Martinez New Band Director

Johnny Martinez, 29, of Hondo has been named director of bands for the Hereford Independent School District, it was announced Friday evening by Supt. Harrell Holder.

Martinez will succeed Randy Vaughn, who resigned recently to accept a band director's job at Strack, located near Klein.

A native of Pearsall and a graduate of Texas A&M University. Martinez had served as band director at Hondo, a Class 3A school, for three years. He also had two years experience at Uvalde Junior High, and a year at Nueces High School.

Martinez will be seeking to continue a tradition of excellent band programs here, including a streak of 24 consecutive Sweepstakes performances. He had two Sweepstakes bands at Hondo, third place in the state UIL marching contest.

His band also won the Six Flags Over Texas Band Festival over a field of 13 highschool bands. Martinez's bands at Uvalde and Nueces also posted Sweepstakes honors. Dr. Holder said Martinez had 105 band members at Hondo, a large number for a Class 3A school.

The new band director plans to move to Hereford within a few weeks. He and his wife, Kathy, have a 2-year-old daughter, Jennifer.

Martinez was a member of the Lions Club in Hondo. He was the incoming president of the Texas Music Educators Association at Hondo. He likes jogging and tennis and was a member of semi-pro baseball team at Hondo.

Holder said Martinez will have solid support from newly-named assistant band director Paul Lindley, a recent WTSU grad, and from junior high directors Jim Priest and Jim Summersgill.

County commissioners dodged the Bull-Barn dance issue again this week. An interested citizen at the meeting wanted to know why it's taking so long to make a decision. We believe that is a legitimate question.

Commissioners reportedly tabled the issue until July 26 because one commissioner was out of town. That didn't stop them from approving a $3.3 million budget which includes a 17 percent tax increase.

Oh, well, you need more time to study important matters like dances.

Seriously, we understand the reluctance of commissioner to act upon this matter. They've probably had more hassle with dances at the Bull Barn than raising people's taxes! As most citizens probably know, the primary problems have been with drinking, not dancing. Most of the headaches have come when individuals hosted dances. rather than organizations, and some problems have resulted from conflicts between the county's custodian and dance sponsors.

The county appointed a "task force" to study the matter and the group reported 77 percent of those polled favored a policy of dancing. If commissioners are to act upon the recommendation, it seems they should allow dances with an adequate deposit, and strict rules that are enforced without regard to race, creed or color.

Climbers Reach Mountain Peak

GUADALUPE NATIONAL PARK, Texas (AP) - Three paraplegic mountaineers sore and blistered from a fiveday ascent up a rugged, twisting trail reached Texas' tallest summit with a splash of champagne beneath a picturesque sunset.

Five wheelchair-bound athletes set out to scale Guadalupe Peak, three endured the torrid heat, crossed treacherous ledges on a rocky path lined with cactus and mesquite and crawled the last few hundred yards to the 8,751-foot high summit Friday.

"If you've ever done anything unimaginable, this is twice that," climber Dave Kiley radioed from the top. Park Superintendent Bill Dunmire said the trio "whoopped it up on the top" and doused themselves with champagne as they watched "a great sunset from the summit." He said Kiley, 29, of Los Angeles, Donnie Rogers, 26, and Joe Moss, 32, both of Dallas, camped just beneath the summit Friday night and would make their descent today aboard an Army helicopter.

"It took me five days to get to the top of the mountain. now I can do anything I want the rest of my life," radioed Rogers from the summit.

The trio - all members of POINT, Paraplegics On Indpendent Nature Trips - said earlier the climb was planned to demonstrate what handicapped people can do unaid-

"I'm just very proud of them, proud of our accomplishment and really kind of speechless about the whole thing " said Michael "Shorty" Powers of Dallas, who dropped out of the climb Monday and watched the final ascent through a telescope at the base of the mountain. "Congratulations to the whole handicapped world because that's what it means ...," Powers said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press. Kiley led as the three neared the top, but he stopped until the others caught up and they touched the monument on the summit at the same time, said Powers. "It's been 13 years since I've worked with a team like this, and if everyone would work together like this the world would be a better place," said Moss.

The men pushed their way up the mountain in specially designed wheelchairs with pneumatic tires - "almost like snow tires" - that gripped the gravel horse trial, said Dunmire. Each climber carried his own tool kit, camping gear and food.

All three suffered from sores and blisters on their hands and buttocks, wounds they got by scooting over to rocky ledges that forced them to dismount and drag their chairs base 10 Tridents. The Navy has declined to release the Ohio's exact arrival date.

The Ohio, believed to be somewhere in the Atlantic on a shakedown cruise, has successfully fired non-nuclear Trident missiles from a submerged position while a Soviet intelligence ship watched.

The Canadian destroyer escort Saskatchewan and the long-range Aurora aircraft assumed watchdog duties from the U.S. forces Wednesday morning.

By agreement, Canadian forces patrol an area extending about 1,000 miles west of the strait and north to include "a good portion of the Gulf of Alaska," said Cmdr. Don Lory, a Canadian Defense Department spokesman.

The Saskatchewan and Sarychev exchanged signals but Edwards doubted there had been much additional communication.

Soviet intelligence ships "are usually very closemouthed and offer no more than the normal politeness at sea, an exchange of identities and maybe a 'good morning," he said.

Efforts Friday by The Associated Press to contact the Soviet vessel with a shipto-shore call were unsuccessful. The radio signal apparently reached the ship, but there was no response. said Larry George, a high seas operator for American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

DPS Graduate Assigned Here

AUSTIN - Jan Russell Cook of Borger has been commissioned as a Trooper with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Cook received his commission as a State of Texas law enforcement officer from Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director, in a graduation ceremony at DPS Headquarters in Austin.

Trooper Cook, 21, has been assigned to the Highway Patrol Service and will be stationed at Hereford.

Cook completed a challenging 18-week training program at the DPS Academy. The intensive course, recognized as one of the best programs of its kind in the U.S., included instruction in traffic law enforcement, accident investigation, the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure, firearms training, first aid, narcotics identification and other subjects related to law enforcement.

"Besides being trained to carry out police duties in a highly proficient manner. these officers have been taught to be responsive to the law enforcement needs of a community and its citizens," said Colonel Adams. "But their foremost duty is to faithfully serve the citizens of Texas.

Approximately 300 persons will undergo the special training and graduation from the DPS Academy during 1982.

Trooper Cook is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Russell Cook of Bartlesville, Oklahoma.

Service On Idle Kansas-Texas Line Could Start Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) - Kansas Sen. Nancy Kassebaum says service along an idle stretch of former Rock Island Railroad track from Salina, Kan., to Dallas could begin as early as

Mrs. Kassebaum made the comment Friday following a meeting with Robert Blanchette, administrator of the Federal Railroad Administration, officials of the consortium that plans to operate the line and members of the Kansas and Oklahoma congressional delegations.

The OKT Rail Users Association. the OKT Railroad and the state of Oklahoma reached agreement in principle in May to buy the line for $55 million from the estate of the bankrupt Rock Island. However, the sale was contingent upon obtaining federal loans of $25 million.

"As a result of progress we made today, I'm optimistic that service on the line can be initiated by fall," Mrs. Kassebaum said. She said the FRA has been reluctant to commit itself to the loan without at least part of it possibly $15 million - being guaranteed by the operators.

"In our meeting today, they seemed to believe they could and would be willing to do that," Mrs. Kassebaum

Leader Of Unification Church Sentenced

For Tax Evasion

NEW YORK (AP) - The Rev. Sun Myung Moon has been sentenced to 18 months in prison and fined $25,000 by a judge who said the Korean evangelist must serve as a lesson to others who try to evade taxes.

Lawyers for Moon and his top finan-cial aide, Takuru Kamiyama, who received a six-month sentence and a $5,000 fine, said they would appeal the convictions on tax evasion and conspiracy charges.

Both men remained free on personal recognizance bonds - $250,000 for Moon, $100,000 for Kamiyama.

U.S. District Judge Gerard Goettel handed down the sentences Friday, saying that although Moon was a first offender and a "good family man," a prison sentence was necessary to keep the public from becoming cynical about justice for the rich and Moon, 62, sat impassively, slightly slumped with his hands folded in his lap, as the sentence was read.

Reagan Administration Criticized On Weapons Report

WASHINGTON (AP) -Key lawmakers are criticizing the Reagan administration for its delay in giving Congress a secret report that says Israel may have violated a standing agreement not to use U.S.-supplied weapons for offensive purposes in its invasion of Lebanon.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, also said he was disturbed by the administration's secret classification of the document.

"The administration's attempt to suppress this report is totally unjustified," Zablocki said Friday after the document went to Capitol

Zablocki said he had sent a letter to Secretary of State George P. Shultz registering a "strenuous protest."

Noting that the classified report failed to include a specific determination on Israel's use of deadly cluster bombs in Lebanon, the Wisconsin Democrat called this "an inexcusable omission, particularly since Israeli Defense Ministry officials have publicly acknowledged such use."

Meanwhile, the New York Times reported today that the Reagan admininistration is holding up a shipment of cluster-bomb artillery shells to Israel. State Department spokesman Anita Stockman said she had no information on the report.

Agents Uncover Big Food Stamp Scam

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) -Undercover agents used food stamps to purchase everything from a home to the services of a prostitute in helping to crack what may be the nation's biggest food stamp scam, authorities said Friday.

The U.S. attorney's office said 68 people had been charged with food stamp trafficking. In addition, the Clark County district attorney's office filed charges against 44 others for fraud against the food stamp program. Sixty other cases are under study, according to federal authorities.

Ed Kane, an assistant U.S. attorney, said a dozen undercover agents working with Department of Agriculture and the Secret Service had exchanged $126,750 worth of food stamps for $25,489 in cash and a long list of merchandise and ser-

Kane said three assistant U.S. attorneys had been brought in from the Department of Justice in Washington to help prosecute the case.

Lamond Mills, U.S. attorney for Nevada, said the four-month undercover operation was closed down because his office did not have the staff to continue.

About 40 county and federal officers late Thursday began rounding up the people indicted. More than 30 arrests were reported by midafternoon Friday.

Kane said intelligence information was used to develop targets for the investigation. In other cases, agents simply went out and asked people if they knew where the stamps could be sold. He said the stamps that were sold by agents were made available through the Agriculture Department. The stamps were generally sold or traded at 50 cents on the dollar, Kane said, and the buyers often were store clerks or security guards who passed them off at stores where they were redeemed dollar for dollar.

Included were three cars. two vans, a three-wheel motorcycle, a Mexican Macaw parrot, television sets, stereos, radios, tools, jewelry, clothing, automobile tires, weapons and several adult films.

Tougher Juries Affect Prison Overcrowding

By KATHY BAKER Associated Press Writer

Prosecutors offered the accused a 10-year sentence if he would plead guilty to the robbery charge. But he was a first-timer and thought he could do better than that. He demanded a jury of his peers. He got one.

They sentenced him to 50 years in prison.

Harris County District Attorney John Holmes offers that case as just one example of a changing psychology among Texans that is creating a population boom in the Texas Department of Corrections was forced to hang out a "No Vacancy" sign this spring.

He and others say that meaner criminals and tougher juries are the reason for the prison population crisis, even more so than the commonly blamed factors of jobless migrants coming into the state spurring a crime

Texas criminals are getting meaner and fed-up citizens are fighting back the only way they know how - by handing out longer prison sentences and giving hard time more often, even to firsttime offenders.

TDC officials predict that an already overburdened prison system will net 500 new inmates each month for the foreseeable future.

Criminal justice experts agree the criminal caseload is up, forcing them to send more offenders into a penal system that cannot handle any more prisoners. But they also agree that the psychology of both criminals and the communities they offend is changing, out of sync with increases in crime or population. Texas' crime rate rose 2.5

percent from 1980 to 1981. Violent crimes rose about 2 percent. But Texas' prison population more than doubled that percentage over the same period, about 5.4 per-

The population as a whole has paced the crime rate, so the prison population has grown at about double that

The number of inmates continued upward during the first half of 1982. In June, there were 33,097 prisoners in the Texas Department of Corrections. "There has been an increase in the criminal caseload, but that's not the reason for the increase in the population at the penitentiary, in my opinion," said Holmes. "I think people are fed up with criminality, and it's being reflected in what they do sitting as jurors. "Time and time again peoreflecting in their verdicts and sentences the attitude of the public in general. It's no longer 'turn the other cheek, this is just a poor boy gone bad. Let's give this guy some professional help and guidance.'

"The public has seen we've tried that. We don't put our money where our mouth is to fund those types of programs adequately to do any good. They're frustrated with it, and they say, 'Well, dammit, at least if we throw away the key, they're not going to be out there hitting us again."

Across the state in El Paso, Assistant District Attorney Bill Moody sees the same thing happening:

"We are seeing a trend of less probation and more time to serve," he said. "Used to be in this city 20 years was considered a long sentence on a murder case. Now we're getting 50 years on the average."

The crime rate does affect sentencing. More of those sitting in judgment have been directly affected by crime, or know someone who has. Their sense of increasing lawlessness may be out of proportion to the hard numbers, but it is causing them to "throw the book" at offenders.

"In the past, except for very heinous crimes, they almost always gave probation, but that's not the case now," said State District Judge Darrell Hester of Brownsville. "They or one of their neighbors has had their car stolen or had their house burglarized. They are righteously indignant. You see it in voir dire. The lawyers will ask if anyone has had any experience with burglarly or the like and the hands go up all over the place."

The majority of criminal cases are tried before judges not juries. Most judges will say they met justice without regard to the swing of public opinion, but they must mirror the prevailing community at-

"If I started deviating from what the jury would do," said Hester, "the lawyers would want to try all their cases before a jury."

"Recently, (State District Judge Sam) Callan gave these two guys life for murder," said Moody. "It was almost unheard of before that a judge would sentence people to life."

Texans did not suddenly get tough on crime. The latest prison overcrowding crisis is part of a long-time trend, not just a result of 1980s more crime, statistics show. The Legislature's House Study Group issued a 1979 report that showed Texas' "rate of imprisonment" in 1950 was 17 percent below the between 1968 and 1978, Texas' population increased by 19 percent, while its prison population jumped a whopping 101 percent. "A lot of the criminals here are transients," said defense attorney Joseph Calamia of El Paso. "The economy has a lot to do with it. They won't hesitate to pull a crime to feed themselves.

No Respect In Hometown

And Jesus said to them, "A prophet is respected everywhere except in his home town and by his family." - Matthew 13:57.

While attending a recent meeting, we heard the speaker introduced as an expert in his field. The speaker responded by saying he had found that "you have to be at least 50 miles from home to qualify as an expert." We suspect he had read that Bible verse.

We have a number of outstanding citizens in Hereford who have probably learned the truth of that verse. They are people with unique talents who are taken for granted by the home folks. It's not they they get no respect; they simply are not seen as experts.

What brought this subject to mind was an item we read in the Slaton newspaper. It reported that a rape victim had been taken to Hereford so that Sheriff Travis McPherson could hypnotize her in an attempt to gain additional details about the rapist.

McPherson is well known throughout the Southwest for his expertise in forsenic hypsosis. He has been called on frequently to speak on the subject and to aid investigations where the recall of witnesses is vital to the

Other local leaders who we sometime take for granted, just to name a few, include: Wayne Thomas, who has gained top stature as a member of the state College Coordinating Board; Clint Formby, Tech board of regents and a past state and national officer in the broadcast field; Doug Manning, a featured speaker and author across the nation; Bruce Coleman, who represents the county as a director of the National Association of County Organizations and is also known for his work with mental health agencies; Margaret Formby, president of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage; Frank Ford, known internationally for his natural foods products; Jim Conkwright, a cattleman who has made his mark across the nation and was the youngest president ever elected by the Texas Hereford Association (1971); Leo Witkowski, active in the state and nation on wheat growers' boards; James Witherspoon, prominent attorney who is also longtime executive secretary on the Texas -New Mexico. Sugar Beet Growers, and the list goes on

We have an idea the message imparted in the Biblical verse covers more than prophets and experts. How many young men have found it difficult to make a name for themselves in their home towns?

If a young man returns to his home town as a doctor, for instance, many folks would remember only that he was "John Doe's little boy," and they might be wary of going to him

Such is life, now and in Jesus' time.

THE TROUBLE WITH UMBRELLAS

You must understand that I am not an expert on umbrellas. I have lived in a simi-arid area of the world all of my life. I have only needed an umbrella about fifty times during my lifetime. Forty-three of those times the umbrella was in the closet at home while I was in the rain somewhere else.

That's the trouble with umbrellas. They are never there when you need them. When you don't need them they are an absolute pain to have around. What do you do with an umbrella when it isn't raining? You can throw it in the backseat of the car. This works fine until someone sits on it. Then the thing is bent and will never work again. You can put it in the trunk of the car and drown while trying to get the thing when it rains. You can get one of the new fold-up models and put it in the car pocket. This fills up the car pocket so nothing else can ever be put there. The thing will fall out everytime the pocket is opened and rattle when the pocket is closed. Besides all of this, I can't figure out how to open one of these ingenious little tyrants.

The guy who invented the fold-up umbrella was the same guy who invented the fold-up map. He hated the whole world and got even.

Last Sunday it rained. I was dressed in my Sunday suit and decided to give the old umbrella a try. The first thing I noticed is the thing will only keep the top of you dry. What about the crease in my pants?

The second thing I noticed is when you get to the car, you then have a problem. How do you get in the car with an open umbrella? You hold the thing outside the door until you are in and then you have to reach out in the rain to fold it up. When you do so, the top half of you gets wet.

Then comes the biggie ... what do you do with a wet umbrella in a car? You are forced to drag the thing across your lap to get it onto the floor board on the other side. So the rest of you gets wet. Then the thing sits there and drips all over the car. I concluded I would have been a lot drier if I had left the thing in the closet where it belongs.

At least I know now where to put an umbrella!

Congress Can Trim Military Fat

By RICHARD LESHER U.S. Chamber President

WASHINGTON -- Those who insist that the Defense budget can be trimmed without interfering with our needed military buildup are frequently challenged by Pentagon officials to demonstrate where such savings can be made.

That's not always an easy task for those without access to complete information on the department's operations, but there is one area that clearly offers opportunities for savings - the contracting out to the private sector of certain commercial and industrial services now performed "in-house."

Unfortunately, Congress appears to be moving in the opposite direction. In its draft of Department of Defense Authorization Bill for fiscal year 1983 (H.R. 6030), the House Armed Services committee has strongly recommended a one-year moratorium on contracting out by the Pentagon, which could spell disaster for many small businesses that depend on Defense as a customer. As if that were not enough, the bill would also provide 17,000 additional civil service personnel for commercial activities. It deletes all funding for cost comparison studies to evaluate the potential Military Pay Bill (H.R. 6317) contains language that essentially prohibits the conversion of fire fighting and security services to the private sector.

As for the Senate, it has already approved an amendment by Sen. George Mitchell (D-Maine) to prohibit the contracting out of fire fighting and security needs at military installations. The amendment passed, despite a Pentagon estimate that it will cost the taxpayer an additional $50 million.

Defense is not the only department in which your tax dollars could be saved by turning to competitive bidding for contracts in the private sector. The General Accounting Office has estimated that the federal government now performs some 11,000 commercial or industrial activities at a cost of $19 billion per year. Rather than compete unfairly with the private sector at the taxpayers' expense, Uncle Sam could hire businesses, particularly small businesses, to perform many of these services more efficiently and at a cheaper cost. In fact, procurement experts estimate that com-costs of a particular job or service by as much as 25 to 50

The greatest source of opposition to this effort comes from federal employees and their advocates in Congress who fear a loss of jobs and turf.

It has been 26 years now since the Eisenhower Administration issued a directive that the government should not provide services that put it in competition with private industry. It is time that the federal establishment, including a supposedly deficit-minded Congress, take this policy seriously. Taxpayers should insist that when these defense bills reach the floor of Congress for final action later this month, that they be made to encourage rather than inhibit greater reliance on contracts for needed goods and services. The Pentagon, our national defense and the civil service would all survive this modest belt-tightening - and the private sector could sure use the business!

Dues-Paying Americans Tired of 'Voluntary' Poor

Historically in our nation poor people were looked down upon, even by themselves.

Grandparents now living remember well the expression, "Poor people have poor ways."

Compassion for the poor was manifest mostly by church-sponsored charity, by Charistmas food baskets and by Salvation Army soup kit-

It was politicians of the '30s who, for altruistic or pragmatic motives, began to relate their campaigns to "the poor," to "helping poor

And there is a compassion characteristic of most Americans which soon elevated "charity" to a "national obligation."

From that day to this, there has been no safer political posture than charity for poor

The word "charity" to outdistance the stigma, became "welfare." More recently the word

"welfare" was supplanted by the word "entitlements." Poor people were "entitled," they decided, to certain special priviledges - untaxable unemployment pay, food stamps, medical care, child support, education, low rent. Only recently have I begun to notice a backlash - at first subtle, then vigorous - an escalation of resentment against the voluntary poor.

The first tenent of civilization has been "you don't kick a man when he's down." Now there is an increasing chorus of dues-paying Americans suggesting that may be just what some people need. And at the crescendo of this backlash I read an editorial in the Florida Suncoast News. Suncoast News editor Charles Reese says, "To heck with the poor."

Let me synopsize what he "We've been talking about

Farms Can't Use Deficit Financing

Editor's note: The Bootleg one salable commodity i Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek reports on the farming situation this week, more or less.

Dear Editor:

Anybody familiar with the matter knows that farming is in financial trouble, just as any business would be when it's paying 1982 costs and getting 1932 income.

You can get by paying a Congressman 1982 wages while getting 1932 results, but you can't do it farming. The government can spend more than it takes in and keep going, or at least it has for a long time now, but no agricultural experts have figure out how a farmer can. Small town bankers take a different view toward deficit financing then Washington.

I can't say it'd be any comfort to a farmer trying to keep his head above water but I've just read about a tract of land that costs $50,000 an acre to operate and hasn't produced

The land is located in Washington, D.C. It's the 18 acres surrounding the White House. It takes 26 full-time employees at a cost of $900,000 a year to keep that piece of land in shape. That figures out to be $50,000 an Farmers ought to send a delegation to Washington to try to figure out how it's done. If you can spend $50,000 an acre, not produce one penny of income, and still not get foreclosed on, you'd have the kind of information farmers have been needing for years.

As for having 26 employees working 18 acres, which is not quite 7 tenths of an acre apiece, even a farm in the shape of this one out here could get by on a few less. Oh, it might take 26 for a few months to straighten things out, but after that I could cut back quite a few.

Yours faithfully,

Democracy, Mexican style

Without having to go to the bother of counting votes, Mexico has elected a new president.

He is Miguel de la Madrid Hurtado. The Mexican electoral commission assures that while it may be awhile before all the ballots from the July 4 election are tabulated and the official results released, he is definitely the president-elect.

While the delay in the count occasioned some muted dissipation among the appendix occasioned.

While the delay in the count occasioned some muted dissatisfaction among the opposition, there is no reason to question the commission's word. De la Madrid is the candidate of the governing Institutional Revolutionary Party, which has won every election since 1929. His victory was considered sealed a year ago when he was personally selected by outgoing President Jose Lopez Portillo, the traditional Mexican nominating process that does away with all the bother of party-splitting rival candidacies and unruly conventions.

The obvious question at this point is why the Mexicans go to the bother of a campaign and election at all. The traditional answer is that the process allows Mexicans to get to know the man who will be their next leader. And in this election, it gave candidate de la Madrid, an economist with no experience in practical politics and whose selection was something of a surprise, an opportunity to get to know Mexicans outside the higher reaches of government.

cans outside the higher reaches of government.

The Mexican process is not one that would be recognized as having much to do with democracy as understood north of the Rio Grande. With a self-perpetuating elite submitting its decisions for assured ratification by an obedient public, superficially it would appear to have more in common with the empty rituals of Soviet-style people's democracies.

It would be wrong, however, for that reason to dismiss the Mexican system as nothing democratic by North American and West European definitions.

The important points are that it is the product of Mexican conditions and that it has worked in those conditions for half a century, containing the social violence and political instability that characterized independent Mexico throughout the previous century and enabling the country to begin to development op a modern economy.

For all its obvious flaws, which include growing corruption at the top, Mexicans have considerably more to show for their one-party democracy than do the military juntas that are such an unrewarding Latin tradition, or for that matter most of the presidential-style republics. Cut from the American pattern, the latter's democratic institutions are usually more ritual than substance and all too often facades for one more ritual than substance and all too often facades for one-

The Mexican system is at least Mexico's own. As such, it has to be adaptable to changing Mexican conditions if it is to

That has been the real issue of this election.

While the governing party's victory was never in question, there was more opposition this time than ever before — a total of six other parties, five of them newly registered and distributed across the political spectrum with the Communist-dominated Unified Socialist Party at the extreme left.

The proliferation has been encouraged by the government to provide political channels for dissent in an increasingly sophisticated population. It also has the effect, the government's more skeptical disticts add, of splitting the opposition

Whatever the motivation, the size of that opposition vote and its distribution are of intense interest not only to Mexi-

These are no easy times for Mexico. Economic development has brought economic problems. Growth has been uneven. Having had difficulty absorbing sudden new oil wealth, the country has recently been hit with sagging prices and world demand. It is heavily in debt to foreign bankers and getting in deeper to continue financing ambitious industrial projects.

All of which makes this election and the electoral commission's final count of the results much more than academic exercises in democracy, Mexican style.

Mexicans have a lot riding on the resilience of their political system and its ability to evolve to meet the needs of an increasingly complex society.

So do their neighbors.

Industry insiders say the famine in the oil patch follows a feast last year, when the hottest drilling boom in more than a decade encouraged many smaller firms to take out big loans in hopes of making big profits.

"It turned around in about 45 days in late January," says Robert Hampton of the Delta Drilling Co. in Tyler.

Now, says Lynn L. McCormick, a banking expert with a Dallas investment analyst firm, "there's been a correction. Those who didn't know what they're doing are getting weeded out. That applies to banks, as well as borrowers.'

With the kind of atmosphere we have had in the energy area, there were a lot of people attracted to it," said McCormick, a vice president of Eppler, Guerin & Turner Inc. "In that kind of atmosphere the person with no talent can make money just like the person with talent and know-how."

More than 90 energy-related companies in Houston alone have filed for bankruptcy since the beginning of the year, and a lawyer, who asked not to be named, said more were on their way to court.

"We've got 'em lined up at the office waiting," he said. Banks are watching their energy portfolios closely. Loans, at premium rates, are still available to large energy-related companies, but even these firms are laying off workers and cutting back on exploration and drilling plans.

Failure of the Penn Square National Bank in Oklahoma City, which was heavily involved in energy loans, sent shock waves through the Texas banks, but most are expected to weather the storm.

Bill Clawater, vice president of the Peoples National Bank in Tyler in the center of the East Texas oil fields, said Texas banks are experienced at energy loans and normally protect themselves against the boom-bust cycles of the oil business. But the failure of Penn Square, he said, triggered an extra measure of caution.

"Everybody is going to start being more careful and make sure things are buttoned up properly (before granting loans)," he said.

Stories of banking problems in the oil communities have made depositors nervous, too.

Depositors in the Abilene National Bank, in West Texas, withdrew about 12 percent of the bank's total reserves, most of it on one day, after a newspaper ran a story about the institution's energy losses. The bank weathered the heavy withdrawals with a $50 million loan from the Federal Reserve Bank. The bank ran newspaper ads and federal officials issued statements to assure depositors the bank

Said Jessica Galia, a bank stock analyst and vice president of Rauscher Pierce Refsnes in Dallas: "There's no problem at all with the bank. It's just an article that caused people to be nervous. It just fed upon itself but there's no rational reason for

Many of the economic problems in the oil patch stem from the extreme and rapid shifts in the oil drilling industry and the uncertainty of oil and gas prices.

Small companies that once provided scarce services in big demand found that the companies that were drilling were using, instead, the older, more solvent firms.

Hampton said that large companies that once contracted to the lowest bidder are now looking at the solvency of the contractor "to make sure he is financially able to hang in." In this atmosphere, he said, "the little guy is hurt most."

"Actually, everybody is affected when you have the heart go out of the business as fast as it did," said Hampton, noting his company is cutting its 1982 drilling program by $30 million, from $120 million to $90 million.

The instability of international oil prices also is causing the energy banking community to be more cautious.

James Day, a vice president of First City Bank Corp., a large Texas bank holding company, said that the drop in oil prices is now factored into loan calculations.

As a result, some loans are amended or denied, he said. "A project that was at one time feasible might at this time not be," said Day. Clawater said the creditworthiness of some firms may also be affected by the oil prices. He notes that production loans, for example, are generally based on proven reserves - the assurance that there is a certain amount of oil in a drilled reservoir.

In a standard situation, he said, the loan is based on the market is overreacting to the energy picture in pricing Texas bank stocks. Most stock for the 10 large Texas bank holding companies, which do 50 percent of the banking in the state, have dropped dramatically.

An investigation of the shooting has been turned over to Fort Bend County Sheriff Ervin Hurta, who said the matter would be referred to a grand jury without charges.

how important it is. Actually, most people would agree on the need for such a plan. We would go further. We believe we not only need a good water plan, but we also need to begin to implement that the only ones who realize

One thing seems certain. We need more water in our area. The water table of the Ogallala is dropping. Even though we sometimes have too much water in one place at one time, flooding is rare.

Flooding like that we have experienced recently in some counties is just one example of why we need a comprehensive water plan for the state. If we had the proper reservoirs, we could retain much of the flood water that pours through the Panhandle and South Plains. Many residents of East Texas take up arms every time someone from our part of the state mentions a water plan. They are afraid we will try to steal their water.

With a good plan to catch our own flood water, we should not need any East Texas contribution.

Where should these reservoirs be located? How many of them do we need? what size should they be? How should we transport water from the reservoirs to the site where it is needed? What effect will this storage and transportation system have on the environment?

These are just some of the questions we must answer, The nation is losing 12 square miles of farmland every day. We must protect the farmland we have in Texas and we must make sure we have the water that farmland needs.

Reports

We must examine our water and wastewater problems for urban areas, too. Texas will be the second most populous state in five years or so, and most Texans will live in cities. Despite the defeat of the "Water Trust Fund," the Water Development Board has $40 million to spend on water development: conservation, transportation, flood control, wastewater and related fields. This is not enough money, but the expenditure of this money needs guidance. We need a master plan for the development of water. We will be working, during the next session of the Legislature, for a plan to develop water wisely. We need your help in deciding what type of development is important. We hope you will write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068. Austin, Texas 78711, and tell us about your water

Mike Scott struck out 14 Plainview batters and unleashed a homerun in the first inning to propel the Hereford 14-15 Year-Old Babe Ruth All-Stars to a 12-8 win over Plainview in the opening round of the District Tournament in Dimmitt Friday night.

Scott, who also had a single in the game, was relieved in the bottom of the seventh inning by Sammy Suarez. Suarez stifled a Plainview uprising to preserve the win.

Hereford was to meet Olton at 8 p.m. Saturday as they continued tourney play.

The local stars opened the game with five big runs in the top of the first, aided by Scott's round -tripper. Hereford added three runs in the third, a solo tally in the fourth, and three more runs in the seventh to notch the win.

Chet Bunch was tops at the plate for Hereford with a pair of singles and a double. while Gary Ruckman and Kurt Simon each collected a triple in the contest.

The first annual Cracker Jack Old-Timers Baseball Classic, a five-inning game that will bring back into action more than 60 of baseball's biggest stars, will be aired on ESPN, Wednesday, at 8 p.m. EDT from RFK Stadium in Washington, D.C.

Hank Aaron, Stan Musial, Willie Mays, Warren Spahn, Bobby Richardson and Ernie Banks are among the many stars who will participate. Walter Alston will manage the National League team and Al Lopez the American League squad. The game will mark the return of professional baseball to the nations's capital where it has been absent since 1972. Veteran baseball commentators Red Barber and Jack Brickhouse will be joined in the announcer's booth by ESPN's Sam Rosen. George Grande and Lou Palmer of ESPN will provide commentary and interviews from the dugouts. The game wil be produced by Bruce Connal and directed by Ralph Mole in conjunction with Warren Lockhart Productions.

ESPN's production of the game will meld the action on the field with classic film highlights of the players of elimination touney with a Dimmitt team tossed in.

In the National League Division tourney the two Hereford teams will begin a three-game series at 7:30 Tuesday at the local complex. The tournament was to be a three-team event, but the Dimmitt team had trouble fielding enough players and withdrew.

The winners of the two tournaments will advance to Amarillo for further postseason play.

Kids, Inc. spokesman David McDonald reports that the admission fee for the Minor League tourney games will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, with those under six years of age admitted free.

McDonald added that all Kids, Inc. players who wear their team hats to the games will be admitted for 25 cents. The tournaments are expected to run through Friday.

Legally, any animal owner is responsible for the actions of that animal. Property damaged by the dog would be paid for under a basic Homeowner's Policy or a Comprehensive Personal Liability Policy. If the dog should bite anyone, the medical payment coverage under either of the policies would pay medical fees. Medical payment coverage generally includes all reasonable expenses such as medical services, surgery and x-ray. With most policies, there is a basic limit to the medical payment per person. However, should you decide you need it, this limit may be increased with an additional premium charge.

Luchnick's talent grab started six months ago when he discontinued his criminal law practice to devote full time to serving his basketball clients' needs. He already represented seven other NBA players.

"I loved being a criminal attorney and going to trial, but some days I'd spend eight or nine hours in the library," Luchnick said. "I love being with people so now I've got 24 hours a day to devote to my. clients.'

Instead of facing hostile prosecutors, Luchnick's opponents now will be general managers and owners of NBA teams that drafted his players. Luchnick said he thinks they'll find him to be a reasonable fellow just looking out for his family,

'My philosophy is that I want a contract that is fair for both sides," he said. "If I use my intelligence to get a contract for my client that is unfair, it's going to come back on me the next time I go in to negotiate."

The family plan approach to his players breeds confidence, Lunchnick says.

"I have a close family but next to that, my family is my clients," Luchnick said. "Before I will represent a player, he's going to meet my mother, my wife and my family. He's going to know everything about me and I'm going to know everything about him.

Clampett Enjoys New Image

TROON, Scotland (AP) Bobby Clampett, one of golf's more colorful characters, suddenly has a new image and the look of a champion as he strides toward the British Open title.

The 22-year-old, curlyhaired Californian, 5 strokes thead and 11 under par after 36 holes, analyzed his golf and talked about it as seriously as any professor.

Surely this was not the same young man who once was ordered off the course at Cherry Hills, Denver, for playing a tee shot off his knees during the U.S. Open.

"I have always thought of than an artist," Clampett olemnly said on Friday . He had just set a record for the ,067-yard, par-72 Royal Troon links with a round of 66, following 67 in a high wind on the first day.

"As a junior I used to watch movies of swings by the reatest golfers - Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Byron Nelson," he said. "I tried to adopt some aspect of each one, and so I built up a swing for myself. It is not a result of natural flair."

Miller has described Clampett's swing as the best in the world.

BRANDS HATCH, England s (AP) - "It's a natural joy to drive a race car here," said Keke Rosberg.

The Finn added that joy to his aggressive style to put his Williams into the provisional pole position during Friday's first qualifying run for Sunday's British Grand Prix.

Set in woodlands some 20 miles southeast of London, Brands Hatch "is one of the few real race tracks left, where they haven't been able to put in chicanes to slow

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Tired of being hit by Cleveland's John Denny, the California Angels hit back with their second 10-run inning in four games and then had some fighting words for the Indians' right-hander.

Denny's pitches nicked Brian Downing, Don Baylor and Fred Lynn and he came close to Mick Kelleher and Rod Carew before he was ejected by umpire Larry Barnett during the Angels' 10-run fifth inning en route to a 15-0 rout of the Indians Friday night.

Carew, for one, was sorry to see him go. "I wanted them to leave him in there because I wanted to fight," said Carew, who tripled home the first run of the big inning and later added a two-run single. "Somebody would have gotten him. When he pitches, we want to hurt him somehow, wring his neck or something. You don't see (Cleveland's Len) Barker throwing at anybody. He (Barker) could hurt somebody if he wanted, but he just throws hard and

In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Kansas City Royals 7-3, the Milwaukee Brewers turned back the Chicago White Sox 5-3, the Seattle Mariners trimmed the Baltimore Orioles 6-0, the Detroit Tigers beat the Minnesota Twins 6-3, the New York Yankees downed the Oakland A's 6-2 and the Toronto Blue Jays blanked the Texas Rangers 6-0.

The Angels battered Denny and three relievers for 14 hits, including a two-run homer by Baylor and a three-run double by Bob Boone, while Ken Forsch hurled a four-hitter for his third shutout of the season. Forsch also was the beneficiary of a 10-run third inning against the New York Yankees last Saturday night.

The victory was the sixth in a row for the Angels, who have a three-game lead over Kansas City in the AL West. Six games ago, the Royals were three games in front.

California grabbed a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Lynn's RBI single and a tworun single by Bobby Grich. Lynn also singled home the final two runs in the 10-run two teams goes back to last August when Denny hit Baylor with a pitch in Anaheim. Denny also had trouble with Reggie Jackson when Reggie was with the Yankees. Both incidents resulted in fights.

"I don't know if it's bad blood," said Baylor, "but every time he pitches against us it's a battle - a war."

Red Sox 7, Royals 3

Jim Rice drove in three runs, two with a double in Boston's six-run second inning, as the Red Sox handed Kansas City its sixth consecutive loss. Boston's big inning against Vida Blue and Bill Castro included five doubles, one short of the AL record. Dennis Eckersley, the loser in the All-Star Game, and Bob Stanley combined on a six-hitter.

Consecutive doubles by Glenn Hoffman, Gary Allenson and Reid Nichols got the Red Sox started in the second and Dwight Evans and Rice also doubled.

Signs Of A Crack In Financial System

NEW YORK (AP) -Fallout from the collapse of Penn Square Bank of Oklahoma City continues to widen on fears that tighter commercial lending policies by banks recoiling from the debacle could spark a credit crunch.

But the problem already has had a psychological effect on the financial system.

Donald Maude, an economist at Merrill Lynch & Co., said the sharp dropoff in Treasury bills rates this past week was due in part to investors turning away from riskier investments to government securities.

Rates on Treasury bills had fallen almost a full percentage point by Friday.

"I would say there definitely are cracks in the financial system," Maude said.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) -Hundreds of previous cancer experiments and continuing research worldwide could be invalidated because of a genetic impurity found in a strain of laboratory mice, scientists say.

"This is a major contamination problem of almost inestimable consequence," said Robert Auerbach, a zoologist at the University of Wisconsin. He cited examples of commercial and academic research projects that were unsuccessful, possibly because of the inconsistent response of the impure mice.

Brenda Kahan, another university zoologist, said a nine-month experiment on mice purchased in January 1981 showed they were not the genetically pure BALB-c strain, important for cancer research and other experiments because of their susceptibility to cancer.

Tests by university researchers and University of Minnesota immunologists on a second batch ordered in November 1981 confirmed the impurities, Ms. Kahan said SERVICE

Engineers Still Strike

LONDON (AP) Marathon bargaining to avert a total shutdown of Britain's state-run rail system ended today with striking train engineers apparently stick-ing to their two-week-old

Ten senior members of the Trades Union Congress, the British equivalent of America's AFL-CIO, broke off negotiations with leaders of the striking rail union shortly before 9 a.m., 4 a.m. EDT.

After the talks, which had begun 23 hours earlier, the union elders issued a onesentence statement saying proposals were being "examined" by the striking engineers' union, but participants in the meetings gave conflicting reports on whether any progress had been made.

A leading opponent of the strike - Sidney Weighell, head of the National Union of Railwaymen, Britain's largest rail union — emerged to say: "I am going home. That's it. It is finished altogether." He refused to answer reporters' questions.

But Tom Jenkins, general secretary of white-collar rail union, Transport Salaried Staffs' Association, said he was still hoping for settlement of the dispute that has crippled the nation's 11,000-mile rail network since July 4.

The Trade Union Congress, an umbrella organization representing 11.6 million workers, intervened in the dispute after state-owned

College Professor Still Missing

DENVER (AP) - A body sent from Mexico and thought to be the corpse of a missing college professor is really a different person, officials say, adding another twist to the mysterious disappearance of Nicholas Schrock seven weeks ago.

"There is no question the body we examined is not Schrock." forensic radiologist Maurice O'Connor said Friday, shocking the professor's family, which had planned a memorial service Monday.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City said the search for Schrock, an economics professor at the University of Colorado, would begin all over again.

Schrock, 42, was last seen May 30 as he drove from Arizona to a summer job in Guadalajara. Seven policemen from the Mexican village of San Ignacio, including the police chief, have been charged in the slaying of the man thought to be Schrock.

There was no immediate word on what would happen to them, now that the identification has proved false.

The body, which the pathologists say is that of an unidentified Mexican much older than Schrock, was supposedly found in a grave Saturday in San Ignacio. Mexican authorities announced Tuesday they identified the body as Schrock using medical records sent from Colorado. The body was flown to Colorado on Thursday for exnination by a team of three pathologists - Denver Cor- elections.

oner Ben Galloway, O'Connor and dental expert Wilbur Richie.

O'Connor said he became convinced the body was not Schrock when he compared X-rays of Schrock's back to X-rays of the body.

"The bones didn't look like a man in his 40s," O'Connor said. "They looked like a man in his 60s." He added, "I don't think anybody has the foggiest (idea)" how the mistake occurred.

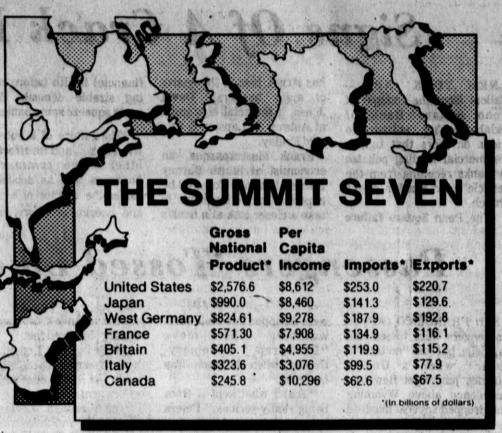

Schrock's wife, Ruth, said she was "deeply offended" by what she called a lack of professionalism by Mexican officials. She said she had canceled plans for a memorial service Monday and her brother, Wayne Wilhelm, who was involved in the search for Schrock, had canceled plans for a similar service in Ohio.

Mrs. Schrock said Mexican officials had insulted her husband's family and friends as well as the U.S. government, and suggested that officials from both nations may have been in too much of a rush to close the case.

"Maybe they sent us the wrong body intentionally and destroyed his body to hide the evidence," she said.

Wilhelm said by telephone from his Canton, Ohio, home that he still believed Schrock was murdered by San Ignacio

Schrock's 1981 pickup truck was recovered by U.S. consular officials in San Ignacio 21/2 weeks ago, where it was being used for campaigning during the recent nation

Rumors Reported

LONDON (AP) - A major new spy scandal reportedly involving lax security at a top-secret communications station is buzzing through government circles and worrying Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, British news media said today.

The London Times said the reports circulating among high officials center on the Government Communications Headquarters at Cheltenham, 90 miles northwest of London.

The headquarters controls a worldwide network of communications and surveillance stations monitoring millions of international messages which code-breakers and language experts analyze for intelligence. Cheltenham also maintains security links with British allies including the United States.

The reports follow the arraignment Thursday of Geoffrey Arthur Prime of Cheltenham on an espionage charge described by prosecutor David Matthews as being "of the gravest possible nature."

Details were not disclosed. but the formal charge states Prime "between Jan. 1, 1968 and Dec. 31, 1981 in England for purposes prejudicial to the safety and interest of the state, communicated to other persons information which was calculated to be or might be, or was intended to be. directly or indirectly useful to an enemy." Prime, 44, was ordered held in custody and his trial proceedings delayed until

More Than 600 Flee Homes in Iowa

Heavy Rain Causes Flooding

The Nation's Weather By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms continued over the Dakotas and southern Great Lakes area Saturday, while heavy rain caused flooding in Iowa, forcing hundreds to evacuate. More than 10 inches of rain Defamation League and he remains a supporter of Israel, Leland said he has opposed the invasion from the start.

"I'm a dove. I believe basically we should always settle any differences at the negotiating table. I was critical of the invasion before I went, and I was critical, in Israel, of it while I was there," he said. There's no question that Israel made offensive use of arms that were supplied with the express stipulation that they be used only for defense, Leland said.

"Congress is becoming more leery of the firepower they're obtaining from us, and I think it very definitely will affect future attempts by Israel to get more military aid from the United States."

Leland said he visited with Lebanese citizens while Israeli military escorts weren't around and found general support for the Israeli invasion.

Leland's view coincided in most ways with that of Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, of Lufkin, the first member of Congress to visit the battle area Wilson said two weeks ago, after his return, that he had expected to find strong anti-Israeli sentiment in Lebanon, but found just the opposite. "The Christian Lebanese I spoke with had accepted the fact that the Israelis were a liberating force," Leland said, that would result in Palestinian Liberation Organization forces being driven out of Lebanon.

Asked if the feeling he noticed was more one of pro-Israeli or anti-PLO, Leland said quickly, "anti-PLO."

America should continue to encourage Israel to pull out of Beirut, but at the same time the PLO must be made to leave, Leland said.

He opposes the use of U.S. military forces to aid in the evacuation of any PLO

"I think there should be some multi-national force to oversee the evacuation of PLO members, but I think it would further aggravate the situation to bring U.S. oldiers in. It would just create a target for more PLO hostility. It's a very dangerous situation."

Leland said he doesn't feel the Israelis will give the PLO much longer to clear out voluntarily.

"The longer they wait, the more entrenched they feel the PLO will get. As soon as they think they've located the strongholds of the PLO, they're going to go in and wipe them out, I'm convinced," Leland said.

ing plans.

HOUSTON (AP) - Small companies in every phase of the oil business are going broke as banks, shocked by a sudden drop in drilling rates early this year, tighten their loan policies.

Industry insiders say the famine in the oil patch follows a feast last year, when the hottest drilling boom in more than a decade encouraged many smaller firms to take out big loans in hopes of making big profits.

"It turned around in about 45 days in late January," says Robert Hampton of the Delta Drilling Co. in Tyler.

Now, says Lynn L. McCormick, a banking expert with a Dallas investment analyst firm, "there's been a correcwhat they're doing are getting weeded out. That applies to banks, as well as borrowers."

"With the kind of atmosphere we have had in the energy area, there were a lot of people attracted to it," said McCormick, a vice president of Eppler, Guerin & Turner Inc. "In that kind of atmosphere the person with no talent can make money just like the person with talent and know-how."

More than 90 energyrelated companies in Houston alone have filed for bankruptcy since the beginning of the year, and a lawyer, who asked not to be named, said more were on their way to court.

"We've got 'em lined up at the office waiting," he said.

Banks are watching their energy portfolios closely. Loans, at premium rates, are still available to large

States Are Feeling the Financial Pinch

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) -A new survey has revealed that all of the 50 states are in worse financial condition now than they were a year

Unlike the federal government, the states cannot measure their financial health by the size of their budget deficits.

Every state but Vermont has some kind of legal stricture against deficits in its operating budget, and many are even precluded from borrowing to meet prospective operating deficits. However, the states keep separate accounts for caniseparate accounts for capi-tal expenditures, and many borrow heavily to finance these accounts.

One important measure of a state's financial condition is its "balance," which at historically low levels. In the aggregate, the 50 states' balances stand at $2.4 billion, $4.1 billion less than at the start of fiscal 1982. More alarmingly, the balances are expected to drop again during fiscal 1983 — to an aggregate $1.8

The recession and federal policy changes are largely responsible for the worsening financial condition of the states. (Some states must also cope with the effects of the large tax cuts that they enacted during the "tax revolt" of the late 1970s.) Most states derive the bulk of their revenue from sales and income taxes. Revenue from both sources has fallen during the recession because of decreased consumer spending, high unemployment and little growth in wages.

Moreover, most states tie their income-tax structure to that of the federal government; so, recent reductions in federal income taxes have produced corresponding reductions in state income taxes. And the situation has been exacerbated by the Reagan administration's cuts in the transfer of federal funds to the states.

All of this means that the states will continue to feel great pressure to reduce services at the very time that the federal government is seeking to cut its own costs by shifting more responsibilities to the states. Many states will have to try to maintain minimum service levels by raising taxes, thus negating the effects of the federal tax cuts.

1982 Is a Banner Year for Lobbyists

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) -1982 ranks as a do-nothing or, at best, a do-little year on Capitol Hill.

UNIVERSAL, Texas (AP) notified early Friday that - A police spokesman says a man who allegedly stole a service station that rents truck and led a dozen officers on a chase had fired one shot and tried to ram pursuing patrol cars before he was killed in a hail of bullets.

Christopher Mills, 24, of Universal City, was shot once in the back about 3:30 a.m. Friday when the chase ended inside the San Antonio city limits, a medical examiner's spokesman said.

Bit an official ruling on Mills' death was awaited from Dr. Vincent DiMaio, Bexar County Medical Examiner, the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, Capt. Al Taylor of the Universal City Police Department said that one shot had been fired from a .25-caliber pistol found on the front seat of the stolen truck. Taylor added that one of the pursuing officers reported earlier that "she saw a flash - like a pistol flash."

Taylor said the pursuing female officer "fell back" with her patrol car after seeing the flash and warned other officers by radio that the suspect might be shooting.

"He was in a 28-foot U-Haul truck. That thing is a weapon itself," Taylor said. "He was trying to run people off the road, police and citizens alike. He had no regards for anyone. If someone had pulled out in front of him, they would have bought the farm.

Just one such issue could make a lobbyist's year. But in 1982 it was only the beginning. No sooner had the antitrust issue been tentatively settled than up the issue of new

In approving its latest budget resolution, Congress committed itself to raising $20 billion or so in additional taxes in fiscal 1983 and almost $100 billion over the next three fiscal years. Virtually every interest group and corporation in town wanted to make sure that these new taxes did not come out of its pockets.

This provided another field day for the lobbying

Airlines wanted to preserve the provision allowing corporations to "sell" excess tax credits, the so-called "safe harbor leasing." Energy companies wanted to make sure that the depreciation formula would not be changed. The insurance industry wanted to save the special tax breaks that have saved it millions of dollars a

In sum, these corpora-tions and industries wanted to insure that any additional taxes would come not from them but from the taxpayers and consumers.

So, out came the corporate checkbooks. A small army of lobbyists was mobilized. The result was gratifying to most of these corporations.

The legislation approved by the Senate Finance Committee calls for only $7.5 billion of the $21 billion in new 1983 taxes to come from corporations. The bulk of this initial tax increases will come from reduced per-sonal deductions and higher excise taxes, not from the repeal of a wide range of special-interest tax breaks. Another bonanza for the big-time lobbyists has resulted from the proposal that manufacturers of home video recorders and buyers of video recording tapes pay royalties that would be divided among the providers of entertainment.

The entertainment industry wants Congress to impose royalties of $50 on each video recorder sold and $2 on each blank tape. The music industry wants royalty extended to blank audio cassettes.

One estimate is that these royalties would cost consumers a staggering $3 bil-lion over the next 10 years.

The corporations on both sides of the issue dug deep into their pockets and hired another army of lobbyists. Among them are leading figures of the Ford and Carter administrations, an assortment of former congressman, many of Washington's most influen-tial law and public-relations firms and a number of former Federal Communicaincluding two former chair-

The royalty issue is still pending before Congress.

And that's not all. The National Football League will soon be urging Congress to approve an antitrust exemption enabling the league to forbid the move-ment of franchises. This would negate the court decision allowing the Oakland Raiders to move to Los Angeles. The checkbooks have appeared again, and the lobbyists are beginning to sign on for this battle.

This year's lobbying is not limited to Capitol Hill. For example, the FCC soon will begin awarding licenses for the new "cellular" mobile phone systems that eventually will be installed in e ry metropolitian area. Most of the nation's major communications companies expect these licenses to be worth millions of dollars annually, so they are hiring the movers and shakers to descend upon the FCC.

Considering what these battles are doing for lobbyists' bank accounts, is it any wonder that many highplaced figures in the Reagan administration are making noises about their desire to "practice law" for a time? "practice law" for a time?

Sufficient Estate Planning Should Be Done

HARTFORD, Conn., --There have been so many changes in the federal tax laws that if sufficient estate planning isn't done, your heirs could be in for a big and disappointing - surprise.

"Estate Tax Planning" is a booklet designed by Aetna Life & Casualty that gives a general understanding of the basic rules of taxation for estates valued over $225,000.

The booklet discusses what property is taxed in your estate, at what value and how the tax is calculated. It also provides information about the new marital deduction rule, the three types of wills and the tax effects of each and tax planning techniques.

"Estate Tax Planning" features charts showing the unified estate and gift tax table, simplified tax table, the effect of 10 percent compounded estate growth and the amount of federal estate taxes levied on adjusted gross estates between $600,000 and $10 million with three types of wills.

SPOTS BEFORE YOUR EYES?

QUESTION: Every so often I see spots or floating shapes in my field of vision. What causes this and do I have anything to worry about?

ANSWER: Spots and floaters are minute specs and particles of various shapes which are seen in the visual field. They occur in the gelatin fluids of the eye. They usually occur in are normally harmless, though annoying, and at first, frightening. They appear to "float" in the air before the eyes and move with the eyes.

On the other hand, if you detect a flash-type symptom it could be a danger signal. Persons with persistant spots or flashes should have a complete eye examination just to be sure.

Ushers were Bill Archinal and Victor Miller, both of Amarillo.

Sherry Upshaw of Amarillo was organist and Gayla Steinborn of Plainview was pianist. Tammy Luna of Plainview vocalized wedding selecitons including "The Lord's Prayer" and "When God Created Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white lace gown with fitted bodice, scoop neckline, peplin waist and full sleeves caught at the wrists with cuffs. Seed pearls trimmed the neck, cuffs and waistband, and the dress featured a chapel length train.

Her fingertip veil was edged in lace and was attached to a headband trimmed in seed pearls. She wore her grandmother's wedding rings and carried a bouquet of blue roses, white daisies, yellow carnations, and white lace centered with an open yellow rose and trimmed with streamers of white lace and blue and yellow satin ribbons.

Her attendants wore formal yellow chiffon dresses with pleated skirts and carried bouquets of blue, white and yellow daisies, and blue carnations.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The serving table was covered with a white cloth and blue runner and was accented with a bouquet of blue roses with yellow carnations and blue daisies. The four-tiered wedding cake was trimmed with blue and yellow roses.

Kathy Arney of Amarillo and Connie Barnhill of Stanton served cake, while Susan Campbell of Amarillo and Sherry Chaffin of Plainview served punch.

Susan Campbell of Amarillo presided at the guest registry.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Red River and will be at home in Amarillo after July 24.

The bride attended Amarillo College, where she was a member of the Badger Belles and secretary of the Baptist Student Union Council. She is a May graduate of Wayland Baptist University with a B.S. degree in elementary education. She was active in the Education Club and served as an Associate Dormitory Counselor of Ferguson Hall this past year at Wayland.

The bridegroom is a 1977 graduate of Hereford High School and graduated cum alude from Wayland Baptist University in 1981 with a B.S. degree in math. He is listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, was on the Dean's List, and is a charter member of Zeta Kappa Alpha service fraternity. He holds membership in Alpha CHi national honorsociety and Phi Alpha Theta national historical society. He is self-employed.

Along the Frio Five-Year-Old Treated for Injuries

BY MRS. OWEN ANDREWS Little five-year-old Karon Harder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Harder, was being treated in Deaf Smith General Hospital Tuesday and Wednesday for injuries when a dog bit her on her face. Several stitches were necessary to close the wounds Tuesday night, and she was being started on rabies vaccine as a precautionary measure. She is thought to be doing well.

Mrs. H.M. Mobley was hostess to a family gathering during the weekend. Coming here were her sisters, Mrs. Claude Price of Floydada, Mrs. George Bentley and Mr. Bently of Monahans, and her brother, J.W. Taylor and Mrs. Taylor of Odessa. Also here were her son, Raymond Mobley and his wife, Hazel, and their daughter, Karla (Mrs. Dean McLaughlin) all of Farmington, N.M. Also participating were Mrs. Floyd Cole, Bill Cole, John and Beverly Paetzold and Nelle Miller, of Mrs. Mobley's family.

Here visiting the J.E. Warricks this week were her grandson, Chad, and his father, Darrell Culp, of Wilcox, Ariz. The other Culp son, Keith, is here working during the summer months. He graduated from Wilcox High School last spring and plans to attend school this fall in Tucson. Darrell was attending a Culp family gathering being held here this week.

Patti Robbins of Dallas has been here this week visiting her parents, the Frank Robbins. She went to visit Rhonda and Bucky Payne, her cousins, in Amarillo the last of the week.

Pam (Mrs. Gerry Robbins) and children, T.J. and monthold Amanda Ruth, of Archer City, came this week to visit her parents, the Mike Bradfords, and in-laws, the Frank Robbins. She planned to attend the Culp reunion this week also. Baby Amanda was born June 9 on her greatgrandmother's birthday.

Some of the Andrews families from here attended a family gathering in Melrose, N.M., last Sunday. The W.F. Andrews family of Melrose had members from California and Illinois and others from Oklahoma, Going from here were the Owen Andrews, the Clark Andrews, Mrs Elmer Jones, Mrs. Laura Jones, the W.H. Andrews, Miss Alma Andrews; and from Amarillo, the Herbert Bruns and Mrs. Mattie King.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Andrews, of Carthage, Mo., were visiting his parents, the Owen Andrews, this week. They had attended a family gathering of her relatives, the Burrus family, in Canyon last Sunday.

Clark and Sue Andrews visited the Rocky Andrews in Missouri the first of the week. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brock and children returned to their home here during the weekend after a week long visit with her sister, Mrs. Rocky Andrews and family near Carthage, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Pittard and children, Jeremy, six years old, and Bethany, three, moved to Amarillo recently. He works for Southwest Airlines and was transerred from Irving. She is the former Cherie Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Mason.

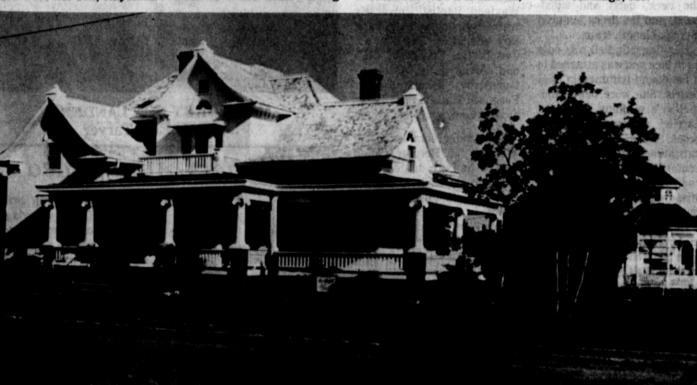

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Morrison of Dumas are the parents of a son, born July 14 in Dumas Hospital. The child has been named Jacob Cade and weighed 10 pounds, 7 ounces. He has a sister, Haiely. Mrs. Morrison is the former Jill Stephan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Stephan.

Haiely is staying with her aunt, Rhonda Payne, in Amarillo until her mother and baby brother return home. Paternal grandparents of the children are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Morrison.

How to Check Tax-Deductible Status

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) publishes two guides to help in determining whether gifts are tax deductible as charitable contributions. Not all organizations claiming that contributions to their cause are tax deductible actually have that status.

IRS guides are: the 'Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170C of the Internal Revenue Service Code: (a directory of more than 800,000 tax-exempt organizations" and "Charitable Contributions" (explains which contributions are tax deductible). Thud saw assue things perfectly for him. His father related that his own dad had been very impatient with him and often had criticized his efforts. Tim's father regretted that he seemed to be doing the same thing to Tim.

Their counselor had them talk about their feelings with one another, then helped Tim and his father decide on some projects around their house to work on together. Both seems to be more relaxed and are enjoying each other's company more. Disagreements still arise, but both work harder to find solutions instead of frustration.

Al had been feeling rather depressed after his retirement last year and his wife's death shortly after that. He decided to go to the Family Services Center to discuss his feelings of loneliness and not knowing what to do with himself after being so active during his years of working.

Through therapy sessions and a counselor's suggestion that Al try getting involved at the Senior Citizens Center, his depression has not only lifted, but Al has become more energetic.

He enjoys the fellowship with others who are much like himself and the organized programs at the Senior Citizens Center helps him to fill hours that would otherwise be spent alone.

Cost of operating the Family Services Center is budgeted at $30 per hour. Approximately 75 percent of the Center's funding comes from the Texas State Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, and the remainder is in the form of a local support including the United Way (about 2.5 percent), client fees, revenue sharing, and donations.

of the Center's financial support, there are other advantages in being associated with the United Way, says Moon. The organized structure helps coordination between the various agencies.

"We are a member of the United Way because we believe in this community and we believe that this community in some way should share in the cost of supporting a service as valuable as ours," stated Moon.

In the second example above, referral was between the Family Services Center and the Senior Citizens Center. Cooperation is maintained with other United Way agencies as well.

Sometimes young people,* especially those who have lost a parent and are lonely. can be referred to Big Brothers - Big Sisters with very favorable results, notes Moon. Other youth-oriented agencies include Boy Scouts, Camp Fire, and the YMCA.

Scouts and Camp Fire are especially helpful if the child has had trouble making friends or accepting responsibilities, and the YMCA helps build self-esteen and self-confidence in youngsters who have a high level of energy which could tend to get them into trouble, comments Moon. "We have also worked with the High Plains Epilepsy Foundation," says Moon, 'particularly to get medical and neurological evaluations accomplished."

Animals as"Toy Substitutes'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more animal letter? Please?

Last night I attended our annual city-wide Little League fund-raising carnival. Many young people suddenly decided they wanted some of the pets that were for sale. Of course, the 10-year-olds chose cute, cuddly ones to play with. No thought was given to the fact that all living things require

My worst fears were realized as we were leaving the event. The car ahead of us made a turn and an ADULT hand emerged from the window holding a hamster. I was horrified to see a baby hamster drop to the pavement. The results were sickening. I could barely cope with the anger. I don't know what to do except write to Ann Landers and hope she will print my letter.

Will she? - A Knock For Little Rock

DEAR KNOCK FOR THE ROCK: She will, along with some adivice. Some cities have ordinances stating that animals may not be sold as "toy substitutes." It began several years ago when tinted baby chicks were sold by the thousands around Easter time as novelty gifts for children. The chicks were found a few days after Easter in garbage cans and along the streets. Why not campaign for such a law in Little Rock?

My husband and I are both 34. A 19-year-old neighbor girl who used to baby-sit for us started to hang around wearing shorts and a halter top. I noticed she followed my husband from room to room, making flattering remarks and shining up to him. At first he regarded it as funny, then he wrote it off as teenage infatuation. After she propositioned him flat out, he told her he wasn't interested. The last time she was here I asked her how she had the nerve to come over here night after night and pretend she was my friend, when all the while she was trying to get my husband in the sack. She replied, "I never said I was your friend. I was your baby - sitter."

The more I think about it, the madder I get. Why should anybody get away with stuff like that? Is it possible to sue that little tramp for trying to break up my marriage? -Seeing Red In Norfolk

Heather Thomas doesn't fall down

Last summer's writer's strike put a tremendous amount of pressure on the actors to perform quickly and efficiently in their respective TV series.

For Heather Thomas, the 23-year-old former UCLA film major who was cast as apprentice stuntwoman Jody Banks on ABC's "Fall Guy" series, last summer was an experience she'll never forget.

"The scripts were shot pretty much as we got them. We were way behind schedule because of the strike, so everybody was in a rush to get the show onthe-air," says Miss Thomas, who was picked for the part by co-star Lee Majors.

We had something like five rewrites a day and I'll tell you, it taught me to become the fastest cold reader around. Thank goodness we had good writers. To be extremely frank, we all learned to be flexible, too. Under those circumstances, you better do your homework the night before. Let's face it, you are only as good as your crew.

"Lee was extremely considerate despite the fact that my role was basically an ancillary character. The first season of any series should be used to establish the characters and I didn't mind that Jody Banks wasn't involved as much as Lee's character, Colt Seavers.

"In fact, I learned much from watching and I'm writing a few stories for the second season that Lee might use. Besides, the gas. The possibilities for our show are countless." Miss Thomas, who is also penning a TV movie about biological warfare, will be seen this summer in the film, "The Wiz Kids."

Reports have circulated that Miss Thomas has had run-ins with the producers of that film because of their wish to pose the actress in the nude. She refused and much to her dismay, discovered that the film used a naked double instead.

"In films, it seems that the scripts are written by guys who've never had sex before. 'Fall Guy' is a kids show and I want to represent myself properly," she

Wash silk with care

DEAR POLLY — I have a few silk blouses and a silk dress which I've always had dry-cleaned. But dry-cleaning is so expensive these days. Can I wash these? — MAGGIE

DEAR MAGGIE — If your silk items are labeled "dry clean only," you'd be safest following those directions. However, many silk garments can be washed by hand. The problem is with dyes that may change color or bleed when wet. The only way to proceed is with caution: Test a seam allowance or facing with water and the detergent you propose to use (which should be one made for handwashing delicate fabrics) before immersing the entire garment. Silk wrinkles easily and so must be ironed before wearing. Try ironing it while still slightly damp, pressing it through a protective thin towel or press cloth. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I've discovered an easy way to scour burners on an electric range. Crumble a piece of foil into a ball and rub it over the burned places while the burner is still slightly warm. This does a better scouring job than most other cleaners. The crumpled foil is also good for removing rust on garden tools. — ANN

Private time is absolutely essential to mental well-being no matter how many responsibilities you may

By Polly Fisher

Too many people feel they're not entitled to taking time for themselves.

However, recent studies tell us that mental stress and fatigue have "close ties" with physical illness.

Finding time for oneself IS healthy for you - it is NOT selfishness.

When a person takes time

Too often most *people women, in particular - feel they are never free from their responsibilities to the family and-or the job.

They will end up, instead, taking AWAY from the family and job anyway by being ill more often, being less responsive to others or by turning against themselves because of exhaustion.

Home of the Future Attracts Fair Visitors

One doesn't miss attraction at the World's Fair, going on now through October in Knoxville, Tenn., is the Home of the Future, a geodesic dome with all the modern conveniences - and then some.

Dome homes are the brainchild of Buckminster Fuller, who has been called the 'Leonardo da Vinci of the Twentieth Century" for his inventiveness. And, in fact, Mr. Fuller serves on the board of Cathedralite, Inc., the California firm that erected the Home of the Future and is the world's largest builder of such homes.

Domes are said to enclose the most space with the least materials and to be less expensive to build and at least one-third cheaper to heat and cool than conventional homes.

The Home of the Future certainly has its share of energy-saving features (which tie in with the World's Fair theme of "Energy Turns the World"). The home makes use of "earth berming" (grading the land part way up the exterior of the house for insulation), passive solar heating to warm the interior, solar hot-water collectors, photovoltaic cells for capturing and storing the sun's energy and a wind turbine for generating electrici-

Domes have other advantages besides purely practical ones. Notably, the freespan nature of dome costruction does away with loadbearing walls and allows complete freedom for interior effects.

Thus, the Home of the Future actually has a full-size live tree in the center of the interior and such amenities as a spiral oak staircase, winding up to the second level, and a main-living section two stories high, overlooked by a balcony and skylight.

Fage 8B-The Hereford Brand-Sunday, July 18, 1982 Federal Program Rescues High Plains Farmers

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) -Like a character out of an Old West movie, Ronald Reagan has ridden to the rescue of farmers and bankers in the High Plains.

Farmers and bankers in West Texas, eastern New Mexico and western Oklahoma were saying they needed at least $100 million in federal aid to avoid a deluge of farm bankruptcies.

The lobbying effort ended successfully Thursday when President Reagan directed Agriculture Secretary John Block to issue the declarations that would enable farmers in those areas to receive direct disaster relief cash payments.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements said the program would mean as much as $350 million to $400 million in aid.

"It will enable many of our producers who faced catastrophe to continue their operations with traditional forebearance, faith and optimism," Clements said.

"A double whammy" is what one farmer called the double blow of a glutted cot-dollars in sophisticated tracton market last year that sent prices plunging and storms this year that destroyed half the area's 4 million acre crop.

"It's like having a earthquake and then a hurricane hit Detroit with all the economic problems they've already got," said Tommy Thrash, owner of a Lamb County cotton delinting plant.

"We've cried 'wolf' before, but this time the wolf is really here." Across much of the High Plains thin coats of dust swirl along fields spiked with stubs of a cotton crop shredded by hail and rotted by continual

"I'd like to stay in farming," said one, Arthur Newton of Lubbock County.

"But I'm hoping for the best and expecting the worst. worst bankruptcy."

Times were bad enough when Newton made his first planting in April.

A bumper crop last year coupled with a depressed economy that knocked off demand for textiles sent cotton prices falling by 50 percent from 1980.

Newton lost $100,000 in 1981 after making $50,000 the year before, he said.

He'll be lucky, he said, to lose only $100,000 this year, he million, industry officials predict. High Plains farmers last year produced all but about 2 million bales of the state's output.

"If we don't get a drastic change, there'll be 50 percent of the farmers that won't make it this year," said K.C. Preston, a Lubbock County farmer of 33 years. He was interviewed before Reagan announced the aid program.

Under the federal aid program, Preston got at least some of the "drastic change" he was seeking. Special disaster payments will include 20.5 cents per pound for crop losses in excess of 25 percent of a cotton crop. For losses in excess of 40 percent of a crop, the payments will be $1.75 a bushel for wheat, 15 cents for corn or barley and 18 cents for grain sorghum, Clements said.

Farmers generally say they need to sell cotton for 65 cents a pound to break even. But Preston said that he sold last year's crop for 36 cents a pound - three cents less than the prevailing price when he moved here in 1949.

A June 18 hailstorm stripped this year's crop.

Lubbock bankers variously predicted that a fourth to half of the area's farmers would face foreclosure without government relief.

The bankers joined the farmers in the lobbying effort that resulted in the federal aid program.

"If something is not done by the federal government, not only will a substantial percentage of the farmers go out of business ... but it will also start a domino effect that will be very destructive for the entire economy of West Texas," the bankers wrote in a letter to Block

If the federal aid hadn't been approved, Joe Birdwell, a loan officer at American State Bank, predicted that his bank would have to refused loans next year to a fourth of its farmer-customers.

"It didn't look good going into this year with the price situation," Birdwell said "But if you don't have any cotton at all it doesn't make any difference whether the price is five cents a pound or $5 a pound."

Farmers like Newton, who rent most of their land and who owe on their equipment, are in the most danger of going under, officials said. Newton owns 200 acres and leases another 700.

"Bankers can't loan money continually," Newton said. "It's as if your neighbor comes to you and borrows $1,000 on a $700 car. Then next vear he comes and asks for $1,500 on that same car. How long can you keep doing that?"

Hale County farmer Richard Howard, who owns most of his land and part of an Anton, Texas, bank, said he isn't sure after this spring how long he wants to keep farming.

"I think I can survive, but I'm not sure I want this much (financial) exposure again," Howard said. "I've spent $130,000 this year and I'm not sure I'm going to get much of that back."

For now, consumers probably won't feel any impact from the higher prices the bad weather will cause, said Edward Breihan, general manager of a Lubbock cottonseed oil mill and president

Fresh Market Vegetables Up 3 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) -The acreage of commercial vegetables produced for the fresh market is estimated at 270,000 acres this summer in the major producing states, up 3 percent from July-September of last year, says the Agriculture Department.

Vegetables surveyed included increased acreages for broccoli, carrots, cauliflower, clery, lettuce and tomatoes. The acreage of sweet corn for the summer market was reported down from a year ago.

The report also showed 19 percent increase for honevdew melons to 14,200 acres from 11,900 acres last summer.

of the National Cotton Coun-

But in the long run, the expected farm failures may do what some lawmakers are asking the government to pay farmers to do - cut cotton production, Breihan said. The reduced competition will mean higher prices, he said.

"The farmers that are able to stay in business will make some money," he said.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Continued rains, hail and cool nights hampered South Plains cotton this week in what may be the worst weather disaster in that area's agricultural history, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

An estimated 1.3 million acres of cotton were badly damaged by the freaky weather, and farmers have been busy replanting some of that acreage to sorghum grain and soybeans in an effort to soften overall losses, Pfannstiel said.

The South Plains' weatherdamaged wheat crop is being harvested, and corn and soybeans are in fair to good shape. The one bright spot is the excellent condition of livestock and ranges.

While soil moisture was adequate to surplus in the Plains, the state's southwestern areas remained dry. In the upper Rio Grande Valley, the Uvalde region and South Central Texas, hot, dry weather is drying ranges and shriveling sorghum and cotton fields. Livestock remain in fair to good shape, Vegetable gardens are generally doing well throughout the state, peach harvesting is under way and quality is fair to good, but the pecan crop appears light in most areas. Except where there has been too much or too little rain, hay cutting is active with good yields.

In Central Texas, sorghum harvesting starts soon, cotton and peanuts are progressing and cattle are holding up well on rapidly drying pastures, Pfannstiel said. East Texas reports good hay yields and a small peach crop.

Soil moisture remains short in the Upper Coast where hay harvesting is well along and grain sorghum and rice

Storms Coupled With Economy To Make Farming Disaster

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) -Farmers and bankers say the High Plains deserves $100 million in federal disaster relief, even if the free enterprise system and a bad economy are as much to blame as the weather for a predicted deluge of farm bankruptcies.

"A double whammy" is what one farmer called the double blow of a glutted cotton market last year that sent prices plunging and storms this year that destroyed half the area's 4 million acre crop.

Farmers To Receive Limited Water Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) -After two days of fractious debate, the Senate has approved legislation limiting the financial help Western farmers receive on government-supplied irrigation water.

The bill, passed 49-13 Friday night, now goes to a conference committee with the House which earlier approved a bill setting different subsidy terms.

The measure adopted by the Senate was a compromise version with restrictions on farmers that were tighter than originally proposed by the leadership.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, forced the compromise in part by threatening to use an amendment to hold the Senate in session over the weekend unless concessions were made by spon-Metzenbaum said the bill as originally proposed would have meant millions of dollars in federal subsidies for rich corporate farms in the West, rather than limiting subsidies to small, family farms as the law intended.

Millions in subsidies will continue to flow to Western farmers and corporations under the final measure which Metzenbaum said was still "not a great bill."

But he said supporters of subsidized irrigation had made "very significant concessions."

The bill would limit the cutrate water from federal irrigation projects to farms of 1,280 acres or less.

Farms below that size must repay their share of the cost of irrigation facilities, but with no interest charged on the 40-year debt.

Metzenbaum originally supported a 960-acre limit and a 14 percent interest rate.

The House bill includes the 960-acre limit, but sets a 5 percent interest rate for figuring water charges on bigger farms. The House-Senate conference committee will have to resolve the differences between the two doesn't look too promising right now for soybean prices to improve much in the coming year, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials acknowledge it's early to be talking about specifics, but there are some basic indicators which need to be looked at, including the likelihood of a larger soybean crop in 1982.

"After rising from a February low of $5.99 a bushel to $6.27 in May, farm prices for soybeans fell to $6.07 in June," the department's Economic Research Service said Friday.

Prospects for a larger harvest than in 1981 will continue to bear heavily on oldcrop beans and hold down prices this summer, it said.

"As of June 1, U.S. farmers indicated that they planted or intend to plant 72.2 million acres to soybeans, up 6 percent from 1981 and 1 percent above the previous record set in 1980," the report said. "The largest increases are in-

Although weather will be the biggest determining factor, USDA officials said a crop of about 2.16 billion bushels is possible, compared to 2.03 billion last year.

The soybean stockpile left over when the new season begins on Sept. 1 currently is expected to be about 270 million bushels. If the supplydemand situation shapes up as officials now project, the soybean carryover on Sept. 1, 1983, could rise to about 345 million bushels.

Field day activities will be directed by Cecil Regier, Manager of the Research Field. "We are on our third year of research on efficiency of high and low pressure center pivot sprinklers and have information on the efficiency of each system". A set up for injecting insecticides through the sprinklers will be explained.

BRACKETTVILLE, Texas of Texas" where 20 major motion pictures and television shows have been filmed over the last 31 years.

"Anybody in the world can buy Alamo Village who has the money," said Shahan. His $4 million asking price includes a section of land, the largest reproduction of the Alamo ever built, and an authentic 1800s western town that includes a jail, saloons, general stores, an oftenrobbed bank, hotels, school, church, blacksmith shop, stables and other buildings.

Thousands of tourists have trooped through the streets of Alamo Village where photos of John Wayne, Richard Widmark, Dean Martin, Raquel Welch, Dennis Weaver, Linda Cristal, Richard Boone, Chill Wills, Ken Curtis, Jimmy Stewart, George Kennedy, Will Greer and numerous other actors are displayed in museums, along with many of the props they used in movies filmed here.

Regardless of whether he sells the town - which contains memorabilia of Wayne's 1959 epic "The Alamo," the 1967 "Bandolero," the 1980 "Barbarosa" and other films -Shahan said this probably will be the last summer Alamo Village is open daily to tourists.

"Wayne dropped $4 million here in 51/2 months," said Shahan, a six times mayor of Brackettville who personally convinced Wayne to change his plans to film the movie in Mexico. "The Alamo" wound up costing "The Duke" $12 million, making it the most expensive motion picture ever filmed to that time.

Shahan said he wants to discontinue opening the village on his sprawling 35-square-mile ranch to the public from Memorial Day to Labor Day, as he has for years, to devote more time to raising Longhorns and his other pursuits, such as managing several performers.

Each summer Alamo Village - located 7 miles north of U.S. 90 at Brackettville - has featured mock gunfights, stagecoach rides and four daily music shows, providing a start for several young musicians and actors. It contains a restaurant and Indian store and tradiing post that sell curios to tourists.

Johnny Rodriguez, one of the first Mexican-American country-western stars, began his career here an idiot named Ortho" in western melodramas, and picking and singing at one of the town's saloons. Country music singer "Dottsy" Brodt of Seguin, Texas, also launched her career at Alamo Village, along with Shahan's latest singing discovery, "Valentino" Hernandez of San Antonio, who is generating a large following

If a buyer does not come forth, Shahan said he has other plans for Alamo Village.

"In the meantime, we'll use it to make movies and for television. It's like a private commissary to me," Shahan

He said he probably would stage two or three Longhorn sales a year at the site, plus perhaps an art show a year featuring paintings and bronze statues.

Shahan, a history and arts buff among his many other pursuits, has begun collection of Indian paintings and Old West statues. His wife, Virginia, collects arrowheads she ferrets out in the nearby countryside and has an extensive collection of Indian

Free," starring Susan Saint

James and Michael Brandon.

Then she began to do small roles on various television series. She was also in the television movie "Marriage

Is Alive and Well," and the Disney movie "The Devil and

Max Devlin."

He said one group has an option to lease Alamo Village by Nov. 1, after it closes on Sept. 30. "If they don't lease it, then there'll either be somebody buy it or we'll continue operating it like a private commissary," Shahan said. 'We're changing its image.

We just want to make it a town that helps us in our other businesses. It (tourist business) takes five months that I'm just doing the public a favor. I'm not making any money. Our intention is to make it much more flamboyant, more lucrative and more worldwide known. Tourists can always come when we're shooting movies." One moviemaker is considering filming another Alamo movie, "Thirteen Days of Glory," at the site, and Shahan said he is proposing a television series to be filmed at the location.

CBS' Simon & Simon Has Been Rejuvenated

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Jeannie Wilson thinks the CBS series "Simon & Simon" should be called "The Little Show That Wouldn't Die."

"It was dead and buried," says Miss Wilson, who stars in the private eye show as Janet Fowler. Jameson Parker and Gerald McRaney star as A.J. and Rick Simon.

The show made its debut in November 1981 in the 8 p.m. Tuesday time slot. It immediately burrowed its way to the ratings cellar. Until April, it seemed that the show would remain in the grave it had dug. Production was shut down and the show was as good as dead.

But in April, CBS moved "Simon & Simon" to 9 p.m. Thursdays, following 'Magnum, P.I." It suddenly came alive, and got such good ratings that it was renewed for the fall.

"I think it's a good show with a lot of potential," said Miss Wilson, who is married to actor Jack Lucarelli. "I think the best thing about it is that we've become such good friends. The boys are like brothers to me. My husband, Jameson and Gerald go hunting together, and Jack is developing a movie for all of us to star in."

"Simon & Simon" has undergone numerous changes since it was first conceived by Philip DeGuere, the executive producer. The pilot was called "Pirate's Key" and was filmed in Florida, but it was too expen-

ed a two-line role in "Gemini sive to shoot on location, so Man." the setting was moved to San After that, she was given a Diego.

More changes are coming next season. The detective agency has been relocated to an unidentified seaside community in Southern California. Their cases will take them to Santa Barbara, Palm Springs, Santa Monica and San Diego.

Their competitors, the Peerless Detective Agency, run by Ed Barth, will be gone. But Barth will be around to work as a legman for the Simons. Miss Wilson, who plays Barth's daughter, will become an assistant district attorney.

"I'll be doing more this year," Miss Wilson said. "Last year I just answered the telephone. I looked like a secretary."

Miss Wilson was born in Memphis, Tenn., but her family moved to Dallas when she was 12. She attended college in Texas and became "Honey," the Dodge girl in automobile commercials in 28 states

She moved to Los Angeles in 1976 and immediately land-

Chicken Ranch Movie Stirring Controversy

KATHY BAKER Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - In 1975, politicians closed down The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas." Now Hollywood has come to Texas to issue a 25 million celluloid apology.

The screen version of Larry King's play is even further removed from the real Chicken Ranch," a most un-Hollywood-like bordello that operated for decades near La Grange while the law averted its eyes.

Dolly Parton, spectacular in swanky gowns that hug her remarkable body, plays proprietress "Miss Mona" - in real life an undistinctive woman who looked more like a school marm than a

Heartthrob Burt Reynolds portrays with middle-aged macho the actually rather aged sheriff who was forced by politics to shut the doors of the "Chicken Ranch."

Reynolds and Miss Parton, joined by co-stars Jim Nabors and Charles Durning, headed a Hollywood invasion that swept politicians, the press and the legend of the "Chicken Ranch" in its wake when the movie premiered here July 11.

Festivities included a barbeque for an intimate crowd of about 2,000 at the Pflugerville home where much of the film was shot, a parade up Congress Avenue in Austin before the showing of the film, and a "Supper With the Stars" following the Austinites turned out in droves for a glimpse of the stars, but they and the local hoi polloi were little more than extras in the employ of Universal Studios at the carefully staged-fortelevision events.

Blues Master B.B. King Discounts 'Star' Billing

RENO, Nev. (AP) - He's the legendary master of the blues guitar, a Mississippi plantation child who rose to fame by pouring out his soul on stage two and three times a day.

B.B. King has been called the greatest bluesman of all time. But the king of blues doesn't think he's a star.

When he goes on stage each night, he says he has a nagging fear that he might fail.

"I feel that I know my job," he says. "I feel that I know what I do and that I do it pretty well. But as far as the star bit is concerned - no.

"I have a lot of friends for instance (blues singer) Bobby Bland. Now we can go and play a place together pulling out their hair.

Miss Parton said she planned to do more films, including more duos with Reynolds, but that a worldwide singing tour would hold off any movie roles for "a couple of years."

That schedule may not gibe with Reynolds.' He said he hoped to give up acting for directing in "two or three years." Any future films will not be in the "Smokey and the Bandit" mode, he insisted.

"I don't want to make any more movies where I go over 30 miles and hour," he said, but added that he does plan to play a race-car driver in 'Stand On It," to be directed by former stuntman Hal Needham who directed "Smokey II" and "Cannonball Run."

Reynolds said his decision to take on his second musical role was not affected by the bad notices of a few years ago for "At Long Last Love," a Peter Bogdanovich vehicle that featured Reynolds' singing and dancing debut.

"I came out of that picture pretty well," he insisted, saying most of the bad notices were meant for co-star Cybill Shepherd and director Bogdanovich.

Although he started with two musical numbers in "Whorehouse," only one remains in the film - a duet with Miss Parton. The other, penned by Miss Parton, was cut because it was too sad and detracted from the light comedy of the picture, he said.

Brown Bag Program Serves McAllen Area

By SUSAN STOLER ssociated Press Writer MCALLEN, Texas (AP) —

Last year, Janet Welch's Brown Bag program gave away 400,000 pounds of surplus fruit and vegetables to an estimated 40,000 people for a cost of $5,500.

"If the government got into it, it would cost millions," said Mrs. Welch, director of the relief effort sponsored by the Episcopal Diocese of West Texas.

During the vegetable and citrus harvests between October and May, local packing sheds donate surplus and culled produce for distribution at 80 locations mostly in the Rio Grande Valley.

The program stops in the summer when cotton and grain are the main crops.

There is no background check or qualification requirements. Whoever shows up at the drop points can take home cabbage, carrots, grapefruit or whatever is available.

"If you are at one of the places we go to, we assume that you need it," she said. "If you have to use publicly funded day care centers, you probably don't have much money.'

Mrs. Welch gets a parttime salary but the 40 men and women who pick up the produce, load the truck and give out the food are volunteers. Almost all are retirees from midwestern and northern states who spend winters in the semitropical region.

Brown Bag is a United Way agency that has operated for seven years in one of the nation's poorest areas. The McAllen metropolitan area, with its 90 percent Mexican-American population, last year had the country's lowest per capita income of $5,024.

Hidalgo County, with a year-round growing season, is the state's top county for farm marketing revenue yet poor diet is a major health

"A recent nutritional study of the Valley found that what people lack is not protein, but the vitamins and minerals you get in fresh fruit and vegetables. That is really ironic for all the produce grown here," said Mrs. Welch.

"I don't think we have saved anyone from starving," she said. "But it makes a difference from having them eat just tortillas and beans to tortillas and beans and carrots."

Brownsville neighborhood a little more than a mile from the Mexican border, residents gather quickly at St. Paul's Episcopal Church on days the truck is coming.

"We're talking about people who average less than $3,000 a year income," said the Rev. George Graydon, St. Paul's rector. "The food is very badly needed. It isn't that much food a month but they're desperately in need."

At least 500 people show up each time the Brown Bag volunteers come, he said. Church workers save some of the produce for the elderly and distribute it themselves later.

The scene is similar at the Starr County Community Action center in Rio Grande City, 100 miles west at the other end of the Valley.

The elderly poor come there daily at noon for a hot meal. Many probably can not afford to buy grapefruit or tomatoes, said Lorene Pena, a community action center worker.

"It's really a lot of help for them," she said of the program, which also distributes food at six other-Starr County centers.

The fruit and produce come from the numerous local packing sheds and shipping companies.

Understanding Your Insurance

Q. I'm young but I've never had an accident or even gotten a ticket. Why should I pay the highest insurance rates? . . . A. Good question. The fact is that good drivers as well as bad drivers have accidents. That's why insurance protection exists.

Year after year, without exception, statistics show a consistent pattern: young drivers have more accidents than older drivers. Young males have more accidents than young females. And young unmarried males have more accidents than young married males. The fairest way to distribute accident costs is for each driver to pay an insurance rate that reflects as closely as possible the exposure to loss of his or her group. If you have a good driving record, you will pay less than others in your group who have been involved in serious accidents.
