or older, some with casing that might have corroded, which could give a false reading on production, and he added:

"I wouldn't be hesitant one minute to call a hearing to review all the rules and all of the special orders that apply to the Panhandle Field, and if nothing else, bring them up to date."

Commission Chairman Buddy Temple said the commission vote puts it on record as saying the agency "wants information that we should have had all along, that has not been reported, and we want to know about it."

If there are violations, Temple said, the commission would take steps to correct them. "If we don't do that, why gather the information?"

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

lure the Navy base to the Lone Star State.

Jobs and money from the Navy construction are expected to spill over to the entire state, including annual spending of $174 million and 7,140 permanent jobs for a total economic impact for Texas of one-quarter of a billion dollars. Specifically, the Navy will put the battleship USS Wisconsin, a missile carrier, a missile destroyer, a minesweeper and aircraft carrier at Corpus Christi.

Defense Dollars Here

And a Defense Department report indicates other Pentagon spending in Texas will total more than $32 billion this year, second only to California. Some $2.2 billion will pay for petroleum refining and related services, and $2.1 billion for crude oil and natural gas, a boost to that slumping industry here.

Saturn Project

Meanwhile, Texas still awaits word on whether General Motors Corp. will select this state as the site of the new Saturn plant.

Other state legislatures still in session are developing their incentives to GM, which will probably make the announcement sometime in mid-July. The Texas Legislature approved a package of service incentives which included new roads and transportation facilities. Sherman, Texas is thought to be a prime site. U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, though, said last week that a lack of positive signals from GM is discouraging.

But GM officials said when a decision has been reached, they will personally notify top officials of some three dozen states before making a public announcement.

Election Runoff Set

The governor set August 3 as the date for the election runoff in the First Congressional District in northeast Texas.

Results from the June 29 vote had Republican Edd Hargett out front with 42 percent and Democrat Jim Chapman in second place with 30 percent of the vote out of an eight-man field.

Both sides are calling themselves underdogs in this important vote which analysts are considering a test on Democratic defections to the Republican Party.

Political Jockeying

Another Republican has surfaced who might run for governor, this one from Houston, where the key to victory may lie.

Jack Rains, a wealthy lawyer, businessman and Aggie said he has financial commitments which would enable him to campaign if former Gov. Bill Clements does not. Rains was appointed by Clements to the Veterans Land Board.

Rains said other candidates are either too new to the GOP or not broad-based enough to win. "If you're going to beat Mark White, you've got to beat him in Houston," he said.

That strategy is becoming more accepted by political analysts who remember that Houston was the only area that White took away from Clements in defeating him in '82. Its large population, its economic troubles and its huge turnout of swing voters make it perhaps the most crucial county, election-wise, of this decade.

And in the coming governor's race, there's another factor to consider: Mark White is from Houston, too.

South African Visit

House Speaker Gib Lewis visited South Africa last week, a guest of that nation's government. With him is close friend and ally, State Rep. Charles Evans.

Although no one has revealed the purpose of the trip, which is presumably paid for by South Africa, Texas black officials have criticized the trip, particularly Houston state Sen. Craig Washington.

Washington is a foe of South Africa's policy of racial separatism, and some of his bills designed to ban the spending of state dollars in that nation's businesses have failed in the House.

Ambulance service formed

"Helicopter ambulance services are the wave of the future in this country's health care system," according to Henry C. Wagner, president of Jewish Hospital in Louisville, Ky., which uses the Skycare air ambulance service.

"Air speed and fast response will be the life-saving difference for many," he says.

Skycare is one of about 100 hospital-based helicopter services in the nation which, according to its proponents, save lives by speeding people to hospitals in emergencies, especially in rural areas. In one case, a 33-year-old Leavenworth, Ky., man was severely injured in a buzzsaw accident at his home. Skycare responded to the call, landed on Interstate 64 seven minutes later and got him to University Hospital in Louisville, a 92-mile journey, in eight minutes.

In another, a 100-mile trip took 34 minutes for a helicopter ambulance to reach a sophisticated rehabilitation center for a man critically injured in a head-on crash on Kentucky's Route 31E.

Ann Landers

Go after big timers!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter was prompted by the volley signed "Steamed in Richmond." (She was upset with the treatment customers receive in an attempt to curtail shoplifting.)

My message is addressed to retailers. Please put it in capitals: IF YOU WANT TO CATCH THE BIG FISH, START PAYING ATTENTION TO YOUR EMPLOYEES AND FORGET ABOUT THE PENNY-ANTE CUSTOMERS.

I work for one of the largest retail organizations in the country. Every day we receive reports on shoplifting and employee theft. Today, there were 12 incidents: Ten involved employee theft for a total of $6,825.58 in merchandise and cash, and two involved customers shoplifting for a total of $483.89 in merchandise.

Often, the shoplifted item is a tube of lipstick, a wallet or a pair of sunglasses. Employees, on the other hand, put radios, VCRs, TVs (big ticket items) in dumpsters to retrieve later. They under-ring sales, falsify sales slips and put cash in their pockets.

The vast majority of customers are honest people who are forced to pay higher prices because employees steal. Instead of installing all those expensive high-tech cameras and hiring detectives to trap a woman who is trying to get away with a pair of gloves or a package of pantyhose, why don't they go after the big-time thieves?—STEAMED IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL proval. Now it is your turn to accept the person of my choice.

The fact that I want to marry again does not mean I am replacing your mother. She was irreplaceable. It does mean, however, that I recognize the need to make a new life for myself and feel very fortunate that I have met someone who wants to be my partner.

We hope that reading this letter in Ann Landers' column will help you to understand that, as Ann has said so often, "Life is for the living."—YOUR LOVING FATHER IN LONGVIEW, WASH.

DEAR L.F.: I hope your children will say, "Whatever makes you happy, Dad, is fine with us." If not, proceed with your plans anyway.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Small town investigator finds work rewarding

By PAT ROLLINS
Greenville Herald Banner
COMMERCE, Texas (AP) — J.R. Sands used to be a police officer in this East Texas town, but he turned in his badge and started his own private detective agency.

Sands and his partner, Larry G. Vandiver, run Sandiver Investigations. As small town investigators, these men are among a handful of former lawmen who have turned to what they say is a lucrative field of private investigation.

"I made more in three days last week on a case in Oklahoma than I made in a month as a Commerce detective," said Sands.

state of Texas was not found negligent in the closing of the school, Sands said.

Sands had more than a decade of experience in law enforcement, working as a patrolman and detective with the Commerce police and as an investigator with the Greenville and Sulphur Springs district attorneys. He has a degree from East Texas State University in sociology with an emphasis in criminal justice, and he has attended an FBI course on fingerprinting. Since 1980, he has run Sandiver Investigations.

Sands and his partner handle many types of cases, including divorces, child custody, locating witnesses, workmen's compensation and finding lost heirs.

What was Sands' most dangerous case?

"In early 1984, I was employed to work on a murder case down in East Texas around Hawkins and Big Sandy," Sands said. "I was working for the attorney of a man being tried for murdering another man. Our client admitted to killing the other man but said it was in self-defense. I was trying to find out information about the character of the man killed to support my client's case."

Sands said he was having a hard time getting anyone to talk to him because of racial barriers and the attitudes of small town people when asked questions by strangers.

In order to talk to some friends of the murdered man, Sands hired a known, local man who accompanied him to a bar where the friends hung out.

Sands said he felt out of place in the surroundings. "I was nervous, but asked some of the murdered man's friends what kind of guy he was. I did not identify myself as a private investigator. I really got a cold reception at first, but after a few beers, the men really opened up. Later, our client was acquitted of the crime."

Do Sands and crew ever use disguises in their work?

"There are a number of business cards around the office here with different occupations and different names," Sands said. "At times we have been a freelance writer and photographer working for a big Dallas magazine, a real estate agent and a traffic survey team, among other things."

And, the life of a private investigator can also lead to work in interesting places, even if it doesn't always live up to the images seen on television.

Sands said he and his partner will be spending much of the summer on a case in Colorado.

DEAR STEAMED: One of the reasons shoplifters don't get away with as much as they once did is because of the hidden TV cameras and the in-house detectives. Your statistics pertaining to employee theft suggest that you know what you are talking about. I hope somebody listens. Thanks for sounding off.

"It took us five years of hanging-in-here to establish our business, but now we have major clients such as General Motors and the Attorney General of Texas. Now we get $30 to $50 an hour plus expenses. In Dallas, I hear some of the PT's get $1,000 to $1,500 a day," said Sands.

Besides product liability insurance cases for General Motors and other major companies, Sands also worked on a well-publicized case a few years ago in the Houston area.

"In 1972, a young girl died in a private school for troubled children," said Sands. "The circumstances of how she died were strange, and we were employed by (then) Attorney General Mark White's office to reopen the investigation in 1982 after the state was sued for the closing of the school."

Sands and Vandiver were employed to track down and interview 250 people who had graduated from the school ten years earlier. He said that he and his partner managed to locate most of them.

"We had a captive audience with some who were now in prison," Sands said.

At the end of the court battle, the

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been a widower for over three years. I met someone very special and would like to marry again. Will you please print this message to my children? They adored their mother and cannot understand how I could consider another love in my life.

Dear Children: I have been a very lonely man since your mother passed away. The nights are long and I need to be held once again. I have found someone who loves and needs me. I love and need her. We want to be married. But it is important to us both that we have your blessings.

We accepted the mates you brought home. Your mother and I opened our hearts to the ones you chose simply because we knew it was important to you to have our ap-

Workers find oyster shells

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The worker's shovel slices into what once was a sandy seashore. Now and then his shovel hits an oyster shell.

What makes things unusual is that the sand and oyster shells were part of a seashore about 50,000 years ago and the tunnel is in Beaumont, about 18 feet under Eastex Freeway. And instead of archaeologists, a company tunneling for a new sewer completed the latest "dig."

William H. Matthews III, head of the geology department at Lamar University, said the shells unearthed here are similar to those found near Winnie when crews dug a large "borrow pit" to obtain fill dirt for the construction of Interstate 10 in that area.

The find near Winnie attracted the attention of a number of paleontologists as well as Exxon Corp. The firm arranged for Carxon 14 tests at a laboratory at Princeton. The tests showed the shells were about 50,000 years old.

Jews seek to ban pork

KIBBUTZ MIZRA, Israel (AP) - If Orthodox religious leaders get their way, no little piggies will go to market in Israel any more. Religious Jews, who make up about 25 percent of the nation's 4.2 million population, have sponsored a bill in Parliament that would ban the breeding and marketing of pork, which is prohibited under Jewish dietary laws. The measure was approved 53-27 in a preliminary vote in the Knesset, or Parliament; it's expected to survive three more such votes to become law soon.

Observant Israelis view the ban on pork as a key element of a tradition that has helped sustain the Jewish people in a centuries-old struggle against assimilation and persecution by anti-Semites from the Roman Empire to Nazi Germany.

Secular Israelis regard the measure as one more example of religious coercion and an infringement on civil liberties that threatens the fragile status quo between the religious minority and the secular majority.

"It contradicts the very basis of individual freedom," said Avishai Ya'ar, a philosophy student who was interviewed while eating a pork steak in a Tel Aviv restaurant. "If the religious want to make symbols out of everything - then not at my expense."

On this issue the Orthodox have won the backing of leading politicians. The reason: small religious parties have the power to tip the balance between the two major political blocs, Prime Minister Shimon Peres' left-leaning Labor party and Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir's conservative Likud bloc.

"The non-eating of pork is a historical symbol of the Jewish people. There were many cases of martyrdom by Jews who refused to eat pork in order to stand by their beliefs," Peres told an artists gathering recently.

"This is becoming a Khomeinist society. Now they even want to control what I eat," complained Sar-Shalom Eyal, manager of Israel's largest pork processing plant. The plant on this communal farm near Nazareth accounts for about 60 percent of the kibbutz's income and for most of the 8,000 tons of pork consumed annually by an estimated one million Israelis.

Ordinances are already on the books in most Israeli cities banning the sale of pork, but the law is rarely enforced. Disguised as "white steak," pork is a standard menu item in many restaurants and non-kosher butchers sell it throughout the country for about the same price as beef.

The religious began to push their campaign for a more kosher Israel after Likud Prime Minister Menachem Begin, an observant Jew, came to power in 1977.

In August 1982, Begin gave in to religious pressure and grounded the national El Al airline on the Jewish sabbath, causing the struggling company several million dollars in monthly losses.

Mizra produces about $7 million worth of meat annually, of which about $1.5 million worth of meat - most of it pork - is exported to Europe. The kibbutz, which is also trying to break into the U.S. market, has received the USDA quality seal.
