Jet crash kills all passengers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Midwest Express Airlines DC-9 was about one-half mile away from Mitchell Field when "all of a sudden it went nose down and belly up," said one witness to the accident that left 31 people dead.

The twin-engine jetliner plunged to the ground Friday after takeoff from Milwaukee's General Billy Mitchell Field, killing all aboard.

"We asked God's mercy upon

them," said the Rev. Joseph B. Frederick, one of seven priests who arrived at the crash site minutes later, searching for the living in need of final rites. They found only the dead.

Two hours after the crash, the acrid smell of fire hung in the hot, muggy air as emergency workers awaited the arrival of National Transportation Safety Board investigators.

Part of a wing and other charred debris were scattered across a partly wooded, partly open area about 300 yards long and 75 feet wide. Charred tree trunks stood in the center of the crash area. Wreckage hung from the branches of other trees.

Construction workers Russ Lewandowski and Larry Kroes watched the twin-engine jet climb to 700 to 800 feet.

"We heard a pop," Kroes said. "It was just like the engine went out or something. It kind of fluttered. Then, all of a sudden he started banking it and then all of a sudden it went nose down and belly up."

Lee Zwickey, a technician for WTMJ-TV in Milwaukee, was returning with a crew from filming a commercial near the airport. When he arrived with a video camera about five minutes later, emergency crews were already fighting the fire.

"We didn't see any bodies. There was so much smoke you could hardly see anything," Zwickey said. "If there had been anybody alive in there it would have been a miracle."

Pamela Murr, a traffic reporter for WTMJ radio, was in a small plane waiting to take off behind Flight 105.

"It was a very helpless feeling," she said. She grabbed her pilot and thrust out her other hand. "You want to just reach out and do something," she said.

At the airport, Clint Davenport was shaken, but alive. The American Can Co. sales manager from Atlanta was in Milwaukee to meet with Miller Brewing Co. He had planned to take Flight 105, but was delayed and took a later flight.

"It's real unnerving to come this close to fate," he said.

Laurie Immler, 33, of Milwaukee dropped her boyfriend, Daniel Millen of New York City, off at the airport. Millen had reservations on the ill-oil well test of one barrel of oil to 100,000 cubic feet of gas.

Gas well operators, such as Phillips Petroleum Co., and the commission have noted there are advantages to classifying a well as an oil well rather than a gas well. An oil well can be drilled on 10 acres, a gas well on 640 acres. An oil well also is allowed to produce more gas than a gas well.

In many cases, too, operators own only the oil rights and could not produce at all if certain wells were reclassified as gas wells.

Following the commission ruling to retest the wells without figuring in the liquid produced by the LTX units, 10 independent operators appealed to state district court.

On Friday, over the objections of the defense, Clark allowed four other operators or interest owners to join in on the appeal.

Final white oil arguments scheduled for Monday

AUSTIN (AP) — District Judge Harley Clark on Friday overruled a motion for a judgment against "white oil" operators in the Panhandle Field and gave lawyers the weekend to prepare their final arguments.

Lawyers in the non-jury trial argued for five hours on preliminary motions, including what should be admitted into the record, before Clark called a halt to the proceedings.

The judge scheduled final arguments for Monday but said it was not likely that he would rule immediately on the case, which challenges a Railroad Commission order to retest white oil wells in the 1.5 million-acre Panhandle Field.

Both sides closed without calling any witnesses, after Clark refused to accept a motion that the operators had no cause of action.

The May order was considered a defeat for white oil operators, who use refrigeration, or LTX units, to chill vapor to a water-white liquid. The operators count the liquid as crude oil to meet the commission's

Sarpalius staff due in Friday

Sen. Bill Sarpalius' mobile office will be in Hereford on Friday from 1 until 2 p.m. at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

The office will stop at Adrian Co-op at 9 a.m.; at the Oldham County Courthouse at 10 a.m. and at the Castro County Courthouse at 3 p.m.

Lake board to meet in Hereford

The Buffalo Lake Water District board has adopted a plan to repair Umberger Dam to meet the state's safety standards for flood control protection, and thus reject the Fish and Wildlife Service's recommendation to remove the dam and build multiple shallow ponds.

The issue will be brought up in executive session when the board meets Tuesday in Hereford. The board will convene at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

A hearing on the lake project has been set for Sept. 19 at 9 a.m. at Canyon's city hall.

Hereford Bull

By O.G. NIEMAN

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says marriage is a happy affair—it's the being together afterwards that creates problems.

One stormy night, a knight rode up to an inn. He entered and asked the innkeeper for a fresh horse. "All I have is my dog," said the innkeeper, pointing to a huge sheepdog by the fire.

"Well, then," said the knight, "I'll have to take him."
"You've got to be kidding," replied the innkeeper, "I wouldn't send a knight out on a dog like this."

The latest edition of the chamber bulletin, "The Deaf Smith County Volunteer", points out that there is lots of growth underway in Hustlin' Hereford. Mike Carr, C of C manager says Hereford is getting the attention of some very good prospects. Here are examples of "good things happening" as listed in the bulletin:

"Building permits are up well over 100 percent; retail sales are up over 26 percent; two new shopping centers; changes underway at Sugarland Mall; apartment complex going up on 15th Street; new nursing home nearing completion; new winery starting operation; new pizza restaurant opening; Ag Analysis moving into new facility; new owners at the Ford dealership; new furniture store opened; new facility of M&W Carrot Co., and The Garden Spot on Walnut Road."

Like it or not, the state law now requires all front-seat passengers in vehicles to wear seat belts while in a moving vehicle.

The good news is that warning tickets will be issued until Nov. 30. Effective Dec. 1, fines will be assessed if a motorist is ticketed for not having his seat belt on.

For those of us who have not been using the seat belts, it's difficult to get in the habit. Maybe it is a good thing we are getting a "grace" period before they start handing out fines.

It was reported last week that seat belts, for a fact, do save lives—at least in New York. Statistics compiled in a study there show that in the past eight months fatalities have dropped by an astounding 28 percent. The mandatory law has been in effect in New York eight months, and the figures were compared with the same period for the previous five years.

No doubt the law may save some lives, and those who don't like it will still have to pay the piper if they continue to use freedom of choice!

Volunteer van literally vital to life

By MAGARET BELL
Staff Writer

The white van sits in the parking lot of the First Christian Church, waiting for its very special passengers. They are the four patients who must make the trip three days a week to the Amarillo Kidney Dialysis Center.

The volunteer driver is one of hundreds who have given thousands of hours in service to help these patients and others maintain the highest possible level of healthfulness.

Bobby Owen, coordinator of this volunteer service agency, reports that since the three-day-a-week service began three years ago, he has had no difficulty in securing willing persons to drive the van, day after day in all kinds of weather.

"My surest source of help is senior citizens who are semi-retired with time to give and a strong desire to be useful in helping people less fortunate than themselves."

He strongly states that these

For dialysis patients

volunteers need the gratitude and support of the community because the program would not be possible without their time being given free of charge.

"If we had to hire a driver to take the kidney dialysis patients to Amarillo three days a week, the expense would be at least $1000 per month for his wages. As we are now able to function, the drivers give their time with enthusiasm with no thought of charging anyone for what they do," Owen says.

Leaving the church parking lot at 10:30 in the morning, the van goes directly to the dialysis center where the patients begin their treatments at about 11:30 a.m.

Barring complication of unexpected problems with bleeding, the cleansing of a patient's blood supply takes about five hours so that the van starts the return to Hereford at about 4:30 or 5:00.

The driver may be lucky to have a friend or family member living in Amarillo with whom he may visit. More often than not, the time is spent in reading, napping in the van, or visiting with other drivers in the lobby of the center.

When he agrees to be the driver for a day, the volunteer is actually engaged from about 10 a.m. when he picks up one patient who has no transportation until about 6 p.m. when she is delivered back to her front door and the other three patients meet their families at the church parking area.

An anonymous benefactor provided the van for use by the dialysis patients, and the monthly expense is defrayed by monies received by the patients from the Texas Dialysis

Foundation for their transportation from their homesthe center.

The approximate monthly expense of providing gasoline, tire, insurance and other needs of the van amounts to about $300. With the four patients now being transported, the operation about breaks even.

With a peak number of patients of eight at an earlier time, some of the income could be spent in repaying the benefactor's initial investment although this is not a concern to the person whose generosity made the van possible to begin with, Owen remarks.

Before the van provided exclusively for use by the kidney patients was available, the van of the First Church of the Nazarene went on Tuesday, the First Christian Church van went on Thursday, and the van belonging to the Senior Citizens' Association was driven on Saturday.

Although Owen considers his job a year-round responsibility, he asked men from the Methodist, Christian and Nazarene churches to provide drivers during the recent summer months, and the van never missed a scheduled trip with the new roster of drivers.

He says that he usually has his list of drivers lined up for a week or two in advance, and he has success in easily filling the list. "All I have to do is call and say that someone is needed on a particular day, and they have been wonderful in saying 'yes,'" he says in praise of the volunteers and their willingness to drive.

A similar program is in operation in Pampa where the Cabot Corporation has purchased a van which makes the trip to the Amarillo center every day of the week except Sunday. The drivers are retired employees of Cabot and have a full load because of the larger population in the Pampa area.

A happy ending to one patient's story is that of Jamie Young and her daughter Tracy. Jamie had been a van passenger for some time with her kidney condition complicated by attending debilitations of diabetes.

Bands by-passing no-play rule

HOUSTON (AP) — Students competing in University Interscholastic League marching band competitions are bypassing the no-pass, no-play rule by having the contests before the first six-week grading report, officials say.

The 825 Texas high school bands are divided into 22 districts, and Dr. Richard Floyd, UIL director of music activities, says about half of the districts have scheduled their competitions at least two weeks earlier this year to beat the six-week deadline.

"It really put an extra burden on the band directors because it's so tough to prepare that early," Floyd said. "I think that by doing this, most of them thought it would let them use all their students for at least the first level of the competition."

After the first six-weeks, the no-pass, no-play rule will have a significant impact on the size and quality of the bands, Floyd said.

If last year's grades are any indication, said David Scott, assistant band director at J. Frank Dobie High School in Pasadena, his band could lose 20 percent of its 205 members.

Dobie's marching band contest is set for Oct. 12 — the last weekend before the six-week deadline.

School photos to be taken next week

Photos for the 1985-86 Hereford High School yearbook will be made starting next week with a new system in which no student will be allowed to leave a class.

Each student, even if another studio photo is made, is asked to be photographed in order to insure a spot in the yearbook.

For all classes, photos will be taken from 7:30 a.m. until 9 a.m., or from noon until 1:35 p.m., or from 2:35 p.m. until 4 p.m.

No class time will be taken for the photos. Students with a first period class will not be allowed to pose until a lunchtime or after class time. Also, students with a seventh period class must have photos made during the first period or at lunch.

Dates for the photos are as follows: Sophomores with last names starting with A through G will have photos made on Tuesday, Sept. 10. Those with last names starting with H through R will pose Wednesday, Sept. 11; and those with last names starting with S through Z will pose Thursday, Sept. 12.

Juniors will have photos made on Sept. 17 for names A through F, on Sept. 18 for G through O, and on Sept. 19 for P through Z.

Seniors will have photos made on Sept. 24 for those with last names starting with A through G, on Sept. 25 for those H through Q and on Sept. 26 for R through Z.

Photos will be made in the auditorium foyer. Students are to enter the foyer by the outside doors on the south side. Proofs will be mailed to each student. There is no obligation to order pictures.

Anderson's Studio is the photographer.

VAN

Tracy, also a kidney patient, made the trip to the kidney center in the evenings so that she could attend classes at Hereford High School.

The welcome call came at 5 in the morning, and Owen made the "fastest trip of my life," to the air terminal in Amarillo. Tracy was to receive a kidney transplant at the Methodist Hospital in Dallas.

The surgery went well, but happy news also was in store for Jamie. She also received a transplanted kidney during the Youngs' stay in Dallas, and she is now able to be independent of the kidney treatments. Although she has some difficulty in seeing because of the effects of diabetes, Jamie is deeply grateful no to be a passenger in the van that makes the regular trip to Amarillo.

Although the nucleus of drivers came first from the Sunday school class which Owen teaches at the First Baptist Church, this soon spread to include persons from many different segments of Hereford's community life. "The first van driver was Rex Easterwood, and I will never forget what he did when he brought the van back after that first trip; 'If you ever need me again, call me. I got more good out of this experience even than the patients who received the treatments.' This willing spirit has made my job as the driving coordinator very easy," Owen concludes.

(This is the first of a series by Margaret Bell on seen and unseen volunteers who are vital to the Hereford community.)

for Anadarko Production and Pan Eastern Exploration companies, said the original plaintiffs had waived any attempt to present testimony on the economic impact of sealing white oil wells but the last-minute intervenors might try to present such testimony.

He said the four merely have "general fears and concerns based on what other people have told them" and they should not be allowed in the case.

Bill Boyd of McKinney, a lawyer for the intervenors, said he had "no intention of making an economic argument. That should have been done before the Railroad Commission but it wasn't done."

Boyd said the commission order already had "put a cloud on the title" of gas in the Panhandle Field by causing pipelines either to refuse to take some gas or to put money for it in escrow rather than paying the operators.

The commission is the defendant in the case but several major companies, such as Phillips, have been aligned with the regulatory agency, and on Friday both sides agreed to let El Paso Natural Gas Co. enter on the commission's side.

The number of lawyers involved in the case reflects, perhaps, the huge financial stakes, with oil and gas reserves said to be worth $27 billion.

Nine lawyers spoke Friday for the defense, which white oil lawyer Ivan Hafley jokingly referred to as "the herd," and two for the white oil operators. Both sides had other lawyers in reserve in the courtroom.

The record offered for the case already fills five large boxes and a folder, and Hafley has said no matter what side wins, he anticipates the case will be appealed to the 3rd Court of Appeals and then Texas Supreme Court.

Pot lobby to halt DEA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The marijuana lobby is criticizing the Reagan administration's renewed herbicidal attack on the outlawed plants as a threat to the public and the environment and a desperate attempt to bolster its war on drugs.

"It's a sign of desperation," says Kevin Zeese, national director of NORML — the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws — which favors legalization of the drug.

Reacting to an announcement Friday by the Drug Enforcement Administration, Zeese said NORML would go to federal court next week to halt the DEA's use of herbicides against marijuana growing on federal land.

"Marijuana is the nation's second largest cash crop," Zeese said. "They've tried a massive manual eradication program. That didn't solve the problem. Now they're hreatening the environment."

BAND

Jay Dunnahoo, director of music education for the Pasadena Independent School District, said he favored the earlier competition dates.

"I think it was done with the idea it would be much more difficult to have quality marching contest a week or two later, because you have no idea what kind of holes you will have (in the band)," he said.

YMCA instructors anxious to get started teaching

Instructors for the YMCA Fitness Program have been announced.

Teaching and participating in aerobics for the past seven years, Karen Harkins said, "My favorite part of the fitness program is the flexibility, which is the cooling-down stretches at the end of the routine."

To Harkins, being an instructor requires memorizing the aerobic steps of the fitness routine, giving cues as to which step to do next, and enthusiasm.

Susan Marnell, coordinator of the Y Fitness program, explains, "The requirements of being an instructor include CPR training, voice cuing, being in good physical shape, and fitness testing."

Says Marnell, "Fitness testing is a continuation of sit-ups and other strengthening exercises, flexibility drills, step tests, and a general overall knowledge of proper fitness exercise techniques."

Dean Fox, DPS Trooper, will be teaching the Early Bird class which begins at 6:15 a.m.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor;

The Walcott PTO would like to say a special thank you to the people who made our dedication ceremony a success with their unselfish involvement.

Thank you to our cooks Gene Zinser, Gary Kreigshauser, and F.L. Eicke.

Many thanks to the alumni who attended the reunion and to the people who participated in the tennis tournament.

Our speaker Sen. Bill Sarpalus was well received and appreciated.

To all the people who stayed and helped with the clean-up activities, a heart-felt thanks.

Last but not least we would like to thank Jeri Curtis and the Hereford Brand for all their help in publicizing our event.

Thank you, Walcott PTO

Four local boys attend summer camp

In a two-week period in July, nearly 700 boys ages eight to 12 from over 200 cities in Texas attended Camp Hoblitzelle in Midlothian, Tx.

Of those 700 boys, four boys of Hereford's Big Brother-Big Sister Program attended the camp, compliments of our local Salvation Army.

All expenses for the trip were paid by the local chapter.

How about quality?

A recent story in the Wall Street Journal reports that it has been a long summer for the movie business with attendance off as much as 14 percent from a year ago. This slump has been recorded despite a lot of promotion efforts around the country to attract movie-goers.

We don't think the problem lies in lack of promotion. It lies with the quality of movies offered to the public in the theaters as well as the television screen. With a few exceptions, the current crop of movies are putrid and many people are not going to pay to see them.

The top movie of late has been "Rambo," a violent shoot-em-up with lots of blood and gore. "national Lampoon's European Vacation" is doing well, but critics report it is silly and without plot. "Pale Rider" is hailed as a good western, but it's just another Clint Eastwood movie where he kills off all the bad guys like swatting flies.

We can't believe that the movies and television have exhausted all the good stories and that it is difficult to come up with entertainment that people will pay to see. The mentality of the people making movies seems to be centered around sex, nudity and violence, with story plot making little difference.

The time would be ripe for movie makers to turn out some quality productions. The human mind is limitless in its imagination, and there are still many stories to be told—many that people would pay to see.

Philosophy to continue

President Reagan is limited to three more years as President, but his philosophy and his policies will be perpetuated deep into the 21st Century.

Because in just his first term he appointed more judges from his own party than any Republican President since Woodrow Wilson.

Ninety-seven percent of his appointments at district court level and 100 percent of appellate judges are Republicans.

What right has the President to pack the court?

He has every right.

Even liberals agree that he can and he should.

The shape of things to come is tilted toward the right.

The role of the judiciary in American life cannot be exaggerated. In a single year, four federal district courts decided almost 300,000 cases and federal appeals courts decided more than 31,000.

These in addition to 141 major opinions of the United States Supreme Court.

Most incumbent judges are over 70, likely soon to retire or otherwise depart the court.

One-in-nine Reagan appointees is under 40 — thus will live and work well into the next century.

President Reagan seeks as judicial appointees "individuals philosophically dedicated to restraint and modesty in wielding authority."

The American Bar Association invised the reaction of two distinguished legal scholars.

Former government attorney Bruce Fein, conservative, says, "The Reagan appointments reflect a proper operation of constitutional checks and balances." He believes that judges until now have erroneously substituted their own views for what the Constitution says. They have thus fashioned public policy relating to prayer in schools, aid to religious schools, mandatory busing, quotas...

Interestingly, liberal constitutional scholar Herman Schwartz of the Washington College of Law, American University, considers presidential and Senate partnerships in judicial appointments "both unavoidable and healthy."

"Of course," he says, "we expect any President to select appointees who share his judicial philosophy."

The Senate can always block an appointment. While this can be "untidy" sometimes, excepting FDR's terms, perhaps, it has successfully avoided excessive politicization of the court.

Limited presidential tenure since FDR limits the number of judicial appointments any President may make.

Also, 14 public interest groups have joined forces to watchdog appointments and conservatives are lining up watchdogs to watch the watchdogs so, left and right, we, the people, are covered.

The Penultimate Word

I FORGOT

My favorite poem is:
I can live with my arthritis,
My dentures fit me fine
I can see through my bifocals,
But I sure do miss my mind.

I have probably used that poem several times in these weekly diatribes but I just can't remember.

They say the memory is the first to go. A sure sign of being old is you can't remember what you did yesterday. I can't remember what I did today.

They say you are getting old when you start talking to yourself. You are getting in bad shape when you start answering yourself. What kind of shape are you in when you talk to yourself and forget what you were saying? I have some good answers if I could just remember the questions.

Forgetting may be a sign of old age but, if so, I have been old all of my life. I tell my wife that I don't remember ever forgetting anything. I not only forget, I forget what I forgot.

The result is I struggle through life going to speaking engagements and forgetting my shorts or my pants.

I went to Houston a few years ago to speak to a college. I got on the plane in Amarillo and noticed my shoes did not match. One was hard sole and the other was soft. It may be more than just forgetfulness involved here. Anyone that could walk down the airport concourse clunking with one foot and squishing with the other and not notice the difference may be ready for the funny farm.

One good thing about all this—it should not be too hard for me to adjust to old age. I probably will not even notice. One thing is for sure. I won't remember how it was to remember.

Budget plan like giving aspirin for brain tumor

By Cesar V. Conda

A sigh of relief could be heard from people across this nation when the House and Senate finally agreed on a budget plan for fiscal year 1986. Some politicians have scurried home to their districts declaring to their constituents that the budget plan has "solved the deficit problem and put the American economy back on the road to sustained economic growth."

But upon close inspection, the budget really doesn't do much of either.

While we should be thankful that Congress avoided balancing the budget on the backs of the American people with tax increases, we should not celebrate the fact that we will be saddled with deficits of historic proportions for the foreseeable future. The budget plan just won't achieve its goal of cutting the Federal deficit by $56 billion next year and $277 billion over the next three years.

Why? First of all, the plan exempts almost one-third of the budget from any spending restraint. It contains no changes in cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) for Social Security and other entitlement programs, and automatic COLAs have been one of the driving forces behind the explosion of government spending in recent years. The government would have saved about $30 billion dollars over three years from a one-year COLA freeze which would not have caused any great pain.

Senate Republicans put forth a courageous budget proposal that incorporated a one-year COLA freeze, several program terminations and substantive domestic reductions that would have saved $296 billion over three years, bringing deficits under $100 billion by 1988. However, with the leadership of both parties in the House and the White House united in opposition to a Social Security COLA freeze, the senators were forced to back down.

The compromise budget plan also rejects most of the deep program cuts and terminations proposed in the original Senate budget plan and substitutes mild freezes and reductions. In fact, many of the domestic reductions are illusory cutbacks and speculative managerial changes rather than "hard" programmatic cuts in government spending. For example, the budget resolution:

-Assumes $4 billion in "savings" by counting four years worth of already-counted off-shore oil lease income into one year.

-Assumes $6 billion saved over three years from federal management and workforce reforms. These unspecified "reforms" are not "hard" programmatic cuts in government spending and thus will be difficult to realize.

-Proposes 20 percent reductions in Urban Development Grants, Appalachian Regional Development and the Economic Development Administration. But they aren't "reconciled" or enforced by the Congressional rules and spending committees don't have to comply with them.

-Terminates revenue sharing in 1987, but this recommendation will be difficult to achieve because the resolution's outyear targets are non-binding and Congress can simply restore the program next year.

In fact, the compromise budget resolution is primarily a substantial defense cut combined with a variety of illusory nondefense domestic reductions. The Congressional Budget Office estimates that the plan will reduce the FY 86 budget by only $39 billion instead of $56 billion and that deficits will remain, at the very least, in the $150 to $160 billion range for the foreseeable future.

The American public must press their legislators to cut spending during the appropriations process. The president must be ready to veto spending bills that substantially exceed his own budget request. And finally, the budget process itself must be strengthened with modifications such as the line-item veto to instill a much needed dose of fiscal discipline.

In sum, the recently passed budget isn't the worst budget that Congress could have passed. A budget with a major tax increase would have been a recipe for economic disaster.

The budget cuts just don't go far enough. Like prescribing aspirin for a brain tumor—it just won't do the job—and it seems that the American people deserve better treatment for the deadly federal deficit.

As the years turn

75 YEARS AGO

That the Panhandle should win more laurels would not be a surprise to those who know, but when Hereford comes into the possession of the blue ribbon for the world's highest record in the production of alfalfa seed, she will do more than should be expected.

It is estimated that the broom corn crop in the Panhandle this season will be worth approximately $1,000,000.

The Legislature has fulfilled its initial mission by passing a fire rating insurance bill.

50 YEARS AGO

Hereford baseballers tasted defeat in their last game in the Clovis tournament Wednesday morning after their first attempt was rained out. They were defeated 7 to 0 by the Elida, N.M. club.

Wheat contracts for 1936 call for a reduction of only five percent in base acreage as compared with the tentative 15 percent reduction announced July 31. This makes possible an increase of 5,200,000 acres in wheat plantings of contract signers for the 1936 crop over the tentative requirements.

25 YEARS AGO

Some 100 area golfers are expected to register for the Ninth Annual Hereford Invitational Golf Tournament Thursday at the John Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

"The largest combined number of both grade and high school students in our history" said Supt. A.P. Jones when he announced Monday morning the registration of 144 students for the 1960-61 school year.

Deaf Smith County residents came through with flying colors once again on a vital community project. Finance chairman Henry Sears announced Wednesday that the drive for $100,000 for securing a golden age home in Hereford had been successful.

10 YEARS AGO

Farmers in the Deaf Smith County area have ample reason to be optimistic these days as they consider prospects of outstanding corn and milo harvests within the next few weeks. Both grain crops have been maturing rapidly in light of recent favorable weather, and local spokesmen indicate this year's harvest should be abundant.

Deaf Smith County and its employees will be paying higher premiums for health insurance effective Nov. 1 and the sheriff's department will have the use of two new patrol cars as of the result of affirmative actions taken Monday by the County Commissioners Court during a routine and lengthy meeting.

1 YEAR AGO

Enough reductions have been spotted to have the proposed $1.55 million Deaf Smith County Jail renovation project be completed within its budget, county officials hope. Three county commissioners and Sheriff Joe Brown went to San Antonio Thursday to meet with the architectural firm in charge of the project. The visit was made to find ways to cut the original renovation plans by about $300,000.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek this week discusses cultural exchanges and camels, we think.

Dear editor:

One way to improve international relations, some specialists say, is to have more cultural exchanges between nations. This has its problems.

For example, everybody knows the saying, "The straw that broke the camel's back." Well, I was listening to a TV interview by satellite between David Brinkley in Washington and the top member of the Soviet Central Committee in Moscow, Chairman Arbatov, I think his name is.

Mr. Arbatov spoke pretty good English, far better than professional football announcers, but apparently there's something to a question, I think it was about Star Wars, he said "that might be the final straw that will break the spine of the camel."

It just doesn't have the right ring to it.

Incidentally, that saying about a straw breaking the camel's back has always puzzled me. All the camels I've seen looked like they had broken backs to start with.

I don't know if the Russians have the phrase, "I'll cross that bridge when I come to it," but Washington politicians couldn't get along without it. Ask them a question whose answer, whether yes or not, most likely will lose 50 percent of the votes on one side or the other and they'll pussyfoot by not crossing that bridge till they come to it.

I have an idea for putting Hereford on the map.

While I've never personally seen a politician who could cross a bridge before he got to it, if you can find one let's bring him here. Pick out a bridge around here, line up some TV cameras and let him have at it. If he succeeds, I believe it'd be the lead story on the evening news. You'll have the only bridge in the world somebody crossed before he got to it.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Texans challenged to beat others in safety

AUSTIN — "We are expecting Texas to beat other states in increasing safety belt usage and lowering traffic fatalities as a result of the new safety belt law," according to George R. Gustafson, Texas Safety Association executive vice-president, speaking on behalf of the Texas Coalition for Safety Belts.

"That's not a prediction—it's a challenge to every individual and group to make Texas' usage rates higher than any other state's. Of course, our Texas can-do spirit and pride give us an unfair advantage in such competition, but let's do it anyway," Gustafson said.

He noted that Texans are beginning to respond positively to the new safety belt law even before it goes into effect Sunday, September 1. A recently released Texas Poll indicated that 45 percent of Texans surveyed in July remembered buckling up the last time they were in a car.

The Texas sPoll, conducted by Texas A&M University's Public Policy Resources Laboratory, showed that 56 percent of those surveyed supported the new law.

"With a head start like that, we are optimistic about the reduction in traffic fatalities and injuries that increased usage will bring. There is just no doubt that when safety belt usage increases, traffic fatalities and the severity of injuries go down," Gustafson said.

"Usage rates have climbed and traffic fatalities have dropped in other states that have passed safety belt laws. We are expecting to see similar headlines in Texas by next spring when citizens have had the chance to make a positive adjustment to the new law," he said.

In the first few months after enforcement began, New York state experienced a 20 percent average decline in traffic fatalities while the nation was experiencing a 1 percent to 2 percent increase in those fatalities. More recent New York statistics show about a 33 percent decline in traffic fatalities during the first five months. Michigan is reporting a 33 percent decline in traffic fatalities during the first month after enforcement.

Although fines will not begin in Texas until December 1, drivers and passengers in the front seat of passenger cars and light trucks will be expected to buckle their safety belts by Sunday.

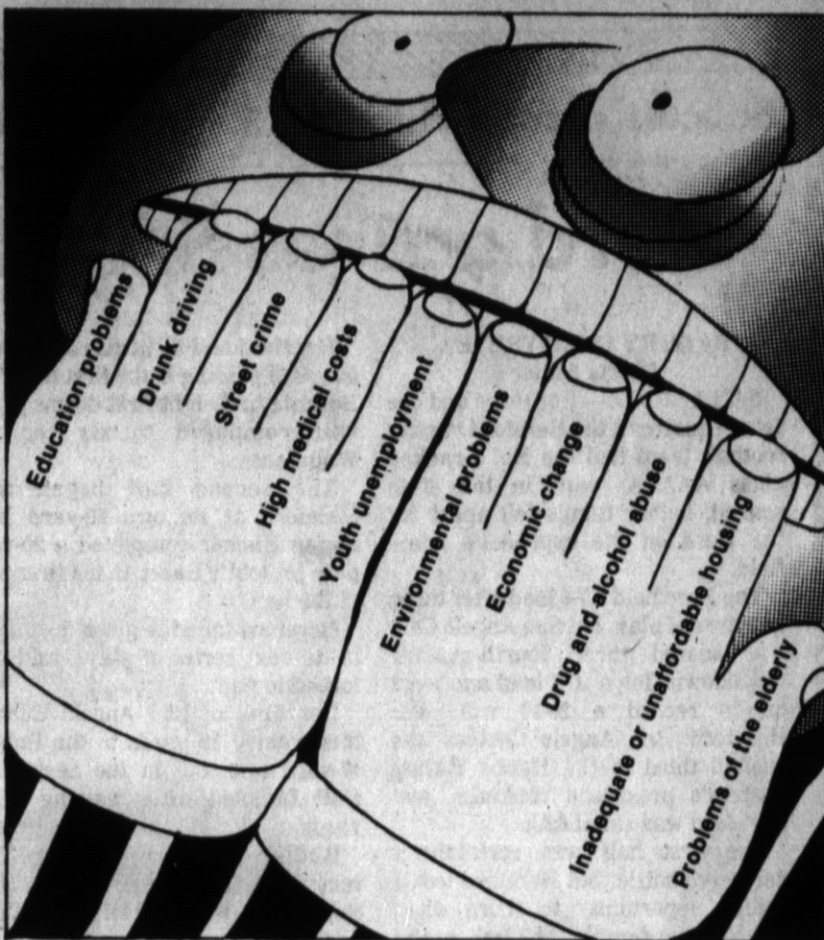

Texas Department of Public Safety Director Jim Adams said, "The Department will begin issuing written citations December 1, as provided by the law. The transition period between the effective date of September 1 and December 1 will give motorists a chance to get into the habit of buckling up. Our troops will give oral warnings and will remind motorists of the new law and that effective December 1 they will be subject to a fine of $25-$50. The transition time will also give all the public and private sector organizations an opportunity to do intensive education on the lifesaving benefits of the law."

Many of those private and public sector organizations will be working together in the Texas Coalition for Safety Belts, according to Gustafson.

"The Texas Coalition for Safety Belts is composed of more than 30 private and public sector groups working to help Texans get into the habit of buckling up. Member organizations include the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, Department of Public Safety, Texas Department of Health, the Texas Medical Association and TMA Auxiliary, the Texas Pediatric Society, the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, Texas Automobile Dealers Association, local safety councils, and many others," said Gustafson.

Texas Safety Association will be playing a coordinating role in a massive public information and education effort by the coalition, according to Gustafson.

Ring hang-up can be costly

If you don't have a hang-up about wearing jewelry while doing physical work or playing sport, a ring could give you one, warns the Texas Medical Association.

When a ring hangs on something and the rest of the body keeps moving, the finger can be injured or even torn off.

An easy way to avoid the problem is to remove rings before possible hazardous activities. But people participating in many sports including basketball, track and field events, rodeo and other sports, seldom realize the danger. Even racquet sports and jogging offer some risk because falls can cause dislocated or broken fingers. A ring on a hurt, swelling finger adds to the pain and problems because it can cut off the finger's blood supply.

Earrings, especially for pierced ears, are another dangerous piece of jewelry. Ripped out earrings are one of the more common jewelry injuries and torn ears may require surgery to repair them without leaving scars.

Some employers prohibit jewelry such as rings and stiff bracelets that could become entangled with objects. But since no one regulates work at home or leisure-time activities, it is up to you to remove jewelry if there is even a slight chance of snagging a ring or bracelet, getting a necklace caught, or having a swinging necklace medallion knock out your teeth TMA says.

Some people used to believe that putting bread on a window ledge would avert a storm.

The spoon, as we know it today, with its spatulate handle, dates only from the 18th century.

BOTTLED MESSAGE

SANDY, Utah (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Athena Travis has found that one of the oldest forms of sending messages over long distances still works, and it doesn't cost a cent.

Last fall, the girl, her brother and parents were on an Alaskan cruise. She wrote a note, placed it into a bottle and tossed it into Sitka Sound. Three months later and some 600 miles away, David A. McGuire, an orthopedic surgeon in Anchorage, found the bottle while hunting on Afognak Island.

"Hi, my name is Athena Travis," the message read. "If you find this bottle, please write to me." Included was her address which McGuire used to contact the girl.

Bobcats escape with 26-13 win over Hereford

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

SAN ANGELO — For three and one fourth quarters, the Hereford varsity football team had the No. 3 ranked class AAAAA team in the state scared, before things fell apart for the Herd on the opponent's home field.

The Herd held a 7-6 lead after three quarters of play, but San Angelo Central scored three fourth-quarter touchdowns for a 26-7 lead and went on to record a 26-13 win over Hereford. San Angelo Central was ranked third in the Harris Rating System's preseason rankings, and Hereford was rated 89th.

The first half was certainly a defensive battle, but Hereford lost a golden opportunity to score when Mark Artho fumbled the ball in the first play of the second half—at the San Angelo Central two-yard line.

The Whitefaces had moved from their own 13-yard line 13 plays before the fumble occurred.

The Bobcats then maintained possession for a touchdown march, scoring with 6:17 left in the first half. C.L. Bowman, who rushed for 1,100 yards last season, ran the final yard for the touchdown.

San Angelo Central had six first downs in that scoring drive. Big plays included 19 and 33-yard runs.

Hereford began its next possession at its own 18-yard line. Quarterback Stefan Hacker completed two passes to tight end Doug Watts, each for 15 yards to put the Herd at its 48-yard line.

Three plays later, it was third down and eight yards to go at the 50-yard line. Hacker attempted a pass, but it was intercepted by San Angelo Central's safety Doug Bonds.

The Bobcats moved nearly to midfield and were forced to punt with two and half minutes left in the first half.

Hereford failed to get a first down and punted the ball from the HHS 13-yard line after San Angelo Central had called a timeout with 56 seconds left.

In the Bobcats' next play, the Herd's free safety, Rodney Torres, picked off a pass. Hereford had the ball at its own 38-yard line, but was unable to complete a long pass.

First half statistics showed Hereford with 111 yards total offense and San Angelo Central with 140 yards total offense. All of San Angelo Central's yards were rushing yards.

Hereford had 55 yards rushing and 56 yards passing in the first half. The Bobcats had eight first downs in the half compared to six for the Whitefaces.

The second half began with Hereford at its own 20-yard line. Stefan Hacker completed a 20-yard pass to Bobby Baker in the first play of the half.

Hereford failed to get a first down in its next series of plays, and was forced to punt.

Don Hall of San Angelo Central then gained 16 yards to the Bobcat 47-yard line, but in the next play, Hall fumbled after gaining eight yards.

Rodney Torres of Hereford recovered the fumble at the HHS 45-yard line with 9:50 left in the third quarter.

The Whitefaces then needed 10 plays to move to the end zone. Hacker completed a 13-yard pass to Vincent Brown in the first play of the touchdown drive.

Moments later, Hereford was faced with a fourth down and four yards to go. Allen Dudding rushed for a nine-yard gain to put Hereford at the Bobcat 26-yard line.

Then the Herd had a third down with six yards to go, at the 22-yard line. Mark Artho caught a pass from Stefan Hacker for a 19-yard gain and a first down.

Dudding gained two yards to the one, and Artho carried for the last yard of the scoring march, crossing the goal line with 5:47 left in the third quarter.

Trent Layman was successful in his extra-point attempt, and Hereford moved on top in the season opener, 7-6.

San Angelo Central, which had only one first down in the third quarter, was stopped twice by the Hustlin' Herd defense in the last part of the third quarter.

The Whitefaces had possession of the ball to start the final period. In a third down and 10 play from the HHS 23-yard line, San Angelo Central's Doug Bonds intercepted a Hereford pass for the second time in the game, with 11:16 left in the contest.

San Angelo Central gained seven yards in two plays, moving to the Herd 20-yard line. Bobcat quarterback Mario Martinez fumbled the ball in the third down play, and Hereford's right cornerback Freddie Gamboa recovered the fumble at the 25-yard line.

Hereford failed to achieve a first down in its next possession and punted, with the Bobcats taking over on their own 30-yard line.

In San Angelo Central's first down play, Don Hall raced 70 yards for his team's go-ahead touchdown. The Bobcats' lead was 12-7 and they attempted a two-point conversion.

Charlie Good caught the pass in the two-point attempt, but Freddie Gamboa belted Good at the one-yard line, and Good failed to break the plane of the goal line with the pigskin.

The blow by Gamboa against Good put the San Angelo Central flanker on the sidelines for a while, but Good later returned to the game.

Penalties hurt the Whitefaces in their next possession. Dudding returned the kickoff 22 yards to the 30-yard line, but a clipping penalty was called during the run.

Later, with third down and six yards to go from the 28-yard line,

Stefan Hacker completed a pass for a first down to Doug Watts, but the reception was nullified by an offensive pass interference penalty.

That made it fourth down and 21 yards to go. Hereford punted, and San Angelo Central had the ball at its own 40-yard line with seven and one half minutes left in the game.

The ball carrying team of C.L. Bowman and Don Hall moved the Bobcats to a touchdown, with Hall rushing the last 11 yards for the score.

Hall also ran for the two-point conversion, and San Angelo Central held a 20-7 lead with 4:31 left.

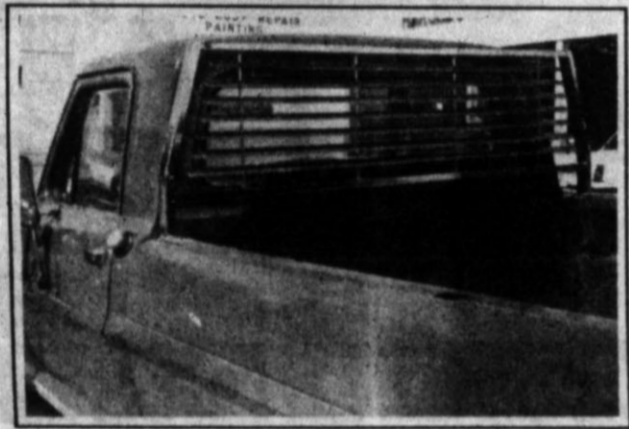

Hereford began its next possession at the 13-yard line, and Marcus Brown rushed 29 yards in the first play to the 42-yard line.

Tragedy struck the Whitefaces again as Bobcat linebacker Sam Sosa intercepted a Hereford pass with 4:09 left.

San Angelo Central then had the ball at the HHS 34-yard line, and needed just three plays to make it into the end zone once more. The touchdown was scored by Doug Bonds with a 27-yard run with 2:47 left. The extra-point kick failed, and the score stood at 26-7 in San Angelo

Central's favor.

Hereford quarterback Todd Shire completed four passes for 73 yards in his team's next possession, helping the Herd move from its own 19-yard line to the Bobcat two-yard line.

Shire fumbled and lost the ball at the five-yard line with nine seconds left.

San Angelo Central attempted a play, and the Herd defense jarred the ball loose from the Bobcats.

Only four seconds remained in the game for Hereford to try to get some more points on the scoreboard.

Allen Dudding ran around the right side to score a touchdown as time expired in the game. A pass attempt for two points failed, and the game was over, with San Angelo Central winning 26-13.

Hereford had 337 yards total offense in the game, including 203 yards passing. Stefan Hacker completed 11 of 20 passes for 130 yards, and Todd Shire completed four of six for 73 yards.

San Angelo Central's offense was entirely on the ground, having no completed passes in five attempts. The Bobcats had 342 yards rushing—201 yards by Don Hall in 14 carries and 71 by C.L. Bowman in 20 carries.

Hereford's leading ball carriers were Allen Dudding with 75 yards in 19 carries and Marcus Brown with 45 yards in four carries.

Three Hereford receivers each caught three passes—Doug Watts for 46 yards, Bobby Baker for 39 yards, and Mark Artho for 22 yards. Jimmy Hazzard caught two passes for 30 yards, including a 26-yard reception late in the game.

Christmas ideas topic of program

"When do you start Christmas shopping?" was answered by members of Wyche Extension Homemakers Club when the group met Thursday.

Clara Trowbridge called the meeting to order and "True Friendship" was read by Novela Hewitt.

Hewitt acted as secretary-treasurer in the absence of Audrey

Rusher.

It was announced that the family living meeting held recently in Amarillo was attended by Louise Packard. Serving as learning for better living panel members were Beau Boulter, Foster Whaley and J.W. (Buck) Buchanan.

Pet Ott gave a report on judging 4-H and Trowbridge reported on the club project, a resident at Westgate nursing Home, Mrs. Richards.

The council report was given by Esther Thuet and it was announced that the quilt show will be held Feb. 1 in Canyon. Each county is to make a quilt block.

It was decided that instead of a tasting bee, the county ladies will serve for the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau Sept. 26. The club will furnish green beans.

Packard introduced Louise Walker, county extension agent, who presented a program entitled "Christmas in September."

Refreshments were served by Hewitt to those present. They included Ott, Packard, Gene Holden, Carol Odom, Trowbridge, Hewitt and Louise Axe.

LONG DRIVE

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Terra Genesis, a non-profit group whose goal is to fight world hunger, will try to set a world record for the most mileage driven during a one week period by driving around the country.

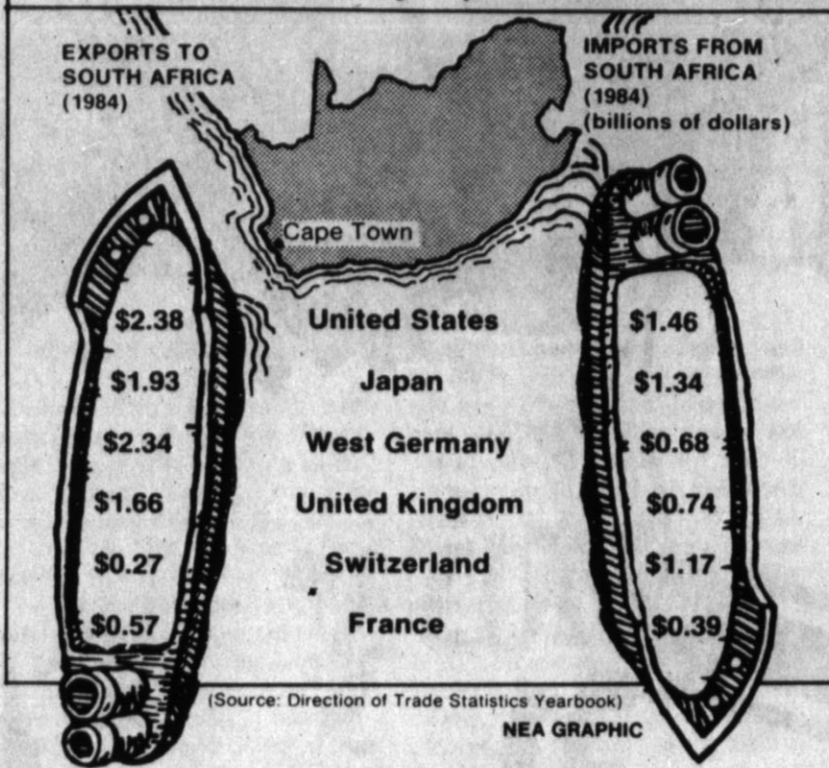

The goal of the drive is to raise money through pledges that will be solicited by volunteers. Some 6,300 miles will be driven, using a car donated by General-Rent-A-Car.

Departure is set for July 23 from San Antonio, and from there on to El Paso, San Bernardino, Calif., Denver, Chicago, New York, Atlanta, Dallas, and return to San Antonio on July 30.

The all-time champion literary pedestrian probably was William Wordsworth, who had walked 180,000 miles by the time he was 65.

TRADE WITH SOUTH AFRICA

Its six major partners

The United States is South Africa's major trading partner. Gold coins account for 20 percent of all U.S. imports from South Africa. In terms of investments, Britain is South Africa's most important partner, accounting for 55 percent of total direct foreign investments in 1981.

Paper art works now on display at Tech

LUBBOCK — An exhibit of art works using forms of paper is on display at The Museum of Texas Tech University through Nov. 3.

"Paperart/New Directions" includes works by 19 artists from across the nation. The works use paper that is handmade, molded, cut, torn, painted and dyed.

A public reception for the exhibit, sponsored by the Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Association, will be at 2:30-4 p.m. today.

Artists represented in the exhibit are Neda Alhaili, Santa Monica, Calif.; Kathryn Clark, Brookston, Ind.; Michael Ponce de Leon, New York City; Jean Thickens Francis, Tupelo, Miss.; Ke Francis, Tupelo, Miss.; Bile Friendlander, Philadelphia, Pa.; Harriet Germain, Los Angeles, Calif.; Sam Gilliam, Washington, D.C.; Pat Hammond, San Antonio; Flo Hatcher, North Haven, Conn.; Sandria Hu, Houston; Cynthia Spikes High, Austin; Timothy High, Austin; Kathryn Lipke, Westmont, Quebec; Walter Nottingham, River Falls, Wis.; Anne Flaten Pixley, Claremont, Calif.; Ted Ramsay, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Karl Umlauf, Commerce; and William Weege, Arena, Wis.

Cleaning tips for microwaves given

If you recently purchased a microwave oven, you're not alone. Although they have been on the market since the mid-1960s, the industry reported that 9.1 million units were sold last year, making 1984 a record sales year.

You're also not alone in learning how to clean and care for your new appliance. The ease and speed of using a microwave oven has changed the way we cook today. But, just as we needed to learn how to use the new technology for cooking, we must also learn new methods for cleaning and caring for microwaves.

"Unfortunately, there is no such thing as a self-cleaning microwave oven," says Janet K. Felmeth, director of the White-Westinghouse Appliance Company's Home Economics Institute. "But," she says, "once you know the tricks, they are much easier to maintain than a conventional oven."

According to Felmeth, one of the areas often overlooked by new owners is the problem of lingering odors, which frequently occurs when cooking fish dishes or strong fragrant foods, such as Italian, Chinese or Cajun.

"The problem extends beyond the unpleasant odor," she cautions. "If not removed from the oven, these odors can be absorbed later on by milder foods while cooking, causing them to acquire a 'funny' taste."

To remove these odors, Felmeth recommends placing a solution of 1 cup of water plus 2 tablespoons of lemon juice or baking soda in a 4-cup microwave bowl. Bring it to a boil in the oven and allow it to boil for five minutes. This will cause steam to form and then condense on the walls. With a soft cloth, thoroughly wipe the interior dry, including the door seals.

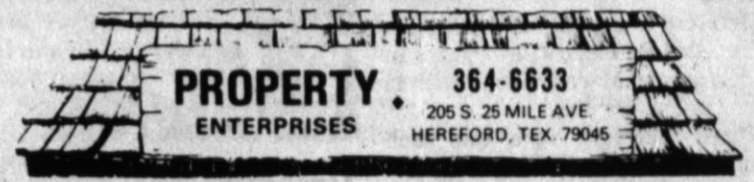

Whether or not you detect an odor, Felmeth advises a routine wipe-down of the oven interior using a baking soda and warm water solution to maintain freshness and remove spattered food particles.

"What is referred to as 'baked-on' food is not a problem with microwave ovens," she says, "because in microwave cooking only the food is warmed, not the oven." To remove spattered food that has hardened on the oven's interior, Felmeth again recommends a steam cleaning. "It is very important to remove these food particles to maintain the unit's attractiveness and safety of operation, especially around the door seals. If soil builds up on the seals, they may not be able to function properly.

"Don't use abrasive cleaners, commercial oven cleaners, steel pads, kitchen knives or other utensils to clean the interior," emphasizes Felmeth. "They can cause damage, and really aren't needed for the job."

Some microwave ovens have a glass shelf that can be removed for cleaning. "You can wash it in warm sudsy water or the dishwasher," says Felmeth, "but, again, do not use abrasive cleaners. Tiny scratches on its surface will cause additional spatters to lodge in the grooves, and it will become more difficult to clean."

Accent on Health

Many Texans think cancer and rush hour traffic in Houston or Dallas have a lot in common. Both appear out of control and capable of strangling a city or a life.

Controlling either the traffic or cancer, the No. 2 cause of death in Texas, requires the ability to think small. The traffic cop has to know that and focus his attention on the bottleneck where fender benders can create the 5 p.m. mess. The same ability is required of Lucina Suarez, a biostatistician at the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

She is using data from the Texas Cancer Registry to determine what type of cancers strike and/or kill Texans.

"That kind of knowledge is important because there are more than 100 different types of cancer. The main thing the different types of cancer have in common is the out-of-control growth," said Dr. Jerome Greenberg, TDH Associate Commissioner for Preventable Diseases. "It is estimated that 75 to 80 percent of all cancers are avoidable. But before we can take steps to prevent cancer, we must have complete reporting of what cancers are common in Texas."

Depending on a person's age, sex and ethnic background, he or she may have vastly different risks for various cancers. An example is colon cancer, which ranks second only to lung cancer in the total number of Texas deaths it causes.

But those statewide figures don't reflect the specific risks of dying from colon cancer of Anglo, Hispanic or black men. Ms. Suarez, who works in the Bureau of Epidemiology, has sifted through thousands of death certificates and found colon cancer is the No. 3 cancer killer of black and Anglo males, but is fourth among Hispanic men.

That kind of information is valuable because it can enable people to take preventive measures aimed at reducing their risk of cancer, Ms. Suarez said. Such a measure for colon cancer might be eating a low-fat, high-fiber diet.

Epidemiological studies have found that developed countries - such as the United States - with Western style diets high in animal fat and low in fiber have high rates of colon cancer. Countries in South America or Asia where the diet is low in animal fat and high in fiber have low rates of the same cancer.

Such information is also useful to physicians, who begin to watch for cancer in middle-aged and older patients. A doctor in a Hispanic community can be aware of specific cancers likely to develop in his or her patients.

That knowledge can be important, Ms. Suarez said, as many cancers are deadly because they are caught too late and have already metastasized, or spread to other areas of the body. "If we can let a physician know what to look for, he or she may be able to detect the cancer early and save lives," she said.

TDH is currently expanding its cancer registry program to look at cancer incidence, the reports of new cases. Ms. Suarez said that expansion is needed "because, thanks to treatment, not all cancers kill a person. We need to prevent those cancers as well." Texas health planners must also know the impact cancer has in the state so that adequate treatment is available.

An example is skin cancer that is often discovered early and cured, she said.

Nor is breast cancer lethal when caught early. More than 90 percent of the women whose cancer is detected early when the tumor is less than a quarter inch in diameter are alive 10 years later.

Compiling the incidence data is a much more exhaustive process than figuring out the death patterns has been, Ms. Suarez said. "A person may be in and out of the hospital several times or even in different hospitals. We have to make certain that the medical records aren't duplicated and check many more details of a case," she said.

The incidence data, which will include information about all types of cancer, by sex, age and race are being compiled for public health regions in Texas and will then be consolidated into a statewide picture.

Greenberg said he thinks such data will provide important information about environmental causes of cancer, including occupational exposure and carcinogens that may exist in food and water. Such data may also help explain why urban areas have a higher cancer rate than rural areas, he said.

(For more information, contact Margaret Wilson, TDH Public Information Coordinator, 512/458-7405, or the TDH Cancer Registry, 512/458-7265.)

'Circle' a sign of epidemic

A small harmless looking circle on a hip pocket is the first symptom of a major health-threatening epidemic. The circle, made by carrying a snuff can, is a move obvious symptom than a chewing tobacco pouch. But both show that the user is sucking on chemicals that can cause cancer, the Texas Medical Association says.

Bad breath, discolored teeth and white patches of skin called leukoplakia inside the mouth or throat are a few other signs of the epidemic that has spread to many groups of young people and adults.

Some people start using chewing tobacco and snuff as a replacement for smoking. But they merely are trading one set of health hazards for another, TMA says. Chewing tobacco is one of the risk factors for developing oral cancer which includes cancer of the tongue, lip, or throat. Last year 456 Texans died from oral cancer.

Chances of gum and tooth disease increase and users' teeth wear away quicker than non-users' teeth. Tobacco juice chemicals may show wound healing, especially in the mouth. The juice also can irritate or cause stomach ulcers.

Other unhealthy effects come from the drug nicotine that is absorbed through the mouth lining or swallowed. Nicotine makes arteries smaller and speeds up the heart rate. Pumping more blood through a narrower opening may increase blood pressure which heightens the risk of stroke or heart attack. Pressure may increase even more because tobacco users may use too much salt since nicotine can dull taste buds. Too much salt also may increase blood pressure.

These additional effects mean that dippers and chewers are at risk. Even though they are not sending up bad health smoke signals by puffing on a cigarette, they still are risking their health.

AC classes to begin Monday

Amarillo College is offering mid-management classes on a dual enrollment basis this fall for the first time in Hereford.

Dual enrollment means a class may be taken either for credit or on a non-credit basis.

Functions of a supervisor, which has also been titled fundamentals of supervision, will be taught by Frank Orthal, AC professor of mid-management, in Hereford on Monday evenings at the Hereford High School. This class is an example of dual enrollment course offerings.

First class period is Monday at 6:30 p.m. and registration can be accomplished at that time. Registration fees for non-credit status in this class is considerably lower than credit tuition.

Complete information is available by calling Orthal at the college in Amarillo at 370-5111, extension 2807 or calling Kenneth Helms at Hereford High School at 364-5112.

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

Alcohol intake is dangerous

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband had a heart attack last summer. He has been on Procainamide and Isosorbide daily since then. He feels fine and works full time, but goes out for drinks after work until after midnight. I worry about him drinking while taking this medication. Can you please explain the facts to both of us?

DEAR READER — I'm delighted to learn that your husband now feels fine. However, he seems intent on doing himself in by a slow and agonizing method. Alcohol may adversely react with the medicine he is taking, however, of more importance is the fact that the alcohol is poisoning his heart muscle. Several studies have conclusively shown that alcohol is toxic to the brain, liver and heart. He is clearly asking for serious trouble if he is consuming what appears to be an excessive amount of alcohol. I cannot label your husband alcoholic; only he can do that, when he is ready. Nevertheless, I can tell you that he has a drinking problem.

I think it's a reasonable option for you to share my answer with him. If he does not agree with my statement that his alcohol intake is dangerously high, he can get another opinion from his own physician. If he accepts the fact that he has a drinking problem, he may be motivated to stop or to reduce his liquor consumption.

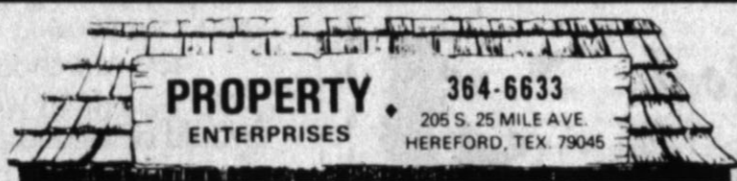

Your role in this scenario is to lay low; express your opinions and concern, but don't harass him. Check with his doctor and look into resources, like Al-Anon, in your community. You may be able to help your husband by helping yourself. An organization like Al-Anon will be able to show you how to address the problem of alcohol in your family.

Remember that you cannot change your husband; only he can change himself through knowledge and support. I hope he chooses to modify his behavior before irreparable damage results.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I wear an insulin pump. After four months with it, my glycosylated hemoglobin level dropped from 9.2 to 6.1. Could you alert your readers to the value of the HbA1c test, above and beyond the FBS?

DEAR READER — The fasting blood sugar test is an accurate determination of blood sugar at precisely the time the blood is drawn for analysis. The test does not reflect in any way whatsoever what the blood glucose was five minutes, five hours or five days before.

As you correctly point out, the glycosylated hemoglobin test gives more information about something that is of special interest to diabetics on insulin: the average level of blood sugars for the preceding several weeks. By using the HbA1c value, doctors and their patients can readily work together to adjust the insulin dose based on the overall glucose value, rather than on day-to-day approximations. The glycosylated hemoglobin determination may prove to be a boon for insulin-dependent diabetics, particularly those with insulin pumps.

PIONEER SPIRIT

Farm

Hot, dry conditions stressful to late season crops, pastures

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Record-breaking high temperatures and lack of rainfall are continuing to plague Texas farmers and ranchers.

While the open weather has helped harvest operations, the hot, dry conditions are putting a lot of stress on late-season crops, pastures and ranges, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Cotton in western areas is shedding squares and bolls due to moisture stress, and late-planted sorghum also is suffering. A lot of pecan trees are shedding nuts as the crop moves into its final stage of growth.

Hay making is at a standstill in most areas due to the extended period of dry weather. Yields and quality of recent cuttings have been poor in many locations. While producers harvested a lot of good quality hay early in the season, hay supplies are less than adequate in a number of counties, Carpenter said.

Some ranchers have started feeding hay and protein supplement to their livestock due to declining pastures and ranges. Many also are culling their herds heavily as forage and stock water become short.

Dry conditions are holding up small grain plantings in many locations, Carpenter added. Most farmers have fields ready for planting wheat and oats but are waiting for moisture that will get the crops up. Some early planting has started in the Panhandle and South Plains.

The extended hot, dry weather also is hampering fall gardening over the state, with gardeners struggling to get crops up. Commercial growers in the Winter Garden of Southwest Texas and in the Rio Grande Valley have had to irrigate heavily to get fall vegetable crops up and growing.

Texas farmers are still busy harvesting a good cotton crop, Carpenter said. A record-breaking harvest has been completed in the Rio Grande Valley, and an excellent harvest continues in Southwest Texas. Harvesting is about complete in the Coastal Bend region but remains active in central areas. Cotton bolls are starting to open earlier than normal in some western counties due to the extended hot, dry weather.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Crops are rapidly moving toward maturity under hot, dry conditions. Some corn is being harvested for silage, and the grain harvest will start in about two weeks. Some hay making continues, with excellent yields of alfalfa. A little wheat seeding is under way; most farmers are waiting on rain.

SOUTH PLAINS: Corn harvesting has started along with some harvesting of early sorghum. Cotton bolls are starting to open in early-planted fields. Bollworms remain a problem in some cotton, with spraying active. A little early wheat is being planted. Ranges need rain.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton is shedding squares and bolls due to the extended hot, dry weather. Insect control programs continue in cotton and peanuts. Late-planted sorghum also is suffering from moisture stress. Ranchers are starting to cull herds heavily due to declining ranges.

NORTH CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is under way while the sorghum harvest is about complete. Dryland peanuts are suffering from moisture stress, which is also causing some pecans to shed. Dry conditions are limiting hay making and forage growth for grazing. Farmers are getting ready to plant small grains.

NORTHEAST: Corn and sorghum harvesting is about 75 percent complete. Soybeans, pecans, fall vegetables and pastures are suffering from lack of moisture. The dry weather also has slowed hay making.

FAR WEST: Hot, dry conditions are causing cotton bolls to open earlier than normal; a lot of cotton is under moisture stress. The pecan crop is maturing rapidly, with aphids causing problems in some orchards. Most cattle are in good shape as recent scattered rains boosted ranges.

WEST CENTRAL: Sorghum and hay crops have produced excellent yields, but cotton is suffering from moisture stress and heavy bollworm infestations. Spray programs are under way. Pecan prospects remain good despite some nut shedding and weevil problems. Rain is needed to boost ranges.

CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting remains in full swing. Hay making is at a standstill due to dry conditions that have limited forage growth. Some farmers are "dusting in" small grains, but most are waiting for planting moisture. Pecans are shedding due to moisture stress; weevils are active in some orchards. Cattle conditions are declining due to poor grazing.

EAST: Dry conditions are hampering hay production and causing a decline in grazing for livestock. Recent hot, humid conditions have caused increased broiler deaths in Shelby County. Sweet potato harvesting continues along with the planting of fall vegetables.

UPPER COAST: Harvesting of rice, corn, sorghum and cotton remains active in some counties. Soybeans and pastures are suffering from lack of moisture in some locations. Hay making remains active where recent rains have boosted forage growth. Cattle remain in good condition. Fall gardening is in full swing.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is widespread, with fair to good yields. Hay making operations have been cut short by lack of moisture. Pastures and ranges are declining rapidly under hot, dry conditions.

SOUTHWEST: Cotton harvesting remains in full swing, with excellent yields. Spinach is being planted while broccoli, cabbage, squash, collards and mustard greens are doing well under heavy irrigation. Forage is about gone on pastures and ranges, causing ranchers to increase culling and supplemental feeding.

COASTAL BEND: Rains of 4 to 5 in. in a few locations helped pastures and ranges, but most of the region remains dry. Cotton is about 90 percent harvested, and harvesting of late rice is about to start. Cattle conditions are declining due to poor grazing; some ranchers are feeding hay.

SOUTH: A record-breaking cotton harvest has been completed, and farmers are destroying cotton stalks. Sugarcane continues to look good. Planting of cabbage and other fall vegetables continues, and tomatoes and peppers are being irrigated heavily. Pastures and ranges are declining due to lack of moisture.

A&M uses data logger

COLLEGE STATION — Another step for increased efficiency and turnaround time regarding soil testing—that's the result of a newly installed data logger in the Texas Agricultural Extension Service's Soil Testing Lab at Texas A&M University.

The small boxlike unit, called a polycorder, is about the size of a standard tape recorder and forms the link between the lab's fully automatic pH testing unit and a computer.

Now, once a soil sample is ready for testing, technology takes over. The pH unit automatically analyzes the sample, the polycorder records the data and feeds it into a computer, and the computer issues a printout. The printout is then mailed to the farmer or other individual who submitted the sample. Someday the information will be sent from the computer to the individual's telephone.

"It all boils down to an extremely streamlined operation for pH testing," points out Dr. Dale Pennington, Extension soil chemist who operates the lab.

Pennington put together the unit along with help from Mike Gerst, Extension computer specialist at Lubbock, and Joe Bilbro, a systems analyst, also at Lubbock.

Honored For Service

Donna Weaver, Carla Scott, Bobby Murphy and Curtis Simmons of the local Farmers Home Administration loan of-office were all cited for outstanding service in the FmHA program recently.

FmHA employees receive recognition

Three employees of the Hereford Farmers Home Administration office recently received certificates of merit for sustained quality performance.

Honored were Bobby Murphy, Carla Scott, Donna Weaver and Curtis Simmons.

Murphy, who joined the Hereford staff in April of 1984, was cited for outstanding performance in loan making, servicing, and self-training during the period of June 1984 through June 1985.

County office assistant Scott, who has been with the Hereford office since June of 1979, was cited for performance in farmer program loan activities during January 1984 through the end of that year.

Weaver joined the local agency in April 1984. She also was cited for service in farm program loan activities during that period.

The three were recommended for the awards by county supervisor Curtis Simmons. They were further approved by the district and state directors.

Simmons was cited earlier this year for outstanding accomplishments in the farmer program loan making and servicing for a two year period. He has been with the Hereford office since 1982.

COMPUTERIZED MUSHROOMS

AYRSHIRE, Scotland (AP) — Mushrooms are grown here by computers.

A $2 million mushroom farm is controlled from spawning to picking by an advanced computer system. The Garlock Valley Mushroom farm can supply 20 tons of fresh mushrooms each month.

The computer-controlled mushrooms are grown in sealed rooms, where humidity, temperature, moisture and carbon dioxide levels are monitored from a central control room.

Chronic destitution among the densely crowded population of Bangladesh has been worsened by the decline of jute as a major world commodity. A 1970 cyclone killed 300,000 and 1974 floods, combined with the world oil price hike, caused famine deaths to soar.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING? Could happen, particularly if calves are grazed on pasture. If cattle on pastures get too much grain, says a University of Missouri cattle feeding specialist, they make less use of it than if they were fed grain and forage separately. An overabundance of grain decreases the digestibility of roughage, he notes, so calves won't perform well-or, at least as well as might be expected. Calves fed grain on good quality pasture will try to substitute grain for grass, resulting in a gradually increased requirement for grain for each unit of gain. The solution: A concerted effort at fine-tuning the amount of feed. This should be done according to the quantity and quality of forage available. Properly done, this can reduce the amount of grain needed later when animals enter the finishing stage.

A few big words about Enliven Seed Treatment for wheat.

EASIER TO APPLY. Just use the handy enclosed applicator. The Enliven Seed Treatment's free flowing powder pours directly onto seeds in the grain drill box or other planting device.

FASTER GERMINATION of seeds reduces the risk of seed rot injury.

EARLIER PLANT GROWTH. Giving plants a head start to maturity.

LARGER ROOT SYSTEMS to aid plants in obtaining more nutrients and moisture from the soil.

STRONGER STALKS. Sturdier plants for less lodging.

THICKER STAND. Giving you higher yield per acre which means higher profits.

Enliven Seed Treatment for wheat is the best way to insure maximum benefits from the seeds you're investing in and planting in the ground. So get your wheat off to a good start and insure a thicker stand by putting Enliven Seed Treatment to work for you. Enliven Seed Treatment is manufactured by Cottonbelt Chemicals, Inc. Always refer to label recommendations before use.

By DIANNE PIERSON
County Librarian

During September, the Friends of the Deaf Smith County Library will be accepting book donations for their annual book sale, which will be held Oct. 19 at the Sugarland Mall. This sale enables the Friends to provide needed assistance to our Library and helps make it one of the finest libraries in the area.

If you have any books you would like to donate to the Friends, you may bring them to the library or place them at one of the donation sites. Donation sites will be Sugarland Mall, Moore's Jack and Jill, and the Library. If you have any questions, please feel free to call the library at 364-1206 or Mrs. W. Glen Nelson, 364-3112, Friends of the Library President.

New Books:
Non-fiction bestsellers are featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. Two books which will be available are "The Mick" by Mickey Mantle and "At Mother's Request" by Jonathan Coleman.

If every boy in America dreams of playing major league baseball, then Mickey Mantle had fulfilled that dream before his twentieth birthday. In the years that followed, Mantle became a symbol for millions—the all-American boy, as wholesome as the Oklahoma farmland of his birth. He was a miner's son who could hit home runs from both sides of the plate, a premier fielder with a powerful arm.

"The Mick" is Mickey Mantle's true story: honest answers to the questions that his fans have been asking for more than twenty years. It recounts the private events of his life. Brimming with nostalgia, and the details that baseball fans love, "The Mick" is a wry, affectionate, and stunningly candid self-portrait of a true American legend.

"At Mother's Request" by Johnathan Coleman is also featured this week. It began, for the police, in Salt Lake City on a sweltering Sunday morning, July 23, 1978. Summoned to a warehouse in a deserted area of town, they found Franklin Bradshaw, seventy-six, auto-parts magnate, lying next to a cash register, shot twice at close range.

But his riveting story began long before the day of the murder. It began when Bradshaw met Berenice Jewett and eloped. Theirs was an American success story—on the surface...What happened to them and to their children and grandchildren is what this book reveals. "At Mother's Request" is many stories and many themes: a deadly clash of values; an old woman's guilt and a daughter's ability to exploit it; fierce sibling rivalries; a father's shattered dreams for his son and his legacy to his family and a mother's obsession with her children, her need to control them—and her ultimate request.

Other new books available this week are "Brain Child" by John Saul, "Funny Money" by Mark Singer, and "The Two Mrs. Grenvilles" by Dominick Dunne.

Parents influence success

If you child is having trouble adjusting to school, parental attitudes may be one possible problem, the Texas Medical Association says.

Sometimes parents are afraid to let new people care for their children. Children pick up such signals and become anxious also. Parental stress about busing or other problems also can make a child feel uncomfortable.

Doubts and fears of parents and children can be eased by visiting the school and talking with the teacher. Such discussions can familiarize everyone with the child's schedule and upcoming activities. A visit also can give parents an early opportunity to inform the teacher about the child's special abilities, problems, or complicating situations, such as a recent family divorce that may have upset the child.

Another important discussion can be between parent and child. It can help to reassure the child that he or she can handle new circumstances just as in the past. Getting frequent updates about the child's progress and attitudes can help parents keep in touch with problems.

Persistent problems may mean the child has a learning disorder. To find out about possible problems quickly, tests can be done to determine hearing, sight, or learning handicaps that can cause the child years of frustration and failure if undetected, TMA says. The teacher often can give recommendations about available testing.

No matter what the cause of poor performance in school, it is important to help the child before troubles last too long. Help may be something as simple as aiding the child with homework. Or it may involve getting medical attention. But TMA urges parents to take action to help keep the child from falling far behind in class.

Alpha Alpha Chapter meets Tuesday night

Bill Devers, community pastor, presented a program on Operation Good Shepherd when members of Alpha Alpha Preceptor Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met Tuesday evening in the home of Barbara Burkhalter.

He answered questions on the food pantry, finances, clothes closet and jail ministry.

At the beginning of the meeting, members stood for the opening ritual and President Jean Holbert called the meeting to order with 16 members answering roll call.

A brief business meeting was conducted and committee chairmen gave their reports. It was announced that the service project will be Operation Good Shepherd.

All joined hands for the closing ritual.

Hostesses Burkhalter and Holbert served refreshments to Devers, Alene Tindal, Mary Jean Gore, JoAnn Richburg, Bonnie Decker, Vida Grady, Lillie Shipman, Jan Walsler, Nan Gauthreaux, Phyllis Neill, Tony Jones, Earlene Schneider, Mary Anna Laing, Karen Ruland and Margaret Godwin.

ACIDS ARE RUINING BOOKS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless the nation's libraries "deacidify" their collections, 90 percent of their holdings won't survive the turn of the century.

Deacidification is a process where an acid-neutralizing agent — liquid or gas — is passed through paper by vacuum to remove acids that promote paper deterioration.

One such process has been developed by scientists at the Library of Congress, where an estimated 6 million volumes out of 17 million already are brittle from acid activity. A deacidification facility funded by Congress will process the books.

Castaneda, Nunez vows spoken here

An assortment of silk and fresh flowers decorated the church for the marriage of Carmen Castaneda of 817 Irving and Ramon Nunez of El Paso Saturday afternoon in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Officiating during the ceremony was the Rev. James O' Connor of St. Margaret Mary Catholic Church in Lamesa.

The bride is the daughter of Jesus and Connie Castaneda of 121 Kibbe and the bridegroom is the son of Romulo and Concepcion Nunez of El Paso.

The back church altar was adorned with white silk gladioli and assorted pink and dusty rose colored flowers. Fresh gladioli enhanced the side altars and the white unity candle was trimmed with fresh greenery. Pink bows marked all pews.

Linda Castaneda served her sister as maid of honor and best man was Harold Armenta.

Bridesmaids included Christine Castaneda, Olivia Castaneda, Gloria Garcia, Lee Ann Castaneda; the bride's sisters, Gloria Garcia and Christine Castaneda; and her sisters-in-law, Lee Ann and Olivia Castaneda.

The bride's brothers served as groomsmen. They were Edward, Jessie, Ricardo and Ernest Castaneda.

Escorting guests to their seats were the bride's cousins Ralph Vargas and Bobby Castro.

The bride's niece, Courtney Castaneda, daughter of Ernest and Lee Ann Castaneda, held the bride's chapel-length wedding veil.

Connie M. Castaneda served her sister as flower girl and the bride's nephew, Colby Lee Castaneda, son of Ernest and Lee Ann Castaneda, was ring bearer.

Lighting candles were Christopher Castaneda and Kelly Sean Castaneda, the bride's nephews.

Steve Young of San Antonio vocalized "The Wedding Song" and Judy Cloud sang "Ave Maria", "Joined in Christ", "Only A Shadow", "Our Father" and "Come To The Banquet of Christ."

E.P. Rodriguez played the trumpet Voluntary and was accompanied by Sharon Cramer, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white chiffon bridal gown featuring a sweetheart neckline. The fitted bodice was covered in alencon lace and the natural waistline dipped to a point at the front. The short puffy sleeves were complemented with Venise and alencon lace motifs and the softly gathered skirt was edged in scalloped alencon lace which swept into a chapel-length train.

The two-tiered chapel-length tulle veil was edged in alencon lace and was attached to a white wreath accented with seed pearls, cherry blossoms and baby's breath.

She carried a cascading bouquet of dusty rose colored ruse buds, white roses, greenery embellished with ribbon and lace streamers and peal trailing. The bouquet was made and designed by the bride's cousin, Grace Gamez.

Her jewelry consisted of cultured pearl earrings and as something borrowed, she wore a cultured pearl strand necklace belonging and used by her sister, Gloria Garcia, at her wedding.

The traditional blue garter was worn as something blue; a 1961 minted penny depicting the bride's birthdate was something old' and as something new, she wore her bridal gown and a 1966 penny in her shoe. Bridal attendants wore dusty rose colored silk chemise street-length dresses designed with two-tiers of ruffles on the sleeves and around the bottom of the dresses. They each carried a single dusty rose colored rose and wore rose colored streamers, greenery and pink baby's breath in their hair.

Julia Scott invited guests to register at the reception held in the Antonian Room of St. Anthony's School.

Delinda and Dolores Hernandez served cake and punch and coffee were poured by Nancy Pacheco of Amarillo. Grace Gamez assisted in serving.

The three-tiered white wedding cake was designed with a champagne fountain and was trimmed with dusty rose colored roses. The main refreshment table was covered with an antique white lace cloth and was decorated with fresh flowers, ivy and baby's breath arranged in gold vases. Accenting individual tables, which were also covered with white antique lace cloths, were small fresh floral arrangements.

Leaving for a wedding trip to South Padre Island, Corpus Christi, the bride wore a black and white chemise silk dress with matching accessories and a white rose corsage.

The couple will be at home at 3025 Yarbrough in El Paso after Sept. 16.

The bride, a 1970 graduate of Hereford High School, attended West Texas State University. She was formerly employed by the Hereford Independent School District as a migrant recruiter.

The bridegroom, a 1965 graduate of El Paso High School, also graduated from the University of El Paso. He is currently employed with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

Out-of-town guests represented Amarillo, San Antonio, Lamesa, Phoenix, Ariz., Dallas, Lubbock, Jordan, Tx., Los Angeles, Calif.; and Austin.

Class supper set Sept. 20

The Hereford High School senior class will have their annual supper following the Lubbock High game from 5-7:30 p.m. Sept. 20 at the HHS cafeteria.

Tickets are priced at $4 for adults and $3 for children 10 and under. Money raised goes to finance senior activities including the spring banquet.

Tickets may be reserved by calling any senior. Further information may be obtained by calling Stefan Hacker, senior class president.

Ann Landers

Don't waste years

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A couple of days ago you printed another letter about horrible mothers-in-law. For years I had an uneasy and often hostile relationship with mine. She was overbearing, intrusive and extremely critical. We ceased communicating after a major row. It ended with accusations, name-calling and a door slammed so hard a picture fell off the wall.

Now, four years and one baby later, my husband and I decided to take a chance and stop by to see his parents. They greeted us with tears and open arms. We both expressed deep sorrow at the years wasted in bitterness and recrimination. We have invited them to our home next week and I know it will be a warm and loving reunion.

Parents, too, can learn. They deserve a second chance. My husband is elated at this happy turn of events. We both feel that our children deserve grandparents, and if my mother-in-law is good to them it helps us too.

Blood ties can never be broken. Everyone is affected by family rifts. Life is too short to waste years bearing old grudges.

Please tell daughters-in-law everywhere not to be smug about "wars won." Such victories are hollow at best.

I've learned a lot during 14 years of marriage. I hope to be a mother-in-law someday and my experience will equip me to do a better job.—HAPPIER NOW IN ARIZONA

DEAR HAPPIER: What a constructive letter! A real day-brightener, too. I hope your philosophy is contagious. Peace—it's wonderful!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Next year my husband and I will celebrate our 40th anniversary. To outside observers I have everything a woman could want — furs, jewels, trips to Europe, two houses, several cars and some beautiful works of art.

This past year I learned that my husband has been involved in several crooked deals. Large sums of money have been involved. At a time in our lives when peace of mind should be ours, I am angry, depressed and frightened. My husband became physically violent when I confronted him with what I knew. When I told him, "We must straighten things out," he threatened my life.

Is it too late to leave? I'm afraid I couldn't cope without him but I feel as if I am living with a stranger now.

I also am heartsick because he was such a swell guy.

I need help but I'm afraid to confide in an outsider. Also he would be angry with me for seeking counsel. I am a prisoner in a situation I didn't create. Please, Ann, tell me what to do.—LOST IN PARADISE

DEAR LOST: A "swell guy" doesn't get involved in crooked business deals and knock his wife around.

You are in desperate need of counseling and I advise you to get it. Don't underestimate your ability to make it alone. I have an idea your life would be easier without this man and I hope you have the courage to make the break.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Twenty-five dollars is riding on your answer. I bet my friend that Elizabeth Taylor has the largest diamond in the world. It was her engagement ring from Richard Burton. Am I right?—ATHENS, GA. GAMBLER

DEAR GAMBLER: You lose. The Hope diamond is the world's largest. It is on exhibit at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., weighs 44.4 carats — and is reputed to be cursed.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex—Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

TAX SHELTERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are thinking about investing money in a tax shelter, there are a number of points to consider.

James T. O'Hara, of the Jones, Day Reavis & Pogue law firm, says you should not be impressed by the celebrity names of other investors. "They don't know any more than you do," says O'Hara.

He says it is safer to deal with an established investment, accounting or law firm. He advises it is risky to deal with an individual broker, accountant or lawyer whom you do not know or who operates out of a distant city.

And, he adds, you should be wary of any investment that promises you tax losses in the first few years that are more than double the cash you have invested, and that you shouldn't get involved with investments with which you are not familiar unless you consult with an independent expert.

Fischbacher, Frerich vows spoken

Patty Ann Fischbacher and Danny Frerich exchanged nuptials Saturday evening in St. Ann's Catholic Church in Canyon. The Rev. Pat Carathers and Deacon Jerry Grossman officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Fischbacher of Canyon and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Frerich of Hereford.

Two large arrangements of white spider mums and pink carnations placed in brass vases decorated the church and pink satin bows marked pews.

Debbie Fischbacher of Canyon served her sister as maid of honor and the groom's brother, Allan Frerich of Hereford was best man.

Bridesmaids were Michelle Offield of Canyon; Melissa Frerich of Hereford, the groom's sister; and Valerie Boehning of Canyon, the bride's cousin.

Groomsmen were Ken Fischbacher of Canyon, the bride's brother; Louis Paschal of Vega, the groom's cousin, Clay Crist of Wildorado.

The bride's niece, Julie Ann McDonald of Muleshoe, served as flower girl and ring bearers were Jonathan Frerich of Hereford, the groom's brother; and Joshua McDonald of Muleshoe, the bride's nephew.

Escorting guests were Raymond Ray of Amarillo, the bride's brother-in-law; Donnie McDonald of Muleshoe, the bride's brother-in-law; Roger Batenhorst of Umbarger, the groom's brother-in-law; and David Wagner of Vega.

Acolyte was Jim Fischbacher of Canyon, the bride's brother.

Beth Rohrbach of Adrian was vocalist and she was accompanied by organist Marcella Crabtree of Canyon. Musical selections included "Nobody Loves Me Like You Do", "The Wedding Song", "Only A Shadow" and "Hail Mary, Gentle Woman."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length bouffant gown of dotted Swiss with tiers of wedgewood lace. The bodice of dotted Swiss was designed with a flounce of matching wedgewood lace and formed a high neckline of schiffle embroidery. The dotted Swiss melon sleeves were decorated by white satin bows and the skirt formed a cathedral-length train.

She wore a white picture hat trimmed with lace appliques and gathered at the back with finger-tip length illusion veiling. Her hat was designed by her sister Rhonda Fischbacher.

The bridal attendants wore shocking pink taffeta tea-length dresses fashioned with sweetheart necklines, puffed sleeves and gathered skirts. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

A reception was held in the church parish hall immediately following the ceremony. Rhonda Fischbacher, of Canyon, the groom's sister, presided at the registry table.

The bride's table was covered with a white sheer cloth trimmed by pink ribbons and accented with pink candles. The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with pink roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom figurines.

Serving at the bride's table were the couple's cousins, Joni Adams of Canyon and Cindy Brorman of Vega.

An assortment of sandwiches, cheese balls, crackers and fruit were served during the dance.

The groom's chocolate sheet cake was served from a table decorated similar to the bride's table. Servers included the groom's sister, Kristi Frerich of Umbarger, and the groom's cousin, Jeanne Brorman of Adrian. The couple left for a wedding trip to Cloudercroft, N.M. They will make their home near Hereford.

The bride, a 1984 graduate of Canyon High School, attended West Texas State University and is currently employed at Transport Electric in Amarillo.

The bridegroom, a 1982 graduate of Vega High School, also attended WTSU and is currently engaged in farming near Vega. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. George Frerich and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brorman, all of Hereford.

The United States launched its first communications satellite 25 years ago. The satellite, SCORE, was produced by RCA for the Army Signal Corps. It was placed in orbit by an Atlas missile in December 1958 and relayed voice conversations, code and teletype messages.

Staring someone down is not as easy as it sounds. In order to keep the eye from drying out and to cleanse the eye of irritating debris, the average person blinks 13 times every 60 seconds.

County Extension Agent
"Join An Extension
Homemaker Club"

Something exciting is happening right here in your area. It's an extension homemaker club. The clubs are organized through the local county extension office for a three-fold purpose.

First to study homemaking and to develop and put into practice the best methods involved in successful homemaking; second, to offer to women an opportunity for self-improvements; and third, to advance community interest and life.

Clubs meet once or twice a month and have programs that will benefit the family, home, and community. The programs include subjects such as food and nutrition, clothing and textiles, family resource management, family stability, housing, and home furnishings, and health.

Specific programs this fall include "Handmade Gifts and Decoration Ideas for Christmas." Presented in September and "Women and Estate Planning" in November. Louise Walker, county extension agent, will give both programs. A club leader will give a program on "Women and Credit" in October.

Extension homemaker clubs offer an opportunity to learn about family life, learn self-confidence and enjoy friendship with others. There are no dues but they do encourage a small annual contribution of $2 and the club year book costs $1. There are presently nine extension homemaker clubs in the county. The club, their president, her phone number, and their meeting times follow:

Bippus - Kate Bradley, 289-5997; second Wednesday, 2 p.m.
Cultural - Nell Pope, 276-5804; second and fourth Friday, 2 p.m.
Dawn - Helen Caraway, 258-7263; third Friday, 2 p.m.
Draper - Sherrie Blackwell, 364-6156; first Wednesday, 12 noon
Ford - Mary Carter, 267-2323; third Tuesday, 9:30 a.m.

Messenger - Kathy Hammock, 289-5853; second and fourth Thursday, 2 p.m.
North Hereford - Naomi Brisendine, 364-2319; first and third Thursday, 2:30 p.m.

If you're interested in joining an extension homemaker club, call Louise Walker or call any of the club presidents. Better yet—come by and visit Louise in her office at Room 304, Courthouse, Hereford.

Extension Homemaker clubs are open to all residents of the county regardless of race, sex, color, religion, national origin or economic circumstances.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, religion, sex, handicap or national origin.

Ivory coast

A French protectorate since 1842, the Ivory Coast became independent in 1960. It is the most prosperous of tropical African nations because of diverse agriculture exports, close ties to France and encouragement of foreign investment. About 20 percent of the population is made up of workers from neighboring countries.

THANK YOU

We would like to express our sincere thanks to all our precious friends for all the prayers, flowers, love, food and cards we received during the illness and loss of our beloved Bobbie Wooten Duty. We would also like to thank Dr. Payne, the kind nurses and staff at the Deaf Smith General Hospital for all their kindness and comfort. Thank You And God Bless All Of You.

Sincerely,

Recruitment Night scheduled Thursday

The annual 4-H Recruitment night is scheduled for Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Community Center.

This year the evening will include Robert Devin, 4-H Specialist from Amarillo to boost the activities conducted by 4-H clubs. Local 4-H'ers will take it from there and present short talks over activities in 4-H offered by the club they belong to and to projects they have in the club. Each club will have a booth set up to view activities captured by pictures.

This year a new club is forming and the club has a place for all kids age 8-12. The club project is to establish youth in a small animal project with baby calves. The local feedlots have baby calves to furnish boys and girls to raise for market animals. The Young Farmers

Stockshow is incorporating a show for these baby calves to be judged mainly on health and maintenance of the calf and over all knowledge obtained by the showman.

Other 4-H clubs to be represented are Horse, Showmanship, Shooting Sports, Rabbits, Pioneer and Food, 4-Fs (Food Fun & Fitness). Each of these clubs offer a variety of fun projects and self motivation is a large feature in every 4-H'ers mind.

Come to recruitment night and enjoy refreshment and learn about 4-H.

4-H Club activities and functions are coordinated by the County Extension Agents of Deaf Smith County who are a part of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service cooperating with the United States Department of Agriculture, the County Commissioners Court of Deaf Smith County and The Texas A&M University System.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

KATHY JANE MILTON, KREIG GALLAGHER

Couple to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Milton of Hereford announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Kathy Jane, to Kreig Gallagher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Gallagher of Summerfield.

Wedding vows will be exchanged at 6 p.m. Nov. 8 at St. Anthony's Catholic Church. A reception will follow in the Antonian Room.

The bride-elect graduated in 1984 from Hereford High School. She is presently employed by West Texas Rural Telephone Company as an assistant billing clerk.

Simms Craft Club meets

An organizational meeting and luncheon was held by members of Simms Study Craft Club Wednesday in the home of Elsie Lloyd.

During the brief business meeting, programs were planned for the coming year.

The next meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. Oct. 2.

Those present included Denise Teel, Charlene Hughes, Doris Jackson, Pat Miewes, Mary Duggan, Kay Rhodes, Elaine Bromman, Tommie Savage, Willie Roberts and Lloyd.

Milburn enrolls as freshman

ROSWELL, N.M. — Philip J. Milburn, son of Lynda Milburn of Summerfield, has enrolled as a high school freshman at New Mexico Military Institute. He is one of 500 new cadets who enrolled at the 94-year-old institution for the fall 1985 semester.

NMMI officials are expecting a total enrollment of about 925 in the four-year high school and two-year junior college, which is state-supported and coeducational.

Approximately 100 of the 1986 junior college graduates will receive Army ROTC commissions at the May 1986 Commencement as a part of the Institute's unique two-year commissioned program.

Walker to give program

County Extension Agent, Louise Walker, will present a program for the Hereford Senior Citizens at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at the center.

During the program, entitled "Christmas in September", Walker will be demonstrating some ideas for crafts and cooking. She will also discuss organizing a home extension club for senior citizens to meet at the center.

Anyone interested is welcome to attend. For more information call the center at 364-5681.

Hoss Cartwright, the character played by Dan Blocker on the long-running TV western series, "Bonanza," was christened Eric. Hoss is a variation of a Norwegian word for good luck.

LAE members meet for brunch in home

Members of La Afflatus Estudio Club met Tuesday morning for a brunch and business meeting in the home of Lydia Hopson.

The yearbook committee chairman, Jennie B. Terrell, presented a review of the new programs for the coming year. The study will concern current social issues.

Della Stagner will talk of health care for the next program. Hostesses will include Bea Hutson and Lola Jewell.

The figure is a 14 percent increase in quantity from the 25.8 million bottles imported in 1983, and a 28 percent increase in dollar value.

Great Britain had been the No. 1 cognac market until 1980, and continues in second place, importing 14.9 million bottles in 1984.

Roll call was answered by 'interesting summer happenings' by those present.

Members of the executive board served as hostesses to Opal Elliston, Eva Gilliland, Treasa Hale, Alberta Higgins, Lucille Hughes, Allyne Johnson, Alene Montgomery, Pet Ott and Mary Williamson.

AREA RUGS

Area rugs used on smooth floors sometimes can be a more interesting treatment than the somewhat anonymous wall-to-wall look. It is not only more personal. It plays an architectural role as well by integrating or unifying a furniture grouping. It can separate a larger living area from the dining ell. It can visually alter the barnlike proportions of an overly large room. Area rugs can also supply the only powerful pattern in a room with plain fabrics. On the other hand, a fair amount of pattern may be preferred in upholstery and drapery fabrics. If so, the area rug then should be one solid color or, at most, have a simple border design.

As a complete design service, you can count on FINISHING TOUCHES for design assistance for your whole house. Floor plans and add-on custom designs, custom drapes, bedspreads and upholstery are several of the services we offer. Custom matting, framing and art works are also available. Call or stop in: located at 501 E. Park, 9-5 M-F and by appt. 364-8870.

Once available only in expensive custom designs, area rugs now are made in every fiber, texture, pattern and price range.

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on a minimum of 20 words. One day is 13 cents per word or $2.00 minimum. Rates below are for consecutive issues, no copy change, and apply to solid ad lines only.

TIMES	RATES	MIN.
1 day per word:	.13	2.00
2 days per word:	.22	4.40
3 days per word:	.31	6.20
4 days per word:	.40	8.00
5th day FREE

Add 9 cents per word for additional days: 10 days (2 free) is 11.20 minimum; 15 days (3 free) is 22.40; month 27.80.

Classified display rates apply for special captions, paragraphing, bold type or larger type, and ads not set with full lines. $2.00 per column inch, $2 a column inch for additional insertions, or $1.75 a column inch per month.

LEGALIS
 Advertising rates for legal notices are $3.50 per column inch for the first insertion and $3 per column inch for consecutive issues.

Deadlines for classified ads are 3 p.m. daily for the next day's edition; 3 p.m. Friday for Sunday's edition.

Cash is required on advertisements under $10.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in Classified Ads and legal notices. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. In case of errors not the fault of the advertiser, an additional insertion will be given.

The Newspaper BIBLE

A buck in the hand is worth more than a garage full of Junk.

COULD YOU SING FOR JOY...IN PRISON?

One day as we were going down to the place of prayer beside the river, we met a demon-possessed slave girl who was a fortune teller, and earned much money for her masters. She followed along behind us shouting, "These men are servants of God and they have come to tell you how to have your sins forgiven." This went on day after day until Paul, in great distress, turned and spoke to the demon within her. "I command you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her," he said. And instantly it left her.

Her masters' hopes of wealth were now shattered; they grabbed Paul and Silas and dragged them before the judges in the marketplace. "These Jews are corrupting our city," they shouted. "They are teaching the people to do things that are against the Roman laws."

A mob was quickly formed against Paul and Silas, and the judges ordered them stripped and beaten with wooden whips. Again and again the rods slashed down across their bared backs; and afterwards they were thrown into prison. The jailer was threatened with death if they escaped, so he took no chances, but put them into the inner dungeon and clamped their feet into the stocks.

Around midnight, as Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to the Lord -- and the other prisoners were listening -- suddenly there was a great earthquake; the prison was shaken to its foundations, all the doors flew open -- and the chains of every prisoner fell off!

The jailer awakened to see the prison doors wide open, and assuming the prisoners had escaped he drew his sword to kill himself. But Paul yelled to him, "Don't do it! We are all here!" Acts 16:16-28

Despite his 'young' age

Boat builder stays busy

By JIM KYLLE
The Baytown Sun
BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — The heydays of hydroplane boat racing crested here in the 1940s, 50s and 60s, thanks to some of the world's fastest drivers and one of the world's best boat builders.

The renowned boat builder was William C. "Bill" Morton.

At 86, Morton continues to stay busy in his workshop behind his Baytown home, and he enjoys looking back on the golden age of boat racing. Racing fans here recall that the combination of a Morton boat, a good outboard motor and a top driver in those days meant winning championships.

In fact, Morton built boats that won seven world championships in hydroplane racing and one world record in the straight-away boat class. He remembers many champions, including P.G. Stepleton, R.H. "Red" Pruett, Rolling Pruett, Adis Shepherd, Clayton Elmer and Freddy Palmer.

"I lost track of the number of state-champion boats I've built," he said.

One of the all-time great boat racers of the era, he adds, was Clayton Elmer of Highlands.

And when did Bill Morton start learning the art of building the fastest crafts of their time?

In 1910 — when he was 11. "A friend of mine and myself needed a boat to run trotlines with so I just built one," he said.

Morton has built all of his racing boats behind his house at 2515 Massey-Tompkins Road in a large tin-topped building which has housed his equipment for more than 40 years.

During Hurricane Alicia, a huge sycamore fell and smashed more than half the building.

Luckily, Morton's equipment was in the side of the building that was not damaged.

The first step in building a racing boat, he said, is to make a scale drawing. His goal was to build the real thing "within one 1,000th of an inch of perfection."

"That's what made my boats go just enough faster to be winners," he said.

"Yep, had to be as close as the thickness of a coat of paint before I was satisfied." Morton loved to see his boats win in the many races held near Baytown.

"We used to draw as many as 5,000 fans to Old River Terrace on the San Jacinto River to watch the best hydroplane racing anywhere in the state."

The boats were powered by mostly souped-up, 9-horsepower Mercury outboards that would run 13,000 at 14,000 revolutions per minute.

He sold a boat ready for the water in those days for about $500. The cost today would be at least $3,000.

Morton built the speedsters out of airplane-grade spruce and marine plywood.

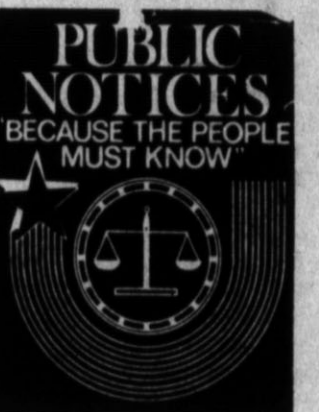

He has also helped build many larger boats, including a 45-foot shrimp boat made of long-leafed pine and Philippine mahogany.

Most men in their 80s would have long tired of the strenuous, exacting art of boat building.

Not Bill Morton. Right now he's building a 10½-foot duck boat for a neighbor friend.

"I'll have it ready before duck season," he said.
