

Senate Okays Biggest Tax Hike in History

By JIM LUTHER Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate early today approved legislation containing the largest tax increase in history — $99 billion over the next three years to help lift the nation out of the worst recession since World War II. The bill would boost taxes on cigarettes, telephone service and families with large medical expenses; impose a 10-percent withholding tax on interest and dividends; and take back more than one-third of the record tax cut that Congress voted for business last year. Approved by a 50-47 vote at the end of a 20-hour session, the measure also would cut about $17.5 billion over the next three years from federal spending for Medicaid, Medicare and aid to the needy.

The tax increase, which carries President Reagan's endorsement, is making its way through Congress less than one year after the lawmakers and the administration agreed on the largest tax cut in history. The Senate-passed bill keeps intact Reagan's three-year, across-the-board personal tax cut, although it takes back a big part of the 1981 business reduction. The administration and its backers say this year's tax increase and spending cuts will bolster the sagging economy by reducing the government's borrowing and squeezing down interest rates.

The House Ways and Means Committee expects to write its version of a tax increase next week, and early indications are that the panel will accept much of what is in the Senate bill. But leader said there is no assurance the Democratic-run House will pass any tax increase in this election year. The Senate bill would raise the eight-cent federal cigarette tax to 16 cents a pack for three years; set the 1-percent tax on telephone service at 2 percent in 1983, 3 percent in 1984 and 2 percent in 1986 and later; allow deduction of medical expenses only to the extent they exceed 7 percent of income (the threshold now is 3 percent); permit deduction of only $100 (rather than the current $150) of medical insurance costs without regard to the threshold; and restrict the deduction for uninsured casualty losses only to those exceeding 10 percent of income. High-income professionals would lose part of the tax advantage they now enjoy from large tax-deferred retirement plans. Upper-bracket investors would face a toughened minimum tax, designed to assure that they pay some tax despite big deductions.

Inflation Hike Only 'Brief'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation, boosted sharply in May by rising energy costs, likely will take another spin near double-digits before letting up later in the year, economists say.

Yet the analysts said it was unlikely consumer prices would heat up to the sizzling levels of previous years.

"I don't think this is a re-emergence of double-digit inflation" for the year, said Edward Yardeni, chief economist for the E.F. Hutton & Co. brokerage house, in advance of today's release of June figures for the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index.

Thomas Thomson, chief economist for San Francisco's Crocker National Bank, said he did not expect to see a change in the "downward trend in the basic rate of inflation."

"Given the weakness of the economy," he said, "it's very unlikely we'll see an acceleration."

Yardeni and Thomson said the Consumer Price Index could climb as much as a seasonally adjusted 1 percent in June. That would match May's 1 percent increase, or 12 percent at an annual rate.

Donald Ratajczak, forecaster at Georgia State University, expected a 0.7 percent increase.

Consumer prices rose a tiny 0.2 percent in April after falling 0.3 percent in March, the Labor Department reported. May's 1 percent increase was the sharpest since September.

Even with the gain, inflation was advancing at a modest annual rate of 3.5 percent in the first five months of the year, officials said.

That was well under the 8.9 percent of last year and 12.4

percent in 1980. Economists are expecting inflation for all of this year to run in the range of 5 percent to 7 percent.

The annual rate reported by the Labor Department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public. The stubborn recession and worldwide oil surplus have been largely responsible for the better inflation picture so far this year, analysts say.

But with the recent tightening of the administration's options were limited on how to deal with France's announcement. He added that U.S.-French relations are at their lowest point since Reagan took office 18 months ago.

France ordered Alsthom-Atlantique, a French manufacturer, go ahead with deliveries to Moscow of pipeline rotors developed by the General Electric Co. The rotor blades will be used in compressors to drive gas through the pipeline stretching from Siberia to Western Europe.

Reagan Seeks Leverage

French Okay Sale to Russians

ST. LOUIS (AP) — President Reagan, faced with the most serious problem in U.S.-French relations since he took office, is looking for legal leverage to prevent a French company from selling U.S.-licensed equipment to the Soviet Union for a gas pipeline.

Ignoring Reagan's ban on the sale of U.S. technology to the Soviets, France on Thursday ordered French companies to honor contracts with Moscow to provide machinery for the natural gas pipeline.

An administration official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the only thing that would prompt the president to relax his opposition to Western aid for the pipeline would be an unexpected change in Soviet activities in Poland, Afghanistan and elsewhere.

Reagan, in his first public comment on France's decision, told a television interviewer Thursday that the help the allies are providing for the pipeline would pump $10 billion to $12 billion a year "in cold, hard cash" into the hard-pressed Soviet economy.

The president was in St. Louis to address a U.S. Olympic Committee fund-raising dinner. Before the dinner, he met his eldest son, Michael, who arrived in the city several hours earlier after a record-setting 25-hour 8-minute speedboat trip up the Mississippi River from New Orleans.

Michael Reagan's exploit was part of a promotional effort for the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The president also spoke in the afternoon to nearly 1,000 black youngsters in the new gymnasium of a boys' club.

Reagan, who returns to Washington today, also revealed to a television interview panel here that Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council on Economic Advisers, had resigned.

Reagan Averts Second National Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national rail strike has been averted for the second time in two weeks through the direct intervention of President Reagan, who has imposed a 60-day cooling-off period.

The president's action Thursday halted threatened selective strikes today against several railroads by the United Transportation Union, which represents 85,000 railroad employees.

Although the union had said it would strike selectively, the industry had said if any line was struck all railroads would shut down operations.

Reagan invoked provisions of the Railway Labor Act, calling for establishment of an emergency board to investigate and make recommendations on the dispute over the next 30 days. That would be followed by another 30 days of talks before a strike could be called.

The president took the same action on July 8 to block a threatened strike by the 40,000-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

In both cases, the White House said a strike would threaten interstate commerce, "deprive a section of the country of essential transportation service" and cause sharp increases in unemployment.

Analysts have said a nationwide rail strike could cost the economy $50 million a day because of interruptions in the shipment of raw materials and some finished goods.

A White House statement said a strike "would have severe impact on movement of Department of Defense (See RAIL, Page 2)

Farewell Reception

Students, parents, faculty, and friends expressed appreciation and best wishes to Randy and Cindy Vaughn and Bill Huff at a reception sponsored by the Hereford High Band and Orchestra Booster Club last night at the Flame Room. Vaughn, left, who has directed the HHS honors and concert bands and has worked with the local junior highs since coming to Hereford in 1974, has accepted a position with Strack School at Klein. Mrs. Vaughn, right, has worked with the HHS flag corps. Huff, second from right, has been in Hereford six years and has directed the HHS orchestra, symphonic band, and served as assistant band director. He has accepted a position as orchestra director at Martin High School in Arlington.

Simpson Says Plan Now For Future Revenue Loss

State Rep. Bob Simpson warned today that although the problem is about 10 years away, Texas needs to start planning now for when oil and gas tax revenues evaporate. Simpson, vying for the District 86 seat, was in Hereford to meet with supporters planning a public meeting for next month. Before redistricting, Simpson represented Carson, Randall and a portion of Potter Counties.

During his eight year tenure in the Texas legislature, Simpson said he has had a commitment to water problems, tax issues, the insurance of a strong state economy and recognition of education as a priority of state service.

"I am running for reelection because I believe the Panhandle area needs leadership experience," he said. "I think this is very important since Billy Clayton (Speaker of the House) won't be running for re-election."

Simpson said the need for new taxes is not currently pertinent but would be an issue by 1990 when resources of oil and gas are drained.

"I have been talking about this ever since I have been in office. It is something that concerns me and I hope that we'll be able to accomplish something in the next session to plan ahead now and put surplus (tax revenues) into a reserve fund," he said.

Simpson said he feels federal courts "went overboard" in requiring bilingual education for grades K-12 and suggested a limit of up to sixth grade for teaching English as a second language.

"I think it is the responsibility of the state for a child who cannot speak English, to give the child the opportunity to learn and during the time he can't speak English teachers should be provided to teach other subjects," he noted. "I think that responsibility ends at some point ... but the bilingual law is a good law to address the problem. His personal view, (See SIMPSON, Page 2)

Mexico Warns American Drivers

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The U.S. government may warn Americans to stay off Mexico's main West Coast highway because of the violent deaths of two Americans and the disappearance of a third along the route last month, sources close to the U.S. Embassy report.

The sources said embassy officials are considering recommending that the State Department renew the advisory it issued in 1976 against travel on Highway 15, which runs for 1,400 miles from Nogales, on the Arizona border, to Guadalajara and on to Mexico City, after a number of Americans were killed, mugged or harassed. An estimated 30,000 people a year from the United States, most of them Americans, travel on the highway, which runs through a number of communities where the drug traffic and other crime flourish.

Reporters looking into the mysterious disappearance on Highway 15 of University of Colorado professor Nicholas W. Schrock were told Thursday that two other Americans died violent deaths along the route last month.

Daredevil Promotes Himself, Charities

DALLAS (AP) — A stock clerk, inspired by movies and television shows, said his four-hour perch on a 560-foot-tall tower is only step one in his effort to become a modern-day superhero for charity.

Russell Reimer, calling himself "The Dallas Phantom," sat on a metal pipe along the outer wall of Reunion Tower, sailing paper airplanes to the hundreds of people gathered below.

The paper missiles carried messages urging Dallasites to be more charitable to crippled children and the poor.

"I like to live a life of adventure. I don't like to do routine things or boring things. I like to live a life that's exciting," Reimer, 26, said after he clambered down into the grasp of waiting policemen.

He was booked on a misdemeanor charge of criminal trespass, arraigned before a municipal judge and released on $200 bond.

"I have a few other things I plan to do to bring attention to myself and the ideas I have," said Reimer. "But I won't step on the other side of the law again."

Reimer wore a white jump suit with climbing harness, a black motorcycle helmet with a dark visor, black velvet cape, black gloves and tall, black boots.

"The costume is for comic relief," he said. "It is to identify myself with what I am trying to accomplish. If I did it in ordinary plain clothes, I wouldn't attract too much notice."

Reimer told The Associated Press that he had only 50 cents of the $1.50 admission fee to ride an elevator to the observation deck, but got $1 from an employee of United Press International. Reimer said he told the news service he was going to climb down the tower and that a UPI reporter and photographer rode with him to the observation deck.

The Dallas Morning News in its Friday editions quoted UPI Dallas bureau manager Frank Cook as saying that UPI's photo department got a tip Wednesday night that the stunt would take place Thursday.

"This has not been one of our more sterling days. UPI loaned the guy a dollar to go to the top, and I'm embarrassed (See DAREDEVIL, Page 2)

Two Men Shot And Killed After Traffic Dispute

COMBINE, Texas (AP) — Two men shot and killed each other after one nearly ran the other's car off the road when trying to pass on a highway near this Central Texas town, sheriff's officials said.

Kaufman County Sheriff Roy Brockway identified the dead as Joe Thomas Timmons, 38, of Warsaw, and Samuel James Gilgros, 39, of Duncanville.

Both men were shot in the head Thursday evening during a shoot-out with .38-caliber revolvers, he said.

Brockway said Timmons apparently fired three shots and Gilgros fired two.

Timmons' wife, Jacquie Lou, who was in the car with her husband, said neither driver shouted or made gestures at the other, Brockway said. Mrs. Timmons said Gilgros began tailgating their car, passed them, slowed down and then nearly ran them off the road when Timmons tried to pass.

Other motorists behind Gilgros and Timmons jammed on their brakes after they heard the shots and saw both cars veer off opposite sides of the highway, officials said.

Timmons' car careened down an embankment and landed with its front wheels in a small lake.

Mrs. Timmons and Timmons' mother, Kathryn, escaped serious injury, though both were bruised and shaken, Brockway said.

Gilgros was alone in his car, he said. The car he was driving was reported stolen Feb. 21 in Arlington, Brockway said.

Papers Get Help After Blast Knocks Out Power

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Newspapers around Arizona pitched in to help Tucson's two daily newspapers publish today after three power transformer explosions knocked out electricity to their plant. Seven employees were injured, four critically.

The Arizona Daily Star published a morning edition with help from Phoenix Newspapers Inc. and the Sun City News-Sun.

Officials said the Citizen planned to publish a 48-page paper today, with 16 pages produced by Territorial Publishers Inc., of Tucson. The other 32 pages were to be typeset and partially produced at the Wildcat before being printed at the Phoenix Newspapers' satellite plant in Mesa.

Deputies Arrest One In Mass Killing, Search For Other Suspects

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — Authorities still are searching for suspects in the slayings of four Salvadoran aliens smuggled into the United States from Mexico.

The bodies of four Salvadorans were found in Fort Bend County last week and two unidentified Hispanic men were found in Brazoria County on Sunday. All of the victims had been shot in the head.

Authorities said they believe the victims were aliens being smuggled into Texas by "coyotes", or traffickers in human workers.

The deputies on Monday arrested Pedro Hernandez, 27, who is being held in Fort Bend County jail on four charges of aggravated kidnapping. His bond has been set at $50,000 on each charge.

Fort Bend County Sheriff Ervin Hurta said his deputies are now looking for other suspects in the case.

Commander-In-Chief Rules Over Army Surplus Store

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) —

Noontime traffic in a weathered Strand emporium rivals the rush-hour crunch in Houston, even on a Tuesday, "the slowest day of the week."

People stream through the door; no signs of a recession here. A bespectacled, balding cherub with a graying, curly beard greets them.

"Hello, bubbie, how ya doin'?"

Bubbie?

"Rather than remembering names, I call everyone "bubbie," he cherub explains. "Bubbie is a term of endearment."

It makes sense. After all, this is the big bubbie himself talking: Col. Bubbie, proprietor of Col. Bubbie's Strand Surplus Center.

Col. Bubbie is really Meyer Reiswerg, civilian (despite his business cards which read "commander-in-chief") owner of this army surplus store. The business cards say the shop is "the free world's only surviving genuine government surplus store."

But that doesn't matter. To his nationwide fleet of customers, he is still Col. Bubbie, recipient of numerous calls and letters from across the country. Those calls and letters comprise most of Col. Bubbie's business as a nationwide mail order house. The store advertises in only two newspapers: The New York Times and the San Francisco Examiner.

"Weekends they (customers) are lined up around the block," he said. "We let the first 300 in, then every 25 after that." In addition, a police officer stands by to ensure that order is maintained.

Pinpointing the cause for the charm that is Col. Bubbie's is difficult. Reiswerg himself says the overflow of customers is simply the result of the store's varied and quality merchandise.

"Our (merchandise) is all genuine issue," he said. Most army surplus stores carry goods that are marked American, but made in other countries, such as Taiwan or Korea, he said.

"We have Korean stuff, but we went to Korea and got it."

If nothing else, Col. Bubbie's merchandise is genuine, whether the merchandise be a pair of Italian shorts or American boots. Reiswerg and his wife, Suzie, travel the world looking for new and different goods. They also keep track of military auctions.

But if part of the store's attraction is its merchandise, a good portion must be attributable to its owner, Reiswerg himself. "The charisma is Col. Bubbie," Suzie said.

Somewhat uncharacteristically, however, Reiswerg modestly denies this.

"The character is of our vast array of military merchandise. Look at the people," he said, waving his arms around his head. "They walk in with their heads up," looking around, overwhelmed by their surroundings.

To say that Reiswerg is dedicated would be an understatement. The store is Reiswerg's 6-year-old brainchild, his second endeavor in the business world.

Earlier, he ran a mail-order gunshop with his father.

Obituaries

ESTA CABBINESS Services are pending with Brownfield Funeral Home for Esta Cabbiness, 71, of Brownfield. She died this morning at Brownfield Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Cabbiness had lived in Hereford for a short time and is survived by two sons, Charles of Hereford and John of Hobbs, N.M.; and several brothers and sisters.

As Reiswerg tells it, a reunion with some old cronies he was asked how he liked retirement. Typically, Reiswerg said he was happy, "but that was a lie."

His friends' suggestion that he open a new business was greeted with his usual skepticism, but eventually he caved in to the pressure — and his own desires.

On a typical day, the merchant rises at 3:30 a.m. and arrives at his store an hour later. "My most productive time is between 4:30 and 6:30 a.m. Creativity comes in the early part of the morning."

From 6:30 a.m. to 8 a.m., he plays racquetball, returning to the store at 8:30 a.m., which employees arrive in anticipation of the 10 a.m. opening.

The store is open "usually" Monday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"I say 'usually' because when we're here, it's open. Otherwise, it's not," he said.

During business hours, Reiswerg is a dynamo, constantly calling out orders to clerk and constantly "hocking" (Yiddish for "nagging") the customers.

"Hey, don't go back there," he calls out to a wayward customer who nearly crosses into employees-only turf. "The man will yell. I know him personally."

The customer stares at Reiswerg in disbelief for a moment, then grins and shakes his head.

The phone rings, not with an ordinary ring, but an angry buzzing. Reiswerg wouldn't have it any other way. He moves to the phone. "Hello, bubbie, how ya doin'?"

He likes his job. "I thrive on this. I'm 50, and I can't wait to get down here every morning. It's invigorating."

"I consider myself the world's greatest conservationist-ecologist. We're not destroying trees or polluting. We take old, unwanted things and find a market for them. We're allowing people to get $10 worth of value for every dollar they spend."

Wholesale prices, as measured by the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods, rose a seasonally adjusted 1 percent in June, pro-assistance for the pipeline. Those talks were during the president's trip to Europe last month, the official said.

The president said Mitterrand explained that upon taking office in May 1981, he discovered that the pipeline contracts had been agreed to by the previous French administration. "And they (the French) feel legally bound by those," Reagan said.

Reagan began his campaign against the pipeline last December in response to the Soviet role in the military crackdown in Poland. The president announced on June 18 an expanded ban on exports of U.S.-licensed technology to the Soviets.

Reagan also said the United States has been looking into developing energy sources in the North Sea, Norway and the Netherlands. These areas would not leave Western Europe "in a position to be blackmailed by the Soviet Union if they decide to cut off the gas," he said.

Nayarit state, said Randall Scott Everitt, 30, of Santa Monica, Calif., was found shot in the head June 9. She said local police assumed he committed suicide.

Ms. Cordoba said another American, John Mills, 34, of Phoenix, Ariz., was found drowned June 11 at Las Islitas, a beach resort a few miles west of San Blas.

Both were buried in the local cemetery, she said, after cursory identification and no investigation of the deaths.

Schrock, 42, an economics professor, was last seen about May 31. The police chief and six officers in San Ignacio, a town on the highway about 200 miles north of San Blas, reportedly confessed to killing Schrock during a robbery June 2 on the highway, but the professor's body has not been found.

A spokesman for the Sinaloa State judicial police, Juan Ramon Martinez Arpon, said the policemen say they buried the body in a roadside ravine and on June 8 moved it to the local cemetery.

The grave pointed out by the suspects was opened on July 11, and the body was sent to Denver, Colo. But pathologists who examined it there said it was not Schrock's.

Some Sinaloa officials speculated that the policemen killed someone who was with Schrock and later assumed it was the professor. Investigators emphasized that they have not given the American up for dead.

material, coal, winter wheat and intercity rail passengers, among other things."

The UTU, which represents trainmen, clerks and other rail workers, had listed nine of the nation's largest railroads as strike targets, including the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad that serves 12 Midwest and western states and the Southern Railway that operates across 18 states, primarily in the Southeast.

The earlier threatened strike by engineers and firemen would have affected 90 percent of the freight traffic in the United States as well as many of the long distance passenger trains operated by Amtrak. Conrail, the federally subsidized freight line, would not have been affected.

Both the UTU and the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers have rejected voluntary arbitration in the impasse, which centers on management demands that certain work rules be changed to allow for greater savings.

Under the law, both unions will have an opportunity to work out their differences during the 60-day cooling-off period. If agreements are not reached a strike could be called as early as Sept. 6 by the engineers and firemen. A strike by the UTU could follow two weeks later.

The National Railway Labor Conference, which represents 100 railroads in collective bargaining, already has reached agreement on a 39-month contract with 11 other unions.

ed about that," Cook told the newspaper. "It does put us in a bad light."

But Cook, who declined to discuss the incident with the AP, told the Morning News UPI did not finance Reimer's climb.

"UPI didn't hire the guy. I haven't got that kind of budget," he said.

Reimer said one of his schemes, if he can get city approval, will be to dramatize support for mass transit by jumping his customized 1969 Dodge Charger across Central Expressway, one of Dallas' busiest freeways.

The TV program "Dukes of Hazzard" inspired the car jump idea, and the "Dallas Phantom" was born when Reimer saw "Hero at Large," a film about an out-of-work actor who earned money by appearing in a superhero costume at various publicity events.

"That inspired me," Reimer said. "I sort of identified with that."

Reimer said Thursday's escapade was a first, but not a first attempt.

"I've never done anything of this scope or with this danger," he said. "Two weeks ago I climbed in the old 'Phantom' suit and tried to climb Reunion Tower on the outside. I was going to use clamps and go up the side. Unfortunately ... I had a ladder that was maybe 18 inches too short."

Reimer said he has no climbing experience and that all his safety equipment was home-made.

"I prayed before I went up," he said. "When I was up there I was concentrating so much that I didn't think about it. I wasn't scared. I surprised myself."

"I like to get a reaction out of people. If they think I'm crazy, that's fine. If they don't like me, that's fine. Just as long as I get a reaction."

Reimer told the AP that he first contacted UPI three weeks ago and told them he intended to climb a major Dallas building.

He said UPI's Cook told him, "Do not tell me your name." He didn't want to know any of the details or have any appearance of involvement."

Reimer said he called the news agency Thursday and announced that he was going to climb down the tower instead of up "because I might be recognized."

"They said they would meet me there. They said they were going to send me a photographer because they wanted to get a shot on top."

Reimer said he locked his billfold in his car for safekeeping and left the car keys in a safe place.

"I forgot there was an admission charge to the tower and when I got up there I only had 50 cents. So I got the (UPI) guy...to give me a dollar," he said.

Gifted Students Take Part In Recent Workshop

WTSU - As he confidently leaned back in his chair, "Beau Derrick" comfortably quipped one-liners to his guests.

The scene is not from a popular television talk show, but from a video-tape produced by elementary school students who participated in a recent workshop at West Texas State University, for gifted and talented children and for graduate students who plan to teach them.

The videotape was a product of only a few days of work by 36 children in the workshop for Teaching Language Arts to Gifted and Talented Students offered as a WTSU summer workshop by the College of Education.

As a result of the project and the workshop, the graduate students enrolled for credit and the children learned from each other and from the experience, said Dr. Enid Bates, WTSU associate professor of education, and Donna Clopton, facilitator for the Plan for Educationally-Gifted students program in the Dumas Independent School District.

Bates and Clopton coordinated the workshop and taught the course for the graduate students.

The 36 children participated in the seminar from 10 a.m. to noon each day for five days. The fourth, fifth and sixth graders came to WTSU from Dumas, Spearman, Bushland, Amarillo, Perryton, Hereford, Estelline and Childress. School districts in those communities had identified the children as gifted and talented.

Each day, the graduate students in the course who had learned the previous week about teaching gifted and talented students planned language arts activities such as songs, creative writing, drama and dance, reading and choral reading and small group activities. The activities were designed for the children to use a higher level of thinking skills, said Bates.

The graduate students, many of whom are teachers, coordinated four separate groups of children. The graduate students teach at Tulia, Canyon, Canadian, Lubbock, Panhandle, Friona, Paducah, Plainview, Vega, Fritch and Dumas.

Activities coordinated language arts skills such as listening, speaking, reading and writing, said Bates. Students also chose a major project.

With the assistance of WTSU Media Center personnel, the children chose the topics, wrote the scripts, selected props and scenery, designed graphics, acted and did the camera work for the videotape production.

In about two days, the students produced "Channel 82 - The Only Way to View," a sequence of four programs each of five minutes. The project incorporated all language art skills, said Bates.

Programs included "All My Robots - Spectrum IV," a satire on a soap opera with clever dialogue; "The Beau Derrick Show," with a guest model, a punk rocker and a football star; "Boogies Rodisco," a choreographed folk dance of the future; and "Space World Report - 33 1/2," also titled "Galaxy Gateway - Let the Information Flow."

One segment also included a commercial for Pac-Man Cola.

Judith Henry, a media production supervisor of the Media Center, said the children had choices about production duties and "drew lots to be stars."

"We emphasized script development and limited them to five minutes," said Henry. "The highly-structured form in this media curtailed the children's tendency to ramble."

"A characteristic of many gifted children is that they want to continue to research and learn. This experience taught them to accomplish something in a very short time and enabled them to focus their attention and energies," said Clopton, who began one of the first programs for gifted and talented students four years ago at Dumas.

The videotape project provided a variety of abilities and duties for the children.

"The spectrum of tasks was broad enough for everyone," said Bates. "It was like a kaleidoscope. The more bits and pieces there are to put together the more designs you can come up with."

Dr. Fred Stroker, dean of the WTSU College of Education, said he hopes to be able to expand the gifted and talented program to seminars during the academic year. Next summer's workshop may deal with a different topic such as science or fine arts, he said.

Clopton also will join the WTSU College of Education faculty Aug. 1 as a student teaching coordinator. Stoker said he hopes to use Clopton's abilities to strengthen the gifted and talented program.

Students and graduate students evaluated the workshop and the results were excellent, said Bates. Teachers were able to plan or replan the next day's activities based on sincere evaluations of the day's activities.

"Working with the students was a great experience and a highlight to the teachers. They learned to no longer be afraid of these students, but that they just needed different activities," said Clopton.

The videotape will be shown to students in WTSU education courses as an example of the abilities of gifted and talented children.

Ann Landers

Quit Trying To Shift Blame

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been about 50 pounds overweight for the last 10 years. Up until two years ago my husband and I enjoyed a very active sex life. We are both in our early 40s. I gained another 10 pounds or so, and he stopped making love to me. It seemed to happen overnight.

After six weeks of no sex I asked him to explain why he had turned so cool. He said, "You are no longer desirable. Your fat turns me off and I can't get excited anymore."

My question is this: Can 10 pounds or so make THAT much difference? All those years when I was 50 pounds overweight he never seemed to care. In fact, he was after me all the time. Can this be a cover-up for impotence? Is it possible he is having an affair on the side? I am puzzled and need your help in sorting things out. - Nothing Doing In Gary, Ind.

DEAR N.D. IN IND.: Instead of looking for hidden motives and trying to shift the blame, why don't you accept the fact that those "10 pounds or more" broke the camel's back?

Make an appointment with your physician at once. Get on a diet and stay there. Sixty pounds of excess weight are a terrible burden on your heart, your feet and other portions of your anatomy. They could also put the dead hand on your marriage.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please settle something in your column. Things are getting out of hand. As a registered nurse who works in a large, clinical setting, I often see a shocking lack of telephone courtesy among physicians.

When Dr. A. wants to consult with Dr. B., he asks his receptionist to place the call. Dr. B's receptionist then insists that Dr. A. be put on the line before transferring the call to Dr. B. Dr. A.'s receptionist vehemently refuses, saying Dr. A. will NOT come on the line until Dr. B. is on.

Am I correct in assuming that Dr. A. is egotistical and discourteous to expect Dr. B. to get on the phone and wait for him? That happens time after time. Sometimes Dr. A. is not busy with a patient. He is sitting at his desk looking at a medical journal. Please give us your opinion. - Fed

Up In New Orleans.

DEAR FED: The question you raise is one that has plagued secretaries ever since Alexander Graham Bell invented that incredible instrument.

The person who places the call should be on the line when the party he is seeking says, "Hello." After all, it is fair to assume that the party who initiates the call wants something, and it is rude to behave in a way that suggests his time is more valuable than that of the person he may be inconveniencing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I pray you won't think I am weird.

I need help to know what to do, if anything - or must I simply learn to live with it? The problem is I can't sign my name in the presence of others.

I'm female, a corporate executive in her mid-30s. The last time I had to sign documents was yesterday, and my hand froze. I knew ahead of time and tried to avoid signing but couldn't. I managed to get through it, but the signature didn't look like mine.

What causes this problem - and can it be overcome? - Frozen Fingers On LaSalle St.

DEAR FROZEN: Your problem is the result of a long-forgotten incident that produced shame and guilt. A good therapist might be able to unearth it. Another approach, simple and cheaper: Practice writing in front of others whenever you can.

The decimal system was invented in ninth century India.

LaMarque Blue Chipper Lifts South over North

HOUSTON (AP) — South Coach Donnie Victorick pulled a page from his own Snook basketball playbook in Hofheinz Pavilion and it had Alvin Franklin's name on it. Franklin, a blue chipper from LaMarque, completed a three-point play with 32 seconds to play Thursday night to rally the favored South to a 92-91 victory over the North in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star basketball game at Hofheinz Pavilion.

It was a Snook-like victory for Victorick, who has led the Bluejays to three straight state Class A titles using a style that often includes dramatic comeback victories.

Snook also goes for the high percentage shot, but Victorick will take what Franklin gave him.

"Alvin's drive was about a 50-50 chance, he makes it, and we win," said Victorick, whose teams have lost only 10 games in three years. "We had to make the foul shots and the game was ours. We didn't rebound well and that made the game close."

The game was not close with 5:35 to play when the underdog North had taken an 83-73 lead, the biggest margin of the game. Gary Heyland of San Antonio Churchill narrowed the North's lead to two points at 87-85 with 2:29 left.

Two free throws by Graford's Tim Ford and a fast break basket by Kennan DeBose of Killeen with 2:04 to play put the North back on top 91-85.

But Edwin Mitchell of Diboll, the South's most valuable player, and Ivan Petit of Bay City hit baskets to pull within two points and set up Franklin's game-winning three-pointer.

It was the second straight one-point victory for the South, which won last year's game in Dallas, 100-99. The victory also cut the North's overall lead in the series to 19-18.

The favored South fell behind early in the third quarter on the shooting of Ryant Greene of Plano, who scored 15 points and earned most valuable player honors for the North.

Brian Essary of North Mesquite scored 13 points for the North, but missed a pair of free throws with 41 seconds left in the game that would have given the North the lead. DeBose missed again with 11 seconds to play. Mitchell added 18 points for the South and Greene finished with 15.

"We had the game won if we had just hit free throws," said losing North Coach Keith Kitchens of Shallowater. "They hit free throws late and it cost us. We played good and had a chance to win."

Mitchell, who will attend Angelina Junior College, was surprised by the game's outcome.

"I expected us to win by 20 points, but their quickness surprised me," Mitchell said.

Owners Not Risking TV Cash By Locking Out NFL Players

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Football League club owners, in the opinion of Players Association chief Ed Garvey, will not risk losing television revenue by locking out the players.

As the two sides prepared to continue their non-productive contract negotiations today, talk persisted that the owners will create a lockout if no agreement has been reached as the Sept. 12 season opens draw near.

Garvey, commenting on that Thursday said, "I don't think they will ever call a lockout."

"Once they do that, they know the players can strike. I don't see a lockout as an effective tool, only a good threat. They would risk their TV package."

Asked about a report that more than half the owners want to lock the players out before the start of the season, management's chief negotiator, Jack Donlan, director of the NFL Management Council, said, "I haven't polled the owners. My only comment is 'no comment.'"

"The last time I talked to the owners there were some who favored a lockout and some who didn't. There were others who were wary of what happened in baseball last year."

"That is an issue we will have to address before we open the season."

At Thursday's session, the first in a week, the union once again proposed a joint drug counseling and rehabilitation program with the owners. And, management was expected to once again reject the plan, which would be in keeping with the tone of the talks until now.

After the latest five-hour meeting, both sides agreed that there was no agreement on any of the issues, except that each had submitted proposals which the other had agreed to study.

The players presented a proposal dealing with drug counseling that the management council, representing the owners, had rejected at last week's meetings in New York.

Under the plan, the union calls for a program administered jointly by union and management to provide counseling assistance for players with a variety of personal problems, including those dealing with finances, divorce, death, drugs, injury and legal concerns.

A third party, with no relationship to any club or the league, would oversee the program.

Garvey said, "Drug testing alone is useless. The problems leading to drug abuse remain long beyond the time the body expels the drug. We need a comprehensive program to deal with root causes, not a management publicity stunt calling for urinalysis."

The owners' representative also said the management council came prepared to negotiate the individual contracts of some 30 players who, under the terms of the contract that expired eight days ago, now have the union as their sole bargaining agent.

Noisy Links No Distraction To Carner, Leading with 69

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Although there was plenty of noise around the course, JoAnne Carner created her own distractions, with off-target shots, in the first round of the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

"If you followed me, you weren't bored," said Carner, who shot a thoroughly entertaining 3-under-par 69, good for the tournament lead, before a large gallery Thursday.

Carner and the other players had no complaints about crowd behavior on the 6,342-yard Del Paso Country Club course. It was the din caused by automobile traffic on busy streets near the course and by airplanes flying overhead that had some heads buzzing after the opening round, which ended with the temperature in the 90s.

"This is the loudest golf course I've ever played on, but the planes weren't too bad today," said 39-year-old Sandra Haynie, whose 70 placed her in a four-way tie for second behind Carner, 43.

Donna White, also at 70, said, "I almost saw two accidents on the street. But once I'm over the ball, it's hard to distract me. I feel like I'm in a phone booth."

Also at 70 were Janet Alex and Vicki Tabor. Opening with 1-under 71s were Sally Little, Beth Daniel, Lynn Adams and 21-year-old amateur Dana Howe. Only 11 golfers in the 150-player field were at par or better.

"The noise was loud and the rough was high," said Carner, who found the rough with several of her errant shots from Del Paso's fairways.

"I finally got my putter figured out, and then I couldn't hit a green. I didn't hit many, anyway," she said. "I counted my putts, just 24 of them."

From the tees, she added, "I drove the ball absolutely perfect."

But from the fairways, her bad shots included one that went out of bounds and led to a double-bogey 6 at the fourth hole. She grabbed the lead by posting a 3-under 32 on the back nine, with birdies at the 12th, 17th and 18th holes.

"I had to scramble for pars at 14 and 15," added the two-time U.S. Open champ, who made a 10-foot putt at the 14th and a seven-footer at the next hole.

"I didn't expect to score that well. This is an awfully difficult course," Carner said. "I anticipated that 4-under for the tournament would be good enough to win."

"Now I just want to play my game and then look at the leader board. If I win, I'll tie Bobby Jones for most USGA victories."

Carner won the U.S. Junior Girls title once, the U.S. Women's Amateur five times, and the Open in 1971 and 1976. Jones won nine USGA titles in his fabulous career.

Rivals-to-be Teammates Tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — Newton's Anthony Byerly and San Antonio Holmes' Jimmie Hawkins will be arch rivals next football season when Byerly attends the University of Texas and Hawkins goes to Texas A&M.

Tonight, however, they will unite in an attempt to bring back offensive excitement to the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star football game.

The annual game has produced only 59 points in the past four years and the South starting running backs predict changes in tonight's battle against the North.

"We will put points on the board, our offense can be explosive," said Hawkin. "I don't really care where I line up, I just think we can move the football."

Byerly, who produced 6,598 yards as a schoolboy, and Hawkins, will be joined in the South starting backfield by Tom Muecke, a top-rated quarterback prospect from Angleton.

"With a good quarterback like Muecke, we will be able to open things up and use all the talents we have on this team," Byerly said.

Muecke, who will attend Baylor University, passed for 1,514 yards and 17 touchdowns last season, rushed 710 yards and scored 14 rushing touchdowns.

Hawkins, a Texas A&M signee, has less glittering high school statistics than Byerly, but has impressed Mills.

"We have two good running backs not just one," Mills said. "They are about the same size and speed. Hawkins is a complete football player. They really complement each other."

North Coach Greg Sherwood of Plainview will counter at quarterback with Andrews' Keith Rooks. Running backs will include Cedrick Love of Borger and Chris Vaughn of DeKalb and tailback Earl Johnson from Dallas Thomas Jefferson.

Brooks isn't conceding any offensive punch to the South. "Our backs on the North team are just as good as the South and with our line it will make it that much easier," said Brooks, who will attend Southern Methodist. "The pulling guards will leave you behind if you don't hit the hole. It's not like in high school where you are waiting for them."

"I'm excited because I'll get to play with four or five good backs. With the backs we have, they won't be able to key on any one of us."

The North defense will be led by T.J. Turner, a University of Houston-bound defensive tackle from Lufkin, and Egypt Allen, a defensive back from Dallas South Oak Cliff who will attend Texas Christian.

Turner is eager to get at the South backfield.

"I gave one quarterback a concussion last year," Turner said. "Another time I hit a player from Bryan and he started complaining about being dizzy. There was also this running back we played against last year. I think I broke his leg."

The South defense will have to play without blue chip defensive tackle, Eddie Gilmore, who broke his finger during workouts.

The North All-Stars led the series 25-16 with four ties.

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Conference officials are expected to name Fred Jacoby as the league's new commissioner today, according to a Houston newspaper.

Jacoby, who has served as the MAC post the past 11 years, reportedly was the SWC screening committee's first choice.

4-H'ers Hosting Trap Shoot

The Deaf Smith 4-H Shooting Sports Club is hosting a trap shoot at the airport range at 10 a.m. Saturday to prepare area clubs for the state meet.

Nearly 70 4-H'ers representing six counties have signed up for the meet, which sponsors say may become a yearly event.

Trophies will be given to winners competing in teams of five and two shooters.

Hall of Famer Dies in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Lloyd Waner, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, used to say his nickname — "Little Poison" — had nothing to do with his playing skills.

Instead, he claimed, he and his Hall of Fame brother, Paul — called "Big Poison" — got their labels from a New York sportswriter who said they were "a big person and a little person."

Lloyd Waner, who hit .316 during his career and roamed the Pittsburgh Pirates outfield with his brother from 1927 to 1940, died Thursday in Presbyterian Hospital. He was 76 and died of complications related to emphysema.

Waner, elected to the Hall of Fame in 1967, had 2,459 career hits in 18 seasons. He was one of the best leadoff hitters of his time with exceptional speed and a good eye at the plate.

Waner struck out only 173 times in his career. He also had a total of 28 home runs.

"Lloyd never hit many home runs, but he hit a jillion doubles and triples," said Carl Hubbell, a Hall of Fame pitcher with the New York Giants during Waner's heyday.

Paul Waner, who hit .333 in 20 seasons, died in 1965.

Only one other brother combination, George and Harry Wright — who made their marks in the late 1800s — was ever elected to the Hall of Fame.

Waner joined the club in 1927 and set a then-major league record that year with 223 hits, while batting .355. The Pirates lost the World Series that season to the "Murderer's Row" attack of the New York Yankees. That was the only World Series appearance for either Waner.

Waner was traded to the Boston Braves early in the 1941 season and later played for the Cincinnati Reds, Philadelphia Phillies and Brooklyn Dodgers before rejoining Pittsburgh, where he was primarily a pinch-hitter in 1944 and 1945.

Al Lopez, who once roomed with Waner and later became a Hall of Fame manager, said Thursday that "infielders would have to play him differently. He had unbelievable speed for those days."

"I don't know if he was the reason why, but soon after he came up, you started hearing about teams looking for fast ballplayers."

"Lloyd was just a fine individual and an outstanding ballplayer," said Frank Gustine, a Pirates infielder who played with the Waners. "He and his brother were just good Oklahoma boys."

"He had great eyesight. He said the ball looked bigger to him than it was," Gustine said in Pittsburgh Thursday.

Waner was a Pirates scout from 1946 to 1949, and scouted for the Baltimore Orioles in 1955.

He worked as a field clerk with the Oklahoma City government from 1950 until 1967.

Waner is survived by his wife, Francis; a daughter, Lydia Freeman; a son, Lloyd Jr., of Oklahoma City, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday.

Winfield Out of Dog House, Seven Other Yanks Move In

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven players are in George Steinbrenner's dog house these days. For a change, Dave Winfield isn't one of them.

Winfield, object of Steinbrenner's displeasure in the past, has to be making the New York Yankee owner happy the way he's hitting and fielding the ball these days.

Thursday night, he ripped two doubles, including a two-run job, and made a fine defensive play to help the Yankees beat the Texas Rangers 4-3 in only one of two American League games. Chicago beat Toronto 3-2 in the other contest. No National League games were played.

Winfield's performance raised his batting average to .295 and gave him 53 runs batted in for the season. He also has hit 17 home runs.

The workout had a negative effect on the team at first, according to Thursday night's winning pitcher, Roger Erickson, 8-7.

Actually, the Yankees decided things in the fourth inning when they scored three runs, two coming on Winfield's line drive double to left. One out later, Graig Nettles hit a sacrifice fly for a 4-1 lead and New York's eventual winning run.

The Yankees' big offensive thrust came against Texas rookie John Butcher, 0-2.

It was 1-1 when Winfield delivered his tie-breaking hit following Jerry Mumphy's leadoff triple and Oscar Gamble's walk.

Winfield was a defensive star for the Yankees as well in the fifth, racing in to make a sliding catch on a sacrifice fly by Dave Hostetler to keep the Rangers from building a rally.

Gamble's ninth homer of the year leading off the second gave New York a 1-0 lead before the Rangers tied it in the third on a triple by Mickey Rivers and Buddy Bell's double. In the seventh, Rivers hit his first home run of the year, cutting the lead to 4-3.

Erickson struggled to his fourth straight win in his last four starts. He allowed 10 hits in seven innings before Rudy May came on to post his first save of the season.

White Sox 3, Blue Jays 2

Chicago left-hander Britt Burns won his 10th game and fourth against Toronto this season with his third complete game against them, a nine-hit, eight-strikeout performance.

"I feel like my job is to keep us in the game," Burns said after Jerry Hairston's two-run single in the eighth inning catapulted the White Sox to their victory. "My personal statistics haven't been as good as the last couple of years," Burns added, "but we've been close in the games I've pitched in."

Hairston singled up the middle after pinch hitter Steve Kemp and Tony Bernazard drew walks around a single by Rudy Law off loser Joey McLaughlin.

When Toronto went ahead 2-1 in the seventh inning, starter Jim Gott stood to be the winner. McLaughlin bailed him out of a jam in the bottom of the seventh, but couldn't hold the lead in the eighth.

THIS WEEK IN BASEBALL

Who's on first?

By Harvey Greene

Even though the 1982 season is barely half over, the Red Sox, Royals, Phillies and Braves are home free — IF tradition is to be believed.

They might as well begin printing playoff tickets in Boston. Kansas City had best cancel early October vacations. The gala bunting should be readied at Vet Stadium in Philadelphia. And Chief Noc-A-Homa in Atlanta ought to brush up on his autumn war dance.

That's because each of those baseball clubs stood atop its respective major-league division on Independence Day.

The baseball adage is: "Whoever is in first place on July 4 will go on to win the pennant." No one is really sure where that saying came from. But it seems to be accepted as gospel.

Even so, the division races remain tight. The July 4 leads ranged from the half-game the Royals had established over the California Angels in the American League West to the 4 1/2-game edge the Braves had built over the San Diego Padres in the National League West. By the All-Star break, though, the Milwaukee Brewers (A.L. East) and California (A.L. West) had inched into first. And Philadelphia (N.L. East) and Atlanta (N.L. West) were just barely on top.

So, does that old refrain really hold up?

In the past, did teams who were perched in first place on July 4 actually finish there? Or did they fade as the season wore on?

Well, there is a kernel of truth to the maxim. Ignoring last year's unique split-season, the July 4 cutoff, over the previous 30 years, proved to be a pretty accurate barometer.

In the pennant races in the American League from 1950 through 1980 — counting division races from 1969 on as separate entities — 29 of the 43 clubs (68 percent) who were in first place on July 4 finished there in October. In fact, during one stretch (1952-1960), of the nine teams who were leading the A.L. on Independence Day, eight went on to win the pennant.

Even more encouraging to front-runners is the A.L. track record following the institution of divisional play in 1969. In the 24 races since, 18 teams who headed their divisions on July 4 won titles, a healthy 75 percent.

Ground-up ladybugs once were considered a remedy for toothaches, colic, and measles.

Lietzke Jumps From Slump

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — It was a good start for Bruce Lietzke, a pace-setting 6-under-par 65 in the first round of the $350,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

But Lietzke, in a slump all season long, emphasized that it was only that — a start.

"I need a few more days, a few more tournaments, like that before I can declare myself fit for the Tour," Lietzke said Thursday.

That is, perhaps, an unfairly harsh self-appraisal. He has, after all, won $92,000 this season and ranks 29th on the year's money-winning list.

But that hardly approaches the lofty levels the long-hitting Lietzke has established over the past five seasons.

He's won at least once in each of those years, hasn't finished lower than 18th on the money-winning list and last year picked off three titles, $343,446 in winnings and was in the chase for the money-winning title until the last event of the season.

This year, however, his best finish has been fourth at the Tournament Players Championship. And, he's missed the cut in three of his last four starts, including both the U.S. and British Opens.

And he's at a loss in attempting to explain his sudden turn in fortunes.

"I'm not doing anything differently. I haven't changed anything. I just started playing like Bruce Lietzke, and I haven't seen him around for a while."

That performance, which he called his best of the year, provided him with a one-shot margin over Bill Rogers, the 1961 Player of the Year, and Cal Peete, a winner two weeks ago in Milwaukee, who had 66s in the hot, humid weather. Rogers included a string, beginning on the second hole, in which he went birdie, eagle, birdie, birdie.

Festival To Remain No Sports Spectacle

By LARRY SIDONS AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — It has grown from 3,000 spectators sprawled on blankets on a Colorado hillside to an 11-day event that's expected to attract more than 300,000 fans and gross $1 million in ticket sales.

Yet, the National Sports Festival never has achieved the status of the Olympic Games which it so much resembles in form, or even some of the national championships of the 33 sports from which it is composed.

The reasons include internal politics and, in large part, because that's the way the organizers want it.

"It was not a spectacle in the beginning, and even with increased media attention and larger cities hosting it, it's not a spectacle now," said Mike Moran, spokesman for the U.S. Olympic Committee which is sponsoring the fourth Festival here.

"There are many people in the framework of the National Governing Bodies (the groups that run America's Olympic sports) who prefer it as a small event. There are the purists who want to keep it a relaxed atmosphere for the athletes."

At this year's Festival, which officially opens tonight after three days of competition in diving and figure skating, 2,600 athletes will be competing at a series of multimillion-dollar facilities built with the intent of luring the yearly (except for Olympic years) midsummer sports gathering to Indianapolis. That's about 700 more than participated in the first Sports Festival in Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1978.

The lineup is not exactly a "who's who" of amateur sports in America. Evelyn Ashford and Carl Lewis in track, Greg Louganis in diving and Kathy Arendsen in women's softball probably are the best-known names on the roster. Basketball teams for the East, West, North and South are limited to high school players and college freshmen. Few of the top collegiate tennis or baseball players are entered.

The swimmers aren't even here yet. They're in Mission Viejo, Calif., for the National Championships, which will determine the members of the U.S. team for next month's world championships in Guayaquil, Ecuador.

That's a subject of some bitterness on the part of USOC officials, who note that the diving team for the world championships is being selected here, and that next week's swimming schedule at the Festival will be merely a stopover between southern California and South America.

Still, Moran believes, all this helps keep the Festival in line with the hopes of founder Bob Kane, former USOC president, who received a 10-minute standing ovation from the athletes on that Colorado night four summers ago.

Kane wanted a gathering of athletes along the lines of the European youth festivals. A track-and-field performer in college, Kane felt America's amateur athletes rarely had a chance to compete in Olympic-style competition at home in the years between the Games.

Bryan Picked Favorite

HOUSTON (AP) — The Class 5A Bryan Vikings are the pre-season favorites to change their playoff luck and win it all, according to a poll conducted by sports writers attending the Texas High School Coaches Association Coaching School.

Coach Merrill Green's Vikings have a 76-24-2 record over the past 10 years, but only two playoff appearances because of perennial losses to Temple.

The Vikings were ranked No. 1, however, in the writers' balloting with seven first place votes. Baytown Sterling got the runnerup nod and Port Arthur Jefferson was ranked third in the pre-season balloting.

Defending state Class 4A champion Brownwood, meanwhile, was favored to continue its string of championships. The Lions are favored to give Coach Gordon Wood his eighth state title team.

Bernard was favored to lead Class 2A, and Lindsay was slotted to finish first in Class A.

Bryan has 13 starters returning from last year's 9-1 finish. Lewisville was ranked fourth followed by San Antonio Jay San Angelo Central, Odessa Permian, Austin Reagan, Conroe McCullough and Houston Washington.

Koolatron... ultimate refrigeration for camping

Now, for pennies a day enjoy a Koolatron™ portable electronic refrigerator that will make your cooler as obsolete as grandma's kitchen icebox.

It's probably the greatest bargain of all time in recreational refrigeration. Just think, not a cooler with ice, but electronic refrigeration (plus food warming) that pays for itself. Imagine... no more searching for ice, no more sandwiches floating in water, no more warm drinks on a hot day, no more thrown out meat and no more needless restaurant stops. But instead... dry electronic refrigeration that will serve you reliably year after year and eliminate the hassle of your ice chest forever. An amazing space age miracle, the thermoelectric solid state module, has made this portable refrigeration breakthrough possible. And with tens of thousands of Koolatrons in use all over the world you know they really work. And now there are 3 Koolatron portables... one just right for you.

Moving Less Traumatic When Understand Terms

CHICAGO, IL. — Because nearly 50 percent of all interstate moves are made between the beginning of June and the end of September, now is a good time to learn if you understand "moving-ese".

"Knowing exactly what you're contracting for can make the difference between a pleasant and traumatic move," notes Ann Badolato, director of relocation services for a major van line.

When selecting a carrier, she advises, "the trick is to make sure you're all speaking the same language."

The following definitions of terms commonly used by the moving industry will help you understand exactly what your carrier is talking about, and what he is — and isn't — promising.

SPREAD refers to a range of dates for the loading, or pick-up, of your goods, and the number of days the mover needs to reach your new home and deliver the load.

Because you can file a claim against your mover if he doesn't pick-up or deliver on one of those spread dates, he protects himself by giving you the widest range possible — the law allows up to several weeks depending on weight or distance.

This is often not in your best interest, though, because if you're not at home when he arrives to unload, your possessions must be stored and you pay the cost.

To eliminate this missed delivery problem and protect your goods from "S.I.T." — storage in transit — pin your carrier down to a guaranteed date for pick-up, and no more than two guaranteed, contiguous delivery dates.

ESTIMATES, binding estimates and guaranteed prices refer to the cost of your move. When a mover provides you an approximate cost, you will not know the actual cost until the van is loaded, weighed, and your goods are delivered.

A "binding estimate" and a "guaranteed price" offer more cost assurance than an estimate alone. Make sure there's no "fine print" that allows changes after the move is completed.

If your carrier gives you a written price of $2,000 for your move, that's all you should have to pay — unless you change something — like moving a car or an extra room of furniture.

Some binding estimates allow movers to tack on extra charges for such things as an extra long distance to the house, or trips up several flights of stairs. Be sure you know what the guaranteed price covers.

A "guaranteed price" is the only option that lets you know exactly — to the penny — what your move will cost. If you want to remove all the financial insecurity from your move, look for a carrier that will give you this option.

PROTECTION doesn't refer to the pads used to protect your furniture. It means insurance on the goods moved. Most major carriers now offer "full value protection", a service which allows your goods to be insured at their replacement value cost, not their depreciated value.

Be advised that each carrier's version of "replacement value cost" differs. For example, if your automobile is destroyed in transit and you have full value protection, one carrier might give you its blue book value in cash, while another will give you a brand new car.

When selecting a carrier, be certain he's offering the kind of protection you think your possessions deserve.

SETTING UP beds means the mover will put the bed frame together. It doesn't mean he'll add the mattress, find the pillows, and so on.

If you want to sleep in the bed that night, tell your mover what you expect and have that included in your contract. Some movers will charge extra for this service, so ask what it will cost.

SHIPPER refers to you. Your mover is the carrier.

PERSONAL relocation services can mean a number of things. When discussing your move with carriers, ask them what they will do to help you become comfortable in your new home and community. You'll want a comprehensive, personalized program that will help you "settle - in" quickly, so don't hesitate to ask for it.

"Taking the time to ask specific questions about your mover's promises, and to ask for clarification when you're not sure you understand what he's saying will make your move much smoother, and perhaps less expensive," Badolato concludes.

Don't Forget Toys When Vacationing With Children

'Tis the season for vacationing...whether it's to the beach, the mountains, across the country or around the globe! Don't forget the little back seat travelers when packing clothes, cameras, camping gear or suntan lotion and travelers' checks.

According to the Toy Manufacturers of America (TMA), the industry trade association, if you are traveling with children this summer, or anytime, it's wise to bring along some playthings to entertain them during the trip.

The time it takes to reach your destination is often a restless one for youngsters. This is especially true on airplane trips when scenery is limited to backs of seats or seemingly endless cotton-candy clouds. By having favorite playthings at hand, travel time will be less tedious for you and the children.

TMA suggests bringing a knapsack or tote-bag along to hold toys when traveling. This will serve a dual purpose to prevent losing toys and, most importantly, to keep toys designed for older children away from younger ones. If you fly to your destination, be sure this carry-on is the proper size to fit under the seat or in the overhead compartment.

Most children have a favorite toy from which they are inseparable. These are usually small enough to be portable such as a teddy bear or other stuffed animal, doll or hand puppet. Let the youngster bring it along on vacation. These toys provide a feeling of security in unfamiliar surroundings.

Many toys and games are designed specifically for travel. For older children and adults, classic games such as chess, checkers and dominoes, as well as board and word games are magnetized and packaged inside cases that fold out into a playing board. These games often come in junior versions.

Hand-held electronic games are another good choice that will keep "globetrotters" occupied. Most are small enough to fit in a purse, beach bag or attache case. They run the gamut of sport, strategy and learning themes and many are based on popular arcade games.

If you prefer not to hear alien spaceships in battle, look for electronic games that have a silent mode. The newest type of computer games fit in the palm of your hand and are solar powered so you never have to replace batteries. If you plan to fly, check with the airline beforehand to see if computer games can be played aboard the flight.

For smaller children, there is a wide selection of peg and chalkboards. These are usually lap-sized and have magnetic numerals and letters. Most activity desks have a carry handle and an enclosed storage area. Self-contained drawing toys can be taken anywhere.

If there is a music lover in your traveling entourage, you may want to consider bringing along a tape recorder or self-enclosed record player.

If you travel more compactly, sewing cards, magnetic puzzles, story books, coloring books and crayons are good traveling companions. Vinyl playsets are ideal for keeping youngsters occupied.

When packing toys for your trip, keep your final destination in mind. Many playthings that may not be quite as suitable for travel time, come in carrying cases to be enjoyed once you reach your destination.

Many dolls and their accessories can be neatly packed away in a carrying case. Die-cast vehicles might be a good choice. Some battery-operated and radio-controlled trucks can ride over "rough" terrain such as dirt mounds and rocks. Toy dump trucks, cement mixers, picnic sets, kites and Frisbees add variety to beach activities.

Although diapers and formula may be on top of your packing checklist for baby, be certain to include something musical, colorful and soft. You'll be glad you did for those times when your littlest sightseer doesn't find the scenery as captivating as you do.

Once you arrive at your destination, all the playthings you took along will be lifesavers if the unthinkable happens and the weather turns bad.

According to Douglas Thomson, TMA president, "Playthings are a child's year-round companions which are entertaining, stimulating and often educational. Remembering to take a few along on a vacation, or for a short drive, will insure a fun trip for all concerned."

Originally, facial tissues were to be used as filters for gas masks during WWI.

The Chinese developed the use of paper about 100 B.C.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - For about eight months I had unpredictable and irregular attacks of diarrhea almost on a daily basis. I lost about 15 pounds and began to worry about the eventual outcome. My doctor subjected me to every test in the book, all to no avail and at considerable expense. A nurse friend of mine told me that she had a similar problem and suspected she had a virus. She had her doctor give her antibiotics which he was reluctant to do and it cured her. I proposed the same treatment to my own doctor who adamantly refused and only prescribed treatment when I absolved him from whatever happened. I took four tetracycline pills each day, four hours apart for a week. After taking only two pills I was noticeably improved and at the end of the second day had no more diarrhea. I have finally regained the weight I lost and feel as fine as ever.

My doctor said he did not want to prescribe tetracycline because it sometimes caused the problem instead of curing it. My case may be one in a million but it irks me to have spent all that money for tests. DEAR READER - You were fortunate. There are many unexplained cases of diarrhea. And I have received enough letters from people like yourself who were later found to have a bacterial infection or were cured by antibiotics to warrant mentioning it. Incidentally, antibiotics do not cure viral infections.

There are a number of bacteria that can cause diarrhea which are hard to identify. One is almost identical to the normal E. coli bacteria we all have in our colon. It is just a different strain. Some are difficult to grow on laboratory media to identify the bacteria. The number of letters I have received suggests a need for more effort to obtain better laboratory tests to spot such cases. When the tests are reported negative, the doctor has a problem on his hands.

Antibiotics sometimes alter the normal bacterial population in the colon in such a way as to decrease symptoms, too. And they can cause problems as your doctor suggested.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My son, now 17 years old, has had swelling around the nipple on one side of his chest for about three years. He has been checked by two physicians and was told it was a glandular problem and would eventually go away.

He is quite self-conscious about this. He has had some smaller nodules develop recently.

Surgery was mentioned but not encouraged. Can you give us your opinion as to any other procedure that might dissolve these?

DEAR READER - The best medicine in most such cases is "tincture of time." Nodules and breast enlargement occur in 60 to 70 percent of normal boys during puberty. And it is also common, often as diffuse enlargement, in adult men.

If a young boy is normal in all other respects the best thing to do is ignore it. As hormone balances change with maturation it often disappears. If a mature man still has enlarged breasts and it bothers him the best course is surgery - provided there are no important hormone irregularities.

FAITH IN GOD WILL RESTORE YOUR SELF-CONFIDENCE

Are you ever consumed by doubts of your own abilities? Do you sometimes fear that you may be unequal to whatever task you are assigned in your chosen work? Then let faith in God give you the assurance that if the work you are doing is right, then you will be given the ability to perform it adequately and that there is nothing you cannot do if it is required of you. God never intended that man should be limited in his capacity for good work, so go to Church this Sunday and trust Him to give you all the courage and self-confidence you will ever need.

"If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."
— Matthew 17:20

The reason birds can fly and we can't is simply that they have perfect faith, for to have faith is to have wings.
— Sir James Matthew Barrie
