

Schultz rejects appeal

To resume Nicaragua talks

MEXICO CITY (AP) — After "candid" talks with Mexican officials, U.S. Secretary of State George P. Schultz has rejected an appeal from the Contadora peace group that the United States resume talks with leftist Nicaragua.

"Insofar as the U.S. meetings with Nicaragua are concerned, the conditions that have been set out that would lead us to want to resume those have not been fulfilled," Schultz told a news conference Thursday evening.

He said those conditions center around "Nicaragua's readiness to undertake a dialogue of internal reconciliation" sponsored by the Roman Catholic Church.

Mexico and the other three Contadora nations earlier in the week urged the United States to return to the bargaining table with Nicaraguan officials in an effort to end the violence in Central America.

U.S. negotiators in January suspended discussions with the Sandinista government in the Pacific resort city of Manzanillo, Mexico.

The United States Congress recently voted to resume aid to the Contra rebels fighting to overthrow the leftist Sandinista Front regime that came to power in Nicaragua in 1979. Nicaraguan officials repeatedly have predicted a U.S. invasion.

Schultz, who was leaving Mexico today after a one-day visit to attend a conference of the Mexico-U.S. Binational Commission, said his talks with Mexican officials "on Central America and Nicaragua were candid, frank and the atmosphere of the discussion was a good one, a constructive one."

"Nicaraguans were trying to use bilateral talks with us to undermine the Contadora process" for achieving peace in Central America, he said earlier on the flight from Washington to Mexico.

"We don't see the rationale for saying as a reward for walking off of the job on the Contadora process, Nicaragua should be handed some other kind of a forum," he said.

Schultz has said Central America's problems are being worsened by Soviet and Cuban attempts, working through Nicaragua, to undermine elected democratic governments.

Mexico, Panama, Colombia and Venezuela make up the Contadora group, named after the Panamanian island where they held their first meeting to seek a negotiated solution to conflicts in Central America.

The group's efforts to achieve peace in Central America have been stalled since last fall when Nicaragua accepted a draft peace accord but El Salvador, Costa Rica and Honduras rejected it. Guatemala is the other Central American nation involved.

Loeffler under fire for PAC money

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, who has set his sights on the Texas governor's mansion, has come under the scrutiny of a citizens' group claiming he accepts too many contributions from political action committees.

"More than a third of his 1984 campaign contributions — $88,054 — came from special interest groups with political action committees (PACs) located outside your congressional district," a two-thirds page ad in Thursday's San Antonio Light said.

The ad also said Loeffler, who has announced he will not run for reelection to Congress, had $384,684 in his campaign treasury after the 1984 elections.

"What is Rep. Loeffler going to do with $385,000 of leftover campaign money? Take it with him?" the headline on the ad said.

The ad was placed by a Washington-based organization called Citizens Against PACs.

CAP founder Phil Stern was in San Antonio Thursday to promote his cause.

"Why would they (PACs) give money to Congressman Loeffler if not to gain influence with him — at the minimum to gain access," he told The Associated Press.

"Our basic question is why should a lobbyist who doesn't live or vote or pay taxes in a congressional district have favored access to that congressman over his own constituents who can't afford large political donations?" Stern said.

Loeffler was unavailable for comment, but his office issued a statement in response to the ad.

"Political action committees are one way for citizens to participate in the political process as is voting or walking precincts," Loeffler said in the statement. "I welcome their participation."

A spokesman in Loeffler's Washington office said the money left over from the 1984 campaign has remained in campaign coffers.

Loeffler, who represents the 21st District, is expected to announce he will run for the Republican nomination for governor.

Stern said he questions why the American Medical Association, the National Association of Home Builders and other PACs have given Loeffler money.

"He doesn't need the campaign money. He hasn't had a close race since he was elected," Stern said.

The PAC system, created in Watergate-inspired campaign finance reforms in 1974, costs consumers money, Stern said.

Special interest groups like the dairy industry or the tobacco farmers form PACs that win federal subsidies for their businesses — pushing up the prices for their products.

Stern, a writer and former aide to two U.S. senators, said he would like to see federal funds made available for congressional races just as they currently are for presidential elections.

A bill CAP is pushing in Congress would extend federal funds to congressional elections.

Under the current system, taxpayers can check a box on their income tax form designating $1 in tax money for presidential campaign funds.

Stern would like to see the amount upped to $3 or $4 to make more funding available for senators and representatives.

Chamber reports optimistic

An optimistic report on industrial and commercial plans being made in the community, along with committee progress reports, highlighted the monthly meeting of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board meeting Thursday evening.

Mike Carr, executive vice president, updated the board on various building projects in the northern part of town, as well as tentative plans for a number of improvements at Sugarland Mall. The Mall is in the process of being sold to a Florida developer who has plans to improve the property, said Carr.

The chamber manager said Smith Food & Drug Company officials are scheduled to be here next Tuesday for a groundbreaking ceremony on their shopping center at Hwy. 385 and 15th Street. A company official said they hoped to start construction work next week.

Dirt work is well underway for the new Save 'N' Gain supermarket and other stores in a strip shopping center west of the Mall on Hwy. 385. Work on the site of the Golden Plains Nursing Home, just west of the shopping center and just south of the new Senior Citizens center, is also underway said Carr.

Plans for a 20-unit apartment complex are still being readied near the intersection of Hwy. 385 and 15th Street, too. Other new construction in the area includes an addition to the Warner Memorial Day Care Center. In the east part of town, Carr said plans are still being developed for the manure-burning energy plant.

In other business Thursday, Lajeane Henry reported the retail seminar led by Doug Manning — was a "big success" with 116 persons attending; Clovis Seago announced that plans for the Town & Country Jubilee were "shaping up with only 21 days to go"; and Carr reported the Sesquicentennial committee is doing "lots of planning for 1986 activities."

Anti-nuke group slates Hereford

Hereford has been added to the itinerary of a group of anti-nuclear demonstrators from three states who tonight from the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant will begin their second annual bike and car pilgrimage to Amarillo's Pantex plant.

According to Les Breeding, a former Hereford resident, the Red River Peace Network caravan will arrive in Hereford Saturday, Aug. 3, around noon. The group will be distributing leaflets throughout the town from noon until about 2 p.m. Then the group plan to conduct a short program on their concerns about the Department of Energy's possible siting of a nuclear waste repository in Deaf Smith County.

At 6 p.m. that Saturday the group plan to present skits and music on their cause at the courthouse square.

The stop in Hereford will be on the eve of the final leg of the trip which will bring the group to the Pantex plant for a weeklong "peace camp."

Area cyclists and protesters plan to meet at 11 a.m. on Aug. 4 at the Medi-Park on the west side of Amarillo to ride across the city on U.S. 60.

In conjunction with the Red River coalition's caravan, though not sponsored by that group, is a workshop on nuclear issues set for 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in the Amarillo Public Library.

The activities are to coincide with the fortieth anniversary of the atomic bombing of Japan by the U.S.

Hereford Bull

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says a good marriage is like a casserole — only those responsible for it really know what goes into it.

Little Johnny, a terror at home, was attending nursery school for the first time when the teacher asked his name.

"Johnny Don't!" he replied.

Gov. Mark White's stubborn refusal to change the no-pass, no-pay rule to a more reasonable standard is making him more enemies every week. Today he was quoted as saying he was making some "refinements" in the bill.

"The major refinement is we're going to put everybody on the side of trying to get that kid to pass," the governor said. That sounds great sitting in the ivory tower, but it doesn't make much sense to a kid who makes four A's and one D, then is suspended from extracurricular activities for six weeks.

If voters could grade the governor, we're sure he'd get a few D's and we could suspend him for six weeks. Maybe it will work out that way, and we can suspend him permanently at the end of his term!

Actually, we bet White and his buddy, Ross Perot, are loving all the controversy over the no-pass, no-play rule. While the glare of publicity is on that rule, parents and taxpayers have largely ignored the more serious consequences of what the school reform bill will do to their pocketbooks.

Many of the financial aspects of HB 72 were designed to switch state funds away from the richer school districts to those who were poorer and to big-city schools. Some districts were jubilant last year over the extra funds that dropped into their laps.

However, some school officials — such as Supt. Harrell Holder of Hereford — saw the handwriting on the wall. Some districts will have to come up with more local funds next year due to the state mandated reforms in the bill, and the year after could be worse.

When you lump what the state says you have to do with what must be done locally to maintain a quality school district with the same programs, the bottom line is new and more taxes for local districts.

Peso devalued, cuts called

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico has reduced the value of its peso by 20 percent and ordered massive cuts in government spending, including President Miguel de la Madrid's salary, to arrest the deterioration of the nation's economy.

In a Wednesday night news conference, the nation's top three economic officials said cuts would include the elimination in the federal government of 15 undersecretarylevel offices, at least 50 general-level posts along with salary cuts from 10 to 15 percent for management level employees.

Budget Secretary Carlos Salinas de Gortari said Thursday the cuts would eliminate 51,000 government positions in all sectors, but 23,000 people will be relocated in other government jobs because they belong to unions. He said the other 28,000 people are in high-level, non-union positions and they will lose their government jobs.

Since 1982, de la Madrid's administration has eliminated 651 government offices with 80,000 employees.

The actions were considered some of the strongest taken by de la Madrid since taking office in 1982. Such actions have been suggested by private analysts, but many observers believe the government avoided such harsh measures until after the July 7 national elections.

The cuts include a 10 percent reduction in the president's salary, reported to be about 1.8 million pesos a month, or about $4,800. That move is viewed by many as a gesture by de la Madrid to underscore the seriousness of the situation.

Mexican officials have been concerned about the economy's direction because of the weakening peso, lower oil prices on the world market, increased inflation and decreased demand for non-petroleum products.

Petroleum sales are the nation's No. 1 source of foreign exchange, followed by tourism. Mexico has a foreign debt of $96 billion, the second biggest debtor in the Third World behind Brazil.

Two teens indicted

Two Hereford teenagers arrested earlier this month by the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office were indicted Thursday on burglary charges by a Randall County grand jury.

Jeffery Alan Boldon and David Allen Harbison, both 17, were named in separate indictments for burglary of a building in connection with a break-in July 8 at Palo Duro Campground and RV Park near Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

The two are accused of stealing nearly $9,500 in jewelry, watches and souvenir items, many of which were found in the canyon. The remainder of the merchandise was found by Deaf Smith County Sheriff's deputies in a vacant house in Castro County.

According to Chief Deputy Loy Smith, law enforcement officers were led to the house after juveniles accused of ransacking the Hereford Rider's Club Arena confessed to knowledge of the Canyon heist.

One of the juveniles questioned about the vandalism incident is also a suspect in the burglary, Smith said. He credited the county's juvenile office with solving the crime.

Grease fire doused

A grease fire caused moderate damage to the kitchen and roof of a Hereford residence Thursday around 9 p.m.

Fire chief David Spain said volunteers were called to the 102 Aspen residence of David Beavers after flames were discovered coming through the roof. Beavers was not at home when the fire broke out. Volunteers also went to the Sonic Drive-In Thursday, where the pump on an air conditioner had shorted out.

Assault, attempted rape reported

An alleged assault and attempted rape was reported to Hereford Police early this morning and is still under investigation.

A woman claimed her assailant locked her in the office of a local restaurant and private club, police said. No charges have been filed. The apparent theft of a ring valued at $500 was reported to police yesterday, and there were two reports of criminal mischief.

Assault was alleged as the result of a husband and wife dispute, and a complaint of harassment was filed as the result of a dispute over money.

There was one arrest for public intoxication, one for burglary of a building and a third on a warrant for disorderly conduct.

Man files suit after woman says 'No'

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A Beaumont man, snubbed by the woman he had asked to marry him, has filed a lawsuit against her seeking $10,000 for "grievous mental pain."

In the lawsuit filed this week in state district court, the man contends she accepted his proposal and promised to marry him soon. Then she backed out and continued to refuse to walk down the aisle with him.

He contends she breached the contract and he was "deprived of any opportunity he might have had to marry anyone else during that time." Furthermore, "His affections have been blighted and he has suffered grievous mental pain and anguish, wounded pride, mortification, humiliation, shame, disgrace, and his health has been impaired," said the suit, which also seeks the return of the engagement ring or payment of $4,000, the cost of the rock on which his dreams broke.

Bluebonnet license plate voted down

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas is better off without a license plate with a bluebonnet on it, the state highway commission has decided.

In a quick 3-0 vote Thursday, the panel undid its April decision to put the motto "Wildflower State" and the faint outline of bluebonnets on Texas' 1987 license plates.

Critics argued that the motto lacks macho, and Commission Chairman Robert Lanier of Houston said he didn't want to fight about it.

"I'm so tired of hearing things on license plates I'm going to spit up," he joked before the vote.

Joining Lanier in the vote were new commissioners Thomas Dunning of Dallas and Ray Stoker of Odessa. Dunning was appointed to the panel Thursday by Gov. Mark White. Stoker was appointed earlier this week.

The anti-flower fight was led by 57 legislators whose opposition persuaded the commission to defoliate the plates. As a result of Thursday's vote, the 1987 plates will carry one word: "Texas."

Postcards arrive 22 years late

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-two years after a woman named Jean wrote that it was cold in Ohio, Frank Green got the message. And the postcard wasn't even addressed to him. Neither were the other five that straggled in last week, all of them more than 19 years late.

They were sent to the previous owners of Green's home, and neither he nor postal officials know where the postcards spent the years.

Green got his first installment July 16 when two cards postmarked 1962 arrived. He thought it unusual until two days later when four more came.

"I've been waiting around to see if any more are going to make it in," he said.

All the cards were in good shape, as if they had been well sheltered. The pictures of five-story hotels and mineral museums were still bright with color, but the handwriting was faded. The messages, however, are as lively as ever. Harry and Hazel wrote from Hendersonville in 1963: "Don't forget you have a date with us at 5 p.m. Saturday."

Tennessee may get Saturn complex

DETROIT (AP) — A Tennessee town with a population of about 1,100 has been selected as the site for General Motors Corp.'s revolutionary Saturn Corp. complex, according to a report published today.

Spring Hill, Tenn., about 30 miles south of Nashville, is GM's final choice, the Detroit Free Press reported in a copyright story.

The newspaper quoted unnamed officials involved in the Saturn project who said the site decision would not change and would be announced in the next several days.

GM spokesman Stan Hall said he could neither confirm nor deny the report.

Meanwhile, the Nashville Tennessean, quoting unnamed industry officials who have been informed of the site selection work, said today in a copyright story that the Spring Hill choice is "final with one if."

"The site committee's selection is final, but there are no guarantees," an unnamed official told the Tennessean. "UAW rejection of the labor letter could send the entire project back to the beginning of the process."

The company has said it would wait until a labor contract was approved by United Auto Workers leaders before announcing a site.

The UAW's Executive Board plans to meet today in Chicago to review a tentative pact between GM and the UAW, and UAW President Owen Bieber has said he expects the site decision to be made after that.

South Africa's currency value plunges

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa's currency plunged in value today and stock prices continued a downward slide in reaction to the state of emergency and a French freeze on investment.

Police said today they had detained 96 more people, bringing the total in six-day-old state of emergency to almost 900.

South Africa's Rand fell from an opening of $2.65 cents Thursday to 47.80 cents this morning — a 9.2 percent drop in 24 hours. It later rebounded to 49 cents in chaotic trading. The Johannesburg stock exchange's gold index fell sharply Thursday, and has dropped more than 120 points to 845.9 since last week.

France and Denmark asked the U.N. Security Council for voluntary sanctions against South Africa to protest apartheid, South Africa's system of racial segregation under which 5 million whites rule 24 million voteless blacks.

Protesters close down Caribbean city

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — The largest city and commercial hub of this French Caribbean island was sealed off by old cars, tree limbs, rocks and signboards today — the fourth day of protests backing an independence advocate on a hunger strike in Paris jail.

At least 10 people received minor injuries in the first three days of protests, most of them hurt by rocks thrown by protesters.

The demonstrators rejected government calls Wednesday for an end to the protests, and government officials refused to comment on the situation Thursday.

The protesters called for the release of Georges Faisan, a native of Guadeloupe and strong supporter of independence. He reportedly has been on a hunger strike in prison since June 3.

Faisan, a black, is serving a three-year sentence for hitting a schoolteacher with a machete after the teacher allegedly insulted a young black.

His daughter told reporters Thursday that her father fainted Monday because of weakness, and that the jail's physician does not want to hospitalize him. The Justice Ministry denied her statement.

GOP's dislike Senate move

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite objections from President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., Senate negotiators are trying to break the congressional budget impasse with a $338 billion deficit-reduction package that would raise taxes and delay Social Security increases.

So far, though, neither the president nor the speaker shows any sign of yielding and the deadlock over a fiscal 1986 budget continues.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, told House conferees on Thursday that White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan had authorized him to say the administration is "genuinely interested" and "they are willing, at an early date, to sit down and discuss" the new proposal with congressional leaders.

But when Reagan was asked Thursday if he supported an oil import tax — a major provision of the Senate package — he replied, "I'm not for any taxes."

Meanwhile, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, told Senate conferees that O'Neill, D-Mass., "is not loathe or unwilling to meet with the president at any time."

Legislators said another White House meeting between Reagan and congressional leaders could come soon.

When O'Neill was asked about adjusting Social Security cost-of-living adjustments every other year, instead of annually — another major part of the Senate plan — he said it was "morally wrong" and "politically wrong."

O'Neill said he also opposed the oil import levy. "All of us in the Northeast oppose it," he said.

Wright said we are "kidding ourselves if we think we can pass this tax over the president's opposition."

The Senate plan, which would reduce next year's projected $230 billion budget deficit by $65 billion, would:

- Make inflation adjustments in Social Security and other benefit programs every two years, instead of annually. For example, cost-of-living adjustments would be made in even numbered years but skipped in odd numbered years. This would save $12 billion over three years.
- Adjust personal income tax rates to account for inflation every two years instead of annually. This would save $7 billion over three years.
- Impose a $5-a-barrel fee on imported crude oil to raise $25 billion through 1988.
- Impose a 2 percent across-the-board reduction in overall spending authority for domestic spending programs, excluding welfare, to save $5 billion over three years.
- Bring state and local government employees not already covered by Social Security and Medicare into those programs to raise $8 billion.

Other cuts, freezes and reforms of government spending, plus savings in interest on the national debt, account for the remainder of the package.

Bodies to be exhumed

GALVESTON (AP) — A state district judge authorized defense attorneys in the Autumn Hills murder case to exhume the bodies of up to 58 elderly people who died at the Texas City nursing home between 1977 and 1980.

Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc., which is based in Houston, and five of its present and former employees are charged with murder by neglect in the deaths.

Defense attorneys argued Thursday, in a motion to state District Judge Don B. Morgan, that the prosecution in the case should have had autopsies performed on the bodies if there was suspicion of foul play in their deaths.

Defense attorneys are seeking to have the charges dropped on grounds of prosecutorial misconduct.

Morgan adjourned until Monday further consideration on the defense claims of prosecutorial misconduct, but was expected to order two journalists today to reveal confidential sources or turn over notes they used to write stories on Autumn Hills.

The two journalists — who have said they don't plan to comply with Morgan's order — are Michael Berryhill, a free-lance writer and writing consultant for the Houston Chronicle, and Steve Olafson, a reporter with the Houston Post.

the shareholders: "Big Oil management may be costing you billions!"

Lynton Allred of Hereford is president-elect of the Texas Oil Marketers Association (TOMA), and is very much aware of what is happening. Oil marketers had asked the major oil companies to stay out of the retail business, since they were selling their products through independent wholesalers.

The integrated oil companies continued to invest in retail operations, and the independent wholesalers claim the major oil companies have lost more than $6 billion since 1983.

The ad in the Journal urges shareholders to ask their chief executive officers about the management policies of the company and "why do many refiners continue to invest hundreds of millions of dollars in downstream operations with little hope of a return on that investment?"

Allred says studies have shown that major oil companies can earn a higher return, pay higher dividends, and ultimately save consumers dollars by selling refined products through wholesalers. Since the companies wouldn't listen, adds Allred, the independent marketers are "educating the shareholders."

No pass, no play to stay

AUSTIN (AP) — Neither weaker grade standards nor shorter suspensions will be among suggested refinements in the no-pass, no-play rule, Gov. Mark White says.

"I don't think there will be any changes along those lines, and I'm not going to suggest any," White told his weekly news conference Thursday.

Under the controversial new rules, students who fail to score a 70 percent passing mark in any course will be barred from extracurricular activities — including sports — for six weeks.

Some critics have proposed allowing students to play if they achieve an average of 70 in all courses, even while failing one of them. They also have proposed a shorter suspension, such as two weeks, from play.

But White said he doesn't like those proposals.

"We're not going to change that 70 passing (in all classes). We're not going to withdraw on that," he said.

Last week, the governor met with about two dozen high school football coaches, saying afterward, "The ball is in our court. We're not talking about any dramatic changes ... We're talking about refinements."

White said Thursday his staff is preparing what he called "a communique" to be sent to high school officials and coaches within the next few days.

"We are still communicating with coaches and trying to work to see all the various problems that they have dealt with or dreamed up. As a result, we're going to try to address those in this response," he said.

"The major refinement is we're going to put everybody on the side of trying to get that kid to pass," the governor said.

"We're trying to help build a playbook that we can all work on and follow. That's the way the coaches get their winning teams out there and I'm going to try to help them get a winning team on the field academically as well."

On other subjects, White said: — He hasn't been informed whether Texas has lost out as a site for General Motors' new Saturn auto manufacturing plant. Several reports Thursday said GM will choose a city in Tennessee.

"That's a decision we have no control over. We've done everything, I think, that was possible to attract them to Texas," he said.

— Reports about possible early release of up to 140 women prisoners, to ease overcrowding, may have been exaggerated.

"They tell me that may have been an overstated problem that's not going to require any early release of prisoners. There've been no allegations of abuse or mistreatment or aggressive behavior there," he said.

— The new Select Committee on Higher Education will be named soon to conduct a comprehensive review of colleges and universities, a study similar to that by the committee that earlier looked at elementary and secondary schools.

He said he wants to "make certain Texas is recognized not for just having the best football teams or having the best athletic programs, but for having the best academic programs as well.

"You'll find that when we do that we will draw, as though it were a magnet, the finest minds around this country" as students and professors.

Boiler still stuck in Lamesa

The 99-ton boiler which was enroute from Houston to Hereford's Holly Sugar plant was still in Lamesa today, and a district judge has upheld a temporary restraining order which could keep the unit parked for three to four weeks.

The big boiler was being trucked to Hereford when Department of Public Safety Officers stopped the load for overweight and overweight-limits last week.

District Judge George Hansard Thursday morning granted a temporary restraining order sought by the DPS. Cory Trucking of Houston agreed to the provisions for completing the trip to Hereford.

Russell Skiles, managing editor of the Lamesa Press-Reporter, told The Brand Thursday that paperwork and road requirements for moving the boiler must be worked out before the unit will be allowed to continue its trip. The Lubbock and Amarillo offices of the Texas Highway Department are helping with the solution.

A contractor for the plant work at Holly attended the hearing, according to Skiles, and said the delay was costing the construction company about $5,000 a day.

Ann Landers

No comment

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do you have the courage to print this letter? It is sure to make you extremely unpopular with your young readers, especially after the letter you printed recently on this same subject.

I must write it because I firmly believe that part of what is wrong with teenagers today has a lot to do with their music. Nobody can listen to rock for hours on end for weeks, months and years, and not be seriously affected by it.

A while back I attended a rock concert at the Mayo Civic Auditorium in Rochester, Minn. The performing group was the W.A.S.P. bunch. (Those initials stand for "We Are Sexually Perverted"). One of their numbers featured the beating of a young girl who wore very little.

Their messages were clear. Suicide is "in." The lyrics of "Don't Fear the Reaper" were frightening. A tune by Blue Oyster Cult about a suicide pact between young lovers made death sound appealing.

Another group, AC/DC, plays songs like "Gimme a Bullet" and "Shoot to Thrill."

Is it any wonder teenage suicide has doubled in the last decade? The mental health experts tell us that over half a million kids try to kill themselves every year. It is reasonable to assume that young people who are depressed can be pushed over the edge by rock groups that urge kids to "pull the trigger—pull it!"

Rebellion and violence are prominent in rock lyrics. Songs like "Flaming Youth" encourage young people to use their power to rebel. Elton John, in the song "Benny and the Jets," says, "We shall survive. Let us take ourselves along where we fight our parents out on the streets to find who's right and who's wrong."

Sex is the underlying theme of most rock songs. Some of the titles are so suggestive you couldn't print them in a family newspaper.

Rock music glorifies drugs and gives the impression that everyone is doing it. "Comfortably Numb" by Pink Floyd, "Fantasy" by Aldo Nova, and that oldie by the Beatles, "Lucy in the Sky With Diamonds," are a few examples.

Add the drug culture influence to what we read in the Wall Street Journal about today's children of the affluent. They expect to enjoy all the luxuries their parents have but they don't want to work "that hard." I am concerned about our beautiful country. The Russians won't have to fire a shot.—REALISTIC IN MINN.

DEAR REALISTIC: I am printing your letter with no comment. I'd like to hear what the rock enthusiasts have to say. And anyone else for that matter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Did you not receive even one letter among the thousands who wrote about the toilet seat controversy warning young parents of the danger of 1 and 2-year-olds drowning when the seat is left up? I have seen reports of three toddlers who stumbled and drowned in toilet bowls.

It's terribly said when children are victims of fate, but they should never be victims of our neglect.—JAY M. ARENA, M.D., PROFESSOR OF PEDIATRICS EMERITUS, DUKE UNIVERSITY MEDICAL CENTER, DURHAM, N.C.

DEAR JAY: Thanks for the alert. You always come up with the most useful additions to this column. I'm awfully happy I know you.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. Pioneer clothing collection complements heritage center

LUBBOCK — In rough pioneer life clothing was a valued resource often used to its limit.

Examples of everyday clothing worn by early pioneers are scarce, but the pieces found in museum storerooms tell a story of a rugged, frugal lifestyle.

Betty J. Mills, curator of costumes and textiles for The Museum of Texas Tech University, has developed and is expanding a comprehensive collection of pioneer clothing to complement The Museum's Ranching Heritage Center, an outdoor exhibit depicting the early days of ranching.

"Studying the fabrics of early clothing and methods of making them reveals a great deal about pioneer thriftiness," said Mills. "Most pioneers had to be practical."

Many of the garments are lined in several different fabrics indicating a frugal use of fabric. Narrow seams and false hems were used to conserve fabric and corded piping was inserted in some seams to ensure greater durability.

Some of the clothing has a great deal of mending and patching to prolong garment life as long as possible, Mills said. When the garment could no longer be mended, the remnants were used for making quilts and children's clothing.

A strong point in The Museum's collection is a large selection of women's wrappers often referred to as a "Mother Hubbard." A wrapper was a long dress that flowed full and loose from the shoulders. The style began as a garment for wearing in the boudoir, but was later adapted for general wear around the house or on the ranch, Mills said.

The collection of men's and children's clothing is not as abundant as women's Mills said. Men often wore their clothes until they were completely worn out from work. Children's clothing, often made from fabric of worn adult clothing, was handed down and worn until there was nothing left.

Many of the pioneer women remade their clothing to update a style from one decade to another, Mills said. The changes were subtle since the styles did not change much from year to year.

Even old clothing that is badly worn can be valuable to The Museum's collection, Mills said. The rips and holes tell a story on their own and can sometimes be repaired or serve an important detail in research.

Neighborhoods plan 'night out' against crime

COLLEGE STATION — If you're fed up with crime, why not plan now to join in the 1985 National Night Out on Aug. 13.

That's the night neighborhoods across the country will "light up" against crime.

The nation's "Night Out" against crime begins at 8 p.m. and is a time when families and friends light up their neighborhoods and sit out on lawns and front porches of their homes and apartments to keep an eye out for suspicious activity. This can serve as an extension of the eyes and ears of local law enforcement agencies.

"This will be the nation's second annual Night Out as part of a nationwide crime prevention project," points out Dr. Fred Cross of Stephenville, community development specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

According to Cross, the project is designed to highlight the importance, value and effectiveness of law enforcement-community crime prevention programs and to promote support for, and participation in, local crime watch efforts. It also is aimed at helping neighborhoods overcome the "after dark fear of crime" and at sending a message to the criminal community to let them know that neighborhoods across the U.S. are watching.

"National Night Out is an excellent project for all communities because it is inexpensive, relatively simple and easy to participate in, and it generates neighborhood spirit and support for local crime prevention programs," notes Cross.

Community leaders interested in having their town or city as an official participant in the program should contact the National Town Watch Night Out, P.O. Box 769, Havertown, PA 19083.

Local county Extension offices can provide additional information on neighborhood or community crime watch programs, adds Cross.

Texas Most Wanted

Criminal is escape artist

COMANCHE, Texas — Now you see him, now you don't.

If James Taylor Brock was ever to write his life story, that would be a good title for the book.

When it comes to disappearing acts, Harry Houdini could have learned a few things from Brock.

Three times in his long criminal career, Brock has managed to bust out of incarceration.

Brock, who will be 45 years old on August 5, has arrests and convictions dating all the way back to the 1950's. But despite all those convictions, he hasn't spent very much time behind bars.

He has escaped from federal prisons in Missouri and Kansas and on March 19 of this year, Brock slipped out of the Comanche County jail — the same day he had been ordered to begin serving a 60-year prison sentence for a burglary conviction.

Today, Brock remains a fugitive, despite the exhaustive efforts of the Department of Public Safety and police and sheriff's departments throughout central Texas.

Brock is described as a white male, 190-195 pounds, with gray hair and blue eyes. He has several tattoos, including one of a rose and ribbon on his right arm and the name "Irene" on his right forearm.

Investigators say that in the past Brock has used stolen identification papers belonging to Gary Wynne Ryan.

In addition to the escape charges filed by Comanche County, detectives in at least 10 other Texas counties want to talk to Brock about a series of burglaries throughout rural central Texas. And he still is wanted for Escape by Missouri prison authorities.

Stolen items such as guns and jewelry taken in the burglaries have been recovered from pawn shops as far removed as Houston and Tulsa, Oklahoma, investigators say.

This week, Brock has been added to something that he can't escape from—the Texas Most Wanted List.

A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered for information leading to Brock's capture.

Anyone with details on Brock's possible whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program.

In all cases, callers may remain anonymous.

Wins Babe Ruth West Texas state championship

Hereford edges Randall County, 1-0

The Hereford Babe Ruth League 14 and 15-year-old all-stars scored just one run Thursday night, but it was enough to claim the West Texas state tournament championship in a 1-0 win over Randall County.

In winning the state tournament, which was played in Plainview, Hereford also defeated Mineral Wells 8-3, and beat Andrews 5-1.

The Hereford all-stars, who played in the Kids Inc. Babe Ruth League during the regular season, head to the Babe Ruth Southwest Regional tournament in Miami, Okla., next week.

Hereford's lone run in the championship game Thursday came in the third inning.

Raymond Romo singled and stole both second base and third base. In between the steals, Robby Collier walked.

Ross Tores stroked an RBI single to score Romo, and Hereford had a 1-0 lead with nobody out in the inning.

Roger McCracken also hit a single, but Collier was thrown out at home plate. Later, with two outs in the inning, Tim Long walked to load the bases, but Hereford left all three runners on base.

Long and James Hernandez combined to pitch the shutout for Hereford. Long pitched the first four innings, allowing two hits, walking three and striking out two batters.

Hernandez limited Randall County to one hit in three innings pitched, striking out one and walking one.

Bob Gibson, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, pitching for the St. Louis Cardinals fanned a record 35 Detroit Tiger batters in the 1968 World Series.

Hereford had eight hits in the game.

Randall County loaded the bases in the first inning with a double and two walks, with both walks coming with two outs in the inning.

Long recorded a strikeout for the third out of the inning to halt a possible big inning by Randall County.

Long and Hernandez both singled for Hereford in the second inning, but were left on base.

In the sixth inning, Romo attempted to score when a Randall County outfielder bobbled the ball after Collier singled. Romo, however, was thrown out at home plate.

Randall County, which had stranded two runners on base in the top of the sixth inning, failed to get someone on the basepaths in the seventh inning.

The first out in the seventh was a groundout. The second Randall County batter bunted, but pitcher Hernandez of Hereford threw him out.

The last out of the game was a fly ball caught by Hereford shortstop Rodney McCracken.

Rangers beat 89ers 6-1 in exhibition baseball contest

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former 89ers George Wright and Glenn Brummer each homered for the Texas Rangers to give Texas a 6-1 exhibition game victory over their Triple-A farm club, the Oklahoma City 89ers.

Another former 89er, Oddibe McDowell, highlighted a Ranger three-run second inning with a two-RBI double off the centerfield wall.

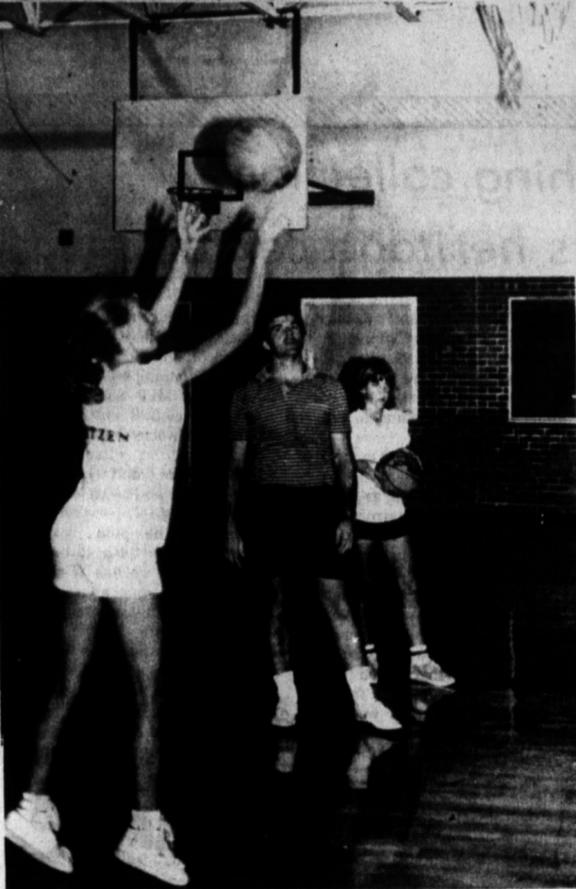

The 89ers scored their lone run in the less-than-serious game Thursday, shortened by rain, ended with a five-out sixth inning so that all the 89ers would have a final turn at bat. The sixth inning on a sacrifice fly by Willie Darkis to score Chuckie Canady.

George Wright, who was three-for-three, singled in the third inning, followed by Curtis Wilkerson with a single to set the stage for McDowell's double.

For Texas, Tim Hallgren, who was called up from the Tulsa Drillers, the Rangers' double-A farm club, for this game, blanked the 89ers over five innings and another Driller pitcher, Al Lachowicz, surrendered a run in the final inning.

Bill Dahlen of the New York Giants was the first player to steal home in a World Series game. It happened in 1905 against the Philadelphia Athletics.

TV price expected to be high for Seoul Games

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Barry Frank, the man negotiating the television contract for the 1988 Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea, expects the price to be "substantially more" than the $309 million shelled out by ABC for the 1988 Winter Olympics at Calgary.

But just how much more is still a matter of considerable speculation.

Frank, whose Transworld International sells events to television, said the price for the Seoul Games "will be substantially more... The Summer Games usually do get more money."

But Seoul's market value may have been decreased because of a decision not to reschedule finals in some of the glamour events, notably track and field, for American prime-time audiences.

"The value of the contract has not diminished, as far as I'm concerned," Frank said. "I have the advantage of having seen the schedule, and it's quite attractive. There will be an awful lot of important events in prime time."

Still, representatives of ABC, CBS and NBC have each expressed concern over the proposed timetable of events from the South Korean capital, no doubt thinking of the troubles ABC went through with the 1984 Winter Games at Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

Because of the time difference, the Sarajevo Games, which cost ABC $91.5 million, couldn't be shown live in prime time in the United States. ABC paid $225 million for the Los Angeles Olympics, but scored a ratings and advertising success because many events were shown live during the evening on the East Coast.

ABC's huge bid for the 1988 Winter Games in western Canada was undoubtedly affected by its Los Angeles performance.

Arthur Watson, president of NBC Sports, voiced what seemed to be the general opinion among network representatives concerning Seoul.

"People are casting negative aspersions, but I'm keeping an open mind about the whole thing," he said. "We don't know if it's a bad market. Track and field is the main concern. Right now, it's 9 to 5 Korean time, which translates to 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. the day before."

"We don't have an official final program, so we won't know how the events will fall on TV here. We can't make any major judgments until we see the exact times."

Hereford team eliminated from Bronco tournament

The Hereford Bronco all-star team was eliminated from the Bronco League district tournament Thursday night in Dimmitt.

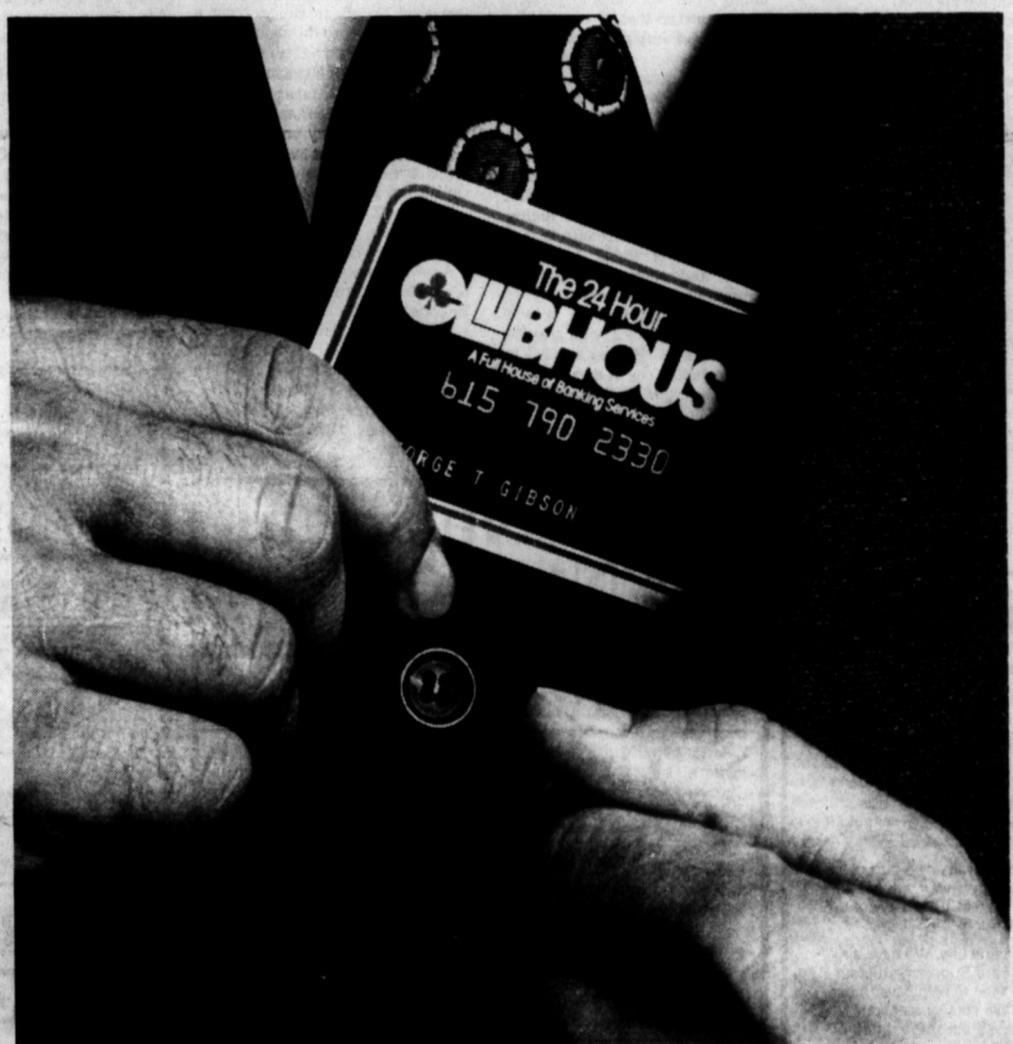

Hereford fell to Amarillo No. 1, 8-4, in Thursday's game.

Earlier in the tournament, Hereford defeated Amarillo No. 2, 8-6, on Monday night, and lost to Muleshoe, 14-8, on Tuesday night.

The Bronco all-stars from Hereford plays in the Kids Inc. boys' major league this summer.

New York beats Houston, 6-3

Carter's homer leads Mets over Astros

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Carter is a fierce competitor who reacts at the slightest provocation.

In the fifth inning Thursday night the Houston Astros provided the inspiration for Carter. They opted to walk Keith Hernandez — the National League leader in game-winning RBIS with 14 — intentionally and pitch to Carter instead.

Enraged, Carter responded by slamming his 12th home run of the season, a decisive three-run shot over the left-field fence at Shea Stadium, leading the New York Mets and Dwight Gooden to a 6-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

"I viewed the walk as a slap on me as a hitter, a downright insult," said Carter. "They were telling me that I was the lesser of the two hitters. I wanted to show them that that wasn't the case."

With the Mets ahead 2-1, Gooden opened the inning by reaching base safely on Mark Bailey's error and advancing to second on a sacrifice by Len Dykstra.

After Wally Backman struck out, Hernandez, who had knocked in both New York's runs to that point with singles in the first and third innings, came to bat. After a conference on the mound, Astros Manager Bob Lillis ordered the intentional pass.

"He had burned us two times before and I couldn't let him do it again," said Lillis. "I went with the percentages."

Five pitches later, Mike Scott saw the game and his four-game winning streak disappear — some 400 feet away — into the Astros' bullpen.

A 2-2 split-fingered forkball that "hung," said Scott, who fell to 9-5. "A terrible pitch, one that you can't make in that situation."

A pumped-up Carter trotted around the bases with a raised fist, eventually high-fiving almost every one of his teammates.

"He almost broke my hand," said Hernandez.

Even on the bench, Carter couldn't keep still.

"He certainly had his juices going," said Mets Manager Dave Johnson. "He likes those situations. He likes getting angry and producing. I used to think that Frank Robinson had a chip on his shoulder at the plate, but Gary may have a bigger one. Like a boulder."

Gooden, 15-3, winning his ninth straight game, allowed seven hits — including solo homers to Bailey and Glenn Davis — while walking two and striking out six to raise his major-league-leading total to 163. He completed his ninth game, most for a Met since Craig Swan's 10 in 1979.

Johnson had the home plate umpire check the ball several times during the game, later claiming that Scott was throwing a "scuff" ball. "He was definitely doing something to the ball," said Johnson.

"There were too many balls scuffed in the same spot," added Hernandez. "It was beyond a reasonable doubt. If he wasn't doctoring the ball, then there's something wrong with me."

After the game, Johnson announced that right-handed-hitting second baseman Kelvin Chapman had been sent down to Tidewater of the International League. In 62 games this season, Chapman was hitting only .174 with three doubles and seven RBIs. Pitcher Bill Latham will be brought up Friday afternoon and is scheduled to start Friday night's game against the Astros.

Dodgers 7, Cubs 3
The Los Angeles Dodgers, who plied treacherous waters strewn with errors and missed opportunities as they tried to stay afloat in the early going this season, have opened the throttle and are threatening to leave the opposition in their wake.

The Dodgers, 23-25 at one point and 5½ games behind San Diego in the National League West, caught fire in early June and haven't cooled off yet. Their 7-3 victory Thursday night over the Chicago Cubs gave them a 3½-game lead over slumping San Diego.

Pedro Guerrero, who has been on base 10 consecutive times, hit his 22nd home run to help lead Los Angeles to its 31st victory in 45 games. Guerrero is hitting .322, third best in the league, and is the pacesetter in both slugging and on-base percentage.

The Dodgers, who led the league in errors and stranding baserunners in their lackluster start, have turned it around to the extent that they can win even when their most coveted commodity — pitching — comes up short.

A case in point is Fernando Valenzuela, who walked a career-high eight batters, but got enough support to win his fifth straight game and improve his record to 12-6. Valenzuela won 12 games all of last season.

Cardinals 9, Padres 6
San Diego Manager Dick Williams, whose team has lost five straight games, had reason to be upset after the Padres blew an early 6-0 lead and capped what catcher Terry Kennedy called a "bizarre" game with three ninth-inning errors that help St. Louis score five runs and win its fifth straight.

"I have no comment to make," Williams said. "You saw it, you write it." After Carmelo Martinez dropped a fly ball to allow the Cardinals to tie the game, Terry Pendleton singled in the go-ahead run. Pendleton eventually scored along with Jack Clark, who earlier hit a three-run homer, his 19th, on errors by center fielder Al Bumbry and Kennedy. Relief ace Rich Gossage, 2-2, took the loss.

Cardinal speedster Vince Coleman had four hits, scored twice and stole two bases to run his major-league-leading total to 68.

Expos 1, Reds 0
Montreal's Razor Shines doesn't believe in guessing with two strikes, and it paid off handsomely for the Expo outfielder, who was recalled earlier this week from Indianapolis of the American Association, where he was leading the league in hitting.

"Any time you have two strikes on you, you don't look for a particular pitch," Shines said after stroking a run-scoring pinch-hit single in the seventh inning. "You just have to look for the baseball."

Bill Gullickson and Jeff Reardon combined on a four-hit shutout. Gullickson, 10-6, went 7 2-3 innings and gave up all four hits before Reardon came on to collect his major-league-leading 25th save.

Giants 4, Pirates 3
San Francisco's Bob Brenly, who didn't expect to play, hit a two out, run-scoring double in the eighth inning. A few hours earlier, Brenly's wife, Joan, had suffered a miscarriage and required surgery. Brenly, realizing the club has only two catchers, made it a point to be at Candlestick Park.

Chris Brown's two-run single tied the game and set the stage for Brenly's double that capped a three-run eighth-inning rally.

Braves 3, Phillies 2
Atlanta is now 9-0 against Philadelphia.

Rafael Ramirez scored the winning run when second basean Derrel Thomas, who had taken a throw from Mike Schmidt, playing shortstop because of late lineup changes, misfired on an attempted double play.

Atlanta's Joe Johnson allowed only three hits in seven innings in his major-league debut. He left the game for a pinch hitter in the eighth with Atlanta ahead 2-1. Bruce Sutter, 6-4, got the victory after allowing the Phillies to tie the game in the eighth.

Passing Drills

Flanagan pitches only his 2nd game of season

The Baltimore Orioles' pitching staff has been struggling this season, but looked more like its old self — at least for one night — with an old friend on the mound.

Mike Flanagan, in only his second appearance of the season, allowed one run on three hits over eight innings as Eddie Murray's grand-slam homer made the Orioles 5-1 winners over the Chicago White Sox Thursday night.

The 1979 Cy Young Award winner tore his left Achilles tendon in the off-season and did not pitch before the All-Star break. Flanagan made one three-inning, five-run outing last Saturday before returning to form Thursday.

The original prognosis was that Flanagan would begin running this month, not pitching. His early return was none too soon for the Orioles, who sport an uncharacteristic 4.43 team ERA.

Blue Jays 7, Angels 0
Dave Stieb scattered seven hits and lowered his league-leading ERA to 1.98. He was supported by four double plays.

Stieb, who was shelled for 11 hits in his last outing, improved his record to 10-6 and now has won four of his last five starts. He struck out three and walked one in his second shutout of the season and fifth complete game.

Damaso Garcia, Lloyd Moseby and Willie Upshaw each had two hits and two RBIs. Ernie Whitt added a solo homer in the eighth, his 12th, as the Blue Jays won their fifth straight game and widened their lead in the AL East over the idle New York Yankees to five games.

Red Sox 5, Mariners 3
With just three hits in 26 times at bat and one RBI in six games, Jim Rice drove in three runs with two soft singles to lead the Red Sox to their fifth straight triumph and 11th in the last 15.

Rice broke a tie with a two-out single in the fifth inning, then singled home two more runs in the seventh. Seattle suffered its fifth consecutive defeat.

With one out in the Boston first, Wade Boggs extended his hitting streak to 28 games — the longest in the major leagues since 1980 — with a ground single through the middle on an 0-2 pitch.

"Twenty-eight is not halfway to anything," Boggs said. "It's just one of those things. There is no pressure at all. My job is to get base hits and help win ballgames."

Bobby Ojeda, 5-6, allowed only four hits in six innings as he snapped a five-game losing streak as a starter.

Tigers 7, Twins 2
Jack Morris, 11-6, threw a four-hitter as Detroit beat Minnesota for only the second time in nine tries this year. Morris is 14-4 lifetime against the Twins, 9-0 in Minnesota. A St. Paul native, Morris struck out five and walked three to post his 10th complete game of the season.

"It's probably the best stuff I've had all year; certainly the best in the last four or five starts," said Morris, 30, who fanned five to boost his season strikeout total to 121, second in the league to Bert Blyleven's 124.

Frank Viola, 10-9, lost his third straight start.

A's 11, Brewers 2
Bruce Bochte cracked a three-run homer and Tim Lincecum scattered eight hits in pitching his first major-league complete game as Oakland snapped a four-game losing streak.

Birtsas, 7-2, was nicked for two runs in the first inning on singles by Paul Molitor and Robin Yount, a sacrifice fly by Cecil Cooper and Ted Simmons' groundout.

When Milwaukee loaded the bases with no one out in the third, Birtsas suddenly realized it was time to bear down. After a brief conference with Manager Jackie Moore, Birtsas struck out the side.

Oakland scored four times in the fourth and five times in the sixth to turn the game around. Carney Lansford also drove in three runs and Dwayne Murphy knocked in two to pace the A's.

Shawn Moore

Moore receives high honor

Eagle scout, Shawn Moore, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Don Moore has received the Arrow of Light Award, the highest award given in cub scouts.

Moore started in cub scouts when he was eight years old and has been active in boy Scout Troop 52 for four years.

With Neal Lemons as Scout Master, Moore has held several positions in the troop. Positions held included scribe, assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, and senior patrol leader. Moore is now a junior assistant Scout Master and a member of Order of the Arrow. He was selected as an outstanding camper for these awards.

Moore has attended summer Scout camp at Camp Don Harrington for four years.

Moore participate in Troop 52 trips to Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico, canoeing in Arkansas, on the Guadalupe river, and Canada. He has also backpacked on the Continental Divide in Colorado.

Moore has also excelled scholastically as he was winner of the junior and senior county spelling bee, was 7th grade outstanding math student, 9th grade outstanding English student, student representative, and participates in football, basketball, and tennis.

Moore is an active member of First United Methodist Church and is presently vice president of United Methodist Youth.

Moore will be a sophomore in high school this year.

Sea World announces third site

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Sea World of Texas has announced it has abandoned plans to locate on U.S. 90 west of here and will look at another site closer to San Antonio proper.

The announcement Thursday marks the second time Sea World has given up on a proposed site in Bexar County.

The company, owned by Harcourt, Brace Jovanovich of Orlando, Fla., announced plans earlier this year to build a $100 million Sea World aquatic park in Bexar County.

Originally, the park was to have been located in southeast Bexar County. In April, that site was abandoned in favor of a 500-acre location in the southwest section of the county.

Sea World had been negotiating with Concord Oil Co. for the second site, but Thursday officials announced negotiations had broken down.

"Despite the best efforts of both parties, certain questions were not resolvable," a news release issued by Sea World said.

The announcement said HBJ had pressed to create business properties close to the new Sea World aquatic park to protect the corporation's investments.

"Concord Oil has taken a different view of such development, one that is reasonable, but incompatible," the announcement said.

Leo Zuniga, deputy director of Sea World of Texas, said, "We were acquiring over 400 acres of land. We could not come to an agreement on how that land would be developed."

The disagreement, he said, concerned such businesses as hotels and restaurants that naturally would spring up around the park.

Sea World now is working on a land deal with developer Charles Wender to purchase about 500 acres southeast of the previous site, the news release said.

The new site, inside Loop 1604, is closer to San Antonio proper than the previous site.

The land sale likely will not be finalized until mid-September.

Officials said architectural, engineering, traffic and landscape work already done for the previous site would be adapted to the new one.

The Sea World park, which will include a water ride Sea World Surf Park, is expected to employ up to 1,800 people.

Today in History

Today is Friday, July 26, the 207th day of 1985. There are 158 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 26, 1908, U.S. Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte issued an order creating an investigative agency within the Department of Justice. The agency later became known as the FBI.

On this date:

In 1775, Benjamin Franklin became postmaster-general.

In 1788, New York became the 11th state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1856, playwright George Bernard Shaw was born.

In 1947, President Harry S. Truman signed the National Security Act, which consolidated the Defense Department and created the National Security Council.

Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford arrived in Bonn, West Germany, to begin a 10-day tour that included stops in three Communist countries.

Five years ago: Fire swept through a boarding house in Bradley Beach, N.J., killing 24 people, some of them elderly and mentally retarded.

One year ago: The federal government announced a $4.5 billion aid package for Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company.

Today's birthdays: Actor Jason Robards Jr. is 63. Movie director Blake Edwards is 63. Movie director Stanley Kubrick is 57. Rock star Mick Jagger is 42. Actress Susan George is 35. Tennis player Vitas Gerulaitis is 31.

Thought for today: "There is no hate without fear." — Cyril Connolly, English critic and editor (1903-1974).

Girls invited to playday

All girls are invited to attend the Girl Scout Play Day from 9:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Saturday, July 27, at the City Park.

Each girl is requested to bring a sack lunch. Drinks and cookies will be furnished.

Games will be played and sing-alongs will be held. Girls will find out what Brownies and Girl Scouts learn at their meetings and at camp.

Blind woman runs surfside bait stand

By LEIGH HOPPER The Brazosport Facts

SURFSIDE, Texas (AP) — It's morning at Bess Williamson's Jetty Bait Stand and the water out front is blue-green and calm. A young, brawny fisherman listens to 56-year-old Ms. Williamson describe the stringers of flounder being caught off the jetties. He seems surprised since he hasn't caught any, and wants to know where the hot spot is.

"You know where that first crack in the jetties is?" she asks.

He nods. Both are educated in the intricacies of fishing tactics, the bits of information that change the granite walkway into a fisherman's map.

They discuss the one-that-got-away, how it bent the rod double and broke the line after a struggle. It was a real fighter, he recalls. Then the phone rings.

"Bess, it's for you," one of her employees yells.

She heads for the phone, navigating past tables and up a 2-inch step near the door. But she knocks into a chair someone left in the way.

Ms. Williamson can't see. "My vision is like looking through a wall of gray," she said.

She lost her sight in one eye in 1976, the other in 1981. She wears tinted glasses to filter out glare that she does not perceive but still gives her a headache. Doctors say her light blue eyes will eventually turn white.

She had plans to go to Europe this summer and visit England, Ireland, Germany, and France.

But she bought the bait stand instead.

"I had to have something to do. I was just vegetating," she said.

She has spent the last two months selling live shrimp, beer, and hamburgers to fishermen, tourists, and her friends. It's a 24-hour job, she said, and a far cry from the four-month vacation she planned.

"I love every minute of it."

Besides, she's already seen all those places. She said when she learned that she was going to lose her sight, she began traveling.

And she still does. Last year she took a trip and took pictures and tape recorded "what they told me I saw," she said.

She spent three months in New Zealand and even considered moving there permanently.

"But it just wasn't home," she said. "Once you get the sand in your toes, you're stuck. So don't go barefoot around here."

Ms. Williamson does not consider herself handicapped. She marvels at the way her other senses have taken over to substitute for sight. "It's a gift from God," she said.

"I see with my ears, fingers, feet and heart."

Thousands of people wander through her business in the course of a weekend, but she recognizes a voice by the third time she hears it.

And she remembers names. While introductions pass unregistered through the brains of most people, she hears a name and snatches it up. She calls new acquaintances by name and when they respond, she knows she has a listener and they know they're being spoken to.

"And if they're not here, I'll just talk to them anyway," she said.

The first thing she does when she gets to work in the morning is ask how the water looks, who's catching what. She said fishermen and surfers from all over the state call her every day to check on conditions.

But most things she figures out on her own. Time of day is the angle of the sun on her face. The racket of sea gulls means fish are feeding, and when the sky is cloudy, mockingbirds don't sing.

Ms. Williamson learned Braille from a woman from Texas Rehabilitation for the Blind.

"She taught me all the good little things," she said.

The woman showed her how to embroider french knots onto the hems of her clothes, spelling out colors in Braille.

With help from a woman from the Lighthouse for the Blind, she learned to get around with a sounding cane. Part of her final test was going to include walking on the jetties, but Ms. Williamson had done that so many times she thought it would be too easy.

So they went to a strange town where she had to walk several blocks on her own to a store to buy some potato chips and then back to the car. She said she ran into a tree first thing, got frustrated and started to cry.

A man asked if he could help her and she told him, "No sir. I've got to make this on my own." She said it felt like it took forever to make the trip.

Adjusting to blindness has not been too difficult, but Ms. Williamson still needs about two hours every morning to get reoriented. She walks around her bed twice, takes a few steps backwards and sideways, heads for the kitchen and sometimes winds up in her closet.

"Now that's disgusting," she said. Still, she considers herself lucky.

"Eyesight is not a bad thing to lose, but hands, feet that's another thing." Ms. Williamson thinks that eventually, she may see again.

"I think in time the Lord's going to give me my vision back."

"But I don't think he did it to punish me," she added, explaining that it's been a chance for her to experience things she normally wouldn't.

Her brother is working on a gadget that will read the denominations of bills for her to use at the cash register or take in her purse. She doesn't necessarily need it at work because she can usually feel the difference between currency of different values and "most people are honest," she said.

But no one is perfect. Once, a man gave her two bills for an $8 package of bait.

"Are these two fives?" Ms. Williamson asked her cashier. The bills were two $1 bills and the man apologized for his mistake. "He could have been very honest about it," she said.

Her family is pleased that she has something to keep her busy.

"It's taken 20 years off my age," she said. "If I don't get a penny out of it, I have happiness."

When work on the bait stand's porch is completed, she'll move some of her shell collection out there from her house. This winter, instead of closing down, Ms. Williamson wants to move her customers inside around a big wooden table and keep a pot of stew on the stove.

By afternoon, most of the tables on the porch are occupied with people enjoying a beer and the breeze. A man clomps past her on the plywood floor.

"Neal?"

"Uh huh," Neal grunts.

"I thought that was you!" she laughs, sipping a beer and leaning back against a window sill. Behind her, two shrimp boats glide between the jetties, gulls swirling above masts and outriggers.

"I love this place," she says.

Archaeologists continue work on shipwreck

PORT MANSFIELD, Texas (AP) — Somewhere in the Gulf of Mexico is more than 50,000 pounds of booty from a Spanish shipwreck in 1554, but that's not what snagged Dr. Herman Smith's curiosity.

As officials begin laying the groundwork for a major excavation near here next year, Smith is more interested in the salvage crews that scoured the wreckage a few months after the three ships ran aground on sandbars off Padre Island.

"If we find silver and gold, sure we'll take it. But that's not what's important to us," Smith, a Corpus Christi Museum archaeologist, said as he walked in an area where Spanish crews stayed for about a month while salvaging.

Sand and wind have since covered up or moved much of what was left behind from the ships, and two of them — the San Esteban and Espiritu Santo — have been pretty thoroughly excavated.

But the wreck of the Santa Maria de Yciar continues to elude treasure hunters, and experts believe there are more than 50,000 pounds of precious metals, coins and jewelry out in the Gulf.

Smith said he and other archaeologists don't expect any time soon to find any treasure, but he said the historical data is much more valuable anyway.

"Believe me, people love to see shipwreck stuff," he said. "But how long can you stare at a bar of gold?"

Silver, pottery, ballast stones, ships spikes, rum bottles and brass and bronze nails have already been found from the shipwrecks.

Any other artifacts found at the site, about seven miles east of Port Mansfield, will become property of the federal government, but probably will be on display at the Corpus Christi Museum, Smith said.

Smith is one of about 40 archaeologists and volunteers who have spent the last month doing the research for a full-scale excavation next year.

Others involved in the $30,000 three-week project include the National Park Service, the Tennessee Valley Authority, Texas Antiquities Commission, the Department of the Interior and local volunteers.

The three Spanish ships were on their way from Vera Cruz, Mexico, to Havana when disaster struck in April 1554.

About 300 people died in the shipwreck and before salvage crews arrived from Vera Cruz two months later.

"These guys (the original salvagers) were thieves," Smith said. "They were hiding silver and gold in every nook and cranny in the ships. If they were stealing they were hiding it before they got it to the boat and I don't think they got it all."

Those salvagers recovered more than 35,000 pounds of Spanish silver and gold, but according to ship records, more than 50,000 pounds of precious metals, jewelry and coins still are out in the Gulf.

In the 1960s, Platoro Ltd., a private salvaging company, began excavating on one of the ships, the Espiritu Santo, and recovered some precious metals. But it got into trouble with the state because it was excavating on state property.

The Texas Antiquities Committee in 1972 undertook salvaging efforts at the site — which experts say is the most excavated in the world — and targeted the San Esteban. Artifacts if found are on display at the Corpus Christi Museum.

Larry Nordby, a National Park Service archaeologist, said there have been many shipwrecks in the Port Mansfield area and Americans should be interested because of the historical importance.

"It has been said that you can't understand the present if you don't learn about the past," he said. "What archaeology offers is to draw lessons from the past to verify historical documentation that may not be true."

The park service will scan with sophisticated equipment the 20-mile long area near Port Mansfield to locate possible sunken ships.

Smith said many treasure hunters have combed the beaches of Padre Island near the site of the shipwreck, but do not harm anything. In fact, since Padre Island is a national preserve, treasure hunters risk fines or jail time if they find anything of value and keep it, Smith said.

"They don't hurt anything. They come out here with metal detectors," he said. "But to find something they'll have to dig. And treasure hunters are very lazy."

Counterfeit source at bank found

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — A Secret Service agent says he believes the source of almost $600,000 in counterfeit money used as collateral for loans at the National Bank of Daingerfield has been found.

Larry Neal, resident agent for the U.S. Secret Service in Tyler, said Thursday his investigation into the counterfeit money had led to what is believed to be an out-of-state source, which he refused to reveal.

Neal did say he could confirm Secret Service agents had seized $500,000 in counterfeit money — in $20s and $100s — from the National Bank of Daingerfield.

Irregularities surfaced last week when bank Chairman Buck Florence had bank officers investigate a company the bank had loaned money to. Bank President John H. Scott Jr. resigned July 18, bringing a satchel of the counterfeit money into the board meeting with him.

A woman and her son used the money to take out about six loans from the bank, Florence has said. The original loan was made within Scott's authority and within bank policies, but the majority of the rest were not, Florence said.

Neal told the Texarkana Gazette that with the use of a federal search warrant, a private residence in the Daingerfield area also was searched. An additional $40,000 in counterfeit $100 bills and a substance believed to be marijuana were seized in that search, he said.

That search was conducted last Friday, the same day federal authorities took possession of the counterfeit money from the bank, he said.

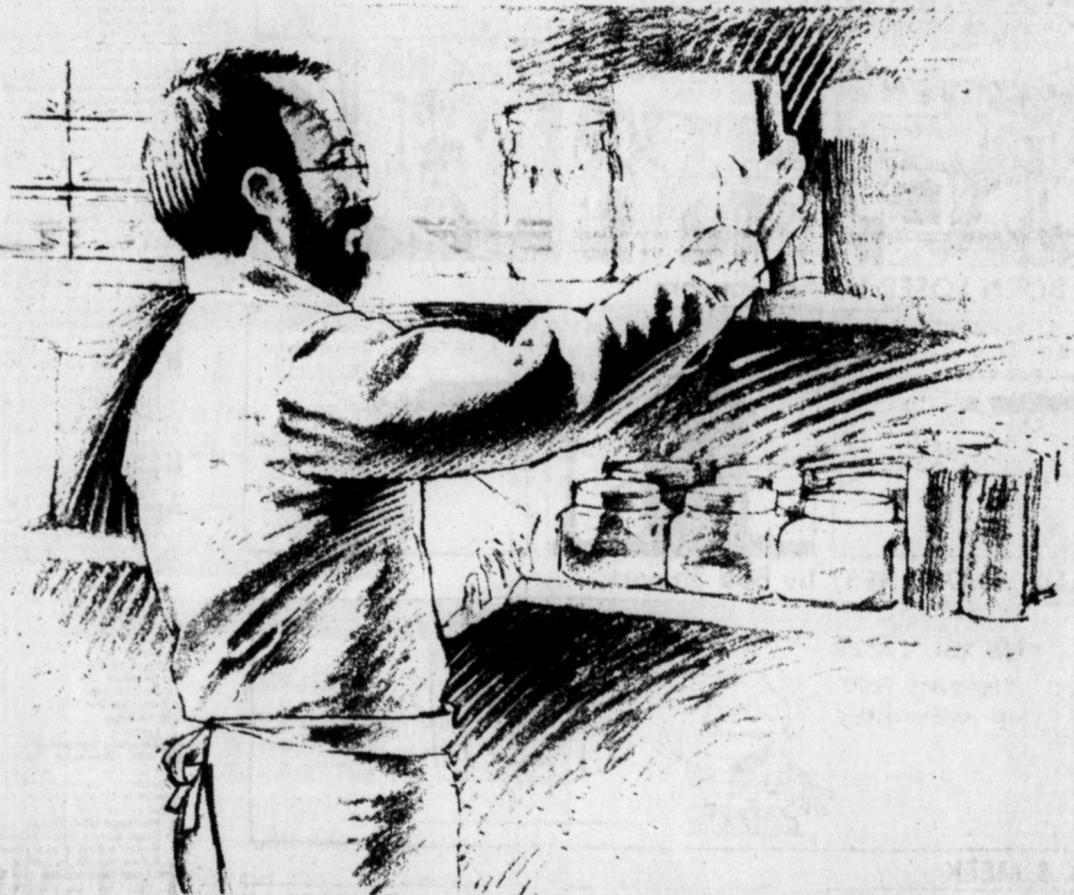

No charges nor arrests have been filed at this time, Neal said. When the investigation is complete, including the investigation in the district where the alleged source of the counterfeit money is, prosecution will be left up to the U.S. Attorney's Office, Neal said.

Small amounts of money from the same source as that seized in Daingerfield has also been passed in Houston and state of Indiana, but Neal said this is the first seizure he knows of.

None was passed in East Texas that he knows of, Neal said.

Florence said Thursday bank operations have returned to normal.

Planning A Business Expansion?

In the 1800's, if a person wanted to open a large retail store, he might need five or six thousand dollars for merchandise. If he was contemplating from three to eight new stores, he could figure on needing fifty thousand dollars.

While the amount of capital may be a little different today, the overall need for money is still there. And that's where we can help.

We're the bank with the pioneer spirit. We understand what it takes to get that business off the ground, and how to expand your existing one. We invite you to come in and let us get to know you - and your business. That way, we understand how to serve you better.

It's this kind of dedication to you and your business that makes us the bank with the pioneer spirit.

Waterskiing hard but rewarding work

By ART STRICKLIN The Denison Herald

DENISON, Texas (AP) — As soon as Larry Cox learned to walk, he learned to water ski.

Cox, the director of recreation for the Sherman Texas Instruments plant, spent many childhood days cruising across the waters on a pair of skis.

But he didn't begin taking the sport seriously until 1981 when he bought a ski boat. Later he bought his own lake.

His dedication to the sport has made him one of the best skiers in America — one of about 40 now holding the sport's highest ranking.

Cox has skied in the last two U.S. National Championships and will be leaving in August for his third, Aug. 14-18 in Illinois.

But water skiing is no longer a fun day at the lake. It's hard, but rewarding work.

"In 1981, I decided to get serious about the sport, and I found out that the best skier on the lake won't make a dent among professional skiers," said Cox.

It's been a four-year labor of love for the 34-year-old skier, who practices after work, in a sport dominated by 20-year-olds who do nothing but ski.

"Sometimes I have to make myself go out and ski because I need the practice," he said.

"I ski Tuesday through Thursday, take off Friday and Monday and go the tournaments every weekend. It makes for long weeks."

There are three levels for skiers who run in tournaments. Exceptional performer is the highest level. Master is the next highest, and expert is the lowest.

"The rating determines which tournaments you can be in. To be in the U.S. Nationals you have to have skied two EP performances," Cox said.

To gain the sport's highest ranking, EP, the skier must complete two slalom courses with a boat speed of 36 mph and the skier trailing on just 40 feet of ski rope, or "35 off" in skiers' lingo.

Normally a skier trails the boat with 75 feet of rope. The challenge in slalom skiing comes from the length of the rope, which is gradually shortened to sharpen the angles from which the skier must attack the course.

"You have to speed up through the straightaways but slow down to make the turns. Your body has to be strong to take the three G's of gravity when you make the turns."

With the top ranking, Cox is able to travel to any tournament in the area and is recognized as one of the favorites just by entering. He usually competes against the same seven or eight skiers for the top spots.

"If I don't do 32 to 35 off (40 to 43 feet behind the boat) I won't get a thing in those tournaments," said Cox.

When Cox first started slalom skiing, he would set up his own course on Lake Texoma every evening after work.

But the course was crossed by two enemies of every serious skier: wind and other boats.

The wind creates choppy waters that seem like tidal waves to a skier who is traveling at nearly 70 mph. Other boats create a wake that is hard to see but can easily flip a skier.

"At that speed, hitting the water is like hitting concrete," he said.

His next course was a rented lake in Central Texas but distance finally ruled that out. For the next two years he and six others rented a Blue Ridge lake which offered privacy and wind blockage.

"By the time I made the hour and a half drive every day and filled the boat with gas, I was spending $600 a month on gas alone."

Finally Cox and nine other skiing friends decided that if they were to have the perfect lake they would have to build it. They found a small flood plain in Luella and spent $250,000 turning it into a first-class water-skiing lake.

Several intercollegiate water skiing meets and a novice meet have been held there.

"We have about 40 people in the area who are novice skiers, but anybody can come to this meet. All they need is a life jacket and a pair of skis. We provide everything else."

Cox built a house near the lake and every afternoon he and friends Tom Noltensmeyer and Dale Mitchell spend a few hours practicing.

"Both Tom and Dale ... achieved a master's rating and they are improving all the time," Cox said.

To have any chance of placing among the skiing elite at the upcoming national meet, Cox will have to shorten his rope distance.

"I've only done 38 off once, but that's what I am working on."

The world record is 42 off, (33 feet of rope behind a boat) over a slalom course.

Last year at the national meet, Cox was hampered by an injury and had to have his ankle taped just to fit inside the ski boot.

"The one area I haven't been real lucky in is injuries," he said.

He has torn a stomach muscle trying to withstand the pressure of the rope's pull and has torn both his knee and ankle ligaments.

Despite the fact that he wears gloves, his hands are calloused from the rope's pull.

When he turns 35, Cox will move into the senior group, and he hopes to continue to excel at his sport.

"I used to play a lot of softball and do other things, but all I do now is ski," he said.
