

Conservatives Will Support Reagan in '84 Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — For all their grumbling about President Reagan's positions on taxes and Taiwan, some leading Republican conservatives say they would support the president again in 1984 if he runs for re-election.

But some say they doubt the 71-year-old Reagan will seek a second term.

"I don't think anyone wants to start thinking now in terms of an alternative to Reagan," said Richard Viguerie, the conservative fund-raiser and publisher who has been one of the most vocal critics of the administration.

"If he wants to run for re-election, we'll all get behind him," he said.

Asked if he thought Reagan would be a candidate in 1984, Viguerie said, "No, I don't."

A similar response came from John T. (Terry) Dolan, head of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, who said that "as of now" he doesn't expect Reagan to run.

Asked if there was a search under way for an alternative to Reagan, regardless of his decision on whether to run, Dolan said: "I haven't heard any discussion about that."

Rep. Mickey Edwards, chairman of the American Conservative Union, said he was "disappointed" by Reagan's support for the $98.3 billion tax bill and the president's stand on arms sales to Taiwan.

But Edwards, unlike Dolan and Viguerie, said he expects Reagan to run in 1984, and "if he runs again, I think people will dutifully line up behind him."

"Nobody has begun to look at any other option," said Edwards, an Oklahoma Republican.

Conservatives suffered setbacks recently when the president placed his personal prestige behind the effort to win congressional approval of the tax bill, and then when he agreed to a long-term reduction in U.S. arms sales to Taiwan.

The arms sale policy was disclosed in a communique issued in Washington and Peking.

Reagan insisted that he was not abandoning Taiwan and that the United States would continue supplying arms to the island government.

"I would put Taiwan in the same category as the tax bill," said Edwards, whose organization is giving double weight in its congressional ratings to the upcoming vote on the tax measure.

Members of Congress who vote against the bill will get a double positive score from the ACU, while those who support it will get a double negative.

Both Viguerie and Dolan said they anticipate adverse fallout from what they consider Reagan's abandonment of some of his campaign positions.

Dolan said many conservatives are "beginning to believe his (Reagan's) reputation for integrity is undeserved."

"A certain trumpet was being sounded," said Viguerie "about the size of government and taxes and now that water's been muddied and the signals are all mixed. The White House has cost the Republicans seats in this election without question."

82nd Year, No. 34, Hereford, Tx. Deaf Smith County

Foster Assn. Slates Bake Sale

The Foster Association, (Department of Human Resources), of Parmer, Castro, and south Deaf Smith counties will be holding their first bake sale at Sugarland Mall on Saturday starting at 9 a.m.

Anyone interested in donating baked items-cakes, cookies, cupcakes, candy, bread, etc.-may bring them to Sugarland Mall Saturday morning. Money donated will also be accepted.

All funds raised from the bake sale will go to the Foster Care Association of Parmer, Castro, and south Deaf Smith counties.

Foster Care is one of the protective services provided by the Texas Department of Human Resources. Placing a child with a substitute family during a time period while the parents are unable to care for the child is what Foster Care is all about.

The Department of Human Resources tries moving the child out of foster care and back to the parents or makes other permanent places as soon as possible. The time the foster child is in foster care depends on the situation of the child and the child's family.

The foster parents in the Hereford and surrounding communities are willing to work hard and work as part of a team with the Department of Human Resources to meet the foster child's special needs.

Your contributions to the Foster Association will be most appreciated. Children are real human beings who someday grow to adults. Our influences grow with them.

Anyone wanting to learn more about the Foster Care Association is urged to stop by the booth on Saturday at Sugarland Mall and talk with representatives.

'Things Are Changing'

GOP Leaders Celebrate Budget Cuts Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders are celebrating passage of a multibillion dollar package of budget cuts for the second time in two years, hoping it will lead to swift approval of a companion tax increase.

Congress approved the spending cuts of $13.3 billion through 1985 Wednesday night, sending the legislation to President Reagan for his signature.

"Things are changing," declared Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Finance Committee. "We're going to continue to keep pressure on spending."

"We can vote for tax reform and spending cuts, and for lower interest rates," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M.

"Or we can vote against tax reform, against spending cuts, and for higher interest rates and continuing misery for tens of millions of American workers and businesses," said Domenici, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

The measure will trim $4.2 billion from dairy price supports through 1985, $1.9 billion from food stamps and $4.1 billion from federal pension programs, in part by cutting cost-of-living increases in half for federal retirees under age 62.

But the relatively easy votes — 243-176 in the House and 67-32 in the Senate — are prelude to what is expected to be much tougher battles today and Friday over a bill to raise taxes by $98.3 billion and cut health and welfare spending by $15.2 billion more.

Together, the two measures are the foundation of a Republican-inspired plan to cut $130 billion from federal deficits over three years, a move the GOP says will help interest rates decline further and spark an economic recovery.

And Domenici made public a letter from Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve, describing the two measures as "important steps" in the direction of getting the budget under control.

"Controversy about particular provisions should not obscure that fact," Volcker wrote.

Trades Top 100 Million Shares

Stock Exchange Explodes

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the familiar image of the stock exchange resembles the chaos of a national political convention, often the traders actually slip out to escape the dull roar, to smoke a cigarette or get a bit of sun on Wall Street. But not on Wednesday.

The brokers stayed on the New York Stock Exchange floor, creating the biggest trading day in financial history. It was the day the number of shares traded topped 100 million at 1:59 p.m. EDT and a record 132.69 million at the close.

"We were very, very busy," said Tom Coash, a broker with Kidder, Peabody. But there were few problems keeping up with the swiftly moving market, he said.

Runners, or "squads," moved quickly between the brokerage stalls and the 14 trading posts on the floor, shuttling buy and sell orders.

The digital clocks on each wall read 3:59:45 when the clanging began, marking the end to the day's trading, sparking cheers and yelling from the floor.

The messengers, specialists, traders and floor managers wouldn't know the total volume until they returned to their booths a few moments later. But they knew they had been busy.

One brokerage house was ready — it had rehearsed for the big day.

Over a year ago, Merrill Lynch brought in some of its employees one Saturday to do a drill on how to handle a 100 million-share day, said John von Briesen, an account executive with E.F. Hutton.

Von Briesen expressed concern that the NYSE ticker tape, which monitors the market, was running as much as 20 minutes late — enough for major changes to occur without participants knowing about them.

The situation was worse at the Chicago Board of Options Exchange, where Wednesday's 571,413 transactions made it the second record day in a row as computers ran two hours behind.

The Midwest Stock Exchange's 8.42 million shares traded Wednesday also set a record, topping the 5.68 million shares traded Tuesday.

But James Grinder, chief NYSE spokesman, said the New York exchange has a capacity of 150 million shares "and the system works."

Despite the seeming confusion on the floor, the stock trading process is becoming more and more electronic.

Between the exchange's paper-cluttered floor and elegant ceiling hangs a gold-colored jungle-gym-like "space frame" that supports more than 500 television information screens, fed by electrical cables enclosed in a network of piping.

The screens are mounted by the dozen atop each of the 14 trading posts where the transactions take place.

While orders of 500 or fewer shares comprise about 70 percent of all exchange orders, they represent only 30 percent of daily volume. The rest are big block trades, by such institutional investors as mutual funds and pension funds.

To deal with small orders, the exchange is developing an automated reporting service.

Killer's Stay Called Abuse of Justice

HOUSTON (AP) — An attorney for a man whose execution was stayed with only hours to spare says he believes publicity on recent murder cases in Texas was partly responsible for his client's narrow escape.

"This has been murder week in Texas," said Anthony Griffin, who finally won a stay of execution for Charles Bass, 26, through a decision by a Supreme Court justice.

"You have Coral Eugene Watts (and killings in) Fort Worth, Grand Prairie and Arlington."

Watts told police last week that he killed 11 women in the Houston area. A truck driver upset over a pay dispute shot and killed six people in the Dallas suburb of Grand Prairie Aug. 9 before he was slain by police. Two days later, a former mental patient admitted fatally stabbing and slashing five people in Fort Worth.

In yet another unrelated incident, a Vietnamese refugee upset by his pending divorce killed four members of his family, then himself Wednesday.

Hereford's Town & Country Jubilee has grown tremendously over the last year's beginning event, and the schedule of activities is blossoming for the final four days.

The Chambers Singers' presentation of "Pigs, Peas, & Poison Ivy, Part II" highlights Thursday's program. The musical is set at 8 p.m. in the HHS auditorium.

The parade and Jubilee booths at Dameron Park Saturday will attract thousands of folks, and the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame Rodeo begins Friday and concludes Sunday.

Texas Man Wins $ 225,000 At Slot Machine

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A 24-year-old technician from Sherman, Texas, who was on a belated honeymoon, won $225,835 Wednesday while playing a slot machine at a Las Vegas Strip resort.

Paul Martin said he had been playing a Pot-O-Gold dollar machine at the Flamingo Hilton for about one hour when he lined up five 7s.

Martin said he and his wife, Susan, were taking a belated honeymoon and had planned to return home to Texas Wednesday afternoon, until he struck it rich.

Martin is the 23rd eligible contestant for a $1 million slot tournament which will be held April 5, 1983 at the Reno Hilton.

Castro Threatens to Broadcast to U. S.

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — President Fidel Castro warned that Cuba will start its own broadcasts to the United States if the Reagan administration broadcasts to Cuba over the proposed Radio Marti.

"We are not going to interfere, but we are going to broadcast back. I think the Americans are going to be listening to a lot of Cuban music," Castro told The Associated Press on Wednesday.

Cuba is reported building a 500,000-watt transmitter, 10 times as powerful as any legal commercial transmitter in the United States.

The Reagan administration says Radio Marti would broadcast news that is unavailable in Cuba's government-controlled media. The Cubans consider that to be a promise of anti-Castro propaganda, but the State Department said Wednesday that the planned broadcasts would be provocative to the Cuban government only if it "fears the truth."

At a reception for medalists in the just-ended Central American and Caribbean games, Castro stopped to chat informally with reporters from The Associated Press and the Voice of America. He brought up the subject of Radio Marti himself.

He called the proposal unintelligent and not subtle and said it would have been wiser for the United States to use the facilities of the Voice of America.

Castro said the new Cuban station broadcasting to the United States might be named after Abraham Lincoln.

A&M Team To Hunt Spanish Galleon In California

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M researchers say they plan an underwater electronic sweep next week off the California coast to try to find a Spanish galleon that sank in 1595 with a cargo of priceless Chinese porcelain.

A&M officials said the two-week search will be concentrated in a 4,000-acre area north of San Francisco, known as Drake's Bay. Researchers hope to locate the wreck of the 80-foot galleon San Agustin, the oldest shipwreck on the West Coast.

The three-member environmental engineering team from the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, a scientific institute affiliated with the A&M system, will begin work Aug. 23 on a 33-foot boat supplied by the U.S. Coast Guard, said Dr. Erv Garrison, leader of the project.

Drake's Bay is part of the Point Reyes National Seashore. The National Park Service awarded A&M $7,800 to conduct the offshore survey, which will include mapping any wrecks discovered in the bay, site of more than 60 shipwrecks.

The San Agustin was destroyed during a storm while anchored in the bay, Garrison said. Bits of porcelain have washed ashore in the area, he said.

The team also will try to pinpoint the location of a 202-foot steamship, the LaBouche, which sank in 1866, Garrison said.

Crank Caller Sent To Mental Hospital

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A woman whose stories led military police on a search for retired Army Gen. William C. Westmoreland has been committed to a state mental hospital, a justice of the peace says.

Ed Hammond of Monahans said the woman, who police identified as Edith Bump

Mello, 49, of El Paso, was taken to the state hospital in Big Spring after he signed an emergency committal order Wednesday afternoon.

The woman told authorities in Monahans on Tuesday that the retired four-star general had disappeared in West Texas and she suspected foul play, said Ed Starnes, a public information officer at the Fort Bliss Army post in El Paso.

She told authorities that she and Westmoreland were tracking drug smugglers and that the 68-year-old general had been picked up by UFOs, the Fort Bliss spokesman said.

Starnes said Westmoreland was located safe and sound Wednesday morning by the Department of the Army.

They said he was not aware that he was being listed as missing.

At the height of the confusion, military police sent a bulletin to police in West Texas to be on the lookout for a car the woman said Westmoreland was driving, said Col. D.B. Whitmarsh, provost marshal at Fort Bliss.

Bass' stay Tuesday "an abuse of justice."

White directed the state's flurry of federal court appeals in an attempt to carry out the execution.

When U.S. District Judge George Cire refused to grant the stay for Bass, convicted of killing a Houston city marshal, Griffin immediately appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Judges in Jackson, Miss., Houston and Austin conferred by telephone for an hour before granting the stay.

White's staff quickly prepared a petition to the U.S. Supreme Court asking that the stay be overturned. Justice Byron White, who handles appeals from the 5th Circuit, rejected the state motion about 8 p.m.

Texas officials then resubmitted the petition to Justice William H. Rehnquist who referred it to the full court. This closed all avenues for further immediate action by Texas and the execution was delayed, by state law, for at least 30 days.

White angrily called the stay "reckless" and accused Bass' lawyers of "standing justice on its head."

Under Texas law, Bass is now safe from execution for at least 30 days. Had the sentence been carried out, he would have been the nation's first convict to die by lethal injection and the first Texas prisoner executed in 18 years.

White said Bass' case already has been carried once through the federal courts and twice to the state court of criminal appeals, and now is again before the U.S. Supreme Court.

"The appeals go on and on forever," he said. "It's reckless and makes the justice system appear foolish. It's ridiculous to think (the appeals) are any more than an abuse of the judicial system."

again, Viguerie said the current domestic and foreign problems confronting the president "are going to look like a Sunday walk in the park" a year from now.

"And at age 73 or so, I just think he's going to say, hey, who needs this," said Viguerie. "I really don't see him wanting to have another five, five and one-half years more of this madness."

Dolan said that he still thinks that "the time will come when Ronald Reagan is going to say 'enough,'" and fire aides who are influencing him to take positions differing from the beliefs he expressed during his 1980 campaign.

"If Reagan were to make a mid-course change after the '82 elections and bring in some strong conservatives, people who are willing to engage in confrontation politics and throw out the accommodating, big-business types he's got around him, he'd be by far our strongest candidate in 1984," said Viguerie.

He added that if such a change doesn't occur by the end of this year, "then it's not coming."

Kid Stuff

Wilma Bryan identified Billy the Kid for viewers of Howard Suttles' western art exhibit at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame. The art show will be open Friday and Saturday as part of the Jubilee.

A map in today's issue of The Brand shows the location of booths in Dameron Park Saturday. The booths include a variety of foods, games, arts and crafts, and information, and we're sure residents will want to make the rounds for this big Jubilee event.

Participation of clubs and organizations in this year's celebration has been great, and a lot of credit goes to Sallie Strain, Garth Thomas and all the members of the Jubilee committee.

Will this year's edition of the Hostile Herd make it into the playoffs?

The potential is there, according to Whiteface boss Don Cumpton, "if we play it one game at a time like we did last year."

Cumpton's charges started workouts Monday, and the enthusiastic coach reported on the team's prospects at the Hereford Lions Club meeting Wednesday. Cumpton said the team won't have the size it had last season, but he thinks they'll make it up in quickness.

"Each season's team has a personality. We're not sure yet what kind of personality this team will have," Cumpton said the character of the team will be better seen after the first scrimmage, and the first game.

"Last year, I had a feeling after the Clovis scrimmage that the team was going to be something special," remarked Cumpton.

Referring to last year's squad, Cumpton said "we could line up and whip people, but we'll have to use more finesse this year." The coach said he expects the offense to be more explosive this year. One reason is Alfred Ball, a senior running back who Cumpton thinks will be the best to come along since James Harris set a rushing mark of 1,414 yards in 1973.

Under the new district set-up, two teams will advance bi-district playoffs. The champion of our 3-A league will play the runner-up of 4-A league, and the latter loop champ will play our runner-up. The road to the state title will now take six wins instead of five. The extra playoff game will be the "area" championship — coming between the bi-district and region playoffs.

It will be possible for two teams from the same district to meet in the fourth game, the quarterfinals of the playoffs. Wouldn't that be a nail-biter if, for instance, Hereford and Plainview clashed in the quarterfinals?

Are Bottled Beverages Safe?

Americans traveling some foreign countries, notable Mexico, are advised to "play it safe: drink only bottled beverages."

But are bottled beverages necessarily safe?

Among travelers to Mexico, 29 percent to 49 percent of tourists develop diarrhea.

Traditionally they have been advised either to boil the water or to drink only soda pop from sealed bottles.

Now, however, the American Journal of Public Health has brought together evidence that carbonated beverages may themselves be unsafe.

An outbreak of typhoid among travelers to Mexico has tentatively been traced to carbonated beverages.

For a subsequent laboratory study, similar beverage bottles were purposely inoculated with typhoid bacteria and periodically cultured and — sure enough — the bacteria survived in one bottle for two weeks, in another for six months.

In 1974, in Portugal, uncarbonated bottles of mineral water were found to be contaminated and believed related to a cholera outbreak there.

Our CDC and EPA have been keeping a close watch on bottled water in the United States since 1946 and the only suspect episode involved three people who developed minor gastroenteritis.

But our standards of cleanliness in the United States are much more strict than elsewhere, and those standards were strengthened recently.

In some countries, sanitation in the bottling process is nil.

Whether you run a risk of contracting a bacterial disease from drinking bottled beverages abroad is a question without an answer. The evidence is weak.

But seven scholars who have re-researched the very large epidemic of typhoid fever in Mexico think it important that the public be alert to the possibility of contaminated bottled products.

The extent and spread of that epidemic was without parallel in recent decades — and it included heretofore unknown typhoid bugs which resist drugs.

So these researchers — and most of them are Mexican nationals — thought it necessary to caution you.

In a lifetime in the United States we have added 20 years to the average lifetime. That is no happenstance. It derives from improved health habits, improved nutrition, improved medical care and related technology.

But perhaps more significant than any other factor is improved sanitation.

Other nations have fine doctors, technology, good diets — yet any traveler recognizes that American standards of cleanliness are incomparable.

To paraphrase Jefferson, we have a notable advantage — if we can keep it.

Plainclothes Cop Shot In Drug Raid

HOUSTON (AP) — A plainclothes policewoman shot by a fellow officer during a drug raid did not realize an order to stop was intended for her as she walked, gun drawn, to help him with an arrest, a police official says.

"She had the gun in her hand and she didn't understand that he (the other officer) was telling her to 'Hold it,'" said the officer, who asked that his name not be used.

The policewoman slain Wednesday night was identified as Kathleen Schaefer, 33.

Police Capt. J.R. Hamel said Mrs. Schaefer was the first woman in the Houston police department to be killed in the line of duty. Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd in Austin said he believed she was the first Texas policewoman to be killed in the line of duty.

Mrs. Schaefer was not wearing anything identifying her as a police officer, said the police official who asked that his name not be used.

"She was wearing plainclothes and he (the male officer) was in uniform," homicide Capt. B.F. Adams said. "Somewhere in this deal he felt he was put in a threatening situation."

Police Check Two Harrassment Calls

Police took two calls Wednesday from residents who were bothered by prowlers and harrassment.

At 705 East Third a subject who broke a window at that residence returned and was reportedly prowling around and harrassing the occupant of the home.

An ex-husband and his wife was reported bothering a resident at 711 Knight.

Bikes were stolen from 304 Western, 1007 Grand, and from Sugarland Mall.

An iron plant stand was stolen from the porch of 240 Avenue J.

Police issued one traffic citation and four parking tickets.

Officers blocked off a section of Elm Street during the noon hour Wednesday while fire vehicles checked out a kitchen fire at 233 Elm.

Jubilee Banners Stolen

The week of festivities in Hereford has been no jubilee for Key Clubbers, who report the theft of six to a dozen rental banners.

Each red, white and blue banner costs $25 to $75 to replace and Gene Brock, club sponsor, said the loss is eating up the organization's profits.

Brock's hypothesis is that there are "a lot taken by young people" because the banners would make a popular decoration. He said police have been notified of the thefts and are keeping a tighter watch on the businesses with the banners.

Those who pilfer the banners are committing a misdemeanor, however Brock said if any banners are returned to either the police station or the Chamber of Commerce office no questions would be asked and no charges filed.

The decorations are reported missing from Pro Sports Shop, J.J's Hair Fashions, a doctor's office, Suit's Auto and Hereford State Bank.

Eleven Accidents Reported

Sergeant Billy Don Scott, Area supervisor of Deaf Smith County, reports for the month of July the Texas Highway Patrol troopers investigated a total of 11 accidents in this county. There was one fatal accident with a total of two persons killed, four injury accidents with a total of eight persons injured, and six property damage accidents.

In District 5B, which includes the top 31 counties of the Texas Panhandle, there were 269 accidents investigated by the Texas Highway Patrol. Highway Patrol Captain Bob Russell reports that the Texas Highway Patrol Troopers investigated nine fatal accidents with a total of 11 persons killed, 103 injury accidents with a 193 persons injured, and 157 property damage accidents.

Hereford Teacher Honored for Service

Karlen Moore, vocational homemaking teacher of Hereford Independent Schools, was honored at the Vocational Homemaking Teachers Association of Texas 19th Annual Awards Banquet held last week in Dallas.

Mrs. Moore, who resides at No. 2 Havenwood Lane in Canyon, was recognized for her thirty years of service to the vocational program in Texas and Nebraska.

The award was presented during the annual banquet program which is held during the statewide in-service education workshop for homemaking teachers. Leaders in vocational homemaking from throughout the state participated in the four day in-service meeting.

Educational features of the meeting were under the direction of Jean Barton, Director of Homemaking Education, Texas Education Agency, Austin.

Mrs. Moore's students have held offices on the area, state, and national level, while under her supervision. Thirty or more of her students have received state degrees and five students have received third level Encounter Awards during her thirty years of teaching.

She holds State Future Homemakers of America Honorary Membership in Nebraska and Texas.

Mrs. Moore has been active in the professional organizations in which she belongs including TSTA, AVA, Delta Kappa Gamma, NEA, AHEA, AND THEA.

Mrs. Moore has a bachelor of science degree from Oklahoma State University and a master of education from West Texas State University.

Finishing Touch

Monogrammed articles will be displayed by Jan Metcalf during the Jubilee of Arts, Friday through Sunday at the Community Center. The event is being held in conjunction with the Hereford Town and Country Jubilee and will be open from 1 to 6 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Approximately 100 artists, from Hereford and the area, will be participating and the public is invited to attend.

Class Holds First Meeting

The Kingdom Seekers Sunday school class from Avenue Baptist Church held their first meeting of the new season Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Joe Brown. The opening prayer was led by Mrs. Coy Tice, and Mrs. G.W. Duncan gave a devotional from I Thess. 5:18. Mrs. Tice was in charge of a scrambled Bible game.

Others present were Mrs. Homer Thomas, Johnnie Townsend, Velma Carroll, Billie Wall, Bennie Manley, and Mrs. Don Houle.

HOSPITAL FUND

A hospital fund has been established at Hereford State Bank and First National Bank for Kim Blackwell, who was injured several weeks ago in an automobile accident.

The first Christmas Seals, designed by Emily P. Bissel of Wilmington Del., were placed on sale in the local post office on Dec. 9, 1907. The proceeds were devoted to the campaign against tuberculosis.

I Loved You Enough

Some day when my children are old enough to understand the logic that motivates a mother, I will tell them:

I loved you enough to ask you about where you were going, with whom, and what time you would get home.

I loved you enough to insist that you buy a bike that we could afford to give you with your own money.

I loved you enough to be silent and let you discover that your hand-picked friend was a creep.

I loved you enough to make you return a Milky Way - with a bite out of it - to a drugstore and to confess: "I stole this."

I loved you enough to stand over you for two hours while you cleaned your room, a job that would have taken me fifteen minutes.

I loved you enough to let you see anger, disappointment, disgust, and tears in my eyes.

I loved you enough to admit I was wrong and ask for your forgiveness.

I loved you enough to let you stumble, fall, and hurt.

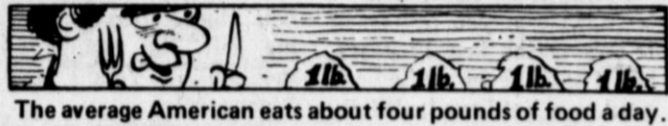

I loved you enough to let you assume the responsibility for your actions at 6, 10, or 16.

But, most of all, I loved you enough to say NO when you hated me for it. That was the hardest part of all.

Members of Toujor Amis Study Club will be selling chocolate and praline ice cream crepes Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Community Center during the Town and Country Jubilee. The crepes were so popular the one day the club sold them last year, that club members decided to sell them all three days for this year's Jubilee. Beverages will also be sold, and ham and cheese sandwiches and donuts will be added to the menu on Saturday. Getting ready, left to right, are Marilyn Leasure, Nanette Ashby, Teri Morgan, Marsha Winget, Marcia Boyer, and Nena Veazey. (Brand Photo by Jeri Curtis).

Self-Image Seminar Scheduled Here

Perry and Polly Cowin, widely-known counselors in family life, marriage, and finances, will conduct a seminar on "Building a Healthy Self-Image" at the First Assembly of God, 606 E. 15th St., Sunday through Tuesday. The seminar will begin at 6 p.m. on Sunday and at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday. The Cowins have traveled to many states to teach and speak in churches of all denominations. They have also spoken in schools, for Christian Women's Clubs, Women's Aglow Chapter, and Teen Challenge groups.

They taught a community service course at Westark Community College, Fort Smith Ark., and they have appeared on numerous television and radio programs.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had to laugh when I read that letter from the woman who said slacks were the perfect solution for females who don't have pretty legs. Do they ever give a thought to what the rest of their anatomy looks like?

Stand on any street corner and watch the parade of women in slacks who have huge rear ends, bulging thighs and rolls of fat around their middle. Repulsive is too mild a word to describe them.

Please tell those humungus mamas to get back into skirts—full ones with lots of material. They hide a multitude of sins. Sign me—Revolted Robert In Campbellville, Ky.

DEAR R.R.: I am not going to tell them anything. "Humungus mamas" are not famous for listening. Here's another letter on a related subject.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is my wife crazy or not? At age 45 she has decided she no longer looks good in short skirts. She hates slacks—says they look unfeminine on anyone over 25, and are hot as Hades in the summer.

A few months ago she took out the old Singer sewing machine and made herself several long skirts and wears them with her "prairie blouses." She looks like my grandmother. Everyone gawks, and it makes me uncomfortable. Any advice?—No Pioneer In Hagerstown

DEAR N.P.: Apparently your wife is uncomfortable in slacks and you are uncomfortable when she wears long skirts. The decision is going to rest on which is more important—your comfort or hers. I suggest a compromise. When she's with you she could leave the Granny outfits at home. I don't believe it would be asking too much.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have written you dozens of letters in the last 10 years, and I have never mailed one until now. Yet I can truthfully say you have helped me a great deal. Let me explain.

When I ran into trouble in my life, I would sit down and write you about it. In order to put my thoughts down on paper, I had to think in a logical manner and figure out how the trouble started. By the time I got to the end of the letter, I could see many aspects of the problem that I hadn't seen before. I also was able to see where I fit into the picture, and what I did that was wrong.

There have been times when I have written you as many as 12 pages in longhand. One letter, I remember, was filled with cuss words which I almost never use. I went on and on about how badly I had been treated by a close friend. When I finished the letter, I reread it and suddenly I burst into laughter. It read like a trashy novel and I sounded like a crazy loon.

I guess what I want to say is thank you, Ann Landers, for being there. This letter is going into the mailbox immediately. — Your Friend In Alpena, Mich.

DEAR FRIEND: Your letter was a real day-brightener. Thanks for letting me know.

DEAR ANN: A brief word of advice for stepparents. I learned the hard way. Stay in the background. Don't try too hard. Wait for the "new" family to come to you. Be pleasant but not overly generous or eager to help or please. In time, you will be accepted. Some things can't be rushed. — Wiser Now In Con.

DEAR WISER: Words of wisdom. Thanks for sharing.

Group Returns From Trailways Tours

Robert and Alice Thompson, escorts for Trailways Tours of Amarillo, have returned from a 13-day tour to some of the National Parks and other attractions in several states.

Included in the tour was a visit to Colorado Springs where they traveled to the Garden of the Gods and the U.S. Airforce Academy.

In Denver, the group visited the Museum of Natural History the U.S. Mint and Colorado's gold-domed capitol building.

An overnight's stay in Cheyenne featured an evening at the Cheyenne Frontier Days which for over 80 years acclaimed as "the daddy of them all". The group participated in chuck wagon racing and a musical extravaganza headed by country music singer, Ronnie Millsap.

Attractions in South Dakota included an evening at Spearfish and the famous Black Hills Passion Play, an all-day tour of the scenic Black Hills, Mount Rushmore and a drive through Custer State Park.

The group also traveled to Custer Battlefield National Monument, and later that day, a program on Indian lore was presented in Billings, Mont.

A tour was taken at Yellowstone National Park with the day's travel concluded at Old Faithful Geyser. From Yellowstone, a tour was taken of Teton National park.

After spending a night at Jackson Hall, Wyo., the tour traveled down the Snake River Valley across Idaho and into Utah to Salt Lake City.

That evening the group explored Temple Square and attended an organ recital at the Mormon Tabernacle. Later, they traveled through Price Canyon on their way to Colorado.

Near Grand Junction, the group toured Colorado National Monument. They then went to Silverton and traveled to Durango and Mesa Verde National Park.

From Durango, they went to Albuquerque at Sheraton Inn Old Town.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Millions of Americans suffer from varying degrees of some kind of phobia.

The choices are extensive and run from claustrophobia (dread of small places) to agoraphobia (dread of large places) and every fear in between.

Some of these fears people can talk about. Some of them they can't. A professional dancer has just come out of the closet with his phobia and guess what he's suffering from? Claustrophobia? Wrong. He's plagued by "Bunophobia," the fear of finding yourself in possession of a fat and sagging derriere.

His name is Cal Del Pozo and he's just written a book called "Bunnetics." In it, he provides guidelines for evaluation derrieres and offers a series of exercises to firm up.

Is he serious? You're listening to a woman who has been attached to a wide load U-Haul for years. Women, in general, suffer from the granddaddy of all phobias: SAGHOPHOBIA, the fear of the entire body falling. To us, it isn't a question of what falls. Our big concern is when and how far.

Bunophobia has never been one of my priorities, nor is anything I don't have to look at. It's like fussing with the back of your hair. You never see it, so who cares.

Most of my friends dread, "Elasticphobia," the fear of their stomach dropping and bruising their knees.

Poultryphobia will also cause rapid heart rate, shortness of breath, trembling, blurred vision and dizziness. This is a fear of getting compliments on your ribbed turtle-neck sweater when you're not wearing one.

I've seen women tortured from Jellophobia who will not leave the house or expose themselves to light. They fear when they raise their arms, you won't be able to see light coming through.

At the moment, I'm plagued by Desertphobia. This is where the sand has shifted and the 15 or 20 extra pounds you've carried for years has settled just above each knee. You can't walk across the floor without sounding like someone is applauding.

Throughout the years, there have been exercises for treating these symptoms, but they seem so drastic. Since the beginning of time, there have been women who have fallen.

The ones with Sagphobia are the ones we can talk about in a family newspaper.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you send me some information on varicose veins? I am 21 years old and have problems with my legs. I had an operation to have some of my veins cut. After the operation I got small wirey veins where the doctor cut me.

For my age and never having children the doctor was surprised at the condition of my legs. I have some pain once in a while. The only way I can get relief is to prop up my feet. If I stand on my feet any length of time I feel a discomfort in my calves.

Is there anything I can do to help my condition? My legs are so bad I don't like to wear shorts in the summer.

I have been told that I should prop the end of my bed up, not wear heels and not run. Are these veins caused by lack of circulation in my legs? If so, are there some exercises I can do to improve them?

DEAR READER — It is unusual to have a severe case of varicose veins at your age if you have not been pregnant. Varicose veins are overstretched veins. When they get too dilated the valves inside the veins that prevent blood from running back downhill toward your foot don't meet. They are leaky valves and allow the blood to accumulate in your enlarged veins.

Your goal should be to prevent overfilling of your veins with blood. Standing contributes to overfilling. So does pressure on the back of the thighs when you are sitting if your seat presses on your thighs. And so will tight garments, including garters and even girdles.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When I am cold or nervous my skin turns a terrible splotched, reddish-bluish-purple color, especially my legs and hands. Can you tell me what causes this? Is it poor circulation?

DEAR READER — There are two likely possibilities, depending on what the changes really look like. If your capillary and venous blood is trapped in the skin from local reflex changes you will develop cyanosis, which causes such color changes. The blood is stagnant in the tissues longer than usual and more oxygen is extracted from the blood. The lower oxygen content causes a change in the hemoglobin pigment to a dark hue. This does not mean your major circulation is not working properly.

Some families seem to be able to handle the ups and downs of everyday living with greater ease than other families, says Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The cheapie suitor gives her a ring — and then reverses the charges.

What makes one family stronger or more capable than others? Research studies during the past decade have identified several common threads among many successful families.

In strong families, members are united; they are all working toward the same goals.
