6 Military government in Nigeria toppled, communications cut

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) - An army brigadier general announced on Nigeria Radio today that the military government of Maj. Gen. Muhammadu Buhari had been toppled because it abused power and failed to implement needed economic reforms.

The general, who was identified as Joshua Dogonyaro, declared a duskto-dawn curfew in Lagos and all state capitals. He said the country's air and sea ports would be closed until further notice.

Nigeria's land borders have been closed since shortly after the Dec. 31, 1983, coup in which Buhari ousted the civilian government of President Shehu Shagari.

British Telecom in London said all telephone servicé to Nigeria had been suspended. It was impossible to obtain independent verification of the radio report.

Dogonyaro said in a broadcast monitored in the nearby Ivory Coast that the Supreme Military Council was being replaced because "the wishes and aspirations of the people as expressed in the media is are been ignored."

The general, claiming to speak on behalf of the Nigerian military forces, said they had acted to replace the Buhari government because of "the slow pace of reform" in overcoming economic difficulties.

He said Buhari's government could no longer be allowed to blame all of Nigeria's problems on the all of Nigeria's problems on the previous civilian government. The broadcast said the Supreme Military Council, headed by Buhari, had been rendered ineffective because "a select few" were taking all the power.

Nigeria, once an island of prosperity in West Africa because of its large oil reserves, has been plunged into debt by falling oil prices. Its freewheeling economy also has been mired by mismanagement and corruption.

In June, Finance Minister Onaolapo Soleye estimated Nigeria's debts at about $10.3 billion.

After ousting Shagari, Buhari's government arrested hundreds of former public officials, businessmen and some members of their families, charging them with corruption and currency violations. Many have been tried by military courts, but visitors say corruption has not disappeared. Dogonyaro accused the Buhari government of doing little to improve the economy, which he said was suf-fering from daily increases in infla-tion. Under the 1985 budget, the government had pegged inflation at 30 percent.

There were no reports of violence, annual rainfall 80 to 110 inches of and the fate of Buhari and government officials was unknown. The development came slightly more than a month before the 25th anniversary of Nigerian independence from Britain.

Bangladeshi in REC 'crash course' to learn how to develope his country's energy program

By MARGARET BELL Staff Writer

"Nothing is more important to the development of my country than the continued growth of rural electrification," says A.F.M. Abdur Rasheed, who is in training at the Deaf Smith County Electric Cooperative. Arriv-ing here on August 5, Mr. Rasheed has spent the past three weeks in concentrating on learning as much as he can about rural electrification system of Bangladesh only four years old, these men are here under the auspices of the National Rural Electrification Association to take a "crash course" in every phase of operation of an electric co-op. Rasheed emphasizes that while the development of electrification in Bangladesh cannot be compared with the 50 years of growth here in Deaf Smith County, his country is making tremendous progress and s prioritized the growth of electrical energization to the top of the return whenever possible. His recommendation is that men coming from Bangladesh should have opportunity both to stay longer and to the least expensive source of power, as compared to wood, natural gas or petrol.

An obvious side effect of the development of utilities is that the entire economic strucure of the rural areas has been speeded toward improvement. At present, there are 13 rural electrification districts, but with strong government support, both at home and from the United States, the plans call for 33 districts to be functional by the year 1995, sermore than 68,000 villages.

As general manager of the Comilla Palli Bidyut Samity I (Comilla District Rural Electric Cooperative I) near Chandina in Bangladesh, Rasheed has been responsible for energizing the homes of 450 villages with electric power with a total of 15,500 consumers. "I hope that by the time I get home to Bangladesh," Rasheed laughingly adds, "our number of consumers will be at least 16.000."

Most of the elecric power produced for use in Bangladesh is generated by water of the Karnaphully River which comes down from the hills into a large reservoir on which the hydroelectric plant is located. In addition, some of the turbines in other parts of the country are turned by natural gas engines and a few by diesel, but water power is considered to be one of the major natural resources of the country. As a result of the readily available water power, electricity can be sold to the rural customers for only four cents per kilowatt hour, making it possible for almost the entire population to afford the basic cost. Some homes in some villages still lack wiring, but efforts are being made to supply every rural home with electric lights, at least, Rasheed says.

An interesting aspect of the general topography of Bangladesh is that most of the land near the coast is a low plain cut by the Ganges and Brahmaputra Rivers and their downpour recorded in a typical year. A problem for the coastal areas is the occurrence of tidal waves during the hurricane season with the 10 to 12 foot walls of water sometimes sweeping as far inland as four or five miles. but sometimes devastating the coun-

University education is available to those who complete the lower level course of study, and Rasheed is such a university graduate who speaks six languages. He explains that Bengali and English receive equal attention in the schooling process, and anyone considered literate can use both languages with ease. As a former member of the British empire, Bangladesh considers a knowledge of English to be not only desirable but necessary to

The meeting, scheduled at 7 p.m. in the A&B Conference Room in the downtown Amarillo Public Library, is open to the public, according to George Drain, president of STAND of Amarillo.

Frishman will review problems involved with the Nuclear Waste Policy Act and will update information on action being taken by states and regions, both official bodies and citizens groups, to persuade the Department of Energy to reassess its

White oil wells might be scam

State*

AUSTIN (AP) - Companies supporting a state order to retest "white oil" wells in the Panhandle Field claim the wells as counterfeit and say they are part of a scam in the oil and gas industry

The Railroad Commission in May adopted a staff recommendation to test wells equipped with refrigeration units to see if they can qualify as oil wells.

Numerous white oil operators sued in state district court to overturn the commission order.

They submitted a brief earlier this month claiming they had invested $250 million in the 1.5 million-acre Panhandle Field as a result of commission "actions and inactions" and are entitled to protection from the order that could shut down their wells.

The trial is set for Sept. 6, and Phillips Petroleum Co. and others have responded to white oil operators with their brief to State District Judge Harley Clark Jr. They are aligned with the commission, which is represented by the state attorney general.

Phillips contends that some operators are using "LTX" units to chill vapors to as low as minus 20 degrees to produce a water-whiteliquid that the operators call crude oil, although the liquid "bears no resemblance to Panhandle Field crude oil."

"This "scam" was started in 1978 by TUCO, Inc., Phillips alleges, but "was not copied by other operators until some time later."

College students trade viruses

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - With the college fall semester around the corner, a Texas A&M University researcher says students may increase their chances of catching colds by trading viruses among themselves.

Dr. John Quarles said the phenomenon is probably common on campuses across the country.

"The average North American catches five or six colds a year. Anytime you bring a large and diverse number of people together quickly, they will simply swap all sorts of viruses," Quarles said Monday.

Quarles, who coordinates a continuous Texas A&M study on viral respiratory disesases, said the number of students reporting to the university's health clinic increases dramatically the first two weeks of fall classes

Last year, the number of Texas A&M students reporting to the campus clinic with cold-like symptoms at the beginning of the school year was about 10 times the number of cases the rest of the year.

More than 7,500 Texas A&M students came to the clinic in the 1984-85 school year complaining of respiratory diseases other than flu, which accounted for another 3,500 cases, he said.

The cold is hard for scientists to study, Quarles said, because no other animal catches all of the varieties of colds that humans are exposed to, and the illness cannot be exactly duplicated in animal subjects.

Young peace advocate killed

MANCHESTER, Maine (AP) -Samantha Smith, the 13-year-old advocate of world peace and aspiring TV actress who died in a plane crash, was a friendly, normal youngster who kept her celebrity in perspective, say schoolmates and friends.

"She was such a sweetheart. You couldn't ask for a nicer person," Sandra Small-Hughes, who had been Samantha's science teacher, said Monday. Other students "really either liked her or were in awe of her."

"She was a really nice person - a great friend," said Elizabeth Warren of Readfield, who shared a locker with Samantha at Maranacook Community School. "She didn't act like she was different from us, she acted the same as everybody else did."

But Samantha was different enough to ponder superpower relations at the age of 10 and write to then-Soviet leader Yuri Andropov about world peace. By 13, she had visited the Soviet Union, earned an international reputation as an ambassador for peace and embarked upon a career as a TV actress.

In her letter, written in the fall of 1982, Samantha asked Andropov, do you want to conquer the whole world, or at least our country?"

With only eight doctors for each 100,000 persons of the population, such a role of nurse-friend gains added significance. Roy Graham, Capitol architect, Monday said that once the scaffolding is in place, metallurgists, architects and other experts will inspect the figure and its fastenings.

The statue was installed on the Capitol dome in 1888. About 11/2 years ago, painting contractors working on the building called attention to cracks in two areas of the figure and rust stains which experts said may indicate corrosion of the interior support.

Graham said Washington University Technology Associates Inc., a subsidiary of Washington University at St. Louis, Mo., would perform an inspection of the statue once the scaffolding is in place.

When inspections and various tests are completed, Graham said, it will be possible to determine what repairs are necessary.

In the best case, the figure may need only small repair work and reinforcement, he said. At the worst, the statue may have to be removed, treated as an artifact and displayed indoors while a duplicate made of a more durable material is mounted atop the dome

Pentagon ruffles house feathers

WASHINGTON (AP) - Eight months after it won a bidding war, a Washington state firm has finally received an Air Force contract because of a decision by Pentagon leaders to defy a House commit-

The decision to award an initial $3.8 million contract for a new bomb-loading forklift to Pacific Car and Foundry Inc. was finalized last week. The Air Force acted at the direction of Deputy Defense Secretary William H. Taft IV by using other funds within its budget, effectively bypassing a "hold" placed on the transfer of funds from another account imposed by the House Armed Services Committee.

The move prompted three Maryland lawmakers last Friday to protest the "extraordinary action" to Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and to demand a probe by the General Accounting Office. But Pentagon officials maintained they did nothing wrong and that the Marylanders simply were trying to protect a local firm that lost out in the bidding.

"To have done otherwise would have sent all the wrong signals to industry," said one high-level Pentagon official who spoke only on condition of anonymity. "Congress told us to stage a competition, and you can't just ignore the results."

The unusual dispute over what in Pentagon terms is a minor contract began last fall, when Congress agreed the Air Force should rely on competition to select the maker of a special forklift to load bombs and cruise missiles onto the new B-1 bomber.

That approach had been recommended by the Air Force because of problems it encountered with a similar Strategic Weapons Loader developed and produced by the AAI Corp. of Cockeysville, Md., for use in loading B-52 bombers.

Last December, the Air Force announced it had selected Pacific Car of Renton, Wash., over AAI because Pacific's bid was substantially cheaper — $27.7 million for 90 of the vehicles compared with $39.9 million for those of AAI. But when the Air Force asked permission to transfer $3.8 million from one account to another to award the contract, the House committee balked.

Committee officials said they weren't convinced that developing a new loader really would be cheaper than buying an improved model made by AAI. The committee, which includes three members from Maryland and none from Washington, finally voted on the matter in May, refusing to sanction the transfer of funds.

That prompted Sen. Slade Gorton, a Washington Republican, to write a letter of protest to Taft. After reviewing the matter, Taft agreed the contract should go to the winner of the competition. On Aug. 5, he directed Assistant Air Force Secretary Thomas E. Cooper to award the contract to Pacific Car, and the contract was finaling

At this time we would like to extend a special thanks to the following people: To Arrowhead Mills for their financial support, and to Frank Ford for doing an excellent job with the awards ceremony. To Earl Yoccum the manager of McDonalds for donating the paper cups for the aid stations, and to John Fuston with the U.S. Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service for accurately measuring the course. To Hamby's Rental and Budget Fireworks for donating the paint and labor for the warning signs which were posted at the busy intersections along the course. To Forrest McDowell owner of Forrest Lumber for donating the materials for these signs, and to the Hereford Brand and especially Gary Christensen, sports editor for all the coverage and publicity we received for the event.

We would also like to thank all the individuals who helped with registration, split times, aid stations, and those who tabulated all the results for the race. All these people made the event work, and exemplified the Y's motto of "Partners in the People Business."

Sincerely yours, Weldon Knabe General Director

Lifestyles

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 29, unmarried and work for a high-tech firm. Through colleagues at the office I became an adviser to a co-ed group, ages 14-18. They are terrific kids.

Two months ago, I accompanied 14 of them on a weekend trip. We stayed in an inexpensive motel. The other couple that was supposed to chaperone had to cancel at the last minute. I hated to disappoint the kids so I took them alone. They behaved beautifully. The motel manager even complimented them when we left.

Last week one of the girls who went on the trip came to speak to me. She was obviously troubled. Apparently two of the motel rooms adjoined. Her room (three girls) connected with one shared by four guys. One of her roommates suggested they all play a "strip" game that ended with one guy totally naked and most of them less than fully clothed. They then coerced one of the other guys into taking a shower while the girls watched.

She was terrified that someone would find out that it would get back to her parents. I told her what they did was grossly stupid, very disappointing, and not "bad." And she should forget about it with the promise never to do anything like that again.

Driving home that night I got the shakes. What if they had been caught? What if her parents find out? I was the only adult present. Could I be criminally guilty of anything? Please hurry your answer .- JUST CALL ME "MIKE"

DEAR MIKE: I can't see how you

The 4-H Clubs of Deaf Smith County would like to thank the following for their contribution in helping make the 4-H function at the Jubilee possible.

Cecil Oglesby of Oglesby Equipment furnished the tractor to pull the 4-H float with; Sonny Evers of Gebo's for panels used at the children's barnyard; Arrowhead Mills, Taylor Food Mart, Hereford

Grain Corp. and Bruce Carr for their contribution to the 4-H buggy ride; and all the parents who helped with the 4-H functions.

Also, thanks to J.W. McMorries, Mark Ebling for cow and calf at barnyard; Charles Myers for bull; Marilyn Erlandson for horse; Chris Urbanczyk for steer; Kristi and Cody Powell for baby calf; Kristie Milton for sheep; and Jennifer Scott for rabbits and ducks. A big thanks to all the people who visited and help support the 4-H'er's efforts and projects.

South Plains fair and state fair entries are due in the office Thursday. Any 4-H'er who needs help in securing a lamb or hog project for next springs show please let us know.

Parents of 4-H'ers and leaders, don't forget about the Sept. 3 Parent Leaders meeting at 7 p.m. at the ter. It is important you be there.

Next time, don't offer to chaperone 14 kids without help. Also, check the room arrangements and make sure the connecting doors are locked. And one more suggestion: It's not a bad idea to look in on the little darlings once during the night to make sure everybody is where he ought to be.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was recently asked to serve as a bridesmaid. I went to school with "Mary" but we were never close friends. I was quite surprised to receive such an honor.

Yesterday Mary called to say the dress would cost $110, the shoes to match are $30 and the headpiece is $10.

The last two weddings I have been asked to participate in were also costly. I paid $130 for the dress and shoes for one wedding and although the other bride paid for the dress, I had to buy shoes and fly to Ohio at my own expense. She did, however, pay for my hotel accommodations. How do I tell this person that I just cannot afford the honor of being in her wedding without offending her?-HONOR POOR IN INDIANA

DEAR IN: Tell her just like you told me. And in the future don't agree to serve as a bridesmaid before you know all the details and have thought it over carefully.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Datings Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. ## Catholic Family Service begins housing program of Catholic Family Service of Amarillo, announced today that the agency has been awarded a $9,908 grant by the Texas Department on Aging to assist in the establishment of a shared housing program focusing on the needs of people in Amarillo 55 years of age and older.

Shared housing programs enable people to save money on rent and living expenses by sharing a home with one or more other persons. Features that most such arrangements have in. common are shared living areas and kitchens and private bedrooms. Basic household chores are divided up among tenants.

Because shared housing allows more people to share a living space, rents are greatly reduced.

Watson called shared housing an attractive option for many seniors, noting that: "This type of program is very effective in that it addresses two major needs of the elderlyhousing costs and social contacts. Many times, housemates in these programs find that they not only get a break on their rent, but a new circle of friends as well."

Shared housing is a concept that has its roots in the boarding houses that were common in the pre-World War II years. The Texas Department on Aging has promoted a revival of the idea in recent years, and has now begun to fund projects around the tional Shared Housing Resource Center of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The Resource Center is funded by the Levi Strauss Foundation.

The Gulf and Western Foundation is also active in funding and promoting shared housing in Texas.

"Shared housing has too much going for it to be ignored in a time when housing costs - including insurance, taxes, and utilities - are going through the ceiling for everyone, and especially for the elderly," Department on Aging Specialist Alva Finck said. "We' re pleased to be able to help bring this practical, moneysaving program to Amarillo."

Many shared housing programs pair elderly clients with other people their age, either in professionally matched housemate arrangements or in family-style group residences with up to 14 seniors. The program to be established in Amarillo will be the counselor-matched type.

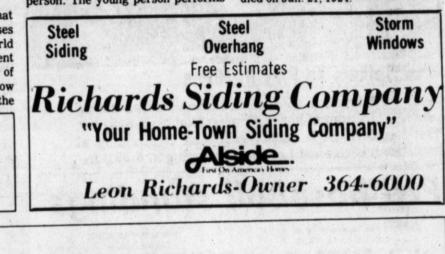

Another recent trend is to pair a younger tenant (often a college student or single parent) with an older person. The young person performs Larry Watson, executive director state in cooperation with the Na- household chores and basic upkeep in exchange for free or reduced rent. Programs can be developed to suit people with a wide variety of physical capacities. This often makes shared housing a viable alternative to nursing homes and personal care homes.

Watson further states: "Our hope is that Project: HOMESHARE (the CFS shared housing program) will allow many individuals to both continue living in their own homes, and to increaase their capacity to continue to participate in the communities of which they have been a part for many years."

Catholic Family service of Amarillo is a multi-service social work agency which has served the Amarillo and Panhandle region for fifty-three years. Its ten program divisions will serve over 5500 families, representing over 18,000 individuals this year. Inquiries concerning Project: HOMESHARE, the CFS shared housing project, may be made by calling the agency at 376-4571.

Not all nodules are cancerous

DEAR DR. GOTT - What causes nodules in the lungs and what can be done about them?

DEAR READER - Lung nodules can reflect diseases ranging from simple scarring to malignancy, therefore, treatment depends on the cause. When doctors refer to nodules in the lungs, they usually are talking about round X-ray shadows. Some shadows which seem to be deep in the chest are not in lung tissue at all; for example, a man's nipple may produce a faint round spot on a chest X-ray. This circular shadow may look for all the world like a malignant density, or "coin lesion." Nipple shadows sometimes frustrate radiologists who have to repeat the chest X-ray, using spe-cial lead nipple markers for identification

Real lung nodules consist of tissue of a different, denser material than the lung itself. Nodules ordinarily are made up of water pockets, inflamed lymph glands, tumor cells or scars from a previous infection. Depending on the location of a nodule, its X-ray appearance and its size, specialists can make educated guesses about what is causing it. However, no one can be absolutely certain until the nodule has been biopsied or removed for examination under a microscope.

All lung tumors produce nodules, but all nodules are not caused by lung cancer. Nonetheless, malignancy is of utmost concern in evaluating lung shadows. Cancers elsewhere in the body tend to spread (metastasize) to the lungs, so doctors worry that a nodule may be formed of cancer cells from organs other than the lungs. Primary lung cancer is increasingly common in women, probably because they smoke more than they once did. I think that, in general, doctors expect a pulmonary nodule to be malignant. Fortunately, we may be proved wrong. Inflammatory arthritis, unu-sual forms of pneumonia, heart fail-ure and chronic lymph-node infection are potentially curable causes of lung

I cannot review all of the aspects of this subject here, but these are the this subject here, but they nodules are major points: All lung nodules are abnormal; some are less serious than others; cancer is at the top of the list; all nodules have to be investigated; microscopic diagnosis is ordinarily necessary; and the causes of most lung shadows can be treated, and often cured.

4-H Trail Ride - slated for Sept. 7 at the Greg Walker Ranch - anyone interested is urged to participate. You do not have to be a 4-H'er to ride. For more information call the extension office.

The 4-H Horse Club reported that 20 free buggy rides were given away to Big Brother-Big Sister kids and all seemed to enjoy themselves.

The Progress Showmanship clinic was held this past Saturday outside the Little Bull Barn. Rick Vestal of Lamesa was the judge and instructor for the clinic which was beneficial to 4'H'ers showmanship techniques and some improvement factors for individual projects were also discussed. Results of the clinic will be printed later.

Shoots 141 for two-round tournament

Salinas wins fifth city golf championship

James Salinas fired five birdies over the final nine holes to pull away and capture his fifth Men's City Golf Championship title at Pitman Municipal Golf Course Sunday.

Salinas was the first-round leader Saturday with an even-par 71, then closed with a 70 and a 141 total Sunday. Tom Simons took the lead through the first nine Sunday, but Salinas' birdie streak through No. 16 left him with a four-shot advantage over Simons and Mike Fields.

Salinas lost two shots with a double bogey on the 17th, and Fields chipped in for a birdie on the 18th to give him the runner-up spot at 143. Fields had the low score Sunday with a twounder 69. Simons was third with a 144 and Greg Robinson was fourth at 147. The city title was Salinas' fifth in

The city tourney drew 43 golfers and was divided into the championship and two other flights. Gene Coulter won the first flight and Speedy Nieman captured the second flight.

Prizes this year went to the top three low gross and low net scores in each flight. Stacy Bixler won the low net in the championship flight as his 10 handicap left him with a 128 score. Simons took the second low net with a 130, while Kenny Hagar and Jim Bullard tied for third at 131. Greg Robinson moved into third place on low gross since Simons took the low net prize.

In the first flight, Steve Nieman and Shorty Roark tied for second behind Coulter, who won with a 155. They tied at 158, along with George Ochs, and Robert Strange was next at 161. Ochs too the third prize of low net, however, to leave Nieman and

Million-dollar salaries in '70s, '80s

Professional sports are in 'Green Age'

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

If the 1920s were the "Golden Age" of sports, the 1970s and 1980s will be remembered as the "Green Age." the dawning of million-dollar contracts for athletes and multimilliondollar pricetags for franchises.

"When I started out in 1962, if a guy was making $15,000, that was a lot. They had no leverage," said lawyer and player agent Bob Woolf.

Then new leagues - the American Basketball Association, the World Hockey Association - started springing up.

"That's when the insanity started," Woolf said. "Nothing wakes people up more than competitive bidding. Teams that wouldn't have given a player a $5,000 raise were giving him $50,000 just to keep him. Derek Sanderson had signed for three years with the Boston Bruins (of the National Hockey League) for $10,000, $12,000 and $14,000. From there he went to close to $500,000 with the (WHA's) Philadelphia Blazers."

Then big money started coming from television.

Starting in 1978, the NFL got $640 million over four years from ABC, CBS and NBC; the current contract will pay more than three times as much, $2.1 billion over five years.

Baseball's television rights went from $250 million for the old fiveyear contract to $1.1 billion for the current six-year package.

The NBA has just completed fouryear contracts that brought in $121 million from CBS and cable systems, up from $74 million the preceding four years.

"That, along with changing the laws like the reserve clause, really exploded everything," Woolf said.

In the past decade, according to various league and union sources, $70,000 to $332,000 in the NBA, from $33,000 to $157,819 in the NFL and from $40,839 to $329,408 in major league baseball - increases of 104 percent to 706 percent.

At the same time, the average annual wage of the non-government worker in the American labor force has risen 80 percent, from $8,503 to $15,290, and the consumer price index has increased 93 percent.

The 1980s brought $1 million a year for such stars as Abdul-Jabbar and baseball's Mike Schmidt, Dave Winfield and Ron Guidry. They were just catching up to soccer, which gave Pele an estimated $4.5 million for three years starting in 1975.

Now the upper bracket starts at $2 million a year - Abdul-Jabbar and Larry Bird in basketball; Schmidt, Jim Rice and Ozzie Smith in baseball.

Can $3 million be far behind? College Player of the Year Pat Ewing's opening bid to the NBA New York Knicks this summer was $30 million over 10 years.

While salaries escalate, franchises sell for record prices, cities beg for expansion teams and millionaire businessmen finance new leagues.

When New Orleans was granted a National Basketball Association franchise for the 1974-75 season, it cost $6.15 million. In the past year, the Denver and Milwaukee franchises went for $20 million apiece.

In 1975, baseball's Chicago White Sox changed hands for $10 million. Last year the Minnesota Twins were bought by Carl Pohlad for $47 million, the Detroit Tigers by Tom Monaghan for more than $50 million.

The USFL shattered tradition by luring Herschel Walker, an undergraduate, out of college in 1983 with the sport's then-richest contract, worth $5 million over three the average salary has risen from years. A year later, Steve Young

The Express, however, ran out of money and was taken over by the league, and the USFL began ridding. itself of other big contracts.

The NFL's newest owner, Norman Braman of the Philadelphia Eagles. refused to give signing bonuses, renegotiate contracts or honor verbal promises made by the previous ownership.

"I think the fans and public have had enough," Braman said of the salary spiral. "Where does it end?"

The holiday event includes bridge and gin tournaments and a Saturday reception, Sunday buffet and Monday brunch for all participants. Golf merchandise certificates are awarded to the top three teams in each flight.

Tee-off times are 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, 9:30 a.m. on Sunday and 11 a.m. on Monday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course

Martin, fourth flight A "freeze out" derby will be played Sunday at 4 p.m. It will pair the 10 low scorers and the 10 high scorers (1 with 20, 2 with 19, etc.) and the 10 teams will start on No. 1. The high score eliminates one or more teams on each hole until one team is remaining as the champion.

It's INTEREST FREE until the 1986 use-season

Upgrade your harvest operation with a new or used combine right off our lot, and pay no interest until you head to the field for harvest in 1986.

That's right, you can get:

· Any new Titan or Titan II combine with attachments

- · Any used combine with attachments and get interestfree* financing until next use-season

The John Deere finance waiver may actually give you an effective A.P.R. lower than the competition's "low rate" financing.

And John Deere is passing along tremendous inventory reduction incentives to give you Titan power for less money. You can even buy a new John Deere Titan or Titan II combine and attachments and take a discount worth up to thousands of dollars in lieu of waiver. Just take a look:

Texas Most Wanted Fugitive

TEXARKANA, Texas - Kenneth Wayne McKelvey obviously knows how to capitalize on a stroke of good fortune.

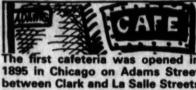

HENL , BR HELLING

Since he was mistakenly released from the Bowie County jail more than a year ago, McKelvey has avoided all law enforcement efforts to recapture him.

This week McKelvey has been added to the Texas Most Wanted List. A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to his capture.

McKelvey is wanted on a warrant charging him with the Aggravated Robbery of the Cotton Belt Credit Union in Texarkana.

Police reports indicate that a black male armed with a small caliber handgun robbed the credit union on May 5, 1983, then fled in a dirty Ford or Chevrolet with Texas license lates

On June 13, 1983, Texarkana Crime Stoppers received a tip identifying two suspects in the robbery. One of the suspects, R.T. Barlow, was arrested at the Greyhound bus depot in Texarkana on some burglary warrants.

In a statement to the Texarkana Police Department, Barlow identified Kenneth Wayne McKelvey as his associate in the robbery of the credit union.

On June 20, 1983, a warrant was issued for McKelvey's arrest, charging him with Aggravated Robbery. A year later, McKelvey was finally apprehended by the Dallas Police Department on two counts of credit card abuse. Investigators say these charges were later dropped and McKelvey was transported to the Bowie County jail by sheriff's deputies, who had burglary charges pending against him.

But on July 5, 1984, McKelvey was released from the Bowie County jail because of a paperwork mixup. He has not been seen since by law enforcement authorities.

McKelvey is described as a black of Public Safety.

male, 27 years of age, 6-1, 180 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes.

Anyone with information concerning his possible whereabouts is asked to call Texas Crime Stoppers tollfree at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program. In all cases, callers donot have to reveal their identities.

Texas Most Wanted is a cooperative program between Texas Crime Stoppers and the Department

Certificates available

America's grandparents have contributed decades of hard work, brainpower and love to our society. Now, with the observation of National Grandparents Day, their contributions are being recognized.

The Texas Department on Aging, in conjunction with the national observation of this holiday on Sept. 8, is providing free certificates of recognition to deserving grandparents all over the state.

These certificates, which are suitable for framing, are signed by Texas Governor Mark White and O.P. (Bob) Bobbitt, the Executive Director of the Texas Department on Aging:

Churches, schools, community organizations, and senior centers can all use the certificates, which are inscribed with the words "An Outstanding Grandparent," in ceremonies honoring senior citizens in local groups.

Outstanding Grandparent certificates can be ordered only through the Texas Department on Aging (write to P.O. Box 12786 Capitol Station, Austin, Tx. 78711 or call toll-free 1-800-252-9240).
