Residence Fire

Hereford firemen inspect a mobile home at 905 Cherokee where a fire is believed to have started from an electrical malfunction in the bedroom. Four persons discovered the fire soon enough to escape the blazes, however a family pet was burned to death.

Electrical malfunction blamed

Electrical malfunction is being blamed for a residential fire which burned a mobile home at 905 Cherokee late Monday afternoon.

Brenda Corlis, owner of the home, spent Monday night in her driveway in a borrowed camper to watch over the remains. She and her son, Shawn, were at the home with Naomi Watts and her son, friends of the family, when the fire broke out around 4:50 p.m.

No one was injured. However, the family's pet poodle, Peaches, was burned to death.

According to Fire Marshall Jay Spain, the fire was caused by either an iron or hairdryer being plugged in, although the appliances were not left on.

Shawn Brooks, 11, gave his account of what happened as he watched his home burn down. "I was playing Atari when I noticed smoke coming out of the furnace," he said. Corlis and her friend were in the kitchen visiting when they also noticed the smoke. They heard an awful crackling noise and yelled for Shawn to get out. The women grabbed Watts' son and ran out of the house.

Shawn ran next door and told Raymond Archer to call the fire department.

Archer, after calling, ran over to the mobile home, picked up the water hose and started spraying the back bedroom window because Brooks had told him his dog was still in there. According to Archer, as he sprayed water on the window the flames burst out leaping 20 feet into the air.

By then, the firemen had arrived and smoke was rolling out around the front door.

"The fire started in the northwest corner of the house, in the bedroom

City will redesign new fire station plans

Bids are too high

Bids for the new fire station were simply too high-priced to accept, so Hereford city commissioners conferred with firemen and voted Monday night to ask the architect to re-design a smaller structure.

The bids were formally rejected for lack of funding on a unanimous vote.

City leaders admitted the new design would not be as attractive, but would be functional. It will house all the current fire fighting and rescue units plus have room for two more.

The too-high bid was around $447,000. Commissioners figure by lopping off 36 feet from the front, the next bid price should be more around the $350,000 expected to be spent.

Primary estimates by the state fell several hundred thousand dollars below the actual bid price and the city will have to dip into reserves to pay for improvements along Highway 385. The city will be using approximately $465,000 in revenue sharing funds, plus $349,965 is available through reserve and general funds. The city expects to recapture up to $80,000 from property owners.

Excess cash left over from a good deal on a loader purchased earlier this year allowed the city to purchase a scraper for $27,500 from Plains Equipment. The city had budgeted money for leasing equipment to do some improvements on the reservoir, but opted to buy the equipment for that purpose and to use at the city landfill.

Commissioners authorized the firm of Bill Mc Morris and Associates to prepare a site development plan on the north 40 acres of the landfill site. The process will take about a year and will cost $5,000.

In other business the commission authorized the park department staff to take bids for a turf maintenance vehicle for the municipal golf course which was a budgeted item and to sell an old gang mower which has not been used for several years.

Also, Katy Claypool and Patsy Giles were renamed to two-year terms on the Hereford Family Services advisory board.

All commissioners, Mayor Wes Fisher, city attorney Earnest Langley, and city manager Darwin McGill were present.

Combest to visit here Wednesday

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest will be at the Hereford Community Center lounge Wednesday at 3 p.m. for a public comment period, and all interested citizens are invited to attend.

Combest will also be guest speaker at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of Hereford Lions Club Wednesday. He will come here after a public meeting in Dimmitt Wednesday morning.

Among the items Combest is expected to discuss is the farm bill for 1985. Last Thursday, Congress ended its budget impasse but ag committee members were notified the tentative farm package exceeded Congressional budget guidelines by $10.1 billion.

"At that time, some of my colleagues and I voted to remain in session until the farm bill could be completed within budget requirements," Congressman Combest said. He added that farmers are entitled to know the substantive details of the farm package now so that long range farming plans can be made.

"We could have spent the necessary time in committee to bring the farm bill closer to budget rules before returning to our districts," Combest said. "However, the majority of the Ag Committee argued that the programs would have to be reworked and voted to adjourn until September 4," Combest added.

Combest noted that, "If we come back in September and reopen the bill we could possibly spend another four weeks and be right back where we started. I do not want to change the entire bill. I am reasonably satisfied with it at this time. Our efforts should now be directed to cutting some of the optional spending in the farm package which is not directly related to the farm support program, rather than reworking the entire bill," Combest said.

Combest, Lubbock Republican, is in his first term as the 19th Congressional District representative, replacing Democrat Kent Hance.

Flight 191 tape reveals no alarm

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The crew of Delta Air Lines Flight 191 gave no indication anything was wrong, and by the time a cockpit voice recorder picked up the tower's order to go around, it also took in the "crackling, grinding" sound of a jumbo jet disintegrating, an investigator said.

Patrick Bursley, a member of the National Transportation Safety Board, said the sounds of destruction followed the electronic voice of an automatic ground proximity warning device that told the pilot three times to "Pull up!"

But he said Monday that the sound of the L-1011 Tristar coming apart were on the voice recorder before a frantic radio signal "Delta, go around!" from an aircraft controller in the tower at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

The controller's order was fruitless, Bursley said Monday, because the plane already had bounced twice, hitting a hillside and a highway. The plane crashed Friday, killing 132 people on board and a man on the ground.

Until the crash, the cockpit voice recorder tape contained a routine conversation between the pilot and copilot, Bursley said. "They were talking about the fact they were in rain and what they were having to do to deal with the flight — but there is no indication of apprehension."

The tape then picked up the voice of the ground proximity warning, which Bursley likened to buzzers on cars that tell when a door is ajar.

Investigators also confirmed that a substantial increase in power just before the crash was the result of crew initiative, rather than a response to the tower's go-around order.

"At that point, the controllability of the airplane was beyond recovery," Bursley said.

He also said the flight data recorder revealed some speed fluctuations.

Deputies investigate vandalism

County deputies are investigating a vehicle vandalism case which was reported near Dawn during the weekend. The pickup truck had its glass broken, seats and roof cut and the stereo taken from it.

Deputies also recovered a missing purse. It was turned in by a man who spotted it after running over it with a shredder in a field on North Progressive.

The lawmen also filed a report on a runaway, who later returned; a dog bite and two civil disputes.

Other scheduled stops include the Adrian Co-op from 8 until 9 a.m.; the Oldham County Courthouse from 10 until 11 a.m. and the Castro County Courthouse from 3 until 4 p.m.

At rally near Amarillo's Pantex plant

Asner, Ellsberg speak to nuke protesters

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Every 12 seconds in the United States, a person drops below the poverty level, and in those same 12 seconds, $47,000 more is spent on defense, actor Ed Asner told a crowd of anti-nuclear protesters at a rally at the Pantex Nuclear Weapons Plant.

"You just can't ignore statistics like that," Asner said Monday before an estimated 75 to 100 people gathered outside the gates of the final assembly plant for the nation's nuclear warheads.

Asner, who has evolved in recent years as a political activist, shared the billing with Daniel Ellsberg at a peace encampment that was established here Saturday. Workshops and more speeches are scheduled today, the 40th anniversary of the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Protesters have said they would form a human blockade today on railroad tracks leading into the Pantex plant.

Asner told the protesters that they have not only the right but the responsibility to speak out against the government "when they're going against our wishes."

Ellsberg spoke on Sunday. Asner said he was taught that being patriotic meant being proud to be an American and "that if you spoke against the government you were some kind of an ingrate."

"But my experience has taught me different. I've learned that we not only have a right, but a responsibility to tell our government ... when they're going against our wishes," Asner said.

Asner said his first step toward speaking out was in 1960, during an actors' strike.

"By that time, my discovery about patriotism had jelled," Asner said. Before that, he said, it was easier not to get involved with the issues.

"The world is coming to us instantly with satellite coverage, and it's become impossible to ignore injustice or, in the case of nuclear war, the danger we face," he said.

Once Asner became involved with world issues, he said he discovered that a lot of the frustration people feel from watching world events comes from not helping.

"Once you explore the ways to act, find the means to educate people and change conditions, you discover that you can make a difference," he said.

"You can do something about injustice and the problems."

When someone asks him how he can help, Asner said he advises, "Do what you do."

He added, "What I do is act, so I try to choose roles that have some kind of meaning or moral."

Many episodes of "Lou Grant" were pivotal in passing legislation, Asner said. Shows such as "Adam," a television movie about missing children, also can have a great deal of influence, he said.

"The influence the entertainment industry has is tremendous," he said. "Even the nation's largest-circulation newspaper reaches only about 2 million people, but a hit TV show in one night can be seen by 30 or 40 million."

Bike Brigade

Peace riders in a bicycle caravan stopped briefly in Hereford Saturday on their way to a week-long rally against nuclear anything at the Pantex weapons plant in Amarillo. The bikers were hoping to draw attention to nuclear issues by their ride. One rider, calling attention to litter in the park, was skeptical about local concern about the environment.

Court upholds $1.3 million damages

BORGER, Texas (AP) — Taxpayers in this oil city may have to bear the burden of a case of mistaken identity by municipal police. The Panhandle city of 16,000 is under court order to pay $1.3 million because police accidentally shot James C. Grandstaff thinking he was a fugitive they had been chasing.

That amount is more than a city that operates on a $7 million annual budget can afford, said Mayor Frank W. Selfridge. "We weren't expecting anything like this," said Selfridge, who became mayor after the incident occurred. "The only recourse we have is from the taxpayers."

Grandstaff, a 31-year-old ranch foreman, was shot to death Aug. 11, 1961, after a fugitive had fled onto the ranch. A federal appeals court Monday upheld a finding that the city police are liable for the death.

After Grandstaff was shot, the city and its police "denied their failures and concerned themselves only with unworthy, if not despicable, means to avoid legal liability," the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said in a 15-page opinion.

But the city does not have to pay Grandstaff's widow, Sharon, and stepsons Randy and Robert Gatlin $150,000 for emotional damage inflicted on them when they saw him shot to death, the court ruled.

The policemen who shot Grandstaff had argued that there was no proof that any particular officer fired the shot that killed Grandstaff.

"They may as well argue that no one on a firing squad is responsible for the victim's death unless we know whose bullet first struck the heart," said the opinion written by Judge Thomas Reavley for a three-judge panel.

Selfridge said the city has hired a new police chief since Grandstaff's shooting and disagreed with the court's opinion that the Borger police force was ill-trained and incompetent.

The judges agreed with the federal jury's finding that the policemen were reckless, that the city had failed to train them properly, and that serious incompetence and misbehavior were widespread throughout the city police force.

But Reavley, Irving L. Goldberg and Will Garwood struck down $100,000 awarded to Mrs. Grandstaff and $25,000 each to the stepsons for emotional injury from seeing the shooting.

Negligent emotional injury may be claimed under state law but not under federal law, the judges said.

They left intact the rest of the $1.4 million awarded in January 1964 to Mrs. Grandstaff, her sons and Grandstaff's father, Joe Grandstaff.

Police were looking for Lonnie Cox, a fugitive they had chased onto Grandstaff's ranch. Cox was driving a pickup truck and had been wounded by police.

Inmate gets stay of execution

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A Texas death row inmate scheduled to die by lethal injection Wednesday was granted his second stay while four other inmates await the fate of their executions set for next week.

U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson said Monday in a two-page order that the execution of Murrell Crawford Jr. should be blocked until she can decide on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Crawford's attorneys.

The judge did not comment on specific arguments Crawford's lawyers made in their petition requesting the execution be stayed.

Crawford, 28, was convicted of capital murder for the Oct. 25, 1975 shooting of Edith Whitfield, 43, a cashier at a north Amarillo convenience store. He was scheduled to die early Wednesday.

Betty Wheeler, an Amarillo lawyer representing Crawford, said the stay was not a surprise because Crawford had not previously received an opportunity to have the merits of his case considered by a federal judge.

"I think it's important that they be reviewed," she said. Ms. Wheeler said the judge had not yet specified when or if she would conduct a hearing on Crawford's case.

Walker confessed to spying, says FBI

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Arthur J. Walker told the FBI he made $12,000 by funneling U.S. secrets to the Soviet Union and used the "happy hour money" to buy a hairpiece, a gas grill and new brakes for his car, according to documents unsealed at his espionage trial.

After first denying any knowledge of his brother John A. Walker Jr.'s alleged espionage, Arthur Walker told the FBI he was lured into spying because he was financially strapped by a business failure, FBI Agent Barry D. Colvert testified Monday at the start of the trial.

Arthur Walker said his brother urged him to provide classified documents from his employer, VSE Corp., a Chesapeake defense contractor, Colvert testified.

John Walker showed his brother an envelope stuffed with money and said "if you can get your hands on some good information ... this is the kind of money you can make," Arthur Walker told agents, according to Colvert.

Arthur Walker, 50, a retired Navy officer from Virginia Beach, is accused of seven counts of espionage for allegedly passing classified documents to his brother for delivery to the Soviet Union in 1961 and 1962. U.S. District Judge J. Calvitt Clarke Jr. is hearing the non-jury trial.

According to Colvert and the unsealed documents, Arthur Walker denied any involvement in espionage when he was interviewed by the FBI after his brother's arrest in Maryland May 20.

After failing a lie detector test, Arthur Walker admitted that he gave his brother classified documents on Navy ship repair and was paid $12,000, the documents said.

In cross-examination by defense attorney Samuel W. Meekins, Colvert said Arthur Walker never told the FBI he knew he was hurting the United States.

Arthur Walker is the first of four defendants in the alleged espionage ring to stand trial. John Walker and his son, Navy seaman Michael L. Walker, will face trial in Baltimore. The fourth defendant, Jerry A. Whitworth, is awaiting trial in San Francisco.

First lawsuit filed over Delta crash

MIAMI (AP) — The first lawsuit stemming from the fatal crash of Delta Air Lines Flight 191 was filed Monday by a 35-year-old Miami housewife who was one of only 31 survivors.

Ester Ledford filed a lawsuit in Miami federal court Monday seeking compensation for injuries and emotional stress and accusing Delta of negligence.

Ms. Ledford was on the way to visit her mother in Mexico City when the jumbo jetliner crashed and burned while trying to land during a thunderstorm at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Friday.

The attorneys representing Ms. Ledford began meeting Sunday with crash victims staying at a Hilton hotel at the Dallas-Fort Worth airport.

San Francisco attorney Richard Brown told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that other suits may be filed Tuesday on behalf of crash victims.

Brown also said he and attorney Caesar Belli, also of San Francisco, have been given permission to visit the accident scene Tuesday with technical experts. Belli had earlier complained that only Delta's lawyers were allowed to go to the scene.

Hiroshima remembers the bomb

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — The city where mankind discovered the terror and peril of the nuclear age today marked the 40th anniversary of its destruction with a minute of silence, appeals for peace and mourning for the thousands who died in the first atomic bomb attack.

Some 50,000 people at Hiroshima's Peace Memorial Park listened to the toll of a lone bell, watched doves flutter into the sky, and fell silent for one minute at 8:15 a.m. — exactly 40 years after the United States exploded an atomic bomb over the city, killing up to 140,000 people. Some 600 youths fell to the ground in a symbolic "die-in" near the Atomic Bomb Dome, the former Hiroshima Industrial Promotion Hall whose fire-ravaged skeletal remains have become a symbol of the nuclear age.

Bereaved relatives of bomb victims tolled a Buddhist bell to summon the spirits.

At the nearby Ground Zero cenotaph that is the focal point of the park, black-clad mourners deposited the names of 4,200 people who died this year from long-range after-effects of the bomb. The mourners left an offering of water, the final request of many people who perished in the days immediately following the inferno.

The new names bring to 138,700 the number of identified Hiroshima atomic bomb victims, whose names are inscribed at the cenotaph.

More than 90 percent of the people within a half mile of ground zero died Aug. 6, 1945, in the blast and heat of the four-ton bomb named "Little Boy."

Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, addressing the crowd which included mayors from 23 countries, called on the United States and the Soviet Union to speed "realistic development" in nuclear disarmament talks this fall.

The B-29 "Enola Gay" dropped the bomb on a Monday, in a clear summer sky, as thousands of Hiroshima residents were heading to school and jobs.

A second bomb, "Fat Man," was dropped on Nagasaki on Aug. 9, 1945, killing up to 70,000 people. The two — credited with hastening the Japanese surrender, which occurred Aug. 15, 1945.

Japanese officials say that more than 367,000 survivors of the bombings remain.

Groundbreaking Held

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Monday at the site of the proposed Arbor Glen Apartments on Sixteenth and U.S. 385. Hoisting shovels were Tiffany Brown, daughter of developer Rick Brown; Mike Carr, Chamber of Commerce exec; Rick Brown; Arturo Gonzales, plumbing contractor; and Marie Griffin, of Griffin Real Estate, who will handle the property. With a permit to build 24 units, Brown plans to use a design compatible for senior citizens and include covered parking and a landscape of trees.

Texas hosting Assemblies convention

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The biennial conference of the Assemblies of God convenes in San Antonio this week, with more than 16,000 delegates expected to attend.

Assemblies of God superintendent Thomas Zimmerman likes to call his church a movement, rather than a denomination.

And he says its rapid growth in recent years is due to the church's clearly defined purpose.

The largest of the Pentecostal denominations, the Assemblies of God boasts 15 million adherents worldwide. Two million of them are in the United States.

"We have endeavored to conserve our personnel and our material resources so that we have focused on our objective," Zimmerman said Monday.

That objective, he said, grows out of the "New Testament mandate to go into all the world and preach the gospel to all nations."

With the focus on evangelism, members have given more than $210 million for world missions in the past two years.

That emphasis has resulted in a church membership of 8 million in Brazil. The Assemblies of God also are strong in South Korea, Argentina and several African nations.

In the United States, there are 10,582 Assemblies of God churches, up from 10,173 two years ago.

The 73-year-old Zimmerman, elected superintendent when the denomination last met in San Antonio 25 years ago, said membership in the United States is strongest in the Southwest.

The church, he said, is "planting" or starting 440 new churches each year in the United States.

The Assemblies of God are similar to the Southern Baptist Convention in many ways, including the church's commitment to autonomy for local congregations.

The church also stands for Biblical inerrancy, Zimmerman said, a controversial issue among Southern Baptists, who met in Dallas in June.

"Biblical inerrancy will be emphasized strongly in my keynote address," to be delivered Thursday, Zimmerman said.

The Assemblies of God has held steadfastly to its belief in the "baptism of the Holy Spirit," characterized by speaking in tongues and claims of miracle healings.

The church has shied away from political involvement, Zimmerman said.

"We are not political activists," he said. "We teach our people to be responsible citizens. We believe it's our responsibility to pray for those in positions of responsibility."

Nevertheless, the church has taken an anti-abortion stance and a resolution denouncing pornography will be on the floor this year for consideration.

Despite its conservative bent, the church boasts of more than 3,500 ordained and licensed women ministers. There are more than 13,000 male ministers.

No women serve on the General Presbytery, comprised of members elected by each of the church's 57 districts.

The actual conference does not begin until Thursday.

But meetings of the church's governing General Presbytery began Sunday and were to continue daily until the convention begins.

A highlight of the six-day conference will be a live, two-hour nationwide broadcast of the Sunday afternoon vesper service to Assemblies of God churches nationwide.

Beamed via satellite and cable television systems, the broadcast will be available on the Christian Broadcasting, PTL and Trinity Broadcasting networks.

Clergymen agree on teaching religion

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

Presbyterians and Roman Catholics, often in disagreement about policies regarding public schools, are firmly agreed that they ought to include more teaching about religion.

It is "surely necessary for a complete education," representatives of the two traditions said in a new, jointly drafted ecumenical document.

The result of three years of study and discussions, the 42-page report declares:

"Children who are not exposed to the great faith traditions of the world with at least as much objectivity and detail as they are now exposed to economic and political ideologies, to artistic perspectives and to scientific theories and hypotheses are educationally deprived."

But such deprivation prevails widely in American public schools because of a "common, although dubious interpretation of the separation of church and state," the report says.

It points out that the U.S. Supreme Court, in its 1962-63 decisions barring devotional Bible reading and religious exercises, stressed that study about religion and about the Bible is vital to a full education.

Although such "historical literary, cultural and philosophical study of religion is permitted," it nevertheless remains rare, the report says, blaming confusion and hesitations in the schools about it.

The report, called "Partners in Peace and Education," was the latest product of the Roman Catholic and Presbyterian-Reformed consultation, a dialogue going on between the two traditions since 1965.

The report strongly backs church activism in civic and political affairs, declaring it right to act in those areas on the "strength of the perspectives and criticisms" from religion.

The document praises the 1963 pastoral letter on peace of the Roman Catholic bishops, which condemns nuclear warfare, terming it "one of the most discerning and prophetic statements" on that issue.

and then started down the hall," said Spain as he pointed out the fire-path that had engulfed the mobile home.

The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department brought their two engines, two boosters, and two rescuers to the scene.

The back bedroom was completely gutted and all furniture throughout the house was destroyed. Corlis said Monday night that her insurance would not cover the belongings in the home.

She moved into the mobile home about six weeks ago.

Two church events postponed

First Presbyterian Church has postponed two events due to emergency surgery of Nancy Kochmeier, the pastor's wife.

The pounding party set for Aug. 7 has been rescheduled for Aug. 28. The cookout set for Aug. 11 has been delayed until Sept. 8.

The two events were planned to welcome the new pastoral family to the congregation.

bikes, one purse taken from a car and one tire stolen.

Other weekend reports were for a gun shot from a vehicle, a child problem in a neighborhood, one exhibition of acceleration, a dog bite, a stolen license plate, and a suspicious vehicle.

Two burglaries from storage sheds were reported. In one report a shotgun, some jewelry, and auto stereo equipment is missing; in the other eight boxes of candy were emptied and taken.

Monday's reports included one of each: a harassment, a lost purse, vehicle burglary, assault by threat, a domestic problem, a juvenile fight, and bike theft.

tuations before the crash, which he said must be analyzed further. He would not speculate on the cause of the fluctuations, nor did he describe them.

The crash took place as the jetliner flew through a thunderstorm that followed it onto the airport grounds, investigators said.

The Tristar had been told to reduce speed to 150 knots (172.5 mph) to stay about three miles behind a Lear jet that landed after experiencing turbulence in the storm, Bursley said.

That speed is safe for the L-1011 under normal conditions, which were all that had been reported, he said. "Perhaps if they knew there was a wind shear they would not have been operating at that speed."

Asked if human error could be assumed, Bursley responded hotly.

"I have not found anything in any way to make any kind of conclusions about the pilot, about the controller, about anybody else associated with this," he said. "We are not going to rush into a judgment. There are too many factors that we still have not pinned down."

Bursley said investigators were studying whether seating in the aircraft played any part in sparing lives.

Twenty-eight passengers and three flight attendants, among 152 passengers and 11 crew members, survived. Most of them were seated in the back of the plane.

"The fatality farthest aft that we have identified was seated in row 44 and the survivor farthest forward that we have identified was seated in row 29," Bursley said. NTSB spokesman Ira Furman said the L-1011 had 46 rows.

By Monday night, the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office had positively identified 65 victims of the crash, Bursley said.

More than 200 relatives had come to Dallas by Monday, bringing photographs, dental charts and other clues.

Ann Landers

Letter an 'eye opener'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How wonderful it is to see the photographs of missing children on milk cartons. But I wonder how many people realize that few of these missing children were abducted by strangers. Some are runaways, but most have been snatched by a divorced parent.

I spent two years interviewing victims of parental kidnapping for my book, "Children in the Crossfire." I was stunned to discover that many boys and girls had been physically and sexually abused by the "loving" parent who had abducted them.

Some children were forced to dye their hair and change their names. The fortunate three out of 10 who are found almost always suffer long-term trauma. Surprised? Read on: It is 10 times more likely that the kidnapper will be a mother or a father and not a stranger.—SALLY ABRAMS

DEAR SALLY: Thanks for an eye-opener. I urge anyone who suspects that a child in your neighborhood may be such a victim to report it to the police at once.

Often these children are told, "Your Mother (or Dad) died (or didn't want you or is in jail or on dope) and I want to make a home for you in another city."

I also urge any abducted child who may be reading this to dial 0 and say, "I am in trouble and want to make a collect long-distance call to my home. Please help me."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest the column from "Depressed in Alabama" about the high school kids who were permitted to share a bedroom when the boy's parents threw him out. (The mother said she'd rather have her 16-year-old daughter sleeping at home with one guy than making out in parked cars with Lord knows how many.)

How do you feel about divorced women who sleep with their men friends when their teenagers are at home and can hear the bedsprings creak and everything that is said?

I hope you'll print my letter because there's a lot of it going on in-TORRANCE, CALIF.

DEAR T.: Same answer. It's terrible—destructive and sad.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I moved from my hometown a year ago but I still keep in touch with family and friends.

My best friend (I'll call her Brenda) writes at least two or three letters a month. She was always very pretty and had a great figure. Yesterday I received a letter from Mom. She enclosed a newspaper picture of a small group of my pals at a social event. I was amazed to see what Brenda looks like. She has gained at least 30 pounds. I'd think she was pregnant but I know this cannot be true.

Another nice thing about the horse: You never have to worry about someone snapping off his fender-mounted aerial.

I will be going home in a month and I need to know if I should say anything to Brenda about her weight. I am sick about the way she has let herself go and don't know how to deal with it.—TONGUE-TIED IN N.Y.

DEAR T.T.: The camera usually adds 10 pounds. Also there is the possibility that the photo was taken at an odd angle and Brenda got the worst of it.

If, however, she has indeed put on a great deal of weight, she is surely aware of it and need not be reminded. Be kind and say nothing.

New studies show lower seafood cholesterol levels

People concerned about cholesterol in their diets may no longer need to avoid shellfish.

The "no shellfish" diet recommendation is based on studies which indicated that oysters, shrimp, clams and other shellfish are high in cholesterol.

According to Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service seafood specialist Annette Reddell Hegen, the methods of analysis used in these studies did not distinguish between true cholesterol and other sterol compounds contained in foods.

"Latest data from the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) shows that cholesterol accounts for only about 40 percent of the total sterols contained in some shellfish," reports Hegen. "The rest are plant sterols from algae that the shellfish consumes."

The research studies place oysters, clams and scallops at between 40-50 milligrams of cholesterol per 3½ ounce serving. These figures compare favorably with cholesterol levels in most fish, Hegen says, and fish is a food often recommended for cholesterol-restricted diets.

New cholesterol tablets still show shrimp to contain 90 to 125 milligrams per serving, while most species of crab and lobster tested by the NMFS lab contained 60-75 milligrams per serving.

"Based on this current information, there appears to be little reason to suggest limitation of shellfish in normal healthy diets," says Hegen.

"Anyone who eats shellfish should be able to keep daily cholesterol intake close to the 300 milligrams recommended by many health professionals," she adds.

Depression and appetite loss

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have not been able to eat much since 1982, shortly after I had an aneurysm operation. I have gone from 180 pounds down to 127. Food tastes right, but I have to force everything down. Every once in a while I find something I like to eat a few times, but then I no longer care for it.

DEAR READER — I don't know why you lost so much weight in three years; it's worrisome. Some weight loss is natural after surgery, but you seem to suffer from a loss of appetite that has more serious implications. If I were you, I'd seek out a good internist, a doctor who specializes in difficult diagnoses. Your eating problem may be due to a condition called masked depression, but I certainly would want to make absolutely certain that your loss of appetite — and weight — is not caused by a physical abnormality.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My leg veins have become prominent and swollen, and sometimes my legs feel very weak if I stand or lift something heavy. This doesn't make sense to me, since I'm athletic, in my 20s and am not overweight. Varicose veins don't run in my family. What could cause this?

DEAR READER — You probably have inherited a weakness in the walls of your leg veins. If you stand a great deal, the pressure of the columns of blood in these veins can cause the vessels to stretch and become more prominent. You can prevent further vein distension by providing artificial support for the walls of the weak vessels. Use elastic stockings when you are on your feet; the elasticized fabric will help counteract the pressure within the veins themselves.

To the many friends of Carlos A. Vaughn, We wish to "Thank You" for your many kind words and deeds shown to us during our bereavement, over the loss of our loved one.

Especially the ladies of The First Christian Church and the American Legion. May God Bless you.

Sincerely, The Vaughn Family

Babe Ruth Southwest Regional

Hereford all-stars eliminated in tourney

The Hereford Kids Inc. Babe Ruth League 14 and 15-year-old all-stars had their share of tough luck at the Southwest Regional tournament in Miami, being eliminated from the tournament in two games.

Hereford led Artesia, N.M., 3-0 Saturday, and the game was tied 4-4 after six innings of play. Artesia won that game, 7-4.

The Hereford all-star team battled to a 5-5 tie with Miami, Okla., Sunday night before the game was suspended in the eighth inning because of rain. Miami, which was at bat with two outs in the bottom of the eighth inning when the game was suspended, won the game 6-5 Monday when its first batter hit an RBI single.

A victory in the suspended game would have put Hereford in a 6 p.m. game Monday night.

The Hereford all-stars held a 3-0 lead over Artesia after three innings of play Saturday night, but Artesia tied it up 3-3 with a run in the fourth inning and two runs in the fifth inning.

Each team scored one run in the sixth inning. Artesia broke the tie for good with three runs in the top of the seventh inning.

Artesia's first run in the seventh was scored on a passed ball, after a walk and a double. Later in the inning, the bases were loaded with no outs.

A batter bunted the ball toward the Hereford pitcher. The ball was thrown to first base, but not in time.

Then there was a series of throws between home plate and second base, with two runs scoring, and with Hereford tagging out one runner at home plate and one runner at second base.

Hereford had a pair of baserunners in the bottom of the seventh, but failed to score. Rodney McCracken singled, and Tim Long reached base when the Artesia catcher failed to catch a pitch after Long was struck out.

Early in the game against Artesia, Hereford had two runners on the basepaths in the first inning, but did not score.

In the second inning, Derrell Page and James Hernandez began the inning with singles. Raymond Romo then batted in a run with a sacrifice fly to give Hereford a 1-0 lead.

With one out in the third inning, three straight Hereford batters recorded hits—Roger McCracken hit a single, Rodney McCracken hit a double, and Tim Long hit a single to drive home Roger McCracken.

Page made the score 3-0 when he hit a sacrifice fly to score Rodney McCracken. Hereford's fourth-inning run was scored with Page walked, stole second base, went to third on a passed ball, and scored on Jason Scott's double. Romo followed with a single, but Scott and Romo were both left stranded on the basepaths.

Hereford's starting pitcher Tim Long pitched four innings, striking out four batters, walking none, and giving up four hits. James Hernandez pitched two innings, with one strikeout, allowing three hits and walking four batters. Jason Scott pitched the seventh inning for Hereford, when Artesia used two hits and two walks in scoring its three runs.

Hereford had eight hits in the game, compared to the nine hits by Artesia.

Hereford built up a 3-0 lead over Miami in one and one half innings of play Sunday night. Hereford's first two batters, Robby Collier and Ross Torres, both walked.

With one out, Rodney McCracken walked to load the bases. Tim Long hit an RBI single to give Hereford a 1-0 lead.

In the top of the second inning, Edward Martinez singled and later scored on a single by Collier. Collier then scored when an error was committed by Miami after Roger McCracken had hit the ball.

The 3-0 lead was shortlived for Hereford, however, since Miami came back with five runs of its own in the bottom of the second inning.

The first run was scored by Miami with a leadoff home run. The sequence of events in the inning was a walk, an error, a balk, a fielder's choice, and then the second run was scored on a balk.

Hereford achieved a double play when a grounder was hit by Miami, and runners were thrown out at first base and third base.

A two-run single then put Miami in the lead, 4-3, and an RBI single made the score 5-3.

Hereford was shut out by Miami in the third, fourth and fifth innings before scoring a pair of runs in the sixth inning to tie the game up at 5-5.

Raymond Romo walked, stole second, and Collier was hit by a pitch. Pinch-hitter Jason Scott then singled to load the bases.

Roger McCracken hit a grounder toward first base. The ball was thrown to home plate, but not in time as Romo scored a run.

Rodney McCracken tied the game at 5-5 by hitting a sacrifice fly to bat in Collier.

After Miami's five-run second inning, the Hereford pitchers limited to Miami to just three hits in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh innings combined.

James Hernandez pitched the fourth through seventh innings, striking out seven batters, walking just one and allowing just one hit.

Tim Long, who pitched the first three innings, gave up two singles in the third inning, but eight hits in the first and second innings. Long had four strikeouts and walked one batter.

Hernandez did not allow any Miami batters to get on base in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings, and struck out the first two batters in the seventh.

The game went into extra innings. With out out, Jason Scott reached base on an error and went to second base on that error. Roger McCracken singled, Scott stopped at third base, and McCracken went to second base on a throw to home plate.

Scott and McCracken were left on base as the next Hereford batters struck out and grounded out.

Rodney McCracken move to the pitcher's spot for Hereford in the bottom of the eighth inning. He struck out the first Miami batter, walked the next one, and struck out the third batter of the inning.

A stolen base, wild pitch and a walk gave Miami runners at first and third base with two outs. Just before 8:30 p.m., a rainstorm broke out and the game was stopped at this point.

A decision was made at 9:15 p.m. to suspend the game to Monday, and to also reschedule two winner's bracket games for Monday.

Tournament action had been delayed by rain earlier in the day. A game between Nord Lakeshore, La., and Blackwell, Okla., which was originally scheduled for 2 p.m. and which was won by Nord Lakeshore 10-3, started two hours late. The Hereford-Miami game did not start until after 6 p.m. Sunday.

On Monday, the Hereford-Miami contest was completed, and all that Miami's No. 3 man in the batting order had to do was look at three pitches before stroking a game-winning single, giving Miami a 6-5 win over Hereford.

Miami, which lost to Eagle Pass, Texas, 12-3 on Saturday, went on to play the loser of a game between Wharton, Texas, and Arkadelphia, Arkansas.

Arkadelphia defeated Nord Lakeshore on Saturday, and Wharton defeated Blackwell.

Baseball talks go on at last hours before strike

Editor's note: At press time, this was the latest news on the major league baseball players' strike.

By BEN WALKER AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball went to the very last hours today in an effort to avoid its second strike in four seasons, with the players' union chief talking as if a walkout had already begun and the owners' main bargainer agreeing that the outlook was grim.

At the urging of Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, negotiators for players and owners held one last meeting — a meeting that both sides said was unlikely to produce any new proposals to break the deadlock involving salary arbitration. Arthur Shack, the union's general counsel,

A semi-pro football team is being organized in Hereford, with a meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday at La Plate Field.

David Mungia notes that the team is looking for new players to join the team.

described the talks as "very informal."

Hours before the session started in an undisclosed location at 8:45 a.m. EDT, Don Fehr, acting executive director of the players' union, said a walkout that would bring an abrupt halt to the season two months before its scheduled end was all but formal.

"There's a strike," Fehr said as Monday night's final games wound down. "The strike is on as of the end of games tonight (Monday)."

"As a technical matter, the strike does not begin until the starting time of games today. As a practical matter, if we don't have an agreement, we've told the players that they should just be wherever they want to be and do whatever they want to do. This is the way it has to be."

Asked what set today's meeting apart from others in the 8½-month-old negotiations, Fehr replied: "It's being held on Aug. 6 and we're walking into a strike. Maybe that's the difference."

Last-minute roster changes made on eve of strike

By The Associated Press

Some last-minute roster manipulations will allow some major-league baseball teams to save a small fortune in player salaries, should players carry through on a strike threat.

On the last day of play before today's expected walkout, the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates each made moves which could mean thousands of dollars in savings.

The Yankees sent rookie outfielder Dan Pasqua to Columbus of the International League and called up pitcher Mike Armstrong. Should major leaguers strike, the Yankees won't have to pay Armstrong, who makes an estimated $325,000 a year. Pasqua, meanwhile, will continue to draw from his major-league-minimum salary of $40,000 while getting the chance to continue playing. He was batting .217 with the Yankees.

In like manner, the Pirates called up Johnnie LeMaster and his $400,000 salary and sent regular shortstop Sammy Khalifa to Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League. Khalifa was also being paid the minimum major-league salary.

A total of 52 players from 22 teams were assigned to the disabled list at the beginning of play Monday.

LEADERSHIP YOU CAN COUNT ON

Houston wins fourth straight game

Knepper, Davis lead Astros over Giants 7-5

By The Associated Press

Houston Astros pitcher Bob Knepper managed to hurl seven strong innings against the San Francisco Giants despite a busy day as player representative that left him little time to practice.

The Astros, led by Knepper and rookie first baseman Glenn Davis, defeated the Giants 7-5 Monday for their fourth consecutive victory.

Davis drove in three runs with two singles. Knepper, who evened the season record at 9-9, allowed two runs on nine hits, while walking one and striking out four.

"I didn't prepare for this game as I normally would. I was on the phone calling the association a number of times," said Knepper, a player representative in the ongoing contract negotiations.

"But I enjoyed pitching against the Giants because of the challenge of facing old teammates and guys that I played in the minor league with." Knepper is a former member of the Giants.

After the Giants had grabbed a 1-0 lead on Chris Brown's 12th home run of the year in the second inning, the Astros scored three runs in the fourth off Giants starter and loser Atlee Hammaker, 3-10.

With the threatened player walkout at hand, Davis said, "Since I've been so hot lately, I would hate to have to stop playing. But those things happen."

Davis also singled in Jerry Mumphrey who had doubled in the sixth inning in addition to Bass' RBI single scoring Bill Doran in the fifth giving the Astros a 5-1 lead going into the seventh inning.

Bob Brenly cut the Astros lead to 5-2 in the seventh with a one-out home run to left field off Knepper, his 14th of the year.

The Astros scored two more runs in the seventh off Giants relief pitcher Mark Davis. Tim Tolman, pinch hitting for Knepper, led off with a double to left, advanced to third on Doran's infield single and scored on a sacrifice fly by Garner.

After a wild pitch by Davis advanced Doran to second, Bass collected his second RBI of the game with a single to left for a 7-2 Astros lead.

In the Giants' ninth inning, Astros relief pitcher, Charlie Kerfeld gave up a two-out single to Jose Uribe, a walk to pinch hitter Ron Roenicke and a three-run home run to Joe Youngblood, his third of the year.

Dave Smith entered the game and recorded his 18th save of the year by getting Chili Davis to fly out to right field and preserve the 7-5 victory.

The Giants collected 11 hits in the game but failed to get good pitching. "We're not getting the good pitching and good hitting together," said Giants manager Jim Davenport. "Early in the year we had the best pitching in the league and nothing. Now it is just the reverse."

Once the San Francisco Giants got under way with their game against the Houston Astros Monday night, "there was no talk about it on the bench," Giants pitcher Mark Davis said.

And Giants Manager Jim Davenport said he didn't manage the game any differently because of the possibility the season would be interrupted or shortened by a strike.

"I'm sure it was on their minds, but if they settle tomorrow I'm sure they will be ready to play," Davenport said.

Astros Manager Bob Lillis said, "We're reporting tomorrow at regular time" he said of his staff. "I don't think there's any point in a strike. Nobody wins."

Houston pitcher Joe Neikro blames the owners for the strike.

"They didn't discuss our proposal. It was a legitimate offer." Neikro said he planned to caddy for his daughter today in a golf tournament.

"The strike is bad for baseball, but what impresses me is the strength and unity of our union," San Francisco pitcher Vida Blue said.

Astros pitcher Dave Smith said, "I feel something should have been done earlier. I think we went in with a proposal and they didn't even look at it. Something this important they should be looking at all night. A contingent of the players predicts the strike will last the rest of the season."

That sentiment was echoed by some fans.

"I get the impression that if there is a strike it will last all season," said Tom Prentiss, 41. He blames the strike on the players who he says are asking for too much money.

The mood among fans at the game Monday night was subdued because of the strike threat.

"We'll be real disappointed. We've been fans long before the Astros have been called the Astros," said Jerry Hughes, 69, who along with her husband Benton, 80, are season ticket holders. The couple said if the strike goes through they have travel plans in mind.

If a strike goes through, baseball players won't be the only ones without a job, said Lois Kramer who sells T-shirts and caps at the Astrodome. "The strike will put a damper on money you depend on for the next month," said Kramer.

Phillies 9, Cardinals 1
Given a second chance, the St. Louis Cardinals would probably vote for a different strike date.

The Cardinals had led the National League East since June 29, but fell out of first place Monday in their last game before the threatened strike. The Philadelphia Phillies pounded them 9-1, their third straight victory over the Cardinals.

St. Louis lost five of six games while the New York Mets won five of six and nine of 11, vaulting the Mets to the top of the National League East for the first time since June 21.

Darryl Strawberry's three home runs led the Mets past the Chicago Cubs 7-2 on Monday afternoon, raising their record for the season to 62-42 — St. Louis is a half-game back at 61-42.

Mets 7, Cubs 2
Strawberry drove in five runs and scored four times. He hit a three-run homer in the first inning off Derek Botelho, 0-1, who cleared waivers just an hour before the game, and added solo shots in the fifth and seventh innings.

Strawberry, who now has 15 homers, became the fourth Met in history to hit three home runs in one game. The others were Jim Hickman in 1965, Dave Kingman in 1976 and Claudell Washington in 1980.

"When you have a good day like I had and know you can't come back and play, it's tough," Strawberry said, referring to the possible strike.

Dodgers 6, Braves 1
The Dodgers, who had already clinched the NL West title, were led by Steve Sax, whose two singles drove in three runs, and Ken Landreaux, who hit his ninth home run of the year.

Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda said his players weren't worried about a strike. "These guys didn't talk about it. They were only talking win," he said. "That's been our attitude for the last month and we believe we can win every game we play."

Chief Nokahoma, on the other hand, folded his tent. The Braves mascot dismantled his teepee in the left field bleachers and wandered through the stands homeless.

A Braves spokesman said the Chief was not reacting to the strike threat, but was "only getting prepared for Saturday night's Falcons game (an NFL exhibition). There's no significance to it."

Pedro Guerrero's three hits extended his hitting streak to 15 games. Reds 8, Padres 7

Dave Parker hit a three-run homer and Dave Van Gorder's sacrifice fly broke a 7-7 tie in the fifth inning. The Padres lost their fourth in a row.

Parker's 21st homer, one of his four hits in the game, helped the Reds turn an early 4-0 deficit into a 7-4 lead. "I'm swinging the bat pretty well," said Parker, who has a league-leading 80 runs batted in and 21 homers to go with a .303 average. "I just hope I can continue to swing it."

Pete Rose went 1-for-4 with a single, leaving him 24 hits short of breaking Ty Cobb's all-time mark, but vowed a strike will not idle him. "I'll play baseball somewhere, even if I have to go out and play with my horses," he said.

Expos 5, Pirates 2
Andre Dawson, who had hit a two-run home run in the first inning, doubled to break a ninth-inning tie, then Hubie Brooks followed with a two-run single.

Tim Burke, 6-0, worked three scoreless innings for the victory, with Jeff Reardon finishing in the ninth for his major-league-high 28th save.

As usual, a slim crowd — 7,838 — showed up in Pittsburgh.

Jim Winn, 2-4, took the loss. "I don't want a strike," Winn said. "If there's a strike, I have to go home and bail hay. I'd rather be playing baseball."

Struggling Witt pitches Angels to 3-1 victory

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer

On the final day of the regular season last year, Mike Witt of the California Angels hurled a perfect game. This year, on what could be the last day of the 1985 baseball season, Witt faced only three batters over the minimum in pitching the Angels to victory.

"Knowing that it might be the last game of the season, you want to end it on a good note," said Witt after California downed Seattle 3-1 to take a five-game lead in the American League West. "I needed a win. I've been struggling lately."

Witt, who called his performance one of his better efforts of the season, admitted he was distracted by all the strike talk most of the day.

"About an hour before the game, I just tried to get it out of my mind," Witt said. "We don't want to strike. I really feel for the fans and I feel for us, too. We've had a very good year so far."

In other AL games Monday, it was the New York Yankees 7, Chicago 3; Detroit 8, Kansas City 4, and Oakland 5, Minnesota 1.

The Angels got their fourth straight victory by scoring a pair of unearned runs in the sixth inning when a throwing error by Seattle pitcher Bill Swift helped snap a 1-1 tie.

Pat Bradley's 14th homer accounted for the lone Seattle run. Yankees 7, White Sox 3 Rickey Henderson and Don Mattingly homered on consecutive pitches to power New York over Chicago as Ron Guidry became the first 14-game winner in the AL.

"This was a big game because we were tied with Detroit (for second place in the AL East)," Guidry said. "If there's going to be any sort of intradivisional playoff (if and when the baseball strike is over), it's better being second than third. That was more in my mind than anything else. I have no control over whatever happens after the game. I can control this game here."

Guidry, 14-4, did not walk a batter and struck out seven in raising his career record against the White Sox to 11-4. He shut them out until the ninth inning when Carlton Fisk slammed a three-run homer, his 29th of the season, tops in the major leagues.

Floyd Bannister, 5-9, suffered his fifth consecutive setback. He has not won since June 10 — a span of 10 consecutive starts — and left Monday night's game in the sixth when Henderson and Mattingly homered on his only two pitches of the inning.

Tigers 5, Royals 4
Kirk Gibson and Lance Parrish hit consecutive home runs in the eighth inning and Lou Whitaker added a two-run homer in the ninth as Detroit won its 12th consecutive game in Royals Stadium.

Various signs in the standing-room-only gathering of 41,351 — Kansas City's largest crowd of the season — either implored the players not to strike or exhorted fans to retaliate with a strike of their own if the players union went ahead with its work stoppage on Tuesday.

Kansas City's Steve Balboni slammed his 22nd home run of the season and seventh in 12 games in the seventh to cut the margin to 4-3. But Gibson hit his 21st home run and Parrish followed with his 16th.

A's 5, Twins 1
Oakland's victory came in what might have been the final game of the season. The game ended at 10:15 p.m. PDT when pinch-hitter Randy Bush popped out to second base as the Twins lost for the fifth straight time.

A few minutes earlier, A's Manager Jackie Moore was booed by the hometown fans when he took out starting pitcher Tim Lincecum with one out to go in the game.

"The fans are frustrated. I guess they should be," Moore said. "He understood completely. He'd thrown 129 pitches, knows we're here to win ballgames, and that this one meant a lot to us because if the season ends now, we're tied for second place," Moore said.

The A's actually are in third place, one percentage point behind Kansas City, in the American League West standings.

Bruce Bochte drove in two of Oakland's runs. He had three hits to raise his batting average for the season to .327 — fourth best in the AL.

Dave Engle's fifth homer of the year accounted for the Twins' run.

For Rangers if players strike

Popular bat night would be lost

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Larry Schmittou, marketing vice president for the Texas Rangers, said a baseball strike would cost the team one of its most popular promotions of the season — bat night.

Schmittou said 30,000 fans were expected for the bat night promotion, scheduled for Saturday against the Baltimore Orioles.

Two of the three biggest box office draws in the club's history have come on bat night. They were 1-2 until a July 4 date this year drew a near-full house and became the No. 2 draw.

More than just the players and owners would be affected by a strike, Schmittou said.

"The immediate thing that happens is you've got to curtail expenses, and that means notifying your day-of-game personnel that they are not needed," Schmittou

Suit filed seeking court order for Gunslingers' paychecks

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The United States Football League Players Association is still at bat for the 46 waived San Antonio Gunslingers.

The association Monday filed suit in district court here seeking a court order that would force South Texas Sports, parent company of the Guns, to pay the players two overdue paychecks.

The Guns waived the entire team July 22, just minutes before a USFLPA arbitrator's deadline for the players to receive the June 11 and June 25 payrolls.

Attorney Arthur Vega, who filed the suit, said the team's players are owed around $550,000 in back pay.

The suit, Vega said, seeks enforcement of the arbitrator's July 11 ruling.

The arbitrator ruled the players would have to be paid by July 22 or they would become free agents.

Even though the players were waived, the players association says the Gunslingers are still liable for the overdue paychecks.

Once Guns General Manager Roger Gill has been served with the lawsuit, Vega said the team will have 20 days to respond.

Then a hearing will be set. If a judge rules in favor of the players association, the team's funds can be frozen or liens placed on Gunslinger assets.

Vega said the suit seeks payment of the salaries plus interest, court costs and attorney fees.

said. "That's something that is going to affect 400 or 500 lives — vendors, program sellers, security people, grounds crew — all the people you don't notice but who it takes to put on a ballgame."

Burt Hooton, the Rangers' player representative, advised the Ranger players to come by the clubhouse this morning to clean out their lockers.

Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine and General Manager Tom Grieve made plans to go to Tulsa, the team's Class AA affiliate, in midweek and to Oklahoma City, the Class AAA affiliate, over the weekend.

Meanwhile, players said they would take vacations, look for part-time jobs, and try to get in workouts each day wherever they could.

For a couple of Rangers, a strike could end not only their seasons but their careers. Veterans Bobby Jones and Alan Bannister face the possibility of being odd men out if the players' strike wipes out the season.

The Rangers are going with a youth movement, and both players may not fit into the team's plans.

For Jones, a prolonged strike could be particularly threatening, depending upon whether players get credit for time spent on strike. Jones has three years and 138 days of major league service, leaving him short of the four years needed to qualify for the players' full pension. Ironically, the pension fund is one of the major issues of the strike.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tulane University must turn over the grades, admissions and attendance records of 11 students allegedly involved in the point-shaving scandal to lawyers for John "Hot Rod" Williams, a state judge ruled.

Judge Alvin Oser also ordered the University to provide any records of meetings administrators held to discuss Williams.

Oser said he will decide during Williams' trial, scheduled to begin Aug. 12, whether lawyers for the former Green Wave basketball star can use the records as evidence.

The school had tried to block the subpoenas on grounds that federal law forbids universities to give out such information without the student's permission.

Hard Work

Our early settlers knew that, if they were going to survive in their new surroundings, they would have to work hard. Everyday there were many chores to be accomplished around the home. They could rely only on themselves to get the job done.

In 1900, the First National Bank of Hereford was founded. The folks who started our bank knew it would take a lot of hard work to make it successful.

As we look back over 85 years, we're glad we could lend a helping hand to a lot of people.

We're proud to be a part of Hereford and the Texas Panhandle.

But our hard work isn't finished yet. At First National Bank of Hereford, we're still pioneering new ways of service and security for you and your family.

Awnings returning to many Texas homes

Awnings adds more than a cherry, nostalgic touch to Texas homes. They can take a lot of heat off of summer energy bills, according to the Energy Efficiency Division of the Public Utility Commission.

Awnings can reduce summer heat gain to a home by up to 65 percent on south-facing windows and 77 percent on west-facing windows. Light colored awning materials work best since they stay cooler and transfer less heat to the window. Because of the sizeable energy savings, awnings are regaining the popularity they had in Texas in the early 1900s.

Louvered, operable exterior shutters are even smarter window accents. Used properly, exterior shutters can effectively block all direct sunlight and reduce solar heat gain by 80 percent. Strategic landscaping can also help filter sunlight.

It's important to look at windows when trying to make a home more energy efficient. That's why the Public Utility Commission of Texas offers a free brochure on windows. It charts the effectiveness of different window treatment like multiple panes and solar screens.

The Energy Efficiency Division of the Commission has compiled and published smart energy solutions for Texans on a wide range of topics. Brochures, consumer guides, books and films are available by calling 1-800-643-SAVE.

Public invited to luncheon

Members of the Family Life Education Committee will meet for a brown bag luncheon and business meeting at noon Wednesday in Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The public is invited to attend. More information may be obtained by calling Carolyn Andrews, chairperson, for the committee, at the hospital, 364-2141.

The newly organized group is comprised of individuals with strong affiliations to local social service agencies, schools, churches and civic groups. They frequently see teenagers that are suffering from the devastation of a teenage pregnancy and want to reverse the trend.

Committee members feel a positive influence can be made by providing families with a method of support from a group with whom they can share thoughts, feelings and possible solutions and through educational programs for parents and children in dealing with their sexuality.

Cooked beets

DEAR POLLY — Must beets be cooked before peeling as most recipes specify? I always find it a hassle to have to peel the beets just before serving time. — KAREN

DEAR KAREN — Of course you can peel beets raw, then cook them. It's just that they bleed less and are easier to peel if you cook them, then peel. But there's no need to get involved in this messy task while getting dinner on the table. You can cook the beets early in the day, peel them, then just before serving reheat them with a little butter or other seasonings. The beets reheat beautifully and are delicious — with no last minute fuss! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Try this idea for a hand-washing setup when camping.

Puncture a small nail hole in the bottom of a clean plastic detergent bottle (one with a handle). Fill the bottle with water and hang it by the handle from a tree branch. When needed for washing, unscrew the lid and the water will drip out. Then screw the lid on tightly to stop the flow. Hang a bar of soap in a nylon stocking beside the detergent bottle and there you are: soap and running water! — LILA

DEAR POLLY — When you're wiping up the floor on your hands and knees, turn your slacks bottom up over your knees. You'll get no dust on the outer knees of your pants and you've also made yourself a little kneeling pad. For more cushioning, slip a washcloth into the fold. — MYRNA

Nutritionist talks of shopping strategy

Consumers may be developing a false sense of security about reducing sugar in their diets, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

"More people are reading food labels to see if sugar is listed among the top three ingredients," says Dr. Alice Hunt. "They tend to see these as high-sugar products, and avoid them."

Hunt says there are two problems with this shopping strategy.

"Mostly for economic reasons, food manufacturers are using many other forms of sweeteners, such as corn syrup, high fructose corn syrup, honey, molasses, sucrose, dextrose and maltose," she explains. "So consumers need to recognize all forms of sweeteners when they are listed on labels."

"Food manufacturers may also use more than one type of sweetener in a food product," says the nutritionist.

"This means the sweeteners may be placed far down on the ingredients list," Hunt notes, "because smaller amounts of each type are used."

"But if all the different sweeteners used in the product were added together for one listing, it would be near the top of the ingredients list," the nutritionist points out.

U.S. Department of Agriculture figures show that the per capita consumption of sweeteners is going up, even though the consumption of sugar is going down, reports Hunt.

Nothing, but nothing, heals itself faster than a tax cut.

To historic arsenal

H.E.B. moves headquarters from high-rise

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — No high-rise, mirror glass office buildings on the freeway for H.E.B. Grocery Co. headquarters.

Give this family-owned and operated business, the nation's 12th largest food retailer, a taste of history — a blend of the old and the new.

Give them an old arsenal and stable once used by the U.S. Army in what is now part of San Antonio's historic district.

Give them a spot on the San Antonio River, where employees can stroll on their lunch hours and have a scenic view from their desks.

The grocer is getting all these advantages this month when corporate headquarters are moved from Corpus Christi to San Antonio.

When the move is complete, 500 employees will be working at a refurbished 10-acre site, once an Army supply depot for forts from New Orleans to San Francisco.

"There were four Indian tribes between here and New Mexico," said architect Pat Chumney, who has shepherded the restoration and construction project since it began five years ago.

Originally built in the 1860s, the site includes a limestone arsenal with walls and roof 4½ feet thick. The magazine, as it was called, was built to replace use of the Alamo, a mission that had been put into use by the Army.

Sometime around 1916 two warehouses and what was once a buggy repair shop were added.

The arsenal and a companion limestone stable have been restored to their original condition.

The two warehouses and the buggy shop, later used as a garage for Army truck repairs, have been modified and refurbished to suit more modern office use.

Also part of the campus-like complex is a completely new four-story building.

"H.E.B. could have built or leased a building on the loop or in downtown and not have the impact on the city that they have by doing this to this complex," Chumney said.

"It is an extremely important gesture to the city of San Antonio to take this rundown property that had been abandoned since World War II and put it in condition for use by a modern retail grocery chain," he said.

The grocery chain, which employs more than 19,000 people and operates 145 stores in 77 Texas cities, plans to settle in its new 160,000 square feet headquarters by mid-August.

The move from Corpus Christi, where H.E.B. has headquartered since 1940, is part of the grocery chain's effort to be more centrally located in its marketing territory.

H.E.B. spokesman Charles Blackburn said the arsenal site was chosen because of its historical significance and its central location downtown.

"It's historical background was a strong incentive to us to participate in San Antonio's restoration movement and become a part of the community in a distinctive way," said Blackburn, who is in charge of H.E.B.'s relocation.

Neither Blackburn nor Chumney would put a pricetag on the new headquarters. But Chumney admitted it will run in the millions.

"It cost no more than it would have to build a mirror glass building on the loop and they're getting a hell of a lot more for the money," he said.

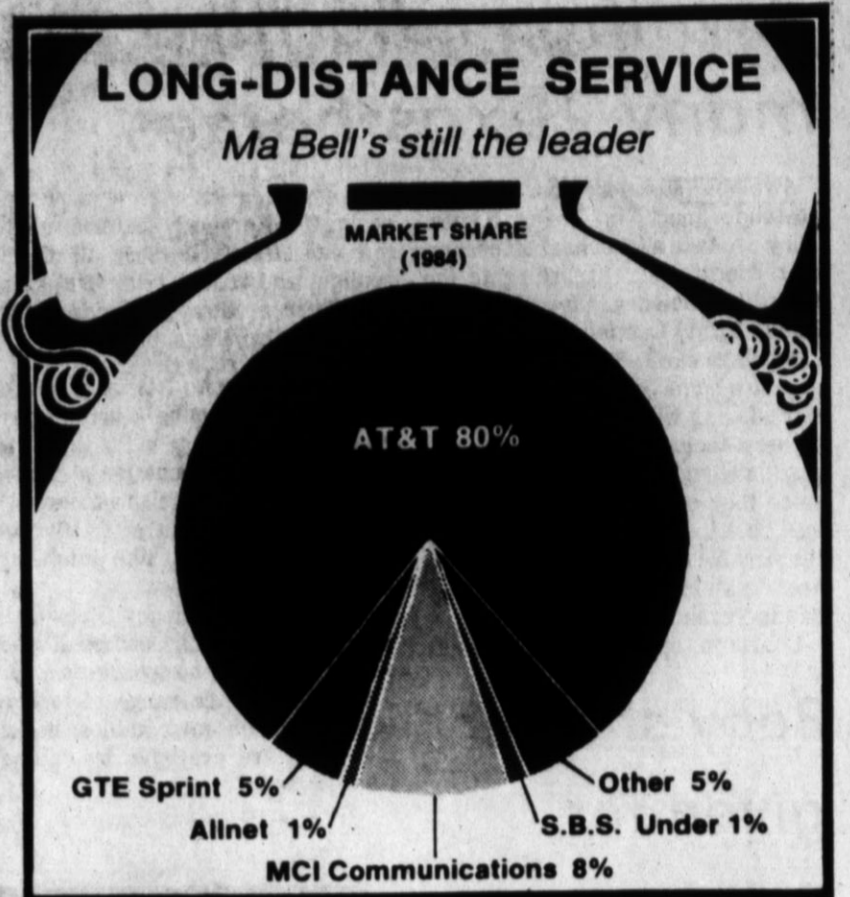

Chumney has had a lot of people to please throughout the effort. Not only has he had to satisfy H.E.B. officials, he has had to coordinate the restoration project with the local Conservation Society, the Riverwalk Advisory Commission, the Texas Historical Commission and downtown businessmen.

The arsenal and stable were left mostly unchanged on the outside, largely because they had weathered the years so well.

One of the warehouses was transformed into a gymnasium and cafeteria, the second warehouse was remodeled for office space and the buggy shop was renovated into the main reception area, computer center and print shop.

Bathed in a subtle shade of gray paint, the buildings are of no particular architectural style, Chumney said.

"The intent was to create a campus-like atmosphere," he said. "Despite its size, H.E.B. wants a family atmosphere. It would be inappropriate for them to be in a mirror glass building on (Loop) 410."

Annual Jubilee of Arts scheduled Saturday, Sunday

The Ninth Annual Jubilee of the Arts will be held at the Amarillo Art Center Saturday and Sunday. More than 60 artists will be showing and selling their works at the juried show. Their media include: weaving, stained glass, textiles and pottery, in addition to watercolor, acrylic and oil paintings. Hours are 11 a.m. - 7 p.m. Saturday; and 12-6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 for adults; children under 12 are admitted free.

Last year over 2,000 people enjoyed Jubilee festivities, which will include Rosa's Cantina, a cafe which will feature Southwestern and Mexican specialties and a wonderful variety of desserts. There will be continuous entertainment in the cafe and on the grounds of the Art Center. Children, ages 3-12, can be royally entertained at Childrens Jubilee where they will participate in supervised art activities for a small fee.

A preview party, "El Rancho de Amarillo," will be held Friday evening. It will feature barbecue, dancing, a silent auction and artists showing and selling their works. Dress is boots and jeans, and reservations can be made by phoning the Art Center.

Ray Vinella, of Taos, N.M., will be the guest artist. Limited edition prints of his landscape which was created especially for Jubilee, will be for sale. The artist will be signing and numbering the prints at Jubilee. The original will be auctioned Friday evening.

Nuclear warheads are stored in 27 states, but South Carolina and New York are the "hottest": Each contains nearly 2,000 — more than all of the warheads in Great Britain.

For many alcoholics

Program serves as last resort

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Until recently, Clint Walden served in a public relations capacity for the Commuter Center at the University of Oklahoma. However, job stress and a shaky marriage that eventually ended in divorce accelerated a 10-year decline into alcoholism.

To pull himself out of the tailspin, Walden enrolled in an alcohol rehabilitation program called Honesty, Opportunity and Willingness. He shares the view of many of the men in the program that HOW is their last chance to become productive members of society.

"They are like me," administrator Jim Hawk said. "I went through seven different treatment centers before I had enough and straightened up."

Hawk said HOW provides everything a man needs to overcome alcoholism.

"Clothing, cigarettes, teeth, glasses, major medical and dental care and a job are all provided," he said. "We also drill them in the ways of Alcoholics Anonymous."

Tulsa city officials initiated the program in 1981 with the aim of helping the alcoholics who populated Tulsa's downtown shopping mall. HOW duplicates a program begun in San Antonio, Texas, in 1976.

Participants receive six months of rehabilitation services and have to work to support the program. Hawk initially worked in the San Antonio program.

The first step in rehabilitation is sobering up the participant. "We don't use medical means, we give them wine at the beginning and slowly reduce the amount to zero," Hawk said. In addition, each man receives a medical examination.

"If he is an older guy and sickly, he is given light duty such as washing dishes and sweeping the floor," Hawk said. "If healthy, he is placed in crews doing carpentry work, splitting wood for a firewood business the HOW Foundation operates or digging ditches."

The organization contracts with schools and a local utility to provide workers and the money made from the labor supports the cost of operating the foundation. None of it is given to the men undergoing rehabilitation.

"We pride ourselves in that we don't take tax money. We are entirely self-supporting," Hawk said. Participants who want to stay longer than six months are paid $100 a week, while everything else is furnished.

"They can stay as long as they feel the need."

Hawk said there are doctors, lawyers and laborers in the program.

"In the early days, all of our clients came from Skid Row," Hawk said. "Now that HOW has proven itself, we are getting referrals from the courts — first offenders, people arrested for substance abuse who the judges believe may be helped by the program."

The organization's "Booze Cruiser" tours downtown Tulsa streets nightly, offering an invitation to alcoholics to improve their lives through regular meals, clean surroundings and the opportunity for hard work.

Walden has never gone through any other alcoholic rehabilitation center, unlike the 78 other people currently in the program. Because of financial problems, he was forced to choose between the state-run program — located in a mental hospital — or the HOW program.

Walden, who enrolled in the program about a month ago, is undergoing not only a cure of alcoholism but a rebuilding of his personality and self-confidence lost over the years.

Walden said his bout with alcoholism may have contributed to his divorce and did contribute to his decision to leave his job at the University of Oklahoma.

"I had blackouts and would become a totally different person," he said. "I wouldn't become physically violent, but I would become obnoxious and verbally abusive."

About 5,000 people have enrolled in the program since it began in 1981.

"Only about 500 have stuck to the end," Hawk said. "The others left early because they were scared by the hard work."

Hawk says none of those who left the program early have been able to conquer alcoholism.

To help ensure that those who have completed the program stay sober, the foundation operates two "three-quarter" houses for men lacking the self-confidence to live on their own.

"We bought the houses because we saw that the men would finish the program and go back to the cheap hotels and rooming house, the same environment we are trying to save them from," Hawk said.

Walden said he has received support from his family and friends.

However, he says the greatest help to his overcoming alcoholism is being around those who understand his problem.

"I am gradually regaining my self confidence," he said. "I'm taking it one day at a time."

Paul Harvey A new Castro?

Castro-Cuba is a sorry showcase for communism.
After 26 years of communist, the island's economy is moribund, capitalized only by a contin-ing transfusion of Soviet dollars, $10 million a day.
The Cuban worker has to pay a third of his monthly salary for a pair of shoes; half of his monthly salary for a pair of jeans.
Where Castro had imagined he would make Cuba such a shining example of communist that the red flag would soon fly over all Latin America...

On the contrary, the improvements he has been able to make—in computers and robotics and beach hotels—were and are subsidized by money from Spain, West Germany, Ecuador, Columbia.
Countries Castro once sought to subvert he now courts "for capitalistic investment in Cuba."
Clearly, ideology has taken a back seat to economics.
U.S. movies are being shown in Havana. U.S. recordings are being played on Cuban radio. Cuba has established an academic exchange program with our

Johns Hopkins University — and seeks others.
And Cuban students who were studying Russian are now studying English. So far Uncle Sam is not accepting Mr. Castro's embrace but is watching and listening...
WHERE THERE'S A WALL
It was a small step for a man but a giant step for mankind the day somebody discovered that hospitals don't have to smell like hospitals.
In California, they don't have to look like hospitals, either.
Because a balding man wearing a coat of many colors is making the rounds.
And in his wake, sterile walls are suddenly alive and once stark rooms host a carnival.
John Feight told the Los Angeles Times, "One day I looked up and there was a wall. I have not been the same since."
He sought and got permission to decorate that wall with an oil-painted mural.
That was 2,000 walls ago.
His smock and hands

smudged with a spectrum of colors, he goes where invited, for pay or for fun, making hospital walls appear as something more than what they are.
At Rancho Encino Hospital
he painted two dozen murals in three days.
Then 15 more at the medical center in Hollywood.
Mostly his subjects are colorful jungle birds and animals and landscapes and seascapes.
Patients wheeled into the operating room in North Hollywood Hospital look up at a ceiling mural. Cancer patients under the cold machinery in the radiation room face a wall-wide sunrise over a lapis blue lake.
Joanne Reed, administrator of that hospital, says the murals add warmth.
"They make a statement about caring."
American Medical International, Inc., now wants Mr.
Feight to get around to all its hospitals, worldwide, as soon as he can.
That's the only problem, says Mr. Feight: "So many walls, so little time."

Texas Most Wanted Fugitive

LA PORTE, Texas - George Walter French can't say that the criminal justice system hasn't given him a chance to turn his life around.
French, who will turn 51 years of age on August 15, 1985, has been in and out of prison most of his adult life.
Law enforcement officials cite the fact that he has been arrested 31 times and has a total of 10 convictions on charges ranging from burglary, larceny, forgery and fraud. Out of those 10 convictions, he has been sent to the Texas Department of Corrections just twice.
His latest conviction occurred in 1978, when he was sentenced to 20 years in TDC for felony theft over $10,000. He was paroled in January, 1985, after serving about one-third of his sentence.
Now he is in hot water with the law
once again.
French is wanted on a warrant out of Harris County for burglary of a building.
Detectives with the La Porte

Police Department say that on April 19 someone broke into Thermal Industrial Insulation and took about 50 company checks, a check writer and a typewriter. Several of the stolen checks were then passed in Harris County.
On April 24, George French's son, Michael, and Kerry Lee Hodge were arrested by the Pasadena Police Department for possession of dangerous drugs. However, George French and two unidentified white females escaped a police dragnet and fled to Beaumont, Texas, where at least one more stolen company check was cashed.
This week French has been selected for the Texas Most Wanted list. A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to his capture.
French is described as a white male, 6-3, 220 pounds, with curly red hair and brown eyes. He is missing the tip of his left index finger.
Detectives say French was last seen driving a 1980 blue Chevrolet Malibu four-door, with Texas license plates VFG-634. They warn that French might be armed with a .410-gauge shotgun and has said he will not go back to prison.
Anyone with information about French's whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime
Stoppers program.
In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.
Texas Most Wanted is a cooperative program between the Department of Public Safety and Texas Crime Stoppers.

TUESDAY Shopper's Guide

A page filled with outstanding bargains and services!

Just a reminder, if your old furnace is about to give up, you might want to consider a new, high-efficiency heat pump. If your air conditioner needs replacement but your gas furnace is still in good working order, an add-on heat pump may be the answer. The most efficient system is the geothermal heat pump. It may be used in the conversion of an existing system or a new installation. Call (806) 364-1166
